The suit was initially filed by Sri Gopal Singh Visharad. After his death, his son Sri Rajendra Singh was substituted at his place. The plaintiff has sought following reliefs;

Pages 30-59

It be declared that plaintiff is entitled for worship and offering prayers without any interruption of the deity of Lord Rama installed at Ram Janam Bhumi for which particulars are available at the foot of the plaint and further defendant nos.1 to 6 or their heirs and defendant nos. 7 to 9 and defendant no.10 be restrained not to interfere in the aforesaid right of the plaintiff. The defendants be restrained from removing the idols from the disputed place and be further restrained not to cause any hindrance in the entry of the plaintiff and also be prohibited not to close the entry door causing hindrance in the worship and Darshan of the plaintiff. The plaintiff be granted any other relief deemed fit by court along with costs.

The details of the disputed property are as under:-- East – Bhandar and platform of Janam Bhoomi.
West—Parti land
North—Sita Rasoi
South—Parti land

Plaintiff claims that he is the follower of Sanatan Dharm and used to worship and Darshan of God and Goddesses like his father. The plaintiff in the birth spot of Lord Rama was worshipping the deity of Lord Ram Chandra at foot steps etc. and was continuing visiting the spot for offering prayers and for Darshan without any interruption and hindrance and he is also entitled to perform his religious duties in future also. On 14.1.1950, late Gopal Singh Visharad, the original plaintiff, visited Ram Janam Bhumi site but the employees of defendant no.6 restrained him from entering into the place where the deity of Lord Ram Chandra Ji was installed and the same was done under the influence of defendant nos. 1 to 5 and persons of their community. Thus they have restrained Hindus from worshipping the above deity without any justification. They have also declared that they would interfere in the prayers and worship of Hindus which amounts to interference in religious rights illegally. Employees of defendant no.6 are defendants no. 7 to 9 and they are illegally pressurizing the Hindus to remove the idols installed at the birth place of Lord Ram. It is further averred that in view of the declaration of Queen Victoria which she made and under the Government of India Act, 1935 the act on the part of the defendants no.1 to 5 and further of defendant nos. 6 to 9 is contrary to the declaration and also against the law which has compelled the plaintiff to file the suit. The cause of action arose on 14.1.1950 within the jurisdiction of the court when the defendants interfered with the rights of the plaintiff and restrained him from discharging his various religious obligations. After the death of the plaintiff, his son is entitled to maintain the present suit. Defendant nos. 1 to 5 are also no more and it is not necessary to implead his successors. Defendant no.10 has been arrayed in accordance with the directions of this Court dated 17.10.88 and the relief has also been sought against him.

Defendants no. 1 to 5 have died. Plaintiff has not substituted any person on their place. Prior to their death the defendants no. 1 to 5 had filed their written statement on 21.2.50 wherein they stated that the land in suit is not Ram Janam Bhumi but it is a mosque constructed by emperor Babar. This mosque was constructed by Emperor Babar through his minister Mir Baqi in the year 1528 and dedicated it as waqf for use of Muslim community. Every Muslim has a right to worship in this Mosque. The grant of Rs. 60 was allowed by Emperor Babar from Royal Treasury which continued during Mughal period and during the reign of Nawabs of Oudh. This amount was enhanced to the tune of Rs. 302, 3 ana and 6 pai. This continued even during the British Government. During the period of settlement, the British Government granted rent free land in the villages Solapuri and Bahoranpur. In the year 1885, Mahant Raghubar Das had filed a suit against Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohd. Asgar Mutwalli of Babri Mosque in the Court of Sub-Judge, Faizabad for the declaration of his title.A map was appended with the plaint wherein the mosque was clearly shown and was not denied and only relief was sought regarding a platform, therefore, the plaintiff is estopped from saying that entire land in suit belongs to Ram Janam Bhumi temple. This fact is completely false and groundless. The Sub-Judge, Faizabad had dismissed the suit on 24.12.1885.

This verdict was upheld by appellate court and the remark of Sub-Judge in favour of the plaintiff regarding title over the platform in suit was also struck off and so many Mahants of Ayodhya on behalf of the Hindu public had contested the suit and all the Hindus had full knowledge of this litigation. As per provision of Act No.13

of 1936, the Chief Commissioner of Waqf was appointed who after inspection of the site of Babri Mosque declared that this mosque was built by Emperor Babar and is a Sunni Waqf. Accordingly requisite notification was issued. The Muslim community is in continuous possession over Babri Mosque since 1528 and therefore if plaintiff or any other Hindus succeed in proving that at any point of time there was a temple over the land in suit, in that event also having been in possession for more than 400 years over the land in suit as public mosque no right or title remained with the plaintiff and the same has been extinguished by the lapse of time and plaintiff had no right of possession over the property in suit. Therefore, the suit is barred by Section 42 Specific Relief Act and is also time barred of which no application has been moved by the plaintiff under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. and no right has been claimed through the Hindu community. Therefore, the suit is not maintainable. The suit is barred for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. Namaz was offered in the Babri Mosque on 16.12.1949 and there was no idol in it. If any, idol has been installed surreptitiously and stealthily in that event also no Hindu has right to enter into the mosque for having Darshan of the said idol or worship over there. Accordingly civil court has no jurisdiction to grant any relief in favour of the plaintiff. There is mis-joinder by defendants no.6 to 9 in the present suit. The proceeding initiated under Section 145 Cr.P.C. has been commenced with ulterior motive with the aid and knowledge of the then City Magistrate. There is a temple known as Janam Sthan Sri Ram Chandra Ji where idols of

Ram Chandra Ji and other Gods are installed. The suit is liable to be dismissed. The plaintiff has filed replication reiterating the facts given in the plaint.

Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad, defendant no.6 has also filed written statement wherein it is stated that notice as contemplated under Section 80 C.P.C. has not been served on defendant no.6, therefore this suit is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone. The plaint allegations are fake. There is no cause of action for the suit. In the intervening night of 22nd December, 1949, the idols of Sri Ram Chandra Ji surreptitiously and wrongly put inside the disputed property resulting threat to public peace and tranquility. The public authorities had to be intervened in order to prevent breach of peace. The City Magistrate, Guru Dut Singh passed an order on 23.12.49 under Section 144 Cr.P.C. prohibiting the carrying of fire arms etc. and assemblage of more than 5 persons within the limits of Faizabad and Ayodhya Municipalities. On the same date, the Additional City Magistrate, Sri Markendey Singh on police report and other information, passed orders under Section 145 Cr.P.C. calling upon the claimants to the premises to appear and file their written statements by 17.1.1950. The said Magistrate being of opinion that the case was one of emergency, attached the said suit property and appointed Sri Priya Datt Ram, Chairman, Municipal Board, Faizabad-cum-Ayodhya as a Receiver of the said property and authorised him to manage the same and further directed him to submit a scheme for the management thereof.

The City Magistrate, defendant no.8 filed written statement on 25.4.50 wherein he has stated all the facts which have already been mentioned in the WS of defendant no.6.

Defendant no.9 S.P., Faizabad has also filed written statement reiterating all the facts mentioned in the written statement of Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad and the City Magistrate mentioned hereinbefore.

Defendant no.10, U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf has also filed written statement on 24.2.89 through its Secretary Zamir Ahmad Khan who has stated that the building referred to in the plaint is not the Janam Bhumi of Sri Ram Chandra Ji and no idols of Sri Ram Chandra Ji were installed in the said building and as such there arises no question of any right or claim of the plaintiff to perform Pooja and Darshan over there. Property in suit is a mosque known as Babri Mosque and the same was constructed during the regime of Emperor Babar. On 22/23.12.49, idol was surreptitiously and stealthily kept in the mosque by some mischievous elements. This mosque was never used for performing Pooja and Darshan. The property in suit is an old mosque constructed around the year 1528 during the regime of Emperor Babar under the supervision of Mir Baqi and the same has already been used as a mosque and it was never used as a temple or as a place of worship for any other community except Muslims. The Emperor Babar had given a grant of Rs. 60 per annum for the maintenance and annual repairs and other expenses relating to the said mosque which was paid during the Mughal period and during the regimes of Nawab of Oudh the said grant was enhanced and the British Government had also continued the said grant and at the time of the first settlement as a Mafi expenses of the said mosque.

In 1885 Mahant Raghubar Das(Mahant of Janam Sthan of Ayodhya) had filed a suit against the Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohd. Asgar, Mutwalli of the mosque, in the Court of Sub-Judge, Faizabad in which the site plan was annexed alongwith the plaint and in the said site plan the mosque in question was specifically mentioned in the western side of the Chabutra in respect whereof the suit was filed for permission to erect temple over the said Chabutra. In respect of the said Chabutra the said Mahant Raghubar Das had stated that the temple of Janam Bhumi was desired to be constructed over there, but the said Mahant could not succeed even in that suit which was ultimately dismissed on 24.12.1885 by the Sub Judge, Faizabad and the appeal filed against the said judgment and decree dated 24.12.85 was also dismissed by the District Judge, Faizabad and the second appeal filed against the same had also been dismissed by the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh.

The aforesaid suit was filed by the Mahant Raghubar Das on behalf of other Mahants and Hindus of Ayodhya and Faizabad. That after the proclamation of U.P. Muslims Waqf Act 1936, the Chief Commissioner of Waqfs had got a survey made in respect of properties and in that connection survey of the mosque in question was also conducted and the same was registered as a waqf and a gazette notification had also been issued in respect thereto under the provisions of the said Act. Muslims had all along remained in possession of the said mosque right from 1528 upto the date of the attachment of the said mosque under Section 145 Cr.P.C. in December, 1949. The said mosque stands registered as a mosque in the office of the U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf as Waqf No. 26 Faizabad even in the register of Waqfs maintained under Section 30 of the U.P. Mislim Waqf Act,1960.

Plaintiff had never been in possession or occupation of the building in suit. He has no right, title or claim over the said property and as such the suit is even barred by the provisions of Section 41 of the Specific Relief Act. Muslims remained in possession over the property in suit from 1528, therefore, the suit is barred by time. The plaintiff has not been able to set up any right or title on the basis of customary or easementary right. The suit is bad for want of permission under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. and notice under Section 80 C.P.C. and is liable to be rejected under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. Keeping of the idol in the mosque in the night of 22/23rd December, 1949 will not confer any right or any title upon the plaintiff as it was done stealthily and in the mischievous manner. It has further been stated by the U.P. Central Board of Waqf that the attachment of mosque was unjust, improper and illegal. The ownership of the mosque in question vests in the God Almighty and the said mosque is a waqf property and its character cannot be challenged. The suit is barred by the provisions of U.P. Muslims Waqf Act 1936. The substituted plaintiff cannot even claim those alleged rights which were set up by his father. The judgment in original suit no. 61/280 of 1885 will operate as res judicata. The plaintiff is estopped from claiming the mosque in question as the Janam Bhumi as the plaintiff's predecessors Mahant Raghubar Das had confined his claim to the Chabutra of 17' X 21' outside the said mosque. Thus, the suit is liable to be dismissed with special costs.

Sri Goswami States ABCDEF is the land and building in suit as indicated in the map of the Commissioner Sri Shiva Shanker Lal dated 25.5.50. It is the temple since 1934. Deities installed are Sri Sri Ram. The building existed prior to 1934. The plaintiff can't say for how long it have been existing. The plaintiff can't say who built it and what it was prior to 1934. Sri Gopal Singh Visharad came in on about 1934 to Ajudhya. He saw the (murti) there, and began to worship them. Sri Paramhans instructs that the (murti) were there from before 1934. Whenever he saw it was a temple. It has always been a temple. He can't say who got it constructed and dedicated.

The plaintiff do not admit that at any time the building was used for prayer or as a Mosque by the Mohammaden community. Babar never built it. He was never emperor of India. I deny that it was ever used as a mosque.

The plaintiffs confine their case to the construction shown by letters ABCDLKJPOHNGA as shown in the map of the Commissioner dated 25.5.50. The Chabutra and Mandir shown in the map of the Commissioner as “Ram Chabutra” and “Bhandar” are the same as those described in the eastern boundary of the temple in question in the plaint.

The replication para 31 filed in suit no. 25 of 1950 by

Defendant Gopal Singh Visharad and Sri Param Hans Ram Chandra plaintiffs of both the suits no. 2/50 and 25 of 1950 accompanied by their counsel state that they do not want any relief with regard to constructions or structures indicated in the map of the Commissioner Shiv Shankar Lal dated 25.05.50. by the terms 'Sita Rasoi', 'Bhandar' and 'Ram Chabutra'. They say that the reliefs are asked for only with regard to property included in the said map by letters A, B, C, D, L, K, J, P, O, H, N, G, A.

They further add that the term ' Janam Bhumi used in the plaint refers to Janam Bhumi of Sri Ram Chandra Ji and according the plaintiff's belief the property in the suit is the site of the same.

They add that there is no foot prints carved out on any stone or any stone image of any Charan Paduka referred to in para 2 of the plaint.

According to them at the place in suit near the idol of Bhagwan Ram Chandra Ji are kept wooden sandals or Charan Paduka and also a small pair of silver Charan Paduka . They are not fixed to any stone, structure or floor but are placed loose near the idol.

They are that the idol of Bhagwan Ram Chandra Ji at the place in suit is an Achal idol.

They add that in plaintiffs claim right of worship with regard to the said Idol and also with regard to the 'Charan Paduka'.

www.vadaprativada.com

The plaintiffs also claim a right to worship all the deities and idols situated in the property in suit besides that of Bhagwan Ram Chandra Ji as for example Laxman Ji, Hanuman Ji, Sita Ji, Saliqram Ji, etc. They also claim a right to worship and have Darshan of these as well as they have a right to a Darshan of the site in question, as according to their belief it is the birth place of Sri Ram Chandra Ji.

ISSUE NO. 13.

Is the Suit No.2 of 50 Shri Gopal Singh Visharad Vs. Zahoor Ahmad bad for want of notice under section 80 C.P.C. ?

www.vadaprativada.com

It is contended on behalf of the defendants that the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. and is liable to be dismissed on this count. In this regard it would be pertinent to refer Section 80 C.P.C., which used to exist at the time of filing the suit, which reads as under:-

> "80. No suit shall be instituted against the Government or against a public officer in respect of any act purporting to be done by such public officer in his official capacity, until the expiration of two months next after notice in writing has been delivered to or left at the office of-
> (a) in the case of a suit against the Central Government, except where it relates to a railway, a Secretary to that Government;
>
> (b) in the case of a suit against the Central Government where it relates to a railway, the General Manager of the railway;
> (c) in the case of a suit against a State Government, a Secretary to that Government or the Collector of the district:
> and, in the case of public officer, delivered to him or left at his office, stating the cause of action, the name, description and place of residence of the plaintiff and the relief which he claims; and the plaint shall contain a statement that such notice has been so delivered."

Section 80 C.P.C. is first step in litigation when the cause

of action is complete. It provides that service of advance copy of plaint on defendant or defendants and no suit shall be instituted until expiry of two months after such service. It does not define right of parties or confer any rights on the parties. It only provides mode of procedure for getting the relief in respect of cause of action. It lays down rule of procedure and does not define substantial right. The first part dealing with that the service of notice is mandatory. Second part of which relates to the contents of the plaint is not mandatory. In case of failure to give notice, Section imposes statutory and unqualified obligation of Court and the suit not complied with Section 80 C.P.C. cannot be entertained and if instituted, the plaint must be rejected under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. It further transpires that defendants, District Magistrate, City Magistrate and Superintendent of Police acted in discharge of their official capacity, accordingly failure to give notice is fatal in this case. It is a settled proposition of law that a suit against the Government or Public Officer to which the requirement of a public notice under Section 80 of Code of Civil Procedure is attracted, cannot be validly instituted even after giving the notice until the expiry of the period of two months, next after the notice in writing has been delivered to the authority concerned in the manner prescribed in the Section. It further transpires that the whole object of serving a notice under Section 80 is to give Government sufficient warning in the case proposed to be instituted so that Government can settle the claim without litigation.

The Section has been enacted as a measure of public policy with the object of ensuring that before a suit is instituted against the government or a public officer, the government or the officer concerned is afforded an opportunity to scrutinize the claim and if it be found a just claim, to take immediate action and thereby avoid unnecessary litigation and save public time and money by settling the claim without driving the person who has issued the notice to re-institute the suit involving considerable expenditure and delay. Thus if for want of statutory notice, the suit must fail. The public purpose underlying the provisions of Section 80, is for the advancement of justice and securing of public goods by avoidance of unnecessary litigation. The language of the section is express, explicit and mandatory and it admits no exception. Therefore, it is the plaintiff's duty of the court to give effect to it and considerations of hardship will not be a legitimate ground for not faithfully implementing the mandate of the legislature. Plaintiff has not referred anything in the plaint as to why he has failed to make a substantial compliance of Section 80 C.P.C. Further in view of the fact that parties have advanced the arguments and the matter is tied up, accordingly I think this is not a fit case in which the plaint has to be rejected by invoking power under Order 7 Rule-11 C.P.C.

Since this is a suit for declaration, accordingly in view of the decision of Hon'ble Privy Council in the case of Bhagchand Dagdusa Gujrathi and Ors. v. Secretary of State for India, AIR 1927 Privy Council 176, notice under Section 80 C.P.C. is required to be given before filing the suit for declaration. It further transpires that the plaintiff has also sought relief for injunction. The Privy Council in the case referred (supra) approved the decision of Allahabad High Court in Bachchu Vs Secretary of State (1902) 25 All. 187 and took a view that Section 80 should be strictly complied with to all form of actions and all kind of relief including the suit for injunction. Their Lordships took a view that Section 80 imposes a statutory and unqualified obligation upon the Court to ensure the compliance of Section 80 C.P.C. This Court in Union of India Vs. Brignath Rai, AIR 1971 All. 209 held that Section 80 applies for all suits for injunction perpetual, prohibitory and mandatory. Thus in view of the fore going decision, I am of the view that Shri Gopal Singh Visharad ought to have filed the suit after giving notice under Section 80 C.P.C. and the instant suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. Issue no. 13 is decided against the plaintiff and in favour of the defendant.

ISSUE NO. 8

Is the suit barred by proviso to section 42 Specific Relief Act.?

FINDINGS

On behalf of the defendants it is urged that the instant suit is barred by the proviso to section 42 of the Specific Relief Act, 1877 which reads as under :-

> "42. Any person entitled to any legal character (b), or to any right as to any property, may institute a suit against any person denying, or interested to deny, his title to such character or right, and the Court may in its discretion make therein a declaration that he is so entitled (c ) and the plaintiff need not in such suit ask for any further relief (d):

Provided that no Court shall make any such declaration where the plaintiff, being able to seek further relief than a mere declaration of title, omits to do so (e).

Explanation.- A trustee of property is a "person interested to deny" a title adverse to the title of some one who is not in existence, and for whom, if in existence, he would be a trustee."

www.vadaprativada.com

It has been urged on behalf of the plaintiff that the plaintiff is not entitled for any declaration in view of the express bar of the proviso. The scope of the Section is that (1) plaintiff must be a person entitled to a legal character or to any right as to any property. (2) The defendant must be a person denying or interested to deny must have title to such character and the declaration must be of a legal character or to a right to the property and the plaintiff is able to seek mere declaration of title, he must seeks such relief. If any of the three conditions are not fulfilled, the suit must be dismissed. In this context, new Section 34 of Specific Relief Act, 1963 also deals with the legal character. Thus, according to Section 42, presently of Section 34 of Specific Relief Act any person entitled to a legal character or to any right as to any property may institute a suit against any person denying or interested to deny his title to such character or right and the court may in its discretion make a declaration that he is/was entitled. In this suit the plaintiff has not come out with a case that he had any right to institute the suit denying the title of the defendants. Moreover, it is further clear that plaintiff's right must subsist on the date of the suit as well as on the date of decree vide Bhagauti Prasad Khetan and others Vs. Laxminathji Maharaj and others, AIR 1985 All. 228. It is now clear that the so called temple or place of worship in the year 1950 had already been demolished on 6th December, 1992. Consequently with the changed situation at present the plaintiff's right does not subsist. The plaintiff has not come out with a case that after the death of his father, anybody forbade him to worship the deity. In this case plaintiff has failed to establish his legal character for the reasons that it has nowhere been stated by him that he was forbidden not to offer prayers before the deity.

The only grievance of the plaintiff is that his father was not allowed to touch the deity for which there is an explanation from the side of the State Government that there was tense law and order situation, accordingly the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. were instituted and arrangements were made for the betterment of the property in suit by the receiver Shri Priya Dut Ram. It is further urged that to avoid any imperiling public peace and tranquility, authorities throughout acted in a manner warranted by law for maintenance of public peace on the festival. It is nobody's case that the plaintiff's father was deprived of Darshan. The only grievance of the plaintiff is that his father was not allowed to touch the deity. The case of the defendant no.6 is that in view of the crowd on the festival day it was necessary to regulate the same and it was not possible that people may worship with touching the idol. Consequently, the restriction was reasonable. The plaintiff was not denied to worship deity. Darshan is also a kind of worship. The crowd cannot be allowed to touch the deity specially under a circumstance when the property was already attached and prohibitory order was issued under Section 145 Cr.P.C. earlier. Thus, the suit for declaration appears to be not maintainable in view of proviso to Section 42 of Specific Relief Act as the plaintiff has failed to establish his legal character. It is further clear that the plaintiff's right does not subsist on the date of the decree for the reason that the property has already been demolished and it has nowhere been mentioned in the plaint that after the demolition of the property, the plaintiff was deprived of having any Darshan. It has to be left to the discretion of the authority to decide about arrangement to be made in public interest and to secure a public peace. This cannot be a cause of grievance. Darshan comes within the category of worship. Darshan of the deity was not denied to the plaintiff's father. Consequently to my mind there was no cause of action to file the instant suit and specially in the circumstance that plaintiff has no legal character and this is not a case where the Court should exercise any discretion and pass any decree as prayed for, for the reasons that the present plaintiff had neither visited the place of worship before its demolition and was not deprived of worship. It is not the case that uniform standard was not applied to other worshippers in allowing prayers and worship of deity. Thus, the procedure so adopted was uniform. The administration rightly maintained peace and public tranquility by regulating the crowd. This is not a case in which a discretion has to be exercised in favour of the plaintiff by allowing the suit of declaration to obstruct the discharge of administrative functioning of the State. The State authority acted bonafidely without causing any interference or hindrance in the worship of Hindus and only controlled the crowd and allowed privileges of Darshan to everybody including the plaintiff. The plaintiff's case does not fall within the special category through which he could ask for more rights than other worshippers. Thus on this count also, the suit for declaration and injunction fails.

a. Are the provisions of section 91 C.P.C. applicable to present suit ? If so is the suit bad for want of consent in writing by the advocate general ?

b. Are the rights set up by the plaintiff in this suit independent of the provisions of section 91 C.P.C. ? if not its effect. ?

FINDINGS

According to the plaint averments, it is clear that suit was filed in individual capacity. There is nothing on record to suggest that the suit was in the nature of representative capacity or it was a case of public nuisance. Consequently, the plaintiff has not rightly approached Advocate General by not treating the case as public nuisance under Section 91 of C.P.C. Section 91 C.P.C. then in force

reads as under :-

> "91. (1) In the case of a public nuisance the Advocate General or two or more persons having obtained the consent in writing of the Advocate General, may institute a suit, though no special damage has been caused, for a declaration and injunction or for such other relief as may be appropriate to the circumstances of the case.

It further transpires that for alleged civil wrong, the suit was filed. Accordingly the question of complying Section 91 C.P.C. does not arise. I further feel that from the bundle of facts, it does not transpire that the plaintiff has said that there was any public nuisance. Consequently, this Court is unable to presume that the case falls within the ambit of public nuisance and thus, provisions of Section 91 C.P.C., then in force, are not attracted at the time of filing the suit. Issues No. 11-(a) and 11(b) are decided accordingly in favour of plaintiff and against the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 12

Is the suit bad for want of steps and notices under order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. ? If so its effect. ?

FINDINGS

It is urged on behalf of the defendants that the suit is bad for

want of steps under Order 1 Rule-8 C.P.C. The plaintiff has come out with a case that suit does not fall within the ambit of Section 92 C.P.C. as it was not a case having representative character. Consequently, the procedure so adopted under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. was not required to be adhered to. After going through the contents of the plaint, it transpires that the plaintiff has filed the suit with the allegations that he was not allowed to touch the deity on 14th January, 1950. There is no other grievance to him and he has sought the relief that he should be allowed to have prayers as per his choice for which the defendants have denied that they have regulated the crowd and it was essential to control the crowd. Thus, it is not the case of the plaintiff that everybody should be allowed to touch the deity on every day. Even the permission was not sought by him to institute the suit under Section 92 C.P.C. Thus, looking to the contents of the plaint from all or any angle, it transpires that the suit was filed for declaration and injunction in individual capacity. Accordingly, the plaintiff has not set up the right for others and under no event this Court has to ask him to adhere to the procedure under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C.

I have also mentioned that the plaintiff has failed to establish his legal character to institute the suit. Issue no. 12 is decided in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 14.

Is the suit no.25 of 50 Param Hans Ram Chandra Vs.

www.vadaprativada.com

Zahoor Ahmad bad for want of valid notice under section 80 C.P.C. ?

FINDINGS

This issue relates to consolidated suit no. 25 of 1950, Param Hans Ram Chandra Vs. Zahoor Ahmad. This suit has already been withdrawn, accordingly no finding is required.

ISSUE NO. 15.

Is the suit bad for non-joinder of defendants. ?

FINDINGS

It has been contended on behalf of the defendants that the suit is bad for non-joinder of defendants. There is nothing on record to suggest as to which of the defendants is required to be joined in this case. Even during the course of argument from the side of the defendants it has not been brought to the notice of the Court that non-joinder of any of the defendants is bad. On behalf of the plaintiff it is submitted that necessary parties have already been arrayed and he does not want to press the relief against any other defendants. Consequently, this Court is of the view that in view of plaint averments it can conclusively be said that since the suit was filed in individual capacity against certain persons, accordingly it was not necessary for the plaintiff to implead any other person beyond the cause of action. Thus for want of any evidence, it is not possible to hold that the suit is bad for non-joinder of defendants. Issue no. 15 is decided accordingly.

www.vadaprativada.com

Is the present suit barred by time ?

FINDINGS

On behalf of the defendants, it has not been pointed out as to how suit is barred by time specially under the circumstances when the plaintiff has urged that on 14.1.1950 he was deprived to touch the deity and thereafter he filed the suit on 16.1.1950 for declaration and injunction. Thus for a suit of declaration and injunction, three days time cannot be said to be more than prescribed time. Thus with no stretch of imagination, the suit can be said to be barred by time. The issue No. 10 is decided accordingly.

ISSUES NO. 16 & 17

16. Are the defendants or any of them entitled to special costs under section 35-A C.P.C.?

www.vadaprativada.com

17. To what reliefs, if any, is the plaintiff entitled. ?

FINDINGS

These issues are interrelated and can conveniently be decided at one place. In view of my findings referred to above, the plaintiff is not entitled for the relief claimed and defendants are also not entitled for special costs as initially the plaintiff, who filed the suit is no more.

O R D E R

The suit is dismissed with easy costs.

Hon'ble Dharam Veer Sharma, J.

This suit has been filed by Nirmohi Akhara situate in Mohalla Ram Kot, City Ayodhya through its Mahant with a prayer that a decree be passed in favour of the plaintiffs against defendants for removal of defendant no.1, namely, Sri Jamuna Prasad Singh, Receiver, resident of Deo Kali Road, City Faizabad, from the management and charge of the temple Ram Janam Bhoomi and for that delivering the same to the plaintiff through its Mahant and Sarbarahkar Mahant Jagan Nath Das.

According to the plaint averment there exists in Ayodhya, since the days of Yore an ancient Math or Akhara of Ramanandi Varagis called Nirmohi with its seat at Ramghat known as Nirmohi Akhara, plaintiff no. 1 which is the religious establishment of a public character. The Janam Sthan now commonly known as Janam Bhumi, the birth place of Lord Ram Chandra, situate in Ayodhya belongs and has always belonged to the plaintiff no.1 who through its reigning Mahant and Sarbrahkar has ever since been managing it and receiving offerings made there at in form of money, sweets, flowers and fruits and other article and things.

The said Asthan of Janam Bhumi is of an ancient antiquity and has been existing since before the living memory of man and lies within the boundaries shown by letters A B C D in the sketch map appended with the plaint. The temple building of Janam Bhumi has been marked by letters E F G K P N M L E is the building denoted by letters E F G H I J K L E of the main temple of Janam Bhumi wherein is installed the idol of Ram Chandra Ji with Lakshman Ji, Hanuman Ji and Saligramji. It has further been averred that the said temple has ever since been in the possession of the plaintiffs and none others but Hindus have ever since been allowed to enter or worship therein and offerings made therein are in the form of money sweets, flowers, fruits other articles and things have always been received by the plaintiffs through their pujaries. Before the judgment of the writ petition of 11.12.92 on 6th December, 1992 the temple of Nirmohi Akhara were also demolished by some miscreants who had no religion caste or creed. The main temple was demolished on 6.12.1992 and further cause of action against defendants no. 1 to 5 arose during pendency of the suit when the property and temples of plaintiff were demolished on 6th December, 1992.

Nirmohi Akhara is the Panchyati Math of Ram Nandi sect of Bairagies and as such is a religious denomination following its own religious faith and pursuit according to its own custom prevalent in Vairagies sect of Sadhus. The customs of Akhara Nirmohi have reduced in writing on 19.03.1949 by registered deed.

The plaintiff Nirmohi Akhara owns several temples in it and all of such temples through Panches and Mahant's of Akhara. The whole temples and properties vest in Akhara i.e. plaintiff. The plaintiff being a Panchyati Math acts on democratic pattern. The management and right to manage all temples of Akhara vest absolutely with Panches of Akhara and Mahant being a formal head of Institution is to act on majority opinion of Panches.

The plaintiff went on to state that no Mohammadan could or ever did enter in the said temple building. But even if it is attempted to be proved that any Mohammadan ever entered it, it would be totally wrong and is denied by the plaintiffs. No Mohammadan has ever been allowed to enter into it or has ever attempted to enter into it at least ever since the year 1934. It has further been averred in the plaint that in the year 1950, the City Magistrate, Faizabad, the defendant no. 4 without any lawful cause and with the active connivance of defendants no. 2, 3 and 5 and under the wrong persuasion of defendants nos. 6 to 8 who claim to represent the Muslim Community, attached the main temple, shown by letter E F G H I J K L I in the said sketch map with all the articles mentioned in list 'A' appended with the plaint in a proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C., and placed the said temple and the articles under the charge of defendant no.1 as a Receiver on 5.1.1950.

Plaintiffs have been wrongfully deprived of their management and charge of the said temple due to illegal under Section 145 Cr.P.C.

Proceedings are unduly prolonged and lingered with the connivance of all the defendants and since no immediate termination of the same seems to be in sight and since the defendant no.4 refuses in connivance with other defendants to hand over charge and management of the temple to the plaintiffs from the hands of the receiver, the institution of the present suit has become inevitable.

The plaintiffs are entitled for the management and charge of the said temple and it should be delivered to him through the former's Mahant and Sarbarhkar.

The defendants no. 6 to 8 claimed to be the representatives of the Muslim community who have got themselves interested in the subject-matter of the suit and are not getting the charge and management of the temple delivered to the plaintiffs and are exercising undue influence on the defendants no. 1 to 5. They are sued in their representative capacity on behalf of the entire Muslim community with the permission of the court.

The cause of action for the suit arose on 5.1.1950 on the defendant no. 4 illegally taking over the management and charge of the temple of said articles and entrusting it to the said receiver i.e. defendant no.1.

The notice as required by Section 80 C.P.C. has been given to the defendants 1 to 5 which was delivered to them between 6.10.59 and 12.10.59 and which has been replied by them through the defendant no.3 intimating their decision to defend the present suit.

The permission of the court to file the suit against the

defendants 6 to 8 on behalf of themselves and all other members of the Muslim community has been obtained under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. A list of 20 Articles has been given in the appendix dated 17.12.59 which was taken into possession by the Receiver.

Defendants no. 6 to 8 have filed their written statement and denied all the averments made by the plaintiff in para 1 to 14 of the plaint. In their additional pleas they have stated that the property in suit has been constructed by the Emperor Babar which is called Babri Masjid and was constructed through Mir Baqi, the minister of Emperor Babar in 1528. This property was given in Waqf for common Muslim since then every Muslim has right of prayer in the mosque. A sum of Rs. 60/- per year was granted by Emperor Babar for the maintenance of the mosque which continued during Mughal period and Nawab of Oudh. This amount was enhanced and a sum of Rs. 302, 3 ana and 6 pai was fixed as an annual grant for the maintenance of the aforesaid mosque. This continued during the regime of British Government and in lieu of cash grant, grant free land were given in villages Solapuri, Ghuranpur and Bahoranpur.

It has further been stated that in 1885 Raghubar Das Mahant, Janam Sthan Ayodhya filed a suit against the Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohd. Asgar Mutwalli and Khatib Masjid Babri Majakur filed a suit in the court of Sub-Judge, Faizabad. A site plan was also appended with the plaint by the plaintiffs in which mosque was clearly shown and no objection was made by the plaintiffs in this regard. The plaintiff of this suit had sought relief only with regard to

a platform (chabutra), therefore, the averments made by the plaintiffs in the present suit that all the disputed property belongs to the temple Ram Janam Bhumi is completely false and groundless and has been framed with bad intention for the purpose of this very suit. The Sub-Judge, Faizabad on 24.12.85 dismissed the plaintiff's suit. This verdict was upheld by the appellate court and the remark relating to the title of the plaintiffs regarding platform (Chabutra) was struck off and appeal was accordingly dismissed. So many Mahants of Ayodhya on behalf of the Hindus had filed the suit and they had full knowledge of this litigation as per the provisions of Muslim Waqf Act No.13 of 1936. The Chief Commissioner of the Waqf was appointed who after inspection of mosque Babri decided that Emperor Babar had constructed this mosque and acknowledged this property as Sunni Waqf. Accordingly legal notification was issued which has become final and the possession of the Muslim community as Waqf on Babri Mosque has continuously in existence. Therefore, if plaintiffs or any other Hindu succeed in proving that prior to the construction of Babri mosque there existed any temple on the site in dispute to which defendants vehemently deny, in that situation also on the ground of being in possession for more than 400 years all the rights of plaintiffs have extinguished. Plaintiffs were never in possession over property in suit, therefore, being time barred this suit is liable to be dismissed. The suit is defective for want of notice against defendants no. 1 to 5. Defendants have no knowledge as to whether any idol has been installed in the property in suit or not as

till 16.12.49 Namaz has continuously been offered in the property in suit and there was no idol by that time. If any idol has been installed surreptitiously even then the nature of mosque will not alter and if any person wants to visit the disputed place for offering prayer and enters into it for this purpose, it will be an offence. In these circumstances, civil court has no jurisdiction to grant the relief as sought by the plaintiff of above suit. As far as defendants, they know that proceedings of Section 145 Cr.P.C. have been initiated by the defendant no.5 which is false against justice and has been done with the aid and help of Sri K.K.Nayar, Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad and Sri Guru Dut Singh, the then City Magistrate, Faizabad. There is another temple at Ayodhya which is known as temple Janam Sthan Ram Chandra Ji and is in existence for a very long time where the idols of Ram Chandra Ji and other Gods are installed. There lie graveyard towards east-southern and south of the mosque wherein graves of Muslims are present. There is no place known Shankar Chabutra, Sita Kop, Lomas Chaura, Hanumat Dwar and Barah Bhagwan or Samadhi of Markandey as shown in the plaint map are not there in the disputed land and has been shown by the plaintiffs with the mala fide intention. The plaintiffs have not shown since when and how they became the owner of the property in suit, for want of this fact it is not possible for the defendants to file complete written statement. Two suits are already pending which has been filed by Gopal Singh Visharad and Param Hans Ram Chandra Das. Since property in suit has been attached under Section 146 Cr.P.C., no regular suit could be filed by the plaintiff in this regard.

The suit is not maintainable as the defendants have no knowledge about the proceedings under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. The defendants are entitled for special cost and suit is liable to be dismissed. The plaintiffs have filed their replication dated 13.5.63 in which all averments made in the plaint have been reiterated.

Defendants have also filed additional written statement in which it is stated that on 6.12.1992 the so called Ram Chabutra was demolished by the miscreants collected at the instance of Vishwa Hindu Parishad. On 6.12.1992 the building of the mosque was demolished and the same could not be called or alleged to be the Main Temple.

Sri Umesh Chandra Pandey, has also filed his written statement wherein he has stated that Mahant Raghu Nath Das died and there has been no proper substitution in his place. It has further been stated that Janam Sthan is a holy place of worship and belongs to the deity of Bhagwan SHRI RAM LALA VIRAJMAN there. It never belonged to and could not have belonged to the plaintiff no.1. The holy JANAM STHAN OR JANAM BHUMI is actually very old temple, whereas the plaintiff AKHADA on the other hand is an institution and owes its existence for no longer than two hundred years. The main presiding deity is BHAGWAN SHRI RAM, although there are several idols of other deities, termed as RAM DARBAR and are worshiped. Besides, there are other symbols, such as, 'CHARAN', SITA RASOI,' etc. to whom the deity of BHAGWAN SHRI RAM

therein is worshiped at SHRIM RAM JANAM BHUMI. In1857 A.D. the Britishers in order to divide the Hindus and Muslims divided Sthan by creating an inner enclosure and describing the boundary within the inner enclosure as a mosque but no Muslim who was a true Muslim, could appear to have frequented it for offering his prayer as the same is prohibited by the SHARIYAT. Moreover, even ALAMGIR (EMPEROR AURANGZEB) issued a mandate, known as FATWA-E-ALAMGIRI which clearly prohibits the offering of prayer by Muslim at such places. More so the KASAUTI pillars and the carvings of Gods and Goddesses thereon will clearly show that this place could not be used by a true Muslim for offering his prayers therein. The suit is barred by the provisions of Indian Evidence Act. The plaintiffs had adequate remedies under Cr.P.C. against the order of Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad. It has further been stated that the suit is liable to be tried separately and is liable to be dismissed with costs.

The plaintiffs have filed replication to the written statement of defendant no.10 reiterating the earlier facts given in the plaint.

Present:- Sri Sarav Jeet Lal, advocate for plaintiff.
And Sri Mohd. Ayub, advocate for defendants 7 & 8.

Shri Sarab Jeet Lal, advocate states as follows:-

The plaintiff claims that this property in suit is believed to be the birth place of Lord Ram Chandra Ji. So there is a temple of Lord Ram Chandra on it. The plaintiff claims that this temple is in the management and of control of the plaintiff. It is further clarified that this property is not dedicated to the Idol although the temple is made in the land which is the birth place of Lord Ram. It is owned by the plaintiff and the temple was made by the plaintiff. It is added that the present suit is confined to property shown by letters E, F, G, I, J, K, L. although in directions were shown by letters E, F, G, H, P, N, M, L, E belongs to the plaint.

FINDINGS

These issue are interrelated. I have already recorded finding in leading case O.O.S No.4 of 1989. The copy of the judgment be placed on record. In view of the finding of issues no. 1, 1(a),(b), 1-B(b),19(d), 19(e) and 19(f) no separate finding is required as the issues are identical issues in this case. These issues are decided in terms of the decision of issues no. 1, 1(a), 1(b), 1B(b), 12, 19(d), 19(e) and 19(f) of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989. The disputed structure has already been demolished on 06.12.1992 and there is no evidence to establish that at the disputed structure there was any temple inside the structure belonging to plaintiff no.1, in which he installed the idol of Lord Ram Chandra Ji, Laxman Ji and Saligram Ji from times immemorial.

ISSUES NO. 2, 3,4 AND 8

2. Does the property in suit belong to the plaintiff No.1 ?

3. Have plaintiffs acquired title by adverse possession for over 12 years ?

4. Are plaintiffs entitled to get management and charge of the said temple ?

8. Have the rights of the plaintiffs extinguished for want of possession for over 12 years prior to the suit ?

FINDINGS

These issues are interrelated and can be taken up together. These issues are identical to the issues already decided in O.O.S.

No.4 of 1989. Thus, in view of the findings of issue no.1B(c), 2, 4, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 19(a), 19(b), 19(c), 27 & 28 no separate finding is required. Accordingly, the above issues are decided in terms of issues already decided in O.O.S. No.4 referred to above.

ISSUES NO. 7(a), 7(b) & 16

a. Has there been a notification under Muslim Waqf Act (Act no.13 of 1936) declaring this property in suit as a Sunni Waqf ?

b. Is the said notification final and binding ? Its effect.

16. Is the suit bad for want of notice u/s 83 of U.P. Act 13 of 1936 ?

FINDINGS

These issues are interrelated can conveniently be decided at one place. In the leading case issues no. 5(a), 5(b), 5(c), 5(d), 5(e), 5(f), 7(b), 17, 18, 20(a), 20(b), 23, 24, 25 and 26 in O.O.S No. 4 of 1989 relate to the above issues. Accordingly, in view of the findings in the leading case, issues no. 7(a), 7(b) and 16 are decided.

9. Is the suit within time ?

FINDINGS

The instant suit was filed on 17.12.59, admitting that the property was attached on 29.12.49. The suit is covered by Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908. It should have been filed within six years of the institution of the suit.

This issue is identical to the issue no. 3 decided in O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989. Accordingly, the issue is decided in terms of the finding of issue no.3 of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989.

ISSUE NO.10(a) & 10(b)

a. Is the suit bad for want of notice u/s 80 C.

b. Is the above plea available to contesting defendants ?

FINDINGS

Issues No. 10(a) and 10(b) are interrelated and they can be decided at one place. It has been contended on behalf of plaintiff that the suit was instituted after giving a valid notice under Section 80 of C.P.C. On behalf of defendants it has been denied but they have failed to substantiate as to how they were not served with the notice before institution of the suit. It further provides that it is not the case of the plaintiffs that they were not served with the notice nor it has been alleged from their side that the notice was defective. Consequently, there is no material before this Court to substantiate the plea raised before this Court by the defendants. Issue No.10(a) and 10(b) are decided, accordingly, in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendants.

Is the suit bad for non-joinder of necessary defendants ?

FINDINGS

This issue is identical to issue no.21 of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989. In view of the finding on the leading case, the issue is decided accordingly.

ISSUE NO.14

Is the suit not maintainable as framed ?

www.vadaprativada.com

On behalf of defendants it has nowhere been argued as to how the suit has wrongly been framed. The suit was properly registered. No material has been placed before this Court to show as to how the suit is not maintainable. Consequently, issue no.14 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants.

ISSUE NO.17.

(Added by this Hon'ble Court order dated 23.2.96) "Whether Nirmohi Akhara, Plaintiff, is Panchayati Math of Rama Nandi sect of Bairagies and as such is a religious denomination following its religious faith and per suit according to its owner custom."

www.vadaprativada.com

Plaintiff claims at para 1 and 4(a) of O.O.S. No.3/89 as under:-

Thus, according to the plaintiffs, Nirmohi Akhara is a religious denomination and prior to the filing of the suit on 19.3.49 a deed was also registered regarding the customs of the Akhara. The Deed has also been filed. Defendants have simply denied the aforesaid facts. But on behalf of the plaintiffs, Mahant Bhaskar Das, DW3/1 has been produced. He has proved the averments made in the plaint referred to above. It has also been submitted that it is a religious denomination. The witnesses were examined but there is no material on record to discredit the aforesaid version. It has further been urged that this Akhara which is a religious denomination was founded by Ramanandi in the 14th century and thereafter various Mahant looked after the Akhara whose names are referred at paras 42 and 43 of the statement of the witnesses. There is nothing in the cross-examination to discredit the testimony of the aforesaid witnesses.

The aforesaid version has been corroborated by the statement of Raja Ramachandracharya, DW3/20. He has corroborated the assertion of Mahant Bhaskar Das. Thus, on the basis of the testimony of these two witnesses and when there is no proper challenge on the part of the defendants, I hold that Nirmohi Akhara is a Panchayati of Ramanandi sect of Baragies and as such is religious denomination. The custom has already been registered in the year 1949. Issue no. 17 is decided in favour of the plaintiff and against the defendants.

www.vadaprativada.com

Is the suit properly valued and Court Fee paid sufficient?

FINDINGS.

This issue has already been decided which shall form part of the judgement.

ISSUES NO.12 & 13

12. Are defendants entitled to special costs u/s 35 C.P.C. ?

13. To what relief, if any, is the plaintiff entitled ?

FINDINGS

The plaintiffs are not entitled for the relief claimed but on behalf of the defendants no case for special costs is made out. The suit is liable to be dismissed with easy cost.

www.vadaprativada.com

The suit is dismissed with easy costs.

It would be expedient to refer the background of the dispute before dealing with the rival submissions of the parties.

No. 5 of 1989, Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman at Ayodhya and others vs. Rajendra Singh and Others were filed before the court of Civil Judge, Faizabad. Thereafter, State of

U.P. filed an application (Misc. case No. 29 of 1987) on 10/15 December, 1987 under Section 24 of Code of Civil Procedure read with Section 151 C.P.C. before the High Court on the ground that due to importance of the matter these suits may be withdrawn from the Civil Court, Faizabad to this Court and gave undertaking to meet out expenses of the witnesses etc.

Thereafter, the Division Bench of this Court allowed the above application and directed that these cases may be disposed of by the Full Bench of this Court and place before Hon'ble the Chief Justice for constituting the Full Bench, which is hearing these matters.

These suits were renumbered in High Court as O.O.S. No. 1 of 1989, O.O.S. No. 2 of 1989, O.O.S. No. 3 of 1989, O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 and O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989. The Original Suit no. 2 of 1989 was subsequently withdrawn, accordingly only four cases are pending for adjudication before this Bench. Original Suit No. 4 of 1989 is the leading case.

The Government of India decided to acquire all area in dispute in the suits pending and issued an ordinance named the Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Ordinance, 1993 on 7.1.1993 for acquisition of 67.703 acres of land in the Ram Janambhumi-Babri Masjid complex. The said ordinance was later replaced by Act No. 33 of 1993. In view of Sub-Section 3 of Section 4 of the aforesaid Act, all pending suits and legal proceedings abated. Thereafter, Special Reference No. 1 of 1993 was made by President of India under Article

143 of the Constitution of India. The same was challenged by one Dr. Ismail Faruqui in Transferred Case (C ) Nos. 41, 43 and 45 of 1993, Jamiat-Ulama-E-Hind and another Vs. Union of India and others in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 208 of 1993, Mohd. Aslam Vs. Union of India and others and in transfer case No. 42 of 1993 Thakur Vijay Ragho Bhagwan Birajman Mandir and another Vs. Union of India and others and in Special Reference No. 1 of 1993, Hargyan Singh Vs. State of U.P. And others.

The Hon'ble Apex Court decided aforesaid matters and referred back these cases for adjudication with certain directions. The case is reported in (1994) 6 SCC 360, Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui and Ors. vs. Union of India and Ors (Annexure-I).

Looking to the importance, sensitivity and vividness of the matter, it would be appropriate that relevant papers may be kept in different annexures for ready reference along with judgment.

Plaintiffs have filed aforesaid O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 with following reliefs:-

(a) A declaration to the effect that the property indicated by letters A B C D in the sketch map attached to the plaint is public mosque commonly known as ‘Babari Masjid’ and that the land adjoining the mosque shown in the sketch map by letters E F G H is a public Muslim grave yard as specified in para 2 of the

plaint may be decreed.

(b) That in case in the opinion of the Court delivery of possession is deemed to be the proper remedy, a decree for delivery of possession of the mosque and grave yard in suit by removal of the idols and other articles which the Hindus may have placed in the mosque as objects of their worship be passed in plaintiffs' favour, against the defendants.

Amendment/Addition made as per Court's order dt.25.5.95 Sd./-

(bb) That the statutory Receiver be commanded to hand over the property in dispute described in the Schedule 'A' of the Plaint by removing the unauthorized structures erected thereon."

(c) Costs of the suit be decreed in favour of the plaintiffs.

(d) Any other or further relief which the Hon'ble Court considers proper may be granted.

The plaint case, in brief, is that in the town of Ayodhya one ancient historic mosque, commonly known as Babri Masjid was built by Emperor Babar more than 433 years ago, after his conquest of India for the use of the Muslims in general, as a place of worship and performance of religious ceremonies. The main construction of the mosque is shown by letters A B C D and the land adjoining the mosque is also shown in the sketch map.

It is further averred that there is ancient grave yard of Muslims, covered by the graves of the Muslims, who lost their lives in the battle between emperor Babar and the previous ruler of Ayodhya. The mosque and the graveyard are vested in the Almighty. The mosque and the graveyard is situated in Mohalla Kot Rama Chander also known as Rama Kot Town, Ayodhya. The Khasra number of the mosque and the graveyard are shown in the suit in schedule attached with the plaint.

For the upkeep and maintenance of the mosque, a cash grant used to be paid from the Royal Treasury. After the annexation of Oudh, the British Government also continued the cash Nankar till 1864 and thereafter instead of cash Nankar revenue free land in village Sholapur and Bahoranpur was granted. In the mosque, but outside the main building of the mosque, there was a Chabutra 17' X 21', on which there is a wooden structure in the form of a tent which is still there. In 1885 Mahant Rghbuar Dass filed a Original Suit No. 61/280 of 1885, Mahant Rghbuar Dass Vs. Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohammad Asghar, Mutawalli of the Babri Mosque, for permission to build a temple on the Chabutra 17' X 21' . The suit was dismissed and appeal (Civil Appeal No. 27 of 1885) from the said decree was also dismissed by the learned District Judge, Faizabad.

It is further contended that in 1934 during the communal riot in Ayodhya, some portions of the Babri Mosque was damaged and they were rebuilt and reconditioned at the cost of Government. In 1936 the

U.P. Muslim Wakfs Act XIII of 1936 was passed and after making an enquiry the Wakfs Commissioner, who was a Sunni Mohammadan held that Babri Mssjid was built by emperor Babar and the Babri Mosque was a public wakf and no suit was filed by the Hindus denying the correctness of the report of the Commissioner. Muslims remained in the peaceful possession of the aforesaid mosque till 23.12.1949 when a large crowd of Hindus, damaged the said mosque and desecrated the mosque by placing idols inside the mosque. Even if a Hindu temple as alleged by the defendants existed on the site of which emperor Babar built the mosque 433 years ago, the Muslims, by virtue of their long and continuous possession perfected their title by adverse possessions and the right, title or interest of the Hindu public is extinguished.

The incident of desecrating the mosque was reported by police constable, Mata Prasad to the police station, Ayodhya and a case was registered. The City Magistrate, Faizabad started proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and attached the property on 29.12.1949 and handed over possession to Receiver, Sri Priya Dutt Ram. It is further averred that City Magistrate, Faizabad illegally with injustice to the plaintiffs, deprived a large section of Muslim community from exercising their legal rights guaranteed by the Constitution of India.

On 16.1.1950 defendant No. 1 filed Regular Suit No. 2 of 1950 in the court of Civil Judge, Faizabad. Suit No. 25 of 1950 and Suit No. 26 of 1960 were also filed. The instant suit was filed by the

plaintiffs under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. and two months notice was also given to the State of U.P. The plaintiffs are entitled for restoration of the building as it existed on 5.12.1992, which was demolished on 6th December, 1992.

The Mosque is a place where prayers are offered publicly as a matter of right, even the open space where prayers are offered may be a mosque and as such even after the demolition of the mosque the land over which the building stood, is still a mosque and Muslims are entitled to offer prayer thereon.

After the proclamation of Ordinance No. 8 of 1993 on 7th January, 1993, which was substituted by an Act of Parliament, namely, Act No. 33 of 1993, the Commissioner of Faizabad Division is working as Authorized person on behalf of the Government of India. The cause of action arose on 23.12.1949 at Ayodhya District Faizabad within the jurisdiction of this Court when the Hindus illegally desecrated the mosque by placing idols in the mosque and the cause of action arose to the plaintiffs on 29.12.1949, the date on which the City Magistrate, Faizabad attached the mosque.

On behalf of defendants No. 1 and 2 a joint written statement was filed on 12.3.1962, denying the plaint averments and only admitted this fact to the extent that Shri Priya Dutt Ram was appointed Receiver by the City Magistrate, Faizabad. It is further submitted that the suit is hopelessly time barred and Muslims have not been in the possession over the property in dispute since 1934 and Hindus are holding the temple in their possession, even prior to 1934 and continuous Hindu puja is being done in the temple and Muslims have never offered prayer since 1934, falsely described as Babri Mosque. It is further averred that the disputed place is a Hindu public charitable institution and is open for worship to all Hindus. The suit is also barred by time as no action was taken in time. On equitable grounds also, the suit deserves to be rejected because Hindu puja is going on in the said temple since 1934 and admittedly from January, 1950 when the City Magistrate directed the defendant No. 9 to carry on Puja as usual in the said temple. The suit under Order 1 Rule, 8 C.P.C. is bad as no one representing the Hindu community has been made a defendant in the suit and defendants No. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 9 do not represent the Hindu community.

In the additional written statement, it is further urged that the U.P. Muslim Wakf Act No. XIII of 1936, is ultra vires to the Government of India Act, 1935. The building and land in suit lying in the province of Oudh became subject of Lord Canning proclamations and all previous rights became non existent. No fresh grant in respect of the property in suit having been made after the proclamation, to the plaintiffs or to the Muslim community have no right to sue. The Commissioner of Wakf is intended to give effect to the scheme of administration under the Muslim Waqfs Act and does not and cannot confer jurisdiction to decide question of title as against non-Muslims under Wakf Act, 1936. The objections were also not invited and no illegal publication was made.

In replication plaintiffs have urged that Hindu public never held the mosque in their possession since 1934 nor holding possession of it as temple since then and they have not completed title by adverse possession. The Muslim community has been in continuous possession and offered prayer at the mosque for the last 450 years since the time the mosque was constructed and Muslim public representing the wakf perfected their title to the property in suit and thus the title or interest if any, of Hindu Public has extinguished.

On 25.1.1963 a separate written statement was filed by Gopal Singh Visharad. He has denied the averments of the plaint and admitted that Receiver was appointed by the City Magistrate, Faizabad of Janamasthan temple. It is further submitted that plaintiffs have no right to make the defendant contest the suit in a representative capacity. Plaint averments have been denied and it is urged that suit was barred by time. It is without any cause of action and Hindus are in possession over the property in suit from 1934. A temple is a public charitable institution and is a place of worship open to all the Hindus and no individual can represent the entire Hindu community about this ancient temple. The plaintiffs cannot claim any right through the proceeding of U.P. Muslims Waqf Act and the ex parte report is not binding on them. The building in suit is covered by the proclamation of Lord Canning. No fresh grant of property was ever made after the proclamation. Accordingly, the Muslims have no right to sue. The report of Wakf Commissioner was not in accordance with the wakf Act and cannot confer jurisdiction on him to decide the question of title as against Non-Muslims.

The replication was also filed to the statements of defendants No. 1 and 2 by the plaintiffs and it has been urged that Hindu public is not in possession over the property in suit since 1934 and Muslims are in possession of the property of the suit for the last 450 years.

On behalf of defendants no. 3 and 4 separate written statement was filed. It has been urged on behalf of them that plaint averments about battle and construction of mosque by Babar have been coined as a story to give colour to the case. Answering defendants are not aware of the any suit filed by Mahant Raghubar Dass, Mahant of Janmasthan. Mosque was not damaged in 1934. It has further been urged that alleged mosque never existed nor does it exists even now. It is always the temple of Janma-Bhumi with idols of Hindu Gods. Accordingly the entire case as setup in the plaint is false and fabricated. The Muslims have no right to offer prayer in the said temple. On 22.3.1992 local administration demolished Sumitra Bhawan temple. According to the customs of Akhara Rama Janam Bhumi, temple is a holy place of worship and the said temple Ram

Chabutra has an history of judicial scanning since 1885 and Hindus worshiped there. The building in question in suit is the temple of Janam Bhumi is under attachment and accordingly the suit as contemplated under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. is misconceived. The individual plaintiffs are Sunnis and they cannot represent Shia community. Plaintiffs have no cause of action to file a suit. Defendant No. 4 is the Mahant and Sarbarahkar of Nirmohi Akhara has averred that temple Janam Bhumi is the antiquity of Nirmohi Akhara and no Muslim was ever allowed to enter into the said temple. The answering defendants have wrongly been deprived of the said charge and management of the said temple and accordingly the suit no. 25/1958 was filed. In alternative it is urged that even after 1934, 12 years have already been passed and the property remained in continuous possession of Hindus. Accordingly, the plaintiffs are not entitled for reliefs claimed.

Additional written statements of defendants No. 3 and 4 were filed stating that the property in suit is a temple.

On behalf of the plaintiffs, replication was filed reiterating the plaint averments. It has been further averred that Muslims are in continuous possession for the last 450 years and Muslim public as representative of Wakf has perfected the title of the property in suit by their long and undisturbed possession against the interest of Hindu public to their knowledge.

On behalf of defendant no. 3 on 21.8.1995 additional written statement was filed. It has been urged that prior to this suit a suit no. 256/1922 was filed between Mahanth Narottam Das and Mahant Ram Swaroop Das. Real facts regarding Ram Chabutra are available in that suit. In another suit No. 95 of 1941 between Mahant Nirmohi Akhara namely Ram Charan Das and Raghunath Das a Commission report was prepared, in which complete details were given. The temple of Shri Ram Chabutara and Gufa temple are shown in the map. Defendant no. 3 is the Panchayati Math of Vairagies. Accordingly directions may be issued for handing over all the properties to defendant no. 3.

On behalf of Defendant No. 9, separate written statement was filed only admitting the fact that City Magistrate attached the property in suit under the proceedings of Section 145 Cr.P.C. It is averred that the plaintiffs are not entitled for relief.

On behalf of defendant no. 10 separate written statement was filed stating that the contents of the plaint are false and fabricated. The proceedings of Waqf are not binding on them. Under the Hindu Jurisprudence, the property in question cannot pass in the hands of Muslims. The land and the property in dispute has been throughout in uninterrupted possession of the Hindu community and in ownership of Lord Shri Rama. In additional statement it has been urged that national community of Hindu is being harassed by the plaintiffs. It is further averred that ordinance has been issued against the provisions of the constitution and second ordinance was also issued in the like manner. However, it has not been mentioned whether any petition was ever filed challenging the authorization of the aforesaid ordinance by the defendant No. 10.

The suit is barred by Section 92 of C.P.C. and Section 14 of the Religious Endowment Act. The suit was not properly filed by the Waqf in compliance of the provisions of Section 64 of the Waqf Act and the suit is not maintainable and liable to be dismissed.

Annexure-I
Pages 185-194

The replication has been filed to the amended written statement of defendant no. 10. The contents have been denied by U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf. It has been further averred that version of the plaint is correct and the averments made in the written statement are imaginary and baseless. It has further been averred that plot number in second settlement and first settlement coincide with each other.

Supplementary replication was also filed by the plaintiffs stating that ordinance no. 9 of 1989 is not applicable on the facts of the case. Ordinance no. 9 of 1989 gives unguided and uncontrolled powers to transfer the so acquired property to anybody.

Thereafter on behalf of defendant no. 10, additional written statements were also filed stating that no masjid or Babri Masjid was ever existed on the land in question. Babur was an invader and he had no legal authority to construct any Masjid on the sacred place of

Hindus and Hindus are in possession of the entire area of Ram Janam Bhumi. The entire area covered under Act No. 33 of 1993 belongs to Hindus and the devotees of Shri Ram Lala Virajman. Certain other points have been raised which are connected with the fact in issue relating to the religion and about creation of Pakistan. However, it has been urged that the suit is liable to be dismissed.

Defendant No. 13, Baba Abhiram Dass and Defendant no. 14, Pundarik Mishra filed joint written statement. They have denied the plaint averments and urged that the property belongs to Hindus. The Hindu community is worshiping on the site of Janam Bhumi from time immemorial. Even prior to 1934 daily Hindu puja is being done in the temple and Muslims never offered the prayer since 1934. The suit is bad under order 1 Rule 8 of C.P.C. The plaintiffs have no claim or right under Act no. 13 of 1936 to file instant suit which too is bad for want of any sanction under Section 80A of Government of India Act, 1935. The report of Waqf Commissioner is not binding on the answering defendants. The building in suit does not possess the requirement of a mosque.

Thereafter vide order dated 3rd May, 1989 written statement was filed by Dharam Das, Chela Baba Abhiram Das. He has denied plaint averments and admitted that originally there was a temple and no mosque was ever constructed. Such a building could not be a Masjid according to the tenets of Islam. The deity of Bhagwan Shri Ram Virajman is being worshiped since time immemorial. It has further been urged that suit no. 2 of 1950 was filed in personal capacity. Suit no. 25/1950 was also filed.

It has further been averred that the building in suit was no mosque and its surrounding is not a graveyard. According to the Islamic laws, mosque built in place of Hindu temple after forcibly demolishing it cannot be a mosque. ALLAH does not accept a dedication of property for purposes recognized as pious and charitable. Accordingly, the property could not be considered as Waqf property and Muslims could never claim a right of worship at a place as a mosque by adverse possession. The Sunni Waqf Board has no jurisdiction to file a suit. The suit as framed under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. is not maintainable and relief for possession and removal of the idols is not maintainable. Accordingly, the suit is liable to be dismissed.

The additional written statement was also filed on behalf of Mahant Dharam Dass and it has been urged on his behalf that the structure of Ram Janam Bhumi, which was demolished on 6th December, 1992 was not a mosque and it has always been a place of worship for Hindus and the suit is liable to be dismissed.

On behalf of defendant no. 17, Ramesh Chandra Tripathi, it is submitted that the contents of paragraph no. 21 is not admitted. The entire area including the plot in question belongs to deity of Bhagwan Shri Ram. Debris of demolished structure show that demolished structure was a temple.

Mahant Ganga Das also filed written statement denying the

plaint averments and stated that the suit is not maintainable and property in question belongs to Lord Rama.

The written statement on behalf of Madan Mohan Gupta revealed that the contents of the plaint are false. The property belongs to Lord Rama and the place in question is being worshiped from time immemorial. He has referred certain gazetteers and books as a piece of evidence to show that the property in suit was never a mosque. It is further submitted that according to Quranic injunctions, no mosque can be constructed at the site of the temple after demolishing it. It is further submitted that the temple or Sthan is always been considered as a place of worship. There was no ouster of Hindus from the Ram Janam Bhumi and birth spot of Ram cannot be shifted. The plaintiffs are not entitled for any relief.

On behalf of defendant no. 20, separate written statement has been filed denying the plaint averments. It has been urged that the Ram Janam Bhumi is a very sacred for the Hindus from the time immemorial. Plaintiffs cannot claim the place of Hindus like Sita Rasoi, Ram Chabutra etc. They are not in possession of the property and the suit is liable to be dismissed.

ISSUE NO.1(b)

Whether the building had been constructed on the site of an alleged Hindu temple after demolishing the same as alleged by defendant No. 13? If so, its effect?

www.vadaprativada.com

F I N D I N G S

One of the most important issue in the suit is whether there was any temple/structure which was demolished and Mosque was constructed on the disputed site. Thus to adjudicate the basic issue whether there was any Hindu temple or an Hindu religious structure existed and the alleged Babri Mosque was constructed after demolishing the said temple at the site in question was to be resolved by this Court. Accordingly, the Full Bench of this Court on 1.8.2002 decided to take the assistance of Archaeological Science. It is not a matter of dispute now that in the modern age Archaeological Science has achieved the great accuracy. Thus with the assistance of Archaeological Science, one can answer up to the considerable degree of certainty about various past activities of people for which material evidence is available. It was believed that sufficient Archaeological material is available regarding the temple/mosque issue. Accordingly further excavation was intended. Thus Archaeological Survey of India was directed on 1.8.2002 to survey the disputed site by Ground Penetrating Survey (GPR)/Geo Radiology Survey . On 5.3.2003, the Full Bench of this Court considered the objections of the parties for excavation through Archaeological Survey of India and directed to get the disputed site excavated. This Court further directed that excavation shall be done by excavation branch, specialized in excavation work by providing representation of both the communities in respect of functioning of ASI team and engagement of labourers. The Court further directed certain safeguard to ensure transparency in the task of ASI by permitting the parties or their counsel to remain present on the spot during the course of excavation proceedings. Archaeological Survey of India was directed to photograph and video-graph the process of excavation and to maintain the record pertaining thereto. The Court has also appointed two experienced judicial officers of Faizabad Judgeship as observers and to act whenever needed.

Annexure-III
Pages 1 to 163

In compliance of this Court direction, Director General, Archaeological Survey of India formed 14 member team of both the communities headed by Dr. B.R. Mani and subsequently by Sri Hari Majhi, Director (Antiquity) to supervise the excavation work on the disputed site. Excavation on the disputed site was carried out by the team from 12th March, 2003 to 7th August, 2003. Eighty two trenches were excavated to verify anomalies mentioned in the report of Ground Penetrating Radar Survey. Eighty two trenches were checked, the anomalies were confirmed in the trenches in the form of Pillar bases, structures, floors and foundation. Besides eighty two trenches a few more making a total of 90 finally were also excavated keeping in view the objective fixed by the Hon'ble High Court to confirm the structures. The result of excavation has been summarized and full report has also been furnished for the perusal of this Court. Thereafter the objections against the report dated 22.8.2003 filed by ASI were invited by the parties concerned. On behalf of the plaintiff's of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 and others objections were filed.

Thereafter on 4.12.2006, the Full Bench of this Court disposed of the objection/additional objection against the ASI report, which was filed under sub-rule (1) of Rule 10, of Order XXVI of the Code of Civil Procedure. This Court was concious of this fact that in all these four pending suits, the core issue is whether the disputed structure namely Babri Masjid was built after demolishing a Hindu temple. Relevant extract of the order is as under :-

> "So we order that this ASI report shall be subject to the objections and evidence of the parties in the suit and all these shall be dealt with when the matter is finally decided".

During the course of hearing parties were also allowed to adduce evidence for and against ASI report.

Plaintiff's in support of the objections filed against the ASI report, produced Professor Dhaneshwar Mandal, PW-24, Professor Suraj Bhan, PW-16, Dr. Jaya Menon, PW-29, Dr. R.C. Thakran, PW-30, Dr. Ashok Datta, PW-31, Dr. Supriya Varma, PW-32, Haji Mahboob, DW 6/1-1, Mohd. Abid, DW 6/1-2.

Defendants have produced four witnesses in support of the ASI report, they are- Dr. R. Nagaswamy, OPW-17, Arun Kumar Sharma, OPW-18, R.D. Trivedi, OPW-19 and Jayanti Prasad Shivastava, DW-20/5.

Section 75 CPC empowers the court to issue commissions which reads as under;

www.vadaprativada.com

"Section-75: Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may issue a commission--

(a) to examine any person;

(b) to make a local investigation;

(c) To examine or adjust accounts; or

(d) to make a partition;

[(e) to hold a scientific, technical, or expert investigation;

(f) to conduct sale of property which is subject to speedy and natural decay and which is in the custody of the Court pending the determination of the suit;

(g) to perform any ministerial act.]"

The detailed provisions for issuing commands are set forth in Order 26 Rule-10A which are as under;

"Rule 10A- Commission for scientific investigation-(1) Where any question arising in a suit involves any scientific investigation which cannot, in the opinion of the Court, be conveniently conducted before the Court, the Court may, if it thinks it necessary or expedient in the interests of justice as to do, issue a Commission to such person as it thinks fit, directing him to inquire into such question and report thereon to the Court.

(2) The provisions of rule 10 of this Order shall, as far as may be, apply in relation to a Commissioner appointed under this rule as they apply in relation to a Commissioner appointed under rule 9."

Thus Sec 75 , Order 26 Rule-10A provide for the issue of Commission for scientific investigation. A perusal of the rule shows that a discretion has been vested in the Civil Court to get any scientific investigation conducted only if it needs necessary or expedient in the ends of justice. The basic rationale of this provision is that the Commission is going to held in extracting the truth. There is established procedure known to law that the Commissioner's report form part of the record and the same becomes evidence as a whole in the suit.

Sri P.N.Mishra, Advocate has submitted that ASI report may be accepted as a piece of evidence. He has relied over AIR 1940 PC 3, Chandan Mull Indra Kumar and others Versus Chimanlal Girdhar

Das Parekh and another in which the Hon'ble Privy Council held that interference with the result of a long and careful local investigation except upon clearly defined and sufficient grounds is to be deprecated. It is not safe for a Court to act as an expert and to overrule the elaborate report of a Commissioner whose integrity and carefulness is unquestionable whose careful and laborious execution of task was proved by his report and who had not blankly adopted the assertions of either party. Since ASI was working directly under the control and direction of this Court and their integrity is unquestionable as such the said report is entitled to be accepted in its entirety as an expert scientific report under Order 26 Rule 9 & 10 and 10A as also under Section 75(e) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 as well as under Section 45 of the Evidence Act.

Another ruling cited by Sri P.N.Mishra is Vareed Jacob Versus Sosamma Geevarghese, 2004(6) SCC 378 in which Hon'ble apex court held that incidental or ancillary proceedings are taken recourse to in aid of the ultimate decision of the suit and any order passed therein would have a bearing on the merit of the matter. Sri P.N.Misra has also cited G.L.Vijan Versus K.Shanker, (2006) 13 SCC 136 in which Hon'ble Supreme Court held that incidental power is to be exercised in aid to the final proceedings. In AIR 1997 Cal.59, Amena Bibi Versus Sk.Abdul Haque, Calcutta High Court held that the Commissioner's report even if accepted by itself does not however, mean that the parties are precluded from challenging the evidence of the Commissioner or assailing the report by examining any other witness to counter the effect of the report.

excavation report of the Archaeological Survey of India being a scientific report of the experts against whom bias or malafide have not been proved, is liable to be admitted and relied on as a piece of evidence:

In AIR 1940 PC 3 (Chandan Mull Indra Kumar & Ors. V. Chimanlal Girdhar Das Parekh & Anr.) the Hon'ble Privy Council held that interference with the result of a long and careful local investigation except upon clearly defined and sufficient grounds is to be deprecated. It is not safe for a Court to act as an expert and to overrule the elaborate report of a Commissioner whose integrity and carefulness is unquestionable whose careful and laborious execution of task was proved by his report and who had not blankly adopted the assertions of either party. Relying on the said judgment, it is respectfully submitted that the report of the Archaeological Survey of India is an elaborate report and the persons comprising excavation team of the ASI were working directly under the control and direction of this Hon'ble Court. And their integrity is unquestioned as such the said report is entitled to be accepted in its entirety as an expert scientific report under Order 26 Rule 9 & 10 & 10A as also under Section 75(e) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 as well as under Section 45 of the Evidence Act, 1872. Relevant paragraph from page 6 of the said judgement reads as follows:

> This in their Lordships' judgment is a correct statement of the principle to be adopted in dealing with the commissioner's report."

In 2004(6) SCC 378 (Vareed Jacob v. Sosamma Geevarghese) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that "incidental" or "ancillary" proceedings are taken recourse to in aid of the ultimate decision of the suit and any order passed therein would have a bearing on the merit of the matter. "Supplemental proceedings", however, mean a separate proceeding in an original action in which the court where the action is pending is called upon to exercise its jurisdiction in the interest of justice. Supplemental proceedings may not affect the ultimate result of suit and a supplemental order can be passed even at the instance of the defendants. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that as Section 75(e) is being part and parcel of Part-III titled as incidental proceedings of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 whereunder the order was passed by this Hon'ble Court to carry out the excavation work and submit the report before this Hon'ble court and the report submitted in compliance of said order of the Hon'ble Court is a scientific report under Section 45 of the Evidence Act, 1872. The said report is reliable and admissible valuable piece of evidence. Relevant paragraph Nos.29 to 33 and 54 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "29. The Code of Civil Procedure uses different expressions in relation to incidental proceedings and supplemental proceedings. Incidental proceedings are

> 30. Is there any difference between the two types of proceedings?
> 31. A distinction is to be borne in mind keeping in view the fact that the incidental proceedings are in aid to the final proceedings. In other words, an order passed in the incidental proceedings will have a direct bearing on the result of the suit. Such proceedings which are in aid of the final proceedings cannot, thus, be held to be at par with supplemental proceedings which may not have anything to do with the ultimate result of the suit.
> 32. Such a supplemental proceeding is initiated with a view to prevent the ends of justice from being defeated. The supplemental proceedings may not be taken recourse to as a routine matter but only when an exigency arises therefor. The orders passed in the supplemental proceedings may sometimes cause hardships to the other side and, thus, are required to be taken recourse to when a situation arises therefor and not otherwise. There are well-defined parameters laid down by the court from time to time as regards the applicability of the supplemental proceedings.
> 33. Incidental proceedings are, however, taken recourse to in aid of the ultimate decision of the suit which would mean that any order passed in terms thereof, subject to the rules prescribed therefor, would have a bearing on the merit of the matter. Any orders passed in aid of the suit are ancillary powers. Whenever an order is passed by the court in exercise of its ancillary power or in the incidental proceedings, the same may revive on revival of the suit. But so far as supplemental proceedings are concerned, the court may have to pass a fresh order.
> 54. Parliament consciously used two different expressions "incidental proceedings" and "supplemental proceedings" which obviously would carry two different meanings."

In (2006) 13 SCC 136 (G.L. Vijan v. K. Shankar) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that incidental power is to be exercised in aid to the final proceedings. In other words an order passed in the incidental proceedings will have a direct bearing on the result of the suit. Such proceedings which are in aid of the final proceedings, cannot, thus, be held to be on par with supplemental proceedings which may not have anything to do with the ultimate result of the suit. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that since the ASI report is result of an incidental proceeding which is in aid of the final proceeding the said report is reliable to do the ultimate justice. Relevant paragraph no.11, 13 & 14 of the aforesaid judgment read as follows:

> "11. Such a supplemental proceeding is initiated with a view to prevent the ends of justice from being defeated. Supplemental proceedings may not be taken recourse to in a routine manner but only when an exigency of situation arises therefor. The orders passed in the supplemental proceedings may sometimes cause hardships to the other side and, thus, are required to be taken recourse to when it is necessary in the interest of justice and not otherwise. There are well-defined parameters laid down by the Court from time to time as regards the applicability of the supplemental proceedings.
> 13. The expression "ancillary" means aiding; auxiliary; subordinate; attendant upon; that which aids or promotes a proceeding regarded as the principal.
> 14. The expression "incidental" may mean differently in different contexts. While dealing with a procedural law, it may mean proceedings which are procedural in nature but when it is used in relation to an agreement or the delegated legislation, it may mean something more; but the distinction between an incidental proceeding and a supplemental proceeding is evident.

Relying on the said judgment it is humbly submitted that here there are only wild allegations that the ASI people acted under the influence of the then BJP Government and the then Hon'ble Human Resources Development Minister Mr. Murali Manohar Joshi which has not been substantiated by giving cogent evidence and the plaintiffs had several opportunities to make applications before this Hon'ble court impeaching the integrity of the ASI archaeologists but in spite of that opportunity they did not do anything and when after submission of the report of the ASI they found that there is finding of the ASI team that on the disputed site there was temple. They filed the objection which cannot be accepted and is liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph no.7 of the aforesaid judgment reads as follows:

> "7. Then about the report of the Pleader Commissioner. Reference may be made to the famous decision of the Judicial Committee in Chandan Mull's case reported in 44 Cal WN 205 at p. 212 : (AIR 1940 PC 3, at pp. 5, 6) to show that the Commissioner's report should not be rejected except on clearly defined and sufficient grounds. The Court should not act as an expert and overrule the Commissioner's report whose integrity and carefulness are not questioned and who did not blindly accept the assertion of either party. Here the Pleader Commissioner's honesty has not been challenged. He did not blindly adopt the assertion of the plaintiff. As stated before, several chances were given to the defendant-appellants to assail the Commissioner's report, but no objection was filed. Hence at this stage this objection against the Commissioner's report cannot be accepted."

In 2006 (4) Bom LR 336 (Bapu Dhopndi Devkar v. S. Najaokar) the Hon'ble Bombay High Court held that a document can be sent to the experts for examination and opinion about the date of printing and the period when it was circulated. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that as the report of Forensic Science Laboratory, which has stated that there is interpolation in the relevant documents and Babri Masjid is later insertion by the different person in different handwriting in different inks the said report is reliable and the revenue records submitted by the plaintiffs are liable to be discarded and they should be read in the light of the report of Foreignsic laboratory. Relevant extract of the said judgment as quoted in Sarkar's Code of Civil Procedure, Vol-2 10th Edn. reads as follows:

In AIR 1997 Cal 59 (Amena Bibi v. Sk. The said Hon'ble Court has also held that the parties having participated in the enquiry made by the Commissioner should not be allowed to turn around and say that the entry was biased and prejudicial. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that as the plaintiffs, their experts, nominees, advocates have participated in excavation proceedings and the excavation proceedings was done in presence and under observation of the observers appointed by this Hon'ble Court now the ASI report which reveals that there was a temple, the plaintiffs cannot be allowed to raise objection and their objection is liable to be rejected. Moreover, as the parties have already examined several experts to countermand the effect of the ASI report the ASI report is liable to be admitted and taken as a valuable piece of evidence. Relevant paragraph no.6 & 7 of the aforesaid judgment read as follows:

> "6. On a careful reading of the above decision it indicates that the valuation of the property for which the prayer under S. 4 of the Partition Act is made, has to be fixed on the prevalent market value at the time of filing an application under S. 4 of the Partition Act. On reading the impugned order, it is implicit that the learned Court below has meticulously examined the merits of the contention of petitioners and rejected those objections inasmuch as the Commissioner had met those points raised by the revision petitioner. It appears that the Commissioner fixed the valuation after taking the evidence from the parties. The petitioners having participated in the enquiry should not be allowed to turn round and say that the enquiry was biased and prejudicial.
> 7. Mr. Mukherjee, the learned counsel appearing for the opposite party No. 1, has seriously challenged about the maintainability of the revisional application. It is highlighted that the Commissioner's report should not be rejected except on clearly defined and sufficient grounds. The court should not act as an expert and overrule the Commissioner's report whose integrity and carefulness are not questioned. In support of his contention Mr. Mukherjee relied on a decision reported in AIR 1979 Cal 50 (M/s. Roy and Co. v. Smt. Nani Bala Dey). The Court held :-- > "The Commissioner's report should not be rejected except on clearly defined and sufficient grounds. The

Court should not act as an expert and overrule the Commissioner's report whose integrity and carefulness are not questioned and who did not blindly accept the assertions of either party. "

Admittedly the petitioners have not challenged either the integrity of the Commissioner or his carefulness. In another decision reported in AIR 1940 PC 3 in the case of Chandan Mull Indra Kumar v. Chinman Lal Girdhar Das Parekh. It was held :-

"Interference with the result of a long and careful local investigation except upon clearly defined and sufficient grounds is to be deprecated. It is not safe for a Court to act as an expert and to overrule the elaborate report of a Commissioner whose integrity and carefulness are unquestioned, whose careful and laborious execution of his task was proved by his report, and who had not blindly adopted the assertions of either party."

From the ratio of the above decision, it is (sic) that the revisional court would be slow and war while entertaining the objection regarding the acceptance of the Commissioner's report in a revisional application. The Commissioner's report even if accepted by itself does not, however, mean that the parties are precluded from challenging the evidence of the Commissioner or assailing the report by examining any, other witnesses to countermand the effect of the report. It has been held in a decision reported in AIR 1966 Orissa 121 in the case of Harihor Misra v. Narhari Setti Sitaramiah (para 4) :---

"Rule 10 of O. 26 does not make the report of the Commissioner as concluding the question of valuation. On the contrary, the rule gives clear indication that the report of the Commissioner is only one of the pieces of evidence amongst other evidence to be led by the parties for determination of the issue on valuation of the suit. When the parties file no objection to the Commissioner's report, the court rightly accepts the report. Its acceptance by itself does not, however, mean that parties are precluded from challenging the evidence of the Commissioner and the witnesses examined by him or by giving any other evidence to countermand the effect of the Commissioner's report. "

Thus, from the underlying principle emerging from the above cases, it is manifest that the party objecting to the Commissioner's report can lead best possible evidence at the time of hearing to countermand the report even if the same was accepted earlier. The Court on taking the comprehensive view decide the point at issue and arrive at right conclusion I do not find at this stage any justification to interfere with the findings of the learned trial court order accepting the Commissioner's report."

In AIR 1976 Alld. 121 (State of U.P. v. Smt. Ram Sree & Anr.) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court held that it is not necessary in order that the report becomes evidence the statement of the commissioner should also be made in the court for the purpose of proving it. It is up to the choice of the party to examine the commissioner in respect of the matters, referred to him or mentioned in his report. But the examination of the Commissioner is not at all required by the provisions of Order XXVI Rule 10(2) of Civil Procedure Code for the purpose of proving the report. Relying on the said judgment, it is respectfully submitted that as none of the parties made application for examination of the ASI's archaeologists/experts who took part in excavation proceeding and prepared the report thereon, for the purpose of proving the said report there is no need of examination of the ASI's team of archaeologist and the said report is liable piece of evidence. Relevant paragraph no.33 of the aforesaid judgment reads as follows:

> "33. Order XXVI Rule 10 (2) of Civil P. C. lays down that the report of the commissioner and the evidence taken by him shall be evidence in the suit and shall form part of the record. It is, therefore, clear from the aforesaid provision that it is not necessary in order that the report becomes evidence that the statement of the commissioner should also be made in the court for the purpose of proving it. It is up to the choice of the party to examine a commissioner in respect of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report. But the examination of the commissioner is not at all required by the aforesaid provision for the purpose of proving the report. The case relied upon by the learned counsel for the respondent in Haji Kutubuddin v. Allah Banda (AIR 1973, All. 235) is not at all relevant on the above controversy. In this case, > the High Court did not hold that the statement of the commissioner was necessary in order to prove it or that without such a statement the same could not be read in evidence. We, therefore, do not accept the submission of the learned counsel for the respondent that the report of the first commissioner was not admissible as he had not been produced as a witness."

In AIR 1976 Del 175 (Harbhajan Singh v. Smt. Sakuntala Devi Sharma & Anr) the Hon'ble Delhi High Court held that the Commissioner's report is admissible as evidence even as substantive evidence without examination of commissioner. In the said judgment it has also been held that before relying on report the authority is bound to consider and decide objections. Relying on the said judgment, it is humbly submitted that before relying on the said ASI report, this Hon'ble Court is to reject the objections of the plaintiffs and as none of the parties have made application for examination ASI archaeologists' report is a substantive evidence and is fit for being admitted without examination of the archaeologists of the ASI. Relevant paragraph no.5 & 7 of the aforesaid judgment read as follows:

> "5. The first contention urged on behalf of the tenant is that the report of the Commissioner and the evidence recorded by him and enclosed with the report did not constitute legal evidence and could not, therefore, be considered by the Authority unless the Commissioner had proved the report as a witness and had been subjected to cross-examination. This contention, to my mind, is untenable because on the principle incorporated in Rule 10 (2) of Order 26 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the report and the evidence would be evidence in the proceedings in which the Commissioner is appointed. Sub-rule (2) of Rule 10 is in the following terms:-
> "The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be > evidence in the suit and shall form part of the record; but the Court or, with the permission of the Court, any of the parties to the suit may examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or as to his report, or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation."

> It is obvious from the aforesaid sub-rule that the report of the Commissioner and the evidence, although not the evidence without the report, would be evidence in the proceedings in which the Commissioner is appointed although the Court has the power, as indeed, the parties a right to examine the Commissioner personally in the Court touching any of the matters referred to by him in the report or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation. In the present case, the Commissioner had been appointed in the presence of both the parties. The parties were, therefore, aware that the Commissioner had been deputed to make a local investigation. The report of the Commissioner along with the evidence had been duly submitted in the Court. Although the tenant submitted his objections to the report but made no attempt either to summon the Commissioner or to seek an opportunity to cross-examine the Commissioner.
> 7. It is next contended that, in any event, the report and the material enclosed by the Commissioner with it could not be substantive evidence and at best could be utilised to corroborate other evidence on the question in controversy. This contention seems to be untenable because if the report of the Commissioner and the material enclosed with it constituted legal evidence, and I have held above that it did, I do not see how it could not be used as a substantive piece of evidence to base the finding. The Authority had appointed the Commissioner to inspect the spot, to make an investigation and to submit a report and the Authority was entitled to accept the same and base its finding on such material."

In AIR 1973 AP 168 (Vemusetti Appayyamma v. Lakshman Sahu) the Hon'ble Andhra Pradesh High Court held that report of Commissioner is a part of record and can be considered as evidence irrespective of the fact that the commissioner is examined as witness or not. Relying on the said judgment, it is submitted that the report of the ASI is fit for being considered as evidence in spite of the fact that the persons who have taken part in excavation process and in preparation of the report have not been examined as none of the parties had made application for their examination. Relevant paragraph no.6 of the aforesaid judgment reads as follows:

> "6. The learned counsel for the appellant however, objects to the Commissioner's report being accepted and acted upon without its being marked and without the Commissioner being examined. But when the Court appoints a Commissioner under O. 26, R. 9, C.P.C. for making a local inspection and to submit a report, the Commissioner is given the discretion to make a local inspection and record evidence if necessary and submit a report together with such evidence as he thinks fit. Under sub-rule (2) of Rule 10 of Order 26, C.P.C., the report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him form part of the record. When the Rule lays down that it forms part of the record irrespective of whether it is marked or not, the Court is bound to take that evidence into consideration. The failure to mark it as a document on behalf of the parties does not exclude it from the record. Sub-rule (2), however, lays down that either the Court or any of the parties may examine the Commissioner but if the Commissioner is not examined, the report submitted by him does not cease to form part of the record. It is nowhere laid down that unless the Commissioner is examined and through him his report is marked as an exhibit, the report of the Commissioner cannot be acted upon. That being so, the lower Appellate Court was right in considering the Commissioner's report and in, accepting the defendant's evidence and rejecting that of the plaintiff's witnesses in the light of that. The finding whether the plaintiff is in possession of the plaint schedule site or not is a finding of fact which is supported by the evidence on record and is binding on this Court in Second Appeal."

In AIR 1985 Guj 34 (Jagat Bhai Punja Bhai Palkhiwala & Ors. v. Vikram Bhai Punja Bhai Palkhiwala & Ors.) the the Hon'ble Gujrat High Court held that where the Commissioner was appointed to make inventory only and he was not appointed to take possession of the documents even if he was appointed to take possession of the documents, it would not have made any difference under Order 26 Rule 10B. The appointment is to perform merely a ministerial act and only those acts which are covered by sub-r.(1) i.e. ministerial acts, to which only sub-r.(2) would apply so as to attract the application of sub-r.10(2). Therefore, the report of the Commissioner for the performance of that ministerial act and the evidence if he had recorded himself would be evidence under Rule 10(2) but not whatever documents that may be incidentally or in course of the ministerial duty come to his notice and he may take possession there. Such collection of document is not recording of evidence and he was not appointed for that purpose. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that the ASI excavation team was not appointed to collect the bones from the different strata and get those bones chemically examined. As such though the ASI excavation team has collected bones and made inventory thereof which was not necessary for drawing the conclusion that whether there was any existing structure prior to 16th century or not. As such challenge to the ASI report on this superficial ground is liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph no.11, & 17 of the aforesaid judgment read as follows:

> "11. Since sub-r.(2) applies the provisions of R.10(2) that also may be reproduced here for easy reference.
> Rule-10(2) "The report of the Commissioner and the evidence taken by him (but not the evidence without the report) shall be evidence in the suit and shall form the part of record, the Court or with the permission of the Court, any of the parties to the suit may examine the Commissioner personally in open Court touching any of the matters referred to him or mentioned in his report, or > as to his report, or as to the manner in which he has made the investigation"

> 17. Moreover, the Commissioner was appointed to make inventory only and he was not appointed to take possession of the documents. Even if he was appointed to take possession of the documents, it would not have made any difference. Under O.26 R.10B the appointment is to perform merely a ministerial act and only those acts which are covered by sub-r.(1) i.e. ministerial acts, to which only that sub-r.(2) will apply so as to attract the application of sub-r.10(2). Therefore, the report of the Commissioner for the performance of that ministerial act and the evidence if he has recorded himself would become the part of the record in the suit under R.10(2), but not whatever documents that may be incidentally or in course of the ministerial duty come to his notice and he may take possession thereof. Such collection of documents is not recording of evidence and he was not appointed for that purpose and if the appointment is construed to such an extent as contended by the petitioners, such appointment would be ultra vires the scope of R.10 B. R.10 B read with R.10 does not make any radical departure suggested by the learned Counsel for the petitioners. In fact their contention is against the common sense and ordinary rules of convenience and proper conduct of a litigation. Neither the language nor the spirit nor the purpose of R 10B justifies such radical departure from the ordinary rules of procedure and evidence which are meant to facilitate convenient trial and fair opportunity to the other side."

In AIR 1994 KERALA 179 "C.K. Rajan v. State" the Hon'ble High Court Kerala held that The provisions of O. XXVI, R. 10 of the Civil P.C. is inapplicable to proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. However, the Court, in exercising the powers under Art. 226, can appoint a Commissioner. The Commissioner so appointed by the Court must be responsible persons who enjoy the confidence of the Court and who are expected to carry out the assignment objectively and impartially without any predilection or prejudice. The report of the Commissioner should be served on all the parties or made known to the public. If any person wants to dispute any of the fact or data stated in the report, he may take steps in that regard by filing an affidavit or by leading evidence. If the Commissioner so appointed by the Court to hold enquiry, considered facts and circumstances and made local inspection and discussed the matter with the parties and submitted a report containing reasoned findings, prima facie it constitutes evidence which can be acted by a Court of law. Interference with the result of a detailed and careful report so submitted should be made only for cogent and compelling reasons. In a case where an elaborate report is filed by the Commissioner, whose integrity, credibility and carefulness are not questioned, whose careful and laborious execution of his task is proved by the report itself, interference will be made only in exceptional circumstances, in cases where convincing evidence contra is available before Court. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that as no compelling reasons and convincing evidences contra are available before this Hon'ble Court the said report constitutes evidence which can be acted by a Court of law. Relevant paragraph nos. 18 and 19 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "18. We shall now inform ourselves as to the value and weight to be placed on the report submitted by the Commissioner appointed by this Court, Shri Krishnan Unni, District Judge. Shri Krishnan Unni is a senior Selection Grade District Judge with considerable experience and background. He is a judicial officer of repute and credibility. None of the parties, who appeared before us, at any point of time, questioned the capacity, credibility and integrity of Shri Krishnan Unni. The Commissioner has submitted fifteen interim reports and the final report in two volumes. He has taken enormous pains to meet various persons, gather details and discuss all aspects that arose for consideration. He took the trouble for personally inspecting very many places on many occasions. A bare perusal of the fifteen interim reports and the final reports, which contain more than 500 pages, will go to show that the Commissioner has done the job entrusted to him with remarkable ability and skill. The Commissioner has posed the question that arose for consideration in a straight forward manner and in the real perspective. The details of all aspects that arose for consideration were adverted to and the pros and cons were considered with remarkable ability. After a discussion of various aspects and perusal of various materials that were available, the Commissioner has entered specific findings and has made specific recommendations. It is true that the provisions of O. XXVI, R. 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure is inapplicable to proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. Even before the Code of Civil Procedure came into force, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council had occasion to remind the Courts in India about the approach to be made regarding a Commissioner's report made on local enquiry. In Ranee Surut Soondree Debea v. Baboo Prosanna Coomar Tagore, (1869-70) 13 Moo Ind App 607 at page 617, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council after stating that interference with the result of a local enquiry should be only upon clearly defined and sufficient grounds, stated the law thus :

"The integrity of the Ameen (Commissioner) is unquestioned; this careful and laborious execution of his task is proved by his report; he has not blindly adopted the assertions of either party; and without going minutely into details, Their Lordships think it sufficient to say that they see no ground for impugning the accuracy of his conclusion upon what they conceive to be the broad and cardinal issue upon which the determination of this case depends."

In Chandan Mull v. Chiman Lal, AIR 1940 PC 3 at page 6, the Judicial Committee again laid down the correct statement of the principle to be adopted in dealing with the Commissioner's report. It was observed :

"It has been laid down that interference with the result of a long and careful local investigation except upon clearly defined and sufficient ground is to be deprecated. It is not safe for a Court to act as an expert and to overrule the elaborate report of a Commissioner whose integrity and carefulness are unquestioned, whose careful and laborious execution of his task was proved by his report, and who had not blindly adopted the assertions of either party."

The above is the position in law uninfluenced in any manner by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure.

19. The Supreme Court of India had occasion to consider the jurisdiction of the Courts in exercising the powers under Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution of India in appointing Commissioners and the evidential value of such reports in such proceedings. The matter arose in a public interest litigation. In Bandhua Mukti Morcha v. Union of India, AIR 1984 SC 802, Bhagwati, J. at page 816 (paragraph 14) of the judgment stated thus :

www.vadaprativada.com

"The report of the Commissioner would furnish prima facie evidence of the facts and data gathered by the Commissioner and that is why the Supreme Court is careful to appoint a responsible person as Commissioner to make an enquiry or investigation into the facts relating to the complaint. It is interesting to note that in the past the Supreme Court has appointed sometimes a district Magistrate, sometimes a district Judge, sometimes a professor of law, sometimes a journalist, sometimes an officer of the Court and sometimes an advocate practising in the Court, for the purpose of carrying out an inquiry or investigation and making report to the Court because the Commissioner appointed by the Court must be a responsible person who enjoys the confidence of the Court and who is expected to carry out his assignment objectively and impartially without any predilection or prejudice. Once the report of the Commissioner is received, copies of it would be supplied to the parties so that either party, if it wants to dispute any of the facts or data stated in the Report, may do so by filing an affidavit and the Court then consider the report of the Commissioner and the affidavits which may have been filed and proceed to adjudicate upon the issue arising in the writ petition. It would be entirely for the Court to consider what weight to attach to the facts and data stated in the report of the Commissioner and to what extent to act upon such facts and data. But it would not be correct to say that the report of the Commissioner has no evidentiary value at all, since the statements made in it are not tested by cross-examination."

At page 817 of the judgment, in paragraph 15, the learned Judge said thus :

"We may point out that what we have said above in regard to the exercise of jurisdiction by the Supreme Court under Art. 32 must apply equally in relation to the exercise of jurisdiction by the High Courts under Article 226, for the latter jurisdiction is also a new constitutional jurisdiction and it is conferred in the same wide terms as the jurisdiction under Article 32 and the same powers can and must therefore be exercised by the High Courts while exercising jurisdiction under Article 226. In fact, the jurisdiction of the High Courts under Article 226 is much wider, because the High Courts are required to exercise this jurisdiction not only for enforcement of a fundamental right but also for enforcement of any legal right and there are many rights conferred on the poor and the disadvantaged which are the creation of statute and they need to be enforced as urgently and vigorously as fundamental rights."

Pathak, J. in concurring the judgment, observed at page 845 (paragraph 70) thus :

"It is true that the reports of the said Commissioners have not been tested by cross-examination, but then the record does not show whether any attempt was made by the respondents to call them for cross-examination. The further question whether the appointment of the Commissioners falls within the terms of Order XLVI of the Supreme Court Rules, 1966 is of technical significance only, because there was inherent power in the Court, in the particular circumstances of this case to take that action."

Amarendra Nath Sen, J. in a concurring judgment, at page 849 (paragraph 81) stated the law thus :

"The power to appoint a commission or an investigating body for making enquiries in terms of directions given by the Court must be considered to be implied and inherent in the power that the Court has under Article 32 for enforcement of the fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution. This is a power which is indeed incidental, or ancillary to the power which the Court is called upon to exercise in a proceeding under Art. 32 of the Constitution. It is entirely in the discretion of the Court, depending on the facts and circumstances of any case, to consider whether any such power regarding investigation has to be exercised or not. The Commission that the Court appoints or the investigation that the Court directs while dealing with a proceeding under Art. 32 of the Constitution is not a Commission or enquiry under the Code of Civil Procedure. Such power must necessarily be held to be implied within the very wide powers conferred on this Court under Art. 32 for enforcement of fundamental rights. I am, further of the opinion that for proper exercise of its powers under Art. 32 of the Constitution and for due discharge of the obligation and duty cast upon this Court in the matter of protection and enforcement of fundamental rights which the Constitution guarantees, it must be held that this Court has an inherent power to act in such a manner as will enable this Court to discharge its duties and obligations under Art. 32 of the Constitution properly and effectively in the larger interest of administration of justice, and for proper protection of constitutional safeguards. I am, therefore, of the opinion that this objection is devoid of any merit."

The latest decision on this subject is Delhi Judicial Service Association Tis Hazari Court v. State of Gujarat, 1991 AIR SCW 2419 : (1991) 4 SCC 406. We are of the view that the above decisions establish that the Court, in exercising the powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, can appoint a Commission. The Commission so appointed by the Court must be responsible persons who enjoy the confidence of the Court and who are expected to carry out the assignment objectively and impartially without any predilection or prejudice. The report of the Commission should be served on all the parties or made known to the public. If any person wants to dispute any of the fact or data stated in the report, he may take steps in that regard by filing an affidavit or by leading evidence. If the Commission so appointed by the Court to hold enquiry, > considered facts and circumstances and made local inspection and discussed the matter with the parties and submitted a report containing reasoned findings, prima facie it constitutes evidence which can be acted by a Court of law. Interference with the result of a detailed and careful report so submitted should be made only for cogent and compelling reasons. In a case where an elaborate report is filed by the Commissioner, whose integrity, credibility and carefulness are not questioned, whose careful and laborious execution of his task is proved by the report itself, interference will be made only in exceptional circumstances, in cases where convincing evidence contra is available before Court."

In (2003) 4 SCC 493 (Sharda v. Dharmpal) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the primary duty of a Court is to see that truth is arrived at. Under Section 75(e) of the Code of Civil Procedure and Order XXVI Rule 10A of the Code of Civil Procedure, the civil court has the requisite power to issue a direction to hold a scientific, technical or expert investigation. In certain cases scientific examination by the experts in the field may not only be found to be leading to the truth of the matter, but may also lead to removal of misunderstanding between the parties. Relying on said judgment, it is respectfully submitted that the ASI report is a scientific report of experts which has removed misunderstanding between the parties by giving scientific record that beneath the then existing disputed structure there was remains of temples of Northern Indian Hindu temples of 12$^{th}$ century over which the disputed structure was erected by utilizing material of the said temple. As such the said report is liable to be considered in the true letter and spirit of the aforesaid judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Relevant paragraph no.32-37 of the aforesaid judgment read as follows:

> "32. Yet again the primary duty of a court is to see that truth is arrived at. A party to a civil litigation, it is axiomatic, is not entitled to constitutional protections under Article 20 of the Constitution of India. Thus, the civil court although may not have any specific provisions in the Code of Civil Procedure and the Evidence Act, has an inherent power in terms of Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure to pass all orders for doing complete justice to the parties to the suit.
> 33. Discretionary power under Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure, it is trite, can be exercised also on an application filed by the party.
> 34. In certain cases medical examination by the experts in the field may not only be found to be leading to the truth of the matter but may also lead to removal of misunderstanding between the parties. It may bring the parties to terms.
> 35. Having regard to development in medicinal technology, it is possible to find out that what was presumed to be a mental disorder of a spouse is not really so.
> 36. In matrimonial disputes, the court has also a conciliatory role to play — even for the said purpose it may require expert advice.
> 37. Under Section 75(e) of the Code of Civil Procedure and Order 26 Rule 10-A the civil court has the requisite power to issue a direction to hold a scientific, technical or expert investigation."

In 1995 Supp (4) SCC 600 (Misrilal Ramratan v. A.S. Sheik Fathimal ) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that it is settled law that the report of the Commissioner is part of the record and that therefore, the report cannot be overlooked or rejected on spacious plea of non-examination of the Commissioner as witness since it is part of the record. Relying on the said judgment, it is respectfully submitted that on the ground of non-examination of the archaeologists of the ASI team the said report cannot be overlooked and rejected and as in view of settled law, the said scientific report is part of the record. The report is liable to be considered for drawing of the inferences.

> "3. Shri Sundaravaradan, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellants has contended that the approach of the High Court is manifestly illegal. We find no force in the contention. It is now settled law that the report of the Commissioner is part of the record and that therefore the report cannot be overlooked or rejected on spacious plea of non-examination of the Commissioner as a witness since it is part of the record of the case. We have gone through the report submitted by Shri Sundaravaradan and the High Court is clearly right in its conclusion that the age of the building as per the sanctioned plan of 1928 is 70 years and the building requires demolition. In fact, it is undisputed that the landlord obtained sanction from the Municipal Corporation for demolition of the building. What was lacking thereafter was that he did not obtain sanction for reconstruction. This is one of the grounds for rejecting the application for eviction. Undertaking was given that within six months from the date of the construction, he would obtain necessary sanction. Under these circumstances, we find that the High Court is right in reaching the conclusion that the landlord has established the need for demolition of the building for reconstruction as envisaged under Section 14(1)(b) of the Act. The appeals are dismissed. However three months' time is granted to the appellants for vacating the premises with usual undertaking. The undertaking shall be filed within one month from today."

In (1988) 2 SCC 292 (Southern Command M.E.S. Employees' Cooperative Credit Society v. V.K.K. Nambiar) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the High Court was obviously in error in its view that the Commissioner's report could not be acted upon and be treated evidence. Relying on said judgment, it is submitted that as the Commissioner's report is a legal evidence, it is liable to be considered by this Hon'ble Court as a piece of evidence. Relevant paragraph no.1 of the aforesaid judgment reads as follows:

> "1. After hearing Learned Counsel for the parties, we are

> satisfied that interference by the High Court with the findings of fact recorded by the lower appellate court in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution was wholly unwarranted and in excess of its jurisdiction. The High Court was obviously in error in its view that the Commissioner's report could not be acted upon or be treated as legal evidence. The Commissioner's report tends to show that the demised premises are no longer in occupation of the respondent but in occupation of strangers which fact does raise an inference of subletting as held by the lower appellate court."

The main ground of the objection of the plaintiffs specifically the plaintiff no.1's objection dated 8th October, 2003 as contained in its paragraph no.1 that the ASI report has been prepared with a prejudice mind and with one-sided presentation of evidence. In other words it can be said that the ground is of biased and mala fide as it has been elucidated in supplementary objection of the defendant no.6/1 & 6/2 of the OOS no.3 of 1989 dated 03/11/2003 wherein in paragraph nos.1 and 6 it has been stated that the said report is meant to strengthen the design of the communal combine RSS, BJP, VHP. The ASI department is under the control of Central Government. At that time the then Prime Minister Shri Atal Behari Bajpayee, Deputy Prima Minister Sri L.K. Advani and HRD Minister Sri M.M. Joshi all were of the BJP as such the ASI excavation team acted under their instruction and behest. As such said report being biased and mala fide is liable to be rejected.

In 1992 Supp (1) 222 (State of Bihar & Anr. v. P.P. Sharma, IAS & Anr.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that mala fides means want of good faith, personal bias, grudge, oblique or improper motive or

ulterior purpose. The administrative action must be said to be done in good faith, if it is in face done honestly, whether it is done negligently or not. The determination of a plea of mala fide involves two questions namely, whether there is a personal bias or an oblique motive and whether the administrative action is contrary to the objects, requirements and conditions of valid exercise of power. The action taken must, therefore, be proved to have been made mala fide for such considerations. Mere assertion or a vague or bald statement is not sufficient. It must be demonstrative either by admitted or proved facts and circumstances obtainable in given case. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the objectors failed to prove the mala fide either by admitted or proved facts and circumstances as such their objection is liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph 50-52 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "50. Mala fides means want of good faith, personal bias, grudge, oblique or improper motive or ulterior purpose. The administrative action must be said to be done in good faith, if it is in fact done honestly, whether it is done negligently or not. An act done honestly is deemed to have been done in good faith. An administrative authority must, therefore, act in a bona fide manner and should never act for an improper motive or ulterior purposes or contrary to the requirements of the statute, or the basis of the circumstances contemplated by law, or improperly exercised discretion to achieve some ulterior purpose. The determination of a plea of mala fide involves two questions, namely (i) whether there is a personal bias or an oblique motive, and (ii) whether the administrative action is contrary to the objects, requirements and conditions of a valid exercise of administrative power.
> 51. The action taken must, therefore, be proved to have been made mala fide for such considerations. Mere assertion or a vague or bald statement is not sufficient. It must be demonstrated either by admitted or proved facts and circumstances obtainable in a given case. If it is > established that the action has been taken mala fide for any such considerations or by fraud on power or colourable exercise of power, it cannot be allowed to stand.

> 52. Public administration cannot be carried on in a spirit of judicial detachment. There is a very wide range of discretionary administrative acts not importing an implied duty to act judicially though the act must be done in good faith to which legal protection will be accorded. But the administrative act de hors judicial flavour does not entail compliance with the rule against interest and likelihood of bias. It is implicit that a complainant when he lodges a report to the Station House Officer accusing a person of commission of an offence, often may be a person aggrieved, but rarely a pro bono publico. Therefore, inherent animosity is licit and by itself is not tended to cloud the veracity of the accusation suspected to have been committed, provided it is based on factual foundation."

In (2008) 7 SCC 639 (H.V. Nirmala v. Karnataka State Financial Corporation) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that where a party did not raise any objection in regard to the appointment of the enquiry officer and participated in the enquiry proceeding without any demur whatsoever and failed to establish that any prejudice has been caused by reason of appointment of a legal adviser as an enquiry officer such party cannot be permitted to raise the said contention. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the ASI was appointed to carry out the excavation work by this Hon'ble High Court and no objection was raised with regard to such appointment of ASI rather the objectors, their observers, their nominees and other parties duly participated in the excavation proceeding and they have also failed to establish that appointment of ASI caused any prejudice to them their such contention is liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph 10 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "10. The appellant did not raise any objection in regard to the appointment of the enquiry officer. She participated in the enquiry proceeding without any demur whatsoever. A large number of witnesses were examined before the 644 enquiry officer. They were cross-examined. The appellant examined witnesses on her own behalf. The learned Single Judge as also the Division Bench of the High Court opined that the appellant has failed to establish that any prejudice has been caused to her by reason of appointment of a legal advisor as an enquiry officer and as the appellant has participated in the enquiry proceeding, she could not be permitted to raise the said contention."

In (2006) 3 SCC 56 (Ceat Ltd. v. Anand Abasaheb Hawaldar & Ors.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in order to establish favouritism or partiality mental element of bias must be established by cogent evidence. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the objectors have failed to establish mental element of bias of the members of the ASI excavation team as such their objection is liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph 11 to 16 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "11. In Item 5 of Schedule IV to the Act, the legislature has consciously used the words "favouritism or partiality to one set of workers" and not differential treatment. Thus, the mental element of bias was necessary to be established by cogent evidence. No evidence in that regard was led. On the contrary the approach of the Industrial Court and the High Court was different. One proceeded on the basis of breach of assurance and the other on the ground of discrimination. There was no evidence brought on as regards the prerequisite i.e. favouritism or partiality. Favouritism means showing favour in the matter of selection on circumstances other than merit. (Per Advanced Law Lexicon by P. Ramanatha Aiyar, 3rd Edn., 2005.) The expression "favouritism" means partiality, bias. Partiality means inclination 61 to favour a particular person or thing. Similarly, it has been sometimes equated with capricious, not guided by steady judgment, intent or purpose. Favouritism as per Webster's' Encyclopaedic Unabridged Dictionary of the

www.vadaprativada.com

English Language means the favouring of one person or group over others having equal claims. Partiality is the state or character of being partial, favourable, biased or prejudiced.

12. According to Oxford English Dictionary, "favouritism" means—a deposition to show, or the practice of showing favour or partiality to an individual or class, to the neglect of others having equal or superior claims; under preference. Similarly, "partiality" means the quality or character of being partial, unequal state of judgment and favour of one above the other, without just reason. Prejudicial or undue favouring of one person or party: or one side of a question; prejudice, unfairness, bias.

13. Bias may be generally defined as partiality or preference. It is true that any person or authority required to act in a judicial or quasi-judicial matter must act impartially:

"If however, 'bias' and 'partiality' be defined to mean the total absence of preconceptions in the mind of the judge, then no one has ever had a fair trial and no one ever will. The human mind, even at infancy, is no blank piece of paper. We are born with predispositions and the processes of education, formal and informal, create attitudes which precede reasoning in particular instances and which, therefore, by definition, are prejudices." (Per Frank, J. in Linahan, F 2d at p.652.)

14. It is not every kind of differential treatment which in law is taken to vitiate an act. It must be a prejudice which is not founded on reason, and actuated by self-interest — whether pecuniary or personal.

15. Because of this element of personal interest, bias is also seen as an extension of the principles of natural justice that no man should be a judge in his own cause. Being a state of mind, a bias is sometimes impossible to determine. Therefore, the courts have evolved the principle that it is sufficient for a litigant to successfully impugn an action by establishing a reasonable possibility of bias or proving circumstances from which the operation of influences affecting a fair assessment of the merits of the case can be inferred.

16. As we have noted, every preference does not vitiate an action. If it is rational and unaccompanied by considerations of personal interest, pecuniary or otherwise, it would not vitiate a decision. The above position was highlighted in G.N. Nayak v. Goa University."

In (2005) 5 SCC 363 (People's Union for Civil Liberties v. Union of India) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that public displeasure is not confined to the police force only but this displeasure is reflected against many a department of the government including constitutional bodies and if public displeasure or perception were to be the yardstick to exclude people from holding constitutional or statutory offices then many such posts in the country may have to be kept vacant. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that as at that time there was BJP government, it cannot be said that all the branches and department of the government were working dishonestly at the behest of the BJP government. As such the objection which is based on such hypothetical wild allegations is liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph nos.10 to 12 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "10. While we cannot take exception in regard to the remarks made against the police in each one of the above cases relied on by the learned counsel for the petitioner, we certainly feel that these remarks cannot be so generalised as to make every personnel of the force, consisting of nearly 2.2 million people, violators of human rights solely on the ground that out of thousands of cases investigated and handled by them, in some cases the personnel involved have indulged in violation of human rights. Learned counsel for the petitioner, however, contended that the judgments apart, the public perception of the Indian police force as a whole is so poor that it considers the police as an organisation to be a violator of human rights. Therefore, selecting a retired police officer as a member of the Commission would lead to erosion of confidence of the people in the Commission. We are sincerely unable to gauge this public perception or its magnitude so as to import this concept of institutional bias. There are no statistics placed before this Court to show that there has been any census or poll conducted which would indicate that a substantial majority of the population in the country considers the police force as an > institution which violates human rights nor do we think that by such generalisations we could disqualify a person who is otherwise eligible from becoming a member of the Commission.

> 11. Public displeasure as presently perceived is not confined to the police force only. The views expressed in the media very often show that this displeasure is reflected against many a department of the Government including constitutional bodies and if public displeasure or perception were to be the yardstick to exclude people from holding constitutional or statutory offices then many such posts in the country may have to be kept vacant.
> 12. Then again what is the yardstick to measure public perception. Admittedly, there is no barometer to gauge the perception of the people. In a democracy there are many people who get elected by a thumping majority to high legislative offices. Many a times public perception of a class of society in regard to such people may be that they are not desirable to hold such post but can such a public opinion deprive such people from occupying constitutional or statutory offices without there being a law to the contrary? There is vast qualitative difference between public prejudice and judicial condemnation of an institution based on public perception. At any rate, as stated above, public perception or public opinion has no role to play in selection of an otherwise eligible person from becoming a member of the Commission under the Act."

In (2001) 1 SCC 182 (Kumaon Mandal Vikas Nigam Ltd. v. Girja Shankar Pant) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the word 'bias' include the attributes and broader purview of the word 'malice' which means and implies 'spite' or 'ill-will' and it is now well-settled that mere general statement will not be sufficient for the purposes of indication of ill-will, there must be cogent evidence available on record to come to the conclusion as to whether in face there was existing a bias which resulted in miscarriage of justice. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the objectors have failed to establish ill-will by cogent evidence as such their objection is liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph no.10, 26 & 32-35 read as follow:

> "10. The word "bias" in popular English parlance stands included within the attributes and broader purview of the word "malice", which in common acceptation means and implies "spite" or "ill-will" (Stroud's Judicial Dictionary, 5th Edn., Vol. 3) and it is now well settled that mere general statements will not be sufficient for the purposes of indication of ill-will. There must be cogent evidence available on record to come to the conclusion as to whether in fact there was existing a bias which resulted in the miscarriage of justice.
> 26. "Bias" in common English parlance means and implies — predisposition or prejudice. The Managing Director admittedly, was not well disposed of towards the respondent herein by reason wherefor, the respondent was denuded of the financial power as also the administrative management of the department. It is the selfsame Managing Director who levels thirteen charges against the respondent and is the person who appoints the enquiry officer, but affords a pretended hearing himself late in the afternoon on 26-11-1993 and communicates the order of termination consisting of eighteen pages by early evening, the chain is complete: prejudice apparent: bias as stated stands proved.
> 32. Lord Hutton also in *Pinochet case*16 observed:
>
> "There could be cases where the interest of the Judge in the subject-matter of the proceedings arising from his strong commitment to some cause or belief or his association with a person or body involved in the proceedings could shake public confidence in the administration of justice as much as a shareholding (which might be small) in a public company involved in the litigation."
> 33. Incidentally in Locabail [Locabail (U.K.) Ltd. v. Bayfield Properties Ltd.] the Court of Appeal upon a detail analysis of the oft-cited decision in R. v. Gough together with the Dimes case, Pinochet case, Australian High Court's decision in the case of J.R.L., ex p C.J.L., as also the Federal Court in Ebner, and on the decision of the Constitutional Court of South Africa in President of the Republic of South Africa v. South African Rugby Football Union stated that it would be rather dangerous and futile to attempt to define or list the factors which may or may not give rise to a real danger of bias. The Court of Appeal continued to the effect that everything will depend upon facts which may include the nature of the issue to be decided. It further observed:

"By contrast, a real danger of bias might well be thought to arise if there were personal friendship or animosity between the Judge and any member of the public involved in the case; or if the Judge were closely acquainted with any member of the public involved in the case, particularly if the credibility of that individual could be significant in the decision of the case; or if, in a case where the credibility of any individual were an issue to be decided by the Judge, he had in a previous case rejected the evidence of that person in such outspoken terms as to throw doubt on his ability to approach such person's evidence with an open mind on any later occasion; or if on any question at issue in the proceedings before him the Judge had expressed views, particularly in the course of the hearing, in such extreme and unbalanced terms as to throw doubt on his ability to try the issue with an objective judicial mind (see Vakuta v. Kelly; or if, for any other reason, there were real ground for doubting the ability of the Judge to ignore extraneous considerations, prejudices and predilections and bring an objective judgment to bear on the issues before him. The mere fact that a Judge, earlier in the same case or in a previous case, had commented adversely on a party-witness, or found the evidence of a party or witness to be unreliable, would not without more found a sustainable objection. In most cases, we think, the answer, one way or the other, will be obvious. But if in any case there is real ground for doubt, that doubt should be resolved in favour of recusal. We repeat: every application must be decided on the facts and circumstances of the individual case. The greater the passage of time between the event relied on as showing a danger of bias and the case in which the objection is raised, the weaker (other things being equal) the objection will be."

34. The Court of Appeal judgment in Locabail though apparently as noticed above sounded a different note but in fact, in more occasions than one in the judgment itself, it has been clarified that conceptually the issue of bias ought to be decided on the facts and circumstances of the individual case — a slight shift undoubtedly from the original thinking pertaining to the concept of bias to the effect that a mere apprehension of bias could otherwise be sufficient.

35. The test, therefore, is as to whether a mere apprehension of bias or there being a real danger of bias and it is on this score that the surrounding circumstances

> must and ought to be collated and necessary conclusion drawn therefrom — in the event however the conclusion is otherwise inescapable that there is existing a real danger of bias, the administrative action cannot be sustained: If on the other hand, the allegations pertaining to bias is rather fanciful and otherwise to avoid a particular court, Tribunal or authority, question of declaring them to be unsustainable would not arise. The requirement is availability of positive and cogent evidence and it is in this context that we do record our concurrence with the view expressed by the Court of Appeal in Locabail case."

In (2001) 2 SCC 330 (State of Punjab v. V.K.Khanna) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the test is as to whether there is a mere apprehension or there is a real danger of bias and it is on this score that on the surrounding circumstances must and ought to be collated and necessary conclusion drawn therefrom. If allegations pertain rather fanciful apprehension in administrative action question of declaring them to be unsustainable on the basis therefore would not arise. Action not bona fide by themselves would not amount to be mala fide unless the same is in accompaniment with some other factors which would depict a bad motive or intent on the part of the doer of the act. Relying on said judgment, it is submitted that the objectors have failed to prove and establish the aforesaid ingredients of prejudice and mala fide as such their objections are liable to be rejected. Relevant paragraph no.8 and 25 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "5. Whereas fairness is synonymous with reasonableness — bias stands included within the attributes and broader purview of the word "malice" which in common acceptation means and implies "spite" or "ill will". One redeeming feature in the matter of attributing bias or malice and is now well settled that mere general

statements will not be sufficient for the purposes of indication of ill will. There must be cogent evidence available on record to come to the conclusion as to whether in fact, there was existing a bias or a mala fide move which results in the miscarriage of justice (see in this context Kumaon Mandal Vikas Nigam Ltd. v. Girja Shankar Pant). In almost all legal inquiries, "intention as distinguished from motive is the all-important factor" and in common parlance a malicious act stands equated with an intentional act without just cause or excuse. In the case of Jones Bros. (Hunstanton) Ltd. v. Stevens the Court of Appeal has stated upon reliance on the decision of Lumley v. Gye as below:

"For this purpose maliciously means no more than knowingly. This was distinctly laid down in Lumley v. Gye where Crompton, J. said that it was clear law that a person who wrongfully and maliciously, or, which is the same thing, with notice, interrupts the relation of master and servant by harbouring and keeping the servant after he has quitted his master during his period of service, commits a wrongful act for which he is responsible in law. Malice in law means the doing of a wrongful act intentionally without just cause or excuse: Bromage v. Prosser. 'Intentionally' refers to the doing of the act; it does not mean that the defendant meant to be spiteful, though sometimes, as for instance to rebut a plea of privilege in defamation, malice in fact has to be proved."

6. In Girja Shankar Pant case this Court having regard to the changing structure of the society stated that the modernisation of the society with the passage of time, has its due impact on the concept of bias as well. Tracing the test of real likelihood and reasonable suspicion, reliance was placed in the decision in the case of Parthasarathi (S. Parthasarathi v. State of A.P.) wherein Mathew, J. observed: (SCC pp. 465-66, para 16)

"16. The tests of 'real likelihood' and 'reasonable suspicion' are really inconsistent with each other. We think that the reviewing authority must make a determination on the basis of the whole evidence before it, whether a reasonable man would in the circumstances infer that there is real likelihood of bias. The court must look at the impression which other people have. This follows from the principle that justice must not only be done but seen to be done. If right-minded persons would think that there is real likelihood of bias on the part of an inquiring officer, he must not conduct the inquiry; nevertheless, there must be a real likelihood of bias. Surmise or conjecture would not be enough. There must exist circumstances from which reasonable men would think it probable or likely that the inquiring officer will be prejudiced against the delinquent. The court will not inquire whether he was really prejudiced. If a reasonable man would think on the basis of the existing circumstances that he is likely to be prejudiced, that is sufficient to quash the decision [see per Lord Denning, M.R. in Metropolitan Properties Co. (F.G.C.) Ltd. v. Lannon (WLR at p. 707)]. We should not, however, be understood to deny that the court might with greater propriety apply the 'reasonable suspicion' test in criminal or in proceedings analogous to criminal proceedings."

7. Incidentally, Lord Thankerton in Franklin v. Minister of Town and Country Planning opined that the word "bias" is to denote a departure from the standing of even-handed justice. Girja Shankar case further noted the different note sounded by the English Courts in the manner following: (SCC pp.199-201, paras 30-34)

"30. Recently however, the English courts have sounded a different note, though may not be substantial but the automatic disqualification theory rule stands to some extent diluted. The affirmation of this dilution however is dependent upon the facts and circumstances of the matter in issue. The House of Lords in the case of R. v. Bow Street Metropolitan Stipendiary Magistrate, ex p Pinochet Ugarte (No. 2) observed:

'... In civil litigation the matters in issue will normally have an economic impact; therefore a Judge is automatically disqualified if he stands to make a financial gain as a consequence of his own decision of the case. But if, as in the present case, the matter at issue does not relate to money or economic advantage but is concerned with the promotion of the cause, the rationale disqualifying a Judge applies just as much if the Judge's decision will lead to the promotion of a cause in which the Judge is involved together with one of the parties.'

31. Lord Brown-Wilkinson at p. 136 of the report stated:

'It is important not to overstate what is being decided. It was suggested in argument that a decision setting aside the order of 25-11-1998 would lead to a position where Judges would be unable to sit on cases involving charities in whose work they are involved. It is suggested that, because of such involvement, a Judge would be disqualified. That is not correct. The facts of this present case are exceptional. The critical elements are (1) that A.I. was a party to the appeal; (2) that A.I. was joined in order to argue for a particular result; (3) the Judge was a director of a charity closely allied to A.I. and sharing, in this respect, A.I.'s objects. Only in cases where a Judge is taking an active role as trustee or director of a charity which is closely allied to and acting with a party to the litigation should a Judge normally be concerned either to recuse himself or disclose the position to the parties. However, there may well be other exceptional cases in which the Judge would be well advised to disclose a possible interest.'

32. Lord Hutton also in Pinochet case observed:

'There could be cases where the interest of the Judge in the subject-matter of the proceedings arising from his strong commitment to some cause or belief or his association with a person or body involved in the proceedings could shake public confidence in the administration of justice as much as a shareholding (which might be small) in a public company involved in the litigation.'

33. Incidentally in Locabail [Locabail (U.K.) Ltd. v. Bayfield Properties Ltd.] the Court of Appeal upon a detail analysis of the oft-cited decision in R. v. Gough together with the Dimes case, Pinochet case, Australian High Court's decision in the case of J.R.L., ex p C.J.L., as also the Federal Court in Ebner, and on the decision of the Constitutional Court of South Africa in President of the Republic of South Africa v. South African Rugby Football Union stated that it would be rather dangerous and futile to attempt to define or list the factors which may or may not give rise to a real danger of bias. The Court of Appeal continued to the effect that everything will depend upon facts which may include the nature of the issue to be decided. It further observed:

'By contrast, a real danger of bias might well be thought to arise if there were personal friendship or animosity between the Judge and any member of the public involved in the case; or if the Judge were closely acquainted with any member of the public involved in the case, particularly if the credibility of that individual could be significant in the decision of the case; or if, in a case where the credibility of any individual were an issue to be decided by the Judge, he had in a previous case rejected the evidence of that person in such outspoken terms as to throw doubt on his ability to approach such person's evidence with an open mind on any later occasion; or if on any question at issue in the proceedings before him the Judge had expressed views, particularly in the course of

the hearing, in such extreme and unbalanced terms as to throw doubt on his ability to try the issue with an objective judicial mind (see Vakuta v. Kelly); or if, for any other reason, there were real ground for doubting the ability of the Judge to ignore extraneous considerations, prejudices and predilections and bring an objective judgment to bear on the issues before him. The mere fact that a Judge, earlier in the same case or in a previous case, had commented adversely on a party-witness, or found the evidence of a party or witness to be unreliable, would not without more found a sustainable objection. In most cases, we think, the answer, one way or the other, will be obvious. But if in any case there is real ground for doubt, that doubt should be resolved in favour of recusal. We repeat: every application must be decided on the facts and circumstances of the individual case. The greater the passage of time between the event relied on as showing a danger of bias and the case in which the objection is raised, the weaker (other things being equal) the objection will be.'

8. The test, therefore, is as to whether there is a mere apprehension of bias or there is a real danger of bias and it is on this score that the surrounding circumstances must and ought to be collated and necessary conclusion drawn therefrom. In the event, however, the conclusion is otherwise that there is existing a real danger of bias administrative action cannot be sustained. If on the other hand allegations pertain to rather fanciful apprehension in administrative action, question of declaring them to be unsustainable on the basis therefor, would not arise.

9. It is in the same vein this Court termed it as reasonable likelihood of bias in Rattan Lal Sharma case (Rattan Lal Sharma v. Managing Committee Dr Hari Ram (Co-Education) Higher Secondary School wherein this Court was pleased to observe that the test is real likelihood of bias even if such bias was, in fact, the direct cause. In Rattan Lal Sharma case real likelihood of bias has been attributed a meaning to the effect that there must be at > least a substantial possibility of bias in order to render an administrative action invalid. Rattan Lal Sharma case thus, in fact, has not expressed any opinion which runs counter to that in Girja Shankar case and the decision in the last-noted case thus follows the earlier judgment in Rattan Lal case even though not specifically noticed therein.

> 10. Before adverting to the rival contentions as raised in the matter, it would also be convenient to note the other perspective of the issue of bias to wit: mala fides. It is trite knowledge that bias is included within the attributes and broader purview of the word "malice"."

The conclusion of the ASI report submitted before this Hon'ble Court is that there was a temple. In Chapter VI of the said report Sri L.S. Rao, Sri A.R. Siddiqui and Sri Sujeet Narayan, the archaeologists record their inferences as follows:

> "A noteworthy aspect of some of these architectural members is the presence of mortises/open grooves of varying dimensions on the body of slabs which serve the purpose of providing dowels/clamps as binding factor. In many a cases iron dowels have been found in situ. Besides, there are also symptomatic features to the effect of reusing the earlier architectural members with decorative motifs or mouldings by re-chiseling the slab (Pls.79-80, Fig.59). A few intact architectural members like Amlaka (Pl.81, Fig.59) pillar with Ghata-pallava base with dwarf beings as weight-bearers and Kirtimukhas (Pls.82-83, Fig.59) to mention a few, have also been recovered. Besides, there are a member of architectural members which have been decorated with deeply carved foliage motifs. This pattern is a distinct one resembling like that of "stencil" work (Pls.86-87). It may be pointed out that the various architectural members with similar decorative designs have been found used in the foundation of one of the major brick structures (wall 16) (see Chapter-IV-Structure) exposed in these excavations.
> The aforesaid pillars and other decorative architectural members of this site like fragment of broken jamb with semi circular pilaster (Pl.85), fragment of lotus medallion motif (Pls.89-90) emphatically speak about their association with the temple architecture. Stylistically, these architectural members in general and pillars in particular may be placed in a time bracket of

www.vadaprativada.com

tenth-twelfth Century A.D. It is also pertinent to note that there are a few architectural members (Pls.92-94), which can clearly be associated with the Islamic architecture on stylistic ground, which might belong to sixteenth century A.D. onwards."

(ASI report vol.I p.121 - 122)

The ASI report submitted before this Hon'ble Court in its Chapter-IV Sri B.R. Mani, Sri D.K. Singh, Sri Bhuvan Vikrama, Sri Gajanan L. Katade, Sm. Prabash Sahu and Sri Zulfeqar Ali the archaeologists record their inferences as follows:

a) "Two decorated sand stone blocks from an earlier structure, one having the damaged figure of a possible foliated makara-pra□ala were found re-used in the foundation of wal 5 on its outer face (Pls.22-23)"

b) "The decorated octagonal sand stone block on pillar base 32 having floral motif on four corners in trench F7 in the southern area is the unique example at the site (Pl.39) which definitely belongs to the 12th century AD. as it is similar to those found in the Dharmachakrajijna Vihara of Kumaradevi at Sarnath (Pl.40) which belongs to the early 12th century AD."

c) "A partly damaged east facing brick shrine, structure 5 (Pls.59-60, Fig.17, 24 & 24A) was noticed after removal of baulk between trenches E8 and F8. It is a circular structure with a rectangular projection in the east ...

Thus on stylistic grounds, the present circular shrine can be dated to c. tench century A.D. when the Kalachuris moved in this area and settled across river Sarayu. They possibly brought the tradition of stone circular temples transformed into brick in Ganga-Yamuna valley."

"The Ram Chabutra

The excavation revealed that the Ram Chabutra or structure 1 (Fig.3) has got no less than five different structural phases of its construction (Pl.15). Its original use is not certain and there is possibility of its being a water tank in its original shape. The chabutra which looked a small platform in its final form at the time of its last use, was found to be a fairly large structure when its core was exposed besides outer phases wherever where possible for excavation. In its enlarged form it was a structure nearly 22 m in east-west and about 14m in north-south orientation.

The base of the structure has been found to be no less than 2.67 m deep, constructed of 7 levels, each having calcrete blocks in one course with joints filled up with lime-surkhi mortar. These courses of the foundation levels were found still continuing downwards. Above this base was constructed a tank like structure of eight levels (Pl.16) having in its each level one course of calcrete blocks topped by two courses of bricks set in lime mortar. Above each level the walls were plastered with lime mortar. In its original form it had perhaps four projections in the middle of its four walls, but later it was raised upon the height of 2.41 m having eight levels in all and a projection of 76 m with the length of 1.67 m on its eastern and western sides in the middle of the wall. The inner measurements of this structure are 4.08 m in north-south and 4.30 m in east-west directions without their projection on either sides of east and west.

In the third stage of its use the structure was filled up with debris consisting of calcrete blocks and brick-bats upto its surface level. Afterwards throughout on the surface a course of calcrete blocks was spread with brick-bats mixed with lime-surkhi mortar above which was placed a squarish masonry platform at the spot where the western projection of the structure was located (Pl./17).

The quarish masonry platform was a solid structure 40 cm in height and 1.50 m in east-west and 1.55 m in north-south direction with its 7 cm top plastered cleanly with fine lime mortar. The top part was found projected over the surface (Pl,18) below which one more course of calcrete blocks and brick-bats etc., as in the lower course below it, were found laid and set in lime-surkhi mortar. Thus the total height raised over the tank like structure was 75 cm. This seems to have been the earliest form of the Ram Chabutra seems to match with the description of a square box elevated 5 inches above the ground level covered with lime stone or vedi (bedi) which was circumambulated thrice and saluted by people by prostrating on ground as given by the Austrian traveller Joseph Tieffenthaler who visited the site around 1766-71 and whose account was published in Latin and translated in French in 1786 under the title Description historique et geographique de l` Inde.

It is quite apparent that in due course of time the height of the Ram chabutra was further raised in two phases first having three levels of calcrete blocks mixed

with brick-bats, terracotta objects and potsherds of earlier period set in like-surkhi mortar, each level divided by well plastered surface. Finally, on the top, four courses of lakhauri bricks, brick-bats of earlier bricks set in like-surkhi mortar, were laid, probably during the late Mughal period over which cement plaster was done at a later date in which were fixed memorial or decorative slabs as evident fro the impressions available over the plaster (Pl.19). thus the minimum height of the structure was found to be no less than 7.40 m. In the extended part of the Ram Chabutra in the west its retaining wall has damaged the pillar bases 30, 33, 36, 39 and 42 of the Period VII. (Fig.3B)"

d) During the excavation 62 human and 131 animal figurines were found. In the consonance with the prevailing practice in the Gangetic valley, these figurines are the products of both handmade as well as moulding techniques. These terracottas are assignable from the pre-Mauryan to the previous century. They are both religious as well as secular, the former being represented as cult objects viz. mother-goddess.

The said ASI report records its findings of temple as follows:

"The Hon'ble High Court, in order to get sufficient archaeological evidence on the issue involved "whether there was any temple/structure which was demolished and mosque was constructed on the disputed site" as stated on page 1 and further on p.5 of their order dated 5 march, 2003 had given directions to the Archaeological Survey of India to excavate at the disputed site where the GPR Survey has suggested evidence of anomalies which could be structure, pillars, foundation walls, slab flooring etc. which could be confirmed by excavation. Now, viewing in totality and taking into account the archaeological evidence of massive structure just below the disputed structure and evidence of continuity in structural phases from the tenth century onwards upto the construction of the disputed structure along with the yield of stone and decorated bricks as well as mutilated sculpture of divine couple and carved architectural members including foliage patterns, amalaka, kapotapali doorjamb with semi-circular pilaster, broken octagonal shaft of black schist pillar, lotus motif, circular shrine having pranala (waterchute) in the north, fifty pillar bases in association of the huge structure, are indicative of > remains which are distinctive features found associated with the temples of north India."

The Gazetteer of India, Vol.-II, 3rd Edn. 1990, published by Director Publications Division, Govt. of India, Delhi also records that amalaka is characteristic feature of north Indian i.e. Nagara style temples. Relevant extracts from the said gazetteer reads as follows:

> "The three lower ones are square in cross section while the mastaka, of which the topmost part is the amalaka, is circular. Each of these sections has further subdivisions of which those of the bada may be useful for a study of the evolutionary sequence."
> (Ibid. P.224)

> "...In the Brahmesvara the jagamohana roof is surmounted by a domical member with the amalaka as its crown."
> (Ibid. P.225)
>
> "...Another typical feature is supplied by amalakas forming the crowning member of the principal sikhara and of the anga-sikharas."
> (Ibid. P.227)
>
> "...in a few instances, of such Central Indian features as extensions of pagas double amalaka."
> (Ibid. P.229)
>
> "...Such temples bear the characteristic features of the early Nagara temple, though the attenuated and globular shape of the amalaka provides a significant divergence."

Mohammad Abid, as an expert witness deposed in Hindi as DW 6/1-2 relevant portions of his deposition reads as follows:

> "a). I am well acquainted with the standard, technique as well as scientific and practical system and procedure of the archaeological excavation (ibid P. 2 – 3 para 3 specially line 5 and 6 of p. 3).
> b). Pillar base as it is seen in Plate 48 exactly same pillar base was found and no addition or alteration was made to it. (ibid p.25 L.10-12) > c). In Ayodhya at the time of excavation scientific method was adopted. (ibid p.57 L. 8-9) > d). It is correct that amongst the artefacts found in excavation, a divine couple was also found. (ibid p.65

e). It is correct that Toran – Ganapati, Prakar Mandir and yantra are found in a temple but not in a mosque. (ibid p.65 L.11-16)

Professor Dhaneshwar Mandal, as an expert witness deposed in Hindi as PW -24 relevant portions of his deposition read as follows:

"a). I don't think that during my stay archaeologists had constructed any pillar etc. In my presence there was no such happening that said archaeologist manufactured anything in concealed manner or by force. During excavation I had seen that the artefacts found in course of excavation were segregated. This is also correct to say that during the excavation human deposits were being found from the trenches. (ibid p. 161 L.5-9)

b). If at any place there is a kitchen then naturally at that place food would have been prepared but if really food would have been prepared, then according to archaeology finding of furnace / oven from that place is essential. In the collection of ASI's report Volume II (Plates) in Plate No. 3 oven and furnace have been shown and I myself has also seen the oven and furnace on excavation-site. (ibid p. 191 L. 9-15) c). In the Plate no.39 it looks as a stylistic elephant's trunk (Ibid p.250 L.6 & 7)

d). In Plate no.37 of the aforesaid report one pillar base of a definite form is appearing, There are stones on both side to support it. There is no such construction in Plate no.42. In this Plate the visible upper portion on which is marked F2 construction thereof is like the construction which is seen in aforesaid Plate no.37 & 38. The pillar-base which is visible in Plate no.47 construction thereof is different from the pillar-base of the aforesaid Plates. The pillar-base which is visible in Plate no.44 construction whereof is also different from the aforesaid pillar-bases. The pillar-base which is visible in Plate no.45, construction thereof is different from the construction of the pillar-bases which are visible in Plate no.37 & 38. The pillar-base which is in Plate no.46, construction thereof is different from the aforesaid pillar-bases. The construction of the pillar-base visible in Plate no.46 is similar to the construction in Plate no.42. The construction of the pillar-base visible in Plate no.47 is similar to the construction of

e)It is correct to say that floral motif is mostly used in Hindu temples. In Plate no.62 brick wall is visible beneath which in foundation some decorated stone pieces are connected. These stone which are visible in Plate no.37 & 38. The pillar-base which is in Plate no.46, construction thereof is different from the aforesaid pillar-bases. The construction of the pillar-base visible in Plate no.46 is similar to the construction in Plate no.42. The constructio pieces are also re-used. Floral motifs are also carved thereon. Mostly the floral motif are made in Hindu temples. The pillar-base which is visible in Plate no.30 is similar to the pillar-bases which are visible in Plate no.42 & 46. In the Plate no.22 a figure made on a stone-slab is Maker Pranal. In the Plate no.23 its close up has been given. Makar are abundantly made in Hindu tem which are visible in Plate no.37 & 38. The pillar-base which is in Plate no.46, construction thereof is different from the aforesaid pillar-bases. The construction of the pillar-base visible in Plate no.46 is similar to the construction in Plate no.42. The constructioples. The stones whereon flower, leaf, animal figurines, Kalash are engraved those are used in Hindu temples but it can be brought from somewhere else also and they might be of that place were they are entangled. Thus there are both possibilities. (Ibid p.263 L.5 – 16)

f). Such pillar-bases has also been found wherein orthostate has been used. Mainly these are situated in the Northern direction of the make-shift-structure. Such orthostatic pillar-base has not been found in the South. The orthostatic pillar-bases which have been found in the North wards of the make-shift-structure, I recognize them pillar-bases. I cannot say how many pillar-bases are on the North wards and how many pillar-bases are on South wards but the number of orthostate pillar-bases is 11. (I) recognize orthostatic pillar-bases as load bearing pillar-base but possibly their date is of post Mughal period. If in any pillar-base its foundation is of brick-bats and above which is orthostat, then I will recognize such pillar-base as load bearing pillar-base. In the Northern direction few pillar-base have been found. Such pillar-base have been found in the North the foundation whereof or brick bats and above that orthostate have been found. (Ibid p.288 L.16 – 24 and p.289 L.1 – 4)

> g). During the excavation at disputed site in Ajodhya small idols have been found. (Ibid p.310 L.11 – 12)
> h).In this Plate (Plate no.129 of ASI's report volume 2) Cobra-hood is visible. (Ibid p.310 L.16 & 17).
> i) I have earlier also seen the Plat which are visible in Plate no.37 & 38. The pillar-base which is in Plate no.46, construction thereof is different from the aforesaid pillar-bases. The construction of the pillar-base visible in Plate no.46 is similar to the construction in Plate no.42. The constructioe no.235 (of volume no.2 of ASI report). In a figure of this Plate which is on left-side portion of waist is visible wherein some article like ornament is visible but looking it, it cannot be said that whether this figure is of male or female. (Ibid p.320 Last line and p.321 L.1 – 4).

In the ASI's report Vol. II Plate 67 is photograph of "Garud-dhwaj" Plate No. 88 is photograph of "Srivatsa". These religious symbols of the Hindu Temple have been found during excavation at disputed site in Ayodhya. In Sri Bhagawat-Puran. 1.18.16; Sri Mahabharat Anushasan Parva.149. 51 & Shanti-parva Garud-dhwaj have been mentioned as one of the thousand names of the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu which means in the Flag of Lord Vishnu emblem of Garud finds place. In Sri Valmiki Ramayana Yuddh-Kanda.111.13 & 132; Sri Mahabharat| Anushasan Parva.149.77; Sri Ramcharitamanas Balkanda.146.6 Sri Vatsa has been mentioned as a holy mark on the chest of the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu. Finding of these holy religious symbols related to the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu leaves no doubt that the structure in question was a Vaishnav Temple.

Gazetteer of India makes it beyond doubt that the disputed structure was a temple.

The Commissioner in his report filed in Suit No. 1 of 1989 in the year 1950 has reported the presence of Samadhis of the Sages namely Sri Angira, Sri Markendey, Sri Sanak, Sri Sanandan and Sri Sanat attached to the disputed Structure of Sri Ramajanamasthan. As all four types of disposal of bodies i.e. cremating, drowning, burying and setting up (on hills etc.) have been described in the Divine Holy Sri Atharv-ved (18.2.34; 18.2.50-52 and 18.4.66). According to The Hindus' tradition and law the bodies of the Saints are either buried in earth which is known as Khanans / Samadhi or scattered in water which is known as Jal-samadhi. the Divine Holy Sri Atharv-ved (18.2.34) and its translation in Hindi and English read s as follows:

सर्वा॒स्तानग्न॒ आ व॑ह पि॒तॄन् ह॒विषे॒ अत्त॑वे ॥ ३४ ॥

34. They that are buried, and they that are scattered (vap) away, they that are burned and they that are set up (úddhita) — all those Fathers, O Agni, bring thou to eat the oblation.

Be it mentioned herein that offering flesh to manes and to the gods and goddesses in altar and taking flesh sanctified by Vedic hymns was religious practices of Hindus which is evident from Sri Manusmrity Discourse III.266-275 and Discourse V.26-44. Manes are worshiped in the form of the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu and the Scriptures prescribe offering of various meat to "Pitri roop

Janardanah". Even nowadays sacrifices are done in certain temples. The Lords of Ram Himself used to hunt in course whereof he was deceived by Marich who was in disguise of golden deer. Saints, cows, parrots etc. attached to a temple are buried in temple compound. As such bone can be found only at Hindu Shrine not at Mosque because building mosque over bones is strictly prohibited.

In temple cooking is must to feed the deity while it is prohibited in mosque. As during excavation oven and furnace have been found which are self evident of its being a temple.

AIR 1958 SUPREME COURT 731 "Mohd. Hanif Quareshi v. State of Bihar" held that the animals were used for the purpose of Sacrifices by the Hindus. In the ASI Excavation at disputed sites the bones have been found in and from the layer of the Gupta's period when the Islam had not come into existence from which fact it is crystal clear that the user of the flesh of those creatures if any were not the Muslims. Non-application of chemical examination of the bones will not vitiate report as this Hon'ble Court's direction was to excavate the site attesting the statement of GPR Survey the exact nature of anomalies/objects by systematic truthing such as provided by archaeological trench and to ascertain that fact chemical examination of the bones was not essential. Relevant paragraph 22 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "22. The avowed object of each of the impugned Acts is to ensure the preservation, protection, and improvement of the cow and her progeny. This solicitude arises out of the appreciation of the usefulness of cattle in a predominantly agricultural society, Early Aryans recognised its importance as one of the most indispensable adjuncts of agriculture. It would appear that in Vedic times animal flesh formed the staple food of the people. This is attributable to the fact that the climate in that distant past was extremely cold and the Vedic Aryans had been a pastoral people before they settled down as agriculturists. In Rg. Vedic times goats, sheep, cows, buffaloes and even horses were slaughtered for food and for religious sacrifice and their flesh used to be offered to the Gods. Agni is called the "eater of ox or cow" in Rg. Veda (VIII. 43, 11). The slaying of a great ox (Mahoksa) or a "grate goat" (Maharaja) for the entertainment of a distinguished guest has been enjoined in the Satapatha Brahmana (III. 4. 1-2). Yagnavalkya also expresses a similar view (Vaj. 1. 109). An interesting account of those early days will be found in Rg. Vedic Culture by Dr. A. C. Dass, Chapter 5, pages 203-5 and in the History of Dharamasastras (Vol. II, Part II) by P. V. Kane at pages 772-773. Though the custom of slaughtering of cows and bulls prevailed during the Vedic period, nevertheless, even in the Rg,. Vedic times there seems to have grown up a revulsion of feeling against the custom. The cow gradually came to acquire a special sanctity and was called "Aghnya" (not to be slain). There was a school of thinkers amongst the Risis, who set their face against the custom of killing much useful animals as the cow and the bull. High praise was bestowed on the cow as will appear from the following verses from Rg. Veda, Book VI, Hymn XXVIII (Cows) attributed to the authorship of Sage Bhardvaja:

"1. The kine have come and brought good fortune; let them rest in the cow-pen and be happy near us.

Here let them stay prolific, many coloured, and yield through many morns their milk for Indira.

6. O Cows, ye fattene'ene the worn and wasted, and make the unlovely beautiful to look on.

Prosper my house, ye with auspicious voices, your power is glorified in our assemblies.

7. Crop goodly pasturages and be prolific; drink pure sweet water at good drinking places.

Never be thief or sinful man your master, and may the dart of Rudra still avoid you."

(Translation by Ralph Griffith). Verse 29 of hymn 1 in Book X of Atharva Veda forbids cow slaughter in the following words:

"29. The slaughter of an innocent, O Kritya, is an awful deed, Slay not cow, horse, or man of ours."

www.vadaprativada.com

Hymn 10 in the same Book is a rapturous glorification of the cow:

"30. The cow is Heaven, the cow is Earth, the cow is Vishnu, Lord of life.

The Sadhyas and the Vasus have drunk the outpourings of the cow.

34. Both Gods and mortal men depend for life and being on the cow.

She hath become this universe; all that the sum surveys is she."

P. V. Kane argues that in the times of the Rg. Veda only barren cows, if at all, were killed for sacrifice or meat and cows yielding milk were held to be not fit for being killed,. It is only in this way, according to him that one can explain and reconcile the apparent conflict between the custom of killing cows for food and the high praised bestowed on the cow in Rg. Vedic times. It would appear that the protest raised against the slaughter of cows greatly increased in volume till the custom was totally abolished in a later age. The change of climate perhaps also make the use of beef as food unnecessary and even injurious to health. Gradually cows became indicative of the wealth of the owner. The Neolithic Aryans not having been acquainted with metals, there were no coins in current use in the earlier stages of their civilisation, but as they were eminently a pastoral people almost every family possessed a sufficient number of cattle and some of them exchanged them for the necessaries of their life. The value of cattle (Pasu) was, therefore, very great with the early Rg. Vedic Aryans. The ancient Romans also used the word pecus or pecy (Pasu) in the sense of wealth or money. The English words, "pecuniary" and "impecunious", are derived from the Latin root pecus or pecu, originally meaning cattle. The possession of cattle in those days denoted wealth and a man was considered rich or poor according to the large or small number of cattle that he owned. In the Ramayana King Janaka's wealth was described by reference to the large number of herds that he owned. It appears that the cow was gradually raised to the status of divinity. Kautilya's Arthasastra has a special chapter (Ch. XXIX) dealing with the: "superintendent of cows" and the duties of the owner of cows are also referred to in Ch. XI of Hindu Law in its sources by Ganga Nath Jha. There can be no gainsaying the fact that the Hindus in general hold the cow in great reverence and the idea of the slaughter of cows for food is repugnant to their notions and this sentiment has in the past even led to communal riots .It > is also a fact that after the recent partition of the country this agitation against the slaughter of cows has been further intensified. While we agree that the constitutional question before us cannot be decided on grounds of mere sentiment, however passionate it may be, we, nevertheless, think that it has to be taken into consideration, though only as one of many elements, in arriving at a judicial verdict as to the reasonableness of the restrictions."

ASI submitted report for the perusal of the Court. This report is data based. It is a piece of evidence which comes within the piece of substantive evidence. High Court has appointed ASI to inspect the spot and to make investigation and submit a report. Thus the High Court is entitled to accept the same and base its finding on such material for want of any other evidence to contradict the same even without examination of the Commissioner.

At this out set, it may be clarified that in view of Section 45 of Evidence Act, only opinion of expert witnesses in such type of matters are relevant. As regard the opinion of expert, Section 45 of Indian Evidence Act is relevant, which reads as under :-

Section 45 Indian Evidence Act is an exception to the rule as regards the exclusion of opinion evidence. Opinions of experts are relevant upon a point of (a) foreign law, (b) science, (c) art, (d) identity of handwriting, and (e) finger impression.

It is "a general rule that the opinion of witnesses possessing peculiar skill is admissible, whenever the subject-matter of enquiry is such that inexperienced persons are unlikely to prove capable of forming a correct judgment upon it without such assistance. In other words, this is so when it so far partakes of the character of a science or

art as to require a course of previous habit or study to obtain a competent knowledge of its nature (vide Taylor, 12th Edn., s.1418, p.902)

Both under this section and S. 47 A the evidence is of an opinion, in the former by a scientific comparison and in the latter on the basis of familiarity resulting from frequent observations and experience.

In either case the Court must satisfy itself by such means as are open that the opinion may be acted upon (vide Fakhruddin v. State of M.P., AIR 1967 SC 1326).

> "Even at common law the opinions of skilled witnesses are admissible wherever the subject is one upon which competency to form an opinion can only be acquired by a course of special study or experience. The terms on which expert evidence is admissible is governed in civil cases by the Civil Evidence Act, 1972 and the CPR (Civil Procedure Rules)".

At [Page 962, para 37-46, 15th Edn. (2001)] PHIPSON states : "Though the expert must be "skilled", by special study or experience, the fact that he has not acquired his knowledge professionally goes merely to weight and not to admissibility ..... Equally, one can acquire experts knowledge in a particular sphere through repeated contact with it in the course of one's work, notwithstanding that the expertise is derived from experience and not form formal training."

HALSBURY observation (vide 4th Ed, Vol. 17, page 61 (para 83) Courts frequently have to decide upon matters requiring specialised knowledge and, in appropriate cases, a party will need to call an expert or experts in support of his case. When such a person is called as a witness in civil proceedings, his opinion is admissible on any relevant matter, including an issue in the proceedings, on which he is qualified to give expert evidence.

It was laid down in Dolgobinda v. Nimai Charan Misra, AIR 1959 SC 914 that what is relevant is the opinion expressed by conduct and opinion means something more than mere relating of gossip or or hearsay; it means judgment or belief, that is, a belief or conviction resulting from what one thinks on a particular question. The section does not make the evidence of mere general reputation admissible as proof of relationship. It is the conduct or outward behaviour which must be proved in the manner laid down in Section 60.

The Court cannot substitute its own opinion for that of an expert (vide T. Veerabhadrappa v. Ministry of Mines &Steel, New Delhi, AIR 1998 Kant 412 (para 9)

An 'Expert' witness is one who has devoted time and study to a special branch of learning, and thus is specially skilled on those points on which he is asked to state his opinion. His evidence on such points is admissible, to enable the tribunal to come to a satisfactory conclusion (vide POWELL, 10th Edn., p. 39). The opinion of the expert is only opinion evidence . It does not help the Court in interpretation (vide Forest Range Officer v. P. Mohammed Ali, AIR 1994 SC 120 (para

8). The Court is not bound to follow it blindly. The expert cannot act as a judge or jury and the final decision is to be made by the judge.

All persons who practise a business or profession which requires them to possess a certain knowledge of the matter in hand are experts, so far as expertness is required. It is the duty of the judge to decide whether the skill of any person in the matter on which evidence of his opinion is offered, is sufficient to entitle him to be considered as an expert.

As a general rule, the opinion of a witness on a question whether of fact or of law, is irrelevant. A witness has to state the facts which he has seen, heard or perceived, and not the conclusions which he has formed on observing or perceiving them. The function of drawing inferences from facts is judicial function and must be performed by the court. If a witness is permitted to state not only the facts which he has perceived but also the opinion which he has formed on perceiving them, it would amount to delegation of judicial functions to him and investing him with the attributes of a judge.

To this general rule, however, there are some important exceptions, which are enacted in this set of sections. When "the subject-matter of inquiry is such that inexperienced persons are unlikely to prove capable of forming a correct judgment upon it", or when "it so far partakes of the character of a science or art as to require a course of previous habit or study", the opinions of persons having special knowledge of the subject-matter of inquiry become relevant; for it is very difficult for the Court to form a correct opinion on a matter of this

Matters for expert testimony; competency to depose as an expert

Opinions of experts become relevant only when the Court has to form an opinion upon a point of foreign law, or of science or art, or as to identity of handwriting or finger impressions. This section is, therefore, exhaustive of the matters on which expert testimony can be given, though the expression "science or art" would include almost all branches of human knowledge requiring special study, experience or training. So that a witness may be competent to depose as an expert, he must be shown to have made a special study of the subject or acquired a special experience therein. In such cases, the question is: "Is he peritus? Is he skilled? Has he adequate knowledge?" An expert is a person who has special knowledge and skill in the particular calling to which the inquiry relates. In law, and as applied to a witness, the term "expert" has a special significance, and no witness is permitted to express his opinion, unless he is an expert within the terms of section 45. The fact that the evidence of an expert was accepted in one case is no ground for accepting his evidence in every other case.

The term "expert" has a special significance and no witness is permitted to express his opinion unless he is an expert within the meaning of the term under section 45 Evidence Act. In each case, the Court has to decide whether a person said to be an expert, is really an expert taking into account his skill, study and experience. In many cases, persons having no educational qualification but having knowledge of high order have been treated to be experts. In Baldev Raj

v. Urmila Kumari, AIR 1979 SC 879, opinion of a doctor who had not specialised in gynecology but had knowledge of high order of midwifery as an obstetrician, was accepted as an expert. Clearly, therefore, what is admissible is the opinion of such an expert in the field in which he or she has acquired special knowledge. Outside specialised field, the opinion of the expert would cease to be expert opinion and fall outside the purview of section 45 of the Evidence Act. In Deeks v. Wells, AIR 1933 PC 26, it was held that depositions of expert witnesses as to result of their opinions, and as to the effect of them, do not come within the domain of expert evidence at all. In State v. Gaspar,AIR 1971 Goa 3, opinion of Medical Officer as to mental condition of accused on a particular date on the basis of testimony of witnesses to acts of accused on that date, was not held as the expert opinion but his presumption. There can, however, be no dispute that an expert's evidence is a good evidence and cannot be rejected simply because it may not be decisive. In spite of it, the Court is not bound by the expert opinion though it is bound to consider the same along with other evidence and circumstances appearing in a particular case. In Haji Mohd. v. State of West Bengal, AIR 1959 SC 488, the Court held that in the circumstances of a case, the Court can refuse to place any reliance on the opinion of an expert which is unsupported by any reasons. As far as medical evidence is concerned, it has never been considered to be substantive evidence of the charge, but has been accepted as corroborative of the charge. It has been accepted since long that knowledge of medicine and human body is a matter of science and,

hence, Courts have treated expert medical opinion with respect. In spite of it, a medical man cannot be allowed to give his opinion on matters, which are within the province of the Courts to decide.

In order to bring the evidence of a witness as that of an expert it has to be shown that he has made a special study of the subject or acquired a special experience therein or in other words that he is skilled and has adequate knowledge of the subject.

An expert is not a witness of fact. His evidence is really of an advisory character. The duty of an expert witness is to furnish the Judge with the necessary scientific criteria for testing the accuracy of the conclusions so as to enable the Judge to form his independent judgment by the application of this criteria to the facts proved by the evidence of the case. The scientific opinion evidence, if intelligible, convincing and tested, becomes a factor and often an important factor for consideration along with the other evidence of the case. The credibility of such a witness depends on the reasons stated in support of his conclusions and the data and material furnished which form the basis of his conclusions.

Though opinions expressed in text books by specialist authors may be of considerable assistance and importance for the court in arriving at the truth, cannot always be treated or viewed to be either conclusive or final as to what such author says to deprive even a court of law to come to an appropriate conclusion of its own on the peculiar

www.vadaprativada.com

facts proved in a given case. In substance, though such views may have persuasive value cannot always be considered to be authoritatively binding, otherwise reasonably required of the guilt of the accused in a given case. Such opinions cannot be elevated to or place on higher pedestal than the opinion of an expert examined in court and the weight ordinarily to which it may be entitled to or deserves to be given.

The Madras High Court observed that even though there is no bar for the court to compare the admitted signatures with the disputed signatures to come to its conclusion it would be prudent to require assistance of the expert witness. In fact all the judgments cited by both the parties related to signatures and not thumb impressions. It cannot be disputed that thumb impressions would stand on a different footing, when compared to signatures and the variations, in thumb impression cannot be easily judged by naked eyes. The Court remanded the appeal back to the lower court for sending the documents for the opinion of the expert and thereupon take evidence if necessary only in the context of the opinion of the expert and record his findings thereon.

The opinion of the Court, itself untrained in medicine and without trained assistance, on questions of medicine is valueless. On questions of handwriting also, the practice of the Court itself acting as an expert has been disapproved. But there is nothing in the so-called science of finger prints which need deter a Court from applying its own

magnifying glass or its own eyes and mind to the evidence and verifying the results submitted to it by the witnesses. In trial with the aid of jury, a question of handwriting or thumb-impression is entirely a matter for the jury.

I have considered the rival submissions, gone through the objections and the statement of the witnesses. The contention of Sri M.M. Pandey, Advocate, repeals the arguments of Sri Z. Jilani, Advocate for the plaintiffs. There is nothing on record to show that the report was biased. The massive structure theory was not based on imagination. Evidence of bones found from different levels postulate the fact that Hindus also used to perform sacrifices of animals to please the Gods. About pillar bases there is nothing on record to suggest as to how the construction can be disbelieved. The main thrust of the plaintiffs is that there was a structure which was not a Hindu religious structure is not believable for the reasons that certain images were found on the spot were there. Hundreds of artefacts which find mention in the report were recovered during the excavation that denote the existence of Hindu religious structure.

It is not disputed that the Archaeological Survey of India submitted four reports during the years 1862, 1863, 1864 and 1865. Thereafter also they were entrusted with the task to organize archaeological researches and protection of the cultural heritage of the nation. Maintenance of ancient monuments and archaeological sites and remains of national importance is the prime concern of A.S.I. It regulates all archaeological activities in the country as per the provisions of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958.

It also regulates Antiquities and Art Treasure Act, 1972 or the maintenance of ancient monuments and archaeological sites and remains of national importance the entire country is divided into 24 Circles. The organization has a large work force of trained archaeologists, conservators, epigraphist, architects and scientists for conducing archaeological research projects through its Circles, Museums, Excavation Branches, Prehistory Branch, Epigraphy Branches, Science Branch, Horticulture Branch, Building Survey Project, Temple Survey Projects and Underwater Archeology Wing.

In this context, it would be useful to refer to the various provisions of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958 (No. 24 of 1958). This Act provides for the preservation of ancient and historical monuments and archaeological sites and remains of national importance for the regulation of archaeological excavations and for the protection of sculptures, carvings and other like objects.

Thus, under the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958, excavations of ancient monuments etc. have to be regulated under the law of A.S.I. Thus A.S.I. is recognized expert body under the law and has been entrusted with various duties and entrusted functions including that of excavations. They have wide experience of excavation at different places of the country. At this stage, it may further be clarified that there was no even iota of evidence to suggest that 14 members team consisting of officers of highly repute, seniority and expertise, were coming from both the communities . Even the Muslims members have also signed over the report of A.S.I. Thus the cumulative effect is that it is unbiased report based on scientific investigation and without any influence on the body of expert which conducted excavation. The Court is taken full care and issued specific directions to maintain transparency. Two judicial officers remain posted there. The excavation was conducted in presence of the parties, lawyers and their nominees. Thus, no body can raise a finger about the propriety of the report on the ground of bias. There is nothing on record to suggest that the scientific report is incorrect. I have already referred to the statement of witnesses in another volume, which is a part of the judgment. Thus I am not referring them. It transpires from the report that it is without any bias. The only objection that has come prominently from the side of plaintiff is that A.S.I. team has worked under the pressure of the Central Government. It has nowhere been mentioned that who was the person in Central Government exercising any influence over 14 members team that excavated the site. The bald allegations cannot be accepted.

Sri Haji Mahboob Ahmad, D.W. 6/1-1 has failed to substantiate his allegations. He has not adduced any evidence in support of his contention as to who was the person interested in the Central Government and exercising influence over A.S.I. team.

Thus, on conjectures and on false allegations a scientific report

submitted by a team which was working under the direct control of this Court, cannot be supposed to act under the influence of any Government or any person. It is a data based report. Videography and photograph were also conducted during excavation. On behalf of the plaintiffs, it has not been suggested that the report is against any of the videography film or photography film. These films are preserve. Thus, without any material on record, it cannot be said, at this stage, that the version of Sri Hazi Mahboob Ahmad, DW-6/1-1 may be accepted as truthful.

It does not believe to reasons that the Central Government can influence the body of experts conducting archaeological excavations with transparency and which was reducing everything in writing and preparing photography report as well as also conducting videography in presence of both the parties. It is also not worth believable that certain Muslims members of the team could be forced by the Central Government to sign over the report against their wishes and against the data collected by them.

It may further be clarified that all the members signed the report over and not even a single member objected to it. Thus, the pillar bases were found at the archaeological site. The observers were present there. Thus the objection to this effect that these pillar bases were coined out by the team is of no avail because old structure cannot be considered to have been formulated by a team which is not supposed to construct anything during excavation in presence of parties. There is not even a single complaint against the archaeological team that they expended the sphere of their working or acted contrary to the duties assigned to them. Thus, this Court has to trust the scientific team which was functioning under the direct control of this Court. The team was functioning with transparency and furnished his data based report. At the cost of repetition I may further refer that archaeological excavation under the law has been entrusted by the Parliament to A.S.I., which is the expert body and functions under the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958.

Thus from all angle on flimsy grounds not based on any scientific report to contradict the report of A.S.I. and this Court has to rely over this scientific report. There is nothing on record to contradict the report of A.S.I. There was no request from the side of plaintiff to call any other team to substantiate the objections against A.S.I. report except by producing certain witnesses to contradict the same. It has never been pointed out before this Court that the report of ASI should further be rechecked by any other agency. No request further been made to issue another commission to re-examine the whole issue and furnish the report against the report of A.S.I. Thus, I find that the statement of Sri Hazi Mahboob Ahmad, DW-6/1-1, at this stage, should not be accepted as truthful. ASI was also not not working under the pressure of the Central Government. I may further refer that Dr. R. Naga Swami, OPW-17, Sri Arun Kumar Sharma, OPW-18, Sri Rakesh Dutta Trivedi, OPW-19, Sri Jayanti Prasad Srivastava, DW-20/5 in material particulars corroborated the finding of ASI which is data based report. Dr. R. Naga Swami, OPW-17 has a wide experience of excavation and he was associated with ASI. Above named witnesses have stated before this Court the reasons as how the report of ASI is truthful. On a detailed examination, there is nothing to doubt their competence and expertise of the officers of A.S.I. team. They have a better experience of excavation then the witnesses produced by the plaintiff. It may further be necessary to refer that Prof. Suraj Bhan, P.W.-16 alone has an idea of excavation and rest of the witnesses, Prof. D. Mandal, PW-24, Dr. R.C.Thakarwal, Dr. Supriya Verma, PW-32 and Mohd. Abid, DW-6/1-2 have absolutely no idea for excavation. They were never associated with Archaeological Survey of India. Simply because of the fact that at few sites some of the witnesses produced by the plaintiff remain present would not make them expert. The team of ASI which is functional under the statute was working transparently under the directions of this Court.

The evidence adduced by the plaintiffs against ASI report is based on surmises and conjectures and in a non-scientific manner. Data based report cannot be contradicted by adducing oral evidence without any scientific investigation. There was no request from the side of the plaintiff to re-check the scientific report by another body of the experts. Probably, this was not done by the plaintiff for the reasons that it was not possible for them to contradict the data based report.

This Court took the assistance of the team of experts working under ASI which is entrusted under the law to excavate archaeological sites with the ends in view to obtain an impartial, fair and scientific

report on the point whether the disputed structure, namely, Babari Masjid was built after demolishing the Hindu temple. ASI has answered the core issue which was referred to it on the basis of scientific evidence that a massive structure just below the disputed structure was of the 10th century. The relevant extract of gist of report is reproduced as under:

> " Whether there was any temple/structure which was demolished and mosque was constructed on the disputed site as stated on page 1 and further on P. 5 of their order dated 5th March, 2003, had given directions to the Archaeological Survey of India to excavate at the disputed site where the GPR Survey has suggested evidence of anomalies which could be structure, pillars, foundation walls, slab flooring etc. which could be confirmed by excavation. Now, viewing in totality and taking into account the archaeological evidence of a massive structure just below the disputed structure and evidence of continuity in structural phases from the tenth century onwards up to the construction of the disputed structure along with the yield of stone and decorated bricks as well as mutilated sculpture of divine couple and carved architectural members including foliage patterns, amalaka, kapotapali doorjamb with semi-circular pilaster, broken octagonal shaft of black schist pillar, lotus motif, circular shrine having pranala (waterchute) in the north, fifty pillar bases in association of the huge structure, are indicative of remains which are distinctive features found associated with the temples of north India"".

From the bare reading of the objections, it transpires that there was a structure beneath the disputed structure. The only dispute that it was not a temple or a religious structure. There is sufficient evidence before this Court that it was a religious structure. Certain data based findings of ASI is available to establish that there was a temple and a place of worship of Hindus. ASI has reported that the structural phases from the 10th century and onwards are available. It is obligatory

on the part of this Court to further observe that under the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958. After due excavation conducted ancient monuments covered under the definition as contained in Section 2(a) & (d) read as under:

> "2(a) "Ancient Monument" means any structure, erection or monument, or any tumulus or place of interment, or any cave, rock-sculpture, inscription or monolith which is of historical, archaeological or artistic interest and which has been in existence for not less than 100 years and includes-

> (iii) such portion of land adjoining the site of an ancient monument as may be required for fencing or covering in or otherwise preserving such monument, and
> (iv) the means of access to, and convenient inspection of, an ancient monument;

Accordingly, all ancient historical monuments and archaeological sites have to be declared.

Needless to say, at this stage, that the Archaeological Survey of India in its report found a massive structure of religious importance. I avail this opportunity to request the Government of India to maintain this national monument under The Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958 to ensure that they are properly maintained. At the cost of repetition, I may further refer that it is mandatory on the part of the Central Government to act in accordance with the provisions of the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act (No.24 of 1958) and ensure to maintain the dignity and cultural heritage of this country. The aforesaid request has been made to the Central Government in consonance with the directions of this Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Rajeev Mankotia vs. Secretary to the President of India and others, AIR 1997 SC 2766 in para 21 which reads as under:-

> "21.It is needless to mention that as soon as the Indian Institute of Advance Studies vacates the building and hands it over to the Archaeological Department, the Government should provide the necessary budget for effecting repairs and restoring to the building its natural beauty and grandeur. It is also necessary that it proper maintenance and preservation is undertaken as an on-going process to protect the historical heritage and needed repairs are effected from time to time. We avail this opportunity to direct the Government of India to maintain all national monuments under the respective Acts referred to above and to ensure that all of them are properly maintained so that the cultural and historical heritage of India and the beauty and grandeur of the monuments, sculptures secured through breathless and passionate labour workmenship, craftsmanship and the skills of the Indian architects, artists and masons is continued to be preserved. They are pride of Indians and places of public visit. The tourist visitors should be properly regulated Collection of funds by way of admission/entrance free should be conscientiously accounted for and utilised for their upkeep and maintenance under respect regulations/rules. Adequate annual budgetary provisions should be provided. In this behalf, it may not be out of place to mention that if one goes to Williamsburg in United States of America, the first settlement of the Britishers therein is preserved as a tourist resort and though it is one in the row, its originality is maintained and busying business activity goes on in and around the area attracting daily hundreds of tourists from all over the world. Similar places of interest, though of recent origin, need to be preserved and maintained as manifestation of our cultural heritage or historical evidence. Similar efforts should also be made by the Government of India, in particular the Tourism Department, to attract foreign tourists and to give them good account of our past and glory of the people of India as message to other countries and territories. Equally all the State Governments would do well vis-a-vis monuments of State important, thought given power under Entry 12, List II of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution. From this perspective, the petitioner has served a great cause of national importance and we place on record his effort to have the Viceregal Lodge preserved and maintained; but for his painstaking efforts, it would have been desecrated into a five Star Hotel and in no time, "We, the people of India" would have lost our ancient historical heritage."

The Hon'ble Apex Court has held in the case of Southern Command Military Engineering Services Employees coop. Credit Society Vs. V.K.K. Nambiar (since deceased) by legal representative Madhvi Devi, (1988) 2 SCC 292 that the Commissioner's report is a legal evidence. Relevant extract of para-1 of the aforesaid case is reproduced as under:-

> "1. ..... The High Court was obviously in error in its view that the Commissioner's report could not be acted upon or be treated as legal evidence."

It is a settled proposition of law that the report of the Commissioner and the evidence would be evidence in the proceedings

in which the Commissioner is appointed. In the present case, the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) was appointed in the presence of both the parties. Accordingly ASI functioned as Commissioner in this case. The report of ASI along with other relevant material had been duly submitted in this court. The report and material submitted along with it have been used for the purpose of proceedings. The report of the Commissioner and the material enclosed with it constituted legal evidence and I do not see how it should not be used as substantive piece of evidence to base the findings. ASI was appointed to excavate the site and to make investigation and also to submit a report, accordingly this Court is entitled to accept the report and base its findings on such material. Even on the basis of report and material submitted along with it by ASI, the finding on the question is based on cogent evidence.

The excavation report of the ASI is a scientific report of experts against whom bias and malafide has not been proved. Accordingly it has been relied upon as a piece of evidence on the basis of the case law referred to above.

Vis-a-vis in the sequence of events, referred to above, and on the basis of the report, it can conclusively be held that the disputed structure was constructed on the site of old structure after the demolition of the same. There is sufficient evidence to this effect that the structure was a Hindu massive religious structure. Accordingly, issue no. 1(b) is decided in favour of the defendants and against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO. 1-B (a)

Whether the building existed at Nazul plot No. 583 of the Khasra of the years 1931 of Mohalla Kot Ram Chandra known as Ram Kot, city Ayodhya (Nazul estate of Ayodhya ? If so its effect thereon)"

FINDINGS:

It is admitted between the parties that disputed structure existed at Nazul plot No. 583 of Khasra of year 1931 of Mohalla Kot Ram Chandra known as Ram Kot, city Ayodhya. The only dispute between the parties is with regard to the nature of the structure. The Hon'ble Apex Court has also in Dr. M. Ismail Farooqui's Case has limited the scope of the case by confining it in outer and inner courtyard. Thus the revenue entries may be presumed to be correct as none of the parties adduced any evidence against them. The property could not be demarcated, but it is admitted that the same was acquired. In view of the aforesaid circumstances, it can be said that the property existed on Nazul plot No. 583. Issues no. 1-B(a) is decided accordingly.

ISSUE NO.1- B(b)

Whether the building stood dedicated to almighty God as alleged by the plaintiffs?

FINDINGS:

Plaintiffs have come out with a case that property in suit was dedicated to almighty and that is how the mosque came into existence. Plaintiffs have relied over certain documents to show that mosque was in existence.

On behalf of the defendants, it is urged that the waqf cannot be created against the Quranic commands. The holy Quran has already prohibited that building over the land of a temple is not a mosque and the owner of the land is entitle for restoration of possession with liberty to worship therein. It is further submitted that Waqif must be the owner and for creating valid waqf. Emperor Babar was not the owner of Hindu Shrine Shri Ram Janam Sthan. Accordingly, neither he nor his commander had any right to erect mosque and building by creating a waqf against the tenets of Islam.

To consider the rival submissions of the parties, it would be necessary to consult muslim religious books on the subject.

QURANIC COMMANDS ABOUT WAQF

The holy Quran has given a vivid description about waqf. In this reference following aspects are relevant and are read as under :-

1. Art. (1) Quranic Commands.-"... But it is righteousness.... to spend of your substance, out of love for Him, for your kin, for orphans, for the needy, for the wayfarer, for those who ask, and for the ransom of slaves; to be steadfast in prayer, and practice regular charity....."

Quran-Sura 2 : Aayat 177

"..... And establish regular prayers and give regular charity; and loan to God a beautiful loan"

" And be steadfast in prayer and regular in charity....."

www.vadaprativada.com

"By no means Shall ye attain righteousness unless ye give (freely) of that which you love, and whatever ye give, of a truth God knoweth it well."

Quran-Sura 3 : Aayat 92 etc.

In all countries where Muslim law is applicable, law of Waqfs is given much importance. In India Shariat Act (Section 2) gives legal sanctity to Waqfs. This is so because of commands of Quran and traditions of Prophet had encouraged Muslims to make Waqfs. Though it was not compulsory for every Muslim to make Waqfs of their properties but traditions of Prophet encouraged Muslims the world over to make Waqfs for different purposes. He said, "there is one Dinar which you have bestowed in the road of God, and another in freeing a slave, and another in alms to the poor, and another given to your family and children, that is the greatest Dinar in point of reward which you gave to your family." As in the sequence of giving alms to needy, ones family has been ordered to be put in top place.

Quran is very emphatic and it could be found almost after few pages that a man should give charity to poor, from what he has and it has become characteristic of Islam.

Thus, according to the Quranic injunctions a Waqif must be the owner of the property for creating waqf. To resolve the controversy, it would be expedient to have a glimpse over the historical events as well as Islamic injunctions with regard to creation of Waqf including the Farman issued by Mughal Emperor Shah Jahan, which reads as under:-

Farman of the emperor Shahjahan held that the building over the land of a temple is not a mosque and owner of the temple is entitled for restoration of possession with liberty to worship therein according to his own religion has force of law:

1. In AIR 1963 SC 1638 (Tilkayat Shri Govindalalji Maharat etc.. v. State of Rajasthan & Ors.) the Bench comprised of Hon'ble Five-Judge of the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the Farman issued by an absolute ruler like the Maharana of Udaipur in 1934 is a law by which the affairs of the Nathdwara temple and succession to the office of the Tilkayat were governed after its issuance. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the Farman of the Emperor Shahjahan wherein it has been held that a building constructed over the land of the temple of other person can not be a mosque is admissible as ratio of Law of Shar so far it doesn't contradict the law of Shar, and it is further submitted that any addition, alteration or modification made by any Rulers arbitrarily in violation of the law for the time being in force cannot convert Sri Ramajanmasthan Temple into an alleged mosque. Relevant paragraphs 32 and 33 of the aforesaid judgment reads as follows:

> "32. In appreciating the effect of this Firman, it is first necessary to decide whether the firman is a law or not. It is matter of common knowledge that at the relevant time the Maharana of Udaipur was an absolute monarch in whom vested all the legislative, judicial and executive powers of the State. In the case of an absolute Ruler like the Maharana of Udaipur it is difficult to make any distinction between an executive order issued by him or a legislative command issued by him. Any order issued by such a Ruler has the force of law and did govern the rights of the parties affected thereby. This position is > covered by decisions of this court and it has not been disputed before us, vide Madhaorao Phalke v. State of Madhya Bharat, 1961-1 SCR 957 : (AIR 1961 SC 298). Ameer-un-Nissa Begum v, Mahboob Begum, AIR 1955 SC 352 and Director of Endowments, Government of Hyderabad v. Alkram Alim (S) AIR .1956 SC 60.

> 33. It is true that in dealing with the effect of this Firman, the learned Attorney-General sought to raise before us a novel point that under Hindu law even an absolute monarch was not competent to make a law affecting religious endowments and their administration. He suggested that he was in position to rely upon the opinions of scholars which tended to show that a Hindu monarch was competent only to administer the law as prescribed by Smgritis and the oath which he was expected to take at the time of his coronation enjoined him to obey the Smritis and to see that their injunctions were obeyed by his subject. We did not allow the learned Attorney-General to develop this point because we hold that this novel point cannot be accepted in view of the well-recognised principles of jurisprudence. An absolute monarch was the fountain-head of all legislative, executive and judicial powers and it is of the very essence of sovereignty which vested in him that he could supervise and control the administration of public charity. In our opinion there is no doubt whatever that this universal principle in regard to the scope of the powers inherently vesting in sovereignty applies as much to Hindu monarchs as to any other absolute monarch. Therefore, it must be held that the Firman issued by the Maharana of Udaipur in 1934 is a law by which the affairs of the office Nathdwara. Temple and succession to the office of the Tilkayat were governed after its issue."

2. In AIR 1961 SC 298 (Madha Rao Phalke. v. Land of Madhya Bharat & Anr.) a Bench comprised of Hon'ble five-Judges the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the orders issued by absolute Monarch ruler of Guwalior State at force of law and would amount to existing law. Relevant paragraphs 11, 12, 14 and 18 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "11. In dealing with the question as to whether the orders issued by such as absolute monarch amount to a law or

regulation having the force of law, or whether they constitute merely administrative orders, it is important to bear in mind that the distinction between executive orders and legislative commands is likely to be merely academic where the Ruler is the source of all power. There was no constitutional limitation upon the authority of the Ruler to act in any capacity he liked; he would be the supreme legislature, the supreme judiciary and the supreme head of the executive, and all his orders, however issued, would have the force of law and would govern and regulate the affairs of the State including the rights of its citizens. In Ameer-un-Nissa Begum v. Mahboob Begum, AIR 1955 SC 352, this Court had to deal with the effect of a Firman issued by the Nizam, and it observed that so long as the particular Firman issued by the Nizam, held the field that alone would govern and regulate the rights of the parties concerned though it would be annulled or modified by a later Firman at any time that the Nizam willed. What was held about the Firman about all the Nizam would be equally true about all effective orders issued by the Ruler of Gwalior (Vide also : Director of Endowments, Government of Hyderabad v. Akram Ali, (S) AIR 1956 SC 60).

12. It is also clear that an order issued by an absolute monarch in an Indian State which had the force of law would amount to an existing law under Art. 372 of the Constitution. Article 372 provides for the continuance in force of the existing laws which were in force in the territories of India immediately before the commencement of the Constitution, and Art,. 366(10) defines an existing law, inter alia, as meaning any law, ordinance, order, rule or regulation passed or made before the commencement of the Constitution by any person having a power to make such law, ordinance order, rule or regulation. In Edward Mills Co., Ltd., Beawar v. State of Ajmer, (S) AIR 1955 SC 25, this Court has held that "there is not any material difference between the expressions 'existing law', and the 'law in force'. The definition of an existing law in Art. 366 (10) as well as the definition of an Indian law contained in Sec. 3(29) of the General Clauses Act make this position clear". Therefore, even if it is held that the Kalambandis in question did not amount to a quanun or law technically so called, they would nevertheless be orders or regulations which had the force of law in the State of Gwalior at the material time, and would be saved under Art. 372. The question which then arises is whether these Kalambandis were regulations having the force of law at the material time.

> 18. It is not disputed that if the Kalambandis on which the appellant's right is based are rules or regulations having the force of law the impugned executive order issued by respondent 1 would be invalid. The right guaranteed to the appellant by an existing law cannot be extinguished by the issue of an executive order. In fact on this point there has never been a dispute between the parties in the present proceedings. That is why the only point of controversy between the parties was whether the Kalambandis in question amount to an existing law or not. Since we have answered this question in favour of the appellant we must allow the appeal set aside the order passed by the High Court and direct that a proper writ or order should be issued in favour of the appellant as prayed for by him. The appellant would be entitled to his costs throughout."

3. In AIR 1955 SUPREME COURT 352 "Ameer-un-Nissa Begum v. Mahboob Begum" the Hon'ble Supreme Copurt held that the firmans were expressions of the sovereign will of the Ruler and they were binding in the same way as any other law; nay, they would override all other laws which were in conflict with them. So long as a particular firman held the field, that alone would govern or regulate the rights of the parties concerned, though it could be annulled or modified by a later Firman at any time. Relevant paragraph 15 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "15. The determination of all these questions depends primarily upon the meaning and effect to be given to the various 'Firmans' of the Nizam which we have set out already. It cannot be disputed that prior to the integration of Hyderabad State with the Indian Union and the coming into force of the Indian Constitution, the Nizam of Hyderabad enjoyed uncontrolled sovereign powers. He was the supreme legislature, the supreme judiciary and the supreme head of the executive, and there were no constitutional limitations upon his authority to act in any of these capacities. The 'Firmans' were expressions of the sovereign will of the Nizam and they were binding in the same way as any other law; - nay, they would override all > other laws which were in conflict with them. So long as a particular 'Firman' held the field, that alone would govern or regulate the rights of the parties concerned, though it could be annulled or modified by a later 'Firman' at any time that the Nizam willed."

It transpires from the aforesaid judgment that Farman issued by Shah Jahan were considered to be the law applicable in those days and the Indian Courts have always recognized the Farman of Shah Jahan that the building constructed over the land of a temple of other persons, cannot be a mosque, cannot be brushed aside because the principle is based on the law of Shar, which is based on divine law. Thus looking to both the versions, it transpires that it was not possible for Emperor Babar and its commanders or anybody to dedicate the land or the building to almighty. It is not covered under the valid waqf.

Thus, in view of the circumstances referred to above, it transpires that according to the historical document it may conclusively be observed that the property in suit was in the control of Ibrahim Lodi and Hindus claim that they were having the temple over the property in dispute and Babur cannot acquire title of the said temple at Ayodhya. In this regard, according to the principles of Shar which is applicable in the matters of dedication of mosque and waqf cannot be over-looked.

According to holy Quran and subsequently according to the traditions, it was mandatory on the part of the muslim, firstly to become the owner of the property and thereafter waqf the property. Since Emperor Babar was a Hanafi Muslim and there is nothing on record to suggest that he acquired the title of the temple. Accordingly, the divine law, he was not in a position to erect a mosque against the tenets of Islam referred to above. Thus against the injunctions of Quran and Hadith, if anything has been done against the spirit of Islam, this Court is not in a position to recognize under the law, even the Farman of Shah Jahan and further relevant books written by certain authors like Mulla and others, leave no room for doubt that the property dedicated by way of waqf must belong to the waqif at the time of dedication. Even latest enactments referred to above are based on the same theory and they have been enacted just to give effect to the spirit of Islam, accordingly in this case to my mind a conqueror was not in a position to erect a building contrary to the religious mandate of Islam. Thus it cannot be construed that there was any valid dedication to the almighty and the building can be treated to be a waqf property or a valid mosque in accordance with Islam. If anything has been done against the tenets of Islam, it looses the significance under the Mohammedan law. Thus, if at all plaintiffs' version is accepted, it would be presumed that the property in dispute was dedicated to almighty against the divine law of Shar and against the Hanafi principles of law referred to above.

Thus, the waqf was not created in accordance with the spirit of Islam and it was done against the Islamic injunctions and contrary to the practice that was performed by holy Prophet. Even the Quranic injunctions are against the creation of such a waqf, which is against the religious norms.

Thus, in view of the circumstances referred to above, issue no. 1-B(b) is decided against the plaintiffs and this Court is of the view that the building was not dedicated to the almighty as alleged by the plaintiffs contrary to the injunctions of Quran and other religious material referred to above.

ISSUE NO. 1-B(c)

Whether the building had been used by the members of Muslim community for offering prayers from times immemorial ? If so its effect?

FINDINGS:

Muslims claim that the disputed structure stood dedicated to almighty God. It has been shown in the sketch map. In Dr. M. Ismail Farooqui's case, the Hon'ble Apex Court decided to divide the property into outside courtyard i.e. the open place and inner place i.e. covered place known as building. There is no evidence worth the name that muslims used to offer Namaz in the outside courtyard. The building is also not in existence. The Hon'ble Apex Court has directed to decide the title of respective parties over the land in dispute. The disputed structure has already been demolished. Consequently, there is no building there. It is a open place. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Dr. M. Ismail Farooqui Vs. Union of India (1994) 6 SCC 360 at para-70 held as under:-

> "70. In Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj and Ors. v. Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar AIR 1938 Lahore 369, it was held that where a mosque has been adversely possessed by non-Muslims, it lost its sacred

character as mosque. Hence, the view that once a consecrated mosque, it remains always a place of worship as a mosque was not the Mahomedan Law of India as approved by Indian Courts. It was further held by the majority that a mosque in India was an immovable property and the right of worship at a particular place is lost when the right to property on which it stands is lost by adverse possession. The conclusion reached in the minority judgment of Din Mohd., J. is not the Mahomedan Law of British India. The majority view expressed by the learned Chief Justice of Lahore High Court was approved by the Privy Council in AIR 1940 PC 116, in the appeal against the said decision of the Lahore High Court. The Privy Council held:

> ...It is impossible to read into the modern Limitation Acts any exception for property made wakf for the purposes of mosque whether the purpose be merely to provide money for the upkeep and conduct of a mosque or to provide a site and building for the purpose. While their Lordships have every sympathy with the religious sentiment which would ascribe sanctity and inviolability to a place of worship, they cannot under the Limitation Act accept the contentions that such a building cannot be possessed adversely to the wakf, or that it is not so possessed so long as it is referred to as "mosque" or unless the building is razed to the ground or loses the appearance which reveals its original purpose."

Thus a mosque if adversely possessed by a Non-Muslim, it will loose it sacred character as a mosque. The plaintiffs are not in possession over the property in suit and filed the suit for recovery of the possession. There is no reliable evidence that the prayers were offered by Muslims from times immemorial. Plaint averments are contrary to the same. Issue No.1-B(c) is decided against the plaintiffs.

Is the suit within time?

FINDINGS:

It is alleged by the plaintiffs that in the town of Ayodhya there exists an ancient historic mosque, commonly known as Babri Masjid, built by Emperor Babar more than 433 years ago, after his conquest of India and his occupation of the territories including the town of Ayodhya, for the use of the Muslims in general, as a place of worship and performance of religious ceremonies.

www.vadaprativada.com

The cause of action for the suit against the Hindu public arose on 23.12.1949 at Ayodhya, district Faizabad within the jurisdiction of this Hon'ble Court when the Hindus unlawfully and illegally entered the mosque and desecrated the mosque by placing idols in the mosque thus causing obstruction and interference with the rights of the Muslims in general, offering prayers and performing other religious ceremonies in the mosque. The Hindus are also causing obstructions to the Muslims in the graveyard, (Ganj-Shahidan) in reciting Fatiha to the dead persons buried therein. The injuries so caused are continuing injuries and the cause of action arising therefrom is renewed de-die-indiem and as against defendants 5 to 9 the cause of action arose to the plaintiffs on 29.12.1949, the date on which the defendant No.7, the

www.vadaprativada.com

City Magistrate Faizabad-cum-Ayodhya attached the mosque in suit and handed over possession of the same to Sri Priya Dutt Ram, defendant no.9 as the receiver, who assumed charge of the same on January 5, 1950.

The State Government and its officials, defendants 6 to 8 failed in their duty to prosecute the offenders and safeguard the interests of the Muslims.

The plaintiffs claim the following reliefs :--

"(a) A declaration to the effect that the property indicated by letters A B C D in the sketch map attached to the plaint is public mosque commonly known as 'Babri Masjid' and that the land adjoining the mosque shown in the sketch map by letters E F G H is a public Muslim graveyard as specified in para 2 of the plaint may be decreed.

(b) That in case in the opinion of the Court delivery of possession is deemed to be the proper remedy, a decree for delivery of possession of the mosque and graveyard in suit by removal of the idols and other articles which the Hindus may have placed in the mosque as objects of their worship be passed in plaintiff's favour, against the defendants. (Amended on 25.5.95)

(bb) That the statutory Receiver be commanded to handover the property in dispute described in the Schedule 'A' of the Plaint by removing the un-authorised structures erected thereon.

(d) Any other or further relief which the Hon'ble Court

On behalf of the defendant nos.1 & 2 it has been urged that the suit is time barred as no action was taken in time from the orders of the City Magistrate u/s 145 Cr.P.C; plaintiffs were never in possession over the temple in dispute since 1934 and the Hindus were holding it adversely to them, overtly and to their knowledge; Puja is going on in the said temple from the past at best 28 years i.e. 1934 and admittedly from January, 1950 when the City Magistrate directed the defendant No.9 to carry on puja as usual in the said temple.

Both the parties have advanced their arguments. Sri Zafaryab Jilani has urged that the suit is not barred by time and in view of the provisions of Article 142 and 144 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 the suit has been filed within 12 years. Accordingly with no stretch of imagination it can be said that plaintiffs are not entitled to maintain the present suit. On the contrary, learned counsel for the opposite parties have urged that the suit is barred by Article 120 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 and Articles 142 and 144 of the said Act are not applicable in the instant matter as the plaint was amended and prayer (b) was added on 25.5.95 after 33 years of the filing of the suit.

It is further averred that suit property was attached in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. vide order dated 29.12.1949 and the instant suit was filed on 18.12.1961 i.e. after 12 years. Thus the instant case falls within the purview of Article 120 of Limitation Act and Articles 142 and 144 of the said Act are not applicable in the instant matter. In this context Sri Z.Jilani has urged that the suit is not barred by time and in view of the provisions of Articles 142 and 144 of the Indian Limitation Act the suit has been filed within 12 years and with no stretch of imagination it can be said that the plaintiff is not entitled to maintain the present suit.

On behalf of the plaintiffs, it has been claimed that Article 142 of the Limitation Act applies in this case or in alternative Article 144 may be applied by this Court and Article 120 is not applicable in the instant matter.

Sri P.N.Mishra, learned Senior Advocate submitted that the suit is barred by Article 120 of the Indian Limitation Act,1908:

1. As the Suit property was attached in the proceeding under Section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 in 1949 vide order dated 29th December, 1949 passed by the Ld. City Magistrate Faizabad & Ayodhya and; the instant suit was filed on 18th December, 1961; the instant case falls within the perview of Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908. Article 142 and 144 of the said Act are not applicable in the instant matter. The above referred Articles reads as follows:

|---|---|---|
| 120. Suit for which no period of limitation is provided elsewhere in this schedule. | Six years | When the right to sue accrues. |

| dispossessed or had discontinued the possession. | | |
| 144. For possession of immovable property or any interest therein not hereby otherwise specially provided for. | Twelve years | When the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff. |

2. In AIR 1936 Oudh 387 Partab Bahadur Singh Vs. Jagatjit Singh the said Hon'ble Court held that where an order under Section 145 Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 was made by the Magistrate for attachment of the disputed property and the Tahsildar was appointed as receiver of the property, the possession of the receiver in the eye of the law was the possession of the true owner therefore in such suit Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 is applicable and a suit brought within six years of the last invasion is in time. Relevant portion of the said Judgement from its page 395 reads as follows:

> "For the present it would be enough to say that in our opinion the attachment made in 1932 in pursuance of the order passed in the proceedings under S. 145, Criminal P. C., clearly gave rise to an independent cause of action for the plaintiff instituting the present suit for a declaration and the said suit having been throught within six years of the attachment is not barred by Art. 120, Limitation Act, if it is found that he had a subsisting title on the date of attachment. Next it was contended that the suit was governed by Art. 142 Sch. 1, Limitation Act, and that the plaintiff's suit had rightly been dismissed because he had failed to prove his possession within limitation. The Subordinate Judge also has laid great emphasis on it and his decision appears to be mainly based on this ground. In our opinion this position is altogether untenable. It is common ground between the parties that in S. 145 Criminal P. C., proceedings the Magistrate passed an order for attachment of the property. The Tahsildar

> who was appointed receiver took possession of the property on 23rd February, 1932. The property was admittedly in possession of the Tahsildar as receiver at the time when the present suit was instituted. The possession of the receiver was in the eye of the law the possession the true owner. In the circumstances the plaintiff could undoubtedly maintain a suit for a mere declaration of his title and it was not necessary for him to institute a suit for possession. The suit is neither in substance nor in form a suit for possession of immoveable property. Art. 142 has therefore no application."

3. In AIR 1942 PC 47 Raja Rajgan Maharaja Jagatjit Singh Vs. Raja Partab Bahadur Singh the said Hon'ble Court upheld the ratio of law as laid down in AIR 1936 Oudh 387 Partab Bahadur Singh Vs. Jagatjit Singh. The Hon'ble Privy Council affirmed that in a suit for a declaration of plaintiff's title to the land in possession of the receiver under attachment in proceeding under Section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 by virtue of the Magistrate's order, Articles 142 and 144, the Limitation Act, 1908 do not apply and the suit is governed by Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908. Relevant portion of the said Judgement from its page 49 reads as follows:

> "In the first place, their Lordships are clearly of opinion, contrary to the view of the Subordinate Judge, but in agreement with the view of the Chief Court, that it was for the appellant to establish that the title to the lands in suit held by the respondent's predecessor under the first settlement of 1865 had been extinguished under S. 28, Limitation Act, by the adverse possession of the appellant or his predecessors for the appropriate statutory period of limitation, completed prior to the possession taken under attachment on 23rd February 1932, by the Tahsildar, who thereafter held for the true owner. Their Lordships are further of opinion that the present suit, which was subsequently instituted, was rightly confined to a mere

declaration of title, and was neither in form nor substance a suit for possession of immovable property.

In the second place, on the question of the errors of procedure of the Subordinate Judge in placing the burden of proving his possession within the limitation period on the respondent and ultimately refusing to allow the respondent to lead evidence in rebuttal of the appellant's evidence of adverse possession, it is enough to say that the appellant's counsel felt constrained to state that he could not defend the exclusion of evidence by the learned Judge, and that, if otherwise successful in his appeal, he should ask that the case should be remanded in order to give the respondent the opportunity which was so denied to him. The Chief Court held that the appellant had failed to prove adverse possession, and found it unnecessary to remand the case.

With regard to the statutory period of limitation, Art. 47 of the Act does not apply, as there has been no order for possession by the Magistrate under S. 145, Criminal P. C. As the suit is one for a declaration of title, it seems clear that Arts. 142 and 144 do not apply, and their Lordships agree with the Chief Court that the suit is governed by Art. 120. This leaves for consideration the main issue of proof of adverse possession by the appellant and his predecessors, and the appellant is at once faced by a difficulty which proved fatal to his success before the Chief Court, viz., that unless he can establish adverse possession of the lands in suit as a whole, he is unable, on the evidence, to establish such possession of identified portions of the lands in suit. Before their Lordships, the appellant's counsel conceded that, in order to succeed in the appeal, he must establish adverse possession of the lands in suit as a whole. He further conceded that his case on that point rested either (a) on the Habibullah decision of 1899, on which he succeeded before the Subordinate Judge, or (b) on the compromised proceedings under S. 145 in 1903. He conceded that neither the Habibullah decision nor the boundary proceedings in 1903 amounted to a judicial decision. The appellant maintained that the Habibullah decision, given under S. 23 of the Act of 1876, was good evidence of the state of possession at that time, and of the possession of the whole of the land in dispute by Kapurthala. He maintained that it must be assumed that Mr. Habibullah did his duty and that the decision was based on actual possession; under S. 35, Evidence Act, it was good evidence of the fact of possession. Unfortunately for this contention it appears on the face of the judgment that possession was only proved in respect of land under cultivation, and that the > boundary line laid down by Mr. Habibullah was largely an arbitrary line, and, at least to that extent, was not based on actual possession by Kapurthala, and it is well established that adverse possession against an existing title must be actual and cannot be constructive."

4. In ILR 26 Mad 410 RAJAH OF VENKATAGIRI –VS- ISAKAPALLI SUBBIAH AND OTHERS Certain lands were attached by a Magistrate, in 1886, under section 146 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in consequence of disputes relating to their possession. The Magistrate continued in possession of the lands, and realised some income from them. Both claimants instituted, in 1847, suits in which each claimed the lands as his own, end sought to obtain a declaration of title to them, as well as to the accumulated income, with a view to obtaining possession of the lands and money from the Magistrate. On the question of limitation being raised, the Hon'ble Madras High Court held, that in so far as the suits were for declaration of title to immoveable property and the profits therefrom, they were governed by article 120 of schedule II to the Limitation Act and Article 142 and 144 were not applicable. Relevant portion of the said Judgement from its pages 415 and 416 reads as follows:

> " In the present case the Magistrate acted in due course of law and, either because he found that neither party was in possession or because he was unable to satisfy himself as to which of them was then in possession, he has simply attached the property. Such attachment operates in law for purposes of limitation simply as detention or custody of the property by the Magistrate who, pending the decision by a Civil Court of competent jurisdiction, holds it merely on behalf of the party entitled, whether he be one of the actual parties to the dispute before him or any other person. For purposes of limitation the seizin or legal possession will, during the attachment, be in the true owner and the attachment by the Magistrate will not amount either to dispossession of the owner, or to His discontinuing possession.

In each of the present suits, the plaintiff claims as the true owner and as being in legal possession – the physical possession by the Magistrate being one on behalf of the true owner- and prays for a declaration of his title, as against the defendant (the plaintiff in the other suit) who denies his title and claims the property as his own. Under section 146, Criminal Procedure Code, the Magistrate is bound to continue the attachment and have statutory possession of the lands for purposes of continuing the attachment until a competent Civil Court determines the rights of the parties to the dispute before him or the person entitled to the possession of the lands and he cannot deliver the property to any of the parties or other person without an adjudication by a Civil Court. During the continuance of the attachment, the legal possession for purposes of limitation will constructively be in the person who had the title at the date of the attachment and such title cannot be extinguished by the operation of section 28 of the Limitation Act, however long such attachment may continue.

In the above view article 144 will be even less applicable to the suit than article 142.

The suits, therefore, are essentially suits for declaration of title to immoveable property and the profits thereof which are in deposit, the plaintiffs respectively claiming to be in legal possession thereof and the period of limitation applicable is therefore the period of six years prescribed by article 120 of the second schedule to Act XV of 1877, which period is to be reckoned from the time when the right to sue accrued (Pachamuthu Vs Chinnappan (1), Puraken V. Pareathi(2) and Muhammad Baqar V. Mango Lal(3). In this view it is immaterial whether the Rajjah of Venkatagiri (the plaintiff in Appeal No. 149) was or was not actually a party to the dispute before the Magistrate in 1886. The right to sue certainly accrued on the date of the attachment, the 5th May, 1886, which is rightly given as the date of the cause of action in both the suits. The alleged wrongful denial, by the defendants in each case, of the plaintiff's title and possession and the procuring by such denial of the attachment by the Magistrate, in the cause of action for > the declaratory suit and it is impossible to hold that there is a 'continuing wrong' within the meaning of section 23 of the Indian Limitation Act, during the time that the attachment continues so as to give for the purpose of reckoning the period of limitation a fresh starting point at every moment of the time during which the attachment continues."

5. In AIR 1925 Nagpur 236 Yeknath Vs. Bahia the said Hon'ble Court held that where there was a dispute between the parties regarding the land in suit and in proceedings under Chapter XII of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 the Magistrate attached the land under Section 146 and appointed a Receiver thereof, and where a suit was brought by the plaintiff for a declaration that he was the owner of the land Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 applied to the suit and the period of Limitation starts from the date of the order of the attachment. Full text of the said Judgement from its page 236 reads as follows:

> "In 1908 there was a dispute between the parties to the suit out of which this appeal arises regarding the land in suit and in proceedings under Ch. XII of Cr. P.C. Magistrate attached the land under S. 146 and appointed a Receiver thereof referring the parties to the Civil Court for the determination of their rights. The present suit was brought in 1920 by the plaintiff for a declaration that he was the owner of the land. The lower Appellate Court dismissed the suit on the ground that it was time-barred. The plaintiff challenges that finding in second appeal. The parties are agreed that Article 120 of the 1st Schedule, Limitation Act, applies to this case. The plaintiff however contends that the case being one of a continueing wrong the suit is within time. Brojendra Kishore Roy Chaudhury V. Bharat Chandra Roy(1), has been relied on by the plaintiff for the contention that there is a continuing wrong. But in that case it was found as a fact that the plaintiffs were in possession that the defendants attempted to interfere with their possession and a > breach of the peace bad become imminent when the property was attached by the Magistrate. In Panna Lal Biswas V. Panchu Ruidas (2), which is also relied on, the plaintiff was deprived of possession by the defendants two months prior to the attachment. There is no finding of either of these kinds in this suit. We do not know whether it was the plaintiff or the defendant who was guilty of interference with possession or dispossession. In the absence of all evidence as to the events preceding the attachment all that one can say as to what led the Magistrate to take possession is that it was either his inability to decide who was in actual possession or his decision that neither party was in possession. Neither of these can be said to be a wrong by the defendant. The alleged wrongful denial of the plaintiff's title was not what led the Magistrate to attach the property. The cases cited therefore do not help the plaintiff. In the circumstances of these cases it is the attachment by the Magistrate and not any wrongful act of the defendants that gave rise to the right to sue and the right accrued when the attachment was made. In this view no fresh period of limitation began to run under S. 23 of the Limitation Act after the date of the attachment by the Magistrate in 1908. The suit therefore was barred by time and was rightly dismissed. The appeal is dismissed with costs."

6. In AIR 1935 Madras 967 Ponnu Nadar and others vs. Kumaru Reddiar and others the said Hon'ble Court held that the real cause of action was the date of the order of the Magistrate and limitation started from the date of order and Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 was applicable not the Section 23 of the said Act. The relevant portions of the said Judgement from its pages 970 and 973 read as follows:

> "The question which we have to decide is one of limitation. The dispute has a somewhat long history, and we have to go back to 1900, when the Nadars of Mela Seithalai village at tempted to carry a corpse in procession over the same route. The police reported that there was likely to be resistance on the part of the other caste people, and a breach of the peace, and accordingly the Joint Magistrate, Mr. Vibert, I.C.S.,

passed an order directing that no organized procession of Shanars or Christians should pass along those streets until a Civil Courts had declared that there was a right to do so. It is not disputed that this order was passed under S. 147, Criminal P. C., although it may be open to some question whether the occasion was really appropriate for an order of this character, nor is it contended that the order was without jurisdiction and therefore a nullity. The contention of the defendants in the present suit is in brief that this order being still in force and no suit having been filed within the prescribed period by the Nadars to establish the right in question the present claim is time-barred. This point has been decided against the plaintiffs by the Courts below and the plaintiffs accordingly appeal. ……..

In the present case it is no doubt arguable that some analogy exists between an order which bars a right to take a procession and an obstruction which bars a right of way. Both in a sense create a state of affairs which continues to exist. What we have to find however is the existence of a "continuing wrong," a wrong, that is, originated by and kept in existence by the opposite party. What in fact appears to have given rise to the Joint Magistrate's order was a police report of an apprehended breach of the peace between the rival factions and all that the opposite party did was to adopt an attitude which gave rise to that apprehension. So far as that attitude itself is concerned, it is impossible to find in it a continuing wrong, nor do we find it easier to hold that when the Joint Magistrate passed the order with a view to prevent a breach of the peace there was a "continuing wrong" caused by the defendants' party. There is nothing to show that it was passed at their instance and even if it were, responsibility for passing it must be taken by the Court and not laid upon the party. Again, once an order was passed, the matter was taken out of the hands of the defendant party, and it lay with the Nadars themselves to establish their right by suit.

From this point of view too we are not disposed to hold that even if there was a continuing wrong the defendant party was responsible for its continuance. Where the applicability of S. 23, Lim. Act, is doubtful the proper course must be, we think, to enforce against the plaintiffs the ordinary principles of limitation, and in the present case to apply art. 47 would be applied to the case of an order under S. 145, Criminal P.C., time > being taken to run from the date of the order. Adopting this view, the persons affected by the order of 1900 had a period of six years within which to establish their right, and we are not greatly impressed by the argument that, if the right itself may be indestructible, the remedy ought not to have been permanently lost by their failure to take action within that time. We must hold in agreement with 26 Mad 410(1) that the suit is barred under Art. 120, Limitation Act. The second appeal is dismissed with costs of the contesting respondents. We certify for a fee of Rs. 150 under R. 46, Practitioners' Fees Rules.

7. In AIR 1930 PC 270 (Mt. Bolo. v. Mt. Koklan) the said Hon'ble Court held that there can be no "right to sue" untill there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. And in such suit limitation starts from the date of unequivocal threat to infringe the right for the purpose of limitation, the suit is governed under Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908. In the instant case, the plaintiffs' averment is that they were dispossessed in the night of 22/23rd December, 1949 and it is also admitted fact that an order of attachment in respect of the suit property was passed on 29th December, 1949 as such at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe the right of the plaintiffs to use the disputed structure as Mosque materialized in the night of 22/23rd December, 1949. On that date right to sue was arisen. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment from its page 272 reads as follows:

> "There can be no "right to sue" until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by > the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. No doubt Mt. Koklan's right to the property arose on the death of Tara Chand, but in the circumstances of this case their Lordships are of opinion that there was no infringement of, or any clear and unequivocal threat to her rights till the year 1922, when the suit, as stated above, was instituted."

8. In AIR 1931 PC 9 (Annamalai Chettiar & Ors. v. A.M.K.C.T. Muthukaruppan Chettiar & Anr.) the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that in case of an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted for the purpose of limitation Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 is applied. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment from page 12 reads as follows:

> "In their Lordships view the case falls under Art. 120, under which the time begins to run when the right to sue accrues. In a recent decision of their Lordships' Board, delivered by Sir Binod Mitter, it is stated, in reference to Art. 120"

9. In AIR 1960 SC 335 (Rukma Bai. v. Lala Laxminarayan) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that where there are successive invasion or denials of right, the right to sue under Article 120 accrues when the defendant has clearly and unequivocally threatened to infringe the right asserted by the plaintiff in the suit. Whether a particular threat gives rise to a compulsory cause of action depends upon the question where that threat effectively invites or jeopardizes the said right. Relevant paragraph 33 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "33. The legal position may be briefly stated thus: The right to sue under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act accrues when the defendant has clearly and unequivocally threatened to infringe the right asserted by the plaintiff in the suit. Every threat by a party to such a right, however ineffective and innocuous it may be, cannot be considered to be a clear and unequivocal threat so as to compel him to file a suit. Whether a particular threat gives rise to a compulsory cause of action depends upon the question whether that threat effectively invades or jeopardizes the said, right."

10. In AIR 1961 SC 808 (C. Mohammad yunus. v. Syed Unnissa & Ors.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that a suit for declaration of a right and an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the exercise of that right is governed by Article 120. Under the said Article there can be no right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right. Relevant paragraph 7 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "7. The surplus income of the institution is distributed by the trustees and the plaintiffs are seeking a declaration of the right to receive the income and also an injunction restraining the defendant from interfering with the exercise of their right. The High Court held that plaintiff No. 1 was at the date of the suit 19 years of age and was entitled to file a suit for enforcement of her right even if the period of limitation had expired during her minority within three years from the date on which she attained majority by virtue of Ss. 6 and 8 of the Indian Limitation Act, Apart from this ground which saves the claim of the first plaintiff alone, a suit for a declaration of a right and an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the exercise of that right is governed by Art. 120 of the Limitation Act and in such a suit the right to sue arises when the cause of the action accrues. The plaintiffs claiming under Fakruddin sued to obtain a declaration of their rights in the institution which was and is in the management of the trustees. The trial judge held that the > plaintiffs were not "in enjoyment of the share" of Fakruddin since 1921 and the suit filed by the plaintiffs more than 12 years from the date of Fakruddin's death must be held barred but he did not refer to any specific article in the first schedule of the Limitation Act which barred the suit. It is not shown that the trustees have ever denied or are interested to deny the right of the plaintiffs and defendant No. 2; and if the trustees do not deny their rights, in our view, the suit for declaration of the rights of the heirs of Fakruddin will not be barred under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act merely because the contesting defendant did not recognise that right. The period of six years prescribed by Art. 120 has to be computed from the date when the right to sue accrues and there could be no right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right. If the trustees were willing to give a share and on the record of the case it must be assumed that they being trustees appointed under a scheme would be willing to allow the plaintiffs their legitimate rights including a share in the income if under the law they were entitled thereto, mere denial by the defendants of the rights of the plaintiffs and defendant No. 2 will not set the period of limitation running against them."

11. In AIR 1970 SC 1035 (Garib Das. v. Munish Abdul Hamid) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that in a suit for recovery of possession after cancellation of sale deed in favour of the defendants on the ground that a previous valid wakf had been created, Article 142 was not applicable and the suit was to be filed within a period of six years that is to say Article 120 was applicable. Relevant paragraph 13 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "13. The fourth point has no substance inasmuch as Article 142 of the Limitation Act was not applicable to the facts of the case. The suit was filed in 1955 within six years after the death of Tasaduk Hussain who died only a few months after the execution of the documents relied on by the appellants."

12. In AIR 1973 All 328 (Jamal Uddin. v. Mosque, Mashakganj) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that in a suit for possession, the plaintiff specifically alleged that they had been dispossessed by the defendant before filing of the suit, the suit would be governed by Article 142 and the residuary Article 144 would have no application, then the burden in such a case was on the plaintiffs to prove their possession within 12 years before the suit. That case is distinguishable from this case because in that case no order of attachment was passed by the Magistrate, but in the instant case order of attachment was passed by the Magistrate and, as such, in the instant case Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 is applicable. Relevant paragraph Nos.29 and 31 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "29. The next point that was urged by the counsel for the appellants was that the courts below committed a legal error in applying Art. 144 of the Limitation Act, 1908, to the suit and placing the burden on the defendants to prove their adverse possession for more than twelve years, while the suit on the allegations contained in the plaint clearly fell within the ambit of Art. 142 and the burden was on the plaintiffs to prove their possession within twelve years. This contention also is quite correct. It was clearly alleged by the plaintiffs that they had been dispossessed by the contesting defendants before the filing of the suit. As such, the suit would be governed by Article 142 and the residuary Article 144 will have no application. The courts below have unnecessarily imported into their discussion the requirements of adverse possession and wrongly placed the burden on the defendant to prove those requirements. Now the trial Court has approached the evidence produced by the parties would be evident from the following observation contained in its judgment.
> "The onus of proving adverse possession over the disputed land lies heavily upon the defendants and their possession has to be proved beyond doubt to be

notorious, exclusive, openly hostile and to the knowledge of the true owner as laid down in AIR 1938 Mad 454."

After a consideration of the documentary and oral evidence produced by the defendants to prove their possession the trial Court has opined that the document on record do not prove the title and possession of the defendants to the hilt in respect of the disputed land. So far as the plaintiffs' evidence is concerned it was disposed of by the trial Court with the following observations :

"..... No doubt, the oral evidence of the plaintiffs about the use of the land for saying the prayers of 'Janaze Ki namaz' and about the letting out of the land in suit for purposes of 'D or Sootana' is equally shaky and inconsistent. But as already pointed out above the plaintiffs have succeeded in proving their title over the disputed land and as such possession would go with the ownership of the land. The defendants cannot be allowed to take advantage of the plaintiffs faulty evidence and it was for them to prove beyond any shadow of doubt that they were actually in possession over the disputed land as owners and that they exercised this right openly hostile to the plaintiffs with the latter's knowledge. Judged in this context, the evidence of the defendant falls short of this requirement."

31. The learned Civil Judge has noted in his judgment that this land was enclosed by walls which were occasionally washed away during rains but were rebuilt though it was not clear from the Commissioner's report as to when the existing walls had been constructed. It has also been found that the defendant-appellants and their predecessors had set up a barber's stall on this land by placing wooden Takhat on it on which they used to shave their customers and sleep thereon in the night. But they were of the opinion that these acts did not amount to dispossession of the plaintiffs. It was not noticed by them that it is an admitted fact that some windows of the mosque opened towards this land and so any activity of the defendant-appellants or their predecessors on this land could escape the notice of plaintiff No. 2 or his predecessor. According to the plaintiffs' allegations the defendants had simply started digging foundation on this land when they treated this act of theirs as amounting to their dispossession and filed their suit out of which this appeal has arisen. It is therefore clear that if the evidence had been appraised from a correct angle that the burden under Article 142 is on the plaintiffs, a finding could not be recorded in favour of the plaintiffs. On the other hand, from the facts and circumstances of the case, it was > evident that the plaintiffs or their predecessors-in-interest had no possession over the land within twelve years prior to the suit. The suit was therefore barred by limitation under Article 142."

13. In AIR 2004 SC 1330 (Chairman & MD, N.T.P.C. Ltd.. v. M/s. Reshmi Construction Builders & Contractors) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that no one can be allowed to approbate and reprobate at the same time. In view of such principle of law, the plaintiffs are estopped from relying on applicability of Article 142 on one hand and Article 144 on the other. Article 142 is applicable for recovery of possession of immovable property when the plaintiff's possession of the property has been dispossessed or had discontinued. Under this Article the burden of proof lies upon the plaintiffs to prove their possession within 12 years before the suit. While Article 144 is a residuary and which is applicable for recovery of possession of immovable property or an interest therein not specifically provided for by the Act and in that case burden of proof lies upon the defendants to prove their possession within 12 years before the suit. Relevant paragraph Nos.36 and 37 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "36. In Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edition, Vol. 16 (Reissue) para 957 at page 844 it is stated :
> "On the principle that a person may not approbate and reprobate a special species of estoppel has arisen. The principle that a person may not approbate and reprobate express two propositions :
> (1) That the person in question, having a choice between two courses of conduct is to be treated as having made an election from which he cannot resile.
> (2) That he will be regarded, in general at any rate, as having so elected unless he has taken a benefit under or arising out of the course of conduct, which he has first

pursued and with which his subsequent conduct is inconsistent."

37. In American Jurisprudence, 2nd Edition, Volume 28, 1966, pages 677-680 it is stated :

"Estoppel by the acceptance of benefits :

Estoppel is frequently based upon the acceptance and retention, by one having knowledge or notice of the facts, of benefits from a transaction, contract, instrument, regulation which he might have rejected or contested. This doctrine is obviously a branch of the rule against assuming inconsistent positions.

As a general principle, one who knowingly accepts the benefits of a contract or conveyance is estopped to deny the validity or binding effect on him of such contract or conveyance.

This rule has to be applied to do equity and must not be applied in such a manner as to violate the principles of right and good conscience."”

14. In AIR 1983 SC 684 = (1983) 3 SCC 118 (State of Bihar. v. Radha Krishna Singh) the Hon’ble Supreme Court has held that the statement made post litem motam is inadmissible on the ground the same thing must be in controversy before and after the statement is made. In view of the said judicial pronouncement, the statements of the plaintiffs which have been made in their written statement filed in the year 1950 in O.S. No.1 of 1989 to the effect that last namaz was offered on 16th December, 1949 and thereafter no namaz was offered is ante litem motam. In the same suit same thing is/was in controversy before and after the statement was made. The plea taken in the plaint of the instant suit being O.S.No.4 of 1989 to the effect that the disputed structure was used as Mosque till 22/23rd December, 1949 and on that date last namaz was offered is post litem motam which is inadmissible. As such on the basis of admission of the plaintiffs they have admitted that they discontinued in possession on or after 16th December, 1949 and, as such limitation starts from that day. Relevant paragraph Nos.132 and 138 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "132. Same view was taken by a Full Bench of the Madras High Court in Seethapati Rao Dora v. Venkanna Dora (1922) ILR 45 Mad 332 : (AIR 1922. Mad 71), where Kumaraswami Sastri. J. observed thus :
> "I am of opinion that Section 35 has no application. to, judgments, and a judgment which would not be admissible under Sections 40 to 43 of the Evidence Act would not become relevant merely because it contains a statement as to a fact which is in issue or relevant in a suit between persons who are not parties or privies. Sections 40 to 44 of the Evidence Act deal with the relevancy of judgments in Courts of justice."
> 138. In Hari Baksh v. Babu Lal AIR 1924 PC 126, their Lordships observed as follows:
> "It appears to their Lordships that these statements of Bishan Dayal who was then an interested party in the disputes and was then taking a position adverse to Hari Baksh cannot be regarded as evidence in this suit and are inadmissible."

www.vadaprativada.com

Admittedly, the plaintiffs filed the suit for declaration in the year 1961 and afterwards beyond the period of limitation and amended the suit after 33 years to cover the case under Article 142 and 144 beyond the period of limitation. Thus, the suit was barred by limitation even at the time of filing the suit and was not cognizable.

I have given anxious thought to the rival submissions of the parties. It transpires that Article 142 provides a limitation of 12 years to file the suit. The date of dispossession or discontinuance of possession as alleged is 23.12.1949 and 29.12.1949. Accordingly the plaintiff's claimed that their case is covered by Article 142 of the Act not at the time of filing the suit but through amendment of 1995. It is settled proposition of law that onus under Article 142 lies on the plaintiff and the plaintiff has to prove the assertions. As regards the scope of Article 142 and its applicability the question is mostly one of pleadings. In this context it would be expedient to refer the earliest Privy Council's case in which Article 143 of Act IX of 1871 came in consideration along with Article 144 of the Act. In the case of Bibi Sahodra Versus Rai Jang Bahadur it has been observed that Article 143 (now Article 142) refers to a suit for possession of immovable property, where the plaintiff, while in possession of the property, has been dispossessed or has discontinued the possession, and it allows twelve years from the date of the dispossession or discontinuance. But in order to bring the case under that head of schedule, he must show that there has been a possession or discontinuance. This Article was not applied where pleadings distinctly showed that there was no dispossession or discontinuance of the plaintiff. In Karan Singh Versus Bakar Ali Khan, there was a question of the application of Article 145 of Act IX of 1871 (now Art.144), and Sir B.Peacock, pointed out the difference of the provision from the rule formerly in force under Act XIV of 1859. Under the old law, the suit must have been brought within twelve years from the time of the cause of action; but under the Act of 1871, it might be brought within 12 years from the time when the possession of the defendant, or of some person through whom he claims, became adverse to the plaintiff.

Thus Article 142 applies to actions of ejectment and where the plaintiffs allege that they have been dispossessed is required to prove

possession and dispossession within 12 years of the suit. The full bench of Calcutta High Court in Mohd.Ali Khan Versus Khwaja Abdul Gunny and Others (1883) ILR 9 Cal. 744 held that where the suit is for possession, and the cause of dispossession or discontinuance, the plaintiff is bound to prove this event from which limitation is declared to run having, occurred within 12 years of the suit. Thus Article 142 applies only to suits for possession of an immovable property. In all cases in which the applicability of Article 142 or 144 is in controversy it is necessary to scrutinize the pleadings of the plaintiff and the relief sought by him. In a suit governed by Article 142 the question is to be decided where the plaintiff directly and strictly has been in possession within 12 years of the suit and it does not matter if within the period continuous exclusive possession adverse to him has been one or of a trespasser.

After going through the pleadings of the parties on the basis of arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the plaintiffs when he has relied over Article 144 of the Limitation Act, it has to be seen whether the case comes within the purview of Article 144 or not. Article 144 of Limitation Act, 1908 is the general residuary article for suits for possession of immovable property as is indicated by the words “not hereby otherwise specially provided for”. This article does not apply where the suit is otherwise specially provided for by some other Article referring to possessory suits in Sch.-I of the Limitation Act. It applies to suits for possession, not invariably meaning a suit for actual physical possession. Article 144 contemplates that if on the allegations made in the plaint the suit falls under Article 142, there is no justification for taking it out of that article for applying Article 144. Article 144 restricted to suits which are in terms and is in substance based on plaintiff's prior possession which he has lost by dispossession or discontinuance of possession. It is also a settled proposition that where the plaintiff bases his claim on his title with regard his possession or dispossession, the case falls under Article 144.

Article 120 is a residuary article before applying it the Court has to be satisfied that no other provision of the Limitation Act can be applicable. The scheme of Limitation Act provides a general residuary article for all suits not covered by specific article. The residuary article is applicable to every variety of suits not otherwise provided for. It should be applied only as a last resort, if no other article is applicable. The function of the residuary article is to provide for cases, which could not be covered by the exact words used in both the columns one & three of an Article. As a general principle of construction of statute, if there be two articles which may cover the case, the one, however, more general and the other more particular or specific, the more particular and specific article ought to be regarded as the one governing the case. The Rule is well established that if there is no specific or less general article applicable, this omnibus article applies. There are numerous decisions to the effect that, unless it is clear that no other specific article is applicable, the Courts ought not to apply Article 120 of the Limitation Act. Article 120 comes into operation only when no other article is applicable to a suit. It should never be invoked if there is any other article in the schedule which upon reasonable interpretation of its language covers the particular suit with which the Court is dealing. Wherever a specific article is shown and applicable in all its bearing, Article 120 would apply. If the plaintiff for any reason wishes to avoid the application of Article 120, it is for him to show which other article fits his claim. Where an attempt is made to secure a longer period of limitation under this article by drafting the plaint so as to evade a particular provision of the Limitation Act, with a lessor prescribed period. It is for the plaintiff to establish that Article 120, 142 or Article 144 fits his claim. In this context, undoubtedly regard should be had to the essence of the suit rather than to the particular colouring sought to be put upon it by the plaintiff.

It is not disputed between the parties that the property was attached by the City Magistrate, Faizabad/Ayodhya on 29.12.1949. After invoking his powers under Section 145 Cr.P.C. he attached the property on 29.12.1949 and handed over the possession of the suit property to Priya Dutt Ram, defendant no.9 who assumed the charge of the same on January 5, 1950. The plaintiffs have sought the relief of declaration, delivery of possession and further prayed for a command to Receiver to hand over the property in dispute described in Schedule-A of the plaint, by removing the unauthorized structure existed thereon. In this context, it transpires that on the basis of the pleading of the parties, learned counsel for the plaintiffs have simply pointed out that the case falls either within the purview of Article 142 or 144, accordingly, the suit is within time. On the contrary, defendants contested the case on the ground that the suit is barred by limitation. Sri P.N. Misra, Advocate, has urged that Article 142 and 144 of Limitation Act, 1908 have no application in this case and the case falls within the purview of Article 120 of the Limitation Act for which the period of limitation is six years. Thus, from the date of attachment of the property, the suit ought to have been filed within six years and not within 12 years as claimed by the plaintiff.

In AIR 1936 Oudh 387 Partap Bahadur Singh Vs. Jagatjit Singh where this Court held that where an order under Section 145 Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 was made by the Magistrate for attachment of the disputed property and the Tahsildar was appointed as Receiver of the property, the possession of the Receiver was in the eye of the law was the possession of the true owner therefore, in such suit Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 is applicable and a suit brought within six years of the last invasion is in time. In the circumstances, the plaintiff could undoubtedly maintain a suit for a mere declaration of his title and it was not necessary for him to institute a suit for possession. Thus, with no stretch of imagination it may be deem to be suit for possession for immovable property. Accordingly, Article 142 has no application.

In AIR 1942 PC 47 Raja Rajgan Maharaja Jagatjit Singh Vs. Raja Partab Bahadur Singh. The said Hon'ble Court has upheld the ratio of law as laid down in the case of Partap Bahadur Singh (supra),

the Privy Council affirmed that in a suit for a declaration of plaintiff's title to the land in possession of the Receiver under attachment in proceeding under Section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 by virtue of the Magistrate's Order, Article 142 and 144, the Limitation Act, 1908 do not apply and the sit is governed by Article 120 of the Limitation Act.

Further in ILR 26 Mad 410 Rajah of Venkatagiri vs. Isakapalli Subbiah and others. In this case certain lands were attached by a Magistrate, in 1886, under Section 146 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, in consequence of disputes relating to their possession. The Magistrate continued in possession of the lands, and realised some income from them. The suit was instituted by rival claimants for realization of the amount. On the question of limitation being raised the Madras High Court took a view that a suit for declaration of immovable property and the profits therefrom, they were governed by Article 120 of of Schedule II to the Limitation Act and the case does not fall within the ambit of Article 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act.

In AIR 1925 Nagpur 236, Yeknath Versus Bahia wherein the Magistrate attached the land under Section 146 and appointed a Receiver thereof, and where a suit is brought by the plaintiff for a declaration that he was the owner of the land Article 120 of the Limitation Act applies and the period of limitation starts from the date of the order of the attachment.

In AIR 1935 Madras 967, Ponnu Nadar and others Versus Kumaru Reddiar and others, Madras High Court held that the real cause of action was the date of the order of the Magistrate and limitation started from the date of order. There is no other article which can be applied in such a case and accordingly the case falls within the ambit of Article 120 of the Limitation Act and not u/s 23 of the Limitation Act.

In AIR 1930 PC 270 (Mt. Bolo v. Mt. Koklan) Hon'ble Court held that there can be right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted and in such suit limitation starts from the date of unequivocal threat to infringe the right for the purpose of limitation and the suit is governed by Article 120 of the Limitation Act. On behalf of the defendants, it has been urged that this case has full application in the instant case. According to plaintiffs, they were dispossessed in the night of 22/23rd December, 1949. It is also admitted for the plaintiff that an order of attachment in respect of the suit property was passed on 29.12.1949, as such at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe the right of the plaintiff's to use the disputed structure as Mosque materialized in the night of 22/23rd December, 1949 and on that date the right to sue was arisen. In AIR 1931 PC 9 (Annamalai Chettiar & Ors. v. A.M.K.C.T. Muthukaruppan Chettiar & Anr.), the Privy Council has held that in case of an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least clear and unequivocal threat Article 120 of the Limitation Act would apply. The Hon'ble Apex Court also considered the scope of Article 120 in AIR 1960 SC 335 (Rukma Bai v. Lala Laxminarayan) and held that where there are successive invasion or denials of right, the right to sue under Article 120 accrues when the defendant has clearly and unequivocally threatened to infringe the right asserted by the plaintiff in the suit. As such in this case, the right to sue under Article 120 of the Limitation Act accrues. The Hon'ble Apex Court in AIR 1961 SC 808 (C. Mohammad Yunus v. Syed Unnissa & Ors.) held that a suit for declaration of a right and an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the exercise of that right is governed by Article 120. In AIR 1970 SC 1035 (Garib Das v. Munish Abdul Hamid) the Apex Court further held that in a suit for recovery of possession after cancellation of sale deed in favour of the defendants on the ground that a previous valid wakif had been created only Article 120 would apply and Article 142 in such a case is not applicable. In AIR 2004 SC 1330 (Chairman & MD, N.T.P.C. Ltd., v. M/s Reshmi Construction Builders & Contractors) the Hon'ble Apex Court held that no one can be allowed to approbate and reprobate at the same time. Thus, in this case the plaintiffs are estopped from relying on applicability of Article 142 on one hand and Article 144 on the other hand. Article 142 is applicable for recovery of possession of immovable property when the plaintiffs were dispossessed or had discontinued from the property in suit while under Article 144 a residuary which is applicable for recovery of the above property or an interest therein not specifically provided by the Act. The case of the plaintiffs, according to the defendants, does not fall within the purview of Article 142 or 144 of the Limitation Act.

Sri M.M.Pandey, learned counsel for the opposite parties has urged that in view of the plaint averments the case does not fall within the purview of Article 142 or Article 144 of Indian Limitation Act. The case falls within the purview of Article 120 of Limitation Act. It has further been submitted that after the attachment of the property, the disputed property was in custodia legis and the Receiver was holding the possession on behalf of the parties whom the Magistrate finds to have been in possession. Thus the Magistrate after the attachment was holding the property through the Receiver and accordingly the matter falls within the purview of Article 120 of the Act as there is no other provision under the Limitation Act. Accordingly, Article 120 has the application. In view of the submissions of Learned counsel Sri M.M. Pandey, there is no doubt that the property under attachment under Section 145 is in custodia legis. Thus the relief of declaration is required in this case which is covered under Article 120 of the Limitation Act. Sri M.M.Pandey has further relied upon the case reported in 2008 SC 363, C.Natarajan Versus Ashim Bai and another according to him the view of the Hon'ble Apex Court on the subject is that it was obligatory on the part of the plaintiffs to aver and plead that they not only have title over the property but also are in possession of the same for a period of more than 12 years in consonance of terms of Article 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act. In this case after the attachment, Article 142 or 144 of the Limitation Act have no application. He has further relied over the case reported in (1995) 1 SCC 311, Shyam Sunder Prasad and others Versus Rajpal Singh and another wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court held that the plaintiff before claiming any relief under Article 142 and 142 of the Limitation Act must prove not only his title to the property but also that he was dispossessed or had discontinued his possession within 12 years from the date of filing of the suit. In this case, the property was attached by the Magistrate. Consequently the question of dispossession does not arise. According to the learned Advocate, Article 142 and 144 of the Limitation have no application in this case. Further reliance has been placed on AIR 1922 Calcutta 419, Panna Lal Biswas Versus Panchu Raidas in which it has been held that after attachment under Section 146 Cr.P.C., suit for recovery of possession should be treated as one for declaration and only Article 120 applies. Reliance has further been placed on AIR 1959 SC 798, Balakrishna Versus Shree D.M.Sansthan stating that in a case of declaration only Article 120 applies. Further reliance has been placed on AIR 1928 Oudh 155, Abdul Halim Khan Versus Raja Saadat Ali Khan & others wherein it has been held that possession against a person not entitled to claim possession is not adverse. Lastly reliance has been placed on AIR 1916 Calcutta 751, Brojendra Kishore Roy Chawdhury & others Versus Bharat Chandra Roy and others wherein when the property was attached under Section 146 Cr.P.C., Article 120 was held to be applicable and it was a continuing wrong.

www.vadaprativada.com

I have given anxious thought to the rival submissions of the parties. Article 120 of the Limitation Act corresponds to Article 113 of

www.vadaprativada.com

Limitation Act, 1963 but only the period of limitation has been reduced to three years from six years. The scheme of Limitation Act is to provide a general residuary article for all suits not covered by a specific article. It is often spoken of as the omnibus article. Article 120 was final and residuary article like the present article 113 and includes all suits not specially provided for i.e. all action except those which are specifically provided in the statute are governed by Article 113, which corresponds to Article 120 of the Act. Admittedly, the plaintiff has filed the declaratory suit after the attachment of the suit by the Magistrate. He has brought the suit to recover the property which is custodia legis. It is a settled law that such a suit is considered as a suit for declaration as there is no continuing wrong. Accordingly, if the suit is brought for declaration after six years from the attachment after applying Article 120, it has to be held to be barred by Limitation. Article 120 (now Article 113) leaves no room for doubt that after attachment if a Magistrate appoints a Receiver and the parties referred to civil court for determination of their rights, such a suit for declaration after the attachment by the Magistrate falls under Article 120 of the Old Act (now under Article 113) and after the date of attachment by the Magistrate no fresh period of limitation began to run under Section 22, Limitation Act, there being no continuing wrong in such a case vide AIR 1942 PC 47 Raja Rajgan Maharaja Jagatjit Singh Vs. Raja Partab Bahadur Singh. For the purpose of limitation, possession during the period during which a disputed property is kept under attachment under Section 145 (4) Cr.P.C., is in law the possession of the party whom the Magistrate as a result of the proceeding finally declares to be entitled to retain possession as the party who was in possession on the date of the proceeding.

Thus, in view of the decision in the case of AIR 1942 PC 47 (supra) the property in the hands of Receiver in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. in a suit for declaration of title before passing of the order of the possession shall come within the purview of Article 120 and Article 142 and Article 144 of the Act has no application in that case. Accordingly, admittedly the property was attached in this case in a proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. Thereafter the instant suit has been filed to establish his right by the plaintiff and accordingly it has to be covered by Article 120 of the Limitation Act.

In view of the rival submissions of the parties, I am of the view that the object of the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. being to determine as to which party was in possession on the date of the proceedings and to declare such party to be entitled to retain possession, the possession of the Court during the attachment in the course of the proceedings ensures for the benefit of such parties in whose favour such a declaration has to be made. Accordingly, Article 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act have no application in this case. Moreover Article 142 applies only where the plaintiff while in possession has been dispossessed or discontinued possession. In this case since the property was attached, the question of dispossession does not arise. The reference of dispossession by the plaintiffs after the attachment and to file thereafter a suit for declaration of the right to property is not a suit for possession in case of custodia legis. Article 142 and 144 do not apply where the relief of possession is not the primary relief claimed. Here in this case the primary relief is of declaration. Consequently, Article 120 of the Limitation Act would apply.

Admittedly, the property in suit was attached in criminal proceedings u/s 145 Cr.P.C. The plaintiffs have brought the suit for declaration of their title in the year 1961 and for the recovery of possession over the property in suit was claimed in the year 1995. Thus at the time of filing of the suit it was barred by time.

In this context it would be relevant to refer the view of Full Bench of Kerala High Court in the case of Pappy Amma vs. Probhakaran AIR 1972 Ker 1 (FB) wherein it has been held that the order passed by the Magistrate under Section 145 Cr.P.C. is only a police order and is in no sense final. The property concerned may be attached and placed in charge of a Receiver. Such possession of the Receiver appointed by the Criminal Court merely passes the property in custodia legis and is not dispossession within the meaning of this article. Consequently, the contention of the learned counsel for the plaintiff that they were dispossessed does not arise. Accordingly, Article 142 and 144 have no effect to the case and with full force Article 120 is applicable. Therefore, a suit after more than six years of the attachment, if filed, for declaration is barred by Article 120 of the Limitation Act as held in the case of Ambica Prasad vs. R.Iqbal AIR 1966 SC 605.

Vis-a-vis the sequence of events and the law referred to above which leaves no room for doubt that the instant suit for declaration of title to the property attached under Code of Criminal Procedure is governed by Article 120 and not by Articles 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act. It is also settled proposition of law that after the attachment of the property under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and once a Receiver is appointed in respect of it, it passes into legal custody for the benefit of the true owner as the parties being referred to Civil Court for determination of their rights. In a suit falling under Article 120 together with Article 113 of the Limitation Act, the right to sue accrues when the attachment is made and not by any wrongful act of the defendant. Consequently, after the date of attachment by the Magistrate no fresh period of limitation began to run under Section 123 of the Limitation Act. There being no continuing wrong in such a case and it does not amount to dispossession or discontinuance of his possession as the property is under anticipation of an order, in which the right of title is to be declared by a competent court and possession of the Court should ensure for the benefit of a party in whose favour the Court would make a such declaration. Accordingly, the instant suit which has been filed after six years of the attachment is definitely barred by Limitation.

The Hon'ble Apex Court in AIR 1990 SC 10, S.S. Rathore vs. State of M.P., held that Article 113 of the Act corresponding to Section 120 of the Act is a general one and would apply to suits to which no other article in the schedule applies. Thus, the statute of limitation Act

provides a time limit for all suits conceivable.

It is the clear contention of the defendants that the plaintiffs' suit is barred by limitation being a suit for right to worship and not a suit for immovable property as is being made out by the plaintiff and therefore is governed by Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 and not Articles 144 or 142 of the Limitation Act, 1908 therefore suit can only be filed within 6 years.

Under the above-mentioned circumstances it is very apparent that the suit of the plaintiffs is actually a suit for declaration which is governed by Art.120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 and not governed by Art. 142 or 144 of the said Limitation Act.

It is an admitted fact that the Muslims had not been in possession of the said property from 22nd / 23rd December, 1949 and, therefore, any suit which had to be filed would have to be filed within 6 years and not within 12 years being under Art. 120. The plaintiffs filed the suit on18th December, 1961 much beyond the limitation period of 6 years. The suit, therefore, is clearly barred by limitation.

Reliance has been placed on the following cases;

AIR 1929 Madras 313 – Raja Ramaswamy Vs. Govinda Ammal, Para 19 to 25 states that "It is not the form of the reliefs claimed which determines the character of the suit for the purposes of ascertaining under which Article of the Limitation Act the suit falls."

"19. As regards the first point, it has been well-settled by several decisions of their Lordships of the Privy Council that it is not the form of the relief claimed which determines the real character of the suit for the purpose of ascertaining under which article of the Limitation Act the suit falls. Though the relief claimed in the suit is possession of immovable property, yet if the property sued for is held by the contesting defendant under a sale or other transfer which is not void, but only voidable, and he cannot obtain possession without the transfer being set aside, the suit must be regarded as one brought to set aside the transfer though no relief in those terms is prayed for, but the prayer is only for possession of the property. It has been so held with reference to Article 12, Limitation Act, where the defendant is in possession under a sale held in execution of a decree of a Court and also as to Article 91 where the instrument under which the defendant claims is one which is prima facie binding on the plaintiff. The same view was also taken with regard to the article in the old Limitation Act relating to suits brought to set aside an adoption. Their Lordships held in Jagadamaba Chowdhrani v. Dakhina Mohun Roy (1886) 13 Cal. 308 that even when the plaintiff did not in terms sue to set aside an adoption but only to recover possession of property on his prima facie title as reversionary heir he was bound to bring his suit within the time allowed by Article 129, Act 9 of 1871, provided the defendant was in possession by virtue of an apparent adoption; and the plaintiff was not at liberty to bring his suit within the time allowed to reversionary heirs by Article 142 of that Act. As regards Article 12, Lim. Act, which relates to suits to set aside a sale in execution of a decree of a civil Court the leading case is Mallkarjun v Narhari (1901) 25 Bom. 337 . Their Lordships in that case held that though the suit was brought for redemption of a mortgage of immovable property for which the period of limitation is 60 years, yet as the defendant the mortgagee had purchased the equity of redemption in a judicial sale which was operative against the plaintiff, though liable to be set aside for due cause, the suit is governed by Article 12 and must be brought within the period of one year prescribed by that article. At p. 350 after referring to the case in Jagadamba Chaudrani v. Dakhina Mohun Roy Chaudhri, as supporting that view their Lordships observe with regard to that case:

www.vadaprativada.com

There was difficulty in the case because the expression "set aside an adoption" is inaccurate. An adoption cannot be set aside though its validity may be impeached and in fact the language was altered in 1877 before the appeal was heard.

In AIR 1969 SC 843 – Pierce Leslie & Co. Ltd. vs. Miss Violet Ouchterlony Wapshare, Para 7: The plaintiffs claim declaratory reliefs, a decree vesting or re-transferring the properties to the old company or to the plaintiffs and accounts. Such a suit is governed by Article 120. Even if the suit is treated as one for recovery of possession of properties it would be governed by Art. 120 and not by Art. 144. The old company could not ask for recovery of the property until they obtained a re-conveyance from the new company."

"Para 7. The next question is with regard to limitation. The conveyances in favour of the new company were executed on January 14, 1939, and May 15, 1939. Simultaneously with the execution of the conveyances the new company entered into possession of the properties. Even before that date by January 10, 1938, the appellant-company had taken possession of the properties. The suit was filed on December 21, 1950, when the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, was in force. The plaintiffs cannot claim relief on the ground of fraud and, consequently, Article 95 has no application. Section 10 does not apply as the properties are not vested in the new company for the specific purpose of making them over to the old company or to the plaintiffs. Article 144 does not apply for several reasons. In the plaint there is no prayer for recovery of possession. The plaintiffs claim declaratory reliefs, a decree vesting or re-transferring the properties to the old company or to the plaintiffs and accounts. Such a suit is governed by Article 120. The High Court passed a decree for money and not for recovery of immovable properties. A suit for such a relief would be governed by Article 120. Even if the suit is treated as one for recovery of possession of the properties, it would be governed by Article 120 and not by Article 144. The old company could not ask for recovery of the properties until they obtained a reconveyance from the new company. The cause of action for this relief arose in 1939 when the properties were conveyed to the new company. A suit for this relief was barred under Article 120 on the expiry of six years. After the expiry of this period the old company could not file a suit for recovery of possession. In Chhatra Kumari Devi v. Mohan Bikram Shah the Privy Council held that in a case where the property was not held by the trustee for the specific purpose of making it over to the beneficiary and the trust did not fall within Section 10, a suit by the beneficiary claiming recovery of possession from the trustee was governed by Article 120. Sir George Lowndes said:

> " The trustee is, in their Lordships' opinion, the 'owner' of the trust property, the right of the beneficiary being in a proper case to call upon the trustee to convey to him. The enforcement of this right would, their Lordships think, be barred after six years under Article 120 of the Limitation Act, and if the beneficiary has allowed this period to expire without suing, he cannot

afterwards file a possessory suit, as until conveyance he is not the owner."

It follows that the suit is barred by limitation.

In (1888) ILR 15 Cal 58 – Janki Kunwar Vs. Ajit Singh, Para 8: "It was not a suit for possession of the immovable property to which this limitation of 12 years is applicable. The immovable property could not have been recovered until the deed of sale had been set aside, and it was necessary to bring a suit to set aside the deed upon payment of what had been advanced..."

8. Both the lower Courts seem to have treated this question in a manner which cannot be regarded as satisfactory. The District Judge, having stated the previous proceedings, says: "Under these circumstances I think it but just that she" that is, the present appellant- "should be allowed to count her limitation from the 31st of May 1881, the date on which the District Judge decided her husband had been defrauded in the cases then before him." He takes no notice of the fact that Bijai was also a party to the suit, and that his knowledge was a material matter to be regarded, and he fixes, apparently in a somewhat arbitrary manner, on the 31st of May 1881, the date of the decision of the District Judge in the former suits, as that from which the period of limitation would run. That ground cannot be supported. The District Judge has not directed his mind to the real question, which is when the circumstances that are said to constitute the fraud became known to Bijai. Then the Judical Commissioner deals with the case in a different way. He says the suit is essentially a suit for the possession of immoveable property, and as such falls within the 12 years' limitation. Now he is clearly wrong there. It was not a suit for the possession of immoveable property in the sense to which this limitation of 12 years is applicable. The immoveable property could not have been recovered until the deed of sale had been set aside, and it was necessary to bring a suit to set aside the deed upon payment of what had been advanced, namely, the Rs. 1,25,000. Therefore there has been on the part of the lower Courts a misapprehension of the law of limitation in this case. Their Lordships are clearly of opinion that the suit falls within Article. 91 of the Act XV of 1877, and is therefore barred.

In AIR 1937 Cal 500 – Jafar Ali Khan & Ors. Vs. Nasimannessa Bibi; para 7 "It may be taken to be established now that where there is a suit for recovery of possession there is an obstacle in the way of granting relief in the shape of gift or settlement, the plaintiff cannot get any relief until such instrument is set aside; and asset has been said, if it is too late for setting aside the document suit for possession would also fail."

“14. The question of limitation arises for consideration in the case. In view of the conclusion arrived at by the Judge in the Court below that there was delivery of possession of the property covered by the deed of settlement (Nirupanpatra) executed by Saheb Jan Khan, it could not, in our judgment, be said that the plaintiff had no knowledge of the document she wanted to avoid. The Hebanama executed by her on the same date as the deed of settlement executed by Saheb Jan, contained a recital to this effect: "I have given my consent to the deed of settlement executed (this day) by my husband Saheb Jan Khan in your favour (that is, in favour of Jafar Ali Khan, defendant 1 in the suit) and I am bound by that." We have in the case giving rise to Appeal from Original Decree No. 43 of 1934, held that the Hebanama could not be avoided as the document was executed by the plaintiff with full knowledge of its contents. Our decision therefore must be, and it is, that the plaintiff had knowledge of the deed of settlement at the time of the execution of the Hebanama and of the deed of settlement executed on the same date-one by the plaintiff herself and the other by her husband Saheb Jan Khan, on 27th January 1929. With reference to the application of Article 91, Schedule 1, Lim. Act, we have given our decision in our judgment in the connected Appeal No. 43, and for the reasons stated in that judgment, Article 142, Sch. 1, Lim.

Act, cannot apply to this case. The plaintiff's suit was barred by limitation and it must be dismissed on that ground."

In view of the discussions, referred to above, it transpires that the claim of the plaintiffs is governed by Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 and not by Articles 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act,1908. Therefore, the suit could only be filed within 6 years, therefore, the suit is barred by limitation. Issue No.3 is decided against the plaintiffs and in favour of the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 5(a)

Are the Defendants estopped from challenging the character of property in suit as a waqf under the administration of plaintiff' No. 1 in view of provision of 5(3) of U.P. Act 13 of 1936?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS:

This issue has already been decided in the negative vide order dated 21.4.1966 by the learned Civil Judge.

ISSUE NO. 5(b)

Has the said Act no application to the right of Hindus in general and defendants in particular to the right of their worship?

FINDINGS:

It has been urged on behalf of the defendants that U.P. Act No. 13 of 1936 United Provinces of Waqf Act, 1936 has no application to the rights of Hindus in general and defendants in particular and the rights of Hindus of worship is not affected by it. Muslim side has not advanced any argument against the aforesaid submissions. It

www.vadaprativada.com

transpires from the bare reading of the Act that it was enacted with a view that it should apply to all the Waqfs whether created before or after commencement of this Act. It does not affect the right of worship of Hindus. It does not deal with the right of Hindus about their worship. Consequently, U.P. Act No. 13 of 1936 has no application to the right of Hindus about their worship. Issue No. 5(b) is decided against the plaintiffs and in favour of the defendants.

Are the said provision of Act XIII of 1936 ultra vires as alleged in written statement?

ISSUES NO. 5(e) and 5(f)

5(e). Whether in view of the findings recorded by the learned Civil Judge on 21.4.1966 on issue no. 17 to the effect that, "No valid notification under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act (No. XIII of 1936) was ever made in respect of the property in dispute", the plaintiff Sunni Central Board of Waqf has no right to maintain the present suit?

5(f). Whether in view of the aforesaid finding, the suit is barred on account of lack of jurisdiction and limitation as it was filed after the commencement of the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1960?

FINDINGS:

Both issues are connected with each other and conveniently be disposed of at one place. On 21.4.1966, learned Civil Judge has already decided issue no.17 that no valid notification was made in respect of the property in dispute. The relevant extract of the said order is reproduced as under:-

www.vadapprativada.com

"In view of the facts and reasons discussed above, I hold under issue no. 17 that no valid notification under Section 5(1) of U.P. Muslim Waqf Act No. XIII of 1936 was ever made so far relating to the specific disputed property of the present suits at hand. The alleged Government Gazette Notification Paper No.243/C read with the list paper No.243/1A do not comply with the requirements of a valid notification in the eyes of law and equity as I have already discussed above. The aforesaid two papers, therefore, serve no useful purpose to the plaintiffs of the leading case."

In view of my above findings I hold that the bar provided in Section 5 (3) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1936 does not hit the defence of the defendants of the leading case and their suits which are connected with the aforesaid leading case. Issue No. 17 is answered

accordingly."

In view of the aforesaid findings, the attention of this Court was invited to this effect that the Waqf was registered under the Muslim Waqf Act No. XIII of 1936. Without any valid notification and registration the Waqf is not in accordance with the provisions of the Act of under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act (No. XIII of 1936) and as such even for want of pleadings Sunni Central Board of Waqf has no right to maintain the present suit in view of Section 87(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act, 1995. Learned counsel for the plaintiffs has refuted the aforesaid argument and has urged that Section 87 of the Waqf Act, 1995 is not applicable in the instant case. Plea of registration of Waqf has not been denied and there being no allegation about the non-registration of the Waqf, no issue was framed in this respect. As such Section 87 cannot be invited that there being any factual foundation for such plea. Thus to resolve the controversy it is necessary to go through the United Provinces Muslim Waqfs Act, 1936. Section 5 reads as under:-

> "5. Commissioner's report:-(1) The local Government shall forward a copy of the Commissioner's report to each of the Central Boards constituted under this Act. Each Central Board shall as soon as possible notify in the Gazette the waqfs relating to the particular sect to which, according to such report, the provisions of this Act apply.
> 2. The mutwalli of a waqf or any person interested in a waqf or a Central Board may bring a suit in a civil court of competent jurisdiction for a declaration that any transaction held by the Commissioner of waqfs to be a waqf

is not a waqf, or any transaction held or assumed by him not to be a waqf is a waqf, or that a waqf held by him to pertain to a particular sect does not belong to that sect, or that any waqf reported by such Commissioner as being subject to the provisions of this Act is exempted under section 2, or that any waqf held by him to be so exempted is subject to this Act:

Provided that no such suit shall be instituted by a Central Board after more than two years of the receipt of the report of the Commissioner of waqfs, and by a mutawalli or person interested in a waqf after more than one year of the notification referred to in sub clause (1):

Provided also that no proceedings under this Act in respect of any waqf shall be stayed or suspended merely by reason of the pendency of any such suit or of any appeal arising out of any such suit.

3. Subject to the final result of any suit instituted under sub section (2) the report of the Commissioner of waqfs shall be final and conclusive.

4. The Commissioner of waqfs shall not be made a defendant to any suit under sub-section (2) and no suit shall be instituted against him for anything done by him in good faith under colour of this Act."

The parties have failed to produce any notification under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 before this Court. Consequently, the finding recorded by civil judge on 21.4.1966 is factually correct. Thus, without any valid notification under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Act, 1936 the property in suit was registered as Waqf. It is also a settled proposition of law 'if a thing has to be done, it should be done in accordance with law or otherwise not'. Thus the registration of the Waqf was required to be done only in accordance with the provisions of U.P. Muslim Act, 1936. Thus without any notification under Section 5(1) legally it was not possible to register

the property in suit as a Waqf by the Board. Thus in this case since there is no Gazette notification under Section 5(1). Accordingly, the registration of the property as Waqf property cannot be deemed to be legal registration under the Act. There is nothing in the Act which overcomes the provision of Section 5(1) of the Act. There is no provision under the Act to dispense with the requirement of Section 5(1) of the Waqf Act, 1936. Thus the registration is made in contravention of the provisions of Section 5(1) of the Act, 1936 and on the basis of registration plaintiffs cannot successfully plead before this Court that Section 87(1) of Waqf Act, 1935 (Act No. 43 of 1995) has no application in this case.

Let me understand the provisions of Section 87 of Waqf Act, 1995 which reads as under:-

"87. Bar to the enforcement of right on behalf unregistered wakfs.— (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, no suit, appeal or other legal proceeding for the enforcement of any right on behalf of any wakf which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be instituted or commenced or heard, tried or decided by any Court after the commencement of this Act, or where any such suit, appeal or other legal proceeding had been instituted or commenced before such commencement, no such suit, appeal or other legal proceeding shall be continued, heard, tried or decided by any court after such commencement unless such wakf has been registered, in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(2) The provisions of sub-Section (1) shall apply as far as may be, to the claim for set-off or any other claim made on behalf of any wakf which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of this Act."

Shri P.N. Misra, Advocate has submitted that in view of findings of the learned Civil Judge dated 21.4.1966 Sunni Central Board of Waqf has no right to maintain the present suit and the present suit is liable to be dismissed. His submissions are as under:-

INSTANT SUIT IS BARRED BY SECTION 87(1) OF THE WAQFS ACT, 1995:

1. In view of the findings recorded by the Learned Civil Judge on 21.04.1966 in deciding the issue no. 17 to the effect that. "No valid notification under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Act (No. XIII of 1936) was ever made in respect of the property in dispute" ; the plaintiff Sunni Central Board of Waqf has no right to maintain the present suit and the present suit is liable to be dismissed under Section 87 of the Waqf Act, 1995 (Act No. 43 of 1995) which reads as follows :

> (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force no suit, appeal or other legal proceeding for the enforcement of any right on behalf of any wakf which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of this Act, shall be instituted or commenced or heard, tried or decided by any court after the commencement of this Act, or where any such suit, appeal or other legal proceeding had been instituted or commenced before such commencement, no such suit appeal or other legal proceeding shall be continued, heard, tried or decided by any court after such commencement unless such wakf has been registered, in accordance with the provisions of this Act.
> (2) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall apply as far as may be, to the claim for set-off or any other claim made on behalf of

any wakf which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of this Act,

2. As the said Section 87(1) of the Wakf Act, 1995 contains a non-obstante clause which shall not only prevail over the contract but also other laws in view of the judicial pronouncement made in the Union of India & Ors Vs. SICOM Ltd. & Anr. Reported in 2009 AIR SCW 635 as also in 2009 CLC 91 (Supreme Court) relevant portion of paragraph 3 whereof (at page SCW 638) reads as follows:

"3. Mr. Shekhar Naphade, Learned senior counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent, on the other hand, submitted that principle that a crown debt prevails over other debts is confined only to the unsecured ones as secured debts will always prevail over a crown debt. Our attention in this behalf has been drawn to the non obstante clause contained in Section 56 of the 1951 Act. It was furthermore contended that for the self-same reason Section 529A in the Companies Act was inserted in terms by way of special provisions creating charge over the property and some of the State Governments also amended their Sales Tax Laws incorporating such a provision. The Central Government also with that view, amended the Employees' Provident Funds and (Miscellaneous) Provisions Act, 1952 and employees' State Insurance Act, 1948.

The learned counsel appears to be right."

3. In State Bank of India Vs. Official Liquidator of Commercial Ahmedabad Mills Co. & ors. Reported in 2009 CLC 73 (Gujrat High Court) it has also been held that a non-obstante clause would override

all other provisions of the Act as well as any other law in force in the said date. Paragraphs 13, 14, and 17 of the said judgement read as follows:

> "13. Section 529-A of the Act opens with a non obstante clause and stipulates that notwithstanding anything contained in any other provisions of the Act or any other law for the time being in force in the winding up of a Company, workers' dues and debts due to secured creditors, shall rank pari passu and shall be paid in priority to all other debts. Therefore, the said provision has an overriding effect not only qua the provisions of the Act but also any other law for the time being in force. Section 529-A of the Act was inserted on the statute book vide Act No. 35 of 1985 with effect from 24.5.1985 and, therefore, would override all other provisions of the Act as well as any other law in force on the said date.
> 14. Therefore, prima facie, provisions of Section 42 of ULC Act cannot claim primacy over provisions of Section 529-A of the Act considering the fact that ULC Act was brought on statute in 1976 while Section 529-A of the Act is a subsequent legislation brought on statute book in 1985. Possibly this aspect of the matter, may not have been brought to the notice of the Company Court. However, the jurisdiction vested in a Company Court is a special jurisdiction and considering the true scope and object of the provisions of Section 529-A of the Act, Official Liquidator functions under the directions of the

Company Court and acts for and on behalf of the company Court, primarily to ensure that the interest of workmen of a company (in liquidation) do not go unrepresented and are taken care of. This salutary feature of functioning of Company Court could not have been overlooked by the Company Court while determining the issue in question.

17. Thus, what is the effect of provisions of Section 529-A of the Act have to be necessarily considered by the Company Court in every matter where the properties/assets of the Company (in liquidation) are claimed by a person other than secured creditors and workmen. The Company Court could not have decided the matter as if the issue was only a dispute between the land owner and the competent authority under the ULC Act. It is equally well settled in law that though procedural compliance is required to be established in justification of an action, yet at the same time, mere form over substance cannot be preferred."

4. The bar to the enforcement of right on behalf of the unregistered wakfs imposed under Section 87(1) of the Wakf Act, 1995 is clearly reasonable and in the interest of the general public in view of the judicial pronouncement of the Hon'ble Supreme court of India in bhandar District Central Cooperative Bank Ltd. & ors. Vs. State of Maharashtra & Anr. Reported in 1993 Supp (3) SCC 259 wherein the provisions of Section 145 of Maharashtra Cooperative Societies Act, 1996 which barred an unregistered society from using the word 'co-operative' in its name or title, was held reasonable and in the interest of the general public as the purpose of said Section 145 was to ensure that the general public had adequate notice that a society they might have to deal with, was unregistered. Paragraph 3 of the said judgement reads as follows:

> "3. According to the case of the petitioners, the designated officers are entitled to manage the affairs of the co-operative societies as entrusted to them by the members, without any interference by the legislature, and the restrictions imposed by the impugned provisions are violative of their fundamental rights as protected by Articles 19(1)(c) and (g) of the Constitution. The members of a co-operative society, according to the argument, are entitled to conduct the affairs of the society in accordance to their choice and any interference in this is uncalled for. We were not able to fully appreciate this argument, and so we pointed out to Mr. Anil B. Divan, the learned Counsel for the petitioners (that is, the appellants in Civil Appeal No. 2706/88), that there was no impediment in the running of the societies, and the impugned provisions are attracted only in such cases where the societies are desirous of being registered under the Act with a view to take advantage of the provisions thereunder. The Act does not place any restriction on the formation of any association or union for carrying on any trade or business, nor does it require such unions or societies to be registered under the Act. The petitioner-societies were free to proceed as they wished (of course, they could 'not be allowed to contravene any law) without being subjected to any condition placed by the Act, but in that case they would not be entitled to the benefits of the Act. Mr. Divan appreciating the situation, explained his point by saying that as a consequence of Section 145 of the Act an unregistered society is not entitled to use the word "co-operative" in its name or title (without the sanction of the State Government) and this by itself puts the society under a disadvantage, affecting its trade and business. The learned Counsel fairly conceded that he is not in a position to rely on any other circumstance in support of his argument based on Articles 19(1)(c ) and (g). We do not find any merit in this point which is solely based on the ban of the use of the word "co-operative", by Section 145. The restriction is clearly reasonable and in the interest of the general public and is, therefore, saved by Clause (6) of Article 19. The purpose of Section 145 is to ensure that the general public has adequate notice that a society they may have to deal with, is unregistered and, therefore, not amenable to the provisions of the Act, before taking a decision about their relationship with the same. The persons desirous of running such a society have been placed under an obligation to publicly declare that their society is not registered under the Act, and we do not see any valid objection to this course. The main argument of Mr. Divan is, therefore, overruled.

5. In AIR 1958 A.P. 773 (Pamulapati Buchi Naidu College Committee Nidubroly & Ors. V. Government of Andhra Pradesh & ors.) the Hon'be Andhra Pradesh High Court held that if a society is not registered under the Act, it would have the character of an association which cannot sue or be sued except in the name of all the members of the association. The registration of the society confers on it certain advantages. Once the society is registered it enjoys the status of a legal entity apart from the members constituting the same and is capable of suing or being sued. Relying on said judgment, it is humbly submitted that similar fate is of unregistered waqf. Registration of waqf confers right upon the Central Board of Waqfs to sue or be sued in respect of the affairs and properties of the registered waqf while in case of unregistered waqf of alleged Babri Masjid the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs has no right to maintain instant suit as such the instant sit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant extracts from paragraph 19 of the said judgment reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "(19) The basic assumption made by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the registration of society can be equated to the granting of a Royal Charter, does not rest on a solid foundation. A society registered under the Societies Registration Act is an association of individuals which comes into existence with certain aims and objects.
> If it is not registered as a society under the Act, it would have the charter of a association which cannot sue or be sued except in a name of all the members of the association. The registration of the Society confers on it certain advantages. The members as well as the Governing body of the Society are not always the same. Even though the members of the Society or the Governing body fluctuate from time to time, the identity of the society is sought to be made continuous by reason of the provisions of the Societies Registration Act.

The Society continues to exist and to function as such until its dissolution under the provisions of the Act. The properties of the society continue to be vested in the trustees or in the governing Body irrespective of the fact that the members of the society for the time being are not the same as they were before; nor will be the same thereafter.

By reason of the provisions of the Societies Registration Act, once the society is registered with the Registrar, by the filing of the memorandum and certified copy of the rules and regulations and the Registrar has certified that the society is registered under the Act, it enjoys the status of a legal entity apart from the constituting the same and is capable of suing or being sued.

But the fact to be noted is that what differentiates a society registered under the Act of 1860 from a company incorporated under the Companies Act is that the latter case the share-holders of the company hold the properties of the company as their own whereas in the case of a society registered under the Act of 1860, the members of the society or the members of the governing body do not have any proprietary or beneficial interest, in the property the society holds.

Having regard to the fact that the members of the general body of the society do not have any proprietary or beneficial interest in the property of the society, it follows that upon its dissolution, they cannot claim any interest in the property of the dissolved society. The Societies Registration Act, therefore, does not create in the members of the registered society any interest other than that of bare trustees. What all the members are entitled to is the right of management of the properties of the society subject to certain conditions.

6. In AIR 1959 MP 172 (Radhasoami Satsang Sabha Dayalbag V. Hanskumar Kishanchand) the Hon'ble Madhya Pradesh High Court held that the registration under the Societies Registration Act, confers on a society a legal personality and made it corporation or quasi-corporation capable of entering into contracts. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that unregistered alleged Babri Mosque waqf Cannot confer any right upon the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs to make them competent to maintain the instant suit for and on behalf of such unregistered waqf. Relevant paragraph 13 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"13. It is not disputed that the plaintiff society being a registered society under the Societies Registration Act is a corporation or a quasi-corporation capable of entering into a contract. The registration confers on the plaintiff Sabha a legal personality and consequently any contract entered into by it would bo legally enforceable, unless it was vitiated by an illegality or was shown to be void for any other reason."

7. The United Provinces Muslim Waqfs Act, 1936 provides that under its Section 4(1) within three months of the commencement of the said Act, the local Government shall by notification in the gazette appoint for each District Commissioner of Waqfs for the purpose of making a survey of all waqfs in such district and to submit his enquiry report to the local Government under Section 4(5) of the said Act. Section 5(1) of the said Act provides that the local Government shall forward a copy of the Commissioner's report to each of the Central Boards and each Central Board shall, as soon as possible, notify in the gazette the waqfs relating to the particular sect to which, accordingl to such report, the provisions of that Act apply. Only after such notification a waqf can be registered under Chapter III. As such, after declaration of the notification under Section 5(1) of the said Act invalid by the learned trial Judge in disposing of the issue No. 17 in the instant wuit vide His order dated 21.04.1966, the registration of the waqf based on said notification became ab initio null and void.

> "4. (1) Within three months of the commencement of this Act the Local Government shall by notification in the Gazette appoint for each district a gazette officer, either by name or by official designation, for the purpose of making a survey of all waqfs in such district, whether subject to this Act or not. Each Central Board shall as soon as possible notify in the Gazette the waqfs relating to the particular sect to which, according to such report, the provisions of this Act apply.

38. (1) Every waqf whether subject to this Act or not and whether created before or after the commencement of this Act shall be registered at the office of the Central Board of the sect to which the waqf belongs.

(2) The mutwalli of every such waqf shall make an application for registration within three months of his entering into possession of the waqf property, or in the case of waqf existing at the time of formation of the first Central Board, within three months of the formation of such Central Board.

(3) Application for registration may also be made by a waqif or his descendants or a beneficiary of the waqf, or any Muslim belonging to the sect to which the waqf belongs.

(6) On receipt of an application for registration the Central Board may before registering the waqf make such inquiries as it thinks fit in respect of its genuineness and validity and the correctness of any particulars in the statement filed with the application and when the application is made by any person other than the person holding possession of any property or properties belonging to the waqf, the Central Board shall give notice of the application to the person in possession and hear him, if he desired to be heard, before passing final orders.

40. The Central Board may direct a mutawalli to apply for the registration of a waqf, or to supply any information regarding a waqf or may itself collect such information and may cause the waqf to be registered or may at any time amend the register of waqfs."

9. Sections 18(1) and 18(2)(e) & (g) of the United Provinces Muslim Waqfs Act, 1936 provide that the Central Board can maintain suit in respect of administration and recovery of lost properties only of those waqfs to which the provisions of the said Act applies. As the provisions of the said Act does not apply to the waqf inrespect whereof notification under Section 5(1) has not been made and in furtherance whereof has not been registered under Section 38 or Section 40, as the case may be. Be it mentioned herein that Section 38(1) which is a mandatory provision provides that the mutawalli of every waqf whether created before or after the commencement of that Act shall make an application for registration within three months of its entering into possession of the waqf property or in the case of waqf existing at the time of formation of the first Central Board within three months of jthe formation of such Central Board. before the registration of the wakf, make such inquiries as it thinks fit in respect of its genuineness and validity and the correctness of any particular therein, and, when, the application is made by any person other than the person registering the wakf, give notice of the application to the person administering the wakf property and shall, after affording him a reasonable opportunity of hearing pass such orders as it may deem fit.

(8) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Board under sub-section (7) may, by application within 90 days from the date of that order refer the dispute to the tribunal which shall give its decision thereon."

31. Power to cause registration of wakf and to amend register.- The Board may direct a mutawalli to apply for the registration of a wakf, or to supply any information regarding a wakf or may itself collect information and cause the wakf to be registered or may at any time amend the register of wakf."

11. As after invalidation of notification under Section 5(1) of the United Provinces Act, 1936 neither fresh survey of the waqf in question was caused under Section 6 of the Uttar Pradesh Muslim Wakfs Act, 1960 nor application for registration was made under Section 29 (2) of the said Act of 1960 within a period of three months nor the Board did take any steps for registration of the said wakf under Section 31 of the said Act of 1960. The alleged wakf remained unregistered wakf to which neither 1936 Act nor 1960 Act or 1995 Act are applicable as such the Plaintiff Wakf board has no locus standi and instant Suit is hit by the provision of Section 87(1) of the Wakf Act, 1995. As such, the instant suit is not fit for being continued, heard, tried or decided and is liable to be dismissed on this score alone.

12. Be it mentioned herein that in the Wakf Act, 1954 since repealed Section 66.E had also provision similar to Section 87(1) of the Wakf Act, 1995. Section 66.E of the Wakf Act, 1954 reads as follows:

> 66.E. Institution of suit or legal proceedings in certain cases.- Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, no suit or legal proceeding in respect of the administration or management of wakf, or any other matter or dispute for the determination or decision of which provisions have been made in this Act, shall be instituted in any court or Tribunal except under, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act.

13. It is also note worthy that Section 6 of the Societies Registration Act, 1860 and Section 69(2) of the Partnership Act, 1932 filing of suits by or against the registered Societies or Registered Firms respectively and thereby debar office bearer or partner of unregistered Society or Firm for or on behalf of such Societies or Firms allows. For the purpose of interpretation intention of the legislatures may be inferred by importing form those provisions.

> Suits by and against societies.- Every society registered under this Act may sue or be sued in the name of President, Chairman, or Principal Secretary, or trustees, as shall be determined by the rules and regulations of the society and, in default of such determination, in the name of such person as shall be appointed by the governing body for the occasion:

Provided that it shall be competent for any person having a claim, or demand against the society, to sue the President or Chairman, or Principal Secretary or the trustees thereof, if on application to the governing body some other officer or person be not nominated to be the defendant.

Section 69 (1) & (2) of the Partnership Act, 1932 reads as follows:

"69. Effect of non-registration.- (1) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract or conferred by this Act shall be instituted in any Court by or on a behalf of any persons suing as a partner in a firm against the firm or any person alleged to be or to have been a partner in the firm unless the firm is registered and the person suing is or has been shown in the Register of Firms as a partner in the firm : Provided that the requirement of registration of firm under this sub-section shall not apply to the suits or proceedings instituted by the heirs or legal representatives of the deceased partner of a firm for accounts of the firm or to realise the property of the firm.

(2) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be instituted in any court by or on behalf of a firm against any third party unless the firm is registered and the persons suing are or have been shown in the Register of Firms as partners in the firm.

14. In AIR 1961 SC 808 (C. Mohammad Uunus V. Syed Unnissa & Ors.) the Hon'ble Supreme court has held that under Section 2 of the Shariat Act, 1937 in questions relating to charities and charitable institutions and charitable and religious endowments, a custom or usage would prevail. But Section 2 of the as amended by Madras Act, XVIII of 1949 the rule of decision even in matters regarding wakf relating to above subject is the Muslim personal law notwithstanding a custom or usage to contrary. Though the provision affect vested rights of the parties, the intention of the legislature was clear and the act applied to all cities and provinces pending even in appeal on the date when the Act was brought into operation. Relevant paragraph Nos. 9 and 10 of the said judgment read as follows:

"9. Under the Shariat Act, 1937, as framed, in questions relating to charities and charitable institutions and charitable and religious endowments, the custom or usage would prevail. But the Act enacted by the Central Legislature was amended by Madras Act 18 of 1949 and s. 2 as amended provides :

"Notwithstanding any custom or usage to the contrary, in all questions regarding intestate succession, special property of females, including personal property inherited or obtained under contract, or gift or any other provision of personal law, marriage, dissolution of marriage, including Tallaq, ila,

zihar, lian, Khula and Mubarrat, maintenance, dower, guardianship, gifts, trusts and trust properties and wakfs the rule of decision in cases where the parties are Muslims shall be the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat)."

10. Manifestly by this act, "the rule of decision" in all questions relating to intestate succession and other specified matters including wakfs where the parties to the dispute are Muslims is the Muslim Personal Law. The terms of the Act as amended are explicit. Normally a statute which takes away or impairs vested rights under existing laws is presumed not to have retrospective operation. Where vested rights are affected and the question is not one of procedure, there is a presumption that it was not the intention of the legislature to alter vested rights. But the question is always one of intention of the legislature to be gathered from the language used in the statute. In construing an enactment, the court starts with a presumption against retrospective if the enactment seeks to affect vested rights : but such a presumption may be deemed rebutted by the amplitude of the language used by the Legislature. It is expressly enacted in the Shariat Act as amended that in all questions relating to the matters specified, "the rule of decision" in cases where the parties are Muslims shall be the Muslim Personal Law. The injunction is one directed against the court : it is enjoined to apply the Muslim Personal Law in all cases relating to the matters specified notwithstanding any custom or usage to the contrary. The intention of the legislature appears to be clear; the Act applies to all suits and proceedings which were pending on the date when the Act came into operation as well as to suits and proceedings filed after that date. It is true that suits and proceedings which have been finally decided would not be affected by the enactment of the Shariat Act, but if a suit or proceeding be pending even in appeal on the date when the Act was brought into operation, the law applicable for decision would be the Muslim Personal Law if the other conditions prescribed by the Act are fulfilled. In our view, the High Court was right in holding that it was bound to apply the provisions of the Shariat Act as amended by Madras Act 18 of 1949 to the suit filed by the plaintiffs.

15. In the application for registration of waqf made under Section 38 of the United Provinces Muslim Waqfs Act, XIII of 1936 being exhibit 38 on pages 199 to 205 of the volume No. 11 of the documents filed in the instant suit by the Plaintiffs in its column no. 3 it has been stated that there is no waqf but the waqifs are Emperor Babar and Nawab S'-a-Dat Ali Khan. Below column no. 16 there is a note which says that the claim of the alleged Mutwalli's family is that within mentioned property said to be granted for maintenance of the alleged Babari Mosque at somewhere else is not a waqf but a Service Grant in their favour. The aforesaid application tells Emperor Babar and Nawab Sa'-a-Dat Ali Khan as joint waqifs which is quite impossible

because the Emperor Babar died in 1530 AD while Nawa Sa'-a-Dat Ali Khan ascended on throne in 1732 AD as such the persons who were not contemporary and there was a gap of 202 years between the former and latter they cannot be joint waqifs of same and one waqf alleged to be Babri Masjid Waqf. This fact alone totally falsify the claim of the plaintiffs that the alleged waqf was created by the Emperor Babar. The grant in question was also a service grant not a waqf. The person who made application namely, Syed Kalbe Hussain had also his vested interest as it appears from the note of the application that his intention was to file a case against the persons who were enjoying their property claiming the same to be a service grant; from being motivated with such spirit and he made the aforesaid application for registration making fraudulent dishonest false and frivolous statements.

16. Be it mentioned herein that the plaintiffs have used fraud upon this Hon'ble Court by producing wrong transliteration of the note contained in said application for registration. Though in its original Urdu text it has been recorded that the persons recorded in revenue records do not consider it waqf but in Hindi transliteration thereof the plaintiffs by deleting the word 'nahi' of vital importance which finds place in between the words 'waqf' and 'tasleem' have made it meant that those persons says that it is waqf and nankar mafi. This fact came into light when the original text was read over in open Court by the Hon'ble Justice S.U. Khan, J. during my argument.

17. In the list of Sunni Waqfs published in supplement to the

Government Gazette of United Provinces dated 26th February, 1944 under Section 5 of U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act, XIII of 1936 to which, according to the report of the Commissioner of waqfs, the provisions of the said Act apply; on page 11 at serial no. 26 (being the volume No. 12 of the documents filed in the instant suit) it has been notified that Babri Mosque is located at Qasba shahnawa not at Ramkot in ayodhya. Hindi transliteration of relevant page of the said gazette notification containing the name of Badshah Babar on serial No. 26 is on page no. 341 to 345 of volume 12 of the documents filed in the instant suit. Hindi Transliteration of the proforma of the list as well as the entries against item no. 26 of the said reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

| | नामे वाकिफ या वक्फ | नाम–मतवली मौजूदा | नौ इयते जायदाद मकूफा |
| 26 | बदशाह बाबर | सैयद मोहम्मद जकी मतबली मस्जिद बाबरी कस्बा शाहनबा डाकखाना दर्शनगर | |

From the above Gazette notification dated 26th February, 1944 it appears that badshah Babar had erected a Mosque in Shahnawa town within the postal jurisdiction of Darshan Nagar of which Syed Mohammed Zaki was Mutawalli. The said gazette notification did not say that there was a mosque in Ramkot Pargana Havelli, Ayodhya in the district of Faizabad. As such said Babri Mosque Waqf cannot be construed to be waqf of any other Babri Mosque located anywhere else.

18. In the said gazette notification dated 26th February, 1944 (on page 479 of the volume 12 of the documents filed in the instant suit) another Babri Mosque along with the Mausoleum of the Emperor

www.vadaprativada.com

Babur has been mentioned in some other district perhaps in the district of Knapur. It is well known recognized and admitted fact that the Mausoleum of the Emperor Babur is in Kabul, Afghanistan not in India. This is glaring example of the facts of fraud, forgery and fabrication.

19. From the above mentioned relevant entries of the list of the gazette notification dated 26th February, 1944 it becomes clear that the waqf commissioners had not discharged their duties as it was cost upon them under the provisions of the United Provinces Muslim Waqfs Act, 1936 and in very casual manner either on hearsay they have listed several properties as of waqfs or the concern Waqf commissioner were active participant in the fraud, forgery and fabrication.

20. The Waqf Commissioner Faizabad's report dated 8th Fibruary, 1941 says that it appears that in 935 A.H. Emperor Babar built Babari or Janam Asthan Mosque at Ajudhya and appointed one Syed Abdul Baqi as the Mutwalli and khatib of the Mosque and for its maintenance an annual grant of Rs. 60 was allowed by the said emperor which continued till the fall of the Mughal kingdom. Later on said grant was increased by Nawab Sa-a-Dat Ali Khan to Rs. 302/3/6 but no original papers about this grant by the king of Oudh are available. Relevant extract of said report reads as follows:

> "It appears that in 935 A.H. Emperor Babar built this mosque and appointed Syed Abdul Baqi as the mutwalli and khatib of

the Mosque (vide clause 2 statement filed by Syed Mohammad Zaqi to whom a notice was issued under the wakf Act.) An annual grant of Rs. 60/- was allowed by the Emperor for maintenance of the mosque and the family of the first mutwalli Abdul Baqi. This grant was continued till of the fall of the Moghal Kingdom at Delhi and the ascendancy of the Nawabs of Oudh.

According to Cl. 3 of the written statement of Mohammad Zaki nawab Sa'adat Ali Khan, King of Oudh increased the annual grant to Rs. 302/3/6. No original papers about this grant by the king of Oudh are available."

From the aforesaid extract it is crystal clear that the Commissioner on the basis of mere statement of Syed Mohammed Zaki found that the Disputed Janam Asthan Structure was a mosque built by emperor Babar which is in total discard to his duty cast upon him under said Act XIII of 1936.

21. Commissioner's said report dated 8th Feb. 1941 says that after the mutiny the British Govt. continued the above grant in cash upto 1864 and in the later year in lieu of cash some revenue free land in village Bhuraipur and Sholeypur was granted. The said report further records that Syed Mohammed Zaki produced a copy of the grant order of the British Govt. which was made on condition that Rajab Ali and Mohammad Asghar would render Police, Military or Political service etc. thereafter the commissioner records that the above-mentioned

object is elucidated in Urdu translation as follows:

> "After the Mutiny, the British Government, also continued the above grant in cash upto 1864, and in the latter year in lieu of the cash grant, the British Government ordered the grant of some revenue free land in villages Bhuraipur and Sholeypur. A copy of this order of the British Government has been filed by the objector Syed Mohammad Zaki (vide Flag A). this order says that 'the Chief Commissioner under the authority of the Governor General in Council is pleased to maintain the Grant for so long as the object for which the grant has been made is kept up on the following conditions'. These conditions require Rajab Ali and Mohammad Asghar to whom the sunned was given, to perform duties of land holder in the matter of Police Military or political service etc. The object mentioned above is elucidated in the Urdu translation as follows:-
> Thus the original object of the state grant of emperor Babar and nawab Sa'adat Ali Khan is continued in this Sunnad by the British government also i.e. maintenance of the mosque. The Nankar is to be enjoyed by the grantees for so long as the object of the grant i.e. the mosque is in existence."

22. In fact, this Urdu elucidation is creation of the said Waqf Commissioner as it is not in the alleged Sunned being page 33 of the volume 6 of the documents filed in the instant suit. Hindi transliteration and meaning of the said elucidative Urdu text as

incorporated in the Waqf Commissioner said report reads as follows:

उस नानकार को जबतक कि मस्जिद जिसके वास्ते ये नानकार दी गयी थी बरकरार है। हसबे शरायत, दर्ज जैल कायम फरमाते हैं (जो शर्ते लिखी गयी हैं उसे कहते हैं)

A handwritten copy of the said Sunnad with some error has been reproduced at page 27 of volume 10 of the documents filed in the instant suit. In the said alleged original version of the grant Urdu elucidation did not find place. From the said alleged original version of the alleged grant, it becomes crystal clear that the grant, if any, it was a service grant for rendering police, military and political services to the British Govt. against the enemies of the British Govt. Be it mentioned herein that in those days in the eyes of the Britishers the persons who were fighting against them for liberation of their motherland i.e. India they were considered to be mutineers and enemies of the Britishers. As such it can be inferred that the said service grant was given for helping the Britishers to defeat and rout the freedom fighters, not for a good cause of maintaining any Mosque. Full text of the alleged SUNNAD from page 33 of Vol. 6 (hand written copy on page 27 of Vol. 10 that is not accurate) is reproduced as follows:

Chief Commissioner

> "It having been established after due enquiry, that Rajub ally and Mohamad Usgar received a Cash Nankar of (Rs. 302.3.6) Rupees three hundred two and three annas and six pie from Mouzah Shanwah Zila Faizabad from former government. The Chief Commissioner, under the authority of the Governor General in Council is pleased to maintain the grant for long as the object for which the grant has been made is kept the following conditions. That they shall have surrendered all sunnads, title deeds, and other documents relative to the grant. That they and their successor shall strictly (illegible) all the duties of land-holder in matter of police, and an (torn) or political service that they may be required of them by the Authorities and that they shall never fall under the just suspicion of favouring in any way designs of enemies of the British Government. If any one of these conditions is broken by Rajub ally and Mohamad Usgar or their successor the grant will immediately resumed."

www.vadaprativada.com

23. From the aforesaid alleged to be original text of the grant as produced by the plaintiffs it becomes crystal clear that Urdu interpolation has been done by the said Commissioner with sole motive to deprive the hindus from their sacred shrine of Sri Ramjanamsthan which has been described as Babri Mosque in the plaint as well as Janam Asthan Mosque in the said commissioner's report. From the words 'Janam Asthan Mosque' itself it becomes clear that the alleged Mosque was erected over the birth place of someone, and since time immemorial said place is being worshiped by the Hindus asserting that it is the birth place of the Lord of Universe Sri Ram it is needless to say that according to the said Commissioner, the alleged Mosque was erected over the janamsthan of Sri Ramlala.

24. The said Waqf Commissioner after recording the facts that Syed

Mohammed Zaki had submitted before him that the said British grant was a service grant in favour of his predecessors for rendering police, military and political services to the Britishers subject to resumption on nonfulfilment of the aforesaid conditions thus it was not a waqf property granted for maintenance of the alleged mosque; the commissioner without any cogent evidence rejected his said contention simply stating that he did not agree to that view because the grant was not originally granted by the Britishers but it was continuation of original grant granted by the Muslim rulers as also for the reasons that after the Ajodhya riot of 1934 Syed Mohammad Zaki had presented an application to Deputy Commissioner in which he has described himself as Mutawalli or trustee of the mosque and of the trust attached thereto. In fact, prior to coming on this reference, in the preceding paragraphs of his said report the said commissioner himself has recorded that no paper of old grant even of the Nawabs of Oudh was available and placed before him. It is contrary to the law of evidence to draw inference on the basis of the statement of a person whose credibility was found suspicious, doubtful and non-reliable. As in his report the commissioner records that said Syed Mohammed Zaki was an opium addict and most unsuited for the proper performance of the duties expect of a Mutawalli of an ancient and historical mosque, which was not kept even in proper repairs for which reason he recommended to discharge the said Mutwalli. Relevant extract from said report is reproduced as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"Syed Mohammad Zaki, the objector, who is know as the

www.vadaprativada.com

Mutwalli of the Babari mosque, and also calls himself as such raises an objection to the land in Sholeypur and Bhuranpur being regarded as a waqf, because he says the grant has been made for his substenance only (in Urdu). I do not agree with this view of his. The written statement filed by Mohammad Zqki himself is sufficient to show that the grant has been continued ever since 935 A.H. Only because he and his ancestors were required to look after the mosque and keep it in proper condition out of the income allowed to them and also to provide for the maintenance of himself and his ancestors out of a part of the same grant.

Clearly then the grant of land to Mohammad Zaki must be regarded as a Waqf, the purpose of which is the maintenance of the religious building know as the Babari Mosque.

The learned counsel for Mohammad Zaki has also argued.

1) That the particular grant of land in Sholeypur and Bhrepur has been made by the british Government. A Non-Muslim body and hence the grant cannot be regarded as Muslim Waqf.

2) That the grant is a conditional one, being subject to resumption on non-fulfillment by the grantee of any of the police Military or duties enjoined in the Sunnad, and that on account of these conditions the grant cannot be classed as Muslim Waqf.

I do not agree with either view. Firstly the British Government only continued a grant which had been made by the Muslim Government originally and in these circumstances, I cannot but

3) As for the second point the conditions have been imposed upon the grantee, and not upon the way in which the grant to be utilized, which latter purpose is recognized as maintenance of the mosque. It is clear that if the conditions are broken the enjoyment of the grant by the Mutwalli himself for his sustenance is to be withdrawn apparently implying that any other mutwalli will then be appointed to administer the grant for the original purpose of maintaining the mosque. I am strengthened in this view because I find the mention of the object of the grant i.e. maintenance of the mosque at the very outset of the Sunnad and the desirability thereof seems to be clear from the whole Sunnad.

I also find that after the Ajodhya riot of 1934, Syed Mohammad Zaki presented an application (Flag Ex.A) to Deputy Commissioner, in which he clearly described himself as Mutwalli or trustee of the mosque, pay of Imam Muezzin and the provisions of Iftari etc., during Ramzan after deduction of Rs. 20/- per month for sustenance of the Mutwalli himself. The pay of the Mutwalli spends a much greater portions of the income on his own personal needs."

25. The Waqf Commissioner Faizabad in his said report dated 8th Feb. 1941 ways that he examined Abdul Ghaffar, the then Pes Niwaz who deposed that the imam was not being paid for last 11 years and thereafter the said commissioner says that the then Syed Mohammad

Zaki was an opium addict and most unsuited to the proper performance of the duties expected from a Mutwalli of an ancient and historical mosque, thus he was liable to be discharged from his duties. Relevant extract from the said report which is on page nos. 45 to 48 of the volume No. 6 of the documents filed in the instant suit read as follows:

> "The present Mutwalli is of course a Shia. There is no information as to the sect to which Abdul Baqi himself belonged, but the founder Emperor Babar was admittedly a Sunni, the Imam and Muezzin at the mosque are Sunni and only Sunnis say their prayer in it. Abdul Ghaffar the present Pesh niwaz was examined by me. He swear that the ancestors of Mohammad Zaki were Sunnis who latter on was converted to Shia. He further said that he did not receive his pay during the last 11 years. In 1936 the Mutwalli executed a pronote promising to pay the arrear of pay by installment but upto this time nothing actually was done. I think therefore that this should be regarded as a Sunni Trust.
> I must say in the end that from the reports that I have heard about the present Mutwalli, he is an opium addict (vide his statement flag Ez) and most unsuited to the proper performance of the duties expected of a Mutwalli of an ancient and historical mosque, which is not kept even in proper repairs. It is desirable that, if possible, a committee of management should be appointed to supervise the proper maintenance and repairs of

26. From the second report of the Commissioner of Waqf, Faizabad being report dated 8th February, 1941 it becomes clear that the Imam was not being paid since 1930 and the alleged Mutwalli was an opium addict and most unsuitable person and in 1934 riots on 27th March, the alleged Mosque was demolished it can be safely inferred that Sri Ramjanamsthan temple structure was being used by the Hindus as their sacred place of worship and it was not being used as a mosque because it cannot be imagined that a person will discharge duty of imam without getting salary for such a long period as according to Islamic law, only salary is the prescribed means of livelihood no imam can survive for want of salary as such in fact neither there was any mosque nor there was any mutwalli or imam.

27. From exhibit-62 being page nos. 367 to 405 of volume 12 of the documents filed in the instant suit which is a report of the four historians it becomes crystal clear that how said report has been prepared having some design in mind or inadvertently and negligently which reflects from page 397 of the said volume where the dimension of the vedi described by Tieffenthaler has been wrongly reproduced as "a square platform 5 inches above ground, 5 inches long and 4 inches wide, constructed of mud and covered with lime. The Hindus call it Bedi, that is to say, the birth place. The reason is that here there was a house in which Beschan (Bishan=Vishnu) took the form of Ram." though correct dimension given by Tiffenthaler reads "a square chest, raised five inches from the ground, covered with lime, about five ells

in length by not more than four in breadth. The Hindoos call it bedi, the cradle; and the reason is, that there formerly stood here the house in which Beshan (Vishnoo) was born in the form of Ram." This correct translation is given in the book "Modern Traveller" volume 3, published by James Duncan in 1828. It is crystal clear that in the report of said historians the word 'ells' has been translated as 'inches' in fact, ells means yards which has been correctly translated in the translation made available by the Govt. of India to this Hon'ble Court. Tieffenthelar has not stated that the Bedi was of mud, it is creation of the mind of the aforesaid historians, as such said report of the historians is not reliable for the reasons of being prepared by incompetent persons or for being biased, motivated.

28. The page no. 155 of colume 6 of the documents filed in the instant suit purported to be copy of a folio of a register contains a pedigree wherein it has been written that the mafi was created for the muezzin and khattib of masjid Babari of Oudh date and year of the waqf is unknown to Syed Baqi thereafter his son Syed (illegible) Ali, his son Syed Hussain Ali who was in possession for about 60 years now his son-in-law Rajab Ali and his daughter's son Muhammad Asgar are in existence and were in receipt of cash from village Shahnawa vide receipt (illegible) till fasali year 1263. In the year 1264 fasali enquiry about mafi was started but riot took place (illegible) crop (illegible year 63 fasali was found (illegible) original (illegible) of and is document (illegible) in respect of mafe (illegible) settlement of village versus (illegible). A copy of the said contents has also been compiled in the said volume no. 6 of the documents filed in the instant suit on its page nos. 157 to 161.

29. From the said enquiry report it appears that during the period of 332 years people of five generations incouding Syed Baqi held the office of muezzin and khattib of alleged Babri mosque during the period of 1528 to 1860 which means 66½ years was average of each generation which is quite impossible as according to Life Insurance Corporation's assessment average span of a change of generation is 26 years. And this pedigree is completely false, forged and fabricated one. During this period 16 generations of the Mughal rulers elapsed average whereof comes about 20¾ years. In the matter of Radha Krishna V. State of Bihar the Hon'ble Supreme Court has laid down the principle of law to evaluate and judge authenticity of a pedigree which has been reproduced in this argument at relevant place.

30. The alleged documents and/or transliteration thereof being page nos. 53 to 61 of the volume no. 6 of the documents filed in the instant sit tells that the alleged Babri Mosque was demolished by the rioters and Bairagis on 27th March, 1934. The damaged domes were beyond repair. The alleged list of damages says that apart from damaging the building, the Hindus either burnt or took away with them three pieces of mats, six pieces of mattress, one piece of box, two pieces sandal, six pieces of curtains, five pieces of pitchers, hundred pieces badhana mitti four pieces of small earthen pot, one piece chahar, water pot, (illegible) three pieces, Kasauti Patthar Tarikhi, 3x1½ sq. ft. one piece, ladder two pieces, large iron jar two pieces. From the said list it is

crystal clear that no engraved stone i.e. inscription was either carried away by the rioters or destroyed by the rioters. As such the story of the destruction of inscription is wholly concocted and the inscription which was prepared by the contractor was done at the instance of the Britishers to deprive the Hindus from their religious place and make the said place as bone of contention between Hindus and Muslims to facilitate their policy of divide and rule. As it has been written in the East India Gazetteer 1828 p. 352 2nd column las tpara as well as the preface of the Neil B.E. Baillie's Digest of Moohummudan Law Vol.2 Edn. 1875| Instruction p. xi & xii.

31. In Waqf Commissioner's report dated Feb. 8 1941, it has been recorded that the alleged Babri Mosque was built by one Abdul Baqi on being ordered to do so by the Emperor Babur. He records that there is no document to show that grant was sanctioned to the said Mosque either by the Mughal Emperors or Nawabs of Oudh, but as in 1864 a sunnud was issued stating that the grant was given to the grantee for rendering military, police and political services. It may be presumed that it was granted in continuance of the grants of Mughal Emperors to Nawabs of Oudh right from the Emperor Babur. The said Commissioner in his waqf report has committed forgery and fabrication by inserting certain words in Urdu transcript to show that the grant was give for maintenance of the alleged Babri Mosque. In fact, said sunnud is on record and entire sunnud is in English language and nothing is written in the said sunnud in Urdu transcript as such question of grant for maintenance of Babri Mosque cannot and does not arise at all. He says that some return submitted in the office of Tahsildar in 1995 shows that though major expenses was done by the grantee for his own maintenance, but a portion thereof was spend on maintaining alleged Babri mosque its account would have been submitted to the District Civil court which was made mandatory under the provisions of the Mussalman Wakf Act, 1923 under Section 3 of the said Act. Report also says that the Imam was not paid for last 11 years i.e. since 1930 as also that the Mutwalli is a drug addict and the alleged Mosque is in not good condition as such Mutwalli should be removed. Relevant portion of the said report read as follows: A copy of the said report is on pages 44 to 48 of the Vol. 6 of the documents filed in the instant Suit by the plaintiff's. Relevant extract from the said report reads as follows:

32. Section 3 of the Musslaman Wakf Act, 1923 (Act No. 42 of 1923) reads as follows:

> "3. Obligation to furnish particulars relating to wakf.- (1) Within six months from the commencement of this Act every mutwalli shall furnish to the Court within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the property of the wakf of which he is the Mutwalli is situated or to any one of two more such Courts, a statement containing the following particulars, namely:--
> (a) a description of the wakf property sufficient for the identification thereof;
>
> (b) the gross annual income from such property;
> (c) the gross amount of such income which has been collected during the five years preceding the date on which the statement is furnished, or of the period which has elapsed since the creation of the wakf, whichever period is shorter;

(d) the amount of the Government revenue and cesses, and of all rents, annually payable in respect of the wakf property;

(e) an estimate of the expenses annually incurred in the realisation of the income of the wakf property, based on such details as are available of any such expenses incurred within the period to which the particulars under clause (c) relate;

(f) the amount set apart under the wakf for--

(i) the salary of the mutwalli and allowances to individuals;

(ii) purely religious purposes;

(iii) charitable purposes;

(iv) any other purposes; and

(g) any other particulars which may be prescribed.

(2) Every such statement shall be accompanied by a copy of the deed or instrument creating the wakf or, if no such deed or instrument has been executed or a copy thereof cannot be obtained shall contain full particulars, as far as they are known to the mutwalli, of the origin, nature and objects of the wakf.

(3) Where--

(a) a wakf is created after the commencement of this Act, or

(b) in the case of a wakf such as is described in section 3 of the Wakf Validating Act, 1913, the person creating the wakf or any member of his family or any of his descendants is at the commencement of this Act alive and entitled to claim any benefit thereunder.

The statement referred to in sub-section (1) shall be furnished, in the case referred to in clause (a), within six months of the date on which the wakf is created or, if it has been created by a written document, of the date on which such document is executed, or, in the case referred to in clause (b), within six months of the date of the death of the person entitled to such benefit as aforesaid' or of the last survivor of any such persons as the case may be."

The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of The Premier Automobiles Ltd. Vs. Kamlakar Shantaram Wadke and others, AIR 1975 SC 2238, on page 2244 at paragraph No. 10 approved the earlier quote words:-

www.vadaprativada.com

Para-10 In Doe V. Bridges, (1831) 1 B & Ad. 847 at page 859 are the famous and oft quoted words of Lord Tenterden, C.J. saying:

"Where an Act creates an obligation and enforces the performance in a specified manner, we take it to be a general rule that performance cannot ber enforced in any other manner."

This passage was cited with approval by the Earl of Halsbury, L.C. In Pasmore V. The Oswaldtwistle Urban Disteict Council 1898, AC 387 and by Lord Simonds at ;. 407 in the case of Cutler V. Wandsworth Stadium Ltd. 1949 AC 398.

Thus, in view of the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court, it transpires that United Provinces Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 is an Act, which creates an obligation and enforces the performance in a specified manner. Under Section 5 of the aforesaid Act, it was necessary to make a publication before making any registration. Thus, it was incumbent upon the authorities to act in accordance with law and should have performed the duties in the manner provided under the law.

Thus, in this case the procedure as contemplated under Section 5(1) of Waqf Act was not complied with and the registration was made ignoring the provision, accordingly it has no relevance. It may further be clarified that it makes not difference whether the registration was challenged or not. When it is apparent that the obligation to enforce the Act was not performed in the manner provided under the law by complying the provisions of Section 5 by the Board. In that event the registration has no effect and it does not bind with properties. It may further be clarified that once the Board has tried to get the Waqf registered and after enquiry the registration was not completed, it make no difference whether two other modes were applied or not for registration. Other modes of registration could have been applied in accordance with law only. It is not the case where it has been urged that besides two other modes, the 3rd mode was adopted. The sole mode that was adopted to register this Waqf as Sunni Waqf by holding an enquiry and without making any publication. Thus in view of the decision of the Apex Court, the registration is not in accordance with law.

I have given my anxious thought to the facts of the case. I am of the view that since there is no valid notification under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 in respect of the property in dispute. The registration though is not disputed and pleadings can be looked into by this Court. It further transpires that the registration was done by ad-hearing the provisions of the Act and accordingly it cannot be deemed to be a valid registration. The registration does not confer any right to the Waqf Board to maintain the present suit without complying with the valid required notification. The registration can be done in accordance with law after adhering the provisions of the Waqf Act, 1936. Thus the registration was not made in accordance with the provision of Section 5(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act, 1936. It cannot be deemed to be a valid entry, the Board has no right to maintain the suit and the same is barred by time.

www.vadaprativada.com

In view of the finding of issue no. 5(e) it transpires that since the Waqf Board has no right to maintain the present suit, the suit was not maintainable under U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act, 1960 also. The plea that under Section 19(q) of Waqf Act, the suit could be filed by the Board is of no avail for the reasons that the property was not validly registered by complying with the provisions of Section 5(1) of Muslim Waqf Act, 1936. Issue No. 5(e) and 5(f) are decided against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO.6

Whether the present suit is a representative suit, plaintiffs representing the interest of the Muslims and defendants representing the interest of the Hindus ?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS:

The instant suit has been filed by moving an application under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. by the plaintiff's. The court has permitted the plaintiff's to file the suit and after complying of the provisions of Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C., the court gave the permission for institution of the suit to the plaintiff's. This order was not challenged by the defendants. Accordingly, I hold that the present suit is a representative suit and plaintiff's are representing the interest of Muslims and defendants have been arrayed representing the interest of Hindus. On behalf of defendants no legal remedy was availed challenging the order passed by the learned Civil Judge dated 8.8.62 through which the permission to institute the suit was granted in terms of the provisions of Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C.

www.vadaprativada.com

Issue no. 6 is accordingly decided in favour of plaintiff's and against the defendants.

ISSUE NO.7(a)

Whether Mahant Raghubar Dass, plaintiff of Suit No.61/280 of 1885 had sued on behalf of Janma-Sthan and whole body of persons interested in Janma-Sthan?

FINDINGS:

It has been urged on behalf of the plaintiffs that Mahant Raghubar Das filed suit no. 61/280 of 1885 on behalf of Janma Sthan and whole body of person interested in Janmsthan were the consenting parties and accordingly the suit should be treated as representative

www.vadaprativada.com

suit. On behalf the defendants the assertion has been refuted and it has been urged before this Court that the suit was not a representative suit, it was filed by Mahant Raghubar Das in his personal capacity and whole body of persons of Hindu interested in Janmsthan had no concern with the aforesaid proceedings. It has further been submitted that in a representative suit two or more persons having interest in the matter after obtaining the leave of the Court, can file the representative suit. While in this case admittedly Mahant Raghubar Das was the sole plaintiff. Neither Raghuvar Dass or two or more persons having interest in the property in suit obtained the leave of the Court to file the same. Consequently, the suit cannot be treated as representative suit. It may be noticed that Section 92 C.P.C. and Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. are applicable in such type of cases and after legislative changes the gist remains the same. Section 92 C.P.C. corresponds with section 539 of the Code of 1983 which provides that with the consent of Advocate General or Collector of a District the suit may be filed in representative capacity. The main purpose of Section 539 of the Code of 1983 is to give protection to the public trust of religious nature from being subjected to harassment by suits being filed against them. That is why it was provided that the suit be filed by two persons having the interest in the trust with the written consent of the Advocate-General or of the Collector of the District. It was incumbent upon the Advocate-General before giving consent to satisfy himself that prima facie there was either breach of trust and necessity of obtaining directions from the Court. Thereafter the suit could have been filed with the leave of the Court. After going through the plaint of R.S. No. 61/280 of 1885, Mahant Raghubar Das vs. Secretary of State of India and Mohd. Asghar Khateeb, it transpires that the suit was not filed in accordance with the provisions of Section 539 of the Code of 1883. Thus the suit was filed in the individual capacity by Mahant Raghubar Das and with no stretch of imagination it can be considered as a representative suit. It further transpires that even at the stage of deciding the civil appeal no. 27 of 1885 the procedure adopted under Section 539 of the Code of 1883 was not made applicable. Consequently, the suit cannot be regarded as representative suit. Thus the judgment in R.S. No. 61/280 of 1885 and civil appeal no. 27 of 1885 leave no room for doubt that Mahant Raghubar Das filed suit in his personal capacity and accordingly the judgment cannot be considered as judgment in rem under Section 41 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872. It will be considered as judgment in personam under Section 43 of Indian Evidence Act. Learned counsel for the plaintiff has failed to demonstrate any material to show that the procedure as provided under Section 539 of Code of 1883 was followed at the time of filing R.S. No.61/280 of 1885. It is a settled proposition of law that the burden lies on the plaintiffs to show as how the whole body of persons interested in Janmsthan were interested in the suit and how the suit can be treated as representative suit. Since the plaintiffs have failed to discharge his obligation and provided no material before the Court and on the basis of the plaint of R.S No. 61/280 of 1885 and the judtment of trial court and appellate court leave no room for doubt that the suit was filed by Mahant Raghubar Das in his personal capacity and not on behalf of Janmsthan and whole body of the person interested in Janmsthan cannot be treated as interested person at the time of filing the suit or they may be treated to be in representative capacity under Section 539 of the Code of 1883. Accordingly I hold that Mahant Raghubar Das filed the suit in his personal capacity. Issue no. 7(a) is decided against the plaintiffs and in favour of the defendants.

www.vadaprativada.com

ISSUE NO.7(b)

Whether Mohammad Asghar was the Mutwalli of alleged Babri Masjid and did he contest the suit for and on behalf of any such mosque?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS:

It has been contended that Mohd. Asghar or Mutwalli of Babri Masjid contested the suit on behalf of such mosque. At the cost of repetition, I may again refer that in view of Section 539 of the Code of 1883. The procedure was not adopted by Mahant Raghubar Das for filing any representative suit. Accordingly, Mohd. Asghar was contesting the case in his personal capacity. It further transpires from the trial court judgement and also of appellate court judgment that under no event Mohd. Asghar made any objection that the suit should be dismissed as it has a representative capacity. Suit was not filed in the representative capacity by Mahant Raghubar Das and procedure as provided under Section 539 of the Code of 1883 was not adopted. Thus, it may conclusively be said that the plaintiffs have failed to point out that Mohd. Asghar was contesting the case in representative capacity, but on the other hand he was contesting the case in his personal capacity. Issue No. 7(b) is also decided against the plaintiffs and in favour of the defendants.

www.vadaprativada.com

ISSUE NO.7(c)

Whether in view of the judgment in the said suit, the members of the Hindu community, including the contesting defendants, are estopped from denying the title of the Muslim community, including the plaintiffs of the present suit, to the property in dispute ? If so, its effect?

FINDINGS:

www.vadaprativada.com

Learned counsel for the plaintiffs has raised the plea and the Court accordingly framed the issue to this effect that in view of the judgment in R.S. No. 61/280 of 1885, the members of the Hindu community including the contesting defendants are estopped from denying the title of the Muslim community.

At the cost of repetition, it may be further referred that in the above suit, the procedure so was not adopted for filing a representative suit as contemplated under Section 539 of the Code of 1883. There is not even iota of evidence to suggest that any point of time two or more persons along with Mahant Raghubar Das took permission from the Advocate General or Collector of the district to file the suit on behalf of Hindu community and the leave was obtained by them before the institution of the suit. On being specifically questioned, learned counsel for the plaintiffs could not show any paper to establish the aforesaid contention. Thus it transpires that Mahant Raghuvar Das had not filed the above suit in representative capacity. So far as the question of issue estoppel is concerned, it transpires that the learned counsel for the plaintiffs have failed to establish any circumstance under which the principle of issue estoppel apply in this case. It is a settled proposition of law that the onus to prove that the suit was instituted in representative capacity is on the plaintiffs who assert the same. The burden of proof does not lie on the respondents. The contention of the plaintiffs cannot be considered as good in law in view of the discussion referred to above. It cannot be regarded at this stage that whole body of Hindu community was interested in the outcome of the result or they were at all interested in maintaining the suit. Thus the question of resjudicata or issue estoppel in this case does not arise. Thus the factual finding relating to the nature and character of the suit leave no room for doubt that on the basis of governing legal principles as well as for non-observance of the procedure under Section 539 of the Code of 1883, it cannot be re-agitated on behalf of the plaintiffs successfully that the suit was a representative suit and principle of issue estoppel apply on the Muslim community and Hindu community both. Thus, looking to the case from all or any angle, it transpires that this is not a case of representative suit, accordingly the Hindu and Muslim community are not bound by the decision in R.S. No. 61/280 of 1885. This was simply a personal dispute between Mahant Raghubar Das and the defendant. The judgment that was rendered by the trial court as well as

by the appellate court can be treated as a judgment in rem. Under section 43 of Indian Evidence Act it would be treated as judgement in personam. Consequently, the question of issue estoppel or of filing a suit in representative capacity is not evident from the facts of the case and plaintiffs have failed to discharge his onus to provide any material to substantiate his version before this Court. Accordingly, issue no.7(c) is decided against the plaintiffs.

Whether in the aforesaid suit, title of the Muslims to the property in dispute or any portion thereof was admitted by plaintiff of that suit? If so, its effect?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS:

Learned counsel for the plaintiffs has pointed out that in R.S. No. 61/280 of 1885 plaintiff Mahant Raghubar Das admitted the title of Muslim in the property in suit. It has further been suggested that in one portion or the other the plaintiffs admitted the possession of the Muslim community. According to the learned counsel for the plaintiffs in view of principle of issue estoppel the defendants now cannot re-agitate the issue before this Court and the judgment is not binding on them. At this outset, it may be clarified that in view of the foregoing discussion on above issues, it has been made abundantly clear that neither any permission was obtained from Advocate General or from the Collector of the District by Mahant Raghubar Das before filing the suit in terms of Section 539 of the Code of 1883.It further transpires that the suit was filed in his personal capacity, consequently

there is nothing on record to suggest that it was a representative suit. Consequently, if at all there is any admission on the part of Mahant Raghubar Das, it would not have binding effect on the Hindu community or Muslim community. This is not a case where a judgment in rem was passed by the Court and the suit can be termed as representative suit. Consequently, there was a personal dispute between Mahant Raghubar Das and Mohd. Asghar. State was also arrayed as a party. Consequently, there is no effect on the present suit of the proceedings that took place earlier before the competent Court in personal dispute between Mahant Raghubar Das and Mohd. Asghar, the defendant. Learned counsel for the plaintiffs has further failed to point out as to which is the portion of the property in suit which was admitted by Mahant Raghubar Das, plaintiff of the suit belonging to the Muslim community. After going through the record, it transpires that the site plan annexed with the plaint of R.S. No.61/280 of 1885 has no bearing on the facts of the case. After considering the entire material on record, it further transpires that section 115 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872 has no application to the facts of the case for the reasons that only to describe the topography certain places were shown in the site plan without asking any relief in the plaint. In this context, the decision in civil appeal no. 27 of 1885 dated 18.03.1886 reveals that the Deputy Commissioner contended that the civil court was not competent to adjudicate the aforesaid matter for want of jurisdiction. The relief asked for was in contravention of the clause D of Section 56 of the Act No. 1 of 1877. Consequently, it can be inferred from the appellate court judgment that the appeal was also dismissed by the district judge accepting the contention of the Deputy Commissioner that the matter was not cognizable by the civil court under Cause (d) of Section 56 of Act No. 1 of 1877 to set aside any order passed in criminal proceedings by a Magistrate. Thus with no stretch of imagination it can be gathered that the civil court entertained the suit and decided it. On the contrary, it transpires from the bare reading of the judgment of the appellate court that the civil court refrained to give any finding and refuse to set aside the order passed by a Magistrate on the ground that the suit was not cognizable by the civil court. Thus the effect in such a circumstance would be that neither the suit was cognizable by the civil court nor civil court entertained the suit nor the decision has any effect like estoppel or issues estoppel. It would also not operate as resjudicata between the parties. Moreover, I have also considered the aspect of Section 539 of the Code of 1883 and I am sure that the suit was also not filed in representative capacity. Thus the admission of Mahant Raghubar Das cannot operate as issues estoppel or stopped the defendants to believe and refute the averments made in the plaint. Moreover there is nothing on record to suggest that except topography of the property in suit, there is nothing which is material before this court to demonstrate that after admitting the claim of the Muslims, the land in suit with no stretch of imagination without calling for any relief can be considered as a matter which was binding for consideration before the Court. Thus, if at all there is any admission of plaintiff Mahant Raghubar

Das, it would not stop Hindu community and Muslim community both to raise issues before this Court as suit is not in the nature of representative suit. Issue No.7(d) is accordingly decided against the plaintiffs and in favour of the defendants.

Learned counsel for the plaintiffs has heavily relied over the decision of R.S. No. 61/280 of 1885, Mahant Raghubar Das vs. Secretary of State of India and on its strength has submitted that the judgment operates as resjudicata against the defendants. At the cost of repetition I may refer that in view of Section 539 of the Code of Civil Procedure of 1883 which corresponds to Section 92 of the present C.P.C. it transpires that without adhering any procedure in accordance with Section 539 of the above code, the above regular suit was filed. I have already given my finding on issue no.7 that it was not a representative suit. It further transpires that the judgment was not judgment in rem but it was judgement in personam. Consequently the judgment would have a binding effect only on the parties referred in the plaint and arrayed as parties. It further transpires that Section 18 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1972 has full bearing on the facts of the case for convenience it is reproduced as under:-

> "S.18. Statements made by a party to the proceeding, or by an agent to any such party, whom the Court regards, under the circumstances of the case, as expressly or impliedly authorised by him to make them, are admissions.
> Statements made by parties to suits, suing or sued in a representative character, are not admissions, unless they were made while the party making them held that character."

Thus, in view of provisions of Section 18 of Indian Evidence

www.vadaprativada.com

Act even in a case of representative character statements made by the parties to the suits, suing or sued are not admissions unless there were made while the party making them held that character. It is not disputed by the plaintiff that defendants were not holding the character while it is clear from the finding on issue no.7 that the suit was not of a representative character. Thus, question of issue estoppel does not arise. Plaintiffs have also failed to substantiate before this Court that the defendants are the persons from whom the parties to the suit have derived their interest in the subject matter of the suit. Consequently, at this stage, it can not be said that the defendants of the present suit are the successor of Mahant Raghubar Das. It has nowhere been mentioned in the plaint that the defendants have derived the interest in the subject matter from Mahant Raghubar Das, the plaintiff of the suit. Consequently, for want of any evidence before this Court, it is not possible to accept the contention of the plaintiffs that Mahant Raghubar Das could in any way be said to be the predecessor in title of the defendants and the defendants derived their interest in the said matter through him. Consequently, neither this is a suit of representative character nor this is a suit in which it has been alleged by the plaintiffs that the defendants have derived their title from Mahant Raghubar Das. Thus, with no stretch of imagination he can be said to be predecessor in suit. Consequently, admissions if any made in R.S. No. 61/280 of 1885, Mahant Raghubar Das vs. Secretary of State of India would not bind the defendants.

www.vadaprativada.com

Does the judgment of Case No.6/281 of 1881, Mahant Raghubar Dass Vs. Secretary of State and others, operate as res judicata against the defendants in suit ?

FINDINGS:

Issue No.8: It is admitted between the parties that prior to this litigation one case bearing no.61/280 of 1885, Mahant Raghubar Das Versus Secretary of State and others, was filed. Plaintiffs have come out with a case that it shall operate as resjudicata against the defendants.

I have already considered the scope of the earlier suit. This Court has already given finding that this suit is not a representative suit and it was an individual suit between Mahanth Raghubar Das and Mohd.Asghar who was the Mutwalli of the mosque. In view of the provision of Section 539 of CPC of 1883 the suit has no binding effect on the members of Hindu community as well as on Muslim community. It is also nobodies' case that the present defendants are the successors of Mahanth Raghubar Das. Thus there is no material that Mahanth Raghubar Das was the predecessor in title of the defendants. There is no averment in the plaint itself. Consequently defendants of this suit have not derived a title from Mahanth Raghubar Das. Consequently they cannot be treated to be party to the earlier suit.

Sri Mushtaq Ahmad Siddiqui, learned counsel for the plaintiffs has submitted that in view of the plaint averments it is very much established that the suit was filed for the benefit of entire Hindu community, having faith in Lord Ram. Hindus wanted to construct a temple over Chabutra treating it as a sacred place. Hence, the case falls within Explanation 6 to Sec.11 CPC. It is further submitted that the judgment is binding on all the Mahanth and Shebait of Janam Asthan of Nirmohi Akhara. It is further submitted that in the year 1885 Order-1 Rule-8 CPC was not there. Accordingly in view of Explanation 6 of Section-11 the principle of resjudicata will operate. It is further submitted that in view of issue estoppel principal of res judicata shall operate against the defendants in suit. Learned counsel for the plaintiff has relied over Explanation 4 and 6 of Section-11 CPC. On the contrary it is submitted by the defendants that neither the procedure as provided u/s 573 of CPC of 1883 was adhered to nor there is anything to show that the suit was filed by Mahanth Raghubar Das in representative capacity. Consequently the suit is not barred by principle of res judicata.

Let me read Section-11 of the CPC as under;

"Section-11: Res judicata- No Court shall try any suit or issue in which the matter directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in Issue in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title, in a Court competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised, and has been heard and finally decided by such Court.

> Explanation I.--The expression "former suit" shall denote a suit which has been decided prior to the suit in question whether or not it was instituted prior thereto.
> Explanation II.--For the purposes of this section, the competence of a Court shall be determined irrespective of any provisions as to a right of appeal from the decision of such Court.

Explanation III.--The matter above referred to must in the former suit have been alleged by one party and either denied or admitted, expressly or impliedly, by the other.

Explanation IV.--Any matter which might and ought to have been made ground of defence or attack in such former suit shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in such suit.

Explanation V.--Any relief claimed in the plaint, which is not expressly granted by the decree, shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to have been refused.

Explanation VI.--Where persons litigate bona fide in respect of a public right or of a private right claimed in common for themselves and others, all persons interested in such right shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to claim under the persons so litigating.

outer courtyard will neither operate as res judicata nor the principles of constructive res judicata are applicable because neither any finding on issues involved in this case were recorded by the court nor the same was between the parties. Same parties means parties are persons whose names are on record at the time of the decision vide Baisu Reddi Versus Janardan Rao, AIR 1968 AP 306. The principle of res judicata and constructive res judicata were discussed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in several decisions wherein the dispute must be between the same parties and it must be shown that same plea was required to be raised by the contesting parties. Matter must be directly and incidentally in issue between the same parties and there is some final decision on any particular issue and the matter ought to have been raised and decided. Thus in the present case none of the aforesaid conditions are complied with. Accordingly the suit is not hit by the principle of res judicata and constructive res judicata.

I have given anxious thoughts to the rival submissions and perused the case laws, referred to above. In this context I have to add as under;

Historical Aspects of Res Judicata.

"Res judicata Pro Veritate Accipture" is the full maxim which has, over the years, shrunk to mere Res Judicata vide Deva Ram v. Ishwar ChandA.I.R.1996 S.C.378 and Kunjan Nair Shivaraman Nair v. Narayanan Nair A.I.R. 2004 S.C. 1761, which expression means a matter already decided. It has a very ancient history. It was known to ancient Hindu Law as Purva Nyaya. The plea of former Judgment has been illustrated in the text of Katyayana thus, "If a person though defeated at law sues again, he should be answered 'you were defeated formerly" (vide Raj Lakshmi Dasi v. Banamali Sen, AIR 1953 SC 33 and Sheoparsan Singh v. Ramnandan Singh [1916] 43 I.A. 91 ).

This principle was also known to Roman law as 'exceptio res judicatae'. Julian defined the principle thus, "and generally the plea of former Judgment is a bar whenever the same question of right is renewed between the same parties by whatever form of action -- Et generaliter (ut julianus definit) exceptio rel judicatae obstat, quotisns inter easdem personas esdem quaestio revocator, vel alio genere judicli.) This doctrine was adopted by the countries on the European continent which had modelled their civil law on the Roman pattern. In France, the doctrine is known as 'Chose jugee' -- thing adjudged. This principle of preclusion of re-litigation, or the conclusiveness of Judgment, has struck deep roots in Anglo-American jurisprudence and is equally well-known in the Commonwealth countries which have drawn upon the rules of Common law. The doctrine of res judicata is recognised as a principle of universal jurisprudence forming part of the legal systems of all civilised nations.

Section 11 of Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, contains the rule of conclusiveness of the Judgment which is- based partly on the maxim, of Roman jurisprudence. "interest republicae ut sit finis litium" (It concerns the State that there be an end to law suits) and partly on the maxim "nemo debet bis vexari pro Una et eadem causa"

(no man should be vexed twice: over for the same cause). The section does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court but operates as a bar to the trial of the suit or issue, if the matter in the previous suit between the same parties litigating under the same title in a Court, competent to try the subsequent suit in which such issue has been raised. The rule of res judicata "while founded on ancient precedent is dictated by a wisdom which is for all time' and that the application of the rule by the Courts "should be influenced by no technical considerations of form, but by matter of substance within the limits allowed by law.

Res judicata is a doctrine based on the larger public interest. It is well settled that Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (hereinafter, "the Code of Civil Procedure") is not the foundation of the principle of res judicata, but merely statutory recognition thereof and hence, the Section is not to be considered exhaustive of the general principle of law. The main purpose of the doctrine is that once a matter has been determined in a former proceeding, it should not be open to parties to re-agitate the matter again and again. The rule of res judicata contained in Section 11 of the Code has some technical aspects, the general doctrine is founded on considerations of high public policy to achieve two objects namely (i) that there must be a finality to litigation and (ii) that individuals should not be harassed twice over with the same kind of litigation.

The object of introducing Section 11 in the Code of Civil Procedure is to confer finality on decisions arrived at by competent Courts between interested parties after genuine contest (Ram Bhaj v.

www.vadaprativada.com

Ahmad Saidakhtar Khan). Once the matter which was the subject matter stood determined by a competent Court, no party thereafter can be permitted to reopen it in a subsequent litigation. Such a rule was brought into the statute book with a view to bring the litigation to an end so that the other side may not be put to harassment. Res judicata is a rule of procedure and it cannot change the law of the land as applicable to specific parties by decisions of Courts vide Mathura Prasad v. Dossibai, AIR 1971 SC 2355. Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure recognizes this principle and forbids a Court from trying any suit or issue, which is res judicata, recognizing both 'cause of action estoppel' and issue estoppel.

The principle of res judicata is conceived in the larger public interest which requires that all litigation must sooner than later, come to an end. The principle is also founded on equity, justice and good conscience which require that a party which has once succeeded on an issue should not be permitted to be harassed by a multiplicity of proceedings involving determination of the same issue. It is also in the public interest that individuals should not be vexed twice over with the same kind of litigation. The principle of res judicata envisages that a Judgment of a Court of concurrent jurisdiction directly upon a point would create a bar as regards a plea, between the same parties in some other matter in another Court, where the said plea seeks to raise afresh the very point that was determined in the earlier Judgment. The principles of res judicata as contained in Section 11 Code of Civil Procedure bars any Court to try any suit or issue in which the matter

directly and substantially in issue has been directly and substantially in issue in a former suit between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under the same title, in a Court competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised, and has been heard and finally decided by such Court. A finding which has attained finality operates as res judicata.

It is a doctrine applied to give finality to 'lis' in original or appellate proceedings. The doctrine in substance means that an issue or a point decided and attaining finality should not be allowed to be reopened and re-agitated twice over. The literal meaning of res is everything that may form an object of rights and includes an object, subject-matter or status and res judicata literally means: 'a matter adjudged; a thing judicially acted upon or decided; a thing or matter settled by Judgment.

Res judicata is meant to avoid conflict in decisions - it is now settled principle that even ex-parte decree does constitute res judicata if issue involve is one which constitutes basis or foundation of decree. But to this the qualification must be added that, if such a party is to be bound by a previous Judgment, it must be proved clearly that he had or must be deemed to have had notice that the relevant question was in issue and would have to be decided. In an issue, which is not adjudicated before the Court, the provisions of Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure cannot be invoked.

The principle of res judicata also comes into play when by the Judgment and Order a decision of a particular issue is implicit in it, that is, it must be deemed to have been necessarily decided by implication; then also the principle of res judicata on that issue is directly applicable. One of the tests in deciding whether the doctrine of res judicata applies to a particular case or not is to determine whether two inconsistent decrees will come into existence 'if it is not applied'.

If a suit is based on an earlier declaratory decree and such decree is contrary to the law prevailing at the time of its consideration as to its legality or is a decree granted by a Court which has no jurisdiction to grant such decree, principles of res judicata under Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure will not be attracted and it is open to the Defendant in such suits to establish that the declaratory decree relied upon by the Plaintiff is not based on a good law or Court granting such decree did not have the jurisdiction to grant such decree vide Shakuntla Devi v. Kamla, (2005) 5 SCC 390.

Plea of res judicata, when to be taken

It is stated that the best method to decide the question of res judicata is first to determine the case of the parties as put forward in their respective pleadings of their previous suits, and then to find out as to what had been decided by the Judgments which operate as res judicata. Where the pleadings of the suits instituted by the parties have not at all been filed on the Court record, the Court had to rely upon the facts stated in the Judgment. It is well settled that the pleadings cannot be proved merely by recitals of the allegations mentioned in the

The plea of res judicata has to be specifically and expressly raised. The foundation of the plea of res judicata must be laid in the pleadings. Not only the plea has to be taken, but also it has to be substantiated by producing the copies of the pleadings, issues and Judgment in the previous case. May be in a given case only copy of Judgment in previous suit is filed in proof of plea of res judicata and the Judgment contains exhaustive or in requisite details the statement of pleadings and the issues which may be taken as enough proof Vide V. Rajeshwari v. T.C. Saravanabava, (2004) 1 SCC 551. It is risky to speculate about the pleadings merely by a summary of recitals of the allegations made in the pleadings mentioned in the Judgment. If this was not done, no party would be permitted to raise it for the first time at the stage of the appeal. The Constitution Bench in Gurbux Singh v. Bhooralal, placing on a par the plea of res judicata and the plea of estoppel under Order 2 Rule 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure, held that proof of the pleadings in the previous suit which is set to create the bar, ought to be brought on record. The plea is basically founded on the identity of the cause of action in the two suits and therefore, it is necessary for the defence which raises the bar to establish the cause of action in the previous suit. The only exception to this requirement is when the issue of res judicata is in fact argued before the lower Court.

Exceptions to the doctrine of Res judicata

Broadly stated, the doctrine of res judicata operates when there

occurs identity of subject-matter, of the cause of action; of parties or their privies; of capacity or jurisdiction. This is only a general statement admitting of limitations and exceptions. The doctrine, though sanctified by age, is not without its oodles features. If the rule of estoppel prevents a man from speaking the truth, the rule of res judicata prohibits a party from questioning the truth of everything contained in the Judgment. In other words, if a former Judgment perpetrates an error, the doctrine of res judicata perpetuates it. The principle, however, has been eulogised as salutary. A party whose interests have once been placed in jeopardy, has a right to judicial immunity from the consequences of the same matter being raked up again regardless of the fact whether the former Judgment was right and just. Emphasis is laid on rule of repose rather than on the absolute justness of the conclusion. Once a dispute has been concluded, then, that conclusion is right and just. The advantage to the society is that the doctrine of res judicata not only puts an end to strife, but also it produces certainty as to individual rights. The general welfare requires that litigation ought not to be interminable. It is said "Ne lites sint immorta-les, dum litantes sunt mortales, (since litigants are mortals, let litigation not continue for ever vide Mt. Lachhmi v. Mt. Bhulli, AIR 1927 LAH 289.

To this salutary rule, four specific exceptions are indicated. Firstly, the obvious one, that when the cause of action is different, the rule of res judicata would not be attracted.

Secondly, where the law has, since the earlier decision, been

altered by a competent authority. Thirdly, where the earlier decision between the parties related to the jurisdiction of the Court to try the earlier proceedings, the same would not be allowed to assume the status of a special rule of law applicable to the parties and therefore, the matter would not be res judicata. Fourthly, where the earlier decision declared valid a transaction which is patently prohibited by law, that is to say, it sanctifies a glaring illegality vide The State of Punjab v: Nand Kishore, AIR 1974 P & H 303 and Shakuntla Devi v. Kamla, Manu/SC/0277/2005.

As and when the Court is examining the question of any right having emanated from a Judgment of the High Court and the said Judgment squarely having emanated, on following an earlier Judgment of the said Court, without any further reasoning advanced and no question of facts involved but purely a question of constitutionality of an Act, the moment the earlier Judgment of the High Court is reversed by the Supreme Court, that becomes the law of the land, binding on all parties vide Director of Settlements, A.P. v. M.R. Appa Rao, AIR 2002 SC 1598. The first writ was on the ground of apprehended bias. In the present case the allegation is actual bias. Also, the subject matter of both proceedings is different. Held, the second writ application is competent vide G.N. Nayak v. Goa University, AIR 2002 SC 790.

The general principle of res judicata is embodied in its different forms in three different Indian major statutes--Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure, Section 300 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 and Sections 40 to 43 of the Indian Evidence Act, yet it is not exhaustive. Here, we are concerned only with Section 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Following conditions must be proved for giving effect to the principles of res judicata under Section 11:

www.vadaprativada.com

(i) that the parties are same or litigating under same title,

(ii) that the matter directly and substantially in issue in the subsequent suit must be same which was directly and substantially in issue in the former suit,

(iii) that the matter in issue has been finally decided earlier and

(iv) that the matter in issue was decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction.

www.vadaprativada.com

If any one or more conditions are not proved, the principle of res judicata would not apply vide Life Insurance Corpn. of India v. Ganga Dhar v. Ranade, AIR 1990 SC 185 and Syed Mohd. S. Labbai v. Mohd. Hanifa, Manu/SC/0510/1976.

Where all the four conditions are proved, the Court has no jurisdiction to try the suit thereafter as it becomes not maintainable and liable to be dismissed. For application of principle of res judicata, existence of decision finally deciding a right or a claim between party is necessary vide M/s. International Woolen Mills v. M/s. Standard Wool (U.K.) Ltd., AIR 2001 SC 2134.

Res judicata is a mixed question of fact and law vide Madhukar

www.vadaprativada.com

D. Shende v. Tarabai Aba Shedage, AIR 2002 SC 637. It is dictated by wisdom which is for all times. It does not draw sustenance from any statute nor should any statutory provision be easily construed to render it ineffective vide Balbir Kaur and another v. Gram Panchayat Village Jalabehra and another, 1986 R.L.R. 112.

The bar only applies if the matter directly and substantially in issue in the former suit has been heard and finally decided by a Court competent to try such suit. This clearly means that on the matter or issue in question there must have been an application of the judicial mind and a final adjudication has been made. If the former suit is dismissed without any adjudication on the matter in issue merely on a technical ground of non-joinder, that cannot operate as res judicata vide State of Maharashtra v. M/ s. National Construction Co., AIR 1996 SC 2367.

Meaning of "Suit"

The plain and grammatical meaning of the word "suit" occurring in clause "in a Court competent to try such subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised" of Section 11 of Code of Civil Procedure includes the whole of the suit and not a part of the suit, so that giving the word "suit" its ordinary meaning it is difficult to accept the argument that a part of the suit or an issue in a suit is intended to be covered by the said word in the material clause vide Gulab Bai V. Manphool Bai, AIR 1962 SC 214.

Having regard to the legislative background of Section 11, there can be no hesitation in holding that the word 'suit' in the context must be construed liberally and it denotes the whole of the suit and not a part of it or a material issue arising in it vide Mirza Abid Kazim Husain v. Mirza Nasir Husain, AIR 1977 All. 201. Section 11 is now made applicable by the Explanations and interpretation to certain proceedings giving more extensive meaning to the word 'suit'. In its comprehensive sense the word 'suit' is understood to apply to any proceeding in a Court of justice by which an individual pursues that remedy which the law affords. The modes of proceedings may be various but that if a right is litigated between parties in a Court of justice the proceeding by which the decision of the Court is sought may be a suit. But if the proceeding is of a summary nature not falling within the definition of a suit, it may not be so treated for the purpose of Section 11 vide Pandurang Ramchandra Mandlik v. Shantibai Ramchandra Ghatge, AIR 1989 SC 2240.

Explanation I

In view of the risk of rigid application of the rule of res judicata defeating the ends of justice, several important exceptions have been recognised. One of the rules of guidance is that former Judgment, on the basis of which the plea of res judicata is rested, is to be construed with strictness in order to ascertain compliance with the requirements of the principle. The rule, therefore, assumes that at the earlier stage, the parties had effective opportunity to litigate the same matter in a Court of competent jurisdiction on issues which were directly in point and properly before the Court. This precaution cannot be overlooked, for, a decision, which has the force of res judicata, can "make the white black, the black white; the crooked straight, the straight crooked--res judicata facit ex alba nlgrum, ex nigro album, ex curvo rectum, ex recto curvum". A Judgment which is erroneous on facts or law, is, nevertheless, res judicata so long as it is not vacated or reversed by a superior Court. In other words, a suitor is entitled to one fair trial of his case and no one is permitted to harass another a second time, or take the time of the Court, for agitating the some controversy. Once a final Judgment is obtained, the same matter cannot be canvassed anew in another action, but it has to be a decision on merits by a competent tribunal between parties over whom it has jurisdiction vide Jaljodhan Singh v. Kirpa Singh, 1963 P&H 178.

(b) Same parties or parties under whom they claim to litigate Section 11 requires that former suit which has been adjudicated upon must have been between same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, litigating under same title. In other words in Order to make a person bound by res judicata it must be proved that he was in some way a party to the suit decided for a Judgment binds only parties and privies vide Ishwar Das v. State of M.P., AIR 1979 SC 551 e.g. If a karta of joint Hindu family property was party to a suit decided, a suit filed by another coparcener regarding same matter in issue is barred by res judicata vide Amrit Sagar v. Sudesh Behari, AIR 1970 SC 5. It is not necessary that parties should be common. Where a person is properly represented in a suit by another either by act of parties or by operation of law, he can be presumed to be a party to such suit. However, where after the finding or decision on a preliminary issue, new Defendant is added to a suit, such finding would not operate as res judicata against that Defendant vide S. Mohd. Ismail v. S. Anwar Ali, AIR 1991 Cal. 391. Similarly, where a decree is passed against a minor who was not properly represented, the principle of res judicata would not bar such person from contesting fresh suit. But a transferee is bound by the decree passed against transferor in respect of property transferred except where, the transfer has taken place before the former suit was filed.

In an earlier proceeding the wakf in question was described as "private", under law as it stood then in a subsequent proceeding that wakf was declared as public after commencement of Bombay Public Trusts Act. It was held, the earlier decision will not operate as res judicata in litigation filed subsequent to the second decision vide Sajjadanashin Sayed v. Musa Dadabhai Ummer, AIR 2000 SC 1238. In a case dispute between labour and Electricity Co. was referred to High Court. Subsequently, the Electricity

Company was amalgamated with State Electricity Board and the dispute was referred to the High Court. It was held that subsequent reference had nothing to do with the earlier reference. Principles of res judicata had no application vide Karnataka Power Transmission Corporation Ltd. v. Amalgamated Electricity Co. Ltd., AIR 2001 SC 291. However, in another case it was held that once the issue was directly and substantially involved in earlier proceedings and which was raised by the "forum", it is not permissible for the forum to once again raise the same issue in subsequent proceedings by coming under the "cloak" of the forum vide Junior Telecom Officers v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 787.

One of the pre-conditions for attraction of Section 11 for an issue to be barred by res judicata, is that, it must arise between the same parties and decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction. Section 11 does not encompass a situation where one of the parties to the subsequent suit was aware of the earlier suit and the question arising therein. It is also futile to submit that the Plaintiff ought to have got himself pleaded to the earlier suit. There is no compulsion on a person to get himself impleaded to any Court proceedings. As such, there cannot be any consequence of a person not volunteering for being impleaded to a suit. But, there are definite consequences provided for in the Code of Civil Procedure for not joining a proper or a necessary party to the proceedings vide Shri Narendra Akash Maharaj Petkar v. Shri Shahaji Baburao Petkar and The Saraswat Employee Co-op. Hsg. Soc. Ltd. v. Shri Shahaji Baburao Petkar.

Direct and Substantial as distinct from Incidental and Collateral. The effect of res judicata is, confined to the matter which was "directly and substantially in issue in the former litigation inter panes. A matter which is collaterally or incidentally in issue for the purposes of deciding the matter which is directly in issue in the case cannot be made the basis of a plea of res judicata. The question has to be decided on the pleadings, the issues and the findings given in that case vide

Isher Singh v. Sarwan Singh, AIR 1965 SC 948. If the issue was "necessary" to be decided for adjudicating on the principal issue and was decided, it would be "directly and substantially in issue. A collateral or incidental issue is one that is incidental to a direct and substantive issue vide Sajjadanashin Sayed v. Musa Dadabhai Ummer, AIR 2000 SC 1238 being incidental only to the substantial issue, cannot operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit in which question of issue is directly raised vide Ganga Bai v. Chhabubai, AIR 1982 SC 20. In other words, when the question raised in the subsequent proceeding have no bearing on the finding made in the earlier proceedings the principle of res judicata is not applicable vide State of U.P. v. Rup Lal Sharma, (1997) 2 SCC 62. If the finding is given incidentally while determining another issue which was directly and substantially in issue, such finding cannot be said to be on an issue which was directly and substantially in issue in the former suit. Undoubtedly, the question whether a matter is "directly and substantially in issue" would depend upon whether a decision on such an issue, would materially affect the decision of the suit vide Bhai Hospital Trust v. Parvinder Singh, AIR 2002 Del. 311. When a finding as to title to immovable property is rendered by a Court of Small Causes res judicata cannot be pleaded as a bar in a subsequent regular civil suit for the determination or enforcement of any right or interest in immovable property. In Order to operate as res judicata the finding must be one disposing of a matter directly and substantially in issue in the former suit and the issue should have been heard and finally decided by the Court trying such suit. A matter collaterally or incidentally in issue for the purposes of deciding the matter which is directly in issue in the case cannot be made the basis of a plea of res judicata. It has long been held that a question of title in a Small Cause suit can be regarded as incidental only to the substantial issue in the suit and cannot operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit in which the question of title is directly raised vide Gangabai v. Chhabubai, AIR 1982 SC 20.

In this context I would like to refer that the plaintiffs have failed to prove the conditions which give effect to the principle of res judicata under Section 11, which are as under;

(I) that the parties are same or litigating under the same title.

(II) that the matter directly and substantially in issue in the subsequent suit.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is also settled proposition of law that if both the conditions are not proved, the principle of res judicata would not apply vide Life Insurance Corporation of India Versus Ganga Dhar Versus Ranade, AIR 1990 SC 185

It is settled proposition of law vide AIR 1960 SC 941, Satyadhyan Ghosal and Ors. v. Sm. Deorajin Debi and Anr. that the dispute must be between the same parties. It is clear from the judgement in suit no.61/280 of 1885, Mahant Raghubar Das vs. Secretary of State and others that the parties to the present suit are different and accordingly the suit is not hit by res-judicata. It is also clear that the dispute in the earlier suit of 1885 was with respect to Chabutra only while in this case the plaintiffs have sought different reliefs. Thus same plea was not taken before this Court. It is also not clear from the averment of the plaint as to how the same plea was required to be raised by the contesting parties when in a different context the present suit has been filed by the Sunni Central Waqf Board. It crystal clear that the matter in issue in 1885 case was with respect to Chabutra and not the matter with respect to other dispute as shown in the plaint. There is no final decision on any particular issue in the earlier suit which bind the parties and there is nothing on record to suggest that the matter might or ought to have been raised earlier. Consequently, the plaintiffs have failed to substantiate that the earlier judgment shall operate as res judicata against the defendants in the suit. Issue No. 8 is decided accordingly against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO. 18:

What is the effect of the judgdment of their lordships of the Supreme Court in Gulam Abbas and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, A.I.R. 1981 Supreme Court 2198 on the finding of the learned Civil Judge recorded on 21st April, 1966 on issue no. 17?

FINDINGS:

Admittedly, Civil Judge recorded finding on issue no. 17 on 21.4.66. It has been urged on behalf of the plaintiffs that the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in Ghulam Abbas Vs. State of U.P., AIR 1981 SC 2198 has an impact on the finding of the learned Civil Judge on issue no. 17. It has not been argued from the side of the plaintiffs that how finding on issue no. 17 was not be deemed to be final between the parties. It further transpires in Ghulam Abbas's case that there was a dispute between Shia and Sunni Muslims. The executive machinery was directed to act in accordance with the provisions of Section 144 Cr.P.C. The petition was filed before the Apex Court by a party, which was not a party to the suit. Thus, the effects of Ghulam Abbas's case do not apply in this case. However, at the cost of repetition, it may be referred that the finding on issue no. 17 is final between the parties and is not liable to be questioned by the plaintiffs while they have failed to get it set aside through proper forum. Thus there is no effect of the judgment of Ghulam Abbas's case on the finding of Civil Judge recorded on 21.4.1966 on issue no. 17. Issue no. 18 is decided accordingly in favour of the defendants and against the plaintiffs.

Whether the building was land-locked and cannot be reached except by passing through places of Hindu worship? If so, its effect?

FINDINGS:

It has been pointed out by the defendants that the disputed structure was surrounded by temples and other Hindu places of worships and it was not possible for the Muslims to reach at the disputed structure except by passing through places of Hindu worship. Thus, the building was land locked. Thus according to the map prepared by Sri Shiv Shankar Lal, Pleader in O.O.S. No. 2 of 1950 that the disputed structure was surrounded from all the sides and there were Hindu religious place of worship. It transpires that towards rest there was a Parikrama Asthal and one Chabutra towards east there was Ram Chabutra and Hanumat Dwar towards south Chabutra and Samadhi of Markendey Angira and towards east there were Samadhi of Sanak Nandan and others alongwith Sita Rasoi. Thus, the building was land locked and it was only possible to reach inside the disputed place through the places of Hindu worship. Consequently, according to the tenets of Islam there cannot be any mosque in the vicinity of Hindu place of worship where the bells are rung and prayers are offered. It is also admitted fact that at Hindu place of worship ringing of bell is integral part of worship. Thus according to the Islamic tenets

such a vicinity cannot be a mosque.

In vicinity of bells there cannot be a mosque because it is revelation of the holy prophet that bell is abode of saitan, contrary to it bell is integral part of religious customs of worship of the Hindus as such as all along bells remained in the disputed site it can't be a mosque:

1. In a Hindu Temple ringing of bell is integral part of worship while according to Shar bell is considered to be an instrument of Saitan and angels do not enter in such a house where bell is rung as such, a place where angels do not enter can't be a Masjid. As it is evident from the Gazetteer of 1877-78 and Millet's Settlement Report that till 1855 Hindus were worshipping in the same and one building which was allegedly known as Babri Mosque said to be erected by Moghul Emperor Babur over the sacred site of Sri Ramajanamsthan by demolishing Hindu temple of that shrine and on annexation of Oudh to British India ( on 13th February, 1856 and Lord Canning's proclamation on 15th March, 1859, confiscating all proprietary rights in the soil of the Oudh Province) the Administration made an enclosure bifurcating the Temple compound and thereby ordered Hindus not to enter inside the said building inconsequence whereof Hindus erected a Platform in the Temple compound just after enclosure and started worshiping thereon, but from the several applications of the persons claiming to be Mutavallis/ Muezzins/ Khattibs it is very much apparent that even after 1855 and onwards Hindus were continuously worshipping in the said temple and, from their application of 1883 it becomes crystal clear that in addition to performing Idol worship in the said disputed building Hindus were celebrating their festivals as such for all practical purposes said building was a Hindu temple and according to Musalman Law due to presence of Idols & Bells it was not at all a Masjid.

2. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 2113 and 2114 reveal that the Holy Prophet had said that Angels do not accompany the person who has with him a bell because the bell is the musical instrument of the Saitan. The said Hadiths read as follows:

[2113] Abu Huraira reported Allah's Messenger (may peace be upon him) had said: Angels do not accompany the travellers who have with them a dog and a bell(1).

3. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 377 as well as Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-1) 190 reveal that the Holy Prophet did not approve the method of giving Ajan/Adhan by ringing the bell like the persons of other faith; of course, reason behind this was that it was an instrument of Saitan. Said Hadiths read as follows:

> "[377] Ibn Umar reported: When the Muslims came to Mediha, they gathered and sought to know the time of prayer but no one summoned them. One day they > discussed the matter, and some of them said: Use something like the bell of the Christians and some of them said: Use horn like that of the Jews. Umar said: Why may not a man be appointed who should call (people) to prayer? The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: O Bilal, get up and summon (the people) to prayer."

> (Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 377 at page 256)

> "190. Ibn Umar narrated: "When the Muslims arrived in Al-Madinah, they used to assemble for the Salat, and guess the time for it. There was no one who called for it (the prayers). One day they discussed that some of them said that they should use a bell like the bell the Christians use. Others said they should use a trumpet like the horn the Jews use. But Umar [bin Al-Khattab] said, 'Wouldn't it be better if we had a man call for prayer?' He said, 'So Allah's Messenger said: 'O Bilal! Stand up and call for the Salat."

4. In 'Ibn Battuta' Travels in Asia and Africa' (1325-1354) on page 142 Ibn Battuta writes that he became surprised when he heard bells ringing on all sides of the mosque wherein he was staying. In his note on page 357 of the said book the editor/translator explains that the Muslim hold the ringing of bells in the greatest abhorrence and believe that the angels will not enter in the house wherein bells are rung. As the suit premises was surrounded by all sides from the temples and even in the alleged Temple -Mosque building Hindus were worshiping by ringing bells, according to Shar it cannot be termed as mosque. Relevant extracts from the said book read as follows:

We stayed at Kafá in the mosque of the Muslims. An hour after our arrival we heard bells ringing on all sides. As I had never heard bells before,[19] I was alarmed and bade my companions ascend the minaret and read the Koran and issue the call to prayer. They did so, when suddenly a man entered wearing armour and weapons and greeted us. He told us that he was the qádí of the Muslims there, and said "When I heard the reading and the call to prayer, I feared for your safety and came as you see."

[19] Muslims hold the ringing of bells in the greatest abhorrence, and attribute to the Prophet the saying: "The angels will not enter any house wherein bells are rung."

5. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-II) 851 & 851R3 reveal that it was commanded by the Holy Prophet that Muslims must observe silence during sermon on Friday. The said Hadiths read as follows:

[851] Abū Huraira reported what Allah's Messenger (SAW) had said: If you ask your companion to be quiet on Friday while the Imām is delivering the sermon, you have in fact chattered (3)

[851R3] On the authority of Abu Huraira that the Holy Prophet said: "If you said to your companion: Be quiet, on Friday, and the Imam is delivering the sermon, you have in fact chattered.

From the aforesaid Hadith it becomes clear that in the noisiest place where bells were/are being rung and Conch Shells were/are being blown prayer could not be offered. As it is admitted by the then alleged Mutawalli that Conch Shell was being blown by the Pujari Neehang Singh even in 1861 said Structure can't be a Masjid but for all practical purposes it was/is only Temple.

Since the structure has already been demolished but the report of Commissioner is available on record. Accordingly, the disputed structure cannot be deemed to be a mosque according to the tenets of Islam. Thus, Issue no.19(b) is decided in favour of the defendants and against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO. 19 (d):

Whether the building in question could not be a mosque under the Islamic Law in view of the admitted position that it did not have minarets?

FINDINGS:

On behalf of defendants it is contended that the building in question was not a mosque under the Islamic Law. It is not disputed that the structure has already been demolished on 6.12.1992. According to Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui and others vs. Union of India and others case, 1994 (6) SCC 360, the Hon'ble Apex Court held at para 70 that the sacred character of the mosque can also be lost. According to the tenets of Islam, minarets are required to give Azan. There cannot be a public place of worship in mosque in which Provision of Azan is not available, hence the disputed structure cannot be deemed to be a mosque.

According to Islamic tenets, there cannot be a mosque without place of Wazoo and surrounded by a graveyard on three sides. Thus, in view of the above discussions, there is a strong circumstance that without any minaret there cannot be any mosque. Issue no.19(d) is decided accordingly, against the plaintiffs and in favour of the

ISSUE NO. 19(e):

Whether the building in question could not legaly be a mosque as on plaintiffs own showing it was surrounded by a graveyard on three sides.

FINDINGS:

It is not disputed that alleged mosque was surrounded by a graveyard from three sides. Defendants contend as below :-

There can not be a mosque in a place surrounded by graves as facing towards graves Namaz can not be offered:

1. In the schedule of the plaint the suit premises has been shown to be surrounded on all four sides by the graves, and sacred Hadiths prohibit from - offering prayers towards graves, visiting the graves of strangers, sitting on graves and erecting tent over a grave as such according to Islamic Law and tenets the Scheduled Premises was never appropriate place for offering prayers to Merciful Almighty Allah. As such no declaration of Mosque as prayed for can be granted.

2. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ AT-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith 1050 reveals that the Holy Prophet has commanded not to sit on the graves nor perform Salat i.e. prayer towards graves .

> “1050. Abu Marthad Al-Ghanawi narrated that the prophet said: “Do not sit on the graves nor perform Salat towards them.” (Sahih) (He said) There are narrations on Amr bin Hazm, and Bashir bin Al-Khasasiyyah.

(Another route) with the chain, and it is similar."

3. The Sacred Compilation Jami' AT-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith1054 and ibid (Vol.1) Hadith 230 reveal that the Holy Prophet had prohibited Muslims from visiting the graves except the grave of their mothers. The said Hadith reads as follows:

> "1054. Sulaiman bin Buraidah narrated from his father that the Messenger of Allah said: "I had prohibited you from visiting the graves. But Muhammad was permitted to visit the grave of his mother: so visit them, for they will remind you of the Hereafter."
> Jami' AT-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith 1054

> "320. Ibn 'Abbas narrated: "Allah's Messenger cursed the women who visit the graves, and those who use them as Masajid and put torches on them." (Da'if)

www.vadaprativada.com

As such to go an alleged Mosque surrounded on all three sides by graveyards means to visit the graves of strangers every day which act has been prohibited in Islam wherefrom it can be safely inferred that the Muslims are forbidden from offering prayers in a graveyard-locked place/building.

4. The Sacred Compilation Jami' AT-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2890 reveals that even a tent cannot be erected over the grave as it invites sin.

> "2890. Ibn Abbas narrated: "One of the Companions of the Prophet put up a tent upon a grave without knowing that it was a grave. When he realized that it was a person's grave, he

recited Surat Al-Mulk until its completion. Then he went to the Prophet and said, 'O Messenger of Allah [Indeed] I erected my tent without realizing that it was upon a grave. So when I realized there was a person in it I recited Surat Al-Mulk until its completion.' So the Prophet said: 'It is a prevention, it is a salvation delivering from the punishment of the grave." (Da'if )"

5. Neil B.E. Baillie in his Book 'A Digest of Mahommedan Law' Part- First (Second Edition 1875) containing the doctrines of the Hanifeea Code of Jurisprudence at page 621-22 records that the bodies buried in the ground can be exhumed by the rightful owner if the land was usurped. Relevant extract from the above referred pages reads as follows:

When a body has been buried in the ground, whether for a long or short time, it cannot be exhumed without some excuse. But it may be lawfully exhumed when it appears that the land was usurped, or another is entitled to it under a right of pre-emption.

Be it mentioned herein that the Plaintiffs' witnesses have admitted that the graves were dug up by the Hindus after purchasing the lands wherein graves were located. It is settled law that public Graveyard can not be sold wherefrom it becomes crystal clear that it was not a public Graveyard meant for the Muslims.

6. The Sacred Compilation Jami' AT-Tirmid (Vol.-2) Hadith 1052 reveals that the Holy Prophet had prohibited plastering graves, writing on them, building over them and treading on them.

1052- Jabir narrated: "The Messenger of Allah prohibited plastering graves, writing on them, building over them, and treading on them." (Sahih)

As such it cannot be inferred that the plastered graves mentioned in Commissioner's report in 1950 were built by Emperor Babur of his soldiers who died in alleged war between him and the then ruler of Ajodhya because the Emperor Babur was a scholar of Hanafi School of Islamic Law which does not permit to build plastered graves of soldiers.

I have gone through site plan prepared by Advocate Commissioner in suit no. 2 of 1950, which goes to show that towards east, there is a graveyard for which there is controversy. Muslims claim in the plaint that this graveyard was used for the burial of soldiers, who fought from the site of Babur Army during the scuffle between Shaikh Bayazid, previous ruler of Ayodhya and Babur. It has been submitted on behalf of the plaintiffs that the said graveyard is Gang-e-Shahidan where certain muslims were buried, who were killed during the battle with Hindus that took place in Hanuman Garhi. Hindus claim that there is a kuti and chabutra towards east. Definitely there is a graveyard for which there is controversy to whom the same belongs.

Towards north and south of the disputed structure there are certain plastered graves, which are said to be Samadhi of Hindu saints and towards west there is open place.

In view of the circumstances referred to above, Hindus claim

that namaz cannot be offered in a graveyard. Accordingly the case as set up in the plaint is contrary and the plaintiff's are not entitled for any relief .

Having regard to the rival submissions, it is clarified that the entire graveyard has already been acquired by the Central Government and the action has been upheld by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui Vs. Union of India, (1994) 6 SCC 360.

According to the tenets of Islam since there was no place of wazu and the disputed structure, which was surrounded by three sides by the graveyard, could not be a functional mosque.

As there was no provision of water for wazu in the disputed structure it can't be a mosque:

www.vadaprativada.com

As there was no provision for Azan without minarets in the disputed structure, it can't be a mosque.

1. Without performing wazu by pure water in a mosque one cannot offer prayer. One Hadith says that for Friday's prayer one should take a bath in his house and thereafter perform wazu in a Mosque and then he should offer prayer from which it becomes crystal clear that performing wazu in a mosque is mandatory pre condition for offering one's prayer to Almighty Merciful Allah. As Friday's prayer is offered in congregation at least on that day huge quantity of water is required but in the alleged Temple-Mosque premises there was no such provision of water for Muslims for performing wazu from which it can be safely inferred that said structure was neither meant for offering

www.vadaprativada.com

Namaz nor was a Masjid at all but all along it was a temple as such the same cannot be declared Baburi Masjid.

2. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-II) 844 & 845 reveal that before offering Friday's prayer one should take a bath in his house and thereafter perform Wazu in a Mosque. Said Hadiths read as follows:

[844] 'Abdullah reported that he heard Allah's Messenger (SAW) who said: When any one of you intends to come for Friday prayer, he should take a bath.

[845] 'Abdullah (b. 'Umar) reported from his father, that while be was addressing the people on Friday (sermon), a person, one of the Companions of the Messenger of Allah (SAW), entered (the mosque). 'Umar said to him loudly: What is the time hour (for attending the prayer)? He said: I was busy today and I did not return to my house when I heard the call (to Friday prayer), but I perfomed ablution (only). Upon this 'Umar said: Just ablution! You know that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) commanded (us) to take a bath (on Friday).

3. The Sacred Compilations Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 225; (Vol.-II) 844-847R1 and Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-1) Hadiths 1-5, 90, 200-201, 497-498 say that prior to offering prayer performance of Wazu by pure water is necessary and for Friday's prayer it is must to take bath in one's house then visit the Masjid and perform Wazu in it by water prior to offering prayer.

[225] Hammām b. Munabbih, who is the brother of Wahb . Munabbih, said: This is what has been transmitted to us by Abū Huraira from Muhammad, the Messenger of Allah (SAW), and then narrated a hadīth out of them and observed that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said: The prayer of no one amongst you would be accepted in a state of impurity till he performs ablution (1).

[846] Abu Sa'id Al-Khūdrī reported what Allah's Messenger (SAW) had said: Taking a bath on Friday is essential[1] for every adult person.

[847] 'Ā'isha reported: The people came for Friday prayer from their houses in the neighbouring villages dressed in woollen garments full of dust which emitted a foul smell. A person among them (those who were dressed so) came to the Messenger of Allah (SAW) while he was in my house. The Messenger of Allah (SAW) said to him: Were you to cleanse yourselves on this day.

[847R1] 'Ā'isha reported: The people (mostly) were workers and they had no servants. Bad-smell thus emitted out of them. It was said to them: If you were to take bath on Friday.

2. Abū Hurairah narrated that Allāh's Messenger ﷺ said: "When a Muslim, or believer, performs Wuḍū', washing his face, every evil that he looked at with his eyes leaves with the water – or with the last drop of water, or an expression similar to that – and when he washes his hands, every evil he did with his hands leaves with the water – or with the last drop of water – until he becomes free of sin." (Ṣaḥīḥ)

4. Jābir bin 'Abdullāh, may Allāh be pleased with them, narrated that Allāh's Messenger ﷺ said: "The key to Paradise is Ṣalāt, and the key to Ṣalāt is Wuḍū'." (Ḥasan)

5. Anas bin Mālik said: "When the Prophet ﷺ entered the toilet he would say: 'O Allāh! Indeed I seek refuge in You.'"

Shu'bah (one of the narrators) said: "Another time he said: 'I seek refuge in You from Al-Khubthi and Al-Khabīth.' Or: 'Al-Khubthi and Al-Khabā'ith.'"[1] (Ṣaḥīḥ)

201. Ibn Shihāb narrated that Abū Hurairah said: "None should call for the prayer except for one with Wuḍū'." (Ḍa'īf)

497. Samurah bin Jundab narrated that Allāh's Messenger ﷺ said: "Whoever performs Wuḍū' on Friday, then he will receive the blessing, and whoever performs Ghusl then Ghusl is more virtuous." (Ḥasan)

498. Abū Hurairah narrated that Allāh's Messenger ﷺ said: "Whoever performs Wuḍū', performing his Wuḍū' well, then he comes to the Friday (prayer), and gets close, listens and is silent, then whatever (sin) was between that and (the last) Friday are forgiven for him, in addition to three days. And whoever touches the pebbles, he has committed Laghā (useless activity)." (Ṣaḥīḥ)

www.vadaprativada.com

4. Holy Quran Surah 5 Al-Ma'idah Ayat 6 and the Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 367-370 provides that Tayammum i.e. purification by clean earth can be done only in extreme exigency at the time of travelling or war campaign when water is not available otherwise Wazu must be performed by water.

6. O you who believe! When you intend to offer As-Salât (the prayer), wash your faces and your hands (forearms) up to the elbows, rub (by passing wet hands over) your heads, and (wash) your feet up to the ankles[1]. If you are in a state of Janâba (i.e. after a sexual discharge), purify yourselves (bathe your whole body). But if you are ill or on a journey, or any of you comes after answering the call of nature, or you have been in contact with women (i.e. sexual intercourse), and you find no water, then perform Tayammum with clean earth and rub therewith your faces and hands.[2] Allâh does not want to place you in difficulty, but He wants to purify you, and to complete His Favour to you that you may be thankful.

[367] Ā'isha reported: We went with the Apostle of Allah (may peace be upon him) on one of his journeys (3) and when we reached the place Baidā'or Thāt Al - Jaish (4), my necklace was broken (and fell some where). The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) along with other people stayed there looking for it. There was neither any water at that place nor was there any water with them (the Companions of the Holy Prophet). Some people came to my father Abū Bakr and said: Do you see what' Āisha has done? She has detained the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) and the people accompanying him, and there is neither any water here or with them. So Abū Bakr came there and the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) was sleeping with his head on my thigh. He (Abū Bakr) said: You have detained the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) and the people and there is neither water here nor with them. She (Aisha) said: Abū Bakr scolded me and uttered what Allah wanted him to utter and nudged my hips with his hand. And there was nothing to prevent me from stirring but the fact that the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) was lying upon my thigh. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) slept till it was dawn at a waterless place. So Allah revealed the verses pertaining to Tayammum (1) and they (the Holy Prophet and his Companions) performed Tayammum. Usaid b. Al- Hudair who was one of the leaders (2) said: This is not the first of your blessings, O Family of Abū Bakr (3). Āisha said: We made the camel stand which was my mount and found the necklace under it.

[368] Shaqiq reported: I was sitting in the company of Abdullah and Abū Mūsā, when Abū Mūsā said: O'Abdel - Rahmān (kunya of Abdullah b. Mas'ūd), what would you like a man to do about the prayer if he experiences a seminal emission or has sexual intercourse but does not find water for a month(4)? Abdullah said: He should not perform Tayammum even if he does not find water for a month. Abdullah said: Then what about the verse in Sūra Mā'ida: «If you do not find water, betake yourself to clean with dust»? Abdullah said: If they were granted concession on the basis of this verse, there is a possibility that they would perform Tayammum with dust on finding water very cold for themselves. Abū Mūsā said to Abdullah: You have not heard the words of Ammār: The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) sent me on an errand and I had a seminal emission, but could find no water, and rolled myself in dust just as a beast rolls itself. I came to the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) and mentioned that to him and he (the Holy Prophet) said: It would have been enough for you to do this. Then he struck the ground with his hands once and wiped his right hand with the help of his left hand and the exterior of his palms and his face[1]. Abdullah said: Didn't you see that Umar was not fully satisfied with the words of Ammār only[2]?

[369] Umair, the freed slave of Ibn' Abbās, reported: I and Abdel - Rahmān b. Yasīr, the freed slave of Maimūna, the wife of the Apostle (may peace be upon him). came to the house of Abu'l -Jahm b. Al - Hārith Al-Simma Ansāri and he said: The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) came from the direction of A-Jamal well and a man met him; he saluted him but the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) made no response, till the Holy Prophet came to the wall, wiped his face and hands and then returned his salutations.

[370] Ibn Ymar reported: A man happened to pass by the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) when he was making water and saluted him, but be did not respond to his salutation.

Since there was no provision of water reservoir in the disputed premises, the question of performing wazu by huge crowd for Friday's prayer did not arise at all in other words the said structure could not be used as Masjid for offering congregational prayer on Friday. In view of Islamic tenets, the property cannot be deemed to be a mosque.

In view of the photographs shown in the album, it is established that on the pillars, there were certain images of gods and other religious pictures of Hindu religion. Thus according to the following tenets of Islam a building cannot be treated to be a mosque. The Islamic tenets are as under:-

Structure having images/idols and designed one cannot be a masjid under law of shar as such the disputed structure as it was can not be termed as a mosque:

1. The Holy prophet has said that angels do not enter in a house which has images, portraits, pictures, idols etc. and even the

designed garments detract attention from prayer and, for that reason prohibited to decorate a mosque with pictures. As the disputed structure on its columns and other parts had engraved/chiseled images/idols of Load-bearing Yakshas, Devis, Divine - couples, Kalash, Lotus, Leaves, Varah, Swastiks, Srivatsa, Kapot-pallis, etc. it does not come within the definition of Masjid according to Muslim Religious Law and belief but it comes within the definition of a Hindu Temple according to Hindu Personal Religious Law and belief.

2. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim(Vol.-I) 528 reveals that the Holy Prophet prohibited to decorate Mosques with pictures. Said Hadith reads as follows:

[528] Â'isha reported: Umm Habiba and Umm Salama mentioned before the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) a church which they had seen in Abyssinia and which had pictures in it. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: When a pious man amongst them (among the religious groups) dies they build a place of worship on his grave, and then decorate it with such pictures. They would be the worst of creatures on the Day of Judgment in the sight of Allah(1).

From the aforesaid Hadith it is crystal clear that there is forbiddance in Islam to decorate the Mosque with pictures. As such a building decorated with pictures can't be declared as a Masjid.

3. The Sacred Compilations Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111 and 2112 as well as Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-V) Hadith 2804 reveal that the Holy Prophet had acknowledged that the Angels do not enter a house

in which there is an object of images or a dog. Said Hadiths read as follows:

"2804. Ibn abbas narrated: "I heard Abu Talhah saying: ' I heard the Messenger of Allah, saying: "The angels do not enter a house in which there is a dog or an object of images." (Sahih)

Comments:
The taking or drawing of a picture is not allowed, keeping it is also not permissible, and whoever does so is deprived of the blessed and merciful supplications of the angels; while a person is in need of mercy and blessing at every moment. Likewise, a dog is an impure animal and some are of a satanic nature and the angels despise the devil."

(Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-V) Hadith 2804)

www.vadaprativada.com

From the aforesaid Hadiths it is crystal clear that a building which contains images or Gods does not come within the definition of an "Abode of Angels" for the reasons of such building being hated by the angels.

4. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 556 reveals that the Holy Prophet prohibited to use designed garment at the time of prayer. Said Hadith reads as follows:

[556] Ā'isha reported: The Apostle of Allah (may peace be upon him) p ayed in a garment which had designs over it, so he (the Holy Prophet) said: Take it to Abū Jahm and bring me a plain blanket from him, becuase its de- s gns have distracted me.

From the aforesaid Hadiths it is known that designs detract attention from prayer wherefrom it can be necessarily inferred that a Masjid wherein prayer is offered to Almighty must not have design in it otherwise it will detract the attention of the worshippers from prayer

and lose its status of being a Masjid.

5. The Muwatta:Imam Malik 1743 reveal that the Holy Prophet declined to use a pillow (mattress) painted with pictures and said that no angels enter the house that contains a picture as also that the makers of pictures will suffer punishment on the day of judgment said Muwatta 1743 reads as follows:

(1743) 'Ã'ishah reported that she bought a pillow (mattress) on which were painted pictures. When the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) saw it, he kept standing at the door of her apartment and did not enter and his face showed signs of displeasure. She said : Messenger of Allah, I repent and ask forgiveness of Allah and His Messenger ; what fault is mine ? He asked : What pillow (mattress) is this ? She said : I bought it, so that you may sit on it, recline on it. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said : The makers of pictures will suffer punishment on the Day of Judgment. They will be told to give life to what they had painted in the world. Then he added : No angels enter the house that contains pictures.

The defendants have proved through the tenets of Islam that the disputed structure was surrounded by grave yard from three sides. There was no place of Wazoo. There was no separate entrance in the disputed structure, i.e, mosque and further there was no minarets in the disputed structure . It is settled proposition of Mohammedan Law that mosque is a public place. Minarets are required to give Azan.

There should be separate entrance in a mosque which may be used by the public to enter into the mosque. There can not be any idol or image inside the mosque like pillars which were found inside and outside the mosque on which there were certain images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses. Muslims observe prayer and also following formalities; (I) Wazoo (ii) There must be recital of Azan or Ikamat by Pesh Imam or Moazzin and single Muslim can also offer prayer inside the house but if there is public place, there should be minarets to give Azan. A.S.I. also found that the disputed structure was raised on an earlier wall which was prior to construction. It was a long wall which indicates that the mosque was constructed on some of the portions of the earlier building against the tenets of Islam.

In view of the aforesaid discussion, the building in question could not be legally a mosque and was constructed against the tenets of Islam. Issue no. 19 (e) is decided against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO. 19 (F)

Whether the pillars inside and outside the building in question contain images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses? If the finding is in the affirmative, whether on that account the building in question cannot have the character of Mosque under the tenets of Islam?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS:

It is not disputed between the parties that there were 14 pillars inside and outside the mosque. This Court directed prior to the demolition of the disputed structure to give report and also prepare photographs of those pillars. In all 30 photographs, leave no room for doubt that there are certain images of Hindu God and Goddesses and other religious marks on the pillars. It further denotes that people were offering prayers and worshipping the images. Photographs on pillar no. 1, photograph-48, photograph No. 50 and photograph on pillar No. 52 etc. go to show that in all the 14 pillars there were religious images of Hindu God and Goddesses and other religious structures and images of Hindu belief. These structures having images of idols and designed one cannot be a mosque under law of Shar. As such the disputed structure cannot be presumed as a mosque.

STRUCTURE HAVING IMAGES/IDOLS AND DESIGNED ONE CANNOT BE A MASJID UNDER LAW OF SHAR AS SUCH THE DISPUTED STRUCTURE AS IT WAS CAN NOT BE TERMED AS A MOSQUE:

1. The Holy prophet has said that angels do not enter in a house which has images, portraits, pictures, idols etc. and even the designed garments detract attention from prayer and, for that reason prohibited to decorate a mosque with pictures. As the disputed structure on its columns and other parts had engraved/chiseled images/idols of Load-bearing Yakshas, Devis, Divine - couples, Kalash, Lotus, Leaves, Varah, Swastiks, Srivatsa, Kapot-pallis, etc. it does not comes within the definition of Masjid according to Muslim Religious Law and belief but it comes within the definition of a Hindu Temple according to Hindu Personal Religious Law and belief.
2. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim(Vol.-I) 528 reveals that the Holy Prophet prohibited to decorate Mosques with pictures. Said Hadith reads as follows:

[528] Ā'isha reported: Umm Habiba and Umm Salama mentioned before the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) a church which they had seen in Abyssinia and which had pictures in it. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: When a pious man amongst them (among the religious groups) dies they build a place of worship on his grave, and then de-

www.vadaprativada.com

corate it with such pictures. They would be the worst of creatures on the Day of Judgment in the sight of Allah(1).

From the aforesaid Hadith it is crystal clear that there is forbiddance in Islam to decorate the Mosque with pictures. As such a building decorated with pictures can't be declared as a Masjid.

3. The Sacred Compilations Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111 and 2112 as well as Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-V) Hadith 2804 reveal that the Holy Prophet had acknowledged that the Angels do not enter a house in which there is an object of images or a dog. Said Hadiths read as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"2804. Ibn abbas narrated: "I heard Abu Talhah saying: ' I heard the Messenger of Allah, saying: "The angels do not enter a house in which there is a dog or an object of images." (Sahih)

Comments:
The taking or drawing of a picture is not allowed, keeping it is also not permissible, and whoever does so is deprived of the blessed and merciful supplications of the angels; while a person is in need of mercy and blessing at every moment. Likewise, a dog is an impure animal and some are of a satanic nature and the angels despise the devil."

(Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-V) Hadith 2804)

From the aforesaid Hadiths it is crystal clear that a building which contains images or dogs does not come within the definition of an "Abode of Angels" for the reasons of such building being hated by the angels.

www.vadaprativada.com

4. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 556 reveals that the Holy Prophet prohibited to use designed garment at the time of prayer. Said Hadith reads as follows:

[556] Ā'isha reported: The Apostle of Allah (may peace be upon him) p ayed in a garment which had designs over it, so he (the Holy Prophet) said: Take it to Abū Jahm and bring me a plain blanket from him, becuase its de- s gns have distracted me.

From the aforesaid Hadiths it is known that designs detract attention from prayer wherefrom it can be necessarily inferred that a Masjid wherein prayer is offered to Almighty must not have design in it otherwise it will detract the attention of the worshippers from prayer and lose its status of being a Masjid.

5. The Muwatta:Imam Malik 1743 reveal that the Holy Prophet declined to use a pillow (mattress) painted with pictures and said that no angels enter the house that contains a picture as also that the makers of pictures will suffer punishment on the day of judgment said Muwatta 1743 reads as follows:

(1743) 'Ã'ishah reported that she bought a pillow (mattress) on which were painted pictures. When the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) saw it, he kept standing at the door of her apartment and did not enter and his face showed signs of displeasure. She said : Messenger of Allah, I repent and ask forgiveness of Allah and His Messenger ; what fault is mine ? He asked : What pillow (mattress) is this ? She said : I bought it, so that you may sit on it, recline on it. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said : The makers of pictures will suffer punishment on the Day of Judgment. They will be told to give life to what they had painted in the world. Then he added : No angels enter the house that contains pictures.

On behalf of plaintiffs, it is submitted that the pillars do not contain images of Hindu God and Goddesses and they were taken from the ruins of any palace.

In view of the above referred tenets of Islam, it transpires that

www.vadaprativada.com

the pillars which contain images of Hindu God and Goddesses which were found inside the mosque go to show that they remained part of Hindu Temple. Thus, the disputed structure lacks the character of Mosque under the tenets of Islam. Issue No.19(f) is decided against the plaintiffs and in favour of the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 20(a):

Whether the Waqf in question cannot be a Sunni Waqf as the building was not allegedly constructed by a Sunni Mohammedan but was allegedly constructed by Meer Baqi who was allegedly a Shia Muslim and the alleged Mutwalis were allegedly Shia Mohammedans? If so, its effect?

FINDINGS:

www.vadaprativada.com

It has been urged on behalf of the defendants that the property does not belong to Sunni Waqf as the building was constructed by Mir Baqi who was a Shia Muslim and alleged Mutwalli was also Shia. In this context, the judgment dated 30.03.1946 in Original Suit No. 29 of 1945. Shia Central Waqf Board, U.P. (Lucknow) vs. Sunni Central Waqf Board, U.P. (Lucknow) is relevant. There was a dispute about the mosque. It was contented that since Mir Baqi was a Shia and Cash Nankar was awarded to the Zamindars of Bahorampur and Sholapur, who were Mutwallies and belong to Shia sect and claimed themselves to be descendants of Mir Baqi family. Accordingly, the mosque should be treated as Shia Mosque. On the contrary, it was alleged that the mosque was constructed by Emperor Babar, who was Sunni. Accordingly, the mosque belongs to Sunnies. The trial court framed issues no. 1, 2, 3, 4 & 5 and thereafter dismissed the suit without declaration filed by Shia Waqf Board holding that mosque was built by Sunnies. These facts are strongly suggestive of the facts that the founder of the mosque was Sunni.

Thus, in view of the findings in original Suit No. 19 of 1945, it transpires that this finding would operate as estoppel against Shia Central Board of Waqf and in view of the aforesaid finding the Shia Waqf Board is stopped to raise any objection against Sunni Central Waqf Board that the mosque belong to them. But this finding remained restricted between Shia and Sunni Board only. The trial court has not given any declaration in favour of Shia Waqf Board. Consequently, in view of the aforesaid finding the building was not constructed by Mir Baqi, who was a Shia Muslim. However, it has also been pointed out that since no valid notification has been issued under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 in respect of the property in suit. Sunni Central Board of Waqf has not right to maintain the present suit. The point of notification was not considered in the aforesaid suits. Consequently, the finding of issue no. 17 recorded by learned Civil Judge on 21.4.1966 has become final. Accordingly, its effect is that without any notification under Muslim Waqf Act even Sunni Waqf Board cannot maintain a suit. Issue No. 20(a) is decided accordingly against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO. 20(b):

Whether there was a Mutwalli of the alleged Waqf and whether the alleged Mutwalli not having joined in the suit,

www.vadaprativada.com

the suit is not maintainable so far as it relates to relief for possession?

FINDINGS:

It has been urged on behalf of the defendants that no Mutwalli of the alleged Waqf has filed the suit, accordingly the suit is not maintainable. In view of the finding recorded by the learned civil judge on 21.4.1966 on issue no. 17 which has become final, it transpires that without any valid notification under Waqf Act the suit itself is not maintainable. Accordingly, it is irrelevant to consider this aspect for the reason that in the year 1960 Muslim Waqf Act came into operation. Under Section 19 (q) the Board was authorized to institute and defend the suit and proceeding in the court of law and it was not necessary that Mutwallies should have filed the suit. Thus, it was not necessary in the suit that Mutwalli should also be arrayed as plaintiffs in the suit. However, in the U.P. Waqf Act, 1960, the Board has a power to institute the suit. In this regard this Court is of the view that in view of the finding recorded by the learned Civil Judge on 21.4.1966 on issue no. 17 without any valid notification, the Board was also not competent to institute the suit. Accordingly, the suit as framed is not maintainable in accordance with law. Issue No. 20(b) is decided accordingly.

ISSUE NO. 21:

Whether the suit is bad for non-joinder of alleged deities?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS:

It has been urged on behalf of the defendants that the instant suit is barred for non-joinder of alleged deities. The plaintiffs have come out with a case in the plaint on 23.12.1949, a crowd of Hindus destroyed, damaged and desecrated the mosque by placing idol inside the mosque.

The plaintiffs in para 24-B sought the relief for removal of the idol and other article which the Hindus have placed in the mosque as object of their worship. On behalf of the defendants, it is suggested that the suit is barred for non-joinder of alleged deities. Learned counsel for the plaintiff has urged that since the Pran Pratishtha of the idol make them deities and there was no Pran Pratishtha of the idol. Accordingly, the idol cannot be termed as deities. Accordingly, it is not necessary to array them as a party. The sum and substance of the argument of the learned counsel for the plaintiffs is that the installed idols are not deity and they are not juristic person. Accordingly, they have not to be arrayed to the parties.

On behalf of the defendants Sri P.N. Misra, Advocate, has argued that Svyambhu symbols of deities do not need Pratistha while Pratistha of manmade symbols of deities can be done by single mantra of the divine Yajurved. His submissions are as under:-

1. According to Shastric (Scriptural) injunctions Sri Ramajanmasthan Sthandil, a Svayambhu Linga (Symbol) brought into existence and established by the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu Himself as such in-spite of being decayed, or damaged, or destroyed It shall forever remain sacred place of Worship as it does not need purification or consecration or change. Pratistha is required only in respect of man-made Images/Idols/Symbols of Deities that can be done by chanting single Mantra XXXI.1 or II.13 of the Holy Divine Sri Yajurved (Vagasaneyee Samhita also known as Sri Shukla Yajurved ) .A deity needs to be worshipped by providing all things which are required for leading a healthy and excellent life.

2. Svayambhu i.e. Self-built or Self existent or Self-revealed Lingas (symbols) of Devatas (Gods) or the Lingas (Symbols) established by Gods, or by those versed in the highest religious truths, or by Asuras, or by sages, or by remote ancestors, or by those versed in the tantras need not to be removed though decayed or even broken. Only decayed or broken Pratisthita Images/Idols require to be replaced with new one. In respect of renewal of the images Treatise on Hindu Law celebrated Jurist Golapchandra Sarkar, Sastri reproduces the Shastric injunction (Scriptural law) as follows:

> "8. Now (it is stated) the prescribed mode of Renewal of Decayed Images. Bhagwan says – 'I shall tell you briefly the holy ordinance for renewing Decayed Images * * *'
> "Whatever is the material and whatever size of the image of Hari (or the God, the protector) that is to be renewed; of the same material and of the same size, and image is to be caused to be made; of the same size of the same form (and of the same material), should be (the new image) placed there; either on the second or on the third day (the image of) Hari should be established; if, (it be) established after that, even in the prescribed mode, there would be blame or censure or sin; in this very mode the linga or phallic symbol and the like (image) should be thrown away; (and) another should be established, of the same size (&c.) as already described, - Haya-Sirsha".

"9. God said, -
'I shall speak of the renewal in the prescribed mode of lingas or phallic symbols decayed and the like &c * * *. (A linga) established by Asuras, or by sages or by remote ancestors or by those versed in the tantras should not be removed even in the prescribed form, though decayed or even broken.'

(Agnipuranam Chapter 103 Poona Edition of 1900 AD. p.143)
[There is a different reading of a part of this sloke noted in the foot-note of the Poona Edition of this Puran as one of the Anandashram series of sacred books: according to which instead of – " or by remote ancestors or by those versed in the tantras" – the following should be substituted, namely].

"Or by Gods or by those versed in the highest religious truths."

www.vadaprativada.com

"10. Now Renewal of Decayed (images is considered); that is to be performed when a linga and the like are burnt or broken or removed (from its proper place). But this is not to be performed with respect but a linga or the like which is established by a Sinddha or one who has become successful in the highest religious practice, or which is anadi i.e. of which the commencement is not known, or which has no commencement. But their Mahabhisheka or the ceremony of great anointment should be performed: - this is said by Tri-Vikrama" – Nirnaya – Sindhu – Kamalakar Bhatta, Bombay Edition of 1900 p.264.
The author of the Dharma-Sindhu says as above in almost the same words – see Bombay Edition of 1988 p.234 of that work. "

3. Alberuni who compiled his book India in or about 1030 A.D. on page 121 of his book has written that the Hindus honour their Idols on account of those who erected them, not on account of the material of which they are, best example whereof is Linga of sand erected by Rama. In his book on pages 117, 209, 306-07 and 380 he has also narrated about the Lord of Universe Sri Rama. Relevant extract from page 121 of his book Alberuni's India Translated by Dr. Edward C. Sachau. Reprint 2007 of the 1st Edn. 1910 published Low Price Publications, Delhi reads as follows:

> "The Hindus honour their idols on account of those who erected them, not on account of the material of which they are made. We have already mentioned that the idol of Multan was of wood. E.g. the linga which Rama erected when he had finished the war with the demons was of sand. Which he had heaped up with his own hand. But then it became petrified all at once, since the astrologically correct moment for the erecting of the monument fell before the moment when the workmen had finished the cutting of the stone monument which Rama originally had ordered."

4. According to the Hindus' Divine Holy & Sacred Scriptures there are two types of images one Svayambhu (self-existent or self-revealed or self-built) and other Pratisthita (established or consecrated). Where the Self-possessed Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu has placed himself on earth for the benefit of mankind, that is styled Svayambhu and it does not require Pratistha. As at Ramajanamasthan the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu appeared and placed Himself on said sacred place said sacred place itself became Svayambhu for the reason that invisible power of the Almighty remained there which confers merit and salvation to the devotees. Consecrated artificial man-made Lepya images i.e. moulded figures of metal or clay; and Lekhyas i.e. all kinds of pictorial images including chiselled figures of wood or stone not made by moulds are called Pratisthita. . B. K. Mukherjee in his book on Hindu Law referring authorities describes Svayambhu and Pratisthita artificial Images as follows:

> "4.5 Images – their descriptions – > images, according to Hindu authorities are two kinds; first is known as Svayambhu or self-existent, while the other is Pratisthita or established. The Padmapuran says : The image of Hari (God) prepared of stone, earth, wood, metal, or the like and established according to the rights laid down in Vedas, Smritis and tantras are called the established; …
> where the self possessed Vishnu has placed himself on earth in stone, or wood for the benefit of mankind, that is styled the self re-built." Svayambhu or self-built image is a product of nature, it is anadi or without any beginning and the worshipper's simply discover its existence. Such image does not require consecration or Pratistha. All artificial or man made images require consecration. An image according to Matsyapuran may properly be made of gold, silver, copper, iron, bronze or bell metal or any kind of gem, stone, or wood, conch shell, crystal or eve earth. Some persons worship images painted on wall or canvas says the says the Britha Puran and some worship the spheroidical stones known as Salgran. Generally speaking, the puranic writers classified artificial images under two heads; viz. (1) Lepya and (2) Lekhya. Lepya images are moulded figures of metal or clay, while Lekhyas denote all kinds of pectoral images including chiselled figures of wood or stone not made by moulds.

10. The vivified image is regained with necessaries and luxuries of life in due succession changing of clothes, offering of water, sweets as well as cooked and uncooked food, making to sleep, sweeping of the temple, process of smearing, removal of the previous day's offerings of flowers, presentation of fresh flowers and other practices are integral part of Idol-worship. These worships in public temple in olden days were being performed by Brahmins learned in Vedas & Agamas. B. K. Mukherjea in his book on Hindu Law writes as follows:

> "4.7 Worship of the idol – after a deity is installed it should be worshipped daily according to Hindu Shastras. The person founding a deity becomes morally responsible for the worship of the deity even if no property is dedicated to it. This responsibility is always carried out by a pious Hindu either by personal performance of the religious right or in the case of Sudras by the employment of a Bramhin priest. The daily worship of a sacred image including the sweeping of the temple, the process of smearing, the removal of the previous day's offerings of flowers, the presentation of fresh flowers, the reciprocal obligation of rice with sweets and water and other practices." The deity in shout is conceived of as leaving being and is treated in the same way as the master of the house would be treated by him humble servant. The daily routine of live is gone through, with minute accuracy, the vivified image is regained with necessaries and luxuries of life in due succession even to the changing of clothes, the offering of cooked and uncooked food and the retirement to rest.

> [Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts of B. K. Mukherjea 5th Edition, Published by Eastern Law House at page 156.]

On behalf of the other Hindu defendants, it is suggested that the deity's Pooja and Archana were going on, they are juristic person and no decree can be passed to remove from the disputed structure unless the juristic person i.e. deities are arrayed as a party.

The Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust by B.K. Mukharjee, in this connection the attention of this Court was invited from the side of Hindus on one of the most important book.“ The Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust by B.K. Mukharjee”. The concept of deity in Hindu faith has been considered in this outstanding book. The concept of deity is a distinguishing feature of the Hindu faith. The deity is the image of Supreme Being. The temple is the home of the deity. It is enough that Supreme Super Human Being Power i.e. an idol or image of the Supreme Being installed in the temple. The worship of such an image of the Supreme Being is acceptable in Hindu law. Hindus have also the belief that idol represent deity. In this context, para 1.33 pages 26 and 27 of the Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust by B.K. Mukharjee, 1952 Edition is reproduced as under:-

> 4. The traditional and classical legal literature relating to Hindus has also duly sanctified such belief and faith which has been exalted to a juristic status requiring legal recognition. In this connection, “the Hindu Law of

Religious and Charitable Trusts" by B.K. Mukherjea lays down some of the relevant concepts relating to deity and the temple along with concerned page number which are consistently being recognized as judicial authorities, not only in India but also abroad. The concept mentioned therein along with concerned page numbers are being quoted below:

Page 26-27 – Para "1.33: Idols representing same divinity – One thing you should bear in mind in connection with image worship viz. That the different images do not represent separate divinities; they are really symbols of the one Supreme Being, and in whichever name and form the deity might be invoked, he is to the devotee the Supreme God to whom all the functions of creation, preservation and destruction are attributed. In worshipping the image therefore the Hindu purports to worship the Supreme Deity and none else. The rationale of image worship is thus given in a verse which is quoted by Raghunandan:

"Chinmayasyaadwitiiyasya Naskalashariirina Saadhakaanaam Hinaathayi Brahmanii Roopakalpanaa."*

"It is for the benefit of the worshippers that there is conception of images of Supreme Being which is bodiless, has no attribute, which consists of pure spirit and has got no second."

Temples and mutts are the two principal religious institutions of the Hindus. There are numerous texts extolling the merits

of founding such institutions. In Sri Hari Bhaktibilash a passage is quoted from Narsingha Purana which says that "whoever conceives the idea of erecting a divine temple, that very day his carnal sins are annihilated; what then shall be said of finishing the structure according to rule ….... He who dies after making the first brick obtains the religious merits of a competed Jagna."

"1.34. Other kinds of religious and charitable benefactions.- "A person consecrating a temple", says Agastya, "also one establishing an asylum for ascetics also, one consecrating an alms house for distributing food at all times ascend to the highest heaven."

Besides temples and mutts the other forms of religious and charitable endowments which are popular among the Hindus are excavation and consecration of tanks, wells and other reservoirs of water, planting of shady trees for the benefit of travellers, establishment of Choultries, satras or alms houses and Dharamsala for the neefit of mendicants and wayfarers, Arogyasalas or hospitals, and the last though not the least, Pathshalas or schools for giving free education. Excavation of tanks and planting of trees are Purtta works well known from the earliest times. I have already mentioned that there is a mention of rest houses for travellers even in the hymns of the *Rigveda. The Propatha of the Vedas is the same thing as Choultrie or sarai and the name given to it by subsequent writers is Pratishraygrih. They were very popular during the Buddhist tie. In Dana Kamalakara, a passage is quoted from Markandeya Puran which says that one should make a house of shelter for the benefit of travellers; and inexhaustible is his religious merit which secures for him heaven and liberation. There are more passages than one in the Puranas recommending the establishment of hospitals. "One must establish a hospital furnished with valuable medicines and necessary utensils placed under an experienced physician and having servants and rooms for the shelter of patients. This text says further that a man, by the gift of the means of freeing others from disease, becomes the giver of everything.

The founding of educational institutions has been praised in the highest language by Hindu writers. Hemadri in his Dankhanda has quoted a passage from Upanishad according to which gifts of cows, land and learning are said to constitute Atihaan or gifts of surpassing merit. In another text cited by the same author, it is said that those excluded from education do not know the lawful and the unlawful; therefore no effort should be spared to cause dissemination of education by gift of property to meet its expenses".

Page 38-Para "1.50. The idol as a symbol and embodiment of the spiritual purpose is the juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests:- As you shall see later on the decision of the Courts of India as well as of the Privy Council have held uniformly that the Hindu idol is a juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests. "A Hindu idol", the Judicial Committee observed in one of its recent pronouncements, "is according to long established authority founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus and the recognition thereof by Courts of Law, a juristic entity. It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued." You should remember, however, that the juridical person in the idol is not the material image, and it is an exploded theory that the image itself develops into a legal person as soon as it is consecrated by the Pran Pratistha ceremony. It is not also correct that the Supreme Being of which the idol is a symbol or image is the recipient and owner of the dedicated property. The idol as representing and embodying the spiritual purpose of the donor is the juristic person recognized by law and in this juristic person the dedicated property vests."

Page 38-39-Para "1.51. Deity owner in a secondary sense.- The discussions of several Hindu sages and commentators point to the conclusion that in case of dedicated property the deity is to be regarded as owner not in the primary but in the secondary sense. All the relevant texts on this point have been referred to by Sir Asutosh Mookerjee in his judgment in Bhupati v Ramlal and I will reproduce such portions of them as are necessary for my present purpose."

Sulapani, a reputed Brahminical Jurist, in his discourse on Sraddha thus expresses his views regarding the proper significance of gift to God:- “in 'Donation' having for its dative case, the Gods like the Sun, etc., the term 'donation' has a secondary sense. The object of this figurative use being extension to it of the inseparable accompaniment of that (gift in its primary sense), viz., the offer of the sacrifical fee etc. it has already been remarked in the chapter on the Bratis that such usage as Devagram, Hastigram, etc., are secondary”. Sree Krishna in commenting on this passage thus explains the meaning of the expression Devgram: “Moreover, the expression cannot be used here in its primary sense. The relation of one's ownership being excluded, the possessive case affix (in Devas in the term Devagram) figuratively means abandonment for them (the Gods)”. Therefore, the expression is used in the sense of “a village which is the object of abandonment intended for the Gods”. This is the purport. According to Savar Swami, the well-known commentator on Purba Mimansa, Devagram and Devakhetra are figurative expressions. What one is able to employ according to one's desire is one's property. The Gods however do not employ a village or land according to their use.”

drawn from them:-(1) According to these sages the deity or idol is the owner of the dedicated property but in a secondary sense. The ownership in its primary sense connotes the capacity to enjoy and deal with the property at one's pleasure. A deity cannot hold or enjoy property like a man, hence the deity is not the owner in its primary sense. (2) Ownership is however attributed to the deity in a secondary or ideal sense. This is a fiction (Upchaar) but not a mere figure of speech, it is a legal fact; otherwise the deity could not be described as owner even in the secondary sense. (3) The fictitious ownership which is imputed to the deity is determined by the expressed intentions of the founder; the debutter property cannot be applied or used for any purpose other than that indicated by the founder. The deity as owner therefore represents nothing else but the intentions of the founder. Although the discussions of the Hindu Jurists are somewhat cryptic in their nature, it is clear that they did appreciate the distinction between the spiritual and legal aspects of an idol. From the spiritual standpoint the idol might be to the devotee the very embodiment of Supreme God but that is a matter beyond the reach of law altogether. Neither God nor any supernatural being could be a person in law. So far as the deity stands as the representative and symbol of the particular purpose which is indicated by the donor, it can figure as a legal person and the correct view is that in the capacity alone the dedicated property vests in it."

Thus, the Hindu concept of deity is worship of the images. It is an admitted case that deities were installed and are being worshiped in the structure. The time of installation has been seen in another issue but the factum is the same that the deities were available inside the structure and the plaintiffs have sought the relief of the removal without arraying them as a party. It is not a matter of dispute that deity is a juristic person. The plaintiffs are not in a position to say whether Pran Pratishtha was performed or not? The Hindu concept is that deities had to be worshipped. Thus the idol is a juristic person but they did not recognize a temple to be so. It is also a settled proposition of law that no decree can be passed against the juristic person without arraying them as a party. Thus, in view of the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in 2000 (4) SSC 146, Shiromani Gurudwara Prabandhak Committee Vs. Somnath Das. The deities installed and admitted by the plaintiff are the juristic persons. In view of AIR 1957 SC Page 133, Deoki Nandan Aggarwal vs. Murlidhar endowment property in favour of an idol as they are juristic persons. On the contrary, that the defendants Hindus' claim that deities have been Pran Pratishthit and they are idol or deities and according to their faith they are being properly worshipped and Muslims cannot claim that the religious performance of Hindus were defective and accordingly they are not juristic persons. In view of AIR 1966 Patna 235, Ram Ratan Lal vs. Kashi Nath Tewari and others that the actual Sankalp and Samarpan is not necessary. It is always possible that by worship also, the deities acquire divinity. it is admitted between the parties that the prayers were offered to the deities at least from December, 1949 and the suit was filed after a long time even then the plaintiffs cannot, at this stage, suggest that there was no Pran Pratishtha in the temple of the deities. It is also a matter of common knowledge that deities are installed with Pran Pratishta. There is no difference between idol and deities. According to Hindu faith the worship is going on for the last 61 years. Accordingly at no stretch of imagination, at this stage, it can be said that without any Pran Pratishtha or Pooja the deities were installed.

Thus, in view of AIR 1925 Privy Council 139 Pramatha Nath Mullick Vs. Pradyumna Kumar Mullick even idol is a juristic person and it can sue and be sued. It is not a property which can be shifted to other place. Thus in this case once the parties accept that idols were placed and the worship was going on in that event there is no difference between deities and idols. The worship/prayers were offered. They were properly being worshipped for the last many decades. Accordingly, at this stage there is no justification to hold that the idol should not be treated as juristic persons. There is no material available on record that deities or idols or images cannot be supposed to be juristic persons. Thus, on hyper technical grounds and for want of any evidence from the side of the plaintiffs that Pran Pratishtha of the idols were not done, accordingly they are not a juristic person, cannot be accepted.

Thus, I hold that the deities are juristic persons. In the decision

of Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Udit Narayan AIR 1963 Supreme Court page 786, Re. Udit Narayan case, the Constitutional Bench of the Apex Court held that behind the back of a necessary party no decree should be passed. Further in the case of Kasturi Vs. Iyyam Peumal and others reported in 2005 (6) SCC 733 the Hon'ble Court held that deity is a necessary party and without arraying deity as a necessary party, the suit filed by the plaintiff is not maintainable. In this context, it may be relevant to mention that Ram Lala Virajman is a juristic person and without arraying Him as a necessary party, no effective decree can be passed. Thus, deities are necessary parties in the suit. The contention of the plaintiffs that without any Pranprathistha of the deities, they are not juristic person is not accepted for the reasons ,referred to above. Moreover, the Hindus have claimed that there was Pran Prathistha and this fact could not be repelled by Muslim. Thus, I hold that idols are necessary parties. It is also settled proposition of law that deities become necessary party as declared against the interest of deities will not bind the deity vide AIR 1960 Supreme Court page 100, Narayan Bhagwant Rao Vs. Gopal Vinayak . Further this Court in AIR 1957 Allahabad page 77 Mukundji Mahraj Vs Persottam held that if deities are not arrayed as a party, the decree shall be a nullity. Again in AIR 1957 Allahabad 743 B. Jangi Lal Vs. B. Panna Lal and another the Court held that if the interest of idols are not directly affected or its own existence is seriously imperilled, the appearance of the idols before the court is necessary.

There is nothing on record to discredit the statement of Hindus that their idols are having Pranprathistha and are being worshipped, accordingly they are necessary parties and decree, if passed against the deity, shall be a nullity.

Thus, to my mind no effective relief can be granted without arraying the deities as parties in this suit and no effective decree can be passed against the deities, who are installed and worshipped prior to the filing of the suit. Suit is bad for non-joinder of the necessary parties. Issue no. 21 is decided accordingly in favour of the defendant and against the plaintiff.

23. If the wakf Board is an instrumentality of state? If so, whether the said Board can file a suit against the State itself?

24. If the wakf Board is State under under Article 12 of the constitution? If so, the said Board being the State can file any suit in representative capacity sponsoring the case of particular community and against the interest of another community"?

FINDINGS:

These issues are inter related. The United Provinces Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 has already been repealed and the suit was filed by Board constituted under U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1960. The Constitution of India came into force on 26.1.1950 in view of Article 12 of the Constitution of India, Board is an instrumentality of the

www.vadapprativada.com

State. However, in view of Section 19(q) of Muslim Waqf Act, 1960, the Board can institute and defend suits and proceedings in court of law relating to Waqfs. Thus, issues no. 23 & 24 are decided accordingly that the Waqf Board is under the law is competent to institute the suit. However, it may be clarified that for want of valid notification under Section 5(1) of the Muslim Waqf Act, 1960 and the United Provinces Muslim Waqfs Act, 1936, the property cannot be deemed to be a Waqf Property. Accordingly the suit on this count is not maintainable. Issues No. 23 & 24 are decided against the plaintiffs.

ISSUES NO. 25 & 26

25. "Whether demolition of the disputed structure as claimed by the plaintiff, it can still be called a mosque and if not whether the claim of the plaintiffs is liable to be dismissed as no longer maintainable?"

26. "Whether Muslims can use the open site as mosque to offer prayer when structure which stood thereon has been demolished?"

FINDINGS:

These issues are inter related and can conveniently be disposed of at one place. Muslims claim that they can offer prayers in the open site as a Mosque even after the demolition of the disputed structure which goes to show that once a Mosque always a Mosque with or without any structure is the sum and substance of the arguments of the plaintiffs. On the contrary defendants claim that the suit is liable to be dismissed as the property is no more and the structure has already been demolished.

Defendants further claim that the property in suit was not in exclusive possession of Muslims right from 1858. It is further submitted that in view of the possession of Hindus from 1858 and onwards which is evident from Ext. 15, 16, 18, 19, 20, 27 and 31, the outer courtyard was exclusively in possession of Hindus and the inner courtyard was not exclusively in possession of Muslims but also in joint possession of Hindus and Muslims till 1934. Muslims were dispossessed from the inner courtyard also in 1934 and plaintiffs admit that Muslims were dispossessed on 22/23December 1949 from the inner courtyard. Thus, on the basis of Islamic tenets the Muslims claim that the property shall be construed as a Mosque. In this reference the controversy has already been set at rest by the Privy Council in the decision of Masjid Shahid Ganj Vs. Shiromani Gurudwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar, AIR 1940 Privy Council 116.

The aforesaid view has been approved in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui Vs. Union Of India, 1994 (6) SCC 360, Para 70 of the ruling is relevant which reads as under:-

In Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj and Ors. v. Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar AIR 1938 Lahore 369, it was held that where a mosque has been adversely possessed by non-Muslims, it lost its sacred character as mosque. Hence, the view that once a mosque is consecrated, it remains always a place of worship as a mosque was not the Mohammedan Law of India as approved by

Indian Courts. It was further held by the majority that a mosque in India was an immovable property and the right of worship at a particular place is lost when the right to property on which it stands is lost by adverse possession. The conclusion reached in the minority judgment of Din Mohd., J. is not the Mohammedan Law of British India. The majority view expressed by the learned Chief Justice of Lahore High Court was approved by the Privy Council in AIR 1940 PC 116, in the appeal against the said decision of the Lahore High Court. The Privy Council held:

> "...It is impossible to read into the modern Limitation Acts any exception for property made wakf for the purposes of mosque whether the purpose be merely to provide money for the upkeep and conduct of a mosque or to provide a site and building for the purpose. While their Lordships have every sympathy with the religious sentiment which would ascribe sanctity and inviolability to a place of worship, they cannot under the Limitation Act accept the contentions that such a building cannot be possessed adversely to the wakf, or that it is not so possessed so long as it is referred to as "mosque" or unless the building is razed to the ground or loses the appearance which reveals its original purpose."

In view of the aforesaid decision, it transpires that the case of the defendants that they adversely possessed the property in suit leave no room for doubt that the property in suit lost its sacred character as a Mosque. Moreover, the disputed structure has already been demolished. Accordingly, this place cannot be called as a Mosque and Muslims can not use the open place as a Mosque to offer prayers. Issues No. 25 & 26 are decided against the plaintiff and in favour of the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 27:-

"Whether the outer court yard contained Ram Chabutra, Bhandar and Sita Rasoi? If so whether they were also demolished on 6.12.1992 along with the main temple?"

FINDINGS:

It is not disputed that on 6.12.1992 the disputed structure and other adjoining places were demolished. Ext 18, application dated 2.11.1883 moved by Syed Mohammad Asgar against Raghubar Das reveals the existence of Chabutra, Ram Janam Sthan, Rasoi Bhandar and Charan Padhuka. Site plan prepared on 6.12.1885 by Commissioner Gopal Sahai in Suit No. 61/280 of 1885 confirms that foot prints, Chabutra and Bhandar were in existence. Thus, besides, the site plan Ext.25, the judgment dated 18.3.1886 further confirms the existence of Ram Chabutra,Charan Paduka and Rasoi Bhandaar. Lastly, in Original Suit No. 2 of 1950 Gopal Singh Visharad Vs. Jahoor Ahmad, the Commissioner made a local inspection and prepared site-plan, proved the existence of Sita rasoi, Ram Chabutra and Rasoi Bhandar. There is nothing on record to discredit the report of the Commissioner appointed by the Court.

In view of the aforesaid facts , I hold that the outer courtyard contained Ram Chabutra, Rasoi Bhandar and Sita Rasoi in the disputed premises which were demolished on 6.12.1992 along with disputed structure.

Issue no. 27 is decided accordingly.

ISSUES NO.1 & 1(a)

1. Whether the building in question described as mosque in the sketch map attached to the plaint (hereinafter referred to as the building) was a mosque as claimed by the plaintiff ? If the answer is in the affirmative?

1a. When was it built and by whom-whether by Babar as alleged by the plaintiffs or by Meer Baqi as alleged by defendant no.13 ?

FINDINGS

These issues are interconnected and can conveniently be disposed of at one place.

Plaintiffs claim that the building in question was a mosque and has been described in the plaint. It was built by Babur more than 433 years ago after his conquest of India. In alternative it is urged assuming though not admitting that one time there existed a Hindu temple as alleged by the defendants then on the site of which temple Babur built the mosque, the mosque since long in continuous possession of Muslims and they perfected their rights by adverse possession. It is further the case of the plaintiffs that the building stood dedicated to Almighty. It is also the case of the plaintiffs that the building had been used by members of Muslim community for offering prayers from times immemorial and Muslims were in possession of the property in suit from 1528 AD continuously, openly and to the knowledge of the defendants and Hindus in general. On the contrary, on behalf of defendant no.13 it is urged that the property in suit was constructed by Mir Baqi. It was not used by members of Muslims for prayers. It remained in possession of Hindus and building was not dedicated to Almighty. It is also the case of Hindus that Muslims were not in exclusive possession of the property in suit which has already been demolished on 06.12.1992.

It has further been pleaded from the side of Hindus that it was Mir Baqi, who was Shia Muslim, who demolished the ancient Hindu temple of Sri Ram Janam Bhumi and raised a mosque like structure in its place with its materials. The masjid was known as Masjid Janmasthan in British times. 14 Kasauti pillars and other material reveal the structural features of the building. Mir Baqi was influenced by the so called Faquir named Fazal Abbas Qalandar, who had instructed the destruction of the ancient temple at Ram Janma Bhumi and construction of a mosque at that place for him to offer prayers, although the doing so is opposed to tenets of Islam.

Plaintiffs further claim that since it was a mosque and was constructed by Babur, accordingly they are entitled to retain the same.

On behalf of plaintiffs, oral as well as documentary evidence has been adduced.

First of all, I will take up documentary evidence. The plaintiffs have filed the documentary evidence in different categories.

Regarding nature of the building : In order to establish

that Babur had camped near Ayodhya and he had not given any order for demolition of any temple and even on his return from the East, when he had called Mir Baqi at a place near Ayodhya, there is no mention that he had given instructions for demolition of any temple or construction of any mosque at the site of any temple. While there is specific mention of the desecration of the nude parts of the idols of Urwa in Babarnama.

Plaintiffs have relied over (Ext.82)- Extract of Memoirs of Babur by F.G.Talbot, (Ext.85)- Extract of Mughalkalin Bharat-Babur by S.Athar Abbas Rizvi, (Ext. 91),(Ext. OOS 5-48)-Extract of Memoirs of Babar by John Leyden (Vol. 20, P.129 – 137),(Ext. OOS 5-15)-Extract of Memoirs of Babar by John Leyden & John Erskine (1921) (Vol. 20, P.139, (Ext. OOS 5-16)-Extract of Baburnama by A.S.Beveridge Vol. 20, P.145 – 159. Plaintiffs have further relied over Epigraphia Indica (Arabic and Persian Supplement) (1965) by Dr. Z.A.Desai to establish that there were inscriptions on the Mosque. Sri Z. Jilani, Advocate further relied over Extract of Aine Akbari (Vol.III) (Vol. 42, P. 83-93) ,Extract of Aine Akbari (Vol.II) (Vol. 42, P. 97-137) and Ext.104 of OOS 4/89 and Extract of the report of William Finch from the Book-Early Travels in India by William Foster. These extracts go to show that even in these books written between 1584 and 1608 there is no mention either of the alleged belief of Hindus about the place of birth of Lord Rama being there in the Babri Mosque or about the alleged belief of demolition of any Ram Janam Bhoomi Temple by Babar or Mir Baqi. Aine Akbari is a public and historic document. It does not mention of several other places of Hindu worship but there is no mention of the so called Ram Janam Bhumi Temple or place of birth of Lord Rama. In this context it further transpires that the plaintiffs at para-2 of the plaint have mentioned that Babur visited Ayodhya and there was battle between Babar and then Muslim Ruler of Ayodhya and several persons were killed during the battle and they were buried in the ancient graveyard which has already been acquired by the Government of India. Thus the plaintiffs through these papers want to establish that Babur never visited Ayodhya.

Plaintiffs have further relied over Vol. 3 of Mr. P.N.Mishra, Senior Advocate, P.203 – 205 Moghal India by Niccalass Manucli to show that between the period of 1653-1708 there was no such alleged belief that the building in dispute was the place of birth of Lord Rama or the same was constructed after the demolition of any Hindu temple. The aforesaid plea was reaffirmed in the Extract of Tieffenthaler published in 1786. It further shows that even upto that time there was no such alleged belief that the place of birth of Lord Rama was inside the Babri Mosque but rather Bedi i.e. “the cradle” referring to the place of Ram Chabutra was said to be the place of birth of Lord Rama. Plaintiffs have relied over Ext.D-28, Extract of Epigraphia Indica, Vol.4, Copper plates of the grant of Govind Chandra etc. (Vol. 30, P. 119-131),Extract of Epigraphia Indica, Vol. 14, to show that there was no temple

known as Ram Janam Bhumi Temple referring to the place of birth of Lord Rama on the site in dispute.

The plaintiffs have further referred the Extract of Sanskrit Inscriptions of Delhi Sultanate by Pushpa Prasad (Vol. 30, P. 167-173), 198C-2/128-130 Extract of the Journal of Bihar and Orissa Research Society (1927)-The Sunga Inscription of Ayodhya(Vol. 30, P. 177, 175, 176). These documents show that it was not mentioned in history that some inscriptions placed in one building were later on shifted or installed in some other building also and that similar carvings on pillars etc. were found at other places also. Extract of the Catalogue of Historical Documents in Kapad Dwar Collection, Jaipur, Ext.105 shows that there is no sketch or photograph of any Janam Sthan or Janam Bhumi Temple in Ayodhya. The plaintiffs have further relied over extract of "An Advanced History of India" by R.C. Plaintiffs on the basis of these documents claim that till 19th Century there was no such belief that Babri Masjid was constructed after demolition of any Hindu Temple and there was no mention of any such Ram Janam Bhumi temple. These books do not indicate this fact. It further strengthens that Babri Masjis was constructed independently without demolishing any temple. Ext.D-3, Extract of "British Paramountsey and Indian Renaissance, Part II", Vol.10 by R.C.Majumdar (Vol. 38, P.297 – 323) details of several communal riots of 19th Century and 20th of Century (pre independence era) but did not mention any so called communal riot of 1855 which is said to have taken place at Ayodhya.

Plaintiffs have also placed reliance on extract of "Ramayana" by C.Rajgopalacharya, Extract of "Ram,Ramayana and Babar" by P.S.Sridhar Murti (1988) (Vol. 25, P. 171-209)Valmiki Ramayan I, Valmiki Ramayan II, Sri Ram Charit Manas, Gitawali, to show that the site of Babri Masjid is not the alleged place of birth of Lord Rama and there is no mention in the above books even about the so called demolition of any alleged Ram Janam Bhumi Temple and construction of Babri Masjid in place thereof. Such type of books have no authenticity and even the same do not fully support the case of the Hindu parties because these Authors also had acknowledged the offering of prayers in the building in dispute at different intervals and that by itself shows that the nature of the building has been acknowledged to be the Mosque even by these Authors who can in no way be treated as Historians. Such publications also can not be treated as Books of History.

Some books of this very kind written by some Muslims had also been filed by the Hindu side but they also are nothing more than a fiction, much less any kind of History. The Authors of these Books also were not at all Historians and these books are also based on no sources of History and as such no value can be attached to the assertions made in any of these books mentioned below:-

Gazetteer of Walter Hamilton (1815 / 1828) page 12, 16, 17 (Book Page 352 / 353) - No mention of Ram Janam Bhumi Temple or place of birth of Lord Rama.Vol. 21, P. 321-322 (107C-1/109-110) (Ext. OOS 5-5) by Montgomery Martin (1838) No mention of Ram Janam Bhumi Temple or place of birth of Lord Rama being inside the Mosque – Tradition prevalent at that time was about the destruction of temple and erection of Mosque by Aurangzeb but Martrin refers to the fallacy of this tradition on the basis of the existence of 2 inscriptions on its walls showing the same built by Babur, 5 generations before Aurangzeb. It was also observed by Martin that Pillars in the Babur's Mosque were taken from a Hindu building and probably these Pillars were taken from the ruins of the palace. Vol. 20, P. 21-23 (107C-1/10-110) (Ext. OOS 5-5) by Edward Thorntone (1858). In this Gazetteer also

there is no mention of any such tradition or belief that any portion inside the Babri Masjid might have been considered as the place of birth of Lord Rama. Referring to Buchanan, the Author (Thorntone) says that out of 360 Temples said to have been constructed by Vikramaditya, no traces were available of any of them and according to native tradition the demolition was made by Aurangzeb who built a Mosque on a part of the site. In this respect Thorntone says that the falsehood of the tradition is, however, proved by an inscription on the wall of the mosque, attributing the work to the conqueror Baber from whom Aurungzeb was fifth in descent. The mosque is embellished with fourteen columns of only five or six feet in height, but of very elaborate and tasteful workmanship, said to have been taken from the ruins of the Hindoo fanes, to which they had been given by the monkey-general Hanuman, who had brought them from Lanka or Ceylon. Altogether, however, the remains of antiquity in the vicinity of this renowned capital must give a very low idea of the state of arts and civilization of the Hindoo at a remote period. A quadrangular coffer of stone, whitewashed, five ells long, four broad and protruding five of six inches above ground, is pointed out as the cradle in which Rama was born, as the seventh Avatar of Vishnu; and is accordingly abundantly honoured by the pilgrimages and devotions of Hindus…"Vol. 20, P. 25-34, 107C-1/12-16(Ext. OOS 5-6) Four Reports by Alexandar Cunningham – 1862-65(1871 Edn.). In this respect also the places associated with Lord Rama were specifically mentioned including Guptur Ghat, Swarg Dwari and Ram Kot etc. and about the birth place Temple it was specifically mentioned on page 322 (page 29 of Vol. 20) that "in the very heart of the city stands Janam Sthan or "birth place Temple" of Rama" It is thus evident that in 1862-1865 the tradition and belief / faith was in respect of the Janam Sthan Temple situated in the Northern site of Babri Masjid to be the birth place of Lord Rama.Vol. 20, P. 35-49 (107C-1/17-24-Ext. OOS 5-49) by Carnegy (1870). It was with this Gazetteer that the theory of demolition of Janam Sthan Temple and construction of Babri Masjid at the site thereof was introduced for the first time but that too was based on no source of History and rather was based only on local belief. The Author himself says under the heading "The Janam Sthan and other Temples" on page 20 of the Book (page 45 of the Vol.) that "it is locally affirmed that at the Mohamdan conquest Emperor Babar built the Mosque by demolishing Janamsthan Temple". In the same sequence it is also mentioned on page 21 of the Book:-

"In two places in the Babri mosque the year in which it was built 935 H., Corresponding with 1528 A.D, is carved in stone, with inscriptions dedicated to the glory of that Empror." Carnegy further says about the pillars that "To my thinking these strongly resemble Budhist pillars that I have seen at Benares and elsewhere."

Thus the so called belief / tradition about the Janam Sthan

The falsity of different averments made in the book is evident even from the statements of both the authors Viz. S.P. Gupta and T.P. Varma, recorded in this case where they have admitted even about incorrectness of some contents of the book. Even the inscription of Gahadwala period has been misquoted about Vishnu Hari Temple and the "Ajodhan" has been read as "Ayodhya". Reference about the so called attack of Salar Masood at Ayodhya being incorrect and wrong was also admitted by Dr. T.P. Verma. As such no reliance can be placed upon the contents of this book and specially so when both the co-authors of this book have appeared as OPW-3 and 9 in this case.

Some more documents have been filed by the parties which may also be of significance and reference may be made to some of these documents in order to elucidate some points of controversy involved in the case. Such documents may be summarized as under:-

A – Documents showing different photographs of Mosques and some other Muslims religious places having foundation of Pillars as given in the Book entitled as Indian Architecture (Islamic Period) by Percy Brown (Ext. OOS 5-35). Plate No. XVI, XVII, XVIII, XX, XXI, XXIV, CXII, CXV, CXVIII AND CXXI of the said book may be of relevance in this respect.

B – 'Historian's Report to the Nation' is also an important document which has been filed by both the parties Viz. plaintiffs of this suit as well as Plaintiffs of OOS No. 5 / 89 which is marked as Ext. 62 (Volume 12, P. 367-405) in this suit and Ext. OOS 5-45 (Vol. 32, P.231-245) in OOS 5/89. This report not only supports Muslims claim but also belies the case of Hindu side.

C – Similarly some documents have been filed to show the manner in which Pillars are generally found in Hindu Temples. These documents prove the contention of the Muslims that the place in dispute had no such structure which might have rested on Pillars.

Some pillar bases are also visible in the documents marked as paper No. 333 C-1/1 - to 335 C-1/20 (Vol. 40 P. 159 - 319) (Ext. D-17, D-18 and D-19) and Ext. D-9, 10 and 11 (Vol. 39, P.17-45). Different other features and places of putting idols in Temples are also evident from these photograps which support the contention of the Muslims that the walls 16 and 17 found during the Excavation could not be said to be the wall of any Temple but rather the same could be the wall of the Idgah.

D. Reliance has been placed by the plaintiffs on some books of History which were referred during the arguments in rebuttal advanced from the side of plaintiffs. These Books included:-

(iv) Nicolao Manucci, Storia do Mogor, 1656-1712, transl. W. Irvine, 4 vols (Vol. II, P. 46)

(v) James Mill, The History of British India (London, 1817), ed. H.H. Wilson, 6 vols., London, 1840, I, (pp. 137-140)

From these accounts it is clear that, as Bernier puts it, the King was the owner of all soil, except for the houses and lands that were allowed to be sold and purchased. Thus it follows that all vacant land automatically belonged to the sovereign – a doctrine that continued under the British government.

Shri P.N. Mishra, Advocate on behalf of the defendants urged that on the basis of historical books Memoirs of Mughal Kings, Princess, their Commander, Gazetteers & Travellers' account leave no room for doubt that Babri Mosque never existed. On the contrary, they prove existence of Ram Janmsthan temple. To support his contention, he has invited the attention of this Court on various books and authorities, which are as under :-

AUTHENTIC HISTORICAL BOOKS, MEMOIRS OF MUGHAL KINGS, PRINCESS, THEIR COMMANDER, GAZETTEERS & TRAVELLERS' ACCOUNT DID NOT PROOVE OF ERECTION OF ALLEGED BABARI MOSQUE BUT PROVE EXISTENCE OF SRI RAMJANMSTHAN & TEMPLE THEREON:

1. From the Babur-Nama, Humayun-Nama, Tuzuk-I-Jahangiri, Tarikh-I Badauni also known as Muntakhap-ut-Tawarikh, Tarikh-I Feristha, A-In-I Akbari, Tabkat-I Akbari, Waqiyat-I Mushtaqi, Tarikh-I Daudi, Tarikh-I Shahi, Tarikh-I Salatin-I Afaghana, India in the 17th Century (Memoirs of Francois Martin), History of Indian and Eastern Architectures, Mughal Documents etc.; one comes to know the fact that the Emperor Babur did not build any Mosque in Ayodhya as there is no mentioning of any such Mosque till the reign of

his great great grandson Emperor Shah Jahan. In 1770 when a Jesuit Priest Father Tieffenthaler visited he found Hindus worshiping inside Sri Ramjanamsthan temple. He has written that according to tradition Sri Ramjanamsthan temple described as Babri Mosque in the plaint of the instant suit was converted into a mosque by Emperor Aurangzeb. But apart from scriptures Yuan Chwang's travel account, A-In-I Akbari, Travel account of William Finch, Storia Do Mogor, Del' Inde of Father Josheph Tieffenthaler, The East India Gazetteer, 1828, The Gazetteer of the Territories under the Government of East India Company and of the native States on the continent of India, 1858, the Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh, 1877-78, The Gazetteer of Faizabad, 1960 as well as from the several applications made from time to time by the alleged Mutwallis, Muezzins, Khattibs etc. the Hindus are found worshipping at the said Sri Ramjanamsthan temple upto date.

2. The Chinese Traveler Yuan Chwang who travelled India in the reign of Emperor Harshavardhan during the period of 629 A.D.to 645 A.D. has recorded existence of Ten prominent Deva Temple of the Hindus in Ayodhya which shows that the prominent Temples described in Sri Skandapuranam including the Sri Ramjanamsthan Temple were still in existence during the Ayodhya visit of Yuan Chwang. Relevant extract from page 355 of the book On

> "The Ayudha country, the Records proceeds to tell us, was above 5,000 li in circuit, and the capital was above twenty li in circuit. The country yielded good crops, was luxuriant in fruit and flower, and had a genial climate. The people had agreeable ways, were fond of good works, and devoted to practical learning. There were above 100 Buddhist monasteries, and more than 8000 Brethren who were students of both 'vehicles'. There were ten Deva-Temples and the non-Buddhists were few in number."

3. In his memoirs Babur-Nama Babar did not record any entry to show that there was fighting between him and the then ruller of Ayodhya or to show under his order any mosque was erected in Ayodhya as such the plaint case that there was fighting between Babur and the then ruler of Ayodhya wherein several soldiers of Babur were killed and for corpse of those soldiers said Emperor made grave-yards and for other Muslims made a mosque has no foundation at all. In his memoirs Babur has mentioned name of the places and nature of constructions carried on at such places but he has not mentioned Ayodhya and Babri mosque. In 935 A.H. itself Babur remembered that construction works were going on in Dhulpur and Agra but did not mention construction of Baburi Mosque at Ayodhya. He has recorded his orders given for constructing wells, building, mosque, ponds etc.

very minutely and he has referred construction of one place several times in his Memoirs as such there is no possibility of his missing any construction at Agra. Relevant extracts from pages 520, 606-607, 615-616 and 642 from the Babar-Nama translated by Annette Susannah Beveridge reprint of 2006 published by the Low Price Publications, Delhi read as follows:

> "680 men worked daily on my buildings in Agra and of Agra stone-cutters only; while 1491 stone-cutters worked daily on my buildings in Agra, Sikri. Biana, Dulpur, Gualiar and Kuil. In the same way there are numberless artisans and workmen of every sort in Hindustan." (ibid p. 520)

Babur-Nama's entry dated 21st September 1528 (935 A.H.) records his order to erect a mosque in Dhulpur, said entry reads as follows:

> "(c. Work in Dulpur (Dhulpur).)
> That place is at the end of a beaked hill, its beak being of solid red building-stone (imarat-task). I had ordered the (beak of the) hill cut down (dressed down?) to the ground-level and that if there remained a suffering height, a house was to be cut out in it, if not, it was to be levelled and a tank (hauz)cut out in its top. As it was not found high enough for a house, Ustad Shah Muhammad the stone-cutter was ordered to level it and cut out an octagonal, roofed tank. North of this tank the ground is thick with trees, mangoes, jaman (Eugenia jambolana), all sorts of trees; amongst them I had ordered a well made to by to; it wa almost ready; its water goes to the afore-named tank. To the north of this tank Sl. Sikandar's dam is flung across (the valley); on it houses have been built, and above it the waters of the Rains gather into a great lake. On the east of this lake is a garden; I ordered a seat and four-pillared platform (talar)to be cut out in the solid rock on that same side, and a mosque built on the western one." (ibid p.606-607) records inspection of the work at Sikari as follows:

Babur-Nama's entry dated 14th October, 1928

"At the top of the dawn, we bestirred ourselves from that place, and in the first that place, and in the first watch dismounted at the garden now in making at Sikri. The garde-wall and well-buildings were not getting on to my satisfaction; the overseers therefore were threatened and punished."

(ibid p. 615-616)

Babur-nama's entry dated 1st February, 1929 records the appointment of the supervisors for the work which was being carried on at Agra and Dhulpur as follows:

"(Feb. 1st ) On Tuesday, after writing letters to be taken by those going to Kabul, the buildings in hand at Agra and Dulpur were recalled to mind, and entrusted to the charge of Mulla Qasim, Ustad Shah Muhammad the stone-cutter, Mirak, Mir Ghias, Mir Sang-tarash (stone-cutter)and Shah Baba the spadesman. Their leave was then given them."

4. Princes Gul-Badan Begam, the daughter of the Emperor Babur in her book Humayun-Nama has mentioned several constructions at different places wherein Ayodhya and Baburi Mosque did not find place. From which facts it becomes clear that no construction of Baburi Mosque was done by the Emperor Babur in Ayodhya was made by Relevant extract from her said book read as follows:

"He commanded buildings to be put up in Agra on the other side of the river, and a stone palace to be built for himself between the haram and the garden. He also had one built in the audience court, with a reservoir in the middle and four chambers in the four towers. On the river's bank he had a chaukandi built.

He ordered a tank made in Dholpur, ten by ten, out of a single mass of rock, and used to say, 'when it is finished, I will fit it with wine.' But as he had given up wine before the fight with Rana Sanga, he filled it with lemonade."(ibid p.98)

> "When we had been in Agra three months, the Emperor went to Dholpur. Her Highness Maham Begam and this lowly person also went. A tank had been made there, ten (gaz) by ten, out of one piece (of rock). From Dholpur his Majesty went on to Sikri. He ordered a great platform made in the middle of the tank, and when it was ready, he used to go and sit on it, or to row about. This platform still exists."

5. In his book "History of Indian and Eastern Architecture" 1st published 1910 reprinted by Low Price Publication, Delhi in 2006 in its Chapter X 'Mughal Architecture' James Fergusson writes that no buildings erected by Babur or his son Humayan are existent. The writer also writes that the Babur in his memoirs had written that he had employed 680 persons on his palaces and 1491 stone cutters at Agra, Sikri, Biana, Dholpur, Gwaliar and Koil for construction work. From this recording it becomes clear that if Babur would have employed workers to erect lofty firmament building in Ayodhya somewhere in four corners of his memoirs sooner or later certainly he would have mentioned. Relevant extract from the page 285 of "History of Indian and Eastern Architecture" read as follows:

> "There is, again, a little difficulty and confusion in our having no examples of the style as practised by Babar and Humayun. The well-known tomb of the latter king was certainly built by his son Akbar; Babar was buried near Kabul, and no building known to be his has yet been identified in India. Yet that he did build is certain. In his own 'Memoirs' he tells us. "In agra alone, and of the stone-cutters belonging to that place only, I everyday employed on my palaces 680 persons; and Agra, Sikri, Biana, Dholpur, Gwaliar and Koil, there were every day employed on my works 1,491 stone-cutters." In the following pages he describes some of these works, and especially a Baol of great magnificence he excavated in the fort of Agra. This was in the year 1526, and he lived to carry on these works for five years longer. During the ten years that his son retained the empire, we learn from Ferishta and other sources that he adorned his capital with many splendid edifices: one, a palace containing seven pavilions or audience halls – one dedicated to each of the planets, in which he gave audience on the day of the week dedicated to the planet of the day. There are traditions of mosque he is said to have built on the banks of the Jamna, opposite where the Taj now stands; and his name is so frequently mentioned in connection with buildings both at Agra and Delhi that there can be little doubt that he was a builder to as great an extent as the troubled character of his region would admit of. But his buildings have perished, so that practically the history of Mughal architecture commences with the buildings of an Afghan dynasty who occupied the throne of India for sixteen years during the last part of Humayun's lifetime."

6. Within 26th years of the death of Emperor Zahiruddin Muhammad Babar in the year 1556 his grandson Emperor Jalaluddin Muhammad succeeded his empire. During the reign of Akbar, the Great, A-in-I Akbari, the Gazetteer of his Kingdom was compiled by Emperor's close confident and an erudite scholar Abul Fazl Allami. In the said Gazetteer Abul Fazl gives very minute and microscopic account of Ajodhya he records that Ajodhya is esteemed ones of the holiest places of antiquity and was the residence of Ramchandra in the Treta age. He further records that near the city there were two tombs of six and seven yards in length alleged to be of Seth and the Prophet Job. He also records the presence of the tomb of Kabir at Ratanpur as well as grabes of the Salar Masud and Rajab Salar located in Bahraich; but he did not mention existence of Babri Mosque or any other Mosque in Ayodhya from which it is crystal clear that during the reign of Akbar, the Great there was existence of Sri Ramjanmsthan but there was no existence of Baburi Mosque otherwise a person from whose notice even the graves have not been escaped would have certainly described said Babari Mosque more so a Mosque built by the grandfather of his patron. Relevant extract from page 182 of the Volume-II of the said book reads as follows:

> At the distance of one kos from the city, the Gogra, after its junction with the Sai, [Saraju] flows below the fort. Near the city stand two considerable tombs of six and seven yards in length respectively. The vulgar believe them to be the resting-places of Seth and the prophet Job, and extraordinary tales are related of them. Some say that at Ratanpur is the tomb of Kabir, the assertor of the unity of God. The portals of spiritual discernment were party opened to him and he discarded the effete doctorines of his own time. Numerous verses in the Hindi language are still extant of him containing important theological truths. Bahraich is a large town on the banks of the river Sarju. He had handed over several Mosques to Hindus and had allowed Hindu converts to return back to their own religion. From the facts as stated by said critic historian of the Emperor's Court, it can be inferred that if any Mosque would have been erected over Sri Ramajanamsthan it would have been handed over to the Hindus and such transfer of Mosque would not have escaped

As they surpass other learned men in their treatises on morals, and on physical and religious sciences, and reach a high degree in their knowledge of the future, in spiritual power and human perfection, they brought proofs based on reason and testimony, for the truth of their own and the fallacies of other religions, and inculcated their doctrines so firmly and so skilfully represented things as quite self-evident which require consideration, that no man, by expressing his doubts, could now raise a doubt in His Majesty, even if mountains were to crumble to dust, or the heavens were to tear as under."

Be it mentioned herein that in each and every prominent sacred places of the Hindus since time immemorial a class of Brahmins known as Panda has been helping the Devotees to perform customary rites as also noting down names of the Devotees. As such presence of Brahmin Pandas at Sri Ramjanmsthan during the visit of William Finch is conclusive proof that the Emperor Babar had not erected any Mosque over the said sacred site and Hindus were performing their traditional customary rites as laid down in Sri Skanda Puran. Relevant extract from page 176 of the book Early Travels in India 1583 – 1619 by William Foster reads as follows:

> "To Oudh [Ajodhya] from thence are 50c; a citie of ancient note, and seate of a Polan king, now much ruined; castle built foure hundred yeeres agoe. Heere are also the ruines of Ranichand [S] castle and houses, which the Indians acknowled[g]e for the great God, saying that he tooke flesh upon him to see the Tamasha of the World. In these ruines remayne certaine Bramenes, who record the names of all such Indians as wash themselves in the river running thereby, which custome, they say hath continued foure lackes of yeeres (which is three hundred ninetie foure thousand five hundred yeeres before the world's creation). Some two miles on the further side of the river is a cave of his with a narrow entrance but so spacious and full of turnings within that a man may well lose himselfe there, if he take not better heed; where it is thought his ashes were buried. Hither resort many from all parts of India, which carry from hence in remembrance, certaine grains of rice as blacke as gun-powder which they say have beene reserved ever since. Out of the ruines of this castle is yet much gold tryed. Here is great trade and such abundance of Indian asse-horne that they make here of bucklers and divers sorts of drinking cups. There are of these hornes, all the Indian affirme, some rare of great price, no jewell comparable, some esteeming them the right unicorns horne".

13. In his book Description Historique Et Geographique De l' Inde, Joseph Tieffenthaler who visited Sri Ramjanmsthan in the year 1770 A.D. during the reign of Emperor Shah Alam II (1759-1806 A.D.) evidenced the performance of customary rites by the Hindus in the central & left Halls of the Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple, Ajodhya in India. Tieffenthaler says that there was a Vedi i.e. *Sthandi*l inside the said Temple which was being worshipped by the Devotees by prostrating and circumambulating it thrice, but he did not mention offering of prayer therein by the Muslims; from the said facts made available by an eye witness it becomes crystal clear that in the 1770 the Hindus were in use and occupation of the Sri Ramjanmsthan as their sacred shrine which has been described as Babari Mosque by the plaintiffs in their pleadings and it was not being used as a Mosque by the Muslims. The said book is written in Latin language, an English translation of his narrative of Ajodhya finds place in the book Modern Traveler, a Popular Description, Geographical, Historical and Topographical of the Various Country of the Globe – India Vol-III published by James Duncan in the year 1828. Relevant extracts containing translation of Tieffenthaler's account from pages 312, 313, 314, 316 and 317 read as follows:

> "Its appearance, in 1770, is thus described by *Tieffen theler: "Avad, called Adjudea by the Learned Hindoos i*s a city of the highest antiquity. Its houses are, for the most part, only on mud, covered with straw or with tiles; many, however, are of brick. The principal street, running from S. to N., is about a league (mille) in length; and the

breadth of the city is somewhat less. Its western part, as well as the northern, is situated on a hill; the north-eastern quarter rests upon eminences; but towards Bangla, it is level. This town has now but a scanty population, since the foundation of Bangla or Fesabad; a new town where the Governor has established his residence, and to which a great number of inhabitants of Oude have removed. On the southern bank of Deva (or Goggrah), are found various buildings erected by the Gentoos in memory of Ram, extending from east to west. The more remarkable place is that which is called Sorgodoari, that is to say, the heavenly temple; because they say, that Ram carried away from thence to heaven all the inhabitants of the city. The deserted town was repeopled and restored to its former condition by Bikaramajit, the famous King of Oojain. There was a temple here on the high bank of the river; but Aurangzebe, ever attentive to the propagation of the faith of Mohammed, and holding the heathen in abhorrence, caused it to be demolished, and replaced it with a mosque with minarets, in order to abolish the very memory of the Hindoo superstition. Another mosque has been built by the Moors, to the east of this. Near the Sargodoari in an edifice erected by Nabalroy a former Hindoo governor. But a place more particularly famous is that which is called Sitha Rassoee, the table of Sitha (Seeta), wife of Ram; situated on an eminence to the south of the city. The emperor Aurangzebe demolished the fortress called Ramcote, and erected on the site, a Mohammedan temple with a triple dome. According to others, it was erected by Baber. There are to be seen fourteen columns of black stone, five spans in height, which occupied the site of the fortress. Twelve of these columns now support the interior arcades of the mosque: the two other form part of the tomb of a certain Moor. They tell us, that these columns, or rather these remains of skilfully wrought columns, were brought from Isle of Lanca or Selendip (Ceylon) by Hanuman, king the of monkeys. On the left is seen a square chest, raised, five inches from the ground covered with lime, about 5 ells in length by not more than four in breadth. The Hindoos call it Bedi, the cradle; and the reason is, that there formerly stood here the house in which Beshan (Vishnoo) was born in the form of Ram and were also, they say, his three > brothers were born. Afterwards, Aurangzebe, or, according to others, Baber, caused the place to be destroyed, in order to deprive the heathen of the opportunity of practicing there their superstitions. Nevertheless, they still pay a superstitious reverence to both these places; namely, to that on which the natal dwelling of Ram stood, by going three times round it, prostrate on the earth. The two places are surrounded with a low wall adorned with battlements. Not far from this is a place where they dig up grains of black rice changed into little stones, which are affirmed to have been hidden underground ever since the time of Ram. On the 24th of the month Tshet (Choitru), a large concourse of people celebrate here the birth-day of Ram, so famous throughout India. This vast city is only a mile distant from Bangla (Fyzabad) towards the E.N.E."

> "It is seated upon a hill somewhat steep, and fortified with little doors of earth at the four corners (of the enclosure). In the middle it is seen a subterranean hole, covered with a dome of moderate dimensions. Closed by is a lofty and very old tamarind-tree. A p*iazza* runs round it. It is said that Ram, after having vanquished the giant Ravan, and returned from Lanka descended into this pit, and there disappeared: hence, they have given to this place the name of Gouptar (or Gouptargath). You have here, then, a descent into hell, as you had at Oude and ascension to heaven". "As the scene of many of the leading events in the great epic poem of the Ramayuna, Oude might be expected to abound with sports of traditional sanctity

14. The East India Gazetteer of Hindustan of Walter Hamilton, 2nd Edition first published in 1828 A.D., records that the remains of the ancient city of Oude (Ayodhya), the Capital of Great Rama was still in existence wherein reputed sites of temples dedicated to Sri Rama, Sri Seeta, Lakshman and

Hanuman are located and; and the pilgrims who perform the pilgrimage to Ayodhya they walk round the temples and idols, bathe in holy pools, and perform the customary ceremonies. Relying on said Gazetteer it is submitted that even in or before1828 A.D. the Hindus were performing customary ceremonies at the birth place of the Lord of Universe Sri Rama ; and during said point of time there was no existence of alleged Babari Mosque as no such Mosque has been described in the four corners of the said Gazetteer. Relevant extract from page 353 of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

> "Oude: the ancient capital of the province of Oude, situated on the South side of the Goggra, seventy nine miles east from Lucknow: lat. 2648' N., lon. 824'E By Abul Fazel in 1582 it is described as follows. " Oude is one of the largest cities of Hindostao. In ancient times this city is said to have measured 148coss in length and thirty-six coss in brendth. Upon sifting the earth which is round this city small grains of gold are sometimes found in it. This town is esteemed one of the most sacred places of antiquity." Pilgrimages resort to this vicinity, where the remains of the ancient city of Oude, the capital of the great Rama, are still to be seen; but whatever may have been its former magnificence it now exhibits nothing but a shapeless mass of ruins. The modern town extends a considerable way along the banks of the G*oggra,* adjoining Fyzabad, and is tolerable well peopled but inland is a mass of rubbish and jungle among which are the reputed sites of temples dedicated to Rama, Seeta, his wife, Lakshman, his general, and *Hunimaun (*a large monkey), his prime minister. The religious mendicants, who perform the pilgrimage to Oude are chiefly of the R*amata sect,* who walk round the temples and idols, bathe in the holy pools, and performed the customary ceremonies"

15. Above referred East India Gazetteer of Hindustan of Walter Hamilton, 2nd Edition first published in 1828 A.D. in its preface declares that it contains accurate information the details whereof were collected by the persons best qualified from length of service residence on this spot, and established reputation to form a correct judgment of their authenticity. Relying on said declaration it is respectfully submitted that in or before 1828 A.D. there was existence of Sri Ramjanmsthan and temples in Ram-Kot, Ayodhya and the Hindus were worshiping therein and there was no existence of alleged Babari Mosque. Relevant extract from page xiv-xv of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

> "To each description of any consequence, the authorities upon which it is founded are carefully sub-joined in succession according to their relative means, the author being particularly desires to the credit where it is justly due, as well as to establish the high Character of the sources from whence his originally information has been drawn But no person is to be considered wholly responsible for any article, the materials being so intimately blended with each other, and the result of the author's own experience during a ten years' residence in India, that it would be impossible to define the limits of the respective properties. In various cases the narrative is given as closely as the necessity of condensing many thousand pages into a small compass would permit; in others it has been necessary to compare contradictory and conflicting testimonies, and to select that which appeared to rest on the most solid foundation. Conciseness has been particularly aimed at, and the endeavour to effect it has added greatly to the labour; for it is easy to write a description of a country when the materials are scanty, not so when the mass has been accumulating for half a century. In the official correspondence of the different presidencies the surveys and reports of one functionary are sometimes incorporated with those of another, so that occasionally the statement of one public officer cannot be discriminated from those of another; but notwithstanding these difficulties it will be clearly perceptible that the details of this work were generally collected under circumstances singularly favourable for the acquisition of accurate information, and by persons the best qualified from length of service residence on this spot, and established reputation to form a correct judgment of their authenticity."

16. The Gazetteer of the Territories under the Government of East India Company and of the Native States on the continents of India by Edward Thornton, first published in 1858 records that on the right bank of the Ghogra, are extensive ruins, about 2000 years old said to be those of the forts of Rama, king of Oude, hero of the Ramayana, and otherwise highly celebrated in the mythological and romantic legends of India; the ruins still bear the name of Ramgurh, "or of fort of Rama"; according to native tradition temples thereon were demolished by Aurangzebe, who built a mosque on part of the site, but an inscription on the wall of the mosque, falsify the tradition as it attributes work to the conqueror Baber, from whom Aurangzebe was 5$^{th}$ in descent. The mosque is embellished with 14 columns of only 5 or 6 feet in height, but of very elaborate and tasteful workmanship, A q*uadrangular* coffer of stone, whitewashed five ells long, 4 broad, and protruding 5 or 6 inches above ground, is pointed out as the cradle in which Rama was born as the 7th Avatar of Vishnoo; and is accordingly abundantly honoured by the pilgrimages and devotions of the Hindoos. From the aforesaid recording of the said Gazetteer it becomes crystal clear that Temple of Sri Ramjanmasthan was remodeled like mosque either by Babar or by Aurangzebe by utilizing the building materials of the said Temple and in spite of that the Hindus were worshipping on the Vedi established therein. It is submitted that the compilers has recorded two sources to ascertain the person who was responsible for damaging the Temple and converting the same into a mosque. Gazetteer says that according to tradition it was Aurangzebe but according to an inscription it was Babar. The compiler recording both sources gave weightage to the information of the alleged inscription. As in earlier part of this argument it has already been established that the alleged inscriptions were neither ever fixed on said alleged Babari Mosque nor were in existence in any point of time the opinion of the compiler formed thereon crumbles down and only source of traditional information remains as reliable. Relevant extract from pages 739-740 of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

> "Oude- A town in the kingdom of the same name. It is situate on the right bank of the river Ghogra, which Buchanan considers here to be "fully larger than the Ganges at Chunar," and which is navigable downwards to its mouth, upwards to Mundiya Ghant, in the district of Bareilly. It extends about a mile in a South-East direction, from the adjoining recent city of Fyzabad; the breadth of the town is something loss from North-East to South-West, or from the river L*andwards*. The greater part of the site is on gently swelling eminences; but to the north-west, or towards Fyzabad, islo. Most of the houses are of mud, and thatched, though a few are tilted. Here, in a large building a mile from the river, is an extensive establishment, called Hanumangurb, or Fort of Hanuman, in honour of the fabled monkey-god the auxillary of Rama. It has an annual revenue of 50,000 rupees, settled on it by Shuja-ud-daulah, formerly Nawaub Vizier. It is manage by a malik or abbot, the spiritual superior; and the revenues are dispensed to about 500 bairagis or religious ascetics, and other Hindoo mendicants of various descriptions; no Mussulman being allowed within the worlds other establishments of similar character are Sugrimkills, Ram-Prashad-ka-Kana, and Bidiya-kuod; maintaining respectively 100, 250, 200 bairagis. Close to the town on the East, and on the right bank of the Ghogra, are extensive ruins, said to be those of the forts of Rama, king of Oude, hero of the Ramayana, and otherwise highly celebrated in the mythological and romantic legends of India. Buchanan observes, "that the heaps of bricks, although much seems to have been carried away by the river, extend a great way; that is, more than a mile in length, and more than half a mile in width; and that, although vast quantities of materials have been removed to build the Mahomedan Ayodha or Fyzabad, yet, the ruins in many parts retain a very considerable elevation; nor is there any reason to doubt that the structure to which they belonged has been very great, when we consider that it has been ruined for about 2000 years." The ruins still bear the name of Ramgurh, "or of fort of Rama"; the most remarkable spot in which is that from which, according to legend, Rama took his flight to heaven, carrying with him the people of his city; in consequence of which it remained desolat until re-peopled by Vikramaditya, the king of Oujein, half a century before the Christian era, and by him embellished with 360 temples. Not the smallest traces of these temples, however, now remain; and according to native tradition they were demolished by Aurangzebe, who built a mosque on part of the site, the falsehood of the tradition is however, proved by an inscription on the wall of the mosque, an attributing work to the conqueror Baber, from whom Aurangzebe was 5$^{th}$ in descent. The mosque is embellished with 14 columns of only 5 or 6 feet in height, but of very elaborate and tasteful workmanship, said to have been taken from the ruins of the Hindoo fanes, to which they had been given by the monkey general Hanuman, who had brought they from L*anka* or Ceylon. 17. Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh first published in 1877-78 in its Chapter-III of the introduction records that The Birth-place of Sri Ram, the Lord of Universe is the most highly venerated of the sacred places to which Hind- pilgrims crowd. Relevant extract from page XXXI reads as follows:

> "Long before the dawn of the authentic history, Oudh stands out in the full blaze of legend and poetry. Ajodhya its eponymous city was the capital of that happy kingdom in which all that the Hindu race reveres or desires was realized as it can never be realized again, and the seat of the glorious dynasty which began with the sun and culminated after 60 generations of blameless rulers in the incarnate deity and perfect man, Rama. Whether criticism will finally enroll the hero among the highest creations of pure imagination or accord him a semi-historical personality and a doubtful date, it is barren to speculate; history is more nearly concerned with the influence which the story of his life still has on the moral and religious beliefs of a great people, and the enthusiasm which makes his birth-place the most highly venerated of the sacred places to which its pilgrims crowd."

18. The said Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh of 1877-78 records that Ajodhya is to the Hindus what Mecca is to the Mohammadans and Jerusalem to the Jews. The Gazetteer further says that as it is unconquerable city of the creator i.e.

Brahma it is called Ajodhya and as Sri Ram had promised to return after completion of the period of exile this city is also known as Oudh. From the said recording of the Gazetteer it is crystal clear that since the Tretayug Sri Ramjanmsthan is most sacred place of the Hindus and performing their customary rights thereon is integral part of Hinduism. Relevant extract from page 2 of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

> "Ajodiya – (Ajodhya) – Pargana Haweli Oudh – Tahsil Fyzabad – District- Fyzabad : A town in the district of Fyzabad, and adjoining the city of that name is to the Hindu what Mecca is to the Mohammadans, Jerusalem to the Jews; it has in the traditions of the orthodox, a highly mythical origin, being founded for additional security, not on the transitory earth, but on the chariot wheel of the Great Creator himself. It lies 26 □47' N latitude and 82□15' E longitude, on the banks of the Gogra. The name Ajodhya is explained by well known local pundits to be derived from the sanskrit words 'ajud', 'unvanquished'; also 'Aj' a name of Brahma – 'The unconquerable city of the creator'. But Ajodhya is also called Oudh which in Sanskrit means a promise; in elusion, it is said, to the promise made by Ram Chandar when he went in exile, to return at the end of 14 years."

20. The said Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh of 1877-78 records that prior to advent of Babar there were three important Hindu shrines namely the 'Janmasthan' the Swargaddwar Mundir' also known as 'Ram Darbar', and 'Treta-ke-Thakur' and; without disclosing source of information it says that on the Janamsthan the in 1528 A.D. emperor Baber built the mosque while on other two sacred shrines Aurangzeb did so. From the said recording of the Gazetteer it is crystal clear that over the sacred shrine Sri Ramjanmsthan any one of the Mughal Emperor had erected a Mosque in flagrant violation of the Law of Shar which mandatorily forbids from usurping others' land as such any building erected over the land of the Hindu Deity i.e. The Lord of Universe Sri Ram from the building materials of the Temple of the said Deity does not come within the definition of Mosque. The relevant extract from page 6 of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

> The Janamsthan marks the place where Ram Chander was born. The swargaddwar is the gate through which he passed into Paradise, possibly, the spot where his body was burnt. 21. The said Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh 1877-78 records that in 1855 A.D. in course of great rapture between the Hindus and the Muslims, loosing possession of Sri Ramjanmsthan for few days ultimately the Hindus re-occupied their said sacred shrine suffering 11 casualties and inflicting 75 casualties on Muslim-side. The Gazetteer further records that up to that time the Hindus and Muslims alike use to worship in the mosque-temple. Since British rule a railing had been put up to prevent the disputes within which, in the mosque, the Muslims used to pray; while outside the fence the Hindus had raised a platform on which they used to make their offerings. From the said recordings of the Gazetteer it becomes crystal clear that at least till 1855 A.D. the Hindus were worshipping in the same structure which has been described as Babari Mosque in the plaint of the instant suit and, a platform now known as Ramchabutara was erected by some Hindus after commencement of British Rule i.e. in 1856 A.D. as such the Sthandil i.e. Vedi (cradle) which was being worshipped by the Hindus in 1770 A.D. and seen by Joseph Tieffenthaler was other than the platform which was subsequently built in 1556 A.D. Be it mentioned herein that from the several applications of the self-proclaimed Mutawallis, Muezzins, Khattibs under or through whom the plaintiffs are claiming had seen it is crystal clear that since time immemorial Hindus are worshiping in the central Sanctum Sanctorum of the Temple Structure which has been described as Babari Mosque in the plaint of the instant suit, which makes it clear that the Hindus did not care for illegal and arbitrary prohibition imposed upon them by the British Rulers in 1856 A.D. or thereafter as alleged at all. Relevant extract from page 7 of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

22. The said Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh of 1877-78 records that in the great fair of the Ram Navami i.e. Janm-mahotsva of Sri five lakh people used to participate. It is needless to say that according to holy scripture of the Hindus Sri Skand-puran since the days of Sage Narad who was contemporary of Lord of Universe Sri Ram, it became integral part of Hinduism to celebrate Janm-mahotsav of the Lord of Universe Sri Ram and perform customary rituals at Sri Ramjanmsthan in Ayodhya. Relevant extracts from pages 14, 451 and 452 of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

There are 20 terms and conditions of the Jizya out of which condition no.3 is that the Jimmis shall not prevent Muslim Travellers from staying in Idol Temples and, condition no.4 is that the Muslims shall have right to stay in the house of Jimmis as a guest for 3 days. As under the Islamic Rulers the Hindus was Jimmis in Oudh Province till its annexation to British Rule i.e. 1856 A.D. during this period they were bound to follow the terms and conditions of Jizya as modified by Great Imam Abu Haneef. From the readings of the said Gazetteer of 1877 – 1878 it appears that invoking the condition no.3 of the Jizya the Muslim travellers used to stay in Sri Ramjanmsthan compound and during their such temporary stay it might be that those travellers used to offer prayer in the rooms of the Dharamshala of the said Temple compound which was misconstrued by the compiler of the said Gazetteer. Even now-a-days the Muslims during their travels used to offer prayer in trains as also at the place of their temporary abode. As offering prayer in a building which has images is prohibited in Islam it can be said with certainty that no Muslim was offering prayer in Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple which has been described as Babari Mosque in the plaint of the instant suit. In nut-shell it can be inferred that only Hindus were performing religious rites and worship in the Idol Temple of the Lord of Universe Sri Ram. In the book "The Delhi Sultanate" 4th Edn. edited by renowned Historian Sri R.C.Majumdar and published in 1990 by Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, Bombay on page 619 an extract from the book "Zakhirat-ul-Muluk" written by Shaikh Hamadani containing 20 terms and conditions of Jizya has been reproduced. Relevant extract from the said book reads as follows:

> "There is another mandate relating to those subjects who are unbelievers and protected people (zimmis). For their governance, the observance of those conditions which the Caliph 'Umar laid in his agreement for establishing the status of the fire-worshippers and the people of the Book (Jews and Christians) and which gave them safety is obligatory on rulers and governors. Rulers should impose these conditions on the zimmis of their dominions and make their lives and their property dependent on their fulfillment. The twenty conditions are as follows:

1. In a country under the authority of a Muslim ruler, they are to build no new homes for images or idol temples.
2. They are not to rebuild any old buildings which have been destroyed.
3. Muslim travelers are not to be prevented from staying in idol temples.
4. No Muslim who stays in their houses will commit a sin if he is a guest for three days, if he should have occasion for the delay.

5. Infldels may not act as spies or give aid and comfort to them.
6. If any of their people show any inclination towards Islam, they are not to be prevented from doing so.
7. Muslims are to be respected.
8. If the zimmis are gathered together in a meeting and Muslims appear, they are to be allowed at the meeting.
9. They are not to dress like Muslims.
10. They are not to give each other Muslim names.
11. They are not to ride on horses with saddle and bridle.
12. They are not to possess swords and arrows.
13. They are not to wear signet rings and seals on their ringers.
14. They are not to sell and drink intoxicating liquor openly.
15. They must not abandon the clothing which they have had as a sign of their state of ignorance so that they may be distinguished from Muslims.
16. They are not to propagate the customs and usages of polytheists among Muslims.
17. They are not to build their homes in the neighbourhood of those of Muslims.
18. They are not to bring their dead near the graveyards of Muslims.
19. They are not to mourn their dead with loud voices.
20. They are not to buy Muslim slaves."

24. Staying of Muslims in the Temple or House of Jimmis was not only in theory but in practice also. During his retreat from Tibet campaign Bakhtiar Khilji took refuge in an Idol Temple in Kamrup which has been described in the book "Riyazu-s-Salatin" A History of Bengal on its pages 66 -67. During his travel Ibn Battuta stayed in a House of a Jimmi lady in Kaynuk, which fact has been recorded on page 138 of the book "Ibn Battuta" translated and selected by H.A.R. Gibb First Published in 1929 and, reprinted in 2007 by Low Price Publication, Delhi. Relevant extracts from the aforesaid two books read as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "Muhammad Bakhtiar engulphed in the sea of confusion and perplexity, despaired of every resource. After much striving, he got news that in the neighbourhood there was a very lerge Temple, and that Idols of Gold and Silver were placed there in great pomp. It is said that there was an Idol in the temple which weighed a thousand maunds. In short, Muhammad Bakhtiar with his force took refuge in this temple, and was busy improvising means for crossing the river. The Rajah of Kamrup had ordered all his troops and subjects of that Country to commit depredations."

> "Kaynuk is a small town in the territories of Sultan Orkhan Bek, inhabited by infidel [Christan] Greeks under Muslim protection. There is only one household of Muslims in the place, and that belongs to the governors of the Greeks, so we put up at the house of an old infidel woman. This was in the season of snow and rain. She treated us well, and we spent that night in her house. Now this town has no trees or vineyards; the only thing cultivated there is saffron, and the old woman brought us a great quantity of it, thinking that we were merchants and would buy it from her."

25. It is noteworthy that in A-In-I Akbari Vol.II at page 182 it has been recorded that at that time in Ayodhya there were only two tombs of Seth and the Prophet Job of six and seven yards in length respectively. But from the Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh it is known that in the mean time another tomb Noah was also added and a story was concocted that the tomb of Nuh was built by Alexander the Great i.e. in 4$^{th}$ B.C., as this tomb of Nuh did not find place in A-In-I Akbari's account. In fact the tomb of Noah or Nuh is in the town Najaf in Iraq. In the light of aforesaid facts it becomes crystal clear that this tomb was brought into existence in deceitful manner in later days and to glorify it a fiction was created that it was existing in 4th B.C. It is respectfully submitted that the Babari Mosque has also been brought into fiction in later days i.e. after infliction of damages to Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple by the Emperor Aurangzeb and to glorify this subsequently name of the Emperor Babar was tagged with said disputed structure, which structure in fact was a Hindu temple and remained as such even after its defilement by the Emperor Aurangzeb. Relevant extract from page 11 and 12 of the Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh 1877-78 reads as follows:

> "The Tombs of the Patriarchs. – Adjoining the Maniparbat are two tombs, of which General Cunningham writes that "they are attributed to Sis paighambar and Ayub paighambar, or the Prophets Seth and Job. The first is seventeen feet long and the other twelve feet. These tombs are mentioned by Abul Fazl, who says: ' Near this are two sopulcjarai monuments, one seven and the other six cubits in length. The vulgar pretend that they are the tombs of Seth and Job, and they relate wonderful stories of them.' This account shows that since the time of Akbar the tomb of Seth must have increased in length, from seven cubits, or ten and a half feet, to seventeen feet, through the frequent repairs of pious Musalmans." These tombs are also mentioned at a later date, in the Araish-i-Mahfil. To these tombs Colonel Wilford adds that of Noad, which is still pointed out near the police station. The Colonel's account is as follows: "Close to Ajodhya or Oudh, on the banks of the Gogra, they slow the tomb of Noah, and these of Ayub, and Shis or Shish, (Job and Seth). According to the account of the venerable Darvesh

> who watches over the tomb of Nuh, it was built by Alexander the Great, or Sikandar Rumi. I sent lately (A.D. 1799) a learned Hindu to make enquiries about this holy place: from the Musalmans be could get no further light; but the Brahmans informed him that where Nuh's tomb stands now, there was formerly a place of worship dedicated to Gapesha; and close to it are the remains of a baoli, or walled well, which is called in the Puranas Ganapat Kund. The tombs of Job and Seth are near to each other, and about one bow-shot and a half from Nuh's tomb; between them are two small hillocks, called Soma-giri, or the mountains of the moon: according to them these tombs are not above four hundred years old; and owe their origin to three men, called Nuh, Ayub, and Shis, who fell there fighting against the Hindus. These were, of course, considered as shahids, or martyrs; but the priests who officiate there, in order to increase the veneration of the superstitious and unthinking croud, gave out that these tombs were really those of Noah, Job, and Seth, of old. The tomb of Nuh is not mentioned in the Ain-i-akbari, only those of Job and Seth."
> On these quotations I have only to add that the distance between the tombs is greater than stated, being nearly a mile as the crow flies; while it is not the tomb of Nuh, but those of the other two men mentioned, that are close to the Gancsha Kund."

26. Ibn Battuta in his account of travels tells us that he visited the graves of Ali, Adam and Noah in the town Najaf in Iraq. This fact makes it clear that the so called tomb of Nuh in Ayodhya is not that of the original Nuh whose tomb is in Najaf, but to give antiquity and authenticity to their fiction the interested person tagged name of Alexander the Great as builder of the said tomb in Ayodhya though it is Historical truth that the Alexander had never been in Ayodhya. In similar manner interested persons tagged name of the Emperor Babar with Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple once upon a time which was defiled, damaged and tried to be converted into Mosque in the 8th decades of the 17th Century by the Emperor Aurangzeb ultimately which resulted into failure. The relevant extract of the Ibn Battuta Travels in Asia and Africa 1325-1354 (published by Low Price Publications, Delhi, 2007 Reprint of the 1st Edn. 1929) from page 81 and 82 reads as follows:

> "We went on from there and alighted in the town of Mash-had 'Alf at Najaf. It is a fine town, situated in a wide rocky plain- one of the finest, most populous, and most substantially built cities in 'Iraq'. It has beautiful clean bazaars. We entered by the [outer] Bab al-Hadra, and found ourselves first in the market of the greengrocers, cooks and butchers, then in the fruit market, then the tailors' bazaar and the Qaysaruya, then the perfumers' bazaar, after which we came to the [inner] Bab al-Hadra, where there is the tomb, which they say is the tomb of Alf. One goes through the Bab al-Hadra into a vast hospice, by which one gains access to the gateway of the shrine, where there are chamberlains, keepers of registers and eunuchs. As a visitor to the tomb approaches, one or all of them rise to meet him according to his rank, and they halt with him at the threshold. They then ask permission for him to enter saying "By your leave, O Commander of the Faithful, this feeble creature asks permission to enter the sublime resting-place," and command him to kiss the threshold, which is of silver, as also are the lintels. After this he enters the shrine, the floor of which is covered with carpets of silk and other materials. Inside it are candelabra of gold and silver, large and small. In the centre is a square platform about a man's height, covered with wood completely hidden under artistically carved plaques of gold fastened with silver nails. On this are three tombs, which they declare are the graves of Adam, Noah, and Alf. Between the tombs are dishes of silver and gold, containing rose-water, musk, and other perfumes; the visitor dips his hand in these and anoints his face with the perfume for a bleassing."

27. The report of the Settlement of the Land Revenue Officer of the Faizabad District by A.F. Millett, the Officiating Settlement Officer; published in 1880 records the similar facts as contained on page 7 of the Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh 1877-78 wherein the facts that in 1855 A.D. there was intense fighting between the Hindus and Muslims and the Hindus after being dispossessed regained possession of Sri Ramjanmsthan without loosing time by killing seventy five Muslims and loosing their eleven men. This report further records that prior to commencement of British Rule in Oudh i.e. 1856 A.D. the Hindus and the Muslims both used to pray in the Mosque – Temple and after the British Rule a railing was put up to prevent Hindus from entering into the disputed structure to avoid the dispute. It is needless to repeat and reiterate that in spite of such preventive measures of the British Rule the Hindus continue with their worship in the Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple which has been described as Babari Masjid in the plaint of the instant suit. Relevant extract from pages 235-36 reads as follows:

"668. If Ajudhya was then little other than wild, it

must at least have possessed a fine temple in the Janamsthan; for many of its columns are still in existence and in good preservation, having been used by the Musalmans in the construction of the Babri mosque. These are of strong close-grained dark slate-colored or black stone called by the natives 'kasoti' (literally touch-stone) and carved with different devices. To my thinking, these strongly resemble Buddhist pillars that I have seen at Benares and elsewhere. They are from seven to eight feet long, square at the base, centre, and capital, and round or octagonal intermediary.

669. Hindu and Musalman difference – The Janmsthan is within a few hundred paces of the Hanuman Garhi. In 1855, when a great rupture took place between the Hindu and Mahomedans the former occupied the Hanuman Garhi in force, while the Musalmans took possession of the Janmasthan. The Mohamedans on that occasions actually charged up the steps of the Hanuman Garhi, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then followed up this success, and at the third attempt took the Janmsthan, at the gate of which 75 Mahomedans are buried in the 'Martyrs grave' (Ganj-Shahid). Several of the King's regiment were looking on all the time, but their orders were not to interfere. It is said that up to that time, the Hindus and Mahomedans alike used to worship in the mosque-temple. Since British rule, a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which in the mosque the Mahomedans pray, while outside the fence the Hindus have, raised a platform on which they make their offerings."

28. That there was no mosque even till 1855 is established from the following narration in Faizabad Gazetteer 1960 at p. 63, where it is stated as under:-

www.vadapativada.com

> " In 1855 a serious conflict between vairagis and the Muslims at the site of Hanumangarhi in Ayodhya, both claiming it to be a place of worship connected with their respective religions. King Wajid Ali Shah is said to have appointed a Committee to investigate this matter whichheld a public meeting in Gulab Bari. It appears that among those assembled no one testified the existence of the mosque. Therefore, the Committee unanimously decided the issue in favour of the Vairagis. When the report of the Committee reached Lucknow, it caused a sensation among the Muslims. A Council of action was formed of which Maulvi Amir Ali Amethi (District Lucknow) was elected leader. He was staying at Suhali and succeeded in attracting a large number of followers. On learning this the Vairagis started arrangements for the defence of the place. Wajid Ali Shah then ordered a regiment to guard it. At last on November 7, 1855 Maulavi Amir Ali started for Rudauli with his followers. On refusing to retrace his steps when ordered to do so by Captain Barlow, a fight ensued in which he and most of his followers were killed."

29. That in Faizabad Gazetteer of 1960 at pages 351 and 352 says that in the middle of 19th Century Ayodhya was regarded as a strong hold of Hinduism. From the said fact as recorded in the Gazetteer it is very much apparent that at the time of annexation of Oudh Province to the British Rule in the middle of 19th Century Hindus were strong enough to retain control at least over one of the most holiest place of worship of the Hindus i.e. Sri Ramjanmsthan at Ayodhya

and they did so as it is very much apparent from the several applications made on an from 1858 to the date of inception of instant litigations by the alleged Mutawallis, Muezzins, Khattibs etc. Relevant extract of the aforesaid Gazetteer as quoted in paragraph 40 of the written statement of the this defendant no.20 reads as follows:

> "with the departure of the Court, the Hindus were left to themselves and numerous temples and monestries sprang into existence. Naval Rai, the Deputy of Nawab Safdar Jung built a fine house in Ayodhya which still stands on the river front. Probably this rise in importance was due to the creating popularity of th Ramcharitra Manas of Tulsidas and the progress of this place became even more rapid after the annexation of the Avadh by the British. Before the middle of the nineteenth century Ayodhya was regarded as a stronghold at Hinduism…."

30. The Gazetteer of India Volume II (3rd Edn. 1990 published by the Director of Publication Division Ministry of Information and Broadcasting Government of India ) records the fact that even the Rulers like Firuz Shah Tughluq and Aurangzeb found it impossible to stop religious practices of the Hindus. Relevant extract from page 362 of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

> " Firuz Shah Tughluq confessed his helplessness in preventing Hindus from openly blowing their conches, beating drums and going daily to the river Yamuna by the side of his palace, to worship their idols. Even Aurangzeb found it impossible to rule absolutely according to Islamic law and had to > concede to certain extra-Islamic practices of his predecessors. In fields relating to religion, the Hindus were allowed full freedom to have their cases tried by their own communal courts. Even in matters of property and several other non-religious affairs if both the parties were Hindus, the case was referred to the judgement of pundits or Hindu lawyers. The land-revenue system under Muslim rulers and the ceremonies and procedure at the Mughal court bear the unmistakable evidence of Indian traditions. These deviations from Muslim law, however, did not affect the fundamental Islamic character of the state."

31. Niccolao Manucci who was contemporary of the Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb came in India in 1656 and served as artillery commander in the army of Prince Dara Sukoh and on 8th June 1658 participated in the decisive battle of Samugarh, near Agra fought between The Armies of Prince Dara Sukoh and Prince Aurangzeb. After defeat of Dara Sukoh he joined Army of Emperor Aurangzeb. In December 1662 he made an expedition eastwards and travelled through Patna, Rajmahal, Dhakkah, Sunderbans, Hoogly and then returned to Agra by way of Qasimbazar. At Agra he adopted medicine as a profession. Here he met with Raja jai Singh of Amber and joined as a Captain of artillery to his son Prince Kirat Singh and accompanied Raja Jai Singh during his campaign against Chhatrapati Maharajadhiraj Shivaji in between March 1664 to July 1665. After the death of Raja Jai Singh in or about 1678 he came in service of Prince

Shah Alam I, who later on succeeded emperor Aurangzeb, as his physician and ultimately left Mughal dominion in 1686. He died in India in 1717 (Source Storia Do Mogor Volume 1 Introduction Page lvi-lxvii ). In his book "Storia do Mogor" or Mogul India 1653 – 1708 Vol-III at page 244 under the caption of 'Hindu Holy Places' Niccolao Manucci records the facts that several temples including the four famous temples of the Hindus at Ayodhya, Kashi (Varanasi), Mathura and Hardwar were demolished by the Emperor Aurangzeb but shortly thereafter Hindus thronged to their those sacred sites and started worshipping as they were doing in past. From the said eye witness account leaves no doubt that Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple at Ayodhya was demolished by Aurangzeb and not by the Emperor Babur. As the Temple of Ayodhya has been enumerated along with three other famous temples which means it was Sri Ramjanmsthan as no other Temple can be equalised and compared with Sri Vishveshwar's Temple at Varanasi, Sri Krishna Janmsthan Temple at Mathura and the famous Temple at Hardwar. Relevan extracts from the said book of Niccolao Nanucci read as follows :

> "In this realm of India, although King Aurangzeb destroyed numerous temples there does not thereby fail to be many left at different places, both in his empire and in the territories subject to the tributary princes. All of them are thronged with worshipers; even those that are destroyed are still venerated by the Hindus and visited for the offering of alms. The Hindus assert that in the world there are seven principal places where it is possible to obtain what one has imagined and desired – that is to say, in cases where a person wishes to become Emperor or King, wealthy, powerful or to attain other positions of the same order. Now they ordinarily hold that on dying a person's soul is transferred according to the deeds he has done; if he has done good, his soul will pass into some one of consideration or of wealth, and should the deceased have done evil, his soul will be sent in to some animal – elephant, camel, buffalo, cow, tiger, wolf, a bird, a snake, a fish et cetera …"

32. In the book 'India in the 17th Century (Social, Economic and Political) Memoirs of Francois Martin 1670-1694 (translated by Lotika Varadarajan and Published by Manohar Publishers 1984 Edn.), Francois Martin writes that the Emperor Aurangzeb caused demolition of the temples in the cities and villages of Gujrat whereafter people erected temples within their homes and saved them from demolition by giving presence to the

Governors. He further records that when Emperor Aurangzeb's army on his command tried to demolish a temple in Karnataka the Hindus fought and repulsed the Imperial Army and one of his Hindu noble revolted against him and left his service. From the facts recorded by Francois Martin who was Governor of French East India Company it becomes crystal clear that the Emperor Aurangzeb was leaving no stone unturned in inflicting humiliation, oppression and excesses on Hindus in course whereof he was causing demolition of the Idol Temples but the same was by hook or by crook being opposed by the Hindus and they were not giving up to their religious places and rites. This fact corroborate the fact as recorded by the Niccolao Manaucci to the effect that the said Emperor caused demolition of Hindu temples but immediately thereafter Hindus thronged at their sacred sites of the temples and started their usual worship on those sites. Relevant extracts from page 914 of vol.-II part-1, p.1249 & 1256 vol.-II, part-II read as follows:

> "When it had come to the knowledge of the Emperor that many rich Gujarati banias had built temples within their homes to perform their devotions, in his religious fervour, he ordered that the Governors of the province should carry out an inspection. All the temples in the cities and villages had been destroyed. Now these inner sanctums were also to be laid low and the least sign of the practice of the Hindu religion was to be wiped out. The numbers of this community, particularly at Hyderabad and Cambay where they were to be found in large numbers, were greatly alarmed at these instructions. It was said that the banias managed to circumvent the Mughal orders by giving presents to the Governors who thereupon

took their inspection tours very lightly." (ibid p.914)

" Following the Emperor's orders with regard to the destruction of temples, the Moors brought one down in the Carnatic. This incited the Hindus to revolt in an attempt to prevent this action. The two communities clashed openly and both sides sustained loss of life. As a result, the Moors were forced to postpone their demolition activities to a later date." (ibid p. 1249)

"Yachappa Nayak, the Hindu noble to whom I have referred earlier in my narrative, on seeing that the Mughal army after repeated orders from the Emperor, was bent on the destruction of the Hindu temples, left Mughal service and entered the territory of Gingee with his men. From there, he wrote to all the Hindu Princes, urging them to unite against the enemy of their community and religion."
(ibid p.1256)

33. In the aforesaid book Francois Martin also records that in spite of injunctions of the Mugal Emperor the Hindus did not stop from performing their traditional religious ceremonies and continue to perform it in violation of prohibitory orders. This recording also corroborate the facts as recorded by Niccolao Manucci to the effect that in spite of the demolition of the temples the Hindus did not abandon their sacred places and soon thereafter started performing their customary religious rituals on those sites. From the recording of the Gazetteers of 1877-78 and the Settlement Report of Faizabad it becomes crystal clear that according to those official records also Hindus were worshiping in Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple described as Babri Mosque in the plaint of the instant suit at least prior to annexation of Oudh to British Rule in 1856. Relevant extracts from page 877-878 & 916 of vol.-II Part.-I read as follows:

> "The Hindus in Surat practice a certain rite during the month of August. I am not sure whether it is at the time of the full moon or new moon that they perform it. They go for boat rides on the river and throw large number of coconuts into the water, while all the ships and boats moored on the river are gaily bedecked with flags and buntings. This is an age-old practice based on the superstition that if this is done the ships which they have at sea will have successful voyages. Although many Hindu superstitions have been tolerated by the Moors, the Emperor had given explicit instructions that these festivals should be banned. The Governor forbade this practice but his orders were not always carried out. Some of the banias and members of the other castes did not show any signs of having departed from their normal customs and practices." (ibid p. 877-878)
> "The annual ceremony of throwing coconuts into the river was celebrated on 25 August. I have spoken about this earlier. Despite the Mughal injunction against the practice of this ancient rite by Hindus, it continues unabated. Even among Muslims, those possessing ships on the high seas sometimes join in. It marks the opening of the sailing season."

34. Ibn Battuta in his account of travels tells us that in Bud-Pattan city though there was not a single Muslim inhabitant it had a mosque which was being looked after and maintained by the Brahmins with due respect; though he did not describe it as noble gesture of Hindus but says that it was due to panic of some evil consequences fell down on Hindus but his said conjecture and surmise is based on his believed that as the Christians and Jews had not honoured sacred placed of the

Muslims how Idolaters do it. If we go through the instances as recorded in the book 'Spirit of Islam' by Syed Ameer Ali it appears that excesses were committed by the Jews and Christians against the Muslims. But in fact as India was a religiously tolerant Country and Hindus always used to honour Religions and religious places of the others it can be inferred that the Hindus were maintaining said Mosque on account of their respect to religious place of Muslims. This spirit of the Hindus makes it clear that the Hindus neither can defile nor claim over the religious places of others and as Sri Ramjanmsthan described as Babari Mosque in the plaint is being possessed, claimed and asserted as their most holiest sacred place then indeed it is birth place of Loard of Universe Sri Ram. The relevant extract of the Ibn Battuta Ki Bharat Yatra (published by National Book Trust of India Reprint 1997 of the 1st Edn. 1933) from page 203 reads as follows:

इसके अनंतर हम बुद-पत्तन' नामक एक बड़े नगर में पहुंचे जो एक बड़ी नदी के तट पर बसा हुआ है। नगर में एक भी मुसलमान न होने के कारण जहाज के मुसलमान यात्री समुद्र-तट पर बनी हुई एक मस्जिद में आकर ठहरते हैं। यह बंदर अत्यंत ही रमणीक है, यहां का जल भी अत्यंत मीठा है। अधिक मात्रा में उत्पन्न होने के कारण सुपारियां यहां से चीन तथा (उत्तर) भारत को भेजी जाती हैं।

नगर-निवासी बहुधा ब्राह्मण ही हैं। हिंदू जनता इन लोगों को बड़े आदर की दृष्टि से देखती है। परंतु मुसलमानों के प्रति इसका घोर द्वेष होने के कारण एक भी मुसलमान यहां निवास नहीं करता। मस्जिद विध्वस्त न करने का यह कारण बतलाया जाता है कि एक ब्राह्मण ने कभी इसकी छत तोड़कर कड़ियां निकाल अपने गृह में लगा दी थीं। उसके घर में आग लगने पर कुटुंब-संपत्ति सहित वह वहीं जलकर राख हो गया। इस घटना के पश्चात समस्त जनता मस्जिद को आदर-भाव से देखने लगी और इसके बाद किसी ने उसका अपमान नहीं किया। यात्रियों के पानी पीने के लिए मस्जिद के बाहर एक जलकुंड तथा पक्षियों का प्रवेश रोकने के लिए द्वारों में जालियां भी नगर-निवासियों ने बनवा दीं।

34. Be it mentioned herein that the Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith 1063 enumerates five types of martyrs as such from the name of a place Ganj Shahidan it cannot be inferred that it was a place of the graves of the soldiers who lost their lives in a battle in between Emperor Babur and the then ruler of Ajodhya. Contrary to this it can be inferred that the inhabitant of that place in totality died with plague that is why people used to call it Ganj Shahidan. According to dictionary ‘Urdu Hindi Sabdakosh’ (published by Uttar Pradesh Hindi Sansthan) Ganj means Nagar as such Ganj Shahidan means city of martyrs. Said Hadith reads as follows:

Shri P.N. Mishra, Advocate thereafter has further referred that there was no war in Ayodhya nor the emperor Babur built graveyard or mosque at Ram Janmsthan described as Babri Mosque and the allegations in the plaint are false. His submissions on the basis of certain books are as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

THE INSTANT SUIT:

1. The plaintiffs' case as made out in the paragraph 1 and 2 of the plaint is that in 935 A.H. there was a battle in between the Emperor Babur and the then Ruler of the Ayodhya in Ayodhya. After attaining victory Babur made graveyards for his soldiers who had lost their lives in the said battle and erected a Mosque for the Muslims of Ayodhya. Be it mentioned herein that according to English Calendar said 935 AH commenced on 15th September,1528 and ended on 5th September, 1529 and for this whole year's account is available in Babur-Nama save and except 3 days' account of 15th September 1528 to 17th September 1528. On 18th September, 1528 Babur was in his court at Agra. On 20th September, he left for Gwalior, said facts prove it beyond doubt that during said three days Emperor Babur was nowhere in the vicinity of Ayodhya but far away at Agra. Prior to defeat of Sultan Ibrahim Lodi in 1526 Mustafa Farmuli was his Governor of Oudh and just after the Sultan's defeat Shaikh Bayazid Farmuli was appointed Governor of Oudh by the victorious King Babur. He remained in the Good-book of the Emperor at least till December, 1527. In fact Babur himself was ruler of Oudh and his appointee Shaikh Bayazid was Governor thereof. Even when Shaikh Bayazid became hostile from January 1528 onwards neither Babur nor Shaikh Bayazid entered in the city of Ayodhya nor there was any fighting in Ayodhya between them either in 935 AH or in any other year during the life time of emperor Babur as such losing lives by Emperor Babur's soldiers in action in Ayodhya city and creation of Graveyards for those fall in action as well as erection of Mosque is false, frivolous, and concocted- one. The Plaintiffs have failed to plead and prove name of any independant ruler of Ayodhya as well as fighting between any such independant King and the Emperor Babur as such the instant Suit is liable to be dismissed with exemplary cost.

2. Babur –Nama (Translated by Anette Susannah Beveridge and Reprinted in 2007 by Low Price Publications, Delhi first published in 1921) tells us that after defeating the Sultan Ibrahim Lodi in the battle of Panipat on 8th of Rajab 932 AH corresponding to 20th day of April 1526 Babur became King of Delhi, Agra and Oudh (Babur-Nama p.472-74). Mustafa Farmuli was Sultan Ibrahim Lodi's Governor of Oudh and died before Sultan's defeat. His younger brother was Shaikh Bayazid (Farmuli). After Sultan Ibrahim Lodi's defeat, Shaikh Bayazid together with Firuz Khan and Mahmud Khan went to serve Babur.

Babur writes that "I shewed them greater kindness and favour than was their claim." He gave Shaikh Bayazid 1 krur, 48 laks and 50,000 tankas from Aud, Firuz Khan 1 krur, 46 laks and 5,000 tankas from Jaunpur and Mahmud Khan 90 laks and 35,000 tankas from Ghazipur (ibid p. 527). Shaikh Bayazid, Firuz Khan, Mahmud Khan and Qazi Jia who were highly favoured commanders to them Eastern Paraganas were given (ibid p. 530). In January 1527 Humayun placed Shaikh Bayazid in Oudh (Ibid p.544).

3. In December 1527 Babur got wild news about Shaikh Bayazid (Babur-Nama P. 585). On the eve of Chanderi expedition Babur received a bad news on 28th January, 1528 that "the troops appointed for the East (i.e. against Bayazid) had fought without consideration, been beaten, abandoned Laknau, and gone to Qanuj" (Ibid p. 594). After conquering Chanderi Babur again got news on 22nd February, 1528 that his troops had abandoned Qanuj (Kannauj) and gone to Rapri; whereas the enemy's army under Biban, Bayazid and Maruf had taken over Shamsabad. Babur himself moved towards Kannauj. On hearing his march, Bayazid, Biban and Maruf crossed Ganga and seated themselves in its eastern bank opposite Kannauj for preventing Babur's passage (Ibid 598). But Babur and his Army , after having built bridge over the river Ganga, crossed the river on 15th March, 1528. But due to one day's delay in crossing the river Ganga, the enemy escaped. Babur ordered Chin-timur Sultan to chase Trio. Babur also placed Baqui Tashkinti under Chin-timur Sultan's command. But the pursuers did not do well. On 16th March Babur dismounted at Bangarmawn (Ibid 599-601).

4. On March 21, 1528 Babur visited Laknau and crossed Gomati, while he was one or two march away from Oudh on request of Chin –timur Babur sent a reinforcement of 1000 braves (Babur-Nama p.601). On 28th March, 1528 in course of his pursuit of rebel Shaikh Bayazid Babur dismounted 2 or 3 kurhos (i.e. 6 or 8 miles) from Oudh above the junction of Gagar (Goghgra) and Sirda. [John Leyden, and William Erskine created confusion by identifying Sirda with Sarju; whereas Annette Susannah Beveridge rightly identified it with Kali-Sarda on the Chouka affluent of the Gogra and not Sarju river.] At that time Bayazid was far away on otherside of the Sirda opposite to Oudh. Babur's army and generals who had crossed over first pursued Shaikh Bayazid till the evening prayer but he flung into jungle and escaped. Chin-timur Sultan chased Afghans dismounted late on the bank of standing-water, rode on at midnight after the rebel, went as much as 40 kurhos (80 miles) where Bayazid's family and relations had been, they however had fled. He sent gallopers off in all directions from that place.. Baqi Shaghawal and few brave drove the enemy, overtook family and brought in some Afghan prisoners. He stayed on that ground few days in order to settle the affairs of Audh. During his said stay Babur heard from the people that the land lying along Sirda 7 or 8 kurohs (14-16 miles), above Audh, was a hunting-ground. Mir Muhammad the raftsman was sent out and returned after looking at the crossing over the Gagar-water (Gogra) and the Sirda-water (Chauka). Babur, fond of hunting, rode out to hunt on 2nd April, 1528 (ibid p.602)

5. There is no recording of Diary in Babur-Nama from 3rd April to 17 September, 1528. Ayodhya was under the Muslim rule for about last 300 years and under Babur's domain since 20th April 1526. As Bayzid was neither stationed in Ayodhya City nor his garrison, citadel or Army was there; question of a battle in Ayodhya for freeing Ayodhya from his control also didn't arise at all.

6. In 934 AH last entry in Babur-Nama is of Jumada II, 12th 934 corresponding to 2nd April 1528 A.D. while in 935 first entry therein is of Muharram 3rd 935 corresponding to 18th September 1528. As 935 AH commenced on 15th September 1528 for this year only 3 day's entries are missing. What Babur did during this interregnum can be fairly built up. A. S. Beveridge points out that "much can be gleaned of Babur's occupations during the 5 months of the lacuna from his chronicle of 934 and 935 A.H. which makes several references to occurrences of last year," If such references are put together it appears that Babur carried on his military operations against Afghans in the east and south Bihar as well. During this period five and half months he stayed at Jaunpur, Chausa and Buxar in defeating and driving away the Afghans and compelling them to take shelter in eastern Bihar and Bengal and after settling the affairs of the eastern region Babur returned to Agra (source: Ibid. 603-04).

Shri P.N. Mishra, Advocate has further argued that there was no person like Mir Baqi or Abdul Baqi associated with emperor Babur, accordingly the alleged Babri Mosque was not constructed at Sri Ramjanamsthan by the Minister/Governor of the emperor. His submissions are as under:-

THERE WAS NO PERSON NAMED MIR KHAN OR MIR BAQI OR ABDUL BAQI OR ABDUL BAQI ISPHAHANI ASSOCIATED WITH EMPEROR BABUR AS SUCH BUILDING OF ALLEGED BABARI MOSQUE AT SRI RAMJANAMSTHAN BY SUCH FICTITIOUS COMMANDER / MINISTER / GOVERNOR OF THE EMPEROR IN 923 A.H. 1. It is alleged that in 935 AH (corresponding to 15th September 1528 to 5th September 1529) one Mir Baqi named Counsellor & Minister of Emperor Babur built a Masjid in Ayodhya at the site of Sri Ramajanamasthan by demolishing the Temple of Sri Ramchandraji and utilizing its materials. In fact, nowhere in Babur-Nama a person by name of Mir Baqi has been mentioned. In the Indian context the name Baqi suffixed by Saghawal, Ming-Bashi has figured at 9 places in Beveridge's Translated Babur-Nama.

2. In 932 A.H. Baqi Shaghawal figures at pages 463, 546 of the Babur-Nama relevant extracts wherefrom read as follows:

4. In the year 935 A.H. Baqi, Baqi Tashkindi, Baqi Beg figures at pages 679,684 and 685 of the Babur-Nama relevant extracts wherefrom read as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"(May 27th) On Friday (19th) I rode out to visit Sikandarpur and Kharid. Today came matters written by 'Abdu'1-lah (kitabdar) and Baqi about the taking of Luknur.

"(June 13th) After crossing, we waited one day (Monday 7th) for all the army-folk to get across. Today Baqi Tashkindi came in with the army of Aud (Ajodhya) and waited on me."

As the Rains had set in and as after 5 or 6 months of active service, horses and cattle in the army were worn out, the sultans and begs of the expedition were ordered to remain where they were till they received fresh supplies from Agra and those parts. At the Other Prayer of the same day, leave was given to Baqi and the army of Aud (Ajodhya).
> (Babur-Nama p. 685)

From the above mentioned extracts of the Babur-Nama it becomes crystal clear that Baqi has been mentioned by Babur as Baqi Tashkindi ( i.e. Baqi, the inhabitant of Tashkent presently in Uzbekistan), Baqi Shaghawal (i.e. Baqi, the head Kazis and Mullas), Baqi Ming-Bashi (i.e Baqi, the commander of 1000 troops), Baqi Beg (i.e. Baqi, the Junior commander) and Baqi but nowhere in his Memoir Emperor Babur has mentioned him as Mir Baqi. From the Book Babar written by Stanley Lane-poole it is known that the Amir or Mir, Khan & Mirza titles were meant for the royal descents. Since nowhere in four corners of Babur-Nama epithet Mir has been used for Baqi it can be inferred with certainty that he was not a royal descent. From the aforesaid extracts it is also very much apparent that the 'Begs'. were junior Army Commanders and 'Sultans' were Senior Army Commanders, that is why in a campaign against Sheikh Bayazid being a Beg, Baqi Saghawal was put under the command of Chin-timur Sultan. Holding a meeting of Sultans and begs by Emperor Babur leaves no doubt that these two were designations of the Senior and Junior commanders respectively. Till 1929 Baqi was only Beg i.e. a junior commander of 1000 troops. Thus it is clear that commander of

www.vadaprativada.com

Audh's Army was Baqi Tashkindi who was Mingbashi the head of Qazis & Mullas in February 1526 AD, a Beg (Junior Commander) and Shaghawal ( Commander of 1000 troops) in 1528-29 AD and nor Mir Baqi which figures in the latter forged Inscriptions supplied to A.S. Beveridge for her publication in 1921 as also to Z.A. Desai for his publication in A.S.I's Report 1964-65 because in the former Inscriptions supplied to A. Fuhrer for his publication in A.S.I.'s Report in 1889 the builder of the alleged Masjid was named as Mir Khan.

Shri P.N. Misra has further argued that Islam guarantees religious freedom and tolerance and does not permit to usurp sacred places of other religion. The principal submissions made on his behalf before this Court are as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

ISLAM GUARANTEES RELIGIOUS FREEDOM & TOLERATION AND DOES NOT PERMIT TO USURP SACRED RELIGIOUS PLACE OF OTHERS:

1. The Holy Quran and the Holy Prophet has commanded that no one should be compelled to change religion, idolaters should be allowed to worship in their own way, the Holy Prophets have appeared in every community and they should not be compared but respected and a Muslim can maintain good relation with his Pagan (i.e. worshipper of multi -deities) relative.
2. The Holy Quran (Noble Quran, Surah-2 Al-Baqarah, Ayat 256 at p.58) commands that there is no compulsion in religion. English translation of the said Ayat reads as follows:

> "256. There is no compulsion in religion. Verily, the Right Path has become distinct from the wrong path. Whoever disbelieves in Taghut and believes in Allah, then he has grasped the most trustworthy handhold that will never break. And Allah is All-Hearer, All-Knower.
> (Noble Quran, Surah-2 Al-Baqarah, Ayat 256)

3. The Holy Quran (Noble Quran, Surah-107 Al-Ma'un, Ayat 1-6 at p.852-853) permits people of other religion to carry out their religious practices according to their own religion. English translation of the said Ayat reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "1. Say: (O Muhammad .. .. .. (Arabic text) .. .. to these Mushrikun and Kafirun): "O Al-Kafirun (disbelievers in Allah, in His Oneness, in His Angles, in His Books, in His Messengers, in the Day of Resurrection, and in Al-Qadar.)!
> 2. I worship not that which you worship.
> 3. Nor will you worship that which I worship.
> 4. And I shall not worship that you are worshipping.
> 5. Nor will you worship that which I worship.
> 6. To you be your religion, and to me my religion (Islamic Monotheism)."
> (Noble Quran, Surah-107 Al-Ma'un, Ayat 1-6 at p.852-853)

4. The Holy Quran (Noble Quran, Surah-10 Yunus, Ayat 47 at p.277) recognizes birth of Messengers of the Almighty in every community or nation. English translation of the said Ayat reads as follows:

> "47. And for every Ummah (a community or a nation) there is a Messenger, when their Messenger comes, the matter will be judged between them with justice,

www.vadaprativada.com

and they will not be wronged."

(Noble Quran, Surah-10 Yunus, Ayat 47 at p.277)

5. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 3.595 p.610-611 reveals that the Holy Prophet commanded not to give a Prophet superiority over another. Relevant portion of the said Hadith reads as follows:

> "The Prophet said, "Do not give a prophet superiority over another, for on the Day of Resurrection all the people will fall unconscious and I will be the first to emerge from the earth, and will see Moses standing and holding one of the legs of the Throne. I will not know whether Moses has fallen unconscious or the first unconsciousness was sufficient for him."
> (Hadith Sahih Bukhari 3.595 at p.611 )

6. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.407 reveals that Holy Prophet allowed a Muslim to keep good relation with his mother who was pagan i.e. idolater. The said Hadith reads as follows:

> 4.407:
> Narrated Asma 'bint Abi Bakr: During the period of the peace treaty of Quraish with Allah's Apostle, my mother, accompanied by her father, came to visit me, and she was a pagan. I consulted Allah's Apostle, "O Allah's Apostle! My mother has come to me and she desires to receive a reward from me, shall I keep good relation with her?" He said, "Yes, keep good relation with her."

Sri P.N. Mishra has further submitted that in 1526 A.D. after defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodhi, Babur became ruler of Delhi, Agra and Oudh and in view of the Principle of Darul Islam, he only acquired sovereignty rights. Thus it was not possible for him to change the nature of the land belonging to Hindus and the alleged creation of waqf is null and void. His submissions are as under:-

IN 1526 A.D. WHEN BABUR BECAME RULER OF DELHI, AGRA & OUDH DEFEATING SULTAN IBRAHIM LODI IN THE BATTLE OF PANIPAT THESE TERRITORIES WERE COMPRISED IN DAR-UL-ISLAM:

1. When in the year 1526 King Babur acquired sovereignty over Delhi, Agra and Oudh defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodi In the battle of Panipat those territories were constituent of 'Dar-ul-Islam for the reason that outgoing Sultan was a Muslim and during his reign Law of Shar was Law of the Land. Therefore by defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodi Emperor Babur acquired only those right of Sovereignty that a Islamic ruler had under Shar and; as Shar does not extinguish title of land owner on the basis of change of sovereignty or religion of the subjects he didn't become owner of the land owned by his Hindu subjects and their endowments. As a Hindu Endowment Ramajanamsthan Temple was already existing, Emperor Babur did not acquire ownership of that place as such alleged creation of Wakf for erection of Masjid thereon rendered the said alleged Wakf null and void.
2. Illustrated author and great jurist Syed Ameer Ali in his book the 'Spirit of Islam' (at p.215) describes the relationship between the citizens of three types of Nations Dar-ul-Islam i.e. an Islamic State, Dar-ul-Harb i.e. a State Ruled by belligerent non-Islamic Ruler, Dar-ul-Aman. i.e. a State Ruled by non-Islamic Ruler with which an Islamic State is at peace. Relevant extract of the said book reads as follows:

> "An examination, however, of the principles upon which the relations of Moslem states with non-Moslem countries were based, shows a far greater degree of liberality than has been evinced by Christian writers on international law. It is only in recent times, and under stress of circumstances that non-Christian states have been admitted into the "comity of nations". The Moslem jurists, on the other hand, differentiate between the condition of belligerency and that of peace. The expression, Dar-ul-Harb thus includes countries with which the Moslems are at war; whilst the States with which they are at peace are the Dar-ul-Aman. The harbi, the inhabitants of the Dar-ul-harb, is an alien, pure and simple. He has no right to enter Islamic States without express permission. But once he receives the aman or guarantee of safety from even the poorest Moslem, he is perfectly secure from molestation for the space of one year. On the expiration of that period, he is bound to depart. The inhabitant of the Dar-ul-aman is a mustamin. The aman may be for ever or for a limited duration, but so long as it lasts, the mustamin's treatment is regulated in strict accordance with the terms of the treaty with his country. The mustamins were governed by their own laws, were exempt from taxation and enjoyed other privileges.
> The spirit of aggression never breathed itself into that code which formally incorporated the Law of Nations with the religion; and the followers of Mohammed, in the plentitude of their power, were always ready to say to their enemies, 'Cease all hostility to us, and be our allies, and we shall be faithful to you; or pay tribute and we will secure and protect you in all your rights; or adopt our religion,

www.vadaprativada.com

> and you shall enjoy every privilege we ourselves posses."
> ( Spirit of Islam by Syed Ameer Ali at p.215)

3. Syed Ameer Ali in his book 'Commentaries on Mahommedan Law' also describes Dar-ul-Harb. Relevant extract from the foot note 1 of the said book reads as follows:

> "The Moslem jurists, like the jurists of Christendom, until very recent times, divided the world into two portions, one the Dar ul-Harb, and the other the Dar ul-Islam, the country of peace. Juridically, all Mussulman nations were at peace with each other. As a matter of fact, no Mussulman Sovereign could declare war against another without first pronouncing him to be a heretic and beyond the pale of Islam. The non-Moslem subjects of Moslem States are called Zimmis. The non-Moslem subjects of non-Moslem Sovereigns at peace with Islamic States are called Mustamins.

(Mohammedan Law by Syed Ameer Ali, 5th Edn. Reprint 2009, published by Hind Publishing House,Allahabad, p.301)

4. Fighting between two Muslim Rulers is not fighting between Dar-ul-Islam and Dar-ul-Herb but it is fighting between to armies of Islam for Superiority for the benefit of Islam and subject people. This is very much apparent from the extract quoted in the preceding paragraph from Syed Amir Ali's book as also, from the answer given by Sultan Sikandar Lodi to the Kalandar (i.e. a person who had no worldly desires). When said Darvesh conveyed the Sultan that he would attain victory in ongoing battle, the Sultan told him that when two Islamic armies are fighting decision should not be given in one's favour but only good wishes

should be given stating that who will be beneficial for Islam and subject people will attain victory. Relevant extract from the book Tabkati- Akbari published in the Book Uttar Taimoorkalin Bharat at page 227 reads as follows:

सुल्तान का क़लन्दर को उत्तर

कहा जाता है कि एक दिन जब वह अपने भाई बारबक शाह से युद्ध कर रहा था तो युद्ध के समय एक क़लन्दर[1] दृष्टिगत हुआ और उसका हाथ पकड़ कर उसने कहा "तेरी विजय है।" सुल्तान ने घृणा से अपना हाथ खींच लिया। दरवेश ने कहा कि, "मैं सुखद समाचार कहता हूँ और तुझे विजय की सूचना दे रहा हूं। किन्तु तू अपना हाथ किस कारण खींच रहा है?" उसने उत्तर दिया, "जब दो मुसलमान सेनाओं में युद्ध हो रहा हो तो एक के विषय में निर्णय न देना चाहिये अपितु वह कहना चाहिये कि जिससे इस्लाम का भला हो और जिससे प्रजा की उन्नति हो, उसे विजय हो और ईश्वर से यही शुभ कामना करनी चाहिए।"

Shri P.N. Misra, Advocate has argued that Muslims are bound to observe the law of Shar and transgression of divine law of Shar by an Islamic Ruler or Muslims is impermissible in Darul Islam. His submissions are as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

TRANSGRESSION OF DIVINE LAW OF SHAR BY AN ISLAMIC RULER AS WELL AS MUSLIMS IS IMPERMISSIBLITY IN DAR-UL-ISLAM:

1. Muslims are not free to lead the life of their choice and they are bound by the law of Shar. Muslims should not transgress law as enunciated in Shar otherwise they will lose their status of being Muslim. According to Shar Plunderer & looters are not Muslims. Islamic Ruler and Muslims are subject to Divine Law of Shar according to which duty of an Islamic Ruler is to guard the lives, honour and property of his subjects, maintain peace, check the evil-doer, and prevent injuries and; duty of Muslims is to disobey oppressive and sinful order of a Tyrant

www.vadaprativada.com

Ruler and refrain himself from such sinful acts. Muslims should not approve bad deed of the Amirs i.e. the rulers. Making a just statement before tyrannical ruler is a greatest type of Jihad. A person who acts as God against the unlawful, is kind to his neighbour and loves the people as he loves himself is Muslim, otherwise not.

2. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-III) Hadith 1601 reveals that plundering and looting the property of others is an open violation of Islamic Law. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> “1601. Anas narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: “Whoever plunders then he is not of us.” (Sahih)
> Comments:
> Plundering and looting the property of others is an open violation of Islamic Law and against the basic concept of brotherhood in Islam, therefore, according to the words used in this narration “He is not from us.”

3. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 8.763 reveals that the Holy Prophet said that at the time of commission of prohibited acts such as theft, robbery, drinking etc. a Muslim becomes non-Muslims. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> Narrated Abu Huraira: Allah's Apostle said, "When an adulterer commits illegal sexual intercourse, then he is not a believer at the time he is doing it; and when somebody drinks an alcoholic drink, then he is not believer at the time of drinking, and when a thief steals, he is not a believer at the time when he is stealing; and when a robber robs and the people look at him, then he is not a believer at the time of doing it." Abu Huraira in another narration, narrated the same from the Prophet with the exclusion of robbery.

4. The great Jurist & illustrated writer Syed Ameer Ali in his book 'Spirit of Islam' (at p.288-89) records duties of sovereigns of Islamic Nation towards their subjects as follows:

> "The importance which Islam attaches to the duties of the sovereigns towards their subjects, and the manner in which it promotes the freedom and equality of the people and protects them against the oppression of their rulers, is shown in a remarkable work on the reciprocal rights of sovereigns and subjects by Safi-ud-din Mohammed bin Ali bin Taba Taba, commonly known as Ibn ut-Tiktaka. The book was composed in 701 A.H. (1301-2) and is dedicated to fakhr ud-ain Isa bin Ibrahim, Ameer of Mosul.
> The first part deals with the duties of sovereigns to their subjects and the rules for the administration of public affairs and political economy. The author describes the qualities essential for a sovereign—wisdom, justice, knowledge of the wants and wishes of his people, and the fear of God; and adds emphatically that this latter quality is the root of all good, and the key to all blessings, "for when the king is conscious of the presence of God, His servants will enjoy the blessings of peace and security." The sovereign must also possess the quality of mercy, and "this is the greatest of all good qualities". He must have an ever-present desire to benefit his subjects, and consult with them on their wants, for the Prophet consulted always with his companions, and God hath said "Council with them on every affair". In the administration of public affairs, it is the sovereign's duty to superintendent the public income, guard the lives and property of his subjects, maintain peace, check the evil-doer, prevent injuries. He must always keep his word, and then, adds the author significantly, "the duty of the subject is obedience, but no subject is bound to obey a tyrant." Ibn rushd (the great Averroes) says, "the tyrant is he who governs for himself, and not for his people."

5. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 142 & 142R1 reveal that the Holy Prophet commanded that ruler must be honest in his dealing with those over whom he rules otherwise the ruler is cheater. Commentator explains that the Hadiths says that it is duty of the ruler to see that the life and honour of the subject people are protected and to ensure just social, political and economic system. Said Hadith as well as comments thereon read as follows:

[142] Hasan(1) reported: ;Ubaidullah b. Ziyād paid a visit to Ma'qil b. Yasīr Muzanī(2) in his illness which caused his death. Ma'qil said: I am going to narrate to you a hadīth which I have heard from the Messenger of Allah (SAW) and which I would not have transmitted if I knew that I would survive. Verily I have heard the Messenger of Allah (SAW) saying: There is no one amongst the bondsmen who was entrusted with the affairs of his subjects and he died in such a state that he was dishonest in his dealing with those over whom he ruled that the Paradise is not forbidden for him(3).

[142R1] Hasan reported: 'Ubaidullah b. Ziyād went to see Ma'qil b. Yasīr and he was in agony. He ('Ubaidullah) inquired (about his health) to which he (Ma'qil) replied: I am narrating to you a hadīth which I avoided narrating to you (before). Verily the Messenger of Allah (SAW) said: Allah does not entrust to his bondsman the reponsibility of managing the affairs of his subjects and he dies as a cheater (ruler) but Paradise is forbidden but Allah for such a (ruler). He(Ibn Ziyād) said: Why did you not narrate it to me before this day? He replied: I (in fact) did not narrate it to you as it was not (fit) for me to narrate that to you (4).

(3) Islam exhorts its followers to create a kingdom of heaven in their hearts but this kingdom of heart must be externalised in a just social, political and economic system. The ruler and the state have thus important responsibilities to shoulder. It is the bounden duty of the ruler to see that he acquits himself creditable of the responsibilities saddled on him. He should see that the life and honour of the people are protected. He should also see that no one falls victim to the high-handedness of another

6. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 1827-1829 reveal that Holy Prophet said that the ruler is a shepherd over the people and shall be questioned about his subjects as to how he conducted their affairs and if he is hard upon them, the Almighty will be hard upon him. Said Hadiths read as follows:

[1827] It has been narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah b. 'Umar that the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: Behold! the Dispensers of Justice will be seated on the pulpits of light beside God, on the right side of the Merciful, Exalted and Glorious[1]. Either side of the Being is the right side both being equally meritorious[2]. (The Dispensers of Justice are) those who do justice in their rules, in matters relating to their families and in all that they undertake to do.

[1828] It has been reported on the authority of 'Abdel-Rahmān b. Shumāsa who said: I came to 'Ā'isha to inquire something from her. She said: From which people art thou? I said: I am from the people of Egypt. She said: What was the behaviour of your governor towards you in this war of yours?[1] I said: We did not experience anything bad from him. If the camel of a man from us died, he would bestow on him a camel. If any one of us lost his slave, he would give him a slave. If anybody was in need of the basic necessities of life, he would provide them with provisions. She said: Behold! the treatment that was meeted out to my brother, Muhammad b. Abū Bakr, does not prevent me from telling you what I heard from the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him). He said in this house of mine: O God, who (happens to) acquire some kind of control over the affairs of my people and is hard upon them - be Thou hard upon him, and who (happens to) acquire some kind of control over the affairs of my people and is kind to them - be Thou kind to him.

[1829] It has been narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Umar that the Holy Prophet (may peace be upon him) said: Beware, every one of you is a shepherd and every one is answerable with regard to his flock. The Caliph is a shepherd over th people and shall be questioned about his subjects (as to how he conducted their affairs). A man is a guardian over the memebers of his family and shall be questioned about them (as to how he looked after their physical and moral well-being). A woman is a guardian over the household of her husband and his children and shall be questioned about them (as to how she managed the household and brought up the children). A slave is a guardian over the property of his master and shall be questioned about it (as to how he safeguarded his trust). Beware, every one of you is a guardian and every one of you shall be questioned with regard to his trust[2].

7. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 1839, 1840R1 reveal that Holy Prophet commanded the Muslims not to do a sin and if he is ordered to do a sinful act by the commander, a Muslim should neither listen to him nor should he obey his orders. The said Hadiths read as follows:

[1839] It has been narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Umar that the Holy Prophet (may peace be upon him) said: It is obligatory on a Muslim that he should listen (to the ruler appointed over him) and obey him whether he likes it or not, except that he is ordered to do a sin. If he is ordered to do a sinful act, a Muslim should neither listen to him nor should he obey his orders.

[1840R1] It has been narrated on the authority of 'Alī who said: The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) sent an expedition and appointed over the Mujāhids a man from the Ansār. (While making the appointment), he ordered that his word should be listened to and obeyed. They made him angry in a matter. He said: Collect for me dry wood. They collected it for him. Then he said: Kindle a fire. They kindled (the fire). Then he said: Didn't the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) order you to listen to me and obey (my orders)? They said: Yes. He said: Enter the fire. The narrator says: (At this), they began to look at one another and said: We fled from the fire to (find refuge with) the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) (and now you order us to enter it). They stood quiet until his anger cooled down and the fire went out. When they returned, they related the incident to the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him). He said: If they had entered it, they would not have come out. Obedience (to the commander) is obligatory only in what is good.

8. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 1854 & 1854R1 reveal that the Holy Prophet has commanded that Muslims should not approve bad deed of the Amirs i.e. the rulers. Said Hadith reads as follows:

[1854] It has been narrated on the authority of Umm Salama that the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: In the near future there will be Amīrs and you will like their good deeds and dislike their bad deeds. One who sees their bad deeds (and tries to prevent their repetition by his hand or through his speech), is absolved from blame, but one who hates their bad deeds (in the heat of his heart, being unable to prevent their recurrence by his hand or his tongue), is (also) safe (as far as God's wrath is concerned). But one who approves their bad deeds and imitates them is spiritually ruined. People asked (the Holy Prophet): Shouldn't we fight against them? He replied: No, as long as they say their prayers.

[1854R1] It has been narrated (through a different chain of transmitters) on the authority of Umm Salama (wife of the Holy Prophet) that he said: The Amīrs will be appointed over you, and you will find them doing good as well as bad deeds. One who hates their bad deeds is absolved from blame. One who disapproves their bad deeds is (also) safe (as far as Divine wrath is concerned). But one who approves their bad deeds and imitates them (is doomed). People asked: Messenger of Allah, shouldn't we fight against them? He replied: No, as long as they say their prayers. («Hating and disapproving» refers to liking and disliking from the heart).

9. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 1855R1 reveals that the Holy Prophet has commanded the

www.vadaprativada.com

Muslims to condemn such act of their rulers which is an act of disobedience to God i.e. the Holy ordinances of the Allah and his Holy Messenger. Said Hadith reads as follows:

[1855R1] It has been narrated on the authority of 'Auf b.Mālik Al-Ashja'ī who said that he heard the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) saying: The best of your rulers are those whom you love and who love you, upon whom you invoke God's blessings and who invoke His blessings upon you. And the worst of your rulers are those whom you hate and who hate you, who curse you and whom you curse. (Those present) said: Shouldn't we overthrow them at this? He said: No, as long as they establish prayer among you. No, as long as they establish prayer among you. Mind you! One who has a governor appointed over him and he finds that the governor indulges in an act of disobedience to God, he should condemn the governor's act, in disobedience to God, but should not withdraw himself from his obedience(1).

10. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-4) Hadith 2174 reveals that the Holy Prophet said that making a just statement before tyrannical ruler is a greatest type of Jihad. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> "2174. Abu Sa'eed Al-Khudri narrated that the Prophet said: 'Indeed, among the greatest types of Jihad is a just statement before a tyrannical ruler." (*Hasan)

From the said Hadith it is crystal clear that greatest Jihad would be to curse action of a tyrant ruler converting a temple into mosque in flagrant violation of Divine commands of Shar.

11. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 3.627-629 reveal that the Holy Prophet has strictly commanded to avoid oppression. Said Hadiths read as follows:

> Narrated Ibn `Umar: The Prophet said, "Oppression will be a darkness on the Day of Resurrection."
> 3.628:
> Narrated Ibn `Abbas: The Prophet sent Mu`adh to

www.vadaprativada.com

Yemen and said, "Be afraid, from the curse of the oppressed as there is no screen between his invocation and Allah."

Narrated Abu Huraira: Allah's Apostle said, "Whoever has oppressed another person concerning his reputation or anything else, he should beg him to forgive him before the Day of Resurrection when there will be no money (to compensate for wrong deeds), but if he has good deeds, those good deeds will be taken from him according to his oppression which he has done, and if he has no good deeds, the sins of the oppressed person will be loaded on him."

12. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-4) Hadith 2030 reveals that the Holy Prophet has cursed oppression. Said Hadith reads as follows;

www.vadaprativada.com

“2030. Ibn ‘Umar narrated that the Prophet said: ‘Oppression shall be darkness on the Day of Judgment.” (Sahih)

Comments:
Tyranny and oppression in this world shall be required by darkness and doom on the Day of Judgment to which the Quran refers when Allah rhetorically poses the question: “Who rescues you from the darkness of the land and the sea?”

13. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-4) Hadith 2324 reveals that the Holy Prophet has said that this world is a prison for Muslims and as the prisoner is not free to lead the life of his choice and is bound by the law of the prison and the whims of its officers in the similar manner Muslims are also not free to lead life of their choice and they are bound by the law of Shar. Said Hadith as well as the

comment thereto read as follows:

> "2324. Abu Hurairah narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "The world is a prison for the believer and Paradise for the disbeliever. (Sahih)
> Comments:
> The main characteristic of a prison is that the prisoner in it is not free to lead a life of his choice, but is bound by the laws of the prison and the whims of its officers. He is neither free in eating and drinking, nor in sleeping and awakening, nor in moving about nor in meeting with the people at will. In short, he has no freedom of any kind in a prison house, and has willy-nilly to obey the orders of others. The second thing is that no prisoner loves his prison like home, but is always on the lookout to somehow get rid of it. Paradise, on the other hand, is a place where the inhabitants will have no such restrictions. Each person will live a life of his choice, and every desire of his will be fulfilled and he will never feel the desire to get out of it."

14. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2683 reveals that the Holy Prophet has directed the Muslims to refrain from any kind of major and minor sins. Said Hadith and comment thereto read as follows:

> "2683. Ibn Ashwa narrated from Yazid bin Salamah Al-Ju 'fi, he said: 'Yazid bin Salamah said: 'O Messenger of Allah! I heard so many narrations from you that I am afraid the last of them will cause me to forget the first of them. So narrate a statement to me that will encompass them.' So he said: "Have Taqwa of Allah with what you learn." (Da'if)
> Comments:
> The extract and a full outcome of the whole religion is Taqwa, for this objective the Prophets, Messengers and the Books were sent; and Taqwa is to refrain from any kind of major and minor sins, it big and small."

15. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2687 reveals that the Holy Prophet has commanded the

www.vadaprativada.com

Muslims to accept everything that is good and perfect setting aside the worldly benefits, objectives and lusts. Said Hadith and comments thereto read as follows:

> "2687. Abu Hurairah narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "The wise statement is the lost property of the believer, so wherever he finds it, then he is more worthy of it. (Da'if)
> Comments:
> In the creation and nature of human, the passion of obedience and submission is planted, which is the origin and source of every good and righteousness, but because of worldly benefits, objectives and lusts it becomes neglectful of good and righteousness, whereas the demand of its nature and habit is to accept everything that is good and perfect."

16. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2826 reveals that if there is anyone to whom the Holy Prophet has made a promise it must be complied by the Rulers. Said Hadith read as follows:

> "2826. Isma'll bin Abi Khalid narrated that Abu Juhaifah said: "I saw the Messenger of Allah (he was) white and turning grey. Al Hasan bin 'Ali resembles him most. He had promised thirteen young she-camels for us, so we went to get them. When we arrived he had died without giving us anything. So, when Abu Bakr (became the Khalifah) he said 'If there is anyone to whom the Messenger of Allah made a promise, then let him come forth.' I stood to inform him about it, and he ordered that they be given to us." (Sahih)

17. The Muwatta' Imam Malik 959 and 960 reveal that the Muslims should neither break vows nor kill disbelievers breaking promise of protection given to him. Said Muwatta nos. 959 & 960 read as follows:

(959) It reached Mālik that ʻŮmar b. ʻAbd al-ʻAzîz wrote to one of his administrators : We have learnt that whenever the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) sent out force, he used to command them : Fight taking the name of the Lord. You are fighting in the cause of the Lord with people who have disbelieved and rejected the Lord ; do not commit theft, do not break vows ; do not cut ears and noses, do not kill women and children. Communicate this to your armies. If God wills ! Peace be on you.

(960) A man of Kûfah reported that 'Umar b. al-Khattāb wrote to a commander of the army: I have received information that some of you call an unbeliever when he mounts a hillock and gives up fighting, and ask him not to fear and then, getting the opportunity, kill him. I swear by Him Who is the Master of my life, if I should learn anyone doing so, I shall behead him.

18. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-4) Hadith 2305 reveals that the Holy Prophet has said that a person who acts as guard against the unlawful, is kind to his neighbour and loves the people as he loves himself is Muslim, otherwise not. The said Hadith reads as follows:

> “2305. Al-Hasan narrated from Abu Hurairah that the Messenger of Allah said: “Who will take these statements from me, so that he may act upon them, or teach one who will act upon them?” So Abu Hurairah said: “I shall O Messenger of Allah! So he took my hand and enumerated five (things), he said: “Be on guard against the unlawful and you shall be the most worshipping among the people, be satisfied with what Allah has allotted for you and you shall be the richest of the people, be kind to your neighbor and you shall be a believer, love for the people what you love for yourself and you shall be a Muslim. And do not laugh too much, for indeed increased laughter kills the heart.” (Da‘if)

As such a person who laid down foundation of his building on hatred was not a Muslim and the structure alleged to be erected by him was not a mosque.

19. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-4) Hadith 1987 reveals that the Holy Prophet has commanded the Muslims to follow an evil deed with a good one to wipe it out and treat the people with good behavior . Said Hadith reads as follows:

> "1987. Abu Dharr said: "the Messenger of Allah said to me: 'Have Taqwa of Allah wherever you are, and follow an evil deed with a good one to wipe it out, and treat the people with good behavior." (Hasan)

It is further contended that freedom of religion and religious practices to Hindus under Islamic rule was granted to Hindus. His submissions are in many fold and they are as under:-

FREEDOM OF RELIGION & RELIGIOUS PRACTICES TO HINDUS UNDER ISLAMIC RULE & MUSLIM LAW WAS GRANTED TO THE HINDUS:

www.vadaprativada.com

1. Law of Shar as interpreted by Great Imam Abu Haneef recognized right of freedom of religion & religious practices of the Hindus of India under Islamic Rulers. Sultan Sikandar Lodi was dissuaded by the Greatest Alim of that age Miyan Abdullah Ajodhani from demolishing a Hindu Temple & putting ban on religious practices of the Hindus. Even Emperor Auragzeb who later on caused demolition of several Temples of the Hindus throughout his Empire in his Farman dated 1659 has admitted that Shariyat does not permit to demolish old Temples and impose restriction on performance of customary and other religious rituals of the Hindus. Ibn Battuta tells that Muhammad bin Tughlaq had granted permission to rebuild demolished Idol Temples to the King of China. During the reign of Caliphs, the people of other faith i.e. Zimmis were allowed to carry out processions, observe festivals, beat drums, erect places of worship & maintain images therein.

2. In Waqiyat-i –Mutaqi written by Rizkulah Mutaqi (b.1491-92 & d. 1581 A.D.), Tabkats I Akbari by Khwaja Nizamuddin Ahmad (completed in 1592-93 A.D.) and Tarikh-i-Shahi (completed in the beginning of Emperor Jahangir's reign) it has been narrated that once upon a time when Sultan Sikandar Lodi (r. 1488-1517 A.D.) was the Crown prince and known as Nizam Khan, he sought opinion of the Alims for the purpose of demolishing an ancient temple of the Hindus at Thaneshwar and putting ban on Hindus from taking holy dip in the Sacred pond at Thaneshwar. Alims unanimously made a request to him for putting that question to Greatest Alim of the age Miyan Abdullah Ajodhani who was available at that place. On being asked the Great Alim Abdullah Ajodhani replied that Shar does not permit destruction of ancient temple and prohibition of customary rites of the Hindus. From said answer Sikandar Lodi became very much annoyed and drew his sword inter alia stating that 'first I will kill you and thereafter attack Thaneshwar'. Then said Alim fearlessly answered that 'everyone has to die on one day and when anyone goes near a tyrant then he does it knowing fully well that his death is certain. I am not worried about my life but I say that if you had nothing to do with Shar then there was no need to put this question to me but since you asked me that question of Shar I replied it in accordance with Shar' . कुरुक्षेत्र पर आक्रमण की योजना

श्यकता नहीं।" सुल्तान ने अपने क्रोध को रोका और कहा कि, "यदि अनुमति प्रदान कर देते तो कई हज़ार काफ़िरों को नरक पहुंचा देता और अधिकांश मुसलमान उससे लाभान्वित होते।" मियां अब्दुल्लाह ने कहा कि, "मुझे जो कुछ कहना था मैंने कह दिया, अब आप जानें।" वह दरबार से उठ खड़ा हुआ। अन्य आलिम लोग उसके साथ चल दिये। मलिकुल उलमा[९] अपने स्थान पर खड़े रहे। मियां निज़ाम ने किसी अन्य ओर ध्यान न दिया और कहा, "मियां अब्दुल्लाह आप कभी-कभी मुझसे भेंट करते रहें।" यह कह कर उन्हें विदा कर दिया। बाल्यावस्था में उसकी यह दशा थी।

उसने अपनी बाल्यावस्था में जब कि वह शाहज़ादा था यह सुना कि थानेश्वर में एक कुण्ड है, जहां हिन्दू एकत्र होकर स्नान करते हैं। उसने आलिमों से पूछा कि "इसके विषय में शरा[१] का क्या आदेश हैं?" उन्होंने उत्तर दिया कि "प्राचीन मंदिरों को नष्ट करने की अनुमति नहीं है। जब कि उस कुण्ड में प्राचीन काल से स्नान करने की प्रथा चली आ रही है, उसमें स्नान का निषेध आपके लिए उचित नहीं।" शाहज़ादे ने कटार निकाल ली और उस आलिम की हत्या का संकल्प करते हुए कहा कि ,"तू काफ़िरों का पक्षपाती है।" उस बुज़ुर्ग ने उत्तर दिया कि, "जो कुछ शरा में लिखा है उसे मैं कहता हूँ और सत्य बात कहने में कोई भय नहीं।" शाहज़ादा संतुष्ट हो गया।

एक दिन उसने आदेश दिया कि "थानेश्वर जाकर कुर्कक्षेत्र (कुरुक्षेत्र) को मिट्टी से पाट दिया जाय और वह भूमि वहां के धर्मनिष्ठ व्यक्तियों को बजहे मआश में नाप कर दे दी जाय।" उस काल का मलिकुल उलमा उस स्थान पर उपस्थित था। उसने शाहज़ादे से पूछा, "वहां क्या है?" उसने उत्तर दिया कि, "एक हौज़ है जहां १०००, २००० कोस से हिन्दू लोग स्नान हेतु आते हैं।" उसने पूछा, "कब से यह कार्य प्रारम्भ हुआ?" शाहज़ादे ने कहा, "वर्षों से यह बिदअत[१] चल रही है।" मलिकुल उलमा ने पुनः पूछा, "आप के पूर्व के बादशाह इस विषय में क्या करते थे?" उसने उत्तर दिया, "कुछ नहीं।" मलिकुल उलमा ने कहा, "यह तुम्हारा उत्तरदायित्व नहीं कारण कि तुम्हारे पूर्व मुसलमान बादशाहों ने इस विषय में कुछ नहीं किया?" शाहज़ादा इस बात से बड़ा गरम हुआ। उसने कहा, "इस काल (३१) के आलिम बड़े विचित्र प्रकार के हैं।" संक्षेप में, युवावस्था में वह इस्लाम का इतना बड़ा पक्ष-पाती था।

3. In his Farman/Manshur of Emperor Aurangzeb of 15th March, 1659 AD. has said that in accordance with the Sharia the ancient temples, are not to be destroyed as such there should be no interference in offering prayers in temples of the Hindus. In spite of the fact that subsequently this ruler himself caused demolition of the Ram Janamsthan temple at Ajodhya and other famous temples of the Hindus including those of Varanasi and Mathura, in his Farman dated 1659 he has accepted that sharia neither permit to interfere with the worship of the Hindus nor allows to destroy their temples. The extract of the Farman taken from page 142 the book Mughal Documents AD.1628-59, Volume-II compiled and translated by S.A.I. Tirmizi and published by Manohar

Publishers, Delhi, 1995 Edn. reads as follows:

426. Manshur of Aurangzeb addressed to Abul Hasan[1] states that it has been brought to the notice of the royal court that the Brahmins of Banaras are being removed from their ancient offices and that Hindus of Banaras and its neighbourhood are harassed. In accordance with the sharia the ancient temples, are not to be destroyed and new ones are not to be built and since our innate kindness of disposition and natural benevolence, the whole of our untiring energy and our upright intentions are engaged in promoting the public welfare and bettering the condition of all classes, high and low, it is ordered that no person should interfer with or disturb the Brahmins and other Hindus so that they may, as before, remain in their ancient occupation and engage themselves with peace of mind in offering prayers for the continuance of our God-gifted empire so that it may last for ever (JPHS, V(1)., pp. 247-48).

4. Ibn Battuta who held the office of the Kazi of Delhi as also functioned as Mutawalli of the Mausoleum of Sultan Kutubuddin during the reign of Sultan Mahommed Bin Tughlaq has noted down that Sultan Mahommed Bin Tughlaq had granted permission to the King of China to rebuild the idol temples that were demolished by his army in Himalayan region subject to payment of Jizya. Relevant extract from page 214 of his book 'IBN BATTUTA Travels in Asia and Africa 1325 -1354' translated and selected by H.A.R. Gibb first published in 1929 reprinted in 2007 by Low Price Publications, Delhi ) reads as follows:

THE king of China had sent valuable gifts to the sultan, including a hundred slaves of both sexes, five hundred pieces of velvet and silk cloth, musk, jewelled garments and weapons, with a request that the sultan would permit him to rebuild the idol-temple which is near the mountains called Qarájíl [Himalaya]. It is in a place known as Samhal, to which the Chinese go on pilgrimage; the Muslim army in India had captured it, laid it in ruins and sacked it.[1] The sultan, on receiving this gift, wrote to the king saying that the request could not be granted by Islamic law, as permission to build a temple in the territories of the Muslims was granted only to those who paid a poll-tax; to which he added "If thou wilt pay the jizya we shall empower thee to build it. And peace be on those who follow the True Guidance."

5. Great Jurist syed Amir Ali in his book 'The Spirit of Islam' (at p.272) substantiate that the Islam itself has ever maintained the most complete tolerance in respect of religion and if any excesses was done, it was by the passions of the ruler. Using religious element as a pretext. Relevant extract of the said book reads as follows:

> "If we separate the political necessity which has often spoken and acted in the name of religion, no faith is more tolerant than Islam to the followers of other creeds. "Reasons of State" have led a sovereign here and there to display a certain degree of intolerance, or to insist upon a certain uniformity of faith; but the system itself has ever maintained the most complete tolerance. Christians and Jews, as a rule, have never been molested in the exercise of their religion, or constrained to change their faith. If they are required to pay a special tax, it is in lieu of military service, and it is but right that those who enjoy the protection of the State should contribute in some shape to the public burdens. Towards the idolaters there was greater strictness in theory, but in practice the law was equally liberal. If at any time they were treated with harshness, the cause is to be found in the passions of the ruler or the population. The religious element was used only as a pretext."

6. The 'Spirit of Islam' (at p.273) records the facts that the Holy Prophet gave guarantee of freedom of religion to the Christians of Najram and the neighboring territories, inter alia, stating that there would be no interference with the practice of their faith, monks would not be removed from their Monastery and no image would be destroyed. Relevant extract from the said book reads as follows:

> "Has any conquering race or Faith given to its subject nationalities a better guarantee than is to be found in the following words of the prophet?
> "To [the Christians of] Najran and the neighbouring territories, the security of God and the pledge of His Prophet are extended for their lives, their religion, and the property- to the present as well as the absent and other besides; there shall be no interference with [the practice of] their faith or their observances; nor any change in their rights or privileges; no bishop shall be removed from his bishopric, nor any monk from his monastery, nor any priest from his priesthood, and they shall continue to enjoy everything great and small as heretofore; no image or cross shall be destroyed; they shall not oppress or be oppressed; they shall not practice the rights of blood-vengeance as in the Days of ignorance, no tithes shall be levied from them nor shall they be required to furnish provisions for the troops."

7. The 'Spirit of Islam' (at p.273-74) records the facts that during the reign of Caliphs, the people of other faith i.e. Zimmis were allowed to carry out processions, observe festivals, beat drums, erect places of worship. Relevant extract of the said book reads as follows:

> "After the subjugation of Hira, and as soon as the people had taken the oath of allegiance, Khalid bin-Walid issued a proclamation by which he guaranteed the lives, liberty and property of the Christians, and declared that "they shall not be prevented from bearing their nakas and taking out their crosses on occasions of festivals." "And ths declaration" says Imam Abu-Yusuf was approved of and sanctioned by the Caliph and his council.
> The non-Moslem subjects were not precluded from building new churches or temples. Only in places exclusively inhabited by Moslems a rule of this kind existed in theory. "No new Church or temple", said Abdullah bin Abbas, "can be erected in a town solely inhabited by Moslems; but in other places where there are already Zimmis inhabiting from before, we must abide by our contract with them".

"The best testimony to the toleration of the early Moslem government is furnished by the Christians themselves. In the reign of Osman (the third Caliph), the Christians patriarch of Merv addressed the bishop of Fars, named Simeon, in the following terms: "The Arabs who have been given by God the kingdom (of the earth) do not attack the Christian faith, on the contrary they help us in our religion; they respect our God and our Saints, and bestow gifts on our churches and monasteries."

It is further submitted that according to the Holy Prophet in one land there cannot be two Qibalahs or Idgah & mosque, as such Sri Ramjanmasthan Temple and a mosque cannot co-exists in disputed site. His submissions are as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

ACCORDING TO THE HOLY PROPHET IN ONE LAND THERE CANNOT BE TWO QIBALAHS OR IDGAH & MOSQUE AS SUCH SRI RAMJANMASTHAN TEMPLE AND A MOSQUE CAN NOT CO-EXIST IN DISPUTED SITE:

1. The Holy Prophet has commanded that there must not be two sacred buildings of worship of two different religions in one land, in other words there cannot be a Masjid and an Idol Temple in one land. In view of the fact that in his said command the Holy Prophet has said that as Jizyah cannot be imposed upon Muslim, two Qiblahs cannot be in one land, coexistence of two Qiblas one of Hindus and other of Muslims in one land is mandatorily forbidden according to Shar. The Holy Prophet also says that neither prayer can be offered by forming rows between two columns nor funeral prayer can be offered in a mosque. An Idgah is a place where funeral prayers or the prayers of the two Ids are usually offered, as such same site cannot be a Masjid and Idgah. The Holy Quran says that foundation of a Masjid from very first day must be laid on piety not on hypocrisy and it must be always maintained by the Muslims. The Holy Prophet says that a Masjid must not be used as a home and place of gossiping. Imam Aboo Yoosuf and Imam Moohummud the disciples of the Great Imam Abu Haneef say that if at least two times prayer is not offered followed by Adhan/Ajan then the place is not a Public Mosque. It is admitted position that in the same land Temples were/are present prior to alleged erection of Mosque and even after the alleged erection of Mosque it retained columns of Hindu Temple. According to some of the plaintiffs admission lastly prayer was offered on 16th December 1949 while it was occupied in the night of 22/23rd December 1949 in abandoned condition. All these things as well as presence of Chulha as found during the ASI's excavation indicates that said building was being used as home of Deities and Sevayats & Pujaris; as it never acquired the status of a Masjid according to Muslim Law and belief no declaration as prayed for can be granted.

2. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith

633 reveals that in one land there must not be two Religious buildings of two different religions. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> "633. Ibn Abbas narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "Two Quiblahs in one land are of no benefit, and there is no Jizyah upon the Muslims. "(Da'if)

3. Divine Holy Quran Surah 9 At-Taubah Ayat 18 commands that Mosques can be maintained only by Muslims not by persons of other faith. Said Holy Ayat reads as follows:

> 256. There is no compulsion in religion. Verily, the Right Path has become distinct from the wrong path. Whoever disbelieves in Tâghût[11] and believes in Allâh, then he has grasped the most trustworthy handhold that will never break. And Allâh is All-Hearer, All-Knower.

4. Neil B.E. Baillie in his Book 'A Digest of Mahommedan Law' Part-First (Second Edition 1875) at its page 616 records that Imam Aboo Yoosuf and Imam Moohummud the disciples of the Great Imam Abu Haneef say that if at least two times prayer is not offered followed by Adhan/Ajan then the place is not a Public Mosque. Relevant extract from the above referred pages reads as follows:

> When an assembly of worshippers pray in a musjid with permission, that is delivery. But it is a condition that the prayers be with izan, or the regular call, two times or more, and be public, not private. For though there should be an assembly, yet if it is without izan, and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no musjid according to the two disciples. But if one person were appointed to officiate both as mooezzin and imam, and he should make the call, and then stand up and pray alone, the place would become a musjid by general agreement.

5. Divine Holy Quran Surah 9 At-Taubah Ayat 107-110

commands that foundation of a Mosque must be laid from the first day on piety not hypocracy otherwise a mosque built by hypocrite is destined to crumble down. The said Holy Ayat reads as follows:

107. And as for those who put up a mosque by way of harm and disbelief and to disunite the believers and as an outpost for those who warred against Allâh and His Messenger (Muhammad صلى الله عليه وسلم) aforetime, they will indeed swear that their intention is nothing but good. Allâh bears witness that they are certainly liars.

108. Never stand you therein. Verily, the mosque whose foundation was laid from the first day on piety is more worthy that you stand therein (to pray). In it are men who love to clean and to purify themselves. And Allâh loves those who make themselves clean and pure [i.e. who clean their private parts with dust (which has the properties of soap) and water from urine and stools, after answering the call of nature].

109. Is it then he who laid the foundation of his building on piety to Allâh and His Good Pleasure better, or he who laid the foundation of his building on the brink of an undetermined precipice ready to crumble down, so that it crumbled to pieces with him into the Fire of Hell. And Allâh guides not the people who are the Zâlimûn (cruel, violent, proud, polytheist and wrong-doer).

Be it mentioned herein that this Holy Ayat came down in respect of Masjid-i-Jarar built in Madina by the hyporites with ulterior motive. Ultimately this Masjid was burnt and destroyed on command of the Holy Prophet.

6. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.403 reveals that the Holy Prophet has termed such a person hypocrite who breaks promise, did not honour covenant, tells lie and behave in a very imprudent and misleading manner. The said Hadith reads as follows:

> "4.403:
> Narrated `Abdullah bin `Amr: Allah's Apostle said, "Whoever has (the following) four characteristics will be a pure hypocrite: "If he speaks, he tells a lie; if he gives a promise, he breaks it, if he makes a covenant he proves treacherous; and if he quarrels, he behaves in a very imprudent evil insulting manner (unjust). And whoever has one of these characteristics, has one characteristic of a hypocrite, unless he gives it us."

7. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2684 reveals that two things will not be together in a hypocrite that is to say good manners and fiqh in the religion. Said Hadiths and comments thereto read as follows:

> "2684. Abu Hurairah narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "Two things will not be together in a hypocrite: Good manners, and Fiqh in the religion." (Da'if)

www.vadaprativada.com

8. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.1) Hadith 321 reveals that Masjid cannot be used as a home nor a place for gossiping. Relevant portion of said Hadith reads as follows:

> "321. ...
> Ibn Abbas said, "It is not to be used as a home nor a place for talking about this or that."

In view of the fact that during the ASI's excavation at suit premises a chulha (an oven) has been found. It leaves no doubt that said structure was being used as home of Hindu deity and chulha was being used for preparing food for the deity as such said structure cannot be inferred to be a Masjid.

9. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.1) Hadith 229 reveals that the Holy Prophet had commanded the Muslims not to pray between two columns. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> “229. Abdul-Hamid bin Mahmud said: “We prayed behind one of the Amirs, the people compelled us such that we prayed between two columns. When we had prayed, Anas bin Malik said: ‘We would be prevented from this during the time of Allah’s Messenger.” (Sahih)

As in the disputed structure there were admittedly several columns and in course of forming rows for offering prayer those columns were unavoidable the said structure was not fit for offering prayer.

10. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-II) 973 as interpreted by Imam Abu Hanifa on the basis of a Hadith recorded in Abu Dawud reveal that funeral prayer in the Mosque was prohibited.

[973] 'Abbād b. 'Abdullah b. Zubair reported that 'Ā'isha ordered that the bier of Sa'd b. Abū Waqqās be brought into the mosque, so she can pray for him. The people disapproved this (act) of hers. She said: How soon the people have forgotten that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) had offered the funeral prayer of Suhail b. Al-Baidā' but in a mosque [1].

(1) There is a difference of opinion among the jurists whether a funeral prayer can be offered in a mosque or not. It is on the basis of this hadīth that Imām Shāfi'ī of the view that it can be offered in a mosque. Imām Abū Hanīfa and Imām Mālik on the basis of a hadīth recorded in Abū Dāwûd (viz. The Messenger of Allah said: He who offers funeral prayer in the mosque has nothing for him) disapprove saying the funeral prayer in the mosque. The scholars of Hadīth.

11. In Idgahs/Musallas funeral prayers can be offered. In his book Mahommedan Law, Syed Ameer Ali, describes Mosques and Idghas or Musalla as follows:

> "The word masjid is derived from sijda, devotion, and means a place of devotion or a place where prayers are offered to the Almighty.
> A very fair description of an ordinary mosque is given by Herklot in his Qanoon-i-Islam. Musallas are prayer-grounds, and the word is derived from the word salat or prayers. In India, they are generally called Idgahs or namaz-gahs, and consist of a plot of ground set apart for the performance of the daily prayers or the Id prayers."

> "Every ground set apart for prayers is not necessarily a musallah and subject to the rules governing a mosque. A musalla is a place where funeral prayers or the prayers of the two Ids are usually offered. In such cases only the place where the congregation gather and the worship is performed that is governed by the rules governing a mosque.

Sri P.N. Mishra, Advocate has further argued that Hindus were recognized as Zimmis by the Great Iman Abu Haneef as such Emperor Babar being follower of said Imam's school had no right to errect mosque over Hindu Shrine. His submissions are as under:-

IDOLATOR HINDUS WERE RECOGNIZED AS

ZIMMIS BY THE GREAT IMAM ABU HANEEF AS SUCH EMPEROR BABAR BEING FOLLOWER OF SAID IMAM'S SCHOOL HAD NO RIGHT TO ERECT MOSQUE OVER HINDU SHRINE:

1. Hindus were recognized as Jimmis by in 712 AD by the Great Imam Abu Haneef by virtue of authorities conferred upon the Doctors of Islam by Hadiths for the purpose of showing the people right path on the basis of correct interpretation of Law of Shar.
2. Mahomed Kasim Feristha in his book Tarikhe Feristha records that in reply to a question of Sultan Allaooddeen Khiljy, Kaji Mugdis answered him that the Hindus were granted status of Jimmi by the Great Imam Abu Huneef. Relevant extract from page 198 of the English Translation of the said book ["History of the rise of the Mahomedan Power in India till the year AD 1612" translated by John Briggs first published in 1829 reprinted in 2006 by Low Price Publications, Delhi] reads as follows:

is it lawful to exact obedience and tribute?"—Answer. "It is lawful to exact obedience and tribute from all infidels, and they can only be considered as obedient who pay the poll-tax and tribute without demur, even should it be obtained by force; for, according to the law of the Prophet, it is written, regarding infidels, 'Tax them to the extent that they can pay, or utterly destroy them.' The learned of the faith have also enjoined the followers of Islam, 'To slay them, or to convert them to the faith;' a maxim conveyed in the words of the Prophet himself. The Imam Huneef, however, subsequently considers that the poll-tax, or as heavy a tribute imposed upon them as they can bear, may be substituted for death, and he has accordingly forbidden that their blood should be heedlessly spilt. So that it is commanded that the Juzeea (poll-tax) and Khiraj (tribute) should be exacted to the uttermost farthing from them, in order that the punishment may approximate as nearly as possible to death.

3. In 712 AD Imam Abu Hanifah recognized the Hindus of Sind and Multan as Jimmis it has been recorded on page 538 in the book 'The Mughal Empire' edited by renowned historian R. C. Majumdar (3rd Edn. 1990 published by Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, Bombay). The relevant extract from the said book reads as follows:

in 712 A.D. Muhammad bin Qāsim, the conqueror of Sind, accorded the Hindus of Sind and Multan the status of zimmīs which was the special privilege of Christians and Jews, the famous Muslim Jurist, Abu Hanifah, recognised this enactment as legal.

4. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2681, 2682 & 2685 reveal that a learned jurist is greater than a thousand worshipers. Commentator explains that as a learned jurist does not only correct himself and is safe from the illusion of the Saitan, but also he protects others against the plots, conspiracies and errors of the devil and he guides them correctly by teaching the issues of religion he is superior than a dedicated worshiper who does not have firm knowledge, the benefit of his worship is restricted to his own self, and also it is easy for the Satan to misguide him. From the said Hadith it can be inferred that superiority to the learned jurist has been given only for the purpose to tell the people what is right or wrong according to religion. Said Hadiths read as follows:

"2681. Ibn Abbas narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "The Faqih is harder on Ash-Shaitan than a thousand worshippers."(Da'if)

Comments:
A dedicated worshipper who does not have firm knowledge, the benefit of his worship is restricted to his own self, and also it is easy for the Satan to misguide him; while a learned jurist does not only correct himself and is safe for the illusion of the Satan, but also he protects others against the plots, conspiracy and errors of the devil and he guides them correctly by teaching the issues of religion.

2682. Qais bin Kathir said: "A man from Al-Madhinah came to Abu Ad-Darda when he was in Dimashq. So he said: "What brings you O my nephew ? He replied: 'A Hadith has reached me which you have narrated from the Messenger of Allah'. He said: 'You did not come for some need?' He said: 'No'. He said: 'Did you come for trade?' He said: 'No, I did not come except seeking this Hadith'. So he said: 'Indeed, I heard the Messenger of Allah saying: 'Whoever takes a path upon which he seeks knowledge, then Allah makes a path to Paradise easy for him. And indeed the angels lower their wings in approval of the one seeking knowledge. Indeed forgiveness is sought for the knowledgeable one by whomever is in the heavens and whomever is in the earth, even the fish in the waters. And superiority of the scholar over the worshipper is like the superiority of the moon over the rest of the celestial bodies. Indeed the scholars are the heirs of the Prophets, and the Prophets do not leave behind Dinar or Dirham. The only legacy of the scholars is knowledge, so whoever takes from it, then he has indeed taken the most able share. (Da'if)

2685. Abu Umamah Al-Bahili narrated: "Two men were mentioned before the Messenger of Allah. One of them a worshipper, and the other a scholar. So, the Messenger of Allah said: 'The superiority of the scholar over the worshipper is like my superiority over the least of you.' Then the Messenger of Allah said: 'Indeed Allah, His angels, the inhabitants of the heavens and the earths – even the ant in his hole, even the fish – say Sulat upon the one who teaches the people to do good." It is further submitted by Shri P.N. Misra that it was mandatory upon the Army of Islam to protect the shrine and life of Hindus since they were regularly making payment of Jazia, which was a tax for protection and freedom of religion for Hindus. Accordingly Babur or Mir Baqi and no authority under the Islam to convert the temple into a mosque or to erect a mosque over the Hindu shrine. His submissions are as under:-

1. The Divine Law of Shar contained in Holy Quran and Hadiths guarantees freedom of religion and religious practices to the Jimmis/Dhimmiz (protectees) who pay jizya (a tax taken from the non-Muslims who are in the protection of the Muslim government). There were 20 conditions of Jeziyah one of which permits Muslim traveler to stay in Jimmis' temple while other permits them to stay in Jimmis' home for three days. These terms and condition were in practce which is very much apparent from the disclosure of Ibn Battuta that he stayed in the house of an old lady who was a Jimmy as in the city there was only one House of the Governor. Riyazu-S- Salatin, A History of Bengal on its page 67 has recorded the fact that Bakhtiyar Khilaji stayed

2. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.386 p.836-837 reveals that the Holy Prophet's command was for the Muslim army to fight against the persons of other faith till they worship Allah alone or agree to pay jizya. Relevant portion of the said Hadith reads as follows:

> "Our Prophet, the Messenger of our Lord, has ordered us to fight you till you worship Allah Alone or give Jizya (i.e. tribute); and our Prophet has informed us that our Lord says:-- "Whoever amongst us is killed (i.e. martyred), shall go to Paradise to lead such a luxurious life as he has never seen, and whoever amongst us remain alive, shall become your master."

3. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.404 p.843-844 reveals that asylum to non-Muslims living in Muslim territory was granted by Allah and His Holy Apostle. Relevant extract of the said Hadith reads as follows:

> "… Narrated said: Abu Huraira once said (to the people), "What will your state be when you can get no Dinar or Dirhan (i.e. taxes from the Dhimmis) ?" on that someone asked him, "What makes you know that this state will take place, O Abu-Huraira ?" He said, "By Him in Whose Hands Abu Huraira's life is, I know it through the statement of the true and truly inspired one (i.e. the Prophet). "The people asked, "What does the Statement say ?" He replied, "Allah and His Apostle's asylum granted to Dhimmis, i.e. non-Muslims living in a Muslim territory will be outraged, and so Allah will make the hearts of those Dhimmis so daring that they will refuse to pay the Jizya they will be supposed to pay."

4. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol. III) Hadith 1731R1 p.180-181 reveals that when Holy Prophet appointed anyone as commander of an army he specially commanded them to invite the enemies who are polytheists to three course of action and if they respond anyone of these the commander must accept it and keep from doing them any harm. Out of three options one was to demand Jizya from the people who refused to accept Islam and if they agree to pay no harm should be done to them. The said Hadith reads as follows:

[1731R1] It has been reported from Sulaimān b. Buraid through his father that when the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) appointed anyone as leader of an army or detachment(2) he would especially exhort him to fear Allah and to be good to the Muslims who were with him. He would say: Fight in the name of Allah and in the way of Allah. Fight against those who disbelieve in Allah. Make a holy war; do not embezzle the spoils; do not break your pledge; and do not mutilate (the dead) bodies; do not kill the children. When you meet your enemies who are polytheists, invite them to three courses of action. If they respond to any one of these, you also accept it and keep from doing them any harm. Invite them to (accept) Islam; if they respond to you, accept it from them and desist from fighting against them. Then invite them to migrate from their lands to the land of Muhājirs(1) and inform them that, if they do so, they shall have all the privileges and obligations of the Muhājirs. If they refuse to migrate, tell them that they will have the status of Bedouin Muslims and will be subjected to the Commands of Allah like other Muslims, but they will not get any share from the spoils of war or fai'(2) except when they actually fight with the Muslims (against the disbelievers). If they refuse to accept Islam, demand from them the Jizya(3). If they agree to pay, accept it from them and hold off your hands. If they refuse to pay the tax, seek Allah's help and fight them. When you lay siege to a fort and the besieged appeal to you for protection in the name of Allah and His Prophet, do not accord to them the guarantee of Allah and His Prophet, but accord to them your own guarantee and the guarantee of your companions for it is a lesser sin that the security given by you or your companions be disregarded than that the security granted in the name of Allah and His Prophet be violated. When you besiege a fort and the besieged want you to let them out in accordance with Allah's Command, do not let them come out in accordance with His Command, but do so at your (own) command, for you do not know whether or not you will be able to carry out Allah's behest with regard to them.

[1733] It has also been narrated by Sa'īd b. Abū Burda through his father through his grandfather that the Prophet of Allah (may peace be upon him) sent him and Mu'āth (on a mission) to the Yemen, and said (by way of advising them): Show leniency (to the people); don't be hard upon them; give them glad tidings (of Divine favours in this world and the Hereafter); and do not create aversion. Relevant extract from the Hadith 2.559 and 5.351 as well as full text of Hadith 4.387 read as follows:

> "A strong wind blew at night and a man stood up and he was blown away to a mountain called Taiy. The King of Aila sent a white mule and a sheet for wearing to the Prophet as a present, and wrote to the Prophet that his people would stay in their place (and will pay Jizya taxation)."

7. Sacred Compilation of Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol. 3) Hadith 1587 and 1588 p.355 reveal that Holy Prophet took Jizya from the Zoroastrians of Hazar & Bahrain, Caliph Umar and Caliph Uthman took it in Persia from Persians. The said Hadiths read as follows:

> " 1587. Bajalah narrated that 'Umar would not take the Jizyah from the Zoroastrians until 'Abdur-Rahman bin 'Awf informed him that the Prophet took the Jizyah from the Zoroastrians or Hajar. (Sahih) There is no more dialogue in the Hadith than this. And this Hadith is Hasan Sahih.

9. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.657 reveals that the Holy Prophet said that incarnation of Jesus would abolish Jizyah from non-Muslims. The said hadith reads as follows:

Narrated Abu Huraira: Allah's Apostle said, "By Him in Whose Hands my soul is, surely (Jesus,) the son of Mary will soon descend amongst you and will judge mankind justly (as a Just Ruler); he will break the Cross and kill the pigs and there will be no Jizya (i.e. taxation taken from non Muslims). Money will be in abundance so that nobody will accept it, and a single prostration to Allah (in prayer) will be better than the whole world and whatever is in it." Abu Huraira added "If you wish, you can recite (this verse of the Holy Book): ––'And there is none Of the people of the Scriptures (Jews and Christians) But must believe in him (i.e Jesus as an Apostle of Allah and a human being) Before his death. And on the Day of Judgment He will be a witness Against them."

10. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 8.809 and 8.825 reveal that the Holy Prophet administered justice to a Jew according to his scripture Torah. The said Hadith reads as follows:

Narrated Ibn `Umar: A Jew and a Jewess were brought to Allah's Apostle on a charge of committing an illegal sexual intercourse. The Prophet asked them. "What is the legal punishment (for this sin) in your Book (Torah)?" They replied,"Our priests have innovated the punishment of blackening the faces with charcoal and Tajbiya." `Abdullah bin Salam said, "O Allah's Apostle, tell them to bring the Torah." The Torah was brought, and then one of the Jews put his hand over the Divine Verse of the Rajam (stoning to death) and started reading what preceded and what followed it. On that, Ibn Salam said to the Jew, "Lift up your hand." Behold! The Divine Verse of the Rajam was under his hand. So Allah's Apostle ordered that the two (sinners) be stoned to death, and so they were stoned. Ibn `Umar added: So both of them were stoned at the Balat and I saw the Jew sheltering the Jewess.

Narrated `Abdullah bin `Umar: The jews came to Allah's Apostle and mentioned to him that a man and a lady among them had committed illegal sexual intercourse. Allah's Apostle said to them, "What do you find in the Torah regarding the Rajam?" They replied, "We only disgrace and flog them with stripes." `Abdullah bin Salam said to them, 'You have told a lie the penalty of Rajam is in the Torah.' They brought the Torah and opened it. One of them put his hand over the verse of the Rajam and read what was before and after it. `Abdullah bin Salam said to him, "Lift up your hand." Where he lifted it there appeared the verse of the Rajam. So they said, "O Muhammad! He has said the truth, the verse of the Rajam is in it > (Torah)." Then Allah's Apostle ordered that the two persons (guilty of illegal sexual intercourse) be stoned to death, and > so they were stoned, and I saw the man bending over the woman so as to protect her from the stones.

Again it is submitted that since Babur was not the owner of Hindu Shrine of Shri Ramjanamsthan, he or his subordinates had no right to erect mosque and any building erected contrary to religious mandate of Islam cannot acquire the character of Mosque, as such the disputed structure was all along a Hindu temple and a sacred shrine. His submissions are as under:-

WAKIF MUST BE OWNER OF THE PROPERTY FOR CREATING VALID WAQF AS EMPEROR BABUR WAS NOT OWNER OF THE HINDU SHRINE SRI RAMAJANMASTHAN HE OR HIS COMMANDERS HAD NO RIGHT TO ERRECT MOSQUE AND ANY BUILDING ERECTED CONTRARY TO RELIGIOUS MANDATE OF THE ISLAM CANNOT BE CONSTRUED A MOSQUE AS SUCH THE DISPUTED STRUCTURE WAS ALL ALONG A HINDU TEMPLE & SACRED SHRINE:

1. By defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodi in the battle of Panipat Emperor Babur acquired only those rights that said Monarch had. As defeated Monarch was not Owner of the Sri Ramajanamsthan Temple at Ayodhya, according to Shar Emperor Babur did not acquire title of the said Temple. According to the Divine Law of Shar a Muslim can erect

Masjid only on such land of which he is lawful owner and he can create Wakf only of his own lawful property. Unless the first prayer was offered with permission of the lawful owner even dedication of Masjid and Wakf by user can not be claimed. Shar does not permit conversion of a Temple into a Mosque and says that even if a mansion was given by a Jimmi to Muslims for their using it as Masjid, after death of such Jimmi his said mansion goes back to his heirs. Suffice to say that according to Shar the Wakif must be owner of the property at the time of its dedication otherwise Wakf is invalid. As Emperor Babur was not owner of the Suit-land, alleged creation of Wakf for Masjid and Graveyard was ab initio void and the Plaintiffs are not entitled for the reliefs as prayed for in the instant Suit.

2. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 3.92 as well as Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 524 reveal that the first Mosque in Madina was built by the Holy Prophet on the land which was gifted to the Holy Prophet by its owners, wherefrom it becomes crystal clear that a Mosque can be built by the Wakif only on the land acquired/procured lawfully. Said Hadiths read as follows:

> Narrated Anas:
> The Prophet came to Medina and ordered a mosque to be built and said, "O Bani Najjar! Suggest to me the price (of your land)." They said, "We do not want its price except from Allah" (i.e. they wished for a reward from Allah for giving up their land freely). So, the Prophet ordered the graves of the pagans to be dug out and the land to be leveled, and the date–palm trees to be cut down. The cut date–palms were fixed in the direction of the Qibla of the mosque.

[524] Anas b. Mālik reported: The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) came to Medina and stayed in the upper part of Medina for fourteen nights with a tribe called Banī Amr b Auf. He then sent for the chiefs of Banī Al- Najjār, and they came with swords around their necks. He (the narrator) said: I perceive as if I am seeing the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) on his ride with Abū Bakr behind him and the chiefs of Banū Al-Najjār around him till he alighted in the courtyard of Abū Ayyūb. He (the narrator) said: The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said prayer when the time came for prayer, and he prayed in the fold of goats and sheep. He then ordered mosques to be built and sent for the chiefs of Banū Al- Najjār, and they came (to him). He (the Holy Prophet) said to them: O Banū Al-Najjār, sell me your lands. They said: No, by Allah, we would not demand their price, but (reward) from the Lord. Anas said: There (in these lands) were trees and graves of the polytheists, and ruins. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) ordered that the trees should be cut, and the graves should be dug out, and the ruins should be levelled. The trees (were thus) placed in rows towards the Qibla and the stones were set on both sides of the door, and (while building the mosque) they (the Companions) sang rajaz verses along with the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him):

O Allah: there is no good but the good of the next world,
So help the Ansār and the Muhājirin (emigrants).

3. An illustrated author and great jurist Syed Ameer Ali in his book ‘Spirit of Islam’ at page 54 narrates that though the owners of the land whereon first Mosque was built by the Holy Prophet in Madina had offered it as a free gift but as they were orphans the Holy Prophet paid them its value. The relevant extract of the ‘Spirit of Islam’ reads as follows:

A mosque was soon built, in the erection of which Mohammed assisted with his own hands; and houses for the accommodation of the exiles rose apace. Two brothers, who owned the land on which it was proposed to build the mosque, had offered it as a free gift; but as they were orphans, the Prophet paid them its value.

4. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 3.895 reveals that the Ist wakf in the history of Islam was created by Caliph Umar of the land owned by him in Khaibar after obtaining permission of the Holy Prophet, wherefrom it becomes crystal clear that wakif must be owner of the land. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> Narrated Ibn `Umar: `Umar bin Khattab got some land in Khaibar and he went to the Prophet to consult him about it saying, "O Allah's Apostle I got some land in Khaibar better than which I have never had, what do you suggest that I do with it?" The Prophet said, "If you like you can give the land as endowment and give its fruits in charity." So `Umar gave it in charity as an endowment on the condition that would not be sold nor given to anybody as a present and not to be inherited, but its yield would be given in charity to the poor people, to the Kith and kin, for freeing slaves, for Allah's Cause, to the travelers and guests; and that there would be no harm if the guardian of the endowment ate from it according to his need with good intention, and fed others without storing it for the future."

In other words private proprietorship of land was in existence during the Sultanate period. Relevant extract from page 158 of the the book 'Ibn Battuta Ki Bharat Yatra' (translated by Madan Gopal published by National Book Trust of India first published in 1933 reprinted in 1997) reads as follows:

Baillie writes that wakif or appropriator must be owner of the subject of the wakf at the time of making it and if a person usurp a piece of land, create wakf and then purchase it from the owner, it would not be a wakf. And if Zimmee gives his mansion for using it as a masjid for Mussulmans, after his death it would become the inheritance of his heirs. Relevant portions of the said book from page 557, 558, 561 & 562 read as follows:

"THE legal meaning of wukf, or appropriation,

www.vadaprativada.com

according to Aboo Huneefa, is the detention of a specific thing in the ownership of the wakif or appropriator, and the devoting or appropriating of its profits or usufruct in charity on the poor, or other good objects."

(Digest of Moohummudan Law, by Neil B.E. Baillie ,Second Edn., 1875 published by Smith Elder & Co., London p.557)

"According to the two deciples, wukf is the detention of a thing in the implied ownership of Almighty God, in such a manner that its profits may revert to or be applied fof the benefit of mankind, and the appropriation is obligatory, so that the thing appropriated can neither be sold, nor given nor inherited."

(Ibid. p.558)

"But if a zimmee should give his mansion as a musjid, or place of worship, for Mussulmans, and construct it as they are accustomed to do, and permit them to pray in it, and they should pray in it, and he should then die, it would become the inheritance of his heirs, according to all opinions."

(Ibid. p.561)

"It is also a condition that the thing appropriated be the appropriator's property at the time of the appropriation; so that, if one were to usurp a piece of land, appropriate, and then purchase it from the owner, and pay the price, or compound with him for other property, which is actually delivered up, it would not be a wukf."

(Ibid. p.562)

"And if a donee of land should make an appropriation of it before taking possession, and should then take possession, the wukf would not be valid."

(Ibid. p.562)

"If the appropriation were made before taking possession, it would not be lawful."

> "The subject-matter of the dedication must be the lawful property of the wakif at the time the wakf is made, that is, he must be in a position to exercise dominion over it. Consequently, if a wakf is made by a person of some property which he has un-lawfully acquired, it would be invalid, although he may subsequently purchase it from the lawful owner. It is further submitted that emperor Babur was also subject to law of Shar and his action of erection of alleged mosque, if any done in transgression of said law is void. Shri P.N. Misra, Advocate has relied over following case laws, which are as under:-

THE HINDU AND THE MUSLIM KINGS WERE SUBJECT TO LAW OF THEIR RESPECTIVE DHARMA & RELIGION AS SUCH THE EMPEROR BABAR WAS ALSO SUBJECT TO LAW OF SHAR AND HIS ALLEGED ACTION OF ERECTION OF ALLEGED MOSQUE IF ANY DONE IN TRANSGRSSION OF SAID LAW IS VOID:

1. In AIR 1975 SC 2299 (Indira Nehru Gandhi v. Rajnarain) the Hon'ble Supreme Court speaking through the Hon'ble Justice M. H. Bag, J. (as His Lordship then was) explaining the law of sovereignty in paragraph 526 to 571, in paragraph 527, 532-534 and 571 held that the Muslim rulers as well as the Hindu rulers were subject to their respective divine sacred law and the law was king of the kings. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that conversion of Sri Ramajanamasthan Temple into an alleged mosque either by the Emperor Babar or Aurangzeb in violation of the Law of Shar makes their such act null and alb-into mill and void and such building does not comes within the definition of a mosque. Paragraph nos. 527, 532-534 and 571 of the aforesaid judgment read as follows:

> "527. I must preface my observations here about the concepts of "sovereignty" and exercise of "sovereign power" between which I make a distinction, with two kinds of explanation. The first kind involves an exposition of a functional or sociological point of view. I believe that every social political, economic, or legal concept or doctrine must answer the needs of the people of a country at a particular time. I see the development of concepts, doctrines, and institutions as responses to the changing needs of society in every country. They have a function to fulfil in relation to national needs. The second type of explanation may be called historical or meant merely to indicate and illustrate notions or concepts put forward by thinkers at various times in various countries so as to appropriately relate them to what we may find today under our Constitution. We have to appreciate the chronology or stages of their development if we are to avoid frying to fit into our Constitution something which has no real relevance to it or bearing upon its contents or which conflicts with these. It must not, if I may so put it, be constitutionally "indigestible" by a constitution such as ours. Of course, it is not a secret that we have taken some of the basic concepts of our Constitution from British and American Constitutions in their most developed stages. That too must put us on our guard against attempts to foist upon our Constitution something simply because it happens to be either a British or American concept of some particular period which could not possibly be found in it today. Therefore, both types of explanation appear to be necessary to an exposition of what may or may not be found in our Constitution.

532. After the break-up of the Roman Empire, there were attempts in medieval Europe, both by the Church and the Kings, to develop spiritual and temporal means for checking wrong and oppression. Quests for the superior or a sovereign power and its theoretical justifications by both ecclesiastical and lay thinkers were parts of an attempt to meet this need. The claims of those who, as vicars of God on earth, sought to meddle with mundane and temporal affairs and acquire even political power and influence were, after a struggle for power, which took different forms in different countries, finally defeated by European Kings with the aid of their subjects. Indeed these Kings tried to snaatch, and, not without success, to wear spiritual crowns which the roles of "defenders of the faith" carried with them so as to surround themselves with auras of divinity.

533. The theory of a legally sovereign unquestionable authority of the King, based on physical might and victory in battle, appears to have been developed in ancient India as well, by Kautaliya, although the concept of a Dharma, based on the authority of the assemblies of those who were learned in the dharmashastras also competed for control over exercise of royal secular power. High philosophy and religion, however, often seem to have influenced and affected the actual exercise of sovereign power and such slight Jaw-making as the King may have attempted. The ideal King in ancient India, was conceived of primarily as a Judge deciding cases or giving orders to meet specific situations in accordance with the Dharma Shastras. It also appears that the actual exercise of the power to administer justice was often delegated by the King to his judges in ancient India. Indeed, according to some, the theory of separation of powers appears to have been carried so far (See: K. P. Jayaswal in "Manu and Yajnavalkya" - A basic History of Hindu Law - 1930 Edn. p. 82) that the King could only execute the legal sentence passed by the Judge.

534. We know that Semitic prophets, as messengers of God, also became rulers wielding both spiritual and political temporal power and authority although to Jesus Christ, who never sought temporal power, is ascribed the saying: "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God things that are God's". According to the theory embodied in this saying, spiritual and temporal powers and authorities had to operate in different orbits of power altogether. Another theory, however, was that the messages of God had been given the sovereign will of God Almighty Which governed all matters and this could not be departed from by any human authority or ruler. In the practical administration of justice, we are informed, Muslim caliphs acknowledged and upheld the jurisdiction of their Qazis to give judgment against them personally. There is an account of how the Caliph Omar, being a defendant in a claim brought by a jew for some money borrowed by him for purposes of State, appeared in person in the Court of his own Kazi to answer the claim. The Kazi rose from his seat out of respect for the Caliph who was so displeased with this unbecoming conduct that he dismissed him from office. (See: Sir A. Rahim's "Muhammadan Jurisprudence", (1958) p. 21).

571. I find that the doctrine of the supremacy or sovereignty of the Constitution was adopted by a Bench of seven learned Judges of this Court in Special Reference No, 1 of 1964, (1965) 1 SCR 413 =

(AIR 1965 SC 745) where Gajendragadkar, C. J., speaking for six learned Judges of this Court said (at p .446) (of SCR) = (at pp. 762-763 of AIR) :

"In a democratic country governed by a written Constitution, it is the Constitution which is supreme and sovereign. It is no doubt true that the Constitution itself can be amended by the Parliament, but that is possible because Art. 368 of the Constitution itself makes a provision in that behalf, and the amendment of the Constitution can be validly made only by following the procedure prescribed by the said article. That shows that even when the Parliament purports to amend the Constitution, it has to comply with the relevant mandate of the Constitution' itself. Legislators, Ministers, and Judges all take oath of allegiance to the Constitution, for it is by the relevant provisions of the Constitution that they derive their authority and jurisdiction and it is to the provisions of the Constitution that they owe allegiance. Therefore, there can be no doubt that the sovereignty which can be claimed by the Parliament in England, cannot be claimed by any Legislature in India in the literal absolute sense."

2. In AIR 1994 SC 2663 (N. Nagendra Rao & Co. v. State of Andhra Pradesh) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held when the law provides for compensation against confiscation, he must be compensated and confiscation cannot effect the right of owner to claim return of the goods. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that when the Law of Shar says that no one can acquire ownership of the property of others by virtue of adverse position but it can be only by purchase, alleged erection of alleged mosque over a Sacred shrine of the Hindus by virtue of forceful occupation makes such building only ordinary private building not the Mosque. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that when the Law of Shar says that no one can acquire ownership of the property of others by virtue of adverse position but it can be only by purchase, alleged erection of alleged mosque over a Sacred shrine of the Hindus by virtue of forceful occupation makes such building only ordinary private building not the Mosque. Relevant paragraph 8 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> 8. This sub-section ensures that a person who has been prosecuted or whose goods have been confiscated does not suffer if the ultimate order either in appeal or in any proceeding is in his favour. It is very wide in its import as it statutorily obliges the Government to return the goods seized or to pay the value of the goods if for any reason it cannot discharge its obligation to return it. The circumstances in which the goods are to be returned are;

(a) an order under S. 6A is modified or annulled by the State Government;

(b) where the goods were confiscated in consequence of prosecution of the person and he is acquitted;

(c) and in all these cases where it is not possible for any reason to return the essential commodity seized.

This provision cuts across the argument of the State that where even part is confiscated the person whose goods are seized is not liable to be compensated for the remaining. The section is clear that if only part of the goods are confiscated then the remaining has to be returned. The very first part of the sub-section indicates that where the order of confiscation, is modified in appeal meaning thereby if confiscation is confined to part only the Government is bound to release or return the remaining or pay the value thereof. But what is more significant of this sub-section which widens its reach is the expression, 'and in either case it is not possible for any reason to return the essential commodity seized' then, the State shall be liable to pay the market price of the value with interest. The expression, 'for any reason' should be understood in broader and larger sense as it appears from the context in which it has been used. The inability to return, giving rise to the statutory obligation of deeming it as sale to the Government may arise for variety of reasons and extends to any failure on the part of the Government. For instance, the goods might have been sold in pursuance of interim arrangement under S. 6A(2). Or it might have been lost or stolen from the place of storage. The goods might have deteriorated or rusted in quality or quantity. The liability to return the goods seized does not stand discharged by offering them in whatever condition it was. Confiscation of part of the goods thus could not affect the right of owner to claim return of the remaining goods. Nor the owner is bound to accept the goods in whatever condition they are. The claim of the respondent, therefore, that the appellant was bound to accept the goods in whatever condition they were is liable to be rejected.

3. In AIR 1971 SC 1594 (Union of India. v. Sudhangshu Mazumdar) the Hon'ble Apex Court has quoted an extract from the United States v. Juan Prechman, (1831-34) L.Ed. 604 with approval wherein it has been stated that the modern usage of nations would be outraged if private properties are confiscated or private rights annulled. Relevant paragraph 7 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "7. Dr. Singhvi says that the first premise on which the High Court has proceeded is that as a result of cession it would be competent for the Government of Pakistan to deal with the disputed territory as an absolute owner in complete disregard of the existing rights of the respondents. In other words it has been assumed that the Government of Pakistan will not recognise ownership or other similar rights of the respondents in the lands and properties which belong to them. This Dr. Singhvi claims, is contrary to the rule enunciated by Chief Justice Marshall in The United States v. Juan Perchman, (1831-34) 8 L. ed 604 in the following words :
> "The modern usage of nations, which has become law, would be violated: that sense of justice and of right which is acknowledged and felt by the whole civilized World would be outraged, if private property should be generally confiscated and private rights annulled. The people change their allegiance; their relation to their ancient sovereign is dissolved; but their relations to each other and their rights of property, remain undisturbed."
> The rule set forth in the Perchman case, (1831-34) 8 L. ed 604 has been followed in over forty American cases and has been accepted as the rule of International law in English, French, German and Italian law*
> * Extracts from the Law of Nations (2nd Edn. 1953), p. 237, Cf. F. B. Sayre, "Change of Sovereignty and Private Ownership of Land," 12 XII A. J. L L (1918), 475, 481, 495-497"

4. In 1999 (4) SCC 663 (R.E.M.S. Abdul Hameed v. Govindaraju) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that under the Ancient Hindu

www.vadaprativada.com

Law there were two beneficial interests in land: (1) that of the sovereign or his representative, and (2) that of the cultivator or Ryot holding the land. The Ryot's right arose from occupation of the land, thus the grant of an Inam do not and could not have touched the cultivator's right in the land, except in rare cases where the grantor also hold the cultivator's interest at the time of the grant. Relying on Said judgment it is submitted that in our country since inception subjects were proprietor of their private properties and the Kings were only entitled for land revenue, Sri Ramajanamasthan was all along and is being owned by the Deity Sri Ramalala as such the right of private property of the Deity cannot be extinguished. Relevant paragraph 4 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "4. The central question in issue is the interpretation of clause (b) Explanation I to Section 2(11) of Act 26 of 1963. Learned counsel for the aforesaid respective appellants, Mr Tripurari Ray and Mr A.T.M. Sampath, Senior Counsel submit on the facts of this case that the disputed land cannot be construed to be "part-village inam estate" to fall within Act 26 of 1963 but is a minor inam to fall under Act 30 of 1963. Before taking up this issue of "part-village inam estate", it is necessary to look back to the history of inam lands, how it emerged, was recognised, canalised and dealt with through various enactments till it reached the legislative umbrella of both Acts 26 and 30 of 1963. The law relating to the landholdings, agrarian reform, in the Presidency town of Madras, with reference to the landlords and ryots started from the previous century and it is interesting to note a few of the essential features of this agrarian development. The origin of inam tenure is traced back to its grant made by Hindu rulers for the support of temples and charitable institutions, for the maintenance of holy and learned men rendering public service, etc. This practice was followed by the Mohammedan rulers and by British administrators until about a century ago. According to the ancient Hindu law, there were two beneficial interests in land, namely, (1) that of the sovereign or his representative, and (2) that of the > cultivator holding the land. The sovereign's right to collect a share of the produce of the cultivated land was known by the name "melvaram", the share of the ryot or cultivator was known by the name "kudivaram". The ryot's right arose from occupation of the land. Thus, the grant of an inam did not touch, and could not have touched, the cultivator's right in the land, namely, the kudivaram, except in rare cases where the grantor was also holding the cultivator's interest at the time of the grant."

5. In AIR 1962 SC 342 (Sunka Villi Suranna. v. Goli Sathiraju) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that where there was no evidence to show that the occupation of the lands by the Ryot commence under the Zamindar and there was no evidence as to the terms at which the Ryots or his predecessors were inducted in land. Commencement of the tenancy and the terms thereof were lost in antiquity but the Ryot's rights and his descendants were proved to have continued in possession of the land uninterruptedly till the enactment of the Madras States Land Act, 1908. In the light of the presumption that the Zamindar was, unless the contrary was proved, the owner of the melvaram and Ryot the owner of the kudivaram the interference was irresistible that the Ryot was the holder of the occupancy rights in the land and thus rights developed upon his successors and the occupancy right in the land were not acquired by virtue of the provisions of Madras States Land Act, 1908. It appears that prior to declaring the land as nazul land by the Governor-General in 1959 the Hindus were worshipping in the suit property as such the occupancy rights remained in the hands of the Hindus. Relevant paragraph 17 of the said judgment reads

> "17. To summarize, there is no evidence to show that occupation of the lands by Thammiah commenced under the Zamindar and there is no evidence as to the terms on which Thammiah or his predecessors were inducted on the lands: the commencement of the tenancy and the terms thereof are lost in antiquity, but Thammiah and his descendants are proved to have continued in possession of land uninterruptedly till the enactment of the Madras Estates Land Act, 1908. In the light of the presumption that the zamindar is unless the contrary is proved, the owner of the melvaram and the ryot the owner of the kudivaram the inference is irresistible that Thammiah was the holder of the occupancy rights in the lands and that these rights devolved upon his successors and that the occupancy rights in the lands were not acquired by virtue of the provisions of Madras Act VI of 1908."

6. In (2001) 4 SCC 713 (Syndicate Bank. v. Prabha D. Naik) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the Muslim jurisprudence neither recognised prescription nor limitation. Relying on said judgment it is Submitted that as Hindu Endowment was existing prior to acquisition of Kingship by the Emperor Babur and said ownership of the Deity existed till the day of confiscation of the rights of the proprietors in land in the year 1959 by the British government which right of the Deity again revived when the State of Uttar Pradesh gave up its said right by filing written statement in the instant Suit. As such the said sacred shrine of the Hindus is not liable to be declared as a mosque it is most respectfully Submitted. Relevant paragraph 6 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "6. Incidentally, it may be noted that though the old Hindu law recognised both prescription and limitation but Muslim jurisprudence recognised neither of them. The new Law of Limitation in terms of the Limitation > Act of 1963 however, does not make any racial or class distinction since both Hindu and Muslim laws are amenable to the Law of Limitation as is presently existing in the statute-book (see in this context B.B. Mitra's Limitation Act; 20th Edn.)."

7. In AIR 1968 SC 683 (V. D. Dhanwatey. v. Commissioner of Income Tax, M. P., Nagpur & Bhandara) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that while interpreting an ancient text, the Courts must give them a liberal construction to further the interest of the society by wisely interpreting the original texts in such a way as to bring them in harmony with the prevailing conditions. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the Sthandil i.e. Sri Ramjanmasthan which has been recognized by the scriptures a means of conferring merit upon the devotees and granting salvation to them be recognized as Juridical entity and not mere property in crude sense to do justice in the greater interest of the citizens of India in general and the Hindu and Muslim community in particular to pave the way of permanent peace it is with due respect submitted. Relevant paragraph 31 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "31. Law is a social mechanism to be used for the advancement of the society. It should not be allowed to be a dead weight on the society. While interpreting ancient texts, the courts must give them a liberal construction to further the interests of the society. Our great commentators in the past bridged the gulf between law as enunciated in the Hindu law texts and the advancing society by wisely interpreting the original texts in such a way as to bring them in harmony with the prevailing conditions. To an extent, that function has now to be discharged by our superior courts. That task is undoubtedly a delicate one. In discharging that function our courts have shown a great deal of circumspection. Under modern conditions legislative modification of laws is bound to > be confined to major changes. Gradual and orderly development of law can only be accomplished by judicial interpretation. The Supreme Court's role in that regard is recognised by Article 141 of our Constitution."

8. In AIR 2008 SCW 1224 (Dist. Basic Education Officer & Anr. v. Dhananjay Kumar Sukla & Anr.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the rules of pleadings do not apply to question of law and new plea on question of law can be raised before the Supreme Court even it was not raised before the High Court. Relying on said judgment it is humbly submitted that the questions of law which has been raised during the argument are sustainable in the eye of law and needed to be decided for doing complete justice between the parties who are representing two major community of India. Relevant paragraph 14 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "14. Rules of pleading contained in the Code of Civil Procedure do not cover questions of law. If a fact stands admitted the same in terms of Section 56 of the Indian Evidence Act need not be proved. Only because such a question was not allegedly raised before the High Court, this Court could not shut its eyes to the legal position. Yet again only because an illegality has been committed, this Court would not allow its perpetration. Respondent's father was on leave for a temporary period. He thereby did not cease to be the Manager of the school. It is apparent that he went on leave only for defeating the statutory provisions. Such an act amounts to fraud on the administration."

Lastly, Mr. Misra has submitted that according to the Farman of Shah Jahan there cannot be a valid mosque over a land of a temple and the owner of the temple is entitled for the restoration of the possession with liberty to worship.

FARMAN OF THE EMPEROR SHAHJAHAN HELD THAT THE BUILDING OVER THE LAND OF A TEMPLE IS NOT A MOSQUE AND OWNER OF THE TEMPLE IS ENTITLED FOR RESTORATION OF POSSESSION WITH LIBERTY TO WORSHIP THEREIN ACCORDING TO HIS OWN RELIGION HAS FORCE OF LAW:

1. In AIR 1963 SC 1638 (Tilkayat Shri Govindalalji Maharat etc. v. State of Rajasthan & Ors.) the Bench comprised of Hon'ble Five-Judge of the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the Farman issued by an absolute ruler like the Maharana of Udaipur in 1934 is a law by which the affairs of the Nathdwara temple and succession to the office of the Tilkayat were governed after its issuance. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the Farman of the Emperor Shahjahan wherein it has been held that a building constructed over the land of the temple of other person can not be a mosque is admissible as ratio of Law of Shar so far it doesn't contradict the law of Shar, and it is further submitted that any addition, alteration or modification made by any Rulers arbitrarily in violation of the law for the time being in force cannot convert Sri Ramajanmasthan Temple into an alleged mosque. Relevant paragraphs 32 and 33 of the aforesaid judgment reads as follows:

"32. In appreciating the effect of this Firman, it is first

necessary to decide whether the firman is a law or not. It is matter of common knowledge that at the relevant time the Maharana of Udaipur was an absolute monarch in whom vested all the legislative, judicial and executive powers of the State. In the case of an absolute Ruler like the Maharana of Udaipur it is difficult to make any distinction between an executive order issued by him or a legislative command issued by him. Any order issued by such a Ruler has the force of law and did govern the rights of the parties affected thereby. This position is covered by decisions of this court and it has not been disputed before us, vide Madhaorao Phalke v. State of Madhya Bharat, 1961-1 SCR 957 : (AIR 1961 SC 298). Ameer-un-Nissa Begum v, Mahboob Begum, AIR 1955 SC 352 and Director of Endowments, Government of Hyderabad v. Alkram Alim (S) AIR .1956 SC 60.

33. It is true that in dealing with the effect of this Firman, the learned Attorney-General sought to raise before us a novel point that under Hindu law even an absolute monarch was not competent to make a law affecting religious endowments and their administration. He suggested that he was in position to rely upon the opinions of scholars which tended to show that a Hindu monarch was competent only to administer the law as prescribed by Smgritis and the oath which he was expected to take at the time of his coronation enjoined him to obey the Smritis and to see that their injunctions were obeyed by his subject. We did not allow the learned Attorney-General to develop this point because we hold that this novel point cannot be accepted in view of the well-recognised principles of jurisprudence. An absolute monarch was the fountain-head of all legislative, executive and judicial powers and it is of the very essence of sovereignty which vested in him that he could supervise and control the administration of public charity. In our opinion there is no doubt whatever that this universal principle in regard to the scope of the powers inherently vesting in sovereignty applies as much to Hindu monarchs as to any other absolute monarch. Therefore, it must be held that the Firman issued by the Maharana of Udaipur in 1934 is a law by which the affairs of the office Nathdwara. Temple and succession to the office of the Tilkayat were governed after its issue."

2. In AIR 1961 SC 298 (Madha Rao Phalke. v. Land of Madhya Bharat & Anr.) a Bench comprised of Hon'ble five-Judges the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the orders issued by absolute Monarch ruler of Guwalior State at force of law and would amount to existing law. Relevant paragraphs 11, 12, 14 and 18 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "11. In dealing with the question as to whether the orders issued by such as absolute monarch amount to a law or regulation having the force of law, or whether they constitute merely administrative orders, it is important to bear in mind that the distinction between executive orders and legislative commands is likely to be merely academic where the Ruler is the source of all power. There was no constitutional limitation upon the authority of the Ruler to act in any capacity he liked; he would be the supreme legislature, the supreme judiciary and the supreme head of the executive, and all his orders, however issued, would have the force of law and would govern and regulate the affairs of the State including the rights of its citizens. In Ameer-un-Nissa Begum v. Mahboob Begum, AIR 1955 SC 352, this Court had to deal with the effect of a Firman issued by the Nizam, and it observed that so long as the particular Firman issued by the Nizam, held the field that alone would govern and regulate the rights of the parties concerned though it would be annulled or modified by a later Firman at any time that the Nizam willed. What was held about the Firman about all the Nizam would be equally true about all effective orders issued by the Ruler of Gwalior (Vide also : Director of Endowments, Government of Hyderabad v. Akram Ali, (S) AIR 1956 SC 60).
> 12. It is also clear that an order issued by an absolute monarch in an Indian State which had the force of law would amount to an existing law under Art. 372 of the Constitution. Article 372 provides for the continuance in force of the existing laws which were in force in the territories of India immediately before the commencement of the Constitution, and Art,. 366(10) defines an existing law, inter alia, as meaning any law, ordinance, order, rule or regulation passed or made before the commencement of the Constitution by any person having a power to make such law, ordinance order, rule or regulation. In Edward Mills Co., Ltd.,

www.vadaprativada.com

> Beawar v. State of Ajmer, (S) AIR 1955 SC 25, this Court has held that "there is not any material difference between the expressions 'existing law', and the 'law in force'. The definition of an existing law in Art. 366 (10) as well as the definition of an Indian law contained in Sec. 3(29) of the General Clauses Act make this position clear". Therefore, even if it is held that the Kalambandis in question did not amount to a quanun or law technically so called, they would nevertheless be orders or regulations which had the force of law in the State of Gwalior at the material time, and would be saved under Art. 372. The question which then arises is whether these Kalambandis were regulations having the force of law at the material time.
> 18. It is not disputed that if the Kalambandis on which the appellant's right is based are rules or regulations having the force of law the impugned executive order issued by respondent 1 would be invalid. The right guaranteed to the appellant by an existing law cannot be extinguished by the issue of an executive order. In fact on this point there has never been a dispute between the parties in the present proceedings. That is why the only point of controversy between the parties was whether the Kalambandis in question amount to an existing law or not. Since we have answered this question in favour of the appellant we must allow the appeal set aside the order passed by the High Court and direct that a proper writ or order should be issued in favour of the appellant as prayed for by him. The appellant would be entitled to his costs throughout.”

3. In AIR 1955 SUPREME COURT 352 "Ameer-un-Nissa Begum v. Mahboob Begum" the Hon’ble Supreme Copurt held that the firmans were expressions of the sovereign will of the Ruler and they were binding in the same way as any other law; nay, they would override all other laws which were in conflict with them. So long as a particular firman held the field, that alone would govern or regulate the rights of the parties concerned, though it could be annulled or modified by a later

Firman at any time. Relevant paragraph 15 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "15. The determination of all these questions depends primarily upon the meaning and effect to be given to the various 'Firmans' of the Nizam which we have set out already. It cannot be disputed that prior to the integration of Hyderabad State with the Indian Union and the coming into force of the Indian Constitution, the Nizam of Hyderabad enjoyed uncontrolled sovereign powers. He was the supreme legislature, the supreme judiciary and the supreme head of the executive, and there were no constitutional limitations upon his authority to act in any of these capacities. The 'Firmans' were expressions of the sovereign will of the Nizam and they were binding in the same way as any other law; - nay, they would override all other laws which were in conflict with them. So long as a particular 'Firman' held the field, that alone would govern or regulate the rights of the parties concerned, though it could be annulled or modified by a later 'Firman' at any time that the Nizam willed."

Shri P.N. Mishra, Advocate has further argued that alleged inscriptions found on the disputed structure are false, fabricated, forged on the so-called Babri Mosque, which is virtually a Ramjanamsthan Temple under the law. His submissions are as under:-

ALLEGED INSCRIPTIONS ARE FALSE, FABRICATED, FORGED, FICTITIOUS AND WERE NEVER FIXED ON SRI RAMJANAMSTHAN TEMPLE DESCRIBED IN PLAINT AS BABURI MOSQUE:

1. The Inscriptions alleged to be found and /or fixed on Sri Ramajanmasthan Temple called as Baburi Mosque by the Plaintiffs were never fixed on it rather they had no

existence. In fact transcript alleged to be of the Inscription fixed on said Structure are false, frivolous, forged, fabricated, and manufactured. When Jesuit Priest Father Josef Tieffenthaler, a world-fame Geographer, Historian and Linguistic who has written books in Sanskrit, Latin, Arabic, Persian etc. in the year 1770 personally visited he did not found any Inscription fixed on said Structure but saw the Hindus entering in the Central Hall of the said Temple and worshipping the Vedi located therein by prostrating and circumambulating it thrice. Mr. F.E.A. Chamier, the then District Judge Faizabad who took Judicial notice of and visited the Sri Ramjananmsthan/alleged Baburi Masjid on 18th March 1886 also did not find any Inscription fixed thereon save and except a superscription 'Allah' on the entrance of the said Structure. From the aforesaid facts it becomes crystal clear that none of the alleged Inscriptions were in existence at least till 18th March, 1886.

2. In fact none of the persons that is to say Mr. A. Fuhrer who published three Inscriptions being Inscription Nos. XL, XLI and XLII in 1989; Mrs. A. S. Beveridge who published two Inscriptions being Inscription Nos. 'a' and 'b' in 1921; and Mr. Z.A. Desai who published three Inscriptions being Inscription Nos. XVII (a), XVII (b) and XVII (c) in 1964-65 had personally visited the 'Sri Ramjanmsthan called as Baburi Mosque by the Plaintiffs' as such question of seeing those Inscriptions fixed on said Sri Ramajanmasthan cannot and does not arise at all. A. S. Beveridge tells that the transcripts of the Inscriptions published by her were supplied to her husband from whom she got the same. Mr. Z.A. Desai points out that correct transcript of the Inscriptions were not supplied to Mr. A. Fuherer and Mr. Desai had got correct version of the destroyed Inscriptions from the estampage obtained from Sayyid Badru'l-Hasan of Fyzabad as well as from the Inscriptions rebuilt by the contractor Tehwoor Khan some times after 27th March, 1934.

3. It reflect from the Transcripts of the alleged inscriptions supplied to A. Fuhere's that 'a firmanant-like lofty strong building was erected by an auspicious noble Mir Khan under the command of Babur in the year 930 A.H. i.e. 1523 A.D. and foundation of the said building was laid down by the King of China and Turkey in presence of Babur;' while the Transcripts of the alleged inscriptions supplied to S.A. Beveridge reveal that 'under the command of Emperior Babur, good-hearted Mir Baqi built that alighting place of angels in 935 A.H. i.e. 1528-29.' Mr. Z.A. Desai's one Inscription says that 'by the order of King Babur that descending place of the Angels was built by the fortunate noble Mir Baqi'; while his other Inscription tells that 'a lofty building and lasting house (of God) was founded by Mir

(and ) Khan (Baqi).' The words placed within brackets are Dr. Desai's own insertions and it is needless to say that those words do not find place even in the text of the inscription procured by Mr. Z.A.Desai.

4. The Ld. Civil Judge Faizabad, Mr. A. Akhtar Ahasan who made an inspection of the Disputed Structure on 26th March 1946 and procured transcriptions of two Inscriptions fixed on it, in His Judgment dated 30.02.1946 records that '1st Inscription says 'by the order of Shah Babar, Amir Mir Baqi built the resting place of angels in 923 A.H.' i.e. 1516-17 A.D. ; while 2nd inscription says that 'Mir Baqi of Isphahan in 935 A.H.' i.e. 1528-29 A.D.' The texts of the alleged restored Inscriptions found by said Ld. Civil Judge are at variance with that of those estampage procured by Mr. Z.A. Desai. It is noteworthy that in this Inscription Mir Baqi Isfahani has been mentioned as founder of the said Structure while in Babur-Nama, the Emperor Babur has not mentioned any Mir Baqi Esfahani in any context but he has mentioned one Baqi Taskendi. Be it mentioned herein that the Taskend is a City of Uzbekistan while Esfahan is a province of Iran as such Baqi Esfahani and Baqi Taskendi cannot be regarded as one person and , Baqi Esfahani being an stranger and unknown to the Emperor Babur can be termed with certainty a fictitious person by whom a real Structure cannot be brought into existence.

5. Father Josef Tieffenthaler, a Jesuit Missionary and noted geographer on Hindustan visited Ayodhya in 1770 did not find any Inscriptions even that superscription "Allah" mentioned by the Ld. District Judge in 1886. From Josef Tiffenthaler's description it appears that at that time also Hindus were worshipping inside the Ramjanmsthan Temple alleged to be converted into mosque either by Aurangzeb or by Babar. As he was not only a Missionary but an excellent Historian, Geographer and great linguistic having mastery over several languages including Arabic, Persian and Sanskrit, there was no possibility of overlooking the alleged Inscriptions by him as it would have enabled him to tell the people with certainty the name of the Tyrant Emperor who attempted to convert Sri Ramajanmasthan Temple into Mosque. English translation of a portion of his book "Descriptio Indiae" being description of Oude including the Sri Ramajanmasthan has been published on pages 312 to 317 in the " Modern Traveller, a Popular Description, Geographical, Historical, and Topographical of the Various Countries of the Globe- India. Vol. III" ; London Edn.1828 published by James Duncan and has been digitalised by Google. Relevant extracts thereof read as follows:

"The most remarkable place is that which is called Sorgodoari, that is to say, the heavenly temple; because they say, that Ram carried away from thence to heaven all the inhabitants of the city. The deserted town was repeopled and restored to its former condition by Bikaramajit, the famous King of Oojein. There was a temple here on the high bank of the river; but Aurangzebe, ever attentive to the propagation of faith of Mohammed, and holding the heathen in abhorrence, caused it to be demolished, and replaced it with a mosque with minarets, in order to abolish the very memory of Hindoo superstition. Another mosque has been built by the Moors, to the East of this near the Sorgodoari in an edifice erected by Nabalroy, a former Hindoo governor. But a place more particularly famous is that which is called Sitha Rassoce, a table of Sitha (Seeta), wife of Ram; situated on an eminence to the south of the city. The emperor Aurangzebe demolished the fortress called Ramcote, and erected on the site of Mohammedan temple with a triple dome. According to others, it was erected by Baber. There are to be seen fourteen columns of black stone, five spans in height, which occupied the site of the fortress. Twelve of these columns now support the interior arcades of the mosque: the two other form part of the tomb of a certain Moor. They tell us that these columnsms, are rather these remains of skillfully wrought columns, were brought from the Isle of Lanca or Selendip (Ceylon) by Hanuman, King of the Monkeys. On the left is seen a square chest, raised five inches from the ground covered with lime about 5 ells in length by not more than four in breadth. The Hindoos call it Bedi. The cradle; and the reason is, that there formerly stood here the house in which Beshan (Vishnoo) was born in the form of Ram, and were also, they say, is three brothers were born. Afterwards, Aurangzebe or, according to others, Baber caused the place to be destroyed, in order to deprive the heathen of the opportunity of practising there their superstitions. Nevertheless, they still pay superstitious reverence to both these places; namely, to that on which the Natal dwelling Ram stood, by going three times around it, prostrate on the earth. The two places are surrounded with a low wall adorned with battlements. Not far from this is a place where they

6. Josef Tieffenthaler was born at Bozen in the Tyrol, on 27th August, 1710 and died at Lucknow on 5 July, 1785. He entered the Society of Jesus 9 October, 1729, and went in 1740 to the East Indian mission where he occupied various positions, chiefly in the empire of the Great Moghul. After the suppression of the Society he remained in India, and on his death was buried in the mission cemetery at Agra, where his tombstone still stands. He was a fine scholar with an unusual talent for languages; besides his native tongue he understood Latin, Italian, Spanish, French, Hindustani, Arabic, Persian, and Sanskrit. He was the first European who wrote an exact description of Hindustan. A brief list of his works is the best proof of his extraordinary power of work and his varied scholarship. In geography, he wrote a "Descriptio Indiae", that is a circumstantial description of the twenty two provinces of India, of its cities, fortresses, and the most important smaller towns, together with an exact statement of geographical positions, calculated by means of a simple quadrant. He wrote a large book on the courses of the Ganga. In history, he wrote many books. He wrote on the origin of the Hindus and their religion in Latin, expeditions of Nadir Shah to India in German, the Deeds of the Mughal Emperor Shah Alam in Persian, Incursions of the Afghans and the Conquest of Delhi in French. He wrote a book on contemporary history 1757-64. In linguistics he prepared a Sanskrit-Parsee Lexicon, treatises in Latin on the language of the Parsees, on the proper pronunciation of Latin, etc.. In the area of religion, he wrote 'Brahmanism' and works on Indian polytheism, Indian asceticism, the religion of Parsee Islam and relations of these religions to one another. In the field of the natural sciences he wrote on astronomical observations on the sunspots and zodiacal light, studies on the Hindu astronomy, astrology and cosmology. In addition, he wrote on the descriptions and observations of the flora and fauna of India. Thus he was an intellectual giant and a linguistic wizard and not mere a traveller or a merchant who made casual remarks. His published works along with biographical notes can be lucidly gleaned from Catholic Encyclopedia (1913) and 'Christianty in India' through Wikisource and Wikipedia's website respectively. His writings and contributions also find place in the books -HUONDER, Deutsche Jesuitenmissionäre des 17. und 18. Jahrh. (Freiberg, 1899), 179; NOTI. Jos.Tieffentaller, S. J., A Forgotten Geographer

7. The District Judge of Faizabad who visited Sri Ramjanmasthan/alleged Baburi Masjid on 18th March 1886 did not find any of the Inscriptions published by A. Fuhrer in 1989 and by A. S. Beveridge in 1921. Said Ld. Judge in his Judgment has recorded that the entrance to the enclosure was under a gateway which bore the superscription "Allah" immediately on the left as the platform or Chabootra of masonary occupied by the Hindus. His said finding is recorded in Judgment and Order dated 18th March 1889 passed in Civil Appeal No.27 of 1886 Mahanta Raghubardass, Mahant Janam Asthan City Oudh VS. Secretary of State of India, Court of Council and Mohd. Asghar by the said Judicial Officer Mr. F.E.A. Chamier, District Judge Faizabad which constitute pages 87 to 91 of the volume 10 of the Documents of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 being Volume I of the plaintiffs' documents. Relevant portion from page 89 of the said Volume being an extract of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "I visited the land in dispute yesterday, in the presence of all parties.
> I found that the Masjid built by the Emperor Babar stands on the border of the town Ajudhia-that is to say to the west and south it is clean of inhabitations. It is most unfortunate that a Masjid should have been built on land specially held sacred by the Hindus, but as the event occurred 356 years ago it is too late now to remedy the grievance all that can > be done is to maintain the parties in status quo. In such a case as the present one any (Sic) would cause more harm and damage (Sic) of order than benefit. The entrance to the enclosure is under a gateway which bears the superscription "Allah" immediately on the left as the platform or Chabootra of masonary occupied by the Hindus. On this is a small superstructure of wood in the form of a tent. This "Chabootra" is said to indicate the birthplace of Ram Chan deer. Infront of the gateway in the entry to masonary Platform of the Musjid. A wall pierced (illegible) and therewith railings divides the platform of the Musjid from the enclosure in which stands the "Chabootra"."

Be it mentioned herein that said judgment is Judgment per Incuriam as it has been passed in ignoratum of law. Prior to annexation of Oudh to British Rule the Law of Shar was law in force which law neither had rule of Limitation nor did recognise adverse possession. Apart from this Hindu law in respect of Debutter property also did not recognise adverse possession. This principle of Law had already been laid down by the Indian Courts of Record as well as Privy Council, London as such said judgment passed in ignoratum of those judicial pronouncement has no force of law. Moreover in the said Suit the Disputed Structure was not subject matter of that suit nor was declaration of title in respect thereof prayed for.

8. In the aforesaid judgment recording of the Ld. Judge the entrance had the superscription "Allah" leaves no doubt that he had inspected the disputed premises and Structure very minutely and it is needless to say that if there would have been alleged Inscriptions that would not have gone unnoticed by him. Be it mentioned herein that according to Hindus' sacred book "Allopanisad" "Allah" is one of the several names of the almighty. Be it mentioned herein that the "Allopanishad" has been reproduced by the founder of Arya Samaj Maharshi Dayanand Saraswati in his book "Satyarthaprakash" 2nd revised edition published in Vikram Samvat 1939 i.e. 1882 A.D.. According to him it was written during the reign of Emperor Akbar. The text of "Allopanishad" as published on pages 556-67 of 'Satyarthaprakash' in "Dayanand-Granthmala published by Srimati Paropakarini Sabha, Ajmer 1983 Edn. reads as follows:

9. A. Fuhrer was the first archaeologist who read and translated and got published three inscriptions alleged to be fixed on Babari Masjid which was alleged to be built under command of Emperor Babur at the site of Sri Ramjanmasthan. A. Fuhrer's book "The Sharqi Architecture of Jaunpur, with notes on Zafarabade, Sahet-Mahet and other Places in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh" containing those three Inscriptions was first published by the Archeological Survey of India in 1989.

A. Fuhere's translations and introductory notes thereto read as follows:

> "Babar's- Masjid at Ayodhya was built in A.H. 930, or A. D. 1523, by Mir Khan, on the very spot where the old temple Janamasthanam of Ramchandra was standing . The following inscriptions are of interest.

www.vadaprativada.com

Inscription No.XL written in Arabic character over the mihrab of the masjid it gives twice the Kalimah:-

" There is no God but' Allah, Muhammad is

His Prophet"

Inscription no.XLI is written in Persian poetry, the meter being Ramal, in six lines on the member, right-hand side of the masjid.

"1.By order of Babar, the king of the world,
2. This firmament-like, lofty,
3. Strong building was erected.
4. By the auspicious noble Mir Khan.
5. May ever remain such a foundation,
6. And such a king of the world."

www.vadaprativada.com

Inscription No.XLII is written in Persian poetry ,the metre being Ramal, in ten lines, above the entrance door of the masjid. A few characters of the second and whole third lines are completely defaced.

"1. In the name of God, the merciful, the clement.
2. In the name of him who…; may God perpetually keep him in the world.
3. . . . . .
. . . . . .
4. Such a sovereign who is famous in the world, and in person of delight for the world.
5. In his presence one of the grandees who is another king of Turkey and China.
6. Laid this religious foundation in the auspicious Hijra 930.
7. O God ! May always remain the crown, throne and life with the king.
8. May Babar always pour the flowers of happiness; may remain successful.
9. His counselor and minister who is the founder of this fort masjid.
10. This poetry, giving the date and eulogy, was written by the lazy writer and poor servant Fath-allah- Ghori, composer."

> The old temple of Ramachandra at Janamasthan must have been a very fine one, for many of its columns have been used by the Musalmans in the construction of Babar's masjid. These are of strong, close-grained, dark- coloured or black stone, called by the natives Kasauti, "touch-stone slate," and carved with different devices. They are from seven to eight feet long, square at the base,centre and capital, and round or octagonal intermediately.

Annexure-IV Babur Nama by A.S. Beveridge

10. Annette Susannah Beveridge was the second british scholar who in 1921 published texts of two Inscriptions purported to be of alleged Babri Mosque which were supplied by the Deputy-Commissioner of Fyzabad alongwith English Translation and Transliteration thereof done by a Muslim. Said Inscriptions are Appendix "U" of Babur-Nama (Memoires of Babur) translated by her. In her said book A.S. Beveridge before giving Text and Translation of the alleged two Inscriptions writes as follows:

> " Thanks to the kind response made by the Deputy-Commissioner of Fyzabad to my husband's enquiry about two inscriptions mentioned by several Gazetteers as still existing on 'Babur's Mosque" in Oudh, I am able to quote copies of both."

After giving text and transliteration of an Inscription he gives Translation with her exaggerating value thereof as follows:

> "The translation and explanation of the above, manifestly made by a Musalman and as such having special value, are as follows:-"
>
> "The inscription inside the Mosque is as follows:-"

After giving its Text and Transliteration she translates the alleged First Inscription as follows:

> "1. By the command of the Emperor Babur whose justice is an edifice reaching up to very height of the heavens, > 2. The good-hearted Mir Baqi built this alighting-place of angels;
> 3. Bavad khair baqi ! (May this goodness last for ever!)
> The year of building it was made clear likewise when I said Buvad khair baqi (=935)."

> "The inscription outside the Mosque is as follows:-"

www.vadaprativada.com

After giving its Text and Transliteration she translates the alleged Second Inscription as follows:

> "The explanation of the above is as follows:-"
> "In the first couplet the poet praises God, in the second Muhammad, in the third Babur - there is a peculiar literary beauty in the use of the word la-makani in the 1st couplet. The author hints that the mosque is meant to be the abode of God, although he has no fixed abiding-place. - In the first hemistich of the 3rd couplet the poet gives Babur the appellation of qalandar, which means a perfect devotee, indifferent to all worldly pleasures. In the second hemistich he gives as the reason for his being so, that Babur became and was known all the world over as a qalandar, because having become Emperor of India and having thus reach the summit of worldly success, he had nothing to wish for on this earth.
> The inscription is incomplete and the above is the plain interpretation which can be given to the couplets that are to hand. Attempts may be made to reed further meaning into them but the language would not warrant it."

(Babur-Nama Appendices U Page Ixxvii

11. The Texts and Translations of the alleged inscriptions supplied to and published by S.A. Beveridge in 1921 are quite different from that the Texts and Translations of the alleged three inscriptions supplied to and translated by A. Fuhrer and published in 1889 by the Archaeological survey of India. Her statement that those Inscriptions were ' still existing on 'Babur's Mosque" is not trust worthy as it appears from her own admission that those inscriptions were supplied to her husband by the Deputy-Commissioner of Fyzabad and he had no occasion to see and examine the existence of the real Inscriptions.

12. In Waqf Commissioner's report dated Feb. 8 1941, it has been recorded that the Emperor Babur built the alleged Babri Mosque and appointed one Abdul Baqi its Mutawalli. No Papers related to grants in respect of alleged mosque were available. In this report one Abdul Baqi has been stated to be Mutwalli of the Janam Asthan Mosque at Ajudhya built by Emperor Babur. If inscriptions would have been there then he would have mentioned the same and in that event he would have mentioned the name of either Mir

Khan or Mir (and) Khan Baqi or Mir Baqi instead of Abdul Baqi. A copy of the said report is on pages 44 to 48 of the Vol.6 of the documents filed in the instant Suit by the plaintiffs: Relevant extract from the said report reads as follows:

> "It appears that in 935 A.H. Emperor Babar built this mosque and appointed Syed Abdul Baqi as the mutwalli and khatib of the Mosque (vide clause 2 statement filed by Syed Mohammad Zaqi to whom a notice was issued under the the wakf Act.) An annual grant of Rs. 60/- was allowed by the Emperor for maintenance of the mosque and the family of the first mutwalli Abdul Baqi. This grant was continued till of the fall of the Moghal Kingdom at Delhi and the ascendancy of the Nawabs of Oudh.
> According to CI. 3 of the written statement of Mohammad Zaki Nawab Sa'adat Ali Khan, King of Oudh increased the annual grant to Rs. 302/3/6. No original papers about this grant by the king of Oudh are available."

13. Ld. Civil Judge Faizabad, Mr. A. Akhtar Ahasan caused Judicial Inspection of the Disputed Structure on 26th March 1946 in R. Suit No. 29 of 1945 Shia Central Board of Waqf U. P. Vs. Sunni Central Board of Waqf U.P. Said 'Inspection Note' of the Ld. Judge as well as Persian Text of Two Inscriptions alleged to be found on Disputed Structure are on pages 355 to 360 of the Volume 12 of the Documents i.e. Volume III of the Plaintiffs' documents filed in 0.5. No. 4 of 1989.1st Inscription is on page 356 while 2nd Inscription is on page 357. Notes are on pages355 & 357.

Inspection Notes read as follows:

14. In his judgment and Order dated 30-02-1946 passed in R. Suit No. 29 of 1945 Shia Central Board of Waqf U. P. Vs. Sunni Central Board of Waqf U.P., the Ld. Civil Judge Faizabad, has incorporated translation of the inscription N0. 1 in its entirety and, gist of the inscription N0.2. (Relevant portion of the said judgment containing translation of the inscription No.1 and gist of the inscription N0.2 extracted from page 113 of the Documents' Volume 10 being volume I of the Documents of the plaintiffs in 0.0.S. No. 4 of 1989 reads as follows:

> 'Lastly there are the two Inscription in the mosque which have been reproduced in my inspection notes. These are also referred to in the Gazettes and according to the date in the inscription on the pulpit

> it was built in 923 Hijri, while according to other it was in 935 H. corresponding with 1528 A.D. These inscriptions were the sheet-anchor of the plff's case but I am of the opinion that they are inconclusive.
> The 1st inscription contains three couplets in Persian and when translated runs as follows:
>
> "By the order of Shah Babar, whose justice went up to the skies (i.e. was well known), Amir (Noble) Mir Baqi, of lofty grandeour, built this resting place of angels in 923 Hijri."
> The 2nd inscription is more elaborate and contains usual high flown language on eulogy of Babar & describe Mir Baqi of Isphahan as his adviser and the builder of the mosque. This inscription no doubt supports the plff's case, because it does not say that it was by the order of Babar shah & it only refers to the reign of Babar but the 1st couplet in the 1st inscription near the pulpit, clearly supports the theory that Babar had ordered the building of the as stated in the Gazettes and the settlement report.'

www.vadaprativada.com

15. From the above mentioned Notes and Judgment of the Ld. Civil Judge Faizabad it becomes crystal clear that the Inscriptions were destroyed in communal riot in 1934 and were subsequently restored by the contractor Tehwoor khan. Alleged two inscriptions records two different dates of erection of the building. In one it is given 923 Hijri corresponding to 1516-17 A.D. while in other Inscription it has been given 935 A.D. corresponding to 1528-29 A.D. In this Inscription Mir Baqi of Isphahan has been described as Babur's adviser and the builder of the mosque. As Esfahan and Taskend are part of two different Nations i.e. Iran and Uzbekistan respectively these two Baqi are to be construed two different persons. While in A. Fuhere's Inscription structure in question has been mentioned as lofty firmament building ; in the contractor Tehwoor khan's restored Inscription it has been purposely mentioned as resting place of angels.

16. In 1964-65 Dr. Z.A. Desai, Superintendent, Persian and Arabic Inscription Nagpur published Texts and Translations of three Inscriptions alleged to be fixed on Babari Mosque. Dr. Desai gives reason for his said publication of the Texts and Transalations of the said Inscriptions as follows:

> " The mosque contains a number of inscriptions. On the eastern façade is a chhajja, below which appears a Quaranic text and above, an inscription in Persian verse. On the central mihrab are carved religions texts such as Kalima (first Creed), etc. On the southern face of the pulpit was previously fixed a stone slab bearing a Persian inscription in verse. There was also another inscription in Persian verse built up into the right hand sidewall of the pulpit. Of these, the last mentioned two epigraphs have disappeared. They were reportedly destroyed in the communal vandalism in 1934 A.D., but luckily, I managed to secure an inked rubbing of one of them from Sayyid Badru'l-Hasan of Fyzabad. The present inscription, restored by the Muslim community, is not only in inlaid Nasta'liq characters, but is also slightly different from the original, owing perhaps to the incompetence of the restorers in deciphering it properly.[1]
> The readings and translations of the historical epigraphs mentioned above, except in the case of one, were published by Fuhrer and Mrs. Beveridge, but their readings are so incomplete and different from the text that their inclusion in this article is not only desirable but imperative.
> The epigraph studied below was built up into the southern side of the pulpit of the mosque, but is now lost, as stated above It is edited here from the estampage obtained from Sayyid Badru'l-Hasan of Fyzabad[4]. Its three-line text consists of six verses in Persian, inscribed in ordinary Naskh characters

www.vadaprativada.com

(Epigraphia Indica Arabic & Persian Supplement 1964 and 1965 p. 58-59)

Dr. Desai's footnotes 1 & 4 reads as follows:

"[1] Below the restored epigraph is inscribed in four lines the following Urdu record conserning the fate of the original inscription-

original inscription :—

۲۷ مارچ سنه ۱۹۳۴ ع مطابق ۱۱ ذی الحجه سنه ۱۳۵۲ھ بروز بلوه هندو بلوائی مسجد شهید کرکے اصلی کتبه اٹھا لے گئے جسکو تہور خان ٹھیکہدار نے نہایت خوبی کے ساتھ تعمیر کیا ۔

"On 27th March, 1934 the Hindus - after having made the masjid shahid took away the original inscription which was dexterously rebuilt by the contractor Tehwoor khan."

"[4] It may be argued that since the epigraph is not quoted in Fuhrer's SAJ, the slab had already disappeared before he wrote. But that is not the case, since the tablet was found therein 1906-07 A.D. by Maulavi M Shua'ib of the office of the Archaeological Surveyor Northern Circle, Agra (Annual Progress Report of the Office of the Archaeological Surveyor, Northern Circle Agra, for 1906-07; Appendix. D)"

(Ibid.p.59)

In fact Dr. Desai's this statement purported to prove his hollow claim is also wrong as no such Appendix as mentioned is available. For the sake of argument only if for a moment it is assumed that in 1906-07 Maulavi M Shua'ib had appended such Inscription even then it does not prove that it was in existence in 1889 when Fuhrer published Inscriptions otherwise it would have been necessarily transmitted to A. Fuherer.

www.vadaprativada.com

Dr. Z.A. Desai's Translation of the first inscription being Plate XVII (a) reads as follows:-

> "1. By the order of king Babur whose justice is an edifice, meeting the place of the sky (i.e. as high as the sky), > 2. This descending place of the angels was built by the fortunate noble Mir Baqi.
> 3. It will remain an everlasting bounty, and (hence) the date of its erection became manifest from my words: It will remain an everlasting bounty."
> (Ibid.p.59)

Dr. Desai deciphering the numerical value and hidden meanings of the chronogram of the First Inscription writes as follows:

> "The numerical value of the chronogrammatic contained in the second hemistich of the last line adds up to give the year A.H. 935 (1528-29 A.D.) There is also a play in the word Baqi in the above phrase: Baqi means everlasting and it is also the name of the noble-man-builder is both the meanings are equally applicable here. The phrase can be translated also as: It is a bounty of Baqi."

Dr. Z.A. Desai's before publishing Text and Translation of the second inscription being Plate XVII (b) informs about its non-existence as follows:-

> "The second inscription on the mosque also in Persian verse, consisted of three couplets arranged in six lines. The epigraphic tablet, which was built up into the right-hand side wall of the pulpit, does not exist now and therefore, the text of the inscription is quoted from Fuhrer's work."
> (Ibid.p.60)

Dr. Z.A. Desai's Translation of the second inscription being Plate XVII (b) reads as follows:-

www.vadaprativada.com

> "1. In accordance with the wishes of the ruler of the world, Babur, > 2. A lofty building like the palace of the spheres,
> 3. (that is to say) this lasting house (of God), was founded > 4. By the fortunate noble Mir (and) Khan (Baqi).
> 5. May ever remain such a founder of its edifice,
> 6. (and) such a king of the world and age!"
> (Ibid.p.60)

Dr. Z.A. Desai's before publishing Text and Translation of the third inscription being Plate XVII (c) says that Fuhrer must have been mis- informed about the same which means in fact A. Fuherer had not seen the third inscription himself but had relied on other's wrong information. His said statements read as follows:-

> " The third record of Babur in the Ajodhya masque, comprising a fragment of eight Persian verses of mediocre quality and a colophon appears over the central entrance to the prayer- chamber above the chhajja.The four line text is executed in fairly good Naksh characters in relief amidst floral borders, on a slab measuring about 2m.by 55 cm. The text is fairly well preserved, and Fuhrer must have been misinformed to affirm that 'a few characters of the second and the whole third lines are completely defaced.' "
> (Ibid.p.60)

Dr. Z.A. Desai's Translation of the third inscription being Plate XVII (c) reads as follows:-

> "1. In the name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful. And in Him is trust.
> 2. In the name of One who is Wise, Great (and) Creator of all the universe (and) is spaceless. After His praise, blessings be upon the Chosen one (i.e. the Prophet), who is the head of prophets and best in the world. The qalandar-like (i.e. truthful) Babur has become celebrated (lit. a story) in the world, since (in his time) the world has achieved prosperity.

> 3. (He is) such (an emperor) as has embraced (i.e. conquered) all the seven climes of the world in the manner of the sky. In his court, there was a magnificent noble, named Mir Baqi the second Asaf, Councilor of his government and administrator of his kingdom, who is the founder of this mosque and fort-wall.
> 4. O God, may he live for ever in this world, with fortune and life and crown and throne! The Time of the building is this auspicious date, of which the indication is nine hundred (and) thirty five (A.H. 935=1528-29 A.D.).
> Completed was this praise of God, of Prophet and king. May Allah illumine his proof! Written by the weak writer and humble creature, Fathu'llah Muhammad Ghori."

(Ibid.p.60-61)

17. Dr. Z.A. Desai informs that Fuhrer's reading does not appear to be free from mistakes. But he does not specify the mistakes committed by Fuhrer in his reading of the texts and translations thereof. From the scrutiny of Dr Desai's translation it appears that Dr. Desai in 4th line has added "and" between 'Mir' and 'Khan' and "Baqi" after 'Khan'. So he has converted 'Mir Khan' into 'Mir Khan Baqi'. And in the 3rd line he has added "of God" after 'this lasting house' to make it a mosque. He has neither given any rational explanation for his said conversion of 'Mir Khan' into 'Mir Baqi' nor He has exhibited as to how the Fuhrer's translation is different from the original text.

18. Dr. Z.A. Desai In his detailed discussion on all inscriptions of Babur's regime writes an introduction that a rough draft of an article of his predecessor Maulivi M. Asuraf Hussain

who retired in 1953 was found amongst sundry papers in his office with a note that it might be published after revision by his successor. Consequently, he claims, that he has published these inscriptions with translation after extensive revision and editing, but nowhere has he mentioned that which portions of the reading of these inscriptions are his own revision and editing and on what ground these revisions have been made. About inscriptions at Ayodhya he writes that there are three inscriptions in the Babari Mosque out of which the two were completely destroyed by the Hindu rioters in 1934 A.D. However, he managed to secure an ink-stampage of one of them from Sayyid Badru'l - Hasan of Fyzabad. He writes that the present inscription restored by the Muslims Community "is also slightly different from the original owing perhaps to the incompetence of restorers in deciphering it properly." When Dr. Desai himself admits that the restored inscription is slightly different from the original, then his claim that the restored inscription fixed on Baburi mosque in or after 1934 is the dextrously rebuilt of the original one alleged to be fixed on since the days of Babur becomes meaningless and un-trustworthy. . In fact, none of the Inscriptions was fixed on the Disputed Structure which has all along been sacred place of the Hindus known as Sri Ramajanmasthan Temple.

19. Dr. Desai informs that he has based his translation on the inscription of Fuhrer, although he says that Fuhrer must have been misinformed to affirm that; “few corrections of the second and the whole third line completely defaced”. Even if it is supposed that some words in the 2nd line and the whole third line are defaced, there is not much impact in the meaning of the text of the inscription. But here we do find that Dr. Desai has extensively changed the meaning of the translated passage. It is quite different from what Fuhrer had translated. Fuhrer had written that it is in ten lines, above the entrance door of the Masjid. He has made its translation in ten separate lines. Dr. Desai has considerably changed the meaning of the text without pinpointing how Fuhrer’s translation was wrong. Since beginning and the end of the text are the same and the inscription is said to be the same and there is no major variance in Fuhrer’s English translation from the Persian text, Dr. Desai’s translation appears to be arbitrary. He has changed the date of the inscription 930 H. (1523 A.D.) to 935A.H. without assigning any reason. In Dr. Desai’s translation the name of Mir Baqi the second Asfaq appears where as in the original Persian text Mir Baqi’s name does not appear at all. Then Babar is called a Qalandar in this inscription which is not found in Fuhrer’s translation. After 4th line Dr. Desai does not follow the line system and at the end he mentions Fathu’llah Muhammad Ghori as the humble writer of this inscription.

His name figures in the Fuhrer's translation too. He goes on expanding how Babar was called Qalandar but he does not explain how the changes have taken place in the inscription which was not in the text read by Fuhrer.

20. In the above mentioned Inscriptions the Emperor's name Zahiru'd-Din Muhammad Babur Badshah Ghazi which has been recorded almost in all other available Inscription of his period, is missing from which it appears that the forgers of later days were not familiar with the correct name of the said Emperor.

In the Inscription, dated A.H. 933 i.e. 1526-27 A.D. found on the wall of a well from Fatehpur Sikri being Plate No. XV(a) in its 1st line his name has been recorded as follows:

21. It is not uncommon for ruffians to fix old Inscriptions on newly built and / or converted mosques. 'Epigraphia Indica Arabic & Persian Supplement 1964 and 1965' at its pages 55 and 56 records that two Inscriptions dated 1934 fixed on two mosques at Rohtak did not belong to those mosques but have been fixed thereon. relevant extracts from said book read as follows:

> "Among the historical buildings, two mosques, viz., Masjid-i-Khurd in the Fort[2] and Rajputon-ki-Masjid, a new mosque in the city area, bear inscriptions of the time of Babar. The one on the Masjid-i-Khurd consists of three lines inscribed on a tablet measuring 53 by 23cm. Which is fixed over the central archway outside[3]. The slab is badly damaged and considerable portion of the text has peeled off. It is, therefore, not possible to decipher it completely, but this much is certain that it refers to the construction of a mosque in the reign of ahiru'd-Din Muhammad Babur by one Qadi Hammad. If the Tughluq inscription occurring on the outer archway is in situ, this epigraph may not belong to this mosque."

www.vadaprativada.com

> "The other epigraph of Babur in Rohtak is from the Rajputon-ki-Masjid. Fixed over its central arch, the tablet, measuring 1.1 m. By 21 cm., does not belong to the mosque, but it was rather intended as the tombstone of Masnad-i-'Ali Firuz Khan. It is inscribed with two lines of Persian which are slightly affected by the weathering of the stone. The text records A.H. 934 (1528 A.D.) as the date of the construction of the tomb of Masnad-i-Ali Firuz Khan, son of Masnad-i-Ali Ahmed Khan and grandson of Masnad-i-Ali Jamal Khan and refers itself to the reign of Babur. The style of writing is ordinary Naskh. I have read it as follows:-
> (1) Completed was in the reign of His Majesty Babur Badshah Ghazi, may Allah perpetuate his kingdom and sovereignity, this noble edifice, (viz.) the tomb of His Excellency Masnad-i-Ali[3] Firuz Khan, son of Masnad-i-Ali Ahmad Khan, son of Masnad-i-Ali Jamal Khan, the deceased, all of them, on the 10th of the month of Rabiu'l-Akhar, year (A.H.) four and thirty and nine hundred (10th Rabi'II A.H. 934 = 3rd January 1528 A.D.).

22. In Epigraphia Indica Arabic & Persian Supplement 1964 and 1965' at its pages 19 and 20 S.A. Rahim reports that at Fathabad near Chanderi in Guna district of Madhya Pradesh, stands the partially ruined palace known as Kushk-Mahal and Inscrption fixed thereon are not dated back to its construction but have been affixed thereon from time to time either by the visitors or by the Governors thereof. Relevant extracts from his said reprt read as follows:

> " It would not be, however, wholly correct to say that the Kushk-Mahal does not bear any inscription. There are about a score of places on the walls enclosing the stair-cases, referred to above, which bear short inscriptions. The rubbings of some of these were found in the bundles of old estampages which were transferred to our office, from the

Office of the Government Epigraphist for India, Ootacamund, South India, who in his turn seems to have received them quite some time back from the Archaeological Department of the erstwhile Gwalior state. I prepared fresh rubbings of these records when I toured some places in Madhya Pradesh, including Chanderi, in November 1962. Of these, some are mere repetitions of the same text and as such have been excluded from this purview. The remaining four inscriptions are edited here for the first time.

These inscriptions raise an important question, as to whether they are contemporary with the building or not. They do not appear to be so, because they are not inscribed on tablets set up on the walls, nor are they found incised on prominent places on the monument. A building of such magnificence would have had, if at all it was so planned, an inscription of proportionate prominence. This does not rule out the possibility, however, of the existence of an epigraph on the monument, for it is possible that it had one and may have disappeared since. Moreover, the texts of the inscriptions under study are also vague on this point, for they do not make any explicit reference to the palace-building or its construction. In view of these facts, it appears more likely that these records are either visitors' etchings or some sort of mementos which the governors, the palace-guards or some other officials might have desired to leave on the stone.

Fortunately, one of these four records is dated, and since the same penmanship is employed in the other three records, they can also be safely taken as having been inscribed at about the same time or at short intervals. Their language is Persian and style of writing cursive Naskh. The wear and tear of time has affected the stone, resulting into partial obliteration of some of the letters, particularly in the first inscription.

The contents of these four epigraphs classify them into two groups: one, of the first inscription, and the other of the remaining three. The first refers itself to the governorship(amal) of Khan-i-A'zam Sharaf Khan Sultani and the superintendence (shahnagi) of one person whose name is not very legible; it seems to be Raja, (son of) Shams, (son of) Fath. The name of the writer which is also not clear, appears > to be Shiv Sing(?) Gulhar. This inscription is dated 1489-90.

> The three records of the other group refer, between themselves, to the governorship of Malik Mallu Sultani and superintendence of Sarkhail Shariqi Mulki and quote Gulhar Jit(?) Dev, as the scribe. They are undated and hence, it is difficult to state positively if they are earlier than the above dated inscription or not."

In view of the submissions of Shri P.N. Mishra, it transpires that even after the conquest, the Ramjanamsthan Temple could not be demolished, even if demolished, the erection of Babri Mosque is illegal and against the tenets of Islam. Accordingly, the disputed site cannot be deemed to be a mosque. He has further submitted that there is no reliable evidence that it was constructed by Babur or Mir Baqi. Accordingly Ramjanamsthan Temple even under the Islamic law shall retain its existence, which is not vanished by any illegal action of Aurangzeb, Babur or any ruler. No valid waqf can also be created. It is further submitted that since there was no Islamic Mosque, accordingly question of offering prayers does not arise and even if the prayer was offered, it is immaterial.

Thus in view of the arguments of Shri P.N. Mishra, the building cannot be deemed to almighty. It cannot be used for offering prayers. It has no status of a mosque and the old status of RamJanamsthan Temple cannot be vanished by the rulers. It is unwarranted under the Mohammedan law as Hindus were paying

Jazia.

Sri Hari Shanker Jain, Advocate, appearing on behalf of Hindu Maha Sabha, defendant no.10 has made following submissions:-

1- It is a unique case in which a court of law is required to decide a historical issue relating to about 500 years back for which there can be no direct evidence and parties have to depend on historical books, Gazetteer and other old testaments within the meaning of Section 57(13) Part 1st of the Indian Evidence Act.

2- It is a case in which the Hon'ble Court has not only to decide the Lis between the two parties but also the issue as to whether the action of an invader and the attack made upon the motherland by the Army of Islam led by Babur, King of Fargana, a Islamic country, in 1526-1530 act done by him trampling the cultural heritage of India by partly destroying the temple at Shree Ram Janma Bhoomi and constructing a structure at the same very place, to show the might of Islam, can continue after the enforcement of the Constitution on 26th January, 1950 by virtue of Article 13(1) of the Constitution of India and as such

3- Whether every action done, order passed, civil or judicial in pre- independent era encroaching upon the Right to Religion guaranteed by Article 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India has become non- est, inoperative and void ?

4- The crux of the matter in all the suits is that as to whether

the structure at the place in question was constructed at the site of a sacred place worshipped by Hindus as Ram Janam Asthan over which a temple existed?

5- It is a historical belief that Lord Vishnu took incarnation as Lord Rama in Treta Yuga i.e more than 8 lac years ago in the palace of Raja Dashrath at Ayodhya and who ruled for more than eleven thousand years. Lord Rama is being worshipped as Bhagwan by believers of Sanatan Dharma commonly known as Hindus from Kashmir to Kanyakumari and Atak to Cuttak and they pay homage to the Janam Bhoomi place at Ayodhya where a big palace of Lord Dashratha once existed. A temple at the said place was also constructed and from time to time on account of deterioration of the building structure by weather and natural decay, by Hindu rulers and lastly renovated by Raja Chandra Dev of Gaharwar Dynasty between 1114 to 1154.

6- It is relevant to mention that King Vikramaditya in the year 1090 came to Ayodhya and performed rituals and puja at Ram Janama Bhoomi in the temple existing there on (Hans Bakker Vol . . . page. . . . )

7- In Valmiki Ramayana and all the Shastras and Puranas, last being the Skanda Purana (Khanda 10, Ayodhya Mahatma, written before 13th century )

8- The birth place of Lord Ram at Ayodhya, is being worshipped and rituals are performed there continuously since time immemorial.

9- There is mention in the Sikh Literature that Shree Guru Nanakdev Ji came to Ayodhya in 1505 bathed at River Saryu and had darshan in the temple at Shree Ram Janam Bhoomi.

10- All the above facts historically prove of fatcs establish that the belief of Hindus relating to Shree Ram Janam Bhoomi, at the place in question is continuing from ages much before Babur came to India and the place in question has been a place of religious importance and antiquity for the Hindus and devotees of Lord Shri Ram continuously and such religious belief, performance of rituals Pooja and Arti of the Asthan and the idol of Ram in the Temple has become part and parcel of Hindu religious faith.

11- The archeological evidence is important in the matter. In this regard Shre Hari Vishnu Shila Lekh found at the spot after demolition of the structure on 6th December 1992 establishes that there existed Shree Hari Vishnu Temple at the place in question constructed in 12th century by Raja Chandra Dev of Gaharwar Dynasty. The fact that Raja Chandra Dev ruled Ayodhya from 1104-1155 is also proved by the book entitled, 'the Early History of India' by Vincent A. Smith filed and relied upon by the plaintiffs (paper no. 324- C 1 Volume 26 at Page. 91)

12- A translation of the inscription of Vishnu Hari Temple has been placed on record ( Paper no. 307- C 1 volume 29 Page 29-41) and paper no. 254 C 1 to 254 Volume 32 page 74 to 113.

13- The Hon'ble Court directed Archeological Survey of India to excavate and to submit a report by virtue of powers vested under

www.vadaprativada.com

Order 26 Rule 10 A of CPC. Report has been submitted by ASI and Hon'ble Court has not directed to call for another report, and as such said Report has become the part of record as scientific evidence for placing reliance thereon.

14- The report of ASI clearly established that the disputed structure was raised on the existing wall of temple and no new foundation had been raised. A large material showing the existence of temple has been found and that there existed a big structure. In this regard, the conclusion derived by the ASI is referred to.

15- There is another clinching evidence to establish that the structure in question (partly) was raised destroying a Hindu Temple largely employing the materials of the demolished structure. It is evident from 14 black Kasauti Pillars pictures which are available in the album of white and Black photographs submitted by Director, UP State Archeology in two albums who was directed to take photographs and get videography of the existing structure.

16- Those albums contain the pictures of Kasauti Pillars where Hindu God and Goddess were engraved and those pillars cannot be found in any Mosque. Apart from these pillars the Varah Devta is clearly seen in the outer wall of the structure. In the southern side Singh Dwar is visible. These photos have been pointed out to the Hon'ble Court during course of arguments and in video film displayed before the Hon'ble Court on 27th July 2010.

17- In different Gazetteers the facts have been mentioned by

www.vadaprativada.com

Authors on the basis of the clinching evidence and story of damage / demolition of a Temple at the site of Janamsthan and construction of the disputed structure as narrated by the public on the basis of information derived by them from their ancestors and that the said place i.e. the Asthan is believed sacred by Hindus who have been worshiping the temple and place from ages. (Paper No. 132 – C1 to 62 Vol. 29 Page 43-167)

18- It is remarkable to mention that plaintiffs have relied upon the facts mentioned in EPIGRAPHIA INDICA published under the authority of Archeological Survey of India in 1965 edited by Superintendent Dr. Z. A. Desai, wherein it has been clearly mentioned that a mosque was constructed at the birth place of in question, during the reign of Babur and that alleged inscription at the structure was misplaced during 1934 riots and its copy was obtain from Maullavi M. Ashraf Hussain while the one again placed in the structure is a different inscription. (Paper no. 198 C 2 to 123 volume 30 page 107 to 117.

19- It is relevant to point out that from the travelers account of William Finch and Trifen Thaler, the description of Ayodhya relating to Pooja at the birthplace written by Abul Fazl in Ain-I–Akbari Volume 2 and 3. The Gazateer of 1854 and subsequent gazateers as well as the report A. Fuhrer 1891, marked as ex- j – 24 volume 35 at page 341 to 351. There is a clear mention that there existed Rama temple at the place in question. From the Gazateers

www.vadaprativada.com

report as well as from the Judgment of Civil Judge in Suit no. 61/ 280 of 1885 it is clear that Hindus were performing Pujas in the inner courtyard and after riot in 1855 a railing was put, and Muslims were allowed to perform Namaz as well. But there is no evidence that the Hindus did not continue to worship the idols inside the inner courtyard. The Muslims tried to enter upon the inner courtyard in the year 1934 and riot took place in which the Domes were damaged and were rebuilt by the Britishers giving outlook of a Mosque. There is no evidence that after riots, the structure was handed over to Muslims by the Government. The Hindus continued in possession and pooja was being performed in the inner courtyard and also on chabutara. The pilgrims and devotees continued to worship and perform ritual of all the sacred places at the Asthan.

20- It is remarkable to mention that the building in question cannot be termed as mosque in any way. On the pillars, images of Hindu God and Goddess are visible, at the entrance small ‘aala’ for worship of the deity was there, in the northern side Singh Dwar was there and the outer was the image of Varah is very much visible. Apart from all these evidences, one more remarkable thing is that there is parikrama marg round the structure which is found in a Temple. After Darshan of the ‘Idol’, the ‘Charans’ and Sita Rasoi’, devotees were taking parikrama of the Temple continuously much before the rule of Babur. The Panchkosi and Chaudah Kosi parikrama of the Asthan are being performed from ages. On Ram Naumi day, the birth place of Lord Ram devotees in lacs were collecting to perform Pooja and other rituals much

21- It is noteworthy that in all the Government and Revenue Record Janamsathan or Temple have been mentioned. Even the Muslims in their applications have referred the place as Janam asthan. In 1858, Mohd. Asgar, the alleged Mutwalli had confirmed that Hindus collect and perform puja there from ages.

22- It is remarkable that all the Muslim historian, writers, intellectuals etc have continuously maintained that Babur constructed a Mosque after demolishing the birthplace temple at the site in question. For the first time, Mohd. Ayub Advocate, in his statement under Order 10 CPC asserted that Mosque was constructed under the orders of Babur at a barren land.

23- It is noteworthy that Mohd. Ayub Advocate could not give said statement on the basis of his knowledge as he had not seen the events of 1528 and he has not disclosed his source of knowledge.

24- In Suit No. 29 of 1945, UP Shia Wakf Board Vs. U.P. Sunni Wakf Board which is being relied upon by the plaintiffs, there is a finding that the Mosque in question was constructed after demolishing a Temple at the Birthplace of Lord Ram. The Muslims have also not filed any appeal against the said finding. Therefore, there is estoppels against the Muslims on the issue and they cannot assert that the alleged Mosque in question after demolishing the Temple at the Ram Janam Asthan was constructed on a barren land.

25- From a reading of Babur Nama, it is crystal clear that he hated Hindus and Idol worshippers and he took a vow to break their Idols in pieces.

26- Therefore, a clear mens rea is established and Babur's hatred came true when under his order temple at the place in question was destroyed partly to humiliate the Idol Worshippers and show the victory of Army of Islam over Pagans( Kafirs).

27- It is relevant to point out that Muslim Plaintiffs have asserted that from the time of Babur till British Rule they were being paid Nankar grant. In this regard it is to point out that there was no proof that any grant was ever given by any ruler before 1860 in the name of alleged Baburi Mosque. It is for the first time that Britishers allured the Muslim by financial grant of Rupees 302 and 6 annas on the condition that they will be loyal to the Britishers and give military service whenever required. The grant was given for a Mosque existed at Mauja Sehenava and not for any Mosque at Mauja Kot Ramchandar. Mauja Sehenava is 5 kilometers away from Mauja Kot Ramchandar.

There is no proof that any Wakf was ever created or the Mosque was on a Wakf property. No Wakf can be created over the site of a Hindu temple or Hindu place or at the Asthan of Hindu worship. It is immaterial as to whether Muslim law permits such a construction of a Mosque and the defendant Hindu Maha Sabha does not rely on Muslim law at all. In regard to Hindu places of worship, Muslim law cannot be applied and Hindu Law will apply and prevail, which lays down that once deity's property, if always a deity's property and even King cannot take it. Even if under Muslim law the construction in question could be recognized as mosque, the defendant does not place reliance on that analogy to take benefit of foreign law which would be shameful and derogatory.

He has further submitted that on the basis of archaeological evidence and remains which were found after the demolition of the old structure suggests that after demolition of the temple the mosque was constructed by the debris of the old temple.

1. The most clinching evidence is epigraphical, i.e., documents inscribed on stone. It is the inscription of that very king in whose reign the Hindu temple at Rama Janmabhumi was built, King Govinda Chandra. It is, therefore, contemporary documentary evidence which is incontrovertible hence it should be fully relied upon in establishing the historical fact of the existence of a pre-Babari Masjid Hindu temple at Rama Janmabhumi.

2. It is a 20-line lekha (inscription or document) engraved on a rectangular phalaka (slab or tablet) of buff sandstone (Shila) . It measures about 5 fts. In length and 2.25 fts. In width. The language of the inscription is Sanskrit. The text is largely composed in beautiful verses; only some portions are in prose. The script is Nagari written in the 11th-12thcentury A.D. style. This is fully established by palaeography or "the science of old writings'.

3. That inscription, in the absence of proper professional estampages, which the court must immediately arrange from the Archaeological Survey of India, has understandably as yet not been fully deciphered by palaeographists and epigraphists. Nevertheless, substantial portions have been deciphered from the available estampages, photographs, colour slides and a video-film prepared by Dr. S.P. Gupta jointly with Dr. Sudha Malaiyya on 13th Dece. 1992, which prove beyond an iota of doubt that here at Rama Janmabhumi there did exist from at least the early 12 th century A.D. a Hindu temple. The inscription and its deciphered portions are given in Appendix –I. Here we are quoting only the relevant portions to bring home the single point that as early as the first half of the 12th century A.D. a magnificent and imposing Hindu temple,dedicated to Lord Vishnu-Hari, was constructed here during the reign of the most powerfull ruler of this region, King Chandra Deva of the Gahadval Dynasty ruling from Kannauj, an ancient city of the R. Ganga, from where even the king Harsha had ruled in the 7th century A.D.

4. The inscription has not been read fully due to the non-availability of good impressions, but what has so far been deciphered in more than enough to conclude the erection of a Vaishnava shrine there during this period. The record was evidently put up on a wall of the shrine to mark its completion and installation of the divine image. Line 15 of this inscription tells us that a beautiful temple of Vishnu-Hari built with heaps of stone (sila-samphati-grahais) and beautified with a golden spire (hiranya-kalasa- sri-sundaram) unparalleled by any other temple erected by earlier kings (purvvair-apy-akritam kritam nripatibhir) was constructed. This wonderful temple (aty-adbhutam)was built in the temple-city (vibudh-alayani) of Ayodhya and Saketa were closely connected, Saketa being the district wherein Ayodhya was located. The two names are used as synonymous in classical Sanskrit literature, and it is likely that they represent the twin cities of Ayodhya and Faizabad. Towards the end it also refers to God Vishnu as destroying kind Bali (in Vamana incarnation) and the ten headed (Dasanana, i.e. Ravapa) and alludes to the serious fear from the west (paschatya-bhiti). It also contains the expression Janmabhumi. It was composed by the poet Ayushyachandra, son of Alhana. Perhaps he was also a ruling chief and as royal poet he was said to have excelled even Sahasanka and

Sudraka and is credited with the excavation of tanks, wells as well as stepped wells. We come across a reference to king Govindachandra, who appears to be identical with the homonymous Gahadavala king, as well as to strong ruling chief named Sallakshana twice. This Sallakshana cannot be dfinitely identified as the whole inscription has not yet been deciphered. He could have been a Gahadavala feudatory or the well-known Chandella king of that name who ruled towards the close of the eleventh and the beginning of the twelfth century A.D. while certain points in connection with the interpretation of the inscription are yet to be settled, and can only be settled when good impressions are made available, the fact is finally established that at the disputed site there existed an eleventh-twelfth century Vaishnava temple before the erection of the 'Babari masque.'

www.vadaprativada.com

5. In this prashasti (citation) the king says that he came to Ayodhya, which is located in the Saket Mandala (District), and built a sundara mandiram (most beautiful temple) of shila (stone). It was possibly done in place of an old temple which had by then become weathered. He topped the Shikhara (spire) of the temple with kalasha (pinnacle) made of hiranya (Gold). He dedicated the

www.vadaprativada.com

temple to Lord Vishnu-Hari who was none else but the one who had humbled the pride of Bali-raja (the trivikram form of Vishnu) and also dushta Dashanana (wicked Ravana). This he did when the foreigners (the Muslims) were avalanching from the West (Paschchatya) and creating fear (bhiti) but he had successfully thwarted it with the valour of his own arm (Bahudalanama).

6. The date of the reigning king Govinda Chandra of the Gahadval dynasty of Kannauj is bracketed between 1114 A.D. and 1154 A.D.

7. It is most significant to note that the king not only built the temple but also completed it because the kalasha or pinnacle is established on the top of the Shikhara or spire only when the temple is finally ready in all respects and the kumbhabhisheka performed. Then only the deity in the garbhagriha (sanctum sanctorum) gets consecrated and is ready to receive daily offering and worship. In this case the main deity was Lord Vishnu –Hari. Evidently, the inscribed tablet was fixed in the walls of the temple of Vishnu- Hari at the time of the consecration of the deity and the inaugural worship held to commemorate the event.

8. No, greater proof is required to establish the fact that here at Rama Janmabhumi a magnificient Vaishnava temple was in fact built sometime between 1114 AD. And

www.vadaprativada.com

1154 A.D., i.e. during the first half of the 12th century A.D. and dedicated to Lord Vishnu-Hari who had humbled the pride of many, including Ravana. (Incidently, Rama and Rama alone had humbled the pride of Ravana; hence in a sense it was not only a Vishnu temple but also Rama temple, as Rama was one of the various incarnations of Vishnu.)The event of erecting the temple had taken place around 400 years prior to the building of the 'Babari Masjid': the temple was built in early 12th century while the 'mosque' was built in early 16th century. For the historians the evidence of the inscription is full, final and incontrovertible.

9. It may also be noted that even earlier to it there existed a temple at this very site which had become dilapidated due to the ravages of time which had weathered the stones of the temple. This is borne out from the details of the inscription as well as the actual art and architectural remains discovered on 6th Dec. 199: Hence, the building of the 12th Century Hindu temple was not a one-time act but an act in an on-going process. (Reference: Rama Janmabhumi, Ayodhya: New Archaeological Discoveries, Historians Forum, New Delhi, 1992).

10. Fortunately, this contemporary documentary evidence, in the form of Hari-Vishnu temple inscription,

engraved on a stone tablet, is further supported by two more inscriptions engraved on a stone pillar found within the debris of the Babari Masjid on the 6th Dec. 12992 . One of these stone inscriptions (Shila-lekha), the upper one, is in eight lines, while the other, the lower one, is in two lines. Though the inscriptions are so very fragmentary that no coherent account could so far be made out from their reading. Still two things are absolutely clear: one , that the inscriptions relate to Hindu Gods and Hindu Kings ( there is a genealogical reference) and second, that palaeographically the script is to be placed in 12 th century A.D., may be in the mid to lat 12 th Century A.D. Thus, these inscriptions are around 50 years later in date than the Vishnu-Hari temple inscription.

11. It, therefore, follows, that the activities connected with the structures did not cease by the middle of the 12th century A.D, these were continuing beyond it.

12. This otherwise most clinching evidence of epigraphical records is also fully supported by the actual remains of the temples, rightly claimed to have been built here by the kings during the 12th century A.D. and also earlier to it, possibly 10th and 11th centuries A.D., and may be even earlier to this ‘earlier’ date for which also

there is some solid evidence in the form of objects of art and ions of the Kushana Period, 1st -3rd century A.D.

THE ARCHITECTURAL REMAINS OF THE PRE-BABARI HINDU TEMPLES; ART AND ARCHITECTUAL EVIDENCE

1. There are several pieces of architectural members of the pre-1528-29 A.D. Hindu temples which once stood at Rama Janmabhumi. We may start with the internal evidence of the structure of the so-called Babari Masjid which stood at the site from 1528-29 A.D. till the afternoon of the 6th Dec. 1992. The evidence is in the form of a number of beautifully carved monolithic pillars of black colour with bluish hue. These were at the ends of the piers of the domes and also on the entrance of the 'masjid'. On all counts, these are non-Islamic because they show images of Hindu gods and goddesses. Thus, these pillars must have formed part of a temple of the pre-Babari Masjid period. The relevant details are as follows: (i) Within the then disputed structure of the so-called Babari Masjid there were as many as 14 pillars of black stone popularly called'kasauti' but geologically speaking, schistose of the slate varity, a sedimentary rock, the nearest deposits of which are located in hilly tracts of Garhwal- Kumaonregion of Uttar Pradesh. All of them were used a architectural members in the body fabric of the 'Babari Mosque". (ii)

One of the black stone pillars, fixed on the northern side of the main entrance, carved under the central dome, was found inscribed with the letter "Si", written prominently in typical Nagari script which is stylistically datable to 11-12th century A.D., sdme as the script of the Vishnu-Hari temple inscription mentioned in Section-I.

(iii) There are two similar pillars found fixed upside down in a grave-yard located nearly a furlong away from Janmabhumi. The grave near which these are still found existing is alleged to be of the Muslim saint, Musa Ashikan who is supposed to be patron of Mir Baqi.

There are a couple of similar other black stone pillars, still standing in the cantonment area at Faizabad, some 8 to 10 Km. away from Ayodhya.

(iv) Each pillar, which nearly 11 to 12 inches square at the base, but eight faceted in the centre and four faceted below it, is shown emerging out of a sacred water-pitcher, called purna-kumbha or purna-ghata, or simply kalasha. It is exclusively a Hindu sacred motif since it relates to the Vedic concept of Water Cosmology. (Reference: "'Ashokan' Pillar: A Reassessment of the

Evidence" pt.IV Symbolism, Burlington Magazine 1976, by John Irwin).

(v) Each purna-ghata is shown carried on the shoulders of four yakshas, sitting on knees and pressing the hands on the ground in the front. Each one is located at one of the four corners of the square base of the pillar, representing one cardinal direction. According to Sadhanamala, an old Sanskrit text on Hindu Inconography, each human settlement had at least one yaksha, as the guardian deity; he had a consort also, called yakshi, Reference: yaksha by Ananda K. Coomaraswami) (vi) The pillars are further embellished with male (Ganas), female (deva-kanyas), floral ( kamala), faunal (hamsa) and geometric motifs ( diamond), typical of the Hindu iconography, repeatedly found in all Hindu temples. (Reference: Art of India and Indonesia Ananda Kentish Coomaraswami).

PILLAR–BASES; The Remains In The Excavated Trenches

2. From 1975 through 1980 professor B.B. Lal, a former Director General, Archaeological Survey of India, excavated at fourteen different places in ayodhya on behalf of the Archaeological Survey of India. In one of his trenches, laid immediately on the south of the boundary wall of the then disputed structure, he found six of the several pillar-bases arranged in two parallel rows. These were built of burnt-bricks mixed with blocks of stone. It was logically surmised by the excavators that these may have been those very 'bases' on which some of the block stone pillars of the original temple stood while in situ.

3. After a close examination of the plans and sections of this site, it may further be noted, even three other eminent archaeologists—Prof. K.V. Raman, Head of the Ancient History and Archaeology Department, Madras University, Dr. Y.D. Sharma and Dr. K.M. Srivastava—formerly Directors, Archaeological Survey of India, have come to the same conclusion. The have observed that the foundation-trenches of the pillars, the layers found against the pillar-bases, the various lime-floors, the debris, and the floor sealing the pillar-bases as well as the material found in the debris overlying the sealin-floor establish beyond any doubt that the pillar-bases were raised in the 11th-12th century A.D. Incidentally, as noted earlier, one of the pillars on the main entrance of the disputed structure also bears an inscription in Nagari characters of the 11th -12 century A.D. Thus, the pillar-bases belonged to the period 11th-12th century A.D. further, the dating of the destruction of the temple, early

16th century, is based upon two unquestionable pieces of evidence: (i) the material found in the deposit lying buried in a pit immediately below the sealing floor and in the debris lying immediately above the sealing floor. There are a number of glazed ware pieces in both the deposits.

DOOR-JAMB OF BLACK STONE

4. There is a door-jamb or dvara – shakha of black stone kept in the court-yard of a comparatively new building called now 'janmasthana. The door- jamb may have been fixed at the entrance of the garbha-griha of the original Hindu temple. It shows two parallel mouldings, one of which is purely decorative as it consists of meandering creepers. The second mouldings is very significant because it is divided into several rectangular panels, set one above the other, each depicting a Hindu deity. The lower –most depicts the image of Dvarapala, or door-keeper, standing in tribhanga poses under a arched canopy. The devarapala is wearing a karanda mukuta on the head and a vanamala in the neck. In Hindu inconography, when both of them occur together on the body of a deity, the deity is necessarily to be Vaishnavite in origin. The entrance of the canopy is like a trefoiled

www.vadaprativada.com

arch with three semi-circular mouldings based on the principle of oversailing courses, named “corbelied arch”. This ornamental arch rests on two pillars, emerging out of purna-ghatas and beautifully decorated with a number of mouldings on the top. The panel above the devarapala shows a female deity standing in an arched gateway. Her posture is also in tribhanga. The panel above this also shows a female deity standing in tribhanga pose. The next panel shows the mother goddess standing in the forntal pose under a canopy. The 4th panel depicts a gana or a young dwarfish male dancing under a canopy. The top-most shows the beautiful image of salabhanjika, holding a branch of the blossoming tree. It may be mentioned in this context that the dvarapala is holding a shula, or a spear, in his left hand. It establishes the fact that he is a guardian deity, holding a weapon to protect the main deity of the garbha-griha from all evil-doera. The right hand, on the other hand, is held in vyakhyana mudra, i.e. in a pose which is adopted by a deity when he delivers a sermon to the visitors. It should be borne in mind that the deity is standing on a full blown lotus, as was customary with all the deities during this period. It is, therefore, absolutely clear that the temple to which the dvara-shakha originally belonged was dedicated to Vishnu or an incarnation of Vishnu, most probably Rama, both are essentially one and the same.

5. We are now on almost sure grounds that the 12th century Hari-Vishnu temple constructed here during the reign of King Govinda Chandra was destroyed, according to the tradition recorded in various Indian and foreign accounts, in the early 16th century, in all probability by Babur's men. The parts of this temple which could be gainfully re-used in the structure of the 'Baburi Masque' were in fact re-used, such as the black stone pillars in the piers, some carved blocks of stone in the walls and at least one long piece of stone with lotus carvings in the vitana, i.e., as a lintel. However, the parts which could not be used, because of their unmanageable shapes, such as the crescent shaped amalakas with corrugated periphery, or otherwise, were cast-away and dumped in a pit nearby. These details of the discovery and some of the anitiquarian remains may be recounted as under.

6. ON THE 18TH OF JUNE 1992, when the ground near the Rama Janmabhumi was being leveled, a most startling archaeological discovery was made at Ayodhya. At a depth of about 12 feet from the ground level near the Ramajanma Bhumi temple, towards the south and beyond the fencing, a big hoard of beautifully carved buff sandstone pieces was located in a large pit dug down below the old top level. The location of the pit is shown in Appendix II & III.

7. A careful study by a group of eight eminent archaeologists and historians found that all these objects are architectural members of a Hindu temple- complex of the 12th century A.D.

8. The group comprised Dr. Y.D Sharma, former Deputy Director General, Archaeological Survey of India, Dr. K.M. Srivastava, former Director, Archaeological Survey of India, Dr. S.P Gupta, former Director, Allahabad Museum, PROF. K.P. Nautiyal, Vice-Chancellor, Avadh University and former Head of the Ancient History and Archeology Department, Garhwal University, Prof. B.R. Grover, former Director, Indian Council of Historical Research, Shri Devenra Swarup Agrawal and Dr. Sardindu Mukherji of the Delhi University and Dr. (Mrs.) Sudha Malaiya of Bhopal.

9. The temple: The experts, who visited the site on behalf of the academic organization, “The Historians’ Forum”, on the 2nd and 3rd of July 1992, are unanimously of the view that the temple, to which these fragments belong, is of the developed Nagara style of ancient temple architecture which was current in northern India during the later part of the early medieval period, i.e. the period after 900 A.D. and before 1200 A.D. The temples of this style are characterized by a distinctly imposing shikhara, which is a tall and tapering spire over the garbha-griha, or sanctum sanctorum, which houses the main deity.

10. The Shikhara Amalaka: The developed Shikhara is like a mountain with several tiers of subsidiary Shikharas, rising one above the other and projecting partially from the main Shikhara. The Shikharas are crowned with a very distinctive circular piece of stone, called amalaka, which is shaped like a cogged wheel, with bead-like mouldings along the periphery. It is so very typical of the temples of northern India that no one in the world who knows even a little about the Hindu temples can cast any doubt about its position in the temple structure. There are two examples of half- amalakas, in the present hoard of objects, evidently used on the top of the subsidiary Shikharas, called Shikhara of karmas, i.e. fring spires.

11. The Shikhara Jala : The second most significant find is the curvilinear part of the jala mouldings present on the Shikharas. It is beautifully decorated with scrolls. It also belongs exclusively to the north Indian temples of the period after 900 A.D. since the technique of its carving involves the method of scooping out the areas around the floral elements so that the art-motifs are formed with surface absolutely plain. It is called 'Stencil' technique.

12. The Capital: The third most noteworthy sculptured piece of stone in this collection is a rectangular capital of a pillar with beautiful mouldings in the form of highly stylized lotus petals arranged as narrow parallel strips carved in low relief around the capital.

13. The Cornice: The fourth example of stone sculptures belongs to the most characteristic members of the Nagara style of temples – it is called Chhadya, and in Hindi Chhajja, sun-shade, where the straight wall over the high plinth meets the base of the Shikhara. It is carved and shaped like rectangular Mangalore tiles to serve not only as a sun-shade but also allow the rain water to run off quickly and protect the structure. It is a corner-stone of the cornice.

14. Floral freize: There is one frieze of continuous leaf-molding which decorates one of the top lines of the high plinth of the temple.

15. Door-jamb: There is one example of a door-jamb or

dvara-shakha of the main entrance of the temple. It is decorated with a meandering floral design, carved in 'Stencil' style.

16. Images of Vihnu's Incarnations: There is also a fragment of a steel embellished with the most significant sculptures of a number of Vaishnavite gods, viz. a Chakrapurusha, i.e. a youthful male figure standing gracefully at an angle (tribhanga) and holding vertically in the palm of the right hand the characteristic wheel or chakra of Vishnu.

17. Another image is that of Parashurama, sitting cross-legged and holding a battle-axe in the left hand. Below him is the image of Balarama, the elder brother of Krishna, with a canopy of serpent-hoods and having a wine-cup in his hand. Still below him is the image of mother Goddess (matri-devi), the bestower of all good luck.

18. Shiva-Parvati: Besides the above, there are several other images. One is of Shiva –Parvati, also called Uma-Maheshvara. It was found from a shallow mound called Nala, located some 200 metres away from the site of the above hoard of art and architectural pieces. Though Shiva's head is now lost, his hand holding a trishula, trident, is fully intact. Similarly, although Parvati's face is not extant, her hand from behind Shiva's neck is found resting on his right shoulder in an embracing position. Stylistically, it is also datable to the 11th century.

19. Terracotta Figurines: Art objects of burnt clay belonging to the earlier periods, such as the Kushana ( Ist-erd century) have also found. These images to various Hindu gods and goddesses.

SOME ANTIQUITIES DISCOVERED ON 6TH Dec. 1992

20. It is gathered, that more than 250 objects, many of them belonging to ancient temples, were collected by the Kar Sevaks from the debris of Rama Janmabhumi-Babari Masjid Complex on the 6th Dec. 1992 and bodily shifted to a place called Rama Katha Kunj, hardly 200 mts. from the complex. The Rama Katha Kunj has a small semi-permanent building with about half-a-dozen rooms constructed by the VHP for their own use. Some of these rooms were just the store-rooms, practically closed quarters with very poor light and ventilation. These objects of stone and metal were locked by the U.P. Govt. in a couple of these 'store rooms', sometime in the third or fourth week of December 1992, where they are still lying threatened in terms of their physical condition—we apprehend that unless these are immediately shifted to the properly ventilated and lighted galleries of a public museum, where constant vigil is generally kept on the preservation and

www.vadaprativada.com

Conservation of the Exhibits, these invaluable objects of our national heritage may get damaged sooner than we can imagine. It is proposed that these objects are shifted, housed and displayed along with forty and odd number of objects collected in June 1992 and presented at the Ram katha Museum, Ayodhya, functioning under the direct control of the dept. of Culture, Govt. of Uttar Pradesh. But this is besides the point, even though in a sense very vital for the nation.

Inscriptions

(1) A stone-tablet Vishnu-Hari Temple Inscription of 20 line text composed in Sanskrit language and written in Nagari Script of 11qth -12th century style. It is securely dated in the first half of the 12th century A.D.

(2) An eight line fragmentary inscription on a stone pillar, composed in Sanskrit language and written in Nagari script of 11th -12th century A.D. It is datable to mid-to late 12th century A.D.

(3) A two –line fragmentary Sanskrit inscription engraved on a stone pillar in Nagari Script. It is datable to mid-12th century A.D.

technique. Datable to 12th century.

(11) A large fragment of the ceiling, bluish dark stone, showing meandering creepers with two human figures, arranged in concentric rectangles. Datable to 12th century.

(12) A section of frieze showing flowers and leaves interconnected roundels, with upper and lower borders of closely placed beads, the bottom has running us. The deeply cut crevices are found: indifferently filled with chunam. It is a most telling and convincing evidence of the fact that the stones like this were fixed in the walls of the 'mosque' with sculptured face turned inside the core of the wall. Datable to 12th century.

(13) Some half –a-dozen pillars of buff sandstone with curved brackets. Datable to 12th century.

(14) Three amalaka, each on these had topped the karma Shikhara or corner spires of the temple. Datable to 11th-12th century.

Persian Inscription

(15) There is a large fragment of the Persian inscription which was once fixed on the top of the main entrance of the central domed chamber. Datable to early 16th century.

(16) Central piece of the ceiling of the dome decorated with fully opened flower and iron chain. Datable to 16th century.

(17) Avitana stone or lintel, once found fixed on the main entrance of the 'mosque'. It bears lotus motifs of Hindu sacred symbols. Datable to 11th-12th century.

PIECES OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL EVIDENCE IN FAVOUR OF HINDU TEMPLE EXISTING AT RAMA JANMA-BHUMI PRIOR TO THE CONSTRUCTION 'BABARI MASJID'

Like various other sources of history, archeology may also play a very important role in decision-making process aimed at solving the question whether: a Hindu Temple, or else, a Hindu religious structure, - existed at the place called ' Rama Janmabhumi- Babari Masjid complex' prior to the building of the so-called Babari Masjid. Archeology has to offer at least 43 pieces of evidence to prove that yes, there did exist at Rama Janmabhumi a magnificent Hindu temple since at least the 12th century A.D., i.e. around 400 years prior to the construction of the so-called Babari Masjid in the 16th century A.D.

THE INSCRIPTIONS

1) The Vishnu-Hari Temple stone inscription composed. In Sanskrit and written in 11-12th century

Nagari script. It clearly mentions the construction of a Hindu temple at Ayodhya during the reign of Govind Chandra Deva (1114-1154 A.D) of the Gahadval dynasty.

2) Two fragmentary inscriptions on a pillar— Sanskrit Language and also 11th-12th century A.D. script.

3) Letter 'Si', of the Nagari script of 11th-12th century engraved on a black stone pillar.

4) There were 14 black stone pillars fixed in the body-structure of the so-called 'Babari Masjid', each bearing images of Hindu gods and goddesses besides various sacred faunal, floral and geometric motifs which are absolutely non-Islamic. There are two more similar black stone pillars, fixed upside.

5) The Kamlaa flower on the pillars as well the lintel stone and the chhadya stones.

6) The Kalpadruma or meandering creeper on the door –jamb and on lata moulding of the shikhara of the temple.

7) The Malas of flowers and gems on the pillars

8) The Karanda mukta on the head of the dvarapela.

9) The vanamala on the body of the dvarapala.

10) The Yajnopavita on the body of Chakrapursha.

Sri Jain submitted that the evidence on revenue record belies the version of the plaintiffs that the mosque was not constructed after demolition of the temple. Thus, according to Sri Jain even from revenue record and other materials, it can be presumed that certain interpolations were made in the record and the place was known as Janma Sthan for the reasons that Lord Rama took birth and the temple was erected but the same was demolished and Babri Mosque was erected over it. In this regard his submissions are as under:

Evidence from the Revenue Record; Record of Right :

www.vadaprativada.com

1. The first Report of Settlement of the Land Revenue of Fyzabad District by K. F. Mitchell (vide paragraphs 618-19, 666-669,while tracing the past history of Janmasthan/'Baburi Masjid' in Kot Ram Chander/Ayodhya, confirms the fact that Babar came to Ayodhya in 1528 AD and halted here for a week during which he destroyed the Janmasthan Temple and on its site built a mosque using largely the materials of the old structure. This must have occurred about the time of Babur's expedition to Bihar. The author of the Settlement Report further adds that according to Scyder's Memoirs of Babar, the emperor encamped about 5 or 6 miles from Ayodhya and stayed for a week, setting the surrounding county, though it was remarkable that his

doings at Ayodhya were wanting in his Memoirs (Babar-nama).

2. As the settlement Report as a book of reference is admissible under the law, i.e., under the Evidence Act, its validity is unreliable. In the Regular Suit No.29 of 1945 over the Waqf issue between the Shia Central Board of Waqf, U.P. Versus Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P., in his judgment dated 30.03.1946, Akhtar Ahsan Naqvi, Civil Judge, Faizabad maintained that the Gazetteer of the District or the Settlement Report as books of reference were admissible under Section 57 of the Evidence Act.

3. The revenue records relating to village Ramkot, Haveli Awadh, District Faizabad, are extremely significant and clarify the factual proprietary position of Janmastahan Vs. Baburi Masjid. As per land revenue procedure, they offer details of the numbered plots ( Khasras) of entire village Ramkot in respect of nature of land rights, their topographical position, the nature of the soil along with the area of each plot with compete further details, whether inhabited with abadi (population) or a graveyard or arable land growing particular crops along with fruit bearing trees, if any, and paying land rent or treated as Muafi ( exempted from rent payment), the wells, tanks, gardens, paths (roads),

www.vadaprativada.com

Shiwalas (temples) graveyards and mosques, etc. In fact, the records comprise various categories of revenue documents, i.e., survey, bandobust (settlement), kishtwar khasra, khasra abadi, misl hadbast, khewats, Khasra Khataunis and mps, etc., right from 1861 AD. Till 1991092 A.D. All these records are available at the District record Office (Mahafaz Khana/ Tehsil Office/Nazul Office, Faizabad.

4. The plots of land traditionally associated with Janmastahan complex is shown mostly as settled with abadi (population) and constructions thereupon.

5. The first Regular Settlement Report (1861 ) of Kot Ram Chandra, appended by two maps, is the most comprehensive document relating to the Janmastahan is covered under khasra No. 163 with 9 sub-plots ( goshas, from alf to sin , i.e., 'a' to 'I') with total area of 5 bighas and 4 biswas. However, under column No.16 of kaifiyat, it is stated that in the area of Janmastahan there is one pacca well, trees whose number is recorded in khasra abadi and some graveyard (gabaristan).

6. For each of the 9 sub-plots, the area has been recorded. Of the total 5 bighas, 4 biswas area of Janmastahan (vide khasra No.163 ) complex, 4 bighas, 13 biswas are owned by the Nazul Department (Sarkar Bahadur Nazul) as superior

malik and Hindus Mahants as subordinate proprietors (malikan-i-matahi), whereas 11 biswas owned by Hindu mahand are put under the Mahal of Azhar Hussain, etc. ( the lambardars). Unlike the detailed description of the sub-plots of the other khasra Nos., the 1861 settlement does not show any specific sub-plot/sub-plots which were under mahal azhar Hussain and muafi (exempted from payment of the revenue)have been put only at the top in the relevant columns along with Sarkar Nazul, which is misleading and apparently an interpolation effected at a later stage. However, the position is partly clarified by Khatauni No.1(attested by Mohammad Akbar, darogha nazul dated 25th September, 1878) which under the heading of column 2(name of thok patti) puts khasra no. 163 M in muafi (taraf haqiqat muafi), the habitated (abadi) area of 11 biswas under the jurisdiction of Azhar Hussain, etc. , the superior owner (malik or haqdar vide Column4) . Here too, the specific No./Nos. of the sub-plots of khasra no.163 are not mentioned. However, later on, the position is absolutely clarified in the 1301 F/1893 AD settlement when the same sub-plot is shown under khasra No. 163/3 in the mahal jurisdiction ( thok Patti ) and superior ownership of Nazar Hussain and Tahir Hussain (the descendants of Azhar Hussain as (Maliks) along with Mehta Balram Das as subordinate owner (malik matahit). All the same, the 1301

www.vadaprativada.com

F/1893 AD settlement does not put this sub-plot (No.163/3 ) under the category of muafi and merely shows it being a non- nazul land under the mahal of Nazar Hussain, etc. Most significantly, the map of 1893 settlement shows Khasra No.163/3 to the east and outside the boundary wall of the Ram Janmabhoomi/ 'baburi Masjid' covered by khasra plots nos. 163/1 & 163/2. as such, clearly, the sub-plot no.163M recorded in the khatauni No.1 dated 1878 AD as muafi in mahal Azhar Hussain has nothing to do with the land associated with Ram Janmbhoomi/Chabutra/'Baburi masjid', which are separately shown under Nazul and subordinate ownership of the Hindu Mahants.

www.vadaprativada.com

7. To the north of the present Ram Janmabhoomi-erstwhile 'Baburi Masjid' and the walled compound (ahata), lay the inhabited (abadi) area covered by a structure still known as Janmasthan. In fact, all through the centuries, right till the late 19th century, the latter structure comprised only a couple of sub-plots of Janmasthan and formed a part and parcel of the entire Janmasthan complex and the road dividing the two structures, i.e., Ram Janmabhoomi / erstwhile "Baburi Mosque" and the present day misnumbered Janmasthan was constructed in the late 19th century during the British rule. This is well established by the revenue records. A careful study and comparison of the

1861 settlement map of the mauza (village)Ram Chandar with the 1893 settlement map of the said village fully bears out this fact whereas in the 1861 settlement map, the sub-plots of the northern portion of the Janmasthan complex (denoted by the present day so-called Janmasthan ) are contiquous to the southern plots comprising the Ram Janmabhoomi/erstwhile 'Mosque' structure alongwith the walled boundary, in the 1893 settlement map, the former northern portion of Janmasthan (vide khasra no. 163/5, also named abadi Sita Rasoi) is distinctly separated from the latter portion of Ram Janmabhoomi/ erstwhile 'mosque' structure, etc., (vide khasra nos. 163/1 and 163/2) by a regular road (khasra no.163/X) which runs from the border of the Ayodhya city and Hanuman Garhi temple in the east of the village towards the Janmasthan and after dividing the latter complex proceeds towards the Jalanpur village in the west. As this has become a permanent topographical feature, this is equally reflected in the 1936-37 settlement map, operative till date, wherein the road comprising (khasra no.158) divides the Ram Janmbhoomi /erstwhile 'Baburi Masjid' vide (khasra nos. 159 and 160) from the present day misnomered Janmasthan (vide Khasra No.146). As a matter of fact, the khasra kishtwar data of the 1861 settlement gives specific area as well as digical geographical directions for each sub-plot in the Janmasthan complex which comprised the areas of both the portions, i.e., The Ram Janmabhoomi/erstwhile 'Baburi Masjid' and the present day misnomered Janmasthan.

8. As district from the Khasra Kishtwar in the Khasra abadi parts of Nos. 431-456, Makan ( complex) Nos. 92 -93 ( as recorded corresponding tono163 of the former) show abadi (population) in this area. The khasra hadbast of 1861 settlement (No.152) also mentions only makan Janmasthan (mansion of Janmasthan). Apart from it, the khasra abadi shows that the inhabitants of Janmasthan (sakna Janmasthan) also owned other plots/sub-plots (vide khasra Nos. 203, 206,214) or owned musli (taproot) and imli (tamarind) trees in the other plots (vide khasra Nos. 451-52)of the village. This shows that the Janmasthan complex was fairly inhabited and that the mahants/bairagis of Janmasthan, with a network of land-ownership in the village, had a sound financial and social status. None of the khasra abadi Nos., as mentioned above, parallel to the abadi Janmasthan of Khasra kishtwar No.163, does mention the existence of any 'mosque', though in the kaifiyat, they do mention the prevalence of pacca graveyard (qabarqah pukhta), a few imli (tamarind), musli (taproot) trees and makana (houses), etc., on the campus. Even khasra abadi No. 444, conjectured and identified by the amended khasra Nazul record of 1931

being an equivalent to a sub-plot of khasra kishtwar No.163 M of 1861 settlement comprising the Janmasthan, in its kaifiyat describes only ahata pukhta (pacca campus) and two trees (neem and ghauz)in possession of a Thakur of the Village. It no where mentions the existence of a 'mosque'.

9. Quit significantly, the hadbast map appended to the Settlement Report (1861) as well as the abadi map of Kot Ram Chander (1866) show only Janmasthan in the abadi Janmasthan complex plot no.163. They do not indicate any 'mosque' therein.

10. Later on at the back of a duplicate of Khasra Kiehtwar map, Muhamad Akbar, darogha of nazul lands, dealing with heissue of rights of the land owners (Malikan) vis-à-vis tenants (muzarian)of the village and also the question whether there was nazul waqf attached to the pacca mosque built by the Emperor Babur and situated on Janmasthan, recorded on 25th September, 1878 A.D. categorically that (in the village Ramkot) there was no nazul land/house/garden assigned to Mir Mhammad Asghar (Khattib/Muazzan) for an expenditure on the said mosque. However, he further records, that the latter (Muhammad Asghar) had been granted some cultivable land/garden worth Rupees three hundred and two only (Rs.302/) in the villages of Bhuaipur and Sholepur. Apparently, this noting was done by the

darogha nazul in 1878 A.D. as Muhammad Asghar, etc., had already been given conditional land grant by the British Government in 1870, along with malkiyat( Proprietary) rights in land, subject to the rendering of the police and military service.

11. It may be observed that in the absence of the original 1861 settlement hadbast, the recording of a 'mosque' at the back of a duplicate settlement map as late as 1878A.D. by a darogha of the Nazul lands is of peripheral nature, especially when the map itself does not comprise any indication of a 'mosque' there upon. Even though the physical existence of an extraneous structure believed to be 'mosque' built by the Mughal Emperor Babur at the Janmasthan site was undeniable, most significantly, the revenue settlement maps of 1861, 1893 and 1936-37 A.D. do not bear any indicate only the Janmasthan at the site.

12. In the original document of the settlement report of 1861 AD. Available at the District Record Office (Muhafaz Khana)/Tehsil Office, Faizabad, interpolations/additions have been effected in certain columns of the Khasra Kishtwar folios. In the District Record Office document, under column No.2 to the original reading of abadi Janmasthan, the words 'and juma masjid' have been added so as to read 'abadi Janmasthan and juma masjid' under column No.3, to the words ‘taraf nazul’ , the words ‘and muafi’ have been added so as to read and under column No.4, to the words Sarkar Bahadur, ‘ and Azhar Hussain’ have been added.

13. The above alterations’ additions are confirmed by the fact that in the Tehsil Office copy of 1861 settlement, though under column No.2, the words’and jama masjid’have been added to the original words ‘abadi janmasthan’in a very crude manner, the Tehsil copy does not carry any interpolation of ‘and muafi’/’and Azhar Hussain’ under column Nos. 3 & 4 respectively as done in the case of the District Record Office copy Moreover, the second settlement report of Ramkot dated 1301 F / 1893 -94 even though for Janmasthan, carries the same khasra kishtwar No.163 which due to clubbing of the sub-plots is divided into 5 sub-plots instead of 9 as earlier in the case of 1861 settlement, it does not record the name of ‘jama masjid’, nor does it put ‘muafti, under the relevant column nos., which have been shown only under Sarkar Bahadur Nazul. However, in su-plot no.1 163 /3 with an area of 11 biswas, Azhar Hussain and Tahir Hussain have been put as mahaldars wereas Mehta Balram Das has been recorded as subordinate owner (malik matahit), All the same, the word ‘muafi’ does not occur even in this column no.

14. In the 1301 F/1893 AD. settlement, the khasra No. of Janmasthan, i.e., 163 remains the same as earlier in the 1861 settlement, though due to clubbing, the number of the sub-plots is reduced from 9 to 5. In the Khasra kishtwar (vide Basta No.132), further endorsed by the Khatauni (vide Form 15), the area of each sub-plot is recorded. As earlier in the 1861 settlement, the total area of the Janmasthan complex is 5 bighas and 4 biswas, of which 4 bighas and 13 biswas is under nazul whereas 11 biswas (vide 163/3) are shown in the mahal of Nazar Hussain and Tahir Hussain (the lambardars). But unlike the 1878 Khatauni (as noted earlier0, the 1893 settlement records do not show it in muafi. As per Khasra bandobast and Khatauni documents, the portion of the Janmasthan area i.e., (the proper 'Ram Janmabhoomi'/ 'Babari Masjid' land ) being under mahal nazul Sarkar, comprises two khasra Nos., i.e, 163/1 and 163/2, with an area of 2 bighas -14 biswas and 2 biswas respectively. These are shown under habitation (abadi) and are vested in the subordinate ownership and occupation of the Hindu Mahants Raghuar Das, Gopal Das and Thaurdwara Sita Ram. Khasra No.163/4 with an area of 7 biswas covers the road which separates the Khasra Nos. 163/1-2, i.e., ('Ram Janmabhoomi'/ 'Baburi Majid') of the Janmasthan area from the northern portion of the complex with Khasra No.163/5, named as abadi Stia Rasoi. The latter portion with an area of 1 bigha-10biswas, also being under nazul is vested in the subordinate ownership of Mahant Kalyan Das. The detailed lists provided in the 1893 settlement records in respect of mosques, waqf, graveyards (qabaristan) and mutations, etc., do not put any of the sub-plots, i.e., 163/1 to 1635 of the Janmasthan complex with either of these categories.

15. The kishtwar map of Kot Ram Chander, Pargana Haveli Awadh, Tehsil and District Faizabad, dated 1894-95 A.D. prepared after the 1893 settlement slightly varies in respect of the division of the janmasthan khasra No.163. It shows all the sub-plots 163/1-5 under habitation (abadi). The road which divides the Khasra Nos. 163/1-2 of Janmasthan from the northern wing with khasra No.163/5 (abadi Sita Rasoi) is shown as Khasra No. nill, i.e., 163/X, whereas khasra no. 163/4 of the 1893 settlement has been shown as a sub-plot with habitation (abadi) to the east of khasra No.163/3. It seems that this redistribution of the Janmasthan sub-plots was effect in the aftermath of the 893 settlement.

16. The above map is significant in many a respect. In its list of depicted symbols, it does not cover the symbol of a Shiwala (temple ) or a mosque. But it does denote the symbols of abadi, road, graveyards (qabaristan), pacca well, nature of land (i.e., parti qadim ) and non-payment of lagan, etc. As such, it shows khasra no.163/1 (i.e., the site of 'Ram Janamabhoomi'/ 'Baburi Masjid') with habitation (abadi)

and a pacca well in then north-eastern direction. The sub–plot no.163/4 has shown with symbols of abadi, orchard (bagh) without the payment of rent (lagan). The sub-plot No. 163/5 (abadi Sita Rasoi) to the north of the dividing road comprises the symbols of abadi along with 3 pacca wells and a portion of self – cultivated land (khud kasht).

17. Above all, most significantly, there is no symbol of a graveyard (Qabaristan) in any of the sub-plots of Khasra No. 163 of the Janmasthan complex, though, there are symbols of graveyards in the neighbouring plots, i.e., Khasra Nos. 161,158, 56-57, etc. Even though earlier in the Khasra kishtwar No.163 of the 1861 settlement relating to Janmasthan, the column(No.16) of the general remarks (kaifiyat) as well as the khasra abadi Nos. 444, 452 of the same settlement do mention about the existence of graveyard (gabargah) in the complex of Janmasthan, it is well confirmed by the above map that by 1894-95 A.d., there is no graveyard inany of the sub-plots of Janmasthan complex, Later on, this position is reiterated by the 1344 F/1936-37 AD. Settlement report and the map appended to it.

18. As distinct for above revenue records, the Nazu department of the District Faizabad d(U.P.) also prepared its own amended Khasra records of the abadi settlements, (tarmimi khasra abadi)in 1931 A.D. In these revised Khasras of village Ramkot, both 'masjid' and chbutra indicating the temple at Janmasthan have been recorded in Khasra No.583. The 'mosque' has been shown in waqf under column 'Name of the present possessor' (Nam Hal Qabiz). At the same time Mahant Charan Das in 1931 and thereafter Mahant Raghunath Das (1941) have been declared under –proprietor (Malik Matahit) of the entire plot. Moreover, in these Khasra records, Arazi No.586 with an area of 11 biswas, 16 biswanis and 16 kachwanis (11-16-16) being in abadi is shown as graveyard (a pacca qabaristan known as Ganj Shahid)and assigned in waqf (waqf ahad Shahi ).

www.vadaprativada.com

19. A note of caution is necessary with regard to the alleged Khasra and map maintained by the Nazul department in the Faizabad Collect-orate which is relied upon by the plaintiffs of Suit No.12 of 1961 (now O.O.S. 4 of 1989 before the Lucknow Bench of the Allahabad High Court), Sunni Central Board of Waqf and others Vs Gopal Singh Visharad and others. The map maintained by the Nazul Department is not authenticated, nor prepared under any law, nor is it according to any ascertainable scale. The survey made on the basis of the Khasra abadi and that map of the Nazul department at the instance of the Plaintiffs in that Suit has been rejected by the High Court's Full Bench which is trying

the case and a fresh survey has been ordered on the basis of revenue records in order to ascertain the exact situation of the land involved in that Suit. It is noticeable that the plot numbers given in the plaint of that Suit are based on the said khasra abadi of the Nazul department. There is no Fard Mutabigat comparative table between the plot numbers given in the khasra abadi of the Nazul department and the Khasra abadi maintained by the revenue Department of the Government.

20. In fact, the purpose of the Nazul (Municipal) survey and the map prepared in 1931 A.D. was to identify the encroachments made on the Nazul property. Such a survey may cannot take precedence over the regularly conducted revenue settlement operations and the maps prepared thereupon, especially when the title to land is involved. In its order dated 10.1.1990, the High Court directed the Board of Revenue, U.P. Sate, to survey the site and submit report accordingly with the assistance of the Municipal records and such other records which it considered to be useful and in its further order dated 23.5.1990 directed it to execute the commission and locate the plots with reference to documents on record only. The commissioner, Shri J.P. Srivastava, appointed by the Board of Revenue for the purpose, submitted his report on 25.07.1990 wherein he had located the disputed property with reference to the Nazul map of 1931, even though he conceded that the Nazul map and the settlement maps were on different scales and that it was not possible to juxtapose the two maps and prepare Fard Mutabiqat and correspond the Nazul. Khasra numbers with the settlement khasra numbers. Thereupon, the Hon'ble court passed another order directing the commissioner to submit supplementary report surveying and locating the property with reference to settlement maps of 1861 and 1937 A.D. The commissioner submitted his supplementary report dated 8.2.1991.

21. In fact, the Commissioner instead of surveying the land of his own had just accepted the fresh map supplied by the Plaintiff, which in matters of details offered a completely inaccurate position in respect of Janmasthan/'Baburi Mosque', graveyards, the shilanyas site and various other plots. Such an act on the part of the commissioner for having accepted the Plaintiff's map and adopting it as his own official map for submission to the court was characterized by the latter as "wholly unwarranted".

22. Having gone through the pros and cons of the entire case, the Hon'ble Court in its Judgment on B.B.91, even though it refrained from calling the commissioner's report as 'motivated', described it as "absurd". It refused to accept the commissioner's view that correct map and report about kot Ram Chandra were possible only in reference to Nazul map and that the settlement maps were not correctly prepared. In its judgment, it refused to keep the report of the commissioner on record in the pending case.

23. As per procedure of the revenue settlement, the khasra Numbers in respect of kishtwar, khewat and khata khataunis often undergo a change due to alteration, addition and clubbing for adjustment with the neighboring plots from one revenue settlement to another. At times, a change in Numbers is effected even during the interregnum of the two settlement operations. However, they are all duly recorded in the Comparative tables of the Khasra Numbers (Fard Mutabiqat) appended in the ensuring settlement report as well as in the relevant Khewat and Khata Khatuani numbers. The khasra kishtwar, khewat and khata khataunis adopted in the 1344 F/1936-37 A.D. continue to be in vogue in the latest revenue operations 1989 -92 A.D. However, the mutations effected during the interregnum have been recorded in the relevant revenue documents.

24. According to the 1344F/1936-37A.D. settlement the Janmasthan complex plots have been recorded in the khasra kishtwar under nos.159, some portions of 160, 158 (road), 146 and 147 R [i.e., R( ) portion of 147] and the area in respect of each plot/sub-plot has been provided. The major portion of the Janmasthan complex falls under khasra nos. 159 (declared banjar – the site of Ram Janmabhoomi / 'Baburi masjid'), 146 and 147 R(Abadi Sita Rasoi, across the road in the North), while some portion is included in Khasra no.160. The Khasra no.158, also forming a part of the area of the Janmasthan complex is recorded as a road (which divides the Khasra Nos. 159 and 160 in the south from 146 and 147 R in the north respectively).

25. As per khewat record the khasra no.159 with an area of 13 biswas is declared banjar land under Nazul vide Khata no.1; no. Khewat Matahitdaran (5a) 20 and Khata Khatauni 58/2. While the superior ownership rests with the Nazul, the subordinate ownership (matahitdar) is vested with 'Shri Dhanush Dhari Ji Bhagwan Virajman Mandir Bara Astah, Mohalla Ramkot, Shahar Ayodhya' through the basarbkari of Mehta Raghubar Prasad, disciple of ram Manohar Sahu, Bairagi, resident of the above temple. The khasra no.146 with an ara of 1 bigha, 6 biswas, 7 biswanis (1-6-7) vide khata No.I, No. Khewat (5a) 32, no. Khata Khatauni 70/1 is under abadi. Here too, the superior ownership is with Nazul and subordinate ownership is vested with Har Har Das, Ram Sarn Das, Matahitdar, the resident of jamasthan. The Khewat No.160 (a) with an area of 3 biswas, 13 biswanis (0-3-13)

being under Nazul vide Nazul Khata No.1, No. Khewat 51(21), No. Khata Khatauni 59/1 is vested in the subordinate ownership of the Hindu mahants /bairagis.

26. As regards the Khatauni documents the position of the khasra nos. 159 and 160 (a) is reiterated as already noted in the khasra kishtwar and khata Khatauni. Khasra No.159 vide khata no.1, khata Khatauni no.58/2, being under mahal Nazul with an area of 13 biswas of banjar is put under the subordinate ownership (malik matahit ) of who besides khasra no.159 also owns other Plots (i.e. , and 199 which are not a part of Janmasthan). The Khasra no. 160 (b) is also under mahal Nazul with an area of 1 bigha, 12 biswas.

www.vadaprativada.com

27. In the Khatauni documents, the jurisdiction of Mahal Azhar Hussain has been shown separately. Of the Janmasthan complex, Khasra No.158 vide Khata Khewat No.2, khata Khatauni no.15 comprising an area of 4 biswas has been shown as a Path (road which divides khasra No.159 in the south from khasra No.160 in the north). To this Path, 3 biswas and 9 biswansi (0-3-9) have been added from non-Janmasthan complex khasra no. 155/2 vide khata No.1, Khata Khatauni No.4, making a total of 7 biswas and 9 biswansi ( 0-7-9) for the Path which has been put under mahal Azhar Hussain. At the same time, some portions of the Janmasthan complex under abadi without rent (lagan) under

khasra no.160 vide Nos. 160 (Jim), khata khewat no.2 , Khata Khatauni no.19/1 with an area of 7 biswas, 3 biswansi (0-7-3) in the subordinate ownership of Rameshwar Das, disciple Gopal Das; Khasra No.160(d) vide khata khewat No.1, Khata Khatauni No.8/1 under abadi with an area of 3 biswas, 17 biswanis (0-3-17)under the subordinate ownership of Raghubar Das exempted from rent (lagan) and No.160 M vide Khata No.2, Khata Khatauni No.14 under abadi and an area of kaacha village bigha, i.e. , 1 bigha, 6 biswas and 7 biswansi (1-6-7).

28. In the 1344 F/1936-37A.D. settlement report, of the khasra nos. of kishtwar, khewat and khata Khatauni associated with the Janmasthan complex in the mahals of Nazul and Azhar Hussain as detailed above, there is no area in any of the plots/sub-plots, which has been shown as graveyard (qabaristan) or in waqf.

29. The map of khasra kishtwar of the village Ramkot dated 1344-F/1937 AD of the settlement depicts the territorial boundaries of the khasra plots of the village alongwith symbols of various categories, viz., banjar, abadi, roads, temple (mandir), graveyards (qabaristan ) and pacca wells, etc. Of the khasra plot nos. of the Janmasthan complex, No.159 has a symbol of banjar land; no.160 has symbols of abadi and a temple in the north-east of the plot (shaksi temple) along with a well to its east; no.158, a pacca road; no.146 (abadi Sita Rasoi), abadi along with a temple in the north-west and two wells ; no.147 (R) , mostly with a symbol of banjar land In none of the plots /sub-plots of the Janmasthan complex, there is any symbol of a graveyard (qabaristan), even though symbols of graveyards have been shown in the other and neighborly khasra plot nos., i.e., 172,173,168, and 169, etc.

30. In view of the position as available from the above mentioned original records of the 1344 F/1936-37 settlement of the village Ramkot, the Nazul record s of 1931 AD which have altogether different khasra Nos. of the Plots, unaccompanied by any table of equivalent khasra Nos. (Fard utabigat) are absolutely unauthentic with regard to waqf land vide khasra no. 583 and qabristan land vide khasra no.586 and other khasra nos. which have been considered to be a part of the Janmasthan complex. As already noted, even the second revised Report of the Survey Commissioner was rejected by the Hon'ble High Court of Allahabad, Lucknow Bench on 8.8.1991.

31. In view of the position as available from the above mentioned original records of the 1344 F/1936-37 settlement of village Ramkot, the Nazul records of 1931 AD which have altogether different khasara Nos. of the plots,

unaccompanied by any table of equivalent khasara Nos. (Fard Mutabiqat) are absolutely unauthentic with regard to waqf land vide khasra no. 583 and qabristan land vide khasara no. 586 and other khasara Nos. which have been considered to be a part of the janmasthan complex. As already noted, even the second revised Report of the Survey Commissioner was rejected by the Hon'ble High Court of Allahabad, Lucknow Bench on 8.8.1991.

32. Since the 1344F/1936-37 settlement, the annual revenue records of the village Ramkot pertaining to khewat and jamabandi, i.e. khata Khatauni have been maintained in the Tehsil Office/ District Record Office, Faizabad for all the years till date. For all the khasara plots of the janamasthan complex, the position stand the sane as in the last settlement, excepting that the entries of the names of the succeeding mahants as subordinate owners have been made in the relevant documents. The site on which the shilanyas was performed in November / December, 1989 falls under khasra no. 160, the major portion of which is under mahal Nazul Sarkar Ala. The khasara No. 160 being a large part measuring 5 bighas and 13 biswas, covers both Janmasthan and non – janamasthan areas and falls both under mahal Nazul and mahal Azahar Hussain. In this khasara no. related khata khewat and khata Khatauni Nos., apart from Nazul

(government) owning 3 bighas and 13 biswas, There are three other subordinate owners (malikan-i-mayahit) i.e., Sita Ram Sharan owning 3 biswas and 13 biswanis , Awadh Behari owning 11 biswas, 7 biswanis (1-6-7) respectively. The sub –plot of Sita Ram Sharan vide khata khewat no. 23 and khata Khatauni no. 54/1 falls under mahal Nazul. The sub plot of Ishtiaq Hussain vide khasra no.160 R and khata Khatauni no. 9 is under mahal Azahar Hussain. Here too, the subordinate ownership is vested with Ishtiaq Hussain and no part of his sub- plot has been shown with any grave yard or muafi or waqf .

UNAUTHORISED INTERPOLATIONS IN REVENUE RECORDS

33. In the settlement report of 1861 Ad, interpolations / additions have been effected in certain columns of the khata Kishtwar folios. In village Ramkot the total number of the khata Kishtwar is 167 and as per performa, there are 16 coloumns for each khasra. The first four columns records (i) the serial number, (11) Name of field (abadi, etc.), (iii) Name of thok/ patti (nature of subordinate agency for revenue collection), (iv) name, lineage and caste of the owner (Nam Wa Waldiyat Zat Malik) respectively. The serial number of Janmasthan is 163 with specific description under the columns followed by 9 sub-plots with required description under each column in the copy of the 1861 settlement report available at the District Record Office (muhafaz khana), Faizabad under column No. 2, to the original recording of abadi Janmasthan ; and ‘juma masjid’

www.vadaprativada.com

Have been added. Under Column No.3, to the words taraf Nazul, and Muafi have been added so as to read and under column No.4, to the wards Sarkar Baharur, ‘ and Azhar Hussain’ have been added

Evidence for interpolations :

(1) Under column 2, the words abadi Janmasthan are in thick handwriting. As there was no space below this for writing in a similar way, a small ‘wa’ ( ) has been put to the right of Janmasthan and ‘juma masjid’ has been put above towards the left of abadi. The very crude construction of the sentence shows the later insertions of the above words of wa (‘) and ‘juma masjid’.

www.vadaprativada.com

(2) In the 1861 settlement copy of the Tehsil office under column No. 2 abadi Janmasthan had been written in thick bold hand and no space was available for further addition in the manner done in the District record. So ‘wa jama masjid’ ( and jama masjid) have been inserted below it but for want of space appear before sub-plot 1, (goshalf) so as to disturb the entire symmetry of the entries made therein.

(3) The Tehsil office copy of 1861 settlement does not carry any incorporation of ‘and muafi’/’and Azhar Hussain under columns nos. 3 and 4 respectively as the case of the District Record Office copy.

(4) The second settlement of 1301 Fasli/1893-94 Ad in the khasra kishtwar record though carrying the same khasra no. 163, due to the clubbing, is divided into 5 sub-plots instead of 9 sub-plots as earlier in the 1861 settlement report. But it does not record the name of ‘jama masjid’, nor does it put ‘muafi’ under the relevant columns, which have been shown only under Sarkar Bahadur Nazul. However, in sub- plots No. 163/3 with an area of 11 biswas, Azahar Hussaqin and Tahir Hussain have been put as mahaldars where as Mehta Balram Das has been recorded as subordinate owner (malik matahit).

(5) In many a other khasra kishtwar Nos. of the 1861 settlement record of the District Record Office, e.g., 16,21,25,29,32 and 167 , there are clear instances of tampering, rubbing off the original entries and overwriting them with others. Ordinarily, such changes are never made in the official revenue records and even when any change has to be effected for the correction of an error, if any, the original words are distinctly struck off to be substituted by other words above it. But rubbing off is never done.

(6) Another evidence for determining the fact as to whether it is a correction of an error by the scribe himself or a later interpolation/ alteration is the ink whether thick or medium or thin, as well as the variation in the handwriting of the letters / words, if any, In the 1986 settlement document of the District record Office, for Khasra Kishtwar No.163, for all the columns, quite thick black ink has been used and the handwriting is also uniform with the use of the same qualm (read pen) The thickness of the ink, words and style of writing is uniform. But for the words ‘wa Azhar Hussin’ (and Azhar Hussain) put below the words of ‘Sarkar Bahadur’ in column No.4 are absolutely dim in ink. Thereafter the description about all the other sub-plots (goshas ) is again writtenin thick black ink. At the same time, for all the foios/ Khasra Nos. following khasra No.163 are written in equally black thick ink and uniform handwriting excepting Khasra No.167 wherein again under

column No.3, the words taraf Nazul are in thick ink board handwriting here as the additional words wa muafi (and muafi) are written in rather thin and dim ink. Similarly, under column No.4, the original words 'Sarkar Bahadur' are written in thick black ink but the words 'wa Azhar Hussain' have been added in dim ink. It is very clear that the words 'wa muafi' and 'wa Azhar Hussain' under column No.3 and 4 of the both the khasra Nos. 163 and 167 are later additions. All the same, the handwriting of the scribe who made these additions both the Nos. is the same, even though it is apparently quite different from that of the original writing.

He has further submitted that there was no Waqf associated with the Babri mosque. Accordingly, on the basis of waqf no right can accrue to the plaintiffs. His submissions are reproduced as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

NO WAQF ASSOCIATED WITH ' BABURI MASJID'

In the Janmasthan complex as recorded in the 1st regular Settlement Report (1861 A.D.), there is no Plot/Sub –Plot which ahs been put as a waqf attached to ' Baburi Masjid'. At that time, Muhammad Asghar claimed himself to be khattib and muazzan ( vide his representation to the British Government , case No.884, Muhalla Kot Ram Chander, Ajodhya dated November 30, 1858 A.D.) of the structure named as ' Baburi Mosque' situated at Janmasthan. According to the Muslim claim, this monument was registered as 'Mosque' in 1860 AD. only, i.e., after the 1855 Hindu-Muslim riots and the tussle that followed. In his representation to the British Government, Mir Rajab Ali also designated himself as "Khattib Baburi Mosque' (vide Application No. 115, Muhalla Kot Ram Chander, Ajodhya dated November 01, 1860 AD.). All the same, in the Had Bast map appended to 1861 A.D. Settlement Report, the symbol of the 'Mosque' does not figure in the Janmasthan complex ( khasra Kishtwar No. 163/abadi Plot No., 431-56). As a matter of fact, both Muhammad Asghar and Mir Rajab Ali were residents of village Shahanwa (about three miles to the west of village kot Ram Chander/ ajodhya) and were petty zamindars/land holders/lambardars of village Shahanwa. The 1861 settlement Report of village Shahanwa (vide No. Had Bast 571, Village under Khaliasa (Government) and Mohammad Asghar, Mir Rajab Ali and Muhammad Afzal, etc., are shown as pattidars ( vide Exhibit No.'A'). Under the revenue system as inherited from the Mughal and Nawabi Governments, as pattidars /maliks/lambardars, etc., they were entitled to nankar (subsistence allowance) in the shape of nankar/muafi land in the same village. At the same time, they were land holders and their holdings, etc., are recorded in the Settlement Report. But, it is nowhere recorded that they enjoyed any nankar /muafi for the maintenance of the 'Mosque' khattibs and muazzans, etc. However, even though they could not furnish any documentary evidence to the British Government, they continued to claim that during the Nawabi period, their family had been getting the annual grant of Rs. 302/3/6 as nankar and muafi from the revenues of the village Shahanwa for its own maintenance and out of this income, they had been spending only a part of the amount for looking after some of the essential needs of the so-called 'Baburi Mosque' situated at Janmasthan, kot Ram Chander, Pargana Awadh, District Faizabad. After the first war of Independence in 1857 (mentioned as 'Mutiny' in the Report of the District Waqf Commissioner, Faizabad, dated 16.09.38), the British Government, apparently on political grounds because of the loyalty and services rendered by the land lord / pattidari family of the village Shahanwa, continued the above mentioned amount in cash but from 1863 -64 A.D. onwards, the British Government considered it expedient to commute this cash payment into a conditional (mashrut) muafi land grant-a process which was completed by 1870 A.D. when, as explained further, the revenue-free land grant along with superior proprietor rights was bestowed on Mohammad Asghar and Mohammad Afzal Ali in the villages of Sholapur and Bhaharanpur but not in kot Ram Chander were the Janmasthan 'Mosque' stood. As such, all previous orders regarding the family grant to Muhammad Asghar/ Muhamad Afzal Ali were superseded by the final order passed in 1870 under the authority of the Governor General in council, whereby a sanad for revenue – free land grant was issued by the Chief Commissioner Awadh. On representation from the family, a decree to this effect was also given by the revenue authorities and entries were made in the revenue records accordingly during the same year (1870).

Later on when in 1938 A. D., controversy arose about the nature of the title to the land granted by the British Government for the maintenance of the 'Mosque', Pir Mir Taqi, the khattib and muazzan while tracing the genealogy of his family claimed that the Mugal King Babur built this 'Mosque' situated on the site of Janmasthan and granted an annual amount of Rs. 60/- and some arable land in madad-i-maash in the village Shahanwa to Sayed Abdul Baqi appointed as khattib and muazzan for his subsistence and the maintenance of the 'Mosque'. Later on, after the fall of the Mughal Empire, during the Nawabi period, Nawab Saadat Ali Khan, king of Awadh increased the annual grant to Rs.

302/3 as /6 pies. But as commented by the Waqf Commissioner, District Faizabad on 16.09.38, in this regard, no written accounts wee submitted by the khattib and muazzan family to the British Government for the continuation or bestowal of fresh grant for the same purpose.

It has already been observed that although Muhammad Asghar and Rajab Ali claimed to be direct descendants of Sayed Abdul Baqui, the first khattib and muazzan supposed to have been appointed by Babur, no reference of cash assignment or madad-imaash land on hereditary basis can be traced in the first regular Settlement of the Village Shahanwa in 1861 A.D. All the same, on repeated representations to the British Government by Muhammad Asghar and Rajab Ali, the British Government having discontinued the annual cash grant, granted afresh land in muafi in the village of Bhuraipur and Sholapur in 1870 A.D. Later on the sanad issued by the Chief Commissioner clarifies that the cash nankar of Rs. 302/3as/6 pies received by Rajab Ali and Muhammad Asghar as rent-free tenure in Village Shahanwa under the former Government (Nawabi Rule) was being maintained ( as muafi land in the village of Bhuraipur and Sholapur) under the authority of the Governor General-in- Council so long as the object for which the grant had been made was kept up on the conditions that the assignees would surrender all the (previous) sanads, title deeds, and other documents relative to the grant in question and above all, they and their successors would " strictly perform all the duties of land holders in matters of Police and any Military or Political Service that may be required of them by the Authorities … If any one of these conditions was broken by Rajub Ally or Mohammad Usgar or their successors the grant will be immediately resumed".

A serious controversy about the nature of the land grant in the village of Bhuraipur and Sholapur earlier given by the British Government to the assignees (khattib / muazzan) which was also in a way connected with the ' Baburi Mosque' at kot Ram Chander, Ajodhya arose in 938 A.D. The District Waqf Commissioner, Faizabad (Eligible– S.M.Omais) vide his decision dated 16.09.38 while interpreting the sanad earlier given by the British Government to the assigness (khattib / muazzan) maintained that even though the grant was conditional on the performance of duties of land holders in the matter of Police, Military or Political Service, etc, the object for which the grant was made was the maintenance of the 'Mosque'. He also stressed that the original object of the state grant of Emperor Babur and Nawab Saadat Ali Khan was also continued in the sanad by the British Government after the 'Mutiny', i.e., for the maintenance of the 'Mosque' and further that the nankar was to be enjoyed by the grantee for so long as the object of the grant, i.e., the 'Mosque', was in existence. In view of this, the Commissioner gave a ruling to the effect 'clearly then the grant to Mohd. Zaki must be regarded as waqf, the purpose of which is the maintenance of the religious building known as the 'Baburi Mosque'.

Muhammad Zaki, the (khattib /muazzan) ( also mutawalli in case of waqf) raised serious objections to the decision of the Commissioner, waqf Board. He maintained that the particular grant of land in Sholapur and Bhuraipur had been made by the British Government which was a non-Muslim body and hence the grant could not be taken as a muslim waqf. Moreover, as per sanad, it was conditional

grant subject to the performance of military, police and other duties, etc., and in case of non-fulfillment of the latter services, the grant could not be regarded as a Kuslim waqf. He contended that after the annexation of Awadh, the British Government in lieu of cash nankar and madad-i-maash (as inherited from the Nawabi period ) granted land to Muhammad Asghar and Muhammad Afzal and in the first Regular Settlement (1861), it was entered in the latter's malkiyat (ownership). Thereafter, on February 03, 1870 AD., Muhammad Asghar and Muhammad Afzal got a decree in their favour whereby they were entered in the revenue records as superior proprietors and possessors in possession of the property ( malik-i-ala qabiz wa mutsarif jadaid) and since then, their descendants have continued with the same status. As such, the property falling in the category of superior proprietorship ( malkiyat-i-ala) did not fall in the definition of the Muslim waqf. He further contended even though, the descendants of Muhammad asghar, etc., had been bearing the expenses for the essential items of expenditure for the maintenance of the 'masjid Baburi', the family property was outside the jurisdiction of the Muslim waqf Act, No.12,1936 as the major amount of the income had been spent by them on their own subsistence as madad-i-maash, etc This had always been recorded in the khewat records as such.

Apart from the above arguments, Muhammad Zaki always maintained that Sayed Abdul Baqui, the First muazzan/khattib of the 'Mosque' appointed by Babur was a Shia and his descendants all through the ages, till date belong to the Shia sect and could not be coerced to accept the spurious contention that the 'Baburi Mosque' might be put under the control of the Sunni Waqf Board. This position was taken by the (khattib/muazzan) family before the District Waqf Commissioner, Faizabad (1941). However, the latter's Report (dated February 08,1941) simply reproduced and reiterated the position earlier taken by the District Waqf Commissioner in 1938 A.D. on the contrary, Muhammad Zaki and Malik Hussain, etc., the (khattib/muazzan) vide their Application dated 26th September, 1943 AD serial no.26, submitted to the Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P., Lucknow, took a clear stand that there was no waqf for their properties in the villages of Buharanpur and Sholepur with total annual income of Rs. 528/14 as (Rupees Five hundred Twenty Eight and Annas Forteen only, i.e., Rupees Three-hundred-fifty-one and Annas six (Rs. 351/6 as ) from the village of Bahoranpur and Rs. 177/8as (Rupees One-hundred, Seventy –Seven and annas eight) from Sholepur. They contended that earlier they had been bestowed grant (atiya) by Shahenshah Babur and Nawab Saadat Ali Khan and in the present case ( i.e. land/income from Baharanpur/Sholepur) they were strictly governed by the sanad nankar granted by the British Government. They further maintained that the khewatdara (i.e., the revenue authorities/ records) did not recognize this as waqf and that it had been recorded in the revenue records only as nankar muafi. Of course, in the past they had been looking after the white washing, lighting arrangements of the 'Mosque' and as well making payment of the salaries of the Muazzans/Imams, etc., Malik Hussain, s/o Syed Muhammad Zaki in his detailed letter No.5607 dated 20.11.43/22.11.43 in response to the Secretary, sunni Waqf Board 's communication vide no. 5272 dated 27 October, 1943, clarified his relation with the 'Baburi Masjid'. He categorically maintained (vide para 5) that there was neither any waqf for the 'masjid', nor there had ever been a

www.vadaprativada.com

Mutawalli for it. Further, that his family has had muafi land (in the villages of Buharanpur and Sholepur) and being the lambardar ( head ) of the property and being ( good) Muslims, it had been looking after the repair etc. of the same and that he, too, as lambardar had been discharging this obligation since 17 February, 1943 . He stated that the expenditure incurred in this regad was from his family property which was in muafi nankar and not in waqf (Vide paras 8-9 ) . In this letter, he also gave some details about the items of white washing , repair and floor carpet etc relating to the 'Masjid' and some expenditure incurred in this regard since October, 1941. ( Vide paras 2-3, 10-11). Not with standing all this, the legal tussle continued and in 1945 A.D. it was considered that the muazzan/khattib family ( At this time kalab Hussain, the brother of the deceased Muhammad Zaki)had been all through Shias, even though the prayers in the past had been offered both by the Shias and the Sunnis.

It is equally important to note that during the 1930's of the 20th century, as per statement of Muhammad Zaki, the Muazzan / Khattib even though he was looking after some of the essential items of the maintenance of the 'Mosque'(i.e., whitewashing, lighting and flooring, etc.), from the income of the nankar /muafi grant held as malkiyat in perpetuity, he did not spend any money on the repairs of the 'Mosque'in the aftermath of the riot in Ayodhya in 1934 A.D. The Collectorate and the P.W.D. records of the District Faizabad bear out the fact that the entire expenditure for the repairs of the 'Mosque'was met by the District administration/PWD. Significantly, in the waqf records of the Sunni/ Shia Boards of waqf or the Collectorate/UP. Government Records, there is no mention

of any Mutawalli or waqf from the income of which the structure of the ‘ Baburi Mosque’might have been rebuil valuable revenue free grant of land held by Muhammad Zaki etc. in the villages Burhanpur and Sholepur allegedly a attached for the maintenance and upkeep of the same.

An elementary knowledge of the Mugal agrarian system/ Nawahi phase and the British administration in India as we as well as as understanding of the nature of various categories of land grants for administrative purpose or to the religious institutions would clearly show that there has always been a basic difference between nankar (for personal maintenance) and waqf. In this regards, the contentions of the grantees, i.e. Muhammad Asghar, etc. 19th Century) and Mohd. Azkil Kalab Hussain/Malik Hussain, etc. have been absolutely correct and tenable that their properties in Shahanwa/Burhanpur/Sholepur could not be categorized as waqf. As such, they do not show any waqf relating to the alleged 'Baburi Masjid. Even in the Judicial records of the various suits pending before the Lucknow Bench of Allahabad High Court, there is no registration of any waqf having any connection with the alleged 'Baburi Masjid' as per records of the Sunni Central Waqf Board.

After the above mentioned enquiry by the District Waqf Commissioner, his report as prescribed under the U.P. Muslims Waqfs Act, 1936 along with the lists of the Shia Waqfs and Sunni Waqfs was forwarded by the U.P. Government to both the Shia Central Board of Waqfs and Sunni Central Board of Waqfs as each of the two Waqf Boards were to publish the report along with their respective lists in Official Gazette, under sub-section (1) of Section 5 of the Act. In the Shia –Sunni legal Tussle that followed, the Sunni Central Board of Waqf claimed that it was published as a Sunni ‘Mosque’ in the U.P. Gazette dated 26.02.1994, even though in reality, the particulars of the ‘ Baburi Mosque’ or the qabaristan ( qraveyard) attached to it, do not find any. Place in the list of Waqfs published in the Government Gazette dated 26.02.1944.

As the Shia Board Claimed it to be Shia Waqf, it filed a suit to get over the effect of the Waqf Commissioner report on the assumption that the ‘ Baburi Masjid’ had been notified to be a Sunni Waqf in the above mentioned Gazette notification dated 26.02.1944 under Section 5 (1) of the U.P.Muslim Waqf Act, 1936.

Thus confronted with a faith accompli of the Baburi Masjid having been included in the list of the Sunni Central Board of Waqf by the Chief Commissioner of Waqfs under section 4 of the U.P. Muslims waqf Act ( XIII of 1925 ) as well as by the Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P. and also assuming the fact that the same had been published in the Government Gazette dated 26.02.1944, the Shia Central Board of Waqf U.P., as Plaintiffs in the Regular Civil Suit No.29 of 1945, sought a declaration that the ‘Mosque’ was a Shia Waqf together with the idgah attached to it at Jaipa Nala, Ayodhya, and village Behrampur, Pargana Haveli and 20bighas odd land, known as sholepuri grove, in mahal Bharanapur, in Tehsil and District Faizabad. As a matter of fact, when face to face with the issue that under the law, the ‘Mosque’ had to be essentially attached with either of the Waqf Boards, i.e. Sunny/Shia, the Waqf Board in the plaint came upwith the contention that Sayid Abdul Baqt ( Mir Bagi), the builder of the mosque’, in 1528 AD, during the reign of the Mughal Empror Babur, was a Shia and that being the founder-waqf as well the first Mutawalli of the ‘Mosque’, followed since then by a lineage of successive

Mutawallias till date (1945)with kalab Husain as the Mutawali in 1945 after the death (1944) of his brother Mohammad Zaki and as such, the 'Mosque' was a Shia waqf . Even though, as already stated, earlier Mohammad Zki/Kalab Husain in the official documents submitted to the office of the District / Commissioner of Waqf, had always maintained that there had been no Mutawalli shince the building of the mosque as they were mearly khatibs and muezzins looking after the 'Mosque' by meeting some of the incidental charges from the income of their personal proprietary lands in the village of Sholapuri and Behrampur which were not in waqf now under the compelling circumstances, with a view to tide over the technical, legal difficulty and to get the 'Mosque'legally declared as a Shia Waqf, it was contended for the first time that the cash nankar (Rs. 302/3 as /6 paisa) bestowed during the Nawabi period and the properties in Sholepur and Behranpur granted by the British Government , as revenue- free grants , confirmed by a decree in proprietary rights, revenue free now passed in favour of hereditary mutawallies who since then had been observing the terms of the grant and filing accounts before the S.D.O.

It was also claimed by the plaintiffs i.e. the Shia Central Board of Waqf, that its mutawalli was entitled to the supervision of the 'Mosque' as it was Shia Waqf and that the Chief Commissioner of Waqf had not sent the list of Sunni Waqf to them even though the latter had included the 'Mosque' in its list supposed to have been based on the publication in the Gazette.

The Sunni Central Board of Waqf, in its defence statement asserted that the 'Mosque' was founded by Emperor Babur who was a Sunni and that its pheshhawar

khatibs and muezzins had been of the same sect until much later on, one of the phes hawars / mutawallis in the pedigree list i.e. Mohamad Afzal became a convert to Shia during the closing peiod of the reign of the kings of Awadh, who were Shias. It was also asserted that the 'Mosque' had always been used by the sunnis of Ayodhya for saying their Friday prayer and the Idgah as noted above, was quite independent of the 'Mosque' and was similarly used by the Sunnis for their Id and Baqrid prayers.

In the continued litigation between the above two parties, the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad, which tried thecase as a preliminary issue, vide-judgment dated 21.04.1966 held that " no valid notification under Section 5(1) of U.P. Muslim Waqf Act No.XIII of 1936 was ever made" relating to the specific disputed property. As such, the judge made it clear that the allege notification of in 26.02.1994 did not specify the property in suit as waqf property and that it was of no legal effect. This finding became final between the two parties. Later on, in the case of Gulam Abbas V. State of U.P. ( vide AIR 1981 S C. 2196, pp. 2217-18, Paragraph 17,) in the case between the Shia and the Sunni Muslims, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India also found the above mentioned notification of the U.P. Government dated 26.02.1944 to be " of doubtful validity and probative value," and held, it to be of no legal effect. As such, in view of the judgment of the Supreme Court, the said notification dated 26.02. 1944 was involved and that the suit No.29 of 1944 could not have been filed under Section 5(2) of the Waqf Act, with the result that the judgment in that case Date 30.03.1944 IN THAT SUIT IS WITHOUT JURISDICTION and the findings recorded therein with regard to the waqf issue are of no legal effect.

The earliest regular Settlement of 1861 A.D. as well as the later reports confirm the fact that these had been prepared taking into consideration the past records of the Nawabi period as well. As a matter of fact, as per the original documents, the entire complex of Janmasthan is covered under khasra No.163 with 9 Plots, with total area of 5 bighas and 4 biswas. However, under column No.16 of Kaifiyat, it is stated that in the area of Janamasthan, there is one pacca well, three whose number is recorded in Kahasra abadi and Khana grave yard ( qabristhan). As district from the khasra kishtwar, in khasra abadi Nos. 431-456, (as recorded corresponding to No.163 of the former) shows abadi (Population) in this area. They do not mention the existence of any 'Mosque', though, in the kaifiyat they mention the prevalence of pacca graveyards imli threes and makans (houses ) etc. in the campus. For 4 bighas and 13 biswas, the superior ownership of the land has been declared in the name of Sarkar Bahadur Nazul ( Government), and vide Khatauni No. I, 1878 11 biswas have been shown a muafi under mahal Azahar Hussain. In the settlement of 1301 Fasli/1893 A.D, in the khasra kishtwar, the same khasra number (163) remains, though the entire area is shown under 5 plots instead of 9 as previously in the 1861 settlement report Both in the khata Khatauni/khewat the Hindu Mahants of Janmasthan have been shown with subordinate proprietay rights as malikan-i- matehit along with their respective shares. But later on these nos. undergo a change during the Fasli 1344/45 /1936-37 AD Settlement Report but the position of1861 persists even in later Settlements effected from time to time during the 19th and 20th centuries. It is also clear that the area on which the structure of the ' Baburi Masjid' stood is a part of the Janmasthan and under the subordinate ownership (malik mataiht ) of a Hindu Mahant.

This position was inherited by the early British administration from the earlier records of the Nawabi and the Mugal periods. However, in the Settlement Record of 1861 of the Mahafazkhana, certain later alternations have been made wherein the name of Jama Masjid and the word muafi has been inserted. In Plot No.163/1 the words JamaiMasjid , uafi and Azhar Hussain under coloumns No.2,3 and 4 respectively have been added. But the copies of the same document prepared during the same year available at the Tehsil office wherein only the word Jamai masjid has been added in column No.2 but not muafi and Azhar Hussain in column nos. 3 and 4 as against Muhafaz Khanna Report clearly prove that the later additions are interpolations, done perhaps during the past few decades of the controversy. This is also confirmed by the fact that the Khasra Kishtwar records of the second Revenue Settlement effected in the year 1301 Fasli (1893 A.D.) do not carry out such alternations or additions. These records still show the area on which 'Baburi Masjid' had been earlier constructed as forming a part of the Janmasthan complex and there is no mention of any 'Mosque' nor any land assigned to it in muafi. It is evident that interpolations in the settlement Report of 1861 of the District Record Office ( Muhafz Khanna), Faizabad have been done for a few other khasra kishtwar nos. as well. All this needs a through probe on scientific basis.

As already stated, according to the revenue Settlement effected in 1861 AD, the total area covered by khasra no.163 relating to Janmasthan has 9 distinct plots. There have been two more settlement operations since then. However, in the revenue settlements effected from time to time, the

khasra/khewat/khata Khatauni Number as well as the nos. of plots undergo a change and there are also adjustments with the neighboring plots. But the table of equivalent past numbers and parts thereof along with the current (ha 1) numbers Fard Mutabaqat )is always appended and forms a part of the Settlement Report. In the latest revenue records of 1397-99 Fasli/1989-92, the erstwhile Janmasthan complex has been shown in four khasra Nos. , i.e., 159,160-,146, and 147. The major portion of the Janmasthan complex comprising Ram Janmabhoomi, the so-called Baburi Masjid as well as the new Janmasthan falls under Khasra Nos. 159,146 (vide khata Khewat No.35) and 147 R wherein the names of the Mahants alongwith the areas in their ownership have been recorded. Only some portion of the complex falls under No.160 which too is shown under mahal Nazul Sarkar. In brief , Janmabhoomi/ ‘ Baburi Masjid’ have been recorded under No.159 and 160. The entire khasra No.159 has been entred in the ownership of ‘ Shri Danesh Dhari Bhagwan Bara Asthan, Ajodhya’ whereas some portion falling in khasra no.160 has been recorded in the ownership of Sarkar Nazul. There is no muafi/waqf of any type associated with the ‘Mosque’.

The entire Revenue records dating from the first Settlement (1861 A.D.) have been examined. There is no record of any of ‘Baburi Masjid’ any where in the documents maintained by the Revenue Department of the Government of U.P. at the Collectorate and the Tahsil at Faizabad.

The entire Revenue Records dating from the first Settlement (1861 A.D.) have been examined. There is no record of any of ‘Baburi Masjid’, any where in the documents maintained by the Revenue Department of the

www.vadaprativada.com

Government of U.P. at the Collectorate and the Tehsil at Faizabad.

As distinct from the above mentioned revenue records, the Nazul Department of the District Faizabad, (U.P.)also prepared its own amended Khasra records of the abadi settlements. ( tarmimi khasra abadi ) in 1931 AD. In these revise khasras of village Ramkot, both 'masjid' and chabutra indicating the temple aqt Janmasthan have been recorded in khasra no.583. The 'Mosque' has been shown in waqf under colun 'name of the present possessior' ( Nam Hal Qabij). At the same time, Mahant Charn Das in 1931 and thereafter Mahant Raghu Nath Das in 1941 have been declared under-proprietors (Telir mataht) of the entire plot. Moreover in these khasra records, arazi No.586 with an area of 11 biswas, 16 bishwansi and 16 Kachwanis ( 11-16-16) being in abadi is shown as grave yard ( a pecca qabaristan known as Gang Shahid ) and assigned inwaqf (waqf shad Shahi).

A note of caution is necessary with regard to the alleged khasra and map maintained by the Nazul department in the Faizabad Collectorate which is relied upon by the plaintiffs. The map maintained by the Nazul Department is not authenticated, nor prepard under any lay, department is not authenticated, nor prepared under any law, nor is it according to any ascertainable scale. The survey made on the basis of the khasra abadi and that map of the Nazul department at the instance of the Plaintiffs in that suit has beenrejected by the High Court's Full Bench which is trying the case and a fresh survey has been ordered on the basis of revenue records in order to ascertain the exact situation of the land involved in that suit. It is noticeable that the plot numbers given in the plaint of that suit are based on the said

khasra abadi of the Nazul department. There no Fard Mutabigat comparative table between the plot numbers given in the khasra abadi of the Nazul department and the khasra abadi maintained by the Revenue Department of the Government.

In fact, the purpose of the Nazul (Municipal)survey and the map prepared in 1931 AD was to identify the encroachments made on the Nazul property. Such a survey map cannot take precedence over the regularly conducted revenue settlement operations and the maps prepared thereupon, especially when the title to land is involved. In its order dated 10.01.1990, the High Court directed the Board of Revenue, U.P. State, to survey the site and make report with the assistance of the municipal records and such other records which it considered to be useful and in its further order dated 23.5.1990 directed it to execute the commission and locate the plots with reference to documents on records only. The commissioner , Shri J.P. Srivastava, appointed by the board of revenue for the purpose, submitted his report on 25.07.1990 wherein he had located the disputed property with reference to the Nazul map of 1931, even though he conceded that the Nazul map and the settlement maps were on different scales and that it was not possible to juxtapose the two maps and prepared fard Mutabiqat and corresponde the Nazul khasra numbers with the settlement khasra numbers. Thereupon, the Hon'ble court passed another order directing the commissioner to submit supplementary report surveying and locating the property with reference to settlement maps of 1861 and 1937 A.D. The commissioner submitted his supplementary report dated 8.2.1991 appended by 14 Annexures, to which serious objections were made by the Defendants.

In fact, the commissioner instead of surveying the land of his own had ‘ Baburi Mosque’ , grave yards, the shilanyas site and various other plots, Such an act on the part of the Commissioner for having accepted the Plaintiff’s map and adopting it as his own official map for submission to the court was characterized by the latter as ‘wholly unwarranted”.

Having gone through the pros and cons of the entire case, Hon’ble court in its judgment on 8.8.91, even though it refrained from calling the commissioner’s report as ‘motivate’, described it as “absurd”. It refused to accept the commissioner’s view that correct map and report about kot Ram Chandra were possible only in reference to Nazul map and that the Settlement maps were not correctly prepared. In its judgment, it refused to keep the report of the commissioner on record in the pending case.

Shri H.S. Jain, Advocate has further argued that on the basis of material available on record, it can safely be presumed that there was construction prior to the erection of Babri Mosque. The Temple Janam Sthan was destroyed and it was converted into a mosque. It is further submitted that plaintiffs cannot take any advantage of two inscriptions found inside the mosque to establish that the mosque was not constructed at the site of Ram Janam Bhoomi temple after its demolition. His submissions are as under:-

Now, there were two inscriptions inside the mosque, which were first in a riot in 1934 and subsequently restored from some stamp age alleged to have been preserved. The one which was originally there on the southern side of the pulpit reads as under :

Muslim authors have invariably erred in dating the event as 923 or 930 A.H. instead of 935 A.H. The source of the error is a misreading of the date given above in the form of Arabic /Persian alphabets arranged into words, which are : b u w a d kh a i r b a q i . What they have done about it is to drop ' b u w a d'

And, as has been stressed, idol – worship must not continue publicly, nor must the sound of bell reach Muslim ears.[1] It would be pertinent to point out that, as will be borne out by others, too, in the sequel, the mosque became better known as Sita Ki Rasoi mosque, Mirza Jan does not mention the name of Bahadurshah’s daughter (Bahadurshah ‘Alamgir ki beti ), nor does he indicate the date of composition of her work. Begum, who died at the age of forty at Kabul on January 25, 1703, But she is not likely to be the writer of the book, for the simple reason that the date of its composition cannot be supposed to be prior to 1707, when Aurangzib died and was succeeded by his son Bahadurshah. Had it been during Aurangzib's reign, the book would have been titled after the name of Aurangzib rather than of Bahadurshah. According to the Foreign Department Political Consultations, December 28, 1855, No. 450, the Prime Minister of Wajid 'Ali Shah 'referred to a book which existed in the King's library written in the reign of Bahadurshah about the year 1707 A.D. which contained an account of the masajid at Hanumangarhi[1]. The Persian text under examination des contain, inter alia, an account of the mosque built at Hanuman's abode (later named Hanumangadhi). In fact, while quoting the above passage from the work, Mirza Jan prefaces it with a special mention of that mosque thus; In short, these four mosques [Babari mosque, Ram Darbar mosque, fort mosque, and Hanumangadhi mosque] built by the rulers of the past were situated at Ayodhya like four pillars of the faith. And there is clear description thereof in the books of history, particularly (existence of) the Hanumangadhi mosque is established by a passage of the Shifah-I Shahi ( i.e. Sahifah-iChihal Nasa"ih-I Bahadurshahi), which Bahadurshah' Alamgir's daughter has written ( comprising ) forty sermons… [2] This creates a strong presumption in four of the view that it this book which the prime Minister had in mind. Thus, the date of composition of the work transpires to be 1707 A.D. It means that Bahadurshah had an elder daughter, too. Now, Mirza Jan is not the only medieval writer to refer to the work under

If the sahifah-I Chihal Nasaih-I Bahadurshahi is extant any where in print or in manuscript, it needs to be traced out and salvaged without loss of time. My personal attempt in this behalf, with the meager resources at my disposal, has not yet borne fruit and I had to make do with furnishing to VHP and through them to AIBMAC only the passage quoted from it by Mirza Jan. Mirza Hayda Shukoh’s library must have come into the hands of the British after the 1857turmoil and transferred to some other institution by them. It should not be so difficult for VHP to track it down.

There are over a dozen Urdu sources shedding light on the existence and demolition of the Rama Janmabhumi (Sita Rasoi) temple and erection of the disputed mosque on its site by Babar. Out of these I could lay my hands upon eleven, which are dealt

9. Application dated November30,1858 , filed by Muhammad Asghar, Khatib & Mu'adhhin, 'Babari Masjid', for initiation of judicial proceedings against the 'Bairagiyan-I Janmasthan', calling the mosque 'masjid-I Janmasthan' and the courtyard near the arch and the pulpit within the boundary of the mosque 'maqum Janmasthan ka". The Bairagi-s had raised a platform in the courtyard which the applicant wanted dismantled. He mentions that the Janmasthan area had been lying unkempt/in disorder (parishan) for hundreds of years and that the Hindus carried on worship there (maqam Janmsthan ka sad-ha baras se parishan para rahta tha. Ahl-I Hunud puja karte the) [2] Well, if the mosque (once described by the applicant as 'masjid'I Babari') is the Janmasthan mosque, its courtyard is the Janmasthan, and the Hindus had all along been carrying on their worship (and all that it implies ) there, if can safely be presumed that there used to be some construction there as part of a ( Janmsthan) temple, which came partly to be destroyed and partly converted into the existing mosque. And the Hindus had no alternative to making do with the templeless courtyard. It is indeed unthinkable that they might have been carrying on.

light of day at Ayodhya before 1932. [1] It was later published by the Nami Press, Lucknow in 1979 and 1981. The first edition –and I have not seen the 1979 edition –carried an account of how Babar decided and proceeded to demolish the Rama Temple and build the mosque on its site under the influence of Sayyid Musa 'Ashiqan. But the entire account is conspicuous by its absence in at least the 1981 edition. I possess a Xerox copy of the last, 1981 edition as well as page 40onlyof an earlier edition. This page contains a reference to the 'Koji-I Rajah Rama Chandra Ji ( Ramkot), 'makan-ipaida'ish' (birth-site), and bawarchikhanah rajah-imawsuf ka ( the said Raja's Kitchen), and adds: And now they call it Janmasthan and Rasoi-I Sita ji. Having demolished these structures, king Babar got a majestic mosque constructed. The reason for the construction of this mosque will follow in the sequel,' [2] The tragic tale of vandalism and its subsequent details promised here have been totally excluded from the 1981 edition. If not from the 1979 edition also, which, we have not been able to lay our hands on. The 1981 edition, too, however, contains certain relevant indications.According to it, for example, Babar came all the way from Kabul to Awadh in disguise, donning the garb of a faquir, Qalandar to be precise. Here he met Shah Jalal and Sayyid Musa 'Ashiqan and took some pledge before these saints in lieu of their blessings to conquer Hindustan. The pledge has not been spelled out here, but it has been made plain that it is in pursuance of this pledge (iqrar) that he got the mosque raised after conquering this country. [3] It is obvious that construction of just a mosque of normal size and shape is nothing compared with the conquest of India to secure which Babar had to undertake the arduous

Therefore, take it for granted that demolition of the Rama temple did form part of the pledge.

The information contained in Mawlawiyy" Abdu 'I-Karim's book is so germane to our enquiry and so pregnant with implications that I consider it necessary to discuss its relevant text in full. The author says: 'when a boy, Sultan Babar, who belong the family of Timur, came from Kabul to the town of Awadh in disguise, donning the garb of an ascetic. Those days, the town of Awadh was under the Sutanate of Sikandar Lodi and the place was a (Second) Capital of the Sultanate. Sultan Babar paid a reverential visit to His Holiness Shah Jalal and Sire Musa' Ashiqan and solicited occult favour from them, so that the ancestral Sultanate of Hindustan might come into his hands thanks to the blessings of those saints. Prince Babnar took leave of those personages, went to Kabul, mustered an army, brought it to Hindustan, and fought with Sultan Sikandar Lodhi (sic) at the (battle) field of Panipat[1]. A little later the author adds: 'Accordingly, in fulfillment of the pledge kind Babar had taken before those saints, Babar appointed Mir Baqi to it and got a magnificent mosque constructed… [2] Here the pledge taken by Babar has not been specified. Avadh-Vasi Lala Sita Ram uses the original edition of the work, from which it appears that the latest, edition leaves out the saints' reaction to Babar's request, which is to this effect:

The Faqir-s answered that they would bless him if he promised to build a mosque after demolishing the Janmasthan temple. Babar accepted the faqirs' offer and returned to his homeland.[1]

This anecdote lights up an unsuspected corner of Babar's career, not reflected in his memoirs. Yet it receives confirmation from 'Abdu 'llah's Tarikh-I Da'udi which contains a remarkable account of 'Babar Qalandar's meeting with Sultan Sikandar Lodi. Writes Abdu'Hah: In one of the histories it has come to notice that in those very days Babar Badshah, whose name was Babar Aalandar, came to Delhi adorning himself with the garb of an ascetic and entered the royal palace. One of the courtiers brought it to the royal ears that a qalandar from among sages is standing in the court feasting on the elegance of the sultan. Sultan Sikandar bade some of his courtiers bring him in. When Babar Qalandar emerged from the door, he immediately shook hands with the Sultan, by the Sultan taking his hand into his inferred the greatness of fortune in the Sultan's hand, and felt in his heart that the affluence of his Sutlanate was stillabundant. Sultan Sikandar asked him, "with what are faqir-s exalted?" Babar Qalandar said, "with Qalandar –hood." The Sultan uttered this couplet extempore (rather sardonically) :

Well, yet another version of how Babar wa led to destroy the

The faqir asked him to demolish the temple and erect a mosque on its site. Babar was hesitant at first but succumbed to the faqir's wishes on pain of being cursed by the latter. [2]

Nizamu 'd-Dawlah, was the Kashmir ambassador to the court of Awadh, according to whom there did stand a temple of Maharajah Ramchandra's birth (Maharaja Ramchandra ke tawallud ka mandir), testified to byBabar Shah's constructing the mosque on the same site ( maqam-I tawallud ka thubut to ist jagah par Babar shah ke masjid bandne par bota hai), while according to the Hindus this sign of birth has been extant for lakhs of years and appear to be so ( jab-ki ba qawal Hunud ke lakhon baras ka yah nishan-i tawallud baqi hai aur ma'lum hota hai). During Wajid Ali Shah's regime in 1855 for recapture of Hanumangadhi ( a few hundred yards from the Babari mosque) from the Hindus. The fight spread to the Babari Mosque, which came into repossession of the Hindus for awhile, it seems, From a private letter of the Governor-General, Coonoor, October 6, 1855, it appears that the work was banned immediately at one of the 'most inflammatory pamphlets on the Mussulman side…being circulated throughout the country, notwithstanding the seizure of them wherever they can be found …under the Governor-General's ordinances. [1] Does it still lie in anyone's mouth to assert that the temple story is a creation of British with a view to setting Hindus and Muslims against each other?

Mirza Jan writes: From old records and the tradition it is gathered … that, after the triumph of Salar Mas'ud Ghazi, wherever in the territory of heaven –like Hindustan they found magnificent Hindu temples, the Muslim rulers of the pass constructed mosques, monasteries, and inns, greatly spread Mahammadanism by appointing mu'adhdhin-s (callers), teachers, care-takers, devastated the paraphernalia of idolatry and bell –ringing, gave grace and glamour to Islam, and vanquished the army of infidels. And this to such an extent that all over Hindustan no trace of infidelity was left besides Islam and no practice of idol-worship survived besides worship of God. And the few Hindus who remained safe from the hands of the Muslims became the slaves of Islam, began to pay kharaj, became sudbdued and dross of infidelity, they cleared up Faizabad and Awadh also from the filth of false belief, inasmuch as it is a great place of worship and was the capital of Rama's father. Here they broke the temples and left no stone-hearted idol intact. Where there was a big temple, there they got a big mosque constructed, and, where there was a small pavilion, there they erected a plain camp mosque/enclosure Accordingly, what a majestic mosque Babar Shah has got constructed in 923 AH. Under the patronage of Sayyid MusaAshiqan ! its date is " Khayr Baqi". [2] It is still known far and wide as the Sita ki Rasoi mosque. [3]

Sri Jain has further submitted that there is historical backgrounds of continuous attack on temples of the Hindus and the Court can take judicial notice of this fact under Section 57 Rule 13. These are notorious facts of the history and they have to be admitted in toto. Apex Court in AIR 1977 SC p. 1108 Onkar Nath and others Vs. The Delhi Administration para no.6 held as under:

One of the points urged before us is whether the courts below were justified in taking judicial notice of the fact that on the date when the appellants delivered their speeches a railway strike was imminent and that such a strike was in fact launched on May 8, 1974. Section 56 of the Evidence Act provides that no fact of which the Court will take judicial notice need be proved. Section 57 enumerates facts of which the Court "shall" take judicial notice and states that on all matters of public history, literature, science or art the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference. The list of facts mentioned in Section 57 of which the Court can take judicial notice is not exhaustive and indeed the purpose of the section is to provide that the Court shall take judicial notice of certain facts rather than exhaust the category of facts of which the Court may in appropriate cases take judicial notice. Recognition of facts without formal proof is a matter of expediency and no one has ever questioned the need and wisdom of accepting the existence of matters which are

unquestionably within public knowledge. (see Taylor 11th edn. pp. 3-12; Wigmore Section 2571 footnote; Stephen's Digest, notes to Article 58; Whitley Stokes' Anglo-Indian Codes Vol. II p. 887). Shutting the judicial eye to the existence of such facts and matters is in a sense an insult to commonsense and would tend to reduce the judicial process to a meaningless and wasteful ritual. No Court therefore insists on formal proof, by evidence, of notorious facts of history, past or present. The date of poll, the passing away of a man of eminence and events that have rocked the nation need no proof and are judicially noticed. Judicial notice, in such matters, takes the place of proof and is of equal force. In fact, as a means of establishing notorious and widely known facts it is superior to formal means of proof. Accordingly, the Courts below were justified in assuming, without formal evidence, that the Railway strike was imminent on May 5, 1974 and that a strike paralyse the civic life of the Nation was undertaken by a section of workers on May 8, 1974."

Attack demolition and construction of Mosques and Madrsas in place of Temples and Religious Institutions had taken place for the last about 1100 years and is a part of Indian History from 712 A.D. In 712 A.D. Mohd. Bin Qasim an Invador from Iraq attacked Sindh. King Dahir was defeated and forceful conversion of Hindus into Muslims took place and various Hindu religious institutions were demolished. History makes it clear that foreign Muslim invaders demolished thousands of Hindu Temples.

In 1000 A.D. Mahmood Gazanavi attacked India and defeated Raja Jaipal. In 1008 A.D., he won Kangra, in 1011 A.D., Thaneshwar and demolished a number of Hindu Temples including Chakra Swami Temple and a large number of Hindu idols were broken. In 1013 A.D. he also damaged Nandana, in 1016 A.D., Bulandshahr, Mathura and Kannuaj and demolished a number of Hindu Temples. He also demolished Som Nath Temple in 1025 A.D., and broken main idol in pieces and sent those pieces of Temple to be placed in foot stairs of Jama Maszid at Gazni. After Mahmood Gazni, Mohd. Gori also destructed Hindu Temples and Idols at Azmer and constructed Mosques and Madrsas in place of Hindu Temples. At Benaras, he demolished a large number of Temples and constructed Mosques in place of Temples. In 1194 A.D., Quttubuddin Aibak attacked Delhi. He demolished 27 Jain Temples at Delhi and constructed Qubbatul Islam Mosque. In 1196 A.D., he attacked Gujrat and in 1202 A.D., Kalinjar where he demolished a large number of Hindu Temples. Mohd. Bakhtiyar Khilji attacked Bihar in 1200 A.D. and demolished a large number of Buddhist Temples at Udantpur and Nadia (Bengal) in 1202 A.D. and demolished a large number of Buddhist Temples and constructed Mosques and other religious places of Muslims in places of Hindu Temples. After Qutubuddin Aibak, Shamsuddin Iltutmish attacked Malva in 1234 A.D. and Vidisha. He demolished a old Hindu Temple of Mahakal, destroyed statute of Vikrmajeet and took away Brass Idols of

www.vadaprativada.com

Hindu Gods and placed at the foot step of stairs of a Mosque at Old Delhi and asked the people to pass through these Idols of Hindu Gods. After Iltutmish, Balban ruled parts of India. He also attacked Hindus and Hindu Temples in 1254 A.D. In 1321 A.D. Jalaluddin Khilji attacked Fort of Ran Thambore and enroute he damaged and demolished several Hindu Temples. In 1292 A.D., his nephew Allauddin Khilji attacked Bhelsa and he too demolished a large number of Hindu Temples and thrown idols of Hindu Gods. He also proposed to make a Minar taller than the Qutubminar by using materials of demolished Hindu Temples. He also ordered his cousin Ulugh Khan to demolish reconstructed Somnath Temple of Gujrat, who also damaged and demolished a number of Hindu Temples. He also attacked Ujjain and demolished several Hindu Temples at Ujjain. Like wise, he attacked Malva and Chittaur (Rajasthan) where he demolished a large number of Hindu Temples. In 1360 A.D. Firozshah Tughlak another Muslim Sultan attacked and damaged Jagannathpuri Temple (Orissa) by broking idol of Bhagwan Jagannath and thrown at the foot stairs of Muslim Mosques and demolished Jwalamukhi Temple at Nagarkot, Kangra and damaged Temple's idol. Taimur attacked India in 1399 A.D. and started war against Hindus on religious basis. He demolished a large number of Hindu Temples. In 1392 A.D., Muzaffarshah, Governor of Gujrat demolished reconstructed Somnath Temple again and constructed a Mosque within the Temple, but after some time Hindus

www.vadaprativada.com

reconstructed same Temple. In 1401 A.D., Ahmad, grand son of Muzaffarshah, who took over as Governor of Gujrat appointed a Daroga (Inspector) for demolishing all Hindu Temples of Gujrat. In 1415 A.D., Ahmad attacked and demolished Sidhpur Temple (Rudra Mahalaya) and in its place he constructed a Mosque. From 1389 A.D. to 1431 A.D., Sikandar (Boot Shikan) attacked and demolished a large number of Hindu Temples and idols, who was known for his pleasure by breaking Idols of Hindus. Between 1389 A.D. to 1431 A.D., he demolished Temples of Martand, Vishnu, Ishan, Chakrvarti and Tripureshwar. There were no places in his Empire where his Mantri Suha had not demolished Hindu Temples. Babar, who established Moghul Empire, attacked India and demolished Ram Janma Bhumi Temple at Ayodhya and constructed a Mosque on the same place. After Babar, Humiaun ruled India. It is described in history that Chchatri Temple at Zehanabad was demolished by Humaun and in place of Temple a Mosque was constructed. During the period of Jehangir Sikh Guru Sri Arjun Singhjee was killed, Hindu Durg Temple of Kangra and cows were slaughtered in the Temple. Shahjehan got demolished about 76 Temples of Benaras in 1633 A.D. by ordering to demolish all the newly constructed Hindu Temples. Demolition of Hindu Temples by Aurangjeb is also well known to everyone. When he was only Prince, he demolished Chintamani Temple at Gujrat and in place of Temple he constructed Qubbatul Islam Mosque in 1645 A.D. In 1648 A.D., he sent Mir Jumla to Kooch

Bihar, who demolished several Hindu Temples there and constructed Mosaues in place of Hindu Temples. In 1670 A.D., In Mathura, Krishna Janma Bhoomi Temple was demolished by Aurangjeb and a Mosque was constructed in place of Temple. Idols of Temple were placed at the stairs of Janhaara Mosque, Agra. Temple Ram Chandra in Soron, Devi Patan Temple of Gonda, Temples of Ujjain and all the Hindu Temples of Mednipur, Bengal Temples and Idols of Jodhpur were also broken and broken parts of Idols and the Temples were taken away to Delhi. He also demolished Hindu Temples and Idols at Udaipur in 1680 A.D., 62 Temples of Chittaurgarh, 66 Temples of Amber, Someshwar Temple of Mewar, Khanderao Temple of Satara. In 1690 A.D., he demolished Temples of Elora, Trayambakeshwar, Narsingpur, Pandarpur and Bijapur. In 1669 A.D. He also demolished several Hindu Temples at Tattha, Multan and Benaras including famous Kashi Vishwanath Temple at Benaras. Aurangjeb crossed all the limits of communalism and re-imposed Zazia Tax on Hindus if wanted to live as Hindus. Tipu Sultan also got converted Hindus and Christians into Muslims and demolished several Hindu Temples and other religious institutions.

Above facts have been taken from the Books of various Muslim Historians including Book “Tarikhen Yamini” written by Utabi, Historian and Secretary of Mahmood Gaznavi, from the Asarul Bilad of Muslim Historian of Zakaria Al-Qazwani, Muslim

Historian Nizami and Muslim Historian Ibn Assar at the time of Mohd. Gori, Muslim Historian Hasan Nizami, from book Mutkhatat Tavarikh of Muslim Historian Budauini, Book written by Muslim invador Imad Jan Tuzuk Taimuri of Taimur, from the Auto Biography of Babar "Tuzuke Babri", from Zuvadutul-Tavarikh of Muslim Historian Shekh Nurul Haq, from Book Atharuye Sanadid written by Sir Syed Ahmad, from the Book Heroes of Islam of Prof. Fazal Ahmad, from the Book Badshahname of Muslim Historian Abdul Hamid Lahori, from the Book Voice to East Indies written by Barithailomeo, from the Book Bhasha Poshani of Historian Sardar K.M. Panikkar, from the Book of Bil Durent, from the Book Story of 'Islamic Imperialism in India' written by Historian Sri Sitaram Goyal, published by Voice of India. All aforesaid Historical Books are relied upon by Sri Purshottam in his Book 'Muslim Rajnitik Chintan Aur Akanchayen, published by Sumit Prakashan, Maushambagh, Sitapur Road, Lucknow and from other Books of History.

Thus, on the basis of the aforesaid submissions Mr Jain has pointed out that it was not for the first time that Babri Mosque was constructed after demolition of Ram Janm Sthan temple but prior to it thousands of Hindu temples were destroyed . He has referred the history from 712 A.D. and onwards to show that the temples were destroyed prior and afterwards of Ram Janmsthan temples by Muslims .

FUNCTIONS OF THE RULES OF EVIDENCE

According to WHARTON the main function of the rules of evidence is to narrow down the matter which comes before the Court to the facts relating to those matters which have a logical probative value in determining the fact and to prevent giving judgments based on illogical conclusions or prejudice, and as an aid to the administration of justice.

CLASSIFICATION OF EVIDENE

Broadly speaking, Evidence can be classified into (1) Direct and Indirect or circumstantial evidence.

www.vadaprativada.com

(2) Primary and Secondary Evidence

(3) Oral and Documentary Evidence

(4) Real Evidence

(5) Original and Hearsay Evidence

(6) Presumptive Evidence.

(a) Direct Evidence.- "By direct evidence is meant that the existence of a given thing or fact is proved either by its actual production, or by the testimony or admissible declaration of someone who has humself perceived it." [(vide Cement Corporation of India Vs. Purya, (2004) 8 SCC 270].

"Direct evidence is evidence which, if believed, establishes a fact in issue." [(vide Cement Corporation of India Vs. Purya, (2004) 8 SCC 270]

"Direct evidence is evidence which requires no mental

process on the part of the tribunal of fact in order to draw the conclusion sought by the proponent of the evidence, other than acceptance of the evidence itself."

Direct evidence consists either of the testimony of the witness who perceived the fact or the production of the documents which constitute the fact which is in question. This direct evidence is sometimes called original evidence which arises from the personal knowledge of the witness. Direct evidence, if believed, proves the existence of a fact in issue without any inference of presumption.

Pericipient Evidence.- "The term direct evidence has a second meaning in the usage of many writers. The alternative term pericipient evidence not ony avoids any possibility of confusion, but is also more appropriate to describe the opposite of hearsay evidence.. Pericipent evidence is evidence of facts which a witness personally perceives using any of his senses."

(b) Indirect or Circumstantial Evidence.- Indirect Evidence otherwise known as circumstantial evidence is evidence that gives rise to a logical inference that such a fact does exist. Circumstantial evidence may be either conclusive or presumptive. It is conclusive when there is a connection between the principal fact and the evidentiary fact. It is presumptive where the fact rests on a greater or a less degree of probability. The effect of circumstantial evidence on consideration must be such as not to admit more than one solution, and must be inconsistent with any

explanation that the fact is not true.

“By indirect or presumptive evidence is meant that other facts are thus proved, from which the existence of the given fact may be logically inferred.” [(vide Cement Corporation of India Vs. Purya, (2004) 8 SCC 270]

“Circumstantial evidence..... consists of evidence of circumstances, none of which speak directly to the facts in issue but from which those facts may be inferred. Feelings of animosity towards the victim, presence in the area of the attack, the victim's blood on the accused clothing- all these build up into a strong but inferential case.”

'Circumstantial evidence'.... may be defined as any fact (sometimes called an 'evidentiary fact', 'factum probans' or 'fact relevant to the issue') from the existence of which the judge or jury may infer the existence of a fact in issue (sometimes called a 'principal fact' or 'factum probandum').

It is well to remember that in cases where evidence is of circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of the fact is to be drawn should in first instance be fully established, and all the facts so established should be consistent only with hypothesis of the guilt of the wrongdoer. Again, the circumstances should be of conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable

ground for a conclusion consistent with the fact and must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the person."

ESSENTIAL INGREDIENTS TO PROVE A FACT BY CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE ARE:

(1) Circumstances from which conclusion is drawn should be fully proved.

(2) Circumstances should be conclusive.

(3) All facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of a fact.

CIRCUMSTANCES SHOULD EXCLUDE THE POSSIBILITY OF ACT OF A PERSON.

www.vadaprativada.com

(1) the circumstances from which an inference of fact is sought to be drawn, must be cogently and firmly established;

(2) those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the act of the person.

(3) the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the act was committed by the person and none else; and;

(4) the circumstantial evidence in order to establish a fact must be complete and incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the fact.

Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every

circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the person and it must be such as to show that within all human probability, the act must have been done by him.

Alfred Wills' "Wills' Circumstantial Evidence" (Chapter VI) certain rules as to evaluation of Circumstantial Evidence as under :

(1) the facts alleged as the basis of any legal inference must be clearly proved and beyond reasonable doubt connected with the factum probandum;

(2) the burden of proof is always on the party who asserts the existence of any fact, which infers legal accountability;

(3) in all cases, whether of direct or circumstantial evidence the best evidence must be adduced which the nature of the case admits;

(4) in order to justify the inference of guilt, the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation, upon any other reasonable hypothesis than that of his guilt;

(5) if there be any reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused, he is entitled as of right to be acquitted."

The circumstances from which an inference as to the guilt of the accused is drawn have to be proved beyond reasonable doubt

www.vadaprativada.com

and have to be shown to be closely connected with the principal fact sought to be inferred from those circumstances (vide AIR 2003 SC 3601, State of Rajasthan V. Rajaram).

There is no difference between civil and criminal cases in the application of circumstantial evidence and their admissibility. Regarding the appreciation of circumstantial evidence in civil case, preponderance of probabilities should be looked at in deciding the cases.

It is function of the court to separate the grain from the chaff and accept what appears to be true and reject the rest.

In cases where only circumstantial evidence is available at the outset, one considers the motive and opportunity to commit the act. If the evidence shows that he had a strong enough motive and opportunity to commit the act and the established circumstances on the record considered along with the explanation, if any, of the person exclude the reasonable possibility of anyone else being the real person then the chain of evidence can be considered to be so complete as to show that within all human probability, the act must have been committed by the person.

"Circumstantial evidence in this context means a combination of facts creating a net-work through which there is no escape for the accused, because the facts taken as a whole do not admit of any inference but of his guilt." BARON PARKE J in Towell's case observed "the circumstances may often be so clearly proved, so closely connected with it, or leading to one result in

www.vadaprativada.com

conclusion, that the mind may be as well convinced as if it were proved by eye-witnesses".

Parties have placed reliance over Gazetteers and certain other books. They can be admitted in evidence in view of Section 57 of Indian Evidence Act.

Section 57- Facts of which court must take judicial notice.

2. Judicial notice: facts of which Courts may take judicial notice

Judicial notice is the cognizance taken by the Court itself for certain matters which are so notorious or clearly established that evidence of their existence is deemed unnecessary. The Court is duty bound to find out the law and apply it to the facts of the case. (vide Mazhar Ali V. Hakimuddin, AIR 1965 Patna 489.

In the words of the Supreme Court in Onkar Nath v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1977 SC 1108, "Section 56 of the Evidence Act provides that no fact of which the Court will take judicial notice need be proved. Section 57 enumerate facts of which the Court 'shall' take judicial notice and states that on all matters of public history, literature, science or art the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference. The list of facts mentioned in section 57 of which the Court can take judicial notice is not exhaustive and indeed the purpose of the section is to provide that the court shall take judicial notice of certain facts rather than judicial notice. The list of facts mentioned in section 57 of the Evidence Act of which the Court can take judicial notice is not exhaustive and the purpose of the section is to provide that the Court shall take judicial notice of certain facts rather than exhaust the category of facts of which the Court may in appropriate cases take judicial notice. Recognition of facts without formal proof is matter of expediency and no one has ever questioned the need and wisdom of accepting the existence of matters which are unquestionably within public knowledge.

Rules of Hindu Law, Mohammadan Law, or custom to be judicially noticed.

Where the Legislature has declared that the parties will be governed in certain matters by Hindu Law or Mohammadan Law,

www.vadaprativada.com

as the case may be, the rules of Hindu Law or Mohammadan Law on those matters will be judicially noticed by the Courts.

The personal law will be ascertained by reference to authoritative text books, judicial decisions and the opinions of persons well vested in those systems of law. These authorities are sufficient proof of the general Hindu Law prevailing over large tracts of country and populous communities. Any body living among them must be taken to fall under those general rules of law, unless he can show some valid local, tribal or family custom to the contrary. In order to bring a case under any rule of law laid down by recognized authority for Hindus generally, it is not necessary to give evidence of actual events to show that in point of fact the people subject to that general law regulate their lives by it. Special custom may be pleaded by way of exception, which it is proper to prove by evidence of what actually is done. There is one essential feature in the operation of customs which necessarily differentiates them from the operation of Acts of Legislature. In the case of laws enacted by the Legislature, Courts have to take judicial notice not only of the rules but also of those facts which are necessary for showing that they have the force of law, such facts consisting of the proceedings of the legislative body. In the case of customs, the facts showing that they have the force of law and that they govern the parties or the properties concerned include the fact that the alleged rules of conduct have been uniformly followed by the parties concerned of the community to which the parties belong. This fact is one of which the Courts cannot take judicial notice, unless it has been so often proved in the Courts as to make further proof unnecessary. Thus, the Courts may take judicial notice of a custom if it is generally prevalent among a certain class of people or is well established by long usage, e.g. a customary right of privacy prevailing in Oudh. When the existence of a custom is generally known and judicially recognized it is necessary to prove it by specific evidence. Where a custom is repeatedly brought to the notice of the Courts of a country, the Courts may hold that custom to be introduced into the law without the necessity of proof.

The privy Council in *Raja Rajendra Narain*v. *Kumar Ganganand*a, AIR 1925 PC 213: 1925 MWN 549: 89 IC 737, held that after the existence of a custom for some years has been proved by direct evidence, it can only, as a rule, be shown to be immemorial by hearsay evidence and it is for this reason that such an evidence is allowable as an explanation to the general rule. In D.C. Bara Banki v. Receiver of the Estate of Choudhry, AIR 1928 PC 202: 32 CWN 1120: 53 IA 303, it has been held that breach of a custom in a particular instance need not destroy it for all times. In *Effuah Amissah*v. Effuah Krabah, AIR 1936 PC 147: 162 IC 461: 44 MLW 73, it was held that material customs must be proved in the first instance by calling witness acquainted with them until a particular custom has, by frequent proof in the court, become so notorious that the courts take judicial notice of it. A custom cannot be extended by logical process. In *Saraswati*v. Jagadambalal, AIR 1953 SC 201, it has been held that oral evidence as to instances, which can be proved by documentary evidence, cannot be fairly relied upon to establish custom when no satisfactory explanation for withholding the best evidence is given. Custom cannot be established by analogy and it cannot be established by a *priori*method. *Uzagar Singh*v. Mst. Jeo, AIR 1959 SC 1041, laid down that the ordinary rule is that a custom, general or otherwise, has to be proved under section 57 of the Evidence Act. However, nothing need be proved of which the courts can take judicial notice. When a custom has been judicially recognised by the court then it passes into the law of the land as proof of it becomes unnecessary under section 57(1) of the Evidence Act.

List of facts enumerated in section 57 not exhaustive of the facts of which Courts may take judicial notice :

The Maxim *expressio unius exclusio alterius*is often a valuable servant, but a dangerous master to follow in the construction of Statutes. The exclusion is often the result of inadvertence or accident and the maxim ought not to be applied when its application, having regard to the subject-matter to which it is to be applied, leads to inconsistency or injustice. This maxim is not applicable to section 57 of the Evidence Act, as it has been held that the list mentioned in the section is not exhaustive of the facts of which the Courts may take judicial notice. It is doubtful whether an absolutely complete list of the facts of which Courts can take judicial notice could be framed, as it is practically impossible to enumerate everything which is so notorious in itself or so distinctly recorded by public authority that it would be superfluous to prove it. The tendency of modem practice is to enlarge the field of judicial notice, and the penultimate paragraph of this section indicates both an approval of this practice as also the kinds of subjects of which judicial notice may be taken. The Indian case law and practice also appear to have proceeded on a liberal application of the power to take judicial notice. There is, however, this difference between the facts mentioned in section 57 and others which are not so mentioned but of which judicial notice may properly be taken; that, whereas the Court is bound to take judicial notice of the former, the Court has a discretion in the case of the latter, which it may or may not judicially notice, Matters directed by statute to be judicially noticed must be so noticed by the Courts; but beyond this, the Courts have a wide discretion and may notice much which they cannot be required to notice. Section 57 of the Evidence Act makes it obligatory on the part of the Court to take judicial notice of the facts mentioned in clause (1) to clause (13) of section 57. There is nothing in section 57 to indicate that a Court cannot take judicial notice of facts, which are not covered by clause (1) to clause (13) of section 57. Therefore, so far as the power of the Court to take judicial notice of the facts of the case is concerned, section 57 and section 114 of the Evidence Act confer

two different kinds of powers. The distinction between section 57 and section 114 of the Evidence Act is this that if under section 57 of the Evidence Act, relevant fact is covered by one or more of the thirteen clauses of section 57, then the Court is under a legal obligation to take judicial notice of the fact subject to the conditions laid down in section 57 itself. On the other hand, section 114 of the Evidence Act does not make it obligatory on the part of the Court to take judicial notice of any fact, but empowers the Court to take judicial notice of all those facts, which the Court may presume to have happened regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business in relation to the fact of the particular case.

Thus, the Court may take judicial notice of any fact which, though not mentioned in section 57, is judicially notified by the English Courts, and of other facts which are notorious-e.g., the ordinary course of nature, the standards of weight and measure, the public coin and currency, and its difference of value in early and modern times. That Ramayana is sacrosanct to Hindus, that Rama, Krishna, Brahma, Mahatma Gandhi, to wit only a few, are held in the highest esteem by them are matters of common knowledge and courts can take judicial notice thereof under clause 13 of section 57 of the Evidence Act.

Judicial notice may properly be taken of current events and notorious facts, e.g., like a world-wide economic depression or a political movement e.g., the "Quit India" campaign and the accompanying disturbances of August, 1942. Courts can take judicial notice of the anti-corruption propaganda carried on by a State Government. A Court can take judicial notice of facts transpiring in Court. A record of custom purporting to be prepared by a public officer is admissible under section 57 without proof that it was prepared by the officer by whom it purports to have been prepared. The extent to which, and the pictorial delineation of a scene are not matters of common knowledge but are matters for experts. Judicial notice may be taken of the fact that original telegrams are destroyed by the Telegraph Department after three months. The Court may take judicial notice of the rules of executive business of the Government. It may also take judicial notice of the fact that the Courts of Wards is much concerned with the welfare of its wards. A Court Martial may take judicial notice of any matter within the general Military knowledge of its members. The Court is justified in taking judicial notice of the practice with the banks of charging interest on the overdrawn amount.

Court can take judicial notice of the fact there is a flourishing colony of *satsangis*at Agra and there are centres in most of the big cities in U.P.

Facts of which judicial notice may be taken are not limited to those of the nature specifically mentioned in clauses (1) to (13)

of this section. These are mentioned because, as regards them, the Court is given no discretion. They must be recognised by the Courts. As to others the Courts have a wide discretion and may notice many facts which they cannot be required to notice. Thus a Court can take judicial notice of "notorious fact," but the question whether a particular fact is a "notorious fact" may be a matter of opinion and somewhat controversial. The Court cannot smuggle into the evidence its own opinion of controversial situation distinguished as notorious facts. The Court must determine in each case, whether the fact is of such well-known and established character as to the proper subject of judicial notice. A proclamation of emergency is a matter of general information of which a Court can take Judicial notice. A matter of public history may be such a fact. Consequently, the rule of exclusion should not be applied in construing statutes, when the application of the rule is likely to lead to injustice.

The list of facts mentioned in the Section 57, of which the Court can take judicial notice, is not exhaustive. Indeed, the purpose of the section is to provide that the Court shall take judicial notice of certain facts, rather than exhaust the category of facts of which the Court may, in appropriate cases, take judicial notice. Recognition of facts, without formal proof, is a matter of expediency, and no one has ever questioned the need and vision of accepting the existence of matters which are unquestionably within public knowledge (vide Onkarnath v. Delhi Administration, AIR

1977 SC 1108).

STEPHEN in his DIGEST (7th Ed., Notes to XXVI to Article 58 at p. 179) has observed: "It may be doubted whether an absolutely complete list could be framed, as it is practically impossible to enumerate everything which is so notorious in itself, or so distinctly recorded by public authority that it would be superfluous to prove it".

The following are some instances where the court took judicial notice of facts which do not fall within clauses 1 to 13:-

The Supreme Court held that the court can take judicial notice of the fact that many of the industrial workers are illiterate; hence, where a previously prepared signed statement of a witness was read over to the workmen and they were asked to cross-examine the witness then and there, it amounted to non-compliance with the rules of natural justice (vide Keshoram Cotton Mills v. Gangadhar, AIR 1964 SC 708).

Judicial notice can be taken of the low expectation of life of hill tribes (vide Pati Soura v. State, ILR 1970 Cut 1165).

The Court can take judicial notice about: Communal disturbances or other disturbances in the country(vide Shivnath Rajram v. Union of India, AIR 1965 SC 1666).

Communal disturbances in 1947 after partition of India (vide Ishar Dass v. Smt. Chetni Bai (1970) 72 Punj LR17).

Reference to appropriate books and documents of reference:

It frequently happens that it is necessary or proper for the Court to refer to sources of information concerning matters which have not been referred in the evidence, in which case it is its duty to reason to any source of information which in its nature is calculated to be trustworthy and helpful, always seeking first for that which is not appropriate. If a party asks the Court to take judicial notice of a matter of which judicial notice may properly be taken, the Court may refuse to take judicial notice unless the party produces any such book or document as the Court may consider necessary to enable it to do so. The Court itself may, without calling upon a party, refer to appropriate books and documents of reference. There is nothing to prevent the Court itself making an inquiry if it has only imperfect information, or none at all, on the subject; and the Courts have in several cases made, or caused to be made, such inquiries. The Court can take judicial notice only if unimpeachable books or documents are put before it or are otherwise accessible for its reference. Under the last paragraph of the section, the Court is given the discretion to refuse to take judicial notice of any fact, unless such person calling upon the Court to take any judicial notice to a fact produces any such book or document as it may be necessary to enable it to do so.

Matters of public history, literature, science or art, of

which judicial notice may be taken; reference to standard works (Section 57 Clause 13)

The penultimate paragraph of this section does not say whether the Court may or may not take notice of any fact, nor does it say or mean that the Court shall or may take judicial notice of every matter which comes under the heads of description given there. It merely provides that when the Court does take judicial notice of the fact of which it is bound to take judicial notice under clauses 1 to 13, then it may refer to appropriate books of reference about that fact. Matters of history, literature, science and art are not mentioned in the section as matters of which the Court must take judicial notice, but, as pointed out elsewhere, the section is not exhaustive of the facts of which the Court may take judicial notice. The Court can take judicial notice, not of all matters of history, literature, science and art indiscriminately, but only of such matter of public history, literature, science and art as are of such a notoriety that they may be presumed as forming part of the common knowledge of every educated citizen. The Court can take judicial notice only of what may be regarded as notorious facts of public history; it cannot treat letters though 75 years old, without any sort of legal proof, as proof of where certain missionaries were residing and when they died. Before any judicial notice may be taken of any passages in books relating to an alleged tradition, something more than the mere existence of the passages has to be proved before the passages may be regarded as evidence of the existence of the tradition. It must be shown that the writer had some special knowledge of the alleged tradition. The existence of a national strike of coal-miners is a matter of public history. In *Farzand Ali*v. Zafar Ali, 46 IC 119, it was observed:

"We are inclined to think that the use of the historical works to establish title to the property cannot be justified on the strength of section 57 of the Indian Evidence Act. The question of title between the trustee of a mosque, though an old and historical institution, and a private person, cannot, in our opinion, be deemed to be a 'matter of public history' within the meaning of the said section."

www.vadaprativada.com

In Mahant Shri Srinivas Ramanuj Das v. Surjanarayan Das, AIR 1967 SC 256, it was observed:

"These statements in the Gazetteer are not relied on as evidence of title but as providing historical material and the practice followed by the 'Math' and its head. The Gazetteer can be consulted on matters of public history."

The question whether certain property is wakf or not is not a matter of public history, historical works on such matter cannot, therefore, be referred to. The fact that there has been a political agitation in the country; that certain persons have been deported in consequences of the part said to have been take by them in it, and that such agitation, conduct and deportation were the subject of debates in Parliament, and in a general way what was said in such

debates and therefore became widely known to the alleged cause of deportation, are matters of public history; but the terms of a speech made by a person, who is not yet a historical personage, in the presence of persons who still exits, is not a matter of public history. A judge is entitled to take judicial notice of matters which have reached the Courts, e.g., prosecutions for political crimes or the general trend of evidence adduced for the prosecution and defence in such case. Judicial notice may be taken of the fact that certain district in England had been attacked by aircraft; or that a district had been the scene of recent and frequent dacoities; or that the original records of a district destroyed during the Mutiny of 1857. In Dorab Ali v. Abdul Aziz the Privy Council was inclined to treat the fact that the Province of Oudh was not, when first annexed to British India, annexed to the Presidency of Fort William as a fact of which judicial notice could be taken under the Evidence Act. Judicial notice cannot be taken of land revenue reports which must be proved like any other document requiring proof. Judicial notice may be taken of proceedings in the Legislative Assembly, not of the truth of the facts asserted in the speeches but of the fact that such speeches were made. Vernacular histories which have never received any recognition, as historical works of value and reliability relating to matters of public or general interest nor have been referred to in any well-known historical work are inadmissible. Dictionaries may properly be referred to by the Court in order to ascertain not only the meaning of a word, but also the use to which the thing (if it be a thing) denoted by the word is commonly put. In order to determine the meaning of names and terms used in a particular religion the Court is entitled under section 57 to refer to works dealing with the history and beliefs of that religion. Judicial notice can be taken of economists' definitions but it should be done under exceptional circumstances and with proper safeguards.

Thurston's Castes and Tribes of Southern India cannot be considered to be a conclusive authority in regard to information collected by him.

It may further be necessary to say that the opinion of Historians and Readers fall within the ambit of expert opinion.

In this case parties have placed reliance over the opinion of experts as well as of outstanding Writers of certain books including gazetteers. They fall within the ambit of expert evidence. Section 45 of Indian Evidence Act reads as under;

Section 45 of the Indian Evidence Act

As a general rule, the opinion of a witness on a question whether of fact or of law, is irrelevant. A witness has to state the facts which he has seen, heard or perceived, and not the conclusions which he has formed on observing or perceiving them. The function of drawing inferences from facts is judicial function and must be performed by the court. If a witness is permitted to state not only the facts which he has perceived but also the opinion

which he has formed on perceiving them, it would amount to delegation of judicial functions to him and investing him with the attributes of a judge.

To this general rule, however, there are some important exceptions, which are enacted in this set of sections. When "the subject-matter of inquiry is such that inexperienced persons are unlikely to prove capable of forming a correct judgment upon it", or when "it so far partakes of the character of a science or art as to require a course of previous habit or study", the opinions of persons having special knowledge of the subject-matter of inquiry become relevant; for it is very difficult for the Court to form a correct opinion on a matter of this kind, without the assistance of such persons.

Matters for expert testimony; competency to depose as an expert

Opinions of experts become relevant only when the Court has to form an opinion upon a point of foreign law, or of science or art, or as to identity of handwriting or finger impressions. This section is, therefore, exhaustive of the matters on which expert testimony can be given, though the expression "science or art" would include almost all branches of human knowledge requiring special study, experience or training. So that a witness may be competent to depose as an expert, he must be shown to have made a special study of the subject or acquired a special experience

therein. In such cases, the question is: "Is he peritus? Is he skilled? Has he adequate knowledge?" An expert is a person who has special knowledge and skill in the particular calling to which the inquiry relates. In law, and as applied to a witness, the term "expert" has a special significance, and no witness is permitted to express his opinion, unless he is an expert within the terms of section 45. The fact that the evidence of an expert was accepted in one case is no ground for accepting his evidence in every other case.

The term "expert" has a special significance and no witness is permitted to express his opinion unless he is an expert within the meaning of the term under section 45 Evidence Act. In each case, the Court has to decide whether a person said to be an expert, is really an expert taking into account his skill, study and experience. In many cases, persons having no educational qualification but having knowledge of high order have been treated to be experts. In Baldev Raj v. Urmila Kumari, AIR 1979 SC 879, opinion of a doctor who had not specialised in gynecology but had knowledge of high order of midwifery as an obstetrician, was accepted as an expert. Clearly, therefore, what is admissible is the opinion of such an expert in the field in which he or she has acquired special knowledge. Outside specialised field, the opinion of the expert would cease to be expert opinion and fall outside the purview of section 45 of the Evidence Act. In Deeks v. Wells, AIR 1933 PC 26, it was held that depositions of expert witnesses as to result of their opinions, and as to the effect of them, do not come within the domain of expert evidence at all. In State v. *Gaspar,*AIR 1971 Goa 3, opinion of Medical Officer as to mental condition of accused on a particular date on the basis of testimony of witnesses to acts of accused on that date, was not held as the expert opinion but his presumption. There can, however, be no dispute that an expert's evidence is a good evidence and cannot be rejected simply because it may not be decisive. In spite of it, the Court is not bound by the expert opinion though it is bound to consider the same along with other evidence and circumstances appearing in a particular case. In Haji Mohd. v. State of West Bengal, AIR 1959 SC 488, the Court held that in the circumstances of a case, the Court can refuse to place any reliance on the opinion of an expert which is unsupported by any reasons. As far as medical evidence is concerned, it has never been considered to be substantive evidence of the charge, but has been accepted as corroborative of the charge. It has been accepted since long that knowledge of medicine and human body is a matter of science and, hence, Courts have treated expert medical opinion with respect. In spite of it, a medical man cannot be allowed to give his opinion on matters, which are within the province of the Courts to decide.

In order to bring the evidence of a witness as that of an expert it has to be shown that he has made a special study of the subject or acquired a special experience therein or in other words that he is skilled and has adequate knowledge of the subject.

An expert is not a witness of fact. His evidence is really of an advisory character. The duty of an expert witness is to furnish the Judge with the necessary scientific criteria for testing the accuracy of the conclusions so as to enable the Judge to form his independent judgment by the application of this criteria to the facts proved by the evidence of the case. The scientific opinion evidence, if intelligible, convincing and tested, becomes a factor and often an important factor for consideration along with the other evidence of the case. The credibility of such a witness depends on the reasons stated in support of his conclusions and the data and material furnished which form the basis of his conclusions.

Opinions of authors in text books

Though opinions expressed in text books by specialist authors may be of considerable assistance and importance for the court in arriving at the truth, cannot always be treated or viewed to be either conclusive or final as to what such author says to deprive even a court of law to come to an appropriate conclusion of its own on the peculiar facts proved in a given case. In substance, though such views may have persuasive value cannot always be considered to be authoritatively binding, otherwise reasonably required of the guilt of the accused in a given case. Such opinions cannot be elevated to or place on higher pedestal than the opinion of an expert examined in court and the weight ordinarily to which

www.vadaprativada.com

it may be entitled to or deserves to be given.

Opinion of the expert.

The Madras High Court observed that even though there is no bar for the court to compare the admitted signatures with the disputed signatures to come to its conclusion it would be prudent to require assistance of the expert witness. In fact all the judgments cited by both the parties related to signatures and not thumb impressions. It cannot be disputed that thumb impressions would stand on a different footing, when compared to signatures and the variations, in thumb impression cannot be easily judged by naked eyes. The Court remanded the appeal back to the lower court for sending the documents for the opinion of the expert and thereupon take evidence if necessary only in the context of the opinion of the expert and record his findings thereon.

Court acting as an expert

The opinion of the Court, itself untrained in medicine and without trained assistance, on questions of medicine is valueless. On questions of handwriting also, the practice of the Court itself acting as an expert has been disapproved. But there is nothing in the so-called science of finger prints which need deter a Court from applying its own magnifying glass or its own eyes and mind to the evidence and verifying the results submitted to it by the witnesses. In trial with the aid of jury, a question of handwriting or thumb-impression is entirely a matter for the jury.

It is also a settled proposition of law that Gazette Notifications are also admissible u/ss.35,45 and 81 of Indian Evidence Act. The Hon'ble Apex Court in AIR 1995 SC 167, Bala Shanker Maha Shanker Bhattjee and others Versus Charity Commissioner, Gujarat State at para 22 held as under;

> "It is seen that the Gazette of the Bombay Presidency, Vol. III published in 1879 is admissible under Section 35 read with Section 81 of the Evidence Act, 1872. The Gazette is admissible being official record evidencing public affairs and the court may presume their contents as genuine. The statement contained therein can be taken into account to discover the historical material contained therein and the facts stated therein is evidence under Section 45 and the court may in conjunction with other evidence and circumstance take into consideration in adjudging the dispute in question though may not be treated as conclusive evidence."

Annexure-IV
Gazetteers
Pages 34 to 128

Gazetteers : Certain gazetteers have been relied upon by the parties. A gazetteer is a geographical dictionary or directory which provides important reference for information about places and place names including the map or a full atlas. This information is divided into various topics. Gazetteers of ancient Greece, China,

www.vadaprativada.com

Europe are also available. Of late in this country after arrival of the Britishers the gazetteers were introduced.

In this context it is necessary to mention that certain official gazetteers were published by East India Company and after independence by the Government of India. The official gazette is a Government Book and a publication in the official organ for the publication of Royal proclamation, Government orders, Regulations while the gazetteers is a geographical dictionary or the historic account or the general description of any place or the province, district and provincial gazetteers are quasi Government gazetteers giving important particulars respecting the district or province concerned. In this case parties have relied over gazetting official gazetteers. I have tried to explain the scope of all the 3 publications of the Government.

Gazette generally means the official gazette published under the authority of Government. It is a publication of an official character which contains Government Notifications,list of public appointments and honours, legal notices etc. Official gazetteer is a Government Book. It is the official organ for the publication of royal proclamations, Government orders and regulations, Government circulars, rules bylaws and other public notices.

Needless to say that the Court can take judicial notice u/s 57 of the Gazette, official gazetteers, district and provincial gazetteers. District and Provincial gazetteers provides certain historic account also. The Court can take judicial notice of historic events vide AIR 1977 SC 1708.

Plaint averments have also to be appreciated while deciding the controversy. The plaintiffs have come out with a case that in the Town of Ayodhya Babri masjid was built by emperor Babur for the use of Muslims in general. As a place of worship and for performance of religious ceremonies and the land adjoining the mosque is the ancient graveyard of the Muslims who fought and died in the battle of Ayodhya between Babur and the previous ruler which are shown in the attached sketch map.

Learned counsel for the plaintiff has relied over certain extract of the books regarding nature of the building. Plaintiffs have filed Ext.82, extract of Memoirs of Babur by F.G.Talbot. Further reliance has been placed on on Ext.85 extract of Mughalkalin Bharat-Babur by S.Athar Abbas Rizvi. Further reliance has been placed on Ext.90, extract of Moghukalin Bharat. Plaintiffs have also relied upon extract of Memoirs of Babur by John Leyden, extract of Baburnama by John Leyden and John Erskine and extract of Baburnama by A.S.Beveridge. The plaintiffs have placed these documents to establish that Babur had camped near Ayodhya, but had not given any order for demolition of any temple and even on his return from the East, when he had called Mir Baqi at a place near Ayodhya, no such mention was made by Mir Baqi that any temple was demolished at Ayodhya or any

mosque was constructed at the site of any such Temple while there is specific mention of the desecration of the nude parts of the idols of Urwa in Babarnama. Thus on the basis of these extracts the plaintiffs have pointed out that Babar never visited Ayodhya and the temple was not demolished at Ayodhya nor any mosque was constructed on the site of any such temple. Needless to say that the plaint averment is contrary to it where it has been specifically said that there was a battle between the then Ruler of Ayodhya and Babur and graves of Muslims who lost lives in the battle were buried in the adjoining graveyard. Thus the mosque has since the time of its construction been used by Muslims for offering prayers and graveyard has been used as a burial ground.

Learned counsel for the plaintiffs has further relied over the extract of Epigraphia Indica, extract of Aine Akbari and extract of William Finch from the book Early Travels in India to show that there is no mention about the construction of Babri Mosque on the alleged site of temple by Babur and Mir Baqi.

Further reliance has been placed on Moghal India to show that there is nothing in the book to establish that the moque was constructed after demolition of any Hindu temple.

On behalf of the plaintiffs following papers were also filed to indicate that upto middle of 19th Century there was no such belief that Babri Masjid was constructed after demolition of any Hindu Temple and there was no mention of any such Ram Janam

Bhumi temple in the books of history.

"313C/1/1-14 (Ext D-3) Extract of "British Paramountsey and Indian Renaissance, Part II", Vol. 10 by R.C.Majumdar."

198C-2/1-89(Ext.63/D-26) Book on "Ayodhya Archaeology After Demolition" by D.Mandal."

Plaintiffs have also placed reliance on serial nos. 40,41 and 42 to show that Babri Masjid was not constructed after demolition of Ram Temple. The explanation has also been furnished about "Ayodhya" by Hains Baker book in which it has been mentioned that Babri Masjid was constructed after demolition of Ram Temple only on account of the fact that author was influenced by the belief of local people prevalent in Ayodhya in 1986 and has relied over gazetteers written after 1865. It has further been urged that Ram Janambhoomi by Dr.Radhey Shyam Shukla and extract of Amir Ali book have no relevance because authors of these books were not at all Historians and these books are also not based on any source of history. As such their description is valueless.

Learned counsel for the plaintiffs has further relied over extract of certain gazetteers. Gazetteers of Walter Hamilton, 1815/1828 does not mention Ram Janam Bhoomi temple or destruction of a temple and erection of mosque by Aurangzeb after demolishing a temple and pillars in the Babri mosque were taken from Hindu building and probably these pillers were taken from the ruins of the palace. Edward Thorntone says that falsehood of

the tradition is that the temple was constructed by Vikramaditya and it was demolished by Babar was proved by the inscription on the wall of the mosque, attributing the work to the conqueror Baber. Carnegi in his gazetteer for the first time evolve a theory of Janam Asthan temple and construction of Babri Masjid that too was based on no source of History and rather was based only on local belief. He himself admitted that it was locally affirmed that Emperor Babur built the mosque by demolishing Janan Asthan temple. In two places in Babri mosque the year it was built 935 H., corresponding with 1528 A.D. is carved in stone with inscription. This assertion goes to show that the Babri Masjid was constructed in the year 1528. It is further urged that Babri Masjid being constructed on the site of a temple after its demolition started from the gazetteer of 1870. The assertions in gazetteers of Carnegy were repeated in the reports of Millet, A.Fuhrer and H.R.Nevill. They are referred as Ext. 5 to 7, Ext.7,8,9,11, Ext.10,12 and 13.

In Ayodhya Ka Itihas writer mentions that on the basis of inscriptions Mir Baqi constructed the mosque. Ayodhya Ka Itihas Evam Puratatva Ext.O.O.S 5-3 is not a fare account but it deals with certain extract with surcharged atmosphere as he is deeply interested and involved in this case to support the claim of Hindus.

RELEVANT FACTS CONTAINED IN GAZETTEERS ARE ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872 AS SUCH THE

www.vadaprativada.com

FACTS RELIED ON FROM THE GAZETTEERS REFERRED EARLIER ARE ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE:

1. In AIR 1951 SC 288 (Sukdeo Singh. v. Maharaja Bahadoor of Gidhaur) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the gazetteer is an official document of some value, as it is compiled by experienced official with great care after obtaining the facts from official records. Relevant paragraph 10 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "10. In the case of Fulbati Kumari (supra), to which reference has been made, there was an extract quoted from the Bengal District Gazetteer, Vol. XVII at p. 168, which runs as follows:
> "About 1774 the lawless state of this tract led the British to place it in charge of Captain James Browne, who settled the estates with the ghatwals with two exceptions. These two exceptions were Dumri and Mahesri which were settled directly with the proprietors, the story being that the ghatwal tenure holders fled at the approach of Captain Browne their reputation as dacoits and brigands being too strong for them to face a Govt. officer without fear of the consequences. In the case of Dumri however, the Ghatwals finding that in their absence a settlement had been made of their tenure, returned and obtained a squad settling it with them under the Raja of Gidhaur. Of the estates settled with ghatwals only two are now held by their descendants, viz., Tilwa and Kewal. The others have passed into the hands of the Maharaja of Gidhaur, Chetru Rai, Akleswar Prasad and others of Rohini." '
> The statement in the District Gazetteer is not necessarily conclusive, but the Gazetteer is an official document of some value, as it is compiled by experienced officials with great care after obtaining the facts from official records. As Dawson-Miller C. J. has pointed out in Fulbati's (supra) case, there are a few inaccuracies in the latter part of the statement quoted above, but so far as the earlier part of it is concerned, it seems to derive considerable support from the documents to which reference has been

2. In AIR 1995 SC 167 (Bala Shankar-Maha Shankar Bhattajee. v. Charity Commissioner, Gujrat ) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held 'gazette' (SIC) 'gazetteer' is admissible under Section 35 read with Section 81 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 for being official record evidencing public affairs and the Court may presume their contents as genuine. The statements contained therein can be taken into account to discover the historical materials contained therein and facts stated therein is evidence under Section 45 and the Court may in conjunction with other evidence and circumstances take into consideration in adjudging the dispute in question. Relevant paragraph 22 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "22. The contention of Sri Yogeshwar Prasad that the Asstt. Charity Commissioner has failed to prove that Kalika Mataji temple is a public trust; contrarily the evidence on records, namely the 'Will' of Bai Diwali, widow of N. Girijshankar, establishes that the temple and its properties were always treated as private properties. It would get fortified and gets corroborated by decrees in Civil Suit No. 439/1985, one of the legatees sought to annul the Will in Exhibits 10, 59 and the decree in that behalf. The Civil Suits Nos. 353/93, Ex. 24 and the Civil Suit No. 439 of 1885, Ex. 26 and the Civil Suits Nos. 904 of 1903 and 910 of 1903, Ex. 52 and Ex. 54, Civil Suit No. 912 of 1903, Ex. 55 would establish that the appellant's family had always treated the temple and the lands attached to temple as private properties. It has also been further contended that the entry into the temple was subject to permission and the devotees were not allowed to have Pooja, but have Darshan only. These circumstances have duly been taken into consideration by the District Judge while the High Court had not considered them in proper perspective. We find no force in the contention. It is seen that the

Gazette of the Bombay Presidency, Vol. III published in 1879 is admissible under S. 35 read with S. 81 of the Evidence Act, 1872. The Gazette is admissible being official record evidencing public affairs and the Court may presume their contents as genuine. The statement contained therein can be taken into account to discover the historical material contained therein and the facts stated therein is evidence under S.45 and the Court may in conjunction with other evidence and circumstances take into consideration in adjudging the dispute in question, though may not be treated as conclusive evidence. The recitals in the Gazette do establish that Kalika Mataji is on the top of the hill. Mahakali temple and Bachra Mataji on the right and left to the Kalika Mataji. During Moughal rule another Syed Sadar Peer was also installed there, but Kalika Mataji was the chief temple. Hollies and Bills are the main worshipers. On full Moon of Chaitra (April) and dussehra ( in the month of October), large number of Hindus of all classes gather there and worship Kalika Mataji, Mahakali, etc. After the downfall of Moughal empire, Marathas took over and His Highness Scindia attached great importance to the temple. One of the devotees in 1700 offered silver doors. The British annexed the territory pursuant to the treaty between Her Majesty's Government of India and His Highness Scindia on the 12th December, 1860. A condition was imposed in the treaty for continued payment of fixed cash grants to all the temples from the Treasury and that British emperors accepted the condition. Regular cash grants of fixed sums were given to all the temples by Scindias and British rulers, as evidenced by Exhibits 27, 28, 29 and 30. The historical statement of noted historian, stated by the High Court, by name M.S. Commissionaria in his Vol. 1 of 1938 Edition corroborates the Gazette in the material particulars, which would establish that the temple was constructed on the top of the hill around 14th century and the people congregate in thousands and worship, as of right, to Kalika Mataji and other deities. R.N. Jogelkar's Alienation manual brought up in 1921 in the Chapter 5 Devasthana also corroborates the historical evidence. It is true that Bai Diwali in her Will, Ex. 22 treated the temple and the properties to be private property and bequeathed to her brother and the litigation ensured in that behalf. At that time, as rightly pointed out by the High Court, the concept of public trust and public temple was not very much in vogue. Therefore, the treatment meted out to

www.vadaprativada.com

these properties at that time is not conclusive. On the other hand the fixed cash grants given by the Rulers Scindias and the successor British emperors, the large endowment of lands given to Kalika Mataji temple by the devotees do indicate that the temple was treated as public temple. The appropriation of the income and the inter se disputes in that behalf are self serving evidence without any probative value. Admittedly, at no point of time, the character of the temple was an issue in any civil proceedings. All the lands gifted to the deity stand in the name of the deities, in particular large extent of agricultural lands belong to Kalika Mataji. The entries in Revenue records corroborated it . The Gazette and the historical evidence of the temple would show that the village is the pilgrimage centre. Situation of the temples on the top of the hill away from the village and worshipped by the people of Hindus at large congregated in the thousands without any let or hindrance and as of right, devotees are giving their offerings in large sums in discharge of their vows, do establish that it is a public temple. It is true that there is no proof of dedication to the public. It is seen that it was lost in antiquity and no documentary evidence in that behalf is available. Therefore, from the treatment meted out to the temple and aforesaid evidence in our considered view an irresistible inference would be drawn that the temple was dedicated to the Hindu public or a section thereof and the public treat the temple as public temple and worship thereat as of right. It is true that there is evidence on record to show that there was a board with inscription thereon that "no entry without permission" and that only Darshan was being had and inside pooja was not permitted. But that is only internal regulation arranged for the orderly Darshan and that is not a circumstance to go against the conclusion that it is a public temple. Enjoyment of the properties and non-interference by the public in the management are not sufficient to conclude that the temple is a private temple. It is found by the District Court and the High Court that the appellants are heredity priests and when the public found that they are in the management of the properties they obviously felt it not expedient to interfere with the management of the temples. It is seen that the High Court considered the evidence placed on record and has drawn the necessary conclusions and inferences from the proved facts that Kalika Mataji temple is a public temple. It is a finding of fact . As regard the > oral evidence the High Court rightly appreciated the evidence and it being a question of fact, we find no error in the assessment of the evidence by the High Court."

3. Be it mentioned herein that the 'gazette' is an official publication which contains government notifications, list of public appointments and honours legal notices etc. which are presumed to be genuine. While 'gazetteer' is a publication of official guarantee which contains geographical, historical, political, custom etc. of a particular District, State or Nation. The dictionary meaning of 'gazette' and 'gazetteer' as given in Mitra's Legal and Commercial Dictionary, 6th Edition, 2006 published by Eastern Law House on page 383 as follows:

> "Gazette.—It is a publication of an official guarantee which contains government notifications, lists of public appointments and honours, legal notices, etc. which are presumed to be genuine.
> The official publication of news of all kinds, the government desires to make known to the public. [General Clauses Act, s.3(39)]
>
> "Gazetteer.—A dictionary which contains a historical account, or the general description of any place, district or province; a dictionary of geographical names."

4. In AIR 1986 SC 1272 (Umaji Keshao Mishram. v. radhika Bai) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that 'gazetteer of Bombay Province' in 28 volumes published in 1982-84 under government orders; the 'gazetteer of Bombay city and island' in 3 volumes compiled under government orders and published in 1909; have been found source of much useful information. Relevant extract from paragraph 35 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "35. It is, therefore, necessary to see the jurisdiction and powers which the High Court for the Province of Bombay possessed immediately prior to the commencement of the Constitution, namely, immediately before January 26, 1950, and to ascertain whether the powers specified in Articles 225, 226 and 227 of the Constitution formed part of its existing jurisdiction or were conferred for the first time upon that High Court when it became the High Court for the pre-Reorganization State of Bombay on the Constitution coming into force. This involves tracing in brief the origin and development of judicial institutions and administration of justice in the former Province of Bombay. Apart from the various Charters and Letters Patent granted by the British Crown and the Statutes passed by the British Parliament, much useful information in this regard can be gathered from other sources, particularly "The Imperial Gazetteer of India" published under the authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council; "Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency" in twenty-eight volumes published in 1882-84 under Government orders; "The Gazetteer of Bombay City and Island" in three volumes compiled under Government orders and published in 1909; and books such as "The Administration of Justice in British India" by William H. Morley published in 1858, Herbert Cowell's Tagore Law Lectures entitled "History and Constitution of the Courts and Legislative Authorities in India" published in 1872, "Bombay in the Making Being Mostly a History of the Origin and Growth of Judicial Institutions in the Western Presidency, 1661-1726" by Phiroze B.M. Malabari published in 1910, "First Century of British Justice in India" by Sir Charles Fawcett (a former Judge of the Bombay High Court) published in 1934 under the patronage of the Secretary of State for India in Council, M. 5. In AIR 1966 SC 1119 (Shastri Yajnapurushdaji. v. Muldas Bhundardas Vaishya) in respect of ceremony of initiation of the sect of Satsangis the Hon'ble High Court has quoted an extract from Gazetteer of the Bombay Province to judge their custom. Relevant paragraph 49 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "49. The Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency has summarised the teachings embodied in the Shikshapatri in this way:-
> The book of precepts strictly prohibits the destruction of animal life; promiscuous intercourse with the other sex; use of animal food and intoxicant liquors and drugs on any occasion, suicide, theft and robbery; false accusation against a fellow-man; blasphemy; partaking of food with low caste people; caste pollution; company of atheists and heretics, and other practices which might counteract the effect of the founder's teachings (14)."
> (14) Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency, Vol. IX, Part I, Gujrat Population, 1901, p. 537"
> It is interesting to notice how a person is initiated into the sect of Satsangis. The ceremony of initiation is thus described in the Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency :-
> "The ceremony of initiation begins with the novice offering a palmful of water which he throws on the ground at the feet of the Acharaya saying: I give over to Swami Sahajanand my mind, body, wealth, and sins of (all) births, 'Man', tan, dhan, and janmana pap. He is then given the sacred formula 'Sri Krishna twam gatirmama'. Shri Krishna thou art my refuge. The

> notice then pays at least half a rupee to the Acharya. Sometimes the Acharya delegates his authority to admit followers as candidates for regular discipleship, giving them the Panch Vartaman, formula forbidding lying, theft. Adultery, intoxication and animal food. But a perfect disciple can be made only after receiving the final formula from one of the two Acharyas. The distinguishing mark, which the disciple is then allowed to make on his forehead, is a vertical streak of Gopichandan clay or sandal with a round redpowder mark in the middle and a necklet of sweet basil beads (15)."

6. In AIR 1968 SC 1413 (Gopal Krishnaji Ketkar. v. Mohamed Haji Latif) the Hon'ble Apex Court has quoted an extract from Gazetteer of Bombay Province in respect of tomb of a Muslim saint and Hindu Prince for its consideration of facts. Relevant paragraph 4 of the said judgment reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "4. It is necessary at this stage to set out the origin and history of the Dargah. The Dargah has been in existence for over about 700 years. Its origin is lost in antiquity but the Gazetteer of the Bombay Presidency tells us that the tomb is that of a Muslim saint who came to India as an Arab missionary in the thirteenth century. According to tradition, there are two tombs in the Dargah in one of which is the dead body of a Hindu princess and in the other tomb the dead body of the Muslim saint. The fame of the saint was at its height when the English made their appearance at Kalyan in 1780. As they only stayed for two years, their departure in the year 1782 was ascribed to the power of the dead saint. The Peshwas were then in power in that region and after the departure of the English they sent a thanks offering under the charge of one Kashinath Pant Ketkar, a Kalyan Brahmin. It is said that the offering sent by the Peshwas was a pall of cloth of gold trimmed with pearl, and supported on silver pasta. The tomb was in disrepair and Kashinath started to repair it and according to tradition was miraculously assisted by the dead saint who, without > human aid, quarried and dressed the large blocks of stone which now cover the tomb. It appears that Kashinath was not content to repair the tomb. He also wanted to manage it and this led to a dispute with Kalyan Muslims who resented Brahmin management of a Muslim shrine. Matters came to a head in 1817 and the dispute came before the Collector who declared that the dead saint should settle the affair and that the only way of ascertaining the saint's wishes was by casting lots. This was done and three times the lot fell on the representative of Kashinath and so the matter ended and Kashinath's representative was proclaimed guardian of the tomb."

7. Be it mentioned herein that as it appears from the above referred three judgments being AIR 1986 SC 1272; AIR 1966 SC 1119 and AIR 1968 SC 1413; the Hon'ble Court in place and stead of 'Gazetteer of Bombay Province' has mentioned 'Gazette of Bombay Province'.

8. In AIR 1967 SC 256 (Mahant Shrinivas Ramanuj Das. v. Surjanarayn Das) in paragraph 25 of the said judgment, the Hon'ble Supreme Court quoting with approval the facts from 'Puri Gazetteer' has held that the gazetteers can be consulted in matters of public history and statement in such gazetteer can be relied on as providing historical material, practice followed by Math and its head. Relevant paragraph Nos.25 and 26 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "25. The history of the Emar Math, according to the passage in the Puri Gazetteer, fits in with our finding. The High Court has relied on what has been stated in the Puri Gazetteer of O'Malley of 1908, at pp. 112-118. The relevant portion of the passage relied on is the following:
> "No account of Jagannath worship would be complete without some account of the Maths in Puri. Maths are monastic houses originally founded with the object of feeding travellers, beggars and ascetics of giving religious instruction to chelas or disciples, and generally of encouraging a religious life. The heads of these religious houses who are called Mahants or Mathadharis are elected from among the chelas and are assisted in the management of their properties by Adhikaris who may be described as their business managers. They are generally celibates but in certain Maths married men may hold the office.. Mahants are the gurus or spiritual guides of many people who present the Maths with presents of money and endowments in land. Thus the Sriramdas or Dakshinaparwa Math received rich endowments from the Mahrattas its abbot having been the guru of the Niahratta Governor While the Mahant of Emar Math in the eighteenth century who' had the reputation of being a very holy ascetic, similarly got large offerings frolic his followers. Both Saiva and Vaishava Maths exist in Puri. The lands of the latter are known as Amruta Manohi (literally nectar food), because they were given with the intention that the proceeds thereof should be spent in offering bhoga before Jagannath and that the Mahaprasad thus obtained should be distributed among pilgrims, beggars and ascetics; they are distinct from the Amruta Manohi lands of the Temple itself which are under the superintendence of the Raja. In 1848 Babu Brij Kishore Ghose roughly estimated the annual income of 28 Maths from land alone at Rs. 1,45,400 and this income must have increased largely during the last sixty years.

There are over 70 Maths in Puri Town. The Chief Saiva Maths are located in the sandy tract near Swargadwar, viz., Sankaracharya Math with a fine Library of old manuscripts and Sabkarananda Math which has a branch at Bhubaneshwar. Most of the Maths are naturally Vaishnava. The richest of the latter are Emar, Sriramdasa and Raghavadasa the inmates of which are Ramats or followers of Ramananda."

26. It is urged for the appellant that what is stated in the Gazetteer cannot be treated as evidence. These statements in the Gazetteer are not relied on as evidence of title but as providing historical material and the practice followed by the Math and its head. The Gazetteer can be consulted on matters of public history."

9. In AIR 1975 SC 706 (State of Rajasthan. v. Sajjanlal Panjawat) the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India has quoted with approval an extract from the Imperial Gazetteer of India in respect of famous giant temple. Relevant paragraph 12 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "12. Apart from a copy of the fireman of Emperor Akbar produced by the respondents to show that Shri Rikhabdevji temple is a Swetamber Jain temple, the authenticity of which has been disputed by the State, there are other documents from which it appears indisputable even as was represented by the State and its predecessors that Shri Rikhabdevji temple is a Jain temple. Annexure-26 -The Imperial Gazetteer of India, Vol. XXI (New Edition 1908 pp. 168-169) describes it as "The famous Jain temple sacred to Adinath or Rakhabnath". It further states that it is annually visited by thousands of pilgrims from all parts of Rajputana and Gujarat, and that it is difficult to determine the age of this building, but three inscriptions mention that it was repaired in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries. There can be no doubt that it is an ancient temple, though it is not possible to say when and by whom the idols were consecrated. We find as late as in 1958 that Annexure 30 - a Calendar printed and published by the Government of Rajasthan - has a photo of Shri Rikhabdevji temple under which there is a caption "UDAIPUR KE PAS RIKHABDEVJI KA PRASIDH JAIN MANDIR" i. e. famous Jain temple of Rikhabdevji near Udaipur. Annexure 17 is a notification issued by the Mewar Government on Chait Sukla 7 Monday 1982 corresponding to April 19, 1926 A.D. with the heading "Unique Angi Utsav in Shri Dhulevnagar". In it Shri Keshariyanathji Maharaj is described as a holy Jain Tirath which was managed previously by Udaipur Nagar Seth and Seth Jorawarmalji. We are not for the present concerned with the statement contained there in about the misappropriation of the money of the deity in Samvat Year 1934 But this document also shows that the State of Mewar describes it as a holy Jain Tirath. Annexures 2, 3, 4, 6, 7A, 7B and 7C show that some embezzlement of the temple funds was suspected in Samvat Year 1933 (about year 1875-76 AD.) as a result of which one Molvi Abdul Rehman Khan was deputed by the State of Udaipur to make enquiry and check the accounts. It appears that while this enquiry was - proceeding, one Bhandari Jawanji Khem Raj complained against that Molvi for forcibly breaking open the lock of the Bhandar and taking away the account books and other papers. In that connection he described the temple of Shri Rikhabdevji Maharaj as belonging to the Jain Sangh. Annexure 9 dated January 27. 1878, is a notification of the Government of Udaipur State for the information of the pilgrims and the devotees of Shri Rikhabdevji stating that Bhandaries were removed due to their mismanagement of the temple affairs and that a Committee consisting of five respectable Oswal Mahajans devotees of Shri Rikhabdevji, was appointed. Annexure 10 dated November 22, 1878, is a notice issued by the members of the Committee to dispel doubts about the action taken by the Ruler of the State in appointing a Committee for the management of the temple. It also mentions that- the management has been assigned to a Committee of five or seven big Sahukars who follow Jain religion and lead a religious life. Annexure 24 dated May 29, 1886, is a copy of the report made by Mehta Govind Singh Hakim Magra (an officer having both judicial and magisterial powers) to Mahkama Khas, Udaipur, on an application submitted by some Digamber Jains objecting to the raising of Dhawaja i.e. flag over the 'Jainalaya' by the Swetambar Jains. In that report it was stated that the temple was a Swetamber Jain temple. Annexure 21 dated July 19, 1907, shows that on a complaint that some people had allowed low caste people to perform Puja of Shri Rikhabdevji by taking some illegal gratification, the matter was referred by the officer of the Devasthan Bhandar to Jain Muni Paniyas Nem Kushalji as to what steps be taken for purification of the temple and the reply given by the said Muni. Annexure 28 dated Kartik Sudi 10 Samvat 1979 (1922 A D.) is a copy of the report of the Devasthan Department to Mahkama Khas, Udaipur State, stating that 'Naivedya' should not be offered to the deity Shri Rikhabdevji as neither the Committee no; the Jain Sangh nor the Acharyas of the Jain Sangh are in favour of it, and that the new practice of offering 'Naivedya' for the first time is uncalled for. On this report, the Mahkama Khas ordered that the Devasthan be informed that there is no necessity of offering 'Naivedya'. Annexure 29

> dated Samvat 1889 (Sak 1759) (1833 A.D.) is a copy of inscriptions engraved on the main gate in which there is a reference to the performance of the ceremony of Dhwaja-Danda on the temple of Shri Rikhabdevji Maharaj. All these documents, there being no document to the contrary filed by the State of Rajasthan, clearly show that Shri Rikhabdevji temple is a Jain temple."

10. In AIR 1960 SC 148 (Shubnath Deogam. v. Ram Narain Prasad) the Hon'ble Apex Court has quoted with approval an extract from the District Gazetteer in respect of religious practices and sentiments of the Adibasis. Relevant paragraph 14 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "14. It also appears from the district Gazetteer quoted in the judgment of the Tribunal that according to the belief of the 'Hos':
> "All the spirits if not by nature malignant - and they generally are malignant - require continual propitiation by means of sacrifices, the belief being that unless such offerings are made to them, they are a power for evil. Illness, for instance, is usually regarded as due to the influence of some Bonga; and the more serious and continued the disease, the greater the value of the animal that must be sacrificed. First, they sacrifice a fowl, and then if the offering does no good a goat. If a goat fails to procure relief, they increase the size of the sacrificial animal, immolating one after the other, a sheep, a calf, a cow and a buffalo to appease the ill will of the spirit.....".
> The facts stated in the District Gazetteer have been accepted by the Courts below as setting out correctly the religious practices and sentiments of the Adibasis."

11. In AIR 1959 SC 1073 (State of Bihar. v. Bhabapritananda Ojha) the Hon'ble Apex Court has extracted facts from the Bihar District Gazetteer placing the history of Shri Baidyanath temple. Relevant paragraphs 2 and 3 of the said judgment read as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"2. For the purposes of this appeal it will be necessary to refer to some earlier litigation about this temple. The history of this temple, it is not disputed, goes back to remote antiquity. According to Hindu tradition referred to in the Siva Purana and Padma Purana, extracts from which, with translations, are given by Dr. Rajendra Lal Mitra in his paper on the Temples of Deoghar (see Journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal, Part 1, 1883, quoted in the Bihar District Gazetteer relating to Santal Parganas, 1938 edition pp. 373-376), the origin of the temple is traced to the Treta Yuga, which was the second age of the world by Hindu mythology. Side by side with Hindu tradition, there is a Santal tradition of the origin of the temple given by Sir William Hunter (see the Annals of Rural Bengal, p. 191; Statistical Account of Bengal Vol. XIV, p. 323). But these materials afford no evidence as to when and by whom the idol was established or the temple was built.

3. The temple sheltering the "lingam" and dedicated to Mahadeva stands in a stone-paved quadrangular courtyard. The courtyard contains eleven other temples, smaller in size and of less importance than that of Baidyanath. Pilgrims visit the temples in large numbers and make offerings of flowers and money in silver or gold; rich people offer horses, cattle, palaquins, gold ornaments and other valuables and sometimes, rent-free land in support of the daily worship. There is a high or chief priest (Sardar Panda) who it appears used to day a fixed rent to the Rajas of Birbhum during the Muhammadan regime, and the administration of the temple was then left entirely in the hands of the high priest. It may be here stated that about 300 families of "pandas", who belong to a branch of Maithil Brahmins, were attached to the temple and earned their livelihood by assisting pilgrims in performing the various ceremonies connected with the worship of the God. When the British rule began, it was decided to take over the management of the temple, and with this object an establishment of priests, collectors and watchmen was organised in 1787 at Government expense. The revenue soon fell off, as the chief priest beset the avenues to the temples with emissaries, who induced the pilgrims to make their offerings before approaching the shrine. (See the District Gazetteer, ibid, p. 383). In 1791 Government relinquished its claim to a share of the offerings and entrusted the management of the temple to the head priest on his

> executing an agreement to keep the temples in repair and to perform all the usual ceremonies. This agreement was entered into by Ram Dutt the (ancestor of the present respondent), then high priest of the temple, and Mr. Keating who was then Collector of the district. According to Mr. Keating the income of the temple in 1791 consisted of the offerings of the proceeds of 32 villages and 108 bighas of land which he estimated at Rs. 2,000 a year; some years later the total income was estimated at Rs. 25,000 a year. Under the system introduced by the agreement of 1791, the mismanagement of the temple was a source of constant complaint; the temple and "ghats" were frequently out of repair and the high priest was charged with alienating villages from the temple and treating his situation as a means of enriching himself and his family. On the death of the high priest in 1820 a dispute over the succession arose between an uncle and a nephew. The nephew Nityanand was eventually appointed, but neglected to carry out the terms of his appointment. Finally, Nityanand was charged with malversation of the funds and the uncle Sarbanand was appointed in his stead in 1823. There was a faction which was opposed to Sarbanand's retention in office and asked for Government interference in the internal management of the temple. In 1835 Government declined all interference in the matter and the parties were left to have recourse to the established Courts of law. Sarbanand died in 1837 and Iswaranund Ojha, son of Sarbanand Ojha, was subsequently elected Sardar Panda. Iswaranund was succeeded by his grand-son, Sailajanund Ojha."

9. In AIR 1954 SC 575 (Choote Khan. v. Mal Khan) the Hon'ble Apex Court has relied and quoted facts from Gazetteer of Gurgaon District. Relevant paragraphs 4 and 6 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "4. The parties are Meos and the land in dispute is situate in village Manota in Tehsil Ferozepore Jhirka in Gurgaon District. According to the Gazetteer of Gurgaon district (1910) the Meos owned nearly the whole of the Ferozepore Tehsil and various other villages in Gurgaon. They are divided into several sub-tribes, and these sub-tribes possess a strong feeling of unity and the power of corporate action. It was stated that

" in the Mutiny the members of each sub-division generally acted together and district officers are advised to keep themselves informed of the names and characters of the men, who from time to time possess considerable influence over their fellow-tribesmen." (P. 60).

6. It is common ground that the property was originally granted in 1822 A.D. to Dalmir by Nawab Ahmad Bakhsh Khan Rais of Ferozepore Jhirka. The grant is not in writing and there is no contemporaneous record which could throw any light on its terms. Dalmir claimed to be the sole grantee with full proprietary rights. A number of documents are attached to the Settlement record of 1963. They are important as showing how the property was dealt with by the Settlement authorities from time to time and the State of Revenue records. The earliest document on record appears to be an agreement dated September 28, 1861, which is incorporated in paragraph 18 of the Wazib -ul- arz of village Manota. It says that the tenure of the village is zamindary. Dalmir is entitled to profit and liable for loss in respect of the entire village. The other biswadars are owners of the produce of the land cultivated by them but they pay no revenue. This it is stated, is signed in token (P. 35: D. 11). This document is signed in token of verification by Dalmir Lamberdar, Dilmore, Alif Khan Biswadar, and Phusa Biswadar, who are described as proprietors. Phusa, we are told, is the alias of Chhinga.
There is a report of Mr. John Lawrence (later Lord Lawrence) Settlement Officer referred to in the Gazetteer which says that the arrangement then in vogue was that a few owners shared the profit and loss of the land Revenue and the others were exempted from responsibility. Manota was one of the few villages which continued to follow the system (P. 179)"

10. In AIR 1969 All 43 (G.S. Chooramoni. v. State of Uttar Pradesh) the Hon'ble Uttar Pradesh High Court has relied on a district gazetteer in respect of proprietary rights of the government lessees. Relevant paragraph 12 of the said

judgment reads as follows:

> "12. In 1965 the State Government appears to have departed from the initial proclaimed purpose that the Thekedari Abolition Act was to apply to the nine districts mentioned by the Hon'ble Revenue Minister. By a notification No. 1683/ IC-340C-65, the State Government extended the provisions of the Act to the areas comprising the district of Naini Tal, with effect from June, 26, 1965. The same day by another notification no. 1688 (ii) IC-340C-65, the State Government ordered that under section 3 of the Thekedari Abolition Act, all leases in respect of Government Estate in 53 Mustajiri villages of the Tarai and Bhabar Government Estate, district Naini Tal, shall with effect from 1-7-1965 be determined. Mustajiri means zamindari. In these villages the Government lessees had proprietary rights (vide District Gazetteer Vol. 34, p. 128). Then, all leases in the Government Estates of 35 other villages in the Tarai and Bhabar area were determined by the impugned notification dated 30th June, 1966. These are non-mustajiri or kham villages, that is, directly managed; the rent being in cash, at Bighawar rate. For the petitioners it was contended that though the leases were terminated under the Thekedari Abolition Act, but the Zamindari Abolition Act has not been extended to the Government Estates in these 35 villages, I asked the learned counsel appearing for the State to verify this and make a statement. The hearing was adjourned to enable him to obtain instructions. Learned counsel then confirmed the fact stated for the petitioners."

11. In AIR 1983 MP 75 (Ramdas. v. Vaishnudas) the Hon'ble Madhya Pradesh High Court has relied on and quoted relevant facts from Madhya Pradesh District Gazetteer of Bilaspur District in respect of historicity and practices followed by Sheorinarayana Math. Relevant paragraph 5 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "5. Before proceeding further, it is necessary to mention briefly the history of the Sheorinarayana Math. The Math is situated in the village

www.vadapativada.com

Sheorinarayan, 62.04 kilometers from Bilaspur on the left bank of Mahanadi. It is an ancient Math and us a well-known place of pilgrimage. The entire Chhatisgarh area which includes the District of Bilaspur was ruled by the Kalchuri clan of Rajputs from the 9th century A.D. to the 18th century A.D. The capital of these rulers was at Ratanpur which is at short distance from Bilaspur. The Kalchuries of Ratanpur were all descendants of the Kalchuries of Chedi or Dehala with their capital at Tripuri near Jabalpur. Kalchuries belong to Haihaya race claiming descent from Kartavityarjuna of the Epic and the Puranic fame and are also referred to as Haihayas : (Madhya Pradesh District Gazetteer of Bilaspur District, pp. 56 to 66). The popular belief which is also adverted to in the plaint is that the temple of Narayana which is the principal temple of the Math was constructed during the reign of Jajalladeva II who ruled from 1165 A.D. to 1168 A.D. There are two stone inscriptions which are important for finding out as to when the temple of Narayana in the Math was built. The first inscription which is of the Kalchuri year 898 is incised on the pedestal of the statue of a male person in a small shrine in the courtyard of the temple of Narayana. The corresponding English date of this inscription is 9th Sept. 1146 A.D. The object of the inscription is to record that the statue is of a warrier named Sangramasimha the son of Balesimha and Ananadevi. The praise which is here lavished in the inscription is wholly conventional and has no historical importance: (See Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum (Inscriptions of the Kalachuri-Chedi Era) Vol. IV, Pt. II, pp. 582 to 584). The only thing of importance in this inscription is the date and the fact that it starts with an invocation to 'Shiv'. The second inscription is of the Kalchuri or Chedi year 919. The stone which bears this inscription is built in the temple of Chandrachudeavars which stands in close vicinity to that of Narayana temple. The date of the inscription is not available but the year corresponds to 1167-68 A. D. The inscription belongs to the reign of Jajalladeva II of the Kalchuri Dynasty of Ratanpur. The immediate object of the inscription is to record the donation of the village Chincheli by Amanadeva, a descendant of a collateral branch of the Kalchuri Dynasty for the purpose of defraying the expenses of worship of God Chandrachude and the erection of a temple of Durga in front of the shrine. The inscription is, however, historically important as it furnishes an account of the collateral Dynasty of Ratanpur. This inscription also begins with an invocation to Shiv: (Inscriptions of the Kalachuri Chedi Era Pt. II, pp. 519 to 527). It is generally believed that the temple of Narayana was constructed during the same period to which the above inscriptions belong. There is some controversy as to whether the idol in this temple is of Vishnu or Shiva. It is stated in the Archaeological Survey of India Report, Vol. VII, p. 196 that the deity in the temple is Shaivic and not Vaishanavic. The same thing is repeated in the Madhya Pradesh District Gazetteer of Bilaspur District at p. 524. The Survey Report which states that the idol is of Shiv was made by J.D. Beglar, who was Assistant to Major-General A. Cunningham, Director General, Archaeological Survey of India. The inference drawn by Beglar on this point does not appear to be correct. The idol is a figure in a sitting posture and not Shivalingum. The very fact that the idol has been worshipped as Narayana or Vishnu for ages proves that it is of Vishnu and not of Shiv. Probably, the Beglar's report was influenced by the fact that the stone inscriptions which we have referred to above begin with an invocation to Shiva and the Kalchuri Rulers in whose reign the Shrine was founded were also of Saivic faith. In our opinion, however, the correct position is stated by Dr. Mirashi in his introduction to Vol. IV of Corpus Inscriptionum Indicarum (Inscriptions of the Kalachuri-Chedi Era Pt. I, pp. xxiii, cxv, cli and clxiii) that though Saivism was the predominant cult in Dakshina Kosala i.e. Chattisgarh, but Vaishnavism also was prevalent and that the old temple at Sheorinarayan is of Vishnu and was erected by a collateral branch of the royal family of Ratanpur. This is also the view of a modern author as Kalchuri Rulers and their descendants: (See Kalchuri Naresh Aur Unke Vanshaj (1982) p. 33 by Dr. Ram Kumar Singh). The parties have also accepted this position before us."

12. In AIR 1996 Himachal Pradesh 102 (Kashmiru. v. Sh. Doud) the Hon'ble Himachal Pradesh High Court has quoted and relied on the gazetteer of dthe Chamba State in respect of customary form of marriage "Jhanjrara marriage". Relevant paragraph 11 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> “11. It has come in the evidence examined by the parties before the trial Court that plaintiff married Smt. Jugni by way of "Jhanjrara' marriage which is customary form of marriage. Otherwise also, this customary type of Jhanjrara marriage has been recognised to be a customary marriage prevalent in Chamba District as is evident from the book titled Gazetteer of the Chamba State, Part A-1904, page 126, wherein form of marriages have been described as under :
> "Among all castes three kinds of marriages are in vogue : (i) regular (byah); (ii) jhanjrara and (iii) jhind phuk or man-marzi. Regular marriage involves betrothal (mangni) and the orthodox phera and the chhe-chap are essential. In a Jhanjrara the bride puts on ornaments, especially the nose-ring (nath), a red string to bind her hair (dori), and a bodice (choli). In both forms of customary marriage the worship of the family god or of a lamp is essential. The Jhanjrara rite is customary in the remarriage of a widow or of a woman divorced by her former husband, it is called choli-dori. especially in the Sadar and Brahmaur Wizarats and sargudhi in Churah. 13. Section 35 of the Evidence Act, 1872 says, inter alia, that an entry in any public or other official book stating a fact in issue or relevant fact and made by a public servant in discharge of his official duty is itself a relevant fact. As such, the facts that the Hindus were continuously worshipping in the alleged Babri mosque which was erected over the Ramjanamsthan temple is itself a relevant evidence as recorded in the gazetteers relied by this defendant. The said Section 35 of the Evidence Act, 1872 reads as follows.

> “35. Relevancy of entry in public record, made in performance of duty.—An entry in any public or other official book, register or record [or an electronic record] [1], stating a fact in issue or relevant fact, and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty, or by any other person in performance of

a duty specially enjoined by the law of the country in which such book, register or record [or an electronic record] [2] is kept, is itself a relevant fact."

14. That Section 45 of the Evidence Act, 1872 makes opinions of the experts, inter alia, in assistance or law are in question as of entity of hand writings or finger impression are relevant facts and admissible evidence.

" 45. Opinions of experts.—When the Court has to form an opinion upon a point of foreign law, or of science, or art, or as to identity of handwriting [1][or finger impressions], the opinions upon that point of persons specially skilled in such foreign law, science or art, [2][or in questions as to identity of handwriting] [3][or finger impressions] are relevant facts.
Such persons are called experts.

15. Section 57 of the Evidence Act, 1872, inter alia, says that the Court shall take judicial notice of all laws, public acts, public festivals, fasts and holidays notified in the official gazette as also on all matters of public history, literature, science or arts, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference if the Court is called upon by any person to take judicial notice of any fact. As this defendant has already prayed for taking judicial notices of the books containing present laws of the Hindus and Muslims, others books, historical books, gazetteers etc. and this Hon'ble High Court has allowed the said prayer, the facts stated in those books are admissible as evidence under the relevant provisions of the aforesaid Section. Section 57 of the Evidence Act, 1872 reads as follows:

> " 57. Facts of which Court must take judicial notice.—The Court shall take judicial notice of the following facts:
> [1][(1) All laws in force in the territory of India;]
> (2) All public Acts passed or hereafter to be passed by Parliament [2][of the United Kingdom], and all local and personal Acts directed by Parliament [3][of the United Kingdom] to be judicially noticed;

(13) The rule of the road [18][on land or at sea].

In all these cases, and also on all matters of public history, literature, science or art, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference.If the Court is called upon by any person to take judicial notice of any fact, it may refuse to do so unless and until such person produces any such book or document as it may consider necessary to enable it to do so."`

16. Section 81 of the Evidence Act, 1872, inter alia, says that the Court shall presume the genuineness of any official gazette, or the government gazette and of every document purporting to be a document directed by any law. Said Section 81 of the Evidence Act, 1872 reads as follows:

> "81. 17. In AIR 1931 PC 212 (Devasthanam Madura. v. Ali Khan Sahib) on its page 215, the Privy Council extracted the facts from Madura Gazetteer in respect of Tirupparankundram temple and also held that though there is a general presumption that waste land are the property of the crown, but it is not applicable where alleged waste is, at all found, physically within a temple. Relevant extracts from pages 214 to 216 of the said judgment read as follows:

> Their main criticism of the Subordinate Judge is that "he refused to draw the proper presumption from the admitted facts of the case," and that this vitiates his consideration of all the evidence. The presumption which they draw is that the unoccupied portions of the hill belong to Government, and they appear to base this upon historical grounds.
> It is necessary therefore to trace shortly the fortunes of the temple in the 17th and 18th centuries, for which the authorities relied on are principally the "Madura Gazetteer," and Nelson's "Manual of the Madura Country," a compilation of great interest which has frequently been cited before this Board.
> There appears to be no doubt that under the Nayakkan Kings of Madura the seven temples in and in the immediate neighbourhood of the capital were endowed with large revenues derived from a number of villages. The temples were known as the Hafta Devasthanam, and included the Tirupparankundram Temple. It seems probable that this endowment was due mainly to the generosity of Tirumala, a famous member of that dynasty who reigned from 1623 to 1659. During the century and a half that followed the history of Madura is a confused record of internecine warfare, in which the incursions of Mahomedan, Mysorean and Mahratta invaders played the largest part, and these were succeeded by the gradual, but by no means peaceful, penetration of the East India Company. During those troublous times the Hafta Devasthanam lands seem to have disappeared piecemeal. What remained of them when Chanda Sahib, nominally representing the Nawab of Arcot, established himself in Madura in 1738 were then confiscated. His domination was interrupted by another invasion of the Mahrattas, who probably restored a portion of the old endowments. They again were ousted by the Nizam in 1744, and the temples fared no better than before. Then followed the intervention of the East India Company. Madura was eventually subdued by their troops under Mahomed Yusuf Khan, who in due course established himself as ruler. In 1763 he was beseiged in Madura by the Company's army, and after a memorable defence was betrayed and executed.

Thenceforward Madura seems to have come gradually under the Company's control, and after the fall of Seringapatam the civil and military administration of the district was formally made over, as part of the Garnatic, to the British under Lord Clive's treaty with Azim-ul-Dowlah of 31st July 1801 (Aitchison's Treaties, Edn. 4, X. 57).

Mahomed Yusuf Khan (above referred to), who was apparently a Hindu by birth, re-established the endowment of the temples by a money grant, possibly derived from the revenues of the confiscated villages but the villages themselves were not restored.

This was the position when Mr. Hurdis, who was already in charge of the adjoining district of Dindigul, became the first British Collector of Madura, and carried out an elaborate survey and settlement of the country. He was in considerable doubt as to the course that should be adopted with regard to the Hafta Devasthanam lands. The Board of Directors ordered their restoration to the temples, but for some unexplained reason this order was never carried out, a tasdik or annual allowance in money being paid in lieu thereof to each of the temples. The Tirupparankundram tasdik, according to Nelson's account, was a sum of Rs. 2,651-8-3.

Their Lordships will now return to the matter with which the present appeal is immediately concerned. The question is whether any presumption should be drawn from the confiscation of the endowed villages as to the proprietary rights in the waste land situate within the 'ghiri veedhi' and forming part of the

'malaiprakaram.' It is admitted that the village of Tirupparankundram, in which the temple is situated, was part of this endowment.

The Subordinate Judge thought that there was nothing in the long story, which their Lordships have attempted to summarize in the preceding pages, to suggest that the temple had over been ousted from its possession of the hill. The High Court, on the other hand, took the view that the hill being part of the village, it must be presumed to have been confiscated with the village, and to have become in 1801 Government property.

The conclusion to which their Lordships have come is that the Subordinate Judge was right. There is no trace in the historical works to which they have been referred of any interference by the Mahomedan invaders with the sacred hill or the immediate surroundings of the temple. They and the other predatory forces which established themselves from time to time in Madura, no doubt seized the revenue-producing lands which formed the joint endowment of all the temples, and these must have included the cultivated and assessed lands within the 'ghiri veedhi,' but there seems to be no suggestion that the Tirupparankundram

Temple or any of its adjuncts passed at any time into secular hands. It was probably during some interval of Mahomedan domination that the mosque and some Mahomedan houses were built (though the Mahomedans themselves ascribe the mosque to a much earlier period), but this was an infliction which the Hindu occupants of the hill might well have been forced to put up with ; it is, their Lordships think, no evidence of their expropriation from the remainder.

But the more relevant period to consider is that following the cession of sovereignty in 1801. The only rights which the temple can assert against the respondent are rights which the East India Company granted to them or allowed them to retain : see Secy. of State v. Bai Rajbai (1), and their Lordships think the evidence shows that the temple was left after 1801 in undisturbed possession of all that it now claims. Indeed, the policy of the Directors seems to have been rather to restore to the temples what they had been deprived of in the long years of anarchy which had preceded British rule, than to mulct them of any remnant that was left. It is, in their Lordships' view, hardly, conceivable that the East India Company would have wished, for no gain to themselves, to appropriate what was plainly the 'prakaram' of an ancient temple studded with shrines, 'inandapams' and other accessories to the worship of its devotees. Nor is there in the reports of Mr. Hurdis, or of any of his successors, which are summarized in the Nelson Manual, any hint of such a policy or of any claim by Government to rights over the hill.

AIR 1915 PC 59=30 IC 303=42 IA 229=39 Bom. 625(PC).
Their Lordships do not doubt that there is a general presumption that waste lands are the property of the Crown, but they think that it is not applicable to the facts of the present case where the alleged waste is, at all events physically, within a temple enclosure. They see no reason to disagree with the Subordinate Judge's discussion of the authorities on this question. Nor do they think that any assistance can be derived, under the circumstances of this case, from the provisions of the Madras Land Encroachment Act 3 of 1905, on which the respondent has relied.

Besides this there are other inscriptions engraved on stones. They are related to 12th century A.D. The clinching evidence of epigraphical record prepared by Rakesh Tewari OPW-14 contains a list of 265 artifacts. After seeing the list it transpires that remains of old Hindu temple were used in construction of mosque. Sri Rakesh Tewari was cross examined. There is not even an iota of evidence to suggest that he had not collected the remains of the disputed structure and prepared inventory containing 265 artifacts. Consequently on the basis of epigraphical evidence it transpires that ornamental pictures, images, parts of the old temple and other religious articles used in the temple were found from the debris of the demolished structure. In view of the inscription referred to above it is established that there was temple prior to the construction of Babri Mosque. The beautiful verses in Sanskrit leave no room for doubt that the script was prepared in 11th and 12th century A.D. It is covered in the old writings. It establishes the historical fact of existence of pre-Babri Masjid Hindu temple. There is nothing on record to contradict the same.

At the cost of repetition I may refer that Carnegy at volume 20 in O.O.S.5-49 in the year 1870 mentioned that after demolition of Janam Sthan Temple Babri Mosque was constructed in the year 1528. Thereafter Millet, H.R.Nevil. E.B.Joshi in gazetteers at Ext. O.O.S.5-7,5-8,5-9,5-11 & 5-13 acknowledged the view taken by Carnegy and took a view that after the demolition of the temple at Janam Asthan, Babri Mosque was constructed. Alexandar Connigham in O.O.S.5-6 has also mentioned that very heart of the city stand Janam Asthan or birth place temple of Ram. The Encyclopedia of India of Eastern and Southern Asia by Surgeon General Edward Balfour (1885) at page 56 also refers about the moque. Lastly Hans Bakker in the celebrity book of Ayodhya at page 46 took view that the original location of Janam Asthan is comparatively certain since it seems to be attested by the location of the mosque built by Babur, in the building of which materials of a previous Hindu temple were used and are still visible. The mosque is built by general consciousness to occupy the site of the Janam Asthan. In this context it may be clarified that gazetteers are official documents and the Hon'ble Apex Court has relied upon them. They are admissible u/ss.35, 45 and 81 of the Indian Evidence Act. The statement contained in the gazetteers can be taken into account to discover the historical matter contained therein and the facts stated there is evidence u/s 45 and the Court may in continuation with another evidence and circumstance take into consideration the material referred in the gazetteer vide AIR 1995 SC 167 Bala Shanker Bhattjjee & Others Versus Charity Commissioner, Gujrat State.

I have already referred the submissions of other Advocates who claim that alleged inscription is false, fabricated and forged and it should not be relied upon. In this context I would like to refer Baburnama by A.S.Beweridge who has dealt this inscription at appendix U at page 27. He has obtained the inscription from Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad. The inscription inside the mosque reveals that “By the command of the Emperor Babur, Mir Baqi built this alighting-place of angels”. After considering the entire inscription Beweridge took the view and concluded that “inscription is incomplete”

It is not disputed between the parties that original suit

no.29/1945 was filed by Shia Central Waqf Board against Sunni Central Board of Waqf and the learned Civil Judge had the opportunity to see the inscription on the mosque. He has relied upon gazetteers of settlement report and took a view that when no direct evidence is available then the material in the gazetteer which was compiled after spot inspection assumes great importance. According to the Civil Judge the inscription on the pulpit shows that it was built in 923H while gazetteer show that the mosque was built in 935H. Thus the Civil Judge disbelieved the inscription.

Besides Beveridge even the Civil Judge who visited the site on 26.05.1946 instead of one found two inscriptions, one refers 923 H i.e. 1516-17 AD, another refers 935 H i.e. 1528-29 AD. Deputy Commissioner provided the copy of one inscription to Beveridge. Consequently the plaintiffs are unable to prove before this Court as to what happened with the earlier inscription of showing the date of construction as 923H referred in the judgment. As regards the 2nd inscription Beveridge found it incomplete. Thus with all certainty it can be said that inscription is not reliable and on the basis of inscription plaintiffs are unable to establish that Babri Mosque was constructed in the year 1528 A.D. but on historical account it is established that the mosque was constructed after demolishing the temple. Consequently during the regime of Babur the mosque was constructed under his command after demolishing the temple against the tenets of Islam by Mir Baqi.

I have already referred the arguments advanced by Sri Hari

www.vadaprativada.com

Shanker Jain Advocate. He has pointed out the circumstances which leads to an inescapable conclusion that the temple was destroyed and remains of the temple were re-used in the construction of the mosque. This view gets strength from the Gazetteers as well as from circumstantial evidence, referred to above. In this regard I find recovery of 265 artifacts fully establish that damaged parts of the old Hindu temple in the form of building material were reused in the construction of the mosque against the tenets of Islam.

I have already recorded the findings of issue no. 1-b. A.S.I. report has also confirmed that the disputed building was constructed on the site of old Hindu temple. Statement of O.P.W. 14 Dr Rakesh Tiwari, who prepared the inventory, if read along with A.S.I. report , then the total outcome is that old temple was demolished and at the site disputed structure was constructed .

265 inscriptions found on 6.12.1992 after demolition of the disputed structure along with other architectural remains leave no room for doubt that the inscription is written in the script of Dev Nagri of 11th and 12 century. I have also referred English translation of 20 line inscription of Dr. K.B. Ramesh. The aforesaid circumstantial evidence supported by other epigraphical documents are the most valuable evidence which fully corroborate the version of Hindus and belies the version of Muslim that the mosque was not constructed, after demolishing any temple. On the basis of circumstantial evidence, historical accounts, gazetteers and other epigraphical documents, it is established that after demolishing the temple the disputed structure was constructed as a mosque and even pillars of the old temple were re-used which contained the images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses against the tenets of Islam. Thus, the circumstantial evidence totally contradicts the assertion of Muslims. I have already referred the oral evidence, adduced by the parties in Annexure No.5. I conclude that the oral evidence led by Muslims is not trustworthy. Thus the circumstantial evidence conclusively establish the claim of Hindus about the destruction of old temple and construction of Babri Mosque at the site of the temple which is corroborated by the expert evidence of A.S.I.

As regards revenue entries, the plaintiffs cannot get any advantage for the reasons that there are lot of interpolations. I agree with the analysis of Sri Hari Shanker Jain Advocate.

I have referred in detail that on the basis of revenue records also and other documents, it can conclusively be said that Janmsthan was taken into consideration. Thus, on the basis of the opinion of the experts, evidence on record, circumstantial evidence and historical account from all or any angle, it transpires that the temple was demolished and the mosque was constructed at the site of the old Hindu temple by Mir Baqi at the command of Babur. Issue Nos. 1 and 1(a) are decided in favour of the defendants and against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO. 12

Whether idols and objects of worship were placed inside the building in the night intervening 22nd and 23rd December, 1949 as alleged in paragraph 11 of the plaint or they have been in existence there since before? In either case, effect?

FINDINGS

Plaintiffs claim that idol and object of worship were placed inside the building, i.e. disputed structure in the intervening night of 22/23 rd December, 1949 and they were not in existence there since before. The plaintiffs have further submitted that the disputed structure was used as a mosque to offer prayers by Muslims . Oral evidence has been adduced by Muslims. In O.O.S.No. 5 of 1989 the plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 , the deities as juridical persons through next friend, plaintiff no. 3 assert that in the intervening night of 22/23 rd December, 1949 , the deities were shifted in the disputed structure. The evidence was led on behalf of the plaintiffs of O.O.S.No. 5 of 1989 to this effect. On behalf of defendant no. 3 it is submitted that the deities continued to exist and they were not installed as alleged by the plaintiff in para no. 11 of the plaint.

Thus,on the basis of evidence available on record, it transpires that right from the report of Vakil Commissioner in O.S.No. 61/280 of 1985 and also O.S.No. 2/ 1950 (O.O.S. 1 of 1989) it is established that inside the disputed structure no idol was found by Vakil Commissioner even in the year 1950. Thus, the contention of defendant no. 3 that the deities continued to exist is incorrect. The plaintiffs have proved that idols and object of worship were installed in the building in the intervening night of 22/23rd December, 1949. The effect of installation will be considered while considering the finding on other issues .

Issue No. 12 is decided accordingly.

ISSUES NO. 2, 4, 10, 15 & 28

2. Whether the plaintiffs were in possession of the property in suit upto 1949 and were dispossessed from the same in 1949 as alleged in the plaint?

4. Whether the Hindus in general and the devotees of Bhagwan Sri Ram in particular have perfected right of prayers at the site by adverse and continuous possession as of right for more than the statutory period of time by way of prescription as alleged by the defendants?

www.vadapprativada.com

10. Whether the plaintiffs have perfected their rights by adverse possession as alleged in the plaint?

15. Have the Muslims been in possession of the property in suit from 1528 A.D. Continuously, openly and to the knowledge of the defendants and Hindus in general? If so, its effect?

28. "Whether the defendant No. 3 has ever been in possession of the disputed site and the plaintiffs were never in its possession?"

FINDINGS

These issues are inter related and can conveniently be disposed of at one place. It has been claimed by the plaintiffs that they have perfected their rights by their adverse possession as alleged in the plaint as they are in possession of the property in suit from 1528 continuously, openly and to the knowledge of the defendants and Hindus in general. It has further been alleged that defendant no.3 was never in possession of the disputed site. On behalf of Hindus, it is urged that Hindus have perfected their rights by adverse possession as they are in continuous possession. Muslims further claim that they were dispossessed from the property in suit in 1949.

On behalf of the plaintiffs reliance has been placed on following documents:-

01 – Ext. A 3 (Vol. 6 Page 33) - original sanad granted by the Chief Commissioner of Awadh in favour of Rajjab Ali and Mohd. Asghar, the certified copy of which is filed as Exit. 1 in O.O.S. Plaintiffs have relied on Ext. 62, Ext. 45 and Ext. 89 of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 to show that Muslims were in possession over the property and pillar bases are also visible in the documents marked as Ext.D-17, Ext.D-18, Ext.19, Ext.D-19 and Ext.D-10. As the king was the owner of all soil and vacant land automatically belonged to sovereign and it is submitted that Mosque was erected on a vacant land which belonged to Emperor Babar. Mir Baqi as Babar's representative constructed the mosque. The Muslims, by virtue of their long exclusive and continuous possession perfected their title by their adverse possession and right, title or interest of temple of the Hindu public, if any, have extinguished.

On behalf of plaintiffs, following witnesses have also been produced to show the title and possession of Muslims over the property in suit:-

16. Ext A-27 is judgment dated 18.3.1886 of the District Judge in Civil Appeal No.27/85 which shows that the mosque was built on the land known as birth spot of Lord Ram. The Chabutra was also there to indicate that the birth place of Lord Ram was in the vicinity. The direction was given that Hindus may worship in the outer court yard and Muslims may worship in the inner court yard, but the plaintiffs have failed to show that they had full control over the inner court yard.

Sri H.S. Jain, learned counsel for Hindus has argued that from the Gazetteers and from the judgment of Sub-Judge in Suit No. 61/280 of 1985, it is clear that Hindus were doing Pooja in the inner Courtyard and a railing was built up in the year 1855. Thus, there is no evidence to this effect that Hindus were deprived of worship the idols inside the inner courtyard. In the year 1934, the riot took place in which substantial portion of the disputed structure was damaged and it was repaired by the Britishers giving look of mosque. There is also no evidence that the structure was handed over to Muslims by the Government. There is nothing on record to show that Hindus were deprived of possession and they were refrained from performing the Pooja in the inner courtyard and also Chabutra. It further transpires that after Darshan of Idol Charan and Sita Rasoi, devotees on Ramanavami used to perform the Pooja and other rituals.

Sri H.S.Jain, Advocate, has further submitted that in all the Government and Revenue records Janma Sthan temple has been mentioned. Even the Muslims in their application has referred the place of Janma Asthan in 1858, Mohd. Asgar confirmed that Sikh Nihang entered in the inner courtyard and performed pooja. Thus, it is further submitted that in Original Suit No.29 of 1945, U.P. Shia Wakf Board vs. Sunni Waqf Board, there is a finding that mosque was constructed after demolishing the temple at the birth place of Lord Rama. It is further submitted that Nankar was paid by Britishers to Muslims as a financial grant for a mosque existed at Mauja Sehenava and not for the Mosque at Mauja Kot Ramchander. Muslims have failed to point out that the mosque was constructed on the waqf property. As regards Revenue Record Sri H.S. Jain has argued that the records do not establish the claim of the plaintiffs. His submissions are as under:-

1. The first Report of Settlement of the Land Revenue of Fyzabad District by K. F. Mitchell (vide paragraphs 618-19, 666-669,while tracing the past history of Janmasthan/'Baburi Masjid' in Kot Ram Chander/Ayodhya, confirms the fact that Babar came to Ayodhya in 1528 AD and halted here for a week during which he destroyed the Janmasthan Temple and on its site built a mosque using largely the materials of the old structure. This must have occurred about the time of Babur's expedition to Bihar. The author of the Settlement Report further adds that according to Scyder's Memoirs of Babar, the emperor encamped about 5 or 6 miles from Ayodhya and stayed for a week, setting the surrounding courty, though it was remarkable that his doings at Ayodhya were wanting in his Memoirs (Babar-nama).

2. The settlement Report as a book of reference is admissible under the law, i.e., under the Evidence Act. In the Regular Suit No.29 of 1945 over the Waqf issue between the Shia Central Board of Waq, U.P. Versus Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P., in his judgment dated 30.03.1946, Akhtar Ahsan Naqvi, Civil Judge, Faizabad maintained that the Gazetteer of the District or the Settlement Report as books of reference were admissible under Section 57 of the Evidence Act.

3. The revenue records relating to village Ramkot, Haveli Awadh, District Faizabad, are extremely significant and clarify the factual proprietary position of Janmastahan Vs. Baburi Masjid. As per land revenue procedure, they offer details of the numbered plots ( Khasras) of entire village Ramkot in respect of nature of land rights, their topographical position, the nature of the soil alongwith the area of each plot with compete further details, whether inhabited with abadi (population) or a graveyard or arable land growing particular crops along with fruit bearing trees, if any, and paying land rent or treated as Muafi ( exempted from rent payment), the wells, tanks, gardens, paths (roads), Shiwalas (temples) graveyards and mosques, etc. In fact, the records comprise various categories of revenue documents, i.e., survey, bandobust (settlement), kishtwar khasra, khasra abadi, misl hadbast, khewats, Khasra Khataunis and mps, etc., right from 1861 AD. Till 1991092 A.D. All these records are available at the District record Office (Mahafaz Khana/ Tehsil Office/Nazul Office, Faizabad.

4. The plots of land traditionally associated with Janmastahan complex is shown mostly as settled with abadi (population) and constructions thereupon.

5. The first Regular Settlement Report (1861 ) of Kot Ram Chandra, appended by two maps, is the most comprehensive document relating to the Janmastahan is covered under khasra No. 163 with 9 sub-plots with total area of 5 bighas and 4 biswas. However, under column No.16 of kaifiyat, it is stated that in the area of Janmastahan there is one pacca well, trees whose number is recorded in khasra abadi and some graveyard (Kabaristan).

6. For each of the 9 sub-plots, the area has been recorded. Of the total 5 bighas, 4 biswas area of Janmastahan (vide khasra No.163 ) complex, 4 bighas, 13 biswas are owned by the Nazul Department (Sarkar Bahadur Nazul) as superior malik and Hindus Mahants as subordinate proprietors (malikan-i-matahi), whereas 11 biswas owned by Hindu mahant are put under the Mahal of Azhar Hussain, etc. ( the lambardars). Unlike the detailed description of the sub-plots of the other khasra Nos., the 1861 settlement does not show any specific sub-plot/sub-plots which were under mahal azhar Hussain and muafi (exempted from payment of the revenue)have been put onlyat the top in the relevant columns along with Sarkar Nazul, which is misleading and apparently an interpolation effected at a later stage. However, the position is partly clarified by Khatauni No.1(attested by Mohammad Akbar, darogha nazul dated 25th September, 1878) which under the heading of column 2(name of thok patti) puts khasra no. 163 M in muafi (taraf haqiqat muafi), the habitated (abadi) area of 11 biswas under the jurisdiction of Azhar Hussain, etc. , the superior owner (malik or haqdar vide Column4) . Here too, the specific No./Nos. of the sub-plots of khasra no.163 are not mentioned. However, later on, the position is absolutely clarified in the 1301 F/1893 AD settlement when the same sub-plot is shown under khasra No. 163/3 in the mahal jurisdiction ( thok Patti ) and superior ownership of Nazar

Hussain and Tahir Hussain (the descendants of Azhar Hussain as (Maliks) alongwith Mehta Balram Das as subordinate owner (malik matahit). All the same, the 1301 F/1893 AD settlement does not put this sub-plot (No.163/3 ) under the category of muafi and merely shows it being a non- nazul land under the mahal of Nazar Hussain, etc. Most significantly, the map of 1893 settlement shows Khasra No.163/3 to the east and outside the boundary wall of the Ram Janmabhoomi/ 'Baburi Masjid' covered by khasra plots nos. 163/1 & 163/2. as such, clearly, the sub-plot no.163M recorded in the khatauni No.1 dated 1878 AD as muafi in mahal Azhar Hussain has nothing to do with the land associated with Ram Janmbhoomi/Chabutra/'Baburi masjid', which are separately shown under Nazul and subordinate ownership of the Hindu Mahants.

7. To the north of the present Ram Janmabhoomi-erstwhile 'Baburi Masjid' and the walled compound (ahata), lay the inhabited (abadi) area covered by a structure still known as Janmasthan. In fact, all through the centuries, right till the late 19th century, the latter structure comprised only a couple of sub-plots of Janmasthan and formed a part and parcel of the entire Janmasthan complex and the road dividing the two structures, i.e., Ram Janmabhoomi / erstwhile "Baburi Mosque" and the present day misnumbered Janmasthan was constructed in the late 19th century during the British rule. This is well established by the revenue records. A careful study and comparison of the 1861 settlement map of the mauza (village)Ram Chandar with the 1893 settlement map of the said village fully bears out this fact whereas in the 1861 settlement map, the sub-plots of the northern portion of the Janmasthan complex

(denoted by the present day so-called Janmasthan ) are contiquous to the southern plots comprising the Ram Janmabhoomi/erstwhile 'Mosque' structure alongwith the walled boundary, in the 1893 settlement map, the former northern portion of Janmasthan (vide khasra no. 163/5, also named abadi Sita Rasoi) is distinctly separated from the latter portion of Ram Janmabhoomi/ erstwhile 'mosque' structure, etc., (vide khasra nos. 163/1 and 163/2) by a regular road (khasra no.163/X) which runs from the border of the Ayodhya city and Hanuman Garhi temple in the east of the village towards the Janmasthan and after dividing the latter complex proceeds towards the Jalanpur village in the west. As this has become a permanent topographical feature, this is equally reflected in the 1936-37 settlement map, operative till date, wherein the road comprising (khasra no.158) divides the Ram Janmbhoomi /erstwhile 'Baburi Masjid' vide (khasra nos. 159 and 160) from the present day misnomered Janmasthan (vide Khasra No.146). As a matter of fact, the khasra kishtwar data of the 1861 settlement gives specific area as well as digical geographical directions for each sub-plot in the Janmasthan complex which comprised the areas of both the portions, i.e., The Ram Janmabhoomi/erstwhile 'Baburi Masjid' and the present day misnomered Janmasthan.

8. As distinct from the Khasra Kishtwar in the Khasra abadi parts of Nos. 431-456, Makan ( complex) Nos. 92 -93 ( as recorded corresponding tono163 of the former) show abadi (population) in this area. The khasra bandobast of 1861 settlement (No.152) also mentions only makan Janmasthan (mansion of Janmasthan). Apart from it, the khasra abadi shows that the inhabitants of Janmasthan (sakna Janmasthan) also owned other plots/sub-plots (vide khasra Nos. 203, 206,214) or owned musli (taproot) and imli (tamarind) trees in the other plots (vide khasra Nos. 451-52)of the village. This shows that the Janmasthan complex was fairly inhabited and that the mahants/bairagis of Janmasthan, with a network of land-ownership in the village, had a sound financial and social status. None of the khasra abadi Nos., as mentioned above, parallel to the abadi Janmasthan of Khasra kishtwar No.163, does mention the existence of any 'mosque', though in the kaifiyat, they do mention the prevalence of pacca graveyard (qabarqah pukhta), a few imli (tamarind), musli (taproot) trees and makana (houses), etc., on the campus. Even khasra abadi No. 444, conjectured and identified by the amended khasra Nazul record of 1931 being an equivalent to a sub-plot of khasra kishtwar No.163 M of 1861 settlement comprising the Janmasthan, in its kaifiyat describes only ahata pukhta (pacca campus) and two trees (neem and ghauz)in possession of a Thakur of the Village. It no where mentions the existence of a 'mosque'.

9. Quite significantly, the bandobast map appended to the Settlement Report (1861) as well as the abadi map of Kot Ram Chander (1866) show only Janmasthan in the abadi Janmasthan complex plot no.163. They do not indicate any 'mosque' therein.

10. Later on at the back of a duplicate of Khasra Kistwar map, Muhamad Akbar, darogha of nazul lands, dealing with this issue of rights of the land owners (Malikan) vis-à-vis tenants (muzarian)of the village and also the question whether there was nazul waqf attached to the pacca mosque built by the Emperor Babur and situated on Janmasthan, recorded on 25th September, 1878 A.D. categorically that (in the village

Ramkot) there was no nazul land/house/garden assigned to Mir Mhammad Asghar (Khattib/Muazzan) for an expenditure on the said mosque. However, he further records, that the latter (Muhammad Asghar) had been granted some cultivable land/garden worth Rupees three hundred and two only (Rs.302/) in the villages of Bahoranpur and Sholapur. Apparently, this noting was done by the darogha nazul in 1878 A.D. as Muhammad Asghar, etc., had already been given conditional land grant by the British Government in 1870, along with malkiyat( Proprietary) rights in land, subject to the rendering of the police and military service.

11. It may be observed that in the absence of the original 1861 settlement bandobast, the recording of a 'mosque' at the back of a duplicate settlement map as late as 1878A.D. by a darogha of the Nazul lands is of peripheral nature, especially when the map itself does not comprise any indication of a 'mosque' there upon. Even though the physical existence of an extraneous structure believed to be 'mosque' built by the Mughal Emperor Babur at the Janmasthan site was unreliable as most significantly, the revenue settlement maps of 1861, 1893 and 1936-37 A.D. indicate only the Janmasthan at the site.

Annexure-V

12. In the original document of the settlement report of 1861 AD. Available at the District Record Office (Muhafaz Khana)/Tehsil Office, Faizabad, interpolations/additions have been effected in certain columns of the Khasra Kishtwar folios. In the District Record Office document, under column No.2 to the original reading of abadi

www.vadaprativada.com

Janmasthan, the words ‘and juma masjid’ have been added so as to read ‘abadi Janmasthan and juma masjid’ under column No.3, to the words ‘taraf nazul’, the words ‘and muafi’ have been added so as to read and under column No.4, to the words Sarkar Bahadur, ‘ and Azhar Hussain’ have been added.

13. The above alterations’ additions are confirmed by the fact that in the Tehsil Office copy of 1861 settlement, though under column No.2, the words 'jama masjid’ have been added to the original word ‘abadi janmasthan’in a very crude manner, the Tehsil copy does not carry any interpolation of ‘and muafi’/’and Azhar Hussain’ under column Nos. 3 & 4 respectively as done in the case of the District Record Office copy Moreover, the second settlement report of Ramkot dated 1301 F / 1893 -94 even though for Janmasthan, carries the same khasra kishtwar No.163 which due to clubbing of the sub-plots is divided into 5 sub-plots instead of 9 as earlier in the case of 1861 settlement, it does not record the name of ‘jama masjid’, nor does it put ‘muafti, under the relevant column nos., which have been shown only under Sarkar Bahadur Nazul. However, in su-plot no.1 163 /3 with an area of 11 biswas, azhar Hussain and Tahir Hussain have been put as mahaldars whereas Mahant Balram Das has been recorded as subordinate owner (malik matahat), All the same, the word ‘muafi’ does not occur even in this column no.

14. In the 1301 F/1893 AD. settlement, the khasra No. of Janmasthan, i.e., 163 remains the same as earlier in the 1861 settlement, though due to clubbing, the number of the sub-plots is reduced from 9 to 5. In the Khasra kishtwar (vide Basta No.132), further endorsed by the Khatauni (vide Form

15), the area of each sub-plot is recorded. As earlier in the 1861 settlement, the total area of the Janmasthan complex is 5 bighas and 4 biswas, of which 4 bighas and 13 biswas is under nazul whereas 11 biswas (vide 163/3) are shown in the mahal of Nazar Hussain and Tahir Hussain (the lambardars). But unlike the 1878 Khatauni (as noted earlier, the 1893 settlement records do not show it in muafi. As per Khasra bandobast and Khatauni documents, the portion of the Janmasthan area i.e., (the proper 'Ram Janmabhoomi'/ 'Babari Masjid' land ) being under mahal nazul Sarkar, comprises two khasra Nos., i.e, 163/1 and 163/2, with an area of 2 bighas -14 biswas and 2 biswas respectively. These are shown under habitation (abadi) and are vested in the subordinate ownership and occupation of the Hindu Mahants Raghuar Das, Gopal Das and Thaurdwara Sita Ram. Khasra No.163/4 with an area of 7 biswas covers the road which separates the Khasra Nos. 163/1-2, i.e., ('Ram Janmabhoomi'/ 'Baburi Majid') of the Janmasthan area from the northern portion of the complex with Khasra No.163/5, named as abadi Stia Rasoi. The latter portion with an area of 1 bigha-10biswas, also being under nazul is vested in the subordinate ownership of Mahant Kalyan Das. The detailed lists provided in the 1893 settlement records in respect of mosques, waqf, graveyards (qabaristan) and mutations, etc., do not put any of the sub-plots, i.e., 163/1 to 1635 of the Janmasthan complex with either of these categories.

15. The kishtwar map of Kot Ram Chander, Pargana Haveli Awadh, Tehsil and District Faizabad, dated 1894-95 A.D. prepared after the 1893 settlement slightly varies in respect of the division of the janmasthan khasra No.163. It shows all the sub-plots 163/1-5 under habitation (abadi). The road which divides the Khasra Nos. 163/1-2 of Janmasthan from the northern wing with khasra No.163/5 (abadi Sita Rasoi) is shown as Khasra No.nill, i.e., 163/X, whereas khasra no. 163/4 of the 1893 settlement has been shown as a sub-plot with habitation (abadi) to the east of khasra No.163/3. It seems that this redistribution of the Janmasthan sub-plots was effect in the aftermath of the 893 settlement.

16. The above map is significant in many a respect. In its list of depicted symbols, it does not cover the symbol of a Shiwala (temple ) or a mosque. But it does denote the symbols of abadi, road, graveyards (qabaristan), pacca well, nature of land (i.e., parti qadim ) and non-payment of lagan, etc. As such, it shows khasra no.163/1 (i.e., the site of 'Ram Janamabhoomi'/ 'Baburi Masjid') with habitation (abadi) and a pacca well in then north-eastern direction. The sub–plot no.163/4 has shown with symbols of abadi, orchard (bagh) without the payment of rent (lagan). The sub-plot No. 163/5 (abadi Sita Rasoi) to the north of the dividing road comprises the symbols of abadi along with 3 pacca wells and a portion of self – cultivated land (khud kasht).

17. Above all, most significantly, there is no symbol of a graveyard (Qabristan) in any of the sub-plots of Khasra No. 163 of the Janmasthan complex, though, there are symbols of graveyards in the neighbouring plots, i.e., Khasra Nos. 161,158, 56-57, etc. Athough earlier in the Khasra kishtwar No.163 of the 1861 settlement relating to Janmasthan, the column(No.16) of the general remarks (kaifiyat) as well as the khasra abadi Nos. 444, 452 of the same settlement do mention about the existence of graveyard (gabargah) in the complex of Janmasthan, it is well confirmed by the above map that by 1894-95 A.d., there is no graveyard inany of the sub-plots of Janmasthan complex, Later on, this position is reiterated by the 1344 F/1936-37 AD. Settlement report and the map appended to it.

18. As distinct from the above revenue records, the Nazul department of the District Faizabad d(U.P.) also prepared its own amended Khasra records of the abadi settlements, (tarmimi khasra abadi)in 1931 A.D. In these revised Khasras of village Ramkot, both 'masjid' and chbutra indicating the temple at Janmasthan have been recorded in Khasra No.583. The 'mosque' has been shown in waqf under column 'Name of the present possessor' (Nam Hal Qabiz). At the same time Mahant Charan Das in 1931 and thereafter Mahant Raghunath Das (1941) have been declared under – proprietore (Malik Matahit) of the entire plot. Moreover, in these Khasra records, Arazi No.586 with an area of 11 biswas, 16 biswanis and 16 kachwanis (11-16-16) being in abadi is shown as graveyard (a pacca qabaristan known as Ganj Shahid)and assigned in waqf (waqf ahad Shahi ).

19. A note of caution is necessary with regard to the alleged Khasra and map maintained by the Nazul department in the Faizabad Collectorate which is relied upon by the plaintiffs of Suit No.12 of 1961 (now o.O.S. 4 of 1989 before the Lucknow Bench of the Allahabad High Court), Sunni Central Board of Waqf and others Vs Gopal Singh Visharad and others. The map maintained by the Nazul Department is not authenticated, nor prepared under any law, nor is it according to any ascertainable sacale. The survey made on the basis of the Khasra abadi and that map of the Nazul department at the instance of the Plaintiffs in that Suit has been rejected by the High Court's Full Bench which is trying the case and a fresh survey has been ordered on the basis of revenue records in order to ascertain the exact situation of the land involved in that Suit. It is noticeable that the plot numbers given in the plaint of that Suit are based on the said khasra abadi of the Nazul department. There is no Fard Mutabigat comparative table between the plot numbers given in the khasra abadi of the Nazul department and the Khasra abadi maintained by the revenue Department of the Government.

20. In fact, the purpose of the Nazul (Municipal) survey and the map prepared in 1931 A.D. was to identify the encroachments made on the Nazul property. Such a survey may cannot take precedence over the regularly conducted revenue settlement operations and the maps prepared thereupon, especially when the title to land is involved. In its order dated 10.1.1990, the High Court directed the Board of Revenue, U.P. Sate, to survey the site and submit report accordingly with the assistance of the Municipal records and such other records which it considered to be useful and in its further order dated 23.5.1990 directed it to execute the commission and locate the plots with reference to documents on record only. The commissioner, Shri J.P. Srivastava, appointed by the Board of Revenue for the purpose, submitted his report on 25.07.1990 wherein he had located the disputed property with reference to the Nazul map of 1931, even though he conceded that the Nazul map and the settlement maps were on different scales and that it was not possible to juxtapose the two maps and prepare Fard Mutabiqat and correspond the Nazul. Khasra numbers with the settlement khasra numbers. Thereupon, the Hon'ble court passed another order directing the commissioner to submit supplementary report surveying and locating the property with reference to settlement maps of 1861 and

1937 A.D. The commissioner submitted his supplementary report dated 8.2.1991.

21. In fact, the Commissioner instead of surveying the land with his own official map had just accepted the fresh map supplied by the Plaintiffs, which in matters of details offered a completely inaccurate position in respect of Janmasthan/'Baburi Mosque', graveyards, the shilanyas site and various other plots. Such an act on the part of the commissioner for having accepted the Plaintiff's map and adopting it as his own official map for submission to the court was characterized by the latter as "wholly unwarranted".

22. Having gone through the pros and cons of the entire case, the Hon'ble Court in its Judgment on B.B.91, even though it refrained from calling the commissioner's report as 'motivated', described it as "absurd". It refused to accept the commissioner's view that correct map and report about kot Ram Chandra were possible only in reference to Nazul map and that the settlement maps were not correctly prepared. In its judgment, it refused to keep the report of the commissioner on record in the pending. Case.

23. As per procedure of the revenue settlement, the khasra Numbers in respect of kishtwar, khewat and khata khataunis often undergo a change due to alteration, addition and clubbing for adjustment with the neighboring plots from one revenue settlement to another. At times, a change in Numbers is effected even during the interregnum of the two settlement operations. However, they are all duly recorded in the Comparative tables of the Khasra Numbers (Fard Mutabiqat) appended in the ensuing settlement report as well as in the relevant Khewat and Khata Khatuani numbers. The khasra kishtwar, khewat and khata khataunis adopted in the 1344 F/1936-37 A.D. contine to be in vogue in the latest revenue operations 1989 -92 A.D. However, the utations effected during the interregnum have been recorded in the relevant revenue documents.

24. According to the 1344F/1936-37A.D. settlement the Janmasthan complex plots have been recorded in the khasra kishtwar under nos.159, some portions of 160, 158 (road), 146 and 147 R [i.e., portion of 147] and the area in respect of each plot/sub-plot has been provided. The major portion of the Janmasthan complex falls under khasra nos. 159 (declared banjar – the site of Ram Janmabhoomi / 'Baburi masjid'), 146 and 147 R(Abadi Sita Rasoi, across the road in the North), while some portion is included in Khasra no.160. The Khasra no.158, also forming a part of the area of the Janmasthan complex is recorded as a road (which divides the Khasra Nos. 159 and 160 in the south from 146 and 147 R in the north respectively).

25. As per khewat record the khasra no.159 with an area of 13 biswas is declared banjar land under Nazul vide Khata no.1; no. Khewat Matahitdaran (5a) 20 and Khata Khatauni 58/2. While the superior ownership rests with the Nazul, the subordinate ownership (matahitdar) is vested with 'Shri Dhanush Dhari Ji Bhagwan Virajman Mandir Bara Astah, Mohalla Ramkot, Shahar Ayodhya' through the basarbkari of Mehta Raghubar Prasad, disciple of ram Manohar Sahu, Bairagi, resident of the above temple. The khasra no.146 with an ara of 1 bigha, 6 biswas, 7 biswanis (1-6-7) vide khata No.I, No. Khewat (5a) 32, no. Khata Khatauni 70/1 is under abadi. Here too, the superior ownership is with Nazul

and subordinate ownership is vested with Har Har Das, Ram Sarn Das, Matahitdar, the resident of jamasthan. The Khewat No.160 (a) with an area of 3 biswas, 13 biswanis (0-3-13) being under Nazul vide Nazul Khata No.1, No. Khewat 51(21), No. Khata Khatauni 59/1 is vested in the subordinate ownership of the Hindu mahants /bairagis.

26. As regards the Khatauni documents the position of the khasra nos. 159 and 160 (a) is riterated as already noted in the khasra kishtwar and khata Khatauni. Khasra No.159 vide khata no.1, khata Khatauni no.58/2, being under mahal Nazul with an area of 13 biswas of banjar is put under the subordinate ownership (malik matahit ) of who besides khasra no.159 also owns other Plots (i.e. , and 199 which are not a part of Janmasthan). The Khasra no. 160 (b) is also under mahal Nazul with an area of 1 bigha, 12 biswas.

27. In the Khatauni documents, the jurisdiction of Mahal Azhar Hussain has been shown separately. Of the Janmasthan complex, Khasra No.158 vide Khata Khewat No.2, khata Khatauni no.15 comprising an area of 4 biswas has been shown as a Path (road which divides khasra No.159 in the south from khasra No.160 in the north). To this Path, 3 biswas and 9 biswansi (0-3-9) have been added from non-Janmasthan complex khasra no. 155/2 vide khata No.1, Khata Khatauni No.4, making a total of 7 biswas and 9 biswansi ( 0-7-9) for the Path which has been put under mahal Azhar Hussain. At the same time, some portions of the Janmasthan complex under abadi without rent (lagan) under khasra no.160 vide Nos. 160 (Jim), khata khewat no.2 , Khata Khatauni no.19/1 with an area of 7 biswas, 3 biswansi (0-7-3) in the subordinate ownership of Rameshwar Das, disciple Gopal Das; Khasra No.160(d) vide khata khewat

No.1, Khata Khatauni No.8/1 under abadi with an area of 3 biswas, 17 biswanis (0-3-17)under the subordinate ownership of Raghubar Das exempted from rent (lagan) and No.160 M vide Khata No.2, Khata Khatauni No.14 under abadi and an area of kaacha village bigha, i.e. , 1 bigha, 6 biswas and 7 biswansi (1-6-7).

28. In the 1344 F/1936-37A.D. settlement report, of the khasra nos. of kishtwar, khewat and khata Khatauni associated with the Janmasthan complex in the mahals of Nazul and Azhar Hussain as detailed above, there is no area in any of the plots/sub-plots, which has been shown as graveyard (qabaristan) or in waqf.

29. The map of khasra kishtwar of the village Ramkot dated 1344-F/1937 AD of the settlement depicts the territorial boundaries of the khasra plots of the village alongwith symbols of various categories, viz., banjar, abadi, roads, temple (mandir), graveyards (qabaristan ) and pacca wells, etc. Of the khasra plot nos. of the Janmasthan complex, No.159 has a symbol of banjar land; no.160 has symbols of abadi and a temple in the north-east of the plot (shaksi temple) along with a well to its east; no.158, a pacca road; no.146 (abadi Sita Rasoi), abadi along with a temple in the north-west and two wells ; no.147 (R) , mostly with a symbol of banjar land In none of the plots /sub-plots of the Janmasthan complex, there is any symbol of a graveyard (qabaristan), even though symbols of graveyards have been shown in the other and neighborly khasra plot nos., i.e., 172,173,168, and 169, etc.

30. In view of the position as available from the above mentioned original records of the 1344 F/1936-37 settlement of the village Ramkot, the Nazul record s of 1931 AD which have altogether different khasra Nos. of the Plots, unaccompanied by any table of equivalent khasra Nos. (Fard Mutabiquat) are absolutely unauthentic with regard to waqf land vide khasra no. 583 and qabristan land vide khasra no.586 and other khasra nos. which have been considered to be a part of the Janmasthan complex. As already noted, even the second revised Report of the Survey Commissioner was rejected by the Hon'ble High Court of Allahabad, Lucknow Bench on 8.8.1991.

31. Since the 1344F/1936-37 settlement, the annual revenue records of the village Ramkot pertaining to khewat and jamabandi, i.e. khata Khatauni have been maintained in the Tehsil Office/ District Record Office, Faizabad for all the years till date. For all the khasara plots of the janamasthan complex, the position stand the same as in the last settlement, excepting that the entries of the names of the succeeding mahants as subordinate owners have been made in the relevant documents. The site on which the shilanyas was performed in November / December, 1989 falls under khasra no. 160, the major portion of which is under mahal Nazul Sarkar Aala. The khasara No. 160 being a large part measuring 5 bighas and 13 biswas, covers both Janmasthan and non – janamasthan areas and falls both under mahal Nazul and mahal Azahar Hussain. In this khasara no. related khata khewat and khata Khatauni Nos., apart from Nazul (government) owning 3 bighas and 13 biswas, there are three other subordinate owners (malikan-i-mayahit) i.e., Sita Ram Sharan owning 3 biswas and 13 biswanis , Awadh Behari owning 11 biswas, 7 biswanis (1-6-7) respectively. The sub – plot of Sita Ram Sharan vide khata khewat no. 23 and khata Khatauni no. 54/1 falls under mahal Nazul. The sub plot of

Ishtiaq Hussain vide khasra no.160 R and khata Khatauni no. 9 is under mahal Azahar Hussain. Here too, the subordinate ownership is vested with Ishtiaq Hussain and no part of his sub- plot has been shown with any grave yard or muafi or waqf .

32. In the settlement report of 1861 Ad, interpolations / additions have been effected in certain columns of the khata Kishtwar folios. In village Ramkot the total number of the khata Kishtwar is 167 and as per proforma, there are 16 coloumns for each khasra. The first four columns records (i) the serial number, (11) Name of field (abadi, etc.), (iii) Name of thok/ patti (nature of subordinate agency for revenue collection), (iv) name, lineage and caste of the owner (Nam Wa Waldiyat Zat Malik) respectively. The serial number of Janmasthan is 163 with specific description under the columns followed by 9 sub-plots with required description under each column in the copy of the 1861 settlement report available at the District Record Office (muhafaz khana), Faizabad under column No. 2, to the original recording of abadi Janmasthan ; and 'juma masjid' Have been added. Under Column No.3, to the words taraf Nazul , and Muafi have been added so as to read and under column No.4, to the wards Sarkar Baharur, ' and Azhar Hussain' have been added

Evidence for interpolations :

Annexure-V
Report of expert regarding interpolation
Pages 221-239

(1) Under column 2, the words abadi Janmasthan are in thick handwriting. As there was no space below this for writing in a similar way, a small 'wa' ( )

has been put to the right of Janmasthan and 'juma masjid' has been put above towards the left of abadi. The very crude construction of the sentence shows the later insertions of the above words of wa (') and 'juma masjid'.

(2) In the 1861 settlement copy of the Tehsil office under column No. 2 abadi Janmasthan had been written in thick bold hand and no space was available for further addition in the manner done in the District record. So 'wa jama masjid' ( and jama masjid) have been inserted below it but for want of space appear before sub-plot 1, (goshalf) so as to disturb the entire symmetry of the entries made therein.

(3) The Tehsil office copy of 1861 settlement does not carry any incorporation of 'and muafi'/'and Azhar Hussain under columns nos. 3 and 4 respectively as the case of the District Recoed Office copy.

www.vadaprativada.com

(4) The second settlement of 1301 Fasli/1893-94 Ad in the khasra kishtwar record though carrying the same khasra no. 163, due to the clubbing, is divided into 5 sub-plots instead of 9 sub-plots as earlier in the 1861 settlement report. But it does not record the name of 'jama masjid', nor does it put 'muafi' under the relevant columns, which have been shown only under Sarkar Bahadur Nazul. However, in sub- plots No. 163/3 with an area of 11 biswas, Azahar Hussaqin and Tahir Hussain have been put as mahaldars where as Mehta Balram Das has been recorded as subordinate owner (malik matahit).

(5) In many a other khasra kishtwar Nos. of the

1861 settlement record of the District Record Office, e.g., 16,21,25,29,32 and 167 , there are clear instances of tampering, rubbing off the original entries and overwriting them with others. Ordinarily, such changes are never made in the official revenue records and even when any change has to be effected for the correction of an error, if any, the original words are distinctly struck off to be substituted by other words above it. But rubbing off is never done.

(6) Another evidence for determining the fact as to whether it is a correction of an error by the scribe himself or a later interpolation/ alteration is the ink whether thick or medium or thin, as well as the variation in the handwriting of the letters / words, if any, In the 1986 settlement document of the District record Office, for Khasra Kishtwar No.163, for all the columns, quite thick black ink has been used and the handwriting is also uniform with the use of the same qualm (read pen) The thickness of the ink, words and style of writing is uniform. But for the words 'wa Azhar Hussin' (and Azhar Hussain) put below the words of 'Sarkar Bahadur' in column No.4 are absolutely dim in ink. Thereafter the description about all the other sub-plots (goshas ) is again writtenin thick black ink. At the same time, for all the Khasra Nos. following khasra No.163 are written in equally black thick ink and uniform handwriting excepting Khasra No.167 wherein again under column No.3, the words taraf Nazul are in thick ink bold handwriting here as the additional words wa muafi (and muafi) are written in rather thin and dim ink. Similarly, under column No.4, the original words 'Sarkar Bahadur' are written in thick black ink but the words 'wa Azhar Hussain' have been added in dim ink. It is very clear that the words 'wa muafi' and 'wa Azhar Hussain' under column No.3 and

4 of the both the khasra Nos. 163 and 167 are later additions. All the same, the handwriting of the scribe who made these additions both the Nos. is the same, even though it is apparently quite different from that of the original writing.

NO WAQF ASSOCIATED WITH ‘ BABURI MASJID’

In the Janmasthan complex as recorded in the 1st regular Settlement Report (1861 A.D.), there is no Plot/Sub –Plot which has been put as a waqf attached to ‘ Baburi Masjid’. At that time, Muhammad Asghar claimed himself to be khattib and muazzan ( vide his representation to the British Government , case No.884, Muhalla Kot Ram Chander, Ajodhya dated November 30, 1858 A.D.) of the structure named as ‘ Baburi Mosque’ situated at Janmasthan. According to the Muslim's claim, this monument was registered as ‘Mosque’ in 1860 AD. only, i.e., after the 1855 Hindu-Muslim riots and the tussle that followed. In his representation to the British Government, Mir Rajab Ali also designated himself as “Khattib Baburi Mosque’ (vide Application No. 115, Muhalla Kot Ram Chander, Ajodhya dated November 01, 1860 AD.). All the same, in the Had Bast map appended to 1861 A.D. Settlement Report, the symbol of the ‘Mosque’ does not figure in the Janmasthan complex ( khasra Kishtwar No. 163/abadi Plot No., 431-56). As a matter of fact, both Muhammad Asghar and Mir Rajab Ali were residents of village Shahanwa (about three miles to the west of village kot Ram Chander/ ajodhya) and were petty zamindars/land holders/lambardars of village Shahanwa. The 1861 settlement Report of village Shahanwa (vide No. Had Bast 571, Village under Khaliasa (Government) and Mohammad Asghar, Mir Rajab Ali and

www.vadaprativada.com

Muhammad Afzal, etc., are shown as pattidars ( vide Exhibit No.'A'). Under the revenue system as inherited from the Mughal and Nawabi Governments, as pattidars /maliks/lambardars, etc., they were entitled to nankar (subsistence allowance) in the shape of nankar/muafi land in the same village. At the same time, they were land holders and their holdings, etc., are recorded in the Settlement Report. But, it is nowhere recorded that they enjoyed any nankar /muafi for the maintenance of the 'Mosque' khattibs and muazzans, etc. However, even though they could not furnish any documentary evidence to the British Government, they continued to claim that during the Nawabi period, their family had been getting the annual grant of Rs. 302/3/6 as nankar and muafi from the revenues of the village Shahanwa for its own maintenance and out of this income, they had been spending only a part of the amount for looking after some of the essential needs of the so-called 'Baburi Mosque' situated at Janmasthan, kot Ram Chander, Pargana Awadh, District Faizabad. After the first war of Independence in 1857 (mentioned as 'Mutiny' in the Report of the District Waqf Commissioner, Faizabad, dated 16.09.38), the British Government, apparently on political grounds because of the loyalty and services rendered by the land lord / pattidari family of the village Shahanwa, continued the above mentioned amount in cash but from 1863 -64 A.D. onwards, the British Government considered it expedient to commute this cash payment into a conditional (mashrut) muafi land grant-a process which was completed by 1870 A.D. when, as explained further, the revenue-free land grant along with superior proprietor rights was bestowed on Mohammad Asghar and Mohammad Afzal Ali in the villages of Sholapur and Bhaharanpur but not in kot Ram Chander where the

www.vadaprativada.com

Janmasthan 'Mosque' stood. As such, all previous orders regarding the family grant to Muhammad Asghar/ Muhamad Afzal Ali were superseded by the final order passed in 1870 under the authority of the Governor General in council, whereby a sanad for revenue –free land grant was issued by the Chief Commissioner Awadh. On representation from the family, a decree to this effect was also given by the revenue authorities and entries were made in the revenue records accordingly auring the same year (1870).

Later on when in 1938 A. D., controversy arose about the nature of the title to the land granted by the British Government for the maintenance of the 'Mosque', Pir Mir Taqi, the khattib and muazzan while tracing the genealogy of his family claimed that the Mugal King Babur built this 'Mosque' situated on the site of Janmasthan and granted an annual amount of Rs. 60/- and some arable land in madad-i-maash in the village Shahanwa to Sayed Abdul Baqi appointed as khattib and muazzan for his subsistence and the maintenance of the 'Mosque'. Later on, after the fall of the Mughal Empire, during the Nawabi period, Nawab Saadat Ali Khan, king of Awadh increased the annual grant to Rs. 302/3 as /6 pies. But as commented by the Waqf Commissioner, District Faizabad on 16.09.38, in this regard, no written accounts wee submitted by the khattib and muazzan family to the British Government for the continuation or bestowal of fresh grant for the same purpose.

It has already been observed that although Muhammad Asghar and Rajab Ali claimed to be direct descendants of Sayed Abdul Baqui, the first khattib and muazzan supposed to have been appointed by Babur, no

reference of cash assignment or madad-imaash land on hereditary basis can be traced in the first regular Settlement of the Village Shahanwa in 1861 A.D. All the same, on repeated representations to the British Government by Muhammad Asghar and Rajab Ali, the British Government having discontinued the annual cash grant, granted afresh land in muafi in the village of Bhuraipur and Sholapur in 1870 A.D. Later on the sanad issued by the Chief Commissioner clarifies that the cash nankar of Rs. 302/3as/6 pies received by Rajab Ali and Muhammad Asghar as rent-free tenure in Village Shahanwa under the former Government (Nawabi Rule) was being maintained ( as muafi land in the village of Bhuraipur and Sholapur) under the authority of the Governor General-in- Council so long as the object for which the grant had been made was kept up on the conditions that the assignees would surrender all the (previous) sanads, title deeds, and other documents relative to the grant in question and above all, they and their successors would " strictly perform all the duties of land holders in matters of Police and any Military or Political Service that may be required of them by the Authorities … If any one of these conditions was broken by Rajub Ally or Mohammad Usgar or their successors the grant will be immediately resumed".

A serious controversy about the nature of the land grant in the village of Bahorampur and Sholapur earlier given by the British Government to the assignees (khattib / muazzan) which was also in a way connected with the ' Baburi Mosque' at kot Ram Chander, Ajodhya arose in 938 A.D. The District Waqf Commissioner, Faizabad (Eligible–S.M.Omais) vide his decision dated 16.09.38 while interpreting the sanad earlier given by the British Government to the assigness (khattib / muazzan) maintained that even though the grant was conditional on the performance of duties of land holders in the matter of Police, Military or Political Service, etc., the object for which the grant was made was the maintenance of the 'Mosque'. He also stressed that the original object of the state grant of Emperor Babur and Nawab Saadat Ali Khan was also continued in the sanad by the British Government after the 'Mutiny', i.e., for the maintenance of the 'Mosque' and further that the nankar was to be enjoyed by the grantee for so long as the object of the grant, i.e., the 'Mosque', was in existence. In view of this, the Commissioner gave a ruling to the effect 'clearly then the grant to Mohd. Zaki must be regarded as waqf, the purpose of which is the maintenance of the religious building known as the 'Baburi Mosque'.

Muhammad Zaki, the (khattib /muazzan) ( also mutawalli in case of waqf) raised serious objections to the decision of the Commissioner, waqf Board. He maintained that the particular grant of land in Sholapur and Bhuraipur had been made by the British Government which was a non-Muslim body and hence the grant could not be taken as a muslim waqf. Moreover, as per sanad, it was conditional grant subject to the performance of military, police and other duties, etc., and in case of non-fulfillment of the latter services, the grant could not be regarded as a Kuslim waqf. He contended that after the annexation of Awadh, the British Government in lieu of cash nankar and madad-i-maash (as inherited from the Nawabi period ) granted land to Muhammad Asghar and Muhammad Afzal and in the first Regular Settlement (1861), it was entered in the latter's malkiyat_(ownership). Thereafter, on February 03, 1870

AD., Muhammad Asghar and Muhammad Afzal got a decree in their favour whereby they were entered in the revenue records as superior proprietors and possessors in possession of the property ( malik-i-ala qabiz wa mutsarif jadaid) and since then, their descendants have continued with the same status. As such, the property falling in the category of superior proprietorship ( malkiyat-i-ala) did not fall in the definition of the Muslim waqf. He further contended even though, the descendants of Muhammad Asghar, etc., had been bearing the expenses for the essential items of expenditure for the maintenance of the 'masjid Baburi', the family property was outside the jurisdiction of the Muslim waqf Act, No.12,1936 as the major amount of the income had been spent by them on their own subsistence as madad-i-maash, etc This had always been recorded in the khewat records as such.

Apart from the above arguments, Muhammad Zaki always maintained that Sayed Abdul Baqui, the First muazzan/khattib of the 'Mosque' appointed by Babur was a Shia and his descendants all through the ages, till date belong to the Shia sect and could not be coerced to accept the spurious contention that the 'Baburi Mosque' might be put under the control of the Sunni Waqf Board. This position was taken by the (khattib/muazzan) family before the District Waqf Commissioner, Faizabad (1941). However, the latter's Report (dated February 08,1941) simply reproduced and reiterated the position earlier taken by the District Waqf Commissioner in 1938 A.D. on the contrary, Muhammad Zaki and Malik Hussain, etc., the (khattib/muazzan) vide their Application dated 26th September, 1943 AD serial no.26, submitted to the Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P., Lucknow, took a clear stand that there was no waqf for their properties in the villages of

Buharanpur and Sholepur with total annual income of Rs. 528/14 as (Rupees Five hundred Twenty Eight and Annas Forteen only, i.e., Rupees Three-hundred-fifty-one and Annas six (Rs. 351/6 as ) from the village of Bahoranpur and Rs. 177/8as (Rupees One-hundred, Seventy –Seven and annas eight) from Sholepur. They contended that earlier they had been bestowed grant (atiya) by Shahenshah Babur and Nawab Saadat Ali Khan and in the present case ( i.e. land/income from Baharanpur/Sholepur) they were strictly governed by the sanad nankar granted by the British Government. They further maintained that the khewatdara (i.e., the revenue authorities/ records) did not recognize this as waqf and that it had been recorded in the revenue records only as nankar muafi. Of course, in the past they had been looking after the white washing, lighting arrangements of the 'Mosque' and as well making payment of the salaries of the Muazzans/Imams, etc., Malik Hussain, s/o Syed Muhammad Zaki in his detailed letter No.5607 dated 20.11.43/22.11.43 in response to the Secretary, sunni Waqf Board 's communication vide no. 5272 dated 27 October, 1943, clarified his relation with the 'Baburi Masjid'. He categorically maintained (vide para 5) that there was neither any waqf for the 'masjid', nor there had ever been a Mutawalli for it. Further, that his family has had muafi land (in the villages of Buharanpur and Sholepur) and being the lambardar ( head ) of the property and being ( good) Muslims, it had been looking after the repair etc. of the same and that he, too, as lambardar had been discharging this obligation since 17 February, 1943 . He stated that the expenditure incurred in this regard was from his family

property which was in muafi nankar and not in waqf (Vide paras 8-9 ) . In this letter, he also gave some details about the items of white washing , repair and floor carpet etc relating to the 'Masjid' and some expenditure incurred in this regard since October, 1941. ( Vide paras 2-3, 10-11). Not with standing all this, the legal tussle continued and in 1945 A.D. it was considered that the muazzan/khattib family ( At this time kalab Hussain, the brother of the deceased Muhammad Zaki)had been all through Shias, even though the prayers in the past had been offered both by the Shias and the Sunnis.

It is equally important to note that during the 1930's of the 20th century, as per statement of Muhammad Zaki, the Muazzan / Khattib even though he was looking after some of the essential items of the maintenance of the 'Mosque'(i.e., whitewashing, lighting and flooring, etc.), from the income of the nankar /muafi grant held as malkiyat in perpetuity, he did not spend any money on the repairs of the 'Mosque'in the aftermath of the riot in Ayodhya in 1934 A.D. The Collectorate and the P.W.D. records of the District Faizabad bear out the fact that the entire expenditure for the repairs of the 'Mosque'was met by the District administration/PWD. Significantly, in the waqf records of the Sunni/ Shia Boards of waqf or the Collectorate/UP. Government Records, there is no mention of any Mutawalli or waqf from the income of which the structure of the ' Baburi Mosque'might have been rebuilt valuable revenue free grant of land held by Muhammad Zaki etc. in the villages Burhanpur and Sholepur allegedly a attached for the maintenance and upkeep of the same.

An elementary knowledge of theMugal agrarian system/ Nawahi phase and the British administration in India as well as an understanding of the nature of various categories of land grants for administrative purpose or to the religious institutions would clearly show that there has always been a basic difference between nankar ( for personal maintenance) and waqf. In this regards, the contentions of the grantees, i.e. Muhammad Asghar, etc. 19th Century) and Mohd. Azkil Kalab Hussain/ Malik Hussain, etc. have been absolutely correct and tenable that their properties in Shahanwa/Burharanpur/Sholepur could not be categorized as waqf. As such, they do not show any waqf relating to the alleged 'Baburi Masjid'. Even in the Judicial records of the various suits pending before the Lucknow bench of Allahabad HighCourt, there is no registration of any waqf having any connection with the alleged' Baburi Masjid' as per records of the Sunni Central waqf Board.

After the above mentioned enquiry by the District Waqf Commissioner, his report as prescribed under the U.P. Muslims Waqfs Act, 1936 along with the lists of the Shia Waqfs and Sunni Waqfs was forwarded by the U.P. Government to both the Shia Central Board of Waqfs and Sunni Central Board of Waqfs as each of the two Waqf Boards were to publish the report along with their respective lists in Official Gazette, under sub-section (1) of Section 5 of the Act. In the Shia –Sunni legal Tussle that followed, the Sunni Central Board of Waqf claimed that it was published as a Sunni 'Mosque' in the U.P. Gazette dated 26.02.1994, even though in reality, the particulars of the ' Baburi Mosque' or the qabaristan ( qraveyard) attached to it, do not find any. Place in the list of Waqfs published in the Government Gazette dated 26.02.1944.

As the Shia Board Claimed it to be Shia Waqf, it filed a suit to get over the effect of the Waqf Commissioner report on theassumption that the ‘ Baburi Masjid’ had been notified to be a sunni Waqf in the above mentioned Gazette notification dated 26.02.1944 under Section 5 (1) of the U.P.Muslim Waqf Act, 1936.

Thus confronted with a faith accompli of the Baburi Masjid having been included in the list of the Sunni Cental Board of Waqf by the Chief Commissioner of Waqfs under section 4 of the U.P. Muslims waqf Act ( XIII of 1925 ) as well as by the Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P. and also assuming the fact that the same had been published in the Government Gazette dated 26.02.1944, the Shia Central Board of Waqf U.P., as Plaintiffs in the Regular Civil Suit No.29 of 1945, sought a declaration that the ‘Mosque’ was a Shia Waqf together with the idgah attached to it at Jaipa Nala, Ayodhya, and village Behrampur, Pargana Haveli and 20bighas odd land, known as Sholepuri grove, in mahal Bharanapur, in Tehsil and District Faizabad. As a matter of fact, when face to face with the issue that under the law, the ‘Mosque’ had to be essentially attached with either of the Waqf Boards, i.e. Sunny/Shia, the Waqf Board in the plaint came upwith the contention that Sayid Abdul Baqt ( Mir Baqi), the builder of the mosque’, in 1528 AD, during the reign of the Mughal Empror Babur, was a Shia and that being the founder-waqf as well the first Mutawalli of the ‘Mosque’, followed since then by a lineage of successive Mutawallias till date (1945)with kalab Husain as the Mutawali in 1945 after the death (1944) of his brother Mohammad Zaki and as such, the ‘Mosque’ was a Shia waqf . Even though, as already stated, earlier Mohammad Zaki/Kalab Husain in the official documents submitted to the office of the District / Commissioner of Waqf, had always maintained that there had been no Mutawalli since the building of the mosque as they were mearly khatibs and muezzins looking after the 'Mosque' by meeting some of the incidental charges from the income of their personal proprietary lands in the village of Sholapuri and Bahoranpur which were not in waqf now under the compelling circumstances, with a view to tide over the technical, legal difficulty and to get the 'Mosque'legally declared as a Shia Waqf, it was contended for the first time that the cash nankar (Rs. 302/3 as /6 paisa) bestowed during the Nawabi period and the properties in Sholepur and Bahoranpur granted by the British Government , as revenue- free grants , confirmed by a decree in proprietary rights, revenue free now passed in favour of hereditary mutawallies who since then had been observing the terms of the grant and filing accounts before the S.D.O.

It was also claimed by the plaintiffs i.e. the Shia Central Board of Waqf, that its mutawalli was entitled to the supervision of the 'Mosque' as it was Shia Waqf and that the Chief Commissioner of Waqf had not sent the list of Sunni Waqf to them even though the latter had included the 'Mosque' in its list supposed to have been based on the publication in the Gazzette.

The Sunni Central Board of Waqf, in its defence statement asserted that the 'Mosque' was founded by Emperor Babur who was a Sunni and that its khatibs and muezzins had been of the same sect until much later on, one of the mutawallis in the pedigree list i.e. Mohamad Afzal became a convert to Shia during the closing peiod of the reign of the kings of Awadh, who were Shias. It was also

asserted that the 'Mosque' had always been used by the sunnis of Ayodhya for saying their Friday prayer and the Idgah as noted above, was quite independent of the 'Mosque' and was similarly used by the Sunnis for their Id and Baqrid prayers.

In the continued litigation between the above two parties, the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad, which tried thecase as a preliminary issue, vide-judgment dated 21.04.1966 held that " no valid notification under Section 5(1) of U.P. Muslim Waqf Act No.XIII of 1936 was ever made" relating to the specific disputed property. As such, the judge made it clear that the allege notification of 26.02.1994 did not specify the property in suit as waqf property and that it was of no legal effect. This finding became final between the two parties. Later on, in the case of Gulam Abbas V. State of U.P. ( vide AIR 1981 S C. 2196, pp. 2217-18, Paragraph 17,) in the case between the Shia and the Sunni Muslims, the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India also found the above mentioned notification of the U.P. Government dated 26.02.1944 to be " of doubtful validity and probative value," and held, it to be of no legal effect. As such, in view of the judgment of the Supreme Court, the said notification dated 26.02. 1944 was involved and that the suit No.29 of 1944 could not have been filed under Section 5(2) of the Waqf Act, with the result that the judgment in that case Date 30.03.1944 IN THAT SUIT IS WITHOUT JURISDICTION and the findings recorded therein with regard to the waqf issue are of no legal effect. The earliest regular Settlement of 1861 A.D. as well as the later reports confirm the fact that these had been prepared taking into consideration the past records of the Nawabi period as well. As a matter of fact, as per the original documents, the entire complex of Janmasthan is covered under khasra No.163 with 9 Plots, with total area of 5 bighas and 4 biswas. However, under column No.16 of Kaifiyat, it is stated that in the area of Janamasthan, there is one pacca well, whose number is recorded in Kahasra abadi and grave yard ( qabristhan). As distinct from the khasra kishtwar, in khasra abadi Nos. 431-456, (as recorded corresponding to No.163 of the former) shows abadi (Population) in this area. They do not mention the existence of any 'Mosque', though, in the kaifiyat they mention the prevalence of pacca graveyards Imli trees and makans (houses ) etc. in the campus. For 4 bighas and 13 biswas, the superior ownership of the land has been declared in the name of Sarkar Bahadur Nazul ( Government), and vide Khatauni No. I, 1878 11 biswas have been shown a muafi under mahal Azahar Hussain. In the settlement of 1301 Fasli/1893 A.D, in the khasra kishtwar, the same khasra number (163) remains, though the entire area is shown under 5 plots instead of 9 as previously in the 1861 settlement report Both in the khata Khatauni/khewat the Hindu Mahants of Janmasthan have been shown with subordinate proprietay rights as malikan-i- matehit along with their respective shares. But later on these nos. undergo a change during the Fasli 1344/45 /1936-37 AD Settlement Report but the position of1861 persists even in later Settlements effected from time to time during the 19th and 20th centuries. It is also clear that the area on which the structure of the ' Baburi Masjid' stood is a part of the Janmasthan and under the subordinate ownership (malik mataiht ) of a Hindu Mahant. This position was inherited by the early British administration from the earlier records of the Nawabi and the Mugal periods. However, in the Settlement Record of 1861 of the Muhafijkhana, certain

later alternations have been made wherein the name of Jama Masjid and the word muafi has been inserted. In Plot No.163/1 the words Jama Masjid , uafi and Azhar Hussain under coloumns No.2,3 and 4 respectively have been added. But the copies of the same document prepared during the same year available at the Tehsil office wherein only the word Jamai masjid has been added in column No.2 but not muafi and Azhar Hussain in column nos. 3 and 4 as against Muhafiz Khana Report clearly prove that the later additions are interpolations, done perhaps during the past few decades of the controversy. This is also confirmed by the fact that the Khasra Kishtwar records of the second Revenue Settlement effected in the year 1301 Fasli (1893 A.D.) do not carry out such alternations or additions. These records still show the area on which 'Baburi Masjid' had been earlier constructed as forming a part of the Janmasthan complex and there is no mention of any 'Mosque' nor any land assigned to it in muafi. It is evident that interpolations in the settlement Report of 1861 of the District Record Office ( Muhafz Khanna), Faizabad have been donefor a few other khasra kishtwar nos. as well. All this needs a through probe on scientific basis.

As already stated, according to the revenue Settlement effected in 1861 AD, the total area covered by khasra no.163 relating to Janmasthan has 9 distinct plots. There have been two more settlement operations since then. However, in the revenue settlements effected from time to time, the khasra/khewat/khata Khatauni Number as well as the nos. of plots undergo a change and there are also adjustments with the neighboring plots. But the table of equivalent past numbers and parts thereof along with the current numbers Fard Mutabaqat )is always appended and forms part of the Settlement Report. In the latest revenue records of 1397-99 Fasli/1989-92, the erstwhile Janmasthan complex has been shown in four khasra Nos. , i.e., 159,160-,146, and 147. The major portion of the Janmasthan complex comprising Ram Janmabhoomi, the so-called Baburi Masjid as well as the new Janmasthan falls under Khasra Nos. 159,146 (vide khata Khewat No.35) and 147 R wherein the names of the Mahants alongwith the areas in their ownership have been recorded. Only some portion of the complex falls under No.160 which too is shown under mahal Nazul Sarkar. In brief , Janmabhoomi/ ‘ Baburi Masjid’ have been recorded under No.159 and 160. The entire khasra No.159 has been entred in the ownership of ‘ Shri Dhanus Dhari Bhagwan Bara Asthan, Ajodhya’ whereas some portion falling in khasra no.160 has been recorded in theownership of Sarkar Nazul. There is no muafi/waqf of any type associated with the ‘Mosque’.

www.vadaprativada.com

The entire Revenue records dating from the first Settlement (1861 A.D.) have been examined. There is no record of any of ‘Baburi Masjid’ any where in the documents maintained by the Revenue Department of the Government of U.P. at the Collectorate and the Tehsil at Faizabad.

ADVERSE POSSESSION

Plaintiffs have claimed that even by adverse possession they have right to retain the property. Refuting the aforesaid documents Sri Ravi Shanker Prasad, Senior Advocate has submitted before this Court that adverse possession of debutter's property is not permissible in Hindu Law for following reasons:.

www.vadaprativada.com

Adverse possession of Debutter property is impermissible in Hindu Law :

1. From the holy scriptures that are foundation of the Hindu Law it is crystal clear that in respect of the property of learned Brahmin versed in Vedas, minor, women and Kings rule of adverse possession is not applicable according to Hindu Law, as also that a King cannot acquire title over the property of his subject by way of adverse possession. According to the Hindu Law, land or temple dedicated to deities were always gifted to the Deities through such Brahmins who were well versed in Vedas and Agamas by making them Sebaits. The rule of adverse possession was not applicable in respect of the properties of the Gods, Brahmins well versed in Vedas, Deities, Kings, women and minors. As such prior to passing of the Limitation Act by the British Government according to Hindu law the sacred shrine of Sri Ramajanamasthan was not liable be extinguished by way of adverse possession as the for time being in force i.e. Law of Shar also did not recognise adverse possession.

2. The Holy Scripture Sri Manusmriti XI.20 & XI.26 lays down law that the property of the Gods cannot be taken by dispossessing its custodian and who, seizes the property of the Gods, or the property of Brahmanas, lives, in the other world, upon the leavings of vultures. The oldest and most

Authoritative of the commentators of Manu, Medhatithi explaining the said verses says that 'Property of the gods' is the name given to all that belongs to such men of the three higher castes as are disposed to perform sacrifices. 'Property of the Brahmana' is the name that is applied to the belongings of even such Brahmanas as are not disposed to perform sacrifices. English translation of the said verse 11.26 as well as Medhatithi's commentary thereon from page nos. 357-358 from Manusmriti Vol-7 translated by Ganganath Jha and published by Motilal Banarasidass Publishers Private Limited, Delhi 2nd Edn. 1999 reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "The property of persons given to perform sacrifices the Learned regard as ' the property of the Gods;' while the properties of those who do not perform sacrifices is described as ' the property of Demons.'
> ( Manusmriti-11.20)
>
> Bhasya.
>
> This also is a declamatory declaration in support of the teaching that ' no property shall be taken from men possessed of good qualities, but there is no harm if it is taken from those devoid of qualities.'
> ( Commentary on Manusmriti-11.20)

> "The sinful man who, through covetousness, seizes the property of the Gods, or the property of Brahmanas, lives, in the other world, upon the leavings of vultures"
>
> ( Manusmriti-11.26)
>
> Bhasya.
>
> 'Property of the gods' is the name given to all that belongs to such men of the three higher castes as are disposed to perform sacrifices. 'Property of the Brahmana' is the name that is applied to the belongings of even such Brahmanas as are not disposed to perform sacrifices.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is in this sense that the verse may be construed:
As a matter of fact however Verse 20 above, which says –
The property of those disposed to perform sacrifices the wise call the 'property of the gods' etc.' – is purely declamatory, and not meant to provide the definition of technical terms; like such terms as 'theft' and the like. For this reason we proceed to explain it differently.
That wealth which has been set apart as to be spent for the gods, in the performance of sacrifices and other such acts, is 'the property of the gods' ; as direct ownership is not possible for the gods. In fact the gods never make use of any property, by their own wish; nor are they found to be actually taking care of any property; and it is where all this is found that property is said in ordinary life to belong to a person. Hence the name 'property of the gods' must apply to that which has been set apart as to be used on behalf of the gods,- with such formula as 'this is no longer mine, it is the god's.' And this can refer to only what has been enjoined as to be offered to Agni and other deities at the Darsha-purnamasa and other sacrifices; and it is merely on the basis of the custom of cultured people that it can be applied, only figuratively, to what is offered at sacrifices to Durga and other deities (which latter are not enjoined in the Veda).
"In the ordinary world, it is property dedicated to the four-armed and other images in temples that is called 'the property of the gods;' and it is only right that in the interpretation of scriptures we should accept that that meaning of a word in which it is used in ordinary parlance."

( Commentary on Manusmriti-11.26)

3. The Holy Scripture Sri Brihashpati Smriti (compiled in the book 'Ashtadas Smriti', 1st Edition, 1891 revised and enlarged Edn. 1990 published by Nag Prakasahak, Delhi) says that who confiscate the land endowed by him or others the confiscator of land taking birth as a worm being roasted in stool of dogs along with his manes for sixty thousand years; and the confiscator (of a grant), or he who assents (to an act of confiscation), shall dwell in same but one hell. Brahmins' property is such a poison which kills sons and grandsons of the confiscator. Confiscation of the Debutter Property causes destruction of soul and clan. Who did not inform the King about such usurpation of land, he invites sin of killing of Brahmin and the King who did not prevent usurpation of land in spite of being informed by the Brahmin, he is known as assassinator of Brahmins. Relevant slokes numbers 25, 26, 28, 29, 46, 52, 67 and 68 of the said book read as follows:

4. The Holy scripture Sri Brihashpati Smriti (contained in Vol.33 of the Sacred Books of the East titled as 'The Minor Law Books' edited by F. Max Muller & translated by Julius Jolly, 1st Edition, 1889 reprinted Edn. 1988 published by Motilal Banarsidass, Delhi)) in its Chapter-IX says that the wealth possessed by a son-in-law, a learned Brahmin, or by the King or his Ministers does not become legitimate property for them even after a lapse of a very long period. Even slight measure of possession of a grant keeps title alive. By way of possession no one acquires ownership over the property of a King or learned Brahmin or an idiot or infant. Translation of relevant slokes being nos.12, 13, 14, 18, 21, 22 and 30 read as follows:

> "12. Such wealth as is possessed by a son-in-law, a learned Brahman, or by the king or his ministers, does not become legitimate property for them after the lapse of a very long period even.
> 13. Forcible means must not be resorted to by the present occupant or his son, in maintaining possession of the property of an infant, or of a learned Brahman, or of that which has been legitimately inherited from a father, > 14. Nor (in maintaining possession) of cattle, a woman, a slave, or other (property). This is a legal rule.
> 18. When a village, field, or garden is referred to in one and the same grant, they are (considered to be) possessed of all of them though possession be held of part of them only. (On the other hand) that title has no force which is not accompanied by a slight measure of possession even.
> 21. Female slaves can never be acquired by possession, without a written title; nor (does possession create ownership) in the case of property belonging to a king, or to a learned Brahman, or to an idiot, or infant.
> 22. It is not by mere force of possession that land becomes a man's property; a legitimate title also having been proved, it is converted into property by both (possession and title), but not otherwise.
> 30. He whose possession has passed through three lives and has been inherited from his ancestors cannot be deprived of it, unless a previous grant should be in existence (in which the same property has been granted to a different person by the king)."

Prakashan, Varanasi, Edn. 1998) in its fourth chapter says that on the basis of adverse possession no one can acquire ownership over the mortgaged land, frontier land of a village, minor's property, pledge, women's property, King's property or the property of the Brahmin who recites Vedas (Shrotriya). Sloke 225 of the said chapter along with its translation reads as follows:

6. The Holy Scripture Sri Naradasmriti (compiled in the book 'The Minor Law Books' edited by F. Max Muller & translated by Richard W. Lariviere, 1st Edition, 1889 reprinted Edn. 1988 published by Motilal Banarsidass, Delhi) lays down that a learned Brahmin's property, the King's property etc. are not lost through possession. The King should punish that sinner who has possession even for hundreds of years without title, as if he was a thief. The translation of the relevant sloke nos.73 and 76 read as follows:

> "73. A pledge, a boundary, the property of children, unsealed and sealed deposits, women, the king's property, and a learned brahmana's property are not lost through possession.

76. If there is possession but no title, in that case the absence of a title, not the possession, is conclusive."

7. The Holy Scripture Sri Manusmriti (with the Commentary of Medhatithi, translated by Ganganath Jha & published by Motilal Banarasi Dass Publishers Pvt. Ltd.) in its 8th chapter inter alia says that the property of a Vedic Scholar is not lost by adverse possession. Relevant sloke nos. 149 of the said chapter along with commentary of Medhatithi and its English translation read as follows:

"149. A pledge, a boundary, minor's property, a deposit, a property enjoyed by favour, women, king's property, and the property of a vedic scholar are not lost by adverse possession."

8. The Holy Scripture Sri Yajnavalkya Smriti (with Mitakshara commentary and Hindi translation published by Chaukhambha Sanskrit Samsthan, Varanasi, Edn. 1994) in its chapter II lays down that the title of the property of Shrotriya i. e. the learned Brahmin versed in Veda as well as minor's property etc. cannot be lost by way of adverse possession, which is reproduced as follows:

The aforesaid rule of non applicability of rule of adverse possession in respect of Debutter property was all along being complied by Hindu Kings which is very much apparent from various inscriptions of the Kings of ancient and medieval periods. व्याख्या—भूमि देय नहीं है। किस हेतु से? खेतों के स्वामी मनुष्य देखे जाते हैं। सम्पूर्ण पृथिवीगोलक के नहीं [देखे जाते हैं]। (आक्षेप) जो सार्वभौम [राजा] है वह देगा (=भूमि का दान करेगा)। (समाधान) वह भी नहीं देगा, ऐसा हम कहते हैं। किस हेतु से? जितने भोग से सार्वभौम राजा भूमि का स्वामी होता है उतने से अन्य भी स्वामी होता है। उसमें कुछ विशेष नहीं है। सार्वभौम राजा का यह अधिक है, जो यह पृथिवी में उत्पन्न हुए व्रीहि आदि के रक्षण से प्राप्त किसी भाग का स्वामी होता है, उसमें रहने वाले जो मनुष्य हैं उनसे, सब प्राणियों के धारण गमन आदि जो अन्य भूमिकृत [व्यापार है] उसमें स्वामित्व के प्रति कोई विशेष नहीं है। इससे भूमि देय नहीं है।

अर्थात् राजमार्ग, चत्वर, देवादि स्थानसहित अखण्डभूमिका दान नहीं हो सकता; क्योंकि वह सबकी है। यद्यपि यहां कुछ लोगोंने इसी आधारपर यह भी सिद्ध किया है कि भूमि किसी व्यक्तिकी नहीं होती, किंतु वह समाजकी होती है, इसीसे उसका दान नहीं हो सकता, किंतु पूर्वापर देखनेसे यह गलत सिद्ध होता है। उसका अभिप्राय इतना ही है कि चत्वर, राजमार्गादिसहित भूमिका दान नहीं हो सकता, क्योंकि हो सकता है कि प्रतिग्रहीता राजमार्गमें ही खेत, उद्यान बनावे और दूसरोंको चलनेसे रोके। अतः अखण्ड भूमण्डलका दान नहीं हो सकता। हां, देवस्थान, चत्वर, राजमार्गादि छोड़कर समस्त

11. The Satpath Brahman commands that King cannot gift or donate the land of the Brahmins as to the sacrificial fee, from which it is crystal clear that the Debutter property which was all along being held by the Brahmin sebait for service worship of Deities for and on behalf of the Deities was not within the proprietorship of the King. The relevant extract from the Satpath Brahman XIII.6.2.18 translated by Julius Eggeling, Edited by F. Maxmuller and published by Motilal Banarsidass Publishers Pvt. Ltd., Delhi, reprinted Edn. 2002 of 1st Edn. 1900 being volume 44 of the series Sacred Books from the East reads as follows:

> "18. Now as to the sacrificial fees. What there is towards the middle of the kingdom other than the land and the property of the Brahma*n*a, but including the men, of that the eastern quarter belongs to the Hot*ri*, the southern to the Brahman, the western to the Adhvaryu, and the northern to the Udgat*ri*; and the Hot*ri*kas share this along with them."

It means land and property of Brahmins which includes

debutter property can not be gifted by the King as it is alwas under the ownership of almighty or revenue free but revenue of the land and tax on the properties of other three Varnas was within the purview of the King's gift.

12. The Holy Scripture Sri Bandhayana Dharmasutra (1.18.1,14,15,16) Says that King is entitled for 1/6th taxes for protecting His subjects. Tax should not be oppressive. The King can not appropriate property of Brahmin even he has disappeared. Here according to interpretation of Manu by Medhatithi, the property of Brahmin means property given to the Brahmin for performing service and worship of deities. From this provision it is crystal clear that in respect of Debutter Property according to Hindu Law provision of Adverse Possession or Doctrine of Escheat were not applicable. Sutra nos. 1,14,15 & 16 of 18th Khanda's Pratham Prashna of Sri Baudhayan Dharm Sutra from page 233 of the book "DHARMSUTRAS The Law Codes of Apastamba, Gautama, Baudhayana, and Vasistha" annotated and translated by Patrick Olivelle reprinted edn.2003 published by Motilal Banarasidass Publishers Pvt. "When the owner has disappeared, the king should look after his estate for one year, after which he may appropriate it, so long as it does not belong to a Brahmin."

(BAUDHAYANA DHARMASUTRA 1.18.16)

13. The Holy Sacred Scripture Sri Mahabharata lays down that it is duty of the King to protect the people. King should realize 6th part as tax and act in such a way that his subjects may not feel the pressure of want. The King who does not act in accordance with the scripture fails to earn wealth and religious merit. The King who thoughtfully oppresses his subject by levying taxes not sanctioned by the scriptures, is said to wrong his own-self. By protecting a kingdom properly and ruling it by the aid of judicious men a King may succeed in always obtaining much wealth. The King adopting virtuous behaviour should protect his subjects. Protection of the subject is the highest duty of the King, since compassion to all creatures and protecting them from injury is said to be the highest merit. The merit of the King earned by protecting his subjects rightly for a single day is such that he enjoys this reward for 10,000 years. After subjugating dominions of other King the King should say to all the people that "I am your King and shall always protect you." If the people accept him as their King, there need not be any fighting. Relevant extracts from page nos. 119-20,157-59 & 206 of Volume III of "The Mahabharata" of Sri Krishna-Dwaipayana Vyasa Translated into English prose from the Original Sanskrit Text by Kisari Mohan Ganguli 3rd Edn. 2004 Published by Munshiram Manoharlal Publishers Pvt. The divine Kavi (Usanas) of large eyes and austere penances, the thousand-eyed Indra, and Manu the son of Prachetas, the divine Bhadrawaja, and the sage Gaurasiras, all devoted to Brahma and utterers of Brahma, have composed treatises on the duties of Kings. All of them praise the duty of protection, O foremost of virtuous persons in respect of kings. Realising this just tribute and governing the kingdom properly the king should, with heedfulness, act in such a way that his subjects may not feel the pressure of want. Men become deeply devoted to that king who discharges the duty of protection properly, who is endued with liberality, who is steady in the observance of righteousness, who is vigilant, and who is free from lust and hate. Persons conversant with duties regard that to be the highest merit of the king, when, engaged in protecting all creatures, the king displays compassion towards them. The in a king incurs by neglecting for a single day to protect hi subjects from fear a thousand year. The merit a king earns by protecting his subjects righteously for a single day is such that he enjoys its reward in heaven for ten thousand years. All those regions that are acquired by persons leading duly the Garhasthya, the Brahmacharya, and the Vanaprastha modes of life, are soon acquired by only protecting his subjects righteously. Do thou, O sor of Kunti, observe with great care this duty (of protection). Thou shalt then obtain the reward of righteousness and no grief and pain will be thine. Thou shalt, O son of pandu obtain great prosperity in heaven. Merit like this is impossible to be acquired by persons that are not kings."

16. History of Kings of Kashmir Rajtarigini of Kalhana written in 1148 A.D. records that King Chandrapid did not forcefully acquire land of a leather worker for completion of Tribhuvanasvamin's temple and when the said leather worker put condition that if the King would go to his house and ask for handing over said land, only then he would give land to the King; the judicious King complied with said condition and after purchasing said land the King consecrated the image of Kesava as Tribhuvanasvamin. From which instance it is clear that neither Hindu Kings were owners of the land of the subject people nor there was scriptural sanction to erect Temple on forcefully acquired others' land. Relevant extracts from page 123 of the Rajtarigini, written by Kalhana in the year 1148 translated into English by Ranjit Sitaram Pandit, and published by Sahitya Akademi reprint 1990, 1st published in 1935) read as follows:

> "By that king, who showed the way of justice, was established legal procedure, free from laxity as the sun wards off the Mandehas from his diurnal course.
> If the brake is applied to this narrative in the recital of

www.vadaprativada.com

his virtues, it is in order to check prolixity but not because so much only was available.

When he began the construction of the temple of Tribhuvanasvamin, a certain leather worker would not give up his hut which was on the suitable site.

Though he had been constantly promised money by the officials in charge of the new construction he, who was in the grip of his native obstinacy, did not brook the laying down of the measuring line.

Thereupon they approached the lord of the earth and reported this matter, he, however, held them to be at fault but not that tanner.

He exclaimed, “Fie on their lack of foresight that they should, without first having asked him, have entered upon the new construction.”

Stop the construction or build somewhere else; by seizing the land of another who would tarnish an act of piety!

If we ourselves, who are the judges of what is right and unright, enforce procedure which is unlawful who should tread the path which is according to law.

While the king was speaking in this wise, a messenger sent by the cabinet of ministers on behalf of that shoemaker arrived and prayed.

He wishes to see the liege-lord but he says, “If it is not the correct thing for me to enter the hall of audience then let this be during the hour of the vestibule session.

The next day he was given an audience by the king outside and was asked, “ why art thou the sole hindrance in our work of piety.

If that house appeals to thee as charming them thou mayst apply for one better than that or in the alternative for a large sum of money” thus it was put to him.

Thereupon to the king who remained silent the tanner, who was as it were endeavouring to gauge the measure of his probity the lines of rays from his gleaming teeth, prayed.

‘O King! For what I am about to submit which is straight from the heart, you should not be prejudiced since you are the judge in this matter.

I am not less than a dog nor is the king greater than Ramchandra; why then do the councilors to-day get agitated, as it were, at this private talk between the two of us?”

In the mundane existence the body of the being, which has had its birth, is a fragile armour and is fastened with only to claps called the instinct of self and the possessory instinct.

As in the case of Your Highness who is resplendent with bracelets, armlets, necklaces and the like we, too, who own nothing are proud of our own body.
Just as much as this palace, joyous with the gleaming stucco, is to your Majesty, the cottage, where the window is made of the mouth of an earthen pot is to me.
Since my birth this little cottage has been the witness, like a mother, of both happiness and unhappiness; I could not bear to see it today leveled to the ground.
The distress of mankind at the seizure of their dwelling-house, either an immortal fallen from the Vimana or a king deposed from sovereignty is capable of describing it.
Notwithstanding this, if after coming to my dwelling Your Majesty were to ask for it, yielding to the rule of good manners it would be the proper thing for me to give it.'
When he had given the reply in this way, the king after going to his place purchased the cottage with money; there is no pride for those who are seekers after bliss.
And the leather worker spoke to him at that place with hands folded hollow, "O King! Yielding to another under the compelling influence of the Law is proper on your part.
As in the past that of Pandu's son by Dharma in the form of a dog, so by me who am an Untouchable has been tested today the righteousness in your case.
Hail to you! Long may you live to exhibit such a series of upright acts according to law ift to be relied upon by the law-officers."
In this manner the King, whose conduct was stainless, sanctified the land by the consecration of the image of Kesava as Tribhuvanasvamin."

(Rajtarangini.4.53-78 Ibid. p.121-123)

He has further invited the attention of this Court that since the birth place of the deity if there is destruction of image it makes no difference because Janam Asthan shall be treated to be an idol and it is the juristic entity. He has further submitted that idol will be supposed to be the minor accordingly there cannot be any adverse possession against a minor i.e a deity. He has further argued that Janam Asthan absolutely is a religious place and the dedication is complete and in case of a Dev Asthan temple properties dedicated for religious uses are called a debutters property which means belonging to the deity. Deity is a perpetual minor and accordingly no adverse possession can be claimed against deity i.e. against Ram Janam Sthan in accordance with the Hindu jurisprudence and present legal jurisprudence. He has further submitted that an idol i.e. the birth place is a juridical person. Worshipers of an idol are its beneficiary. He has further submitted that persons who go for the purpose of devotion and prayers to Janam Sthan according to Hindu law and religion have a greater and deeper interest in Janam Sthan i.e. a deity and more than servant who serves there for pecuniary purposes like Shebait. Accordingly there cannot be any adverse possession against the deity as claimed by the plaintiff. On the contrary, the worshipers of idol who are provided with opportunity for acquiring spiritual benefits by worshiping at the Janam Sthan are real beneficiary and they have every right to protect the property of the deity. Idol is regarded as the owner of the endowed property and the real beneficiary the worshipers of the idol who have acquired spiritual benefits can pray that even after removal or replacement of idol or even after the damage of the property belonging to idol no adverse possession can be claimed against it.

Sri Ravi Shankar Prasad has further argued that the plaintiffs at para 11 of the plaint have claimed their title by adverse possession which is not permissible in law for two reasons;

(i) Birth place i.e. Sthan Ram Janam Bhoomi is itself a deity. There cannot be any adverse possession against a juridical person as it is not a property.

(ii) For claiming adverse possession it is necessary for the person to name the original owner of the property in this case.

Sri Ravi Shanker Prasad has further submitted that since Ram Janam Bhoomi, is a deity and has not been arrayed as party, the suit is bad for non-joinder of the necessary party. Secondly the plaintiffs have not referred in the plaint as to who is the original owner of the property. Thus the suit is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone.

The concept of adverse possession is based on the facts of dispossession of owner and gaining of legal possession by the dispossessor and negligence on the part of the owner to seek remedial action within a prescribed time. The elements of adverse possession are that the possession is actual, open, notorious, exclusive, hostile, under cover of claim or right and continuous and uninterrupted for the statutory period. In this case the plaintiffs have not furnished any detail as to how their adverse possession based on the fact of dispossession of the owner. Plaintiffs' have not mentioned as to who is the real owner of the property. It has also

not been pleaded that the possession of the plaintiff is open, notorious, exclusive and hostile to the true owner. Plaintiffs have not claimed the property under the colour of the title and at present the property is not in the actual use and possession of the plaintiffs. On the contrary, it has been urged from the side of the defendants that the property in suit was never in exclusive use of the plaintiffs. Plaintiffs have not furnished the details as to who is the real owner. It has nowhere been mentioned in the plaint as and when the true owner was dispossessed and plaintiff occupied the property exclusively keeping out others and used it as if it was his own. There is no evidence worth the name that the plaintiff remained in possession without challenge or permission from the lawful owner. Here the defendants claimed that charitable religious institutions which is a deity cannot remain under the possession of the plaintiffs and cannot be termed as adverse possession. It is not the case of the plaintiffs that they entered and used the land without the permission of the true owner. Thus, according to the plaintiffs, they are not civil trespassers on the property and have taken the property by evicting the true owner. In this context, it transpires that the property in suit is said to be a Nazul property which belongs to the State and now the plaintiffs claimed their dispossession from the property from 1949. Adverse possession is sometimes called squatter's rights. If the squatter abandons the property or is removed from the property even after a long possession, he loses the benefit of that possession. If he

www.vadaprativada.com

retakes the possession then he has to remain in the property for a full period through which he can acquire any right over the same. In this case it is admitted to the plaintiffs that they have been ousted from the property in suit in the year 1949 and thereafter the property in suit was demolished in 1992 and they had no control over the property. Consequently, plaintiffs have failed to substantiate the right of adverse possession over the land which is entered in Revenue record as Government land. The plaint averment implies that someone else is the owner of the property. Revenue record reveals that the Government is the owner of the property. Plaintiffs claim adverse possession against the Government even without remaining in possession over the property in suit. Thus through the provisions of limitation Act also dispossession cannot be cured and they cannot be to have perfected adverse possession against the Government. Mere possession for a long time does not mature into adverse possession. Defendants too claimed that they have perfected their rights by adverse possession. They have also not denied that the title belongs to the Government and the Central Government has acquired the property. Hindus claim that since the possession for religious purposes shall be deemed to be the possession of a deity and right from the very beginning the deity was holding the property, accordingly they have the right to retain the property. Thus they have come with two pleas;

(i) The deity is the owner of the property which is minor and

it cannot be ousted from the sacred place by the defendants.

(ii) The defendants cannot be the real owner of the property and claimed adverse possession against the land which was basically sovereign land.

Needless to say that Ayodhya and Ramkot belong to emperor Dashrath who was a sovereign King. Thereafter the property passed in the hands of charitable trust and remained under the control of the temple, the same was destroyed and without any formal sanction under the law by way of possession by dispossessing Hindu the plaintiff claim adverse possession. Thus, to my mind the plaintiffs have failed to prove adverse possession.

Sri P.N. Mishra, Adv. has vehemently argued that as the disputed land is Nazul Land and the plaintiffs have failed to produce any registered lease deed, they cannot claim any relief based on title for following reasons:-

1. Oudh was annexed on 13th February, 1856 before the summary settlement could be completed, mutiny broke out in Lucknow on 30th May, 1857, and the authority of the British Government come to a standstill, the entire records so far prepared were destroyed. After the furies of the mutiny were over and the British Government was able to re-control the Province, Lord Canning, issued a proclamation on 15th March, 1859, confiscating all proprietary rights in the soil of the Province.

2. The disputed land has been recorded as Nazul land which term has been elaborately dealt with in (1998) 1 UPLBEC 114 (Satya Narain Kapoor v. State of U.p. & Ors.) by the Hon'ble High Court Allahabad and which has been appreciated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in (2004) 8 SCC 630 (State of U.P. v. Satya Narain Kapoor). In the above mentioned judgment the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that the making of grants on lands which are possessed by the State is guided by the Government Grants Act, 1895. Relevant paragraph 36 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "36. For this purpose the meaning of nazul needs to be understood. What does nazul means as a concept? The making of grants on lands which are possessed by the State, whether the Union or the Provincial Government or even the Railway administration is guided by a legislation originally known as the Crown Grants Act, 1895, subsequently, the nomenclature was changed to be known as Government Grants Act, 1895. This is originally a central legislation. It has been applicable to this State when it was known as North Western provinces, Late United Provinces and today as Uttar Pradesh. It is also applicable with the amendment so made by the State legislature from time to time."

3. Section 2 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 says that Transfer of Property Act, 1882 will not apply to the government grants. The said Section 2 as reproduced in paragraph 37 of Satya Narain Kapoor v. State of U.P. & Ors. (supra) reads as follows:

> 2."Transfer of Property Act, 1882 not to apply to Government Grants.—Nothing in the Transfer of > Property Act, 1882, contained shall apply or be deemed ever to have applied to any grant or other transfer of land or of any interest therein heretofore made or hereafter to be made (by or on behalf of the Government) to, or in favour of, any person whomsoever, but every such grant and transfer shall be constructed and take effect as if the said Act had not been passed."

4. In AIR 1973 SUPREME COURT 2520 "State of U.P. v. Zahoor Ahmad" the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the effect of Section 2 of the Government Grants Act, 1895 is that in the construction of an instrument governed by the Government Grants Act, the Court shall construe such grant irrespective of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. It does not mean that all the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, are inapplicable. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that in respect of lease provisions contained in Ch.V of the Transfer of Property Act are applicable. Relevant paragraph 15 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "15. In the present case the High Court correctly found on the facts that the respondent after the determination of the leave held over. Even if the Government Grants Act applied Section 116 of the Transfer of Property Act was not rendered inapplicable. The effect of Section 2 of the Government Grants Act is that in the construction of an instrument governed by the Government Grants Act the court shall construe such grant irrespective of the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act. It does not mean that all the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act are inapplicable. To illustrate, in the case of a grant under the Government Grants Act Section 14 of the Transfer of Property Act will not apply because Sec-tion 14 which provides what is known as the > rule against perpetuity will not apply by reason of the provisions in the Government Grants Act The grant shall be construed to take effect as if the Transfer of Property Act does not apply."

5. Section 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 says that a lease of immovable property from year to year or for any term exceeding one year, or reserving a yearly rent, can be made only by a registered instrument. Relying on said provision of law, it is submitted that as no registered lease deed has been produced by the plaintiffs and in the government record the disputed land is recorded as nazul land inference can be drawn that after confiscation of the proprietary right of the holders in 1859 the government became superior proprietor of the disputed land and Sri Ramlala became tenant on hold. As the state government vide paragraph 1 of its written statement filed in the instant suit has given up its right by opting not to contest the suit, the status quo ante came into existence and the Lord of Universe Sri Ramlala became proprietor of the disputed land. Relevant paragraph 1 of the written statement of the state government are reproduced as follows:

> "1/ That the Govt. is not interested in the properties in dispute and as such the petitioners don't propose to contest the suit."
> (Extract from the written Statement of the State)

Definition of the property as given in Section 3(26) of General Clauses Act, 1897, Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and Section 2(6)(9) of the Registration Act, 1908 read as follows:

"attached to the earth" means—

(a) rooted in the earth, as in the case of trees and shrubs;

(b) imbedded in the earth, as in the case of walls or buildings; or

(c) attached to what is so imbedded for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached;

"actionable claim" means a claim to any debt, other than a debt secured by mortgage of immovable property or by hypothecation or pledge of movable property, or to any beneficial interest in movable property not in the possession, either actual or constructive, of the claimant, which the Civil Courts recognise as affording grounds for relief, whether such debt or beneficial interest be existent, accruing, conditional or contingent;

"a person is said to have notice" of a fact when he actually knows that fact, or when but for wilful abstention from an enquiry or search which he ought to have made, or gross negligence, he would have known it.

Explanation I.—Where any transaction relating to immovable property is required by law to be and has been effected by a registered instrument, any person acquiring such property or any part of, or share or interest in, such property shall be deemed to have notice of such instrument as from the date of registration or, where the property is not all situated in one sub-district, or where the registered instrument has been registered under sub-section (2) of Section 30 of the Indian Registration Act, 1908 (XVI of 1908) from the earliest date on which any memorandum of such registered instrument has been filed by any Sub-Registrar within whose sub-district any part of the property which is being acquired, or of the property wherein a share or interest is being acquired, is situated:

Provided that—

(1) the instrument has been registered and its registration completed in the manner prescribed by the Indian Registration Act, 1908 (XVI of 1908) and the rules made thereunder,

(2) the instrument of memorandum has been duly entered or filed, as the case may be, in books kept under Section 51 of that Act, and

(3) the particulars regarding the transaction to

7. In AIR 1976 SC 1485 (Vishwa Vijay Bharat. V. Fakhrul Hassan) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that presumption of correctness can apply only to genuine entries in the revenue records not forged or fraudulent entries. Fraud and forged rob a document of its legal effect. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that as the entries in the revenue

www.vadaprativada.com

records relied on by the plaintiffs have been found forged, fabricated and interpolated in its scientific examination and analysis by Forensic Science Laboratory, U.P., Lucknow as such the revenue records in its present interpolated condition cannot be relied on but can be considered a piece of evidence in the light of the report of the Forensic Science Laboratory, U.P., wherefrom it becomes crystal clear that originally in revenue record also Sri Janamsthan was recorded not Jama Masjid. It is noteworthy that even in interpolated revenue record Babri Mosque did not find place. Relevant paragraph no.14 & 15 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "14. It is true that the entries in the revenue record ought, generally, to be accepted at their face value and courts should not embark upon an appellate inquiry into their correctness. But the presumption of correctness can apply only to genuine, not forged or fraudulent, entries. The distinction may be fine but it is real. The distinction is that one cannot challenge the correctness of what the entry in the revenue record states but the entry is open to the attack that it was made fraudulently or surreptitiously. Fraud and forgery rob a document of all its legal effect and cannot found a claim to possessory title.
> 15. In Amba Prasad v. Mahboob Ali Shah, (1964) 7 SCR 800 = (AIR 1965 SC 54), it was held by this Court that Section 20 of the U. P. Act 1 of 1951 does not require proof of actual possession and that its purpose is to eliminate inquiries into disputed possession by acceptance of the entries in the Khasra or Khatauni of 1356 Fasli. While commenting on this decision, this Court observed in Sonawati v. Sri Ram, (1968) 1 SCR 617, 620 = (AIR 1968SC 466, 468) that "the Civil Court in adjudging a claim of a person to the rights of an adhivasi is not called upon to make an enquiry whether the claimant was actually in possession of the land or held the right as an

> occupant: cases of fraud apart, the entry in the record alone is relevant." We have supplied the emphasis in order to show that the normal presumption of correctness attaching to entries in the revenue record, which by law constitute evidence of a legal title, is displaced by proof of fraud."

Sri P.N. Mishra, Adv. has submitted that ingredients of adverse possession neither have been pleaded nor have been proved, plaintiffs can not be allowed to claim relief based on title under or through emperor Babur on one hand while on other hand seeking claim denying the title of said emperor moreover being inconsistent plea of adverse possession the instant suit is liable to be dismissed on following grounds:-

1. In AIR 2009 SC 103 (*Hemaji Waghaji Jat. v. Bhikhabhai Khengarbhai Harijan & Ors.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that a plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner. It is important to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession. Relying on said judgment of the Hon'ble

Supreme Court it is submitted that in their plaints, the plaintiffs have not stated that on what date they came into possession, what was the nature of their possession, whether the factum of possession was known to the other party and how long their possession has continued and their possession was upon and undisturbed. In the instant case the plaintiffs having failed to plead the case of adverse possession and having miserably failed to establish title to the suit property, the suit for declaration and possession is not fit for being decreed on the ground of adverse possession. Relevant paragraph Nos.11, 15, 18, 32, 34 and 36 of the said judgment read as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "11. We deem it appropriate to deal with some important cases decided by this court regarding the principle of adverse possession.
> 15. The facts of R. Chandevarappa and Others v. State of Karnataka and Others (1995) 6 SCC 309 are similar to the case at hand. In this case, this court observed as under :-
> "The question then is whether the appellant has perfected his title by adverse possession. It is seen that a contention was raised before the Assistant Commissioner that the appellant having remained in possession from 1968, he perfected his title by adverse possession. But the crucial facts to constitute adverse possession have not been pleaded. Admittedly the appellant came into possession by a derivative title from the original grantee. It is seen that the original grantee has no right to alienate the land. Therefore, having come into possession under colour of title from original grantee, if the appellant intends to plead adverse possession as against the State, he must disclaim his title and plead his hostile claim to the knowledge of the State and that the State had not taken any action thereon within the prescribed period. Thereby, the appellant's possession

would become adverse. No such stand was taken nor evidence has been adduced in this behalf. The counsel in fairness, despite his research, is unable to bring to our notice any such plea having been taken by the appellant."

18. In Karnataka Board of Wakf v. Govt. of India (2004) 10 SCC 779 at para 11, this court observed as under :-

"In the eye of the law, an owner would be deemed to be in possession of a property so long as there is no intrusion. Non-use of the property by the owner even for a long time won't affect his title. But the position will be altered when another person takes possession of the property and asserts a right over it. Adverse possession is a hostile possession by clearly asserting hostile title in denial of the title of the true owner. It is a well-settled principle that a party claiming adverse possession must prove that his possession is "nec vi, nec clam, nec precario", that is, peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that their possession is adverse to the true owner. It must start with a wrongful disposition of the rightful owner and be actual, visible, exclusive, hostile and continued over the statutory period."

The court further observed that plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show : (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession.

32. Reverting to the facts of this case, admittedly, the appellants at no stage had set up the case of adverse possession; there was no pleading to that effect, no issues were framed, but even then the trial court decreed the suit on the ground of adverse possession. The trial court judgment being erroneous and unsustainable was set aside by the first appellate court. Both the first appellate court and the High Court have categorically held that the appellant has

> miserably failed to establish title to the suit land, therefore, he is not entitled to the ownership. We endorse the findings of the first appellate court upheld by the High Court.
>
> 34. Before parting with this case, we deem it appropriate to observe that the law of adverse possession which ousts an owner on the basis of inaction within limitation is irrational, illogical and wholly disproportionate. The law as it exists is extremely harsh for the true owner and a windfall for a dishonest person who had illegally, taken possession of the property of the true owner. The law ought not to benefit a person who in a clandestine manner takes possession of the property of the owner in contravention of law. This in substance would mean that the law gives seal of approval to the illegal action or activities of a rank trespasser or who had wrongfully taken possession of the property of the true owner.
> 36. In our considered view, there is an urgent need of fresh look regarding the law on adverse possession. We recommend the Union of India to seriously consider and make suitable changes in the law of adverse possession. A copy of this judgment be sent to the Secretary, Ministry of Law and Justice, Department of Legal Affairs, Government of India for taking appropriate steps in accordance with law.

2. In AIR 1935 PC 53 (*Ejas Ali Qidwai & Ors. v. The Special Manager, Court of Wards, Balarampur Estate & Ors.) the Hon'ble Privy Council held that a person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed. In the said judgment it has also been held that the expression 'ordinary law' under Section 23 of the Oudh Estates Act of 1869 includes such customs as may be found to exist. In the instant case, the plaintiffs have failed to take the plea and prove by unequivocal evidence that their possession was hostile to the real owner which amounted to a denial of real owner's title to the property claimed. Be it mentioned herein that as the plaintiffs have not disclosed in their plaint the name of the real owners, they have failed to satisfy the first ingredients of adverse possession. As such, the suit is liable to be dismissed on this score alone. Relevant paragraph from page 56C1 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "Wazir Ali died, his son Hashmat Ali was an infant of tender years, and was unable to manage the estate. There was therefore an additional reason why Nawazish Ali, who satisfied the requirements of the family usage, should be entrusted with the management of the taluka. There can be little doubt that he obtained possession with the consent of all the persons interested in the estate, and his possession was, at its inception, merely permissive. It is not suggested that there was any subsequent change which converted it into adverse possession. The principle of law is firmly established that a person, who bases his title on adverse possession, must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed. This onus the appellants have failed to discharge. Neither the entry of Nawazish Ali's name in the revenue records as the owner of the taluka, nor his possession thereof, could, in the circumstances of the case, affect the title of the person or persons who had the right to inherit it. The acquisition of title by adverse possession was the only point urged in support of the appellants' claim to a share in the villages constituting the taluka, and in their Lordships' opinion that issue has been rightly decided against them.
> Their Lordships have still to determine the question of succession to the villages which, though not forming part of the original taluka, were included in > the mortgage deeds. These villages were acquired by the holders of the taluka on various occasions, and it was argued that they, being non-talukdari property, descended on the death of Asghar Ali, not to Iqbal Ali alone, but to all the persons who were the heirs of the deceased according to the Mahomedan law. As laid down by the twenty-third section of the Oudh Estates Act, succession to such property is regulated by the ordinary law, but the expression "ordinary law" includes such custom as may be found to exist. Now, the Courts in India have concurred in holding that the custom of the devolution of non-talukdari property upon a single heir has been established, and their Lordships cap see no valid reason for dissenting from that conclusion. The second list framed under S. 8 of the Act contains a recital of the family custom by which the estate is inherited by a single heir, but this recital is conclusive evidence only as to the talukdari property. As regards the other property, it merely raises a presumption in favour of the existence of the custom, but the presumption can be rebutted. The appellants however did not offer any evidence to show that the descent of the property other than the taluka was regulated by a different rule. No distinction appears to have been made between the taluka and the other property in the matter of succession, and both of them were treated in the same manner."

3. In AIR 2008 SC 346 (*Anna Kili. v. A. Vedanayagam & Ors.) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in respect of adverse possession not only animus possidendi must be shown to exist but the same must be shown to exist at commencement of possession. The claimant must continue in said capacity for the period prescribed under Limitation Act and mere long possession for a period of more than 12 years without anything more would not ripe into title. In the instant suit, the plaintiffs have neither proved the existence of animus possidendi at commencement of their possession

nor have they proved continuance of their possession in such capacity. The suit on the ground of adverse possession is liable to be dismissed. Be it mentioned herein that before the annexation of Oudh to British India of East India Company, the law of Shar was the law of the land and was in force and as Shar did not recognize adverse possession and limitation is alien to said law at least till 1856, they had no right to claim ownership on the basis of adverse possession. Be it mentioned herein that in paragraph 26 of the said judgment, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the person who is claiming benefit of Article 142 or 144 of the Limitation Act, 1908, he is bound to prove his title as also possession within 12 years preceding the date of the institution of the suit. Relevant paragraphs 22 and 26 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "22. Claim by adverse possession has two elements : (1) the possession of the defendant should become adverse to the plaintiff; and (2) the defendant must continue to remain in possession for a period of 12 years thereafter. Animus possidendi as is well known is a requisite ingredient of adverse possession. It is now a well settled principle of law that mere possession of the land would not ripen into possessory title for the said purpose. Possessor must have animus possidendi and hold the land adverse to the title of the true owner. For the said purpose, not only animus possidendi must be shown to exist, but the same must be shown to exist at the commencement of the possession. He must continue in said capacity for the period prescribed under the Limitation Act. Mere long possession, it is trite, for a period of more than 12 years without anything more do not ripen into a title.

> 26. We may also notice that this Court in M. Durai v. Muthu and Ors. [(2007) 3 SCC 114], noticed the changes brought about by Limitation Act, 1963, vis-a-vis, old Limitation Act, holding : 2007 AIR SCW 6248
> "The change in the position in law as regards the burden of proof as was obtaining in the Limitation Act, 1908 vis-a-vis the Limitation Act, 1963 is evident. Whereas in terms of Articles 142 and 144 of the old Limitation Act, the plaintiff was bound to prove his title as also possession within twelve years preceding the date of institution of the suit under the Limitation Act, 1963, once the plaintiff proves his title, the burden shifts to the defendant to establish that he has perfected his title by adverse possession."

4. In AIR 2007 SC 1753 (*P.T. Munichikkanna Reddy & Ors. v. Revamma & Ors.) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that adverse possession is a right which comes into play not just because someone looses his right to reclaim his property out of continuance and wilful negligence but also on the ground of possessor's positive intent to dispossess. As the right of property is not only a constitutional or statutory right but also a human right. It has also been held that intention to possession cannot be substituted for intention to dispossession which is essential to prove adverse possession. Thus, there must be intention to dispossess and it needs to be open and hostile enough to bring the same to the knowledge to give the owner an opportunity to object. Applying the said principle pronounced by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India, in the instant case we find that the plaintiffs have neither pleaded nor have proved by evidence that they had intention to dispossess the real owner as name of the real owner itself does not find place in the four corner of the plaint. As such the said suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraphs 12 and 32 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "12. This brings us to the issue of mental element in adverse possession cases-intention.
> 1. Positive Intention
> The aspect of positive intention is weakened in this case by the sale deeds dated 11.04.1934 and 5.07.1936. Intention is a mental element which is proved and disproved through positive acts. Existence of some events can go a long way to weaken the presumption of intention to dispossess which might have painstakingly grown out of long possession which otherwise would have sufficed in a standard adverse possession case. The fact of possession is important in more than one ways: firstly, due compliance on this count attracts limitation act and it also assists the court to unearth as the intention to dispossess.
> At this juncture, it would be in the fitness of circumstances to discuss intention to dispossess vis-a-vis intention to possess. This distinction can be marked very distinctively in the present circumstances.
> Importantly, intention to possess can not be substituted for intention to dispossess which is essential to prove adverse possession. The factum of possession in the instant case only goes on to objectively indicate intention to possess the land. As also has been noted by the High Court, if the appellant has purchased the land without the knowledge of earlier sale, then in that case the intention element is not of the variety and degree which is required for adverse possession to materialize.
> The High Court observed:
> "It is seen from the pleadings as well in evidence that the plaintiff came to know about the right of the defendants', only when disturbances were sought to be made to his possession."
>
> In similar circumstances, in the case of Thakur

www.vadaprativada.com

Kishan Singh (dead) v. Arvind Kumar [(1994) 6 SCC 591] this court held: 1994 AIR SCW 4082, Para 5

"As regards adverse possession, it was not disputed even by the trial court that the appellant entered into possession over the land in dispute under a licence from the respondent for purposes of brick-kiln. The possession thus initially being permissive, the burden was heavy on the appellant to establish that it became adverse. A possession of a co-owner or of a licencee or of an agent or a permissive possession to become adverse must be established by cogent and convincing evidence to show hostile animus and possession adverse to the knowledge of real owner. Mere possession for howsoever length of time does not result in converting the permissible possession into adverse possession. Apart from it, the Appellate Court has gone into detail and after considering the evidence on record found it as a fact that the possession of the appellant was not adverse."

The present case is one of the few ones where even an unusually long undisturbed possession does not go on to prove the intention of the adverse possessor. This is a rare circumstance, which Clarke LJ in Lambeth London Borough Council v. Blackburn (2001) 82 P and CR 494, 504 refers to:

"I would not for my part think it appropriate to strain to hold that a trespasser who had established factual possession of the property for the necessary 12 years did not have the animus possidendi identified in the cases. I express that view for two reasons. The first is that the requirement that there be a sufficient manifestation of the intention provides protection for landowners and the second is that once it is held that the trespasser has factual possession it will very often be the case that he can establish the manifested intention. Indeed it is difficult to find a case in which there has been a clear finding of factual possession in which the claim to adverse possession has failed for lack of intention."

On intention, The Powell v. Macfarlane (1977) 38 P and CR (Property, Planning and Compensation Reports) 452-472 is quite illustrative and categorical, holding in the following terms:

"If the law is to attribute possession of land to a person who can establish no paper title to possession, he must be shown to have both factual possession and the requisite intention to possess ('animus

www.vadaprativada.com

.....

If his acts are open to more than one interpretation and he has not made it perfectly plain to the world at large by his actions or words that he has intended to exclude the owner as best he can, the courts will treat him as not having had the requisite animus possidendi and consequently as not having dispossessed the owner.

.....

In my judgment it is consistent with principle as well as authority that a person who originally entered another's land as a trespasser, but later seeks to show that he has dispossessed the owner, should be required to adduce compelling evidence that he had the requisite animus possidendi in any case where his use of the land was equivocal, in the sense that it did not necessarily, by itself, betoken an intention on his part to claim the land as his own and exclude the true owner.

What is really meant, in my judgment, is that the animus possidendi involves the intention, in one's own name and on one's own behalf, to exclude the world at large, including the owner with the paper title if he be not himself the possessor, so far as is reasonably practicable and so far as the processes of the law will allow."

www.vadapratvada.com

Thus, there must be intention to dispossess. And it needs to be open and hostile enough to bring the same to the knowledge and plaintiff has an opportunity to object. After all adverse possession right is not a substantive right but a result of the waiving (willful) or omission (negligent or otherwise) of right to defend or care for the integrity of property on the part of the paper owner of the land. Adverse possession statutes, like other statutes of limitation, rest on a public policy that do not promote litigation and aims at the repose of conditions that the parties have suffered to remain unquestioned long enough to indicate their acquiescence.

While dealing with the aspect of intention in the Adverse possession law, it is important to understand its nuances from varied angles.

Intention implies knowledge on the part of adverse possessor. The case of Saroop Singh v. Banto and Others [(2005) 8 SCC 330] in that context held:

2005 AIR SCW 5314, Paras 27, 28

www.vadapratvada.com

"29. In terms of Article 65 the starting point of limitation does not commence from the date when the right of ownership arises to the plaintiff but commences from the date the defendants possession becomes adverse. (See Vasantiben Prahladji Nayak v. Somnath Muljibhai Nayak) 2004 AIR SCW 1704

30. Animus possidendi is one of the ingredients of adverse possession. Unless the person possessing the land has a requisite animus the period for prescription does not commence. As in the instant case, the appellant categorically states that his possession is not adverse as that of true owner, the logical corollary is that he did not have the requisite animus. (See Mohd. Mohd. Ali v. Jagadish Kalita, SCC para 21.)"

A peaceful, open and continuous possession as engraved in the maxim nec vi, nec clam, nec precario has been noticed by this Court in Karnataka Board of Wakf v. Government of India and Others [(2004) 10 SCC 779] in the following terms:

".....Physical fact of exclusive possession and the animus possidendi to hold as owner in exclusion to the actual owner are the most important factors that are to be accounted in cases of this nature. Plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show: (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession....."

It is important to appreciate the question of intention as it would have appeared to the paper-owner. The issue is that intention of the adverse user gets communicated to the paper owner of the property. This is where the law gives importance to hostility and openness as pertinent qualities of manner of possession. It follows that the possession of the adverse possessor must be hostile enough to give rise to a reasonable notice and opportunity to the paper

In Narne Rama Murthy v. Ravula Somasundaram and Others [(2005) 6 SCC 614], this Court held:

"However, in cases where the question of limitation is a mixed question of fact and law and the suit does not appear to be barred by limitation on the face of it, then the facts necessary to prove limitation must be pleaded, an issue raised and then proved. In this case the question of limitation is intricately linked with the question whether the agreement to sell was entered into on behalf of all and whether possession was on behalf of all. It is also linked with the plea of adverse possession. Once on facts it has been found that the purchase was on behalf of all and that the possession was on behalf of all, then, in the absence of any open, hostile and overt act, there can be no adverse possession and the suit would also not be barred by limitation. The only hostile act which could be shown was the advertisement issued in 1989. The suit filed almost immediately thereafter."

The test is, as has been held in the case of R. v. Oxfordshire County Council and Others, Ex Parte Sunningwell Parish Council [1999] 3 ALL ER 385; [1999] 3 WLR 160:

Bright v. Walker (1834) 1 Cr. M. and R. 211, 219, "openly and in the manner that a person rightfully entitled would have used it. . ." The presumption arises, as Fry J. said of prescription generally in Dalton v. Angus (1881) 6 App.Cas. 740, 773, from acquiescence.

The case concerned interpretation of section 22(1) of the Commons Registration Act 1965. Section 22(1) defined "town or village green" as including ".....land..... on which the inhabitants of any locality have indulged in [lawful] sports and pastimes as of right for not less than 20 years."

It was observed that the inhabitants' use of the land for sports and pastimes did not constitute the use "as of right". The belief that they had the right to do so was found to be lacking. The House held that they did not have to have a personal belief in their right to use the land. The court observed:

"the words 'as of right' import the absence of any of the three characteristics of compulsion, secrecy or licence 'nec vi, nec clam, nec precario', phraseology borrowed from the law of easements."

Later in the case of Beresford, R (on the application of) v. City of Sunderland [2003] 3 WLR 1306, [2004] 1 All ER 160 same test was referred to.

www.vadaprativada.com

Thus the test of nec vi, nec clam, nec precario i.e., "not by force, nor stealth, nor the license of the owner" has been an established notion in law relating to the whole range of similarly situated concepts such as easement, prescription, public dedication, limitation and adverse possession.
In Karnataka Wakf Board (Supra), the law was stated, thus:

"In the eye of law, an owner would be deemed to be in possession of a property so long as there is no intrusion. Non-use of the property by the owner even for a long time won't affect his title. But the position will be altered when another person takes possession of the property and asserts a right over it. Adverse possession is a hostile possession by clearly asserting hostile title in denial of the title of true owner. It is a well- settled principle that a party claiming adverse possession must prove that his possession is 'nec vi, nec clam, nec precario', that is, peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that their possession is adverse to the true owner. It must start with a wrongful disposition of the rightful owner and be actual, visible, exclusive, hostile and continued over the statutory period. (See : S M Karim v. Bibi Sakinal AIR 1964 SC 1254, Parsinni v. Sukhi (1993) 4 SCC 375 and D N Venkatarayappa v. State of Karnataka (1997) 7 SCC 567). Physical fact of exclusive possession and the animus possidendi to hold as owner in exclusion to the actual owner are the most important factors that are to be accounted in cases of this nature. Plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature 1993 AIR SCW 3606 1997 AIR SCW 2947 of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession."
2. Inquiry into the particulars of Adverse Possession

Inquiry into the starting point of adverse possession i.e. dates as to when the paper owner got dispossessed is an important aspect to be considered. In the instant case the starting point of adverse possession and other facts such as the manner in which the possession operationalized, nature of possession: whether open, continuous, uninterrupted or hostile possession - have not been disclosed. An observation has been made in this regard in S.M. Karim v. Mst. Bibi Sakina [AIR 1964 SC 1254]: Para 5

"Adverse possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and a plea is required at the least to show when possession becomes adverse so that the starting point of limitation against the party affected can be found. There is no evidence here when possession became adverse, if it at all did, and a mere suggestion in the relief clause that there was an uninterrupted possession for "several 12 years" or that the plaintiff had acquired "an absolute title" was not enough to raise such a plea. Long possession is not necessarily adverse possession and the prayer clause is not a substitute for a plea."

Also mention as to the real owner of the property must be specifically made in an adverse possession claim.

In Karnataka Wakf Board (Supra), it is stated:

"Plaintiff, filing a title suit should be very clear about the origin of title over the property. He must specifically plead it. In P Periasami v. P Periathambi (1995 ) 6 SCC 523 this Court ruled that - "Whenever the plea of adverse possession is projected, inherent in the plea is that someone else was the owner of the property." The pleas on title and adverse possession are mutually inconsistent and the latter does not begin to operate until the former is renounced. Dealing with Mohan Lal v. Mirza Abdul Gaffar (1996 ) 1 SCC 639 that is similar to the case in hand, this Court held: 1996 AIR SCW 306, Para 4

"As regards the first plea, it is inconsistent with the second plea. Having come into possession under the agreement, he must disclaim his right there under and plead and prove assertion of his independent hostile adverse possession to the knowledge of the transferor or his successor in title or interest and that the latter had acquiesced to his illegal possession during the entire period of 12 years, i.e., up to completing the

period his title by prescription nec vi, nec clam, nec precario. Since the appellant's claim is founded on Section 53-A, it goes without saying that he admits by implication that he came into possession of land lawfully under the agreement and continued to remain in possession till date of the suit. Thereby the plea of adverse possession is not available to the appellant.""
3. New Paradigm to Limitation Act

The law in this behalf has undergone a change. In terms of Articles 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act, 1908, the burden of proof was on the plaintiff to show within 12 years from the date of institution of the suit that he had title and possession of the land, whereas in terms of Articles 64 and 65 of the Limitation Act, 1963, the legal position has underwent complete change insofar as the onus is concerned: once a party proves its title, the onus of proof would be on the other party to prove claims of title by adverse possession. The ingredients of adverse possession have succinctly been stated by this Court in S.M. Karim v. Mst. Bibi Sakina [AIR 1964 SC 1254] in the following terms: Para 5

www.vadaprativada.com

".....Adverse possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and a plea is required at the least to show when possession becomes adverse so that the starting point of limitation against the party affected can be found....."
[See also M. Durai v. Madhu and Others 2007 (2) SCALE 309]

The aforementioned principle has been reiterated by this Court in Saroop Singh v. Banto and Others [(2005) 8 SCC 330] stating: 2005 AIR SCW 5314

"29. In terms of Article 65 the starting point of limitation does not commence from 2004 AIR SCW 1704 the date when the right of ownership arises to the plaintiff but commences from the date the defendants possession becomes adverse. (See Vasantiben Prahladji Nayak v. Somnath Muljibhai Nayak)
30. Animus possidendi is one of the ingredients of adverse possession. Unless the person possessing the land has a requisite animus the period for prescription does not commence. As in the instant case, the appellant categorically states that his possession is not

adverse as that of true owner, the logical corollary is that he did not have the requisite animus. (See Mohd. Mohd. Ali v. Jagadish Kalita, SCC para 21.)"
In Mohammadbhai Kasambhai Sheikh and Others v. Abdulla Kasambhai Sheikh [(2004) 13 SCC 385], this Court held:
".....But as has been held in Mahomedally Tyebally v. Safiabai the heirs of Mohammedans (which the parties before us are) succeed to the estate in specific shares as tenants-in-common and a suit by an heir for his/her share was governed, as regards immovable property, by Article 144 of the Limitation Act, 1908. Article 144 of the Limitation Act, 1908 has been materially re-enacted as Article 65 of the Limitation Act, 1963 and provides that the suit for possession of immovable property or any interest therein based on title must be filed within a period of 12 years from the date when the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff. Therefore, unless the defendant raises the defence of adverse possession to a claim for a share by an heir to ancestral property, he cannot also raise an issue relating to the limitation of the plaintiffs claim....."

www.vadaprativada.com

The question has been considered at some length recently in T. Anjanappa and Others v. Somalingappa and Another [(2006) 7 SCC 570], wherein it was opined : 2006 AIR SCW 4368

"The High Court has erred in holding that even if the defendants claim adverse possession, they do not have to prove who is the true owner and even if they had believed that the Government was the true owner and not the plaintiffs, the same was inconsequential. Obviously, the requirements of proving adverse possession have not been established. If the defendants are not sure who is the true owner the question of their being in hostile possession and the question of denying title of the true owner do not arise. Above being the position the High Court's judgment is clearly unsustainable....."

32. Are we to say that it is a sale with doubtful > antecedents (1 acre 23 Guntas) sought to be perfected or completed through adverse possession? But that aspect of the matter is not under consideration herein. As has already been mentioned, adverse possession is a right which comes into play not just because someone loses his right to reclaim the property out of continuous and willful neglect but also on account of possessor's positive intent to dispossess. Therefore it is important to take into account before stripping somebody of his lawful title, whether there is an adverse possessor worthy and exhibiting more urgent and genuine desire to dispossess and step into the shoes of the paper-owner of the property. This test forms the basis of decision in the instant case."

5. In 2006 AIR SCW 4368 (T. Ajasnappa & Ors. v. Sonalingappa & Anr.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that adverse possession means hostile possession which is exclusively or impliedly in denial of title of true owner. Even if defendants claim adverse possession, they still have to prove who is true owner if they are not sure who is true owner, the question of their being in hostile possession and question of denial of title of true owner do not arise. Relying on said Judgment it is submitted that the plaintiffs are not sure who is true owner of the suit property and also that they have failed to prove who is true owner, and as such, the instant suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph Nos.12 to 23 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "12. The concept of adverse possession contemplates a hostile possession i.e. a possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of the title of the true owner. Possession to be adverse must be possession by a person who does not acknowledge the other's rights but denies them. The principle of law is firmly established that a person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to denial of his title to the property claimed. For deciding whether the alleged acts of a person constituted adverse possession, the animus of the person doing those acts is the most crucial factor. Adverse possession is commenced in wrong and is aimed against right. A person is said to hold the property adversely to the real owner when that person in denial of the owner's right excluded him from the enjoyment of his property.

13. Possession to be adverse must be possession by a person who does not acknowledge the other's rights but denies them. It is a matter of fundamental principle of law that where possession can be referred to a lawful title, it will not be considered to be adverse. It is on the basis of this principle that it has been laid down that since the possession of one co-owner can be referred to his status as co-owner, it cannot be considered adverse to other co-owner. (See Vidya Devi v. Prem Prakash and Ors. 1995 (4) SCC 496). 1995 AIR SCW 2808

14. Adverse possession is that form of possession or occupancy of land which is inconsistent with the title of the rightful owner and tends to extinguish that person's title. Possession is not held to be adverse if it can be referred to a lawful title. The person setting up adverse possession may have been holding under the rightful Owner's title e.g. trustees, guardians, bailiffs or agents. Such persons cannot set up adverse possession.

15. "Adverse possession" means a hostile possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of title of the true owner. Under Article 65 of the Limitation Act, burden is on the defendants to prove affirmatively. A person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence i.e. possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed. In deciding whether the acts, alleged by a person, constitute adverse possession, regard must be had to the animus of the person doing those acts which must be ascertained from the facts and circumstances of each case. The person who bases his title on adverse possession, therefore, must show by clear and unequivocal evidence i.e. possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed. (See Annasaheb v. B.B. Patil AIR 1995 SC 895 at 902). 1995 AIR SCW 709, Para 12

16. Where possession could be referred to a lawful title, it will not be considered to be adverse. The reason being that a person whose possession can be referred to a lawful title will not be permitted to show that his possession was hostile to another's title. One who holds possession on behalf of another does not

by mere denial of that other's title make his possession adverse so as to give himself the benefit of the statute of limitation. Therefore, a person who enters into possession having a lawful title, cannot divest another of that title by pretending that he had no title at all.

17. An occupation of reality is inconsistent with the right of the true owner. Where a person possesses property in a manner in which he is not entitled to possess it, and without anything to show that he possesses it otherwise than an owner (that is, with the intention of excluding all persons from it, including the rightful owner), he is in adverse possession of it. Thus, if A is in possession of a field of B's, he is in adverse possession of it unless there is something to show that his possession is consistent with a recognition of B's title. (See Ward v. Carttar (1866) LR 1 Eq.29 ). Adverse possession is of two kinds, according as it was adverse from the beginning, or has become so subsequently. Thus, if a mere trespasser takes possession of A's property, and retains it against him, his possession is adverse ab initio. But if A grants a lease of land to B, or B obtains possession of the land as A's bailiff, or guardian, or trustee, his possession can only become adverse by some change in his position. Adverse possession not only entitled the adverse possessor, like every other possessor, to be protected in his possession against all who cannot show a better title, but also, if the adverse possessor remains in possession for a certain period of time produces the effect either of barring the right of the true owner, and thus converting the possessor into the owner, or of depriving the true owner of his right of action to recover his property and this although the true owner is ignorant of the adverse possessor being in occupation. (See Rains v. Buxion, 1880 (14) Ch D 537).

18. Adverse possession is that form of possession or occupancy of land which is inconsistent with the title of any person to whom the land rightfully belongs and tends to extinguish that person's title, which provides that no person shall make an entry or distress, or bring an action to recover any land or rent, but within twelve years next after the time when the right first accrued, and does away with the doctrine of adverse possession, except in the cases provided for

by Section 15. Possession is not held to be adverse if it can be referred to a lawful title.

19. According to Pollock, "In common speech a man is said to be in possession of anything of which he has the apparent control or from the use of which he has the apparent powers of excluding others".

20. It is the basic principle of law of adverse possession that (a) it is the temporary and abnormal separation of the property from the title of it when a man holds property innocently against all the world but wrongfully against the true owner; (b) it is possession inconsistent with the title of the true owner.

21. In Halsbury's 1953 Edition, Volume-I it has been stated as follows:
"At the determination of the statutory period limited to any person for making an entry or bringing an action, the right or title of such person to the land, rent or advowson, for the recovery of which such entry or action might have been made or brought within such period is extinguished and such title cannot afterwards be reviewed either by re-entry or by subsequent acknowledgement. The operation of the statute is merely negative, it extinguished the right and title of the dispossessed owner and leaves the occupant with a title gained by the fact of possession and resting on the infirmity of the right of the others to eject him".

22. It is well recognized proposition in law that mere possession however long does not necessarily means that it is adverse to the true owner. Adverse possession really means the hostile possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of title of the true owner and in order to constitute adverse possession the possession proved must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to show that it is adverse to the true owner. The classical requirements of acquisition of title by adverse possession are that such possession in denial of the true owner's title must be peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be open and hostile enough to be capable of being known by the parties interested in the property, though it is not necessary that there should be evidence of the adverse possessor actually informing the real owner of the former's hostile

23. The High Court has erred in holding that even if the defendants claim adverse possession, they do not have to prove who is the true owner and even if they had believed that the Government was the true owner and not the plaintiffs, the same was inconsequential. Obviously, the requirements of proving adverse possession have not been established. If the defendants are not sure who is the true owner the question of their being in hostile possession and the question of denying title of the true owner do not arise. Above being the position the High Court's judgment is clearly unsustainable. Therefore, the appeal which relates to OS 168/85 is allowed by setting aside the impugned judgment of the High Court to that extent. Equally, the High Court has proceeded on the basis that the plaintiff in OS.286/88 had established his plea of possession. The factual position does not appear to have been analysed by the High Court in the proper perspective. When the High Court was upsetting the findings recorded by the court below i.e. first appellate Court it would have been proper for the High Court to analyse the factual position in detail which has not been done. No reason has been indicated to show as to why it was differing from the factual findings recorded by it. The first appellate Court had categorically found that the appellants in the present appeals had proved possession three years prior to filing of the suit. This finding has not been upset. Therefore, the High Court was not justified in setting aside the first appellate Court's order. The appeal before this Court relating to O.S. 286 of 1988 also deserves to be allowed. Therefore, both the appeals are allowed but without any order as to costs."

6. In AIR 2004 SC 3782 (Amarendra Pratap Singh. v. Tej Bahadur Prajapati & Ors.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that a general law cannot defeat the provision of special law to the extent to which it was in conflict; else an effort has to be made at re-conciliating the two provisions of by homogeneous rules. As the wakfs are governed by the special law that is Muslim personal law and even the subsequent legislations in respect of wakf being United Provinces Muslim Wakf Act, 1936, the Wakf Act, 1954, the Uttar Pradesh Muslims Wakf Act, 1960 and the Wakf Act, 1995 recognizes the application of law of Shar and law of Shar does not recognize adverse possession in respect of creation of wakf, the plaintiffs cannot acquire title by adverse possession. Relevant paragraph 28 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "28. The learned counsel for the respondents relied heavily on Para 7-D of the 1956 Regulations and upon two decisions of the Orissa High Court rendered by reference thereto namely Laxmi Gouda and others v. Dandasi Goura (deceased by LR) and others, AIR 1992 Ori 5 and Madhia Nayak v. Arjuna Pradhan and others, (1988) 65 Cuttack LT 360. We have carefully perused both the decisions. The question which arose for decision therein was the effect of amendment made in Para 7-D of the Regulations and given a retrospective operation with effect from a back date. The High Court has held that if adverse possession extending over a period of 12 years had already stood perfected into acquisition of title before the date of the amendment, then the amended provision could not be read so as to extend the period of 12 years of acquisition of title by adverse possession substituted as 30 years even if such date fell after 2-10-1973, the date with which the amendment commenced operating. The question which is arising for decision before us namely whether a non-tribal can at all commence prescribing acquisition of title of adverse possession over the land belonging to a tribal situated in a tribal area was neither raised before the High Court nor decided by it. A judicial decision is an authority for what it actually decides and not for what can be read into it by implication or by assigning an assumed intention to the Judges, and inferring from it a proposition of law which the Judges have not specifically laid down in the pronouncement. Still we make it clear that the provisions of Para 7-D of the > Regulations are to be read in the light of the principle which we have laid down hereinabove. A tribal may acquire title by adverse possession over the immovable property of another tribal by reference to Para 7-D of the Regulations read with Art. 65 and S. 27 of the Limitation Act, 1963, but a non-tribal can neither prescribe nor acquire title by adverse possession over the property belonging to a tribal as the same is specifically prohibited by a special law promulgated by the State Legislature or the Governor in exercise of the power conferred in that regard by the Constitution of India. A general law cannot defeat the provisions of a special law to the extent to which they are in conflict; else an effort has to be made at reconciling the two provisions by homogenous reading."

7. In AIR 1996 SC 112 (*Abubakar Abdul Inamdar & Ors. v. Harun Abdul Inamdar & Ors.) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that no amount of proof by inducting municipal registered entries can substitute pleading which are foundation of the claim of a litigating party. Applying the said principle of law, it is submitted that as ingredients of adverse possession have not been pleaded in plaint by inducting entries in revenue records plea of adverse possession cannot be substantiated by the plaintiffs and no inference of adverse possession can be drawn thereon. Relevant paragraph 5 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "5. With regard to the plea of adverse possession, the appellant having been successful in the two Courts below and not in the High Court, one has to turn to the pleadings of the appellant in his written statement. There he has pleaded a duration of his having remained in exclusive possession of the house, but nowhere has he pleaded a single overt act on the basis of which it could be inferred or ascertained that from a particular point of time his possession became

> hostile and notorious to the complete exclusion of other heirs, and his being in possession openly and hostilely. It is true that some evidence, basically of Municapal register entries, were inducted to prove the point but no amount of proof can substitute pleadings which are the foundation of the claim of a litigating party. The High Court cought the appellant right at that point and drawing inference from the evidence produced on record, concluded that correct principles relating to the plea of adverse possession were not applied by the courts below. The finding, as it appears to us, was rightly reversed by the High Court requiring no interference at our end."

8. In AIR 1996 SC 869 (*Dr. Mahesh Chandra Sharma. v. Smt. Rajkumari Sharma & Ors.) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that a person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish adverse possession. As the plaintiffs, in the instant case, have not clearly plead and establish all the facts necessary to establish their adverse possession, the instant suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 36 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "36. In this connection, we may emphasise that a person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all the facts necessary to establish his adverse possession. For all the above reasons, the plea of limitation put forward by the appellant, or by Defendants Nos. 2 to 5 as the case may, be is rejected."

9. In AIR 1987 SC 94 (*Hari Chand. v. Daulat Ram) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that if the encroachment was not one new and the structure was in existence prior to acquiring title over the property, the decree on the basis of adverse possession cannot be granted in favour of the plaintiff. Applying that principle of law, it is submitted that as in the present case it has been proved by adducing scriptures and gazetteers etc. by this defendant that there were vedi and temple at the site of Ramjanmasthan even prior to Babur's acquisition of sovereignty over Delhi, Agra and Oudh, the plaintiffs are not entitled for the reliefs as prayed for in the instant suit. Relevant paragraph Nos.10 and 11 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "10. On a consideration of these evidence it is quite clear that the disputed kachha wall and the khaprail over it are not new construction, but existed for over 28 years and the defendant has been living therein as has been deposed to by Ramji Lal vendor of the plaintiff who admitted in his evidence that the land in dispute and the adjoining kachha walls had been affected by salt and the chhappar over the portion shown in red was tiled roof constructed about 28 year back. This is also supported by the evidence of the defendant, D.W. 1, that the wall in dispute was in existence when the partition was effected i.e. 28 years before. On a consideration of these evidences the Trial Court rightly held that the defendant had not trespassed over the land in question nor he had constructed a new wall or khaprail. The trial court also considered the report 57C by the court Amin and held that the wall in question was not a recent construction but it appeared 25-30 years old in its present condition as (is) evident from the said report. The suit was therefore dismissed. The lower appellate court merely considered the partition deed and map Exts. 3/1 and 3/2 respectively and held that the disputed property fell to the share of the plaintiffs vendor and the correctness of the partition map was not challenged in the written statement. The court of appeal below also referred to Amin's map 47A which showed the encroached portion in red colour as failing within the share of plaintiffs vendor, and held that the defendant encroached on this portion of land marked in red colour, without at all considering the clear evidence of the defendant himself that the wall and the khaprail in question existed for the last 28 years and the defendant has been living there all along. P.W. 1 Ramji Lal himself also admitted that the wall existed for about 28 years as stated by the defendant and the kachha walls and the khaprail have been affected by salt. The lower appellate court though held that P.W. 1 Ramji Lal admitted in cross-examination that towards the north of the land in dispute was the khaprail covered room of Daulat Ram in which Daulat Ram lived, but this does not mean that the wall in dispute exists for the last any certain number of years, although it can be said that it is not a recent construction. Without considering the deposition of defendant No. 1 as well as the report of the Amin 57C the IInd Addl. Civil Judge, Agra wrongly held that the defendant failed to prove that the wall in dispute and the khaprail existed for the last more than 12 years before the suit. The Civil Judge further held on surmises as "may be that the wall and khaprail have not been raised in May, 1961 as is the plaintiffs case, but they are recent constructions." This decision of the court of appeal below is wholly incorrect being contrary to the evidences on record.

11. On a consideration of all the evidences on record it is clearly established that the alleged encroachment by construction of kuchha wall and khaprail over it are not recent constructions as alleged to have been made in May 1961. On the other hand, it is crystal clear from the evidences of Ramji Lal P.W. 1 and Daulat Ram D.W. 1 that the disputed wall with khaprail existed there in the disputed site for a long time, that is 28 years before and the wall and the khaprail have been affected by salt as deposed to by these two witnesses. Moreover the court Amin's report 57C also shows the said walls and khaprail to be 25-30 years old in its present condition. The High Court has clearly come to the finding that though the partition deed was executed by the parties yet there was no partition by metes and bounds. Moreover

> there is no whisper in the plaint about the partition of the property in question between the co-sharers by metes and bounds nor there is any averment that the suit property fell to the share of plaintiffs vendor Ramji Lal and Ramji Lal was ever in possession of the disputed property since the date of partition till the date of sale to the plaintiff. The plaintiff has singularly failed to prove his case as pleaded in the plaint."

10. In AIR 1947 PC 19 (*Smt. Bibhabati Devi. v. Rajmchandranarayan Roy & Ors.) the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that possession must be adverse to a living person and if any lady was possessing under a mistake as to her husband's death, she could not claim that by her possession she was asserting a right adverse to one whom she regarded as dead. Applying that principle of law, it is submitted that as the deity is not a living person, adverse possession against deity can be claimed only through its sebait and if any sebait did not take any step for recovery of possession of the property of the deity then, limitation runs from the date of death of said sebait so that new sebait may take step for recovery of the property of the deity. In the instant case, the plaintiffs have not pleaded the name of the sebait during whose tenure of sebaitship they dispossessed the deity from the property as also they have not pleaded the date of death of the said sebait for the purpose of counting the period of limitation and as such the instant suit is misconceived and liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph Nos.18 and 21 of the said judgment read as follows:

> “18. Their Lordships are of opinion that the statement and request made by this man was a fact within the meaning of Ss.3 and 59, Evidence Act, 1872, and that it is proved by the direct evidence of witnesses who heard it, within the meaning of S. 60; but it was not a relevant fact unless the learned Judge was entitled to make it a relevant fact by a presumption under the terms of S. 114. As regards the statement that the Kumar had just died, such a statement by itself would not justify any such presumption, as it might rest on mere rumour, but, in the opinion of their Lordships, the learned Judge was entitled to hold, in relation to the fact of the request for help to carry the body for cremation, that it was likely that the request was authorised by those in charge at Step Aside, having regard to "the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business", and therefore to presume the existence of such authority. Having made such presumption, the fact of such an authorised request thereby became a relevant fact, and the evidence of the Maitra group became admissible. Accordingly, this contention fails.
> 21. Finally, the appellant rests on Art. 144 and S. 28, Limitation Act, 1908. On the supposed death of the Second Kumar the appellant entered on her widow's estate in the undivided one-third share of the Bhowal estate, which belonged to her husband and she thereafter enjoyed it - after 1911, through the Court of Wards-for a period much exceeding the necessary twelve years and the question is whether her possession was adverse to her husband, he being in fact alive. Possession must be adverse to a living person, and, as she was possessing under a mistake as to his death, it is difficult to see how she can claim that by her possession she was asserting a right adverse to one whom she regarded as dead. The position of a widow as regards limitation is stated in 51 IA 17122 at p. 176, where Lord Dunedin, delivering the judgment, said, > "It was then argued that the widows could only possess for themselves ; that the last widow Devi would then acquire a personal title; and that the respondents and not the plaintiffs were the heirs of Devi. This is quite to misunderstand the nature of the widow's possession. The Hindu, widow as often pointed out, is not a life renter but has a widow's estate-that is to say, a widow's estate in her deceased husband's estate. If possessing as a widow she possesses adversely to any one as to certain parcels she does not acquire the parcels as stridhan, but she makes them good to her husband's estate "

> Mr. Page, for the appellant, conceded that the appellant's possession could not be adverse to the reversioners, who would take as heirs of her husband, on the termination of her widow's estate. All that the appellant claimed to have prescribed was her interest in the estate as widow of the Second Kumar. It might well be argued that, according to the Hindu law, the wife is half of the husband, and that, on his death, she holds his estate as one-half of the husband, but their Lordships prefer to base their rejection of the appellant's contention on the broader ground that her possession was not adverse to a husband, whom she regarded as dead. Their Lordships cannot part with this case without expressing their deep indebtedness to counsel for their valuable assistance in a case of such unusual magnitude and complication, and, in particular, their gratitude and admiration for the untiring skill and breadth of mind with which Mr. Page has conducted his case. Their Lordships accordingly, are of opinion that the appeal fails and should be dismissed, and that the decision of the High Court should be affirmed, and they will so advise His Majesty. In the very special circumstances of this case, there will be no order as to costs of the appeal.

Raja Pratap Bahadur Singh) the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that under Section 23 of Oudh Land Revenue Act, 1876, the revenue officer had no power to determine questions of title and his duty was to determine the boundary on the basis of actual possession. It has also been held that it is for the plaintiffs to establish the title to the lands in suit held by the defendant's predecessor had been extinguished under Section 28 of the Limitation Act by the adverse possession of the plaintiff or their predecessor for appropriate statutory period of limitation, pleaded prior to the possession taken under attachment by the receiver appointed by the Magistrate. In the instant case, the plaintiffs have failed to establish their title to the land in suit in terms of the aforesaid judicial pronouncement of the Hon'ble Privy Council, the suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant extracts from pages 48 and 49 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "It will be noted that the appellant's village Binjaha is not mentioned in either of these proceedings. The fourth stage is important as shewing the state of possession of the lands in suit at the date when the present suit was instituted on 26th January 1933. In the year 1931 there were two cases-Nos.39 and 41-under S. 145, Criminal PC, in the Court of the Magistrate of the First Class at Kheri, which involved the appellant and respondent in respect of the land now in dispute. In No. 39, on 4th May 1931, the Magistrate ordered the case to be filed as the parties had satisfied him that no breach of the peace need be apprehended. But Case No. 41 was commenced on a report by the Sub. Inspector of Police dated 14th October 1931, and on 24th October 1931, at the same time as he ordered the parties to attend the Court on 26th November, the Magistrate considering the case as one of emergency, ordered the plots referred to in the report to be attached pending his decision under S. 145, and appointed the Tahsildar, Tahsil Nighasan, District Kheri, as receiver. These plots appear to have been the three small plots, a suit for possession of which by the present appellant had been finally dismissed by the Chief Court by decree dated 26th November 1929. These three plots amounting to 1.30

acre are included in the lands presently in suit. By two orders dated 7th November 1931, the Magistrate ordered the Tahsildar to take possession of the plots contained in a list attached to the first of these orders, and in addition to these plots, "if you find that there are any other plots in dispute, they should also be attached or taken possession of." It is common ground that the Tahsildar, acting under these orders, took possession of the lands presently in suit on 23rd February 1932, and that he was still in possession when the present suit was instituted on 26th January 1933. As the result of applications by the parties, who were agreed that, pending the decision of a civil Court, the lands should remain attached and that the proceedings should meantime be consigned to records, the lands to be released to the party who succeeded in the civil suit, the Magistrate made an order filing the case meantime dated 6th April 1932.

In the first place, their Lordships are clearly of opinion, contrary to the view of the Subordinate Judge, but in agreement with the view of the Chief Court, that it was for the appellant to establish that the title to the lands in suit held by the respondent's predecessor under the first settlement of 1865 had been extinguished under S. 28, Limitation Act, by the adverse possession of the appellant or his predecessors for the appropriate statutory period of limitation, completed prior to the possession taken under attachment on 23rd February 1932, by the Tahsildar, who thereafter held for the true owner. Their Lordships are further of opinion that the present suit, which was subsequently instituted, was rightly confined to a mere declaration of title, and was neither in form nor substance a suit for possession of immovable property.

In the second place, on the question of the errors of procedure of the Subordinate Judge in placing the burden of proving his possession within the limitation period on the respondent and ultimately refusing to allow the respondent to lead evidence in rebuttal of the appellant's evidence of adverse possession, it is enough to say that the appellant's counsel felt constrained to state that he could not defend the exclusion of evidence by the learned Judge, and that, if otherwise successful in his appeal, he should ask that the case should be remanded in order to give the respondent the opportunity which was so denied to him. The Chief Court held that the appellant had failed to prove adverse possession, and found it

unnecessary to remand the case.
With regard to the statutory period of limitation, Art. 47 of the Act does not apply, as there has been no order for possession by the Magistrate under S. 145, Criminal P. C. As the suit is one for a declaration of title, it seems clear that Arts. 142 and 144 do not apply, and their Lordships agree with the Chief Court that the suit is governed by Art. 120. This leaves for consideration the main issue of proof of adverse possession by the appellant and his predecessors, and the appellant is at once faced by a difficulty which proved fatal to his success before the Chief Court, viz., that unless he can establish adverse possession of the lands in suit as a whole, he is unable, on the evidence, to establish such possession of identified portions of the lands in suit. Before their Lordships, the appellant's counsel conceded that, in order to succeed in the appeal, he must establish adverse possession of the lands in suit as a whole. He further conceded that his case on that point rested either (a) on the Habibullah decision of 1899, on which he succeeded before the Subordinate Judge, or (b) on the compromised proceedings under S. 145 in 1903. He conceded that neither the Habibullah decision nor the boundary proceedings in 1903 amounted to a judicial decision. The appellant maintained that the Habibullah decision, given under S. 23 of the Act of 1876, was good evidence of the state of possession at that time, and of the possession of the whole of the land in dispute by Kapurthala. He maintained that it must be assumed that Mr. Habibullah did his duty and that the decision was based on actual possession; under S. 35, Evidence Act, it was good evidence of the fact of possession. Unfortunately for this contention it appears on the face of the judgment that possession was only proved in respect of land under cultivation, and that the boundary line laid down by Mr. Habibullah was largely an arbitrary line, and, at least to that extent, was not based on actual possession by Kapurthala, and it is well established that adverse possession against an existing title g must be actual and cannot be constructive."

12. In AIR 1937 PC 69 (*Maharaja Sir Kesho Prasad Singh Bahadur. v. Bahuria Mt. Bhagjogna Kaur & Ors. )

the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that mere receipt of rent by persons claiming adversely is not sufficient to warrant finding of adverse possession. The possession of persons or their predecessors-in-title claiming by adverse possession must have "all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness" necessary to displace the tile of the persons against whom they claim. As in the instant case neither the plaintiffs nor their predecessors-in-title had or have all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness, their suit based on adverse possession fails. Relevant extracts from page 78 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "the mere fact that many years after the sale the Gangbarar maliks or persons deriving title from them are obtaining rent for the land is in itself very significant. Even in a locality exposed to diluvion by the action of the river this circumstance alone might be given considerable weight. But without sufficient proof to cover the intervening years it was most reasonably held by the learned Subordinate Judge to be insufficient. The circumstance that the Maharaja was not in possession or in receipt of rent is, it need hardly be said, insufficient under Art. 144 to warrant a finding of adverse possession on behalf of the respondents or their predecessors-in-title. Their Lordships are of opinion that on the materials produced it cannot be contended that the learned Subordinate Judge was obliged in law to find that the possession of the principal respondents had "all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness " (per Lord Shaw 126 CWN 66610at p. 673) necessary to displace the title of the Maharaja, and they think that no reason in law exists why his finding of fact in this respect should not be final."

13. In AIR 1933 PC 75 (*Ram Charan Das. v. Nauraugi Lal) the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that an allocation by the Mahant of a Mutt in respect of property belonging to the Mutt even if it is not for legal necessity or benefit if Mutt is good and effective assailing as the mahant continue to be such and hence adverse possession of the lessee as agasinst the Mutt commences only when the Mahant, who has leased the property ceased to be Mahant by death or otherwise and not from the date of allocation. Relevant extracts from page 78 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "This is a clear statement that a mahant is at liberty to dispose of the property of a mutt during the period of his life and that a grant purporting to be for a longer period is good to the extent of the mahant's life interest. Here again their Lordships think that the reference to life is upon the footing that the mahant continues during his life to hold that office. It will be observed that the statement is in no way confined to the grant of a lease, but covers the case of a purported out and out grant of the property. Whatever the intended duration of the attempted grant may be, it is good but good only for the limited period indicated. In view of these statements by the Board, their Lordships hold that in the present case the lease and the deed of sale of 13th February 1911 were good and effective so long as Rampat Das continued to be mahant and that therefore adverse possession only commenced when he died. The result is that the plaintiff's suit is not barred and the appeal succeeds. The decree of the High Court should be set aside with costs in that Court, and the decree of the Subordinate Judge restored. Their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty accordingly. The respondents must pay the costs of this appeal."

14. In AIR 1931 PC 162 (*Bhupendra Narayan Sinha Bahadur. v. Rajeswar Prasad Bhakat) the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that where a person without any colour of right wrongfully takes possession as a trespasser of the property of another in title which he may acquire by adverse possession will be strictly limited to what he had actually so possessed. As the schedule of the plaint does not contain a description of the property sufficient to identify it, in accordance with Order 7 Rule III of the Civil Procedure Code, and in view of admitted fact of possession of the Hindus at least in respect of Ramchabutra, a decree cannot be passed in their favour as prayed for. Relevant extracts from page 165 of the said judgment reads as follows:

1. In AIR 1940 PC 116 (Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj & Ors. v. Shiromoni Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritshwar & Anr.) the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that the rules of limitation which apply to a suit are the rules in force at the date of institution of the suit, limitation being a matter of procedure, the Limitation Act, 1908 applies to immovable made wakf. Relevant portion from page 121 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "The rules of limitation which apply to a suit are the rules in force at the date of institution of the suit, limitation being a matter of procedure. It cannot be doubted that the Limitation Act of 1903 (Sic 1908) applies to immovables made wakf notwithstanding that the ownership in such property is said, in accordance with the doctrine of the two disciples, to be in God."

2. In AIR 1957 SC 314 (P. Lakshmi Reddy. v. L. Lakshmi Reddy) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that a receiver is an officer of Court and is not a particular agent of any party to the suit, notwithstanding that in law his possession is ultimately treated as a possession of the successful party on the termination of the suit. To treat such receiver as plaintiff's

agent for the purpose of initiating adverse possession by the plaintiff, would be to impute wrong doing to the Court and its officers. The doctrine of receiver's possession being that of the successful party, cannot be pushed to the extent of enabling a person who was initially out of possession to claim the taking on of receiver's possession to his subsequent adverse possession. The commencement of adverse possession in favour of a person, implies that that person is in actual possession at the time, with a notorious hostile claim of exclusive title to repeal which, the true owner would be in a position to maintain an action. It would follow that whatever may be the animus intention of a person wanting to acquire title by adverse possession his adverse possession cannot commence until he obtains actual possession with requisite animus. Relevant paragraph Nos.6 and 7of the said judgment read as follows:

> "6. The learned Attorney-General urges that prior possession of the Receiver pending the suit must be treated as possession on behalf of Hanimi Reddy with the animus of claiming sole and exclusive title disclosed in his plaint. In support of this contention he relies on the well-known legal principle that when a Court takes possession of properties through its Receiver, such Receiver's possession is that of all the parties to the action according to their titles. (See Kerr on Receivers (12th Edition) page 153). In Woodroffe on the Law relating to Receivers (4th Edition) at page 63 the legal position is stated as follows:
> "The Receiver being the officer of the Court from which he derives his appointment, his possession is exclusively the possession of the Court, the property being regarded as in the custody of the law, in gremio legis, for the benefit of whoever may be ultimately determined to be entitled thereto".
>
> But does this doctrine enable a person who was not previously in possession of the suit properties, to claim that the Receiver must be deemed to have taken possession adversely to the true owner, on this behalf, merely because he ultimately succeeds in getting a decree for possession against the defendant therein who was previously in possession without title? A Receiver is an officer of Court and is not a particular agent of any party to the suit, notwithstanding that in law his possession is ultimately treated as possession of the successful party on the termination of the suit. To treat such Receiver as plaintiffs agent for the purpose of initiating adverse possession by the plaintiff would be to impute wrong-doing to the Court

and its officers. The doctrine of the Receiver's possession being that of the successful party cannot, in our opinion, be pushed to the extent of enabling a person who was initially out of possession to claim the tacking on of Receiver's possession to his subsequent adverse possession. The position may conceivably be different where the defendant in the suit was previously in adverse possession against the real owner and the Receiver has taken possession from him and restores it back to him on the successful termination of the suit in his favour. In such a case the question that would arise would be different, viz., whether the interim possession of the Receiver would be a discontinuance or abandonment of possession or interruption of the adverse possession. We are not concerned with it in this case and express no opinion on it.

7. The matter may be looked at from another point of view. It is well-settled that limitation cannot begin to run against a person unless at the time that person is legally in a position to vindicate his title by action. In Mitra's Tagort Law Lectures on Limitation and Prescription (6th Edition) Vol. I, Lecture VI, at Page 159, quoting from Angell on Limitation, this principle is stated in the following terms :

"An adverse holding is an actual and exclusive appropriation of land commenced and continued under a claim of right, either under an openly avowed claim, or under a constructive claim (arising from the acts and circumstances attending the appropriation), to hold the land against him(sic) who was in possession. (Angell, sections 390 and 398). It is the intention to claim adversely accompanied by such an invasion of the rights of the opposite party as gives him a cause of action which constitutes adverse possession".

Consonant with this principle the commencement of adverse possession, in favour of a person, implies that that person is in actual possession, at the time, with a notorious hostile claim of exclusive title, to repel which, the true owner would then be in a position to maintain an action. It would follow that whatever may be the animus or intention of a person wanting to acquire title by adverse possession his adverse possession cannot commence until site animus. In the leading case of Agency Company v. Short, (1888) 13 AC 793 (G) the Privy Council points out that there is discontinuance of adverse possession when possession has been abandoned and gives as the reason therefor, at page 798, as follows:

"There is no one against whom he (the rightful owner) can bring his action".

It is clearly implied therein that adverse possession cannot commence without actual possession which can furnish cause of action. This principle has been also explained in Dwijendra Narain Roy v. Joges Chandra De, AIR 1924 Cal 600 (H) at page 609 by Mookerjee, J. as follows:

"The substance of the matter is that time runs when the cause of action on accrues, an a cause of action accrues when there is in existence a person who can sue and another who can be used ..... The cause of action arises when and only when the aggrieved party has the right to apply to the proper tribunals for relief. The statute (of limitation) does not attach to the claim for which there is as yet no right of action and does not run against a right for which there is no corresponding remedy or for which judgment cannot be obtained. Consequently the true test to determine when a cause of action has accrued is to ascertain the time when plaintiff could first have maintained his action to a successful result".

In the present case, the co-heirs out of possession such as plaintiff and the second defendant were not obliged to bring a suit for possession, against Hanimi Reddy until such time as Hanimi Reddy obtained actual possession. Indeed during the time when the Receiver was in possession, obviously, they could not sue him for possession to vindicate their title. Nor were they obliged during that time to file a futile suit for possession either against Hanimi Reddy or against the defendants in Hanimi Reddy's suit when neither of them was in possession. It appears to us, therefore, that the adverse possession of Hanimi Reddy, if any, as against his co-heirs could not commence when the Receiver was in possession. It follows that assuming that the possession of Hanimi Reddy from January 20, 1930, was in fact adverse and amounted to ouster of the co-heirs such adverse possession was not adequate in time by October 23,1941 the date of suit to displace the title of the plaintiff. It follows that the plaintiff- respondent before us, is entitled to the decree which he has obtained and that the decision of the High Court is, in our view, correct, though on different grounds. It may be mentioned that objection has been raised on behalf of the respondent before us that the question of tacking on Receiver's possession was not in issue in the lower courts and should not be > allowed to be raised here. In the view we have taken it is unnecessary to deal with this objection."

15. In AIR 2008 All 37 (*Ramzan & Ors. v. Smt. Hafooran & Ors.) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that unless there is specific plea and proof that adverse possession has disclaimed his right and asserted title and possession to the knowledge of the true owner within the statutory period and the true owner has acquiesced to it, the adverse possessor cannot succeed to have it established that he has perfected his right by prescription. Where the adverse possessor were not sure as to who was the true owner and question of their being in hostile possession, then the question of denying title of true owner does not arise. Relevant paragraphs 27, 29 and 30 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "27. It is, therefore, explicit that unless there is specific plea and proof that adverse possessor has disclaimed his right and asserted title and possession to the knowledge of the true owner within a statutory period and the true owner has acquiesced to it, the adverse possessor cannot succeed to have it established that he has perfected his right by prescription.
>
> 29. As pointed out above, where the defendants are not sure who is the true owner and question of their being in hostile possession then the question of denying title of true owner does not arise. At the most, the defendants have claimed and which is found to be correct by the trial court that they have been in possession of the disputed property since the inception of the sale deeds in their favour. They came in possession, according to their showing, as owner of the property in question. It follows that they exercised their right over the disputed property as owner and exercise of such right, by no stretch of imagination, it can be said that they claimed their title adverse to the true owner.

www.vadaprativada.com

30. Viewed as above, on the facts of the present case, the possession of the contesting defendants is not of the variety and degree which is required for adverse possession to materialise."

16. In AIR 1983 All 223 (*Prabhunarain Singh. v. Ramniranjan) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that a person claiming title to land by adverse possession, he must specifically plead area of land and period of possession of land. As in the instant case neither the area of land has been specifically pleaded nor the period of possession has been specifically pleaded, the suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 6 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"6. With regard to the dispute raised by the defendants about the plaintiff's title to the land, the defendants did not set up any independent title themselves. They based their right in adverse possession. A person claiming title to any land by adverse possession has to be very specific about the area of the land and the period over which he has been in possession. The eastern boundary of the land purchased by the plaintiff was specific. Much reliance could not be placed on the area specified in the sale-deed, inasmuch as the western boundary was shown to be the field of the vendor. Even if the plaintiff had some extra land under his possession, it is not known whether he had increased the area of his occupation westwards or eastwards. So far as the defendants were concerned, it was sufficient that the eastern boundary of the land purchased by the plaintiff was specified to be their house. The defendants could, at the most, claim some piece of land around their house for purpose of approach or cleaning the drains etc. But that is not to say that they could allow the Nabdan from their house to flow on into the plaintiff's Sehan and create nuisance. The defendants should have maintained the > cesspool and prevented the outflow of the dirty water from the cesspool to the plaintiff's Sehan by constructing a proper drain."

17. In AIR 1978 All 555 (*Smt. Bitola Kuer. v. Sri Ram Charan) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that possession follows title and the corollary from this principle is that the burdens lies on the person who claims to have acquired title by adverse possession to prove his case. As the plaintiffs have pleaded adverse possession, the burden lies upon them to prove their case which they have miserably failed to do. And, as such the suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 16 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "16. It is well settled that title ordinarily carries with it the presumption of possession and that when the question arises is to who was in possession of land, the presumption is that the true owner was in such possession. In other word" possession follows title. The inevitable corollary from this principle is that the burden lies on the person who claims to have acquired title by adverse possession to prove his case. As early as the case of Radhamoni Debi v. Collector of Khulna (1900) ILR 27 Cal 943 (PC); Lord Robertson expressed the principle in the following words :
> " It is necessary to remember that the onus is on the appellant and that what she has to make out is possession adverse to the competitor ..... ... ..... But the possession required must be adequate in continuity, in publicity, and in extent to show that it is possession adverse to that competitor;"

18. In AIR 1970 All 289 (*Qadir Bux v. Ramchand) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that the term "dispossession" applies when a person comes in and drives out

others from the possession. It implies ouster; a driven out of possession against the will of the person in actual possession. The term "discontinuance" implies a voluntary act and openness of possession followed by the actual possession of another. It implies that a person discontinuing as owner of the land and left at to be dispossessed by any one who has not to come in. As it has been admitted by the plaintiffs in their written statement filed in O.S.No.1 of 1989 that last namaj was offered on 16th December, 1949 and thereafter they discontinued offering prayer in the alleged mosque and plaintiffs or the persons under or through whom they are claiming had also admitted in their affidavit filed in the proceeding under Section 145 of Cr.P.C. that their intention was to discontinue offering the prayers in the alleged mosque so that it can be occupied by the Hindus as their place of worship. As the Hindus were already performing their worships the effect of discontinuing made their possession peaceful and uninterrupted. As such the instant suit which was filed on 18th December 1949 is also barred by limitations. Relevant paragraph 130 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "30. The main point for consideration is whether in such circumstances it can be said that the plaintiff had been dispossessed or had discontinued his possession within the meaning of Article 142 of the First Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act. The term"dispossession" applies when a person comes in and drives out others from the possession. It imports ouster: a driving out of possession against the will of the person in actual possession. This driving out

> cannot be said to have occurred when according to the case of the plaintiff the transfer of possession was voluntary, that is to say, not against the will of the person in possession but in accordance with his wishes and active consent. The term"discontinuance" implies a voluntary act and abandonment of possession followed by the actual possession of another. It implies that the person discontinuing has given up the land and left it to be possessed by anyone choosing to come in. There must be an intention to abandon title before there can be said to be a discontinuance in possession, but this cannot be assumed. It must be either admitted or proved.
> So strong in fact is the position of the rightful owner that even when he has been dispossessed by a trespasser and that trespasser abandons possession either voluntarily or by vis major for howsoever short a time before he has actually perfected his title by twelve years' adverse possession the possession of the true owner is deemed to have revived and he gets a fresh starting point of limitation - vide Gurbinder Singh v. Lal Singh, AIR 1965 S.C. 1553. Wrongful possession cannot be assumed against the true owner when according to the facts disclosed by him he himself had voluntarily handed over possession and was not deprived of it by the other side."

19. In AIR 1965 SC 364 (Mahendra Manilal Nanavati v. Sushila Mahendra Nanavati) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that statement of a party in letters written by the said party can be used against the said party as the said party's admission but cannot be used in favour of such party accepting them to be correct statements. Relying on the said judgment it is humbly submitted that the statements made by the Mutwalli, Muezzins, Khattibs, some of the plaintiffs are to be used against them as their admissions accepting them to be correct statements. As from the statements of the above mentioned proceedings it appears that even after 1856 the Hindus were performing worship inside the central hall of the alleged Babri Mosque and also they accept that this practice was continued for several decades and ultimately in 1934 the disputed structure was demolished by the Hindus and when it was re-erected the Muslims did not go to offer prayer due to panic as in 1934 riots at least three Muslims had been killed are the admission of the plaintiffs or the persons through or under whom they are claiming. On the basis of whereof it can be inferred that the Hindus were all along asserting their customary rights and performing their customary rituals of worshipping the birthplace of the Lord of Universe Sri Rama in disputed structure and the Muslims were never in peaceful, uninterrupted possession of the alleged Babri Mosque. As such the instant suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 96 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "96. The respondent stated in the examination-in-chief that when she went to Prantil from Bombay which was about the 4th of June 1947 she had swelling on her feet, hands and face. I cross-examination she further stated that she had swelling over these parts and also high blood-pressure in June and that the passing of albumin and swelling of hands and feet continued till delivery but there was no high blood-pressure at the time of delivery. The Court below did not act on the statement of the respondent about her having the symptoms of toxemia in the month of June as none of the letters on record written in June makes reference to such a written in June makes reference to such a condition of hers. This is true, but that does not accessarily mean that she did not have such symptoms in the month of June. They might not have been very servere that month and the severity appeared in the month of July. Letters on record amply make out that she was suffering from a servere type of toxemia in July. It has been urged for the respondent in connection with her alleged toxemic condition in the month of June 28 about statement in her letter dated June 28 about her walking 2 miles a day is not compatible with her statement in Court and the suggestion for the petitioner that she was suffering from toxemia in the month of June. The statements of the respondent in her letters can be used against her as her admissions, but cannot be used in her favour accepting them to be correct statements. If she was pregnant at the time of marriage she must take such steps up to the time of delivery as to allay the suspicion that she had been really pregnant at the time of marriage. She may therefore be inclined to make wrong statements in her letters to prepare for any plausible explanation when the delivery took place before the expected time on the basis of her conception after marriage. There is therefore no reason not to believe her statement that she did have such trouble of milder kind in the month of June. Severe trouble does not usually come at once. It develops from a mild stage."

20. In AIR 1996 SC 941 (Raj Kumar v. M/s. Chiranjilal Ram Chand, Ludhiana & Ors.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in respect of joint properties admission by one of the co-owners that the other co-owners had 1/3rd share in the said properties is a admission which can be relied upon under Section 18 of the Evidence Act, 1872. Relevant paragraph 8 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "8. In view of the discussion of various items by the High Court and the conclusion reached on the basis thereof, we entirely agree with the High Court that the admissions bind the appellants. Therefore, it is clearly established from the admission that the insolvent Chiranji Lal had 1/3 share in these properties. Consequently, they stood vested in the Official Receiver and he is entitled to proceed further in realising the amounts to distribute to the creditors."

21. In AIR 1965 SC 1553 (Gurbinder Singh & Anr. v. Lal Singh & Anr.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in order that Article 142 is attracted the plaintiff must initially found in possession of the property and should have been dispossessed by the defendant or someone through whom the defendants claim or alternatively the plaintiff should have discontinued possession. It has also been held that in a suit to which Article 144 attracted the burden is on the party who claims adverse possession to establish that he was in adverse possession for 12 years before the date of suit and for computation of this period he can avail of the adverse possession of any person or persons through whom he claims but not the adverse possession of an independent trespasser. As it is Plaintiffs' admitted fact that the plaintiffs discontinued their possession at least on 16th December, 1949, they have failed to prove that they were in possession for 12 years before the date of filing of the instant suit i.e. 18th December, 1961. As such the suit is barred by Article 142 of the Limitation Act, 1908. As on the other hand the plaintiffs also claim adverse possession of the disputed structure, burden of proof lies upon them and as they have failed to prove their adverse possession for 12 years before the date of filing of the suit, i.e. 18th December, 1961, the suit is also barred by Article 144 of the Limitation Act. Relevant paragraph nos.6, 8 and 10 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "6. In order that Art. 142 is attracted the plaintiff must initially have been in possession of the property and should have been dispossessed by the defendant or someone through whom the defendants claim or alternatively the plaintiff should have discontinued possession. It is no one's case that Lal Singh ever was in possession of the propety. It is true that Pratap Singh was in possession of part of the property - which particular part we do not know -- by reason of

a transfer thereof in his favour by Bakshi Singh. In the present suit both Lal Singh and Pratap Singh assert their claim to property by succession in accordance with the rules contained in the dastur ul amal whereas the possession of Pratap Singh for some time was under a different title, altogether. So far as the present suit is concerned it must, therefore, be said that the plaintiffs-respondents were never in possession as heirs of Raj Kaur and consequently Art. 142 would not be attracted to their suit.

8. Mr. Tarachand Brijmohanlal, however, advanced an interesting argument to the effect that if persons entitled to immediate possession of land are somehow kept out of possession - may be by different trespassers- for a period of 12 years or over, their suit will be barred by time. He points out that as from the death of Raj Kaur her daughters, through one of whom the respondents claim, were kept out of possession by trespassers and that from the date of Raj Kaur's death right up to the date of the respondents' suit, that is, for period of nearly 20 years trespassers were in possession of Mahan Kaur's, and after her death, the respondents' share in the land, their suit must, therefore, be regarded as barred by time. In other words, the learned counsel wants to tack on the adverse possession of Bakshi Singh and Pratap Singh to the adverse possession of the Raja and those who claim through him. In support of the contention reliance is placed by learned counsel on the decision in Ramayya v. Kotamma, ILR 45 Mad 370: (AIR 1922 Mad 59). In order to appreciate what was decided in that case a brief resume of the facts of that case is necessary. Mallabattudu, the last male holder of the properties to which the suit related, died in the year 1889 leaving two daughters Ramamma and Govindamma. The former died in 1914. The latter surrendered her estate to her two sons. The plaintiff who was a transferee from the sons of Govindamma instituted a suit for recovery of possession of Mallabattudu's property against Punnayya, the son of Ramamma to whom Mallabattudu had made an oral gift of his properties two years before his death. Punnayya was minor at the date of gift and his elder brother Subbarayudu was managing the property on his behalf. Punnayya, however, died in 1894 while still a minor and thereafter his brothers Subbarayudu and two others were in possession of the property. It would seem that the other brothers died and Subbarayudu was the last surviving member of Punnayya's family. Upon Subbarayudu's death the properties were sold by his daughters to the third defendant. The plaintiff-appellants suit failed on the ground of limitations. It was argued on his behalf in the second appeal before the High Court that as the gift to Punnayya was oral it was invalid, that consequently Punnaya was in possession as trespasser, that on Punnayya's death his heir would be his mother, that as Subbarayudu continued in possession Subbaruyudu's possession was also that of a trespasser, that as neither Subbarayudu nor Punnayya completed possession for 12 years they could not tack on one to the other and that the plaintiff claiming through the nearest reversioner is not barred. The contention for the respondents was that there was no break in possession so as to revest the properties in the original owners, that Punnayya and Subbarayudu cannot be treated as successive trespassers and that in any event the real owner having been out of possession for over 12 years the suit was barred by limitation. The High Court following the decision of Mookerjee, J. in Mohendra Nath v. Mt. Shamsunnessa, 21 Cal LJ 157 at p. 164 : (AIR 1915 Cal 629 at p. 633), held that time begins to run against the last full owner if he himself was dispossessed and the operation of the law of limitation would not be arrested by the fact that on his death he was succeeded by his widow, daughter or mother, as the cause of action cannot be prolonged by the mere transfer of title. It may be mentioned that as Mallabattudu had given up possession to Punnayya under an invalid gift Art. 142 of the Limitation Act was clearly attracted. The sons of Govindamma from whom the appellant had purchased the suit properties claimed through Mallabattudu and since time began to run against him from 1887 when he discontinued possession it did not cease to run by the mere fact of his death. In a suit to which that article applies the plaintiff has to prove his possession within 12 years of his suit. Therefore, so long as the total period of the plaintiff's exclusion from possession is, at the date of the plaintiff's suit, for a period of 12 years or over, the fact that this exclusion was by different trespassers will not help the plaintiff provided there was a continuity in the period of exclusion. That decision is not applicable to the facts of the case before us. This is a suit to which Art. 144 is attracted and the burden is on the defendant to establish that he was in adverse possession for 12 years before the date of suit and for computation of this period he can avail of the adverse possession of any person or persons through whom he claims - but not the adverse possession of independent trespassers.

10. This view has not been departed from in any case. At any rate none was brought to our notice where it has not been followed. Apart from that what we are concerned with is the language used by the legislature in the third column of Art. 144. The starting point of limitation there stated is the date when the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff. The word "defendant" is defined thus in S. 2 (4) of the Limitation Act thus :
'defendant' includes any person from or through whom a defendant derives his liability to be sued"
No doubt, this is an inclusive definition but the gist of it is the existence of a jural relationship between different persons. There can be no jural relationship between two independent trespassers. Therefore, where a defendant in possession of property is sued by a person who has title to it but is out of possession what he has to show in defence is that he or anyone through whom he claims has been in possession for more than the statutory period. An independent trespasser not being such a person the defendant is not entitled to tack on the previous possession of that person to his own possession. In our opinion, therefore, the respondents' suit is within time and has been rightly decreed by the Courts below. We dismiss this appeal with costs."

22. In AIR 1954 SUPREME COURT 355 "Nathoo Lal v. Durga Prasad" the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that what is admitted by a party to be true must be presumed to be true unless the contrary is shown. Relying on said Judgment it is submitted that the ante litem motam statements of the plaintiffs made in their written statements in the suits which are also analogously being tried to the effect that the Muslims discontinued using the Disputed structure on or after 16.12.1949; their post litem motam statements made in the plaint of the instant suit that prayer was offered till 23.12.1949 can not be taken in to account which is very much false apparent from records as relevant records says that the said Disputed Structure was occupied by some Hindu group in the night of 22/23.12.1949 when alleged Mosque was under lock and key. There is no evidence to the contrary in the case, as such it is admitted fact of the plaintiffs that they discontinued their possession on 16.12.1949 and did'nt use it as Mosque from 17.12.1949 as such in view of this fact also instant suit is barred by limitation even under Article 142 or 144 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 though those Articles are not applicable but Article 120 of the said Act is applicable. Relevant paragraph 14 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "14. In our judgment, there is force in the contention of Dr. Tek Chand and none of the contentions raised by the respondent's counsel have any validity. That Ramachandra bequeathed the suit property and did not gift it to his daughter Laxmi is a fact which cannot be questioned at this stage. It was admitted by the plaintiff himself in the witness box.
> This is what he said:
> "Ramachandra had made a will in favour of Mst. Laxmi and in that connection my maternal grand-mother and maternal great grand-mother got the gift deed registered. This very gift deed was got executed by my maternal grandmother and maternal great grandmother and had got it registered. Through this gift deed Mst. Laxmi held possession over it, till she was alive. She had kept deponent as her son and so she got the rent notes executed in my name."
> What is admitted by a party to be true must be presumed to be true unless the contrary is shown. There is no evidence to the contrary in the case. The gift deed fully supports the testimony of the plaintiff on this point. It definitely states that according to the will, the gift deed was executed in favour of Laxmi and it further recites that Laxmi was entitled to deal with the house in any manner she liked. Those who were, directed to execute the oral will made by Ramachandra must be presumed to have carried out his directions in accordance with his wishes.
> It seems clear that the intention of the testator was to benefit his daughter Laxmi and to confer upon her the same title as he himself possessed. She was the sole object of his bounty and on the attendant circumstances of this case it is plain that he intended to confer on her whatever title he himself had. Laxmi therefore became the absolute owner of the property under the terms of the oral will of her father and the plaintiff is no heir to the property which under the law devolved on Laxmi's husband who had full right to alienate it."

23. In Draupadi Devi v. Union of India,(2004) 11 SCC 425

www.vadaprativada.com

the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the plaintiff was bound to plead in the plaint when the cause of action arose. If he did not, then irrespective of what the defendants may plead in the written statement, the court would be bound by the mandate of Section 3 of the Limitation Act, 1908 to dismiss the suit, if after ascertaining the facts by evidence it is found that on the plaintiff's own pleading his suit is barred by limitation. However, when the facts were ascertained by evidence Relying on said judgment it is submitted that on ascertained facts by evidence cause of action for instant Suit arose on 29.12.1949 i.e. the day of Order of attachment passed in the proceeding under section 145 of the Cr. P.C. 1898 which fact brings the instant suit within ambit of Article 120 of the Indian Limitation act, 1908; it is liable to be dismissed under Section 3 of the said Act of 1908.Relevant paragraph 73 to 75 of the said judgment read as follows:

> 73. We may notice here that under the Code of Civil Procedure, Order 7 Rule 1(e) requires a plaint to state "the facts constituting the cause of action and when it arose". The plaintiff was bound to plead in the plaint when the cause of action arose. If he did not, then irrespective of what the defendants may plead in the written statement, the court would be bound by the mandate of Section 3 of the Limitation Act, 1908 to dismiss the suit, if it found that on the plaintiff's own pleading his suit is barred by limitation. In the instant case, the plaint does not plead clearly as to when the cause of action arose. In the absence of such pleadings, the defendants pleaded nothing on the issue. However, when the facts were ascertained by evidence, it was clear that the decision of the Government of India not to recognise the suit property as private property of the Maharaja was taken sometime in the year 1951, whether in March or May. Dewan Jarmani Dass, the plaintiff and the Maharaja were very much aware of this decision. Yet, the suit was filed only on 11-5-1960.
> 74. The Division Bench was, therefore, right in applying Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 under which the period of limitation for a suit for which no specific period is provided in the Schedule was six years from the date when the right to sue accrues. The suit was, therefore, clearly barred by limitation and by virtue of Section 3 of the Limitation Act, 1908, the Court was mandated to dismiss it.
>
> 75. As rightly pointed out by the Division Bench, the learned Single Judge ought to have permitted the plea to be raised on the basis of the facts which came to light. The Division Bench has correctly appreciated the plea of limitation, in the facts and circumstances of the case, and rightly come to the conclusion that the suit of the plaintiff was liable to be dismissed on the 453ground of limitation. We agree with the conclusion of the Division Bench on this issue.

www.vadaprativada.com

Sri P.N. Mishra, Adv. has further urged that the plaintiffs cannot be allowed to approbate and reprobate on one hand they are seeking declaration based on title while on other hand they are claiming relief based on adverse possession contrary to title as such the suit is liable to be dismissed on following grounds:-

1. In (2006) 2 SCC 641 National Insurance Co. Ltd. V. Mastan theHon'ble Supreme Court held that the election is the obligation imposed upon a party by courts of equity to choose between two inconsistent or alternative rights or claims he cannot be allowed to enjoy both. The Doctrine of election is based on the rule of estoppel, the principle that one cannot approbate and reprobate inheres in it. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the plaintiffs cannot be allowed to press two inconsistent pleas; on one hand claiming possession based on the title under or through Emperor Babur while on other hand claiming possessory title based on adverse possession as such the instant suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 23-29 from the said judgment read as follows:

> 23. The "doctrine of election" is a branch of "rule of estoppel", in terms whereof a person may be precluded by his actions or conduct or silence when it is his duty to speak, from asserting a right which he otherwise would have had. The doctrine of election postulates that when two remedies are available for the same relief, the aggrieved party has the option to elect either of them but not both. Although there are certain exceptions to the same rule but the same has no application in the instant case.

24. In Nagubai Ammal v. B. Shama Rao[5] it was stated: (SCR p. 470)

"It is clear from the above observations that the maxim that a person cannot 'approbate and reprobate' is only one application of the doctrine of election, and that its operation must be confined to reliefs claimed in respect of the same transaction and to the persons who are parties thereto."

25. In C. Beepathumma v. Velasari Shankaranarayana Kadambolithaya[6] it was stated: (SCR p. 850)

"The doctrine of election which has been applied in this case is well settled and may be stated in the classic words of Maitland—

'That he who accepts a benefit under a deed or Will or other instrument must adopt the whole contents of that instrument, must conform to all its provisions and renounce all rights that are inconsistent with it.'

(See Maitland's Lectures on Equity, Lecture 18.)

The same principle is stated in White and Tudor's Leading Cases in Equity, Vol. (sic) 18th Edn. at p. 444 as follows:

'Election is the obligation imposed upon a party by courts of equity to choose between two inconsistent or alternative rights or claims in cases where there is clear intention of the person from whom he derives one that he should not enjoy both.... That he who accepts a benefit under a deed or Will must adopt the whole contents of the instrument.' "

www.vadaprativada.com

(See also Prashant Ramachandra Deshpande v. Maruti Balaram Haibatti[7].)

26. Thomas, J. in P.R. Deshpande v. Maruti Balaram Haibatti[8] stated the law thus: (SCC p. 511, para 8)

"8. The doctrine of election is based on the rule of estoppel — the principle that one cannot approbate and reprobate inheres in it. The doctrine of estoppel by election is one of the species of estoppel in pais (or equitable estoppel) which is a rule in equity. By that rule, a person may be precluded by his actions or conduct or silence when it is his duty to speak, from asserting a right which he otherwise would have had."

(See also Devasahayam v. P. Savithramma[9].)

27. The first respondent having chosen the forum under the 1923 Act for the purpose of obtaining compensation against his employer cannot now fall back upon the provisions of the 1988 Act therefor, inasmuch as the procedure laid down under both the Acts are different save and except those which are covered by Section 143 thereof.

28. We, therefore, with respect do not subscribe to the views of the Full Bench of the Karnataka High Court.

> 29. Mr P.R. Ramasesh is not correct in contending that both the Acts should be read together. A party suffering an injury or the dependent of the deceased who has died in the course of an accident arising out of use of a motor vehicle may have claims under different statutes. But when the cause of action arises under different statutes and the claimant elects the forum under one Act in preference to the other, he cannot thereafter be permitted to raise a contention which is available to him only in the former.

2. In (1992) 4 SCC 683 R.N. Gosain v. Yashpal Dhir the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that law does not permit a person to both approbate and reprobate, which principle is based on the doctrine of election which postulates that no party can say at one time that a transaction is valid and thereby obtain some advantage, to which he could only be entitled on the footing that it is valid, and then turn round and say it is void for the purpose of securing some other advantage. Relying on said judgment it is most respectfully submitted that having obtained benefit of the alleged waqf by stating that the Emperor Babur acquired title of the land in question by defeating the then ruler of Ayodhya and thereafter erected the alleged Mosque and created graveyards for the dead soldiers; now when the Babur's title is found void the plaintiffs cannot claim benefit on the ground of adverse possession as both are inconsistent to each other as such the instant suit is liable to be dismissed on this score alone. Relevant paragraph 10 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> 10. Law does not permit a person to both approbate

and reprobate. This principle is based on the doctrine of election which postulates that no party can accept and reject the same instrument and that "a person cannot say at one time that a transaction is valid and thereby obtain some advantage, to which he could only be entitled on the footing that it is valid, and then turn round and say it is void for the purpose of securing some other advantage". [See : Verschures Creameries Ltd. v. Hull and Netherlands Steamship Co. Ltd.[4], Scrutton, L.J.] According to Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edn., Vol. 16, "after taking an advantage under an order (for example for the payment of costs) a party may be precluded from saying that it is invalid and asking to set it aside". (para 1508)

3. In AIR 1956 SC 593 Nagubai Ammal and others v. B.Shama Rao and others the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that a party who in earlier litigation had obtained decree on certain plea cannot be permitted to change his front in subsequent litigation. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that in Masmula Misl. Mukadama no. 61/280 of 1885 Mahant Raghubar Das v. Sarkar Bahadur Kaser-E-Hind and Mohammad Asghar and Civil appeal no. 27 of 1886 as well as in regular suit no. 29 of 1945 Shia Central Board of Waqf U.P. v. Sunni Central Board of Waqf the plaintiffs or their predecessors have obtained benefit from the respective courts on the basis of the plea that Emperor Babur was the owner of the disputed site and he had erected an alleged mosque thereon; now they are estopped from making plea of adverse possession ; as such the instant suit is liable to be dismissed on this ground alone. Relevant paragraph 21 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"21. We shall now deal with the contention of the > appellants that in view of what happened in O. S. No. 92 of 1938-39 it is not open to the plaintiff to plead in these proceedings that the decree and sale in O. S. No. 100 of 1919-20 are not collusive.

> It is argued that in his plaint in O. S. No. 92 of 1938-39 the plaintiff alleged that the proceedings in O. S. No. 100 of 1919-20 were collusive, adduced evidence in proof of these allegations, persuaded the court to give a finding to that effect, and obtained a decree on the basis of that finding, and he cannot therefore be permitted in this litigation to change his front and plead that the proceedings in O. S. No. 100 of 1919-20 are not collusive and succeed on it. This bar arises, it is argued, on the principle that a person cannot both approbate and reprobate."

4. In AIR 1965 SC 241 C. Beepathuma and others v. Velasari Shankarnarayana Kadambolithaya the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the Doctrine of election is that, he who accepts a benefit under a deed or will or other instrument must adopt whole contents of that instrument, must conform to all its provisions and renounce all rights that are inconsistent with it. This principle is often put in another form that a person cannot approbate and reprobate the same transaction. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the plaintiffs cannot be allowed to harp on applicability of Article 142 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 on one hand and of Article 144 on other hand. Relevant paragraph 17 and 18 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "17. The doctrine of election which has been applied in this case is well-settled and may be stated in the classic words of Maitland-
> "That he who accepts a benefit under a deed or will or other instrument must adopt the whole contents of that instrument, must conform to all its provisions and

www.vadaprativada.com

renounce all rights that are inconsistent with it:"
(See Maitland's lectures on Equity Lecture18)
The same principle is stated in White and Tudor's Leading cases in Equity Vol, 1 8th Edn, at n. 444 as follows:
"Election is the obligation imposed upon a party by courts of equity to choose between two inconsistent or alternative rights or claims in cases where there is clear intention of the person from whom he derives one that he should not enjoy both ..... That he who accepts a benefit under a deed or will must adopt the whole contents of the instrument."

18. The Indian courts have applied this doctrine in several cases and a reference to all of them is hardly necessary. We may, however, refer to a decision of the Madras High Court in Ramakottayya v. Viraraghavayya, ILR 52 Mad 556: (AIR 1929 Mad 502 FB) where after referring to the passage quoted by us from White and Tudor, courts Trotter, G. J. observed that the principle is often put in another form that a person cannot approbate and reprobate the same transaction and he referred to the decision of the Judicial committee in Rangaswami Gounden v. Nachiappa Gounden, ILR 42 ) Mad 523: (AIR 1918 PC 196). Recently, this court has also considered the doctrine in Bhau Ram v. Baij Nath Singh, AIR 1961 SC 1327."

Sri P.N. Mishra, Adv. has contended that burden of proof under Section 101,102,103 and 110 of the Indian Evidence Act,1872 lies on the plaintiffs which they have failed to prove as such the instant suit is liable to be dismissed on following grounds:

1. In AIR 2007 SC 2191 (M/s. Kamakshi Builders. v. M/s. Anbedkar Educational Society & Ors.) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in case of claim for possession based on title, there is no prima facie animus possidendi as the claim for title by prescription is not tenable.

www.vadapratvada.com

Presumption by itself would not discharge the burden of proof on claimant and would not create title. Acquisition of title is inference of law arising out of certain sets of facts as such a person not acquiring title in law cannot be vested only by reason of acquiescence or estoppel on part of other. Relying on the said ratio of law, it is submitted that as the plaintiffs have claimed the possession based on title there is no prima facie animus possidendi their claim for title by prescription is not tenable and the suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph nos.24, 26, 28 and 29 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "24. Acquiescence on the part of Respondent No. 3, as has been noticed by the High Court, did not confer any title on Respondent No. 1. Conduct may be a relevant fact, so as to apply the procedural law like estoppel, waiver or acquiescence, but thereby no title can be conferred.
> 26. Acquisition of a title is an inference of law arising out of certain set of facts. If in law, a person does not acquire title, the same cannot be vested only by reason of acquiescence or estoppel on the part of other.
> 28. It may be true that Respondent No. 3 herein should have examined himself and the learned Trial Judge committed a serious error in drawing an adverse inference in that behalf as against Respondent No. 1. It was, however, so done keeping in view the fact that Respondent No. 3 was evidently not interested in the property in view of the fact that it had suffered a decree. For all intent and purport, even if the submission of Mr. Parasaran is accepted that the appellant is 1999 AIR SCW 1129 claiming only by reason of an award, he has transferred the property in his favour. He received a valuable consideration in terms of the award. We are not concerned with the validity thereof. Non-examination of Respondent No. 3 indisputably would give rise to a presumption, as has been held by this Court in Sardar Gurbaksh Singh v. Gurdial Singh [AIR 1927 PC 230]; Martand Pandharinath Chaudhari v. Radhabai Krishnarao Deshmukh [AIR 1931 Bombay 97]; and The Ramanathapuram Market Committee, Virudhunagar v. East India Corpn. Ltd., Madurai [AIR 1976 Madras 323] and Vidhyadhar v. Manikrao and Anr. [(1999) 3 SCC 573], but by reason of presumption alone, the burden is not discharged. A title is not created

www.vadaprativada.com

29. A claim of title by prescription by Respondent No. 1 again is not tenable. It based its claim on a title. It had, therefore, prima facie, no animus possidendi."

2. In (1997) 7 SCC 567 D.N. Venkata Rayappa v. State of Karnataka & Ors. the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that in view of the prohibition in respect of alienation, alienee derives no valid title. It has also been held that in claim of adverse possession, the plaintiffs are required to plead and prove that they disclaimed the title under which they came into possession, set up adverse possession with necessary animus of asserting open and hostile title to the knowledge of the true owner and the owner allowed them without any law or hindrance to remain in possession and enjoyment of the property adverse to his interest until the expiry of the prescribed period. Relying on the said principle of law, it is submitted that as according to Muslim Personal Law building a mosque on the land of others is prohibited, the plaintiffs or their predecessors derive no valid title. The plaintiffs have also not pleaded and proved that they disclaimed the tile under which they came into possession. They have also failed to set up adverse possession with necessary animus of asserting open and hostile title to the knowledge of true owners as they themselves have not mentioned the true owner as such the plea of adverse possession have not been proved and the suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 3 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> 3. The petitioners, admittedly, had purchased the property in the years 1962-63 and 1963-64 from the original allottees. The Government have allotted those lands as per Saguvali Chit containing prohibition of alienation of the land. Subsequently, the Karnataka Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prohibition of Transfer of Certain Lands) Act, 1978 was enacted totally prohibiting the alienation up to a particular period. The proceedings were initiated against the petitioners for ejectment under the said Act. All the authorities have concurrently held that the alienation in favour of the petitioners was in violation of the above Rules and the said Act and hence the sales are voidable. When the case had come up before this Court, this Court while upholding the constitutionality of the Act directed the authorities to go into the question of adverse possession raised by the petitioners. The learned Single Judge has extracted the pleadings on adverse possession of the petitioners. Therein, the High Court had pointed out that there is no express plea of adverse possession except stating that after the purchase of the lands made by them, they remained in possession and enjoyment of the lands. What requires to be pleaded and proved is that the purchaser disclaimed his title under which he came into possession, set up adverse possession with necessary animus of asserting open and hostile title to the knowledge of the true owner and the latter allowed the former, without any let or hindrance, to remain in possession and enjoyment of the property adverse to the interest of the true owner until the expiry of the prescribed period. The classical requirement of adverse possession is that it should be

nec vi, nec clam, nec precario. After considering the entire case-law in that behalf, the learned Single Judge has held thus:

"The contention raised by the petitioners that they have perfected their title in respect of the lands in question by adverse possession, has to fail on two counts. Firstly, the crucial facts, which constitute adverse possession have not been pleaded. The pleadings extracted above, in my [illegible]view, will not constitute the crucial facts necessary to claim title by adverse possession. It is not stated by the petitioners in their pleadings that the petitioners at any point of time claimed or asserted their title, hostile or adverse to the title of the original grantees/their vendors. In my view, mere uninterrupted and continuous possession without the animus to continue in possession hostile to the rights of the real owner will not constitute adverse possession in law.

In the case of Lakshmi Reddy[1] relied upon by Shri Narayana Rao at para 7 of the judgment, the Supreme Court, following the decision of the Privy Council in Secy. of State v. Debendra Lal Khan[2], has observed that the ordinary classical requirement of adverse possession is that it should be nec vi, nec clam, nec precario and the possession required must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that it is possession adverse to the competitor.

In the case of State of W.B. v. Dalhousie Institute Society[3] the Supreme Court, on the basis of the materials on record, which were referred to by the High Court, took the view that in the said case, the respondent had established his title to the site in question by adverse possession. Further, the said decision proceeds on the basis that the grant made by the Government was invalid in law. That is not the position in the present case. The alienation in question was only voidable. The petitioners came into possession of the lands in question by virtue of the sale deeds which are only voidable in law. Therefore, they have come into possession by virtue of the derivative title as observed by the Supreme Court in the case of Chandevarappa[4]. Further, in the case of Kshitish Chandra[5], the observation made by the Supreme Court at para 8 of the judgment relied upon by Shri Narayana Rao in support of his contention that the only requirement of law to claim title by adverse possession is that the possession must be open and without any attempt at concealment and it is not necessary that the possession must be so effective so as to bring it to the specific knowledge of the owner concerned, I am of the view that the said observation must be understood with reference to the observations made in para 7 of the judgment. At para 7 of the judgment, the Supreme Court has observed thus:

'7. ... For instance, one of the most important facts which clearly proved adverse possession was that the plaintiff had let out the land for cultivatory purposes and used it himself from time to time without any protest from the defendant. During the period of 45 years, no serious attempt was made by the municipality to evict the [570]plaintiff knowing full well that he was asserting hostile title against the municipality in respect of the land.'

Further, this Court, in the case of Danappa Revappa Kolli v. Gurupadappa Kallappa Pattana Shetti[6], while referring to the decision of the Supreme Court in Kshitish Chandra case[5], relied upon by Shri Narayana Rao in support of the plea of adverse possession, has observed that apart from the actual and continuous possession which are among other ingredients of adverse possession, there should be necessary animus on the part of the person who intends to perfect his title by adverse possession. The observations made in the said decision reads thus:

'5. ... Apart from actual and continuous possession which are among other ingredients of adverse possession, there should be necessary animus on the part of the person who intends to perfect his title by adverse possession. A person who under the bona fide belief thinks that the property belongs to him and as such he has been in possession, such possession cannot at all be adverse possession because it lacks necessary animus for perfecting title by adverse possession.'

Therefore, it is clear that one of the important ingredients to claim adverse possession is that the person who claims adverse possession must have set up title hostile to the title of the true owner. Therefore, I am of the view that none of the decisions relied upon by Shri Narayana Rao in support of the plea of adverse possession set up by the petitioners, is of any assistance to the petitioners.

Further, admittedly, there is not even a whisper in the evidence of the first petitioner with regard to the claim of adverse possession set up by the petitioners. It is not stated by the petitioners that they have been in continuous and uninterrupted possession of the lands in question. What is stated by the petitioners, in substance, is that they came into possession of the lands in question by virtue of the sale deeds executed by the original grantees. The Supreme Court, in para 11 of the decision in Chandevarappa case[4], has observed thus:

'11. The question then is whether the appellant has perfected his title by adverse possession. It is seen that a contention was raised before the Assistant Commissioner that the appellant having remained in possession from 1968, he perfected his title by adverse possession. But the crucial facts to constitute adverse possession have not been pleaded. Admittedly, the appellant came into possession by a derivative title from the original grantee. It is seen that the original grantee has no right to alienate the land. Therefore, having come into possession under colour of title from original grantee, if the appellant intends to plead adverse possession as against the State, he must disclaim his title and plead his hostile claim to the knowledge of the State and that the State had not taken any action thereon within the prescribed period. Thereby, the appellant's possession would become adverse. No such stand was taken nor evidence has been adduced in this behalf. The counsel in fairness, despite his research, is unable to bring to our notice any such plea having been taken by the appellant.'

Therefore, in the absence of crucial pleadings, which constitute adverse possession and evidence to show that the petitioners have been in continuous and uninterrupted possession of the lands in question claiming right, title and interest in the lands in question hostile to the right, title and interest of the original grantees, the petitioners cannot claim that they have perfected their title by adverse possession and, therefore, the Act does not apply as laid down by the Supreme Court in Manchegowda case[7]. The law laid down by the Supreme Court in Chandevarappa case[4] fully applies to the facts of the present case. In the said case, while considering the claim of adverse possession of the purchaser of a granted land from the original grantee, the Supreme Court has observed that the person who comes into possession under colour of title from the original grantee, if he intends to claim adverse possession as against the State, must disclaim his title and plead his hostile claim to the knowledge of the State and the State had not taken any action thereon within the prescribed period. It is also relevant to point out that sub-section (3) of Section 5 of the Act provides that where a granted land is in possession of a person, other than the original grantee or his legal heir, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is proved, that such person has acquired the land by a transfer, which is null and void under the provisions of sub-section (1) of Section 4. Since I have negatived the contention of Shri Narayana Rao that the original grantees are not Scheduled Castes, it follows that the lands in question are granted lands within the meaning of clause (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 3 of the Act. Therefore, the burden is on the petitioners, who had admittedly come into possession of the lands in question, to establish that they have acquired title to the lands in question by a transfer, which is not null and void under the provisions of sub-section (21) of Section 4 of the Act. In the instant case, the petitioners have failed to discharge the said burden. On this ground also, the petition should fail. Secondly, the grants made in favour of the original grantees are admittedly free grants. The rule governing the grant prohibited alienation of the lands in question permanently. The lands in question were granted to a Scheduled Caste person taking into account their social backgrounds, poverty, illiteracy and their inherent weakness for being exploited by the affluent section of [illegible]572the society. Under these circumstances, the conditions were imposed that the grantees should not alienate the lands granted to them. Sections 66-A and 66-B of the Land Revenue Code authorise the State to resume the land for violation of the terms of the grant. Therefore, if the terms of the grants, which are hedged with conditions, and the class of persons to whom the lands are granted, are taken into account and considered, it is not possible to accept the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners that the title in the lands had passed absolutely to the grantees. I am of the view that the title to the lands continued to remain in the State and what has been transferred to the grantees is the right to continue to be in possession of the lands granted to them and enjoy the same in perpetuity subject to the condition that they do not violate the conditions of the grant. This view of mine is supported by the Division Bench decision of this Court in the case of Rudrappa v. Special Dy. Commr.[8], wherein in para 8 of the judgment, the Division Bench of this Court, while considering similar grants, has taken the view that the grantee was not given absolute title in respect of the land granted. The relevant portion of the judgment at para 8, reads as follows:

'8. ... It is clear from the terms of the grant that the appellant's predecessor-in-title, the grantee could not alienate the land for certain period and if the land was alienated, it was open to the Government to cancel the grant and resume the land in question. If the grant was hedged in with several conditions of this nature, the same cannot be said to be absolute. Moreover, it must be noticed that the grant was made at an upset price. In the circumstances, proceedings initiated by the respondents cannot be stated to be barred by limitation nor is it possible to sustain the plea of adverse possession raised on behalf of the appellant.'

3. In (2009) 7 SCC 161 (*Babulal Sharma v. State of Madhya Pradesh) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the revenue records are relevant in a suit for title and possession. As the revenue record shows that the disputed land is nazool that is government land which is relevant under Sections 35 and 74 of the Evidence Act, 1872. In such circumstances, the State of Uttar Pradesh is the recorded owner of the disputed premises and unless the State Government executes a registered instrument of lease under the provision of Section 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 no one can claim as lessee. As the plaintiffs have failed to produce any lease deed in their favour, they cannot be considered as owner of the disputed premises. Relevant paragraph nos.15 to 18 of the said judgment read as follows:

> 15. In our considered opinion reliance placed on the judgment of the various courts including the Supreme Court in respect of the land measuring 0.53 decimal which was allegedly sold by Mahadev Prasad Richharia, the 164 father of the appellant-plaintiff to Chhedilal Gupta is totally misplaced. The said land was transferred way back in the year 1945. We are here concerned with an area of land measuring 1.31 acres only. The said land is entered in the revenue records in the name of the Government of Madhya Pradesh. The Revenue Courts have given a finding against the appellant-plaintiff.
> 16. In the documents which are exhibited it is clearly mentioned that these are not cultivable lands but originally they were "khadans" (mines) and the same land was declared as nazool lands. Therefore, the revenue records which are referred to in the present case clearly depict that the land has all along been the government land. The land was also said to be in a ruinous state and therefore, there was no possession of the appellant-plaintiff with respect to the said land.
> 17. No argument for claiming a right by way of adverse possession was made before us which although was a plea taken in the courts below. The appellant-plaintiff has also admitted in his evidence that he has been residing outside the suit land. Therefore, it is clearly established that the appellant-plaintiff did not even have the possession of the suit land. Furthermore, there is no document to prove his title. He has not been able to prove and establish as to how Mahadev Prasad Richharia, his father came to own the said property which was a government land.
> 18. The oldest khasra entry which is available on record is Exhibit P-11 which pertains to the period of 1943-1944. In the said khasra entry names of the appellant-plaintiff are not recorded in any capacity whatsoever in the relevant columns. Rather, in the column meant for the name of "kastkar" (cultivator) and his status, cross sign is shown whereas the nature of the land is shown as "BA AR RASTA". In the khasra corresponding to year 1951-1952 (Exhibit P-12) the name of the appellant-plaintiff is not mentioned at all in any capacity. The name of the appellant-plaintiff was recorded in the next year i.e.

> 1953-1954 which is Exhibit P-4 but there also the name of the appellant-plaintiff is recorded in Column 7 whereas Column 8 was meant to show the name of the cultivator occupying them. The nature of the land is not shown to be cultivable but is shown to be as "khadan" i.e. mines.

4. In AIR 1964 SC 1254 (*S.M. Karim. v. Mst Bibi Sakina) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the alternative claim must be clearly made and proved, adverse possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and a plea is required at the least to show when possession becomes adverse so that the starting point of limitation against the party affected can be found. A mere suggestion in the relief clause that there was an uninterrupted possession for "several 12 years" or that the plaintiff had acquired "a possible title" was not enough to raise such a plea. Long possession is not necessary adverse possession and prayer clause is not a substitute for a plea. Relying on the said ratio of law, it is submitted that as the plaintiffs have not pleaded adverse possession adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and also have not shown the starting point of limitation in their plaint and the prayer clause is not a substitute for a plea, this suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph nos.3 to 5 of the said judgment read as follows:

> 3. In this appeal, it has been stressed by the appellant that the finding clearly establish the benami nature of the transaction of 1914. This is, perhaps, true but the appellant cannot avail himself of it. The appellant's claim based upon the benami nature of the transaction cannot stand because S. 66 of the Code of Civil Procedure bars it. That Section provides that no suit shall be maintained against any person claiming title under a purchase certified by the Court on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff or on behalf of someone through whom the plaintiff claims. Formerly, the opening words were, no suit shall be maintained against a certified purchaser, and the change was made to protect not only the certified purchaser but any person claiming title under a purchase certified by the Court. The protection is thus available not only against the real purchaser but also against anyone claiming through him. In the present case, the appellant as plaintiff was hit by the Section and the defendants were protected, by it.

4. It is contended that the case falls within the second sub-section under which a suit is possible at the instance of a third person who wishes to proceed against the property, though ostensibly sold to the certified purchaser, on the ground that it is liable to satisfy a claim of such third person against the real owner. Reliance is placed upon the transfer by Syed Aulad Ali in favour of the appellant which is described as a claim by the transferee against the real owner. The words of the second sub-section refer to the claims of creditors and not to the claims of transferees. The latter are dealt with in the first sub-section, and if the meaning sought to be placed on the second sub-section by the appellant were accepted, the entire policy of the law would be defeated by the real purchaser making a transfer to another and the first sub-section would become almost a dead letter. In our opinion, such a construction cannot be accepted and the plaintiff's suit must be held to be barred under S. 66 of the Code.

As an alternative, it was contended before us that the title of Hakir Alam was extinguished by long and uninterrupted adverse possession of Syed Aulad Ali and after him of the plaintiff. The High Court did not accept this case. Such a case is, of course, open to a plaintiff to make if his possession is disturbed. If the possession of the real owner ripens into title under the Limitation Act and he is dispossessed, he can sue to obtain possession, for he does not then rely on the benami nature of the transaction. But the alternative claim must be clearly made and proved. The High

Court held that the plea of adverse possession was not raised in the suit and reversed the decision of the two courts below. The plea of adverse possession is raised here. Reliance is placed before us on Sukhan Das v. Krishnanand, ILR 32 Pat 353 and Sri Bhagwan Singh v. Ram Basi Kuer, AIR 1957 Pat 157 to submit that such a plea is not necessary and alternatively, that if a plea is required, what can be considered a proper plea. But these two cases can hardly help the appellant. No doubt, the plaint sets out the fact that after the purchase by Syed Aulad Ali, benami in the name of his son-in-law Hakir Alam, Syed Aulad Ali continued in possession of the property but it does not say that this possession was at any time adverse to that of the certified purchaser. Hakir Alam was the son-in-law of Syed Aulad Ali and was living with him. There is no suggestion that Syed Aulad Ali ever asserted any hostile title against him or that a dispute with regard to ownership and possession had ever arisen. Adverse possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and a plea is required at the least to show when possession becomes adverse so that the starting point of limitation against the party affected can be found. There is no evidence here when possession became adverse, if it at all did, and a mere suggestion in the relief clause that there was an uninterrupted possession for " several 12 years" or that the plaintiff had acquired " an absolute title" was not enough to raise such a plea. Long possession is not necessarily adverse possession and the prayer clause is not a substitute for a plea. The cited cases need hardly be considered because each case must be determined upon the allegations in the plaint in that case. It is sufficient to point out that in Bishun Dayal v. Kesho Prasad, AIR 1940 PC 202 the Judicial Committee did not accept an alternative case based on possession after purchase without a proper plea.

5. In (2005) 11 SCC 115 (*B. Leelavathi v. Honamma) the Hon’ble Supreme Court has held that the adverse possession is a question of fact which has to be specifically pleaded and proved and in the absence of any plea of adverse possession, framing of an issue and adducing evidence could not be held that the plaintiffs had perfected towards the title by way of adverse possession. Relying on the said judgment, it is submitted that as the plaintiffs had not pleaded settled ingredients of adverse possession in their plaint on the basis of framing of an issue and adducing evidence on the point cannot be held that the plaintiffs have perfected their title by way of adverse possession and the instant suit is liable to be dismissed with costs. Relevant paragraph nos.10 and 11 of the said judgment read as follows:

> 10. In our considered view, the High Court has erroneously set aside the judgment and decree passed by the trial court on the ground of non-issuance of notice by BDA to the plaintiff-respondent before executing the sale deed dated 21-5-1983 in favour of the appellant and that the plaintiff-respondent had perfected her title by way of adverse possession. Plea of non-issuance of show-cause notice by BDA before executing the sale deed in favour of the appellant was neither pleaded nor raised before the trial court. It was raised for the first time before the High Court. No issue had been framed in this respect. The plaintiff did not lead any evidence on this point. On the contrary, the case of the appellant and BDA was that Respondent 1 was present at the time when the sale deed was executed in favour of the appellant by BDA on 21-5-1983. DW 1, husband of the appellant has specifically deposed that [illegible]Respondent 1 was a consenting party to all the transactions and had visited the office of BDA along with the appellant at the time of the execution of the sale deed dated 21-5-1983. The High Court has not given any reasons to discard the testimony of DW 1. This was primarily a question of fact and in the absence of any pleadings and evidence on this point, the High Court has erred in holding that BDA did not issue a show-cause notice to the plaintiff before executing the sale deed in favour of the appellant.
> 11. Plea of adverse possession had been taken vaguely in the plaint. No categorical stand on this point was taken in the plaint. No issue had been

www.vadaprativada.com

> framed and seemingly the same was not insisted upon by the plaintiff-respondent. Adverse possession is a question of fact which has to be specifically pleaded and proved. No evidence was adduced by the plaintiff-respondent with regard to adverse possession. Honnamma, the plaintiff in her own statement did not say that she is in adverse possession of the suit property. We fail to understand as to how the High Court, in the absence of any plea of adverse possession, framing of an issue and evidence led on the point, could hold that the plaintiff-respondent had perfected her title by way of adverse possession.

6. In (2008) 2 SCC 741 (*Dharamarajan v. Valliammal) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that in a claim of adverse possession openness and adverse nature of the possession has to be proved against the owner of the property in question. Relying on the said judgment, it is submitted that the plaintiffs have failed to prove openness and adverse nature of possession against the owner of the property as they themselves do not know as to who is the owner of the property and they have not pleaded the name of the owner in the plaint and, as such, the suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 11 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> 11. In our opinion none of these questions could be said to be either question of law or a substantial question of law arising out of the pleadings of the parties. The first referred question of law could not and did not arise for the simple reason that the plea of adverse possession has been rightly found against the plaintiff. Karupayee Ammal's possession, even if presumed to be a valid possession in law, could not be said to be adverse possession as throughout it was the case of the appellant Dharmarajan that it was a permissive possession and that she was permitted to stay on the land belonging to the members of the Iyer

family. Secondly, it has nowhere come as to against whom was her possession adverse. Was it adverse against the Government or against the Iyer family? In order to substantiate the plea of adverse possession, the possession has to be open and adverse to the owner of the property in question. The evidence did not show this openness and adverse nature because it is not even certain as to against whom the adverse possession was pleaded on the part of Karupayee Ammal. Further even the legal relationship of Doraiswamy and Karupayee Ammal is not pleaded or proved. All that is pleaded is that after Karupayee Ammal's demise Doraiswamy as her foster son continued in the thatched shed allegedly constructed by Karupayee Ammal. There was no question of the tacking of possession as there is ample evidence on record to suggest that Doraiswamy also was in the service of Iyer family and that he was permitted to stay after Karupayee Ammal. Further his legal heirship was also not decisively proved. We do not, therefore, see as to how the first substantial question of law came to be framed. This is apart from the fact that ultimately the High Court has not granted the relief to the respondents on the basis of the finding of this question. On the other hand the High Court has gone into entirely different consideration based on reappreciation of evidence. The second and third questions are not the questions of law at all. They are regarding appreciation of evidence. The fourth question is regarding the admissibility of Exhibit A-8. In our opinion there is no question of admissibility as the High Court has found that Exhibit A-8 was not admissible in evidence since the Tahsildar who had issued that certificate was not examined. Therefore, there will be no question of admissibility since the document itself was not proved. Again the finding of the High Court goes against the respondent herein. Even the fifth question was a clear-cut question of fact and was, therefore, impermissible in the second appeal.

7. In (1995) Supp 4 SCC 570 (*A.S. Vidyasagar v. S. Karunanandan) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that permissive possession is not adverse possession and can be terminated at any time by the rightful owner. Relying on the said judgment, it is submitted that as the land in question has been recorded as government land and no lease deed has been executed in favour of the plaintiffs or their predecessors, they cannot claim for adverse possession as status of such occupants is only as a tenant on hold and as they have neither pleaded nor adduced any evidence to support the plea of openness, hostile and notoriety against the rightful owner as such their suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph 5 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> 5. Adverse possession is sought to be established on the supposition that Kanthimathi got possession of the premises as a licensee and on her death in 1948, the appellant who was 4 years of age, must be presumed to have become a trespasser. And if he had remained in trespass for 12 years, the title stood [illegible]perfected and in any case, a suit to recovery of possession would by then be time-barred. We are unable to appreciate this line of reasoning for it appears to us that there is no occasion to term the possession of Kanthimathi as that of a licensee. The possession was permissive in her hands and remained permissive in the hands of the appellant on his birth, as well as in the hands of his father living then with Kanthimathi. There was no occasion for any such licence to have been terminated. For the view we are taking there was no licence at all. Permissive possession of the appellant could rightfully be terminated at any moment by the rightful owners. The present contesting respondents thus had a right to institute the suit for possession against the appellant. No oral evidence has been referred to us which would go to support the plea of openness, hostility and notoriety which would go to establish adverse possession. On the contrary, the Municipal Tax receipts, Exts. B-39 and 40, even though suggestedly reflecting payment made by the appellant, were in the name of Kuppuswami, the rightful owner. This negates the assertion that at any stage did the appellant assert a hostile title. Even by examining the evidence, at our end, we come to the same view as that of the High

> Court. The plea of adverse possession thus also fails. As a result fails this appeal. Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal, but without any order as to costs.

8. In (1995) 6 SCC 523 (*P. Periasami. v. P. Periathambi) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that plea of adverse possession implies that someone else is the owner of the property. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that as in their prayer the plaintiffs have sought relief on the basis of adverse possession it implies that someone else was the owner and they or their predecessors were not owner of the property. As such the suit on the basis of title is not maintainable and is liable to be dismissed with costs. Relevant paragraph 6 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> 6. With regard to the accreted property, there is a reference in the judgment under appeal relating to some accounting; after recording the finding that the defendants have failed to prove that that property was in their adverse possession. This is a finding of fact which need not be disturbed, as it has been sought to, in the cross-appeal. Whenever the plea of adverse possession is projected, inherent in the plea is that someone else was the owner of the property. The failure of the plea has obvious results. If the parties herein were co-owners of that property and the said property had been purchased from the income derived from joint property, then obviously the same has to be accounted for as joint property and not as joint Hindu family property. It was like property jointly purchased by co-owners without attracting the rule of succession by way of survivorship. On this clarification, the judgment of the High Court is cleansed of the little vagueness about this particular which accidentally seems to have crept in while dealing with this aspect of the case.

9. IN AIR 1970 SUPREME COURT 2025 "Goswami Shri

www.vadaprativada.com

Mahalaxmi Vahuji v. Shah Ranchhoddas Kalidas" the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that a party cannot be allowed to set up a case wholly inconsistent with that pleaded in their written statement. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the plaintiffs who have pleaded in their written statements ante litem motam filed in other suit being tried analogously admitting that lastly prayer was offered on 16.12.1949 and thereafter they discontinued in possession now in the instant suit they cannot be allowed to raise their post litem motam statement that they offered prayer till 22nd or 23rd December 1949 which is wholly inconsistent with their earlier pleading. Besides that in the instant suit on one hand they claims possession based on title of Emperor Babur while on other hand they claim possession based on Adverse possession treating someone else owner of the property in question without disclosing even name of such owner; these two inconsistent plea cannot be allowed to be raised in one suit itself. Relevant paragraph 8 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "8. We may now proceed to examine the material on record for finding out the true character of the suit properties viz., whether they are properties of a public trust arising from their dedication of those properties in favour of the deity Shree Gokulnathji or whether the deity as well as the suit properties are the private properties of Goswami Maharaj. In her written statement as noticed, earlier, the 1st defendant took up the specific plea that the idol of Shri Gokulnathji is the private property of the Maharaj; the Vallabh Cult does not permit any dedication in favour of an

idol and in fact there was no dedication in favour of that idol. She emphatically denied that the suit properties were the properties of the deity Gokulnathji but in this Court evidently because of the enormity of evidence adduced by the plaintiffs, a totally new plea was taken namely that several items of the suit properties had been dedicated to Gokulnathji but the deity being the family deity of the Maharaj, the resulting trust is only a private trust. In other words the plea taken in the written statement is that the suit properties were the private properties of the Maharaj and that there was no trust, private or public. But the case argued before this Court is a wholly different one viz., the suit properties were partly the properties of a private trust and partly the private properties of the Maharaj. The 1st defendant cannot be permitted to take up a case which is wholly inconsistent with that pleaded. This belated attempt to bypass the evidence adduced appears to be more a manoeuvre than a genuine explanation of the documentary evidence adduced. It is amply proved that ever since Mathuranathji took over the management of the shrine, two sets of account books have been maintained, one relating to the income and expenses of the shrine and the other relating to that of the Maharaj. These account books and other documents show that presents and gifts used to be made to the deity as well as to the Maharaj. The two were quite separate and distinct. Maharaj himself has been making gifts to the deity. He has been, at times utilising the funds belonging to the deity and thereafter reimbursing the same. The account books which have been produced clearly go to show that the deity and the Maharaj were treated as two different and distinct legal entities. The evidence afforded by the account books is tell-tale. In the trial court it was contended on behalf of the 1st defendant that none of the account books produced relates exclusively to the affairs of the temple. They all record the transactions of the Maharaj, whether pertaining to his personal dealings or dealings in connection with the deity. This is an obviously untenable contention. That contention was given up in the High Court. In the High Court it was urged that two sets of account books were kept, one relating to the income and expenditure of the deity and the other of the Maharaj, so that the Maharaj could easily find out his financial commitments relating to the affairs of the deity. But in this Court Mr. Narasaraju, learned Counsel for the > appellant realising the untenability of the contention advanced in the courts below presented for our consideration a totally new case and that is that Gokulnathji undoubtedly is a legal personality; in the past the properties had been dedicated in favour of that deity; those properties are the properties of a private trust of which the Maharaj was the trustee. On the basis of this newly evolved theory he wanted to explain away the effect of the evidence afforded by the account books and the documents. We are unable to accept this new plea. It runs counter to the case pleaded in the written statement. This is not a purely legal contention. The 1st defendant must have known whether there was any dedication in favour of Shree Gokulnathji and whether any portion of the suit properties were the properties of a private trust. She and her advisers must have known at all relevant times the true nature of the accounts maintained. Mr. Narasaraju is not right in his contention that the plea taken by him in this Court is a purely legal plea. It essentially relates to questions of fact. Hence we informed Mr. Narasaraju that we will not entertain the plea in question."

10. In AIR 1984 SC 718 (*A.R. Antulay. v. Ramdas Sriniwas Nayak & Anr.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that if a statute prescribe anything to do in any specific manner then, it should be done in the same manner. Relevant paragraph 22 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "22. Once the contention on behalf of the appellant that investigation under Section 5-A is a condition precedent to the initiation of proceedings before a Special Judge and therefore cognizance of an offence cannot be taken except upon a police report, does not commend to us and has no foundation in law, it is unnecessary to refer to the long line of decisions commencing from Taylor v. Taylor, (1875-76) 1 Ch D 426; Nazir Ahmad v. King Emperor, AIR 1936 PC 253 (2) and ending with Chettiam Vettil Ammad v. Taluk Land Board, (1979) 3 SCR 839 : (AIR 1979 SC 1573), laying down hitherto uncontroverted legal principle that where a statute requires to do a certain thing in a certain way, the thing must be done in that way or not at all. Other methods of performance are necessarily forbidden."

11. In AIR 1983 SUPREME COURT 684 "State of Bihar v. Radha Krishna Singh = (1983) 3 SCC 118 the a Hon'ble Supreme court held that as there is a tendency on the part of an interested person or a party in order to grab, establish or prove an alleged claim to concoct, fabricate or procure false genealogy to suit their ends, the Courts in relying on the genealogy put forward must guard themselves against falling into trap laid by a series of documents or a labyrinth of seemingly old genealogies to support their rival claims; as also that When a case of a party is based on a genealogy consisting of links, it is incumbent on the party to prove every link thereof and even if one like is found to be missing then in the eye of law, the genealogy cannot be said to have been fully proved. Relying on said judgment the plaintiffs have failed to prove geneology of the Mutwallis allegedly starting from the reign of Emperor Babur as such the suit is liable to be dismissed on this score alone. Relevant paragraph 18,19, 24,192 and 193 of the said judgment reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"18. After a brief narration of the facts, mentioned above, before going to the oral, documentary and circumstantial evidence, it may be necessary to state the well established principles in the light of which we have to decide the conflicting claims of the parties. It appears that the plaint genealogy is the very fabric and foundation of the edifice on which is built

www.vadaprativada.com

the plaintiff's case. This is the starting point of the case of the plaintiff which has been hotly contested by the appellant. In such cases, as there is a tendency on the part of an interested person or a party in order to grab, establish or prove an alleged claim, to concoct, fabricate or procure false genealogy to suit their ends, the courts in relying on the genealogy put forward must guard themselves against falling into the trap laid by a series of documents or a labyrinth of seemingly old genealogies to support their rival claims.

19. The principles governing such cases may be summarised thus :
(1) Genealogies admitted or proved to be old and relied on in previous cases are doubtless relevant and in some cases may even be conclusive of the facts proved but there are several considerations which must be kept in mind by the courts before accepting or relying on the genealogies.
(a) Source of the genealogy and its dependability.
(b) Admissibility of the genealogy under the Evidence Act.
(c) A proper use of the said genealogies in decisions or judgments on which reliance is placed.
(d) Age of genealogies.
(e) Litigations where such genealogies have been accepted or rejected.
(2) On the question of admissibility the following tests must be adopted :
(a) the genealogies of the families concerned must fall within the four corners of S. 32 (5) or S. 13 of the Evidence Act.
(b) They must not be hit by the doctrine of post litem motam.
(c) The genealogies or the claims cannot be proved by recitals, depositions or facts narrated in the judgment which have been held by a long course of decisions to be inadmissible.
(d) where genealogy is proved by oral evidence, the said evidence must clearly show special means of knowledge disclosing the exact source, time and the circumstances under which the knowledge is acquired, and this must be clearly and conclusively proved.

24. It is well settled that when a case of a party is based on a genealogy consisting of links, it is incumbent on the party to prove every link thereof

and even if one link is found to be missing then in the eye of law the genealogy cannot be said to have been fully proved. In the instant case, although the plaintiffs have produced oral and documentary evidence to show that Ramruch Singh and Debi Singh were brothers being the sons of Bansidhar Singh this position was not accepted by the trial court as also by M. M. Prasad, J. who dissented from the other two Judges constituting the Special Bench who had taken a contrary view and had held that the plaintiffs had fully proved the entire genealogy set-up in the plaint. This, therefore, makes our task easier because we need not discuss in detail the evidence and documents to show the connection of the plaintiffs up to the stage of Gajraj Singh though we may have to refer to the evidence for the purpose of deciding the main issue, viz., whether or not Gajraj Singh was the son of Ramruch Singh and Ramruch Singh a brother of Debi Singh and son of Bansidhar Singh.

192. Before, however, opening this chapter it may be necessary to restate the norms and the principles governing the proof of a pedigree by oral evidence, in the light of which the said evidence would have to be examined by us. It is true that in considering the oral evidence regarding a pedigree a purely mathematical approach cannot be made because where a long line of descent has to be proved spreading over a century, it is obvious that the witnesses who are examined to depose to the genealogy would have to depend on their special means of knowledge which may have come to them through their ancestors but, at the same time, there is a great risk and a serious danger involved in relying solely on the evidence of witnesses given from pure memory because the witnesses who are interested normally have a tendency to draw more from their imagination or turn and twist the facts which they may have heard from their ancestors in order to help the parties for whom they are deposing. The Court must, therefore safeguard that the evidence of such witnesses may not be accepted as is based purely on imagination or an imaginary or illusory source of information rather than special means of knowledge as required by law. The oral testimony of the witnesses on this matter is bound to be hearsay and their evidence is admissible as an exception to the general rule where hearsay evidence is not admissible. This is culled out from the law contained in Cl. (5) of S. 32 of the Evidence Act which must be construed to the letter and to the spirit on which it was passed.

193. In order to appreciate the evidence of such witnesses, the following principles should be kept in mind:

(1) The relationship or the connection however close it may be, which the witness bears to the persons whose pedigree is sought to be deposed by him.

(2) The nature and character of the special means of knowledge through which the witness has come to know about the pedigree.

(3) The interested nature of the witness concerned.

(4) The precaution which must be taken to rule out any false statement made by the witness post litem motam or one which is derived not by means of special knowledge but purely from his imagination, and

(5) The evidence of the witness must be substantially corroborated as far as time and memory admit."

12. In AIR 1983 SUPREME COURT 684 "State of Bihar v. Radha Krishna Singh = (1983) 3 SCC 118 the a Hon'ble Supreme Court in respect of admissibility of the documents has laid down principle of law relying where on it is submitted that the documents filed by the petitioner in the instant suit are not admissible. Relevant paragraph 35 of the said judgment reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"35. In our opinion, Ex. J. squarely falls within the four corners of S. 35 of the Evidence Act which requires the following conditions to be fulfilled before a document can be admissible under this section.

(1) the document must be in the nature of an entry in any public or other official book, register or record,

(2) it must state a fact in issue or a relevant fact,

(3) the entry must be made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duties or in performance of his duties especially enjoined by the law of the country in which the relevant entry is kept."

13. In AIR 1983 SUPREME COURT 684 "State of Bihar v.

Radha Krishna Singh = (1983) 3 SCC 118 the a Hon'ble Supreme Court in respect of admissibility and probative value of the documents has laid down principle of law relying where on it is submitted that the documents filed by the Plaintiffs in the instant suit are not admissible. Relevant paragraph 40,47 and 52 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "40. The admissibility of Ex J., or its genuineness is only one side of the picture and in our opinion, it does not throw much light on the controversial issues involved in the appeal. We may not be understood, while holding that Ex. J. is admissible, to mean that all its recitals are correct or that it has very great probative value merely because it happens to be an ancient document. Admissibility of a document is one thing and its probative value quite another - these two aspects cannot be combined. A document may be admissible and yet may not carry any conviction and the weight of its probative value may be nil. Before going to the contents of Ex. J., which have been fully discussed by the High Court, we would first like to comment on the probative value of this document.
> 47. We would like to mention here that even if a document may be admissible or an ancient one, it cannot carry the same weight or probative value as a document which is prepared either under a Statute, Ordinance or an Act which requires certain conditions to be fulfilled. This was the case in both Ghulam Rasul Khan's (AIR 1925 PC 170) and Shyam Pratap Singh's cases (AIR 1946 PC 103) (supra).
> 52. Finally, Ex. J., unlike the document in the case (1874-I Ind App 209) before the Privy Council was not a Report under any statutory authority but was merely a report submitted on the administrative orders of a high Government official. In our opinion, therefore, where a report is given by a responsible officer, which is based on evidence of witnesses and documents and has a statutory favour in that it is given not merely by an administrative officer but under the authority of a statute, its probative value

would indeed be very high so as to be entitled to great weight."

14. In AIR 1983 SUPREME COURT 684 "State of Bihar v. Radha Krishna Singh = (1983) 3 SCC 118 the a Hon'ble Supreme Court in respect of admissibility of the Judgments has laid down principle of law relying where on it is submitted that the judgment dated 24.12.1885 passed by Ld. Sub Judge Faizabad Sri Harikishan in Suit No. 61/280 of 1885 between Mahant Rghubardas v. Secretary of State & Anr as well as Judgment dated 18/26.03.1886 passed by Ld. District Judge Faizabad Mr. F.E.A. Chamier in Civil Appeal No.27 of 1885 preferred against said order of the Ld. Sub Judge Faizabad as well as the Judgment dated 30.03.1946 passed by Ld. Civil Judge Faizabad Sri S.A. Ahsan in Suit No. 29 of 1949 between Shia Central Board U.P. Wqfs vs. Sunni Central Board U.P. Waqfs filed by the Plaintiffs in the instant suit not being Judgment in rem or the judgment between the same parties are not admissible in evidence and not reliable for extracting inferences. Relevant paragraph 121,122,133 and 143 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"121. Some Courts have used Section 13 to prove the admissibility of a judgment as coming under the provisions of S. 43, referred to above. We are, however, of the opinion that where there is a specific provision covering the admissibility of a document, it is not open to the court to call into aid other general provisions in order to make a particular document admissible. In other words if a judgment is not admissible as not falling within the ambit of Sections

www.vadapratvada.com

40 to 42, it must fulfil the conditions of S. 43 otherwise it cannot be relevant under S. 13 of the Evidence Act. The words "other provisions of this Act" cannot cover S. 13 because this section does not deal with judgments at all.

122. It is also well settled that a judgment in rem like judgments, passed in probate, insolvency, matrimonial or guardianship or other similar, proceedings, is admissible in all cases whether such judgments are inter partes or not.

In the instant case, however, all the documents consisting of judgments filed are not judgments in rem and therefore, the question of their admissibility on that basis does not arise. As mentioned earlier, the judgments filed as Exhibits in the instant case, are judgments in personam and, therefore, they do not fulfil the conditions mentioned in S. 41 of the Evidence Act.

133. The cumulative effect of the decisions cited above on this point clearly is that under the Evidence Act a judgment which is not inter partes is inadmissible in evidence except for the limited purpose of proving as to who the parties were and what was the decree passed and the properties which were the subject matter of the suit. In these circumstances, therefore, it is not open to the plaintiffs-respondents to derive any support from some of the judgments which they have filed in order to support their title and relationship in which neither the plaintiffs nor the defendants were parties. Indeed, if the judgments are used for the limited purpose mentioned above, they do not take us anywhere so as to prove the plaintiffs' case.

143. Thus, summarising the ratio of the authorities mentioned above, the position that emerges and the principles that are deducible from the aforesaid decisions are as follows :

(1) A judgment in rem e.g., judgments or orders passed in admiralty, probate proceedings, etc., would always be admissible irrespective of whether they are inter partes or not,

(2) judgments in personam not inter partes are not at all admissible in evidence except for the three purposes mentioned above. "

(3) On a parity of aforesaid reasoning, the recitals in a judgment like findings given in appreciation of evidence made or arguments or genealogies referred to in the judgment would be wholly inadmissible in a case where neither the plaintiff nor the defendant were parties.

www.vadaprativada.com

(4) The probative value of documents which, however ancient they may be, do not disclose sources of their information or have not achieved sufficient notoriety is precious little.
(5) Statements, declarations or depositions, etc., would be admissible if they are post litem motam."

15. In AIR 1983 SUPREME COURT 684 "State of Bihar v. Radha Krishna Singh = (1983) 3 SCC 118 the a Hon'ble Supreme Court held that Statements, declarations or deposition etc. are not admissible if they are post litem motam. The statements or declarations before persons of competent knowledge made ante litem motam are receivable to prove ancient rights of a public or general nature. The admissibility of such declarations is however, considerably weakened if it pertains not to public rights but to purely private rights. It is equally well settled that declarations or statements made post litem motam would not be admissible because in cases made ante litem motam, the element of bias and concoction is eliminated . Before, however, the statements of the nature being ante litem motam they must be not also before the actual existence of any controversy but they should be made even before the commencement of legal proceedings. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the Statements made ante litem motam that last prayer was offered on 16.12.1949 and thereafter the plaintiffs discontinued it, cannot make

contrary statement in this suit that they offered prayer till 23rd December 1949 with sole motive to save limitation as the instant suit was instituted on 18th December 1949 as also; that the plaintiffs' ante litem motam stand was that the waqf was created by Emperor Babur now in the instant suit they cannot be allowed to take benefit of contrary statement that someone else was the owner and they are entitled for decree on the ground of adverse possession. Relevant paragraph 134 and 135 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "134. It is also well settled that statements or declarations, before persons of competent knowledge made ante litem motam are receivable to prove ancient rights of a public or general nature vide Halsbury's' Laws of England (Vol. 15 : 3rd Edition, A. 308) where the following statement is to be found :
> "Declarations by deceased persons of competent knowledge, made ante litem motam, are receivable to prove ancient rights of a public or general nature. The admission of declarations as to those rights is allowed partly on the ground of necessity,. since without such evidence ancient rights could rarely be established; and partly on the ground that the public nature of the rights minimises the risks of misstatement."
> 135. The admissibility of such declarations is, however, considerably weakened if it pertains not to public rights but to purely private rights. It is equally well settled that declarations or statements made post litem motam would not be admissible because in cases or proceedings taken or declarations made ante litem motam. the element of bias and concoction is eliminated. Before, however, the statements of the nature mentioned above can be admissible as being ante litem motam they must be not only before the actual existence of any controversy but they should be made even before the commencement of legal proceedings. In this connection, in para 562 at page 308 of Halsbury's Laws of England (supra) the following statement is made :

> "To obviate bias, the declarations must have been made ante litem motam, which means not merely before the commencement of legal proceedings, but before even the existence of any actual controversy, concerning the subject matter of the declarations. So strictly has this requirement been enforced that the fact that such a dispute was unknown to the declarant or was fraudulently begun with a view to shutting out his declarations has been held immaterial."'

4. In paragraph-7 of his written statement dated 8.7.1950/29.12.1950 filed in the proceeding under Section145 Cr.P.C., 1898 Anisur Rahaman has stated that the party no.2 i.e. the Muslims of Ayodhya and other Muslims offered prayer in the building in question i.e. Babri Masjid till 16th December, 1949. In paragraphs 8 and 9 he states that on 12th November, 1949 the Hindus started Jap (repetition of a mantra or muttering of prayers) near the Babri Masjid wherein a large crowd of the Hindus gathered and they inflicted insult and humiliation upon Quanati Masjid and graves when this fact was informed to the district authorities they deployed a police guard and in view of apprehension of assault on Babri Masjid on 22nd November, 1949 the district authorities increased the number of the police guards. That Mohammad Hashim, the plaintiff No.7 in the instant suit in his written statement dated 09.04.1951 has adopted above-mentioned written statement of Anisur Rahaman which is on page 211 of volume 2 of the documents filed in the instant suit. The written statement of Anisur Rahaman is on page 215 to 219 of the volume no.2 of the documents filed.

5. From the aforesaid written statements of the Muslims it becomes crystal clear that according to their admission lastly prayer was offered on 16th December, 1949 and thereafter i.e. on and from 17th December, 1949 no prayer was offered and the possession of said Mosque was discontinued knowing fully well that the Hindu crowd which had surrounded the Babri Mosque since 12th November, 1949 would occupy the same. In view of such admitted facts if for the sake of argument for a moment it is assumed that the article 142 of the Limitation Act, 1908 is applicable in the instant case in that event the date of discontinuation i.e. 16th December, 1949 would be starting point of limitation under Article 142 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 and in that case also the suit is barred by limitation.

6. Jan Mohammed, Abdul Sattar, Abdul Gani, Rojid, Hosaldar, Ramzan, Gulle Khan, Md. Ismile Abdul Sakoor, Abdul Razaqe, Naseebdar in their respective affidavits all dated 16.02.1950 have stated that the Babri Mosque was erected by demolishing Ramjanmabhumi temple but in spite of erection of said mosque the Hindus did not give up their possession and the Hindus were all along worshipping their idol therein. Muslims were able to offer prayer therein only on Fridays with the help of the forces of the Nawabs. In 1934 after the Hindu-Muslim riot the Muslims stopped going there in the mosque for the reason that in spite of killing three Muslims rioters were acquitted because the Muslims were apprehensive that going in mosque was risky for their lives. Since those days the Hindus have occupied principal place of the mosque and to read namaz on that place is against the Shar of Muslims. All those affidavits affirmed under order 19 Rule 1 of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 and filed in the court of learned City Magistrate, Faizabad in 145 Cr.P.C., 1898 proceeding of 1949 have been compiled in volume 2 of the documents filed in the instant suit as page nos.135 to 180.

7. Anisur Rahaman in his affidavit dated 5.4.1950 affirmed and filed in Cri Misc. Case No.208 of 1950 filed in the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad praying inter alia for transferring the said 145 Cr.P.C. proceedings being case no. of 1949 REX versus Anisur Ramaham to some other court of competent jurisdiction outside the district of Faizabad; has stated that on the 9th November, 1949 a crowd of five thousand Hindus collected and raised religious slogans and performed 'kirtan' and levelled down two tombs, 25 graves and one qanati mosque outside the compound of the alleged Babri mosque. Abhdey Ram Dass, Ramshukul Dass, Sheodarshan Dass and 50 or 60 other persons committed trespass into the Babri mosque and installed an idol in the mosque and thereby polluted 'napak' the mosque. In the said affidavit it has also been stated that the Muslims of the vicinity were at that time persuaded by the authorities not to say the prayers on that Friday. On

20.11.1949 the police advised the Muslim not to say their prayers in the surviving Babri mosque while the jap continued. In order to avoid a communal clash the Muslim acted on the advice and continued to say their prayers every Friday upto 16th December, 1949. Except for the Friday prayers the mosque used to be kept locked. A copy of said affidavit is on page nos.187 to 194 of volume no.2 of the documents filed in the instant suit. Relevant paragraph of the said affidavit reads as follows:

> "2. That in Ajodhya there is a historical mosque built by Emperor Babar in 1528 A.D. called the Babari Mosque which has got a grant attached to it and is registered under the Waqf Act and the courtyard of the mosque is separate by a wall from a small temple which is situated to its East.
> 3. That Hindus and Muslims of Ajodhya have been peacefully and calmly carrying on their worship in the temple and prayers in the mosque respectively from time immemorial.
> 4. That on the 9th of November 1949 it was found that two tombs and about 25 graves which lay outside the compound of the Babri mosque had been leveled down and the mosque in the cemetery known as the "Qanati" mosque had been dug up and a new platform adjacent to the aforesaid mosque was constructed and an idol placed on that platform.
> 5. That from 22.11.1949 the Hindus of the place started their 'Jap' (worship) on that place in which a large number of Hindus were collected and for that reason the police advised the Muslims not to say their prayers in the surviving Babari mosque all the 5 times while the 'Jap' continued but continue it to Fridays only. In order to avoid a coomunal clash the Muslims acted on the advice and continued to say their prayer every Friday upto December 16, 1949. Except for the Friday prayers the mosque used to be kept locked and guarded by the police.
> 6. That on the night preceding the next Friday, namely the night between 22nd and 23rd December

> 1949 the Hindus surrupticiously and clandes sinely introduced an … inside the mosque itself and put it on the "member" (pulpit)"

8. The plaintiff no.4 of OOS No.4 of 1989 i.e. the instant suit Molvi Mohmmad Faiq is defendant no.3 in OOS No.1 of 1989 and defendant No.7 in OOS No.3 of 1989; in paragraph 22 of his written statement dated 21.02.1950 filed in OOS No.1 of 1989 as also in paragraph 26 of his written statement dated 28.03.1960 filed in OOS No.3 of 1989 has admitted that in the alleged Babri Masjid the prayer was offered only till 16.12.1949.

9. The plaintiff no.10 of OOS No.4 of 1989 i.e. the instant suit Zahoor Ahemed is defendant no.1 in OOS No.1 of 1989; in paragraph 22 of his written statement dated 21.02.1950 filed in OOS No.1 of 1989 has admitted that in the alleged Babri Masjid the prayer was offered only till 16.12.1949.

10. The plaintiff no.1 of OOS No.4 of 1989 i.e. the instant suit U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqfs is defendant no.9 in OOS No.3 of 1989; in paragraph 6 in its additional written statement dated 24.08.1995 filed in OOS No.3 of 1989 has adopted written statement of Molvi Mohammed Faiq and Zahoor Ahemed filed in OOS No.3 of 1989 and thereby it becomes admitted fact on part of the U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqfs also that in the alleged Babri Masjid the prayer was offered only till 16.12.1949.

11. In (1901-02) 29 IA 24 the Hon'ble Privy Council held that the police report and orders for possession by Magistrates under Section 145 of Cr.P.C. are admissible in evidence under Section 13 being a "transaction" in which the rights or custom was claimed, modified, recognized, asserted or denied. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that from the order of attachment dated 29.12.1949 passed by the Ld. City Magistrate Faizabad & Ayodhya in the proceeding under Section 145 of 1949 as well as police report, it is evident that the Hindus were in possession and they were worshipping in the disputed Sri Ramjanmasthan temple and were asserting their rights which fact is admissible evidence under Section 13 of the Evidence Act. Relevant portion from page 24 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "These police orders are in their Lordships' opinion admissible in evidence on general principles as well as under s. 13 of the Indian Evidence Act to shew the fact that such orders were made. This necessarily makes them evidence of the following facts, all of which appear from the orders themselves, namely, who the parties to the dispute were; what the land in dispute was; and who was declared entitled to retain possession. For this purpose, and to this extent, such orders are admissible in evidence for and against every one when the fact of possession at the date of the order has to be ascertained. If the lands referred in such an order are described by metes and bounds, or by reference to objects or marks physically existing, these must necessarily be ascertained by extrinsic evidence, i.e., the testimony of persons who know the > locality. If the orders refer to a map, that map is admissible in evidence to render the order intelligible; and the actual situation of the objects drawn or otherwise indicated on the map must, as in all cases of the sort, be ascertained by extrinsic evidence. So far there appears to be no difficulty. Reports accompanying the orders or maps and not referred to in the orders may be admissible as hearsay evidence of reputed possession: 2 Tay. Ev. s. 517.§ But they are not otherwise admissible unless they are made so by s.13 of the Indian Evidence Act. To bring a report within that section the report must be "a transaction in which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognised, asserted or denied, or which was inconsistent with its existence." These words are very wide, and are wide enough to let in the reports forming part of the proceedings in 1867, 1876, and 1888. Their Lordships are of opinion that the High Court did not err in receiving the report made in the proceedings of 1876 to the reception of which Mr. Cohen objected."

12. Sarkar's Law of Evidence, 15th Edn. Reprint 2003 published by Wadhwa and Company Nagpur in its Vol.1 on page 306 referring several Case laws conclude that the police reports, orders, affidavits etc. under Section 145 Cr.P.C. are admissible in evidence under Section 13 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. Relevant paragraph of the said book reads as follows:

> "—Police Reports and Orders Under S. 145 Cr.P Code etc. -- Police reports and orders for possession by magistrates under s 145 Cr P Code are admissible in evidence under s 13, being a "transaction" in which the right or custom wa claimed, modified, recognized, asserted or denied [Dinomoni v. Brojomohini, 29 IA 24:29C 187: 6 CWN 386:15 MLJ83 ante]. Such orders are admissible against all persons when the fact of possession on the date of the order has to be ascertained. But as between parties to the proceedings they are also admissible as evidence as regards possession before two months of the date of the order [Jogendra v. Mohim, 34 CWN 358:57 C 987]. Such orders are admissible on general > principles as well as under s 13 to show the fact that such orders were made [Hasim v. Abjal, 4 CLJ 30: 82 IC 392: A 1924 C 1046]. The facts of previous proceedings under s 145 and order thereon must be taken into consideration in a subsequent suit for possession based on the title [Boroda v. Manmatha, 41 IC 456]. Order under s 145 Cr P Code set aside by the High Court is admissible to show that possession was claimed by plaintiff who has complained of forcible dispossession [Devi v. Sisram, A 1939 L 188]. A judgment in a criminal case in which the plaintiff's assertion of possession was held to be with him is inadmissible against a person not a party to the criminal proceedings to prove plaintiff's possession at date of judgment, but it is admissible under s 13 to prove the assertion of plaintiff's title to the land at the date of judgment [Param v. Santosh, A 1942 P 372].

13. In 34 CWN 358 (Jogendra v. Mohim) the Hon'ble Calcutta High Court held that order passed under Section 145 Cr.P.C. are admissible against all persons when the fact of possession on the date of the order has to be asserted but as between parties to the proceedings they are also admissible as evidence as regards possession before two months of the date of the order. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that from the orders passed in proceeding under section 145 Code of Criminal Procedure 1898 by the Magistrate are a piece of evidence which is to be looked into to ascertain the possession of the litigating parties and if they are looked into it becomes crystal clear that the Hindus were in possession before two months of the date of the order. Relevant extract from page 861 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "the order of the Magistrate is in the nature of a police order admissible as evidence of the fact as to who was declared entitled to retain possession; and these orders are admissible against all persons when the fact of possession on the date of the order has to be ascertained. But as between parties to the proceedings they are also admissible as evidence as regards possession before two months of the date of the order, because if there had been a dispossession within 2 months of the date of the order when the proceedings were started, the Magistrate would have been bound to make over possession to the person who had been so dispossessed."

14. In AIR 1924 Calcutta 1046 Hasim Ali and others v. Abjal Khan and others the Hon'ble High Court Calcutta held that the facts of initiation of proceeding under Section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, enquiry conducted therein, stands taken by the parties therein and orders passed therein are relevant facts and the same are admissible in evidence on general principles as well as under Section 13 of the Indian Evidence Act. Relevant extracts from page 1046 -1047 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "The appeal raises three points for consideration, namely, first, whether reliance should have been placed upon the proceedings in a case under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code; secondly whether the alleged title by adverse possession had been established ; and thirdly, whether the plaintiffs were entitled to a declaration of title to an unascertained share.
> As regards the first point; it appears that the appellants were the first party in a proceeding under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code in

> 1916. Their case then, as now, was that they were entitled to the exclusive possession of the tank and that there was a likelihood of a breach of the peace as the second party (predecessors in interest of the defendants) claimed wrongful possession jointly with them. Upon investigation, the Magistrate came to the conclusion that the plaintiffs were not in exclusive but in joint possession, and that there was no likelihood of a breach of the peace. On these grounds proceedings were discontinued on the 22nd March 1917.
> It is plain that the fact, that there was a proceeding under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, that there was an inquiry into the matter and that there was a decision adverse to the allegations of the plaintiffs, is a relevant fact, and the Subordinate Judge has properly treated this as evidence. The view of the Subordinate Judge is supported by the decision of the Judicial Committee in Dinomoni Chowdhurani v. Brojomohini Chwdhurani (1). In that case Lord Lindley pointed out that orders for possession under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code relating to disputes regarding immoveable properties are police orders made to prevent breaches of the peace and decide no question of title: but such orders are admissible in evidence on general principles as well as under Section 13 of the Indian Evidence Act to show the fact that such orders were made. Consequently, the first point must be decided against the appellants."
>
>
> "As regards the third point, Mr. Justice Walmsley has correctly held that the plaintiffs cannot claim a decree for declarations of title. The specific title alleged by them has not been established. On the other hand, the difficulty remains that the extent of their share cannot be determined on the evidence as it stands. In such circumstances, it is impossible to make a decree in favour of the plaintiff in respect of an unknown share."

15. In 41 IC 456 (*Baroda v. Manmatha) the Hon'ble Court held that the facts of previous proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and order thereon must be taken into consideration in subsequent suit for possession based on the title. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that from the facts as stated in the affidavits of the persons through or under whom the present plaintiffs are claiming their right, title and interest, it becomes crystal clear that last prayer were offered on 16th December, 1949 and even prior to that date for last several months Muslims were unable to go to the disputed premises as large crowd of the Hindus were doing kirtons etc. and the learned Magistrate had directed them not to go their in group. In such circumstances it was not possible for any Muslim to go alone and offer prayer. From which it can be easily inferred that in fact from the several months back from 16th December, 1949, Muslims were unable to offer any prayer in the said disputed building.

16. In AIR 1942 Patna 372 (Param v. Santosh) the Hon'ble Patna High Court held that a judgment in a criminal case in which the plaintiffs' assertion of possession was held to be with him is inadmissible against a person not a party to the criminal proceedings to prove plaintiffs possession as date of judgment, but it is admissible under Section 13 to prove the assertion of plaintiffs' title to the land at the date of judgment. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that the order passed in 145 Cr.P.C. proceedings is admissible

under Section 13 to prove the claim of the Hindus' title to the land at the date of the said order. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment on its page 374 reads as follows:

> "Now the defence in the present case was that at some time, more than forty years ago, the lands in dispute had fallen to the share of the defendants and they had been in possession ever since. They therefore alleged that the entry in the cadastral survey was wrong. The plaintiffs, on the other hand, denied the story of the defendants being in possession for the period of which the latter alleged, and the Court has found that the defence is entirely untrue in this respect. In coming to this conclusion, it has relied on a judgment of a criminal case of 1901 in which the plaintiffs asserted their possession of the land in dispute, and possession was held to be with them. Now if this judgment be admissible, it undoubtedly disproves the defendants' case, but it is contended that the judgment is inadmissible against the defendants who were not parties to the criminal proceedings. It is not the decision on which reliance can be placed to prove the plaintiffs' possession in 1901, but the fact that at that point of time they asserted their title is admissible under S. 13, Evidence Act. In my opinion, therefore, the finding of the Court below is not vitiated by its reliance on the plaintiffs assertion of possession in 1901."

17. Sections 8, 9 and 13 of the Evidence Act, 1872 in respect of relevant fact provides as follows:

> 8. Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct.—Any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive or preparation for any fact in issue or relevant fact.
>
> The conduct of any party, or of any agent to any party, to any suit or proceeding, in reference to such suit or proceeding, or in reference to any fact in issue therein or relevant thereto, and the conduct of any person an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding, is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous or subsequent thereto.

www.vadaprativada.com

Explanation 1.—The word "conduct" in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements; but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act.

Explanation 2.—When the conduct of any person is relevant, any statement made to him or in his presence and hearing, which affects such conduct, is relevant.

(a) A is tried for the murder of B.

The facts that A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A by threatening to make his knowledge public, are relevant.

(b) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money. B denies the making of the bond.

The fact that, at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose, is relevant.

(c) A is tried for the murder of B by poison.

The fact that, before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B, is relevant.

www.vadaprativada.com

(d) The question is, whether a certain document is the will of A.

The facts that, not long before the date of the alleged will, A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate, that he consulted vakils in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared, of which he did not approve, are relevant.

(e) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, either before, or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence, or prevented the presence or procured the absence of persons who might have been witnesses, or suborned persons to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant.

(f) The question is, whether A robbed B.

The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A's presence—"the police are coming to look for the man who robbed B", and that immediately afterwards A ran away, are relevant.

(g) The question is, whether A owes B rupees 10,000.

www.vadaprativada.com

The facts that A asked C to lend him money, and that D said to C in A's presence and hearing— "I advise you not to trust A, for he owes B 10,000 rupees," and that A went away without making any answer, are relevant facts.

(h) The question is, whether A committed a crime.

The fact that A absconded after receiving a letter warning him that inquiry was being made for the criminal, and the contents of the letter, are relevant.

(i) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, after the commission of the alleged crime, he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of property acquired by the crime, or attempted to conceal things which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.

(j) The question is, whether A was ravished.

The facts that, shortly after the alleged rape, she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, the complaint was made, are relevant.

The fact that, without making a complaint, she said that she had been ravished is, not relevant, as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant as a dying declaration under Section 32, clause (1), or as corroborative evidence under Section 157.

www.vadaprativada.com

(k) The question is, whether A was robbed.

The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, the complaint was made, are relevant.

The fact that he said he had been robbed without making any complaint, is not relevant, as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant as a dying declaration under Section 32, clause (1), or as corroborative evidence under Section 157

9. Facts necessary to explain or introduce relevant facts.—Facts necessary to explain or introduce a fact in issue or relevant fact, or which support or rebut an inference suggested by a fact in issue or relevant fact, or which establish the identity of any thing or person whose identity is relevant, or fix the time or place at which any fact in issue or relevant fact happened, or which show the relation of parties by whom any such fact was transacted, are relevant in so far as they are necessary for that purpose.

(a) The question is, whether a given document is the will of A.

www.vadaprativada.com

The state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts.

(b) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A; B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true.

The position and relations of the parties at the time when the libel was published may be relevant facts as introductory to the facts in issue.

The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are irrelevant, though the fact that there was a dispute may be relevant if it affected the relations between A and B.

(c) A is accused of a crime.

The fact that, soon after the commission of the crime, A absconded from his house, is relevant under Section 8, as conduct subsequent to and affected by facts in issue.

The fact that, at the time when he left home, he had sudden and urgent business at the place to which he went, is relevant, as tending to explain the fact that he left home suddenly.

The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden and urgent.

www.vadaprativada.com

(d) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him with A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A— "I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer". This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct, which is relevant as a fact in issue.

(e) A, accused of theft, is seen to give the stolen property to B, who is seen to give it to A's wife. B says as he delivers it—"A says you are to hide this". B's statement is relevant as explanatory of a fact which is part of the transaction.

(f) A is tried for a riot and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob. The cries of the mob are relevant as explanatory of the nature of the transaction.

13. Facts relevant when right or custom is in question.—Where the question is as to the existence of any right or custom, the following facts are relevant:—

(a) any transaction by which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognized, asserted or denied, or which was inconsistent with its

The question is, whether A has a right to a fishery. A deed conferring the fishery on A's ancestors, a mortgage of the fishery by A's father, a subsequent grant of the fishery by A's father, irreconcilable with the mortgage, particular instances in which A's father exercised the right, or in which the exercise of the right was stopped by A's neighbours, are relevant facts.

(The Indian Evidence Act, 1872)

18. Order 19 Rule 1 of the Civil Procedure Code lays down that the Court may at any time order that any particular fact or facts may be proved by affidavit and Rule 3 thereof says that the facts as stated in the affidavit on the basis of deponent's own knowledge is admissible. As such the affidavits filed by the persons under or through whom the present plaintiffs are claiming are admissible as evidence in respect of relevant fact stated therein.

www.vadaprativada.com

1. Power to order any point to be proved by affidavit.—Any Court may at any time for sufficient reason order that any particular fact or facts may be proved by affidavit, or that the affidavit of any witness may be read at the hearing, on such conditions as the Court thinks reasonable:

Provided that where it appears to the Court that either party bona fide desires the production of a witness for cross-examination, and that such witness can be produced, an order shall not be made authorising the evidence of such witness to be given by affidavit.

State Amendments

UTTAR PRADESH.—In Order XIX, in Rule 1, for the existing proviso, the following proviso shall be substituted, namely:

"Provided that if it appears to the Court, whether at the instance of either party or otherwise and whether before or after the filing of such affidavit, that the production of such witness for cross-examination is necessary and his attendance can be procured, the Court shall order the attendance of such witness, whereupon the witness may be examined, cross-examined and re-examined."—U.P. Act 57 of 1976, Section 9. (1-1-1977).

High Court Amendments

ALLAHABAD.—After Rule 1 the following Rule 1-A shall be inserted:

"1-A. Power to permit ex parte evidence on affidavit.—Where the case proceeds ex parte, the Court may permit the evidence of the plaintiff to be given on affidavit." (Vide Noti. No. 121/IV-h—36-D, dated Feb. 10, 1981 w.e.f. Oct. 3, 1981.)

3. Matters to which affidavits shall be confined.—(1) Affidavits shall be confined to such facts as the deponent is able of his own knowledge to prove, except on interlocutory applications, on which statements of his belief may be admitted: provided that the grounds thereof are stated.

(2) The costs of every affidavit which shall unnecessarily set forth matters of hearsay or argumentative matter, or copies of or extracts from documents, shall (unless the Court otherwise directs) be paid by the party filing the same."

19. In AIR 1970 All 154 (*Ram Khelawan Bhagwati. v. Sundar Nankau & Anr.) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that in a proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C., 1898, the Magistrate was empowered to direct to file affidavit. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that as affidavit in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr. P.C. case of 1949 have been filed under order of the Magistrate the same are admissible evidence. Relevant paragraph nos.8 and 14 of the said judgment read as follows:

> “8. Though the amendments made under this section in 1955 aimed at expeditious disposal of proceedings and for that purpose this section has been extensively amended, sub-section (9) has been retained in its old form. The newly added proviso to sub-section (4) empowered the Magistrate to summon and examine any person whose affidavit has been put in. He is also empowered under sub-section (9) to summon any witness at any stage of the proceedings on the application of either party. Neither in subsection (9) nor in the proviso to sub-section (4), a party has a right to examine a witness. In either case, the discretion lies with the Magistrate. When it is not possible for a party to obtain affidavits from persons who may be competent to speak about the possession, the Magistrate has the discretion to examine such persons as witnesses under sub-section (9). Our reasons for this view are, that the first proviso to sub-section (4) is quite independent of sub-section (9). That proviso would govern only sub-section (4) and not other sub-sections which follow it. The view that sub-section (9) was subject to the proviso to sub-section (4) would be violating all rules of interpretation of the statutes. The proper function of a proviso is to except and deal with a case which would otherwise fall within the general language of the main enactment and its effect is confined only to that case. In AIR 1957 Bom 20, Keshavlal Premchand v. Commissioner of Income-tax Bombay, their Lordships observed :
> "A proviso, which is in fact and in substance a proviso, can only operate to deal with a case which but for it would have fallen within the ambit of the section to which the proviso is a proviso, the section deals with a particular field and the proviso excepts or takes out or carves out from the field a particular portion, and therefore, it is perfectly true that before a proviso can have any application the section itself must apply. It is equally true that the proviso cannot deal with any other field than the field which the section itself deals with.....If a proviso is capable of a wider connotation and is also capable of a narrower connotation, if the narrower connotation brings it within the purview of the section, then the Court must prefer the narrower connotation-rather than the wider connotation.....".
>
> The proviso to sub-section (4) of S. 145 confers a

www.vadaprativada.com

right on the Magistrate in suitable cases to summon and examine 'any person' whose affidavit has been put in as to the facts contained therein. This simply means, that where necessary, the Magistrate could summon and examine any person who has filed an affidavit in the case. That evidence is also to be confined to the facts mentioned in those affidavits. That contingency would arise only in the case of ambiguity in the affidavit filed by the parties witnesses. As stated earlier, this specific provision was made by the amendment of 1955. Subsection (9) even existed prior to the amendment, and was allowed to continue. So, it could not be said that the same was redundant or superfluous. If that was so, the Legislature could have omitted it when drastic changes were made in Section 145. A plain reading of sub-s. (9) clearly indicates that it was quite independent of sub-section (4). It empowers the Magistrate where necessary 'at any stage' of the proceedings on the application of either party to summon 'any witness' directing him to 'attend or to produce any document or thing'. The words used in the proviso to sub-section (4) are 'any person' but in sub-section (9) the words are 'any witness'. The said proviso is restricted to the evidence of only those persons who have filed the affidavit. But sub-section (9) says that 'any witness' could be summoned at any stage. There is not the least indication that its scope is also confined only, to the persons who have filed affidavits in the case. 'At any' stage' occurring in the sub-section may even be prior to the filing of the affidavits. On the facts of the instant case, it is unnecessary to enter into the question whether the Magistrate has also the power to record the evidence of any witness summoned under that sub-section. As stated earlier, the request of the petitioner was only to summon the Lekhpal for filing an affidavit, but the Magistrate summarily dismissed the petition on the ground that there was no such provision under the existing law, which empowered him to summon any witness to file an| affidavit That power clearly existed under sub-section (9). So, we are convinced that the provisions of sub-s. (9) are quite independent of sub-section (4). In suitable cases, the Magistrate could summon any witness irrespective of the fact whether he has filed an affidavit in the case, and direct him to attend or produce any document or thing. In the circumstances, there was no bar to the Magistrate in summoning the petitioner's witnesss and directing

> 14. In this view, we hold that the Magistrate clearly erred in summarily rejecting the application of the petitioner for summoning the Lekhpal and directing him to file an affidavit. He was fully competent under S. 145 (9) of the Cri. P. C. to have granted that prayer if it was necessary in the ends of justice and for proper decision of the rights of the parties. In the circumstances, the reference is allowed and the recommendation made by the Sessions Judge, Lucknow, is accepted. The order of the Magistrate dated 7th June, 1966 is quashed and he is directed to decide the application of the petitioner for summoning the Lekhpal on the merits."

20. In AIR 1963 All 256 (Wahid & Anr. v. State) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the Magistrate before whom the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. are pending is a person authorized to administer oath either by himself or by an official empowered by him in this behalf and the affidavits sworn according are admissible evidence. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that as the affidavits of the persons under or through whom the plaintiffs are claiming were sworn before an official empowered by the Magistrate are admissible evidence and the facts stated therein that after the riots of 1934, the Muslims did not use to go to offer prayer in the said Mosque and the alleged Mosque was being used as temple by the Hindus are relevant fact which can be inferred from their affidavits. Relevant paragraph nos.3, 5 and 6 of the said judgment read as follows:

"3. The first point that arises for consideration, therefore, is whether the affidavits filed by the parties were properly sworn and could be considered as proper evidence in the case. Under the provisions of S. 145, Cri. P. C., a party to the proceeding can adduce evidence of such persons as the party relies upon in support of his claim by putting in affidavits of those persons. The affidavits that were put in by Mahangi (first party) were verified and taken before an oath commissioner appointed by the High Court under S. 539, Cri. P. C. On the back of those affidavits there is a note of attestation. That note does not show on its face as to who is the attesting authority, because the designation of the person attesting is not written under the signatures. Under the signature of the authority attesting those affidavits we find only the date and another small initials. The signatures of the magistrate who tried the case, are on various other papers on the record. A comparison of the admitted signatures of the magistrate with the signatures on affidavits under the word "attested" clearly shows that the affidavits were attested by that very magistrate. The small initials under the date appear to be of the reader or other official of the magistrate's Court who wrote the word 'attested'.

Some of the affidavits filed by Wahid and Zahid (second party) appear to have been taken before a special magistrate. The view taken by the Sessions Judge is that the High Court has not appointed any commissioner or oath officer before whom an affidavit which is proposed to be filed before a magistrate can be sworn or affirmed. This view appears to be correct. The only provision in the Cri. P. C. regarding the mode of swearing affidavits and affirmations is to be found in S. 539. That section says that affidavits and affirmations which are to be used before any High Court must be sworn and affirmed before such Court..... or before any commissioner or other person appointed by the High Court for that purpose.... Section 539AA lays down that affidavits to be used before any Court other than a High Court under S. 510A or S. 539A may be sworn or affirmed in the manner prescribed in Section 539 or before any magistrate. A perusal of Ss. 539 and 539AA clearly shows that a commissioner or oath officer appointed by the High Court can have only such affidavits sworn before him as are to be used before the High Court or in the case of other Courts

only those affidavits as are under S. 510A or 539A.
It is significant to note that in S. 539AA there is no mention of affidavits under S. 145. This clearly implies that an affidavit under S. 145 cannot be sworn or affirmed before a commissioner or oath officer appointed by the High Court. An examination of the provisions of various sections of the Cri. P. C. shows that affidavits are required to be filed under Sections 145, 510A, 526 and 539A. Section 526 provides for the transfer of a case by the High Court. An application for the exercise of the powers of transfer under S. 526 has, therefore, to foe made in the High Court. Such an application is required to be supported by an affidavit under the provisions of sub-s. (4) of S. 526. The affidavit referred to in that section has, therefore, to be filed before the High Court and can be sworn in the manner laid down in S. 539. Section 539A speaks of an affidavit in support of an application containing allegatings against any public servant and Section 510A speaks of affidavits with respect to evidence of a formal character.
Proceedings requiring an affidavit under Sections 510A and 539A can be a Court other than a High Court. In view of S. 539AA such affidavits can be sworn in the manner prescribed in S. 539. In other words, such affidavits can be sworn before an oath commissioner or oath officer appointed by the High Court. If the legislature had intended that affidavits under S. 145 were also to be sworn in the manner prescribed in S. 539, a provision similar to the provision relating to affidavits under Ss. 510A and 539A would have been enacted by adding S. 145 in S. 539AA. The affidavits put in by Mahangi (first party) are, therefore, not proper affidavits in so far as they are sworn before an oath commissioner.

5. The magistrate before whom the proceedings were pending had a duty to decide the dispute between the parties with regard to the possession of the enclosure and it cannot be doubted for a moment that for the proper discharge of his duty the magistrate had an authority to receive evidence in the proceedings. He was, therefore, a person authorised to administer oath either by himself or by an official empowered by him in this behalf. The affidavits that were to be filed in the proceedings could, therefore, be sworn by the magistrate before whom the proceedings were pending decision.

> 6. The dictionary meaning of the word 'attested' is to testify, certify, put a person on oath or solemn affirmation. On the affidavit the word 'attested' above the signature of the magistrate, therefore, signifies that it was sworn before the magistrate. It may be that the magistrate might not have administered the oath himself to the person making the affidavit, but it is a well recognised practice that presiding officers of the Courts empower an official of their Court to administer oath and this they are entitled to do under the provisions of S. 4 of the Indian Oaths Act. The small initials under the date appear to be of an official of the magistrate's Court who was empowered to administer the oath. Affidavits for purposes of proceedings under S. 145 can be sworn before the magistrate in whose Court proceedings are pending.
> It is not necessary that the magistrate should write in so many words 'affidavit sworn in my presence'. Mere attestation by the magistrate is sufficient to signify that the affidavit was sworn before him. As the affidavits put in by Mahangi (first party) were attested by the magistrate before whom the proceedings were pending, these affidavits were properly sworn and can be taken into evidence. The affidavits put in by the second party were sworn before another magistrate. That magistrate had no concern with these proceedings. The affidavits put in by the second party were not proper affidavits and could not be taken into evidence. The Sessions Judge was in error in considering the affidavits filed by Mahangi which were attested by the magistrate, to be inadmissible in evidence. In view of the above discussion the affidavits put in by Mahangi (first party) are admissible and the affidavits put in by Wahid and Zahid (second party) are inadmissible as they were not properly sworn."

21. In AIR 1968 Bom 400 (Lakshman Das. v. State) the Hon'ble Bombay High Court held that facts necessary to explain or to introduce a fact in issue or relevant fact are relevant. Facts which support or rebut an inference suggested by a fact in issue or relevant facts are relevant; facts which establish an identity on anything or the person whose identity is relevant or fix the time or fix the place at which any fact in issue or relevant fact happened are relevant; facts which show the relation of party by whom in such fact was transacted are relevant. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that the facts so far as they are necessary to ascertain the position of the parties in relating to possession of the suit premises or user of the suit premises are essential. Relevant paragraph 62 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "62. Facts necessary (1) to explain or (2) to introduce a tact in issue or relevant fact, are relevant; (3) facts (i) which support or (ii) rebut an inference suggested by a fact in issue or relevant facts are relevant; (4) facts (i) which establish the identity of anything or (ii) the person whose identity is relevant or (iii) fix the time or (iv) fix the place at which any fact in issue or relevant fact happened, are relevant; (5) facts which show the relation of parties by whom any such fact was transacted, are relevant. The last sentence is very important and it is, "in so far as they are necessary for that purpose", which means that if these facts are introduced in evidence, they can be used only for that purpose, and no other. Mr. Khandalwala suggests that the prior transactions of Hamad Sultan and the part played by Yusuf Merchant and, accused Nos. 6 and 14 in them is relevant to explain or introduce the facts in issue, and therefore, the evidence was admissible. It is difficult to sustain this part of the contention. To admit every such fact and require again a volume of proof in respect of the same would unnecessarily complicate matters; but he would seem to be right in the second part of his contention that in any event these facts are necessary in order to support the inference that the registration of the telegraphic address and the trips made by accused No. 6 and accused No. 14 to Delhi were in relation to these gold smuggling transactions, and riot innocent as sought to be made out on behalf of the accused the registration of the address and each trip being a relevant fact."

22. Section145 and 146 of the XII of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898 from page Nos. 655 to 657 and page Nos. 712-713 of the Vol.1 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898 published by the All India Reporter Ltd. Nagpur 1st Edn. 1935-36 read as follows:

> "(1) Whenever a District Magistrate, Sub-divisional Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class is satisfied from a police-report or other information that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists concerning any land or water or the boundaries thereof, within the local limits of his jurisdiction, he shall make an order in writing, stating the grounds of his being so satisfied, and requiring the parties concerned in such dispute to attend his Court in person or by pleader, within a time to be fixed by such Magistrate, and to put in written statements of their respective claims as respects the fact of actual possession of the subject of dispute.
> (2) For the purposes of this section the expression "land or water" includes buildings, markets, fisheries, crops or other produce of land, and the rents or profits of any such property.
> (3) A copy of the order shall be served in manner provided by this Code for the service of a summons upon such person or persons as the Magistrate may direct, and at least one copy shall be published by being affixed to some conspicuous place at or near the subject of dispute.
> (4) the Magistrate shall then, without reference to the merits of the claims of any of such parties to a right to possess the subject of dispute, peruse the statements so put in, hear the parties receive all such evidence as may be produced by them respectively, consider the effect of such evidence, take such further evidence (if any) as he thinks necessary, and, if possible, decide whether any and which of the parties was at the date of the order before mentioned in such possession of the said subject:
> Provided that, if it appears to the Magistrate that any party has within two months next before the date of such order been forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed, he may treat the party so dispossessed as if he had been in possession at such date: > Provided also, that if the Magistrate considers the case one of emergency, he may at any time attach the subject of dispute, pending his decision under this section.

(5) Nothing in this section shall preclude any party so required to attend, or any other person interested, from showing that no such dispute as aforesaid exists or has existed; and in such case, the Magistrate shall cancel his said order, and all further proceedings thereon shall be stayed, but, subject to such cancellation, the order of the Magistrate under sub-section (1) shall be final.

(6) If the Magistrate decides that one of the parties was or should under the first proviso to sub-section (4) be treated as being in such possession of the said subject, he shall issue an order declaring such party to be entitled to possession thereof until evicted therefrom in due course of law, and forbidding all disturbance of such possession until such eviction, and when he proceeds under the first proviso to sub-section (4), may restore to possession the party forcibly and wrongfully dispossessed.

(7) When any party to any such proceeding dies, the Magistrate may cause the legal representative of the deceased party to be made a party to the proceeding, and shall thereupon continue the inquiry, and if any question arises as to who the legal representative of a deceased party for the purpose of such proceeding ism all persons claiming to be representatives of the deceased party shall be made parties thereto.

(8) If the Magistrate is of opinion that any crop or other produce of the property, the subject of dispute in a proceeding under this section pending before him, is subject to speedy and natural decay, he may make an order for the proper custody or sale of such property, and, upon the completion of the inquiry, shall make such order for the disposal of such property, or the sale-proceeds thereof, as he thinks fit.

(9) The Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, at any stage of the proceedings under this section, on the application of either party, issue summons to any witness directing him to attend or to produce any document or thing.

(10) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to be in derogation of the powers of the Magistrate to produced under section 107."

146. (1) If the Magistrate decides that none of the parties was then in such possession, or is unable to satisfy himself as to which of them was then in such possession of the subject of dispute, he may attach it until a competent Court has determined the rights of the parties thereto, or the person entitled to possession thereof:

Provided that the District Magistrate or the Magistrate who has attached the subject of dispute may withdraw the attachment at any time if he is satisfied that there is no longer any likelihood of a breach of the peace in regard to the subject of dispute.
(2) When the Magistrate attaches the subject of dispute, he may, if he thinks fit, and if no receiver of the property, the subject of dispute, has been appointed by any Civil Court, appoint a receiver thereof, who, subject to the control of the Magistrate, shall have all the powers of a receiver appointed under the Code of Civil Procedure:
Provided that, in the event of a receiver of the property, the subject of dispute, being subsequently appointed by any Civil Court, possession shall be made over to him by the receiver appointed by the Magistrate, who shall thereupon be discharged."

Sri Ravi Shanker Prasad, Senior Advocate further submitted that the plea of adverse possession by the Muslims is not sustainable in law.

(i) The plaintiff Muslims have vaguely claimed the right of adverse possession as well. This plea is fit to be rejected as wholly untenable. The principle of adverse possession is well-known: (a) There must be a real owner, (b) There must be another possessor who has come in possession of land or property in question, (c) The property in question must be an alienable property, (d) Such possession must be open, continuous, uninterrupted to the knowledge of and hostile to the true owner, (e) The real owner must have consented to such

hostile possession and must not have taken any action. These propositions are too well-known.

(ii) As explained earlier, an idol in a temple which is the house of God, is not an alienable property. It cannot be transferred, sold or conveyed to any other person even by the Shevait or the manager. Anything done against the idol even under Court's order like selling the idol in execution of a decree has been held to be a nullity.

(iii) There is no pleading at all in the entire plaint of the Muslims that Ram Janma Bhumi belongs to Ram Lala who is the true owner where he is Virajman and on the same spot a big temple was in existence which was broken to build the Babari mosque. In Suit No. 4, the plaintiffs are completely silent about who is the actual owner. The law is further settled that long possession does not mean adverse. There is voluminous evidence on record that Muslims had never uninterrupted possession must less hostile and adverse possession. The Hindus continued to offer worship even after the alleged structure was constructed.

Paragraphs 11 and 12, at page 785 & 786 – Whenever the plea of adverse possession is projected inherent in the plea is that someone else was the owner of the property. Other principles stated as above.

"11. In the eye of law, an owner would be deemed to be in possession of a property so long as there is no intrusion. Non-use of the property by the owner even for a long time won't affect his title. But the position will be altered when another person takes possession of the property and asserts a right over it. Adverse possession is a hostile possession by clearly asserting hostile title in denial of the title of true owner. It is a well- settled principle that a party claiming adverse possession must prove that his possession is 'nec vi, nec clam, nec precario', that is, peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that their possession is adverse to the true owner. It must start with a wrongful disposition of the rightful owner and be actual, visible, exclusive, hostile and continued over the statutory period. (See : S M Karim v._Bibi Sakina, Parsinni v. Sukhi and D N Venkatarayappa v. State of Karnataka. Physical fact of exclusive possession and the animus posited to hold as owner in exclusion to the actual owner are the most important factors that are to be accounted in cases of this nature. Plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession. (Dr. Mahesh Chand Sharma v. 12. Plaintiff, filing a title suit should be very clear about the origin of title over the property. He must specifically plead it. (See: S M Karim v. Bibi Sakinal. In P Periasami v. P Periathambi : (1995)6SCC523 -

"Whenever the plea of adverse possession is projected, inherent in the plea is that someone else was the owner of the property."

The pleas on title and adverse possession are mutually inconsistent and the latter does not begin to operate until the former is renounced. Dealing with Mohan Lal v. Mirza Abdul Gaffar : (1996)1SCC639 that is similar to the case in hand, this Court held:

> 4. "As regards the first plea, it is inconsistent with the second plea. Having come into possession under the agreement, he must disclaim his right there under and plead and prove assertion of his independent hostile adverse possession to the knowledge of the transferor or his successor in title or interest and that the latter had acquiesced to his illegal possession during the entire period of 12 years, i.e., up to completing the period his title by prescription nec vi, nec clam, nec precario. Since the appellant's claim is founded on Section 53A, it goes without saying that he admits by implication that he came into possession of land lawfully under the agreement and continued to remain in possession till date of the suit. Thereby the plea of adverse possession is not available to the appellant."

13. This Court in P. Lakshmi Reddy v. L. Lakshmi Reddy AIR 1957 SC 314, while following the ratio of Debendra Lal Khan's case (supra), observed as under:

"But it is well settled that in order to establish adverse possession of non-co-heir as against another it is not enough to show that one out of them is in sole possession and enjoyment of the profits, of the properties. Ouster of the non-possessing co-heir by the co-heir in possession who claims his possession to be adverse, should be made out. The possession of one co-heir is considered, in law, as possession of all the co-heirs. When one co-heir is found to be in possession of the properties it is presumed to be one the basis of joint title. The co-heir in possession cannot render his possession adverse to the other co-heir, not in possession, merely by any secret hostile animus on his own part in derogation of the other co-heirs' title. It is a settled rule of law that as between co-heirs there must be evidence of open assertion of hostile title, coupled with exclusive possession and enjoyment by one of them to be knowledge of the other so as to constitute ouster."

The court further observed thus:

"The burden of making out ouster is on the person

www.vadaprativada.com

claiming to displace the lawful title of a co-heir by his adverse possession."

14. In S.M. Karim v. Bibi Sakina AIR 1964 SC 1254, Hidayatullah, J. speaking for the court observed as under:-

"Adverse possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and a plea is required at least to show when possession becomes adverse so that the starting point of limitation against the party affected can be found. There is no evidence here when possession became adverse, if it at all did and a mere suggestion in the relief clause that there was an uninterrupted possession for "several 12 years" or that the plaintiff had acquired "an absolute title was not enough to raise such a plea. Long possession is not necessarily adverse possession and the prayer clause is not a substitute for a plea."

15. The facts of R. Chandevarappa & Others v. State of Karnataka & Others (1995) 6 SCC 309 are similar to the case at hand. In this case, this court observed as under:-

"The question then is whether the appellant has perfected his title by adverse possession. It is seen that a contention was raised before the Assistant Commissioner that the appellant having remained in possession from 1968, he perfected his title by adverse possession. But the crucial facts toconstitute adverse possession have not been pleaded. Admittedly the appellant came into possession by a derivative title from the original grantee. It is seen that the original grantee has no right to alienate the land. Therefore, having come into possession under colour of title from original grantee, if the appellant intends to plead adverse possession as against the State, he must disclaim his title and plead his hostile claim to the knowledge of the State and that the State had not taken any action thereon within the prescribed period. Thereby, the appellant's possession would become adverse. No such stand was taken nor evidence has been adduced in this behalf. The counsel in fairness, despite his research, is unable to bring to our notice any such plea having been taken by the appellant."

16. In D. N. Venkatarayappa and Another v. State of Karnataka and Others (1997) 7 SCC 567 this court observed as under:-

"Therefore, in the absence of crucial pleadings, which constitute adverse possession and evidence to show that the petitioners have been continuous and uninterrupted possession of the lands in question claiming right, title and interest in the lands in question hostile to the right, title and interest of the original

www.vadaprativada.com

grantees, the petitioners cannot claim that they have perfected their title by adverse possession."

17. In Md. Mohammad Ali (Dead) By LRs. v. Jagadish Kalita & Others (2004) 1 SCC 271, paras 21-22, this Court observed as under:

"21. For the purpose of proving adverse possession/ouster, the defendant must also prove animus possidendi.

22. ....We may further observe that in a proper case the court may have to construe the entire pleadings so as to come to a conclusion as to whether the proper plea of adverse possession has been raised in the written statement or not which can also be gathered from the cumulative effect of the averments made therein."

18. In Karnataka Board of Wakf v. Govt. of India (2004) 10 SCC 779 at para 11, this court observed as under:-

"In the eye of the law, an owner would be deemed to be in possession of a property so long as there is no intrusion. Non-use of the property by the owner even for a long time won't affect his title. But the position will be altered when another person takes possession of the property and asserts a right over it. Adverse possession is a hostile possession by clearly asserting hostile title in denial of the title of the true owner. It is a well-settled principle that a party claiming adverse possession must prove that his possession is "nec vi, nec clam, nec precario", that is, peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that their possession is adverse to the true owner. It must start with a wrongful disposition of the rightful owner and be actual, visible, exclusive, hostile and continued over the statutory period."

The court further observed that plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show: (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession.

19. In Saroop Singh v. Banto (2005) 8 SCC 330 this Court observed:

"29. In terms of Article 65 the starting point of

www.vadaprativada.com

limitation does not commence from the date when the right of ownership arises to the plaintiff but commences from the date the defendant's possession becomes adverse. (See Vasantiben Prahladji Nayak v. Somnath Muljibhai Nayak (2004) 3 SCC 376)

30. `Animus possidendi' is one of the ingredients of adverse possession. Unless the person possessing the land has a requisite animus the period for prescription does not commence. As in the instant case, the appellant categorically states that his possession is not adverse as that of true owner, the logical corollary is that he did not have the requisite animus. (See Md. Mohammad Ali (Dead) by LRs. v. Jagdish Kalita and Others (JT 2003) (8) SC 26)"

20. This principle has been reiterated later in the case of M. Durai v.Muthu and Others (2007) 3 SCC 114 para 7. This Court observed as under:

"...In terms of Articles 142 and 144 of the old Limitation Act, the plaintiff was bound to prove his title as also possession within twelve years preceding the date of institution of the suit under the Limitation Act, 1963, once the plaintiff proves his title, the burden shifts to the defendant to establish that he has perfected his title by adverse possession."

21. This court had an occasion to examine the concept of adverse possession in T. Anjanappa & Others v. Somalingappa & Another [(2006) 7 SCC 570]. The court observed that a person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his title was hostile to the real owner and amounted to denial of his title to the property claimed. The court further observed that the classical requirements of acquisition of title by adverse possession are that such possession in denial of the true owner's title must be peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be open and hostile enough to be capable of being known by the parties interested in the property, though it is not necessary that there should be evidence of the adverse possessor actually informing the real owner of the former's hostile action.

www.vadaprativada.com

www.vadaprativada.com

22. In a relatively recent case in P. T. Munichikkanna Reddy & Others v. Revamma & Others [JT 2007 (6) SC 86; 2007 (6) SCC 59) this court again had an occasion to deal with the concept of adverse possession in detail. The court also examined the legal position in various countries particularly in English and American system. We deem it appropriate to reproduce relevant passages in extenso. The court dealing with adverse possession in paras 5 and 6 observed as under:-

"5. Adverse possession in one sense is based on the

theory or presumption that the owner has abandoned the property to the adverse possessor on the acquiescence of the owner to the hostile acts and claims of the person in possession. It follows that sound qualities of a typical adverse possession lie in it being open, continuous and hostile. [See Downing v. Bird 100 So. 2d 57 (Fla. 1958), Arkansas Commemorative Commission v. City of Little Rock 227 Ark. 1085 : 303 S.W.2d 569 (1957);

Monnot v. Murphy 207 N.Y. 240, 100 N.E. 742 (1913); City of Rock Springs v. Sturm 39 Wyo. 494, 273 P. 908, 97 A.L.R. 1 (1929).]

www.vadaprativada.com

6. Efficacy of adverse possession law in most jurisdictions depend on strong limitation statutes by operation of which right to access the court expires through effluxion of time. As against rights of the paper-owner, in the context of adverse possession, there evolves a set of competing rights in favour of the adverse possessor who has, for a long period of time, cared for the land, developed it, as against the owner of the property who has ignored the property. Modern statutes of limitation operate, as a rule, not only to cut off one's right to bring an action for the recovery of property that has been in the adverse possession of another for a specified time, but also to vest the possessor with title. The intention of such statutes is not to punish one who neglects to assert rights, but to protect those who have maintained the possession of property for the time specified by the statute under claim of right or color of title. (See American Jurisprudence, Vol. 3, 2d, Page 81). It is important to keep in mind while studying the American notion of Adverse Possession, especially in the backdrop of Limitation Statutes, that the intention to dispossess can not be given a complete go by. Simple application of Limitation shall not be enough by itself for the success of an adverse possession claim."

www.vadaprativada.com

www.vadaprativada.com

32. Reverting to the facts of this case, admittedly, the appellants at no stage had set up the case of adverse possession, there was no pleading to that effect, no issues were framed, but even then the trial court decreed the suit on the ground of adverse possession. The trial court judgment being erroneous and unsustainable was set aside by the first appellate court. Both the first appellate court and the High Court have categorically held that the appellant has miserably failed to establish title to the suit land, therefore, he is not entitled to the ownership. We endorse the findings of the first appellate court upheld by the High court.

33. Consequently, the appeal being devoid of any merit

is accordingly dismissed with costs, which is quantified at Rs.25,000/-.

34. Before parting with this case, we deem it appropriate to observe that the law of adverse possession which ousts an owner on the basis of inaction within limitation is irrational, illogical and wholly disproportionate. The law as it exists is extremely harsh for the true owner and a windfall for a dishonest person who had illegally taken possession of the property of the true owner. The law ought not to benefit a person who in a clandestine manner takes possession of the property of the owner in contravention of law. This in substance would mean that the law gives seal of approval to the illegal action or activities of a rank trespasser or who had wrongfully taken possession of the property of the true owner.

35. We fail to comprehend why the law should place premium on dishonesty by legitimizing possession of a rank trespasser and compelling the owner to loose its possession only because of his inaction in taking back the possession within limitation.

(v) "Salmond on Jurisprudence", 12th Edition, under Chapter-9 (Possession), at page 270, clearly states that things not in any way amenable to human control cannot form the subject matter of possession. A man cannot be said to possess, e.g. the sun, the moon or the stars.

52. Possession in fact:- Possession, in fact, is a relationship between a person and a thing. I possess, roughly speaking, those things which I have : the things which I hold in my hand, the clothes which I wear, and the objects which I have by me. To possess them is to have them under my physical control. If I capture a wild animal, I get possession of it; if it escapes from my control, then I lose possession.

Things not in any way amenable to human control cannot form the subject-matter of possession. A man cannot be said to possess for example the sun, the moon or the stars. Indeed the expression " to possess the sun" is without application : if a man claimed to possess the sun, we should be at a loss to understand what he meant. In time, however, it is conceivable that means might be discovered of controlling such distant objects as the sund and in this event it might make sense to talk of possessing it; but this would be a very different world from the one we know and the one our language describes. Yet the fact that our ordinary language has no use for such expressions by no means rules out their employment in a legal system. We have seen that the legal concept of ownership could quite feasibly be applied to such objects as the sun and the same holds true of the legal concept of possession. We could, if we wanted, have laws specifying criteria according to which a man might be said to possess the sun. For legal concepts and ordinary concepts need not coincide.

Now to say that something is under my control is not to assert that I am continuously exercising control over it. I can have a thing in my control without actually holding or using it at every given moment of time. In the ordinary sense of the word, I retain possession of my coat even if I take it off and put it down beside me; and I continue in possession of it even though I fall asleep. All that is necessary is that I should be in such a position as to be able, in the normal course of events, to resume actual control if I want. At this point we may observe the influence of law and of the legal concept of possession on the idea of possession in fact. In a wholly primitive society utterly devoid of law and of legal protection for possession, there might well be little hope of resuming actual control over a thing once you had momentarily relinquished it. In such a society men could only be said to possess those objects over which they were actually exercising control. By contrast, in a society in which possession is respected generally and is protected by law, we may expect that temporary relinquishment of actual control will not result in complete loss of the ability to resume it at will. So, by providing remedies against dispossession the law enlarges the number of situations in which a person may count on retaining his power of control; in other words it increases the number of cases where a man may be said to have possession.

(vi) Monomohini Dassi Vs. Eshan Chunder Roy, 1879 ILR 4 Calcutta, 683 states that the right of worshipping an idol is not in the nature of "an interest in immovable property" and, therefore, would not be within the purview of the Limitation Act in the same manner as any interest arising out of immovable property would be.

www.vadaprativada.com

7. The plaintiffs have taken as objection before us against that part of the decision of the lower Appellate Court, which has gone against her. It has been aruged that the claimed, regarding the worship of the idol Shalgram, has been erroneously held as barred by limitation. The present suit is admittedly brought more than six years after the accrual of the cause of action, and unless the right in question is in the nature of an interest in immoveable property, the plea of limitation cannot be got over. After giving to the matter our best consideration, we are unable to come to the conclusion that the right of worshipping an idol is in the nature of " an interest in immoveable property." The plaintiff's objection to the decision of the lower Appellate Court must, therefore, also fail.

(vii) Kasi Mangalath Illath Vishnu Nambudiri and others Vs. Pattath Ramunni Marar and others, AIR 1940 Madras 208, holds "A public temple being 'res extra commercium" it is not open to a private individual to acquire by prescription any private ownership in regard thereto. The character of the temple as a public temple cannot be taken away by any assertion of private right."

www.vadaprativada.com

It is in evidence that the defendants' family have been always performing puja and appropriating all perquisites and offerings received at the temple and were generally attending to the management of the temple and at no time the trustees ever interfered with such management or claimed to receive any portion of the perquisites or offerings, even after the open assertion by the defendants of their absolute rights. It is also in evidence that such repairs as were needed have been done by the defendants in assertion of their absolute rights. It may be that the omission of the trustees of the Tiruvangad devaswom to interfere with such control

www.vadaprativada.com

may have been due to long continued mismanagement of the trustees of the main temple which necessitated the framing of a scheme by the Court. But if the defendants have been openly setting up exclusive right to the possession and management of the temple adverse to the right of the management which may inhere in the trustees of the main temple by virtue of the fact that the suit temple was a subordinate shrine, the right of the trustees of the temple would certainly be lost by adverse possession. Probably the absence of such control is due to the fact that the usage is that the archaka should be in such possession and management subject to general supervision the trustees of the main temple may have over them. The terms under which the defendants' ancestor was introduced into the temple are not known. On the findings of both the Courts, there can be no doubt that the defendants' family at any rate for a period of 30 years has been setting up a right of exclusive possession and management to the knowledge of the trustees. Therefore, the facts I of this case warrant the inference that the defendants have acquired the right of being hereditary archakas of the suit temple and as such to be in possession and management of it. They are therefore entitled to be in possession of the said temple, to perform the puja and appropriate the perquisites and

offerings offered at the temple for their own use subject of course to the obligation of performing the puja. The plaintiffs-trustees have no right to interfere with the said management except to exercise a general supervision over them as trustees of the main temple. The plaintiffs would not therefore be entitled to a decree for possession. In my opinion the defendants are the hereditary archakas of the suit temple subject to the supervision of the trustees of the main temple as mentioned by me aforesaid.

In the view I have taken that the defendants are the hereditary archakas of the suit temple subject to the supervision of the trustees of the main temple as mentioned by me as aforesaid, the decree of the lower Appellate Court negativing their right must be reversed and the decree of the subordinate Judge dismissing the suit must be upheld on the basis that the defendants are entitled to be in possession as hereditary archakas. The result is that the plaintiffs' suit will be dismissed, but I direct each party to bear their own costs throughout. Leave to appeal is refused.

Some doubt was raised by the office with regard to the refund of court-fee in this case. I issued notice to the Government Pleader. Mr. Krishna Rao on behalf of the Government Pleader frankly stated to me that refund should be ordered and I think he is right. Apart from Sections 13, 14 and 15, Court-fees Act, the Court has got inherent power to refund court-fee: vide Thammayya Naidu v. Venkataramanamma As the temple in this case is incapable of valuation I think the appellants are entitled to a refund of the excess court-fee paid by them. The proper court-fee in this case is Rs. 100. The appellants are therefore entitled to a certificate for the refund of the balance. Mr. Govinda Menon asks me to make an order also in his client's favour. I cannot do so in this appeal. If so advised, he is entitled to make an application to the lower Court".

Sri Prasad, Senior Advocate concluded his submissions:

What is the most important fact that is to be noted from the above mentioned discussion is that a deity is the God and a temple the abode of God and no one can possess God and raise the plea of adverse possession. No one can own the Supreme Being Himself.

The plaintiffs have filed this representative suit, alleging that they have perfected their title by adverse possession. Further they submit that they remained in possession of the property in dispute till 1949 and they were dispossessed from the same in 1949. In this regard evidence adduced by the plaintiffs and the defendants both documentary and oral have already been discussed. Initially the plaintiffs claimed that a declaration be made in their favour and thereafter during the pendency of the suit around 34 years afterwords the plaint was amended and thereafter they claimed possession but it transpired that this is alternative case for the reasons that prayer (b) does not specify that alternative prayer was made in this case. For convenience the amended prayer is reproduced as below;

"That in case in the opinion of the Court delivery of possession is deemed to be the proper remedy, a decree for delivery of possession of the mosque and grave yard in suit by removal of the idols and other articles which the Hindus may have placed in the mosque as object of their worship be passed in plaintiff's' favour, against the defendants."

Thus, the plaintiffs have sought delivery of possession after 35 years of the institution of the suit and in case it is alternative prayer of possession, then this prayer too is time barred .

On behalf of the plaintiffs, it has been submitted that mosque was in exclusive possession of the plaintiffs and cash grant was given for maintenance of mosque till 1864 and thereafter revenue free land was provided by the British Government. It is further contended that this fact never establishes that Muslims were continuously in possession of the property in suit. It is further submitted that on the Chabutra 17x 21 ft. the Suit No.61/280/85 was filed to construct the temple by Mahant Raghubar Das and the suit was dismissed. It is also

submitted on behalf of the plaintiffs that on the basis of original Sanad and other papers, referred to above, the plaintiffs are the owners of the property in suit.

These allegations have been rebutted from the side of Hindus.

I have given anxious thoughts to the rival submissions and perused the record. Ext. A3 does not confer title on plaintiffs. It is cash grant of Rs. 302-3-6 for maintenance of the mosque in favour of Rajjab Ali and Mohd. Asghar. Ext. A 10 is the certified copy for continuance of the grant. Ext. A3 further shows that the grant may continue so long as the Masjid is kept up. Thereafter Ext. 3 shows that on 27.9.1902 the mosque was inspected and was found in good order .Ext. A 21 and Ext. A 14 further reveals that

www.vadaprativada.com

Annexure-V
Ext. A-18
Pages 177-189

grant was commuted . Ext. A-18 is Sanad dated 30th October, 1865 regarding the allotment of land of Khateeb Masjid Janam Sthan. On the basis of these papers, the plaintiffs claim title over the property in suit.

At the cost of repetition, I may refer that original sanand , granted by the chief Commissioner( Ext. A 3) relates to grant for maintenance of the mosque. It does not confer any title on the plaintiffs. Ext. A 10 also does not confer any title but provides that grant shall continue. Ext. A 11 also shows that the grant be

continued for maintenance of the mosque . These papers do not confer that the State Government either sold or gifted the property to the plaintiffs. Ext. A 11 further shows that the grant was to be made so long as Masjid was to be kept up.

Inspection report Ext A-3 dated 27.9.1902 also does not prove the title of the plaintiffs. It does not refer that really the plaintiffs were enjoying the property in suit exclusively. Ext A 18 leaves no room of doubt that the State Government allotted the land and the land was granted for Musjid Janm Sthan vide order Ext. A6. Ext. A 19 also shows that for the support of Janmsthali Masjid cash grant was made by the Government. I have dealt with these papers at the time of considering the arguments of Sri H.S. Jain. For the sake of brevity, I am to say that these papers do not confer any title on the plaintiffs. On the contrary, they prove the arrangement for maintenance of the mosque. It transpires that since cash grant was taken by Rajjab Ali and Mohd. Asgar and their descendants they all the time wanted to utilize the same. These arrangements so made between the British Government and the plaintiffs do not confer them the title. The plaintiffs have never stated anywhere that they were holding the title adverse to the interest of the Government. The grant was also not perpetual in nature . The grant was made for up keep of the mosque. This grant was utilized by Rajjab Ali and others by preparing the accounts on which reliance has been placed . These accounts of repairs and whitewash do not prove the title. Consequently, on the basis of these papers, the plaintiffs cannot establish the title and the possession over the property in suit. Even in the settlement map, 1937 Ext.32 the property was not shown as Babri Mosque and the authorities had shown it as a temple.. Ext. 32 leaves no room for doubt that at the time of preparation of settlement map, the authorities were aware that after 1934 riots the Muslims were dispossessed from the mosque, that is the disputed structure and the property was under the control of Hindus. Accordingly they treated it as a temple. I have also referred to Ext. A 15, 16,18,19,20, 21,22, 23 and 24 and Ext. 27 to show that in the inner courtyard also the Hindu Nihang Sikhs were continuously worshiping and Muslims were objecting to it and making persistent efforts to get them removed.

There is no evidence worth the name to establish that Sikhs were completely removed from the disputed structure altogether. It is established form the judicial record that in the outer grave yard Mahant Raghubar Das and others were having full control and same was acknowledged by the Court in the year 1885.

In view of the aforesaid circumstances, the plaintiffs , who have come out with a case that they have perfected for their right by adverse possession is not proved The evidence so adduced before this Court is not of such nature that can cure the defendants of the plaint. There is no averment in the plaint which constitutes adverse possession of the plaintiffs. The ingredients of adverse possession have not been referred to in the plaint.

www.vadaprativada.com

Thus, I agree with the contention of Sri Ravi Shanker Prasad, Senior, Advocate that the plaintiffs have failed to prove adverse possession.

It is admitted between the parties that during the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. the suit was instituted on the ground of perfection of right and title through adverse possession.

I have referred the submission of Sri H.S. Jain, who has elaborately discussed the revenue record. Thus, on the basis of revenue record also the claim of Muslims that they remained in exclusive possession of the property is not proved. On the contrary, it is proved that Janm Sthan was identified and the disputed property was shown as Nazool land.

www.vadaprativada.com

It further transpires that on the basis of waqf also the Muslims have failed to establish that they have exclusive possession over the property. According to the tenets of Islam the Waqf could not be created. Adverse possession of debutter is impermissible under Hindu Law which has been earlier referred to. It is also settled that the plaintiffs have failed to produce any registered lease deed about the disputed land and thus they cannot claim any relief based on title. I further find that there is no evidence worth the name from the side of the plaintiffs to establish their title over the land. In this reference detailed discussion has already been made while dealing with the arguments of Sri P. N. Mishra, who has rightly pointed out that ingredients of the adverse possession have neither been pleaded nor have been proved by the plaintiffs. Accordingly they cannot be allowed to claim relief based on title. Several rulings have been considered and discussed to justify the aforesaid proposition of law. It is settled proposition of law that the plaintiffs cannot be allowed to approbate and reprobate on one hand. They are seeking declaration based on title while they are , on the other hand, claiming relief based on adverse possession, contrary to the possession. Thus, on this count also the plaintiffs' suit is not maintainable.

The burden of proof under the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act lies on the plaintiffs and they have failed to discharge their obligations. They claim possession based on title while they have failed to prove the possession and they were not found in exclusive possession of the property. Accordingly on this count also as per case law referred to above the claim is not maintainable. There is admission of Muslims that Hindus were continuously worshipping at the outer courtyard and also interrupting the Muslims on Friday inside the inner courtyard. Mohammad Hashim, plaintiff no. 7 deposed this fact. Farooq Ahmad( P.W.3) also admitted the aforesaid contentions. Hindus claim that inside and outside the pillars contained the images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses and they were being worshipped throughout . It has come in evidence and I have also referred to in separate volumes that several figures of Hindu Gods and

Goddesses were found on the pillars affixed inside the mosque and according to the tenets of Islam there cannot be any image inside the mosque. The plaintiffs could not substantiate any explanation about the same . Even in proceedings under Section

Annexure-II
Pages 120-193

145 Cr.P.C. the parties exchanged affidavits and certain facts have been referred to in the pleadings Since no cross-examination was conducted , accordingly the affidavits are not considered in evidence but on the basis of the pleadings referred to above, it transpires that the theory of adverse possession by Muslims is not sustainable in the law as they have vaguely claimed the right of adverse possession. The principle of adverse possession is well known. The conditions are not fulfilled . The plaintiffs have failed to establish that they are real owners of the property in dispute. They have further failed to prove that they subsequently became in possession of the land. The property must be alienable property . The possession must be open and hostile to true owner and the real owner must have consented the hostile possession. As explained earlier since the place of worship is deity, the property is not inalienable property. Even mosque itself cannot be sold or transferred to any person. Thus, looking to the case of the plaintiffs from all or any angle, it transpires that the property was not transferable. The plaintiffs have not stated any where who is actual owner of the property. Long possession does not mean

www.vadaprativada.com

adverse possession. It is proved that the Muslims have no uninterrupted possession and hostile to real owner. On the contrary, the Hindus have proved that they were worshipping even after the alleged structure was constructed. Thus, on the basis of relevant case laws ,referred to above, the plaintiffs have failed to substantiate the plea of adverse possession and to show that who was the real owner of the property. Thus, on this count also the plea of adverse possession is not sustainable in the eyes of law. It is further settled proposition of law that whenever plea of adverse possession is projected , inherent plea is that someone else was the owner of the property. Hon'ble apex court in Mohan Lal vs Mirza Abdul Gaffar 1996(1) SCC 639 held that plea of title and possession is inconsistent and the latter does not begin to operate until the former is renounced. I have discussed this case at length but it is necessary to point out that the case of the plaintiffs in OOS No. 4 of 1989 on the point of title is hit by the aforesaid proposition of law and they are not entitled to claim adverse possession in this case. The plaintiffs have also failed to establish that they were in possession in continuity and publicity. It has come in evidence all the time that right from 1858 onwards they had no uninterrupted possession in the inner courtyard. One way or the other in this open place other than Muslims were offering prayers and the Muslims were making complaints against Hindus. On behalf of the Hindus it is said that the property belonged to Almighty. It belonged to God and nobody can raise the plea of adverse possession.

The plaintiffs have not mentioned in the plaint the necessary requisites to establish adverse possession . The concept of adverse possession contemplates the hostile possession, i.e. a possession which is expressly or impliedly in possession of true owner. Adverse possession must be possession by a person, who does not acknowledge but denies it. Principle of law is that it formally establishes with a person who bases his title on adverse possession as to demonstrate before the court through clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed. In such matters to constitute a possession the animus of person is most crucial factor. Adverse possession is concept of rem and is arrayed against right and if there is silent possession, it will not amount to ouster and adverse possession is not constituted. A person, who claims adverse possession has to establish that he held property adversely to the real owner and has denied title of owner's right and excluded him from the enjoyment of his property. Further it transpires where stranger is in possession, then the knowledge of true owner cannot be attributed. The stranger has to establish notorious and exclusive possession against the enjoyment of the property of the true owner. The requirements of adverse possession are that the possession must be adequate in continuity in publicity and in existence.

In AIR 1935 Privy Council page 53 Ejas Ali Quidwai and

others Vs. Special Manager, Court of Wards and others their Lordships of Privy Council have held;

"The principle of law is firmly established that a person, who bases his title on adverse possession, must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of the title to the property claimed."

Further in AIR 1919 Privy Council in A.R.R. M. V. Arunachallam Chetty and others Vs. Venratachalapathi Guruswamigal have held;

"Their Lordships of Privy Council in AIR 1919 PC 62 have held: "Where the person claiming to be owner stands by while others continue to possess not by any derivative title but in practical contravention of his legal rights the possession of such other persons is adverse to the person claiming to be the owner. The law does not require that the claimant to ownership must in such circumstances be shown to have protested that his rights were being violated and that the possession went on adversely to his protests."

www.vadaprativada.com

At this juncture it would be worthwhile to mention that the property in dispute exists in Nazool plot no. 583 of Mohalla Kot Ram Chandra as Ram Kot city Ayodhya. Consequently, the land belongs to State and there cannot be any adverse possession against the State and the title cannot be derived on the basis of long possession and that too as has already been

extinguished in the year 1949. Consequently, neither at the time of filing of the suit nor during the pendency of the suit, the plaintiffs remained in possession of Nazool plot no. 583 of Khasra of Mohalla Kot Ram Chandra. The property has already been acquired by the Central Government and objection against the acquisition was also filed and thereafter the apex court referred this matter to this Court to adjudicate on the point of title as claimed by the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs have not produced any evidence worth the name to establish their title over the property. They have come out with a case that by adverse possession they became owner and they have lost possession in 1949.

Thus, there is nothing on record to establish that they had any hostile possession against the State Government or they were not enjoying the rights . Even if for the arguments sake, it is presumed that it was permissive possession of the State Government, it will never be termed to be hostile. Even if the State has not objected possession of the plaintiffs, it would not necessarily mean the possession as to construe as possession because there is nothing on record to suggest that the State Government acknowledged the rights of the plaintiffs and the plaintiffs denied the rights of the Government and also denied the title, stating that the possession was hostile to the Government and amounted to denial of the title of plot no. 583. Thus, the possession of the plaintiffs cannot render hostile on their part against the Government and further they were not in exclusive

possession and enjoyment of the property for the reasons that from 1858 and onwards the Hindus were clearly in possession over the property and persistently the complaints were made from the side of the Muslims against Hindus for their induction in the property in suit. At the cost of brevity I would not like to refer the evidence which has already been discussed by me but on the basis of evidence it transpired that in 1858 there were complaints that one Nihang entered into the disputed premises and took the possession of the entire property and also lit fire and performed worship of fire and Havan. Several complaints were made against him for his removal in which it has been specifically referred that the Nihang was writing words' Ram Ram Ram" on the walls of the disputed property. There is no evidence worth the name that he was totally removed from the property in suit. Consequently, it has to be admitted on the basis of the record that there was no exclusive entry of Muslims inside the disputed structure and it was commonly used by Hindu pilgrims. Further Original Suit No. 61/280 of 1885 was filed by Mahant Raghubar Das, restraining the Muslims from using the disputed structure. The claim was rejected on the ground of law and order. It is admitted to the plaintiffs' right from beginning including at the time of the institution of the suit which finds place in the averments that Hindus were worshipping in the outer courtyard. The place was known as Charan Paduka and Sita rasoi and other idols were installed on Ram Chabutra. The plaintiffs have filed the suit with composite unit. They have not demarcated the property. This Court has to presume only one unit and unit cannot be split in open land and also in a building. The building and adjoining area constitute one unit. Admittedly, structure was surrounded by open land where the defendants claim that they were having possession over the said land which were acknowledged by the Court in the year 1885 also. Thus, the papers filed by the plaintiffs leave no room for doubt that more than half of the property in suit was open land and it was in the exclusive possession of the Hindus and the same was acknowledged by the Court as well as by the Muslims, as the finding of the Civil Court in the above suit was not set aside.

www.vadaprativada.com

www.vadaprativada.com

Thus, the plaintiffs were not in exclusive possession of the property in suit, accordingly the theory of adverse possession of plaintiffs fails.

As regards the disputed structure it transpires that there was no door inside to restrict the entry of any body. Structure was surrounded by open land right from the days of Nihang and other people, who were using the structure as a religious place with the knowledge of the Muslim. There is no convincing evidence to show that Hindus were not worshipping inside the building for the reasons that in the year 1990 the Court directed for preparation of photographs which relate to issue no. 19 (F). I have already recorded my finding on issue no. 19 (F). Thus, the plaintiffs' version was not found correct that on the pillars inside and outside of the building, in question, did not contain images of Hindu Gods and Goddess . At the behest of the Court photographs were taken. A glimpse of those photographs indicate that on the pillars of inside and outside disputed building there were images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses and that is why the Hindus were going inside the building to offer prayers and they could not be restrained permanently from entering into the disputed structure.

Annexure-V
Photographs
Pages 13-44

I have already referred that pillar nos. 1 to 14 contained images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses and other religious structure also contained images of Gods and Goddesses. This structure having images of idols and design cannot be constituted as a place of worship in a form of mosque under the Divine Law of Shar, which is applicable to Muslims. Even if the Holy Prophet has said that angels do not enter into a house which has image structure etc. According to sacred compilation of Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol..III). Thus, these images definitely prompted the Hindus to go inside the structure and to offer prayers of Gods and Goddesses . This leads an inescapable conclusion that the property which was open and not in exclusive possession of Muslims and accordingly Muslims cannot claim adverse possession against the said property because it was open place and every body was visiting including Muslims. I have also referred the tenets of Islam and

www.vadaprativada.com

certain injunction of Islam to establish that the structure could not be a mosque as it was not retained by Muslim in accordance with the tenets of Islam and at all it was functional. It was contrary to the religious practices and injunction of Holy Quran and other Holy practices in Islam, Thus, applying the Islamic tenets on the version of the plaintiffs it transpires that the building was not used exclusively by Muslims after adhering Islamic proposition of law relating to the religion or adhering to the injunctions of Islam. Thus, the concept that the property in suit was exclusively used as a mosque is not wroth convincing and the circumstances leads inescapable conclusion that right from 1858 and onwards the property in suit could not remain in exclusive possession of Muslims. In the year 1855 under the orders of Nawab one wall was erected. It does not specify that the structure was exclusively used by the Muslims. It transpires that unit as a whole, as referred in the plaint, was excluded by a wall. Thus, with no stretch of imagination on the basis of evidence adduced by the plaintiffs even if it is relied can make this court to presume that Muslims were in exclusive possession of the property. Thus, the adverse possession as pleaded by the plaintiff without referring to ingredients of adverse possession in the plaint leaves no room for doubt that the plaintiffs have failed to establish that they contemplated possession as a hostile possession against the Government ,who is true owner of the property, according to the Khasra for the year 1931. It is also not the case that Government acknowledged the rights of the plaintiffs which were denied openly and the animus was retained by the Muslims, hostile to the real owner which amounted to denial of title of the State in the property in suit. Thus, the plea of adverse possession against the State is also not proved. The plaintiffs could not demonstrate that they remained in exclusive possession over the property in suit and the Hindus have come out with a case that from 1934 onwards Muslims were not allowed to enter into the premises in suit. Muslims claim that they have been denied of their entry in December, 1949, but they admit that the mosque was desecrated and damaged in the year 1934 and repairs were made at the cost of the State in the year 1934. Thus, it is admitted to the plaintiffs that the mosque was desecrated and considerably damaged . It leads to an inference that after damage and desecration of the property in suit by Hindus, it remained not in use of the Muslims till it was repaired completely by the State Government. Although State was arrayed as a party but no witness has been produced to establish this fact that at the cost of State Government or at the behest of the State Government the mosque was repaired and it was again given in possession of the Muslims for their exclusive use. I have also the site-plan and also inspected the place of dispute. From his report it also does not transpire that there was any door in the structure or the property was exclusively under the control and possession of Muslims. He has not made any assertion about the possession of Muslims. Thus, the disputed structure was an open place. There was no door. Consequently it was not possible to check the entry of Hindus inside the disputed property.

On the contrary, Hindus claim that they were offering prayers and visiting the place till the date of demolition and even after attachment of the property.

Thus to sum up, I am of the view that the plea of adverse possession as contended by the plaintiffs implies that someone is owner of the property. Hon'ble the Apex Court has considered the scope of adverse possession. On the acid test of law as laid down by Hon'ble the Apex Court in 2006 7 SCC 570, T. Anjanappa and Others vs. Somalingappa and Another this Court is of the view that the plaintiffs have miserably failed to establish their adverse possession over the property in suit .

Their Lordships of the Hon'ble Apex Court in 2006 7 SCC 570, T. Anjanappa and Others vs. Somalingappa and Another held that mere long possession does not mean that it is adverse to the true owner. Paragraphs no. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21 are reproduced as under:

13. Possession to be adverse must be possession by a person who does not acknowledge the other's rights but denies them:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "It is a matter of fundamental principle of law that where possession can be referred to a lawful title, it will not be considered to be adverse. It is on the basis of this principle that it has been laid down that since the possession of one co-owner can be referred to his status as co-owner, it cannot be considered adverse to other co-owner."

14. Adverse possession is that form of possession or occupancy of land which is inconsistent with the title of the rightful owner and tends to extinguish that person's title. Possession is not held to be adverse if it can be referred to a lawful title. The person setting up adverse possession may have been holding under the rightful Owner's title e.g. trustees, guardians, bailiffs or agents. Such persons cannot set up adverse possession:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "14....Adverse possession means a [hostile possession] which is expressly or impliedly in denial of title of the true owner. Under Article 65 [of the Limitation Act,] burden is on the defendants to prove affirmatively. A person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence i.e. possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed. In deciding whether the acts, alleged by a person, constitute adverse possession, regard must be had to the animus of the person doing those acts which must be ascertained from the facts and

circumstances of each case. The person who bases his title on adverse possession, therefore, must show by clear and unequivocal evidence i.e. possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed....

15. Where possession can be referred to a lawful title, it will not be considered to be adverse. The reason being that a person whose possession can be referred to a lawful title will not be permitted to show that his possession was hostile to another's title. One who holds possession on behalf of another does not by mere denial of that other's title make his possession adverse so as to give himself the benefit of the statute of limitation. Therefore, a person who enters into possession having a lawful title, cannot divest another of that title by pretending that he had no title at all. (See Annasaheb Bapusaheb Patil v. Balwant, SCC p. 554, paras 14-15)

16. An occupation of reality is inconsistent with the right of the true owner. Where a person possesses property in a manner in which he is not entitled to possess it, and without anything to show that he possesses it otherwise than an owner (that is, with the intention of excluding all persons from it, including the rightful owner), he is in adverse possession of it. Thus, if A is in possession of a field of B's, he is in adverse possession of it unless there is something to show that his possession is consistent with a recognition of B's title. (See Ward v. Carttar, (1865) LR 1 Eq.29).

Adverse possession is of two kinds, as it was adverse from the beginning, or has become so subsequently. Thus, if a mere trespasser takes possession of A's property, and retains it against him, his possession is adverse ab initio. But if A grants a lease of land to B, or B obtains possession of the land as A's bailiff, or guardian, or trustee, his possession can only become adverse by some change in his position. Adverse possession not only entitled the adverse possessor, like every other possessor, to be protected in his possession against all who cannot show a better title, but also, if the adverse possessor remains in possession for a certain period of time produces the effect either of barring the right of the true owner, and thus converting the possessor into the owner, or of depriving the true owner of his right of action to recover his property and this although the true owner is ignorant of the adverse possessor being in occupation. (See Rains v. Buxion (1880 (14) Ch D 537).

17. Adverse possession is that form of possession or occupancy of land which is inconsistent with the title of any person to whom the land rightfully belongs and tends to extinguish that person's title, which provides that no person shall make an entry or distress, or bring an action to recover any land or rent, but within twelve years next after the time when the right first accrued, and does away with the doctrine of adverse possession, except in the cases provided for by Section 15. Possession is not held to be adverse if

it can be referred to a lawful title.

18. According to Pollock, "In common speech a man is said to be in possession of anything of which he has the apparent control or from the use of which he has the apparent powers of excluding others".

19. It is the basic principle of law of adverse possession that (a) it is the temporary and abnormal separation of the property from the title of it when a man holds property innocently against all the world but wrongfully against the true owner; (b) it is possession inconsistent with the title of the true owner.

20. In Halsbury's Laws of England, 1953 Edition, Volume-I it has been stated as follows:

> "At the determination of the statutory period limited to any person for making an entry or bringing an action, the right or title of such person to the land, rent or advowson, for the recovery of which such entry or action might have been made or brought within such period is extinguished and such title cannot afterward be reviewed either by re-entry or by subsequent acknowledgment. The operation of the statute is merely negative, it extinguished the right and title of the dispossessed owner and leaves the occupant with a title gained by the fact of possession and resting on the infirmity of the right of the others to eject

21. It is well recognized proposition in law that mere possession however long does not necessarily mean that it is adverse to the true owner. Adverse possession really means the hostile possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of title of the true owner and in order to constitute adverse possession the possession proved must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to show that it is adverse to the true owner. The classical requirements of acquisition of title by adverse possession are that such possession in denial of the true owner's title must be peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be open and hostile enough to be capable of being known by the parties interested in the property, though it is not necessary that there should be evidence of the adverse possessor actually informing the real owner of the former's hostile action.

22. The High Court has erred in holding that even if the defendants claim adverse possession, they do not have to prove who is the true owner and even if they had believed that the Government was the true owner and not the plaintiffs, the same was inconsequential. Obviously, the requirements of proving adverse possession have not been established. If the defendants are not sure who is the true owner the question of their being in hostile possession and the question of denying title of the true owner do not arise. Above being the position the High Court's judgment is clearly unsustainable. Therefore, the appeal which relates to OS

168/85 is allowed by setting aside the impugned judgment of the High Court to that extent. Equally, the High Court has proceeded on the basis that the plaintiff in OS.286/88 had established his plea of possession. The factual position does not appear to have been analysed by the High Court in the proper perspective. When the High Court was upsetting the findings recorded by the court below i.e. first appellate Court it would have been proper for the High Court to analyse the factual position in detail which has not been done. No reason has been indicated to show as to why it was differing from the factual findings recorded by it. The first appellate Court had categorically found that the appellants in the present appeals had proved possession three years prior to filing of the suit. This finding has not been upset. Therefore, the High Court was not justified in setting aside the first appellate Court's order. The appeal before this Court relating to O.S. 286 of 1988 also deserves to be allowed. Therefore, both the appeals are allowed but without any order as to costs."

Thus, operation of Section 110 in the above case is also restricted because the plaintiffs have failed to satisfy that the possession is not prima facie wrongful. However, even bare reading of plaint transpires that the case does not fall within the ambit of Section110 of Indian Evidence Act because the plaintiffs have themselves sought declaration and thereafter in 1995 against statutory time limit claimed possession . On the date of institution of suit in the year 1961 the possession was not claimed. It was claimed in the year 1995. The possession could only be claimed within the time limit prescribed under the Law of Limitation and not afterword. Thus, the amendment in the plaint does not confer any right on the plaintiffs to get any relief of possession as the amendment cannot relate back to the date of the institution of the suit after 35 years.

I further find that the case also does not fall within the ambit of Section 110 of the Indian Evidence Act because admittedly the plaintiffs were not in possession over the property in suit at the time of filing of the suit. Consequently, it is not incumbent upon the defendants to affirm that the plaintiffs are not owners of the property. The plaintiffs had to prove the tittle independently in the suit and the same was not done. On the whole the suit filed by the plaintiffs is against the title of the State Government as the property in suit admittedly lies in plot no. 583 which is Nazool plot owned by the Government. It further transpires that Hindu devotees of Lord Rama were offering prayers and worshipping idols etc. and visiting the disputed site which was not in possession of the Muslims.

Yet there is another aspect in this case. It is established principle of law that the plaintiff has to stand on his own legs and the burden of proof lies on him to prove adverse possession. But the burden has to be discharged has to be seen in the light of the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act under Sections 101,102, 103 and 110 of the Indian Evidence Act . Plaintiffs have failed to prove the same. Thus, the defendants claim that the suit is liable to be dismissed.

This Court has occasion to scrutinize documentary as well as oral evidence. This case is based on circumstantial evidence. The documentary evidence has edge over oral evidence. I have considered rival submissions in detail but it is also essential to look the oral evidence adduced by the parties .

The parties have adduced oral evidence in this case. From Muslim side 25 witnesses have been produced to establish the fact that they offered prayer inside the mosque till 22.12.1949. I have already discussed oral evidence while deciding issue nos. 1 and 2 . Considering the totality of the circumstances, it transpires that Muslim sides have produced interested witnesses before this court. They were thoroughly cross-examined. After cross -examination also it transpires that they do not fall within the category of reliable witnesses and their statements in toto cannot be accepted unless corroborated by some other evidence. Thus, they all are partisan witnesses and their testimony is required to be corroborated by other evidence which should be independent in nature. Independent evidence. Survey Commissioner's report of 1885, judicial record and other public documents reveal that the disputed structure was never exclusively used by Muslims from 1858 and onwards and even in the year 1885 the disputed property was not in the exclusive control of Muslims but was also in exclusive control of Hindus. This part can be treated to be outer courtyard. As regards inner courtyard i.e, the building it transpires that it was not at secluded place. It was an open place which was surrounded by another place of worship where Hindus were offering prayers which is proved from the Judicial record right from 1885 onwards. Accordingly assertion of Muslims that they were offering prayers up to 22.12.1949 cannot be accepted for want of proper evidence. The first information report that was lodged to the Police about the installation of deities inside the disputed structure by Hindus even if presumed to be correct, it does not give any inference that the property in suit was place of prayer of Muslims upto 22.12.1949.

Thus, the Muslims have failed to establish that the disputed structure was used by the members of Muslim community for offering prayers from time immemorial. It is the case that mosque was constructed in the year 1528. I have already discussed evidence, adduced by the parties, which goes to show that Muslims have failed to establish that they were offering prayers without any interruption from 1858 and onwards and the disputed structure i.e. inner courtyard was in their exclusive possession.

It does not appeal to reason as to why any Muslim has not come forward to launch the prosecution against the Hindus about the alleged installation of deities inside the disputed structure which leads to a conclusion that had the inner courtyard been under the control of Muslims, they would have objected and had initiated legal action against Hindus. Thus, the Muslims remained dormant. It has come in oral evidence from Hindu side that the prayers were never offered by Muslims after 1934. It does not appeal to reasons as to why in 1949 action was not initiated by the Muslims against Hindus while they initiated action against Hindus in 1934. This is strong circumstance which is against Muslims that they were offering prayers upto 22.12.1949.

The plaintiffs have failed to prove that they were in exclusive possession of the property in suit up to 1949 and they were dispossessed from the same in the year 1949. Hindus have proved that they were regularly making prayers at the birth place of Lord Ram and they were in exclusive possession of the outer courtyard and vising inner court yard for offering prayers. Muslims have failed to prove that they were in possession over the property in suit from 1528 A.D. continuously, openly and to the knowledge of the defendants and Hindus in general. The defendant no. 3 has also failed to prove that he was in exclusive possession of the disputed site, but Hindus were in exclusive possession of the outer courtyard i.e. part of the disputed site.

In view of my findings referred to above, issue nos. 2 , 4, 10, 15 and 28 are decided against the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NOS. 11, 13, 14, 19-a AND 19-c

11. Is the property in suit the site of Janam Bhumi of Sri Ram Chandraji?

13. Whether the Hindus in general and defendants in particular had the right to worship the Charans and 'Sita Rasoi' and other idols and other objects of worship, if any, existing in or upon the property in suit?

14. Have the Hindus been worshipping the place in dispute as Sri Ram Janam Bhumi or Janam Asthan and have been visiting it as a sacred place of pilgrimage as of right since times immemorial? If so, its effect?

www.vadaprativada.com

19-a. Whether even after construction of the building in suit deities of Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman and the Asthan Sri Ram Janam Bhumi continued to exist on the property in suit as alleged on behalf of defendant No. 13 and the said places continued to be visited by devotees for purposes of worship? If so, whether the property in dispute continued to vest in the said deities?

19-c. Whether any portion of the property in suit was used as a place of worship by the Hindus immediately prior to the construction of the building in question? If the finding is in the affirmative, whether no mosque could come into existence in view of the Islamic tenets, at the place in dispute?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS

These issues are inter related and can be conveniently disposed of at one place.

On behalf of the plaintiffs it is submitted that property in suit is not site of Janm Bhumi of Lord Ram Chandra Ji and at present, so called Ram Chabutra, Sita Rasoi and other idols are not in existence. He has further submitted that disputed place is not the birth place of Lord Ram and under false notion recently people have started considering it as a sacred place and and there is no evidence worth the name that the property in suit was used by Hindus as a place of worship immediately prior to the construction of the building in question. Sri Z. Jillani, Advocate has further submitted that assertion of the defendant no. 13 is incorrect that the deities continued to exist on the property in suit even after construction of the building. Thus, the question of vesting of property in deities does not arise and there is no material worth the name before this Court to presume that Babri mosque was constructed at the site of the Janm Bhumi of Ram Chandra Ji. Accordingly the claim as set up by the Hindus is not correct. Plaintiffs submitted that idols and object of worship were placed inside the building in the intervening night of 22/23 December, 1949, as alleged in para 11 of the plaint. Prior to it the place was used as a mosque and Muslims used to offer prayer inside the disputed structure. The Hindus have no right to retain the property and the assertion of the defendant no.3 that the deity continued to exist is incorrect. No body was allowed to worship inside the mosque. Hence question of vesting of property in deities does not arise.

Sri P.N. Mishra Advocate on behalf of Hindus has submitted that the disputed structure right from the birth of Lord Ram was being considered as a sacred place of pilgrims and people were offering prayer and worshipping there. He has also submitted that the property in suit is the site of Janam Bhumi of Lord Ram. He has further contended that Hindus in general and defendants in particular had right to worship Charan Paduka and Sita Rasoi and other idols. Even after the construction of the building in suit Hindus used to offer prayer and there was no mosque like structure. It always remained a structure under the control of Hindus and place of worship of Hindus. As regards identity of land, it has been submitted that historian suggests that the place of birth of Lord Ram is the place where the disputed structure existed. He has further submitted that on the basis of scriptures like Valmiki Ramayan, Srimad Bhagwat and other religious books, it is absolutely clear that the property in suit is site of Ram Janam Bhumi. He has further referred religious books to establish his version. On the assertion of Muslims, Sri P.N.Mishra has further submitted that Ayodhya is the holy place where Lord Ram took birth, Who is incarnation of Lord Vishnu. The archeological evidence completely supports the claim of Hindus that Ram

Janamsthan is the place where previously a temple used to exist and this place is being worshipped from time immemorial .

Sri P.N.Mishra submits that existence of Sri Ram Janam Bhumi is evident from holy scriptures . They are as under :-

SRI RAMAJANMASTHAN EVIDENT FROM THE HOLY SCRIPTURES

1. The Holy Scriptures of the Sanatan Dharma i.e. the Hindu Dharma namely: the Holy Divine Srimad Atharvaved, the Holy Scriptures Srimad Skand-Puranam, Srimad Narsimh Puranam, Srimad Valmiki Ramayana and; the Sacred Religious Book Sri Ramacharitmanas of Sri Goswami Tulasidas describe the Place of Birth of the Lord of Universe Sri Rama i.e. Sri Ramajanmasthan and Three-domed Temple lying thereon in the City of Ayodhya as Abode of Brahm (Almighty), the land wherefrom Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu the benefactor of Kauslya appeared and on her prayer subsumed therein in invisible form leaving on Sthandil His Incarnation Sri Ramlala as His incarnate and; further say that Sri Ramajanmasthan is most sacred place only by seeing which the devotees acquire salvation and all those merits which can be acquired by visiting all other Tirthas and thereby said holy sacred Scriptures of the Hindu Dharma make performance of customary rites at Sri Ramajanmasthan integral part of Hidu Dharma.

3. The Holy Spells 'Ken Suktam' of Divine Srimad Artharv-veda i.e. Atharv-ved Samhita 10.2.31-32 describes the Threedomed Temple at Sri Ramajanmasthan in Ayodhya as follows:

> The Brahm entered in the resplendent, sin-destroying, golden unconquered city that was all surrounded with glory. [33]"

Be it mentioned herein that W.D. Whitney has transalated these Holy Spellss word by word which has made said transalation obscure. For example he has transalated word "Aashtachakra" as "eight wheeled" while "Aashtachakra" has been translated as "Ashtapadakara" by Sri Valmiki in Ramayana English translation whereof published by Sri Gita

www.vadaprativada.com

Press Gorakhpur is " like Dice Board" i.e. octagonal. W.D. Whitney has translated the word "Ayoodhya" as "impregnable stronghold" while herein it has been used as proper noun which will become clear from the use of adjective "Aparajitam puram" for the city "Ayodhya" . This Translation has been given based on Hindi Translation of Padmabhushan Dr. Sreepad Damodar Satvalekar as well as Srimad Valmiki Ramayana /1/ V/6 text and English translation thereof published by Gita press Gorakhpur for the purpose of removing obscurity of English Translation of D.W. Whitney.

Amongst Western Scholars of olden days there was tradition of even translating the proper noun into English words, accordingly in her translation of "Humayun-Nama" Annette S. Beveridge has translated proper noun " Gul-Badan Begam" as "Princess Rose-Body" as also "Dildar Begam" as " Heart-Throwing Princess"

4. The Holy Kena-Upanishad (3.1,2,11,12 & 4.1) describes Yaksha Brahm (Translator has spelled "Brahm" as "Brahman") itself as follows:

> "It was Brahman, indeed, that achieved victory for the sake of the gods. In that victory which was in fact Brahman's, the gods became elated. [Ken U.III.1]

indeed, is this glory,' Brahman knew this pretension of theirs. To them It did appear. They could not make out about that thing, as to what this Yaksa (venerable Being) might be. [Ken U.III.2]

Then (the gods) said to Indra, '0 Maghava, find out thoroughly about this thing, as to what this Yaksa is.' (He said), 'So be it.' He (Indra) approached It (Yaksa). From him (Yaksa) vanished away. [Ken U.III.11]

5. The Holy Scripture Srimad Skandpuranam (Part VII Page 142) records Echo of the said Divine Code of Holy Ordinances Sri Atharv-ved as follows:

> "I bow down to the immutable Rama, the Supreme Brahman whose eyes resemble lotus, who is as dark-blue as flower of flax (in complexion) and who killed Ravana.
> Great and holy is the City of Ayodhya which is inaccessible to perpetrators of evil deeds. Who would not like to visit Ayodhya wherein Lord Hari himself resided?
> This divine and splendid City is on the bank of the

www.vadapprativada.com

river Sarayu. It is on a par with Amaravati (the capital of Indra) and is resorted to by many ascetics."
(Skandpuranam .II.VIII. .. 29 –31)

6. The Holy Scripture Srimad Valmiki Ramayana also describes the City of Ayodhya as 'Astapadakara' i.e. designed as octagonal like a dice-board and, the house of Lord of Universe Sri Rama three enclosured one as follows:

> "There is a great principality "known by the name of Kosala, extending along the bank of Sarayu. It is happy and prosperous, nay, full of abundant riches and plenty of food grains. In it stands comprised the world-renowned city, Ayodhya by name, a city which was built by dint of his own volition by Vaivaswata Manu, the ruler of mankind."
> (Srimad Valmiki Ramayana/1/ V/6).
> "Adorned with mountain like mansions built of precious Stones, and thickly set with attics it looks like Indra's Amaravati. Presenting a colorful appearance, it is laid out after the design of a dice-board, is thronged with bevies of lovely women and full of all varieties of precious stones, and is embellished with seven-storied buildings."
> (Srimad Valmiki Ramayana/1/ V/15-16).
> "Reaching Sri Rama's palace resplendent like a compact mass of white clouds, Vasistha (the foremost of the ascetics) drove through its three enclosures in the chariot itself."
> (Srimad Valmiki Ramayana/2/ V/5).

7. The Holy Scripture Srimad Skandapuranam (II.VIII.10.1-25) describing the location of the birth place of Lord of Universe Sri Rama commands the devotees to visit the birth place of Lord of Universe Sri Rama in Ayodhya and to observe the Holy vow on the Navami day to get salvation and acquire merits of visiting of all Tirthas. It testifies that only by seeing the place of birth one attains the merit of performing penance, of thousands of Rajasuya sacrifices and Agnihotra sacrifices. It reveals that one obtains the merit of the holy men by seeing a man observing the holy right particularly in the place of birth. Thus visiting and observing the holy right in the place of birth is integral part of the Hindu Dharma. The Holy commands reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "The devotee shall take his holy bath in the waters of Sarayu and then worship Pindaraka who deludes sinners and bestows good intellect on men of good deeds always. The (annual) festival should be celebrated during Navaratris with great luxary. To the west of it, the devotee should worship Vighnesvara by seeing whom not even the least obstacle remains (in the affairs) of men .Hence Vighnesvara the bestower of all desired benefits, should be worshipped. "
> (Srimad Skandapuranam II.VIII.10.15-17)
>
> "To the North-East of that spot is the place of the birth of Rama. This holy spot of the birth is the means of achieving salvation etc. It is said that the place of the birth is situated to the East of Vighneswar, to the North of Vasistha and to the West of Laumasa. Only by visiting it a man can get the rid of staying (frequently) in womb (i.e. rebirth). There is no necessity for making charitable gifts, performing a penance or sacrifices or undertake pilgrimage to holy spots. On the Navami day the man should observe the Holy vow. By the power of the holy bath and charitable gifts, he is liberated from the bondage of births. By visiting the place of birth one attains that benefit which is obtained by one who gives thousand of tawny-coloured cows every day. By seeing the place of birth one attains the merit of ascetics performing penance in hermitage, of thousands of Rajasuya sacrifices and Agnihotra sacrifices performed every year. By seeing a man observing the holy right particularly in the place of birth, he obtains the merit of the holy men endowed with devotion to mother and father as well as preceptors."

9. The Sared Religious Book of the The Hindus Sri Ramcharitmanas reveals the Place of Birth of the Lord of Universe Sri Ram in the City of Ayodhya as follows:

> "At the other end Sri Rama who brought delight to the soul of race as the sun to the lotus was busy saying the charming city to the monkies. Listen 'King of the monkies (Sugriva), Angada and Vibhisana, holy is this city and beautiful is this land. Although all after extolled Vaikuntha who is follower to the Vedas and Purans and known throughout the world. It is not so dear to Me as the city of Ajodhya; only some rare soul knows this secret. This beautiful city is My birthplace; to the North of it flows the Holy Sarayu by bathing in which men secure a home near Me without any difficulty. The dwellers here are very dear to Me; the city is only full of pleases itself, but bestows a residence in My divine Abode.' The monkies were all delighted to hear these words of the Lord and said that blessed indeed is Ajodhya that has evoked praise from Sri Rama Himself !"

Ramcharitmanas reveals that the Lord of Universe Sri Ram was not born in ordinary manner like other human being, but first He appeared as Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu bearing His characteristic emblems in His four-arms and later on for the sake of Mother Sri Kausalya on her prayer He assumed a form of infant which was a product of His own will. This sacred book records birth of Lord of Universe Sri Ram as follows:

> "The gracious Lord, who is compassionate to the lowly and benefactor of Kausalya appeared. The thought of His marvellous form, which stole the heart of sages, filled the mother with joy. His body was dark as a cloud, the delight of all eyes; in His four-arms He bore His characteristic emblems (a conch-cell, a discus a club and a lotus). Adorned with jewels and a garland of sylvan flower and endowed with large eyes, the Slayer of the demon Khara was an ocean of beauty. Joining both her palms the mother said ,"O infinite Lord, how can I praise you! The Vedas as well as the Puranas declare You as transcending Maya, beyond attributes, above knowledge and beyond all measures. He who is sung by the Vedas and the holy man as an ocean of mercy and bliss and a repository of all virtues, the same Lord of Laksmi, the lover of His devotees, has revealed Himself for my good. The Vedas proclaim that every pore of your body contains multitudes of universes brought forth by Maya. That such a Lord stayed in my womb-this amusing story staggers the mind of even men of wisdom." When the revelation came upon the mother, the Lord smiled; He would perform many a sportive act. Therefore He exhorted by telling her the charming account of her previous birth so that she might love Him as her own child. The mother's child was changed: She spoke again, "Give up this superhuman form and indulge in childish sports, which are so dear to a mother's heart; the joy that comes from such sports is unequalled in everyway." Hearing these words the all-wise Lord of immortal became an infant and

There he saw his aforesaid mother clad in silken robes, exclusively devoted to the worship of her chosen deity Praying for royal fortune (in favour of Sri Rama) Hearing of Sri Rama's welcome installation, Sumitra too had arrived as well as (her Son) Lakshman; and Sita (too) had been sent for (there). Sri Hari Shanker Jain, Advocate on behalf of Hindu Mahasabha has submitted that this historical issue relates to 500 years back for which there is no direct evidence and parties have to depend on religious books, gazetteers and other testaments which fall within the ambit of Section 57 (13) of Indian Evidence Act and the Court can take judicial notice and the relevant facts contained in gazetteers, religious books are admissible evidence and they can be relied upon to establish the place of birth of Lord Ram. He has placed reliance on AIR 1951 Supreme Court page 288 Sukh Deo Singh Vs. Mahraja Bahadur of Gidhaur. At para 10 Hon'ble the apex court held that gazetteer is an official document . It is compiled by experienced official with great care after obtaining the facts from official records.

Sri H.S. Jain has further relied on AIR 1995 Supreme Court page 167Bala Shankar Maha Shankar Bhattajee Vs. Charity Commissioner, Gujrat wherein Hon'ble Apex Court has held gazetteer is admissible evidence under Section 35 read with Section 81 of Indian Evidence Act. Thereafter Sri Jain has relied over AIR 1967 Supreme Court 256 Mahant Shrinivas Ramanuj Das Vs. Surajanarayn Das in para 25 that a gazetteer can be consulted in the matter of public history and statement in such gazetteer can be relied upon as they prove historical facts. Sri Jain has further submitted that Section 57 of the Indian Evidence Act inter alia says that the Court shall take judicial notice of all laws, public acts, public festivals and public history and the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books and documents. These papers require no proof. Thus, Court can take judicial notice of the gazetteer and other religious books etc. under Section 57 of the Indian Evidence Act and in view of Section 81 of the Evidence Act the Court shall presume the genuineness of these official gazetters.

Sri Jain submits that William Finch who travelled India in the reign of Emperor Nuruddin Mohammad Jahangir from 1608 A.D. to 1611 A.D. saw the Hindus visiting the Birth Place of the Lord Sri Ram Chandra in Ramkot where Brahmins used to note down names of the visitors to that sacred place. Be it mentioned herein that in each and every prominent sacred places of the Hindus since time immemorial a class of Brahmins known as Pandas have been helping the devotees to perform customary rites as also noting down names of the devotees. As such presence of Brahmin Pandas at Sri Ramjanmsthan during the visit of William Finch is conclusive proof that Hindus were performing their traditional customary rites as laid down in Sri Skanda Puran. Relevant extract from page 176 of the book Early Travels in India 1583 – 1619 by William Foster reads as follows:

> "To Oudh [Ajodhya] from thence are 50c; a citie of ancient note, and seate of a Polan king, now much ruined; castle built foure hundred yeeres agoe. Heere are also the ruines of Ranichand [S] castle and houses, which the Indians acknowled[g]e for the great God, saying that he tooke flesh upon him to see the Tamasha of the World. In these ruines remayne certaine Bramenes, who record the names of all such Indians as wash themselves in the river running thereby, which custome, they say hath continued foure lackes of yeeres (which is three hundred ninetie foure thousand five hundred yeeres before the world's creation). Some two miles on the further side of the river is a cave of his with a narrow entrance but so spacious and full of turnings within that a man may well lose himselfe there, if he take not better heed; where it is thought his ashes were buried. Hither resort many from all parts of India, which carry from hence in remembrance, certaine grains of rice as blacke as gun-powder which they say have been reserved ever since. Out of the ruines of this castle is yet much gold tryed. Here is great trade and such abundance of Indian asse-horne that they make here of bucklers and divers sorts of drinking cups. There are of these hornes, all the Indian affirme, some rare of great price, no jewell comparable, some esteeming them the right unicorns horne".

1. In his book Description Historique Et Geographique De l' Inde, Joseph Tieffenthaler who visited Sri Ramjanmsthan in the year 1770 A.D. during the reign of Emperor Shah Alam II (1759-1806 A.D.) evidenced the performance of customary rites by the Hindus in the central & left Halls of the Sri Ramjanmsthan Temple, Ajodhya in India. Tieffenthaler says that there was a Vedi i.e. *Sthandi*l inside the said Temple which was being worshipped by the Devotees by prostrating and circumambulating it thrice, but he did not mention offering of prayer therein by the Muslims; from the said facts made available by an eye witness it becomes crystal clear that in the 1770 the Hindus were in use and occupation of the Sri Ramjanmsthan as their sacred shrine which has been described as Babari Mosque by the plaintiffs in their pleadings and it was not being used as a Mosque by the Muslims. The said book is written in Latin language, an English translation of his narrative of Ajodhya find place in the book Modern Traveler, a Popular Description, Geographical, Historical and Topographical of the Various Country of the Globe – India Vol-III published by James Duncan in the year 1828. Relevant extracts containing translation of Tieffenthaler's account from pages 312, 313, 314, 316 and 317 read as follows:

"Its appearance, in 1770, is thus described by Tieffen

www.vadaprativada.com

*theler: "Avad, called Adjudea by the Learned Hindoos i*s a city of the highest antiquity. Its houses are, for the most part, only on mud, covered with straw or with tiles; many, however, are of brick. The principal street, running from S. to N., is about a league (mille) in length; and the breadth of the city is somewhat less. Its western part, as well as the northern, is situated on a hill; the north-eastern quarter rests upon eminences; but towards Bangla, it is level. This town has now but a scanty population, since the foundation of Bangla or Fesabad; a new town where the Governor has established his residence, and to which a great number of inhabitants of Oude have removed. On the southern bank of Deva (or Goggrah), are found various buildings erected by the Gentoos in memory of Ram, extending from east to west. The more remarkable place is that which is called Sorgodoari, that is to say, the heavenly temple; because they say, that Ram carried away from thence to heaven all the inhabitants of the city. The deserted town was repeopled and restored to its former condition by Bikaramajit, the famous King of Oojain. There was a temple here on the high bank of the river; but Aurangzebe, ever attentive to the propagation of the faith of Mohammed, and holding the heathen in abhorrence, caused it to be demolished, and replaced it with a mosque with minarets, in order to abolish the very memory of the Hindoo superstition. Another mosque has been built by the Moors, to the east of this. Near the Sargodoari in an edifice erected by Nabalroy a former Hindoo governor. But a place more particularly famous is that which is called Sitha Rassoee, the table of Sitha (Seeta), wife of Ram; situated on an eminence to the south of the city. The emperor Aurangzebe demolished the fortress called Ramcote, and erected on the site, a Mohammedan temple with a triple dome. According to others, it was erected by Baber. There are to be seen fourteen columns of black stone, five spans in height, which occupied the site of the fortress. Twelve of these columns now support the interior arcades of the mosque: the two other form part of the tomb of a certain Moor. They tell us, that these columns, or rather these remains of skilfully wrought columns, were brought from Isle of Lanca or Selendip (Ceylon) by Hanuman, king the of monkeys. On the left is seen a square chest, raised,

five inches from the ground covered with lime, about 5 ells in length by not more than four in breadth. The Hindoos call it Bedi, the cradle; and the reason is, that there formerly stood here the house in which Beshan (Vishnoo) was born in the form of Ram and were also, they say, his three brothers were born. Afterwards, Aurangzebe, or, according to others, Baber, caused the place to be destroyed, in order to deprive the heathen of the opportunity of practicing there their superstitions. Nevertheless, they still pay a superstitious reverence to both these places; namely, to that on which the natal dwelling of Ram stood, by going three times round it, prostrate on the earth. The two places are surrounded with a low wall adorned with battlements. Not far from this is a place where they dig up grains of black rice changed into little stones, which are affirmed to have been hidden underground ever since the time of Ram. On the 24th of the month Tshet (Choitru), a large concourse of people celebrate here the birth-day of Ram, so famous throughout India. This vast city is only a mile distant from Bangla (Fyzabad) towards the E.N.E."

(Ibid. 312-314)

"…Between three and four miles from Fyzabad, on the Southern bank of the Goggrah, there is a remarkable place planted with bushy trees, of which Tieffenthaler gives the following account:

"It is seated upon a hill somewhat steep, and fortified with little doors of earth at the four corners (of the enclosure). In the middle it is seen a subterranean hole, covered with a dome of moderate dimensions. Closed by is a lofty and very old tamarind-tree. A p*iazza* runs round it. It is said that Ram, after having vanquished the giant Ravan, and returned from Lanka descended into this pit, and there disappeared: hence, they have given to this place the name of Gouptar (or Gouptargath). You have here, then, a descent into hell, as you had at Oude and ascension to heaven". "As the scene of many of the leading events in the great epic poem of the Ramayuna, Oude might be expected to abound with sports of traditional sanctity

Principal submission of Sri H.S. Jain is that place of birth of Lord Ram was previously Janamsthan temple which was

www.vadaprativada.com

demolished and Babri mosque was constructed at the site which is also reflected from the gazetteers,prepared by P. Carnegi, Millet, Fuhror, Newill and E.B.Joshi. They are Exts. O.O.S. -57, Ext. 7, Ext.8, Ext.9, Ext.10, Ext. 11, Ext. 12 and Ext. 13 in O.O.S. 5-7. He has further submitted that Encyclopedia of India and Eastern and Southern India by Surgeon General Edward Balfour referred Janmsthan which shows that Muslims destroyed Hindu temple and converted into a mosque. He has further urged that according to Tiffen Thaler at the site of Ram Janam Bhumi, mosque was constructed after demolishing Hindu temple. He has also referred Ayodhya by Hans Bakker which reveals that place of birth of Lord Ram is identifiable and was used to be a place of worship and old temple was renovated which was demolished at the command of Babur in the year 1528 by Mir Baki at the behest of Muslim Saint Kwaja Fazal Abbas. Mr Jain has further submitted that Tiffen Thaler had not given reference of Babur but of Aurangzeb. He has also pointed out that in O.S.No. 280 of 1885 Mahant Raghubar Das Vs. Secretary of State the place was identified as birth spot of Lord Ram and in view of historical background it is crystal clear Ram Janam bhumi temple was demolished by Muslims. There is clinching evidence that Ram Janam Bhumi is the place where the temple was built by King Govind Chandra but the same was demolished at the command of Babur by Mir Baki. 12 line inscription in dev nagri script written in 11th and 12th century was also recovered. This is fully established by Paleography (Science of of old writing). He has further submitted that besides the above inscription even from the ruins of the disputed structure certain archaeological remains of pre Babri Hindu temple were recovered and they establish that there was a Janamstan temple prior to construction of Babri mosque and 14 black stone pillars were recovered in the construction of the mosque and they are embellished with different Hindu Iconography,repeatedly found in all Hindu temples. He has further argued that different objects of archeological importance were recovered from the debris of the demolished disputed structure. Sri Jain has further stressed that Hindu temple of 12th century constructed during the reign of Govind Chand was destroyed at the command of Babur and mosque was erected on it , which was site of Ram Janam Bhumi. Parts of the temple were re-used in the construction of Babri mosque. Accordingly at the time of demolition of disputed structure 260 artifacts were recovered. They denote Aamlak, part of Hindu temple, lotus, part of Shikhar, dorgem etc. Further Shvi Parti images were also found. Inscription of Hindu Vishnu temple establishes that disputed place is Ram Janam bhumi and there used to be temple. Thus, on the basis of descriptions gazetteers and other historical accounts, it is established that the mosque was constructed at the site of Ram Janambhumi. It was considered as sacred place of Hindus and it was worshipped like a deity and incarnation of birth place of Lord Ram Chandra . Thus, this pious place was all the time worshipped and kept in high esteem by Hindus even after the construction of the disputed structure. Thus, Hindus have always attached sacred character of birth spot of Lord Ram. The defendants have proved the existence of Ram Janambhumi temple at the place of birth of Lord Ram . Accordingly they have discharged their duties and this fact should be admitted in evidence and now burden lies on the plaintiffs to show otherwise that it was not a Hindu temple. He has heavily relied over the conclusion of archeological team consisting of 14 members which transparently worked under the control of this Court as two Judicial Officers were the observers and team was composed of officers of both communities . The scientific report of experts which is data base fully establishes the existence of Ram Janambhumi and accordingly the defendants have successfully established the prior construction of temple which was demolished for the construction of the mosque by Muslim under the command of Babur which was prevalent practice among Muslims to destroy Hindu temples and the numerous instances for the destruction of the Hindu temples which was the order of the day during those days are established from historical records. Thus, looking to the place from any angle even prior to the construction of Babri mosque it transpires from archeological evidence that there was a Ram Janambhumi temple .

www.vadaprativada.com

Sri Jain has relied upon para 78 of Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui and others Vs, Union of India and others 1994(6) SCC 360 which is reproduced as under :

> "While offer of prayer or worship is are religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for that religion, to make it an essential or integral part of the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and move reverentially. "

Sri H.S. Jain, Advocate has further argued that since birth place of Lord Ram was considered as a place of worship which was integral part of religious practice of Hindu from times immemorial. It is deity and it stands on a different footing and have to be treated reverentially. Sri Jain has further urged that in view of the constitutional mandate as provided under Article 25 of the Constitution this place which was all the time being worshipped has be treated by this Court as a place of worship because of the belief of the Hindu based on religious book and religious practice to be birth place of Lord Ram as the temple was constructed in the 12th century. It is expedient to say that prior to 12th century there is evidence that earlier temples were also constructed at the site .Thus, according to Sri H.S.Jain, Advocate there is overwhelming evidence to establish the site of Ram Janambhumi and the Court has to recognize the same. Thus, the suit of the plaintiffs which causes hindrance for worship of Hindu is liable to be dismissed on this Sri Ravi Shanker Advocate has also advanced argument in support of the claim of Hindus. He has submitted that it is established from the gazetteers, Hindu religious books and belief of Hindus and sacred character of the birth place of Lord Ram which was worshipped like a God. The plaintiffs have no claim over the property in suit and Hindus have fundamental rights to retain the same.

The learned counsel Shri Ravi Shanker Prasad has further submitted that in the present case, the adjudication has to be made in a matter relating to Hindu faith. His submissions are as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

Basic submission is that Hindus have been worshiping the place in dispute as Sri Rama Janma Bhumi or Janamasthan and visiting it as a sacred place of pilgrimage as of right since times immemorial.

The following facts are undisputed-

(a) That Ayodhya is a sacred place for Hindus;

(b) That Bhagwan Sri Rama was born in the said Ayodhya;

(c) That Bhagwan Sri Rama is incarnation of God as per Hindu belief;

The relevant voluminous documentary evidence concerning the sacred character of Ayodhya being the place of birth of Lord Sri Ram and, therefore, which is held in high esteem by the Hindus even after the construction of the disputed structure.

In the present case the plaintiffs though have made statements regarding an alternative birthplace of Bhagwan Sri Ram but they have not led any evidence whatsoever to prove the same. The defendants have discharged their burden of proof by showing that there was a temple of Bhagwan Sri Rama under the present disputed structure. It is for the plaintiffs to prove to the contrary.

(d) Under the above-mentioned circumstances, the question which arises is whether Hindus believe that Bhagwan Sri Ram was born at the impugned/disputed site in issuing known as Sri Rama Janma Bhumi.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is apparent from prima facie examination of the facts that the dominant issue in the present dispute pertains to the legal adjudication of matters relating to the Hindu faith.

It has been held by the Supreme Court in AIR 1953 Supreme Court 491- Saraswathi Ammal Vs. Rajagopal Ammal, in paragraph 6 that to find out that religious purpose under Hindu law must be determined according to Hindu notions which in turn has been variously recognized by the Court in a large number of decisions.

www.vadaprativada.com

In this connection one of the most important books universally acknowledged and recognized as an authority by the Courts in India and abroad is "The Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts" by B.K. Mukherji- a very renowned and outstanding jurist of the country who is an authority on the subject and is widely quoted. It may be relevant to refer to few pages of the said book, fifth edition, by A.C. Sen, a former judge of Calcutta High Court. The first edition which in fact was a compendium of Tagore Law Lectures series was published in the year 1952 and at Page 75 of the book there is a very significant paragraph which throws light on the interpretation of issues in the present suit:

www.vadaprativada.com

"2.27. These observations, if I may say so, apply with full force to trusts created by Hindus for religious purposes. Undoubtedly the court and not the donor is the judge, of whether an object is charitable or not, but the court cannot enter into the merits of particular religious doctrine, and therefore must remain neutral. The divine service of a particular religion is defined by the doctrines of the religion itself and no court can appreciate their spiritual efficacy, unless it knows there doctrines and hypothetically admits them to be true. In controversial matters the court cannot possibly decide whether the doctrines are beneficial to the community or not. It has got to act upon the belief of the members of the community concerned, and unless these beliefs are per se immoral or opposed to public policy, it cannot

www.vadaprativada.com

exclude those who profess any lawful creed from the benefit of charitable gifts...”

THE CONCEPT OF DEITY IN HINDU FAITH

1. As the Hindus have since times immemorial and for many generations consistently held in great esteem and reverence the Rama Janmasthan in Ayodhya where they believe Sri Ram was born, this at once requires an understanding and recognition of the Hindu concept of deity as recognized by law and whether the Rama Janmasthan where Ram Lala is Virajman is in accordance with the said concept of deity.

2. The concept of deity which is a very distinguishing feature of the Hindu faith is one that is eternal, permanent and omnipresent wherein the deity is the image of the Supreme Being. The temple is the home of the deity and to constitute a temple it is enough if the people believe in its religious efficacy, i.e., there is some supreme super human power existing there whom they need to worship and invoke its blessings. As a result, the existence of an idol, though desirable, is not a legal precondition. The worship of such a divinity can also be formless or without any image, the only criteria being that people must believe in its divinity and seek its blessings.

3. There are many examples of this concept, Hindu worships Agni, Vayu and many sacred rivers like Ganga which do not resemble the traditional image of a deity yet the Hindus believe in their power of divinity. If such experience and the invocation of

blessings are possible even in the case of a log of wood or a simple stone, it acquirees the sacred character of divinity. The Sangam (confluence) at Prayag is another example which is supposed to be a holy place where three rivers Ganga, Yamuna and Saraswati (which is invisible) meet and for the last thousands of years its sacred character remains intact where millions of people believe that by taking a bath there they wash off their sins. The recent Kumbha Mela in Haridwar where nearly 8 crore people visited further reinforces the divine character of the river Ganga at Haridwar which is highly sacred and its blessing is sought. The famous Vishnupad Mandir in Gaya again has no image at all except a small image of two 'Charan" only which is being worshipped for the last hundreds of years as Vishnupad.

4. The traditional and classical legal literature relating to Hindus has also duly sanctified such belief and faith which has been exalted to a juristic status requiring legal recognition. In this connection, "the Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts" by B.K. Mukherjea lays down some of the relevant concepts relating to deity and the temple along with concerned page number which are consistently being recognized as judicial authorities, not only in India but also abroad. The concept mentioned therein along with concerned page numbers are being quoted below:

www.vadaprativada.com

viz. That the different images do not represent separate divinities; they are really symbols of the one Supreme Being, and in whichever name and form the deity might be invoked, he is to the devotee the Supreme God to whom all the functions of creation, preservation and destruction are attributed. In worshipping the image therefore the Hindu purports to worship the Supreme Deity and none else. The rationale of image worship is thus given in a verse which is quoted by Raghunandan:

"Chinmayasyaadwitiiyasya Naskalashariirina*

Saadhakaanaam Hinaathayi Brahmanii Roopakalpanaa."

"It is for the benefit of the worshippers that there is conception of images of Supreme Being which is bodiless, has no attribute, which consists of pure spirit and has got no second."

www.vadaprativada.com

Temples and mutts are the two principal religious institutions of the Hindus. There are numerous texts extolling the merits of founding such institutions. In Sri Hari Bhaktibilash a passage is quoted from Narsingha Purana which says that "whoever conceives the idea of erecting a divine temple, that very day his carnal sins are annihilated; what then shall be said of finishing the structure according to rule ……..... He who dies after making the first brick obtains the religious merits of a competed Jagna."

"1.34. Other kinds of religious and charitable benefactions.- "A person consecrating a temple", says Agastya, "also one establishing an asylum for ascetics also, one consecrating an alms house for distributing food at all times ascend to the highest heaven."

Besides temples and mutts the other forms of religious and charitable endowments which are popular among the Hindus are excavation and consecration of tanks, wells and other reservoirs of water, planting of shady trees for the benefit of travellers, establishment of Choultries, satras or alms houses and Dharamsala for the neefit of mendicants and wayfarers, Arogyasalas or hospitals, and the last though not the least, Pathshalas or schools for giving free education. Excavation of tanks and planting of trees are Purtta works well known from the earliest times. I have already mentioned that there is a mention of rest houses for travellers even in the hymns of the Rigveda. The Propatha of the Vedas is the same thing as Choultrie or sarai and the name given to it by subsequent writers is Pratishraygrih. They were very popular during the Buddhist tie. In Dana Kamalakara, a passage is quoted from Markandeya Puran which says that one should make a house of shelter for the benefit of travellers; and inexhaustible is his religious merit which secures for him heaven and liberation. There are more passages than one in the Puranas recommending the establishment of hospitals. "One must establish a hospital furnished with valuable medicines and necessary utensils placed under an experienced physician and having servants and rooms for the shelter of patients. This text says further that a man, by the gift of the means of freeing

others from disease, becomes the giver of everything. The founding of educational institutions has been praised in the highest language by Hindu writers. Hemadri in his Dankhanda has quoted a passage from Upanishad according to which gifts of cows, land and learning are said to constitute Atihaan or gifts of surpassing merit. In another text cited by the same author, it is said that those excluded from education do not know the lawful and the unlawful; therefore no effort should be spared to cause dissemination of education by gift of property to meet its expenses".

Page 38-Para "1.50. The idol as a symbol and embodiment of the spiritual purpose is the juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests:- As you shall see later on the decision of the Courts of India as well as of the Privy Council have held uniformly that the Hindu idol is a juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests. "A Hindu idol", the Judicial Committee observed in one of its recent pronouncements, "is according to long established authority founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus and the recognition thereof by Courts of Law, a juristic entity. It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued." You should remember, however, that the juridical person in the idol is not the material image, and it is an exploded theory that the image itself develops into a legal person as soon as it is consecrated by the Pran Pratistha ceremony. It is not also correct that the Supreme Being of which the idol is a symbol or image is the recipient and owner of the dedicated property. The idol as representing and embodying the spiritual purpose of the donor is the juristic person recognized by law and in this juristic person the dedicated property vests."

Page 38-39-Para "1.51. Deity owner in a secondary sense.- The discussions of several Hindu sages and commentators point to the conclusion that in case of dedicated property the deity is to be regarded as owner not in the primary but in the secondary sense. All the relevant texts on this point have been referred to by Sir Asutosh Mookerjee in his judgment in Bhupati v Ramlal and I will reproduce such portions of them as are necessary for my present purpose."

Sulapani, a reputed Brahminical Jurist, in his discourse on Sraddha thus expresses his views regarding the proper significance of gift to God:- "in 'Donation' having for its dative case, the Gods like the Sun, etc., the term 'donation' has a secondary sense. The object of this figurative use being extension to it of the inseparable accompaniment of that (gift in its primary sense), viz., the offer of the sacrifical fee etc. it has already beeb remarked in the chapter on the Bratis that such usage as Devagram, Hastigram, etc., are secondary". Sree Krishna in commenting on this passage thus explains the meaning of the expression Devgram: "Moreover, the expression cannot be used here in its primary sense. The relation of one's ownership being excluded, the possessive case affix (in Devas

in the term Devagram) figuratively means abandonment for them (the Gods)". Therefore, the expression is used in the sense of "a village which is the object of abandonment intended for the Gods". This is the purport. According to Savar Swami, the well-known commentator on Purba Mimansa, Devagram and Devakhetra are figurative expressions. What one is able to employ according to one's desire is one's property. The Gods however do not employ a village or land according to their use."

Page 39-Para "1.52. These discussions are not free from obscurity but the following conclusions I think can be safely drawn from them:-(1) According to these sages the deity or idol is the owner of the dedicated property but in a secondary sense. The ownership in its primary sense connotes the capacity to enjoy and deal with the property at one's pleasure. A deity cannot hold or enjoy property like a man, hence the deity is not the owner in its primary sense. (2) Ownership is however attributed to the deity in a secondary or ideal sense. This is a fiction (Upchaar) but not a mere figure of speech, it is a legal fact; otherwise the deity could not be described as owner even in the secondary sense. (3) The fictitious ownership which is imputed to the deity is determined by the expressed intentions of the founder; the debutter property cannot be applied or used for any purpose other than that indicated by the founder. The deity as owner therefore represents nothing else but the intentions of the founder. Although the discussions of the Hindu

Jurists are somewhat cryptic in their nature, it is clear that they did appreciate the distinction between the spiritual and legal aspects of an idol. From the spiritual standpoint the idol might be to the devotee the very embodiment of Supreme God but that is a matter beyond the reach of law altogether. Neither God nor any supernatural being could be a person in law. So far as the deity stands as the representative and symbol of the particular purpose which is indicated by the donor, it can figure as a legal person and the correct view is that in the capacity alone the dedicated property vests in it."

Page 152-153-Para "4.3B. Sources of Puranas.- It is said sometimes that the Vedic mythology was merely elaborated in the Puranas. This is not wholly or even substantially true. The sources of some of the legendary stories occurring in the Puranas can, no doubt, be traced in the Vedas but it would not be correct to say that the Pouranic gods were mere reproductions of the Vedic gods. There is nothing in the Vedas corresponding to the Pouranic Trinity of Brahma, Vishnu and Siva. Brahma in the Vedic text signified the Sun, or was a synonym of prayer. Vishnu in the Rigveda occupied a rather subordinate position. He was also identified with the Sun, and his three strides encompassing the three spheres of existence, as suggestive of all pervasiveness constituted the foundation of the Pouranic legend of the three steps of Vishnu in his incarnation of the "Dwarf." Siva hardly appears as the name of any deity in Vedic time. The expression "Siva" means propitious or benignant. Rudra, one of the Vedic deities, was in all probability, another name of Agni or fire, and the Puranas identified Siva with Rudra. We hear very little of Ganpati or Kartikeya in the Vedas. Kali, who is described in the Puranas as a consort of Siva, was spoken of in Mandukopanishad as one of the seven tongues of fire, while the name of "Uma occurs in the Kenopanishad, where she is described as a resplendent lady who gave lessons in divine knowledge to the gods. Sri Krishna, who looms so large in the Pouranic literature, is mentioned only as a scholar and not as a deity in the Vedas, though many of the legendary stories attributed to him in the Puranas are traceable to similar legends associated with Indra in the Vedic literature.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is not necessary for our present purpose to pursue these discussions any further. Though the Puranas are by no means uniform, the legends associated with the various gods are fairly well known and have been the basis of a considerable mass of poetic literature in later times. One cardinal principle underlying idol worship you would always bear in mind – and this has some bearing on the law relating to gift of property to idols – that whichever god the devotee might chose for purposes of worship and whatever image he might est up and consecrate with that object, the image represents the Supreme God and none else. There is no superiority or inferiority amongst the different

gods. Siva, Vishnu, Ganapati or Surya is extolled each in its turn as the creator, preserver and supreme lord of the universe. The image simply gives a name and form to the formless God and the orthodox Hindu idea is that conception of form is only for the benefit of the worshipper and nothing else."

Page 153-Para "4.4. Building and consecration of temples.-Along with the establishment of idol worship, in Hindu religion, elaborate rites and ceremonies, it seems, were introduced by Brahminical writers in regard to building of temples and consecration and purification of idols. I will touch these matters very briefly. A temple is the house of the deity and many of the rules of construction of a temple are practically the same as are prescribed for construction of a dwelling house, the additional rules being laid down to ensure greater sanctity of the structure that is meant for the abode of a deity. One who wants to build a temple has got to select the proper time for building with reference to astrological calculations. There are detailed rules relating to selection of the site which include examination of the nature and colour of the soil, its odour, taste, solidity, etc. after the site is selected, it is ploughed up and seeds are sown in it. As soon as the seeds germinate, the crop is allowed to be grazed over by cows. The cardinal points are then to be ascertained for giving this structure an auspicious aspect and there are rules to be observed regarding the material to be used and the location of doors, windows, etc. the important religious ceremony is the Vastu Jaga in honour of Vastu Purusha or Vastu Debta who presides over dwelling house, with oblations of milk, rice and sugar. This Vastu Gaja is a very ancient ceremony which dates from the Grihya Sutras of Aswalayan and Goville. The Puranas, however, contain a mythological legend regarding the Vastu Purusha and the modern form of the sacrifice in honour of this deity is described among others in Matsya Purana, Brihat Samhita and Devi Purana. All these ceremonies in connection with the building of a temple have been described with elaborate by Pandit Prana Nath Saraswati in his Tagore Lectures on the Hindu Law of Endowment. They are of little importance to a lawyer, as no question of law could possibly turn upon the manner in which a temple has been consecrated. Even if the rules prescribed by the Smriti writers are not obeyed, the founder of the temple may incur sin but the legal rights over or in respect of the temple cannot in any way be affected by thee omissions."

Page 154-Para "4.5. Images – their description.- Image, according to Hindu authorities, are of two kinds: the first is known as Swayambhu or self-existent or self-revealed, while the other is Pratisthita or established. The Padma Puran says: "The image of Hari (God) prepared of stone, earth, wood, metal or the like and established according to the rites laid down in the Vedas, Smritis and Tantras is called the established; …..... where the self possessed Vishnu has placed himself on earth in stone or

wood for the benefit of mankind, that is styled the self revealed." A Swyamhu or self-revealed image is a product of nature, it is Anadi or without any beginning and the worshippers simply discover its existence. Such image does not require consecration of Pratistha. All artificial or man-made images require consecration. An image according to Matsya Purana may properly be made of gold, silver, copper, iron, brass or bell metal or any kind of gem, stone or wood, conch shell, crystal or even earth.

Some persons worship images painted on wall or canvas, says the Brihata Purana and some worship the spheroidical stones known as Salgram. Generally speaking, the Pouranic writers classify artificial images under two heads: viz. (1) Lepya and (2) Lekhya. Lepya images are moulded figures of mental or clay, while Lekhyas denote all kinds of pictorial images including chiselled figures of wood or stone not made by moulds. In the case of Goswami Geeridhariji v. Ramanlalji which went up to the Privy Council, the subject matter of dispute was the pictorial image of the head of the Ballavacharya Sect and not of any deity. Images again may be permanent or temporary. Temporary images which are set up for periodical Pujas like Durga, Saraswati, etc. are generally made of clay and are immersed in a river or tank after the puja is over."

Page 156 – Para "4.7. Worship of the Idol.-After a deity is installed, it should be worshipped daily according to Hindu Sastras.

The person founding a deity becomes morally responsible for the worship of the deity even if no property is dedicated to it. This responsibility is always carried out by a pious Hindu either by personal performance of the religious rites or, in the case of Sudras, by the employment of a Brahmin priest. The daily worship of a consecrated image includes the sweeping of the temple, the process of smearing, the removal of the previous day's offerings of flowers, the presentation of fresh flowers, the respectful oblation of rice with sweets and water and other practices." The deity in short is conceived of as a living being and is treated in the same way as the master of the house would be treated by his humble servant. The daily routine of life is gone through, with minute accuracy, the vivified image is regaled with necessaries and luxuries of life in due succession even to the changing of clothes, the offering of cooked and uncooked food and the retirement to rest."

Page 156-157 – Para "4.8. Reconstruction or purification of idols in case of defilement or destructions.-According to Hindu sages, an image becomes defiled if it is not worshipped regularly. Reconstruction or purification of the image is ordained in cases where the image is mutilated, broken, burnt, fallen down or removed from its place or is defiled by a beast or the touch of an out-caste or even when hymns appropriate to other gods are recited before it. The rules for reconstruction or replacement of an idol are thus laid down in Hayasirsha Pancharatram. "Whatever is the material and whatever the size, of the image of Hari (God), that is to be renewed; of the same material and of the same size, an image is to be caused to be made; of the same size, of the same form and of the same material, should be placed, there, either on the second or the third day (the image of) Hari should be established; if it be established after that, even in the prescsribed mode, there would be blame." The destruction of an image, as you will see presently, does not cause an extinction of the religious trust that is created in its favour; the rules of construction or replaacement of an idol as set out above are most liberally construed. It is enough if an image is established substantially representing the old or is treated as such, and the fact that the replacement was not made within the prescribed time, though blamable from the orthodox point of view, does not affect the validity of replacement. When the settler had provided for Puja being performed in a specified Bhajana Matam, and subsequently that building was lost to the trust, it was held that did not extinguish the trust, as a new Bhajana Matam could be constructed and Puja performed there."

Page 158 - Para "4.10. Dedicated property vests in the idol as a juristic person.-When property is given absolutely by a pious Hindu for worship of an idol, the property vests in the idol itself as a juristic person. This view, as I have explained in the first lecture, is quite in accordance with Hindu ideas and has been uniformly accepted in a long series of decisions of the different High Courts in

India as well as by the Judicial Committee. As West, J. observed in Manohar Ganesh v. Lakshmi Ram: “The Hindu law recognises not only corporate bodies with rights of property vested in the corporation apart from its individual members, but also juridical subjects or persons called foundations.”

The Hindu idol is juridical subject, and the pious idea that it embodies is given the status of a legal person and is deemed capable in law of holding property in the same way as a natural person.

“The idol, deity or religious object,” observed West and Buhler in their Digest on Hindu Law, “is looked upon as a kind of human entity.” It is a sacred entity and ideal personality possessing proprietary rights. The Judicial Committee has pointed out on more occasions than one that it is only an ideal sense that property can be said to belong to an idol and the possession and management of it must, in the nature of things, be entrusted to some persons as Shebait or manager. The legal principle has thus been summed up in one of the pronouncements of the Judicial Committee:

“A Hindu idol is, according to long-established authority, founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus, and the recognition thereof by courts of law, a 'juristic entity'. It has a juridical status, with the power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who in law is its manager, with all the powers which would, in such circumstances, on analogy, be given to the manager of the estate of an infant heir. It is unnecessary to quote the authorities; for this doctrine, thus simply stated, is firmly established."

Page 158-159 – Para "4.10A. Existence of idol is necessary for temple.-

While usually an idol is instituted in a temple, it does not appear to be an essential condition of a temple as such. In an Andhra case, it was held that to constitute a temple, it is enough if it is a place of public religious worship and if the people believe in its religious efficacy, irrespective of the fact whether there is an idol or a structure or other paraphernalia. It is enough if the devotees or the pilgrims feel that there is one superhuman power which they should worship and invoke its blessings. However, in almost all cases the temple does possess an idol."

Page 160-162. Para "4.13. The principle of Hindu Law that a donee must be in existence at the time of gift whether applicable to the creation of a Dubutter endowment? In a Debutter endowment, as you have seen, the deity or idol is the recipient or donee of the endowed property which vests in it as a juridical person. To constitute a valid gift under Hindu law it is necessary that it must be accepted by a sentient being who is in existence at the time of the gift. This rule which was authoritatively laid down by the judicial Committee in the case of Tagore v. Tagore has been scrupulously followed ever since by all the High Courts in India. An attempt was made however in some of the decisions of the Calcutta High Court to carry the rule too far, and to hold that a gift to an idol which is not consecrated or in existence at the time of dedication is not valid. Thus, in Upendra Lal Boral v. Hem Chandra where one of the question raised related to the validity of a bequest in favour of a non-existent idol, it was held by the learned Judges that "if there was a gift to the idol, it was bad, because there was no idol in existence at the time of his death, and further if there was a oer to make such a gift the power was ineffective because on the authority of Bai Malivahu v. Mamubai we think that " a power must be to convey to a person who was in existence either actually or in contemplation of law at the death of the testator and the idol to which the dedication is sought to have been made was not then in existence." the learned Judges proceeded to say, "the deity no doubt is always in existence but there could be no gift to the deity as such and there was no personification of the deity to whom the gift could have been made, or who was capable of taking it." The same view was taken by Stanley, J. in Rojomoyi v. Troylukho and it was held that a direction in the will of a testator to establish a 'thakur' to whom the entire residuary estate was to go was invalid. "Whether a gift be in presenti or in futuro", thus observed the learned Judge, "it is settled that the donee must be a person in existence and capable of accepting the gift at the time it takes effect – Tagore v. Tagore. That which cannot be done directly by gift cannot be done by the intervention of a trustee; Krishna Ramani v. Ananda; Rajendra Dutt v. Sham Chand. An idol cannot be said to have juridical existence unless it has been consecrated by the appropriate ceremonies, and so has become spiritualised. Before this, the deity of which the idol is the visible image does not reside in the idol: Doorga Pershad v. Sheo Pershad. In Nagendra Nandini v. Binoy Krishna, Stephen, J. took it to be a settled law that a bequest to a thankur not in existence at the date of the death of the testator was not valid. It may be noticed here that the case of Doorga Pershad v. Sheo Pershad, to which reference was made by Stanley, J., is of a different type altogether. In that case an image of Vishnu, as also the Debotter property dedicated to it, were sold in execution of a money decree against the Shebait, and the purchaser brought the image to his house and continued to conduct its worship. The Shebait's son set up another image of the god, and instituted a suit against the purchaser to recover the property but not the original image. It was contended on his behalf that the removal of the original image destroyed its sanctity and justified its replacement by another image, and in any event the property should be devoted to the worship of the second image also. The first contention was negatived and with it the second contention fell also. It was held by the learned judges and quite rightly that no second image could be set up when an existing image continues fit for worship, the deity being intended by the founder to be worshipped by one image and not simultaneously by two. No doubt the learned judges observe in the course of their judgment that according to Hindu rites when an idol has been consecrated by appropriate ceremonies and pronunciation of Mantras, then and then only the deity of which the idol is the visible image could reside in it. But there is nothing in the decision which might be taken to lay down that a dedication is not valid unless a consecrated image is in existence at the date of dedication. This question was neither considered nor decided by the learned Judges. The authority of the cases referred to above has been overruled by the pronouncement of Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in Bhupati Smrititirtha v. Ram Lal. The main question referred to the Bull Bench was: "Does the principle of Hindu Law which invalidates a gift other than to sentient being capable of accepting it, apply to a bequest to trustees for the establishment of an image and the worship of a Hindu deity after the testator's death, and make such a bequest void?" The Full Bench answered the question in the negative. Sir Lawrence Jenkins who presided over the Full Bench in the course of his judgment observed that the "rule which requires relinquishment should be to a sentient person does not forbid the gift of property to trustees for a religious purpose though that purpose cannot in strictness be called a 'sentient person'. It would seem that the rule propounded by Jinutabahan had regard rather to the general proposition for he was contending, i.e., the act of the giver is the cause of property, than to its application to particular objects of benevolence. The fiction that an idol is a person capable of holding property must be kept within its proper limits, and were we to accede to the argument that has been advanced before us, we should be allowing fiction to be built on fiction to the hindrance and not for the furtherance of justice." Mookerjee, J. in the same case held on a review of all the relevant texts that according to Hindu law the rule about the acceptance of a gift as a necessary condition for its validity was applicable to secular gifts only. There is no foundation for the assumption that the dedication to deity or for religious purpose stands on the same footing. In summing up the legal position the learned Judge observed as follows: "The view that no valid dedication of property can be made by a will to a deity the image of which is not in existence at the time of the death of the testator is based upon a double fiction, namely, first that the Hindu deity is for all purposes a juridical person and secondly that a dedication to the deity has the same characteristics and is subject to the same restrictions as a gift to a human being. The first of these propositions is too broadly stated, and the second is inconsistent with the first principles of Hindu Jurisprudence." The provisions of Hindu law relating to secular gifts are therefore not applicable when the dedication is to the idol. Moreover,-and this was pointed out by Chatterjee, J., who was a member of the Full Bench-the conception of Hindu jurists was not that the image of clay or stone constituted the juristic

www.vadaprativada.com

person. The Smriti writers have laid down that if an image is broken or lost another may be substituted in its place; when so substituted it is not a new personality but the same deity, and properties vested in the lost or mutilated thakur become vested in the substituted thakur. Thus, a dedication to an idol is really a dedication to the deity who is ever-present and ever-existent, the idol being no more than the visible image through which the deity is supposed specially to manifest itself by reason of the ceremony of consecration. The decision in Bhupati Smrititirtha v. Ramlal has been followed by other High Courts in India, and it has been held by the Allahabad High Court in Mohor Singh v. Het Singh that a bequest to complete the building of a temple which was commenced by the testator and to install and maintain an idol therein was a valid bequest under the Hindu Law. The fact that the gift is made by a deed inter vivos and not by a will does not make any difference."

www.vadaprativada.com

I may quote relevant case law;

(i) 1999 (5) SCC Page 50 (Ram-Janki Deity Vs. State of Bihar): Paragraphs 13 to 19-An Idol is not a precondition. Even a piece of stone may become the idol. Agni and Vayu are worshipped. They are shapeless and formless. Even a simple piece of wood can attain divinity. If the public goes for worship and consider that there is a divine presence, then it is a temple.

www.vadaprativada.com

16. The observations of the Division Bench has been in our view true to the Shastras and we do lend our concurrence to the same. If the people believe in the temples' religious efficacy no other requirement exists as regards other areas and the learned Judge it seems has completely overlooked this aspect of Hindu Shastras - In any event, Hindus have in Shastras "Agni" Devta; "Vayu" Devta - these deities are shapeless and formless but for every ritual Hindus offer their oblations before the deity. The Ahuti to the deity is the ultimate - the learned Single Judge however was pleased not to put any reliance thereon. It is not a particular image which is a juridical person but it is a particular bent of mind which consecrate the image.

17. One cardinal principle underlying idol worship ought to be borne in mind:

“that whichever god the devotee might choose for purposes of worship and whatever image he might set up and consecrate with that object, the image represents the Supreme God and none else. There is no superiority or inferiority amongst the different gods. Siva, Vishnu, Ganapati or Surya is extolled, each in its turn as the creator, preserver and supreme lord of the universe. The image simply gives a name and form to the formless God and the orthodox Hindu idea is that conception of form is only for the benefit of the worshipper and nothing else."

www.vadaprativada.com

(B.K. Mukherjea - on Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts - 5th Edn.).

18. In this context reference may also be made to an earlier decision of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Bhupatinath v. Ramlal Maitra , wherein Chatterjee, J. (at page 167) observed:

"A Hindu does not worship the "idol" or the material body made of clay or gold or other substance, as a mere glance at the mantras and prayers will show. They worship the eternal spirit of the deity or certain attributes of the same, in a suggestive form, which is used for the convenience of contemplation as a mere symbol or emblem. It is the incantation of the mantras peculiar to a particular deity that causes the manifestation or presence of the deity or according to some, the gratification of the deity."

A simple piece of wood or stone may become the image or idol and divinity is attributed to the same. As noticed above, it is formless, shapeless but it is the human concept of a particular divine existence which gives it the shape, the size and the colour. While it is true that the learned Single Judge has quoted some eminent authors but in our view the same does not however, lend any assistance to the matter in issue and the Principles of Hindu Law seems to have been totally misread by the learned Single Judge.

(ii) 2000 (4) SCC, Page 146 – Shiromani Gurudwara Prabandhak Committee Vs. Somnath Das: Para 30 to 42- Guru Granth Sahib is a juristic person.

35. Now, we proceed to examine the judgment of the High Court which had held to the contrary. There was difference of opinion between the two Judges and finally the third Judge agreed with one of the differing Judges, who held Guru Granth Sahib to be not a "Juristic Person". Now, we proceed to examine the reasonings for their holdings so. They first erred, in holding that such an endowment is void as there could not be such a juristic person without appointment of a Manager. In other words, they held that a juristic person could only act through some one, a human agency and as in the ease of an Idol, the Guru Granth Sahib also could not act without a manager. In our view no endowment or a juristic person depends on the appointment of a Manager, It may be proper or advisable to appoint such a manager while making any endowment but in its absence, it may be done either by the trustees or Courts in accordance with law. Mere absence of a-manager (does not) negative the existence of a juristic person. As pointed out in Manohar Ganesh v. (approved in Yogendra Nath Naskar's case ) referred to above, if no manager is appointed by the founder, the ruler would give

effect to the bounty. As pointed in Vidyapurna Tirtha Swami v. Vidyanidhi Tirtha Swami ,ILR Mad. (at p. 457), by Bhashyam Ayyangar, J (approved in Yogendra Nath Naskar's case : the property given in trust becomes irrevocable and if none was appointed to manage, it would be managed by the "Court as representing the sovereign." This can be done by the Court in several ways under Section 92, C.P.C. or by handing over management to any specific body recognised by law. But the trust will not be allowed by the Court to fail. Endowment is when donor parts with his property for it being used for a public purpose and its entrustment is to a person or group of person in trust for carrying out the objective of such entrustment. Once endowment is made, it is final and it is irrevocable. It is the onerous duty of the persons entrusted with such endowment, to carry out the objectives of this entrustment. They may appoint a manager in the absence of any indication in the trust or get It appointed through Court. So, if entrustment is to any juristic person, mere absence of manager would not negate the existence of a Juristic person. We, therefore, disagree with the High Court on this crucial aspect.

This principle is recognized in the law of England as it was in the Roman law, whence indeed it was derived by the modern codes of Europe. It is equally consistent with the Hindu law, which, as we have seen, undoubtedly recognizes artificial juridical persons See Rupa Jagset v. Krishnaji Govind, I.L.R., 9 Bom., p. 169 such as the institution at Dakor, and could not, any more then any other law, support a foundation merely as a means of squandering in waste or profligacy the funds dedicated by the devout to pious uses.

10. We now turn to some of the other provisions of the Act, which we have earlier quoted. Section 29(1) which talks of supervision of a religious trust being vested in any committee or association appointed by the founder or by a competent court or authority is ordinarily appropriate in the case of a public trust only. Section 30(1) which embodies the doctrine of cypres permits any Hindu to make an application for invoking the power of the Board to determine the object to which funds, property and income of a religious trust shall be applied where the original object of the trust has ceased to exist or has become impossible of achievement. This section is also inappropriate in the case of a private trust, the obvious reason being that any and every Hindu cannot be interested in a private trust so as to give him a locus standi to make the application. Further, it is difficult to visualise that a Hindu private debutter will fail, for a deity is immortal. Even if the idol gets broken or is lost or stolen, another image may be consecrated and it cannot be said that the original object has ceased to exist. Section 32 is an important section of the Act and confers power on the Board to settle schemes for proper administration of religious trusts. Now, the section says that the Board may exercise the power of its own motion or on application made to it in this behalf by two or more persons interested in any trust. The language of the section follows closely the language of Section 92 Civil Procedure Code, so far as the phrase "two or more persons interested in any trust" is concerned.

6. The question which arises is, can the grant made to the appellant be said to attract the operation of rule 5 ? Rule 5 prescribes for the levy of Matmi in respect of State grants and if the said rule applies, the appellant would have no case. In deciding the question as to whether the appellant's estate is liable to pay Matmi under r. 5 it is necessary to examine the nature of this Matmi, and find out whether a claim in respect of it can be made against the appellant. We have already noticed that Matmi means mutation of the name of the successor to a State grant on the death of the last holder. It is obvious that in the case of a grant to the Idol or temple as such there would be no question about the death of the grantee and, therefore, no question about its successor. An Idol which is a juridical person is not subject to death, because the Hindu concept is that the Idol lives for ever, and so, it is plainly impossible to predicate about the Idol which is the grantee in the present case that it has died at a certain time and the claims of a successor fall to be determined. That being so, it seems difficult to hold that any claim for Matmi can be made against the appellant, and that must clearly lead to the inference that no amount can be recovered from the properties belonging to the Idol on the ground that Matmi is claimable against a person who claims to be the successor of the Shebait of the appellant.

It is next contended by Mr. Muthiah Mudaliar that there is no "institution' in this case so as to attract the operation of Section 84 (1), the institution, according to him, coming into existence only if and when the building is completed and the idol installed and consecrated in the manner prescribed by the Agama Sastras, and described by Satyanarayana Rao J. in his judgment. Consecration, according to the ceremonial rites prescribed by the Agama.

47. It is next contended by Mr. Muthiah Mudaliar that there is no "institution' in this case so as to attract the operation of Section 84 (1), the institution, according to him, coming into existence only if and when the building is completed and the

idol installed and consecrated in the manner prescribed by the Agama Sastras, and described by Satyanarayana Rao J. in his judgment. Consecration, according to the ceremonial rites prescribed by the Agama Sastras, is not a legal requisite, though it is a sacredotal necessity according to the views of the orthodox. The test is not whether the installation of an idol and the mode of its worship conform to any particular school of Agama Sastras. If the public or that section of the public who go for worship consider that there is a divine presence in a particular place and by offering worship at that place, they are likely to be the recipients of the bounty or blessings of God, then, you have got the essential features of a temple as defined in Section 9, Clause (12) of the Act. The presence of an idol, though an invariable feature of Hindu temples, is not a legal requisite under the definition of a temple in Section 9, Clause (12) of the Act. The word "institution" which is used in Section 84 (1) of the Act is a term of very wide import, capable of different meanings according to the context in which it is used. It means, among other things, a foundation, a system, a constitution, an establishment, or organisation, a place designed for the promotion of some. religious, charitable or other object of public utility and so on. In this case, the place for the construction of the temple had been fixed, the building had been substantially erected though not completed, the idol was ready to be installed, properties had been endowed and trustees appointed for the conduct of the worship and the management of the properties. The Board had jurisdiction to decide the preliminary fact, whether there was an institution within the meaning of Section 84 (1) and whether it was a temple as defined in the Act. It decided in the affirmative an its order Ex. R-1, dated 27-9-1938. Its decision has not been sot aside in the only manner permitted by law and has now become final and binding on the trustees. Merely because I would have come to a different conclusion from the Board, I cannot treat the order of the Board as null and void.

(ix) AIR 1939 Madras Page 134 – Board of Commissioners of Hindu Endowment Vs. P. Narasimha – Para 5 at Page 135 – The Hindu Religious Endowments Act, no doubt, speaks of a temple as a place of "public religious worship". That what the evidence in this case describes as taking place in connection with the institution is public worship can admit of no doubt. We think it is also religious. The test is not whether it conforms to any particular school of Agama Sastras; we think that the question must be decided with reference to the view of the class of people who take part in the worship. If they believe in its religious efficacy, in the sense that by such worship, they are making themselves the object of the bounty of some superhuman power, it must be regarded as "religious worship". In this view, the learned District Judge was not justified in holding that the appellant Board had no power under the Act to frame the scheme. The appeal must be allowed with costs here and in the Court below - costs to be paid by respondent 1."

(x) 2007 (5) SCC – Page 677 – Gedala Stachidanand Murti Vs. Commissioner, confirms the above view.

(xi) AIR 1989 Madras – Page 60 – P.V. Durrairajulu Vs. Commissioner of Hindu Religious Trusts – Para 18 – Presence of Idol is not necessary. It is in this background that I will analyse the various clauses in Ex. A. 1. Veeraswami Naidu, the founder of this temple was a Police Inspector. Therefore one could take it that he was wordly wise. He had already built this Sri Ramar Madalayam. According to him it was built as a charity for the salvation of his soul. He dedicates the same to the Public and requires under the will to use as a temple and a mutt. I do not think anything more necessary than this unequivocal dedication for the public to enjoy as of right. In several places he uses the word "Sannathi"; firstly with regard to the homums; secondly with regard to the lighting during pooja days, offering prasadam and distribution of the same, the cooked rice being distributed as Prasadam. Therefore, I am unable to accept the contention of Mr. T. R. Rajagopalan, that there is no picture of Sri Rama which has come to be installed. As a matter of fact, it came to be installed even during the lifetime of Veeraswamy, the founder, and pooja was being performed. As Viswanatha Sastri, J., pointedout in T.R.K. Ramaswami Servai v.Board of Commissioner for the Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras ILR (1950) Mad 779 : (AIR1951 Mad 473) the presence of idol is solely unnecessary, I should think this Mutt in question should answer the definition of "temple, which definition, I have already analysed. If a sense of reverence is created by the place in the belief that God resides there or if an edifice devoted to divine worship, that would be enough to attract the definition of "Temple" under Section 6(20) of the Act. In other words, it is a sense of reverence that is very important. It may be stated that this very definition has been repeated under the Act right from Act 2 of 1927, again in Act 19 of 1951 and also the present Act (Tamil Nadu Act 22 of 1959). Nowhere the requirements as are ordinarily expected of a temple are insisted upon. It is a faith that it is the abode of God that matters. It is that compelling faith, that by offering prayers, one will be the object of bounty, that is important. I consider these elements being present in this case.

"73. Sastri's Hindu Law page 420 shows the Hindu idea of the forms attributed to God for the convenience of worship a particular image may be insentient until consecrated but the deity is not. If the image is broken or lost, another may be substituted in its place and when so substituted it is not a new personality but the same deity and properties previously vested in the lost or mutilated Thacoor become vested in the substituted Thacoor. A Hindu does not worship the "idol" or the material body made of clay or gold or other substance, as a mere glance at the mantras and prayers will show. They worship the eternal spirit of the deity or certain attributes of the same in a suggestive form which is used for the convenience of contemplation as a mere symbol or emblem. It is the incantation of the mantras peculiar to a particular deity that causes the manifestation or presence of the deity or, according to some, the gratification of the deity. According to either view, it is the relinquishment of property in the name of the deity for securing its gratification that completes the gift and such relinquishments are valid according to Hindu Law even if made by dying man. It may be true that the illiterate Hindu thinks of the consecrated symbol as the deity and has not any clear idea of the particular attribute of the God-head that is worshipped in a particular form, but it cannot be said with any approach to truth that the great Rishis and their commentators who declared the Hindu Law had such a gross idea of the divinity they worshipped. In this view of the case also the text of the Dayabhaga relied on in the Tagore case 9 B.L.R. 377 : 18 W. R. 359 cannot invalidate the gift in favour of a deity whose image is consecrated after the death of the door."

OWNERSHIP OF PROPERTY BY A DEITY

The right of a deity of being worshipped by its followers can never be confused with secular laws relating to management of deities since they are fundamentally different. In the present case, the question which is before this Court is that whether the site/place of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi which is believed to be the birthplace of Lord Ram by Hindus and is, therefore, a deity in itself and cannot be alienated in any manner. The law on the said point is very clear as has been explained above. It is undoubtedly apparent that the said site cannot be alienated, even by the manager or the Shebait.

RELEVANT CASE LAWS RELIED BY SHRI RAVI SHANKER ARE AS UNDER:

(i) 1969 (1) SCC Page 555 (Jagendra Nath Naskar Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax) Para 5 & 6-A Hindu idol owns property only in a figurative sense.

"5. It is well established by high authorities that a Hindu idol is a juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests. fit Manohar Ganesh v. Lakshmiram called the Dakor temple case, West and Birdwood, JJ. state :

"The Hindu Law, like the Roman Law and those derived from it, recognises not only incorporate bodies with rights of property vested in the corporation apart from its individual members but also juridical persons called foundations. A Hindu who wishes to establish a religious or charitable institution may according to his law express his purpose and endow it and the ruler will give effect to the bounty or at least, protect it so far at any rate as is consistent with his own Dharma or conception or morality. A trust is not required for the purpose; the necessity of a trust in such a case is indeed a peculiarity and a modern peculiarity of the English Law. In early law a gift placed as it was expressed on the altar of God, sufficed it to convey to the Church the lands thus dedicated. It is consistent wit the grants having been made to the juridical person symbolised or personified in the idol."

The same view has been expressed by the Madras High Court in Vidyapurna Tirtha Swami v. Vidyanidhi Tirtha Swami and Ors. in which Mr. Justice Subrahmania Ayyar stated :

"It is to give due effect to such a sentiment, widespread and deep-rooted, as it has always been, with reference to something not capable of holding property as a natural person, that the laws of most countries have sanctioned the creation of a fictitious person in the matter as is implied in the felicitous observation made in the work already cited "Perhaps the oldest of all juristic persons is the God, hero or the saint" (Pollock and Maitland's History of English Law, Volume I, 481)."

"6. The consecrated idol in a Hindu temple is a juridical person has been expressly laid down in Manohar Ganesh's case, which Mr. Prannath Saraswati, the author of the 'Tagore Lectures on Endowments' rightly enough speaks of as one ranking as the leading case on the subject, and in which West J., discusses the whole matter with much erudition. And in more than one case, the decision of the Judirial Committee proceeds on precisely the same footing (Maharanee Shibessourec Dehia v. Mothocrapath Acharjo and Prosanna Kumari Debya v. Golab Chand Baboo Such ascription of legal personality to an idol must however be incomplete unless it be linked of human guardians for them variously designated in Debya v. Golab Chand Baboo the Judicial Committee observed thus : 'It is only in an ideal sense that property can be said to belong to an idol and the possession and management must in the nature of things be entrusted with some person as shebait or manager. It would seem to follow that the person so entrusted must be necessity be empowered to do whatever may be required for the service of the idol and for the benefit and preservation of its property at least to as great a degree as the manager of an infant heir'-words which seem to be almost on echo of what was said in relation to a church in a judgment of the days of Edward I: 'A church is always under age and is to be treated as an infant and it is not according to law that infants should be disinherited by the negligence of their guardians or be barred of an action in case they would complain of things wrongfully done by their guardians while they are under age' (Pollock and Maitland's 'History of English Law', Volume I, 483."

(ii) AIR 1957 Supreme Court 133 - Deoki Nandan Agrawal Vs. Murlidhar – Para 6 – Endowment of property in case of an idol is only in an ideal sense and it cannot have any beneficial interest in the endowment. This is for the worshipper. Para-6 reads as under:-

"6. Then the question is, who are the beneficiaries when a temple is built, idol installed therein and properties endowed therefore ? Under the Hindu law, an idol is a juristic person capable of holding property and the properties endowed for the institution vest in it. But does it follow from this that it is to be regarded as the beneficial owner of the endowment ? Though such a notion had a vogue at one time, and there is an echo of it in these proceedings (vide para 15 of the plaint), it is now established beyond all controversy that this is not the true position. It has been repeatedly held that it is only in an ideal sense that the idol is the owner of endowed properties. Vide Prosunno Kumari Debya v. Golab Chand Baboo ; Maharaja Jagadindra Nath Roy Bahadur v. Rani Hemanta Kumari Debi and Pramatha Nath Mullik v. Pradhyumna Kumar Mullik . It cannot itself make use of them; it cannot enjoy them or dispose of them, or even protect them. In short, the idol can have no beneficial interest in the endowment. This was clearly laid down in the Sanskrit Texts. Thus, in his Bhashya on the Purva Mimamsa, Adhayaya 9, Pada 1, Sabara Swami is the authenticity on the subject.

"Words such as 'village of the Gods', 'land of the Gods'

are used in figurative sense. That is property which can be said to belong to a person, which he can make use of as he desires. God however does not make use of the village or lands, according to its desires. Therefore nobody makes a gift (to Gods). Whatever property is abandoned for Gods, brings prosperity to those who serve Gods".

Likewise, Medhathithi in commenting on the expression "Devaswam" in Manu, Chapter XI, Verse 26 is as under:-

"Property of the Gods, Devaswam, means whatever is abandoned for Gods, for purposes of sacrifice and the like, because ownership in the primary sense, as showing the relationship between the owner and the property owned, is impossible of application to Gods. For the Gods do not make use of the property according to their desire nor are they seen to act for protecting the same".

Thus, according to the texts, the Gods have no beneficial enjoyment of the properties, and they can be described as their owners only in a figurative sense (Gaunartha), and the true purpose of a gift of properties to the idol is not to confer any benefit on God, but to acquire spiritual benefit by providing opportunities and facilities for those who desire to worship. In Bhupati Nath Smrititirtha v. Ram Lal Maitra , it was held on a consideration of these and other texts that a gift to an idol was not to be judged by the rules applicable to a transfer to a 'sentient being', and that dedication of properties to an idol consisted in the abandonment by the owner of his dominion over them for the purpose of their being appropriated for the purposes which he intends. Thus, it was observed by Sir Lawrence Jenkins C. J. at p. 138 that "the pious purpose is still the legatee, the establishment of the image is merely the mode in which the pious purpose is to be effected" and that "the dedication to a deity" may be "a compendious expression of the pious purposes for which the dedication is designed". Vide also the observations of Sir Ashutosh Mookerjee at p. 155. In Hindu Religious Endowments Board v. Veeraraghavachariar , Varadachariar J. dealing with this question, referred to the decision in Bhupati Nath Smrititirtha v. Ram Lal Maitra (supra) and observed :

> "As explained in that case, the purpose of making a gift to a temple is not to confer a benefit on God but to confer a benefit on those who worship in that temple, by making it possible for them to have the worship conducted in a proper and impressive manner. This is the sense in which a temple and its endowments are regarded as a public trust".

(iii) AIR 1970 Supreme Court 439 – Kalanka Devi Sansthan Vs. Maharashtra Revenue Tribunal – Para 5 at Page 442 – The properties of an idol do not vest in the manager or Shevait. It is the deity or the Sansthan which owns and holds the property. It is only the possession and management which vests with the manger.

Para 5 reads as under:

"5. It has next been contended that in the provisions of the Berar Regulation of Agricultural Leases Act, 1951 public trusts of charitable nature were included among those who could claim possession from a tenant on the ground of personal cultivation. It is not possible to see how the provisions of a repealed statute which was no longer in force, after the enactment of the Act, could be of any avail to the appellant. The decision in Ishwardas v. Maharashtra Revenue Tribunal and Ors.: [1968]3 SCR 441 = (AIR 1968 SC 1364) has also been referred to by the counsel for the appellant. In that case it was said that under Section 2(18) of the Bombay Public Trusts Act a trustee has been defined as meaning a person in whom either alone or in association with other persons the trust property is vested and includes a manager. In view of this definition the properties of the trusts vest in the managing trustee and he is the landlord under Clause 32 of Section 2 of the Act. As he is the landlord, he can ask for a surrender from the tenant of the lands of the trust "to cultivate personality". In the present case it is common ground that the Sansthan is a private trust and is not governed by the provisions of the Bombay Public Trusts Act. The manager of the Wahiwatdar of the Sansthan cannot, therefore, fall within the definition of the word "trustee" as given in Section 2(18) of that Act. It may be mentioned that in Ishwardas, case : [1968]3 SCR441 = (AIR 1968SC 1364) the court refrained from expressing any opinion on the question whether a manager or a Shebait of the properties of an idol or the manager of the Sansthan can or cannot apply for surrender by a tenant of lands for personal cultivation. The distinction between a manager or a Shebait of an idol and a trustee where a trust has been created is well recognised. The properties of the trust in law vest in the trustee whereas in the case of an idol or a Sansthan they do not vest in the manager or the Shebait. It is the deity or the Sansthan which owns and holds the properties. It is only the possession and the management which vest in the manager."

(iv) AIR 1960 Supreme Court Page 100 -(Narayan Vs. Gopal) Para 35 to 38 – A manager of a public temple has no right to remove the idol especially when majority of the worshippers object to it. It quotes Kane – an idol is not to be removed permanently because that would tantamount to establishing a new temple. However, if the public agreed to temporary removal it could be done for a valid reason. Paras-35 to 38 read as under:-

"35. There are, however, cases in which this matter has come up for consideration before the Courts. In Ram Soondur Thakoor v. Taruck Chunder Turkoruttun , there was a destruction of the temple

by the erosion of the river on the banks of which the idol was installed. The suit was filed by the plaintiffs for a declaration of their right to remove the idol to their own house and to keep it there for the period of their turn of worship. This claim was decreed. On appeal, Dwarknath Mitter and Ainslie, JJ., interfered only to the extent that the lower Court ought to have defined the precise period for which the plaintiffs were entitled to worship the idol before it could make the declaratory decree, which it had passed in their favour. They also directed that if it was found by the lower appellate Court that the plaintiffs and the defendants were jointly entitled to worship the idol during any part of the period mentioned by the plaintiffs, the lower appellate Court should not allow the plaintiffs to remove the idol to their own house at Khatra for that portion of time. It appears from the judgment that though the plaintiffs were allowed to remove the idol to their own house, they were to re-convey it at their own expense to the place where it was at the time of the institution of the suit. The learned Judges, however, qualified their judgment by saying that it was not contended in the case before then that the idol was not removable according to the Hindu Shastras.

36. In Hari Raghunath v. Anantji Bhikaji , ILR 44 Bom. 466 (AIR 1920 Bom. 67 (2), the temple was a public one. It was held by the High Court that under Hindu law, the manager of a public temple has no right to remove the image from the old temple and install it in another new building, especially when the removal is objected to by a majority of the worshippers. It is interesting to note that in this case Dr. P. V. Kane appeared, and in the course of his argument, he stated as follows :

> "According to the Pratishtha-Mayukha of Nilkantha and other ancient works an image is to be removed permanently only in case of unavoidable necessity, such as where the current of a river carries away the image. Here the image is intact. It is only the temple that is dilapidated. For repairing it, the image need not necessarily be removed. Even if it may be necessary to remove the image, that will be only temporarily. The manager has under Hindu law no power to effect permanent removal of an image in the teeth of opposition from a large number of the worshippers. In the instances cited by the appellant, worshippers had consented to the removal. Permanent removal of an image without unavoidable necessity is against Hindu sentiment."

(Italics hereto supplied)

Shah, J. (Crump J. concurring) observed as follows:

> "It is not disputed that the existing building is in a

www.vadaprativada.com

ruinous condition and that it may be that for the purpose of effecting the necessary repairs the image may have to be temporarily removed. Still the question is whether the defendant as manager is entitled to remove the image with a view to its installation in another building which is near the existing building. Taking the most liberal view of the powers of the manager, I do not think that as the manager of a public temple he can do what he claims the power to do, viz., to remove the image from its present position and to instal it in the new building. The image is consecrated in its present position for a number of years and there is the existing temple. To remove the image from that temple and to instal it in another building would be practically putting a new temple in place of the existing temple. Whatever may be the occasions on which the installation of a new image as a substitute for the old may be allowable according to the Hindu law, it is not shown on behalf of the defendant that the ruinous condition of the existing building is a ground for practically removing the image from its present place to a new place permanently. We are not concerned in this suit with the question of the temporary removal which may be necessary when the existing building is repaired."

The case is an authority for the proposition that the

idol cannot be removed permanently to another place, because that would be tantamount to establishing a new temple. However, if the public agreed to a temporary removal, it could be done for a valid reason.

37. In Pramatha Nath Mullick v. Pradyumna Kumar Mullick, 52 Ind App 245 (AIR 1925 PC 139), the deed of trust created an injunction against the removal of the deity. The following quotation from that deed of trust shows the powers of the manager :

> "Shall be for ever held by the said Jadulal Mullick, his heirs, executors, administrators and representatives to and for the use of the said Thakur Radha Shamsunderji to the intent that the said Thakur may be located and worshipped in the said premises and to and for no other use or intent whatsoever provided always that if at any time hereafter it shall appear expedient to the said Jadulal Mullick, his heirs, executors, administrators or representatives so to do it shall be lawful for him or them upon his or their providing and dedicating for the location and worship of the said Thakur another suitable Thakur Bari of the same or greater value than the premises hereby dedicated to revoke the trusts hereinbefore contained and it is hereby declared that unless and until another Thakur Bari is provided and

dedicated as aforesaid the said Thakur shall not on any account be removed from the said premises and in the event of another Thakur Bari being provided and dedicated as aforesaid the said Thakur shall be located therein, but shall not similarly be removed therefrom on any account whatsoever."

The Privy Council analysed this provision, and stated that the last condition made the idol immovable, except upon providing for the dedicate another Thakur Bari of the same or larger value. It observed :

"The true view of this is that the will of the idol in regard to location must be respected. If, in the course of a proper and unassailable administration of the worship of the idol by the Shebait, it be thought that a family idol should change its location, the will of the idol itself, expressed through his guardian, must be given effect to."

Their Lordships ordered the appointment of a disinterested next friend, who was to commune with the deity and decide what course should be adopted, and later the instructions of the deity vouchsafed to that representative were carried out. In this case, there was a family deity and there was a provision for removing the idol to another better and more suitable Thakur Bari, if it appeared necessary. The wishes of the deity were considered and consulted. The case, however, is not quite clear as to whether in all circumstances the idol can be removed from one place to another.

38. The last case on the subject is Venkatachala v. Sambasiva, AIR 1927 Mad. 465: 52 Mad. LJ 288. The headnote quite clearly gives the decision, and may be quoted here :

> "Where all the worshippers of a temple, who are in management of it, decide to build a new temple, the old one being in ruins and the site on which it stood becoming insanitary and inconvenient for worshippers, then, unless there is clear prohibition against their demolishing the old temple and building a new temple, the Court is not entitled to prevent the whole body from removing the temple with its image to a new site in the circumstances."

Devadoss, J., quoted passages from Kamika Agama, and referred to Prathista Mayukha by Nilakanta, Purva Karana Agamam and Nirnaya Sindhu. He, however, relied upon certain passages from Purva Thanthiram by Brighu, Kamika Agama, Siddhanta Sekhara and Hayasirsha Pancharatra, and came to the above conclusion. The effect of the decision is that the whole body of worshippers, if they are of one mind, can even

permanently remove an idol to another habitation.

AN IDOL/PUBLIC TEMPLE IS NOT SUBJECT TO ALIENATION (Res extra-commercium)

It is a well known legal proposition that temples are sancrosanct and there cannot be alienation of a public temple under any circumstance being res extra commercium. Shri Ravi Shanker has relied over following cases:-

(i) AIR 1957 Allahabad – 77 : Mukundji Mahraj Vs. Persotam Lalji Mahraj -Para 28-29 – A temple has a special sanctity distinct from other endowed property. To alienate a temple itself is to cut at the root of the very existence of the idol. Hindu sentiments view the alienation of a temple as a sacrilege. The sale of temple and an execution of a deed are totally void.

28. Whatever may be said about a permanent alienation of endowed property other than a temple, in the very nature of things, having regard to the duties of a Manager or a Shebait towards the idol or institution, there can be no necessity of alienating the temple or any portion of it in which the idol is installed. The maintenance of the entire building is the prime concern of the Manager or the Shebait.

(ii) The temple has a special sanctity distinct from other endowed property. To alienate the temple itself is to cut at the root of the very existence of the idol in the habitation intended by the founder. Hindu Sentiment views the alienation of a temple as a sacrilege. Not until the idol has been removed from the temple in accordance with shastric rites and has assumed a new habitation and the temple abandoned as a place of worship may the temple be alienated or sold in execution of a decree.

Para 31 – Idol was not a party and hence the decree is nullity. This brings us to the question of limitation. As the idol was not properly represented in the aforesaid suits, the decrees were nullities as against the idol. , In such cases the principle laid down by the Privy Council in Rashidunnisa v. Muhammad Ismail, ILR 31 All 572 (PC) (I) and by this Court in Dwarika Halwai v. Sitla Prasad, AIR1940 All 256 (J) applies. The decree is not merely voidable, but null and void. The decrees being nullities can be ignored and the plaintiff is not under the necessity of having them set aside before suing for possession.

Limitation would run against the plaintiff from the date on which the defendant took effective possession over the property, see Sudarsan Das v. Ram Kirpal Das, AIR 1950 PC 44 (K). This possession was taken in 1936. The period of limitation would be 12 years under Article 142, Limitation Act. The suit was, therefore, well within time.

Vishnu Namboodiri vs. Pattah Ramamuni Mara – Para 2 – Public temple is res extra-commercium, i.e., cannot be alienated, hence no adverse possession.

(iii) (1888) ILR 12 Bombay 247 – (Manohar Ganesh Tambekar Vs. Lakhmiram Govindram) Para 88 – Temple property is res extra-commercium.

(iv) AIR 1974 Calcutta 126 -Smt. Panna Banerjee Vs. Kali Kinkar – para 65-66 – An idol can never be made a subject matter of commerce. It is opposed to the fundamental concept of Hindu jurisprudence. It is so repulsive to judicial mind that every court is bound to strike it down. The deity cannot be sold. It is not a property and none can be its owner not even its founder.

65. Moreover the alleged custom, if any, as to the sale of these deities is wholly void. An idol can never be the subject-matter of commerce. The sale of an idol is prohibited by Hindu Law, (See Khettar Chunder Ghose v. Haridas Bundopadhyay, (1890) ILR 17 Cal 557 at p. 559). A deity is not a chattel but a juridical person. No custom can ever validate a sale of any deity. The legal necessity of the deity cannot destroy the very existence of the deity by selling it in the open market. The very thought of It is opposed to the fundamental concept of the Hindu Jurisprudence. It is against public policy. It is wholly unreasonable. It is absolutely

repugnant to the Hindu Law. It is so repulsive to the judicial mind that every Court is bound to strike it down in limine.

(v) (1890) ILR 17 Calcutta 557 at 559 (Khittar Chander Ghosh Vs. Haridas Bandopadhyay) – Para 66 – The deity is not a property. None can own it. Para 126 – idol is not a transferable property.

(vi) AIR 1974, Supreme Court, 1932, Kali Kinkar Ganguli Vs. Panna Banerji, Para 24-25, at Page 1936 – Neither the temple nor the deities nor the Shevaiti right can be transferred by sale for pecuniary consideration. The transfer by sale is void in its inception.

Dr. B. K. Mukherjea doubted the propriety of these decisions. Shri Venkatarama Aiyar as the editor of the Second Edition of Dr. B. K. Mukherjea's Tagore Law Lectures also expressed the same view at pages 219-220 even if the transfer is for no consideration the transfer would be bad if it is not in favour of those next in the line of succession.

INDIAN CLASSICAL TEXTS, THE DHARMA SHASTRAS AND OTHER COMMENTARIES FORM THE BASIS OF THE HINDU FAITH WHICH ARE DULY RECOGNISED IN LAW.

The above proposition of the sanctity of Hindu Temples have also been given recognition by Hindu scriptures and legal texts from ancient times and have been accepted by both modern Hindu

www.vadaprativada.com

texts as well as the Courts who have stressed that the conception of Hindu Law must be judged in terms of Hindu world views very specifically.

THE RELEVANT CASE LAWS ARE AS UNDER:-

www.vadaprativada.com

"6. Now, it is correct to say that what is a religious purpose under the Hindu law must be determined according to Hindu notions. This has been recognised by courts from very early times. Vide Fatma Bibi v. Advocate General of Bombay, 6 Bom. 42(D). It cannot also be disputed that under the Hindu law religious or charitable purposes are not confined to purposes which are productive of actual or assumed public benefit. The acquisition of religious merit is also an important criterion. This is illustrated by the series of cases which recognize the validity of perpetual endowment for the maintenance and worship of family idols or for the continued

performance of annual sradhs of an individual and his ancestors. See Dwarkanath Bysack and another v. Burroda Persaud Bysack and Rupa Jagashet v. Krishnaji . So far as the textual Hindu law is concerned what acts conduce to religious merit and justify a perpetual dedication of property therefore is fairly definite. As stated by the learned author Prananath Saraswathi on the Hindu Law of Endowments at page 18 -

"From very ancient times the sacred writings of the Hindus divided works productive of religious merit into two divisions named ishta and purtta, a classification which has come down to our own times. So much so that the entire object of Hindu endowments will be found included within the enumeration of ishta and purtta."

The learned author enumerates what are ishta works at pages 20 and 21 and what are purtta works at page 27. This has been adopted by later learned authors on the law of Hindu Religious Endowments and accepted by Justice Subrahmania Ayyar in his judgment in Parthasarathy Pillai and another v. Thiruvengada Pillai and others . These lists are no doubt not exhaustive but they indicate that what conduces to religious merit in Hindu law is primarily a matter of Shastraic injunction. To the extent, therefore, any purpose is claimed to be a valid one for perpetual

dedication on the ground of religious merit though lacking in public benefit, it must be shown to have a Shastraic basis so far as Hindus are concerned. No doubt since then other religious practices and beliefs may have grown up and obtained recognition from certain classes, as constituting purposes conducive to religious merit. If such beliefs are to be accepted by courts as being sufficient for valid perpetual dedication of property therefore without the element of actual or presumed public benefit it must at least be shown that they have obtained wide recognition and constitute the religious practice of a substantial and large class of persons. That is a question which does not arise for direct decision in this case. But is cannot be maintained that the belief in this behalf of one or more individuals is sufficient to enable them to make a valid settlement permanently tying up property. The heads of religious purposes determined by belief in acquisition of religious merit cannot be allowed to be widely enlarged consistently with public policy and needs of modern society."

(ii) AIR 1952 Supreme Court – Page 75 – The State of West Bengal Vs. Anwar Ali Sarkar – At para 84 – Page 103 – Much of the existing Hindu law has grown up in that way from instance to instance the threads being gathered now from the Rishis, now from custom, now from traditions.

84. “I realise that this is a function which is incapable of exact definition but I do not view that with dismay. The common law of England grew up in that way. It was gradually added to as each concrete case arose and a decision, was given ad hoc on the facts of that particular case. It is true the judges who thus contributed to its growth were not importing personal predilections into the result and merely stated what was the law applicable to that particular case. But though they did not purport to make the law and merely applied what according to them, had always been the law handed down by custom and tradition, they nevertheless had to draw for their material on a nebulous mass of undefined rules which though they existed in fact and left a vague a awareness in man's minds, nevertheless were neither clearly definable not even necessarily identificable, until crystalised into concrete existence by a judicial decision; not indeed is it necessary to travel as far afield. Much of the existing Hindu law has grown up in that way from instance to instance, the threads being gathered not from the rishis, now from custom, now from tradition. In the same way, the laws of liberty, of freedom and of protection under the Constitution will also

slowly assume recognisable shape as decision is added to decision. They cannot, in may judgment, be enunciated in static from by hidebound rules and arbitrarily applied standards or tests."

P.V. Kane was not only an outstanding jurist and a brilliant lawyer. His seminal contribution in collecting all the relevant Dharma Shastras, Shruti and Smritis and commentaries of great saints, Rishis, thinkers and men of great learning who have defined the contours of Hindu law in the last thousands of years, till date remains one of the most authoritative expositions of Hindu law and widely quoted by Supreme Court and other High Courts. (ii) In the same book, in Chapter-I (The Nature and Origin of Hindu Law) at Para 4, Page 3, it is clearly mentioned that even after the establishment of Mohammedan rule in the country the Smriti law continued to be fully recognized and enforced.

(iii) There is a very extraordinary book (The Classical Law of India by Robert Lingat translated by J. Duncan M. (V) AIR 1952, Allahabad 825-S. Darshan Lal Vs. Dr. R.E.S. Daliwall, Para 15-16. The same principle is applicable in English law as well.

16. "The matter may be considered upon broader principles. According to English law, Englishmen carry English law with them in countries which were formerly uninhabited and are peopled by them. English common law as well as Statute law brought into force up to the date of the settlement is applicable to such colony to the extent to which such laws are suitable to the conditions of the colony. Statutes passed subsequently apply to the colony only if they are made expressly applicable to it. In an inhabited country, however, obtained by conquest or cessation, law already prevalent therein continues to prevail except to the extent to which English law has been introduced and also except to the extent to which such law is not civilised law at all, vide Yeap Cheah Neo v. Ong Cheng Neo (1875) 6 p. c. 381. India fell in the category of conquered or ceded country because it was already inhabited and civilised law prevailed therein before the advent of the British and, therefore, prima facie there can be no presumption that English law applied to Indians in India."

(VI) 84 Ind. Cas. 759- Advocate General of Bombay Vs. Yusuf Ali Ebrahim, Para 95 to 109:

95. Now coming down to first principles, British Government brings to its subjects, as a general rule, liberty of the person, liberty of conscience, liberty of speech, liberty to own property, and last, but perhaps not least, equality of man in the sight of the law. But the liberty granted to one subject must not be used to the detriment of another subject. The principle sic utere tuo ut alienum non loedas is applicable to rights as well as property. In other words, liberty must not degenerate into license. Hence the law has to impose restraints on those who misuse the privileges of a free citizen. The slanderer, for instance, is restrained by the law of libel, the thief by the Indian Penal Code. But the fact that such restraints exist and apply to all citizens alike is not a slur upon the honest citizen. It is unthinkable that His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, for instance, would commit a criminal offence, but he is subject to the Criminal Law all the same, and this act involves no slur. So, too, in theory the Mullaji Saheb is amenable to the Criminal and Civil Law of this country, through it is unthinkable that he would commit any offence. A striking instance of his is the attempt made by the

www.vadaprativada.com

Dawoodi Borah Priest to put the 49th Dai into prison for failure to pay a judgment debt, and which I have already referred to. (See Ex. B. E5)

96. Similar principles apply, I think, to trustees. The foundation of the law of trusts is that the trustee is trusted. Hence the greater the trust, the more unthinkable does it become that the trustee will violate it. And yet the law has to impose restraints on the guilty or negligent trustee and to give its assistance to any honest trustee who requires it. But the existence of these civil restraints is no more a slur upon the honest trustee, than the existence of criminal restraints is upon the honest citizen. Hence in my judgment the infallibility of any particular individual does not affect his theoretical legal position in the slightest. In short the test of a trust is not whether the alleged trustee can ever commit a breach of trust, which is what the defendants contention in effect amounts to. His Holiness the Pope of Rome claims to be infallible and immaculate, and Iris followers are numbered by the million and are found in ail parts of the globe. And yet in Moore v. The Pope (1919) 1 Ir. R. 316, His Holiness submitted to the jurisdiction of the Irish Courts and contented that a bequest to him to be applied at his sole, discretion in carrying out the duties of his sacred office was a valid charitable bequest. If the defendants are correct, the Holy Father ought to have strongly protested against any suggestion that he could be a trustee of a charitable fund. He was held to be a trustee but that the trust was invalid.

97. In 1 Blackstone's Commantaries 112 (which is quoted in Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume 11, page 717), I find the following passage:

> In respect of these lands the King as supreme Ecclesiastical head was entitled to the Ecclesiastical emoluments in trust that he should distribute the same for the good of the Church.

www.vadaprativada.com

98. This, of course, was before the days of Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty and Ecclesiastical Commissioners and Charity Commissioners, who now relieve the burden which would otherwise fall upon the Crown, but it shows that even in olden days the Crown thought it no slur to be regarded as a trustee. As the present is not a case of Sovereign rights, I need not consider what remedies, if any would be open in such a case to a subject who alleged a misapplication of such emoluments.

99. Nor has the Mullaji or his predecessors been ashamed in other days to be called trustees. In the book,

www.vadaprativada.com

Ex. A. L., to which I attach great importance, the 48th Dai describes the Dai and his duties as follows:

He is the trustee of the public funds which it is his duty to dispose of economically and at his discretion as directed by the sacred rules, in relieving the distressed and needy so as to save them from sordid beggary, and paying the expenses incurred by them and his deputies and discharging their sacred duties and in keeping schools and institutions for religious and secular instructions.

100. In Ex. 16, which is a later edition by the present Mullaji, the corresponding passage runs:

www.vadaprativada.com

He is the trustee of the public funds of the community which it is his duty to dispose of economically as directed by the sacred Laws of Islam.

101. The defendants have relied on Her late majesty Queen Victoria's Proclamation of November, 1, 1858.

102. His Lordship quoted the portion of the Proclamation dealing with religious toleration and then proceeded as follows.

103. If, in the words of the Proclamation, all alike are to enjoy the equal and impartial protection of the law, charitable trusts must be protected just as other trusts are. This is no breach of the rest of the Proclamation.

www.vadaprativada.com

Accordingly, Section 14 of the Religious Endowments Act, 1863, gives some protection as regards certain mosques and other places of worship. Section 92 of the C.P.C. Is still wider in its application. And recently in response to a public demand for still greater protection for Indian religious and other charities, the Charitable and Religious Trust Act, 1920, has been passed. Nowhere do I find any express exemption of Dawoodi Borah mosques or other charities.

104. But speaking very generally, the protection of the law in religious matters of confined to the protection of religious property or a religious office. The Court will not decide mere questions of religious rites or ceremonies (see C.P.C. Section 9), nor will it, I think, pronounce on any religious doctrine see Attorney-General v. Pearson (1917) 3 Mer. 353 at P. 409 : 17 R. R. 100 : 36 E. R. 135 unless it is necessary to do so in order to determine rights to property, as in Free Church of Scotland (General Assembly of ) v. Oyertoun (Lord) (1904) A.C. 515 : 91 L. T. 395 : 20 T. L. P. 730. As put by Mr. Justice Melvill in Vasudev v. Vamnaji (5 B. 80 at PP. 81, 82 : 5 Ind. Jur. 427 : 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 55. It is the policy of the State to protect all religious, but to interfere with none.

166. Now, in this case it is proved beyond doubt that according to the doctrines of the Zoro astrian religion the performance of the Muktad ceremonies is enjoined-- that it is the duty of all Zoroastrians to have these ceremonies performed. The Court has before it the knowledge what ceremonies are obligatory and what are optional-- the Court has before it the prayers ordained to be recited during the ceremonies-- the Court has before it the evidence of witnesses proving that these ceremonies have to be performed by priests who are paid for doing so and such honoraria as they receive form a portion of their income, and are their ordinary means of livelihood. The Court is then in a position to judge how far the witnesses are right, when they say the performance of such religious ceremonies amounts to an Act of Divine worship which is believed by the community to bring down to the world both temporal and spiritual benefits-- not only on those that perform the ceremony--but on the whole community--on their country and their Sovereign--on all mankind—on the Universe. If this is the belief of the community--and it is proved undoubtedly to be the belief of the Zoroastrian

community--a secular judge is bound to accept that belief--it is not for him to sit in judgment on that belief--he has no right to interfere with the conscience of a donor who makes a gift in favour of what he believes to be in advancement of his religion and for the welfare of his community or of mankind, and say to him, "You shall not do it." This court can only judge of the efficacy of such gifts in procuring public benefits by the belief of the donor and of the community to which he belongs--the belief of those who profess the religion-- the ordained ceremonies of which the donor desires performance.

167. Lord Justice Fitz Gibbon, speaking on the point, says (at p. 279):

In determining whether the performance of any particular rite promotes any particular religion, and benefits the members of the Church or denomination, or body, who profess it, the secular Court must act upon evidence of the belief of the members of the community concerned. It can have no other guide upon that subject.

The exclusiveness, the vagueness, or the self-sufficiency of principles religiously held by particular creeds, whether they rest on dogma, or on conscience, cannot exclude those who profess any lawful creed from the benefits of charitable gifts.

It would be strange, indeed, if bequests for the promotion of total abstinence, or even vegetarianism; for the maintenance of a place of worship, or of a minister for a small congregation of peculiar people; for the dissemination of the works of Joanna Southcote; or for the prevention of cruelty to animals, should be held, as they have been, to be charitable objects, if a provision by a Roman Catholic, for Roman Catholics, for the celebration of the Mass, more especially in Ireland, where 'Superstitious Uses' are not mala prohibits, were to be excluded from that category.

168. To this I would add that it would be stranger still in a country like India, where superstition abounds, where each community is by the Crown left free to profess what religion it pleases-- from where the doctrine of superstitious uses is rigorously excluded, where trusts of lands and moneys in perpetuity for idols and similar trusts are recognised and enforced by the Courts-- that a Parsi professing the Zoroastrian religion should be precluded from making a gift for the performance of religious rites and ceremonies, which he is enjoined by the religious he professes to perform, and the non-performance of which, according to his religion, is a great sin. Why should he be precluded from setting apart a portion of his property and devoting it to a purpose which he believes would result in benefits to himself, his family and his community-- in promoting the religion he professes and saving his descendants from committing a sin should circumstances place them in a position of inability to perform these ceremonies for want of means. On this point in the same case Lord Justice Fitz Gibbon, a Protestant Judge, observes (at p. 280):

Speaking with all reverence of a faith which I do not hold, touching the very 'Mystery of Godliness', I could not impute to any individual professing the Roman Catholic religion that he regarded a gift of money for Masses as a means of seeming from such a Sacrifice a private and exclusive benefit for himself alone, as being much less than blasphemy; and, as I understand the proved doctrine of the Church, it would certainly be heresy. But the hope or belief that, in some shape or form, her or hereafter, a man's good works will follow him-- an ingredient of selfishness in that sense-- enters into almost every set of charity; and if the act is done in the belief that it will benefit others; for example, in the belief that he that gives to the poor lends to the Lord, it can be none the less charitable because the giver looks for his reward in heaven.

169. Lord Justice Fitz Gibbon ends his judgment by saying:

The fruition of faith, 'the evidence of things not seen', is hidden from humanity. It is not within the power of any earthly tribunal to entertain the question whether these propositions are true. But it is for us to decide that belief in their truth is part of the faith of the members of the Church which has laid them down.

170. Speaking of the belief of the Roman Catholics in the efficacy of the performance of Masses being benefits to the community, Lord Justice Holmes says (at p. 286):

A temporal Court in Ireland, having no authority to decide for itself whether it was true or not, must take as its guide the belief of the Church of which the testatrix is a member.

171. I would like here to say that so far as I am concerned, I have scarcely ever come across a case in a Court in another country bearing closer resemblance to facts and contentions of a case before our Courts than the case of O'Hanlon v. Logue (1861) 30 Beav. 360 at p. 362 bears to the present case. It must be remembered that it is decided by the tribunal having the highest jurisdiction in a country in which religious matters bear remarkable analogy to this country-- Ireland like India having no

established Church, no State religion, and where the doctrine of superstitious uses has no application. It is decided as recently as 1906, its pronouncements are clear and emphatic; there is no element of doubt or a note of uncertainty in the judgments pronounced; every case of importance on the subject, ancient or modern, is carefully considered and the question before the Court finally and definitely settled. Judgments such as those pronounced in this case must command the respectful attention of other Courts deciding similar questions. This case alone is sufficient to set at rest all doubts and remove all difficulties in the decision of this case, and enables me to answer the question before me-:

Whether the Trust declared in respect of the Government Promissory Notes for 15,000 Rupees mentioned in the plaint are valid in the affirmative with considerable confidence. I hold that Trusts and bequests of lands or money-- for the purpose of devoting the incomes thereof perpetuity for the purpose of performing Muktad, Baj, Yejushni and other like ceremonies, are valid “charitable” bequests, and as such exempt from the application of the Rule of Law forbidding perpetuities.

It is, therefore, very clear that the injunction against destruction of Hindu temples has been maintained even

www.vadaprativada.com

during the times of Muslim rule in India and, therefore, the question of destruction of the preexisting Hindu temple and construction of the mosque on the said spot therefore cannot be said to be acceptable and is null and void.

IMPORTANCE OF RAM JANMASTHAN IN HINDU RELIGION

There is voluminous evidence available on record both documentary and oral which substantially establish that Lord Ram was born at the place which the Hindus believe to be the Rama Janmasthan since times immemorial. The worship, divine character and sacred status has been recognized not only be the classical literature, tradition but also by series of travel records of foreigners, gazetteers as also foreign authorities. Some of the said Hindu authorities and scriptures are quoted below:

www.vadaprativada.com

SACRED SCRIPTURES

(ii) Valmiki Ramayana- The Vlamiki Ramayana is integral to Hindu faith and ethos which deals elaborately with the birth of Lord Ram and the entire life of Prabhu Ram thereafter becomes a part of Indian psyche passed on from generations to generations. There is a very famous book "Sanskriti Ke Chaar Adhyay" by the very well-known Hindi poet and writer ramchari Singh Dinkar. The foreword of this book was written by Jawahar Lal Nehru as the Prime Minister when the book was first published in 1956. The learned author in his book, reprinted in 2009, at page 72, has mentioned the profound impact which Valmiki Ramayana had created in the entire country leading to the story of Lord Rama being reproduced in many languages of India and outside. He particularly mentions Kamban Ramayana (Tamil), 12th Century, Telugu Dwipad Ramayana (12th Century), Malayalam Ramacharitam (14th Century), Bangla Kritibas Ramayana (15th Century), Oriya Balaram Das Ramayana (15th Century), Kannada Torave Ramayana (16th Century), Hindi Ramcharit Manas (16th Century) and Marathi Bhavarth ramayana (16th Century). The learned author also quotes that Rama Kavya was equally popular in the literature of Tibet, Sri Lanka, Khotan Indo-China, Burma and Sumatra and Kashmir and Indonesia.

www.vadaprativada.com

www.vadaprativada.com

Therefore, the Valmiki Ramayana, in fact became the symbol of India's cultural unity and shining symbol of Hindu faith. In effect, if became the pivot of Sanatana Dharma much before the arrival of Mughals in India. The impact of valmiki Ramayana was felt whereever the Sanatana Dharma went.

(iii) Quotations from Valmiki Ramayana: Chaturvedi Dwarka Prasad Sharma has translated Valmiki

www.vadaprativada.com

Ramayana which was published in the year 1982 by Ram Narayan Lal Publisher, Allahabad. It contains the relevant Shlokas as also its Hindi translation. In the Bal Kand, Chapter-18, Shlok Nos. 8 to 18, at Pages 144 and 145 of the said book, contains the entire story as recited in Valmiki Ramayana about the birth of Lord Ram. It specifically mentions about the astrological alignment at the time of Lord Ram's birth, the celebrations in Ayodhya. Shlok 12 particularly mentions that He was the manifestation of Lord Vishnu.

(iv) There is another book "Sri Ramayana Mahakavya" by Mahakavi Valmiki, edited by Pt. Shripad Damodar Satvalekar. It also mentions the same thing, i.e. the relevant Sanskrit Shloka of Valmiki Ramayana and its Hindi translation.

(v) In the Skanda Puran, in Chapter "Ayodhya Mahatmya", the entire Shloka 13 to 20 mention the details about birth of Lord Ram and the highly sacred and divine character of Ayodhya and the janmasthan.

(vi) In fact, the English translation of the Skanda Puran has been published by Motilal Banarsidas as a part of Ancient Indian Tradition and Mythology series. In fact the book has been recognized by the

www.vadaprativada.com

UNESCO Collection of Representative Works and also jointly sponsored by the Government of India. It has been translated and annotated by Dr. G.V. Tagare. Vol. 55, Part-VIII, Chapte-X, Pages 216 to 218, Shlokas 13 to 25, mentions specifically vide Sholka 18-19 by Agastaya that to the North-East of that spot is the place of birth of Rama. This holy spot of the birth is, it is said, is the means of achieving salvation. It further says, in Shlokas 22-25, that visiting the place of birth one attains the merits of ascetics. Further, vide Shloka 20, it is specifically mentioned that by visiting it one attains Moksha, i.e., escape from rebirth.

(vii) The above two scriptures and texts embody not only the essence of the birth of Lord Ram, but highlight with due sanction of Shastric texts the divinity and sanctity which attaches to the place of birth of Lord Ram and the blessings one attains by having the Darshan of the same. They form an integral part of Hindu faith and practiced as such even till today.

(viii) The Bhagavad Gita, as is well known, is the word of God. In fact, Sri Sri Paramahansa Yogananda of the Yogada Satsang Society of India, has published the Bhagavad Gita in two volumes along with the Sanskrit verse and its english translation. The two-

volume book was published in the year 2002. In Chapter-X, Verse 31, Page 797, Bhagwan tells Arjun like this: "Among purifiers I am the breeze; among wielders of weapons, I am Rama; among aquatic creatures, I am Makara (Vehicle of the god of the ocean); among streams, I am Jahnavi (the Ganges)." Same text with the same meaning quoted in Bhagvad Gita by Swami Prabhupad at pages 541 and 542 Chapter 10.

SOME OTHER DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE ABOUT PLACE OF BIRTH OF LORD RAM

www.vadaprativada.com

There are also numerous accounts which clearly evidence that the Hindus continued to worship the Ram Janambhumi holy and sacred even after the disputed structure was constructed on it. These accounts are by foreign travelers and British officials who however shocked to see the continued struggle the Hindus waged to recover their holiest of holy shrines, and who were not Hindus, and therefore, could be termed as independent observers.

SOME ACCOUNTS OF THE SANCTITY AND SACREDNESS OF THE RAM JANAMBHUMI

(ix) The sacred character of such faith and its continued practice has also been confirmed by historical accounts as also by public gazetteers. In this connection, the account of Le Pere Joseph Tieffenthaler, during his visit to

www.vadaprativada.com

India is the 18th Century, (Exhibit No. OOS-5-133) is of great significance. He had written the account of his travel in a book in French which was published in the year 1786 CE. He was an Austrian Jesuit priest. He also visited Ayodhya. The relevant pages of this book were also translated into English by the Government of India under orders of the Court. At page 254, it clearly mentions what Hindu calls "Bedi" that is the cradle where Befchen was born in the form of Ram besides his three brothers. According to another belief, Babur got this place destroyed in order to deny them the opportunity of practicing their superstitions. He also mentions the place where the native house of Ram existed people go around and prostrate on the floor. On the 24th of Chait Month, a big gathering of people takes place to celebrate the birthday of Ram, so famous in entire India.

Therefore, the above documentary evidence shows that even after more than 258 years of the construction of the disputed structure, people of the country held it to be sacred, prostrated and there was big assembly in the month of Cahitra, i.e., Ram Navami. This account is confirmed by a non-Indian.

(x) A Gazetteer of the territories under the Government of the East India Company, by Edward

www.vadaprativada.com

Thornton (Exhibit No. OOS-5-5), was published in 1858. At page 739 about Oud, there is a mention of the cradle where Lord Rama was born as the 7th Avatar of Vishnu and is abundantly honoured by the pilgrimages and devotions of Hindus. It also mentions that Ayodhya is considered by the best authorities to be the most ancient city in Hindustan.

(xi) The P. Carnegie Report (1870), (Exhibit No. OOS-5-49): It mentions at Page 5 that Ajudhia is to Hindus what Mecca is to Mohammedans, Jerusalem to Jews.

(xii) Gazetteer of Province of Oud, Vol.-I, 1877, (Exhibit No. OOS-5-7). It clearly mentions the Janmasthan temple on which Babur built the mosque, i.e. at the Janamsthan, It also mentions about the continuous struggle of Hindus to reclaim it.

(xiii) Report of the Settlement of Land Revenue in the Faizabad District by A.F. Millett, Officiating Settlement Officer, 1880: At Page 234, (Exhibit NO. OOS-5-8), the report mentions about the Janamasthan temple wherein Emperor Babur built the mosque.

(xiv) The Imperial Gazetter of India, Provincial Series, 1905, (Exhibit No. OOS-5-10) The present town stretched island from a high bluff overlooking the Ghaghra. At one corner of the vast mound is the holy spot where Rama was born where Babur built a mosque.

(xv) Faizabad Gazetteer by H.R. Nevill, ICS, 1905, at page 173, (Exihibit No. OOS-5-11), specifically mentioned that the Janmasthan was in Ramkot, the birthplace of Rama and Babur in 1528 destroyed the ancient temple and on its site built a mosque known as Babur's mosque.

(xvi) Barabanki Gazetteer edited by H.R. Nevill, 1903, Page 169, reiterated that there was continuous struggle of Hindus to reclaim the ground on which formerly stood the Janmasthan temple.

www.vadaprativada.com

(xvii) Faizabad Gazeeteer by H.R. Nevill, ICS 1905, Pages 173-174, (Exhibit NO. OOS-5-11), reiterates the facts of the existence of the Rama Janmasthan temple and destruction of the same by Babur in 1528 and the continuous struggles of Hindu to reclaim the same.

(xviii) Faizabad Gazetteer by H.R. Nevill, 1928, (Exhibit NO. OOS-5-12), the said story is reiterated.

(xix) Uttar Pradesh District Gazetteers Faizabad, (Exhibit No. OOS-5-13), published by the Government of Uttar Pradesh in 1960 reiterated the same fact in page 352.

(xx) An article titled "Babur and the Hindus" by S.K.

Banerji, published in the Journal of the United Provinces Historical Society published in July 1976 at Page 76, specifically mentions: "The present Jami Masjid at Ayodhya was built in Babur's time on a site sacred to the Hindus as Rama's birthplace."

*(*xxi) Even the New Encyclopedia Britannica, Vol. IX, 15th Edition, at page 916, describes Rama as the seventh incarnation of Lord Vishnu which appears as such in the Ramayana. Similarly, in Volume-I, at page 751, Ayodhya is mentioned wherein it is specifically mentioned that the Baburi Masjid was built in the early 16th Century by the Mughal Emperor Babur on a site traditionally identified as Rama's birthplace and at the location of an ancient Hindu temple, the Rama Janma Bhumi.

The above are only a sample of evidence available on record. Yet, they show a continuity since times immemorial about the divinity attached to the place Rama Janmasthan not only in the scriptures, worship and devotion in practice, but also a recurring continuity even after the construction of the disputed structure.

Under the orders of this Hon'ble Court, the Archaeological Survey of India was directed to undertake an exhaustive excavation to find out as to whether there existed any temple/structure underneath the disputed structure. The report of the expert agency, that is the ASI, clearly confirms the existence of a Hindu religious structure dating back to thousands of years. This evidence too confirms that the disputed site was and is the site of a temple and the Hindus have always believed the same to be the birthplace of Lord Ram.

EVIDENTIARY VALUE OF THE ABOVE DOCUMENTS

The said documents being official documents of the Government have been consistently held by the Court that they are admissible in Court as evidence.

(1) Section 57 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, mentions the facts of which Court must take judicial notice. Section 57(13) further provides that in all these cases and also on all matters of public history, literature, science or art the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books and documents of reference.

(ii) The entire Valmiki Ramayana, Skanda Puran, Gita and the Traveller's accounts mentioned above fall in that category.

(iii) Further, under Section 81 of the Evidence Act, there is a presumption as to Gazettes.

(iv) RELEVANT CASE LAW ON THE SUBJECT ARE AS UNDER:-

5. The Statement of fact contained in the official Gazette made in the course of the discharge of the official duties on private affairs or on historical facts in some cases is best evidence of facts stated therein and is entitled to due consideration but should not be treated as conclusive in respect of matters requiring judicial adjudication. In an appropriate case where there is some evidence on record to prove the fact in issue but it is not sufficient to record a finding thereon, the statement of facts concerning management private temples or historical facts of status of private persons etc. found in the Official Gazette may be relied upon without further proof thereof as corroborative evidence. Therefore, though the statement of facts contained in Indore State Gazette regarding historical facts of Dhangars' social status and habitation of them may be relevant fact and in an appropriate case the Court may presume to be genuine without any further proof of its contents but it is not conclusive.

record evidencing public affairs and the Court may presume their contents as genuine especially about the existence of an old temple.

22. The contention of Sri Yogeshwar Prasad that the Asstt, Charity Commissioner has failed to prove that Kalika Mataji temple is a public trust; contrarily the evidence on records, namely the 'Will' of Bai Diwali, widow of N. Girjashankar, establishes that the lemple and its properties Were always treated as private properties. It would get fortified and gets corroborated by decrees in civil suit No. 439/1985, one of the legatees sought to annual the Will in Exhibits 10, 59 and the decree in that behalf. The Civil Suits Nos. 353/93, Ex. 24 and the Civil Suit No. 439 of 1885, Ex 26 and the Civil Suit Nos. 904 of 1903 and 910 of 1903: Ex 52 and Ex. 54, Civil Suit No, 912 of 1903, Ex 55 would establish that the appellant's family had always treated the temple and the lands attached to temple as private properties. It has also been further contended that the entry into the temple was subject to permission and the devotees were not allowed to have pooja, but have darshan Only. These circumstances have duly been taken into consideration by the District Judge while the High Court had not considered them in proper perspective. We find no force in the contention, It is seen that the Gazette of the Bombay Presidency, Vol. Ill published in 1879 is admissible under s.35 read with s.81 of the Evidence Act, 1872. The Gazette is admissible being official record evidencing public affairs and the court may presume their contents as genuine. The statement contained therein can be taken into account to discover the historical material con-tained therein and the facts stated therein is evidence under s.45 and the court may inconjunction with other evidence and circumstance take into consideration in adjuding the dispute in question though may not be treated as conclusive evidence. The recitals in the Gazette do establish that Kalika Mataji is onlhe lop of the hill. Mahakali temple and Bachra Mataji on the right and left to the Kalika Mataji. During Moughal rule another Syed Sadar Peer was also installed there, but Kalika Mataji was the chief temple. Hollies and Bills are the main worshipers. Oh full Moon of Chaitra (April) and Dussehra (in the month of October), large number of Hindus of all classes gather there and worship Kalika Mataji, Mahakali, etc. After the downfall of Moughal empire, Marathas took over and His Highness Scindias attached great importance to the temple. One of the devotees in 1700 offered silver doors. The British

www.vadaprativada.com

annexed the territory pursuant to the treaty between Her Majesty's Government of India and His Highness Scindia on the 12th December, I860, A condition was imposed in the treaty for continued payment of fixed cash grants to all the temples from the Treasury and that British emperors accepted the condition. Regular cash grants of fixed sums were given to all the temples by Scindias and British rulers, as evidence by exhibits 27, 29 and 30. The historical statement of noted historian, stated by the High Court, by name M.S. Commissionaria in his Vol. I of 1938 Edition corroborates the Gazette on the material particulars, which would established that the temple was constructed on the top of the hill around 14th century and the people congregate in thousands and worship, as of right, to Kalika Mataji and other deities. R.N. Jogelkar's Alienation manual brought up in 1921 in the Chapter 5 Devas-tbana also corroborates the historical evidence. It is true that Bai Diwali in her Will, Ex.22 treated the temple and the properties to be private property and bequeathed to her brother and the litigation ensued in that behalf. At that time, as rightly pointed out by the High Court, the concept of public trust and public temple was not very much in vogue. Therefore, the treatment meted out to these properties at that time is not conclusive. On the other hand the fixed cash grants given by a Rulers Scindias and the successor British emperors, the large endowment of lands given to Kalika Mataji temple by the devotees do indicate that the temple was treated as public temple. The appropriation of the income and the inter se disputes in that behalf are self serving evidence without any probative value. Admit-tedly, at no point of time, the character of the temple was an issue in any civil proceedings. All the lands gifted to the deity stand in the name of the deities, in particular large extent of agricultural lands belong to Kalika Mataji. The entries in Revenue records corroborated it. The Gazette and the historical evidence of the temple would show that the village is the pilgrimage centre. Situation of the temples on the top of the hill away from the village and worshiped by the people of Hindus Community at large congregated in thousand without any let or hindrance and as of right; devotees giving their offerings in large sums in discharge of their vows, do establish that it is a public temple. It is true that there is ho proof of dedication to the public. It is seen that it was lost in antiquity and no documentary evidence in that behalf is available. Therefore, from the treatment meted out to the temple and aforesaid evidence in our considered view an irresistible inference would be drawn that the temple was dedicated to the Hindu public or a section thereof and the public treat the temple as public temple and worship thereat as of right. It is true that there is evidence on record to show that there was a board with inscription thereon that "no entry without permission" and that only Darshan was being had and inside pooja was no permitted. But that is only internal regulation arranged for the orderly Darshan and that is not a circumstance to g o against the conclusion that it is a public temple. Enjoyment of the properties and non-interference by the public in the management are not sufficient to conclude mat the temple is a private temple. It is found by the District Court and the High Court that the appellants are hereditary priests and when the public found that they are in the management of the properties, they obviously felt it not expedient to interfere with the management of the temples. It is seen that the High Court considered the evidence placed on record and has drawn the necessary conclusions and inferences from the proved facts that kalika Mataji temple is a public temple. It is a finding of fact. As regard the oral evidence the High Court rightly appreciated the evidence and it being a question of fact, we find no error in the assessment of the evidence by the High Court.

www.vadaprativada.com

The fact that Ram Janambhumi is an integral part of Hindu Religion and the right to worship there is a fundamental right of the Hindu religion and can be enforced through a suit can be clearly made out through a number of decisions of the Hon'ble Supreme Court.

RELEVANT CASE LAW

(i) 1995 Supplementary (4) SCC, Page 286 – Most Rev. P.M.A. Metropolitan and Others Vs. Moran Mar Marthoma and Another, Para 43 at Page 327 and Para 89, Page 361 – the Civil Courts have jurisdiction to entertain the suits for violation of rights guaranteed under Article 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India. The expression 'civil nature" used in Section IX of the Civil Procedure Code is wider than even Civil Proceedings and thus extends to such religious matters which have civil consequences.

43. In reading Section 9 widely and construing it expansively the jurisdiction to entertaina suit for declaration whether the Church was episcopal or congregational and whether the appellants could have been ordained by the Patriarch when it was contrary to the earlier decision given by this Court that the ordination was required to be approved by Synod, the court is not being asked to adjudicate on faith but whether the exercise of right in respect of faith was valid. The Grace no doubt comes from Patriarch and on that there is no dispute but whether the Grace came in accordance with the Canon or the Constitution is certainly a matter which would fall within Section 9 C.P.C. Status and office are no doubt different but what was challenged is not the status or faith in Patriarch but the exercise of right by Patriarch which interfered with the Office of Cathelico held validly. Apart from it, as stated earlier, after coming into force of the

Constitution Article 25 guarantees a fundamental right to every citizen of his conscience, faith and belief, irrespective of cast, creed and sex, the infringement of which is enforceable in a court of law and such court can be none else except the civil courts. It would be travesty of justice to say that the fundamental right guaranteed by the constitution is incapable of enforcement as there is no court which can take cognisance of it. There is yet another aspect of the matters that Section 9 debars only those suits which are expressly or impliedly barred. No such statutory bar could be pointed out. Therefore, the objection that the suit under Section 9 C.P.C. was not maintainable cannot be accepted.

89. The conclusions thus reached are:

1. (a) The civil courts have jurisdiction to entertain the suits for violation of fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India.

(b) The expression 'civil nature' used in Section 9 of the Civil Procedure Code is wider than even civil proceedings, and thus extends to such religious matters which have civil consequence.

(c) Section 9 is very wide. In absence of any ecclesiastical courts any religious dispute is congnizable, except in very rare cases where the declaration sought may be what constitutes religious rite. Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 does not debar those cases where declaration is sought for a period prior to the Act came into force or for enforcement of right which was recognised before coming into force of the Act.

protects not only the right to practice or freedom of religion but to exhibit his belief in such overt acts as are sanctioned by his religion.

Para 12, 13, Page 392 – A religion is not merely an opinion, doctrine or belief. It has its outward expression as well. Religious practices are as much part of religion as faith or belief in actual doctrine.

12. The moot point for consideration, therefore, is where is the line to be drawn between what are matters of religion and what are not ? Our Constitution-makers have made no attempt to define what 'religion' is and it is certainly not possible to frame an exhaustive definition of the word 'religion' which would be applicable to all classes of persons. As has been indicated in the Madras case referred to above, the definition of the 'religion' given by Fields J. in the American case of Davis v. Beason , does not seem to us adequate or precise. "The term 'religion'", thus to observed the learned Judge in the case mentioned above, "has reference to one's views of his relations to his Creator and to the obligations they impose of reverence for His Being and character and of obedience to His Will. It is often confounded with cults or form of worship of a particular sect, but is distinguishable from the latter". It may be noted that

www.vadaprativada.com

'religion is not necessarily theistic and in fact there are well known religions in India like Buddhism and Jainism which do not believe in the existence of God or of any Intelligent First Cause. A religion undoubtedly has its basis in a system of beliefs and doctrines which are regarded by those who profess that religion to be conducive to their spiritual well being, but it would not be correct to say, as seems to have been suggested by one of the learned Judges of the Bombay High Court, that matters of religion are nothing but matters of religious faith and religious belief. A religion is not merely an opinion, doctrine for belief. It has its outward expression in acts as well. We may quote in this connection the observations of Latham C.J. of the High Court of Australia in the case of Adelaide Company v. The Commonwealth , 124.), where the extent of protection given to religious freedom by section 116 of the Australian Constitution came up for consideration.

"It is sometimes suggested in discussion on the subject of freedom of religion that, though the civil Government should not interfere with religious opinions, it nevertheless may deal as it pleases with any acts which are done in pursuance of religious belief without infringing the principle of freedom of religion. It appears to me to be difficult to maintain this distinction as relevant to the interpretation of section 116. The section refers in express terms to the exercise of religion, and therefore it is intended to protect from the operation of any Commonwealth laws acts which are done in the exercise of religion. Thus the section goes far beyond protecting liberty of opinion. It protects also acts done in pursuance of religious belief as part of religion."

In our opinion, as we have already said in the Madras case, these observations apply fully to the provision regarding religious freedom that is embodied in our Constitution.

www.vadaprativada.com

13. Religious practices or performances of acts in pursuance of religious belief are as much a part of religion as faith or belief in particular doctrines. Thus if the tenets of the Jain or the Parsi religion lay down that certain rites and ceremonies are to be performed as certain times and in a particular manner, it cannot be said that these are secular activities partaking of commercial or economic character simply because they involve expenditure of money or employment of priests or the use of marketable commodities. No outside authorities has any right to say that these are not essential parts of religion and it is not open to the secular authority of the State to restrict or prohibit them in any manner they like under the guise of administering the trust estate. Of course, the scale of expenses to be incurred in connection with these religious observances may be and is a matter of administration of property belonging to religious institutions; and if the expenses on' these heads are likely to deplete the endowed properties or affect the stability of the institution, proper control can certainly be exercised by State agencies as the law provides. We may refer in this connection to the observation of Davar J. in the case of Jamshedji v. Soonabai , and although they were made in a case where the question was whether the bequest of property by a Parsi testator for the purpose of perpetual celebration of ceremonies like Muktad baj, Vyezashni, etc., which are sanctioned by the Zoroastrian religion were valid charitable gifts, the observations, we think, are quite appropriate for our present purpose. "If this the belief of the community" thus observed the learned Judge, "and it is proved undoubtedly to be the belief of the Zoroastrian community, - a secular Judge is bound to accept that belief - it is not for him to sit in judgment on that belief, he has no right to interfere with the conscience of a donor who makes a gift in favour of what he believes to be the advancement of his religion and the welfare of his community or mankind". These observations do, in our opinion, afford an indication of the measure of protection that is given by article 26(b) of our Constitution.

www.vadaprativada.com

(iii) AIR (1954) Supreme Court 282 (The Commissioner Hindu Religious Endowments Vs. Shri Lakshmendra Tirtha Swami, Para 17 at page 290): Religion is certainly a matter of faith with individuals or communities and it is not necessarily theistic. There are well known religions in India like Buddhism and Jainism which do not believe in God or in any Intelligent First Cause. A religion undoubtedly has its basis in a system of beliefs or doctrines which are regarded by those who profess that religion as conducive to their spiritual well being, but it would not be correct to say that religion is nothing else but a doctrine of belief. A religion may not only lay down a code of ethical rules for its followers to accept, it might prescribe rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which are regarded as integral parts of religion, and these forms and observances might extend even to matters of food and dress.

(iv) AIR 1959, SC Page 860, Saroop Singh Vs. State of Punjab, Para 7 – We are unable to accept this argument as correct. Article 26 of the Constitution, so far as it is relevant for our purpose, says-

" Art. 26. Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right-

(b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion

(c) ….....

(d) to administer such property in accordance with law."

The distinction between cls. (b) and (d) strikes one at once. So far as administration of its property is concerned, the right of a religious denomination is to be exercised in " accordance with law ", but there is no such qualification in cl. (b). In The Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Sri Shirur Mutt (1), this distinction was pointed out by this Court and it was there observed: " The administration of its property by a religious denomination has thus been placed OD a different footing from the right to manage its own affairs in matter of religion. The latter is a fundamental right which no legislature can take away, whereas the former can be regulated by laws which the legislature can validly impose ". Secondly, the expression used in cl. (b)

www.vadaprativada.com

is 'in matters of religion'. In what sense has the word 'religion ' been used ? This was considered in two decisions of this Court: The Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Sri Shiru Mutt (1) and Sri Venkataramana Devaru v. The State of Mysore (2), and it was hold that freedom of religion in our Constitution is not confined to religious beliefs only, but extends to essential religious practices as well subject to the restrictions which the Constitution has laid down. In The Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Sri Shirur Mutt (1) it was observed at p. 1026 that under Art. 26(b), a religious denomination or Organisation enjoys complete autonomy in the matter of deciding as to what rites and ceremonies are essential according to the tenets of the religion they hold (we emphasise here the word 'essential'). The same emphasis was laid in the later decision of Sri Venkataramana Devaru v. The State of Mysore (2), where it was said that matters of religion in Art. 26(b) include practices which are regarded by the community as part of its religion.

(v) AIR 1962 SC, 853 Sardar Syedna Vs. State of

Bombay – A law prohibiting the right to excommunicate a Bohra Muslim held violative of Art. 25 & 26 because this is a part of their religion.

40. Let us consider first whether the impugned Act contravenes the provisions of Article 26(b). It is unnecessary for the purpose of the present case to enter into the difficult question weather every case of excommunication by the Dai on whatever grounds inflicted is a matter of religion. What appears however to be clear is that where an excommunication is itself based on religious grounds such as lapse from the orthodox religious creed or doctrine (similar to what is considered heresy, apostasy or schism under the Cannon Law) or breach of some practice considered as an essential part of the religion by the Dawoodi Bohras in general, excommunication cannot but be held to be for the purpose of maintaining the strength of the religion. It necessarily follows that the exercise of this power of excommunication on religious grounds forms part of the management by the community, through its religious head, "of its own affairs in matters of religion." The impugned Act makes even such excommunications invalid and takes away the power of the Dai as the head of the community to excommunicate even on religious grounds. It therefore, clearly interferes with the right of the Dawoodi Bohra community under clause (b) of Article26 of the Constitution.

41. That excommunication of a member of a community will affect many of his civil rights is undoubtedly true. This particular religious denomination is possessed of properties and the necessary consequence of excommunication will be that the excommunicated member will lose his rights of enjoyment of such property. It might be thought undesirable that the head of a religious community would have the power to take away in this manner the civil right of any person. The right given under Article 26(b) has not however been made subject to preservation of civil rights. The express limitation in Article 26 itself is that this right under the several clauses of the article will exist subject to public order, morality and health. It has been held by this Court in Sri Venkataramana Devaru v. The State of Mysore : [1958]1SCR895 , that the right under Article 26(b) is subject further to clause 2 of Article 25 of the Constitution.

42. We shall presently consider whether these limitations on the rights of a religious community to manage is own affairs in matters of religion can come to the help of the impugned Act. It is clear however that apart form these limitations the Constitution has not imposed any limit on the right of a religious community to manage its own affairs in matters of religion. The fact that civil rights of a person are affected by the exercise of this fundamental right under Article 26(b) is therefore of no consequence. Nor it is possible to say that excommunication is prejudicial to public order, morality and health.

56. ….If the property belongs to a community and if a person by excommunication ceased to be a member of that community, it is a little difficult to see how his right to the enjoyment of the denominational property could be divorced from the religious practice which resulted in his ceasing to be a member of the community. When once it is conceded that the right guaranteed by Article 25(1) is not confined to freedom of conscience in the sense of the right to hold a belief and to propagate that belief, but includes the right to the practice of religion, the consequences of that practice must also bear the same complexion and be the subject of a like guarantee.

(vi) AIR 1962 SC 1106, Dalbir Singh Vs. State of Punjab, Para 8 – The Act prohibited or penalized and public order must be proximate and intimate.

www.vadaprativada.com

8. The content of the expression "in the interests of ..... public order" has been the subject of detailed and elaborate consideration by this Court in Superintendent, Central Prison, Fatehgarh v. Ram Manohar Lohia, (1960) 2 SCR 821 : (AIR 1960 SC 633) where the effect of the First (Constitution) Amendment by which the words "for the maintenance of public order" were replaced by the words "in the interests of public order" was considered in the light of the previous decisions of this Court on that topic, Subba Rao, J., speaking for this Court said that the expression "public order" in the juxtaposition of the different grounds set out in Article 19(2) was synonymous with "public peace, safety and tranquility". He also pointed out that the expression "in the interests of public order" though undoubtedly wider than the previous phrasing "for the maintenance of public order" could not mean that the existence of any remote or fanciful connection between the impugned act and public order was sufficient to sustain the validity of the law, but that on the other hand, the connection between the act prohibited or penalized and public order should be intimate; in other words there should be a reasonable and rational relation between it and the object sought to be achieved, viz., public order.

The nexus should thus be proximate - not far-fetched, problematical or too remote in the chain of its relation with public order.

(vii) 1986 (3) SCC Page 615, Bijoe Emmanneul Vs. State of Kerala, Para 20 – If the belief is genuinely and conscientiously held as part of religion or its profession, then regardless of our personal views, it attracts the protection of Art. 25 subject to the inhibition mentioned therein.

20. The meaning of the expression 'Religion' in the context of the Fundamental Right to freedom of conscience and the right to profess, practise and propogate religion, guaranteed by Article 25 of the Constitution, has been explained in the well known cases of The Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Sri Shirur Mutt [1954]1SCR1005 ; Rati Lal Panachand Gandhi v. State of Bombay : [1954]1SCR1055 and S. P. Mittal v. Union of India : [1983]1SCR729 . It is not necessary for our present purpose to refer to the exposition contained in these judgments except to say that in the first of these cases Mukherjea, J. made a reference to "Jehova's Witnesses" and appeared to quote with approval the views of Latham, C.J. of the Australian High Court in

www.vadaprativada.com

Adelaide Company v. The Commonwealth (supra) and those of the American ' Supreme Court in West Virginia State Board of Education v. Barnette (supra). In Ratilal's case we also notice that Mukherjea, J. quoted as appropriate Davar, .'s following observations in Jamshedji v. Soonabai :

> If this is the belief of the Community and it is proved undoubtedly to be the belief of the Zoroastrian community,—a secular Judge is bound to accept that belief—it is not for him to sit in judgment on that belief, he has no right to interfere with the conscience of a donor who makes a gift in favour of what he believes to be the advancement of his religion and the welfare of his community or mankind.

We do endorse the view suggested by Davar J.'s observation that the question is not whether a particular religious belief or practice appeals to our reason or sentiment but whether the belief is genuinely and conscientiously held as part of the profession or practice of religion. Our personal views and reactions are irrelevant. If the belief is genuinely and conscientiously held it attracts the protection of Article 25 but subject, of course, to the inhibitions contained therein.

www.vadaprativada.com

9. The protection guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution is not confined to matters of doctrine or belief but extends to acts done in pursuance of religion and, therefore, contains a guarantee for rituals, observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which are essential or integral part of religion. What constitutes an integral or essential part of religion has to be determined with reference to its doctrines, practices, tenets, historical background etc. of the given religion. (See generally the Constitution bench decisions in The Commissioner v. L T Swamiar of Srirur Mutt 1954 SCR 1005, SSTS Saheb v. State of Bombay 1962 (Supp) 2 SCR 496, and Seshammal v. State of T.N. regarding those aspects that are to be looked into so as to determine whether a part or practice is essential or not). What is meant by 'an essential part or practices of a religion' is now the matter for elucidation. Essential part of a religion means the core beliefs upon which a religion is founded. Essential practice means those practices that are fundamental to follow a religious belief. It is upon the cornerstone of essential parts or practices the superstructure of religion is built. Without which, a religion will be no religion. Test to determine whether a part or practice is essential to the religion is - to find out whether the nature of religion will be changed without that part or practice. If the taking away of that part or practice could result in a fundamental change in the character of that religion or in its belief, then such part could be treated as an essential or integral part. There cannot be additions or subtractions to such part. Because it is the very essence of that religion and alterations will change its fundamental character. It is such permanent essential parts is what is protected by the Constitution. No body can say that essential part or practice of one's religion has changed from a particular date or by an event. Such alterable parts or practices are definitely not the 'core' of religion where the belief is based and religion is founded upon. It could only be treated as mere embellishments to the non-essential part or practices.

(ix) 1997 (4) SCC, 606, Sri Adi Vishweshwar of Kashi Vishwanath Temple and Others Vs. State of U.P. And Others, at Para 28, Page 631 – The practice in question is religious in character and whether it could be regarded as an integral and essential part of religion and if the Court finds upon evidence adduced before it that it is an integral part of religion, Art. 25 accords protection to it.

30. Hindusim cannot be defined in terms of Polytheism or Henotheism or Monotheism. The nature of Hindu religion ultimately is Monisim/Advaita, This is in contradistinction to Monotheism which means only one God to the exclusion of all others. Polytheism is a belief of multiplicity of Gods. On the contrary, Monism is a spiritual belief of one Ultimate Supreme and manifests Himself as many. This multiplicity is not contrary to on-dualism. This is the reason why Hindus start adoring any Deity either handed down by tradition or brought by a Guru or Swambhuru and seek to attain the Ultimate Supreme.

31. The protection of Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution is not limited to matters of doctrine. They extend also to acts done in furtherance of religion and, therefore, they contain a guarantee for rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which are integral parts of the religion. In Sehsammal case on which great reliance was placed and stress was laid by counsel on either side, this Court while reiterating the importance of performing rituals in temples for the idol to sustain the faith of the people, insisted upon the need for performance of elaborate ritual ceremonies accompanied by chanting of mantras appropriate to the Deity. This Court also recognised the place of an archaka and had held that the priest would occupy place of importance in the performance of ceremonial rituals by a qualified archaka who would observe daily discipline imposed upon him by the Agamas according to tradition, usage and customs obtained in the temple. Shri P.P. Rao, learned senior Counsel also does not dispute it. It was held that Articles 25 and 26 deal with and protect religious freedom. Religion as used in those Articles requires restricted interpretation in etymological sense. Religion undoubtedly has its basis in a system of beliefs which are regarded by those who profess religion to be conducive to the future well-being. It is not merely a doctrine. It has outward expression in acts as well. It is not every aspect of the religion that requires protection of Articles 25 and 26 nor has the Constitution provided that every religious activity would not be interfered with. Every mundane and human activity is not intended to be protected under the Constitution in the garb of religion. Articles 25 and 26 must be viewed with pragmatism. By the very nature of things it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to define the expression "religion" or "matters of religion" or "religious beliefs or practice". Right to religion guaranteed by Articles 25 and 26 is not absolute or unfettered right to propagate religion which is subject to legislation by the State limiting or regulating every non-religious activity. The right to observe and practise rituals and right to manage in matters of religion are protected under these Articles. But right to manage the Temple or endowment is not integral to religion or religious practice or religion as such which is amenable to statutory control. These secular activities are subject to State regulation but the religion and religious practices which are integral part of religion are protected. It is well settled law that administration, management and governance of the religious institution or endowment are secular activities and the State could regulate them by appropriate legislation. This Court upheld the A.P. Act which regulated the management of the religious institutions and endowments and abolition of hereditary rights and the right to receive offerings and plate collections attached to the duty.

www.vadaprativada.com

www.vadaprativada.com

A SOVEREIGN GOVERNMENT EVEN BY EXERCISING THE POWER OF EMINENT DOMAN CANNOT EXERCISE THE POWER OF ACQUISITION OF LAND OR PROPERTY WHICH EXTINGUISHES THE CORE OF THE FAITH OR THE PLACE OR THE INSTITUTION WHICH IS HELD TO BE SACRED.

What clearly follows is that a sovereign government cannot extinguish the core of the Hindu religion which is the Ram Janambhumi, let alone the same be extinguished through a suit, by transferring the same to some other party in this case the plaintiff thereby ensuring that the said fundamental right to worship at the Ram Janambhumi is extinguished forever.

26. 26. While Article 25, as stated earlier, confers the particular rights on all persons, Article 26 is confined to religious denominations or any section thereof. Article 19(1) confers the various rights specified therein from (a) to (g) on citizens. A religious denomination or a section thereof as such is not a citizen. In that sense the fields of the two Articles may be to some extent different. Again while Article 26(c) refers to the right "to own and acquire movable and immovable property", Article 19(1)(f) confers the right on citizens "to acquire, hold and dispose of property". We are not required to consider in this case why the same expression is not used in the said two clauses of the two Articles. One thing is, however, clear that Article 26 guarantees interalia the right to own and acquire movable and immovable property for managing religious affairs. This right, however, cannot take away the right of the State to compulsorily acquire property in accordance with the provisions of Article 31(2). If, on the other hand, acquisition of property of a religious denomination by the State can be proved to be such as to destroy or completely negative its right to own and acquire movable and immovable property for even the survival of a religious institution the question may have to be examined in a different light. That kind of a factual position, however, is not taken in these appeals before us. When, however, property is acquired by the State in accordance with law and with the provisions of Article 31(2) and the acquisition cannot be assailed on any valid ground open to the person concerned, be it a religious institution, the right to own that property vanishes as that right is transferred to the State. Thereafter there is no question of any right to own the particular property subject to public order, morality and health and Article 26 will in the circumstances be of no relevance. This being the legal position, there is no conflict between Article 26 and Article 31.

It is well-known that the Constitution of India was enacted, i.e. given to ourselves, w.e.f. 26th January, 1950. Before it, the right of Hindus to worship was duly sanctified and recognized by judicial orders.

In fact, the Supreme Court records in the Ismail Faruqui case above the contention in paragraph 1.2 of the White Paper of the Government of India as recorded in Paragraph 9, Page 380, of the said judgment. It reads as follows: "Interim orders in these civil suuits restrained the parties from removing the idols or interfering with their worship. In effect, therefore, from December 1949 till 6.12.1992 the structure had not been used as a mosque."

It is further very significant to note that the Muslims for the first time, after 1949, assert their right howsoever unsustainable, only in 18th December, 1961.

Therefore, the right of the Hindus to worship at the Rama Janma Bhumi, continuing since times immemorial as an integral part of their religious right and faith was also sanctified by judicial orders form 1949 continuously. This right has concretised and remains an integral part of Hindu religion and has to be protected.

that this decision has extended the scope of the exceptions, so that the appellant Executive Committee though a non-statutory body will still be bound by the statutory provisions of law, let us see what is the position. It would appear that under s. 25-C (2) of the Agra University Act corresponding to similar provisions in Kanpur and Meerut Universities Act of 1965 which runs thus:

> "Every decision by the Management of an affiliated college, other than a college maintained by Government, to dismiss or remove from service a teacher shall be reported forthwith to the Vice-Chancellor and subject to provisions to be made by the Statutes shall not take effect until it has been approved by the Vice-Chancellor." it was incumbent on the Executive Committee of the College to have taken the previous approval of the Vice-Chancellor before terminating the services of the plaintiff/respondent. Reliance was placed by the learned counsel for the respondent on the words "shall not take effect until it has been approved by the Vice-Chancellor". It was urged that there has been an infraction of a mandatory provision of the Act itself which is undoubtedly binding on the appellant

Executive Committee and the resolution of the Executive Committee terminating the services of the respondent is not only invalid but completely without jurisdiction, and, therefore, the plaintiff/respondent is entitled to the injunction sought for. It is common ground that the procedure enjoined in sub-s. (2) of s. 25-C of the Agra University Act was not at all followed by the Executive Committee and there can be no doubt that the Executive Committee has been guilty of this default. The question remains whether even if there has been a violation of the mandatory provisions of the statute, should we in the exercise of our discretion grant a declaration or an injunction to the plaintiff/respondent in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case ? It is well settled that a relief under the Specific Relief Act is purely discretionary and can be refused where the ends of justice do not require the relief to be granted. Mr. Ramamurthi learned counsel for the plaintiff/respondent submitted that the question of discretion would arise only in case where the High Court or this Court is acting in a writ jurisdiction and not in a suit. We are, however, unable to agree with 1022 this argument because the exercise of discretion is spelt out from the provisions of the Specific Relief Act and the common law and it applies as much to the writ jurisdiction as to other action at law.

Para 27 at Page 74 – The relief of declaration and injunction under the provisions of the Specific Reliefs Act is purely discretionary and the plaintiff cannot claim it as of right. The relief has to be granted by the Court according to sound legal principles and ex debito justitiae the Court has to administer justice between the parties and cannot convert itself into an instrument of injustice or an engine of oppression.

www.vadaprativada.com

(ii) 1993 (2) SCC, Page 199, American Express Bank vs. Calcutta Steel Company, Para 22, Page 213 – Undoubtedly declaration of the rights or status is one of discretion of the court under Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. Equally the grant or refusal of the relief of declaration and injunction under the provision of that Act is discretionary. The plaintiff cannot claim the relief as of right. It has to be granted according to sound principles of law and ex debito justicia. The court cannot convert itself into an instrument of injustice or vehicle of oppression. While exercising its discretionary power, the court must keep in its mind the well settled principles of justice and fair play and the discretion would be exercised keeping in view the ends of justice since justice is the hall mark and it cannot be administered in vacuum. Grant of declaration and injunction relating to commercial transactions tend to aid dishonesty and perfidy. Conversely refusal to grant relief generally encourages candour in business behaviour, facilitates free Row of capital, prompt compliance of covenants, sustained growth of commerce and above all inculcates respect for the efficacy of judicial adjudication. Before granting or refusing to grant of relief of declaration or injunction or both the court must weigh pros and cons in each case, consider the facts and circumstances in its proper perspective and exercise discretion with circumspection to further the ends of justice. From the back-drop fact situation we have no hesitation to hold that the relief of declaration granted is unjust and illegal. It tended to impede free flow of capital, thwarted the growth of merchantile business and deflected the course of justice.

THE ALLEGED BABRI MOSQUE IS NOT A VALIDLY CONSTITUTED MOSQUE UNDER MOHAMMADAN LAW AND THE TENETS OF ISLAM, AND THEREFORE THE CLAIM OF THE PLAINTIFF IS CONTRARY TO LAW.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is submitted that in any case the Babri Masjid is contrary to Koranic injunctions and cannot be termed as a mosque in terms of Islamic Law. Some of the most eminent commentators have been quoted below to illustrate the Islamic Law on the point.

RELEVANT EXTRACTS OF EMINENT COMMENTATORS OF ISLAMIC LAW.

(i) There are many eminent jurists who are authorities on Islamic Law. In the "Mulla Principles of Mahomedan Law" edited by the equally well-known jurist M. Hidayatullah, the former Chief Justice of India, in its 19th edition, has cited the names and the works of such authorities which includes Macnaghten, Ameer Ali, Baillie and Hedaya as translated by Hamilton. There is consistent view of these authorities that if the title of the land is disputed then no valid mosque can be constructed there.

"Both land and building are included in the term mosque.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is neither simply land nor simply building but it comprises both. The land is the chief part of it because the foundation of the mosque stands upon it and the superstructure is dependant on the land. Under these circumstances without the consent of the Fakeer who is the landlord, the building cannot in the legal sense be termed a mosque because no one is at liberty to erect a building on the land of another without that other's consent and if he do so the law sanctions its being razed to the ground."

At Page 336-337, in this book the author quotes Kazee Khan – The appropriation of a superstructure without its basis is not allowable, an edifice independently of its founder is not a mosque. Further as per Shurhi Viqya if anyone build or plant on the land of another let the thing built or planted be razed or rooted out.

Note:- In Qutlines of Muhammadan Law by Asaf A. Fyzee, published from Oxford University, 1949, in the Appendix-E (Page 418) – Mohammadan Law, the above work of Macnaghten has been described as a work of great authority.

It is to be noted that this book was written in 1825 when the Mughal rule was still there.

At page 337 – Hedaya is quoted as "if a person usurps land and build and plant thereon, he will be desired to eradicate and raise his plants or buildings."

(v) "The Hedaya" (A Commentary on the Mussulman Laws) translated by the order of the Governor General by Charles Hamilton (Premier Book House, Lahore) – If a person convert the centre hall of his house into a mosque giving general admission into it, still it does not stand as a mosque but remains saleable and inheritable because a mosque is a place in which no person possesses any right of obstruction; and wherever a man has such a right with respect to the surrounding parts the same must necessarily affect the place enclosed in them. The place, therefore, cannot be a mosque; besides it is necessarily a thoroughfare for the family and consequently does not appertain solely to God.

The said book was written in Urdu language in 1922 and became a classic thereafter. It contains authentic events in concise form from the famous histories of Islam written in Arabic and Persian languages. Its English translation was done by Darussalam in three volumes.

At page 147 and 148, Vol.I, contains the entry of Prophet into Al-Madinah. At Page 148, there is a specific reference about a deserted land being the property of two orphan boys Sahl and Suhail. The said land was offered by Muadhbin Afra for building a mosque as the two orphan boys were related to him and he would make them part of the land. But the Prophet asserted *"I want to buy it and will not take it without paying the price".

www.vadaprativada.com

Note:- If from the authentic real life of Prophet he imposed such an injunction that for building a mosque the land of an orphan in spite of the consent of their guardian shall not be taken unless price is paid for; could the Babri mosque erected forcibly by breaking a temple at a place held sacred by Hindus be at all described as a valid mosque and can the plaintiff seek any declaration as such when the disputed structure is not a valid mosque in terms of Islamic law.

In view of the arguments referred to, I find that on behalf of

www.vadaprativada.com

the evidence that has been produced before this Court is of convincing nature that temple was destroyed and the mosque was erected on the site of the temple. Historical account as available in gazetteers etc. has already been referred while deciding issue nos.1 and 1-A by me. I crave to refer the same, but otherwise also it transpires that on the basis of archeological evidence that has been referred while deciding issue no. 1-B leaves no room for doubt that on the site of the old Hindu temple the mosque was constructed. In this reference P. Carnegy has given in detail data based finding and thereafter another gazetteer has specifically mentioned that at the site of the Ram Janam Bhumi Mandir the mosque was constructed after destruction of the temple but Hindus were worshipping the place like a deity and they were offering prayers with a belief as birth place of Lord Rama. I have already referred that in view of statement of O.P.W,14 Dr. Rakesh Tiwari, Director State Archaeological Organization 265 pieces of broken images of different idols of Hindus and broken pieces of temples were collected from the debris after 6th December, 1992. Thus, on the basis of the historical account which has been given in the epigraphical evidence which was found after the demolition of disputed structure referred to above do not leave a doubt that finding of Archeological survey of India about the site of old temple is fully corroborated by other circumstantial evidence which has been referred to above. Account of Tieffen Thaler that the temple was destroyed by Aurangzeb appears to be a clerical error who as a foreigner could have committed mistake because Aurangzeb was a descendant of Babur and coming out from his family. Thus, his one mistake about mentioning of the name could not make his description in this account useless. He has referred that Ram Naumi was birth day of Lord Ram and it was celebrated by Hindus as a festival day. Hindus used to offer prayer doing Parikrama and observing religious rites at Babri mosque. This fact gets strength from the site plan, prepared by Vakil Commissioner in O.O.S. No. 61/280 of 1885 and O.S 2 of 1950.

I further find that in the above case there is judicial pronouncement in the aforesaid case showing that the District Judge was also of the view that Babri mosque was constructed at the site of Ram Janam bhumi.

I have already referred that in Hindu mythology a deity can be formless also. Brahm is considered as formless but it is always being worshipped like God. There are certain idols which are also worshipped . There are certain places which are worshipped like deity like Kedarnath, Govardhan, Vishnupad and kamadgiri. Even fire is considered as a God. Gangotri and other places are also considered like deities .

Thus idol is the object which is worshipped. Deity may be like idol or otherwise also but is being worshipped religiously in accordance with the faith by Hindus. This has been recognized

under the Hindu text which have been referred to by Mr Ravi Shanker Advocate and Sri H.S, Jain Advocate. I do not want to further reproduce for the sake of brevity and I agree with their contention that the defendants have successfully placed the material before the Court to arrive at a decision that there was strong belief of Hindu from times immemorial that Lord Ram's birth took place at the place where the old temple was constructed and same was of 12th century which was destroyed by Babur.

Hans Bakker has completed his research work in most methodical and scientific manner . He has devoted much time in his studies. He formed his opinion about the Janamsthan .Part II chapter 21 page 143-145 deal with the Janamsthan. For convenience I am reproducing the same:-

www.vadapprativada.com

"The most conspicuous fact with respect to the textual evidence relating to the tirtha Rama-janmasthana (Janmabhumi) is that on the one hand a description of this principle holy place is found in all MSS of the AM used for this edition, and on the other hand that the tirtha is not mentioned in other classical sources (e.g. Puranas, Laksmidhara's TVK, Nrsimhapurana MS, Jinaprabhasuri's TK, Bhusram., and Mitra Misra's TP). Such a silence is all the more surprising in view of the fact that archaeological evidence indicates the existence of a temple at this tirtha in the eleventh century. A reason for the omission of this holy place in the Bhusram and TP might be that at the time these texts were written the site was occupied by a mosque (built by Babur in AD 1528).”

The DA recension, which presumably also dates from after the destruction of the original Janmabhumi temple, has merely taken over the description of the place as found in s and B, without adding more details and praise, yet it has connected the Janmasthana with an elaborate description of Ramanavami (OA 22, OA 23).

This chapter is interesting for text-criticism in that it illustrates the relationship between OA, B,and S. The analysis of this relationship in II, XXIXF.leads to the conclusion that, since OA is not directly based on B and S but goes back to an a-type-of-text which comprised the textual materials of B and S, both agreement between B and S against OA (AM 21. 2d), as well as agreement between OA and B against S (AM 21, 1cd/4cd,2b,7b,9/15), are likely to occur. Since B rests on a later version of the 1-type-of-text than S, a version that stands nearer to the OA recension, a greater affinity of B with OA than with S can be expected, especially in regard to the sequence and the occurrence of verses (see 21.1cd/4cd and 21.9/15 (sequence of OAB vs. S), and 21.3-4, 8-11 (occurring in OAB missing in S) vs. 21.13ab (occurring in BS missing in OA)).

The fact that B represents the most direct or crudest version of the a-type-of-text, which was edited in S and in OA, while the latter has not extended the description of the birthplace (possibly for reasons advanced above), accounts for the given evidence that MS B actually contains the most complete version of this section of the Mahatmya. The incongruity of S with the a-type-of-text may have prompted the author of B(P), at variance with his normal procedure, to include the entire description of the Janmasthana, thus rewriting a passage of S that was felt to be insufficient. The omission in S of DAB 21.8-11 may have been caused by homoeoteleuton (OABS 21.7cd=OAB 21.11cd).

MS P, which omits several slokas ocurring in B (B 21.2-4) and replaces B 21.8 by another sloka, contains a hiatus after B 21.9 which is indicated by a sign …. truti. Slokas 11 and 12 are corrupt and rendered incompletely in Mss O1 and O2, and BS 21.12abcd seems to be an anacoluthon. Obviously this passage had become corrupt in an early stage of its transmission and the clumsiness of the Sanskrit that remained my have led the editor of A to delete it altogether.

Version of P. Carnegy was confirmed after due research by Hans Bakker.

This Court has occasion to go through the “A Historical Skethch of Faizabad including Parganas Haveli-Oudh and Pachhimrath with the old capitals Ajudhia and Fyzabad" by P. Carnegy . He has given description of Ayodha, Ram and Ramayan. Looking to the controversy in dispute as regards location of Ram Janam Bhumi, Ram Kot and description given by Carnegy which was based on a systematic way leaves no room for doubt that he affirmed Janambhumi and other temples and took a view that Emperor Babur built the mosque in 1528 after demolishing the Hindu temples Janamstali marks the place where Lord Ram was born. AJUDHIA.

Ajudhia- Ajudhia, which is to the Hindu what Macca is to the Mahomedan, Jerusalem to the Jews, has in the traditions of the orthodox, a highly mythical origin, being founded for additional security not on the earth for that is transitory, but on the chariot wheel of the Great Creator himself which will endure for over.

In appearance Ajudhia has been fancifully likened to a fish, having Guptar as its head, the old town for its body, and the eastern parganas for its tail.

Derivation- The name Ajudhia is explained by well-known local Pandits to be derived from the Sanskrit words, Ajud, unvanquished, also Aj, a name of Barmha, the unconquerable city of the Creator, But Ajudhia is also called Oudh, which in Sanskrit

means a promise, in allusion it is said, to the promise made by Ram Chandr when he went in exile, to return at the end of 14 years. These are the local derivation; I am not prepared to say to what extent they may be accepted as correct. Doctor Wilson of Bombay thinks the word is taken from yudh to fight, the city of the fighting Chhatris.

Area.- The ancient city of Ajudhia is said to have covered an area of 12 jogan or 48 kos, and to have been the capital of Utar-Kausala or Kosala, (the Northern Treasure) the country of the Surajbans race of Kings, of whom Ram Chundar was 57th in descent from Raja Manu, and of which line Raja Sumintra was the 113th and last. They are said to have reigned through the Suth, Tireta, and Dwapar Jugs, and 2,000 years of the Kul or present Jug or Era.

The description of the Ajudhia of Rama and the Ramayan has been beautifully rendered into verse by the distinguished Principal of the Benares College, Mr. Griffiths.

Her ample streets were nobly planned,
And streams of water flowed,
To keep the fragrant blossoms fresh,
That strewed her royal road.

There many a princely palace stood,
In line, on level ground,
Here temple, and triumphal are,
And rampart banner crowned.

There gilded turrets rose on high,
Above the waving green,

www.vadaprativada.com

Of mango-groves and blooming trees,
And flowery knots between.

On battlement and gilded spire,
The pennon streamed in state;
And warders, with the ready bow,
Kept watch at every gate,

She shone a very mine of gems,
The throne of Fortune's Queen;
So many-hued her gay parterres,
So bright her fountains sheen.

Her dames were peerless for the charm,
Of figure, voice, and face;
For lovely modesty and truth,
And woman's gentle grace.

www.vadaprativada.com

Their husbands, loyal, wise and kind,
Were heroes in the field,
And sternly battling with the foe,
Could die, but never yield.

Each kept his high observances,
And loved one faithful spouse;
And troops of happy children crowned,
With fruit their holy vows.

With the fall of the last of Rama's line, Ajudhia became a wilderness, and the royal race became dispersed even as the Jews. From different members of this dispersed people, the Rajas of Jaipur, Joudhpur, Udeypur, Jambu, &c., of modern times, on the authority of the "Tirhut Kuth-ha," claim to descend. Even in the days of its desertion Ajudhia is said still to have remained a comparative Paradise, for the jungle by which it was over-run, was the sweet-smelling keorah, a plant which to this day flourishes with unusual luxuriance in the neighbourhood.

www.vadaprativada.com

Ban-Oudha.- In less ancient times when waste began to yield to cultivation, it took the name of Ban-Oudha or the Jangle of Oudh. With this period the name of Vikramajit is traditionally and intimately associated, when Budhism again began to give place to Brahminism.

The restoration by Vikramajit.- To him the restoration of the neglected and forest-concealed Ajudhia is universally attributed. His main clue in tracing the ancient city was of course the holy river Sarju, and his next was the shrine still known as Nageshar-nath, which is dedicated to Mahadeo, and which presumably excaped the devastations of the Budhist and atheist periods. With these clues, and aided by descriptions ehich he found recorded in ancient manuscripts , the different identified, and vikramajit is said to have indicated the different shrines to which pilgrims from afar still in ghousands half-yearly flock.

Ramkot.- The most remarkable of those was of course Ramkot the strong-hold of Ramchandar. This fort covered a large extent of ground and according to ancient manuscripts, it was surrounded by 20* bastions, each of which was commanded by one of Rama's famous generals, after whom they took the names by which they are still known. Within the fort were eight royal mansions-!- where dwelt the Patriarch Dasrath, his wives, and Rama his deified son, of whom it has been plaintively sung-

“Lord of all virtues, by no stain defiled,
The king's chief glory was his eldest child,
For he was gallant, beautiful, and strong,
Void of all envy, and the thought of wrong.
With gentle grace to man and child he spoke,
Nor could the churl his harsh reply provoke,
He paid due honor to the gook and sage,
Renowned for virtue and revered for age.
And when at eve his warlike task was o'er,
He sat and listened to their peaceful lore,
Just pure and prudent, full of tender ruth,
The foe of falsehood and the friend of truth;
Kind, slow to anger, prompt at miseries call,
He loved the people, and was loved of all,
Proud of the duties of his warrior race,
His soul was worthy of his princely place.
Resolved to win, by many a glorious deed,
Throned with the gods in heaven, a priceless meed
What thought Brihaspati might hardly vie,
With him in eloquence and quick reply,
Nano heard the music of his sweet lips flow
In idle wrangling or for empty show.
He shunned no toils that student's life befit,
But learned the Vedas and all holy writ;
And even eclipsed his father's archer fame,
So swift his arrow and so sure his aim.

To this praise for virtue his ancient father apparently had no pretension; for we are told that besides the three wives above marginally indicated, who caused him so much anxiety, there were 360 others of whom history says little.* A prodigality of connubial happiness which in modern days found its parallel also in Oudh, in the Kesar Bagh Harem of Wajid Ali Shah.

Note:- The same story and number of wives is also ascribed to Salivahara and Tilokchand.

Samundra Pal Dynasty.- According to tradition Raja Vikramaditta ruled over Ajudhia for 80 years, and at the end of that time he was outwitted by the Jogi Samundra Pal, who having by magic made away with the spirit of the Raja, himself entered into the abandoned body, and he sand his dynasty succeeding to the kingdom they ruled over it for 17 generations or 643 years, which gives an unusual number of years for each reign.

Note:- Ancient Hindu History is sadly mystified by the irrepressible appearance of Vikramditta. Wilford speaks of eight rulers of the name, extending over as many centuries. Something of the same kind may be said of Tilokchand in these parts, for the Bais, Bachgote and Siribastam families all had most prominent rulers of that name.

The Ajudhia Mahatum.- No account of Ajudhia would be complete with did not throw some light on the Ramayan and the Ajudhia Mahatum. Of the former of these works, I need not speak, for through the writings of Wheeler, Cust, Monier Williams &c. most readers are familiar therewith. I will therefore confine my remarks to the Ajudhia Mahatum, which is comparatively unknown.

This work was prepared to the glorification of Ajudhia according to some, by Ikshawaku of the solar race, while others with more probability aver that it is a transcript from the Askundh and Padam Purans, and is not the production of any Raja. Be that as it may it is well that the essence of the work should be made available to the public, and in this view Mr. Woodburn c.s. Has been good enough to make a connected abstract for me, from a literal translation which I had made some years ago. This abstract is given as Appendix B.

Limits of Oudh.- It is not always easy to comprehend what is meant by the Oudh or Ajudhia of ancient times, for that territory has been subjected to many changes. So far as these are known to me, I give them below-

The Oudh of Rama.- Such intelligent natives as Maharaja Man Singh have informed me that at this period Oudh was divided into five portions, thus:- (1) Kosal or Utar Kosala, which included the present Trans-Gogra districts of Gorakhpur, Busti, Gondah and Baraich. (2) Pachhamrath, which included the country between the rivers Gogra dnd Gomti, extending westwards from ajudhia to Nimkhar in Sitapur, (3) Purabrath, or the territory between the same rivers, extending eastwards towards Jaunpur, the limit not being traceable. (4) Arbar being the country around Pertabgurh, lying between the rivers Gomti and Son, probably the same that is still known as Aror or Arwar: and (5) Silliana, which incoluded some portion of the Nepal hills running along the then Oudh frontier.

The Oudh of Akbar.- Mention is made of the title of Subadar of Oudh as early as A.D. 1280, and it was one of the 15 subas or Governorships into which Akbar subdivided the empire in 1590 A.D. The Mahamadan attempt to change the name from Oudh to Akhtarnagar, never seems to have succeeded fully.

The boundaries of the old Suba differed materially from those of the present day, and a large part of what is now the eastern portion of the Province, including tanda, Aldemau, Manikpur, &c.,

www.vadaprativada.com

was not in those days included in Suba Oudh, but in Allahabad. According to the Ain-i-Akbari the Suba then extended from and inclusive of Sirkar Gorakhpur, to Kanouj, and from the Himalayas to Suba Allahabad, 135 kos by 115 kos.

Suba Oudh contained five Sirkars, viz., (1) Oudh ; (2) Lucknow : (3) Baraich ; (4) Khyrabad ; and (5) Gorakhpur. The details of these are given below, but they are only approximately correct, and in regard to some places my information is incomplete.

The Janmasthan and other temples.- It is locally affirmed that at the Mahomedan conquest there were three important Hindu shrines, with but few devotees attached, at Ajudhia which was then little other than a wilderness. These were the "Janmasthan," the "Sargadwar mandir" also known as "Ram Darbar" and the "Tareta-ke-Thakur."

On the first of these the emperor Babar built the mosque which still bears his name, A.D. 1528. On the second Aurangzeb did the same A.D. 1658-1707; and on the third that sovereign, or his predecessor, built a mosque, according to the well known Mahomedan principle of enforcing their religion on all those whom they conquered.

The Janmasthan marks the place where Ram Chandr was born. The Sargadwar is the gate through which he passed into paradise, possibly the spot where his body was burned. The Tareta-ke-Thakur was famous ad the place where Rama performed a great

sacrifice, and which he commemorated by setting up there images of himself add Sita.

Babar's mosque- According to Leyden's memoirs of Babar that emperor encamped at the junction of the Serwa and Gogra rivers two orthree kos east from Ajudhia, on the 28th March 1528, and there he halted 7 or 8 days settling the surrounding country. A well known hunting ground is spoken of in that work, 7 or 8 kos above Oudh, on the banks of the Surju. It is remarkable that in all the copies of Babar's life now known, the pages that relate to his doings at Ajudhia are wanting. In two places in the Babari mosque the year in which it was built 935 H., corresponding with 1528 A.D. is carved in stone, along with inscriptions dedicated to the glory of that emperor.

If Ajudhia was then little other than a wild, it must at least have possessed a fine temple in the Janmasthan; for many of its columns are still in existence and in good preservation, having been used by the Musalmans in the construction of the Babari Mosque. These are of strong close-grained dark slate-colored or black stone, called by the natives Kasoti (literally touch-stone,) and carved with different devices. To my thinking these strongly resemble Budhist pillars that I have seen at Benares and elsewhere. They are from seven to eight feet long, square at the base, centre and capital, and round or octagonal intermediately.

Hindu and Musalman differences.- The Janmasthan is within a few hundred paces of the Hanuman Garhi. In 1855 when a great rupture took place between the Hindus and Mahomedans, the former occupied the Hanuman Garhi in force, while the Musalmans took possession of the Janmastham. The Mahomedans on that occasion actually charged up the steps of the Hanuman Garhi, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then followed up this success, and at the third attempt, took the Janmasthan, at the gate of which 75 Mahomedans are buried in the "Martyrs' grave" (ganj-shahid.) Several of the King's Regiments were looking on all the time, but their orders were not to interfere. It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Mahomedans alike used to worship in the mosque-temple. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which in the mosque the Mahomedans pray, while outside the fence the Hindus have raised a platform on which they make their offerings.

The two other old mosques to which allusion has been made (known by the common people by the same of Nourang Shah, by whom they mean Aurangzeb,) are now mere picturesque ruins. Nothing has been done by the Hindus to restore the old Mandir of "Ram Darbar." The "Tareta-ke-Thakur" was reproduced near the old ruin by the Raja of Kalu, whose estate is said to be in the Punjab, more than two centuries ago; and it was improved upon afterwards by Hilla Bai, Marathin, who also built the adjoining ghat A.D. 1784. She was the widow of Jaswant Rai, Holkar, of Indore, from which family Rs. 231 are still annually received at this shrine.

Thus, on the basis of convincing epigraphical evidence the belief of Hindus and the arguments advanced by Hindus, I am of the view that the city of Ayodhya undeniably is city of great antiquity and sacred spot to the Hindus for a long time. Valmiki Ramayan, Srimad Bhagwat, Mahabhart and Raghuvansham recognised the identity of Ayodhya.

On the basis of record it transpired that on the basis of historical account given by William Finch, William Foster and Tieffen Thaler, it is crystal clear that Hindus were worshipping the site as birth place of Lord Ram as a deity. The aforesaid assertions corroborate that Hindu temple used to exist at the birth place of Lord Ram at Ram Kot. Encyclopaedia Britannica India by Surgeon J.A. Balfour , gazetteer of P. Carnegy and other gazetteers reveal the location of Babri mosque as the site of Ram Janam Bhumi and corroborate the version of William Finch that the pilgrims were offering prayers with a belief that site was the birth place of Lord Ram. Hans Bakker in hi s research work also corroborated the historical version. He also consulted religious books of Hindus and other historical books. I have already referred important extracts of his thesis on the subject . Thus, from the material on record it transpires that site was used to be a temple on Ram Janam Bhumi which was reconstructed in 12$^{th}$ century and the same was demolished. A.S.I. also confirms ruins of 12$^{th}$ century temple. Even the debris of the Babri mosque which were collected on 6.12.1992 proves the existence of Ram Janam Bhumi temple which was considered at the birth spot of Lord Ram. Fourteen Kasauti pillars were taken from the old temple and were used in the construction of the mosque by Muslim on which images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses were engraved. Sita Rasoi and Charan Paduka were identified by Hans Bakker. In this context para 78 of Dr. M Ismail Faruqui and others Vs. Union of India and others 1994(6) SCC 360 is relevant which reads as under:-

"While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for that religion, to make it an essential or integral part of the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially."

Thus, there is overwhelming evidence that the property in suit is site of Ram Janambhumi.It is corroborated by religious records, religious books, judicial records and relevant scriptures . The fact of destruction of Ram Janambhumi temple is also established. This fact is also established that Hindus were worshipping Ram Janambhumi. Revenue records also show entry of Janambhumi, which was not objected by the parties at any point of

time. The first revenue record also refers the place as Janambhumi, probably for the reason that Britishers after investigation and research work of P. Carnegy were satisfied that the place of birth of Lord Ram is site of Babri mosque. William Finch and others also corroborated the version that Hindus were worshipping the site as Ram Janambhumi. Version of William Finch is more acceptable for the reason that according to Muslims the mosque was constructed in the year 1528 while William Finch visited Ayodhya in the early 17th century, that is, about 70 years after the demolition of the temple. Thus, his information and description about the place was based on correct appreciation of facts and on the basis of information based on faith and belief of Hindus, P. Carnegy also acknowledged the work of William Finch and others .

On the basis of the statements of parties it further transpires that there is no dispute between the parties that Lord Ram took birth at Ayodhya. The only dispute is with regard to birth spot. The parties admit the existence of Ram Kot ,i.e. fort of Lord Ram. There is overwhelming evidence that after the destruction of old temple celebration of Ram Naumi was going on at Ayodhya. Even in those days five lakh people used to assemble to celebrate the festival of Ram Naumi. Thus, the circumstantial evidence available on record fully corroborate the report of the ASI and if read in the light of historical account given by William Finch and others leaves no room for doubt that Janambhumi was worshipped along with

Charan Paduka and Sita Rasoi by Hindus. I may further clarify that according to Hindus place of worship may be deemed to be a deity itself with or without any idol. Ritually among Hindus this is considered as a deity at other religious place like Gangotri, Yamnotri,Gaya, Kedar Nath Amaranath etc. Even at Jagannathpuri the deities are changed after 12 years. Even then the place is worshipped like a deity. Thus, without any form or shape the place can also be worshipped without idols. The deities were installed in the inner courtyard on 22/23.12.1949. They are being worshipped by devotees. Thus, the Hindus are worshipping the place in dispute as Ram Janambhumi as a sacred place of pilgrims from time immemorial and idols were also worshipped, firstly at Ram Chabutra and thereafter idols were shifted on 22/23. 12.1949 at birth spot of Lord Rama inside the disputed structure. Thus from Hindu side overwhelming evidence has been produced to establish that the property in suit is site of Janambhumi of Lord Ram. It is also established from record that idols and objects of worship were placed inside the disputed building in the night intervening 22/23-12.1949. Hindus in general and defendants in particular were worshipping Charan Paduka, Sita Rasoi and other idols even after the construction of Babri mosque in the outer courtyard. Hindus were worshipping the place in dispute as a sacred place of birth of Lord Rama in the inner courtyard from times immemorial.

Hindus have proved the existence of temple construed in 12th century at the site of Ram Janambhumi. They have also proved their belief that the place was worshipped like a deity and further proved the fact that after demolition of the temple the mosque was constructed after re-using material and broken part of the temple and the deities.

Lastly, against the tenets of Islam, no mosque can be constructed after demolishing a temple. Further according to the Muslims, inside the mosque there cannot be two spots of worship, one for Hindus and another for Muslims. Thus, temple and mosque cannot co-exist at the disputed spot. Accordingly it is established that even prior to the destruction of Hindu temple which was constructed in 12th century, no mosque can come into existence against the tenets of Islam at the site of birth place of Lord Ram.

It is manifestly established by public record, gazetteers, history accounts and oral evidence that the premises, in dispute, is the place where Lord Ram was born as son of Emperor Dashrath of solar dynasty. According to the traditions and faith of devotees of Lord Ram, the place where He manifested Himself has ever been called as Sri Ram Janmbhumi by all and sundry through ages. Thus, the Asthan, Ram Janambhumi has been an object of worship as a deity by the devotees of Lord Ram as it personifies the spirit of divine worshipped in the form of Ram Lala or Lord Ram, the child. Ram Janmbhumi is also a deity and a juridical person. It is established from evidence that the Hindus worship the divine place in the form of God. The Hindus can mediate upon the formless and shapeless divine. The spirit of Divine is indestructible. Birth place is sacred place for Hindus and Lord Ram, who is said to be incarnation of God, was born at this place. The Hindus since times immemorial and for many generations constantly hold in great esteem and reverence the Ram Janmbhumi where they believe that Lord Ram was born. It is established by tradition and classical legal literature relating to the Hindus and according to their belief and faith that the place is regarded as a deity. This place, according to Hindu religion, is symbol and embodiment of spiritual purpose and the property is dedicated and vested with the Asthan, Janmbhumi. This place being worshipped as idol from times immemorial and dedicated property vests in idol as juristic person. Thus, the place according to the Smirit have to be considered as a deity like Agni and Vayu being worshipped. They are shapeless and formless but they attain the divinity. If the public go for worship and consider that there is divine presence, then it is temple which has already been held by Hon'ble apex court in 1999(5) SCC page 50 Ram Janki Deity Vs. State of Bihar.

In view of Gokul Nath Ji Mahraj Vs. Nathji Bhogilal AIR 1953 Allahabad 552, after the length of time it is impossible to prove by affirmative evidence that there was any consecration ever by faith and belief. It is believed that the place is the place which was considered by all times as a deity and is being worshipped like a deity. Accordingly Asthan is personified as the spirit of divine worshipped as the birth place of Lord Ram.

In view of the discussions, referred to above, it is established that the property in suit is the site of Janm Bhumi of Ram Chandra Ji and Hindus in general and the defendants in particular had the right to worship Charan, Sita Rasoi, other idols and other object of worship existed upon the property in suit. It is also established that Hindus have been worshipping the place in dispute as Janm Sthan i.e. a birth place and visiting it as a sacred place of pilgrimage as a right since times immemorial. After the construction of the disputed structure it is not proved the deities were installed inside the disputed structure before 22/23.12.1949, but the place of birth is a deity. It is also proved that in the outer courtyard was in exclusive possession of Hindus and they were worshipping throughout and in the inner courtyard (in the disputed structure) they were also worshipping. It is also established that the disputed structure cannot be treated as a mosque as it came into existence against the tenets of Islam.

In view of the above findings issues No.11,13,14,19-a and 19-c are decided against the plaintiffs.

ISSUES NO. 16 & 22

16. To what relief, if any, are the plaintiffs or any of them, entitled?

www.vadaprativada.com

22. Whether the suit is liable to be dismissed with special costs?

FINDINGS

These issues are inter related and conveniently be decided at one place. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Dr. Ismail Farooqui Vs. Union of India, 1994 (6) SCC 390, directed this Court to consider the title of the parties. Plaintiffs have claimed title through adverse possession and have also relied upon certain revenue records, which has been discussed while deciding issues by me. Thus, on the basis of revenue record the plaintiffs have failed to establish the title and adverse possession over the property in suit. Plaintiffs have further failed to establish their exclusive possession over the property in suit till 22nd December, 1949. Hon'ble Apex Court upheld the validity of provisions of Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya, 1993 in Dr. Ismail Faruqui case (supra) and held that the Central Government can acquire any place of worship. At para- 78 Apex Court held that the place of birth has a particular significance for Hindus and it should be treated on different footing, which reads as under:-

> "78. While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for that religion, to make it an essential or integral part of the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially."

On behalf of Hindus it is urged that the plaintiffs are not entitled for the relief claimed and as such the relief is barred by the provisions of Section 42 of the Specific Relief Act,1877 which is at par with Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act,1963 on the ground that they have superior fundamental rights. Contentions of Hindus are as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

The Hindus have superior fundamental right than the Muslims under articles 25 & 26 of the Constitution of India for the reasons that performing customary rituals and offering service worship to the lord of universe to acquire merit and to get salvation as such it is integral part of Hindu Dharma & religion in view whereof it is humbly submitted that the instant suit is liable to be dismissed with exemplary cost:

1. In (1998) 8 SCC 296 (Mr. 'X' v. Hospital 'Z'.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that where there is a clash of two Fundamental Rights, the Right which would advance the public morality or public interest would alone be enforced through the process of Court. In other words the superior Fundamental Right would prevail. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the pilgrimage, service and worship as well as performance of customary rituals at Sri Ramjanamsthan which has been described as Babri Mosque in the plaint is integral part of Hinduism as it has been commanded by the Holy Divine Scripture Sri Atharv Ved, the Holy Sacred Scripture Sri Skand Puran & Sri Narsimh Puran, Sri Valmiki Ramayana, The Sacred Religious Book Sri Ramacharitamanasa that the persons must visit the birth place of the Lord of Universe Sri Ram and by doing so they will acquire merit of visiting all the sacred places, performing of all yajnas (sacrifice) and gifting of thousands of cows etc. as also they will get salvation. But in no sacred holy books of Islam it has been mentioned that offering prayer at the birth place of Sri Ram which has been described as Babri Mosque in the plaint is integral part of Islam. As such the Hindus have superior Fundamental Right to enforce through this Hon'ble Court and the instant suit is liable to be dismissed as Sthandil of Sri Ram which is a deity cannot be declared as mosque otherwise it will infringe Fundamental Rights of the Hindus guaranteed under Article 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India. Relevant paragraph nos.44 and 45 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "44. Ms 'Y', with whom the marriage of the appellant was settled, was saved in time by the disclosure of the vital information that the appellant was HIV(+). The disease which is communicable would have been positively communicated to her immediately on the consummation of marriage. As a human being, Ms 'Y'

must also enjoy, as she obviously is entitled to, all the Human Rights available to any other human being. This is apart from, and in addition to, the Fundamental Right available to her under Article 21, which, as we have seen, guarantees "right to life" to every citizen of this country. This right would positively include the right to be told that a person, with whom she was proposed to be married, was the victim of a deadly disease, which was sexually communicable. Since "right to life" includes right to lead a healthy life so as to enjoy all the faculties of the human body in their prime condition, the respondents, by their disclosure that the appellant was HIV(+), cannot be said to have, in any way, either violated the rule of confidentiality or the right of privacy. Moreover, where there is a clash of two Fundamental Rights, as in the instant case, namely, the appellant's right to privacy as part of right to life and Ms 'Y's right to lead a healthy life which is her Fundamental Right under Article 21, the right which would advance the public morality or public interest, would alone be enforced through the process of court, for the reason that moral considerations cannot be kept at bay and the Judges are not expected to sit as mute structures of clay in the hall known as the courtroom, but have to be sensitive, "in the sense that they must keep their fingers firmly upon the pulse of the accepted morality of the day". (See: Allen: Legal Duties)

45. "AIDS" is the product of undisciplined sexual impulse. This impulse, being a notorious human failing if not disciplined, can afflict and overtake anyone howsoever high or, for that matter, how low he may be in the social strata. The patients suffering from the dreadful disease "AIDS" deserve full sympathy. They are entitled to all respect as human beings. Their society cannot, and should not be avoided, which otherwise, would have a bad psychological impact upon them. They have to have their avocation. Government jobs or service cannot be denied to them as has been laid down in some American decisions. (See: School Board of Nassau Country, Florida v. Airline[8]; Chalk v. USDC CD of Cal.[9]; Shuttleworth v. Broward Cty.[10]; Raytheon v. Fair Employment and Housing Commission, Estate of Chadbourne[11]. But "sex" with them or the possibility thereof has to be avoided as otherwise they would infect and communicate the dreadful disease to others. The Court cannot assist that person to achieve that object."

2. In (1994) 6 SCC 360 (M. Ismail Faruqui (Dr.) v. Union of India) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the Right to Practise, Profess and Propagate Religion guaranteed under Article 25 of the Constitution does not extend to the Right of Worship at any and every place of worship so that any hindrance to worship at a particular place per se may infringe the religious freedom guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India. The protection under Articles 25 and 26 is to religious practice which forms integral part of practice of that religion. While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular signifgicance of that religion to make it an essential or integral part of the religion stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that Sri Ramjanamsthan has particular significance for the Hinduism as visiting and performing customary rites confer merit and gives salvation it is firm belief of the Hindus based on their sacred Divine Holy Scriptures which belief neither can be scrutinized by any Court of Law nor can be challenged by the persons having no faith in Hinduism as this is conscience of the Hindus having special protection under Article 25 of the Constitution of India. Relevant paragraph 77 and 78 of the said judgment read as follows:

> 77. It may be noticed that Article 25 does not contain any reference to property unlike Article 26 of the Constitution. The right to practise, profess and propagate religion guaranteed under Article 25 of the Constitution does not necessarily include the right to acquire or own or possess property. Similarly this right does not extend to the right of worship at any and every place of worship so that any hindrance to worship at a particular place per se may infringe the religious freedom guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution. The protection under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution is to religious practice which forms an essential and integral part of the religion. A practice may be a religious practice but not an essential and integral part of practice of that religion.
> 78. While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for that religion, to make it an essential or integral part of the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially.

3. In M. Ismail Faruqui (Dr.) v. Union of India (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that a mosque is not an essential part of the practice of the religion of Islam and namaz (prayer) by Muslims can be offered any where even in open.

www.vadaprativada.com

The Right to Worship is not at any and every place so long as it can be practised effectively, unless the Right to Worship at a particular place is itself an integral part of that right. Relying on said ratio of law it is submitted that without offering prayer at Sri Ramjanamsthan described as Babri mosque in the plaint it can be practised somewhere else but offering prayer in stead of Sri Ramjanamsthan at any other place cannot be practised because the merit which is obtained by worshiping at the birth place of Sri Ram cannot be obtained by doing so at other places and it will be contrary to the holy Divine Sacred Scripture of the Hindus and will cause extinction of a most sacred shrine of the Hindus. Relevant paragraph nos.80 to 87 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "80. It has been contended that a mosque enjoys a particular position in Muslim Law and once a mosque is established and prayers are offered in such a mosque, the same remains for all time to come a property of Allah and the same never reverts back to the donor or founder of the mosque and any person professing Islamic faith can offer prayer in such a mosque and even if the structure is demolished, the place remains the same where the namaz can be offered. As indicated hereinbefore, in British India, no such protection was given to a mosque and the mosque was subjected to the provisions of statute of limitation thereby extinguishing the right of Muslims to offer prayers in a particular mosque lost by adverse possession over that property.
> 81. Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act comprehends the categories of properties known to Indian Law. Article 367 of the Constitution adopts this secular concept of property for purposes of our Constitution. A temple, church or mosque etc. are essentially immovable properties and subject to protection under Articles 25 and 26. Every immovable property is liable to be acquired. Viewed in the proper perspective, a mosque does not enjoy any additional protection which is not available to religious places of worship of other religions.

82. The correct position may be summarised thus. Under the Mahomedan Law applicable in India, title to a mosque can be lost by adverse possession (See Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, 19th Edn., by M. Hidayatullah — Section 217; and Shahid Ganj v. Shiromani Gurdwara[3] 13). If that is the position in law, there can be no reason to hold that a mosque has a unique or special status, higher than that of the places of worship of other religions in secular India to make it immune from acquisition by exercise of the sovereign or prerogative power of the State. A mosque is not an essential part of the practice of the religion of Islam and namaz (prayer) by Muslims can be offered anywhere, even in open. Accordingly, its acquisition is not prohibited by the provisions in the Constitution of India. Irrespective of the status of a mosque in an Islamic country for the purpose of immunity from acquisition by the State in exercise of the sovereign power, its status and immunity from acquisition in the secular ethos of India under the Constitution is the same and equal to that of the places of worship of the other religions, namely, church, temple etc. It is neither more nor less than that of the places of worship of the other religions. Obviously, the acquisition of any religious place is to be made only in unusual and extraordinary situations for a larger national purpose keeping in view that such acquisition should not result in extinction of the right to practise the religion, if the significance of that place be such. Subject to this condition, the power of acquisition is available for a mosque like any other place of worship of any religion. The right to worship is not at any and every place, so long as it can be practised effectively, unless the right to worship at a particular place is itself an integral part of that right.

Maintainability of the Reference

83. In the view that we have taken on the question of validity of the statute (Act No. 33 of 1993) and as a result of upholding the validity of the entire statute, except Section 4(3) thereof, resulting in revival of the pending suits and legal proceedings wherein the dispute between the parties has to be adjudicated, the

www.vadaprativada.com

Reference made under Article 143(1) becomes superfluous and unnecessary. For this reason, it is unnecessary for us to examine the merits of the submissions made on the maintainability of this Reference. We, accordingly, very respectfully decline to answer the Reference and return the same.

Result

84. The result is that all the pending suits and legal proceedings stand revived, and they shall be proceeded with, and decided, in accordance with law. It follows further as a result of the remaining enactment being upheld as valid that the disputed area has vested in the Central Government as a statutory receiver with a duty to manage and administer it in the manner provided in the Act maintaining status quo therein by virtue of the freeze enacted in Section 7(2); and the Central Government would exercise its power of vesting that property further in another authority or body or trust in accordance with Section 8(1) of the Act in terms of the final adjudication in the pending suits. The power of the courts in the pending legal proceedings to give directions to the Central Government as a statutory receiver would be circumscribed and limited to the extent of the area left open by the provisions of the Act. The Central Government would be bound to take all necessary steps to implement the decision in the suits and other legal proceedings and to hand over the disputed area to the party found entitled to the same on the final adjudication made in the suits. The parties to the suits would be entitled to amend their pleadings suitably in the light of our decision.

85. Before we end, we would like to indicate the consequence if the entire Act had been held to be invalid and then we had declined to answer the Reference on that conclusion. It would then result in revival of the abated suits along with all the interim orders made therein. It would also then result automatically in revival of the worship of the idols by Hindu devotees, which too has been stopped from December 1992 with all its ramifications without granting any benefit to the Muslim community whose practice of worship in the mosque (demolished on 6-12-1992) had come to a stop, for whatever reason, since at least December 1949. This situation, unless altered subsequently by any court order in the revived

suits, would, therefore, continue during the pendency of the litigation. This result could be no solace to the Muslims whose feelings of hurt as a result of the demolition of mosque, must be assuaged in the manner best possible without giving cause for any legitimate grievance to the other community leading to the possibility of reigniting communal passions detrimental to the spirit of communal harmony in a secular State.

86. The best solution in the circumstances, on revival of suits is, therefore, to maintain status quo as on 7-1-1993 when the law came into force modifying the interim orders in the suits to that extent by curtailing the practice of worship by Hindus in the disputed area to the extent it stands reduced under the Act instead of conferring on them the larger right available under the court orders till intervention was made by legislation.

87. Section 7(2) achieves this purpose by freezing the interim arrangement for worship by Hindu devotees reduced to this extent and curtails the larger right they enjoyed under the court orders, ensuring that it cannot be enlarged till final adjudication of the dispute and consequent transfer of the disputed area to the party found entitled to the same. This being the purpose and true effect of Section 7(2), it promotes and strengthens the commitment of the nation to secularism instead of negating it. To hold this provision as anti-secular and slanted in favour of the Hindu community would be to frustrate an attempt to thwart anti-secularism and unwittingly support the forces which were responsible for the events of 6-12-1992."

4. AIR 1966 SUPREME COURT 1119 "Shastri Yagnapurushdasji v. Muldas Bhundardas Vaishya" a constitution Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India inferred that according to Hindu Dharma the ultimate goal of humanity is the release and freedom from the unceasing cycle of births and rebirths; Moksha or Nirvana, which is the ultimate aim of Hindu religion and philosophy, represents the state of absolute absorption and assimilation of the individual

soul with the infinite. ‘Acceptance of the Vedas with reverence; recognition of the fact that the means or ways to salvation are diverse; and realisation of the truth that the number of gods to be worshipped is large, that indeed is the distinguishing feature of Hindu religion'. This definition brings out succinctly the broad distinctive features of Hindu religion. Relying on said judgment it is respectfully submitted that as according to the Holy Devine Srimad Atharv- Ved, Sri Skand Puran, Sri Narsimh Puran,Sri Valmiki Ramayan, Sri Ram-charitmanas etc. a Hindu gets salvation on visiting and having a look of Sthandil / Site of ‘Sri Ramjanamsthan’ in Ayodhya as well as by performing customary rituals thereon, pilgrimage to said most holiest place and performing service and worship thereon is integral part of Hinduism guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India deprivation wherefrom would amount to infringement of Fundamental right of freedom of religion of the Hindus and extinction of sacred place of Hiindus which is easiest means of ultimate end of salvation for the Hindus. Relevent paragraph 39-41 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> 39. Whilst we are dealing with this broad and comprehensive aspect of Hindu religion, it may be permissible to enquire what, according to this religion, is the ultimate goal of humanity? It is the release and freedom from the unceasing cycle of

births and rebirths; Moksha or Nirvana, which is the ultimate aim of Hindu religion and philosophy, represents the state of absolute absorption and assimilation of the individual soul with the infinite. What are the means to attain this end? On this vital issue, there is great divergence of views; some emphasise the importance of Gyan or knowledge, while others extol the virtues of Bhakti or devotion; and yet others insist upon the paramount importance of the performance of duties with a heart full of devotion and mind inspired by true knowledge. In this sphere again, there is diversity of opinion, though all are agreed about the ultimate goal. Therefore, it would be inappropriate to apply the traditional tests in determining the extent of the jurisdiction of Hindu religion. It can be safely described as a way of life based on certain basic concepts to which we have already referred.

40. Tilak faced this complex and difficult problem of defining door or at least describing adequately Hindu religion and he evolved a working formula which may be regarded as fairly adequate and satisfactory. Said Tilak: "Acceptance of the Vedas with reverence; recognition of the fact that the means or ways to salvation are diverse; and realisation of the truth that the number of gods to be worshipped is large, that indeed is the distinguishing feature of Hindu religion(11-A)". This definition brings out succinctly the broad distinctive features of Hindu religion. It is somewhat remarkable that this broad sweep of Hindu religion has been eloquently described by Toynbee. Says Toynbee: "When we pass from the plane of social practice to the plane of intellectual outlook. Hinduism too comes out well by comparison with the religions and ideologies of the South-West Asian group. In contrast to these Hinduism has the same outlook as the pre-Christian and pre-Muslim religions and philosophies of the Western half of the old world. Like them, Hinduism takes it for granted that there is more than one valid approach to truth and to salvation and that these different approaches are not only compatible with each other, but are complementary (12)*" > this broad and comprehensive character of Hindu religion; and so, while guaranteeing the fundamental right to freedom of religion, Explanation II to Art. 25 has made it clear that in sub-clause (b) of clause. (2), the reference to Hindus shall be construed as including a reference to persons professing the Sikh, Jaina or Buddhist religion, and the reference to Hindu religious institutions shall be construed accordingly.

5. In AIR 1996 SUPREME COURT 1765 = (1996) 9 SCC 548 "A. S. Narayana Deekshitulu v. State of A.P." the Hon'be Supreme Court held that a religion undoubtedly has its basis in a system of belief and doctrine which are regarded by those who profess religion to be conducive to their spiritual well-being; and religion is not merely an opinion, doctrine or belief. It has outward expression in acts as well. What are essential parts of religion or religious belief or matters of religion and religious practice is essentially a question of fact to be considered in the context in which the question has arisen and the evidence - factual or legislative or historic - presented in that context is required to be considered and a decision reached. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that performing customary rituals and service worship at Sri Ramajanamasthan is integral part of Hindus religious practices but offering prayer on that sacred place is not integral part of Islam. Relevant paragraph 89-91 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "89. A religion undoubtedly has its basis in a system

of beliefs and doctrine which are regarded by those who profess religion to be conducive to their spiritual well-being. A religion is not merely an opinion, doctrine or belief. It has outward expression in acts as well. It is not every aspect of religion that has been safeguarded by Articles 25 and 26 nor has the Constitution provided that every religious activity cannot be interfered with. Religion, therefore, be construed in the context of Articles 25 and 26 in its strict and etymological sense. Every religion must believe in a conscience and ethical and moral precepts. Therefore, whatever binds a man to his own conscience and whatever moral or ethical principle regulate the lives of men believing in that theistic, conscience or religious belief that alone can constitute religion as understood in the Constitution which fosters feeling of brotherhood, amenity, fraternity and equality of all persons which find their foot-hold in secular aspect of the Constitution. Secular activities and aspects do not constitute religion which brings under its own cloak every human activity. There is nothing which a man can do, whether in the way of wearing clothes or food or drink, which is not considered a religious activity. Every mundane or human activity was not intended to be protected by the Constitution under the guise of religion. The approach to construe the protection of religion or matters of religion or religious practices guaranteed by Articles 25 and 26 must be viewed with pragmatism since by the very nature of things, it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to define the expression religion of matters or religion or religious belief or practice.

90. In pluralistic society like India, as stated earlier, there are numerous religious groups who practise diverse forms of worship or practise religions, rituals, rites etc, even among Hindus, different denominates and sects residing within the country or abroad profess different religious faiths, beliefs, practices. They seek to identify religion with what may in substance be mere facets of religion. It would, therefore, be difficult to devise a definition of religion which would be regarded as applicable to all religions or matters of religious practices. To one class of persons a mere dogma or precept or a doctrine may be pre-dominant in the matter of religion; to others, rituals or ceremonies may be predominant facets of religion; and to yet another class of persons a code of conduct or a mode of life may constitute religion. Even to different persons professing the same religious faith some of the facets of religion may have varying significance. It may not be possible, therefore, to devise a precise definition of universal application as to what is religion and what are matters of religious belief or religious practice. That is far from saying that it is not possible to State with reasonable certainty the limits within which the Constitution conferred a right to profess religion. Therefore, the right to religion guaranteed under Article 25 or 26 is not an absolute or unfettered right to propagating religion which is subject to legislation by the State limiting or regulating any activity - economic, financial, political or secular which are associated with religious belief, faith, practice or custom. They are subject to reform on social welfare by appropriate legislation by the State. Though religious practices and performances of acts pursuance of religious belief are as much a part of religion as faith or belief in a particular doctrine, that by itself is not conclusive or decisive. What are essential parts of religion or religious belief or matters of religion and religious practice is essentially a question of fact to be considered in the context in which the question has arisen and the evidence - factual or legislative or historic - presented in that context is required to be considered and a decision reached.

93. The religious freedom guaranteed by Articles 25 and 26, therefore, is intended to be a guide to a community-life and ordain every religion to act according to its cultural and social demands to establish an egalitarian social order. Articles 25 and 26, therefore, strike a balance between the rigidity of right to religious belief and faith and their intrinsic restrictions in matters of religion, religious beliefs and religious practices and guaranteed freedom of conscience to commune with his Cosmos, Creator and realise his spiritual self. Sometimes, practices religious or secular, are intricably mixed up. This is more particularly so in regard to Hindu religion because under the provisions of ancient Samriti, human actions from birth to death and most of the individual actions from day to day are regarded as religious in character in one facet or the other. They sometimes claim the religious system or sanctuary

and seek the cloak of constitutional protection guaranteed by Articles 25 and 26. One, hinges upon constitutional religious model and another diametrically more on traditional point of view. The legitimacy of the true categories is required to be adjudged strictly within the parameters of the right of the individual and the legitimacy of the State for social progress, well-being and reforms, social intensification and national unity. Law is a social engineering and an instrument of social change evolved by a gradual and continuous process. As Banjamin Cardozo has put it in his "Judicial Process," life is not a logic but experience. History and customs, utility and the accepted standards of right conduct are the forms which singly or in combination shall be the progress of law. Which of these forces shall dominate in any case depends largely upon the comparative importance or value of the social interest that will be, thereby, impaired. There shall be symmetrical development with history or custom when history or custom has been the motive force or the chief one in giving shape to the existing rules and with logic or philosophy when the motive power has been theirs. One must get the knowledge just as the legislature gets it from experience and study and reflection in proof from life itself. All secular activities which may be associated with religion but which do not relate or constitute an essential part of it may be amenable to State regulations but what constitutes the essential part of religion may be ascertained primarily from the doctrines of that religion itself according to its tenets, historical background and change in evolved process etc. The concept of essentially is not itself a determinative factor. It is one of the circumstances to be considered in adjudging whether the particular matters of religion or religious practices or belief are an integral part of the religion. It must be decided whether the practices or matters are considered integral by the community itself. Though not conclusive, this is also one of the facets to be noticed. The practice in question is religious in character and whether it could be regarded as an integral and essential part of the religion and if the Court finds upon evidence adduced before it that it is an integral or essential part of the religion, Article 25 accords protection to it. Though the performance of certain duties is part of religion and the person > performing the duties is also part of the religion or religious faith or matters of religion, it is required to be carefully examined and considered to decide whether it is a matter of religion or a secular management by the State. Whether the traditional practices are matters of religion or integral and essential part of the religion and religious practice protected by Articles 25 and 26 is the question. Whether hereditary archaka is an essential and integral part of the Hindu religion is the crucial question?

6. In AIR 1996 SUPREME COURT 1765 = (1996) 9 SCC 548 "A. S. Narayana Deekshitulu v. State of A.P." the Hon'be Supreme Court distinguished between Dharma and religion stating that that the Hindu Dharma is eternal and since time immemorial. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that as the Lord of Sri Ram any protector of Dharma and has shown path of Dharma to the mankind, His Place of Birth has special significance for the Hindus and it is not only part of religious practices but the epicenter of the Hindu Dharma. Relevant paragraph nos. 143 to 148 of the said judgment read as follows:

> " 143. Very often the words "religion" and the same concept or notion; to put it differently, they are used inter-changeably. This, however, is not so, as would become apparent from what is being stated later, regarding our concept of dharma. I am of the considered view that the word religion in the two articles has really been used, not as colloquially understood by the word religion, but in the sense of it comprehending our concept of dharma. The English language having had no parallel word to dharma, the word religion was used in these two articles. it is a different matter that the word dharma has now been accepted even in English language, as would appear from Webster's New Collegiate

Dictionary which has defined it to mean : Dharma : n (Skt. fr. dharayati he holds:) akin to L firmus firm : custom or law regarded as duty : he basic principles of cosmic or individual existence : nature : conformity to one's duty and nature". The Oxford Dictionary to one's duty and nature",. The Oxford Dictionary defines dharma as : "Right behaviour, virtue; the law (Skt. a decree, custom)".

144. The difference between religion and dharma is eloquently manifested when it is remembered that this Court's precept is
It is apparent that the word dharma in this canon or, for that matter, in our saying :
,does not mean religion, but the same has been used in the sense defined in the sense defined in the aforesaid two dictionaries. This is how the President of India, Dr. Shanker Dayal Sharma, understood the word dharma in his address at the First Convocation of the National Law School of India University delivered on 25th September, 1993 at Bangalore.

145. Our dharma is said to be `Sanatana' i. e. one which has eternal values: one which is neither time-bound nor space-bound. It is because of this that Rig veda has referred to the existence `Sanatan Dharmani'. The concept of `dharma', therefore, has been with us for time immemorial. The word is derived from the root`Dh. r' - which denotes : `upholding', supporting', nourishing' and sustaining', It is because of this that in Karna Parva of the Mahabharata, Verse- 58 in Chapter 69 says :
"Dharma is for the stability of the society, the maintenance of social order and the general well-being and progress of human king. Whatever conduces to the fulfillment of these object is Dharma; that is definite."
(This is the English translation of the Verse) as finding place in the aforesaid Convocation Address by Dr. Shanker Dayal Sharma.)

146. The Brhadaranyakopanisad identified Dharma with Truth, and declared its supreme status thus :
" There is nothing higher than dharma. Even a very weak man hopes to prevail over a very strong man on the strength of dharma, just as (he prevails over a wrong-doer) with the help of the King. So what is called Dharma is really Truth. Therefore people say > about a man who declares the truth that he is declaring dharma and about one who declares dharma they say he speaks the truth. These two (dharma and truth) are this."

www.vadaprativada.com

> (English translation of the original text as given in the aforesaid convocation address).
>
> 147. The essential aspect of our ancient thought concerning law was the clear recognition of the supremacy of dharma and the clear articulation of the status of `dharma', which is somewhat akin to the modern concept of the rule of law. i. e. of all being sustained and regulated by it.
> 148. In Verse- 9 of Chapter-5 in the Ashrama Vasika Parva of the Mahabharata, dhritrashtra states to Yudhisthira : "the State can only be preserved by dharma- under the rule of law."

7. AIR 1982 SUPREME COURT 1107 "K. Rajendran v. State of T.N." the Hon'ble Supreme Court has quoted the statement of the Lord of Universe Sri Rama from the Ramayana depicting the attitude of an Indian ruler as an authority. From said judgments it becomes crystal clear that even a statement of the Lord of Sri Rama has greatest value for the Hindus as such the religious value of His Birth place is beyond description. Relevant paragraph 49 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "49. The nature of the relationship that exists or ought to exist between the Government and the people in India is different from the relationship between the ruler and his subjects in the West. A study of the history of the fight for liberty that has been going on in the West shows that it has been a continuous agitation of the subjects for more and more freedom from a king or the ruler who had once acquired complete control over the destinies of his subjects. The Indian tradition or history is entirely different. The attitude of an Indian ruler is depicted

in the statement of Sri Rama in the Ramayana thus :

…….. (Ramayana III-10-3)
(Kshatriyas (the kings) bear the bow (wield the power) in order to see that there is no cry of distress (from any quarter)).”

8. AIR 1998 SUPREME COURT 3164 = (1998) 7 SCC 392 "State of Gujarat v. Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat" the Hon’ble Supreme court has observed that the world would have been poorer without the great epic "Ramayana". From the said judgment it becomes clear that each and every thing connected with the Lord of Universe is of great value to the Hindus and extinction of the most holiest shrine Sri Ramajanamsthan will deprive the Hindus from acquiring un-parallel merit and salvation which can be obtained only by visiting the said sacred shrine and performing customary ritual there. Relevant paragraph 31 of the said judgment reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> “31. It is a grand transformation recorded in the epics that the hunter Valmiki turned out to be a poet of eternal recognition. If the powers which brought about that transformation had remained inactive the world would have been poorer without the great epic "Ramayana". History is replete with instances of bad persons transforming into men of great usefulness to humanity. The causes which would have influenced such swing may be of various kinds. Forces which condemn a prisoner and consign him to the cell as a case of irredeemable character belong to the pessimistic society which lacks the vision to see the innate good in man.”

9. In AIR 1954 SUPREME COURT 282 "Commr., Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Lakshmindra Thirtha

www.vadaprativada.com

Swamiar of Shirur Mutt" the Hon'ble Supreme court held that a religion undoubtedly has its basis in a system of beliefs or doctrines which are regarded by those who profess that religion as conducive to their spiritual well being, but it will not be correct to say that religion is nothing else but a doctrine or belief. A religion may not only lay down a code of ethical rules for its followers to accept, it might prescribe rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which are regarded as integral parts of religion and these forms and observances might extend even to matters of food and dress. The guarantee under the Constitution of India not only protects the freedom of religious opinion but it protects also acts done in pursuance of a religion and this is made clear by the use of the expression "practice of religion" in Art. 25. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that performing customary rites at Sri Ramajanamasthan is integral part of religions practices of the Hindus as Hindus believe that therein there is invisible power of the Lord of Universe Sri Ram who confers merit on devotees and gives them salvation as such said practice is integral part of Hindu Dharma & Religion and is protected under Article 25 & 26 of the constitution of India. Relevant paragraph nos. 17, 18 and 19 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "17. It will be seen that besides the right to manage its own affairs in matters of religion which is given by cl. (b), the next two clauses of Art. 26 guarantee to a religious denomination the right to acquire and own property and to administer such property in accordance with law. The administration of its property by a religious denomination has thus been placed on a different footing from the right to manage its own affairs in matters of religion. The latter is a fundamental right which no Legislature can take away, where as the former can be regulated by laws which the legislature can validly impose. It is clear, therefore, that questions merely relating to administration of properties belonging to a religious group or institution are not matters of religion to which cl. (b) of the Article applies.

What then are matters of religion? The word "religion" has not been defined in the Constitution and it is a term which is hardly susceptible of any rigid definition. In an American case --- -'Vide Davis v. Beason', (1888) 133 US 333 at p. 342 (G), it has been said :

"that the term 'religion' has reference to one's views of his relation to his Creator and to the obligations they impose of reverence for His Being and character and of obedience to His will. It is often confounded with 'cultus' of form or worship of a particular sect, but is distinguishable from the latter."

We do not think that the above definition can be regarded as either precise or adequate. Articles 25 and 26 of our Constitution are based for the most part upon Art 44(2), Constitution of Eire and we have great doubt whether a definition of 'religion' as given above could have been in the minds of our Constitution-makers when they framed the Constitution.

Religion is certainly a matter of faith with individuals or communities and it is not necessarily theistic. There are well known religions in India like Buddhism and Jainism which do not believe in God or in ay Intelligent First Cause. A religion undoubtedly has its basis in a system of belief or doctrines which are regarded by those who profess that religion as conductive to their spiritual well being, but it would not be correct to say that religion is nothing else but a doctrine or belief. A religion may not only lay down a code of ethical rules for its followers to accept, it might prescribe rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which are regarded as integral parts of religion, and

these forms and observances might extend even to matters of food and dress.

18. The guarantee under our Constitution not only protects the freedom of religious opinion but it protects also acts done in pursuance of a religion and this is made clear by the use of the expression "practice of religion' in Art. 25. Latham, C. J. of the High Court of Australia while dealing with the provision of S. 116, Australian Constitution which 'inter alia' forbids the Commonwealth to prohibit the 'free exercise of any religion' made the following weighty observations ---- 'Vide Adelaide Company v. The Commonwealth', 67 CLR 116 at p. 127 (H) :

"It is sometimes suggested in discussions on the subject of freedom of religion that, though the civil government should not, interfere with religious 'opinions', it nevertheless may deal as it pleases with any 'acts' which are done in pursuance of religious belief without infringing the principle of freedom of religion. It appears to me to be difficult to maintain this distinction as relevant to the interpretation of S. 116. The Section refers in express terms to the 'exercise' of religion, and therefore it is intended to protect from the operation of any Commonwealth laws acts which are done in the exercise of religion. Thus the Section goes far beyond protecting liberty of opinion. It protects also acts done in pursuance of religious belief as part of religion".

These observations apply fully to the protection of religion as guaranteed by the Indian Constitution. Restrictions by the State upon free exercise of religion are permitted both under Arts. 25 and 26 on grounds of public order, morality and health. Clause (2) (a) of Art. 25 reserves the right of the State to regulate or restrict any economic, financial, political and other secular activities which may be associated with religious practice and there is a further right given to the State by sub-cl. (b).under which the State can legislate for social welfare and reform even though by so doing it might interfere with religious practices. The learned Attorney-General lays stress upon cl (2) (a) of the Article and his contention is that all secular activities, which may be associated with religion but do not really constitute an essential part of it, are amenable to State regulation.

19. The contention formulated in such broad terms

> cannot, we think be supported, in the first place, what constitutes the essential part of a religion is primarily to be ascertained with reference to the doctrines of that religion itself. If the tenets of any religious sect of the Hindus prescribe that offerings of food should be given to the idol at particular hours of the day, that periodical ceremonies should be performed in a certain way at certain periods of the year or that there should be daily recital of sacred texts or oblations to the sacred fire, all these would be regarded as parts of religion and the mere fact that they involve expenditure of money or employment of priests and servants or the use of marketable commodities would not make them secular activities partaking of a commercial or economic character; all of them are religious practices and should be regarded as matters of religion within the meaning of Art. 26(b). …"

10. In AIR 1954 SUPREME COURT 282 "Commr., Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras v. Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Shirur Mutt" the Hon'ble Supreme court held that Under Art. 26(b), therefore, a religious denomination or organisation enjoys complete autonomy in the matter of deciding as to what rites and ceremonies are essential according to the tenets of the religion they hold and no outside authority has any jurisdiction to interfere with their decision in such matters and ; under Art. 26(d), it is the fundamental right of a religious denomination or its representative to administer its properties in accordance with law; and the law, therefore, must leave the right of administration to the religious denomination itself subject to such restrictions and regulations as it might choose to impose. A law which takes away the right of administration from the hands of a religious denomination altogether and vests it in any other authority would amount to a violation of the right guaranteed under cl. (d) of Art. 26. Relying on said ratio of law it is submitted that prohibiting the Hindus from performing their customary religious rituals at Sri Ramajanamasthan which has been described as Babari Mosque and not handing over management of the said sacred shrine of the Hindus shall infringe fundamental rights of the Hindus guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 of the constitution of India. Relevant paragraph 22 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> " 22. It is to be noted that both in the American as well as in the Australian Constitution the right to freedom of religion has been declared in unrestricted terms without any limitation whatsoever. Limitations, therefore, have been introduced by courts of law in these countries on grounds of morality, order and social protection, An adjustment of the competing demands of the interests of Government and constitutional liberties is always a delicate and difficult task and that is why we find difference of judicial opinion to such an extent in cases decided by the American courts where questions of religious freedom were involved.
> Our Constitution-makers, however, have embodie the limitations which have been evolved by judicial pronouncements in America or Australia in the Constitution itself and the language of Arts. 25 and 26 is sufficiently clear to enable us to determine without the aid of foreign authorities as to what matters come within the purview of religion and what do not. As we have already indicated, freedom of religion in our Constitution is not confined to religious beliefs only, it extends to religious practices as well subject to the restrictions which the Constitution itself had laid down. Under Art. 26(b), therefore a religious denomination or organization > enjoys complete autonomy in the matter of deciding as to what rites and ceremonies are essential according to the tenets of the religion they hold and no outside authority has any jurisdiction to interfere with their decision in such matters.

>
> Of course, the scale of expenses to be incurred in connection with these religious observances would be a matter of administration of property belonging to the religious denomination and can be controlled by secular authorities in accordance with any law laid down by a competent legislature, for it could not be the injunction of any religion to destroy the institution and its endowments by incurring wasteful expenditure on rites and ceremonies. It should be noticed, however, that under Art. 26 (d), it is the fundamental right of a religious denomination or its representative to administer its properties in accordance with law, and the law, therefore, must leave the right of administration to the religious denomination itself subject to such restrictions and regulations as it might choose to impose.
> A law which takes away the right of administration from the hands of a religious denomination altogether and vests it in any other authority would amount to a violation of the right guaranteed under cl. (d) of Art 26."

11. AIR 2004 SUPREME COURT 2984 = (2004) 12 SCC 770 "Commr. of Police v. Acharya Jagadishwarananda Avadhuta"

It is settled law that protection under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India extend guarantee for rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which form part and parcel of religion. Practice becomes part of religion only if such practice is found to be essential and integral part. It is only those practices which are integral part of religion that are protected. What would constitute an essential part of religion or religious practice is to be determined with reference to the Doctrine of a particular religion which includes practices which are regarded by the Community as part and parcel of that religion. Test has to be applied by Courts whether a particular religious practice is regarded by the community practicing that particular practice is integral part of the religion or not. It is also necessary to decide whether the particular practice is religious in character or not and whether the same can be regarded as an integral or essential part of religion which has to be decided based on evidence. Many symbols have been used in Hindu Literature. Different kinds of symbols and images have different sanctity. Brading of chest, arms and other parts of body represent to the weapons of symbols of Siva. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that being Shartric (Scriptural) command visiting Sri Ramajanamasthan and performing service worship there is integral part of religion of Hindus but it is not integral part of Muslim religion as such instant suit is liable to be dismissed. Relevant paragraph nos. 80 to 86 read as follows:

> "80. It would be pertinent to mention that the Sikh Community carry "Kirpans" as a symbol of their religious practice and the Gurkhas the "Kukris" or "Dagger". So also, the Hindus are permitted to carry the idol of "Ganesa" in procession before immersion in the sea during Vinayaka Chaturti Celebrations. Persons professing Islamic Faith are allowed to take out procession during "Moharrum" Festival and persons participating in such processions beat their chest with hands and chains and inflict injuries on them and the same has been permitted as a religious practice of that community.

81. Each deity presides over a certain function, has a certain consort, uses a particular vehicle, giving them a concrete aspect that appeals to less spiritually sophisticated lay people. All these insignia have a deep philosophical symbolism. What might interest us presently is that all these vehicles are mostly drawn from the world of animals, birds, and even reptiles. For example, Brahma has a swan, Vishnu has a garuda, a type of eagle, Siva rides a bull, Ganesa a mouse, Subrahmanya a peacock, and so on. The idea is only to emphasize the kinship with animals. Trees have the divinity Vanadevata. War is presided over by the Goddess Chemundi riding a lion. Sound has a divinity, the Nadabrahmam. The Goddess Saraswathi presides over music and arts. Lakshmi sitting on a lotus deals with wealth. Parvathi, the consort of Siva, rules the entire Nature. All these divinities serve to consecrate every aspect of daily life. The whole pantheon serves to emphasize the one ultimate Reality.

82. Reading and reciting old scriptures, for instance, Ramayana or Quran or Bible or Gurur Granth Sahib is as much a part of religion as offering food to deity by a Hindu or bathing the idol or dressing him and going to a temple, mosque, church or gurudwara. . . .

www.vadaprativada.com

83. The authorities concerned can step in and take preventive measures in the interest of maintenance of Law and Order if such religious processions disturb Law and Order. It has to be held that the right to carry Trishul, Conch or Skull is an integral and essential part of religious practice and the same is protected under Article 25 of the Constitution of India. However, the same is subject to the right of the State to interfere with the said practice of carrying Trishul, Conch or Skull if such procession creates Law and Order problems requiring intervention of concerned authorities who are entrusted with the duty of maintaining Law and Order.

What is Religion

84. Religion is a social system in the name of God laying down the Code of Conduct for the people in Society. Religion is a way of life in India and it is an unending discovery into unknown world. People living in Society have to follow some sort of religion. It is a social Institution and Society accepts

religion in a form which it can easily practice. George Barnard Shaw stated, "There is nothing that people do not believe if only it be presented to them as Science and nothing they will not disbelieve if it is presented to them as Religion." Essentially, Religion is based on "Faith". Some critics say that Religion interfered with Science and Faith. They say that religion led to the growth of blind faith, magic, sorcery, human sacrifices etc. No doubt, history of religion shows some indications in this direction but both Science and Religion believe in faith. Faith in Religion influences the temperament and attitude of the thinker. Ancient civilization viz., the Indus Valley Civilization shows faith of people in Siva and Sakthi. The period of Indus Valley Civilization was fundamental religion and was as old as at least Egyptian and Mesopotamian Culture. People worship Siva and the Trishul (Trident), the emblem of Siva which was engraved on several seals. People also worshipped stones, trees, animals and Fire. Besides, worship of stones, trees, animals etc. by the primitive religious tribes shows that animism viz., worship of trees, stones, animals was practiced on the strong belief that they were abodes of spirits, good or evil. Modern Hinduism is to some extent includes Indus Valley Civilization Culture and religious faith. Lord Siva is worshipped in the form of Linga. Many symbols have been used in Hindu Literature. Different kinds of symbols and images have different sanctity. Brading of chest, arms and other parts of body represent to the weapons of symbols of Siva. Modern Hinduism has adopted and assimilated various religious beliefs of primitive tribes and people. The process of worship has undergone various changes from time to time.

85. The expression of 'RELIGION' has not been defined in the Constitution and it is incapable of specific and precise definition. Article 25 of the Constitution of India guarantees to every person, freedom of conscience and right freely to profess, practice and propagate religion. No doubt, this right is subject to public order related to health and morality and other provisions relating to Fundamental Right. Religion includes worship, faith and extends to even rituals. Belief in religion is belief of practice a particular faith, to preach and to profess it. Mode of worship is integral part of religion. Forms and observances of religion may extend to matters of Food and Dress. An act done in furtherance to religion is protected. A person believing in a particular religion has to express his brief in such acts which he thinks proper and to propagate his religion. It is settled law that protection under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India extend guarantee for rituals and rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which form part and parcel of religion. Practice becomes part of religion only if such practice is found to be essential and integral part. It is only those practices which are integral part of religion that are protected. What would constitute an essential part of religion or religious practice is to be determined with reference to the Doctrine of a particular religion which includes practices which are regarded by the Community as part and parcel of that religion. Test has to be applied by Courts whether a particular religious practice is regarded by the community practising that particular practice is integral part of the religion or not. It is also necessary to decide whether the particular practice is religious in character or not and whether the same can be regarded as an integral or essential part of religion which has to be decided based on evidence.

86. It is not uncommon to find that those delve deep into scriptures to ascertain the character and status of a particular practice. It has been authoritatively laid down that Cow Sacrifice is not an obligatory over-act for a Muslim to exhibit his religious belief. No Fundamental Right can be claimed to insist on slaughter of a healthy cow on a Bakrid Day. Performance of "Shradha" and offering of "Pinda" to ancestors are held to be an integral part of Hindu Religion and religious practice. Carrying "Trishul" or "Trident" and "skull" by a few in procession to be taken out by a particular community following a particular religion is by itself an integral part of religion. When persons following a particular religion carry Trishul, Conch or Skull in a possession, they merely practice which is part of their religion which they wanted to propagate by carrying symbols of their religions such as Trishul, Conch etc. If the conscience of a particular community has treated a particular practice as an integral or essential part of religion, the same is protected by Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India.”

12. In AIR 1969 SUPREME COURT 563 "Kamaraju Venkata Krishna Rao v. Sub-Collector, Ongole" the Hon’ble Supreme court held that the entire objects of Hindu endowments will be found included within the enumeration of Ishta and Purta works. In the Rig Veda I*shtapurttam* (sacrifices and charities) are described as means of the going to heaven. In commenting on the same passage Sayana explained Ishtapurtta to denote "the gifts bestowed in Srauta and Smarta rites." In the Taittiriya Aranyaka, Ishtapurtta occur in much the same sense and Sayana in commenting on the same explains Ishta to denote "Vedic rites like Darsa, Purnamasa etc." and Purta "to denote Smarta works like tanks, wells etc." From the aforesaid judgment it is crystal clear that service worship of the Deities comes within the definition of Ishta as such depriving Hindus to worship at Sri Ramjanamsthan on Sthandil would amount to depriving them from the result of Ishta i.e. ultimate goal of salvation at the cost of less expenditure and less efforts. In view of such religious belief of the Hindus the Suit primises is not fit for being declared as mosque it is respectfully submitted.Relevant extract from para 6 of the said judgement reads as follows:

> “6. … …. "From very ancient times the sacred writing of the Hindus divided works productive of religious merit into two divisions named ishta and purta a classification which has come down to our times. So much so that the entire objects of Hindu endowments will be found included within the enumeration of ishta and purta works. In the Rig Veda ishtapurttam (sacrifices and charities) are described as means of the going to heaven. In commenting on the same passage Sayana explained ishtapurtta to denote "the gifts bestowed in srauta and amarka rites." In the Taittiriya Aranyaka, ishtapurtta occur in much the same sense and Sayana in commenting on the same explains ishta to denote "Vedic rites like Darsa, Purnamasa etc." and purta "to denote Smarkta works like tanks, wells etc." … “

13. IN AIR 1995 SUPREME COURT 1531 = (1995) 3 SCC 635 "Sarla Mudgal, President, Kalyani v. Union of India" the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that religion is more than mere matter of faith. The Constitution by guaranteeing freedom of conscience ensured inner aspects of religious belief. And external expression of it were protected by guaranteeing right to freely practice and propagate religion. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that as the Suit premises is the Birth Place of the Lord of Universe Sri Rama and his invisible power is present in the said Sthandil the Hindus have superior fundamental right to worship at that sacred place according to injunctions of their Sacred Scriptures in comparison to the fundamental right of the Muslims to offer their prayer at that place which in not integral part of Muslim religion. Relevant paragraph 43 of the said judgment reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "43. When Constitution was framed with secularism as its deal and goal, the consensus and conviction to be one, socially, found its expression in Article 44 of the Constitution. But religious freedom, the basic foundation of secularism, was guaranteed by Articles 25 to 28 of the Constitution. Article 25 is very widely worded. It guarantees all persons, not only freedom of conscience but the right to profess, practice and propagate religion. What is religion? Any faith or belief. The Court has expanded religious liberty in its various phases guaranteed by the Constitution and extended it to practices and even external overt acts of the individual. Religion is more than mere matter of faith. The Constitution by guaranteeing freedom of conscience ensured inner aspects of religious belief. And external expression of it were protected by guaranteeing right to freely practice and propagate religion. Reading and reciting holy scriptures, for instance, Ramayana or Quran or Bible or Guru Granth Sahib is as much a part of religion as offering food to deity by a Hindu or bathing the idol or dressing him and going to a temple, mosque, church or gurudwara."

www.vadaprativada.com

14. In AIR 1962 SUPREME COURT 853 "Sardar Syedna Taher Saifuddin Saheb v. State of Bombay" held that the protection of Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India is not limited to matters of doctrine or belief, they extend also to acts done in pursuance of religion and therefore contain a guarantee for rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which are integral parts of religion as also that what constitutes an essential part of a religion or religious practice has to be decided by the courts with reference to the doctrine of a particular religion and practices which are regarded by the community as a part of its religion.

www.vadaprativada.com

> "34. The content of Arts. 25 and 26 of the Constitution came up for consideration before this Court in 1954 SCR 1005 : (AIR 1954 S.C. 282), Ramanuj Das v. State of Orissa 1954 SCR 1046 : (AIR 1954 SC 400), 1958 SCR 895 : (AIR 1958 S.C. 255); (Civil Appeal No. 272 of 1960 D/- 17-3-1961 : (AIR 1961 SC 1402), and several other cases and the main principles underlying these provisions have by these decisions been placed beyond controversy. The first is that the protection of these articles is not limited to matters of doctrine or belief, they extend also to acts done in pursuance of religion and therefore contain a guarantee for rituals and observances, ceremonies and modes of worship which are integral parts of religion. The second is that what consitutes an essential part of a religion or religious practice has to be decided by the courts with reference to the doctrine of a particular religion and include practices which are regarded by the community as a part of its religion."

15. In Pannalal Bansilal Pitti v. State of A.P., (1996) 2 SCC 498, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that the Hindus are majority in population and Hinduism is a major religion. While Articles 25 and 26 granted religious freedom to minority religions like Islam, Christianity and Judaism, they do not intend to deny the same guarantee to Hindus. Relying on said judgement it is most respectfully and humbly submitted that this Hon'ble Court would be pleased to dismiss the instant Suit and to protect the integral part of religious and customary practices of the Hindus i.e. their right to offer service and worship to the Lord of Universe Sri Ramlala's Idol & Sthandil at Sri Ramajanamasthan which has been described as Babari Mosque in the plaint otherwise the superior fundamental right of the Hindus shall be infringed and they shall suffer with irreparable loss and injury which cannot be compensated in any manner whatsoever and justice shall suffer adversely. Relevant paragraph 26 and 27 of the said judgment read as follows:

> 26. Hindus are majority in population and Hinduism is a major religion. While Articles 25 and 26 granted religious freedom to minority religions like Islam, Christianity and Judaism, they do not intend to deny the same guarantee to Hindus. Therefore, protection under Articles 25 and 26 is available to the people professing Hindu religion subject to the law therein. The right to establish a religious and charitable institution is a part of religious belief or faith and, though law made under clause (2) of Article 25 may impose restrictions on the exercise of that right, the right to administer and maintain such institution cannot altogether be taken away and vested in other party; more particularly, in the officers of a secular Government. The administration of religious institution or endowment or specific endowment being a secular activity, it is not an essential part of religion and, therefore, the legislature is competent to enact law, as in Part III of the Act, regulating the administration and governance of the religious or charitable institutions or endowment. They are not part of religious practices or customs. The State does not directly undertake their administration and expend any public money for maintenance and governance thereof. Law regulates appropriately for efficient management or administration or governance of charitable and Hindu religious institutions or endowments or specific endowments, through its officers or officers appointed under the Act.
> 27. The question then is whether legislative declaration of the need for maintenance, administration and governance of all charitable and Hindu religious institutions or endowments or specific endowments and taking over the same and vesting the management in a trustee or board of trustees is valid in law. It is true, as rightly contended by Shri P.P. Rao, that the legislature acting on the material collected by Justice Challa Kondaiah Commission amended and repealed the predecessor Act of 1966 and brought the Act on statute. Section 17 of the predecessor Act of 1966 had given power to a hereditary trustee to be the chairman of the board of non-hereditary trustees. Though abolition of hereditary right in trusteeship under Section 16 has already been upheld, the charitable and religious institution or endowment owes its existence to the founder or members of the family who would resultantly evince greater and keener responsibility and interest in its proper and efficient management and governance. The autonomy in this behalf is an assurance to achieve due fulfilment of the objective with which it was founded unless, in due course, foul in its > management is proved. Therefore, so long as it is properly and efficiently managed, he is entitled to due freedom of management in terms of the deed of endowment or established practice or usage. In case a board of trustees is constituted, the right to preside over the board given to the founder or any member of his family would generate feelings to actively participate, not only as a true representative of the source, but the same would also generate greater influence in proper and efficient management of the charitable or religious institution or endowment. Equally, it enables him to persuade other members to follow the principles, practices, tenets, customs and sampradayams of the founder of the charitable or religious institution or endowment or specific endowment. Mere membership along with others, many a times, may diminish the personality of the member of the family. Even in case some funds are needed for repairs, improvement, expansion etc., the board headed by the founder or his family member may raise funds from the public to do the needful, while the executive officer, being a government servant, would be handicapped or in some cases may not even show interest or inclination in that behalf. With a view, therefore, to effectuate the object of the religious or charitable institution or endowment or specific endowment and to encourage establishment of such institutions in future, making the founder or in his absence a member of his family to be a chairperson and to accord him major say in the management and governance would be salutary and effective. The founder or a member of his family would, thereby, enable to effectuate the proper, efficient and effective management and governance of charitable or religious institution or endowments or specific endowment thereof in future. It would add incentive to establish similar institutions.

Thus, in view of my findings on issues, referred to above, plaintiffs are not entitled for the relief claimed and the suit is liable to be dismissed, but defendants have failed to point out the circumstances under which they are entitled for special costs.

Judgment delivered by
Hon'ble Dharam Veer Sharma, J.

This suit was initially filed by Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya also called Bhagwan Sri Rama Lala Virajman represented by the then next friend, Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwala, Asthan Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya represented by next friend Sri D. N. Agarwal and Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwala for a declaration that the entire premises of Sri Ram Janma Bhumi at Ayodhya as described and delineated in Annexures 1 and 2 belong to the plaintiff's deities and for a perpetual injunction against the defendants prohibiting them from interfering with, or raising any objection to, or placing any obstruction in the construction of the new temple building at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi after demolishing and removing the existing buildings and structures etc. situate there at, in so far as it may be necessary or expedient to do so for the said purpose. After the death of Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwal, Sri T. P. Verma was substituted as next friend and after his removal Sri Triloki Nath Pandey has been substituted as next friend of plaintiffs no.1 and 2 and defendant no.3 in place of Sri T.P. Verma.

According to the plaint allegations the plaintiffs no. 1 and 2

www.vadaprativada.com

,namely, Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya also called Sri Ram Lala Virajman, and the Asthan Sri Rama Janama Bhumi, Ayodhya, with the other idols and places of worship situate thereat, are juridical persons with Bhagwan Sri Rama as the presiding Deity of the place. The plaintiff no.3 is a Vaishnava Hindu, and seeks to represent the Deity and the Asthan as a next friend.

The place Sri Rama Janma Bhumi is too well known at Ayodhya need not any description for purposes of identification of the subject matter of dispute in this plaint. Two site plans of the building premises and of the adjacent area known as Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, prepared by Sri Shiv Shankar Lal pleader in the discharge of his duty as a commissioner appointed by the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad, in Suit No.2 of 1950: Sri Gopal Singh Visharad Versus Sri Zahur Ahmad and Others; along with his report dated 25.5.1950, are being annexed to the plaint and made part of it as Annexures I and II respectively. The Suit No.2 of 1950 was filed on 16.1.1950, by Sri Gopal Singh Visharad against Zahoor Ahmad and other persons. The plaintiff of that suit died recently and his name has been substituted by his son, who has been impleaded as plaintiff No.1/1 in this suit. The five defendants of the suit are dead and their names struck off under the order of this Court. Therefore, they have not been impleaded as defendants no. 7 to 10 respectively in this suit also. In the above suit relief claimed was for a declaration that the plaintiff was entitled to perform the Puja and to have Darshan of Bhagwan Ram Chandra and others Virajman at Asthan Janma Bhumi without any hindrance, dispute or interruption and the permanent injunction restraining the defendant and their successors from ever removing the idols of Sri Bhagwan Ram Chandra and others Virajman at Asthan Janma Bhumi from the place where they were, or closing the entrance gate or other passages of ingress and egress, and from interfering or disturbing the Puja or Darshan in any manner whatsoever, was also claimed.

Suit No.25 of 1950, was filed a few months later, by Paramhans Ramchandra Das. This suit has been withdrawn by the plaintiff and the third suit being suit no.26 of 1959 was thereafter filed in the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad by the Nirmohi Akhara, Ayodhya, who has been impleaded as defendant no.3 in this suit, claiming the relief of removal of Babu Priya Dutt Ram, defendant no.1 thereto from the management and charge of the temple of Janma Bhumi with the idol of Lord Ram Chandra and others installed therein. Babu Priya Dutt was appointed as a Receiver in the year 1950 by the City Magistrate, Faizabad in a proceeding under Section 145 of the Cr.P.C. 1898. The defendants No. 2 to 5 of this suit are defendants no. 7 to 10 of this suit. The other defendants have died and their legal representatives have not been brought on the record obviously because the cause of action did not survive against them.

Suit no. 12 of 1961 was thereafter filed by the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P., and 8 other on 18.12.1961 in the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad. The reliefs claimed were (a) A declaration that the property indicated by the letters A B C D in the sketch map annexed to the plaint is a “public mosque commonly known as 'Babri Masjid', and that the land adjoining the mosque shown in the sketch map by letters E F G H is a public Muslim “graveyard”, and (b) “for delivery of possession of the mosque and graveyard in suit by removal of the idols and other articles which the Hindus may have placed in the mosque as objects of their worship”. The Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. is being impleaded as Defendant No.4 in this suit

and of the remaining plaintiffs of that suit, the only surviving plaintiffs No. 7 and 9 are being impleaded as Defendants No. 5 and 6 hereto. Of the defendants to that suit, the legal representatives of defendants no. 1, 13 and 15, who have been impleaded therein, are being impleaded as Defendants no.1, 14 and 16 respectively in this suit. The surviving defendants no. 2,3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 14, 17, 18 and 19 of that suit, are being impleaded as defendants no. 2, 3, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 15, 17, 18 and 19 respectively herein. Remaining defendants no.4 and 16 have died and have been left out.

It has further been averred in the plaint that the order dated 8.8.1962 of the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad, in Suit No.12 of 1961, the plaintiffs thereof were permitted to sue, on behalf of the entire Muslim community, the defendants no.1 to 4 therein as representatives of, and for the benefit of the entire Hindu community. Of them, defendant no.4 has since died. Defendants no. 10 to 19 were impleaded therein later, on their own request of themselves. Defendant no.16 has since died, their legal representatives have not been impleaded in that suit. They have, therefore, been left out in this suit. By an order dated 4.8.1951, suits no. 2 and 25 of 1950 were consolidated together and by an order dated 6.1.1964 all the suits were consolidated and Suit No.12 of 1961 was made the leading case. In suit no.2 of 1950 an ad-interim injunction was issued on 16.1.1950 in the terms prayed for but on an application made by the Defendant District Magistrate, the ad-interim injunction was modified on 19.1.1950 to read as under:

> “The parties are hereby restrained by means of temporary injunction to refrain from removing the idols in question from the site in dispute and from interfering with Puja etc. as at present carried on.”

www.vadaprativada.com

This order was confirmed by order dated 3.3.1951 in the following terms:-

> " the interim injunction order dated 16.1.50 as modified on 19.1.50 shall remain in force until the suit is disposed of."

A first appeal from that order, being F.A.F.O No. 154 of 1951, in the High Court at Allahabad, was dismissed by judgment dated 26.4.1955. The Interim injunction continues to remain in force, ever since down to the present day. The plaintiffs went on to aver that more than 25 years ago issues were framed but hearing has not yet commenced. The Sewa and Puja of the plaintiff Deities has in the meanwhile been looked after by a Receiver, to begin with by Babu Priya Dutt Ram, appointed by the City Magistrate and later by Sri K.K. Ram Verma, who worked upto 1970 onwards. He was discharged by the Court of the IIIrd Additional District Judge, Faizabad, by order dated 25.8.1988. Sri L.P.N. Singh was appointed Receiver, who functioned upto 22.11.1988, when by an order of that date Sri Jamuna Prasad Singh was appointed as a Receiver. It was expected that the suits would be disposed of soon after consolidation of the above suits. But for one reason or another, they continued to remain pending, and still continue to remain pending, with a dim prospect of their immediate hearing. Defendant no.20 moved an application in the interest of worshippers, with the prayers for allowing a closer Darshan in the Court of the Munsif Sadar, Faizabad, who refused to pass orders but on appeal therefrom, the court of the District Judge, Faizabad by an order dated 1.2.1986 directed the authorities to remove the barrier by opening the locks on the gates O and P shown in the map.

The plaintiff deities and their devotees are extremely unhappy

with the prolonged delay in the hearing and disposal of the said suits, and are not satisfied with the working of the Receiver. It is believed that a large portion of the money offered by the worshippers is being misappropriated by the Pujaries and other Temple staff, and the receiver has not controlled the same. The devotees of the plaintiff's deities are desirous of having a new temple constructed, befitting of their pristine glory, after removing the old structure at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya.

In order to improve the temple administration and to reconstruct a new temple at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, the sacred duty of managing and performing the Sewa, Archana and Puja of the plaintiff's deities and the task of protecting, renovating, reconstructing and developing the Temple premises, in short, of managing all their estate and all their affairs, was entrusted, by unanimous public opinion, to Jagadguru Ramanandacharya Swami Shivaramacharaya of Kashi, who was the head of the Ramananda Sampradaya to which most of the Sadhus and Vairagis of Ayodhya belong. The Trust was formally declared by the Hindu public by a deed of trust dated 18.12.1985 and registered the same day by Sub-Registrar, S.D.No.1, at Delhi vide No. 16510 in Additional Book No.4, Volume 1156, at pages 64 to 69. A copy of the said Deed of Trust is annexed to and made part of the plaint as Annexure III.

The said Trust Deed apart from declaring himself to be the First Trustee for life and the Pramukh and Dharmakarta of the Trust, which was named Sri Swami Shivaramacharya, and other persons were also made trustees, Sri Vishnu Hari Dalmia, named the Treasurer and Sri Ashok Singhal the Managing Trustee, the power was given to the Marga Darshak Mandal of the Vishva Hindu Parisahd to nominate 4

Trustees who are Mahatmas from different parts of India, and to its Governing Council to nominate 10 Trustees from among eminent Hindu citizens of India, and in exercise of the said power four persons were appointed Trustees from among the Mahatmas and from among Hindu citizens of India. Sri justice Shiv Nath Katju, Retired Judge, High Court, Allahabad, Sri Justice Deoki Nandan Agarwala, Retired Judge of same Court, Allahabad, Rajmata Srimati Vijae Raje Scindhia of Gwalior, Sri Satish Chandra Dikshit, Retired Director General of Police, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow and Sri Badri Prasad Toshniwal, Industrialist, New Delhi were made trustees. Further Jagadguru Ramanandacharya Swami Shivaramacharya of Kashi who was the Pramukh and Dharmakarta of the Nyas and Paramhans Mahant Ramchandra Dasji Maharaj of Digambar Akhara, Ayodhya are acting as a Pramukh and Dharmkarta of the Nyas. Sant Pravar Prabhu Duttji Brahamchari, of Sankirtan Bhawan Jhusi, died after the institution of the suit. Two vacancies among the trustees from among the Mahatmas have been filled up with Veetraag Sant Paramhans Pujya Swami Vamdeoji Maharaj and Mahant Dharma Dasji Maharaj were appointed trustees. From among the eminent Hindu citizens of India, four persons, namely, Moropant Pingle, Sri Brahma Deoji, Sri Surya Krishnaji and Sri Yashuvant Bhai Bhatt have been appointed trustees.

It has further been averred that Sri Rama Janma Bhumi Nyas is directly interested in the Seva, Puja and other affairs of the plaintiff deities. It is being impleaded as defendant no.21 in this suit.

Although the aforesaid suits have been pending trial for such an extraordinarily long number of years, they are inadequate and cannot result in a settlement of the dispute which led to their institution or the problems arising there from, inasmuch as neither the presiding Deity of Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman nor the Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, the plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 herein, who are both juridical persons, were impleaded therein, although they have a distinct personality of their own, separate from their worshippers and sewaks, and some of the actual parties thereto, who are worshippers, are to some extent involved in seeking to gratify their personal interests to be served by obtaining a control of the worship of the plaintiff deities. The events which have occurred during these four decades, and many material facts and points of law require to be pleaded from the view point of the Plaintiff deities, for a just determination of the dispute relating to Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, and the land and buildings and other things appurtenant thereto. The plaintiffs have been accordingly advised to file a fresh suit of their own.

It is manifestly established by public records of unimpeachable authority that the premises in dispute is the place where Maryada Purushottam Sri Ramchandra Ji Maharaj was born as the son of Maharaja Dashrath of the solar Dynasty, which according to the tradition and the faith of the devotees of Bhagwan Sri Rama is the place where HE manifested HIMSELF in human form as an incarnation of BHAGWAN VISHNU. The place has since ever been called Sri Rama Janma Bhumi by all and sundry through the ages.

The place itself or the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANAMA BHUMI as it has come to be known, has been an object of worship as a Deity by the devotees of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA, as it personafies the spirit of the Divine worshipped in the form of SRI RAM LALA or Lord RAMA the child. The Asthan was thus deified and has had a juridical personality of its own even before the construction of a Temple building or the installation of the idol of Bhagwan Sri Rama thereat. It has further

been stated that Hindus do not worship the stone or the metal shaped into the form of their ISHTA DEVATA or the stone of SALIGRAM which has no particular shape at all. They worship the Divine, which has no quality or shape or form, but can be known only when it manifests ITSELF in the form of an incarnation, and therefore, adopt the form of his incarnation as their ISHTA DEVA. They can meditate upon the formless and the shapeless DIVINE which is worshipped by most Hindus, and not its material form or shape in an idol. This SPIRIT of the DIVINE in an idol is invoked by the ritual of pranapratishtha. The SPIRIT of the DIVINE is indestructible and ever remains present everywhere at all times for any one to invoke it in any shape or form in accordance with his own aspiration. Different persons are at different levels of realization of the REALITY. Some find it helpful to pursue a particular set of rituals for their spiritual uplift. A large section of Hindus follow BHAKTI MARGA, and BHAGWAN SRI RAMA or BHAGWAN SRI KRISHNA is their ISHTA DEVA.

www.vadaprativada.com

According to the faith of the devotees of BHAGVAN SRI RAMA LALA, or Lord Rama the Child, it is the spirit of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA as the Divine Child which resides at Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi and can be experienced by those who pray there and invoke that Spirit for their spiritual uplift. That Spirit is the Deity. An idol is not necessary for invoking the Divine Spirit. Another example of such a Deity is that of KEDARNATH. The temple of KEDARNATH has no idol in it. It is the undulating surface of stone which is worshipped there as the Deity. Still another example of such a Deity is the Vishnupad Temple at Gaya. Similarly at Ayodhya the very Asthan Sri Ram Janma Bhumi is worshipped as a Deity through such symbols of the Divine Spirit as the Charan and the Sita Rasoi. The place is a deity. It has existed in this immovable form through the ages, and has ever been juridical persons. The actual and continuous performance of Puja of such an immovable Deity by its devotees is not essential for its existence as a Deity. The deity continues to exist so long as the place exists, and being land, it is indestructible. Thus, Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi is an indestructible and immovable Deity who has continued to exist throughout the ages.

According to the books of history and public records of unimpeachable authenticity, establish indisputably that there was an ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya. That temple was destroyed partly and an attempt was made to raise a mosque thereat, by the force of arms, by Mir Baqi, a commander of Baber's hordes. The material used was almost all of it taken from the Temple including its pillars which were wrought out of Kasauti or touchstone with figures of Hindu Gods and Goddesses carved on them. There was a great resistance by the Hindus and many battles were fought from time to time by them to prevent the completion of the mosque. To this day it has no minarets, and no place for storage of water for Vazoo. Many lives were lost in these battles. The last such battle occurred in 1855. Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, including the building raised during Baber's time by Mir Baqi, was in the possession and control of Hindus at that time. According to the 1928 Edition of the Faizabad Gazetteer published by the Government Press U.P. “Ayodhya is pre-eminently a city of temples. It is locally affirmed that at the time of the Musalman conquest there were three important Hindu shrines at Ayodhya and little else. These were the Janmasthan temple, the Swargaddwar and the Treta-ka-Thakur. The Janmasthan was in Ramkot and marked the birthplace of
