Rama. In 1528 Babar came to Ayodhya and halted here for a week. He destroyed the ancient temple and on its site built a mosque, still known as Babar's mosque. The materials of the old structure were largely employed, and many of the columns are in good preservation, they are of close-grained black stone, called by the natives kasauti and carved with various devices. Their length is from seven to eight feet, and the shape square at the base, centre and capital, the rest being round or octagonal. The mosque has two inscriptions, one on the outside and the other on the pulpit, both are in persian and bear the date 935 Hijri and again according to the same Gazetteer. “This desecration of the most sacred spot in the city caused great bitterness between Hindus and Musalmans. On many occasions the feeling led to bloodshed, and in 1855 an open fight occurred, the Musalmans occupying the Janmasthan in force and then making a desperate assault on the Hanuman Garhi. They charged up the steps of the temple, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then made counter-attack and stormed the Janmasthan, at the gate of which seventy-five Musalmans were buried, the spot being known as the Ganj Shahidan or the martyr's resting place. Several of the king's regiments were present, but their orders were not to interfere. It is further averred that Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi in Lucknow organized a regular expedition with the object of destroying the Hanuman Garhi, but he and his forces were stopped in the Barabanki district. (Gazetteer of Barabanki, P. 168). It is said that upto this time both Hindus and Musalmans used to worship in the same building; but since the mutiny an outer enclosure has been put in front of the mosque and the Hindus, who are forbidden access to the inner yard, make their offerings on a platform which they have raised in the outer one."

The disputed structure could not be a mosque as it was raised by force of arms on land belonging to the plaintiff deities, after destroying the ancient Temple situate thereat, with its materials including the Kasauti pillars with figures of Hindus gods carved thereon. According to para 24 of the plaint some salient points in this regard have been mentioned.

(a) According to the Koran, ALLAH spoke to the Prophet thus:-

"And fight for the religion of GOD against those who fight against you; but transgress not by attacking them first, for GOD loved not transgressors. And kill them wherever you find them; and turn them out of that whereof they have dispossessed you; for temptation to idolatory is more grievous than slaughter. Yet fight not against them in the holy temple, until they attack you therein"

(b) According to all the Muslim authorities and precedents and the decided cases also, ALLAH never accepts a dedication of property which does not belong to the Waqif that is, the person who purports to dedicate property to ALLAH for purposes recognized as pious or charitable, as waqf under the Muslim law. By his acts of trespass and violence for raising a mosque on the site of the temple after destroying it by force, Mir Baqi committed a highly un-Islamic act. His attempt to convert the Temple into a mosque did not, therefore, create a valid dedication of property to Allah, whether in fact or in law, and it never became a mosque.

(c) In respect of all that Mir Baqi tried to do with the Temple, the land always continued to vest in the Plaintiff Deities, and

they never surrendered their possession over it. Their possession continued in fact and in law. The ASTHAN never went out of the possession of the Deity and HIS worshippers. They continued to worship HIM through such symbols as the CHARAN and SITA RASOI, and the idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAM LALA VIRAJMAN on the Chabutra, called the Rama Chabutra, within the enclosed courtyard of the building directly in front of the arched opening of its Southern dome. No one could enter the building except after passing through these places of Hindu worship. According to the Muslim religion and law there can be no idol worship within the courtyard of a mosque, and the massage to a mosque must be free and unobstructed and open at all times to the 'Faithful'. It can never be through Hindu place of worship. There can be no co-sharing of title or possession with ALLAH in the case of mosque. His possession must be exclusive.

(d) A mosque must be built in place of peace and quiet, but near to a place where there is a sizeable Muslim population according to the tenets of Islam, and as insisted upon by it, a mosque cannot be built in a place which is surrounded on all sides by Temples, where the sound of music or conch shells or Ghanta Ghariyals must always disturb the peace and quiet of the place.

(e) A mosque must have a minaret for calling the Azan.

(f) According to the claim laid by the Muslims in their Suit No. 12 of 1961, the building is surrounded on all sides by graveyard known as 'Ganj Shahidan'. The building could not be a mosque and could not be used as a mosque for the offering of

prayers, except the funeral prayers on the death of a person buried therein.

(g) There is no arrangement for storage of water for Wazoo and there are the Kasauti pillars with the figures Hindu Gods and Goddesses.

It has further been averred by the plaintiffs that the worship of the plaintiff deities has continued since ever throughout the ages at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. The place belongs to the Deities. No valid waqf was ever created or could have been created of the place or any part of it, in view of the title and possession of the plaintiff deities thereon. Neither ALLAH nor any person on his behalf had any possession over any part of the premises at any time whatsoever, not to speak of any adverse possession.

At any rate no prayers have ever been offered in the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, which was recorded as Janmasthan Masjid, during the British times, and confined, after the annexation of Avadh through the area within the boundary wall raised by them adjacent to the arch openings, in the courtyard which is now enclosed by what may now be described as the outer boundary wall. The domes of the building and substantial parts of it were destroyed by the Hindus in the year 1934 during the communal riots which occurred by way of retaliation to cow slaughter by some Muslims at Ayodhya. Although the building was got rebuilt by the Government, no one dared to offer namaz therein. No action was taken by anyone for its use or management as a mosque. Neither of the two Boards of Waqfs in U.P., namely the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs and the Shia Central Board of Waqfs, created on the passing of the U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act in 1936, took any action or positive steps for the establishment of the building as a mosque. No one acted as Mutwalli or Khadim of the building as a mosque.

After independence from the British Rule, the Vairagis and the Sadhus and the Hindu public, dug up and levelled whatever graves had been left in the area surrounding Sri Rama Janma Bhumi Asthan and purified the place by Akhand Patha and japa by thousands of persons all over the area. Ultimately, on the night between the 22nd / 23rd December, 1949 the idol of Bhagwan Sri Rama was installed with the ceremony under the central dome of the building also. No resistance was offered by any Muslim to any of these acts, the local authorities found it difficult to get out of their old habits acquired under the British Rule, and a First Information Report was recorded by the Police on their own and proceedings were initiated by the Additional City Magistrate Under Section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, by recording a Preliminary Order dated 29.12.1949. The Magistrate did not identify any Hindu or Muslim individuals as parties to the dispute, and merely said that he was satisfied on information received from Police sources and other credible sources “that a dispute between Hindus and Muslims in Ayodhya over the question of rights of proprietorship and worship in the building claimed variously as Babri Masjid and Janma Bhumi Mandir is likely to lead to a breach of the peace.” Babu Priya Dutt Ram was appointed Receiver after his death in 1970 Sri K.K.Ram Verma was appointed in his place by the City Magistrate, although the City Magistrate had dropped the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. by order dated 30.07.1953, with the finding that there was no apprehension of the breach of peace any longer. The Receiver appointed by Magistrate was replaced by civil court Receiver. At the highest, the Receiver

acted like a Shebait. He did not disturb the possession of the plaintiff Deities. The possession of deities over the building in premises is admitted by all the concerned parties. Ever since the installation of the first plaintiff's idol since the possession of deities continued all along , their possession places the matter of their title beyond any doubt or dispute. Even if there had been any person claiming title to the property adversely to the Plaintiff Deities that would have been extinguished by their open and long adverse possession, which created positively and affirmatively a proprietary title to the premises in the Plaintiff Deities.

Hindu Public and the devotees of the Plaintiff Deities, who had dreamed of establishing Ram-Rajya in Free India, that is, the rule of Dharma and righteousness, of which Maryada Purushottam Sri Ramchandra Ji Maharaj was the epitome, have been keenly desirous of restoring his Janma Asthan to its pristine glory, as a first step towards that national aspiration given to us by Mahatma Gandhi. For achieving this, they are publicly agitating for the construction of a grand Temple in the Nagar style. Plans and a model of the proposed Temple have already been prepared by the same family of architects who built the Somnath Temple. The plaintiff's suit no. 12 of 1961, could not represent the entire Muslims community. Some defendants no. 1 to 4 are not capable of representing the entire World of Hindus. Waqf created by a Shia Waqif would be a Shia Waqf and could not be a Sunni Waqf. Since according to the case of plaintiff other Suit No.4/89, the mosque was built by Mir Baqi and he was Shia, his heirs were Mutwallis one after the other. But the Shia Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. did not agitate the case any further, the judgment of civil court, Faizabad dated 30.03.1946 in Suit No.29/1945 is not binding.

According to the report dated 10.12.1949 of Mr. Mohammad Ibrahim, Waqf Inspector, and an office note signed by the Secretary of the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. and dated 25.11.1948, Sri Javed Husain, the nambardar of village Sahanwa, and in the line of descent, Mir Baqi was the Mutwalli of the Waqf, although it appears, he was not acting as such and did not submit to the jurisdiction of the said Board of Waqfs. The persons of Shia are also being impleaded as defendant no. 22 to 25 in the present suit.

The saint assembled in a meeting held at Ujjain during May, 1992 resolved to start the KAR SEWA for the construction of New Temple at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi from the SHILANYAS site, on July 9, 1992 and that resolve was re-affirmed. In spite of all efforts to the contrary, the KAR SEWAKS climbed up the three domed structure and brought it down with their bare hands, about 5 hours after on 6.12.1992 and the debris was thereafter cleared and carried away by the KAR SEWAKS as holy mementos, leaving the place where the Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA was installed in the Central Dome of the demolished structure flat in the form of a CHABUTRA on which the Deity was immediately re-installed, the place was enclosed by a brick boundary wall and a canopy was also erected for the protection of the Deity, and PUJA was continued as of yore.

Owing full responsibility for the orders that firing shall not be resorted to by the security forces against the KAR SEWAKS and the inability to prevent the demolition, Sri Kalyan Singh, the then Chief Minister of U.P. resigned from that office by the evening of 6.12.1992. The President under Article 356 of the Constitution on the advice of Prime Minister dissolved the Legislative Assembly before midnight that day on 7.1.1993. The President promulgated the ACQUISITION OF

CERTAIN AREA AT AYODHYA ORDINANCE, NO. 8 of 1993 and simultaneously referred to the Supreme Court, under Article 143(1) of the Constitution for consideration and opinion, the following question:-

"Whether a Hindu temple or any Hindu religious structure existed prior, to the construction of the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure) in the area on which the structure stood?"

The said Ordinance was replaced and re-enacted by Parliaments Act No. 33 of 1993, and was published the same day in the Gazette of India Extraordinary but was deemed to have come into force on the 7th January 1993, the day on which the Ordinance was promulgated. The plaintiff deities over the juristic persons in law could not have been, nor do they appear to have been acquired under the said enactment. Nor could the right of the Hindus in general and the devotees of Sri Ram in particular to worship them be acquired or taken away. But the right to manage their property including the arrangements to be made for maintaining their worship on the SHEBAITI rights which in themselves constitute heritable property under the Hindu law, would seem to have been taken away and entrusted for the time being to the Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad, ex-officio under Section 7 of the Act.

The Authorized person is required by sub-Section (2) of Section 7 of the enactment to maintain status quo as it existed on the 7th January, 1993, in the area in which the disputed structure stood. The validity of the said enactment was challenged in several writ petitions in the Hon'ble Court which were withdrawn by the Supreme Court for hearing and decision along with the hearing of the preliminary objection to the maintainability of the Presidential Reference under Article 143(1) of the Constitution. It was sought to be challenged in the connected O.O.S. No. 3 and 4 of 1989 in this Court as well, and in issue “whether the suit has abated or services” was raised thereupon. Notice was also issued thereafter to Attorney General of India, by the Hon'ble Court, but before the hearing of the issue could be taken up by it, it was stayed by the Supreme Court, while ordering the withdrawal of the writ petition against the acquisition from this Court to itself for hearing and decision.

In Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui Vs. Union of India and others case and the Special Reference No.1 of 1993 under Article 143(1) of the Constitution, the Supreme Court has declared the sub-Section 3 of Section 4 of the Act No.33 of 1993, to be unconstitutional and invalid, but upheld the validity of the other provisions thereof subject to the interpretation put thereon by it.

The cause of action for this suit has been accruing from day to day, particularly since recently when the plans of temple reconstruction are being sought to be obstructed by violent action from the side of certain Muslim Communalists. The map prepared by Shiv Shankar Lal, Commissioner has been made part of the plaint as annex Nayas Patrak has also been filed and is appended.

The defendant no.3 has filed written statement wherein it is stated that Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwal posing himself as the Next Friend has filed this long cumbersome suit embracing a wide range of matters and topics, mostly irrelevant collected from alleged many and various records and books and annals of history. The suit was initially instituted in the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad on 1.7.1989 and has been transferred to this Court. It has further been stated that the present suit is malicious suit and is designed to damage the title and interest of the answering defendant. Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwal has no right to act as Next Friend of plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 and plaintiff no.2 is not even a juridical persons. The suit is liable to be dismissed summarily.

It is wrong to say that the Bhagwan Shri Ram is also called Ram Lala Virajman. Bhagwan Shri Ram is installed not at Janma Bhoomi but in the temple known as Janma Bhoomi Temple “Sthan Shri Ram Janma Bhumi” is meaningless phrase Sthan is not a juridical person. Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwal lives at Ayodhya and is not at all interested in Sri Ram Janma Bhumi Temple. The whole world knows that Lord Ram was born in Ayodhya where the temple Ram Janma Bhumi stands.

Denying the averments made in different paras of the plaint in his additional pleas. Defendant no.3 has further stated that the relief sought by the plaintiffs are imaginary and inconsistent. He has also filed additional written statement/supplementary written statement and averred that Annexure 2 attached with the plaint does not bear any plot nos. (settlement or Nazul) nor it is bounded as to give any definite identity of property. Temple Shri Vijay Ragho Ji Sakshi Gopal has never been subject matter of the any of the suit O.O.S. No. 4/1989. Panches and Sadhus of Akhara are living in the surrounding since before the human memory. The outer Sahan consisted little temple of Bhagwan Ram Lala along with other place which are regularly worshipped according to the customs prevailing amongst Rama Nandi Vairagies. The temple of Ram Lala Ji and other deities have ever been in management and charge of Nirmohi Akhara as Sheibait till outer portion with Bhandar was attached u/s 145 Cr.P.C.

On 18.2.1982 a receiver is appointed there vide order of Civil Judge, Faizabad in Reg. Suit No. 239/82. Sri Rama Nandi Nirmohi Akhara versus K.K. Ram Varma etc. due to lootpat committed by Dharam Das Mr. Deoki Nandan Agarwal has named himself to be witness of Dharam Das. Suit is barred by provision of Section 34 of Specific Relief Act for want of possession and is not maintainable as such.

The outer portion consisting of Bhagwan Ram Lala on Sri Ram Chabutra along with other deities, Chathi Pujan Sthan and Bhandar with eastern outer wall carrying engraved image of Varah Bhagwan with southern and northern wall and also western portion of wall carries the present municipal No.10/12/29 (old 506, 507 and older 647) of Ram Kot ward of Ayodhya City. The attachment made in 1949 is only in respect of main building of Garbh Grahya having three "Shikher" where in the deity of Bhagwan Sri Ram Chandra Ji is installed by Nirmohi Akhara from time beyond the human memory and are since then is management and possession of it till the said property attached. The suit is fully time barred. Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwal is office bearer of VHP. The outer portion with surrounding temples were illegally acquired by VHP. Backed BJP Government which is under challenge in writ petition. The suit is liable to be dismissed.

Second additional written statement has also been filed in which existence of alleged Nyas has been challenged.

Defendant No.4 has filed written statement wherein it is stated that disputed place has always been known as Babri Masjid and the idol in question was stealthily and surreptitiously kept inside the mosque in the night of 22nd /23rd December, 1949 by some mischief-mongers against whom an F.I.R. had also been lodged at the Police Station, Ayodhya on 23rd December, 1949. The report and map

submitted by Sri Shiv Shankar Lal, Pleader and do not depict the correct portion of the spot and the same cannot be relied upon for identification and description of the property in suit. Denying different paras of the plaint it has been averred that suit no.12 of 1961 was filed in the representative capacity and the application for permission to sue in this capacity was allowed by learned Civil Judge, Faizabad. There is no question of Seva and Puja of the alleged deities as no such deities exist in the building in question and the idols kept therein could not be treated as deities. Defendant no.20 had no right or title or locus standi to move the said application for the opening of the gate of the mosque for closer Darshan. The order passed on 1.2.1986 of the District Judge, Faizabad was patently and manifestly illegal and without jurisdiction against which two writ petitions are pending in this Court.

The building in dispute is not the Janam Bhoomi of Sri Ram Chandraji and no idols of Sri Ram Chandraji were ever installed in the said building and as such there arises no question of any right or claim of the defendant no.20 or of anyone else to perform Pooja and Darshan over there. The property in suit is an old mosque known as Babri Masjid and the same was constructed during the regime of Emperor Babar. No idol was there prior to the incident of the night of 22nd /23rd December, 1949 in the mosque. Idols were surreptitiously and stealthily kept in the mosque by some mischievous elements as the plaintiff no.1 to 2 cannot at all be treated as deities. The receiver appointed by the Court is not taking proper interest in the maintenance of the building and in spite of the orders of the Court, no repairs of the building have been undertaken for the last several years. The desire of the plaintiff's of removing the mosque and of constructing a temple on the site of the said mosque is wholly uncalled for and unwarranted and mischievous and any such attempt will be fraught with very dangerous consequences.

Plaintiffs no.1 and 2 are not juridical persons and the suit filed on their behalf is wholly misconceived and not maintainable. The idol was surreptitiously and stealthily kept inside the mosque in the night of 22nd /23rd December, 1949 has neither been installed in accordance with the tradition and rituals of Hindu Law and nor there have been any ceremonies prescribed by Hindu Law for the installation of the idols and as such the idols kept in the mosque have got no legal entity and that being so there arises no question of impleadment of the same and moreover, the plaintiff no.3 has also got no direct right or title or concern with the property in suit and as such he is also not entitled to institute the present suit. In any case the instant suit having been filed after expiry of more than 39 years since after the attachment of the property in suit the instant suit is heavily barred by time and it is not maintainable.

In the present suit the booklets circulated at Ayodhya by Vishwa Hindu Parisahd and other Hindu organizations and other books of Hindu mythology describe the period of Sri Ram Chandraji as that of Treta Yug meaning thereby that he was born more than 9 lakh years ago. Goswami Tulsidadji had written book of Shri Ramchandraji known as Sri Ram Charit Manas at a place known as Datun Kund situate at a distance of about one kilometre from Ayodhya in District Faizabad and as such had there been any birth place of Sri Ramchanddraji in Ayodhya, Goswami Tulsidasji must have specifically mentioned about the same in his Ram Charit Manas and as a great devotee of Sri Ramchandraji Goswami Tulsidasji cannot be expected to have skipped

over or concealed or kept quiet over such an important fact regarding the life history of Sri Ramchandraji and had there been any iota of truth in the story of Sri Ram Janam Bhoomi temple being there at Ayodhya at the site of the Babri Masjid prior thereto and had there been any incident of demolition of any such temple and construction of Babri Masjid over the same. Goswami Tulsidasji must have taken up this matter in the Court (Darbar) of Emperor Akbar and Emperor Akbar must have undone the alleged wrong specially so when the Court of Akbar was full of Advisors, councillors and ministers from Hindu community and his own Queen was also Jodha Bai. The description of Ayodhya given in the Balmiki Ramayan does not tally with the present Ayodhya. Mahant Raghubar Das in 1885 had filed a suit against the Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohd. Asgar Mutwalli of the said mosque in the Court of Sub-Judge, Faizabad in which a site plan was also annexed alongwith the plaint and in the said site plan the mosque in question was specifically mentioned in the western side of the Chabutra in respect whereof the said suit was filed for permission to erect temple over the said Chabutra.. The said Mahant could not succeed even in that suit which was dismissed on 24.12.1885 by the Sub- Judge, Faizabad, and the appeal filed against the said judgment and decree dated 24.12.1885 was also dismissed by the District Judge, Faizabad and the second appeal filed against the same had also been dismissed by the Judicial Commissioner of Avadh. The aforesaid suit was filed by Mahant Raghubar Das on behalf of other Mahants and Hindus of Ayodhya and Faizabad. As such the plaintiffs cannot claim any portion of the Babri Masjid to have been defied or having become a juridical personality by the name of Asthan Ram Janam Bhoomi and specially so when neither

there has been any installation of deity and nor any personification of the same in accordance with the tenets of Hindu religion or law. It is further submitted that the plaintiff are even estopped from claiming the mosque in question as the Janam Bhoomi of Sri Ram Chandraji as the plaintiffs' predecessors and specially Mahant Raghubar Das had confined his claim to the Chabutra (platform) of 17' x 21' outside the said mosque is being Janam Asthan of Ram Chandraji and also because there already exists another temple known as Janam Asthan temple situate at a distance of less than 100 yards only from Babri Masjid and on its northern side.

An F.I.R. was lodged about the incident of 22nd /23rd December, 1949 at the Police Station Ayodhya in the morning of 23.12.1949 by a Hindu Officer of the Police Station himself who had mentioned in the said F.I.R. that some mischievous element had kept the said idol in the preceding night in a stealthy and surreptitious manner by sheer use of force and the said building had been attached on 29.12.1949 and Receiver for the care and custody of the said building had also been appointed who had drawn up a scheme of Management and the same was submitted on 5.1.1950 by the Receiver. Sita Rasoi situate outside the premises of the said mosque. It is not correct to say that mosque was constructed after demolishing a temple. It is also not correct to say that the material used in the construction of the said mosque was almost all of it taken from any temple, and it is also incorrect to say that the pillars of the said mosque were wrought out of Kasauti or touchstone with figures of Hindu Gods and Goddesses carved on them. The fact is that such pillars are available at some other place also. Minarets or domes is not at all required for any mosque.An existence of minarets or domes are not at all required for any mosque

and so also there is no necessity of any place for storage of water for VAZOO for any mosque although in the close vicinity of Babri Masjid a well is very much there for taking out water for the purpose of VAZOO. It is also incorrect to say that any life was lost in any battle fought in respect of Babri Masjid and no battle in respect of Babri Masjid had taken place till 1885.

The expedition of Maulvi Ameer Ali had no concern or connection with the Babri Masjid. Hindus and Muslims both were never in joint possession of the Babri Masjid, nor they worshipped jointly in the disputed structure. Emperor Babar was a Sunni Muslim and the vacant land on which the Babri Masjid was built lay in his State territory and did not belong to anyone and it could very well be used by his officers for the purposes of the mosque and specially so when the Emperor Babar himself consented and gave approval for the construction of the said mosque. Mir Baqi did not destroy any temple at any point of time. Demolition of temple by Mir Baqi has not been mentioned in any book of Mughal history or in any authentic book of history as such it is absolutely false and concocted to suggest that the mosque in question was constructed at the site of any temple and Mosque can not be built at a place which is surrounded by temples, where the sound of music and Konch shell, Ghanta Gharyal disturbs the peace and quiet of the place.

It is reiterated that the mosque in question has been used for offering regular five times prayers upto 22nd December, 1949 and even Friday prayers have been offered in the same till 16th December, 1949. The possession of the Muslims has remained uninterrupted and continuous in the mosque in question since its construction and up to 22.12.1949 any right of any person has ceased to exist. In view of these facts five times prayers used to be offered in the said mosque upto 22.12.1949 and Friday prayers were also offered upto 16.12.1949 and 23.12.1949 when the Muslims led by the Imam of the said mosque had approached the authorities of the district to offer Friday prayer in the said mosque. They were persuaded to offer Friday prayer on that date in some other mosque with the specific assurance that they will be allowed to offer Friday prayers in the mosque in question on the next Friday falling on 30.12.1949. But before that the mosque in question had been attached by the Magistrate under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and since then the attachment of the said mosque is continuing some Bairagees had damaged a portion of the mosque and as such the District Magistrate of Faizabad had got the said damaged portion of the mosque repaired through a Muslim contractor thereafter. There has always been Mutwalli or Moazin or Imam or Khatib or Khadim of the said Mosque. His name finds mention even in the Government Gazette of 1944.

The fact is that Muslims reside not only behind the mosque but also in the localities situated in the southern and eastern site of the mosque. It has further been mentioned in the written statement filed by Sunni Central Board of Waqf of U.P. that there is no justification for the present campaign being carried on for starting construction of Ram Janam Bhumi Temple at the site of the Babri Masjid w.e.f. 9.11.89. There is no question of construction of any such temple at the site of the mosque and Muslims will never permit any such attempt being successful. The judgment of Civil Judge, Faizabad in Suit No. 27 of 45 is binding upon the parties and controversy about the Shia or Sunni nature of the waqf in question has been set at rest by the aforesaid judgment. There is no bar for appointment of Shia

Mutwalli of a Sunni Waqf; so also a Sunni Muslim can very well be appointed as mutwalli of a Shia Waqf.

It is incorrect to say that any responsible Muslim has ever made a suggestion for the removal of the structure of the mosque to any other place as it is quite foreign to the Muslim law and there is no possibility of any such course being adopted by the Muslims in respect of the mosque in question. The concept of the mosque is that the entire area below as well as above the portion of the mosque remains dedicated to God Almighty and as such it is not the construction or structure of a mosque alone which is important but more important is the land on which the mosque stands constructed because the land also stands dedicated to God Almighty and the same cannot be removed. Suit is barred by time the property in suit has also not been properly described no valid notice under section 80 in C.P.C. has been given to defendants no. 7 to 10. Therefore, this suit could not be filed in absence of the notice. The subject matter of the instant suit is a waqf property and stands registered as a waqf in the Register of Waqf maintained by the Sunni Waqf Board under Section 30 of the Waqf Act and a Gazette notification in respect thereto has also been issued by the State Government in 1944 and the same stands recorded as a mosque even in the revenue record and other Government record and the same is even accepted as a mosque by the State Government and its officers in the written statement filed in Regular Suit No. 2 of 1950 as well in Regular Suit No.25 of 1950. The suit is barred for want of notice under Section 65 of the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1960 and the reports of the Archaeological experts have been to the effect that there appear to be no symptoms of human habitation in the present Ayodhya of more than 700 B.C. and also the suit is barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act and is also bad for mis-joinder and non-joinder of the parties.

Defendants no.4 and 5 have also filed additional written statement wherein all the facts mentioned in amended para 35 H I J K have been denied.

Defendant no.6 has adopted the written statement filed by defendant no.5. Defendant no.11 has filed written statement where it is averred that All India Hindu Mahasabha be also included in the trust created for protecting, renovating, reconstructing and developing the temple premises, in short, of managing all their estates and all their affairs. Defendant no.17 Sri Ramesh Chandra Tripathi has supported the plaint allegations.

Defendant no.23 Jawwad Husain has denied all the plaint allegations in his additional pleas. He has submitted that he has wrongly been impleaded as a party, plaintiff no. 1 and 2 has no right to sue. He has supported the plaint allegations and averred that there is Janma Sthan in the north side of disputed property in the north of the road.

Defendant no.24 has denied the plaint allegations in para-10. He has stated that Muslims of India has the highest regard for Lord Rama. These sentiments of the Muslims are best reflected in the poem entitled " Rama" composed by the greatest Muslim thinker of India of the present century Allama Dr. Sir Muhammad Iqbal, who had summed up in just one verse of the long poem what Muslims of India think of Shri Ram Chandraji:

Ahl-e Nazar Samajht-e hain usko Imam-e- Hind."

Rest of paras of written statement he has supported the written statement filed by defendants no. 4 and 5. An important para 26 has been pertinent to be mentioned of this written statement where in it is averred that para 34 and 35 of the plaint, the answering defendant being a representative of the Shia Muslims of India is deadly against any form of sacrilegious actions. He is of the firm view that no place of worship of any religion should be destroyed and no place of worship should be constructed on the ruins of the destroyed one. The answering defendant firmly believes that the Babri Masjid was certainly not built after destroying the Vikramaditya Mandir or any temple. Yet, at the same time if it is unequivocally proved in this Hon'ble Court in the light of historical archaeological and expert scientific evidence that the Babri Masjid was really built after demolishing any Mandir on the Mandir land, only then this defendant will withdraw his opposition.

Defendant no. 25 has also filed written statement denying the plaint allegations in his additional pleas of General Secretary of India Shia Conference has averred that the premises in question has always been mosque and it is a mosque. In the night of 22nd /23rd December, 1949, certain persons forcibly entered into the mosque and put an idol in the same, against them an F.I.R. was lodged in the Police Station, Ayodhya in the morning of 23rd of December, 1949. A case was registered. A Receiver was appointed. There is no Hindu deity as juristic person in relation to the premises in question nor there is any Hindu deity with the name and style of Asthan Sri Ram Janam Bhumi Ayodhya. Statement under Order X Rule 2 C.P.C. in O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989

In the early hours of December, 23, 1949 the idol of Bhagwan Sri Ram Lala, which was already on Ram Chabutra, was transferred to the place where he presently sits, that is, under the central dome of the disputed building. I was not personally present at that time at the place. This information was conveyed to me by Paramhans Ram Chandra Das of Digamber Akhara. This transfer of the idol was done by Paramhans Ram Chandra Das and Baba Abhi Ram Das and certain other persons whose name I do not remember at the moment.

I will have to look into the record to give their names.

The idol is Chal Vigraha (moveable idol).

Paramhans Ram Chandra Das had informed me that all the due ceremonies were performed when the idol was transferred.

Presently, the property in suit is bounded on three sides by a wall constructed by the State Government recently and on the north by public road.

The entire area enclosed by the aforesaid wall belongs to the deity.

FINDINGS

Since Issue Nos. 1,2 and 6 are inter connected, they can conveniently be disposed of at one place.

The instant suit has been filed by Bhagwan Sri Rama Virajman at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya also called Sri Rama Lala Virajman and the Asthan Sri Rama Janma bhumi, Ayodhya through next friend with following reliefs ,

(A) A declaration that the entire premises of Sri Ram Janma Bhumi at Ayodhya,as described and delineated in Annexures I,II and III belong to the Plaintiff Deities,

(B) A perpetual injunction against the Defendants prohibiting them

from interfering with, or raising any objection to, or placing any obstruction in the construction of the new Temple building at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, after demolishing and removing the existing buildings and structures etc. situate thereat , in so far as it may be necessary or expedient to do so for the said purpose.

© Costs of the suit against such of the defendants as object to the grant of relief to the plaintiffs.

(D) Any other relief or reliefs to which the plaintiffs may be found entitled.

On behalf of the Plaintiff, it is submitted that Bhagwan Sri Rama Virajman at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodha, also called Sri Ram Lala Virajman, Plaintiff no. 1 and the Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya with other idols and places of worship situate Plaintiff no.2 are juridical persons with Bhagwan Sri Rama as the presiding Deity of the place. Plaintiff No. 3 is a Vaishnva Hindu and seeks to represent the Deity and the Asthan as a next friend.

The place itself,or the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI has been an object of worship as a deity by the devotees of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA as it personifies the spirit of divine worshipped in the form of SRI RAM LALA or lord RAMA, the child. The Asthan was thus Deified. According to the faith of devotees BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA or LORD RAMA, the child has spiritual uplift . It is further averred that at Ayodhya , the very Asthan Sri Ram Janmabhumi is worshipped as a deity. Thus, the place is deified . Thus, it is juridical person. Thus, Asthan Sri Ram Janmabhumi is indestructible and immoveable deity, who has continued to exist throughout ages .

On behalf of the defendants it is averred that the plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 are not juridical persons.

Persons are classified as a natural and juristic person. A natural person is a being to whom the law attributes personality in accordance with reality and truth. Legal persons are beings, real or imaginary, to whom the law attributes personality by way of fiction. Legal personality is an artificial creation of the law.

Sri K.N. Bhat, learned Senior Advocate has drawn attention of this Court on following passages of "Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts 5th Edition' by Mukherjea. The relevant extracts are quoted below;

.* "A Hindu idol", the Judicial Committee observed in one of its recent pronouncements, "is according to long established authority founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus and the recognition there of by Courts of Law, a juristic entity. It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued." You should remember, however, that the juridical person in the idol is not the material image, and it is an exploded theory that the image itself develops into a legal person as soon as it is consecrated and vivified by the Pran Pratistha ceremony. It is not also correct that the Supreme Being of which the idol is a symbol or image is the recipient and owner of the dedicated property. ( p.38.)

* From the spiritual standpoint the idol might be to the devotee the very embodiment of Supreme God but that is a matter beyond the reach of law altogether. (p.39.)

* The early Vedic hymns make no allusion to idol worship, and Max Muller held that idolatry did not exist among them. 'The religion of the Vedas,' he declared, 'knows no idols.' The Jabala Upanishad says, 'Images are meant only as aids to meditation for the ignorant'. (p.149)

* The image simply gives a name and form to the formless God and the orthodox Hindu idea is that conception of form is only for the benefit of the worshipper and nothing else. (p.153.)

* “The idol, deity or religious object,” observed West and Buhler in their Digest on Hindu Law, “is looked upon as a kind of human entity.” It is a sacred entity and ideal personality possessing proprietary rights. The Judicial Committee has pointed out on more occasions than one that it is only an ideal sense that property can be said to belong to an idol and the possession and management of it must, in the nature of things, be entrusted to some person as Shebait or manager. The legal principle has thus been summed up in one of the pronouncements of the Judicial Committee:

“A Hindu idol is, according to long-established authority, founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus, and the recognition thereof by courts of law, a ‘juristic entity.’ It has a juridical status, with the power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who in law is its manager, with all the powers which would, in such circumstances, on analogy, be given to the manager of the estate of an infant heir. It is unnecessary to quote the authorities; for this doctrine, thus simply stated, is firmly established.”( pp.158)

 Existence of idol is (not) necessary for temple.- While usually an idol is instituted in a temple, it does not appear to be an essential condition of a temple as such. In an Andhra case, it was held that to constitute a temple, it is enough if it is a place of public religious worship and if the people believe in its religious efficacy, irrespective of the fact whether there is an idol or a structure or other paraphernalia. It is enough if the devotees or the pilgrims feel that there is one superhuman power which they should worship and invoke its blessings. pp.158-159.

* Moreover, - and this was pointed out by Chatterjee, J., who was a member of the Full Bench – the conception of Hindu jurists was not that the image of clay or stone constituted the juristic person. The Smriti writers have laid down that if an image is broken or lost another may be substituted in its place; when so substituted it is not a new personality but the same deity, and properties vested in the lost or mutilated thakur become vested in the substituted thakur. Thus, a dedication to an idol is really a dedication to the deity who is ever-present and ever-existent, the idol being no more than the visible image through which the deity is supposed specially to manifest itself by reason of the ceremony of consecreation. The decision in Bhupati Smrititirtha v. Ramlal has been followed by other High Courts in India, and it has been held by the Allahabad High Court in Mohor Singh v. Het Singh that a bequest to complete the building of a temple which was commenced by the testator and to install and maintain an idol therein was a valid bequest under the Hindu law. ( pp.162-163)”

He has further invited the attention of this Court on paras 11,12 and 13 of AIR 2000 Supreme Court 1421 Shiromani Gurdhwara Prabhandak committee Amritsar Vs. Shri Som Nath Dass and others . They are as under:

11. The very words "Juristic Person" connote recognition of an entity to be in law a person which otherwise it is not. In other words, it is not an individual natural person but an artificially created person which is to be recognised to be in law as such. When a person is ordinarily understood to be a natural person, it only means a human person.

Essentially, every human person is a person. If we trace the history of a "Person" in the various countries we find surprisingly it has projected differently at different times. In some countries even human beings were not treated to be as persons in law. Under the Roman Law a "Slave" was not a person. He had no right to a family. He was treated like an animal or chattel. In French Colonies also, before slavery was abolished, the slaves were not treated to be legal persons. They were later given recognition as legal persons only through a statute. Similarly, in the U.S. the African-Americans had no legal rights though they were not treated as chattel.

12. In Roscoe Pound's Jurisprudence Part IV, 1959 Ed. at pages 192-193, it is stated as follows:

> In civilized lands even in the modern world it has happened that all human beings were not legal persons. In Roman law down to the constitution of Antonymous Pius the slave was not a person. "He enjoyed neither rights of family nor rights of patrimony. He was a thing, and as such, like animals, could be the object of rights of property."....In the French colonies, before slavery was there abolished, slaves were "put in the class of legal persons by the statute of April 23, 1833" and obtained a "somewhat extended juridical capacity" by a statute of 1845. In the United States down to the Civil War, the free Negroes in many of the states were free human beings with no legal rights.

13. With the development of society, 'where an individual's interaction fell short, to upsurge social development, co-operation of a larger circle of individuals was necessitated. Thus, institutions like

corporations and companies were created, to help the society in achieving the desired result. The very Constitution of State, municipal corporation, company etc. are all creations of the law and these "Juristic Persons" arose out of necessities in the human development. In other words, they were dressed in a cloak to be recognized in law to be a legal unit.

Corpus Juris Secundum, Vol. LXV, page 40 says:

> Natural person. A natural person is a human being; a man, woman, or child, as opposed to a corporation, which has a certain personality impressed on it by law and is called an artificial person. In the C.J.S. definition 'Person' it is stated that the word "person," in its primary sense, means natural person, but that the generally accepted meaning of the word as used in law includes natural persons and artificial, conventional, or juristic persons.

Corpus Juris Secundum, Vol. VI, page 778 says:

> Artificial persons. Such as are created and devised by human laws for the purposes of society and government, which are called corporations or bodies politic.

Salmond on Jurisprudence, 12th Edn., 305 says:

> A legal person is any subject-matter other than a human being to which the law attributes personality. This extension, for good and sufficient reasons, of the conception of personality beyond the class of human being is one of the most noteworthy feats of the legal imagination.... Legal persons, being the arbitrary creations of the law, may be of as many kinds as the law pleases. Those which are actually recognised by our own system, however, are of comparatively few types. Corporations are undoubtedly legal persons, and the better view is that registered trade unions and friendly societies are also legal persons though not verbally regarded as corporations. ... If, however, we take account of other systems than our own, we find that the conception of legal personality is not so limited in its application, and that there are several distinct varieties, of which three may be selected for special mention...

> 1. The first class of legal persons consists of corporations, as already defined, namely, those which are constituted by the personification of groups or series of individuals. The individuals who thus form the corpus of the legal person are termed its members....1
> 2. The second class is that in which the corpus, or object selected for personification, is not a group or series of persons, but an institution. The law may, if it pleases, regard a church or a hospital, or a university, or a library, as a person. That is to say, it may attribute personality, not to any group of persons connected with the institution, but to the institution itself....
> 3. The third kind of legal person is that in which the corpus is some fund or estate devoted to special uses - a charitable fund, for example or a trust estate...

Jurisprudence by Paton, 3rd Edn. page 349 and 350 says:

> It has already been asserted that legal personality is an artificial creation of the law. Legal persons are all entities capable of being right-and-duty-bearing units - all entities recognised by the law as capable of being parties to legal relationship. Salmond said: 'So far as legal theory is concerned, a person is any being whom the law regards as capable of rights and duties...
> ...Legal personality may be granted to entities other than individual human beings, e.g. a group of human beings, a fund, an idol. Twenty men may form a corporation which may sue and be sued in the corporate name. An idol may be regarded as a legal persona in itself, or a particular fund may be incorporated. It is clear that neither the idol nor the fund can carry out the activities incidental to litigation or other activities incidental to the carrying on of legal relationships, e.g., the signing of a contract: and, of necessity, the law recognises certain human agents as representatives of the idol or of the fund. The acts of such agents, however (within limits set by the law and when they are acting as such), are imputed to the legal persona of the idol and are not the juristic acts of the human agents themselves. This is no mere academic distinction, for it is the legal persona of the idol that is bound to the legal relationships created, not that of the agent. Legal personality then refers to the particular device by which the law creates or recognizes units to which it ascribes certain powers and capacities." Analytical and Historical

www.vadaprativada.com

> We may, therefore, define a person for the purpose of jurisprudence as any entity (not necessarily a human being) to which rights or duties may be attributed.

14. Thus, it is well settled and confirmed by the authorities on jurisprudence and Courts of various countries that for a bigger thrust of socio-political-scientific development evolution of a fictional personality to be a juristic person became inevitable. This may be any entity, living inanimate, objects or things. It may be a religious institution or any such useful unit which may impel the Courts to recognise it. This recognition is for subserving the needs and faith of the society. A juristic person, like any other natural person is in law also conferred with rights and obligations and is dealt with in accordance with law. In other words, the entity acts like a natural person but only through a designated person, whose acts are processed within the ambit of law. When an idol, was recognised as a juristic person, it was known it could not act by itself. As in the case of minor a guardian is appointed, so in the case of idol, a Shebait or manager is appointed to act on its behalf. In that sense, relation between an idol and Shebait is akin to that of a minor and a guardian. As a minor cannot express himself, so the idol, but like a guardian, the Shebait and manager have limitations under which they have to act. Similarly, where there is any endowment for charitable purpose it can create institutions like a church hospital, gurudwara etc. The entrustment of an endowed fund

for a purpose can only be used by the person so entrusted for that purpose in as much as he receives it for that purpose alone in trust. When the donor endows for an Idol or for a mosque or for any institution, it necessitates the creation of a juristic person. The law also circumscribes the rights of any person receiving such entrustment to use it only for the purpose of such a juristic person. The endowment may be given for various purposes, may be for a church, idol, gurdwara or such other things that the human faculty may conceive of, out of faith and conscience but it gains the status of juristic person when it is recognised by the society as such."

Shri Ravi Shanker Prasad Senior Advocate has argued that the concept of deity is distinguishing feature of Hindu faith that the concept of deity in Hindu faith has been considered in this outstanding book. The concept of deity is a distinguishing feature of the Hindu faith. The deity is the image of Supreme Being. The temple is the home of the deity. It is enough that Supreme Super Human Being Power i.e. an idol or image of the Supreme Being installed in the temple. The worship of such an image of the Supreme Being is acceptable in Hindu law. Hindus have also the believe that idol represent dignity. In this context, para 1.33 pages 26 and 27 of the Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust by B.K. Mukharjee, 1952 Edition is reproduced as under:-

4. The traditional and classical legal literature relating to Hindus has also duly sanctified such belief and faith which has been exalted to a juristic status requiring legal recognition. In this connection, "the Hindu Law of

Religious and Charitable Trusts" by B.K. Mukherjea lays down some of the relevant concepts relating to deity and the temple along with concerned page number which are consistently being recognized as judicial authorities, not only in India but also abroad. The concept mentioned therein along with concerned page numbers are being quoted below:

Page 26-27 – Para "1.33: Idols representing same divinity – One thing you should bear in mind in connection with image worship viz. That the different images do not represent separate divinities; they are really symbols of the one Supreme Being, and in whichever name and form the deity might be invoked, he is to the devotee the Supreme God to whom all the functions of creation, preservation and destruction are attributed. In worshipping the image therefore the Hindu purports to worship the Supreme Deity and none else. The rationale of image worship is thus given in a verse which is quoted by Raghunandan:

"Chinmayasyaadwitiiyasya Naskalashariirina Saadhakaanaam Hinaathayi Brahmanii Roopakalpanaa."*

"It is for the benefit of the worshippers that there is conception of images of Supreme Being which is bodiless, has no attribute, which consists of pure spirit and has got no second."

Page 38-Para "1.50. The idol as a symbol and embodiment of the spiritual purpose is the juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests:- As you shall see later on the decision of the Courts of India as well as of the Privy Council have held uniformly that the Hindu

idol is a juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests. “A Hindu idol”, the Judicial Committee observed in one of its recent pronouncements, “is according to long established authority founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus and the recognition thereof by Courts of Law, a juristic entity. It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued.” You should remember, however, that the juridical person in the idol is not the material image, and it is an exploded theory that the image itself develops into a legal person as soon as it is consecrated by the Pran Pratistha ceremony. It is not also correct that the Supreme Being of which the idol is a symbol or image is the recipient and owner of the dedicated property. The idol as representing and embodying the spiritual purpose of the donor is the juristic person recognized by law and in this juristic person the dedicated property vests.”

Sulapani, a reputed Brahminical Jurist, in his discourse on Sraddha thus expresses his views regarding the proper significance of gift to God:- “in 'Donation' having for its

dative case, the Gods like the Sun, etc., the term 'donation' has a secondary sense. The object of this figurative use being extension to it of the inseparable accompaniment of that (gift in its primary sense), viz., the offer of the sacrifical fee etc. it has already been remarked in the chapter on the Bratis that such usage as Devagram, Hastigram, etc., are secondary". Sree Krishna in commenting on this passage thus explains the meaning of the expression Devgram: "Moreover, the expression cannot be used here in its primary sense. The relation of one's ownership being excluded, the possessive case affix (in Devas in the term Devagram) figuratively means abandonment for them (the Gods)". Therefore, the expression is used in the sense of "a village which is the object of abandonment intended for the Gods". This is the purport. According to Savar Swami, the well-known commentator on Purba Mimansa, Devagram and Devakhetra are figurative expressions. What one is able to employ according to one's desire is one's property. The Gods however do not employ a village or land according to their use."

Page 39-Para "1.52. These discussions are not free from obscurity but the following conclusions I think can be safely drawn from them:-(1) According to these sages the deity or idol is the owner of the dedicated property but in a secondary sense. The ownership in its primary sense connotes the capacity to enjoy and deal with the property at one's pleasure. A deity cannot hold or enjoy property like a man, hence the deity is not the owner in its primary sense.

Thus, the Hindu concept of deity is worship of his image. It is an admitted case that deities were installed and are being worshiped in the structure. The time of installation has been seen in another issue but the factum is the same that the deities were available inside the structure and the plaintiff has sought the relief of the removal without arraying them as a party. It is not a matter of dispute that deity is a juristic person. The plaintiff is not in a position to say whether Pran

Pratishtha was performed or not. The Hindu concept is that deities had to be worshipped. Thus the idol is a juristic person but they did not recognize a temple to be so. It is also a settled proposition of law that no decree can be passed against the juristic person without arraying them as a party. Thus, in view of the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in 2000 (4) SSC 146, Shiromani Gurudwara Prabandhak Committee Vs. Somnath Das, the deities installed and admitted by the plaintiff are the juristic persons. In view of AIR 1957 SC Page 133, Deoki Nandan Aggarwal vs. Murlidhar endowment property in favour of an idol is possible as they are juristic persons. On the contrary, that the defendants Hindus' claim that deities were Pran Pratishthit and according to their faith they are being properly worshipped and Muslims cannot claim that the religious performance of Hindus were defective and accordingly they are not juristic persons. In view of AIR 1966 Patna 235, Ram Ratan Lal Vs. Kashinath Tewari and others that the actual Sankalp and Samarpan is not necessary. It is always possible that by worship also, the deities acquire divinity. it is admitted between the parties that the prayers were offered to the deities at least from December, 1949 and the suit was filed after a long time even then the plaintiff cannot, at this stage, suggest that there was no Pran Pratishtha in the temple of the deities. It is also a matter of common knowledge that deities are installed with Pran Pratishta. There is no difference between idol and deities. According to Hindu faith the worship is going on for the last 61 years. Accordingly at no stretch of imagination, at this stage, it can be said that without any Pran Pratishtha or Pooja the deities were installed.

Thus, in view of AIR 1925 Privy Council 139 Pramatha Nath

www.vadaprativada.com

Mullick Vs. Pradyumna Kumar Mullick even idol is a juristic person and it can sue and be sued. It is not a property which can be shifted to other place. Thus in this case once the parties accept that idols were placed and the worship was going on in that event there is no difference between deities and idols. The worship/prayers were offered. They were properly being worshipped for the last many decades. Accordingly, at this stage there is no justification to hold that the idol should not be treated as juristic persons. There is no material available on record that deities cannot be supposed to be juristic persons. Thus on hyper technical grounds and for want of any evidence from the side of defendants that Pran Pratishtha of the deities plaintiff nos. 1 & 2 was not done and they are not juristic persons cannot be accepted.

I have given anxious thoughts to the facts in issue. In this context it appears that plaintiff no. 1 and 2 are juridical persons.

IDOL – JURIDICAL PERSON

A Hindu idol is a juristic entity and has a juridical status. The idol itself is not a legal person. The idol is representing and embodying the spiritual purpose of the donor and it is this purpose, which is the juristic person. The purpose of making a gift to person is not to confer benefit on God, but to confer a benefit on those who worship in that temple, by making it possible for them to have the worship conducted in a proper and impressive manner. The Madras High Court in the case of Vidyapurana Vs. Vidyanidhi [ILR Mad 435], Justice Bhashyam Iyengar suggested that the community itself for whose spiritual benefit the Institution is founded or endowed may be more appropriately regarded as a corporate body forming the juristic person rather than the idol or presiding deity.

The Privy Council in the case of Maharaja Jagadindra Nath Roy Bahadur Vs. Rani Hemanta Kumari Debi [ILR 32 CAL 129 : XXXI I.A. 203] observed:

> "There is no doubt that an idol may be regarded as a juridical person capable as such of holding property, though it is only in an ideal sense that property is so held. And probably this is the true legal view when the dedication is of the completest kind known to the law."

In this case it was argued that the period of limitation to file the suit expired when the Sebait was a minor and the Sebait was not entitled to claim the benefit of Section 7 of the Indian Limitation Act for the extension of period of limitation. By virtue of his minority the Privy Council observed that the possession and Management of the dedicated property belong to Sebait. The right to file the suit is vested with the Sebait and not in the idol. The right to sue accrue to the plaintiff when he was under aged and he was entitled to file a suit after attaining majority. In the case of Asthanjanamabhoomi, the claim of adverse possession does not arise for the simple reason that such claim for adverse possession can be made in respect of properties dedicated to a deity and not where the property itself is the deity. Such a claim also arise as the idol was not represented by a Sebait who was competent to take a decision on behalf of the idol. The Supreme Court in the case of Bishwanath Vs. Sri Thakur Radha Ballabhji [AIR 1967 SC 1044] has placed reliance on the observation of the Privy Council in the case of Jagad estate of an infant indra Nath Roy Bahadur. Thereafter it is observed as under:

> "Three legal concepts are well settled : (1) An idol of a Hindu temple is a juridical person; (2) when there is a Shebait, ordinarily no person other than the Shebait can represent the idol; and (3) worshippers of an idol are its beneficiaries, though only in a spiritual sense. It has also been held that person who go in only for the purpose of devotion have according to Hindu law and religion, a greater and deeper interest in temples than mere servants who serve there for some pecuniary advantage : See Kalyana Venkataramana Ayyangar Vs. Kasturi Ranga Ayyangar AIR 1917 Mad 112 at page 118".

Thereafter the Supreme Court has observed further that:

> "The question is, can such a person represent the idol when Shebait acts adversely to its interest and fails to take action to safeguard its interest. On principle we do not see any justification for denying such a right to the worshipper. An idol is in the position of a minor and when the person representing it leaves it in a lurch, a person interested in the worship of the idol can certainly be clothed with an adhoc interest. It is a pragmatic, yet a legal solution to a difficult situation. ……. That is why decisions have permitted a worshipper in such circumstances to represent the idol and to recover the property for the idol. It has been held in a number of decisions that worshippers may file a suit praying for possession of a property on behalf of an endowment."

The Supreme Court has placed reliance on the observation of B.K. Mukherjee in his book, "The Hindu Law of Religious & Charitable Trust" II Edition, wherein it is observed that, where the Shebait refuses to act for the idol, or where the suit is to challenge the act of the Shebait himself as prejudicial to the interest of the idol, then there must be some other agency which must have the right to act for the idol. It is in this background, the Supreme Court has held the right of a worshipper is to file a suit representing the idol. The principle laid down in this case is applicable to the facts of the present case where the worshippers of Ashtanajanamabhoomi have filed the suit for safeguarding the interest of the deity. The ratio of the said case also supports of a view that a deity can be considered as a perpetual infant, which can only be represented by its next friend. A worshipper can file a suit on behalf of the idol where Shebait is in different or has an adverse interest (Kissan Bagwan Vs. Suri Morati Sansthan [AIR 1947 Nagpur 253].

The Supreme Court in the case of Jogendra Nath Naskar Vs. IT Commissioner has observed as under:

> "Neither God nor any supernatural being could be a person in law. But so far as the deity stands as the representative and symbol of the particular purpose which is indicated by the donor, it can figure as a legal person".

The Supreme Court in the case of Ramaraghava Reddy Vs. Seshu Reddy (AIR 1967 SC 436) observed that:

> *"*Where the Shebait himself is negligent or where the Shebait himself is guilty party against whom the deity needs relief it is open to the worshippers or other persons interested in the religious endowment to file suits for the protection of the trust properties. In such a case suit can be filed by a next friend."

The Supreme Court relied upon the observation in the case of Pramath Nath Vs. Pradyumna Kumar [AIR 1925 PC 139] wherein it is stated that:

> "Will of the idol on that question must be respected, inasmuch as the idol was not represented otherwise than by Shebaits, it ought to appear through a disinterested next friend appointed by the Court."

It has been argued that deities are perpetual minors for the purpose of law of contract. However, this argument is not accepted in Bhopal Shreedar Vs. Shasheebhusan [AIR 1933 Cal 109]. The deity is held to be person or individual for the purpose of Income Tax Act. However the minority status of the deity is not accepted in the matter of holding of property as held by the Full Bench of Madras High Court in MA Manathounithai Desikar Vs. Sundar (AIR 1971 Mad 1).”

Thus, there is difference between juristic and legal persons.

Juristic Person : Persons are classified or distinguished as natural and legal (or juristic). A natural person is a being to whom the law attributes personality in accordance with reality and truth. Legal persons are beings, real or imaginary, to whom the law attributes personality by way of fiction when there is none if fact. Legal personality is an artificial creation of the law. According to the Supreme Court in Som Prakash Rekhi V. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 212 “A legal person is any entity other than human being to which law attributes personality” Further, “the very words 'Juristic Person' connote recognition of an entity to be in law a person which otherwise it is not. In other words, it is not an individual natural person but an artificially created person which is to be recognized in law as such vide SGPC V. Som Nath Dass, AIR 2000 SC 1421.

Thus juristic or legal or artificial person is any subject matter to which the law attributes a fictitious personality. It is a legal creation either under a general law like Companies Act or by a specific enactment or by a decision of the court. Being the creation of law, legal persons can be of as many kinds structure as the law pleases. A legal person is holder of rights and duties, it can own and disposes of property, it can receive gifts and it can sue and be sued in its name in

The Privy Council in Pramath Nath Mullick V. Pradyunna Nath Mullic (1925) 52 Indian Appeals 245, 264 consistently held this view in its words:

> "A Hindu Idol is, according to long established authority founded upon the religious custom of Hindus, and recognition thereof by the courts of law, a juristic entity. It has a judicial status with power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who is in law its manager."

The spiritual and legal aspects of Hindu idol need be distinguished. From the spiritual point of view idol is the very embodiment of the Supreme Being, but with this aspect of the matter law is not concerned, in fact it is beyond the reach of law. In law, neither God nor any supernatural being can be a person. But so far as the deity or idol stands as the representative and symbol of the particular purpose indicated by donor, it can figure as a legal person.

The plaintiffs have specifically pleaded and have given reasons as to why the place believed to be the birth place of Lord Ram is a deity. Reliance has been placed on paras 19,20 and 21 of the plaint. For convenience they are reproduced as below;-

"19. That it is manifestly established by public records of unimpeachable authority that the premises in dispute is the place where Maryada Purushottam Sri Ramchandra Ji Maharaj was born as the son of Maharaja Dashrath of the solar Dynasty, which according to the tradition and the faith of the devotees of Bhagwan Sri Rama is the place where HE manifested HIMSELF in human form as an incarnation of BHAGWAN VISHNU. The place has since ever been called Sri Rama

Janma Bhumi by all and sundry through the ages.

20. That the place itself, or the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI, as it has come to be known, has been an object of worship as a Deity by the devotees of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA, as it personifies the spirit of the Divine worshipped in the form of SRI RAMA LALA or Lord RAMA the child. The Asthan was thus Deified and has had a juridical personality of its own even before the construction of a Temple building or the installation of the idol of Bhagwan Sri Rama thereat.

21. That it may be here stated that the Hindus do not worship the stone or the metal shaped into the form of their ISHTA DEVATA, or the stone of SALIGRAM which has no particular shape at all. They worship the Divine, which has no quality or shape or form, but can be known only when it manifests ITSELF in the form of an incarnation, and therefore, adopt the form of his incarnation as their ISHTA DEVA. For some even that is unnecessary. They can meditate upon the formless and the shapeless DIVINE and aspire for a knowledge of him through his grace. It is the SPIRIT of the DIVINE which is worshipped by most Hindus, and not its material form or shape in an idol. This SPIRIT of the DIVINE in an idol is invoked by the ritual of pranapratishtha. The SPIRIT of the DIVINE is indestructible and ever remains present everywhere at all times for any one to invoke it in any shape or form in accord with his own aspiration. Different persons are at different levels of realisation of the REALITY. Some find it helpful to pursue a particular set of rituals for their spiritual uplift. A large section of Hindus follow BHAKTI MARGA, and BHAGWAN SRI RAMA or BHAGWAN SRI KRISHNA is their ISHTA DEVA."

Shri K.N. Bhat Senior Advocate has further urged that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are juristic persons , He has placed reliance on "the

Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts" by B.K.Mukherjea. Relevant extracts are reproduced as under:-

" A Hindu place of worship can be deemed to be a deity. Thus, on the basis of aforesaid contentions I hold that deities are juristic persons and they can sue or be sued. On behalf of Hindus it is urged that even by worship and chanting of Mantras Pranprathistha can be done. Accordingly the contentions that without any Pranprathistha deities are not juristic persons is not acceptable. Hindus claim that there was worship and Pranprathistha of the deities and they are juristic persons.

In view of above discussion, there is no doubt that plaintiff no. 1 is a deity and plaintiff no. 2 is worshipped from times immemorial and accordingly it is also a deity and they can sue the defendants through the next friend .

The aforesaid view is based on the decision of Hon'ble apex court in Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhabhallabhji and others AIR 1967 S.C.1044, which reads as under:

8 . The second question turns upon the right of a worshipper to represent an idol when the Shebait or manager of the temple is acting adversely to its interest. Ganapathi Iyer in his valuable treatise on "Hindu and Mahomedan Endowments", 2nd Edition at page 226, had this to say in regard to the legal status of an idol in Hindu law :

> "The ascription of a legal personality to the deity supposed to be residing in the image meets with all practical purposes. The deity can be said to possess property only in an ideal sense and the theory is, therefore, not complete unless that legal personality is linked to a natural person."

It would be futile to discuss at this stage the various decisions which considered the relationship between the idol and its Shebait or Manager qua the management of its property, as the Privy Council in Maharaja Jagadindra Nath Roy Bahadur v. Rani Hemanta Kumari Debi, has settled the legal position and stated thus :

Dealing with the position of the Shebait of such an idol, the Privy Council proceeded to state :

> "..... it still remains that the possession and management of the dedicated property belong to the Shebait. And this carries with it the right to bring whatever suits are necessary for the protection of the property. Every such right of suit is vested in the Shebait, not in the idol."

This was a case where the Shebait filed a suit for eviction from the dedicated property within three years after attaining majority and the Board held that, as he had the right to bring the suit for the protection of the dedicated property, section 7 of the Limitation Act, 1877, would apply to him. The present question, namely, if a Shebait acts adversely to the interests of the idol whether the idol represented by a worshipper can maintain a suit for eviction, did not arise for consideration in that case. That question falls to be decided on different considerations.

9. Three legal concepts are well settled : (1) An idol of a Hindu temple is a juridical person; (2) when there is a Shebait, ordinarily no person other than the Shebait can represent the idol; and (3) worshippers of an idol are its beneficiaries, though only in a spiritual sense. It has also been held that persons who go in only for the purpose of devotion have, according to Hindu law and religion, a greater and deeper interest in temples than mere servants who serve there for some pecuniary advantage : see Kalyana Venkataramana Ayyangar v. Kasturi Ranga Ayyangar . In the present case, the plaintiff is not only a mere worshipper but is found to have been assisting the 2nd defendant in the management of the temple.

10. The question is, can such a person represent the idol when the Shebait acts adversely to its interest and fails to take action to safeguard its interest. On principle we do not see any justification for denying such a right to the worshipper. An idol is in the position of a minor; when the person representing it leaves in the lurch, a person interested in the worship of the idol can certainly be clothed with an ad hoc power of representation to protect its interest. It is a pragmatic, yet a legal solution to a difficult situation. Should it be held that a Shebait, who transferred the property, can only bring a suit for recovery, in most of the cases it will be an indirect approval of the dereliction of the Shebait's duty, for more often than not he will not admit his default and take steps to recover the property, apart from other technical pleas that may be open to the transferee in a suit. Should it be held that a worshipper can file only a suit for the removal of a Shebait and for the appointment of another in order to enable him to take steps to recover the property, such a procedure will be rather a prolonged and a complicated one and the interest of the idol may irreparably suffer. That is why decisions have permitted a worshipper in such circumstances to represent the idol and to recover

the property for the idol. It has been held in a number of decisions that worshippers may file a suit praying for possession of a property on behalf of an endowment.

11. There are two decisions of the Privy Council, namely Pramatha Nath Mullick v. Pradyumna Kumar Mullick and Kanhaiyat Lal v. Hamid Ali , wherein the Board remanded the case to the High Court in order that the High Court might appoint a disinterested person to represent the idol. No doubt in both the cases no question of any deity filing a suit for its protection arose, but the decisions are authorities for the position that apart from a Shebait, under certain circumstances, the idol can be represented by disinterested persons. B. K. Mukherjea in his book "The Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust" 2nd Edition, summarizes the legal position by way of the following propositions, among others, at page 249 :

> "(1) An idol is a juristic person in whom the title to the properties of the endowment vests. But it is only in an ideal sense that the idol is the owner. It has to act through human agency, and that agent is the Shebait, who is, in law, the person entitled to take proceedings on its behalf. The personality of the idol might therefore be said to be merged in that of the Shebait.
> (2) Where, however, the Shebait refuses to act for the idol, or where the suit is to challenge the act of the Shebait himself as prejudicial to the interests of the idol, then there must be some other agency which must have the right to act for the idol. The law accordingly recognises a right in persons interested in the endowment to take proceedings

This view is justified by reason as well as by decision.

In view of the aforesaid judgement a Shebait or worshipper can file the suit as next friend for the reasons that an idol is in a position of minor and it has to act through human agency. Thus, in this case the plaintiff no. 3 is the next friend and accordingly he has a right to maintain the suit.

It may further be clarified that plaintiff no. 3 was a Senior Advocate and a retired Judge of the High Court, who filed the suit as next friend and there is no allegation on behalf of the defendant that he was acting adversely to the interest of plaintiff nos. 1 and 2. Consequently, looking to the case from all angles it transpires that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are juridical persons and plaintiff no. 3 as a next friend is entitled to maintain the suit on the basis of settled proposition of law as laid down in AIR 1925 Privy Council page 139 Pramatha Nath Mullick Vs. Pradyumna Kumar Mullick and AIR 1933 Privy Council 198(1) KanhaiyaLal Vs. Hamid Ali

Reliance may be placed on following case laws and relevant portions of the judgements which are given below;

Official Trustee of West Bengal (For The Trust of Chitra Dassi) V. C.I.T., West Bengal, A.I.R.1974 S.C.1355 (para 3):

3. It was conceded before us on behalf of the appellant that if the word used had been a "person" instead of an "individual" the deity would be a person because a person will include a juristic person. That a Hindu deity is a juristic person is a well established proposition and has been so for a long time. In Maharanee Shibessouree Debia v. Mothooranath Acharjo it was observed:

> The Talook itself, with which these jummas were connected by tenure, was dedicated to the religious services of the Idol. The rents constituted, therefore, in legal contemplation, its property. The Sahabit had not the legal property, but only the title of Manager of a religious endowment.

In Prosunno Kumari Debya v. Golab Chand Baboo, the above observations were cited with approval. In Manohar Ganesh v. Lakhmiram, a Division Bench of the Bombay High Court observed:

> The Hindu law, like the Roman law and those derived from it, recognises, not only corporate bodies with rights of property vested in the corporation apart from its individual members, but also the juridical persons or subjects called foundations.... It is consistent with the grants having been made to the juridical person symbolized or personified in the idol....

The Madras High Court in Vidyapurna Tirtha Swami v. Vidyanidhi Tirtha Swami expressed the view:

> It is to give due effect to such a sentiment widespread and deep rooted as it has always been, with reference to something not capable of holding property as a natural person, that the laws of most countries have sanctioned, the creation of a fictitious person in the matter, as is implied in the felicitous observation made in the work already cited: 'Perhaps the oldest of all juristic persons is the God, hero or the saint'.

In Pramatha Nath Mullick v. Pradumna Kumar Mullick

> A Hindu idol is, according to long established authority,

> founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus, and the recognition thereof by courts of law, a "juristic entity'. It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who is in law its manager with all the powers which would, in such circumstances, on anology, be given to the manger of the estate of an infant heir. It is unnecessary to quote the authorities : for this doctrine, thus simply stated, is firmly established.

In Shri Kalanka Devi Sansthan vs. the Maharashtra Revenue Tribunal, Nagpur and Ors., [A.I.R.1970 S.C.439] Apex Court held as under:

4. Now it is well known that when property is given absolutely for the worship of an idol it vests in the idol itself as a juristic person. As pointed out in Mukherjee's Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust at pp. 142-43, this view is in accordance with the Hindu ideas and has been uniformly accepted in a long series of judicial decisions. The idol is capable of holding property in the same way as a natural person. "It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who is in law its manager with all the powers which would, in such circumstances, on analogy, be given to the manager of the estate of an infant heir". The question, however, is whether the idol is capable of cultivating the land personally. The argument raised on behalf of the appellant is that under Explanation I in Section 2(12) of the Act a person who is subject to any physical or mental disability shall be deemed to cultivate the land personally if it is cultivated by the servants or by hired labourer. In other words an idol or a Sansthan

that would fall within the meaning of the word "person" can well be regarded to be subject to a physical or mental disability and land can be cultivated on its behalf by servants or hired labourers. It is urged that in Explanation (I) the idol would be in the same position as a minor and it can certainly cultivate the land personally within the meaning of Section 2(12). It is difficult to accept the suggestion that the case of the appellant would fall within Explanation (I) in Section 2(12). Physical or mental disability as denned by Section 2(22) lays emphasis on the words "personal labour or supervision". As has been rightly pointed out in Shri Kesheoraj Deo Sansthan, Karanji v. Bapurao Deoba and Ors. in which an identically similar point came up for consideration, the dominating idea of anything done personally or in person is that the thing must be done by the person himself and not by or through some one else. In our opinion the following passage is that judgment at p. 593 explains the whole position correctly :

> It should thus appear that the legislative intent clearly is that in order to claim a cultivation as a personal cultivation there must be established a direct nexus between the person who makes such a claim, and the agricultural processes or activities carried on the land. In other word disputed structure, all the agricultural operations, though allowed to be done through hired labour or workers must be under the direct supervision, control, or management of the landlord. It is in that sense that the word disputed structure "personal supervision" must be understood. In other word disputed structure, the requirement of personal supervision under the third category of personal cultivation provided for > in the definition does not admit of an intermediary between the landlord and the labourer, who can act as agent of the landlord for supervising the operations of the agricultural worker. If that is not possible in the case of one landlord, we do not see how it is possible in the case of another landlord merely because the landlord in the latter case is a juristic person.

In other words the intention is that the cultivation of the land concerned must be by natural persons and not by legal persons.

In Yogendra Nath Naskar v. Commissioner of Income-tax, Calcutta, (AIR 1969 SC 1089) Apex Court held as under:

Neither God nor any supernatural being could be a person in law. But so far as the deity stands as the representative and symbol of the particular purpose which is indicated by the donor, it can figure as a legal person. The true legal view is that in that capacity alone the dedicated property vests in it. There is no principle why a deity as such a legal person should not be taxed if such a legal person is allowed in law to own property even though in the ideal sense and to sue for the property, to realise rent and to defend such property in a court of law again in the ideal sense. Our conclusion is that the Hindu idol is a juristic entity capable of holding property and of being taxed through its Shebaits who are entrusted with the possession and management of its property. It was argued on behalf of the appellant that the word 'Individual' in Section 3 of the Act should not be construed as including a Hindu deity because it was not a real but a juristic person. We are unable to accept this argument as correct. We see no reason why the meaning of the word 'individual' in Section 3 of the Act should be restricted to human being and not to juristic

In Ram Jankijee Deities & Ors. v. State of Bihar and Ors, (AIR 1999 SC 2131) Apex Court held as under:

One of the questions emerging at this point, is as to nature of such an idol, and the services due thereto. A Hindu idol is, according to long established authority, founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus, and the recognition thereof by Courts of law, a "juristic entity." It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who is in law its manager with all the powers which would, in such circumstances, on analogy, be given to the manager of the estate of an infant heir. It is unnecessary to quote the authorities; for this doctrine, thus simply stated, is firmly established.

A useful narrative of the concrete realities of the position is to be found in the judgment of Mukerji J. in Rambrahma Chatterjee v. Kedar Nath Banerjee , "We need not describe here in detail the normal type of continued worship of a consecrated image - the sweeping of the temple, the process of smearing, the removal of the previous day's offerings of flowers, the presentation of fresh flowers, the respectful oblation of rice with flowers and water, and other like practices. It is sufficient to state that the deity is, in short, conceived as a living being and is treated in the same way as the master of the house would be treated by his humble servant. The daily routine of life is gone through with minute accuracy; the vivified image is regaled with the necessaries and luxuries of life in due succession, even to the changing of clothes, the offering of cooked and uncooked food, and the retirement to rest."

19. In this context reference may also be made to an earlier decision of the Calcutta High Court in the case of Bhupatinath v. Ramlal Maitra , wherein Chatterjee, J. (at page 167) observed:

> 'A Hindu does not worship the "idol" or the material body made of clay or gold or other substance, as a mere glance at the mantras and prayers will show. They worship the eternal spirit of the deity or certain attributes of the same, in a suggestive form, which is used for the convenience of contemplation as a mere symbol or emblem. It is the incantation of the mantras peculiar to a particular deity that causes the manifestation or presence of the deity or according to some, the gratification of the deity.

20. God is Omnipotent and Omniscient and its presence is felt not by reason of a particular form or image but by reason of the presence of the omnipotent: It is formless, it is shapeless and it is for the benefit of the worshippers that there is manifestation in images of the Supreme Being. 'The Supreme Being has no attribute, which consists of pure spirit and which is without a second being, i.e. God is the only Being existing in reality, there is no other being in real existence excepting Him - (see in this context Golap Chandra Sarkar, Sastri's Hindu Law: 8th Edn.). It is the human concept of the Lord of the Lords- it is the human vision of the Lord of the Lords: How one sees the deity: how one feels the deity and recognises the deity and then establishes the same in the temple upon however performance of the consecration ceremony. Shastras do provide as to how to consecrate and the usual ceremonies of Sankalpa and Utsarga shall have to be performed for proper and effective dedication of the property to a

deity and in order to be termed as a juristic person. In the conception of Debutter, two essential ideas are required to be performed: In the first place, the property which is dedicated to the deity vests in an ideal sense in the deity itself as a juristic person and in the second place, the personality of the idol being linked up with natural personality of the shebait, being the manager or being the Dharam karta and who is entrusted with the custody of the idol and who is responsible otherwise for preservation of the property of the idol. The Deva Pratistha Tatwa of Raghunandan and Matsya and Devi Puranas though may not be uniform in its description as to how Pratistha or consecration of image does take place but it is customary that the image is first carried to the Snan Mandap and thereafter the founder utters the Sankalpa Mantra and upon completion thereof, the image is given bath with Holy water, Ghee, Dahi, Honey and Rose water and thereafter the oblation to the sacred fire by which the Pran Pratistha takes place and the eternal spirit is infused in that particular idol and the image is then taken to the temple itself and the same is thereafter formally dedicated to the deity. A simple piece of wood or stone may become the image or idol and divinity is attributed to the same. As noticed above, it is formless, shapeless but it is the human concept of a particular divine existence which gives it the shape, the size and the colour. While it is true that the learned Single Judge has quoted some eminent authors but in our view the same does not however, lend any assistance to the matter in issue and the Principles of Hindu Law seems to have been totally misread by the learned Single Judge.

I agree with the contentions of Senior Advocate, Sri Bhat, that

plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are like infants and in view of AIR 1925 Privy Council page 139 at page 140 Pramatha Nath Mullick Vs Pradyumna Kumar they are juristic entity and have juridical status.

In AIR 1937 Calcutta, 338 Bimal Krishna Ghosh Vs. Shebaits of Sree Sree Ishwar Radha Ballav Jiu a Division Bench of Calcutta High Court held that deities are perpetual infants and legal owner of the property and Shebait occupies the position of a Manager.

In celebrated case of Allahabad High Court Jodhi Rai Vs Basdeo Prasad 1911 (33) Allahabad ( ILR)page 735 at page 737 the Full Bench of this Court held that deity is like minor and idol was held to be a juristic person, who can hold the property. If a suit is brought by or against minor it should be brought like a suit of minor. Thus, a suit on behalf of idol can be brought in the name of an idol represented by the Manager.

In AIR 1967 Supreme Court 1044 Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhabhallabhji and others the apex court took a view that idols like plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 in the suit are minors and their interest cannot be left in a lurch and even the worshipper can sue on their behalf and he is clothed with an ad hoc power of representation to protect the interest of the deities. Thus, plaintiff no. 3 has rightly filed the suit on behalf of plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 , the deities. I do not find any justification to hold that the decision of Full Bench in the case of Jodhi Rai Vs. Basdeo Prasad 1911 (33) Allahabad (ILR)( supra) requires any re-consideration for the reason that Full Bench of this Court considered a number of decisions

including earlier Full Bench decision of different High Courts.

The decision is correct on the ground that Hon'ble Apex Court in Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhabhallabhji and others AIR 1967 Supreme Court page 1044 also considered the position of idols as minors. I do not find any flaw on the part of the plaintiff no. 3 to file the suit as next friend for the deities, plaintiffs no. 1 and 2. Action of plaintiff no. 3 is further justified by a Full Bench decision of Madras High Court as reported in AIR 1971 Madras page 1( Full Bench) Manathu Maitha Desikr Vs. Sundaralingam where their Lordships took the view that the deity, who is owner of the property, suffers from physical disability as a minor and its interest had to be looked after in perpetuity Thus, in the instant case plaintiff no. 3 ,who is next friend and senior Advocate and retied Judge of the High Court has filed the suit alleging that deities, who are minor, under physical disability are juridical persons and can maintain the suit for declaration and injunction .

In view of the discussion referred to above , I hold that plaintiff nos. 1 and2 are juridical persons and deities can be represented through plaintiff no. 3, as next friend, who is worshipper and he is also entitled and is competent to act on their behalf.

Issue nos. 1,2 and 6 are decided in favour of plaintiffs and against the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 5

Is the property in question properly identified and described in the plaint ?

FINDINGS

The property, in question, is said to have been not properly identified and described in the plaint. On behalf of the plaintiffs, the attention of this Court was drawn on paras 1,2,14, 18,20 and 24 of the plaint coupled with the statement of plaintiff No. 3, Sri Devki Nandan Agrwal, whose statement was recorded under Order X Rule 2 C.P.C. On 30.4. 1992. On 10.9.1992 the Court has also passed the order on Application No. 110-0 of 1992. Thus, the details of the property in suit have already been given and property is identified. Thus, at the time of filing of the suit the property was not vested in the Central Government. Undisputedly, the plaintiffs have clearly mentioned the land which is identifiable . The plaintiffs have attached the map along with the plaint. Out of such maps , the map prepared by Vakail Commissioner Sri Sheo Shanker Lal in Original Suit No. 2 of 1950, has also been attached. Thus, the land in question is identifiable. Issue No. 5 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants.

ISSUE NOS. 7 & 8

7. Whether the defendant no. 3, alone is entitled to represent plaintiffs 1 and 2, and is the suit not competent on that account as alleged in paragraph 49 of the additional written statement of defendant no. 3 ?

8. Is the defendant Nirmohi Akhara the "Shebait" of Bhagwan Sri Rama installed in the disputed structure ?

FINDINGS

Since these issues are inter related, they can be conveniently

On behalf of the defendant no. 3, it has been claimed that plaintiff no. 3 is not entitled to file present suit on behalf of the plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 and in view of para 49 of additional written statement plaintiff no. 1 can only be represented by defendant no.3 and, therefore, plaintiff no. 1 should be transposed as defendant to be represented by defendant no. 3. It has further been submitted that defendant no. 3 Nirmohi Akhara has not come out with a case that they are Shabait of Bhagwan Shri Ram installed in the disputed property. In this context the attention of this Court was drawn to the averments of Original Suit No. 26 of 1959 Nirmohi Akhara Vs. Priya Dutt Ram which has been re-numbered as O.O.S.No. 3 of 1989. In the instant suit it has been stated that Nirmohi Akhara is of public character and Mahant Raghunath Das was the head and its Mahant and Sarvarakar. Thus, the case of the plaintiff in O. O.S.No. 3 of 1989, who is at present defendant no.3, before this Court is that they have claimed ownership of the property in suit as religious denomination . It has further been averred at paras 4-A and 4-B of the plaint of O.O.S. No.3 of 1989 that Nirmohi Akhara owned several temples and was managing the same. Thus, it is established that defendant no. 3 claimed his right over the disputed property as an owner. They have not contested the suit as Sarvarakar or Shebait of any deity referred to in O. O.S.No. 3 of 1989. It further transpires from the averments of plaint in O.O.S.No. 3 of 1989 that they have referred to the temple of Janambhumi which does not situate in the place in dispute where deities are installed. In O.O.S.No. 5 of 1989, the plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 are the deities and plaintiff no.3 as a next friend and worshipper

has filed the suit in which defendant no. 3 has filed written statement to this effect that the suit should be dismissed. He has also requested that the plaintiff no. 1 should be transposed as defendant as stated in para 49 of additional written statement. Thus, in the property in suit, defendant no. 3 does not claim any interest or has not shown any inclination to protect the interest of infant deities, who are in the eyes of law minors . Thus, assertion of defendant no. 3 that the plaintiff no. 3 was not competent to sue on behalf of plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 appears to be misconceived. The defendant no. 3 has failed to adduce any evidence in support of his claim. He has not even referred to anywhere in the written statement or additional written statement filed before this Court in O.O.S.No. 5 of 1989 that he is Sarvarakar or Shabait of the deities and he is alone competent to contest the case. On the other hand, he claims ownership of a temple which is not in existence where the deities , the plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 are not installed. As regards the existence of plaintiff no. 2 is concerned, defendant no. 3 denies the existence. Even if for the argument sake it is presumed that he is Sarvarakar, he is Shabait or the Manager, even then it can safely be presumed that under the above circumstances he has ignored the interest of the idols and he has refused to act for the idols and he has acted as a Shabait against the interest of the idols. Thus, his action can be deemed to be pre judicial to the interest of the idols. Consequently, in such a situation in the light of the decision of Hon'ble the apex court in A.I.R.1967 Supreme Court 1044 Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhaballabhji and others , the plaintiff no. 3 alone is competent to represent plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 as a worshipper . The worshipper can also be permitted to institute the suit as idol or its beneficiaries

in spiritual sense and its transpires from the averments of the plaint that plaintiff no. 3 has claimed himself to be the devotee of plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 and had shown deeper interest in plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 as worshipper and without any pecuniary advantage from plaintiff nos. 1 and 2. There are circumstances in which the interest of the idol can be protected even by appointing any disinterested person by the Court to represent the idol apart from Shabait, if his conduct is pre judicial to the deities. Hon'ble the Apex Court has clarified this situation in paras 8,9,10 and 11 of the view taken in Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhabhallabhji and others (Supra). For convenience para 10 is reproduced as under :

" 10. The question is, can such a person represent the idol when the Shebait acts adversely to its interest and fails to take action to safeguard its interest. On principle we do not see any justification for denying such a right to the worshipper. An idol is in the position of a minor; when the person representing it leaves in the lurch, a person interested in the worship of the idol can certainly be clothed with an ad hoc power of representation to protect its interest. It is a pragmatic, yet a legal solution to a difficult situation. Should it be held that a Shebait, who transferred the property, can only bring a suit for recovery, in most of the cases it will be an indirect approval of the dereliction of the Shebait's duty, for more often than not he will not admit his default and take steps to recover the property, apart from other technical pleas that may be open to the transferee in a suit. Should it be held that a worshipper can file only a suit for the removal of a Shebait and for the appointment of another in order to enable him to take steps to recover the property, such a procedure will be

rather a prolonged and a complicated one and the interest of the idol may irreparably suffer. That is why decisions have permitted a worshipper in such circumstances to represent the idol and to recover the property for the idol. It has been held in a number of decisions that worshippers may file a suit praying for possession of a property on behalf of an endowment; see Radhabai v. Chimnaji (1878)ILR 3 Bom 27, Zafaryab Ali v. Bakhtawar Singh, (1883),ILR 5 All 497, Chidambaranatha Thambiran vs. P. S. Nallasiva Mudaliar, 6 Mad LW 666: (AIR 1918 Mad 464), Dasondhay vs. Muhammad Abu Nasar, (1911) ILR 33 All 660 at p. 664: (AIR 1917 Mad 112) (FB), Sri Radha Kirshnaji v. Rameshwar Prashad Singh : AIR 1934 Pat 584, Manmohan Haldar v. Dibbendu Prosad Roy Choudhury, AIR 1949 Cal 199. "

Thus, defendant no. 3 Nirmohi Akhaa is not Shebait of Bhagwan Shri Ram installed in the disputed structure and also not competent to maintain the present suit in which as per his request plaintiff no. 1 should be transposed as defendant . On the contrary, the plaintiff no. 3 has proved before this Court that he may be permitted to represent the idols ,plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 as he is worshipper and idols are in the position of a minor and their interest cannot be left in a lurch. Opposite Party No. 3 is a person interested in the worship of the idols .Thus, at least he has ad hoc power of representation to protect the interest of the deities . Thus, in view of the submissions , plaintiff no. 3 is entitled to maintain the suit and defendant no. 3 is not competent to represent plaintiffs no. 1 and 2, the deities.

In view of the discussion referred to above issue nos. 7 and 8

are decided against the defendant no. 3 and in favour of the plaintiff nos. 1 to 3.

ISSUE NO. 19

Whether the suit is bad for non-joinder of necessary parties, as pleaded in paragraph 43 of the additional written statement of defendant no. 3 ?

FINDINGS

it has been urged on behalf of the defendant no. 3 that in view of the contentions raised in para 43 of the additional written statement, the suit is bad for non-joinder of the necessary party. Para 43 of the additional written statement is reproduced as under ;-

“That outer portion consisting of Bhagwan Ram Lala on Sri Ram Chabutra along with other deities, Chathi Pujan Sthan and Bhandar with eastern outer wall carrying engraved image of Varah Bhagwan with southern and northern wall and also western portion of wall carries the present municipal No. 10/12/29 old 506, 507 and older 647 of Ram Kot ward of Ayodhya City had been a continuous referred in main litigation since 1885 till Reg. Suit No. 239/82 of the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad and in every case Nirmohi Akhara was held always in possession and ianagement of this temple so the Bhagwan Ram Lalaji installed by Nirmohi Akhara on this Ram Chabutra is a distinct legal entity owned by defendant no.3. That suit is bad for want of impleadment of necessary party as mentioned above.”

In view of the contentions in para 43 it transpires from it that defendant no. 3 has come out with case that Nirmohi Akhra always remained in possession and management of the temple of Bhagwan Shri Ram Lala installed by Nirmohi Akhara and the deities are distinct

legal entity at Ram Chabutra. It is also claimed by defendant no. 3 that he contested the suit in the year 1885 and also contested the case no. 237/82 before Civil Judge, Faizabad.

In this context it transpires that this Court has already recorded finding on issue nos. 1,2,6,7 and 8. In view of the findings it transpires that plaintiff no. 3 was found entitled to represent plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 as next friend and defendant no. 3 was not found to be the Shabait of plaintiff nos. 1 and 2.

On the contrary, it transpires that in view of the decision of Hon'ble the apex court in AIR 1967 Supreme Court 1044 Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhabhallabhji and others and the law laid down by the apex court at para nos. 11 and 12 of the aforesaid ruling, the defendant no. 3 acted against the interest of the minor and file O.O.S.No. 3 of 1989 which is connected case in which he claims himself to be the owner of the property in suit and as referred to another temple of Ram Lala. Thus, he has not taken proper care for the interest of minor deities, plaintiff nos. 1 and 2. Thus, it is not open for him to raise a plea that he alone is competent to institute the suit on behalf of the plaintiff no. 1 Defendant No. 3 has even declined plaintiff no. 2 as a deity and thus, apparently he is not entitled to protect the interest of plaintiff no.2. Thus, from all or any angle the suit is not bad for non-joinder of defendant no 3. The plaintiff no. 3 as a worshipper has right to maintain the suit.

ISSUE NO.20

Whether the alleged Trust, creating the Nyas defendant

www.vadaprativada.com

no. 21, is void on the facts and grounds stated in paragraph 47 of the written statement of defendant no. 3 ?

FINDINGS

On behalf of defendant no. 3 it is submitted that in view of the averments in para 47 of the written statement no valid trust could be created and thus, the alleged trust cannot maintain the suit. It is further submitted that plaintiff no. 3 is associated with Vishwa Hindu Parishad and he is not worshipper of plaintiff nos. 1 and 2. At para 16 of the written statement it is submitted that alleged trust has no relevance at all to the present dispute. Mahant Ram Kewal Das is a simple Sadhu and he has been made as a trustee. Due to malicious plan of the alleged Trust he encroached upon the rights and interest of Nirmohi Akhara which is Pandhayati Akhra and is governed by panches of Akhara. The trust came into existence in 1985 to damage the interest of Akhara, defendant no. 3. The trust is not directly interested in the welfare interest and worship of Bhagwan Shri Ram and Nyas is not proper party. On the other hand, on behalf of plaintiff, it is suggested that in order to improve the temple administration and to re-construct a new temple at Ram Janam Bhumi and also Seva Archana and puja plaintiffs-deities and to protect their interest the trust has been created by the Hindus,who reposed the trust in Ramanand Sampradaya and Jagat Guru Mahant Ram Kewal Das is looking after the trust and the deed is also enclosed as Annexure No. 4 to the plaint. A perusal of annexure no. 4 to the plaint reveals that the trust was created for the betterment and for the protection of interest of deities and for the construction of the temple also to expand religious thoughts among the masses and also to provide proper facilities to the pilgrims. The deed is registered. Nirmohi Akhara has not filed any suit challenging the validity of the trust created in the year 1985. They have also not agitated before any competent court for the formation of the trust. Thus, the trust which came into existence in the year 1985 has filed the suit in 1989. In this reference it is pertinent to refer that defendant no. 3 now cannot challenge before this Court the formation of the trust. Unless trust deed is cancelled, it has to be presumed as registered document and no inference can be drawn that the deed was registered maliciously against the interest of defendant no. 3. Thus, no declaration can be given in this suit that trust deed is void on the ground referred to in para 47 of the additional written statement.

There is no evidence worth the name that the plaintiff was illegally playing in the hands of Vishwa Hindu Parishad and maliciously wants to usurp the property of defendant no. 3. Thus, looking to the averments of the plaint specially paras 15,16 and 17 and annexure no. 4 of the plaint, it transpires that trust deed may be created by Hindus for lawful purpose .

Thus, the object of the trust is not forbidden by law and the trust is valid. Issue no. 20 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendant no.3.

ISSUE NO. 21

Whether the idols in question cannot be treated as deities as alleged in paragraphs 1, 11, 12, 21, 22, 27 and 41 of the written statement of defendant no. 4 and in paragraph 1 of the written statement of defendant no. 5 ?

FINDINGS

On behalf of the defendants, it is suggested that idols in question cannot be treated as a deity. In this reference written statements filed by defendant no. 4 and defendant no. 5 have been relied upon. The attention of this Court was drawn of paras 1,11,12,21,22,27 and 41 of written statement of defendant no. 4 and para 1 of the written statement of defendant no. 5.

I have gone through the averments made in the aforesaid paragraphs. It transpires that defendant nos. 4 and 5 have denied the contents of plaint. It has been averred that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 cannot be treated as deities as the idols were kept inside the mosque in the night of 22/23 rd December, 1949. Thus, the idols were not placed in accordance with the tradition and ritual of Hindu law. It is further submitted that there is no comparison of Kedar Nath , Vishnu Pad temple of Gaya with plaintiff no. 2. It is also mentioned that Sita Rasoi and Charan situate outside the premises of the mosque. Ram Chandra Ji as divine Lord cannot be said to reside at any place or in any idols kept inside the said mosque. Such idols and the place inside the mosque cannot be said to be deity. They have denied the contents of para 27 of the plaint and averred that no Pranprathistha or purification of the alleged Asthan was done. The instant suit is not maintainable as plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are neither deities nor they can be treated as juristic persons. On behalf of the plaintiffs it is submitted that according to concept of Hindu Law the deity is based on faith. The deity is is the image of Supreme Being. The temple is the home of the deity. It is enough that Supreme Being is installed in the temple. The worship of such images of Supreme

Being is acceptable in Hindu Law. The Hindus have also the belief that idols represent deity. Reliance has been placed on a book" The Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust by B.K.Mukharjee on para 1.33 pages 26 and 27.

> The traditional and classical legal literature relating to Hindus has also duly sanctified such belief and faith which has been exalted to a juristic status requiring legal recognition. In this connection, "the Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts" by B.K. Mukherjea lays down some of the relevant concepts relating to deity and the temple along with concerned page number which are consistently being recognized as judicial authorities, not only in India but also abroad. The concept mentioned therein along with concerned page numbers are being quoted below:
> Page 26-27 – Para "1.33: Idols representing same divinity – One thing you should bear in mind in connection with image worship viz. That the different images do not represent separate divinities; they are really symbols of the one Supreme Being, and in whichever name and form the deity might be invoked, he is to the devotee the Supreme God to whom all the functions of creation, preservation and destruction are attributed. In worshipping the image therefore the Hindu purports to worship the Supreme Deity and none else. The rationale of image worship is thus given in a verse which is quoted by Raghunandan:

www.vadaprativada.com

Temples and mutts are the two principal religious institutions of the Hindus. There are numerous texts extolling the merits of founding such institutions. In Sri Hari Bhaktibilash a passage is quoted from Narsingha Purana which says that "whoever conceives the idea of erecting a divine temple, that very day his carnal sins are annihilated; what then shall be said of finishing the structure according to rule ..... He who dies after making the first brick obtains the religious merits of a competed Jagna."

Other kinds of religious and charitable benefactions.- "A person consecrating a temple", says Agastya, "also one establishing an asylum for ascetics also, one consecrating an alms house for distributing food at all times ascend to the highest heaven."

Besides temples and mutts the other forms of religious and charitable endowments which are popular among the Hindus are excavation and consecration of tanks, wells and other reservoirs of water, planting of shady trees for the benefit of travellers, establishment of Choultries, satras or alms houses and Dharamsala for the neefit of mendicants and wayfarers, Arogyasalas or hospitals, and the last though not the least, Pathshalas or schools for giving free education. Excavation of tanks and planting of trees are Purtta works well known from the earliest times. I have already mentioned that there is a

mention of rest houses for travellers even in the hymns of the Rigveda. The Propatha of the Vedas is the same thing as Choultrie or sarai and the name given to it by subsequent writers is Pratishraygrih. They were very popular during the Buddhist tie. In Dana Kamalakara, a passage is quoted from Markandeya Puran which says that one should make a house of shelter for the benefit of travellers; and inexhaustible is his religious merit which secures for him heaven and liberation. There are more passages than one in the Puranas recommending the establishment of hospitals. “One must establish a hospital furnished with valuable medicines and necessary utensils placed under an experienced physician and having servants and rooms for the shelter of patients. This text says further that a man, by the gift of the means of freeing others from disease, becomes the giver of everything. The founding of educational institutions has been praised in the highest language by Hindu writers. Hemadri in his Dankhanda has quoted a passage from Upanishad according to which gifts of cows, land and learning are said to constitute Atihaan or gifts of surpassing merit. In another text cited by the same author, it is said that those excluded from education do not know the lawful and the unlawful; therefore no effort should be spared to cause dissemination of education by gift of property to meet its expenses”.

Page 38-Para “1.50. The idol as a symbol and embodiment of the spiritual purpose is the juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests:- The Privy Council have held uniformly that the Hindu idol is a

juristic person in whom the dedicated property vests. “A Hindu idol”, the Judicial Committee observed in one of its recent pronouncements, “is according to long established authority founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus and the recognition thereof by Courts of Law, a juristic entity. It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued.” You should remember, however, that the juridical person in the idol is not the material image, and it is an exploded theory that the image itself develops into a legal person as soon as it is consecrated by the Pran Pratistha ceremony. It is not also correct that the Supreme Being of which the idol is a symbol or image is the recipient and owner of the dedicated property. The idol as representing and embodying the spiritual purpose of the donor is the juristic person recognized by law and in this juristic person the dedicated property vests.”

Sulapani, a reputed Brahminical Jurist, in his discourse on Sraddha thus expresses his views regarding the proper significance of gift to God:- “in 'Donation' having for its

dative case, the Gods like the Sun, etc., the term 'donation' has a secondary sense. The object of this figurative use being extension to it of the inseparable accompaniment of that (gift in its primary sense), viz., the offer of the sacrificial fee etc. it has already been remarked in the chapter on the Bratis that such usage as Devagram, Hastigram, etc., are secondary". Sree Krishna in commenting on this passage thus explains the meaning of the expression Devgram: "Moreover, the expression cannot be used here in its primary sense. The relation of one's ownership being excluded, the possessive case affix (in Devas in the term Devagram) figuratively means abandonment for them (the Godsputed structure)". Therefore, the expression is used in the sense of "a village which is the object of abandonment intended for the Godisputed structure". This is the purport. According to Savar Swami, the well-known commentator on Purba Mimansa, Devagram and Devakhetra are figurative expressions. What one is able to employ according to one's desire is one's property. The Gods however do not employ a village or land according to their use."

Page 39-Para "1.52. These discussions are not free from obscurity but the following conclusions I think can be safely drawn from them:-(1) According to these sages the deity or idol is the owner of the dedicated property but in a secondary sense. The ownership in its primary sense connotes the capacity to enjoy and deal with the property at one's pleasure. A deity cannot hold or enjoy property like a man, hence the deity is not the owner in its primary sense.

Thus, the Hindu concept of deity is worship of his image. It is an admitted case that deities were installed and are being worshiped. The time of installation has been seen in another issue but the factum is the same that the deities were available inside the structure and the plaintiffs have sought the relief as a juristic person. The defendants are not in a position to say that Pran Prathistha was not performed.

Further I find that Svyambhu symbols of deities do not need pratistha while pratistha of manmade symbols of deities can be done by single mantra of the divine yajurved for following reasons:-

1. According to Shastric (Scriptural) injunctions Sri Ramajanmasthan Sthandil, a Svayambhu Linga (Symbol) brought into existence and established by the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu Himself as such in-spite of being decayed, or damaged, or destroyed It shall forever remain sacred place of Worship as it does not need purification or consecration or change. Pratistha is required only in respect of man-made Images/Idols/Symbols of Deities that can be done by chanting single Mantra XXXI.1 or II.13 of the Holy Divine Sri Yajurved (Vagasaneyee Samhita also known as Sri Shukla Yajurved ) .A deity needs to be worshipped by providing all things which are required for leading a healthy and excellent life.

2. Svayambhu i.e. Self-built or Self existent or Self-revealed Lingas (symbols) of Devatas (Gods) or the Lingas (Symbols) established by Gods structure, or by those versed in the highest religious truths, or by Asuras, or by sages, or by remote ancestors, or by those versed in the m*antras* need not to be removed though decayed or even broken. Only decayed or broken Pratisthita Images/Idols require to be replaced with new one. In respect of renewal of the images Treatise on Hindu Law celebrated Jurist Golapchandra Sarkar, Sastri reproduces the Shastric injunction (Scriptural law) as follows:

> "8. Now (it is stated) the prescribed mode of Renewal of Decayed Images. Bhagwan says – 'I shall tell you briefly

the holy ordinance for renewing Decayed Images * * *'
"Whatever is the material and whatever size of the image of Hari (or the God, the protector) that is to be renewed; of the same material and of the same size, and image is to be caused to be made; of the same size of the same form (and of the same material), should be (the new image) placed there; either on the second or on the third day (the image of) Hari should be established; if, (it be) established after that, even in the prescribed mode, there would be blame or censure or sin; in this very mode the linga or phallic symbol and the like (image) should be thrown away; (and) another should be established, of the same size (&c.) as already described, - Haya-Sirsha".
"9. God said, -
'I shall speak of the renewal in the prescribed mode of lingas or phallic symbols decayed and the like &c * * *. (A linga) established by Asuras, or by sages or by remote ancestors or by those versed in the tantras should not be removed even in the prescribed form, though decayed or even broken.'

(Agnipuranam Chapter 103 Poona Edition of 1900 AD. p.143)
[There is a different reading of a part of this sloke noted in the foot-note of the Poona Edition of this Puran as one of the Anandashram series of sacred books: according to which instead of – " or by remote ancestors or by those versed in the tantras" – the following should be substituted, namely].

"Or by Gods or by those versed in the highest religious truths."

"10. Now Renewal of Decayed (images is considered); that is to be performed when a linga and the like are burnt or broken or removed (from its proper place). But this is not to be performed with respect but a linga or the like which is established by a Sinddha or one who has become successful in the highest religious practice, or which is anadi i.e. of which the commencement is not known, or which has no commencement. But their Mahabhisheka or the ceremony of great anointment should be performed: - this is said by Tri-Vikrama" – Nirnaya – Sindhu – Kamalakar Bhatta, Bombay Edition of 1900 p.264.
The author of the Dharma-Sindhu says as above in almost the same words– see Bombay Edition of 1988 p.234 of that work. "

3. Alberuni who compiled his book India in or about 1030 A.D. on

page 121 of his book has written that the Hindus honour their Idols on account of those who erected them, not on account of the material of which they are, best example whereof is Linga of sand erected by Rama. In his book on pages 117, 209, 306-07 and 380 he has also narrated about the Lord Rama. Relevant extract from page 121 of his book Alberuni's India Translated by Dr. Edward C. Sachau. Reprint 2007 of the 1st Edn. 1910 published Low Price Publications, Delhi reads as follows:

> "The Hindus honour their idols on account of those who erected them, not on account of the material of which they are made. We have already mentioned that the idol of Multan was of wood. E.g. the linga which Rama erected when he had finished the war with the demons was of sand. Which he had heaped up with his own hand. But then it became petrified all at once, since the astrologically correct moment for the erecting of the monument fell before the moment when the workmen had finished the cutting of the stone monument which Rama originally had ordered."

4. According to the Hindus' Divine Holy & Sacred Scriptures there are two types of images one Svayambhu (self-existent or self-revealed or self-built) and other Pratisthita (established or consecrated). Where the Self-possessed Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu has placed himself on earth for the benefit of mankind, that is styled Svayambhu and it does not require Pratistha. As at Ramajanamasthan the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu appeared and placed Himself on said sacred place said sacred place itself became Svayambhu for the reason that invisible power of the Almighty remained there which confers merit and salvation to the devotees. Consecrated artificial man-made Lepya images

i.e. moulded figures of metal or clay; and Lekhyas i.e. all kinds of pictorial images including chiselled figures of wood or stone not made by moulds are called Pratisthita. . B. K. Mukherjee in his book on Hindu Law referring authorities describes Svayambhu and Pratisthita artificial Images as follows:

> "4.5 Images – their descriptions – > images, according to Hindu authorities are two kinds; first is known as Svayambhu or self-existent, while the other is Pratisthita or established. The Padmapuran says : The image of Hari (God) prepared of stone, earth, wood, metal, or the like and established according to the rights laid down in Vedas, Smritis and tantras are called the established; …
> where the self possessed Vishnu has placed himself on earth in stone, or wood for the benefit of mankind, that is styled the self re-built." Svayambhu or self-built image is a product of nature, it is anadi or without any beginning and the worshipper's simply discover its existence. Such image does not require consecration or Pratistha. All artificial or man made images require consecration. An image according to Matsyapuran may properly be made of gold, silver, copper, iron, bronze or bell metal or any kind of gem, stone, or wood, conch shell, crystal or eve earth. Some persons worship images painted on wall or canvas says the says the Britha Puran and some worship the spheroidical stones known as Salgran. Generally speaking, the puranic writers classified artificial images under two heads; viz. (1) Lepya and (2) Lekhya. Lepya images are moulded figures of metal or clay, while Lekhyas denote all kinds of pectoral images including chiselled figures of wood or stone not made by moulds.

5. According to the Holy Scripture Sri Narsingh Puranam (62.7-14 ½ ) Pratistha of the Lord of Universe Sri Vishnu should be done by chanting 1st Richa of the Purush Sukta of Shukla Yajurved [i.e. Vagasaneyee Samhita Chapter XXXI] and be worshipped dedicating prescribed offerings by chanting 2nd to 15th Richas of the Purush Sukta. And if worshipper so wish after completion of worship he may by chanting 16th Richas of the Purush Sukta pray to Sri Vishnu for going to his His own abode.

These worships in public temple in olden days were being performed by Brahmins learned in Vedas & Agamas. B. K. Mukherjea in his book on Hindu Law writes as follows:

> "4.7 Worship of the idol – after a deity is installed it should be worshipped daily according to Hindu Shastras. The person founding a deity becomes morally responsible for the worship of the deity even if no property is dedicated to it. This responsibility is always carried out by a pious Hindu either by personal performance of the religious right or in the case of Sudras by the employment of a Bramhin priest. The daily worship of a sacred image including the sweeping of the temple, the process of smearing, the removal of the previous day's offerings of flowers, the presentation of fresh flowers, the reciprocal obligation of rice with sweets and water and other practices." The deity in shout is conceived of as leaving being and is treated in the same way as the master of the house would be treated by him humble servant. The daily routine of live is gone through, with minute accuracy, the vivified image is regained with necessaries and luxuries of life in due succession even to the changing of clothes, the offering of cooked and uncooked food and the retirement to rest.

In view of the discussions, referred to above, it transpires that images, idols are the symbols of Supreme Being. They are worshipped as Supreme deity. In these circumstances Ram Janm Bhumi is also a deity. Thus, plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are deities and the averments made in the written statement by defendant nos. 4 and 5 , contrary to the averments of the plaint, are not tenable in accordance with the provisions of Hindu Law, Hidu rituals and other Hindu sacred books. Thus, I hold that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are deities. Issue no. 21 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants no. 4 and 5.

ISSUE NOS. 26 & 27

26. Whether the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. as alleged by the defendants 4 and 5?

27. Whether the plea of suit being bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. can be raised by defendants 4 and 5 ?

www.vadaprativada.com

FINDINGS

Since these issues are inter related , they can conveniently be decided at one place.

On behalf of defendant nos. 4 and 5 it has been urged that the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. This plea has not been raised on behalf of defendant nos. 7,8,9 and 10, who have not filed any written statement nor have contested the suit. It is not the case of defendant nos. 7 to 10 before this court that they wanted to any opportunity to re-consider the legal position or to settle the claim without any litigation. In this case the above defendants were proforma parties. No effective relief was claimed against them . Thus,

the defendant no. 4 and 5 are not in a position to raise the plea that the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. Notice under Section 80 C.P.C. was to be given by the plaintiffs to defendant nos. 7 to 10, who have not contested the case and have not raised plea that the suit is bad for want of notice. Thus, legally defendant nos. 4 and 5 cannot raise the plea on behalf of defendant nos. 7 to 10 that the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. Further it has been urged on behalf of the plaintiffs that no application was ever made during the pendency of the suit by the defendant nos. 4 and 5 for the rejection of the plaint. Thus, it is not open for them at the stage of conclusion of the suit to raise the plea that the plaint should be rejected.

At best, names of defendant nos. 7 to 10 may be expunged, which is also not required for the reason that in the plaint itself it has been mentioned that in the construction of the temple, the defendants no. 7 to 10 were not causing any hindrance. Para 36 of the plaint is reproduced as under;

" That the cause of action for this suit has been accruing from day to day, particularly since recently when the plans of Temple reconstruction are being sought to be obstructed by violent action from the side of certain Muslim Communal.ists."

Thus, neither it is possible for defendant nos. 4 and 5 to raise the plea that the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. nor is barred by Section 80 C.P.C.

For the reasons referred to above, issue nos. 26 and 27 are decided against defendant nos. 4 and 5.

ISSUE NO. 25

Whether the judgment and decree dated 30th March 1946, passed in suit no. 29 of 1945, is not binding upon the plaintiffs as alleged by the plaintiffs ?

FINDINGS

On behalf of the plaintiffs, it is submitted that according to the documents filed by defendant nos. 4,5 and 6 Babri mosque was a Sunni Waqf. O.O.S.No. 29 of 1945 was filed in the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad by Shia Central Waqf Board against Sunni Central Waqf Board of U.P. The judgment dated 30.3.1946 shows that the plaintiffs were not arrayed as parties . The plaintiff no.2 was already in existence but no care was taken to implead plaintiff no.2. It further transpires from reading of the above judgment and also from the plaint of O. S.No. 12 of 1961 i..e, O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989 that waqf of Babri mosque was Sunni waqf and its Mutwallis were Shias. This position seems to be in comprehensible in law in as much as a waqf created by Shia would be a Shia waqf and could not be a Sunni waqf. According to the Muslims, the mosque was built by Mir Baki and he was a Shia and that he being waqif, his heirs were Mutwallis . Shia Central Waqf Board U.P. did not agitate the case in any appellate court as the suit was collusive and this judgment is not binding on the plaintiffs. It appears from the reading of the judgement in O.O.S.No. 29 of 1945 that it was not in the capacity of the representative suit. Accordingly the judgment was not in rem but in personam. In view of the provisions of Section 41 and 43 of the Indian Evidence Act relevancy of the judgment can be seen. Under Section 41 the judgments passed are judgment in rem and they are having binding effect on every body including the persons, who were not arrayed as parties. Under Section 43 of the Evidence Act any other judgment which is not judgment in rem is a judgment in personam and is binding between the parties. Accordingly judgment in O.O.S. No. 29 of 1945 was not judgment in rem., accordingly it is not covered under Section 41 of the Evidence Act but is covered under Section 43 of the Evidence Act and is also binding between Shia and Sunni Central Waqf board and not on the plaintiffs, who were not arrayed as parties.

ISSUE NO. 29

Whether the plaintiffs are precluded from bringing the present suit on account of dismissal of suit no. 57 of 1978 (Bhagwan Sri Ram Lala Vs. state) of the Court of Munsif Sadar, Faizabad.

FINDINGS

It has been submitted on behalf of the defendants that in view of the dismissal of Suit No.57 of 1978 Bhagwan Sri Ram Lala Vs State the instant suit ( O.O.S.No. 5 of 1989) cannot be filed by the plaintiffs. I have gone through the plaint of suit no. 57 of 1978 in which plaintiff no.1 was Bhagwan Ram Lala and plaintiff no. 2 was Sia Raghav Sharan.The suit was filed against State of U.P., Sunni Central Waqf Board against K.K.Verma, Receiver . The plaintiffs claimed relief against defendant no. 6 that Receiver be directed to hand over the possession of the property in suit . The suit was dismissed. It further transpires that defendant no. 6 was appointed in O.S. No. 12 of 1961 that is O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989 pending before this Court and accordingly

Sunni Waqf board urged that the Receiver could only be removed by the Court which appointed him .Suni Waqf Board had also referred that the property earlier was attached in a proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. It was claimed that the suit be dismissed. Thereafter in non-compliance of the Court's order the suit was dismissed. In the plaint itself at para 3 it was mentioned that earlier the City Magistrate attached the property in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C.Thus, even if for argument sake, it is presumed that plaintiff no.1 filed the suit, it does not make difference for the reason that plaintiff no. 2 was not the party in the earlier suit and Trust was also not in existence.

The cause of action in O.O.S.No. 5 of 1989 is different. In this case injunction has been sought against the defendants not to interfere in raising the constructions of the new temple. Thus, the earlier suit was filed for removing the Receiver which has been the subject matter of O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989 and the same was dismissed. Consequently, O.O.S.no. 57 of 1978 was barred by Section 9 C.P.C. and it was not maintainable and cognizable because the Receiver was appointed by the Court in O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989. Thus, the suit no. 57 of 1978 was not decided and the judgment is not binding on the parties. Sunni waqf Board was defendant no.5 in O.O.S.No. 57 of 1978. They have filed the written statement to this effect that the suit was not maintainable and without recording any finding on merits the suit was dismissed for want of prosecution. Accordingly the suit does not fall within the ambit of Section 11 C.P.C. In view of Section 11 C.P.C. it further transpires that parties are not the same. The subject matter is not the same. The Court of Munsif Faizabad which entertained the suit no. 57 of 1978 was not competent to try the suit no. 57 of 1978 which was subsequently filed after filing suit no. 12 of 1961 ( O. O.S.No. 4 of 1989 which was already pending.) Thus, in this case no decision was rendered by the Court and accordingly Section 11 C.P.C. does not come in play. Thus, the matter was heard and finally decided in the former suit (O.S.No. 57 of 1978). The matter is also not directly and substantially in issue. Thus, in view of the provisions of Section 11 C.P.C. the plea as raised by the defendants that the plaintiffs are precluded from bringing the present suit is not acceptable and they have failed to demonstrate before this Court the reasons that may preclude the plaintiffs from filing the present suit. They have also failed to establish that the case falls within the ambit of Section 11 C.P.C. Issue No. 29 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 28

Whether the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 65 of the U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act, 1960 as alleged by defendants 4 and 5 ? If so, its effect.

FINDINGS

On behalf of defendant no. 4 and 5 it has been submitted that the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 65 of the Muslim Waqf Act,1960. It has further been submitted that in the suit Waqf Board has been arrayed as defendant. On behalf of defendant nos. 4 and 5 it has been urged that without giving notice under Section 65 of U.P. Muslim waqf Act, 1960, the suit cannot be instituted. It is further submitted that the plaintiff has not stated any where as to what was the necessity to implead the Waqf Board as defendant without giving any notice. Thus, the suit fails on this count.

On behalf of the plaintiffs it is submitted that the notice was not required to be given and Waqf Board was formally joined in this case . Waqf Board was the proforma defendants and no notice was required to be given and at best the name can be expunged. I have gone through the contents of the plaint and the relief claimed by the plaintiff nos. 1 to 3. It transpires that the plaintiffs have not claimed any relief against the Waqf Board. They have been arrayed as party simply because of the fact that the plaintiffs have referred O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989 in the plaint. These suits have to be decided together. Consequently, whatever has to be said by the Waqf Board has to be said by the plaintiffs in O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989, the same can be led in this case also. The object of the notice is not required under this Section to give the Waqf Board a notice so that an opportunity may be provided to re-consider the legal position and to make amendment or to settle the claims even without litigation. The whole object of serving notice is to give sufficient warning and the case proposed to be instituted and matter can be settled by the Sunni Waqf Board. The plaintiffs have filed the suit subsequent to the filing of the suit by the plaintiff Sunni Waqf Board (OOS No. 4 of 1989) with the assertion that he was compelled to file the suit because the deities, who are minors, could not contest the case as they have not been arrayed as party by Sunni Waqf Board. It was further submitted that no valid Waqf was ever created or could have been created about the Janmbhumi which is plaintiff no. 2 and is a deity. It was further averred in the plaint that the deities are in possession of the property in suit and they are not party to any of the litigation. In para 31 of the plaint reference has been given to O.S No. 12 of 1961 filed by Sunni Central Waqf Board. It was further mentioned in the plaint that on account of delay in disposal of the case rights and duties are affected. Initially the plaintiffs claimed the relief that opposite parties be restrained not to interfere in the construction of the temple of Ram Lala. Thus, in this case the deities have come forward through next friend, alleging that Sunni Waqf Board was guilty of not arraying them as a party. Issue No. 21 in OOS No. 4 of 1989 was framed and was decided by this Court. Thus , looking to the case from all or any angle ,it transpires that without any valid notification under Section 17 the Waqf could not be registered,accordingly ,even if waqf has been arrayed as a party, the suit is not bad for want of any notice as no valid waqf could be created about the property in suit in which plaintiff no. 2 is a deity. Waqf Board was guilty in not arraying the plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 as party in O.S.No. 12 of 1961 Thus, in this case notice under Section 65 of Muslim Waqf Act was not required. Issue No. 28 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against defendants no. 4 and 5.

ISSUE NO. 18

Whether the suit is barred by Section 34 of the the Specific Relief Act as alleged in paragraph 42 of the additional written statement of defendant no. 3 and also as alleged in paragraph 47 of the written statement of defendant no. 4 and paragraph 62 of the written statement of defendant no. 5 ?

FINDINGS

It has been averred in additional written statement of defendant no. 3 at para 42 and also as alleged in para 47 of the written statement of defendant no. 4 and para 62 of the written statement of defendant no. 5 that the suit is barred by Section 34 of the Specific

Relief Act. On behalf of defendant no. 3 it is submitted that Nirmohi Akhara owns the property.

It is further submitted on behalf of defendant no. 3 that plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 had never been the subject matter of any suit in OOS No. 4 of 1989. It has further been submitted that as per revenue record also the property does not belong to plaintiff nos. 1 and 2. The property has already been attached and OOS No. 4 of 1989 was filed by Sunni Waqf Board and for the same properties the plaintiff no.3 cannot maintain the suit as it is barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act.

On behalf of the plaintiff it is submitted that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are juridical persons and they have right to file the suit and they acquired the legal character. I have already referred while deciding issue nos.1 and 2 that plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 are juridical persons and plaintiff nos. 3 is the next friend, who can maintain the suit. Thus, the plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 have acquired the legal character as they are juridical persons and because of the legal character they can file the suit. It has been urged on behalf of the plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 that if there is cloud on the legal character of the parties against the law and defendants are restraining the plaintiffs for execution of any legal duty, the suit can be filed. In this case the plaintiffs have sought the relief of declaration and injunction. Thus, the plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 have the legal character and they have also proved that they are entitled to act as their rights are denied by the defendants. The plaintiffs have established that their right subsist on the date of filing of the suit . The defendants have failed to establish that the plaintiffs are not entitled for declaration and they have no legal character or right to hold property.

The plaintiffs have field the suit for declaration, claiming right to property and further sought relief of injunction on the ground that the defendants are denying the legal character or rights of the plaintiffs over the property in suit. This is a case in which the defendants deny a legal character and right of property of plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 with rival claims. Thus, in view of the provisions of Section 34 of Specific Relief Act there is no bar in filing the present suit and the defendants have failed to establish that the plaintiff is not entitled to legal character or any right to hold the property . The defendants have also failed to establish as to why the plaintiffs are not entitled to maintain the suit and the plaintiffs have not filed suit with clean hands. Thus, according to sound principles of law the grant of declaration and injunction under Section 34 is discretionary. Having regard to the circumstances of the case, the defendants have failed to demonstrate that the suit is barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act. Issue no. 18 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants.

4. Whether the idols in question had been in existence under the "Shikhar" prior to 6.12.92 from time immemorial as alleged in paragraph-44 of the additional written statement of defendant no. 3 ?

FINDINGS

Since these issues are inter connected, they can conveniently be decided at one place.

O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 was filed in the year 1961 bearing R.S. No. 12 of 1961. This case was transferred for adjudication to High Court by an order of a Division Bench of this Court and the Hon'ble Chief Justice constituted the Full Bench which passed several orders including the orders dated 14.8.1989, 7.11.1989 and 15.11.1991 and directed to maintain status quo.

It has come in evidence and also this is the plaint case in para 27 that the idols in question were installed under the central dome of the disputed building ( since demolished) in the intervening night of 22/23 rd December,1949. In O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 the plaintiffs have also come out with this case that deities were installed under the central dome in the intervening night of 22/23 rd December, 1949. There is no dispute between the parties about the identity of the idols which amount to the deity also. It is also admitted to the plaintiffs in OOS No. 5 of 1989 that same deities were reinstalled at same place and Chabutra under the canopy. In this regard oral

evidence was also adduced. O.P.W1 Param Hans Ram Chandra Das in his statement has stated that the same idols which were installed under the Central dome of the disputed building, which was demolished on 6.12.1992, were installed at the same place on Chabutra under the canopy on 6.12.1992 by certain worshippers. The names of worshippers have not been stated in the cross-examination and also no effort was made on behalf of the opposite parties to ascertain the names of those worshippers. There is no other evidence available on record to contradict or corroborate the statement of O. P.W.1, referred to above. It further transpires from the reading of the plaint that at para 27 of the plaint of OOS No. 5 of 1989 that the plaintiffs have come out with a case that the deities were installed with ceremonies under the central dome of the building with religious ceremonies and after purification of the place by Akhand Path and Jap by thousand of persons of the area. Thus, it is admitted to the plaintiffs of OO.S. No. 5 of 1989 that idols which were placed earlier were again reinstalled as per the manner referred to above. At para 35 J of the plaint it has been referred that at about 11 a.m. On 6.12.1992 after acquiring the debris at the same place ,i.e, surrounded previously by Central dome on Chabutra the deities were immediately re-installed and the place was enclosed by brick boundary wall and canopy was erected for the protection of the deity and Puja was continued as of yore.

In view of the aforesaid circumstances it transpires that deities were placed definitely in violation of the orders of the Court dated 14.8. 1989,7.11.1989 and 15.11.1991 by the Karsevaks, who were not the parties in any of the proceedings and plaintiffs of OOS No. 4 of 1989 have also not filed any application of contempt against them .

The plaintiffs of OOS No. 4 of 1989 have also not adduced any evidence to rebut the assertion that the deities were re-installed on the Chabutra after the demolition of the disputed structure on 6.12.1992. Thus, it is established from the record that the deities were installed under the Central Dome in the intervening night of 22/23-12-1949 or at the early hours of 23.12.1949 and the same idols were re-installed at the same place on the Chabutra under the canopy on 6.12. 1992.

It further transpires from the record that deities which were shifted from Ram Chabutra on 23.12.1949 were movables and the movable deities were re-installed at the disputed site, that is, on Chabutra under the canopy on 6.12.1992 to a place which was earlier known as central dome of the disputed building. Thus, the deities which were worshipped earlier and moved from one place to another have to be presumed as deities and their divinity cannot be presumed to be changed.

On behalf of defendant no. 3 it has been urged that attachment which was made in the year 1949 is only in respect of the main building of Garbh Grih carrying Shikhars wherein deity of Bhagwan Sri Ram was installed by Nirmohi Akhara from the times beyond human memory and since then is under the management and possession of defendant no. 3. It appears not to be based on record. Firstly, for the reasons that Sunni Waqf Board and others have filed O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 alleging that the mosque was attached and deities were installed in the intervening night of 22/23/12/1949 and secondly, there is overwhelming evidence to this effect that in the disputed structure there was no deity installed at any point of time prior to 22/23/12/1949.

I have already perused the oral evidence of the witness D.W.3/ to D.W.3/ 20 on the basis of their testimony. They do not support the case of defendant no. 3. Thus, the defendant no. 3 has failed to establish that idols in question had been in existence under the Shikhar prior to 22/23.12.1949. It further transpires from the written statement of defendant no. 3 that he has set up different case in his written statement and has further failed to establish his claim alleged in para 44 before this Court.

Issue Nos. 3(a), 3(b), 3(c) 3(d) and 4 are decided accordingly in favour of the plaintiffs and against the defendants.

ISSUE NO. 11

Whether on the averments made in paragraph-25 of the plaint, no valid waqf was created in respect of the structure in dispute to constitute is as a mosque ?

FINDINGS

The plaintiffs have come out with a case that Ram Janm Bhumi is a deity. It has been worshipped throughout from the time immemorial and the place belongs to the deity. No valid Waqf can be created by Muslims as they were not owners of the property in suit and trespassed over the property. Accordingly no title could vest in any body except the deities at Ram Janam Bhumi and no valid Waqf could be created about it. The attention of this Court was drawn on following facts and law by Sri M.M. Pandey Advocate ;

Classification as SUNNI Wakf/Mosque and SHIA Wakf/Mosque:

Statutory classification of Sunni & Shia Wakf is set out in U.P.Wakfs Act 13 0f 1936, Section 4(3)(a), to be decided principally on the basis of contents of the deed of Wakf. Section 6(2)(a) of U.P.Muslim Wakfs Act 1960 also speaks of

www.vadaprativada.com

Shia Wakfs & Sunni Wakfs, and the Proviso thereof says that 'clear indications in the recital of the deed of Wakf as to the sect to which it pertains' shall be the basis of classification. Both Wakf Acts of 1936 & 1960 carry significant provisions that anything required or permitted by the Act to be done in respect of Shia or Sunni Wakfs shall be done by the Shia Central Board of Wakf or Sunni Central Board of Wakf, as the case may be. For the purposes of our case, Babri Masjid Wakf (besides being Un-Islamic) is Shia Wakf, hence Sunni Central Board of Wakf is not be entitled to file/maintain OOS 4 of 1989. If it is held in these suits that Babri Masjid was a Shia Wakf (if at all it was a valid Wakf), then OOS 4 of 1989 must fail because: (1) Plaintiff Sunni Central Board of Wakf would have no locus standi, (2) rest of the Plaintiffs have not sued for enforcement of their right, if any, of worship (3) and cannot seek relief (a) of Declaration or (b) & (c) of possession because those rights belong only to Mutawalli and none of them is Mutawalli. The Sunni Central Board of Wakf cannot be said to be a "Muslim Person having a right of worship" while all other functions which belong to it under the Wakf Act of 1960 (in force when OOS 4 of 1989 was filed) could be enforced by it only if the Babri Masjid could be held to be Sunni Wakf.There is no deed of Wakf relating to Babri Masjid; hence its nature shall have to be determined on the basis of evidence. To establish Shia or Sunni sect of a Wakf, it will be necessary for the parties to lead evidence: 2000 SC 1751, A.P.State Wakf Board Hyderabad Vs. A.I.Shia Conference. The Civil Judge had recorded at page 7 of the Judgment dt. 30.4.1946 mentioned in Para 88 below, that "It was also common ground between the Counsel of both sides that the determining factor whether the Mosque in suit was a Shia or Sunni Wakf would be the religion of its founder as neither Wakf Act 13 of 1936 nor the Muslim Law laid down any distinction between the two....." It has been held in 1957 SC 882, U.O.I Vs. T.R.Verma that the statement of a Court, recorded in a judgment, is generally taken to be correct. This admission is binding upon Sunni Waqf Board in these cases; it can, therefore, be safely held that the

Sect of Babri Mosque will depend upon the fact whether it was constructed by Mir Baqi or by Babar.

It has been held in 1988 All 1, Shah Abdul Bagi & Others Vs. State of U.P.& Others that Members of any sect of Muslim Community can file a suit for enforcement of their right to Worship in the Mosque of the other sect; but that would be a suit only for worship, and not for possession which belongs only to Mutawalli. No Mutawalli is a Plaintiff, and the Sunni Board cannot be said to be worshipper.

It is further urged by Sunni Waqf Board that certain Reports of the Wakf Commissioner under U.P.Wakf Act of 1936 are binding in these suits to establish that disputed structure is Babri Majid built by Babar and made Wakf for all Muslims. The Act, therefore, needs a close examination. The Preamble aims at providing better governance and administration of certain classes of Wakfs and supervision of Mutawalli's management. S. 3(1) does not create any 'new' class of Wakf and recognises only those known to the Mahommedan Law; the Statement of Objects & Reasons also says so and addisputed structure that the Act "is not intended to deprive the Mutawallis of any authority lawfully vested in them, nor it aims at defining all the powers, duties and liabilities of the Mutawallis..." S. 4(1) provides for appointment of a District Commissioner of Wakf "for the purpose of making survey of all wakfs". Procedural powers of Civil Court are conferred on the Commissiioner for summoning witnesses, production of documents, local inspection/investigation u/s 4(4) while making inquiries, but there are no guidelines how to 'initiate' an inquiry, what notices are required to be issued and to whom. S. 4(3) confers power on him to make 'such inquiries as he consider necessary'; there is no guideline for the manner in which he should proceed. This seems to be 'arbitrary' and violates the Constitutional requirement of fairness. The word 'necessary' will make Wakf Commissioner's discretion to be objective and open to judicial review. The Act does not provide for framing Rules of procedure for the Wakf Commissioner to observe before initiating an inquiry. If on particular facts or situation, Notice to a particular person is essential in the interests of justice and fairness, the Wakf Commissioner cannot plead that he had unrestricted discretion whether or not to issue Notice; in law, every fair procedure is permissible unless specifically probited. The Act does not prohibit the Wakf Commissioner to issue notices for giving opportunity to persons interested while conducting the inquiry. The proceeding before the Wakf Commissioner is quasi judicial as held in the case of Board of Muslim Wakfs, Rajasthan Vs. Radha Kishen (1979)2 SCC 468 (para 25). Further the SC has held in paras 37 to 39 that where a stranger who is a non-muslim is in possession of a certain property, his right, title and interest therein cannot be put to jeopardy merely because the property is included in the list prepared by the Wakf Commissioner under the U.P. Wakf Act. Although this decision concerns Section 6(1) of the Wakf Act of 1960, the SC has observed in para 35 that that Section "is based on Sub-section (2) of Section 5 of U.P. Muslim Wakf Act of 1936". This distinguishes the decision from that in 1959 SC 198, Sirajul Haq Khan Vs Sunni Central Board of Wakf where both Plaintiff and Defendants were Muslims. Thus Hindus, Nirmohi Akhara and any of the Defdts in OOS 4 of 1989, cannot be treated to be a 'person interested in a wakf' u/s 5(2) of the Wakf Act of 1936. It will also be appreciated that if Nirmohi Akhar & others were to be treated to be 'person interested in a wakf', it was incumbent upon the Wakf Commissioner to issue notices at that very time before deciding the issue. Even if it be treated to be administrative, an opportunity of hearing ought to have been given to Nirmohi Akhara & Hindu Community as held, after considering several decisions of Supreme Court, in the case of Muzaffar Hussain Vs. State of U.P, 1982 Allahabad Law Journal 909 (DB).

Wakf Commissioner submits his report of inquiry to State Government u/s 4(5). The State Govt. has to 'forward a copy' of the report to Shia as well as Sunni Board of Wakf u/s 5(1) and commanding the Board, as soon as possible, to 'notify in the Gazette the Wakfs relating to the particular sect to which, according to such report, the provisions of this Act apply'. This

signfies that Shia & Sunni Board are required to publish notices, in the Gazette, of only those Wakfs which relate respectively to Shia and Sunni Wakfs; further, only the particulars of the Wakf, without the report, are required to be published. Mere publication of the particulars of Wakf without the report cannot constitute notice of Wakf Commissioner's finding/report to Public, much less to any particular individual.

Over and above the procedure contained in Ss 4 & 5 for the Wakf Commisioner in making survey and preparing lists of Wakfs and their publication by concerned Wakf Board, u/S. 38 authorises the Wakf Board concerned also to register a Wakf at its Office. This registration may be made on an application by Mutwalli under sub-section (2), or by wakif, his descendants, beneficiary or any Muslim of the sect under sub-section (3) or by 'any person other than the person holding possession' of wakf property under sub-section (6). In an application under sub-section (6), the Wakf Board is required to give notice of the application to the person in possession and hear him. The Board will make an inquiry and pass final orders. The question is that since the Act specifically provides for issue of notice by Wakf Board to a person in possession of wakf property (whoever he may be – even a stranger), why no provision is made for Wakf Commissioner to issue similar notice to person in possession for the purpose of inquiry u/ss 4 & 5? An essential distinction is that while Wakf Commissioner is an officer of the State, the Wakf Board is not; hence while Wakf Commissioner may be presumed to act in a fair and just manner, the Wakf Board may not be presumed so to act, hence specific procedural methodology is prescribed for it in the matter of deciding a matter. As mentioned above, the proceedings before the Wakf Commissioner are quasi-judicial. 'Natural justice' would require such notice to be given to person in possession; failure to do so would render Wakf Commissioner's findings and list of Wakfs to be ineffective against strangers. In this case, Wakf Commissioner did not issue notice to Nirmohi Akhara who were admittedly in possession of Eastern half of the platform of disputed structure itself as settled by the British Administration in 1885, in addition to Ram Chabutra, Sita Rasoi Chabutra and other portions of DA within the campus of disputed structure. Admittedly, in 1934 during Hindu-Muslim riots, Hindus had demolished certain portions of disputed structure, thereby exerting their rights over the property to the knowledge of everyone concerned with disputed structure. The Govt. of U.P. even imposed punitive fine on Hindus for demolishing portions of disputed structure which was repaired by the Govt. Thus the Hindu public in general (in addition to Nirmohi Akhara) was interested in disputed structure, and a general public notice for Hindu worshippers too was called for. None was given, hence the entire proceeding of the Wakf Commissioner, declaring disputed structure to be Sunni Wakf, was illegal.

Then follows the provision which is most important for the purposes of these cases: S. 5(2) and 5(3). According to S. 5(2), the Mutawalli of a Wakf, or any person interested in a Wakf may bring a suit in a Civil Court for a declaration that any transaction held by the Commissioner of Wakfs to be Wakf is not Wakf, but no such suit by a person interested in the Wakf shall be instituted "after more than one year of the notification referred to in subclause (1)". Sub-section (3) provides that subject to the final result of such suit "the report of the Commissioner of Wakfs shall be final and conclusive". Subsection (4) commands that the Commissioner shall not be made a Defendant to the suit and no suit shall be instituted against him for anything done by him in good faith under colour of this Act. This bar cannot be made applicable to Plaintiffs of OOS 5 of 1989. Firstly, there is no valid Wakf of disputed structure. Secondly, the Plaintiffs were neither Parties to the proceedings before, nor were given an opportunity by Wakf Commissioner to contest the claim of declaration of disputed structure to be Wakf. Thirdly, neither Nirmohi Akhara, who were admittedly in possession of almost half portion of Platform (Chabutra) of disputed structure lying towards East of a grilled partition wall erected by British administration in 1855 in addition to considerable portions of campus of disputed structure, including Ram Chabutra, was given notice of the proceedings, nor Hindu devotees/community were given general notice although since 1934 riots they were admittedly asserting rights over it. If the requirements of Section 5 of the Wakf Act of 1936 applied to Nirmohi Akhara/Hindu devotees on the ground that they were 'persons interested in the wakf', then that was all the more reason for the Wakf Commissioner to have given notice to these persons. The action and decision of Wakf Commissioner, or by Sunni Central Board of Wakf on its basis, therefore, could not be binding on Plaintiffs, Nirmohi Akhara or Hindu devotes/community.

Facts regarding action taken under U.P.Muslim Wakf Act 1936 may now be considered. Ext. A4 (filed by Muslim Defdts 1 to 5 in OOS 1 of 1989) is report dt. 16.9.1938 of Mohd Owais, District Wakf Commissioner Faizabad addressed and submitted to Chief Commissioner of Wakfs, U.P., and Ext. A5 is report dt. 8.2.1941 of A. Majeed, District Wakf Commissioner. Ext. A5 records that Ext A4 was returned in January 1939 to District Wakf Commissioner because before action thereon could be taken, the post of Chief Commissioner of Wakfs had been terminated. There is no evidence to show what action the Govt. took before 'returning' the report to Wakf Commissioner and what the latter was expected to do further. Thus, Ext. A4 became a 'dead letter'. Ext. A4 mentions that vide Cl (e) of WS of Syed Mohd Zaki, the Mutawalli, to which Flag 1C2 was attached, 'it appears that in 935 AH, Emperor Babar built this mosque and appointed one Syed Abdul Baqi as Mutawalli and Khatib of the Mosque'. So, the source of this inference of the Wakf Commissioner was Flag 1C2 to WS of Mohd Zaki; but that document, which was the primary evidence of those facts, has not been filed by Sunni Waqf Board, hence the basis of that finding is not established here. The report further mentions that the Wakf Commissioner had heard that Mohd Zaki was an opium addict and the Mosque had not been kept in proper repairs; this indicates a probability that the Mutawall was not taking due care of the affairs of the Mosque. In any case, Ext A4 stood rejected.

Neither Ext. A5, nor the record shows how A. Majeed, the

new Wakf Commissioner, opened and proceeded with the inquiry; it is plain enough that inquiry by him should have been de novo. In the first paragraph of his report, he mentions that he made 'further inquiries and examined the pesh-namaz who filed certain papers'; but he has not mentioned a word about pesh-namaz's papers. In the same paragraph, he recorded: "I entirely agree with the findings of my predecessor and I submit my report". Indeed, A. Majeed has basically reproduced the findings of Mohd Owais verbatim, including the final recommendation; the only change is addition of substance of statement of Abdul Ghaffar, the pesh-namaz. Ext A5 therefore suffers from the vice of non-application of mind. Certain interesting features of the statement of Abdul Ghaffar, mentioned in the report, are significant. Firstly, having admitted that Mohd Zaki, the Mutawalli, was Shia, he added that the 'ancestors of Mohd Zaki were Sunnis who later on converted to Shia'. The Civil Judge held in 1945-suit of Shia Central Board against Sunni Central Board and held that Abdul Baqi was Shia. This means that some descendant of Abdul Baqi must have converted to Sunni and again some later descendant must have converted to Shia so that Mohd Zaki could be Shia. Prima facie, this is highly improbale, specially when Mohd Zaki was not given an opportunity by the Wakf Commissioner to meet that allegation. Secondly, Abdul Ghaffar admitted that 'he did not receive his pay during the last 11 years. In 1936, the Mutawalli executed a pronote promising to pay the arrear of pay, by instalments, but up to this time nothing actually was done.' The bias of Abdul Ghaffar aginst Mohd Zaki is obvious. The proceeding before the Wakf Commissioner is quasi judicial as held in the case of Board of Muslim Wakfs, Rajasthan Vs. Radha Kishen (1979)2 SCC 468 (para 25), and even if it be treated to be administrative, notice of hearing to affected persons was absolutely essential as indicated above in para 81. The entire proceeding leading to Ext. A5, thus, also stands vitiated.

Further it is apparent from the Notification (following Ext A5) of entry of Babri Masjid at Serial No. 26 of Faizabad-Wakfs, that no mention of the particulars or details of disputed

structure has been made in the notification-column meant for the purpose; the column has been left blank. Thus, the Notification fails to establish the identity of disputed structure on its own. That omission could have been deliberate because Nirmohi Akhara and Hindus had been in possession not only of substantial portion of DA (the Campus inside the boundaries) but also the Eastern part of the Chabutra which had been part of disputed structure.

Next are the proceedings of Civil Judge in a suit between Shia & Sunni Central Boards of Wakf. It is necessary to consider findings and Judgment dt. 30.4.1946, Ext. 20 in OOS 4 of 1989 (also Ext A42 in OOS 1 of 1989), by Civil Judge Faizabad in R.S. NO. 29 of 1945; the suit was filed by Shia Central Board of Wakf against Sunni Central Board of Wakf (Plaintiff in OOS 4 of 1989). Shia Board claimed a right to manage disputed structure on the ground that disputed structure was a Shia Wakf because the Mosque was built by Abdul Baqi who was a Shia; Sunni Waqf Board contested the claim on the ground that it was Sunni Wakf because the Mosque was built by Babar who was a Sunni. The Civil Judge made a local inspection of disputed structure, Ext 53 in OOS 4 of 1989, in presence of Counsel for both Parties on 26.3.1945. The Judge recorded that the 1st Inscription fixed near the pulpit bore the construction year to be 923 Hijri, while the 2nd Inscription at the Central arch facing courtyard mentioned the year to be 935 Hijri. He also recorded that both Parties admitted that the 1st inscription 'was replaced anew in place of the original tablet which was demolished during the communal riots in 1934'. Obviously the 1st Inscription seen by the Civil Judge was not the original one; indeed the erroneous year 923 Hijri therein is inherent proof of that fact. The numberings of the Inscriptions correspond to Buchanan's numbering, but Buchanan's rendering was from the original, hence deserves greater weight than the one seen by the Civil Judge; the year in Buchanan's rendering is 935 Hijri, which is correct. The Civil Judge held (at pages 11-12) that inscriptions 'are inconclusive'. He observed in the Judgment that the 2nd inscription does not say that the Mosque was built by the order of Babar and only refers to the reign of Babar, whereas the 1st inscription 'clearly supports the theory that Babar had ordered the building of the Mosque as stated in the Gazetteer and settlement report'. On these premises, the Civil Judge held that the 'Mosque was founded by Babar and not by Abdul Baqi'. The Civil Judge clearly considered the mentioned 'order' to be enough proof of its erection by Babar. This is unacceptable for reasons recorded. It is also significant that at page 10 he recorded that the Gazetteer (on which he placed reliance) mentioned that Babar 'destroyed the Janmasthan Temple and its site built a Mosque using largely the materials of the old structure'. As shown earlier in these Arguments, erection of the Mosque by demolishing a Temple at its site is un-Islamic, hence the disputed structure is illegal abinitio and non-est (See Para 52), but this aspect did not figure before the Civil Judge.

The Civil Judge further held that Babar was Sunni while Mir Baqi was a Shia, hence the Mosque was a Sunni Wakf on the position agreed by both Parties that the Sect of the Wakf of Mosque depending structure upon the Sect of the Founder (vide page 7 of the Judgment). The SC has held that facts recorded by the Court (as admitted by the Parties there) must be held to be correctly recorded: 1957 SC 882, U.O.I Vs. T.R.Verma. The Hindu Parties case, here, is that the Mosque was built by Mir Baqi who was a Shia, hence the Sect of disputed structure is a Shia Wakf. The decision of the Civil Judge is that disputed structure was erected by Mir Baqi but under orders of Babar. As already pointed out, 'order' to Mir Baqi was only Babar's 'consent' and 'approval' to erect the Mosque as pleaded last by Sunni Waqf Board referred to above; the so-called 'order' could not constitute Wakf of the Mosque by Babar. The view of the Civil Judge, thus, that disputed structure is a Sunni Wakf is incorrect (without prejudice to the position that the Mosque was un-Islamic, hence ab initio illegal & non-est).

The contention of Sunni Waqf Board, further is that the decision of Civil Judge that disputed structure was founded by Babar, hence it is Sunni Wakf, is binding in these suits. It seems that the decision is binding between Shia & Sunni Central Board of Wakf, but is not binding upon the Hindu Parties to these suits. It must be appreciated that the Suit between the Shia & Sunni Central Boardof Wakf was instituted in a Civil Court under Section 9 CPC and not under any special Statute like Wakf Acts. In 1945, the relevant Wakf Act in force was UP Muslim Wakfs Act XIII of 1936; that Act did not provide for a special adjudicatory body to settle disputes relating to Wakfs. In contrast to 1936 Act, U.P.Muslim Wakfs Act XVI of 1960 provided for a Tribunal to settle disputes relating to Wakfs; Chapter IX provided for "Tribunals – Their Constitution, Powers and Functions". Section 75 lays down 'Bar to suits in matter to be decided by Tribunals' and says that 'No person shall institute any suit or other proceeding in any Civil Court with respect to any dispute or question or matter which is required or permitted under this Act to be referred to a Tribunal for adjudication'. There is no similar provision in Wakf Act of 1936. The decision dt. 30.3.1946 by Civil Judge Faizabad in the Suit between Shia Central Board of Wakf and Sunni Central Board of Wakf, therefore, has no binding effect upon persons who were not Parties to that suit, hence it is not binding upon Plaintiffs of OOS 1 of 1989, 3 of 1989 and 5 of 1989.

It is also important that Civil Judge Faizabad has held in these very suits while deciding Issue No 17 of OOS 4 of 1989 that the Notification published by the Wakf Commissioner under the Wakf Act of 1936 is invalid. That finding (dt. 21.4.1996) is final against Sunni Waqf Board. An attempt to get over the finding has been made by framing Issue No 18 to consider the effect of Supreme Court Judgment in the case of Ghulam Abbas & others Vs. State of U.P. & others, 1981 SC 2198 on the finding of the Civil Judge. It may be mentioned that the Civil Judge had also answered Issues No. 5(a) and 5(c) against Sunni Waqf Board. It does not appear to be open to Sunni Waqf Board to challenge these findings of the Civil Judge in the present suits; they will be open only before SC in Appeal. The High Court is not exercising any Appellate jurisdiction nor can enter upon a Review of the findings.

The decision in Ghulam Abbas's case may be considered.

In respect of Doshipura Mosque and other properties, the Wakf Commissoner, after survey & inquiry, made a report dt 28/31.10.1938 u/s 4(5) of Wakf Act 1936 with Appendix VIII of Sunni Wakfs, excluding the Mosque, and Appendix X of Shia Wakfs including the Mosque; copies of the report were sent to both Shia & Sunni Boards of Wakf. On receipt of the report, Shia Board published Notification dt. 15.1.1954 of Appendix X in Gazette dt. 23.1.1954 u/s 5(1). Neither Sunni Board nor any person interested in the Wakf filed suit u/s 5(2), within the period prescribed, to challenge the omission of disputed properties from Appendix VIII. However, Sunni Board published Notification dt. 26.2.1944, u/s 5(1), including disputed properties, obviously not based on Appendix VIII (which had excluded the properties). Supreme Court held Sunni Board's Notification dt. 26.2.1944 to be invalid on the ground that it was not based on Appendix VIII while S.5(1) required the Notification to be 'in accordance with' Commissioner's report and that Wakf Commisioner's report with Appendix X became 'final and conclusive' in favour of Shia Wakf.

When Wakf Act of 1960 came into force, the Sunni Board made 'Registration' of some of the disputed properties as Sunni Wakf u/s 29 of 1960-Act. Supreme Court held that any Survey report made and Registration of Wakf thereon was "futile and of no avail" because Registration of Wakf under 1936-Act had been kept alive by 1960-Act and the latter Act permitted Registration of only those Wakfs which were 'other than' those already Registered under 1936-Act. The claim of Shia community was upheld and Sunni Community were restrained permanently from interfering with exercise of rights by Shias. Now, there is absolutely nothing in common between Ghulam Abbas' case and the present case.

Since there was not valid notification under the Waqf Act before registration, the procedure was not adopted in the manner prescribed under the law.

In the Premier Automobiles Ltd. Vs. Kamlakar Shantaram Wadke and others, AIR 1975 SC 2238, Apex Court at paragraph No. 10 held that where Act creates an obligation, it should be enforced in a specified manner;

"Para-10 In Doe V. Bridges, (1831) 1 B & Ad. 847 at page 859 are the famous and oft quoted words of Lord Tenterden, C.J. saying:

"Where an Act creates an obligation and enforces the performance in a specified manner, we take it to be a general rule that performance cannot be enforced in any other manner."

This passage was cited with approval by the Earl of HalSunni Waqf Boardury, L.C. In Pasmore V. The Oswaldtwistle Urban Disteict Council 1898, AC 387 and by Lord Simonds at ;. 407 in the case of Cutler V. Wands Stadium Ltd. 1949 AC 398.

Thus, in view of the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court, it transpires that United Provinces Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 is an Act, which creates an obligation and enforces the performance in a specified manner. Thus in view of Section 5 of the aforesaid Act, it was necessary to make a publication before making any registration. Thus, it was incumbent upon the authorities to act in accordance with law and should have performed the duties in the manner provided under the law.

Thus, in this case the procedure as contemplated under Section 5(1) of Waqf Act was not complied with and the registration was made ignoring the provision, accordingly registration has no significance under the law. It may further be clarified that it makes no difference whether the registration was challenged or not. When it is apparent that the obligation to enforce the Act was not performed in the manner provided under the law by complying the provisions of

Section 5 by the Board, in that event the registration has no effect and it does not bind the parties. It may further be clarified that once the Board had tried to get the Waqf registered and after enquiry the registration was not completed, it makes no difference whether two other modes were applied or not for registration. Other modes of registration could have been applied in accordance with law only. It is not the case where it has been urged that besides two other modes, the 3rd mode was adopted. The sole mode that was adopted to register this Waqf as Sunni Waqf by holding an enquiry and without making any publication. Thus in view of the decision of the Apex Court, the registration is not in accordance with law.

On the contrary defendant nos. 4 and 5 have come out with a case that Waqf was registered . In this context I find that on 21.4.1966 learned Civil Judge has already decided issue no. 17 that no valid notification was made in respect of the property in dispute. Thus, without any valid notification the requirement of law was not complied with. Thus, in this case notification was not done which was required to be done under the Waqf Act before registration. Without any notification compliance of law shall not be presumed.

It further transpires that in O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 the issue relating to waqf was also taken into consideration and attention of this court was drawn to the provisions of Section 87 of the Waqf Act,1985.

There is a bar of Section 87 of the Waqf Act to the enforcement of right on behalf of unregistered waqf which has been dealt while deciding issue nos. 5-F and 5-C of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 . Since the registration of the waqf was made in contravention of the provisions of Waqf Act, 1936 and there was no valid notification,

accordingly the submissions of learned counsel for the plaintiffs are in accordance with law that no valid Waqf was created or could be created regarding the property of deities or about the deities as Ram Janm Bhumi, plaintiff no. 2 itself is a deity. Thus, no valid waqf could be created or was ever created with respect to the disputed property. Issue no. 11 is decided accordingly against the defendants and in favour of the plaintiffs.

ISSUE NO. 13

Whether the suit is barred by limitation ?

FINDINGS

The instant suit is for declaration and injunction. Plaintiffs no. 1 and 2, namely, Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya also called Sri Ram Lala Virajman and the Asthan Sri Ram Janm Bhumi, Ayodhya with other idols and places of worship situate there have claimed themselves as juridical persons with Bhagwan Sri Ram as the presiding deity of the place. Plaintiff no. 3 is a Vaishnva Hindu worshipper and seeks to represent the deity and the Asthan as a next friend.

It has been urged on behalf of plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 that they are the deities and it has been urged on behalf of the plaintiffs that it is settled proposition of law that deities are like infant and they are not subject to limitation laws. The attention of this Court was drawn by Sri Ravi Shanker Advocate on this aspect while arguing in connected cases. Sri Ravi Shanker Advocate has relied upon following case;

the questions emerging at this point, is as to the nature of such an idol and the services due thereto. A Hindu idol is, according to long established authority, founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus, and the recognition thereof by Courts of Law, a juristic entity." It has a juridical status with the power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who is in law its manager with all the powers which would, in such circumstances, on analogy, be given to the manager of the estate of an infant heir. It is unnecessary to quota the authorities; for this doctrine, thus simply stated, is firmly established."

(ii) AIR 1937 Calcutta, 338 (Division Bench) Bimal Krishna Ghosh v. Shebaits of Sree Sree Ishwar Radha Ballav Jiu – at Page 340 - "This observation is entitled to the highest respect and it is necessary, therefore, to look into the facts of the case closely to find out what their Lordships actually meant. It is clear from the facts set out in that judgment that in this case there was no gift of the idols but the property was given to one Udoy who was made a trustee in the legal sense of the word and upon whom were cast certain duties both religious and secular in their nature. He was to perform the worship of a certain idol with the income of a particular property and the remainder of the income was given to three people whose names were given in the will. In a case like this, where a private trust was created not of a purely religious character and the ownership of the property was vested in the trustee in the legal sense of the word, the Court could not possibly frame

a scheme for the administration of the trust estate. In a religious endowment, however, where the deity who is a perpetual infant is the legal owner of the property and the Shebaits occupy the position of managers or guardians, the position is different. In Manohar Mookerjee v. Peary Mohan Mookerjee AIR 1920 Cal 210, it was held by Asutosh Mookerjee, J. sitting with Panton, J. that:

In respect of a Debutter in this country, the founder or his heirs may invoke the assistance of a judicial tribunal for the proper administration thereof on the allegation that the trusts are not properly performed.

6. Mookerjee, J. invoked the analogy of the rule of English law according to which in case of a charitable corporation where the founder was a private person he and his heirs became visitors in law and in case such heirs were extinct or were incompetent the visitatorial powers devolved on the crown. It is true that in England such trusts are regarded as matters of public concern and the Attorney-General who represents the Crown takes proceedings on his behalf for protection of these charities: vide Att.Gen. v. James Brown (1816) 1 Swans 265 at p. 291. In India, the Crown is the constitutional protector of all infants and as the deity occupies in law the position of an infant, the Shebaits who represent the deity are entitled to seek the assistance of the Court in case of mismanagement or maladministration of the deity's estate and to have a proper scheme for management framed which would end the

disputes amongst the guardians and prevent the debutter estate from being wasted or ruined. This principle was reiterated in Rabindra Nath v. Chandi Charan : AIR1932Cal117 . The Privy Council itself directed the framing of a scheme, in case of a private debutter in Pramatha Nath v. Pradhyumna Kumar Mullick and the case was remanded to the trial Court expressly for that purpose. The same directions were given by this Court in the case in Prasad Das Pal v. Jagannath Pal : AIR1933Cal519 which was also a case of private debutter and we are unable to uphold the extreme contention raised by Mr. Biswas that a civil Court is incompetent to entertain a suit the object of which is to have a scheme established for the administration of a private debutter.

7. Mr. Biswas's second argument which he put forward in the alternative is that even if such a suit was cognizable by a Court of law, the deity is a necessary party to such a proceeding and it should be represented by a disinterested person as was done in Pramatha Nath v. Pradhyumna Kumar Mullick referred to above."

(iii) 1911 (33) Allahabad (ILR), Page 735 (Full Bench) – Jodhi Rai v. Basdeo Prasad – Page 737 – Deity described like a minor " With great respect we are unable to agree with the learned Judges. An idol has been held to be a juristic person who can hold property. Therefore, when a suit is brought in respect of property held by an idol, it is the idol who is the person bringing the suit or against whom the

suit is brought, the idol being the person beneficially interested in the suit. No doubt, in every suit the party bringing it or the party against whom it is brought must, when he is suffering from an incapacity, be represented by some other person, as in the case of an infant or a lunatic. Therefore, when a suit is brought on behalf of or against an idol, there must be on the record a person who represents the idol, such as the manager of the temple in which the idol is installed. The manager of the idol is not personally interested in the suit, any more than is the next friend or guardian of a minor. As a suit by a minor should be brought in the name of the minor and not of his next friend, so should a suit on behalf of the idol be brought in the name of the idol as represented by the manager, and in a suit against the idol the defendant should be similarly..... It is true that every pleading must be signed by a .... being; but this can be done by the manager, just in the same way as in the case of an infant the pleadings are signed by his next friend or guardian for the suit. The first defendant in this suit was, therefore, properly described in the plaint, and the view of the learned Judge in this respect is in our judgment erroneous. If there is any defect in the description of the defendants in suit of this kind, it is nothing more than an irregularity or mis-description. If, for instance, a suit on behalf of an idol is brought in the name of the manager of the idol that would not warrant the dismissal of the suit; but the plaint may be amended by correcting the description. Similarly, in the case of a defendant. Such an amendment

would not have the effect to introducing a third party on the record, and no question of limitation would, in our opinion, arise. “

(iv) AIR 1967 Supreme Court 1044, Vishwanath Vs. Radha Pal, Paragraph 10, at Page 1047 – An idol is in the position of a minor and when the person representing it leaves it in a lurch, a person interested in the worship of the idol can certainly be clothed with an ad hoc power of representation to protect its interest :

“10. The question is, can such a person represent the idol when the Shebait acts adversely to its interest and fails to take action to safeguard its interest. On principle we do not see any justification for denying such a right to the worshipper. An idol is in the position of a minor; when the person representing it leaves in the lurch, a person interested in the worship of the idol can certainly be clothed with an ad hoc power of representation to protect its interest. It is a pragmatic, yet a legal solution to a difficult situation. Should it be held that a Shebait, who transferred the property, can only bring a suit for recovery, in most of the cases it will be an indirect approval of the dereliction of the Shebait's duty, for more often than not he will not admit his default and take steps to recover the property, apart from other technical pleas that may be open to the transferee in a suit. Should it be held that a worshipper can file only a suit for the removal of a Shebait and for the appointment of another in order to enable him to take steps to recover the property, such a procedure will be rather a prolonged and a complicated one and the interest of the idol may irreparably suffer. That is why decisions have permitted a worshipper in such circumstances to represent the idol and to recover the property for the idol. It has been held in a number of decisions that worshippers may file a suit praying for possession of a property on behalf of an endowment; see Radhabai v. Chimnaji, (1878) ILR 3 Bom. 27, Zafaryab Ali v. Bakhtawar Singh, (1883) ILR 5 All 497, Chidambaranatha Thambiran v. P. S. Nallasiva Mudaliar, 6 Mad LW 666: (AIR 1918 Mad. 464), Dasondhay v. Muhammad Abu Nasar, (1911) ILR 33 All 660 at p. 664 : (AIR 1917 Mad. 112) (FB), Radha Krishnaji v. Rameshwar Prasad Singh, AIR 1934 Pat 584, Manmohan Haldar v. Dibbendu Prosad Roy, AIR 1949 Cal 199.

11. There are two decisions of the Privy Council, namely Pramatha Nath Mullick v. Pradyumna Kumar Mullick, 52 Ind App 245 : (AIR 1925 PC 139) and Kanhaiya Lal v. Hamid Ali , 60 Ind App 263 : (AIR 1933 PC 198(1), wherein the Board remanded the case to the High Court in order that the High Court might appoint a disinterested person to represent the idol. No doubt in both the cases no question of any deity filing a suit for its protection arose, but the decisions are authorities for the position that apart from a Shebait, under certain circumstances, the idol can be represented by disinterested persons. B. K. Mukherjea in his book "The Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trust" 2nd Edition, summarizes the legal position by way of the following

"(1) An idol is a juristic person in whom the title to the properties of the endowment vests. But it is only in an ideal sense that the idol is the owner. It has to act through human agency, and that agent is the Shebait, who is, in law, the person entitled to take proceedings on its behalf. The personality of the idol might therefore be said to be merged in that of the Shebait.

(2) Where, however, the Shebait refuses to act for the idol, or where the suit is to challenge the act of the Shebait himself as prejudicial to the interests of the idol, then there must be some other agency which must have the right to act for the idol. The law accordingly recognises a right in persons interested in the endowment to take proceedings on behalf of the idol."

This view is justified by reason as well as by decisions.

(v) In AIR 1971 Madras, Page 1 (Full Bench), Manathu Maitha Desikar Vs. Sundaralingam it has been held that since deity who is the owner of property suffers form physical disability, its interests have to be looked after in perpetuity. Paragraphs 19 and 20 are reproduced as under :

"19. In Rajah Vurmah Valia's case, (1876-78) ILR 1 Mad. 235 (PC) just now referred to, the Judicial Committee having regard to the usage of the institution, would infer that the founder prescribed a method of devolution under which the senior most members for the time being of four different families should be managers or trustees of the temple. If the managership or the office of Urallars is regarded as right in property manifestly the rule of devolution prescribed goes against the principle laid down in Tagore case, 1872-73 Ind App Supp Vol. 47 and the succession to the office provided for is not according to the ordinary law of descent of private property. Mrishnaswami Pillai v. Mookayi Ammal, 31 Ind Cas 35 = (AIR 1916 Mad. 1143 (1) is a case where this court recognized the validity of an arrangement with reference to a charity wherein the family had no beneficial interests for the management of the charity by the head of the family in each branch, females being excluded."

"20. What strikes us as the governing principle behind these decisions is that in the scheme of devolution of the office for administration of a public, religious or charitable institution when the dedication of property is of the completed character, no rights in the property are dealt with, the Dharmakartha or manaver provided thereunder having no proprietary interest in the dedicated property or profits therefrom. Else it must be held that Hindu Law by usage invests the founder with power to lay down the scheme of succession he considers it best in the interests of the foundation he endows. The founder when the dedication is complete divests himself of all proprietary rights in the property endowed. The deity, a juristic entity is the proprietor who never dies but labours under physical disability which renders it necessary that its interests should be looked after in perpetuity. As a concomitant a power has been recognised in the founder to appoint and provide for a manager to look after the affairs of the deity which has become the owner of the property. The office which he creates for attending to the affairs of the deity is a thing of his own creation and if it is bare office without perquisites, there is no property in it in the Hindu Law sense of the term. There is one observation of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in Tagore case, 1872-73 Ind App. Supp. Vol 47, which is significant in this context they stated:-

"The power of parting with property once acquired, so as to confer the same property upon another, must take effect either by inheritance or transfer, each according to law."

22. In 71 Mad. LJ 740 = (AIR PC 318) the Judicial Committee referred to the Full Bench decision with approval. Their Lordships said:-

"In (1900) ILR 23 Mad 271 it was held by this Board that the second ruling in the Tagore case, 1872-73 Ind App. Supp Vol. 47 above referred to is applicable to a hereditary office and endowment as well as to other immoveable property. This decision was followed in ILR 60 Cal. 452 = (AIR 1932 Cal. 791)

In Manohar Mukerji's case, ILR 60 Cal., 452 = (AIR Cal. 791) the question involved was as to the right to the shebaitship of two family deities and the validity of the Will of the founder who dies in 1840 providing for a life of succession providing for a life of succession to

the shebaitship at variance with the ordinary Hindu law of inheritance. The case is clearly distinguishable as it proceeds on the premise that Shebaitship is property."

Mr. Bhat Senior Advocate has made following submissions ;

"Suit No.5/1989 is for obtaining a declaration that "the entire premises of Shri Ram Janmabhumi at Ayodhya described and delineated in Annexures I, II and III belong to the plaintiff deities". The prayer is now restricted to the land occupied by the disputed structure Babri Masjid that was demolished.

The suit filed in July 1989 is governed by the Limitation Act, 1963 and Art.58 is relevant. It deals with "to obtain any other declaration". The period of limitation is three years and the time from which the period begins to run is "when the right to sue first accrues".

The period prescribed is subject to the provisions contained in Sections 4 to 24. The plaintiffs are seeking the protection of Section 6(1) which deals with legal disability and the relevant provision reads: "Where a person entitled to institute a suit …at the time from which the prescribed period is to be reckoned is a minor…he may institute the suit…within the same period after the disability has ceased".

The expressions "minor", "insane" or "idiot" have not been defined in the Limitation Act. Even the General Clauses Act does not define these expressions. Insanity may be for an indefinite period of time and so is the case with an idiot. Can a person lying in a coma following a stroke or accident be regarded as insane – he has lost his sanity. A state of coma can last for many years. The person surely is under a disability, but can he be brought under the protection of S.6

or is he to be denied the protection altogether? The dictionary meaning of any of these expressions may provide some guidance but do not provide tests for determining whether a person is insane or an idiot.

In the case of a minor, the dictionary meaning is "a person under the age of full legal responsibility". The Majority Act of 1875 – S.3 defines the age of majority as 18 years. S.2 thereof makes some exceptions. However, the Legislature has the power to change this age. It is possible that the competent legislature may reduce the age of majority, say to 15 years, in which case the protection given under Sec.6 of the Limitation Act is reduced by that many years. In other words, the undefined expression "minor" occurring in Sec.6 cannot operate by its own force. Its meaning may depend upon sources outside the Limitation Act.

The expression "minor" for the purpose of Order 32 does not depend upon the age alone. The commentaries have noted that : "But if before the expiry of the age of eighteen a guardian for the person or for the property or for both, of the minor has been appointed or declared by a Court of Justice (apart from the provisions of O.32 of the Code), or the minor's property is taken charge of by a Court of Wards, then the period of minority is extended till the completion of the age of twenty-one vide (1907) 29 All.672 (FB), AIR 1976 Mad.235 (236) (DB), (1907) 31 Bom. 590 (603), ARI 1925 Cal.513 (514) (DB)" (See AIR Manual 6th Ed. Page 1045).

It is also pointed out that a Muslim girl who has attained puberty can sue for dissolution of marriage without a next friend. A Muslim girl who is major according to her personal law, but is not a major according to the Majority Act may institute a suit, without a

next friend, for a declaration that she is not the wife of the defendant vide AIR 1964 J&K p.60.

Once the Supreme Court has declared in the case of Vishwanath and Anr. V. Shri Thakur Radhaballabhji and Ors. AIR 1967 SC 1044, that an idol or a deity is in the position of a minor, that idol or deity is entitled to all the benefits that the minor gets under the laws including the Limitation Act. It may be noted that under many of the special Acts, the expression "minor" is defined. For example, the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act defines a 'minor' as a person who has not completed the age of 18 years. However, the definitions under special Acts are meant for the purpose of those Acts.

The expressions "insane" and "idiot" also do not have any particular definition and the Courts will have to decide whether a person is insane or an idiot based upon external aid. The Law Lexicon by T.P. Mukherjee, 4th Ed. under the term "lunatic" based on a judgment of the Andhra Pradesh High Court defines the term as follows:-

> "The words "idiot" and "unsoundness of mind" both indicate an abnormal state of mind as distinguished from weakness of mind or senility following old age. A man of weak mental strength cannot be called an idiot or a man of unsound mind. The intellectual competency of the human mind is of varying degrees. It fluctuates between brilliance and dullness. Sometimes in the same individual brilliance in one field surprisingly appears in juxtaposition with sub-normal practical apprehension in an allied field. The Act is not intended to protect dull witted people but only those who suffer from a mental disorder on derangement of the mind. (See Lunacy Act, 1912, Sec.3(5)) – Ganga Bhavanamma v. Somaraju, AIR 1957 A.P. 938 at 939."

Lunacy Act of 1912 had some attempted definition of a lunatic –or insane. However, that Act has been repealed by the Mental Health Act of 1987 – the new Act has no fresh definitions. In any case, as already stated, the special definitions in any of these Acts are intended for the purpose of that particular Act.

Article 141 of the Constitution of India is categorical that the law declared by the Supreme Court is binding on all courts and tribunals. In Bishwanath v. Shri Thakur Radhaballabhji, AIR 1967 SC 1044, the Court has laid down as a matter of law the following proposition: “The question is, can such a person represent the idol when the Shebait acts adversely to its interest and fails to take action to safeguard its interest. On principle we do not see any justification for denying such a right to the worshipper. An idol is in the position of a minor; when the person representing it leaves it in the lurch, a person interested in the worship of the idol can certainly be clothed with an ad hoc power of representation to protect its interest. It is a pragmatic, yet a legal solution to a difficult situation.” The law declared, therefore, is that an idol is in the position of a minor. In that particular case it was for the purpose of permitting the worshipper to file a suit as a guardian or next friend - to safeguard the interest of the deity. It is submitted that by extending the benefit under Section 6 to a deemed minor –ie a deity - the cause of justice is not prejudiced; but only advanced. In a situation where the expression ‘minor’ is not defined, the deity who is in the position of a minor should receive the protection of S.6 – as if the deity is a minor. It may be that the duration of the disability could be long and indefinite - in the case of a insane or an idiot it could be life long.

There are no special provisions in the Limitation Act to deal with recognized juristic persons like a deity. Can it be the intention of the legislature not to apply the Limitation Act to a deity? Extending the benefit available to a minor to a deity can do no injustice to the world at large. It may be noted that in the majority of cases there is a

shebait to take care of the idol or deity – in such cases S.6 does not come in to play. Cases dealing with the applicability of O.32 CPC have found that the said set of provisions may not be sufficient to protect the interest of a deity.

Thus, deity is a minor for the purpose of S.6 of the Limitation Act.

In the case of Maharaja Jagadindra Nath Roy Bahadur v. Rani Hemanta Kumari Debi – 31 IA 203, p.210, it was held :

"And in the present case the right to sue accrued to the plaintiff when he was under age. The case therefore falls within the clear language of S.7 of the Limitation Act, which says that, "if a person entitled to institute a suit.... Be, at the time from which the period of limitation is to be reckoned, a minor," he may institute the suit after coming of age within a time which in the present case would be three years.

"It may be that the plaintiff's adoptive mother, with whom the settlement of 1877 was made as sebait, might have maintained a suit on his behalf and as his guardian. This is very often the case when a right of action accrues to a minor. But that does not deprive the minor of the protection given to him by the Limitation Act, when it empowers him to sue after he attains his majority."

Similarly, the law declared by a Division Bench of this Hon'ble Court Musi Imran v. Collector of Bijnore AIR 1934 All.434, Sulaiman, CJ, held at p.435 as under : "Now, if time began to run against the lunatic from the 29th of August, 1920, when the defendant was discharged, then the three years would certainly have expired before the institution of the present suit. But it is admitted that the lunatic is still under a disability, and it must, therefore, be held that he is protected under Section 6 of the Indian Limitation Act. The mere fact, that there was a guardian on his behalf who could have sued earlier, would not deprive him of the protection given by that Section."

In a decision reported in the Electricity Board, U.P. State v. Sheo Nath Singh AIR 1976 All. 118, it has been held : "The plaintiff Sheo Nath Singh was a minor both on the date of the accident and the date of the institution of the suit. Hence unless the provisions of Section 7 of the Limitation Act were applicable, the suit filed on his behalf during the continuance of the disability but after the expiry of the ordinary period of Limitation will be saved under the provisions of Section 6".

In the case reported in AIR 1938 Pat.92, it has been held as follows : " Section 6 applies to every minor whether he has a guardian or not, and the existence of a guardian competent to sue is immaterial. Under S.6(1) a minor is entitled to institute a suit or make an application for the execution of a decree within the statutory period of three years after attaining his majority and it was never intended by the Legislature to restrict the protection given to a minor by the acts of his guardian in the matter of making an application for execution.[P 93 C2]

Where therefore a guardian for minor applies for execution of a decree obtained on behalf of the minor, and the application is held to be barred by limitation, the minor is not precluded from applying for execution of the decree within the statutory period of three years from the date of attaining majority and the order in the previous execution proceedings is not binding on him : 7 CWN 594 and 32 Cal. 129 (PC), Rel. on; AIR 1935 Pat. 526

The above sample decisions have been cited to show that even if there was a guardian during the period when the plaintiff was a minor, he is entitled to protection of Sec.6 of the Limitation Act.

Under Art.58 of the Limitation Act, the period of three years is to start when the right to sue first occurs; in the long history of this case on what date according to the defendants the period began to run?. Unless the defendants prove otherwise the plaint averments as to the cause of action should be the basis for applying the provisions about limitation. Plaint paragraph 18 explains why the present suit was filed despite the pendency of several other suits. In paragraph 30, it is pleaded, among others, that the Hindus were publicly agitating for the construction of a grand temple in the Nagar style. “Plans and a model of the proposed Temple have already been prepared by the same family of architect who built the Somnath temple. The active movement is planned to commence from September 30, 1989 and foundation stone of the new temple building, it has been declared, shall be laid on November 9, 1989.” The plaint also sets out the details fo the pending proceedings under Sec.145 Cr.P.C. and before any of the steps mentioned in paragraph 30 could be taken like laying of the foundation stone, the title of the plaintiffs had to be declared. That is why on July 1, 2989, the suit was filed. Paragraph 36 of the plaint has to be read along with the other relevant averments. The defendant No.4 in response to the above paragraphs have asserted that the whole Rama temple was imaginary. It is no longer imaginary. It is a matter of public knowledge that the agitation for building a temple at the disputed area had gathered momentum throughout India, particularly from about the year 1989 culminating in the destruction of the structure on December 6, 1992. The averment that in 1989, there was a particular reason why the suit had to be filed is properly pleaded and justified.

Therefore the suit is within the prescribed period of limitation."

Shri M.M. Pandey Advocate on behalf of the plaintiffs has submitted that plaintiff nos. 1 an 2 are juristic persons. They are infant in perpetuity and they are not subject of law of limitation. It is settled proposition of Hindu law that deities cannot be deprived of their properties and their claim cannot be barred by time and thus their title can not extinct by dispossession also. His submissions are as under;

Sri M.M. Pandey, counsel for the plaintiffs submitted as under:-

1. As a Juristic Person, the 'Hindu Deity' is a Class by Himself with no exact parallel. "The Deity in short is conceived of as a living being and is treated in the same way as the master of the house would be treated by his humble servant. The daily routine of life is gone through with minute accuracy, the vivified Image is regaled with necessities and luxuries of life in due succession even to the changing of clothes, the offering of cooked and uncooked food and retirement to rest" [p. 156; 36 CLJ 478= 1923 Cal 60 (Mookerjee J.), Ram Bramh Chatterji Vs. Kedar Nath Banerjea – this observation was approvingly quoted by PC in 1925 PC 139*, Pramatha Nath* Vs Pradyumna Kumar; see also, ILR 8 Bom 432, Thackersay Vs. Harbhum].
2. Endowment in favour of Deity is a perpetual estate; it is capable of receiving and holding property, but it does not possess a power of alienation, hence endowment in favour of Deity is necessarily a tied up or perpetual estate; absolute gifts of lands or money perpetually to an Idol or for other religious purposes have been held to be valid in Hindu Law from early times (p.137). In Thyrammal Vs.Kanakammal (2005) 1 SCC 457 (para 15,16 & 17), the Supreme Court has held that a religious endowment does not create title in respect of the dedicated property in any body's favour, and property dedicated for religious charitable purpose for which the owner of the property or donor has indicated no administrator or manager, a property dedicated for general public use is itself raised to the category of a Juristic Person and such a property vests in the property itself as a Juristic Person. This special legal status squarely applies to Asthan Ram Janma Bhumi, Plaintiff No.2 in OOS 5 of 1989; the spot where Ram was born, and all properties appurtenant thereto belong to and vest in the spot itself as juristic person. No body else, not even the Shabait can become owner of the Deity or property of Deity (p. 248-249; ILR 12 Bom 247, Manohar Ganesh Tambekar Vs. Lakhmiram Govindram relied upon in ILR (1896) 23 Cal 645, Girijanand Vs. Shailja (at pages 655-656).

3. Since such vesting of the property is a perpetual estate and the Deity itself does not possess the power of its alienation (Prosonno Kumari Vs. Golab Chand LR 2 IA 145 at 150-151, & Palaniappa Vs. Devasikamony, 44 IA 147)), it follows that no law can divest the Deity of its property under any circumstance whatsoever. A Temple is the 'house' of the Deity (p.153 of B.K.Mukherjea's book); by destroying the house, neither the Deity nor Deity's property, on which the house stood, could cease to belong to Deity. Indeed, Section 18 of Transfer of Property Act recognises that the rule against perpetuity under that Act, does not apply to transfer of property for the benefit of public; such exclusion is in-built in Hindu Law itself.
4. Vide, page 19-20 of Mulla's "Principles of Hindu Law, 1958 Edn, some of the important recognised Dharmashastras are known as Smritis of Manu (200 BC), Yajnavalkya (1st Century AD –p. 24)), Narad (200 AD –p. 26)), Parashara, Brihaspati, Katyayana (4th-5th Century AD – p.32) etc; they are of universal application, not in substitution for another but all treated as supplementary to each other (-p.20). At page 33, Mulla records: "Katyayana maintains unimpaired the distinctive qualities of Smriti of Brahaspati to which he freely refers. His exposition is authoritative and remarkable for its freshness of style and vigorous approach. There can be little doubt that this Smriti must have been brought into line with the current law. It must have commanded a wide appeal as may readily be gathered from the profuse manner in which it has been quoted in all leading commentaries.....The arduous task of collecting all the available texts of Katyayana from numerous commentaries and digests was accomplished by Mahamahopadhyaya Kane who collated and published in 1933 about one thousand verses of the Smrtiti on Vyavahara (Procedure) with an English translation". As shall appear hereafter, statement of law in Katyayana Smriti is of special significance in these suits. The force, sanctity and King's duty relating to Temples has been strongly emphasised in the Hindu Law from ancient times. Apararka [held to be an Authority under Hindu Law by PC in Buddha Singh Vs. Laltu Singh, 42 I.A. 208 = ILR (1915) 37 All 604, see Mulla p.51-52 acknowledged by Banares School] says that King should not deprive Temples of their properties ( History of Dharam Shastra – Government Oriental Series - by P.V. Kane, Volume II Part II page 913). At page 911 Kane quotes Yagnavalkya that it is part of King's duty to prosecute and fine persons interfering with or destroying the property of Temples; he cites Manu (IX/280) requiring the King to pronounce death sentence on who breaks a Temple, and him who breaks an image to repair the whole damage and pay a fine of 500 pannas. The Deity and Temple not only served the object of Worship of Divine, but also served social purpose. Historian Romila Thapar writes in 'A History of India' Vol.I (Pelican Books 1990, 13th Impression 2001), at Page 279 that the Temple had long been the centre of Hindu social life in the village, place where Hindus congregated; it 'was the Bank, the Landowner, the administrative centre for the village and place of major entertainment in the form of festivals'. Mentioning Katyayana (4th-5th Century AD – vide Mulla at page 14) on judicial process, Romila Thapar writes at page 154 that Judgments were based either on legal texts or social usage or edict of the King which could not contradict the legal text or Usage; at page 160, she writes Social Law based on man-made Tradition had already become the sacred law. That is why Temples were immune from influence of the King. Page 28 of B.K.Mukherjea's authority mentions Yajnavalkya: 'Customary Law as well as Usages established by Kings should be carefully upheld, if not inconsistent with the revealed law'. Vijnaneswara

commented upon this text as follows: Duties arising under any Custom, such as preservation of pastures for cow and of water and management of Temples (Devgriha) and the like should also be carefully observed without infringing the duties prescribed by Shrutis and Smritis ..... The same view finds expression in Shukra-Niti where the duty of protecting endowments has been spoken of as one of the primary duties of the King. Thus the duty of Kings to protect endowments rested on the basis of immemorial customs which were as sacred as written texts". In Appendix I (Summary of Pran Nath Saraswati's "Hindu Law of Endowments") at page 507, mention is made that "On conquest the Temples should be respected". In D.F.Mulla's 'Principles of Hindu Law', Chapter II on Sources of Hindu Law, Text No. 3 mentions: "Whatever Customs, Practices and Family Usages prevail in a Country shall be preserved intact when it comes under subjection by (conquest) – Yajnavalkya I, 343". At page 81 of "Yajnavalkyasmriti", translated by Manmatha Nath Dutt, published by Parimal Publications Delhi (1st Edn 2005), verse no.343 reads as follows: 'When a foreign kingdom is brought under subjection, he should observe the conduct, law and family practices obtaining in the same kingdom'. In Chapter 7 of the "Laws of Manu" (Penguin Classics, Edn 2000) at page 149, Manu's edicts nos. 201 to 203 lay down that on conquest, the King-conqueror "should make authoritative their own laws (i.e. of the vanquished) as they have been declared....." In a very early decision, PC held: "The important principle to be observed by Courts in dealing with constitution and rules of religious brotherhoods attached to Hindu Temples is to ascertain, if possible, the special laws and usages governing the particular community whose affairs have become subject of litigation": Raja Muttu Ramalinga Setupati Vs. Perianayagum Pillai, 1 IA 209; at page 234, it goes on to say: "The subject of devastanum lands is of a great importance to the happiness of the people, and the attention paid to the interest of the pagodas ..... has been attended with most beneficial consequences to the people in different parts of peninsula" (i.e India).

5. Such has been the Hindu Law since ancient times. There has been no change of that law either by any Emperor or by any Legislature, hence the law as found originally in India relating to Hindu Deity must be applied. In the case of S. Darshan Lal Vs. Dr. R.S.S Dalliwall, 1952 All 825 (DB), it is stated in para 16: "In an inhabited country, obtained by conquest or cessation, law already prevailing therein continues to prevail except to the extent English Law has been introduced, and also except to the extent to which such law is not civilised law at all……." The Court reiterated that view in para 18. This dictum which was laid down in the context of applicability of English Law in Indian territories conquered/ceded, constitutes a reasonable premise for application of then prevailing Hindu law at the time of conquest by Babar. Indeed, Privy Council held in Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj Vs. Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar, 1940 PC 116 at page 120 Col. 2, that "There is every presumption in favour of the proposition that a change of sovereignty would not affect private rights to property". It is nobody's case nor any evidence that during the Muslim rule commencing from late 12th/early 13th Century (Mohd Ghauri/Qutubbin Aibak who established 'Slave Dynasty' from 1206 AD) modified any of these laws. Similarly, it is nobody's case nor any evidence that during Mughal rule from Babar till the advent of governance by East India Company (from 1757 with the Battle of Plassey) or that of British rule from 1858 (with Queen's Proclamation), any modification in these provisions of Hindu Law was made. The British had established regular COURTS to administer justice; it was by OUDH LAWS ACT 18 of 1876 that the British provided what laws were to be administered in OUDH which includes Ayodhya and Faizabad; that Statute holds good even today by virtue of Article 372(1) of Constitution of India. A number of Acts were framed governing various relationships and situations in the Hindu Society, like Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, Hindu Succession Act, Hindu Marriage Act, Hindu Minority & Guardianship Act etc., both during the British times and post-independence of India, but none was framed to set out the

rights, obligations and antecedents of Hindu Deity; hence Hindu Law as known to Dharma Shastras continue to apply to Hindu Deities. The Code of Civil Procedure covers a variety of Suits, e.g. relating to persons of Unsound Mind, Minors, Corporations, State Agencies but is totally silent on Hindu Deities.. The general provisions of Limitation Act could not over-ride the special & clear Hindu Law found in the Dharma Shastras which had ensured the rights of Deity to hold good in perpetuity, without interference by the State (King). Only those provisions of period of limitation laid down by Dharma Shastras could be affected by Limitation Act which were modified by any statute law on specific subjects of Dharma Shastra provisions; there has never been any statute law governing Hindu Deity & Deity's property including the Temple which is 'His house'. The rights of Deities, Ram Janma Bhumi and Bhagwan Shri Ramlala, have to be determined exclusively/solely on the basis of the Hindu Law as known to Dharma Shastras and not imperfect analogies drawn from imperfect comparisons. In Bhyah Ram Singh Vs. Bhyah Ujagar Singh, 13 MIA 373, PC ruled firmly that where there is a text of Hindu Law directly on a point, nothing from any foreign source should be introduced into it, nor should Courts interpret the text by application to the language of strained analogies ( p. 41 of Mukherji).

6. It is pointed out at pages 67 to 69 of Mulla's "Principles of Hindu Law" that in a very early decision (4 MIA 97-98) Privy Council conceded that 'it is quite impossible for us to feel any confidence in our opinion…….founded upon authorities (Hindu Dharmashastras) to which we have access only through translations, and when the doctrines themselves, and the reasons by which they are supported or impugned, are drawn from religious traditions, ancient usages and more modern habits of Hindoos, with which we cannot be familiar". These suits are very different from any litigation which figured in the past; they are admittedly of National importance and must be dealt with on a thorough scrutiny of what the true law is. With the adoption of Constitution of India, with promises contained in Articles 13, 14 and Preamble, the decisions of PC have only

'persuasive' rather than 'binding' effect: See 1968 SC 1165, Nair Service Society Vs. K.C.Alexandar. Full effect must be given to Hindu Dharmashastras, specially in the light of Oudh Laws Act in these cases.

7. Preamble to Oudh Laws Act of 1876, "declares and amends the laws to be administered in Oudh" and only in Oudh (Section1). So far as it goes, therefore, it is exhaustive of the Laws which the Courts of Oudh must apply in matters covered by the Act. This position continues even today by virtue of Article 372(1) of the Constitution of India. Section 3(b)(1) lays down what laws are to be applied in questions regarding 'any religious usage or institution, and requires the Courts to apply "any custom applicable to the parties concerned which is not contrary to justice, equity or good conscience, or has not been by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished and has not been declared to be void by any competent authority". Section 3(b)(2) requires to apply "the Muhammadan law in cases where parties are Muhammadans, and the Hindu law in cases where parties are Hindus, except in so far as such law has been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished, or has been modified by any such custom as is above referred to". Reading the two clauses together, the Section sets out the laws which must be applied to 'parties concerned'. In rights/obligations concerning Muhammadans, the Muslim law must be applied; in those concerning Hindus, the Hindu Law must be applied and after determination of those rights/obligations, if rights/equities have to be judged between Muhammedans and Hindus, then Equity, Justice and Good Conscience have to be applied for determination of the 'Relief'. Section 3(f) requires to apply ".....all enactments for the time being in force and expressly, or by necessary implication, applying to ..... Oudh or some part of Oudh". This demands that the Statute Law in force for the time being must be applied. It would be appreciated that this provision itself is Statutory, so that the provision makes the Hindu/Mohammedan Law, so to say, to be a Statutory Law akin to 'referential legislation'. Instead of incorporating specific provisions of Hindu/Mohammedan Law into the Oudh Laws Act,

it simply requires those laws to be applied, wherever they may be found. In the case of Bajya Vs. Gopikabai, 1978 SC 793, two categories of referential incorporation are recognised: (1) provision of another Statute is incorporated and (2) the 'law concerning a particular subject as a genus' is incorporated; in case (2), the legislative intent is to include all subsequent amendments made from time to time in the general law on the adopted subject. Oudh Laws Act belongs to 2nd category; the important point is that there has never been any legislation on Hindu Deities, hence the original Dharmashastra law continues to apply.

8. Section 3(g) requires that "in cases not provided for by the former part of this section, or by any other law for the time being in force, the Courts shall act according to justice, equity and good conscience". Section 4 says that "all local customs and mercantile usages shall be regarded as valid, unless they are contrary to justice, equity or good conscience……." Simply put, the provision accords primacy to 'personal law' (subject to any other law for the time being in force) and applies justice, equity and good conscience only when there is no personal law and that although local custom shall be deemed to be valid, yet Custom will have to stand the test of justice, equity and good conscience. Fundamentally, therefore, Hindu Law has to be applied on the rights/property and incidental matters concerning Hindu Deity and Temples unless such law has been modified by any statute or Custom; no such statute was ever enacted and no case of any modifying Custom ever arose in these cases.
9. However, Section 16 of Oudh Laws Act lays down the "Rule of Limitation" and applies Act XIV of 1859 to Oudh with effect from 4.7.1862. Act XIV of 1859 provided for one uniform law of limitation for all Courts in British India, but had not provided for extinction or acquisition of rights/title on the basis of possession. Section 16 of Oudh Laws Act goes no further. Even so, Section 3(f) mentioned that "all enactments for the time being in force and expressly or by necessary implication applying to the territories…….of Oudh or some part of Oudh"

will be applied by the Courts; Limitation Act of 1871 could fall within this category but for its exclusion as shall appear shortly. Extinction/acquisition of rights came to be provided for the first time by Sections 27 to 29 of Limitation Act IX of 1871 (vide page 8 of Vol. 1 of "Obhrai's Limitation and Prescription" on Limitation Act IX of 1908 published by Eastern Law House, Lahore and page 7 of Vol. 1 of Sanjiva Row's "Limitation Act 1963" Edn 1987 published by Law Book Co, Allahabad). Since the substantive rights of Deity under Hindu Law clearly provided that its rights are perpetual and cannot be extinguished under any circumstance, it must be treated to be a Statute Law under the Oudh Laws Act; it has only to be found out whether the provision for extinction under Act IX of 1871 is such as falls within the restrictive clauses of Section 3(b)(2) of the Oudh Laws Act. The only restrictive stipulation in that clause is: "except insofar as such law has been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished". Firstly, an Act of 1871 cannot alter or abolish any provision of 1876 Act. It is also significant that although Limitation Act 1871, which had provided for extinction/acquisition of ownership right on the basis of possession, was already on the Statute Book when Oudh Laws Act was enacted 4 years later and gave Statutory status to Hindu Law by 'referential legislation', Oudh Laws Act did not make a specific provision to curtail the substantive right of the Deity under Hindu Law. Secondly, the provision of 'altering/abolishing' enactment must alter or abolish the Hindu Law, it is not enough to provide for alteration/abolition of rights 'generally.' Limitation Acts of 1877 and 1908 similarly contained provison for extinction of rights similar to Act of 1871, which is not enough to alter or abolish the Hindu Law regarding Hindu Deities. The Hindu Law of Deities and law of limitation under these enactments need to be harmoniously construed. In this exercise, the procedure provided in a Statute for enforcement of substantive rights conferred thereby should be construed as far as possible so as to give effect to and not nullify those rights: 1941 Mad 158, Palani Goundan Vs. Peria Gounden. Procedural enactments should be construed in such a manner as to render

the enforcement of substantive rights effective: 1959 SC 422 (426), Velluswami Vs. Raj Nainar; 1989 SC 2206, M.V.Vali Press Vs. Fernandee Lopez. Finally, stipulations of Hindu Law regarding Deity, recognised by Section 3(b)(2) of Oudh Laws Act are 'particular' and 'special'; they shall over-ride the 'general' stipulation of Limitation Acts. There is no essential Jurisprudential or Constitutional requirement that for every right/remedy a period of limitation must be enacted; more so in respect of Hindu Deity which is conceived of by Hindu Dharmashastra Law as Immortal, Indefeasible, Timeless, Omnipresent & Eternal. After all, Transfer of Property Act or Indian Trusts Act admittedly does not apply to Hindu Deity. Hence, provisions of extinguishing rights under any of the Limitation Acts would be ineffective over the perpetual rights of Deity under Hindu Law. Here, notice may be taken of Manu's edict no. 200 of Chapter 8 (at page 174 of "The Laws of Manu", Penguin Classics, Edn 2000) which lays down: 'If a man is seen to be making use of something, but no title at all is to be seen, then the title is the proof (of ownership), not the use; this is a fixed rule'. Thus, according to Hindu Law, 'title' not 'possession' establishes ownership and that concept cannot be disturbed summarily through vague interpretations of general provisions relating to Limitation.

10. Same result seems to flow from the principle of Reading Down a general provision in the context of the law as a whole, vide All Saints High School Vs. Govt of A.P. (1980) 2 SCC 478 para 112. Since the plain meaning of Section 3(b)(2) of Oudh Laws Act specifically confines the laws of Hindu religious institutions to the Hindu Personal Law, i.e., the Dharmashastra Law, which unmistakably confers absolute perpetual and indefeasible rights on Deity and His property, a mere general provision that the law of limitation would apply to any suit instituted in respect of 'any' property which may also include Deity and/or His property, thereby denying right of suit after expiry of a certain period of limitation will have to be 'Read Down' to prevent deprivation of Deity's clear perpetual rights.

Sri M.M Pandey, Advocate, further submitted that Ram Janmabhumi continued to exist as a Swayambhu Deity, owning Itself and the Temple, hence no question of extinction of title by Limitation or dispossession could arise. The important aspect of Hindu Law relating to Deities, thus, is that the Deity is never divested of its rights in its property; in the case of self-revealed Idol, coupled with the faith of its followers, there is no independent consecration and the real owner of the property dedicated to a Temple, is deemed to be God Himself represented through a particular Idol or Deity which is merely a symbol: Gokulnath ji Maharaj Vs.Nathji Bhogilal, 1953 All 552. Alternatively, from the angle of Limitation Act, since the Deity who is the owner of the property, suffers from physical disability, its interests have to be looked after in perpetuity, Manathu Naitha Desikar Vs. Sundarlingam 1971 Mad 1(FB – para 20). In a bunch of WPs, decided by a DB of Rajasthan High Court, Ram Lal & another Vs. Board of Revenue & Others, 1990 (1) RLR 161, the DB held in para 8: 'It will not be out of place here to mention that there are series of judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court and the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the Deity or Idol should ordinarily be considered as minor in perpetuity'. In para 10, the High Court again said: 'For the reasons mentioned above, we are of the view that the deity/idol should be treated as a minor in perpetuity.....When the offerings are offered to the deity, the offerings become the property of the deity and not of the temple. Deity owns the offerings and the Pujari or the Shebait shall not be the owner of the offerings and the property of the deity'. This decision was followed in Temple of Thakurji Vs. State of Rajasthan & others, 1998 Raj 85 (para 11). These decisions also laid emphasis on the obligation of the State to protect the interests of the Deity as a perpetual minor. In Sri Banamali Neogi & others Vs. Sri Asoke Kumar Chattopadhyayay & others, 96 CWN 886 (para 10), Calcutta High Court held Deity to be a perpetual minor. Similarly, in Trilochan Das Adhikari & another Vs. Simanchal Rath & others, 1994(II) OLR 602, Orissa High Court held Deity to be perpetual minor. In foot-note (j) at page 12 of Mulla's Principles of Hindu Law, it is stated that grounds of disability were recognised in Hindu Law, for instance there was exemption from limitation in case of minors, property of King and deposits involving the element of Trust;

obviously, dedication to Deity involves "Trust"; Indian Trusts Act does not apply, vide Section 1 of the Act. In Bishwanath Vs. Radha Ballabh ji, 1967 SC 1044, it was held that an Idol is in the position of a minor and when the person representing it leaves it in a lurch, a person interested in the worship can certainly be clothed with an adhoc power of representation to protect its interests.

11. According to Katyayana, Temple property is never lost even if it is enjoyed by strangers for hundreds of years (P.V.Kane Volume III page 327-328); even the king cannot deprive temples of their properties (see para 43 above). In *Ramareddy Vs. Ranga (*1925 ILR 49 Mad 543) it is held that managers and even purchasers from them for consideration could never hold the endowed properties adversely to the Deity and there could be never adverse possession leading to acquisition of title in such cases. The Idol/Deity which is an embodiment of Supreme God and is a Juristic Person, represents the 'Infinite – the Timeless' cannot be confined by the shackles of Time. Brihadaranakya Upanishad (referred to in Mulla's Principles of Hindu Law at page 8) lays down: Om Purnam adah, purnam idam, purnat purnam udachyate; purnasaya purnam adaya, purnam evavasisyate ['That is Full, this is Full. From the Full does the Full proceed. After the coming of the Full from the Full, the Full alone remains' – at page (v) of Brihadaranyaka Upanishad by Krishnanand, pubished by the Divine Life Society, P.O. Shivananadanagar, District Tehri-Garhwal UP- 1984 Edn.] In Mahant Ram Saroop Das Ji Vs. S.P.Sahi, Special Officer-in-charge of Hindu Religious Trusts, 1959 SC 951 (para10), it recognised that "a Deity is immortal and it is difficult to visualise that a Hindu private debutter will fail ..... Even if the Idol gets broken, or is lost or is stolen, another image may be consecrated, and it cannot be said that the original object has ceased to exist". In Idol of Thakurji Govind Deoji Maharaj Jaipur Vs. Board of Revenue Rajasthan, Jaipur, 1965 SC 906 (para 6), it is laid down: "An Idol which is juridical person is not subject to death because the Hindu concept is that the Idol lives for ever ....." Timelessness, thus, abounding in the Hindu

Deity, there cannot be any question of the Deity losing its rights by lapse of time. Jurisprudentially also, there seems to be no essential impediment in a provision which protects the property rights of disabled persons, like a Deity, to remain outside the vicissitudes of human frailties for ensuring permanent sustenance to it and therefore to keep it out of reach of human beings, including the King. Every law is designed to serve some social purpose; the vesting of rights in Deity, which serve the social purpose indicated above since ancient times, is quite in order to serve social good (See Para 43).

12. A significant recent decision of English Courts has recognised the concept of Hindu Idol's disability and representation by 'next friend', namely (1991) 4 All E.R. 638, Bumper Development Corporation Ltd Vs. Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis & Others (including Union of India and other Indian Parties); a decision rendered by the Trial Court was upheld by Court of Appeal and House Lords refused Leave to Appeal against CA decision, popularly known as Nataraj Case. In Tamil Nadu, near a 12th Century Temple which had laid in ruins since 13th Century, (called Pathur Temple), and remained un-worshipped since centuries (at pages 643 & 640), a bronze Hindu Idol, known as Siva Nataraj, was found by a labourer, Ramamoorthi, in 1976 during excavation of the ruins. The Nataraj Idol was sold through several hands and ultimately reached London market; criminal investigation for offence of theft of Idol was started and London Metropolitan Police seized it. Bumper Development Corporation laid claim to it as purchaser and sued for its possession and damages. Several other Claimants were impleaded to the suit: these included Union of India, State of Tamil Nadu, Thiru Sadagopan (Claimant No 3) as "the fit person" of the Temple and Temple itself (Claimant No. 4) through Claimant No3. (The concept of "fit person" is same as "Next Friend" at page 643). During pendency of the proceedings, a Sivalingam (which too was found buried in the ruins of the Temple) was reinstated as an object of worship at the site of the Temple. The Trial Judge, relying upon B.K.Mukherjea's Hindu Law of Religious and

Charitable Trusts (page 646 of Report) held that Claimant No4 (Temple) suing through Claimant No. 3 as 'fit person, or custodian or next friend' (page 643 of Report) had proved his title superior to that of Bumper and 'the pious intention of 12th Century notable who gave the land and built the Pathur Temple remained in being and was personified by the Sivalingam of the Temple which itself had a title superior to that of Bumper'. The Court of Appeal upheld the finding of the Trial Court Judge that under Hindu Law, the Temple was a juristic entity and Claimant No. 3 (next friend Thiru Sadagopan) had the right to sue and be sued on behalf of the Temple. The right of the Temple through the Next Friend to possess the Nataraj Idol was upheld (page 648 of Report); House of Lords refused Leave to Appeal (page 649 of Report). This 20th Century decision of English Courts has striking similarity with the present Ram Janmabhumi case: 12th Century Temple remained in ruins & un-worshipped through centuries (in our case it was 11th-12th Century Vishnu-Hari Temple which was demolished in 1528 and Babri Mosque, DS was erected at its place, so that the Temple/Deity 'remained in ruins with existing foundations'). During the pendency of Bumper Development Corporation case, a Shivalingam, found buried in the ruins of the Temple was 'reinstated'. In our case, ASI found an ancient 'Circular Shrine' embedded in disputed area, DS was destroyed on 6.12.1992, and at its place a make-shift Temple was erected at Ram Janma Bhumi with Bhagwan Shri Ramlala installed in it; so both Deities Plffs 1 & 2 of OOS 5 of 1989 got into position. In Bumper case, the 'pious intention of 12th Century' dedication was held by the Trial Court 'to remain in being' as personified by the Sivalingam of the Temple, a juristic entity, which was represented by 'Next Friend. The same concept is laid down in the case of Adangi Nageswara Rao Vs. Sri Ankamma Devatha Temple, 1973 Andhra Weekly Reporter 379 (paras 6 & 8 – see para 36 of these Arguments). So also, in our case, Vishnu-Hari Temple of 11th-12th Century must be deemed 'to remain in being' on erection of make-shift Temple coupled with Circular Shrine and the Deity/Temple – Plaintiffs 1 & 2 must be held to be duly represented through

Plaintiff No. 3 in OOS 5 of 1989 as Next Friend.

13. As mentioned earlier, a Hindu Deity is a Class by itself (See Para 40), there is no exact analogy or parallel. Its affairs are managed by a Shebait, but the Shebait is neither owner nor trustee of the Deity or its property as known to Indian Trusts Act (Section 1). 'Beneficiary' of the dedication (actual or assumed) is the Deity and every Worshipper/Devotee; the latter has interest enough to force the Shebait to perform his functions duly even through a Court action, if necessary. Supreme Court has held in the case of Bishwanath Vs. Sri Thakur Radha Ballabhji (1967 SC 1044) that worshippers of an Idol are its beneficiaries, though only in a spiritual sense, and persons who go in only for the purpose of devotion have, according to Hindu Law and religion, a greater and deeper interest in temples than mere servants who serve there for some pecuniary advantage; it goes on to say: "That is why decisions have permitted a worshipper in such circumstances to represent the Idol and to recover the property for the Idol". It is the duty of the State (King) to protect the Deity and its property – a shade of this duty is found in Section 92 CPC. [In para 40 of Guruvayur Devasom Managing Committee Vs. C.K.Rajan, 2004 SC 561, the Supreme Court has held, "In any event, as a Hindu Temple is a juristic person, the very fact that S. 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure, seeks to protect the same, for the self-same purpose, Arts. 226 and 32 could also be taken recourse to."] Shebait cannot alienate the property of the Deity. In Thyrammal Vs.Kanakammal (2005) 1 SCC 457 (para 15,16 & 17), the Supreme Court has held that a religious endowment does not create title in respect of the dedicated property in any body's favour, and property dedicated for religious charitable purpose for which the owner of the property or donor has indicated no administrator or manager, a property dedicated for general public use is itself raised to the category of a Juristic Person and such a property vests in the property itself as a Juristic Person. This special legal status squarely applies to Asthan Ram Janma Bhumi, Plaintiff No.2 in OOS 5 of 1989; the spot where Ram was born, and all properties

appurtenant thereto belong to and vest in the spot itself as juristic person. In Acharya Maharaishi Narendra Prasad ji Vs. State of Gujarat, (1975) 1 SCC 2098 (para 26), while upholding the right of State to acquire the property of Deity under Article 31 of the Constitution, laid down an exception by holding: "If on the other hand, acquisition of property of religious denominations by the State can be proved to be such as to destroy or completely negative its right to own or acquire movable and immovable property for even the survival of a religious institution, the question may have to be examined in a different light". This dictum was reaffirmed by SC in Ismail Farooqui's case, 1995 SC 605 (para 79); it was further held in para 77: "The protection under Article 25 and 26 of the Constitution is to religious practice which forms an essential and integral part of the religion"; the law stated in para 78 is: "While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially". This decision of the Supreme Court is in this very case and has to be respected fully. In the summary contained in para 82, the Supreme Court observed: "Obviously, the acquisition of any religious place is to be made only in unusual and extraordinary situations for a larger public purpose keeping in view that such acquisition should not result in extinction of the right to practice the religion, if the significance of that be such". Undoubtedly, Asthan Ram Janma Bhumi , Plaintiff No. 2 of OOS 5 of 1989, belongs to this very category of Deity – Class entirely by itself; hence the State can not acquire either the Deity or its property.

14. Oudh Laws Act has laid emphasis on application of principles of equity, justice and good conscience; but it is necessary to appreciate in what fields or areas, the Act requires

those principles to be applied. Clause (g) of Section 3, lays down the broad principle that "in cases not provided for by the former part of this section or by any other law for the time being in force", Court has to act in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience. Section 3(b)(2) clearly stipulates that in matters relating to Hindu religious institutions, the Hindu Law shall apply; hence Clause (g) will not apply. Justice, equity and good conscience is made applicable to 'Custom' under Section 3(b)(1), but the law regarding Deity is part of 'personal law' under Section 3(b)(2) as distinguished from 'customary law'. Mulla mentions at page 65, that principles of Equity, Justice & Good Conscience were invoked only in cases for which no specific rules existed. In Gurunath Vs.Kamalabai 1955 S.C. 206, it has been held that in the absence of any clear Shastric text, Courts have authority to decide on principles of justice, equity and good conscience.

15. It is a settled principle that 'Equity' follows 'Law', i.e. where Law is applicable, considerations of Equity do not come into play (vide, Halsbury's Laws of England 4th Edn, Vol 16, para 1204). Since Hindu Law specifically prescribes that the rights of Deity are not destroyed by another's possession howsoever long, 'equity' cannot be applied to deprive the rights of Deity on the basis of possession.

16. On facts in these cases, justice, equity and good conscience are in favour of Plaintiffs of OOS 5 of 1989 rather than Plaintiffs of OOS 4 of 1989. In para 1204 of Halsbury's Laws of England (supra) it is stated that 'equity implies a system of law which is more consonant than the ordinary law with opinions current for the time being as to just regulation of mutual rights and duties of men living in a civilised society. When Babar became Emperor as a conqueror and did not frame any law governing Hindu Deities/Temples, the Hindu Law prevailing at that time had to be applied by him as indicated above.

17. In general, when the word 'conscience' was used, this denoted the conscience of the Defdt., and the Court by decree in personam prevented him making an unconscionable use of his rights at common law. The correction of Defendant's conscience was the ground of the interference of equity in case of fraud, breach of trust and 'wrong and oppression generally (Ft.Note 1, HLE Supra). The special imperfections of medieval common law, as to its administration were that its judgments were not capable of being adapted to meet special circumstances or were turned into a means of oppression. The Court of Chancery, in so far as it remedied these defects, afforded an improved system of attaining justice, but this was the difference between law and equity. Law and equity have both the same end, which is to do right. Where it differed from the law, this was in order to moderate its rigour, to supply its omissions, to assist the legal remedy, or to relieve against the evasion of the law or the abuse of legal rights; it supplied its omissions by exacting conscientious conduct from the defendant when the law recognised no binding obligation (Ft. Note 3, HLE Supra). Babar could not be permitted, in equity or good conscience, arbitrarily to deprive the Deity of its rights and possession at the DA. (See also paras 50, 51 and 52 of these Arguments).

18. An application of these principles of equity to the present suits, entitles the Plaintiffs of OOS 5 of 1989 to the relief sought. The pith and substance of the plaint case in OOS 5 of 1989 is that DS/DA is the birthplace of Bhagwan Shri Ram, that before Babar's invasion, a Temple stood there, that worship of the birthplace and the temple by Hindu public had been going on since ancient/immemorial time, that the temple was destroyed by the hordes of Babar and at its site Babri Masjid was constructed, that a structure raised by force of arms on Deities' land after destroying their temple, could not be treated to be a legal/valid mosque according to Islam, and the Quran as shown above. In view of this command of Quran, conversion of Temple into Mosque did not create a valid dedication of the property to Allah in fact or in law (para 24 of Plaint). In reply to these pleadings, Sunni Central Boards of Wakf, Defdt. No 4, stated (in para 24 of WS) that the quotation of Quran was 'out of context', 'not correct' 'nor complete'; but SB did not set out

any context, nor the 'correct' or 'complete' quotation in WS or anywhere in evidence. Regarding Plaintiff's case of failed dedication to Allah, the reply is that Babar was the Emperor, "the vacant land on which the Babri Masjid was built lay in the State territory and did not belong to anyone and it could very well be used for the purpose of the Mosque and specially so when the Emperor himself consented and gave approval for construction of the said Mosque". This is incorrect. Babar never became Emperor – See Para 33A. The land was a Hindu Deity as birthplace of Bhagwan Shree Ram, hence was owned by the Deity, whose Temple was standing thereat, as Deity's House in possession of Bhagwan Shree Ram; therefore it could not vest in the Conqueror/Emperor. As conqueror, it was Babar's duty to protect the birthplace/temple. A significant fact stated by Supreme Court in Ismail Farooqui's case, (1994) 6 SCC 360 (para 11) is that in the White Paper (Chapter II, para 2.8) of the Central Government preceding the Acquisition of Certain Areas at Ayodhya Ordinance No. 8 of 1993, re-enacted as Central Act No. 33 of 1993, Muslim leaders had stated that if it was proved that a Hindu Temple had existed on the site of the Disputed Structure and was demolished on Babar's orders for construction of Babri Masjid, the Muslims would voluntarily hand over the disputed shrine to Hindus. It is also important that according to para 4 of the Supreme Court Judgment, the Acquisition "Bill was introduced in the Parliament leading to the above enactment and the said Reference to this Court was made in the historical background set out in the White paper". The legal effect is that since these facts stand proved, the Central Govt. itself would be estopped from denying the remedy sought by the Plaintiffs in OOS 5 of 1989, and would have to feed the estoppel by grant by the equitable doctrine of Estoppel, vide, Renu Devi V. Mahendra Singh & Others (2003)10 SCC 200.

19. Further, these very established facts would amount to "wrong and oppression" and "unconscionable use" of his rights as Emperor, if at all, in as much as he violated settled Usage/Custom of Hindu Community which Babar was bound to protect as 'conqueror' enjoined by Hindu Law (the Law of the 'Subject"). In the case of S. Darshan Lal Vs. Dr. R.S.S Dalliwall, 1952 All 825 (DB), it is stated in para 16: "In an inhabited country, obtained by conquest or cessation, law already prevailing therein continues to prevail except to the extent English Law has been introduced, and also except to the extent to which such law is not civilised law at all……." Earlier, PC had ruled in Mosque known as Masjid Shahidganj Vs. Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, 1940 PC 116 at page 120, 'There is every presumption in favour of the proposition that a change of sovereignty would not affect private rights to property'. It also constituted violation of injunctions of Babar's own religion contained in the Quran, and equity would require Babar to purge his own conscience of the 'wrong, oppression, and violation of Holy Laws of his own Subjects and those of his own religion'. Similar equities would prevail between the present parties to these suits in as much as 'wrongs' committed by Babar, could not become 'right' by mere lapse of time, and would continue to be wrongs even today. The 'general law' of extinction of rights contained in the Limitation Act is not enough to over-ride the substantive rights of the Deity under 'special' Hindu Law; no law of limitation can apply to the rights and property of Deity as discussed earlier.

As an independent special Class of person, there is no constitutional impropriety or illegality in having laws exclusively applicable to the Plaintiff-Deities of OOS 5 of 1989. A recent analogy is provided by The Public Waqfs (Extension) of Limitation Act, 1959 which accords a privilege to all the Muslim Public Waqfs in the period of limitation for certain types of civil suits upto 31st day of December 1970 for the only reason that in the wake of the partition of India Mutawallis of certain properties had migrated to Pakistan or those who stayed behind could not institute civil proceedings for recovery of possession of these properties. On this basis limitation has been extended in respect of all Public Waqfs. Similarly, laws exclusively applicable to Hindu deities could be had and read in the light of Oudh Laws Act, 1876, could apply the Hindu Dharma Shastra Law, which contains substantive as well as provisions relating to Limitation qua Hindu Deities. The legal position under the Hindu Dharma Shastra Law being as the one indicated above, destruction of Hindu Temple at the site of DS or erection of Babri Masjid over it could never deprive the two Deities, Ram Janma Bhumi & Bhagwan Shri Ramlala of their ownership of the disputed property/area; the Indian Law of Limitation is not applicable at all. Decision of Supreme Court in Shah Bano's case was upset by the Parliament on the ground of sensitivities of Muslim Community for Muslim Personal Law. Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937 was framed to apply personal law to Muslims. Sensitivities of Muslims stand even today in the way of adoption of a Common Civil Code for India envisaged by Article 44 of Directive Principles of State Policy in our Constitution. The Constitutional protection, if any, for such laws should also support special laws in the case of Hindu Deity, on principles of equality, particularly in view of Oudh Laws Act 1876 and Article 372(1) of the Constitution.

On behalf of the defendants only this much has been said that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are not the deities. They are not infants. The suit for limitation has been filed beyond limitation and Section 6 of Limitation Act does not come in operation in this case. Accordingly the suit is liable to be dismissed being barred by limitation. In this regard.

At the cost of repetition, I would crave to refer that while

deciding issue nos. 1 and 2 I have given findings that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are juridical persons. I have already referred extracts of Hindu Law on Religious and Charitable Trust on the point of Hindu idols, the deity and religious faith. In this regard certain cases have also been referred to establish that Asthan and Chabutra and deities,the plaintiffs (no. 1 and 2) are juristic persons and they will be deemed under the law law as child and for the reasons that deity is a child. It is not disputed that in view of the decision, referred to above, the idols are minors. Thus, I am referring the finding on issue nos. 1,2 and 6 for the sake of brevity. Thus, in view of the findings of this Court on issue nos. 1,2 and 6, plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are the juridical persons.

I agree with the view of Sri Ravi Shanker and Sri Bhat Senior Advocates that no limitation runs against deities which are perpetual minors. In this context, I have also to add that the deities are perpetual infants and Hindu idol being juridical person is capable of holding properties. Thus, the benefit of Section 6 of Limitation Act is all the time available to minors I.,e, deities in this case. They are considered to be under disability . Under Section 6 of the Limitation Act the ground for extension of limitation are minority, lunacy, and idiocy of the person . In the instant case plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 will be deemed to be disable on account of of their minority. Even in England church has been regarded as under age. Right from 1903 to 1967 and thereafter also the Indian Courts have always treated idols as infants perpetually. In this regard decision of Hon'ble the apex court in AIR 1967 S.C. Page 1044 Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhaballabhji and others which has considered the earlier decisions of Privy Council and different High Court of this country held that an idol is in a position of minor. Consequently, in view of Section 6 of Limitation Act for the purpose of Limitation Act provisions of Section 6 would be made applicable. In this case benefit of Section 6 is not limited to the period after the cessation of the disability but applies also to the period during which disability exists. The plaintiff can only sue through next friend . During the continuance of the disability whether the period of limitation expired or not, Section 6 applies to every minor including the deities. It is a settled proposition of law that a person entitled to bring the suit can claim benefit of Section 6. The plaintiffs have claimed this benefit. Section 6 of the Limitation Act prescribes that the plaintiff or applicant must be under the disability on the date from which the period of limitation is reckoned. In this case the defendants have not pointed out and have not opposed the claim of deities,i,e, plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 that they were not under the disability. Once it is proved that plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 are the deities, they are required to sue on behalf of the next friend either he may be Shebait or worshipper vide AIR 1967 Supreme Court 1044 Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radabhallabhji and others . Accordingly the worshipper P.W.3 , the next friend filed the suit on behalf of the deities. Thus, the disability is starting point of limitation. In this regard it would also be expedient to mention as a general rule the infancy is a personal privilege of which no one can take advantage but the infants themselves. In this context AIR 1956 MADRAS 15 (V. 43 C. 6 JAN.), Thayammal vs. Rangaswami Reddy and others,para 9 is reproduced as under;

of persons, and the exemption as such cannot be taken advantage of by the transferee from the person under disability. It is sufficient to refer to two of the leading authorities, the decision of the Full Bench of the Calcutta High Court in – 'Rudra Kant Surma Sircar vs. Nobo Kishore Surma Biswas', 9 Cal. 663 (FB) (A), and the decision of our Court in – 'Rangaswami Chetti vs. Thangavelu Chetti, AIR 1919 Mad 317 (B).”

Further AIR 1962 PATNA 182 (V. 49 C 43), Lalji Sah & Others Vs. Sat Narain Bhagat & Others Para 22 is reproduced as under. This view is based on the decision of Privy Council.

“This section provides that the period of limitation prescribed for a person who does not suffer from any legal disability shall be computed in the case of a minor, from the date of cessation of his minority : see Batuk Prasad vs. Rudra Das, AIR 1950 Pat 206. It is also well settled that the privilege given to a minor under this section is not one that could be availed of by him only, but while the minor's disability lasts his guardian or next friend also can bring a suit or make an application though the ordinary period of limitation for such a suit or application has run out (see Phoolbas Koonwar vs. Lala Jogeshwar Sahay, ILR 1 Cal 226 (PC): Khodabux vs. Budree Narain Singh, ILR 7 Cal 137; Jagadindra Nath Roy vs. Hementa Kumari Devi, ILR 32 Cal 129 (PC) and Satyendra Narain Sinha vs. Pitamber Singh, AIR 1938 Pat 92). Hence the plea of limitation fails.”

AIR 1971 MADRAS 1 (V 58 C 1), K. Manathunainatha Desikar Vs. Sundaralingam (Minor represented by his next friend M. Swaminathan) & Ors. Para 20 is reproduced as under:-

“The founder, when the dedication is complete divests himself of all proprietary rights in the property endowed. The deity, a

juristic entity, is the proprietor who never dies but labours under physical disability which renders it necessary that its interests should be looked after in perpetuity. As a concomitant a power has been recognised in the founder to appoint and provide for a manager to look after the affairs of the deity which has become the owner of the property. The office which he creates for attending to the affairs of the deity is a thing of his own creation and if it is bare office without perquisites, there is no property in it in the Hindu law sense of the term. There is one observation of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in Tagore case, 1872-73 Ind App. Supp. Vol.47, which is significant in this context. They stated:-

On the basis of the aforesaid proposition of law the deities are entitled to the benefit of Section 6 by their next friend in this case and the suit will not be deemed to be barred by limitation.

Personal privilege given to the minor under Section 6 of Limitation Act has been availed in this case by the next friend, plaintiff no. 3. I further find that the defendants have failed to point out any circumstance under which the benefit of Section 6 should not be given to plaintiff nos. 1 and 2.

Hon'ble the apex court in Bishwanath and another Vs. Shri Thakur Radhabhallabhji and others AIR 1967 S.C. 1044 recognized the rights of a worshipper and a person interested in the worship of idol was found to be clothed with an ad hoc power of representation to protect its interest. Thus, plaintiff no. 3 has come out with a case that as per trust deed the worshippers have decided in the interest of worship of idol to remove the disability of the idols as there is dereliction of deities by the person responsible not managing the affairs of the idols in their interest. Consequently, in view of the decision of the apex court in AIR 1967 SC 1044 (Supra) referred to above even this Court is competent to appoint a next friend to look after the interest of plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 by appointing next friend to safeguard the interest of the deity as some human being is required to represent the deity before the court of law. Thus, definitely plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 , the deities,the idol in person have properly been represented by next friend, plaintiff no.3 and plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 have proved their disability and sufficient cause of not filing the case within the time and have further proved that their case is not barred by Secretion 6 of the Limitation Act and against them being infants according to the principle of personal privilege the provisions of period of limitation do not apply.

To sum up I hold that plaintiff nos. 1 and 2 are infant juridical persons and they are entitled for the benefit of Section 6 of the Limitation Act. Accordingly the suit is not barred by limitation.

Issue no. 13 is decided in favour of the plaintiffs and against defendants.

ISSUE NO. 30

To what relief, if any, are plaintiffs or any of them entitled ?

FINDINGS

In view of my findings on issues nos. 1 to 29, it transpires that

in leading O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 and also in this case it is manifestly established by public record, gazetteers, history accounts and oral evidence that the premises, in dispute, is the place where Lord Ram was born as son of Emperor Dashrath of solar dynasty. According to the traditions and faith of devotees of Lord Ram, the place where He manifested Himself has ever been called as Sri Ram Janmbhumi by all and sundry through ages. Thus, the Asthan, Ram Janmbhumi, plaintiff no. 2 has been an object of worship as a deity by the devotees of Lord Ram as it personifies the spirit of divine worshipped in the form of Ram Lala or Lord Ram, the child. I have already observed that Ram Janmbhumi is also a deity and a juridical person. I am also of the opinion that the Hindus worship the divine place in the form of an incarnation and, therefore adopt the form of incarnation as their Ishtdeo. The Hindus can mediate upon the formless and shapeless divine, I,e, plaintiff no. 2. The spirit of Divine is indestructible. Birth place is sacred place for Hindus and Lord Ram, who is said to be incarnation of God, was born at this place.The Hindus since times immemorial and for many generations constantly hold in great esteem and reverence the Ram Janmbhumi where they believe that Lord Ram was born. It is established by tradition and classical legal literature relating to the Hindus and according to their belief and faith that the place is regarded as a deity. This place, according to Hindu religion is symbol and embodiment of spiritual purpose and the property is dedicated and vested with plaintiff no. 2. This place being worshipped as idol from times immemorial and dedicated property vests in idol as juristic person. According to the religious customs of Hindus and recognition established by courts of law, plaintiff no. 1 is a juristic entity and it has juridical status. Its

interests are attended by the person ,i.e, next friend. According to the Smirit, if an image is broken or lost another may be substituted in its place; when so substituted it is not a new personality but the same deity and properties vested in the lost or mutilated idol becomes vested in the substituted deity .Thus, the place according to the Smirit have to be considered as a deity like Agni and Vayu being worshipped. They are shapeless and formless but they attain the divinity. If the public go for worship and consider that there is divine presence then it is temple which has already been held by Hon'ble apex court in 1999(5) SCC page 50 Ram Janki Deity Vs. State of Bihar.

In view of the findings referred to above and the assertions in the plaint, the plaintiff no. 2 is the deity and public is going for worship from times immemorial with a feeling of presence of deity divine. Therefore, it is deemed to be a temple. Even if the temple is destroyed, it would not change the character of the deity and the place will remain a juridical person. Nature of Hindu religion is monism. It believes in one supreme being , who manifests Himself in many form. This is the reason why Hindus start adoring in deity.According to Hindu notion, what is worshipped in a temple , it is not stone image or image made of wood. It is the God behind image which is the object of worship. The real owner of the property dedicated to a temple is deemed to be God himself represented through a particular idol or deity which is merely a symbol vide Gokul Nath Ji Mahraj Vs. Nathji Bhogilal AIR 1953 Allahabad 552. Thus, after the length of time it is impossible to prove byl affirmative evidence that there was any consecration ever by faith and belief. It is believed that the place is the place which was considered by all time as a deity and is being worshipped like a deity. Accordingly Asthan is personified as the spirit of divine worshipped as the birth place of Ram Lala or Lord Ram as a child . Spirit of divine ever remains present every where at all times for any one to invoke at any shape or form in accordance with his own aspirations .

In view of the aforesaid circumstances, the plaintiffs are entitled for the relief claimed.

Order

Plaintiffs' suit is decreed but with easy costs. It is hereby declared that the entire premises of Sri Ram Janm Bhumi at Ayodhya as described and delineated in annexure nos. 1 and 2 of the plaint belong to the plaintiff nos. 1 and 2, the deities. The defendants are permanently restrained from interfering with, or raising any objection to, or placing any obstruction in the construction of the temple at Ram Janm Bhumi Ayodhya at the site , referred to in the plaint.

J. S. VERMA, J. (for Venkatachaliah, C.J., himself and Ray, J)- "We have just enough religion to make us hate, but not enough to make us love one another."

- Jonathan Swift

Swami Vivekananda said -

"Religion is not in doctrines, in dogmas, nor in intellectual argumentation; it is being and becoming, it is realisation."

This thought comes to mind as we contemplate the roots of this controversy. Genesis of this dispute is traceable to erosion of some fundamental values of the plural commitments of our polity.

2. The constitutional validity of the Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Act, 1993 (No. 33 of 1993) (hereinafter referred to as "Act No. 33 of 1993" or "the Act") and the maintainability of Special Reference No. 1 of 1993 (hereinafter referred to as "the Special Reference") made by the President of India under Art. 143(1) of the Constitution of India are the questions for decision herein. The background in which these questions are to be answered is contained in the facts stated in the White Paper on Ayodhya, February 1993, issued by the Government of India.

3. Certain undisputed facts emerging at the hearing may also have relevance for this purpose. These questions are answered on this basis, eschewing facts which are in the area of controversy and have yet to be adjudicated.

BACKGROUND

4. The Bill was introduced in Parliament leading to the above enactment and the said Reference to this Court was made in the historical background set out in the White Paper. Indeed, the two simultaneous acts are an indication of the legislative intent for enactment of the statute, the reference being made as a part of the same exercise with a view to effectuate the purpose of the enactment. This is how, they have to be viewed.

5. The "Overview" at the commencement of the White Paper in Chapter 1 states thus:-

"1.1 Ayodhya situated in the north of India is a township in District Faizabad of Uttar Pradesh. It has long been a place of holy pilgrimage because of its mention in the epic Ramayana as the place of birth of Shri Ram. The structure commonly known as Ram Janma Bhoomi-Babri Masjid was erected as a mosque by one Mir Baqi in Ayodhya in 1528 A. D. It is claimed by some sections that it was built at the site believed to be the birth-spot of Shri Ram where a temple had stood earlier. This resulted in a long-standing dispute.

1.2 The controversy entered a new phase with the placing of idols in the disputed structure in December, 1949. The premises were attached under S. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Civil suits were filed shortly thereafter. Interim orders in these civil suits restrained the parties from removing the idols or interfering with their worship. In effect, therefore, from December, 1949 till December 6, 1992 the structure had not been used as a mosque."

6. The movement to construct a Ram temple at the site of the disputed structure gathered momentum in recent years which became a matter of great controversy and a source of tension. This led to several parleys the details of which are not very material for the present purpose. These parleys involving the Vishva Hindu Parishad (VHP) and the All India Babri Masjid Action Committee (AIBMAC), however, failed to resolve the

dispute. A new dimension was added to the campaign for construction of the temple with the formation of the Government in Uttar Pradesh in June 1991 by the Bhartiya Janata Party (BJP) which declared its commitment to the construction of the temple and took certain steps like the acquisition of land adjoining the disputed structure while leaving out the disputed structure itself from the acquisition. The focus of the temple construction movement from October 1991 was to start construction of the temple by way of 'kar-sewa' on the land acquired by the Government of Uttar Pradesh while leaving the disputed structure intact. This attempt did not succeed and there was litigation in the Allahabad High Court as well as in this Court. There was a call for resumption of kar sewa from 6th December, 1992 and the announcement made by the organisers was for a symbolic kar sewa without violation of the court orders including those made in the proceedings pending in this Court. In spite of initial reports from Ayodhya on 6th December, 1992 indicating an air of normalcy, around mid-day a crowd addressed by leaders of BJP, VHP, etc., climbed the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid (RJB-BM) structure and started damaging the domes. Within a short time, the entire structure was demolished and razed to the ground. Indeed, it was an act of "National shame". What was demolished was not merely an ancient structure; but the faith of the minorities in the sense of justice and fair play of majority. It shook their faith in the rule of law and constitutional processes. A five hundred year old structure which was defenceless and whose safety was a sacred trust in the hands of the State Government was demolished.

7. After referring to the details on this tragedy, the White Paper in Chapter 1 on "OVERVIEW" concludes thus :-

www.vadaprativada.com

"1.35. The demolition of the Ram Janma Bhoomi-Babri Masjid structure at Ayodhya on 6th December, 1992 was a most reprehensible act. The perpetrators of this deed struck not only against a place of worship, but also at the principles of secularism, democracy and the rule of law enshrined in our Constitution. In a move as sudden as it was shameful, a few thousand people managed to outrage the sentiments of millions of Indians of all communities who have reacted to this incident with anguish and dismay.

1.36 What happened on December 6, 1992 was not a failure of the system as a whole, nor of the wisdom inherent in India's Constitution, nor yet of the power of tolerance, brotherhood and compassion that has so vividly informed the life of independent India. It was, the Supreme Court observed on that day, "a great pity that a Constitutionally elected Government could not discharge its duties in a matter of this sensitiveness and magnitude." Commitments to the Court and Constitution, pledges to Parliament and the people, were simply cast aside. Therein lay the failure, therein the betrayal.

1.37 Today India seeks to heal, and not reopen its wounds; to look forward with hope, and not backwards with fear; to reconcile reason with faith. Above all, India is determined to press ahead with the National Agenda, undeterred by aberrations."

8. It may be mentioned that a structure called the Ram-chabutra stood on the disputed site within the courtyard of the disputed structure. This structure also was demolished on 6th December, 1992 (Appendix-V to the White Paper). Worship of the idols installed on the Ram-chabutra by Hindu devotees in general, it appears, had been performed for a considerable period of time without any objection by the Muslims to its worship at that place,

prior to the shifting of the idols from the Ram-chabutra to the disputed structure in December 1949. As a result of demolition of Ram-chabutra also on 6th December 1992, the worship by Hindus in general even at that place was interrupted. Thereafter, the worship of idols is being performed only by a priest nominated for the purpose without access to the public.

9. A brief reference to certain suits in this connection may now be made. In 1950 two suits were filed by some Hindus; in one of these suits in January 1950, the trial court passed interim orders whereby the idols remained at the place where they were installed in December 1949 and their Puja by the Hindus continued. The interim order was confirmed by the High Court in April 1955. On 1st February, 1986, the District Judge ordered the opening of the lock placed on a grill leading to the sanctum-sanctorum of the shrine in the disputed structure and permitted Puja by the Hindu devotees. In 1959, a suit was filed by the Nirmohi Akhara claiming title to the disputed structure. In 1961, another suit was filed claiming title to the disputed structure by the Sunni Central Wakf Board. In 1989, Deoki Nandan Agrawal, as the next friend of the Deity filed a title suit in respect of the disputed structure. In 1981, the aforementioned suits were transferred to the Allahabad High Court and were ordered to be heard together. On 14th August, 1989, the High Court ordered the maintenance of status quo in respect of the disputed structure (Appendix-I to the White Paper). As earlier mentioned, it is stated in para 1.2 of the White Paper that :

"....interim orders in these civil suits restrained the parties from removing the idols or interfering with their worship. In effect, therefore, from December, 1949 till December 6, 1992 the structure had been used as a mosque."

10. Prior to December 1949 when the idols were shifted into the disputed structure from the Ram-chabutra, worship by Hindu devotees at the Ram-chabutra for a long time without any objection from Muslims is also beyond controversy. A controversy, however, is raised about use of the disputed structure as a mosque from 1934 to December 1949. One version is that after some disturbances in 1934, the use of the disputed structure as a mosque had been stopped from 1934 itself and not merely from December 1949. The other side disputes the alleged disuse of the mosque for prayers prior to December 1949. The stand of the Uttar Pradesh Government in the suits was that the place was used as a mosque till 1949.

11. As a result of the incidents at Ayodhya on 6th December, 1992, the President of India issued a proclamation under Art. 356 of the Constitution of India assuming to himself all the functions of the Government of Uttar Pradesh, dissolving the U.P. Vidhan Sabha. The White Paper in Chapter II mentions the "BACKGROUND" and therein it is stated as under :

"2.1 At the centre of the RJB-BM dispute is the demand voiced by Vishwa Hindu Parishad (VHP) and its allied organisations for the restoration of a site said to be the birth place of Sri Ram in Ayodhya. Till 6th December, 1992 this site was occupied by the structure erected in 1528 by 'Mir Baqi' who claimed to have built it on orders of the first Mughal Emperor Babar. This structure has been described in the old Government records as Masjid Janmasthan. It is now commonly referred to as Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid.

2.2 The VHP and its allied organisations base their demand on the assertion that this site is the birth place of Sri Ram and a Hindu temple commemorating this site stood here till it was destroyed on Babar's

command and a Masjid was erected in its place. The demand of the VHP has found support from the Bhartiya Janata Party (BJP). The construction of a Ram temple at the disputed site, after removal or relocation of the existing structure, was a major plank in BJP's campaign during elections held in 1989 and 1991. Other major political parties, however, had generally opposed this demand and had taken the stand that while a temple should be built, the issues in dispute should be resolved either by negotiations or by orders of the Court.

2.8 During the negotiations aimed at finding an amicable solution to the dispute, one issue which came to the fore was whether a Hindu temple had existed on the site occupied by the disputed structure and whether it was demolished on Babar's orders for the construction of the Masjid. It was stated on behalf of the Muslim organisations, as well as by certain eminent historians, that there was no evidence in favour of either of these two assertions. It was also stated by certain Muslim leaders that if these assertions were proved, the Muslims would voluntarily handover the disputed shrine to the Hindus. Naturally, this became the central issue in the negotiations between the VHP and AIBMAC.

2.12 The historical debate has thus remained inconclusive although much progress has been made in identifying the areas of agreement and difference. Conclusive findings can be obtained only by way of reference to a competent authority. However, as brought out elsewhere in this Paper the negotiations were disrupted at a crucial phase. Now, the entire evidence has disappeared along with the disputed structure. It is tragic and ironical that the Ram-chabutra and Kaushalya Rasoi, which continued as places of

www.vadaprativada.com

worship during periods of Muslim and British rule have disappeared along with the RJB-BM structure at the hands of people professing to be 'devotees' of Lord Ram.

PLACING OF IDOLS IN THE DISPUTED STRUCTURE

2.13 As has been mentioned above, Hindu structures of worship already existed in the outer courtyard of the RJB-BM structure. On the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949, however, Hindu idols were placed under the central dome of the main structure. Worship of these idols was started on a big scale from the next morning. As this was likely to disturb the public peace, the civil administration attached the premises under Section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. This was the starting point of a whole chain of events which ultimately led to the demolition of the structure. The main events of this chain have been summarised in Appendix-I.

2.14 Soon after the installation of the idols two civil suits were filed by Hindu plaintiffs seeking to restrain the Administration from removing the idols from the disputed structure or placing any restrictions in the way of devotees intending to offer worship. Interim injunctions were issued by the civil court to this effect. These injunctions were confirmed by the Allahabad High Court in 1955.

2.15 The Hindu Idols thus continued inside the disputed structure since 1949. Worship of these idols by Hindus also continued without interruption since 1949 and the structure was not used by the Muslims for offering prayers since then. The controversy remained at a low ebb till 1986 when the District Court of Faizabad ordered opening of the lock placed on a grill leading to the sanctum-sanctorum of the shrine. An organisation called the Babri Masjid Action Committee (BMAC), seeking restoration of the disputed shrine to the Muslims came into being and lunched a protest movement. The Hindu organisations, on the other hand, stepped up their activities to mobilise public opinion for the construction of a Ram temple at the disputed site."

12. After the imposition of President's rule in the State of Uttar Pradesh as a consequence of the events at Ayodhya on 6th December, 1992, action taken by the Central Government is detailed in Chapter VIII of the White Paper with reference to the communal situation in the country which deteriorated sharply following the demolition of the RJB-BM structure on 6th December, 1992 and spread of communal violence in several other States. Para 8.11 in Chapter VIII relating to the "ACTION TAKEN BY THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT" is as under :-

"8.11 Mention has been made above (Overview) of the decisions taken on 7th December by the Government to ban communal organisations, to take strong action for prosecution of the offences connected with the demolition, to fix responsibilities of various authorities for their lapses relating to the events of December 6, to rebuild the demolished structure and to take appropriate steps regarding new Ram Temple. The last two decisions were further elaborated on 27th December as follows :

"The Government has decided to acquire all areas in dispute in the suits pending in the Allahabad High Court. It has also been decided to acquire suitable adjacent area. The acquired area excluding the area on which the disputed structure stood would be made available to two Trusts which would be set up for construction of a Ram Temple and a Mosque respectively and for planned development of the area.

"The Government of India has also decided to request the President to seek the opinion of the Supreme Court on the question whether there was a Hindu temple existing on the site where the disputed structure stood. The Government has also decided to abide by the opinion of the Supreme Court and to take appropriate steps to enforce the Court's opinion. Notwithstanding the acquisition of the disputed area, the Government would ensure that the position existing prior to the promulgation of the Ordinance is maintained until such time as the Supreme Court gives its opinion in the matter. Thereafter the rights of the parties shall be determined in the light of the Court's opinion."

In pursuance of these decisions an Ordinance named 'Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Ordinance' was issued on 7th January, 1993 for acquisition of 67.703 acres of land in the Ram Janma Bhoomi-Babri Masjid complex. A reference to the Supreme Court under Art. 143 of the Constitution was also made on the same day. Copy of the Ordinance is at Appendix-XV and of the Reference at Appendix-XVI."

13. The Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Ordinance, 1993 (No. 8 of 1993) has been replaced by the Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Act, 1993 (No. 33 of 1993), the constitutional validity of which has to be examined by us.

14. The said Ordinance, later replaced by Act No. 33 of 1993, and the Special Reference under Art. 143(1) of the Constitution of India were made simultaneously the same day on 7th January, 1993. It would be appropriate at this stage to quote, in extenso, the Statement of Objects and Reasons for this enactment, the said Act No. 33 of 1993, and the Special Reference under Art. 143(1) of the Constitution:

"STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

There has been a long-standing dispute relating to the erstwhile Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid structure in Ayodhya which led to communal tension and violence from time to time and ultimately led to the destruction of the disputed structure on 6th December, 1992. This was followed by wide-spread communal violence which resulted in large number of deaths, injuries and destruction of property in various parts of the country. The said dispute has thus affected the maintenance of public order and harmony between different communities in the country. As it is necessary to maintain communal harmony and the spirit of common brotherhood amongst the people of India, it was considered necessary to acquire the site of the disputed structure and suitable adjacent land for setting up a complex which could be developed in a planned manner wherein a Ram temple, a mosque, amenities for pilgrims, a library, museum and other suitable facilities can be set up.

2. The Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Ordinance, 1993 was accordingly promulgated by the President on 7th January, 1993. By virtue of the said Ordinance the right, title and interest in respect of certain areas at Ayodhya specified in the Schedule to the Ordinance stand transferred to, and vest in, the Central Government.

3. The Bill seeks to replace the aforesaid Ordinance.

5. AND WHEREAS notwithstanding the vesting of the aforesaid area in the Central Government under the said Ordinance the Central Government proposes to settle the said dispute after obtaining the opinion of the Supreme Court of India and in terms of the said opinion;

6. AND WHEREAS in view of what has been hereinbefore stated it appears to me that the question hereinafter set out has arisen and is of such a nature and of such public importance that it is expedient to obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court of India thereon;

7. NOW, THEREFORE, in exercise of the powers conferred upon me by clause (1) of Art. 143 of the Constitution of India, I, Shanker Dayal Sharma, President of India, hereby refer the following question to the Supreme Court of India for consideration and opinion thereon, namely :

THE ACQUISITION OF CERTAIN AREA AT AYODHYA ACT, 1993 (NO. 33 OF 1993)

An Act to provide for the acquisition of certain area at Ayodhya and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

www.vadaprativada.com

WHEREAS there has been a long-standing dispute relating to the structure (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure), commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid, situated in village Kot Ramachandra in Ayodhya, in Pargana Haveli Avadh, in Tehsil Faizabad Sadar, in the district of Faizabad of the State of Uttar Pradesh;

AND WHEREAS the said dispute has affected the maintenance of public order and harmony between different communities in the country;

AND WHEREAS it is necessary to maintain public order and to promote communal harmony and the spirit of common brotherhood amongst the people of India;

AND WHEREAS with a view to achieving the aforesaid objectives, it is necessary to acquire certain areas in Ayodhya;

BE it enacted by Parliament in the Forty fourth Year of the Republic of India as follows :-

PRELIMINARY

1. Short title and commencement. -(1) This Act may be called the Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Act, 1993.

(2) It shall be deemed to have come into force on the 7th day of January, 1993.

2. Definitions. -In this Act unless the context otherwise requires,-

(a) "area" means the area (including all the buildings, structures or other properties comprised therein) specified in the Schedule;

(b) "authorised person" means a person or body of persons or trustees of any trust authorised by the Central Government under S. 7;

www.vadaprativada.com

(c) "Claims Commissioner" means the Claims Commissioner appointed under sub-section (2) of Section 8;

(d) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act.

CHAPTER II

ACQUISITION OF THE AREA IN AYODHYA

3. Acquisition of rights in respect of certain area. - On and from the commencement of this Act, the right, title and interest in relation to the area shall, by virtue of this Act, stand transferred to, and vest in, the Central Government.

4. General effect of vesting.-(1) The area shall be deemed to include all assets, rights, leaseholds, powers, authority and privileges and all property, movable and immovable, including lands, buildings, structures, shops of whatever nature or other properties and all other rights and interests in, or

arising out of, such properties as were immediately before the commencement of this Act in the ownership, possession, power or control of any person or the State Government of Uttar Pradesh, as the case may be, and all registers, maps, plans, drawings and other documents of whatever nature relating thereto.

(2) All properties aforesaid which have vested in the Central Government under S. 3 shall, by force of such vesting, be freed and discharged from any trust, obligation, mortgage, charge, lien and all other encumbrances affecting them and any attachment, injunction decree or order of any court or tribunal or other authority restricting the use of such properties in any manner or appointing any receiver in respect of the whole or any part of such properties shall cease to have any effect.

(3) If, on the commencement of this Act, any suit, appeal of other proceeding in respect of the right, title and interest relating to any property which has vested in the Central Government under S. 3, is pending before any court, tribunal or other authority, the same shall abate.

5. Duty of person or State Government in charge of the management of the area to deliver all assets, etc.- (1) The Central Government may take all necessary steps to secure possession of the area which is vested in that Government under S. 3.

(2) On the vesting of the area in the Central Government under S. 3, the person or State Government of Uttar Pradesh, as the case may be, in charge of the management of the area immediately before such vesting shall be bound to deliver to the Central Government or the authorised person, all assets, registers and other documents in their custody relating to such vesting or where it is not practicable to deliver such registers or documents,

6. Power of Central Government to direct vesting of the area in another authority or body or trust.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in Ss. 3, 4, 5 and 7, the Central Government may, if it is satisfied that any authority or other body, or trustees of any trust, set up on or after the commencement of this Act is or are willing to comply with such terms and conditions as that Government may think fit to impose, direct by notification in the Official Gazette, that the right, title and interest or any of them in relation to the area or any part thereof, instead of continuing to vest in the Central Government, vest in that authority or body or trustees of that trust either on the date of the notification or on such later date as may be specified in the notification.

(2) When any right, title and interest in relation to the area or part thereof vest in the authority or body or trustees referred to in sub-sec. (1), such rights of the Central Government in relation to such area or part thereof, shall, on and from the date of such vesting, be deemed to have become the rights of that authority or body or trustees of that trust.

(3) The provisions of Ss. 4, 5, 7 and 11 shall, so far as may be, apply in relation to such authority or body or trustees as they apply in relation to the Central Government and for this purpose references therein to the "Central Government" shall be construed as references to such authority or body or trustees.

CHAPTER III

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION OF PROPERTY

7. Management of property Government.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any contract or instrument or order of any court, tribunal or other authority to the contrary, on and from the commencement of this Act, the property vested in the Central Government under S. 3 shall be managed by the Central Government or by a person or body of persons or trustees of any trust authorised by that Government in this behalf.

(2) In managing the property vested in the Central Government under S. 3, the Central Government or the authorised person shall ensure that the position existing before the commencement of this Act in the area on which the structure (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure), commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid, stood in village Kot Ramachandra in Ayodhya, in Pargana Haveli Avadh, in Tehsil Faizabad Sadar, in the district of Faizabad of the State of Uttar Pradesh is maintained.

MISCELLANEOUS

8. Payment of amount,- (1) The owner of any land, building, structure or other property comprised in the area shall be given by the Central Government, for the transfer to and vesting in that Government under S. 3 of that land, building, structure or other property, in cash an amount equivalent to the market value of the land, building, structure or other property.

(2) The Central Government shall, for the purpose of deciding the claim of the owner or any person having a claim against the owner under sub-sec. (1), by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint a Claims Commissioner.

(3) The Claims Commissioner shall regulate his own procedure for receiving and deciding the claims.

(4) The owner or any person having a claim against the owner may make a claim to the Claims Commissioner within a period of ninety days from the date of commencement of this Act;

Provided that if the Claims Commissioner is satisfied that the claimant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the claim within the said period of ninety days, the Claims Commissioner may entertain the claim within a further period of ninety days and not thereafter.

9. Act to override all other enactments,- The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law for the time being in force or any instrument having effect by virtue of any law other than this Act or any decree or order of any court, tribunal or other authority.

10. Penalties.- Any person who is in charge of the management of the area and fails to deliver to the Central Government or the authorised person any asset, register or other document in his custody relating to such area or, as the case may be, authenticated copies of such register or document, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years or with fine which may extend to ten thousand rupees, or with both.

11. Protection of action taken in good faith.- No suit, prosecution or other legal proceeding shall lie against the Central Government or the authorised person or any of the officers or other employees of that Government or the authorised person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

12. Power to make rules.- (1) The Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules to carry out the provisions of this Act.

(2) Every rule made by the Central Government under this Act shall be laid, as soon as may be after it is made, before each House of Parliament, while it is in session, for a total period of thirty days which may be comprised in one session or in two or more successive sessions, and if, before the expiry of the sessions immediately following the session or the successive sessions aforesaid, both Houses agree in making any modification in the rule or both Houses agree that the rule should not be made, the rule shall thereafter have effect only in such modified form or be of no effect, as the case may be; so however, that any such modification or annulment shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under that rule:

13. Repeal and saving.- (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), the Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Ordinance, 1993 (Order 8 of 1993), is hereby repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in the said Ordinance,-

(a) the right, title and interest in relation to plot No. 242 situated in village Kot Ramachandra specified against Sl. No. 1 of the Schedule to the said Ordinance shall be deemed never to have been transferred to, and vested in, the Central Government;

(b) any suit, appeal or other proceeding in respect of the right, title and interest relating to the said plot No. 242, pending before any court, tribunal or other authority, shall be deemed never to have abated and such suit, appeal or other proceeding (including the orders or interim orders of any court thereon) shall be deemed to have been restored to the position existing immediately before the commencement of the said Ordinance;

(c) any other action taken or thing done under that Ordinance in relation to the said plot No. 242 shall be deemed never to have been taken or done.

(3) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the said Ordinance shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the corresponding provisions of this Act.

THE SCHEDULE

xxx xxx xxx"

15. At the hearing, it was strenuously urged that the question of fact referred under Article 143(1) of the Constitution is vague; the answer to it is by itself not decisive of the real controversy since the core question has not been referred; and it also gives no definite indication of the manner in which the Central Government intends to act after the Special Reference is answered, to settle the dispute. It was urged that the question referred is, therefore, academic, apart from being vague, and it does not serve any constitutional purpose to subserve which the advisory jurisdiction of this Court could be invoked; that the real object and purpose of reference is to take away a place of worship of the Muslims and give it away to the Hindus offending the basic feature of secularism; and that, therefore, we should decline to answer the Special Reference. The learned Solicitor General who appeared for the Union of India was asked to clarify the stand of the Central Government on this point. Initially, it was stated by the learned Solicitor General that the answer to the question would provide the basis for further negotiations between the different groups to settle the controversy and the Central Government would then be able to decide the effective course

available to it for resolving the controversy. On being asked to further clarify the stand of the Central Government about the purpose of the Special Reference, the learned Solicitor General made a statement in writing on behalf of the Union of India on 14th September, 1994 as under :-

"Government stands by the policy of secularism and of even-handed treatment of all religious communities. The Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Act, 1993, as well as the Presidential Reference, have the objective of maintaining public order and promoting communal harmony and the spirit of common brotherhood amongst the people of India.

Government is committed to the construction of a Ram temple and a mosque, but their actual location will be determined only after the Supreme Court renders its opinion in the Presidential Reference.

Government will treat the finding of the Supreme Court on the question of fact referred under Art. 143 of the Constitution as a verdict which is final and binding.

In the light of the Supreme Court's (sic) opinion and consistent with it, Government will make efforts to resolve the controversy by a process of negotiations. Government is confident that the opinion of the Supreme Court will have a salutary effect on the attitudes of the communities and they will no longer take conflicting positions on the factual issue settled by the Supreme Court.

If efforts at a negotiated settlement as aforesaid do not succeed, Government is committed to enforce a solution in the light of the Supreme Court's opinion and consistent with it. Government's action in this regard will be even-handed in respect of both the communities. If the question referred is answered in the affirmative, namely, that a Hindu temple /

structure did exist prior to the construction of the demolished structure, Government action will be in support of the wishes of the Hindu community. If, on the other hand, the question is answered in the negative, namely, that no such Hindu temple / structure existed at the relevant time, then Government action will be in support of the wishes of the Muslim community."

This statement in writing made by the learned Solicitor General on behalf of the Union of India forms a part of the record and has to be taken into account to indicate the purpose for which the Special Reference under Art. 143(1) has been made to this Court.

16. The dispute and its background are mentioned in paras 2.1, 2.2, and 2.3 of Chapter II of the White Paper quoted earlier. This is the backdrop in which the constitutional validity of Act No. 33 of 1993 and the maintainability of the Special Reference made under Art. 143(1) of the Constitution of India have to be examined.

VALIDITY OF ACT NO. 33 OF 1993

17. Broadly stated, the focus of challenge to the statute as a whole is on the grounds of secularism, right to equality and right to freedom of religion. Challenge to the acquisition of the area in excess of the disputed area is in addition on the ground that the acquisition was unnecessary being unrelated to the dispute pertaining to the small disputed area within it. A larger argument advanced on behalf of some of the parties who have assailed the act with considerable vehemence is that a mosque being a place of religious worship by the Muslims, independently of whether the acquisition did affect the right to practise religion, is wholly immune from the State's power of acquisition and the statute is, therefore, unconstitutional as violative of

Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution of India for this reason alone. The others, however, limited this argument of immunity from acquisition only to places of special significance, forming an essential and integral part of the right to practise the religion, the acquisition of which would result in the extinction of the right to freedom of religion itself. It was also contended that the purpose of acquisition in the present case does not bring the statute within the ambit of Entry 42, List III but is referable to Entry 1, List II and, therefore, the Parliament did not have the competence to enact the same. It was then urged by learned counsel canvassing the Muslim interest that the legislation is tilted heavily in favour of the Hindu interests and, therefore, suffers from the vice of non-secularism and discrimination in addition to violation of the right to freedom of religion of the Muslim community. It was also urged by them that the Central Government, after the Prime Minister's statement made on 7th December, 1992, to rebuild the demolished structure (para 1.22 in Chapter I of the White Paper) resiled from the same and by incorporating certain provisions in the statute has sought to perpetuate the injustice done to the Muslim community by the act of vandalism of demolition of the structure at Ayodhya on 6th December, 1992. On behalf of the Muslim community, it is urged that the statute read in the context of the content of the question referred under Article 143(1) of the Constitution, as it must be, is a mere veiled concealment of a device adopted by the Central Government to perpetuate the consequences of the demolition of the mosque on 6th December, 1992. The grievance of the Hindu opponents is that the mischief and acts of vandalism committed by a few are being attributed to the entire Hindu community the majority of whom is equally hurt by, and critical of, the shameful act. They urge that this disapproval by the majority community is evident from the result of the subsequent elections in which the Bhartiya Janata Party was rejected at the hustings by the Hindu majority. They also submit that the fact of demolition of Hindu structures like the Ram-chabutra and Kaushalya Rasoi which stood since ages in the disputed site resulting in interruption of even the undisputed right of worship of Hindus within that area is being ignored. It is also contended that there is no justification for acquisition of any property in excess of the disputed area and, therefore, the acquisition at least of the excess area belonging, admittedly, to Hindus is invalid.

18. On behalf of the Central Government, it is urged that in the existing situation and in view of the widespread communal flare-up throughout the country on account of the events at Ayodhya of 6th December, 1992, the most appropriate course, in the opinion of the Central Government, was to make this acquisition along with the Special Reference to decide the question which would facilitate a negotiated solution of the problem, and if it failed, to enable the Central Government to take any other appropriate action to resolve the controversy and restore communal harmony in the country. It was made clear that acquisition of the disputed area was not meant to deprive the community found entitled to it, of the same, or to retain any part of the excess area which was not necessary for a proper resolution of the dispute or to effectuate the purpose of the acquisition, it was submitted that an assurance of communal harmony throughout the country was a prime constitutional purpose and avoidance of escalation of the dispute in the wake of the incident at Ayodhya on 6th December, 1992 was an essential step in that direction, which undoubtedly promotes the creed of secularism instead of impairing it. It was submitted that the charge levelled against the Central Government of discrimination against any religious community or of anti-secularism is wholly unwarranted.

19. Another argument advanced on behalf of the Muslim community was that the defences open to the minority community in the suits filed by the other side including that of adverse possession by virtue of long possession of the disputed site for over 400 years since its construction in 1528 A. D. have also been extinguished by the acquisition, giving an unfair advantage to the other side. It was also urged that the core question in the dispute between the parties was not the subject-matter of the Special Reference made under Article 143(1) of the Constitution and, therefore, answer to the same would not result in a resolution of the dispute between the parties to the suits. It was accordingly urged, there is deprivation of the judicial remedy for adjudication of the dispute without the substitution of an alternate dispute resolution mechanism, which is impermissiable under the Constitution.

20. It is appropriate at this stage to refer to the provisions of the statute before we deal with the arguments challenging its constitutional validity. The Statement of Objects and Reasons says that there is a long-standing dispute relating to the disputed structure in Ayodhya which led to communal tension and violence from time to time and ultimately has led to the destruction of the disputed structure on 6th December, 1992 followed by widespread communal violence resulting in loss of many lives and destruction of property throughout the country. The said dispute has thus affected the maintenance of public order and communal harmony in the country. Obviously, it is necessary to maintain and promote communal harmony and fraternity amongst the people of India. With this objective in view it was considered necessary to acquire the site of the disputed structure and the requisite adjacent area to be utilised in an appropriate manner to achieve this object. For this purpose, the Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Ordinance, 1993 was promulgated by the President on 7th January, 1993 and, simultaneously, on the same day, this Reference was also made by the President to this Court under Article 143 (1) of the Constitution. The said Ordinance was replaced by the Acquisition of Certain Area at Ayodhya Act, 1993 (No. 33 of 1993) to the same effect, and Section 1(2) provides that the Act shall be deemed to have come into force on the 7th January, 1993. The provisions of the said Act are now considered.

21. Section 3 provides for acquisition of rights in relation to the area defined in Section 2(a). It says that on and from the commencement of this Act the right, title and interest in relation to the area shall, by virtue of this Act, stand transferred to, and vest in, the Central Government. It is well-settled that the meaning of vest takes colour from the context in which it is used and it is not necessarily the same in every provision or in every context. In Maharaj Singh v. State of U.P., it was held: (SCR p. 1081 : SCC pp. 164-65, para 16)

"Is such a construction of 'vesting' in two different senses in the same section, sound? Yes. It is, because 'vesting' is a word of slippery import and has many meanings. The context controls the text and the purpose and scheme project the particular semantic shade or nuance of meaning. That is why even definition clauses allow themselves to be modified by contextual compulsions...."

The meaning of vest in Section 3 and in Section 6 is of significance in the context of the constitutional validity of the statute. It can vary in different parts of the statute or even the same Section, depending on the context of its use.

22. Section 4 then provides the general effect of vesting. Obviously, the effect of vesting will depend on the meaning of the word vest used in Section 3 and the kind of vesting in the present context. Sub-section (1) of Section 4 provides that the area shall be deemed to include all assets, rights, etc. specified therein of whatever nature relating thereto. Sub-section (2) further says that all properties aforesaid which have vested in the Central Government under Section 3 shall, by force of such vesting, be freed and discharged from all encumbrances affecting them and any attachment, injunction, decree or order of any Court of tribunal or other authority restricting the use of such properties in any manner or appointing any receiver in respect of the whole or any part of the property shall cease to have effect. In other words, the effect of such vesting is to free all properties aforesaid which have vested in the Central Government under Section 3 of all encumbrances and the consequence of any order of any Court or tribunal of any kind restricting their user in any manner. Sub-section (3) of Section 4 provides for abatement of all pending suits and legal proceedings. The meaning of the word vest in Section 3 has a bearing on the validity of this provision since the consequence of abatement of suits etc. provided therein is relatable only to absolute vesting of the disputed area which is the subject-matter of the suits and not to a situation where the vesting under Section 3 is of a limited nature for a particular purpose, and is of limited duration till the happening of a future event. Section 5 indicates the duty of the person or State Government in charge of the management of the area to deliver all assets etc. to the Central Government on such vesting. Sub-section (1)

empowers the Central Government to take all necessary steps to secure possession of the area which is vested in the Central Government under Section 3. Sub-section (2) obliges the person or State Government of Uttar Pradesh, as the case may be, in charge of the management of the area immediately before such vesting to deliver to the Central Government or the authorised person all assets etc. in their custody relating to such vesting. In short, Section 5 provides the consequential action to be taken by the Central Government with the corresponding obligation of the person or State Government in charge of the management of the area to deliver possession of the area, together with its management, to the Central Government, on such vesting.

23. Then comes Section 6 which is the last Section in Chapter II, to which detailed reference would be made later. At this stage a general reference to its contents is sufficient. Section 6 contains the power of Central Government to direct vesting of the area in another authority or body or trust. Sub-section (1) provides that the Central Government may, notwithstanding anything contained in Sections 3, 4, 5 and 7, direct by notification in the Official Gazette, that the right, title and interest or any of them in relation to the area or any part thereof, instead of continuing to vest in the Central Government, vest in that authority or body or trustees of that trust from the specified date, if it is satisfied that the same is willing to comply with such terms and conditions as the Central Government may think fit to impose. In short, sub-section (1) empowers the Central Government to transfer its right, title and interest or any of them in the area or any part thereof to any authority or other body or trustees of any trust on such terms and conditions as it may think fit to impose, instead of continuing to retain the same itself. Sub-section (2) provides for the consequences of the action taken under sub-section (1) giving recognition to the statutory transfer effected by the Central Government to effectuate the purpose of such transfer by the Central Government by declaring that the transferee would then step into the shoes of the Central Government acquiring the same right, title and interest in the area or part thereof which by virtue of the enactment had earlier vested in the Central Government. Sub-section (2) is another consequence of the action taken under sub-section (1) and provides that Sections 4, 5, 7 and 11, so far as may be, would apply to such transferee as they apply in relation to the Central Government. It may here be recalled that Section 4 relates to the effect of vesting under Section 3; Section 5 to the duty of the person or State in charge of the management of the area to deliver possession etc. to the Central Government or the authorised person; Section 7 to the management and the administration of property by the Central Government on its vesting; and Section 11 gives protection to action taken in good faith by the Central Government or the authorised person or any one acting on its behalf under this Act.

24. Chapter III contains Section 7 alone which would be considered at length later in view of the serious challenge made to its constitutional validity. This Section deals with the management and administration of the property by the Central Government, on its vesting. Sub-section (1) provides for management of the property vested in the Central Government under Section 3 by the Central Government or by any authorised person, on such vesting, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any contract or instrument or order of any Court, tribunal or other authority. In other words, inspite of any contrary provision in any contract or instrument or

order of any Court, tribunal or other authority, from the commencement of this act, the management of the property vested in the Central Government under Section 3 shall be by the Central Government or by an authorised person, so authorised by the Government in its behalf and none else. This provision expressly supersedes any earlier provision relating to the management of the property so vested in the Central Government, Sub-section (2) then provides for the manner of the management of the property by the Central Government or the authorised person. It mandates the Central Government or the authorised person, in managing the property vested in the Central Government under Section 3, to ensure that the position existing before the commencement of this Act "in the area on which the structure(including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure), commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid, stood" is maintained. This means that the power of management of the Central Government or the authorised person under sub-section (1) of Section 7 is coupled with the duty contained in the mandate given by sub-section (2). The mandate is that in managing the property so vested in the Central Government, the Central Government or the authorised person shall ensure maintenance of the status quo "in the area on which the structure (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure), commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid, stood". There was some debate as to the meaning of the word area in this context. One construction suggested was that the word area used in this expression has the same meaning as in the definition contained in Section 2(a), that is, the entire area specified in the Schedule to the Act. Section 2 itself says that the definitions therein give the meaning of the words defined "unless the context

otherwise requires". The context in which the word area is used in the expression in Section 7(2) gives the clear indication that its meaning is not the same as in Section 2(a) to mean the entire area specified in the Schedule since the words which follow qualify its meaning confining it only to the site on which this structure, commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid stood, which site or area is undoubtedly smaller and within "the area specified in the Schedule".

25. Chapter IV contains the miscellaneous provisions. Therein Section 8 provides for payment of amount equivalent to the market value of the land, building, structure or other property by the Central Government for the transfer to, and vesting of the property in, the Government under Section 3, to its owner. Remaining part of Section 8 contains the machinery provisions for payment of the amount. Section 9 gives the overriding effect of the provisions of this Act on any other law or decree or order of any Court, tribunal or other authority. Section 10 provides for penalties. It says that any person who is in charge of the management of the area and fails to deliver to the Central Government or the authorised person the possession etc. required under this Act shall be punishable in the manner provided. Section 11 gives protection to the Central Government or the authorised person or any one acting on its behalf for anything done or intended to be done under this act in good faith. Section 12 contains the rule-making power of the Central Government to carry out the provisions of this Act and the manner in which the rules are to be made. Section 13 is the last section of the Act providing for repeal of the earlier Ordinance and savings.

26. The foregoing is a brief resume of the provisions of Act No. 33 of 1993, the constitutional validity of which has to be examined in the light of the grounds of challenge. The meaning of the word vest in Section 2 and the kind of vesting contemplated thereby, the effect of vesting including abatement of all pending suits and legal proceedings, according to Section 4, the power of Central Government to direct vesting of the area or any part thereof in another anauthority or body or trust and its effect according to Section 6, and Section 7 providing for management of property by the Central Government or the authorised person are the provisions of particular significance for deciding the question of constitutionality. Section 8 also is of some significance in this context.

27. We may now proceed to consider the merits of the grounds on which the Act is assailed as constitutionally invalid.

LEGISLATIVE COMPETENCE

28. The legislative competence is traceable to Entry 42, List III and the State of Uttar Pradesh being under President's rule at the relevant time, the legislative competence of the Parliament, in the circumstances, cannot be doubted. That apart, the pith and substance of the legislation is "acquisition of property" and that falls squarely within the ambit of Entry 42, List III. Competing entry set up is Entry 1, List II relating to "public order". "Acquisition of property" and not "public order" is the pith and substance of the statute.

29. In State of Bihar v. Maharajadhiraja Sir Kameshwar Singh of Darbhanga, 1952 SCR 889 : (AIR 1952 SC 252), it was pointed out that where the dominant purpose of the act was that of transference to the State of the interests of the proprietors and tenure holders of the land, the pith and substance of the legislation was the transference of ownership to the State Government and it was an "acquisition" Act. In Dy. Commissioner and

Collector v. Durga Nath Sarma, (1968) 1 SCR 561 : (AIR 1968 SC 394), Bachawat, J. pointed out that a law for permanent acquisition of property is not a law for promotion of public health etc. since only the taking of temporary possession of private properties can be regarded as a law for promotion of public health.

30. It is significant to bear in mind that Entry 42, List III, as it now exists, was substituted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act to read as under :-

"Acquisition and requisitioning of property."

List I, Entry 33 :

"33. Acquisition or requisitioning of property for the purposes of the Union."

www.vadaprativada.com

List II, Entry 36 :

"36. Acquisition or requestioning of property, except for the purposes of the Union, subject to the provisions of Entry 42 of List III."

List III, Entry 42 :

"42. Principles on which compensation for property acquired or requisitioned for the purposes of the Union or of a State or for any other public purpose, is to be determined, and the form and the manner in which such compensation is to be given."

By the amendment so made, Entry 42, List III reads as extracted earlier while Entry 33, List I and Entry 36, List II have been omitted. The comprehensive Entry 42 in List III as a result of the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act leaves no doubt that an acquisition Act of this kind falls

clearly within the ambit of this Entry and, therefore, the legislative competence of the Parliament to enact this legislation cannot be doubted. This ground of challenge is, therefore, rejected.

45. Section 7 as we read it, is a transitory provision, intended to maintain status quo in the disputed area, till transfer of the property is made by the Central Government on resolution of the dispute. This is to effectuate the purpose of that transfer and to make it meaningful avoiding any possibility of frustration of the exercise as a result of any change in the existing situation in the disputed area during the interregnum. Unless status quo is ensured, the final outcome on resolution of the dispute may be frustrated by any change made in the disputed area which may frustrate the implementation of the result in favour of the successful party and render it meaningless. A direction to maintain status quo in the disputed property is a well-known method and the usual order made during the pendency of a dispute for preserving the property and protecting the interest of the true owner till the adjudication is made. A change in the existing situation is fraught with the danger of prejudicing the rights of the true owner, yet to be determined. This itself is a clear indication that the exercise made is to find out the true owner of the disputed area, to maintain status quo therein during the interregnum and to hand it over to the true owner found entitled to it.

46. The question now is whether the provision in Section 7 containing the mandate to maintain the status quo existing at the disputed site as on 7th January, 1993 is a slant in favour of the Hindu community, intended to perpetuate an injustice done to the Muslim community by demolition of the mosque on 6th December, 1992 and, therefore, it amounts to an anti-secular or discriminatory act rendering the provision unconstitutional. For this purpose it is necessary to recall the situation as it existed on 7th January, 1993 along with the significant events leading to that situation. It is necessary to bear in mind the comparative use of the disputed area and the right of worship practised therein, by the two communities on 7th January, 1993 and for a significant period immediately preceding it. A reference to the comparative user during that period by the two communities would indicate whether the provision in Section 7 directing maintenance of status quo till resolution of the dispute and the transfer by the Central Government contemplated by Section 6 is slanted towards the Hindu community to render the provision violative of the basic feature of secularism or the rights to equality and freedom of religion.

47 As earlier stated, worship by Hindu devotees of the idols installed on the Ram Chabutra which stood on the disputed site within the courtyard of the disputed structure had been performed without any objection by the Muslims even prior to the shifting of those idols from the Ram Chabutra into the disputed structure in December 1949; in one of the suits filed in January 1950, the trial court passed interim orders whereby the idols remained at the place where they were installed in 1949 and worship of the idols there by the Hindu devotees continued; this interim order was confirmed by the High Court in April 1955; the District Judge ordered the opening of the lock placed on a grill leading to the sanctum-sanctorum of the shrine in the disputed structure on 1st February, 1986 and permitted worship of the idols there to Hindu devotees; and this situation continued till demolition of the structure on 6th December, 1992 when Ram Chabutra also was demolished.

It was only as a result of the act of demolition on 6th December, 1992 that the worship by the Hindu devotees in general of the idols at that place was interrupted. Since the time of demolition, worship of the idols by a pujari alone is continuing. This is how the right of worship of the idols practised by Hindu devotees for a long time from much prior to 1949 in the Ram chabutra within the disputed site has been interrupted since the act of demolition on 6th December, 1992 restricting the worship of the idols since then to only by one pujari. On the other hand, at least since December 1949, the Muslims have not been offering worship at any place in the disputed site though, it may turn out at the trial of the suits that they had a right to do so.

49. The narration of facts indicates that the acquisition of properties under the Act affects the rights of both the communities and not merely those of the Muslim community. The interest claimed by the Muslims is only over the disputed site where the mosque stood before its demolition. The objection of the Hindus to this claim has to be adjudicated. The remaining entire property acquired under the Act is such over which no title is claimed by the Muslims. A large part thereof comprises of properties of Hindus of which the title is not even in dispute. The justification given for acquisition of the larger area including the property respecting which title is not disputed is that the same is necessary to ensure that the final outcome of adjudication should not be rendered meaningless by the existence of properties belonging to Hindus in the vicinity of the disputed structure in case the Muslims are found entitled to the disputed site. This obviously means that in the event of the Muslims succeeding in the adjudication of the dispute requiring the disputed structure to be handed over to the Muslim community, their success should not be thwarted by denial of proper access to, and enjoyment of rights in, the disputed area by exercise of rights of ownership of Hindu owners of the adjacent properties. Obviously, it is for this reason that the adjacent area has also been acquired to make available to the successful party, that part of it which is considered necessary, for proper enjoyment of the fruits of success on the final outcome to the adjudication. It is clear that one of the purposes of the acquisition of the adjacent properties is the ensurement of the effective enjoyment of the disputed site by the Muslim community in the event of its success in the litigation; and acquisition of the adjacent area is incidental to the main purpose and cannot be termed unreasonable. The "Manas Bhawan" and "Sita ki Rasoi", both belonging to the Hindus, are buildings which closely overlook the disputed site and are acquired because they are strategic in locations in relation to the disputed area. The necessity of acquiring adjacent temples or religious buildings in view of their proximity to the disputed structure area, which forms a unique class by itself, is permissible. [See M. Padmanabha Iyengar v. Government of Andhra Pradesh and Akhara Shri Braham Buta Vs. State of Punjab). We approve the principle stated in these decisions since it serves a larger purpose.

51. It may also be mentioned that even as Ayodhya is said to be of particular significance to the Hindus as a place of pilgrimage because of the ancient belief that Lord Rama was born there, the mosque was of significance for the Muslim community as an ancient mosque built by Mir Baqi in 1528 A.D. As a mosque, it was a religious place of worship by the Muslims. This indicates the comparative significance of the disputed site to the two communities and also that the impact of acquisition is equally on the right and interest of the Hindu community. Mention of this aspect is made only in the context of the argument that the statute as a whole, not merely S.7 thereof, is anti-secular being slanted in favour of the Hindus and against the Muslims.

52. Section 7(2) of the Act freezes the situation admittedly in existence on 7th January, 1993 which was a lesser right of worship for the Hindu devotees than that in existence earlier for a long time till the demolition of the disputed structure on 6th December, 1992; and it does not create a new situation more favourable to the Hindu community amounting to conferment on them of a larger right of worship in the disputed site than that practised till 6th December, 1992. Maintenance of status quo as on 7th January, 1993 does not, therefore, confer or have the effect of granting to the Hindu community any further benefit thereby. It is also pertinent to bear in mind that the persons responsible for demolition of the mosque on 6th December, 1992 were some miscreants who cannot be identified and equated with the entire Hindu community and, therefore, the act of vandalism so perpetrated by the miscreants cannot be treated as an act of the entire Hindu community for the purpose of adjudging the constitutionality of the enactment. Strong reaction against, and condemnation by the Hindus of the demolition of the structure in general bears eloquent testimony to this fact. Rejection of Bhartiya Janata Party at the hustings in the subsequent elections in Uttar Pradesh is another circumstance to that effect. The miscreants who demolished the mosque had no religion, caste or creed except the character of a criminal and the mere incident of birth of such a person in any particular community cannot attach the stigma of his crime to the community in which he was born,

61. Sub-section (3) of Section 4 provides for abatement of all pending suits and legal proceedings in respect of the right, title and interest relating to any property which has vested in the Central Government under Section 3. The rival claims to the disputed area which were to be adjudicated in the pending suits can no longer be determined therein as a result of the abatement of the suits. This also results in extinction of the several defences raised by the Muslim community including that of adverse possession of the disputed area for over 400 years since construction of the mosque there in 1528 A.D. by Mir Baqi. Ostensibly, the alternate dispute resolution mechanism adopted is that of a simultaneous Reference made the same day under Article 143(1) of the Constitution to this Court for decision of the question referred. It is clear from the issues framed in those suits that the core question for determination in the suits is not covered by the Reference made, and it also does not include therein the defences raised by the Muslim community. It is also clear that the answer to the question referred, whatever it may be, will not lead to the answer of the core question for determination in the pending suits and it will not, by itself, resolve the long-standing dispute relating to the disputed area. Reference made under Article 143(1) cannot, therefore, be treated as an effective alternate dispute resolution mechanism in substitution of the pending suits which are abated by Section 4(3) of the Act. For this reason, it was urged, that the abatement of pending suits amounts to denial of the judicial remedy available to the Muslim community for resolution of the dispute and grant of the relief on that basis in accordance with the scheme of redress under the rule of law envisaged by the Constitution. The validity of Sub-section (3) of Section 4 is assailed on this ground.

68. In British India, the right to worship of Muslims in a mosque and Hindus in a temple had always been recognised as a civil right. Prior to 1950, the Indian Courts in British India had maintained the balance between the different communities or sects in respect of their right of worship.

69. Even prior to the guarantee of freedom of religion in the Constitution of India, Chief Justice Turner in Muthialu Chetti v. Bapun Saib, (1880) ILR 2 Madras 140, had held that during the British Administration all religions were to be treated equally with the State maintaining neutrality having regard to public welfare. In Sundram Cheti v. The Queen, (1883) ILR 6 Madras 203 (FB) approving ILR 2 Madras 140, Chief Justice Turner said : "...But with reference to these and to other privileges claimed on the ground of caste or creed, I may observe that they had their origin in times when a State religion influenced the public and private law of the country, and are hardly compatible with the principles which regulate British administration, the equal rights of all citizens and the complete neutrality of the State in matters of religion... When anarchy or absolutism yield place to well ordered liberty, change there must be, but change in a direction which should command the assent of the intelligence of the country."

70. In Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganju v. Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar, AIR 1938 Lahore 369 (FB), it was held that where a mosque has been adversely possessed by non-Muslims, it lost its sacred character as mosque. Hence, the view that once a consecrated mosque, it remains always a place of worship as a mosque was not the

Mahomedan Law of India as approved by Indian Courts. It was further held by the majority that a mosque in India was an immovable property and the right of worship at a particular place is lost when the right to property on which it stands is lost by adverse possession. The conclusion reached in the minority judgment of Din Mohd., J. is not the Mahomedan Law of British India. The majority view expressed by the learned Chief Justice of Lahore High Cour was apaproved by the Privy Council in AIR 1940 PC 116, in the appeal against the said decision of the Lahore High Court. The Privy Council held :

"..... It is impossible to read into the modern Limitation Acts any exception for property made wakf for the purposes of mosque whether the purpose be merely to provide money for the upkeep and conduct of a mosque or to provide a site and building for the purpose. While their Lordships have every sympathy with the religious sentiment which would ascribe sanctity and inviolability to a place of worship, they cannot under the Limitation Act accept the contentions that such a building cannot be possessed adversely to the wake, or that it is not so possessed so long as it is referred to as "mosque" or unless the building is razed to the ground or loses the appearance which reveals its original purpose." (at page 121)

71. It may also be indicated that the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 is applicable uniformly to all properties including places of worship. Right of acquisition thereunder was guided by the express provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 and executive instructions were issued to regulate acquisition of places of worship. Clause 102 of the Manual of Land Acquisition of the State of Maharashtra which deals with the acquisition of religious places like churches, temples and mosques, is of significance in this context.

72. The power of acquisition is the sovereign or prerogative power of the State to acquire property. Such power exists independent of Article 300A of the Constitution or the earlier Article 31 of the Constitution which merely indicates the limitations on the power of acquisition by the State. The Supreme Court from the beginning has consistently upheld the sovereign power of the State to acquire property. B. K. Mukherjee, J. (as he then was) held in Chiranjitlal Chowdhuri v. Union of India, 1950 SCR 869 at pages 901-902 : (AIR 1951 SC 41 at pp. 53-54) as under :

" It is a right inherent in every sovereign to take any appropriate private property belonging to individual citizens for public use. This right, which is described as eminent domain in American law, is like the power of taxation, an off-spring of political necessity, and it is supposed to be based upon an implied reservation by Government that private property acquired by its citizens under its protection may be taken or its use controlled for public benefit irrespective of the wishes of the owner....."

73. Patanjali Sastri, C.J., in the State of West Bengal v. Subodh Bose, 1954 SCR 587 at page 605 : (AIR 1954 SC 92 at p. 98) held as under :

"..... and among such powers was included the power of "acquisition or requisitioning of property" for Union and State purposes entry No. 33 of List I and No. 36 of List II respectively. Thus, what is called the power of eminent domain, which is assumed to be inherent in the sovereignty of the State according to Continental and American jurists and is accordingly not expressly provided for in the American Constitution, is made the subject of an express grant in our Constitution. "

74. It appears from various decisions rendered by this Court, referred later, that subject to the protection under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution, places of religious worship like mosques, churches, temples etc. can be acquired under the State's sovereign power of acquisition. Such acquisition per se does not violate either Article 25 or Article 26 of the Constitution. The decisions relating to taking over of the management have no bearing on the sovereign power of the State to acquire property.

75. Khajamian Wakf Estates v. State of Madras, (1971)2 SCR 790 at page 797 :(AIR 1971 SC 161 at p. 165), has held :

"It was next urged that by acquiring the properties belonging to religious denominations the legislature violated Art.26(c) and (d) which provide that religious denominations shall have the right to own and acquire movable and immovable property and administer such property in accordance with law. These provisions do not take away the right of the State to acquire property belonging to religious denominations. Those denominations can own or acquire properties and administer them in accordance with law. That does not mean that the property owned by them cannot be acquired. As a result of acquisition they cease to own that property. Thereafter their right to administer that property ceases because it is no longer their property. Art.26 does not interfere with the right of the State to acquire property."

76. Acharya Maharajshri Narendra Prasadji Anand Prasadji Maharaj v. State of Gujarat, (1976) 2 SCR 317 at pages 327-328 : (AIR 1974 SC 2098 at p. 2103), has held :

" One thing is, however, clear that Article 26 guarantees inter alia the right to own and acquire movable and immovable property for managing

religious affairs. This right, however, cannot take away the right of the State to compulsorily acquire property .....If, on the other hand, acquisition of property of a religious denomination by the State can be proved to be such as to destroy or completely negative its right to own and acquire movable and immovable property for even the survival of a religious institution the question may have to be examined in a different light.:" (Emphasis supplied)

77. It may be noticed that Article 25 does not contain any reference to property unlike Article 26 of the Constitution. The right to practise, profess and propagate religion guaranteed under Article 25 of the Constitution does not necessarily include the right to acquire or own or possess property. Similarly this right does not extend to the right of worship at any and every place of worship so that any hindrance to worship at a particular place per se may infringe the religious freedom guaranteed under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution. The protection under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution is to religious practice which forms an essential and integral part of the religion. A practice may be a religious practice but not an essential and integral part of practice of that religion.

78. While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for that religion, to make it an essential or integral part of the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially.

79. A five-Judge Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court, in Raja Suryapalsingh v. U.P. Govt., AIR 1951 All 674, held :.

"Arguments have been advanced by learned Counsel on behalf of certain waqfs and Hindu religious institutions based on Articles 25(1) and 26, cl.(c) of the Constitution.....

It is said that a mutawallis's right to profess his religion is infringed if the waqf property is compulsorily acquired, but the acquisition of that property under Art.31 (to which the right conferred by Art. 25 is expressly subject) has nothing to do with such rights and in no way interferes with this exercise."

80. It has been contended that a mosque enjoys a particular position in Muslim Law and once a mosque is established and prayers are offered in such a mosque, the same remains for all time to come a property of Allah and the same never reverts back to the donor or founder of the mosque and any person professing Islamic faith can offer prayer in such a mosque and even if the structure is demolished, the place remains the same where the Namaz can be offered. As indicated herein before, in British India, no such protection was given to a mosque and the mosque was subjected to the provisions of statute of limitation thereby extinguishing the right of Muslim to offer prayers in a particular mosque lost by adverse possession over that property.

81. Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act comprehends the categories of properties known to Indian Law. Article 367 of the Constitution adopts this secular concept of property for purposes of our Constitution. A temple, church or mosque etc. are essentially immovable properties and subject to protection under Articles 25 and 26. Every immovable property is liable to be acquired. Viewed in the proper perspective, a mosque does not enjoy any additional protection which is not available to religious places of worship of other religions.

82. The correct position may be summarised thus. Under the Mahomedan Law applicable in India, title to a mosque can be lost by adverse possession (See Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, 19th Edn. by M. Hidayatullah - S.217 and AIR 1940 PC 116). If that is the position in law, there can be no reason to hold that a mosque has a unique or special status, higher than that of the places of worship of other religions in secular India to make it immune from acquisition by exercise of the sovereign or prerogative power of the State. A mosque is not an essential part of the practice of the religion of Islam and Namaz (prayer) by Muslims can be offered anywhere, even in open. Accordingly, its acquisition is not prohibited by the provisions in the Constitution of India. Irrespective of the status of a mosque in an Islamic country for the purpose of immunity from acquisition by the State in exercise of the sovereign power, its status and immunity from acquisition in the secular ethos of India under the Constitution is the same and equal to that of the places of worship of the other religions, namely, church, temple etc. It is neither more nor less than that of the places of worship of the other religions. Obviously, the acquisition of any religious place is to be made only in unusual and extraordinary situations for a larger national purpose keeping in view that such acquisition should not result in extinction of the right to practise the religion, if the significance of that place be such. Subject to this condition, the power of acquisition is available for a mosque like any other place of worship of any religion. The right to worship is not at any and every place, so long as it can be practised effectively, unless the right to worship be practised effectively, unless the right to worship at a particular place is itself an integral part of that right.

(1)(a) Sub-section (3) of Section 4 of the Act abates all pending suits and legal proceedings without providing for an alternative dispute resolution mechanism for resolution of the dispute between the parties thereto. This is an extinction of the judicial remedy for resolution of the dispute amounting to negation of rule of law. Sub-section (3) of Section 4 of the Act is, therefore, unconstitutional and invalid.

(1)(b) The remaining provisions of the Act do not suffer from any invalidity on the construction made thereof by us. Sub-section (3) of Section 4 of the Act is severable from the remaining Act. Accordingly, the challenge to the constitutional validity of the remaining Act, except for sub-section (3) of Sec. 4, is rejected.

(2) Irrespective of the status of a mosque under the Muslim law applicable in the Islamic countries, the status of a mosque under the Mahomedan Law applicable in secular India is the same and equal to that of any other place of worship of any religion; and it does not enjoy any greater immunity from acquisition in exercise of the sovereign or prerogative power of the State, than that of the places of worship of the other religions.

(3) The pending suits and other proceedings relating to the disputed area within which the structure (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure), commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi -

Babri Masjid, stood, stand revived for adjudication of the dispute therein, together with the interim orders made, except to the extent the interim orders stand modified by the provisions of Section 7 of the Act.

(4) The vesting of the said disputed area in the Central Government by virtue of Section 3 of the Act is limited, as a statutory receiver with the duty for its management and administration according to Section 7 requiring maintenance of status quo therein under sub-section (2) of Section 7 of the Act. The duty of the Central Government as the statutory receiver is to handover the disputed area in accordance with Section 6 of the Act, in terms of the adjudication made in the suits for implementation of the final decision therein. This is the purpose for which the disputed area has been so acquired.

(5) The power of the courts in making further interim orders in the suits is limited to, and circumscribed by, the area outside the ambit of Section 7 of the Act.

(6) The vesting of the adjacent area, other than the disputed area, acquired by the Act in the Central Government by virtue of Section 3 of the Act is absolute with the power of management and administration thereof in accordance with sub-section (1) of Section 7 of the Act, till its further vesting in any authority or other body or trustees of any trust in accordance with Section 6 of the Act. The further vesting of the adjacent area, other than the disputed area, in accordance with Sec. 6 of the Act has to be made at the time and in the manner indicated, in view of the purpose of its acquisition.

(7) The meaning of the word "vest" in Section 3 and Section 6 of the Act has to be so understood in the different contexts.

(8) Section 8 of the Act is meant for payment of compensation to owners of the property vesting absolutely in the Central Government, the title to which is not in dispute being in excess of the disputed area which alone is the subject matter of the revived suits. It does not apply to the disputed area, title to which has to be adjudicated in the suits and in respect of which the Central Government is merely the statutory receiver as indicated, with the duty to restore it to the owner in terms of the adjudication made in the suits.

(9) The challenge to acquisition of any part of the adjacent area on the ground that it is unnecessary for achieving the professed objective of settling the long standing dispute cannot be examined at this stage. However, the area found to be superfluous on the exact area needed for the purpose being determined on adjudication of the dispute, must be restored to the undisputed owners.

(10) Rejection of the challenge by the undisputed owners to acquisition of some religious properties in the vicinity of the disputed area, at this stage is with the liberty granted to them to renew their challenge, if necessary at a later appropriate stage, in cases of continued retention by Central Government of their property in excess of the exact area determined to be needed on adjudication of the dispute.

(11) Consequently, the Special Reference No. 1 of 1993 made by the President of India under Art. 143(1) of the Constitution of India is superfluous and unnecessary and does not require to be answered. For this reason, we very respectfully decline to answer it and return the same.

(12) The questions relating to the constitutional validity of the said Act and maintainability of the Special Reference are decided in these terms.

The plaintiff's named above beg to state as under:-

11 (A) of plaint vide order dated 30.9.2002

1. That in the town of Ajodhiya, pergana Haveli Oudh there exits an ancient historic mosque, commonly known as Babri Masjid, built by Emperor Babar more than 433 years ago, after his conquest of India and his occupation of the territories including the town of Ajodhiya, for the use of the Muslims in general, as a place of worship and

performance of religious ceremonies.

2. That in the sketch map attached herewith, the main construction of the said mosque is shown by letters A B C D and the land adjoining the mosque on the east, west, north and south, shown in the sketch map attached herewith, is the ancient graveyard of the Muslims, covered by the graves of the Muslims, who lost the lives in the battle between emperor Babar and the previous ruler of Ajodhiya, which are shown in the sketch map attached herewith. The mosque and the graveyard is vested in the Almighty. The said mosque has since the time of its construction been used by the Muslims for offering prayers and the graveyard has been used as graveyard. The mosque and the graveyard are in Mohalla Kot Rama Chander also known as Rama Kot Town, Ayodhya, The khasra number of the mosque and the graveyard in suit are shown in the schedule attached which is part of the plaint.

Order dated 2.1.62

3. That for the upkeep and maintenance of the mosque and other connected expenses, a cash grant used to be paid from the Royal Treasury which was continues by the Emperor of Delhi and by Nawab Saadat Ali Khan, the Nawab Wazir of Oudh.

4. That after the annexation of Oudh, the British Government also continued the case Nankar till 1864, in which years instated of cash Nankar grant of revenue free land in village Sholapur and bahoranpur, in the vicinity of Ajodhiya, was made by the British Government.

5. That in the mosque, but outside the main building of the mosque, there was Chabutra 17' x 21' on which there was a small wooden structure in the form of a tent which is still there.

6. That in 1885, one Mahant Rghbuar Dass alleging himself to be the Mahant of Janam Asthan instituted a suit (original Suit No.61/280 of 1885) against the Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohammad Asghar, Mutawalli of the Babri Mosque, for permission to build a temple on the Chabutra 17' z 21 mentioned in para 5 above, in the court of the learned Civil, Judge, Faizabad which was dismissed and an appeal from the said decree was also dismissed by the learned district Judge, Faizabd (C ivil Appeal No.27 of 1885). In the sketch map filed alongwith the plaint in Suit No.61/280 of 1885 the entire building, with the exception of the Chabutra 17' x 21' was admitted to be mosque and was shown as such.

Para 6A,6B,6C, 6D, 6E and 6F are added by the orders of the Court dated 22.12.62 these paper are written on separate sheets marked page 13. 14,15 and they are annexed in the end of the plaint.

6A. That the cause of action for the suit in Suit No.61/280 of 1885 in the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabd, arose on the refusal of the Dy. commissioner of Faizabad on the representation of some Muslims to grant permission to Mahant Raghubar Dass, Mahant of janam Asthan for the construction of a temple on the ground that a temple could not be permitted to be built on land adjoining the mosque (meaning thereby the Babri Masjid).

6B. "In that suit Regular Suit No.61/280 of 1885 of the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad Mahant Raghubar Dass was suing on behalf of himself, on behalf of Janam Asthan, and on behalf of the whole body of persons interested in Janam Asthan and Mohd. Asghar, Mutawalli of the Babri Masji was made a defendant."

6C. Mohammad Asghar defendant Mutawalli of Babri Masjid contested the suit interalia on the ground that the land on which the temple is sought to be built is not the property of the plaintiff or of the Asthan, that the said land lies within the Ahata of Babri Masjid and is the property of the Masjid.

6D. That in the suit mentioned above the matter directly and substantially in issue was:-

(i) the existence of the Babari Masjid.

(ii) the right of the Hindus to construct a temple on land adjoining the Masjid.

The existence of the mosque was admitted by the plaintiff in that suit and the suit if the plaintiff was dismissed on the further ground of public policy.

www.vadaprativada.com

6E. If the building was not a Masjid but a temple as alleged in the present suit the matter might and ought to have been pleaded by Mahant Raghubar Dass in the former suit (suit No.61/280 of 1885 mentioned above) and shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in that suit and the plea that the building is not a Masjid but a temple cannot be raised in the present suit. For the reasons mentioned above the decision in the former suit operates as res judicata in the present suit.

6F. That on the admission contained in the plaint of Regular Suit No.61/280 of 1885mentioned in the preceding paragraphs it must be taken an established fact that the building now claimed by the Hindus as the temple of Janam Asthan was and is a mosque and not a temple.

7. That the suit mentioned above was a sensational case, in which the entire Hindu public and more specially all the Mahants of Ajodhiya and other respectable Hindus of Ajodhiya and Faizabad were deeply interested.

8. That in 1934 during a communal riot in Ajodhia, portions of Babri Mosque were damaged. The damaged portions, were however, rebuilt and reconditioned at the cost of the Government through a Muslim Thekadar.

9. That in 1936 the U.P. Muslim Wakfs Act XIII of 1936 was passed and under the provisions of the said Act, the Commissioner of Wakfs made a complete enquiry and held that Babri Masjid was built by emperor Babar who was a Sunni Mohammadan and that the Babari Mosque was a public wakf. A copy of the Commissioner's report was forwarded by the State Government to the Sunni Central Board of Wakfs and the Sunni Central Board of Wkfs published the said report of the Commissioner of Wakfs in the Official Gazette dated 26.2.1944.

10. That, no suit, challenging the report of the Commissioner of Wakfs was filed by the Hindus or by any person interested in denying the correctness of the report of the Commissioner of Wakfs, on the ground that it was not a Muslim Wakf or that it was a Hindu temple.

11. That the Muslims have been in peaceful possession of the aforesaid mosque and used to recite prayer in it, till 23.12.1949 when a large crowd of Hindus, with the mischievous intention of destroying, damaging or defiling the said mosque and thereby insulting the Muslim religion and the religious feelings of the Muslims, entered the mosque and desecrated the mosque by placing idols inside the mosque. The conduct of Hindus amounted to an offence punishable under Sections 147, 295 and 448 of the Indian Penal Code.

11(a). That assuming, though not admitting, that at one time there existed a Hindu temple as alleged by the defendants representatives of the Hindus on the site of which emperor Babar built the mosque, some 433 years ago, the Muslims, by virtue of their long exclusive and continuous possession beginning from the time the mosque was built and continuing right upto the time some mosque, some mischievous persons entered the mosque and desecrated the mosque as alleged in the preceding paragraphs of the plaint, the Muslims perfected their title by adverse possessions and the right, title or interest of the temple and of the Hindu public if any extinguished.

12. That the incident stated in the preceding paragraph was immediately reported by the constable on duty (Mata Prasad) to the police station Ajodhiya and the Sub-Inspector registered the report and proceeded to the spot for making enquiries in the matter.

13. That the City Magistrate, Faizabad-cum Ajodhiya started proceedings under Section 145 Criminal Procedure Code and by his order dated 29.12.1949 attached the said mosque and handed over possession of the same to Sri Priya Dutt Ram defendant no.9 as Receiver, who still continues in possession and the Muslims are deprived of their legal and constitutional right of offering prayers in the said mosque.

14. That the above action, taken by the City Magistrate, Faizabad, is not only illegal but is fraught with injustice to the plaintiffs, and has the effect of depriving a large section of Muslim citizens of India from exercising their legal rights guaranteed by the Constitution of India.

15. That on 16.1.1950 defendant no.1 filed Regular Suit No.2 of 1950 in the court of Civil Judge, Faizabad, in his personal capacity, for declaration and injunction, on the false allegation that the building in suit was a temple and thus deities are installed in it.

16. That some time after, defendant no.2 filed Suit No.25 of 1950 in the court of Civil Judge, Faizabad against the same set of defendants, and for identical reliefs, with this difference that while the first suit was filed without notice under Section 80 C.P.C. to the State Government and its officers, Suit no.25 of 1950 was filed with notice to them.

17. That a third Suit No.26 of 1960 has been filed by Nirmohi Akhara and Mahant Raghunath Dass, defendants 3 and 4 against defendants nos.5 to 9, and certain Muslim Community under Order 1 rule 8 C.P.C. The suit purports to be for the removal of defendant no.9 from the management of building which the Hindu public call 'Temple of Janam Bhum" and for its delivery to Mahant Raghunath Dass, defendant no.4.

18. That on the application of the plaintiff in Suit no.2 of 1950 temporary injunction was served restraining the defendants of that Suit from removing the idols from the mosque in dispute, and for interfering with Puja etc. of the Hindus. The result of the injunction order of the learned Civil Judge is that while Hindus are permitted to perform Puja of the idols, placed by them in the mosque, the Muslims are not allowed even to enter the mosque, are deprived of their just and legal rights and are not allowed even to enter the mosque, which was constructed about 433 years back and has been declared to be a public wakf and has been used by Generations of Muslims Since then, as a mosque, for reciting prayers therein. The order of injunction is fraught with injustice, hence the necessity of the institution of suit on behalf of Muslim public under order 1 rule 8 C.P.C. against the Hindu public so that the decision in the case may be binding on the Hindu community at large.

19. The present suit is filed by the plaintiffs, on behalf of and for the benefit of the entire Muslim community and an application for necessary permission under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. is filed alongwith the plaint. Similarly the defendants are sued as representing the entire Hindu Community and an application for necessary permission under order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. is filed alongwith the plaint.

20. That the building in suit claimed by the plaintiffs as Muslim wakf is in the possession of Receiver holding for the real owner and would be released in favour of the plaintiffs in case the plaintiffs' suit succeeds but if for any reason in the opinion of the court, a suit for possession is the proper relief to be claimed, the plaintiffs in the alternative pray for recovery of possession.

21. That two months notice of the suit under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure has been given to the defendants 5 to 9 by Registered Post on 19.6.1961. the notices were delivered to the defendants 5 to 8 on 20.6.1961 and defendant no.9 refused to take the delivery of the notice on 23.6.1961. The two months; period from the service of the notice has expired, but no reply has been received.

21-A. That in violation of the orders of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, dated 15th November, 1991 passed in three Writ Petitions and in violation of the orders of this Hon'ble Court dated 3.2.1986, 14.8.1989 and 7.11.1989 etc. the Babri Masjid was demolished on 6th December, 1992. The idols wrongly placed in the premises of the Babri Masjid between the night of 22nd-23rd December, 1949 were removed by the destructors of Babri Masjid and thereafter an illegal structure was created on 7th December, 1992 in violation of all the orders of the courts mentioned above and the undertakings given in the Hon'ble Supreme Court. These acts of demolition and destruction of the mosque were carried out by the miscreants and criminals with the connivance of the then State Government of the B.J.P. As the demolition and change in the position of the spot was made in defiance and flagrant violation of the various orders of this Hon'ble court and the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the plaintiffs are entitled for the

21-B. That under the Muslim Law mosque is a place where prayers are offered publicly as a matter of right and the same neither requires any structure and nor any particular mode of structure is provided for the same. Even the open space where prayers are offered may be a mosque and as such even after the demolition of the mosque building by the miscreants, the land over which the building stood is still a mosque and Muslims are entitled to offer prayers thereon.

21-C. That by means of ordinance No.8 of 1993 promulgated on 7th January, 1993, the land of the mosque and the entire land appurtenant thereto including the land in suit was sought to be acquired and the said Ordinance was later on substituted by an Act of Parliament, namely, Act No.33 of 1993. However, in the cases challenging the said ordinance and the Act, the Hon'ble Supreme Court by its judgment dated 24th October, 1994, has held the Union of India to be the statutory Receiver of the land covered by the said mosque and has further provided that the land of the appurtenant and adjacent area will be provided for the enjoyment of the crucial area of mosque portion as per requirement in accordance with the judgment of the suits. The Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad, is presently working as Authorised person on behalf of the Government of India."

22. That the valuation of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction and payment of court-fees is Rs.22,000/- as follows:-

Valuation of the mosque Rs.21,000/- and that of graveyard is Rs.1,000/- on which a court fee of Rs.2,057.50 is paid.

23. That cause of action for the suit against the Hindu public arose on 23.12.1949 at Ajodhiya District Faizabad within the jurisdiction of this Hon'ble Court when the Hindus unlawfully and illegally entered the mosque and desecrated the mosque by placing idols in the mosque thus causing obstruction and interference with the rights of the Muslims in general, of saying prayers and performing other religious ceremonies in the mosque. The Hindus are also causing obstructions to the Muslims gang in the graveyard, (Ganj-Shahidan) and reciting Fatiha to the dead persons buried therein. The injuries so caused are continuing injuries are the cause of action arising therefrom is renewed de-die-indiem and as against defendants 5 to 9 the cause of action arose to the plaintiffs on 29.12.1949 the date on which the defendant No.7 the City Magistrate Faizabad-cum-Ajodhiaya attached the mosque in suit and handed over possession of the same to Sri Priya Dutt Ram defendant no.9 as the receiver, who assumed charge of the same on January 5, 1950.

The State Government and its officials defendants 6 to 8 failed in their duty to prosecute the offenders and safeguard the interests of the Muslims.

Written Statement on behalf of Ram Chander Dass and Shri Gopal Singh Visharad defendants No.1 & 2 is as follows:-

1. That para 1 of the plaint is wrong and is not admitted.
2. That para 2 of the plaint is absolutely wrong and is denied. There was never any battle between Babar and the rule of Ajodhya on any grave yard or mosque built as dictated by the said Babar.
3. That para 3 of the plaint is wrong and is denied.
4. That para 4 of the plaint is wrong and is not admitted.
5. That para 5 of the plaint is wrong and is not admitted.
6. That defendant No.1 and 2 has no knowledge of the facts mentioned in para 6 of the plaint, hence the para 6 is denied.
7. That para 7 of the plaint is not admitted.
8. That para 8 of the plaint is absolutely wrong and is not admitted.
9. That the defendants No.1 & 2 have no knowledge of the allegations made in para 9 of the plaint, hence it is denied.
10. That para 10 of the plaint is denied.
11. That para 11 of the plaint is wrong, all the allegations made therein are denied.
12. That para 12 of the plain is not admitted.
13. That the defendants No.1 & 2 have no knowledge about the allegations made in para 13 of the plaint. Only this much is admitted that Shri Priyadutt Ram was appointed Receiver of the Janamsthan temple Ajodhya by the learned City Magistrate.
14. That para 14 of the plaint is denied.
15. That para 15 of the plaint is only so far admitted that the defendants No.1 & 2 did file true cases against a few Muslims and certain Government officials for injunction and declaration that case was filed in this Hon'ble Court on true and correct allegations.
16. That the defendants No.1 & 2 admit only this much that the defendant No.2, Shri Ram Chandra Pram Hans did file a suit in this Hon'ble Court, which is true and correct.
17. That the defendants No.1 & 2 have no knowledge of the allegations

made in para 17 of the plaint, hence that is denied.

18. That only this part of the para 18 of the plaint is admitted that Hindus do Puja etc. in the Janam Bhumi temple and the Muslims are not allowed to go near that temple, which they wrongly and maliciously described as mosque, the rest of the allegations of this para are denied.

19. That para 19 of the plaint is denied. The plaintiffs have no right to make the defendant contest the suit in a representative capacity as a self appointed representative of the Hindu community which extends from Madras to Kashmir and from Dwarka to Calcutta. None of the defendants represent all the Hindus in India. The Janam Bhumi temple is a public charitable institution and the defendant No.1 contests this suit to his previously instituted in his individual capacity.

20. That para 20 of the plaint is not admitted.

21. That the defendant No.1 has no knowledge of the facts mentioned in para 21 of the plaint hence it is denied.

22. That para 22 of the plaint is denied. According to some plaintiffs, previous assertions and allegations made in the civil suit of the defendant No.1 pending against them in this court. The suit is undervalued, hence the court is deficient.

23. That para 23, of the plaint is wrong. The suit is hopelessly time barred. The Muslims have not been in possession of the property in dispute since 1934 and earlier.

24. That plaintiffs are not entitled to any relief and the suit deserves to be rejected with costs.

Further Pleas

25. That the Muslims were never in possession of the temple called Ram Janam Bhumi. If ever they were in possession of the so-called Babri mosque, there possession ceased thereon in 1934, and since then Hindus are holding that temple in their possession and their possession has repened into statutory adverse possession thereon since 1934. Prior to 1934, continuous daily Hindu Puja is being done in that temple and the Muslims have never said their prayers since 1934 in the temple falsely describe as Babri Mossque.

26. That the said temple in dispute is a public charitable institution. It does not belong to any sect, group, math or individual or Mahant or any Akhara and it is a public place of worship open to all the Hindus. No individual Hindu or Mahant can be said to represent the entire Hindu community as far as this ancient temple is concerned.

27. That the suit is time barred as no action was taken in time from the orders of the City Magistrate u/s 145 Cr.P. Code.

28. That the suit is time barred as the plaintiffs were never in possession over the temple in dispute since 1934, and the Hindus were holding it adversely to them, overtly and to their knowledge.

29. That on equitable grounds as well the suit deserves to be rejected because the Hindu Puja is going on in the said temple from the past at best 28 years i.e. 1934 and admittedly from January, 1950 when the City Magistrate directed the defendant No.9 to carry on puja as usual in the said temple.

30. That on equitable basis the suit deserve to be stayed as in a previously instituted suit the same issues are being tried in this very Hon'ble Court in suits No.2 of 1950 of 25 of 1950, in which practically the parties are the same.

31. That suit under Order 1 Rule 8, Civil Procedure Code is bad as no one representing the Hindu community has been made a defendant in the suit, hence the suit deserves to be rejected.

32. That the suit be rejected with special costs as the plaints have impleaded the defendant No.1,2,3,4 and 9 knowing full well that they do not represent the Hindu community but their individual interests only.

That plaintiff or plaintiff No.1 who claims rights under Act XIII of 1936, have no such right for the following among other reasons:-

(a) That the U.P. Muslim Wakf Act No.XIII of 1936, is ultra vires, the Government of India Act, 1935, which had come into force before the passing of the above Act. It does not come under any of the items of list II of the Provincial list or list III, the concurrent legislative list. Item No.9 of the concurrent list or item No.34 of the provincial list cannot also come to save the above legislation even on the principle of Pith and substance. Item No.28 of list III of the constitution has therefore been remoddled.

(b) That any section under sub/section (3) of Section 80 of the former Government of India Act will not validate the legislation after the repeal of the former Government of India Act by means of Section 478 of the Government of India Act, 1935.

(c) That in case the Act is considered to be intra-vires the suit not being one, relating to administration of wakf, taking of accounts, appointment and removal of mutwallis, putting the Mutwallis in possession of settlement or modifications of any scheme of management for which powers and duties have been specified u/s 18 (2) clause (e) of Act XIII of 1936, the present suit on behalf of the plaintiff No.1 is misconceived and not maintainable. The plaintiff No.1 can only do things required or permitted by the Act to be done by the Board (sec.6(3).

(d) That the Act containing privileges based on classification of Waqfs on the ground of religion particularly Section 5(3) of the Act is hit by article 14 and 19 of the constitution and is void under Article 13(1) of the Constitution.

(e) That by Act XVI of 1960, Section 85(2) the above Act has been repealed. The saving clause contained in the proviso only saves the operation of the repealed Act in regard to any suit or proceedings pending in any court or to an appeal or application in revision against any orders that may be passed in such suit or proceeding subject thereto anything done or any action taken in exercise of powers conferred by or under those Acts, shall, unless expressly required by any provision of Act 16 of 1960 be deemed to have been done or taken in exercise of the powers conferred by the new Act as if the new Act were in force on the day on which such things was done or action taken.

Sec. 9 (2) of Act 16 of 1960 only saves the finality of decision of Commissioner of Waqfs from being affected by provisions of Chapter I of Act 16 of 1960 but when there is no saving clause with regard to decision u/s 5(3) in the proviso to sec. 85 (2), the finality attached by section 5(3) will vanish after the repeal of the enactment.

(f) That the building and land in suit lying in the province of Oudh became subject of Lord Canning proclamations and all previous rights became non existent. No fresh grant in respect of the property in suit having been made after the proclamation, to the plaintiff or to the Muslim community, have no right to sue.

(g) That the Commissioner of Wakf only has to make an enquiry about number of Shia and Sunni Waqfs in the district the nature of each waqf, the gross income of property transferred in the waqf, the Govt. revenue, the expenses and whether it is one recepted u/s 2. The Commissioner of Wakf has only to see whether any transaction is waqf or not and that to which sect. the Waqf belongs and further whether such waqf is or is not exempted by sec.2 of the Act. All these things he has to do in accordance with the definition of Waqf in section 3(1) of the Act XIII of 1936, an Act which is exclusively meant for certain clauses or Muslim Waqfs. The finality and conclusiveness in inteded to give effect to the scheme of administration under the Muslim Waqfs Act and does not and cannot confer jurisdiction to decide question of title as against non-Muslims. The legislature u/s 5(3) does not say that the court shall take judicial notice of the reports of the Commissioner of Waqfs and shall regard them as conclusive evidence that the Waqf mentioned in such reports are Muslim Wqafs, as was done in Section 10 of the O.E.Act.

O.O.S.No.4 of 1989 (Reg. Suit No.12-61)

Written Statement U/order 8 Rule 1 C.P.C.

Written Statement on behalf of Shri Gopal Singh Visharad & defendant No.2 is as follows:-

1. That para 1 of the plaint is wrong and is not admitted.
2. That para 2 of the plaint is absolutely wrong and is denied. There was never any battle between Babar and the ruler of Ajodhya on any graveyard or mosque alleged to be built (as dictated) by the said Babar.
3. That para 3 of the plaint is wrong and is denied.
4. That para 4 of the plaint is wrong and is not admitted.
5. That para 5 of the plaint is wrong and is not admitted.
6. That defendant No.1 has no knowledge of the facts mentioned in para 6 of the plaint, hence the para 6 is denied. The additional paras added by amendment as A- to P.F.are wrong and denied see further pleas.
7. That para 7 of the plaint is wrong and not admitted.
8. That para 8 of the plaint is absolutely wrong and is not admitted.
9. That defendants No.1 & 2 have no knowledge of the allegations made in para 9 of the plaint, hence it is denied, see additional pleas.
10. That para 10 of the plaint is denied. See further pleas.
11. That para 11 of the plaint is wrong, all the allegations made therein are denied.
12. That para 12 of the plain is not admitted.
13. That the defendants No.1 & 2, have no knowledge about the allegations made in para 13 of the plaint. Only this much is admitted that Shri Priyadutt Ram was appointed Receiver of the Janamasthan temple Ajodhya by the Hon'ble Court of the City Magistrate, Faizabad.
14. That para 14, of the plaint is denied.
15. That para 15 of the plaint is only so far admitted that the defendants No.1 & 2 did file true cases against a few Muslims and certain Government officials for injunction declaration. The cases were filed in this Hon'ble Court on true and correct allegations.
16. That the defendants No.1 & 2 admit only this much that the defendant

www.vadaprativada.com

No.2, Shri Ram Chandra Pram Hans did file another suit in this Hon'ble Court, which is true and correct.

17. That the defendants No.1 & 2 have no knowledge of the allegations made in para 17 of the plaint, hence that is denied.

18. That only this part of the para 18 of the plaint is admitted that Hindus do Puja etc. in the Janam Bhum temple and the Muslims are not allowed to go near that temple, which they wrongly and maliciously described as mosque, the rest of the allegations of this para are denied.

19. That para 19 of the plaint is denied. The plaintiffs have no right to make the defendant contest the suit in a representative capacity as self appointed representatives of the Hindu community which extends from Madras to Kashmir and from Dwarka to Calcutta. None of the defendants represent all the Hindus in India. The Janam Bhum temple is a public charitable institution and the defendants No.1 & 2 contest this suit as in their previously instituted suits in their individual capacity.

20. That para 20 of the plaint is not admitted.

21. That the defendants No.1 & 2 have no knowledge of the facts mentioned in para 21 of the plaint hence it is denied.

www.vadaprativada.com

22. That para 22 of the plaint is denied. According to some plaintiffs, previous assertions and allegations made in the civil suits of the defendants No.1 & 2 pending against them in this court, the suit is undervalued, hence the court fee is deficient.

23. That para 23, of the plaint is wrong. The suit is hopelessly time barred. The Muslims have not been in possession of the property in dispute since 1934 and earlier.

24. That plaintiffs are not entitled to any relief and the suit deserves to be rejected with costs.

Further Pleas

25. That the members of the Hindu community have from time immemorial been worshiping the site of the Janam Bhum upto this time by virtue of their right and the Muslims were never in possession of the temple called Ram Janam Bhum. If ever they were in possession of the so-called Babri mosque, there possession ceased thereon in 1934, and since then Hindus

are holding that temple in their possession, and their possession has ripened into statutory adverse possession thereon since 1934. Prior to 1934, continuous daily Hindu Puja is being done in that temple and the Muslims have never said their prayers since 1934 in the temple falsely described as Babri Mossque.

26. That the said temple in dispute is a public charitable institution. It does not belong to any sect, group, math or individual or Mahant or any Akhara and it is a public place of worship open to all the Hindus. No individual Hindu or Mahant can be said to represent the entire Hindu community as far as this ancient temple is concerned.

27. That the suit is time barred as no action was taken in time from the orders of the City Magistrate u/s 145 Cr.P.Code.

28. That the suit is time barred as the plaintiffs were never in possession over the temple in dispute since 1934, and the Hindus were holding it adversely to the Muslims, overtly and to their knowledge.

29. That the suit deserves to be rejected because the Hindu Puja is going on in the said temple from the past at least 28 years i.e. 1934 and admittedly from January, 1950 when the City Magistrate directed the defendant No.9 to carry on puja as usual in the said temple.

30. That the suit under Order 1 Rule 8, C.P.C. is bad and no one representing the Hindu community has been made a defendant in the suit, hence the suit deserves to be rejected.

31. That the suit be rejected with special costs as the plaints have impleaded the defendants No.1,2,3,4 and 9 knowing full well that they do not represent the Hindu community but their individual interests only.

32. That the plaintiff or plaintiff No.1 who claim rights under Act XIII of 1936 have no such right for the following among other reasons:-

(a) That the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act No.XIII of 1926 is 1936 is ultra vires, the Govt. of India Act 1935 which had come into force before the passing of the above Act. It does not come under any of the items of list ii of (the Provincial list or List III of the concurrent legislative list. Item no.9 of the concurrent list or item no.34 of the Provincial list cannot also come to save the above legislative even on the Principle of Pith and substance. Item no.28 of list III of the Constitution has

(b) That any sanction under sub-section (3) of section 80-A of the former Govt. of India Act will not validate the legislation after the repeal of the former Govt. of India Act by means of section 478 of the Govt. of India Act 1935.

(c) That in case the act is considered to be intra vires the suit not being one relating to administration of Waqf, taking of accounts, appointment and removal of Mutwallis, putting the Mutwallis in possession or Settlement or modifications of any scheme of management for which powers and duties have been specified under Section 18 (2) clause (e) of Act XIII of 1936 the present suit on behalf of plaintiff no.1 is misconceived and not maintainable. The plaintiff no.1 can only do things required or permitted by the Act to be done by the Board (sec.6(3).

(d) That the Act containing privelages based on classification of Waqfs on the ground of religion, particularly Section 5(3) of the Act is hit by article 14 and 19 of the constitution and is void under article 13 (1) of the Constitution.

(e) That by Act XVI of 1960 Section 85 (2) the above Act has been repleaded. The saving clause contained in the provision only saves the operation of the repealed Act in regard to any suit or proceedings pending in any court or to an appeal or application in revision against any orders that may be passed in such suit or proceeding subject there to anything done or any action taken in exercise of powers conferred by or under those Acts, shall, unless expressly required by any provision of Act 16 of 1936 be deemed to have been done or taken in exercise of the powers conferred by the new act as if the new Act were in force on the day on which such thing was done or action taken.

Sec. 9 (2) of Act 16 of 1960 only saves the finality of decision of Commissioner of Waqfs from being affected by provisions of Chapter I of Act 16 of 1960 but when there is no saving clauses with regard to decision u/s 5 (3) in the provision to sec.85 (2), the finality attached by Section 5 (3) will vanish after the repeal of the enactment.

(f) That the building and land in suit lying in the province of Oudh

became subject of Lord Canning proclamations and all previous rights became non existent. No fresh grant in respect of the property in suit having been made after the proclamation, the plaintiff or the Muslim community, have no right to sue.

(g) That the Commissioner of Waqf only has to make an enquiry about number of Shia and Sunni Waqfs in the district the nature of each Waqf, the gross income of property comprosed in the Waqf, the Govt. Revenue, the expenses and whether it is one excepted u/s 2. The Commissioner of Wakf has only to see whether any transaction is waqf or not and that to which sect. the Waqf belongs and further whether such waqf is or is not exempted by sec.2 of the Act. All these things he has to do in accordance with the definition of Waqf in section 3(1) of the Act XIII of 1936, an Act which is exclusively meant for certain clauses of Muslim Waqfs. The finality and conclusiveness is inteded to give effect to the scheme of administration under the Muslim Waqfs Act and does not and cannot confer jurisdiction to decide question of title as against non-Muslims. The legislatures u/s 5(3) does not say that the court shall take judicial notice of the reports of the Commissioner of Waqfs and shall regard them as conclusive evidence that the Waqf mentioned in such reports are Muslim Wqafs, as was done in Section 10 of the O.E.Act.

(h) That there has been no legal publication of alleged report and hence no question of any finality arises.

(j) That the purpose of publication is only to show to which sect. the Waqf belongs. It does not call upon objections or suit by persons not interested in what is held to be a Waqf or not viz. by non muslims.

33. That the allegation made in the amended para 6 A to 6 F are altogether wrong. Neither the plaintiff of that suit was suing in a representative capacity on behalf of the entire Hindu Community nor could he represent the Hindu community when he was persuing his personal interest to the determent of the interest of Hindu community at large. The defendant of that suit was also not representing the Muslims or the Sunnis and the plaintiff of this suit cannot be legally considered as claiming through that defendant of that suit. The points now in issue were never directly and

substantially in issue in the former suit and there is no resjudicate. There is no question of constructive resjudicata as the dispute of the defendant that the Hindu's are worshiping the land in dispute (the site of Janam Bhoom) from the immomerial and that they are entitled to continue worshiping and the other matters were not in issue in that suit and the matters of the present suit were foreign to that suit.

Hence no question of resjudicate either actually or constructing arises in this suit.

Paras 1 to 24. The allegations in paras 1 to 24 of the plaint are true and contrary allegations made by the defendants are denied.

Para 25. The allegations contained in para 25 of the written statement are denied. The Hindu public never held the mosque and Ganje-Shahidan in their possession nor did Puja therein since 1934 as alleged by them.

Para 26. Denied. The property has not been a temple as alleged by the defendants.

Para 27. Denied.

Para 28. Denied. The Muslim public has been in possession of the property in suit as mosque for the last 450 years when the mosque was constructed.

Para 29. Denied. The property has been placed in possession of a Receiver appointed by the court of the City Magistrate Ist Class, Faizabad.

Para 30. Denied.

para 31. Denied.

para 32. Denied.

para 33. Allegations in paras 6-A to 6-E of the plaint are correct and reiterated and contrary allegations in the defendants' written statement are denied.

Additional Pleas

Para 34. That it is absolutely wrong that the Hindu Public took possession of the property in dispute in 1934 and is holding possession of it as temple since then and have thus completed title by adverse possession. The possession of the Muslims community continued as ever and they have been saying their prayers in the mosque as such. The Hindu Public, of course in 1934, did some mischief to destroy the mosque and damage was caused to some extent, which was got repaired by the Government at the cost of the Government and the Hindu Public

was charged with punitive tax. It is absolutely baseless that the Hindu Public came in possession much less peaceful possession of the property in suit.

para 35. That the Muslim public as representative of the wakf has been in continuous possession of the property in suit for last 450 years i.e. since the time the mosque was constructed and even if the Hindu public had any interest whatsoever in the property in suit before that period the Muslim public representing the wakf perfected his title to the property in suit by their long undisturbed open possession against the interest of the Hindu Public which amounts to adverse possession of the wakf and thus title or interest if any, of Hindu Public has extinguished.

Para 1 to 24. The allegations in para 1 to 24 of the plaint are true. Contrary allegations are denied.

Para 25. The sketch map attached to the plaint is correct. Allegations against it are denied. The sketch map attached to the written statement is wrong and denied.

Para 26. Wrong and Denied.

Para 27. Denied. The property in suit is not a temple as alleged and has never been in possession of the defendants as alleged.

Para 28. Denied.

Para 29. Denied.

Para 30. Denied. The Muslim Public has always been saying prayers and visiting the Mosque and Ganje-Shahidan which is the property in suit for last 450 years when the mosque was built.

Para 31. Only this much is admitted that in 1950 the mosque in suit was attached under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and Sri Priadutta Ram was appointed Receiver and was placed in possession of the attached property as such. He is still continuing as Receiver. The rest of the allegations of this para are absolutely wrong and denied.

Para 32. Denied. The defendants have never been in possession or in-charge of the property in suit as alleged. The filing of the suit mentioned in this para is admitted. Rest is denied.

Para 33. Filing of the suit in the court of the Addl. Civil Judge Faizabad is admitted. The said suit has since been transferred to this Hon'ble Court and is pending.

Para 34. Denied. The plaintiffs and Muslim Public have been in possession for last 450 years.

Para 35. Denied. The plaintiffs have been in possession of the property in suit as Mosque and Ganje-shahidan for last 450 years and it is absolutely wrong that the Hindu public ever had possession of any sort over the property in suit as temple, as alleged by the defendants in this para.

Para 36. Denied. The Sketch map and the list given as part of the written statement is wrong and denied.

Additional Pleas

Para 37. That the Muslim public had been in continuous and open possession of the mosque and Ganje-Shahidan for last 450 years, i.e. the time when the mosque was built. In 1934 of course the Hindu Public out of mischief attempted to destroy the mosque and in their attempt they damaged the mosque at places which damage was repaired by the Government at the expense of the Government and Hindus Public was penalized by punitive tax for their unlawful actions.

Para 38. That the possession of the Muslim public was not disturbed and they remained in possession of the property as mosque and saying their usual prayers continuously upto December 1949 when Hindu Public by force entered the mosque, by breaking open the lock of the mosque and desecrated the mosque by placing idols inside the mosque which being made by the police proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. were started and to avoid apprehension of breach of peace the mosque was placed in custody of a Receiver. The Receiver is still holding the property for the benefit of Muslim Public.

Para 39. That the Muslim Public as representative of Wakf has been in continuous possession of the property in suit for las 450 years i.e. since the mosque was built and even if the Hindu Public had any interest whatsoever in the property in suit before that period of 450 years the Muslim Public as representative of wakf has perfected title to the property in suit by their long undisturbed open possession against the interest of Hindu Public to their

Para 1. The allegations contained in para one of the plaint are totally incorrect and are denied. There does not exist any mosque known as 'Babri Majid' in Ajodhya- Nor was any mosque built by Emperor Baber in Ajodhya more than 460 years ago as alleged- Nor did Babar make any conquest or occupation of any territory in India at the time alleged in the plaint- The story of the mosque as narrated in plaint para 1 is a pure fiction.

Para 2. The allegations contained in Para 2 of the plaint are totally incorrect and are denied. The alleged sketch map is entirely false and imaginary and is the outcome of the plaintiffs fancy- On the khasra no mentioned in the sketch map there stands neither any mosque nor any grave- The story of alleged battle between emperor Babar and any previous ruler of Ajodhya, whose name the plaintiffs are unable to mention in the plaint is a pure canard- Neither did any muslim lose his life in any battle on the land of the said khasra Nos. nor is there any grave or grave yard of any Muslim at the said place- In the circumstances, there arises no question of any mosque or grave yard having been vested or vesting in the Almighty- The allegations of any Muslim offering prayer or using the land covered by the said Khasra numbers as grave yard are altogether false and concocted - The real facts are that the said khasra numbers pertain to the Temple of Janam Bhumi' and other land appurtenant thereto-

Para 3. The allegations contained in para 3 of the plaint are incorrect and are totally denied- There has been no such mosque as alleged and the question of its upkeep and maintenance does not arise-

Para 4. The allegations contained in para 4 of the plaint are totally denied-

Para 5. The contents of para 5 of the plaint are denied- The existence of any mosque as alleged is denied- There never was a Chabutra as alleged nor do the plaintiffs give any correct or definite location nor the time of existence of any such Chabutra-

Para 6. The contents of para 6 of the plaint are denied. The answering defendants are not aware of any suit having been filed by any person known as Mahant Raghubar Dass styling himself to be the Mahant of Janam Asthan- Janam Asthan is situate in the north of temple of Janam Bhumi across the road passing between Janam Bhumi and Janam Asthan- Any sketch map filed by the said Raghubar Dass along with the alleged plaint would be false and fictitious and is not binding on the answering defendant-

Para 7. That the contents of para 7 of the plaint are totally false and are denied-

Para 8. The allegations contained in para 8 of the plaint are denied. The answering defendants deny the existence of the alleged Babri Mosque and the allegation of its being damaged and of its being rebuilt and re-constructed at any body's cost or through any Thekedar is altogether fictitious- Even if any communal riot be proved to have occurred in Ajodhya in 1934, no mosque whatsoever was damaged in Ajodhya in 1934-

Para 9. That the contents of para 9 of the plaint are totally denied except that U- P. Muslim Waqf Act 1936 was passed by the U-P- Legislature- The answering defendants deny the inquiry of the report alleged in the said plaint para and its publication in the Gazette- Even if any such inquiry were proved to have been held and its report published, it was totally an ex-parte inquiry secretly and surreptitiously made without any intimation and information to the answering defendants and the same is not binding upon them.

Para 10. That the contents of para 10 of the plaint as stated are not admitted since the answering defendants had no notice of the alleged inquiry or report, if any, nor had they any knowledge of the same, they could not file any suit to challenge the same- But the absence of any such suit cannot convert a Hindu Temple into a Muslim Mosque-

Para 11 That the contents of para 11 of the plaint are totally false and concocted- The alleged mosque never existed nor does it exist even now and the question of any Muslim or the Muslim community having been in peaceful possession of the same and having recited prayers till 23-12-49 does not arise- The building which the plaintiffs have been wrongly referring as Babari Mosque is and has always been the Temple of Janam Bhumi' with idols of Hindu Gods installed therein- The plaint allegation regarding placing of idols inside any mosque is a pure falsehood-

Para 12. That the contents of para 12 are altogether wrong and are totally denied- No such incident as mentioned in the plaint para even took place- Even if any report were proved to have been made by any Constable as alleged it must have been with the mischievous connivance of the plaintiffs-

Para 13. That the contents of para 13 of the plaint are distorted and are denied- The fact is that the said City Magistrate started proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C by attaching the tmeple of Janam Bhumi and placing it under the custody of Shri Priya Dutt Ram defendant no.2 as Receiver who still continues as such but the Puja pat of the deity in the said temple are regularly performed on behalf of the answering defendants- the Muslims have no right to offer prayer in the said Temple.

(IV) That on 22.3.1992 BJP Govt. in U.P. in active connivance of local administration demolished the Temple known as Sumitra Bhawan Temple.

(V) That Bhagwan Ramlala Birajman in temple known as Sita koop carries the deity of Bhagwan Ramlala. Mahant Dwarika Das having the famous payas well known as Sita koop in existence from the time beyond the human memory.

(VI) That Bhagwan Ramlalaji Birajman at Mandir Loomarsh Chabutra is situated in Plot No.160 and part No.159.

(VII) That a Big platears known as Laxman Thekri is also existed over the disputed property.

(VIII) That according to customs of Ramanandiya Akhara Pancha of Nirmohi Akhara use to live in vicinity of Shri Ram Janam Bhoomi Temple and that is why these holy places of worship like Sumitra Bhawan. Sita koop, Laxman Tekri, Loomarsh Chabutra which were in existence from time immemorial before its demolition, all these places of worship was situate with in the disputed property marked by letter E F G H I of the seachmap which was been filed already with W.S.

(X) That the said notification of acquisition by U.P. Govt. was struck down by Hon'ble High Court of Allahabad Lucknow Bench, Lucknow on 11.12.92, and thus the act of demolition of B.J.P.Govt. in U.P. was totally illegal.

"Para 13(c) That before the judgment of above writ petition dated 11.12.92 on 6.12.92 the temples of Nirmohi Akhara along with Chatti pujan Asthan and Panches residential place were all demolished by some miscreants who ha no religion, caste or creed. The said Temple Ram Chabutra had an history of Judicial scanning since 1885 A.D. and it existence and possession over temple Ram Chabutra was ever since in possession of Nirmohi Akhara and no other but Hindus allowed to enter and worship there and put offering in form of money sweets, fruits flowers etc. which has always been received by panches of Nirmohi Akhara.

Para 14. That the contents of para 14 of the plaint are altogether wrong and are totally denied- The Muslim citizens of India are not entitled to exercise any right in respect of the Temple of Janam Bhumi-

Para 15. That the Answering Defendant are not parties to the suit referred to in para 15 of the plaint and are not fully aware of the facts of any such suit- But this much is correct that the building in the present suit is a temple-

Para 16. That the Answering Defendants are not parties to the suit referred to in para 16 of the plaint and are not fully aware of the fact of any such suit-

Para 17. That the contents of para 17 of the plaint are substantially correct with this modification that the suit no.25 of 1958 is filed against the entire Muslim Community under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. and not against "certain Muslim Community" as alleged in the plaint para an that the building in question in that suit is in fact and in reality the temple of Janam Bhumi.

Para 18. That so far as the contents of the first sentence of para 18 of the plaint is concerned the answering defendants are not aware of the proceedings on the record of suit no.2 of 1950 as they are not parties to that suit- The Answering defendants are not aware of any order of injunction or any result thereof- But the allegations made in the remaining part of the plaint para are totally incorrect, fictitious and without foundation and are denied- The temple Janma Bhoom is under attachment and is placed in the custody of the Receiver- Only the Pujaries of the Answering Defendants are allowed to perform the Puja of the idols of the temple but the Hindu public is not allowed to enter the inner compound of the Temple which is guarded by armed police. The Muslims have no right to enter the Temple and the contents of the plaint para regarding the building being a Mosque, its construction its declaration as a public Waqf and the Muslims using it as a mosque for prayers are totally incorrect and are denied. There was absolutely no necessity of the present suit-

Para 19. That the contents of para 19 of the plaint are denied- The Sunni Board cannot represent the Shia Community- The suit as contemplated under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. is misconceived- The Answering defendants are informed and believes that all the individual plaintiffs are sunnies and cannot represent the Shia Community- It is said that Babar was a Shia and not a Sunni.

Para 20. That regarding plaint para 20 only this much is admitted that the building in question i.e. the temple of Janam Bhoom is at present in the custody and management of the receiver- The rest of the contents of the para are denied- The plaintiffs are not entitled to any relief.

Para 21. The Answering defendants are not aware of any notice being served to other defendant and the contents of para 21 of the plaint are denied.

Para 22. That the contents of the para 22 of the plaint are denied. The answering defendants deny the existence of any mosque and of any graveyard. The valuation has been exaggerated. The valuation of the building in question which is the temple of Janam Bhoom is not more than Rs.10000/-. The suit has been overvalues and the court fee paid is excessive.

Para 23. That the plaintiffs have got no cause of action. The allegations made in para 23 against the Hindus in regard to the alleged mosque are totally fictitious and are denied. The allegations against the State Government and officials are also false and are invalid for the purposes of the suit.

Para 24. That the plaintiffs are not entitled to any relief:-

Para 25. That the sketch map attached to the plaint is totally incorrect and is misleading. The details given in the map are wrong and imaginary. A correct sketch map of the property in dispute is annexed with this written statement as Annexure 'A' and which correctly shows the various constructions and places in their relative positions.

Para 26. That there exists in Ayodhya since the days of yore, an ancient math or Akhara of Ramanand-Varagis called Nirmohis with its seat at Ramghat known as Nirmohi Akhara, the defendant no.3, which is a religious establishment of public character, whereof the defendant no.4 is the present head as its Mahant and Sarbarahkar.

Para 27. That the temple in question known as Janam Bhoomi, the birth place of Lords Ram Chandra situate in Ayodhya belongs and has always belonged to the defendant no.3 who through its reigning Mahant and Sarbarahkar has ever since been managing it and receiving offerings made there at in form of money, sweats, flowers and fruits and other articles and things.

Para 28. That the said Asthan of Janam Bhumi is of ancient antiquity and has been existing since before the living memory of man and lies within the boundaries shown in sketch map appended hereto as Annexure 'A' within which stands the temple building of Janma Bhumi shown therein with the main temple of Janma Bhumi wherein is installed the idol of Lord Ram Chandra with Lakshmaji, Hanumanji and shaligramji.

Para 29. That the said temple has ever since been in the possession of the defendant no.3 and none others but Hindus have ever since been allowed to enter or worship therein and offerings made there, which have been in form of money sweats, flowers and fruits and other articles and things, have always been received by the defendants 3 and 4 through their pujaris.

Para 30. That no Mohammedan could or ever did enter in the said temple building. But even if it be attempted to be proved that any Mohammedan ever entered it which would be totally wrong and is denied by the answering defendants, no Mohammedan has ever been allowed to enter it or has ever attempted to enter it at least ever since the year 1934.

Para 31. That in the year 1950, The City Magistrate, Faizabad the defendant no.7 without any lawful cause and with the active connivance of defendants nos.5,6 and 8 and under the wrong persuasion of some of the plaintiffs attached the main temple of Janam Bhoom in a proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and placed it under the charge of defendant no.1 as receiver on 5.1.50 with all the articles mentioned in list B appended hereto.

Para 32. That the answering defendants have been wrongfully deprived of their management and charge of the said temple and have ever since the said wrongful attachment been waiting for the delivery of the charge and management of the same to them but since the defendant no.7 consigned the proceedings with a direction to take them out again after the temporary injunction in suit no.2 of 1950 mentioned in the plaint is vacated, while retaining the attachment and the Receiver, who refused to hand over charge and management of the temple to the answering defendants the latter had to file suit no.25 of 1959 for delivery of charge and management of the temple by removing the Receiver.

Para 33. That the said suit of the answering defendant was filed against the Muslim public under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. making some of the plaintiffs and defendants of the present suit as parties and the said suit is pending in the court of the Additional Civil Judge, Faizabad.

Para 34. That the suit is time barred and the plaintiffs for the Muslim community or any of its members have not been in possession within limitation over the property in dispute.

Para 35. That even if the plaintiffs succeed in showing that any Muslim ever said prayers in the building in question or used the same as a Mosque, or that the possession of the answering defendant and the deity (Shri thakur Ram Janki) was for any period of time disturbed by the Muslims or any of them, the answering defendant and the Deity, have again matured their title by continuos and adverse possession, open and hostile to the plaintiff and their community by remaining in continuous possession of the said building, that is the temple of Janam Bhoomi for more than 12 years and in any case ever since 1934, during which period the Hindus have been continuously doing worship and making offerings to the deity installed therein and the answering defendant have been managing the said temple and taking offerings made thereat.

Para 37. The contents of paragraphs 6A to 6D of the plaint are denied. Even if it were proved that any person known as Mahant Raghubar Dass made any admissions or statements or averments in the said suit the answering defendants are not bound by the same and their title and interest in the temple of Janam Bhoom can in no way be affected.

Para 38. The contents of paragraph 6E are denied. The building in dispute in the present suit is certainly a temple and not a mosque. The decision if any in the above noted suit of 1895 cannot and does not operate as Resjudicata in the present suit, nor is the said decision any piece of evidence in the present suit.

Para 39. The contents of para 6-F of the plaint are denied. The building in question in the present suit is a temple of Janam Bhoom and not a mosque as alleged by the plaintiff.

Para 40. That the contents of paragraphs 6A to 6F do not form part of pleading but contain argument and references to evidence.

Para 41. That the answering defendants do not derive any title from the said Mahant Raghbar Dass of suit No.61/280 of 1885 and are not bound by any actions or conduct of the said Raghubardass in the said suit.

Para 37. The contents of the amended paragraph 11(a) of the plaint are totally wrong concocted and are denied.

Para 38. The building in question was always a temple as shown in the written statement of the answering defendants Emperor Babar never built a mosque as alleged by the plaintiffs and Muslims or were never in possession of the building in question.

www.vadaprativada.com

Para 39. The allegation of the plaintiffs in their amended paragraph 11(a) of the plaint that "some mischievous persons entered the mosque and described" it is only a mischievous concoction. No question of the Muslims perfecting their title by adverse possession or of the extinction of the right, title or interest of the temple and of the Hindu public at all arises as the Muslims were never in possession.

(1) The Sub Judge, Faizabad while holding that 'CHARAN' (feet) is embossed on the Chabutara which is being worshipped. On a Chabutara over that Chabutara of Idol of Thakurji is installed. The Chabutara is in possession of the defendant No.3. Nirmohi. The District Judge, vide his Judgment while holding that it is most unfortunate that a Masjid should have been built on a land specially held sacred by the Hindues, Judge's Judgment.

(2) In regular suit No.256 of 1922 between Mahanth Narottam Das and Mahant Ram Swaroop Das (representing Nirmohi Akhara) with regard to realising dues from the hawkers in the area belonging to the parties following statement was made by the counsel on behalf of Mahant Narottam Das, which reads as under:-

"The land marked red in the map was all along parti land till the defendant made the constructions in dispute. The land belongs to the Nazul and the plaintiff as Mahant of the Janam Asthan and his predecessor have all along been in possession and has basis of his title on possession. No lease from Nazul has been taken. They have been holding the land under an Iqrarnama from the Shahi times. There has been no settlement decree"

Defendant's pleader says:-

"I admit para 1 of the W.S. the land never belonged to Nazul department.

(3). In a suit No.95 of 1941 between Mahant Nirmohi Akhara namely Ram Charan Das and Raghunath Das a Commission report was prepared. In the said report at item No.2 Description of Temple Ram Janam Bhumi belonging to Nirmohi Akhara was specifically mentioned. At item No.3 of the said report name of Sita Koop belonging to Nirmohi Akhara (Annexure-A).

Para 4. That the main temple of Sri Ram Janam Bhumi has ever been so surrounded by the holy pious places of religious importance like Sumitra Bhawan, Temple Sita Koop temple, etc. as narrated above. Sita Koop is the pious well, had a legend behind it. Its pious water had ever since been a source of peniral inspiration of religious faith and therefore Muslim

separate sheet vide Court's
Sd./- 11.11.1991

33. That the President of India promulgated Ordinance No.9 of 1990, known as Ram Janma Bhoomi Babri Masjid (Acquisition of Area) Ordinance, 1990, hereinafter referred to as the First Ordinance.

34. That the President of India promulgated Ordinance No.10 of 1990, known as Ram Janma Bhoomi Babri Masjid (Acquisition of Area) withdrawal Ordinance 1990, hereinafter referred to as the Second Ordinance.

35. That it may be mentioned here that the first Ordinance was issued by Sri V.P.Singh's Government as three point formula was chalked out to resolve the controversy, under which the land was to be acquired by the Central Government and status quo was to be maintained as existing on that date and thereafter the matter was to be referred to the Supreme Court under Article 143 of the Constitution to seek opinion on the relevant points.

36. That the said formula was appreciated by the citizens and political as well as religious leaders of both the community. In T.V. and A.I.R., interviews with political and religious leaders were broadcast and the nation was told by the Government that the matter has been resolved.

37. That immediately after the issuance of the First Ordinance, the Central Government appointed Commissioner of Faizabad Division as authorised person to take over the charge of the properties concerned as required by Section 7 of the First Ordinance and consequently charge of the entire property was taken over by the Commissioner, Faizabad Division on 20.10.1990.

38. That in view of the above facts, the First Ordinance was implemented in facts and spirit both and hence the land covered by the First Ordinance

vested in the Central Government free from all encumbrances and charges, and the receiver of the property was freed from all liabilities and the interim orders passed in the case came to an end.

39. That it is submitted that the First Ordinance was implemented and carried out and no part of the same remained to be complied with.

40. That as a consequence of issuance of First Ordinance, the following things happened.

(k) That the First Ordinance was implemented fully.

(ii) That the land in question vested in the Government and the same was freed and discharged from any trust obligation, mortgage, charge, lien and all other encumbrances affecting them.

(iii) That any order of attachment, injunction, decree or any order of court restricting the use of such property in any manner and also the order appointing the receiver in respect of the whole or in par of such property were withdrawn.

(iv) That with the commencement of the First Ordinance the pending suits, appeal or any other proceedings of whatever nature in relation to the property in question pending before any Court stood abated.

(v) That the Central Government took the management of the property in question also and also appointed authorised person who took charge of the property in question under Section 7 of the First Ordinance.

(vi) That the Commissioner of Faizabad Division was appointed as authorised person to take possession of all the properties in question under Section 7 of the First Ordinance as also the entire management from the receiver and in consequence of that, the possession as well as the management of the property in question was taken over by and on behalf of authorised person.

41. That to the utter surprise of the citizens, Sri V.P.Singh, the then Prime Minister decided to withdraw the First Ordinance under pressure of certain fundamentalists and consequently the Second Ordinance was issued withdrawing the First Ordinance. It is submitted that Sri V.P.Singh decided to withdraw the First Ordinance so that the issue may be kept alive and may be utilized as a weapon in the election.

42. That by the Second Ordinance, it has been provided that:-

www.vadaprativada.com

(a) Right, title and interest in relation to the area acquired shall be deemed never to have been transferred and vested in the Central Government;

(b) Suit, appeal or other proceeding of whatever nature relating to property in question pending before any court has to be deemed as restored to the position existing immediately before the commencement of the First Ordinance;

(c) The appointment of any receiver in respect of the property in question shall be deemed never to have been withdrawn;

(d) Any other action taken or thing done under the First Ordinance shall be deemed never to have been taken or done;

43. That it is respectfully submitted that it is not within the power of the President to restore the property to its original position, which has vested in the Government free from all charges encumbrances etc. by virtue of the First Ordinance. Once the property vests in the Government, it cannot be retransfered to original owner or owners specifically when the owners have not been named in the ordinance.

44. That the President can issue any Ordinance which is within law making powner of the parliament, but he cannot pass judicial orders restoring the suits and the proceedings which have abated as a consequence of acquisition of the property in dispute, nor can be revive the interim orders passed by the Court.

45. That even though doctrine of separation of powers has not been strictly applied in the Constitution of India but in pith and substance, there is separation of powers. There are three organs of the State viz. the Executive, the Legislature and the Judiciary. The Executive functions are performed by the President in consultation with the Council of Ministers being the Executive Head of the Union. The president also exercises Legislative powers by issuing Ordinances under Article 123 of the Constitution and within the meaning of Article 79 of the constitution, the President is an integral part of the Parliament. The president exercises judicial functions in a very narrow compass i.e. only under Article 72 of the Constitution by deciding the matters of grant of pardon, suspension, remittance and computation of sentences. Apart from the said judicial power the President has no other judicial power under the Constitution.

46. That when the President issues Ordinance under Article 123 of the Constitution, he exercises Legislative powers. The Legislative power of the president is coextensive with the power of the parliament to enact laws. Therefore, the president cannot make any law by Ordinance which is not within the power of the parliament. Article 123(3) of the Constitution clearly provides that if and so far as an Ordinance under this Article makes any provision which the Parliament would not under this Constitution be competent to enact, it shall be void.

47. That it is respectfully submitted that the parliament can enact law only on the subjects numerated in the union List or the Concurrent List or otherwise is competent to enact any law which is specifically provided for the Constitution. It is submitted that once a property is acquired and as a consequence of vesting in the government, the suits and the proceedings in respect of that property abate, interim orders come to an end and receiver's appointment is nullified, the parliament cannot change its view later on and declare that the things happened as mentioned above, may be deemed not to have happened. The parliament cannot revive a matter once abated. The consequential orders have to be passed by the Court in view of the new facts and circumstances and it is not within the Legislative competence of the Parliament to pronounce any judgment, grant any interim order or revive an abated suit.

48. That revival or abatement of suits, passing of interim orders and appointment of receiver, all are done by the Court and as such they are judicial functions and not legislative functions. It is not open to the parliament to enter into all these controversies. The Parliament is a law making Institution and as mentioned above, it cannot pronounce any judgment on any issue even though the same may be due to revival of an enactment.

49. That since the president has exercised judicial powers of the State which are not vested in him or in the Parliament, the revival of the appointment orders of receiver becomes illegal. Once a receiver is discharged from his liability, he cannot again be appointed as receiver by the Parliament. He can again be appointed receiver only in accordance with Order 40 of the C.P.C. Thus once a receiver is out of office, he cannot perform such

functions unless he is appointed by any competent court. It is submitted that under Order 40 Rule 3 of the C.P.C., every receiver appointed by the Court has to furnish such security as the court thinks fit. It is certain that as soon as the appointment of receiver is revoked, the security furnished by him comes to an end. Every term and condition imposed by the Court at the time of appointment on receiver comes to an end as soon as he is removed from office. The duty and powers of the receiver cannot be revived by a legislation. it is only for the Court to pass appropriate orders. Thus the revival of the appointment of the receiver by the Second Ordinance is void ab initio.

50. That there is no provision in the Second Ordinance for the authorised person to hand over charge of the properties to the original receiver. In the instant case, the authorised person took over charge of the properties in question from the receiver and as such he can restore the things or property to the receiver only when there was any provision in the Second Ordinance. Therefore, the authorised person is still legally custodian of the properties taken by him from the receiver and as such the receiver originally appointed cannot start function automatically in pursuance of the Second Ordinance.

51. That it is clear that at the time of issuance of the Second Ordinance, the suit and the proceedings had already abated. Interim orders passed by the Court had come to an end and the appointment of receiver was nullified from the date the First Ordinance came into force. Therefore, the things which were not existing or were not in operation or in force, could not be revived by the Second Ordinance.

52. That it is respectfully submitted that after enacting any law or issuing any Ordinance, it cannot be said that the same shall be deemed to never have been issued or passed. If this practice is adopted, there will be confusion and injustice with the public. Suppose by one Ordinance, for certain offences death sentence is provided and in trial summary procedure is applied and in pursuance of that Ordinance, a person is tried and sentenced to death and he is executed. Whether it will be open for the president to say that the said Ordinance be deemed to have never taken effect. The simple answer is no. If this is allowed to be done, the very

purpose of doctrine of rule of law would have no meaning and by issuing any Ordinance, the president may exercise the powers which are not vested in him and may undo many things which was not the intention of the Constitution-makers.

53. That this case is glaring example of the misuse of Ordinance making power by the President. It is clear that because of mala fide and extraneous considerations, the Government of Sri V.P. Singh conceded to the demand of certain disgruntled persons and advised the President to withdraw the First Ordinance.

54. That it is strange that in the First Ordinance it is mentioned that the circumstances exist which render it necessary to take immediate action, and the same very words are repeated in the Second Ordinance too. The submission is whether the circumstances which were existing for issuing the First Ordinance, went just reverse within a couple of days which necessitated issuance of the Second Ordinance withdrawing the First Ordinance.

55. That it has been held that separation of powers, rule of law and equality are the basic features of the Constitution and the Parliament cannot exercise judicial functions and cannot declare judgment as mentioned above or pass interim orders. Passing of interim orders and their revival, the abatement of suits and their revival, the appointment of receiver, all are judicial functions which are not to be performed by the Parliament; otherwise there would be no use of classification of powers of different organs of the State and there will be overlapping of powers and as such the Second Ordinance is void.

56. That the impugned Second Ordinance hits the basic structure of the Constitution and the ratio decindi of the cases of Keshwanand Bharti, Indira Nehru Gandhi and Minerva Mill is applicable in this case.

57. That it may be mentioned here that the impugned Second Ordinance was promulgated on 23.10.1990 and the same was to be laid before the Parliament in view of the provisions of Article 123 of the Constitution.

58. That both the Houses of the Parliament assembled on 27.12.1990 and six weeks, which means 42 days, have expired on 6.2.1991.

59. That during the said session of the Parliament which commenced on

www.vadaprativada.com

27.12.1990, the First Ordinance was not laid before any House of the Parliament. The matter was not discussed in the Parliament.

60. That till the dissolution of Lok Sabha also, the First Ordinance was not laid before any House and the matter was not discussed by any House of the Parliament.

61. That the Second Ordinance has not become an Act so far and as such under Article 123 of the Constitution, the second Ordinance ceased to operate from 7.2.1991.

62. That the Second Ordinance had been promulgated under Article 123 of the Constitution and it also makes certain provisions while withdrawing the First Ordinance. Therefore, Article 123 of the Constitution prescribes that every such Ordinance "shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of the Parliament or before the expiration of said period, resolutions disapproving the same are passed." It is submitted that the words "every such Ordinance" are very significant and they require that every Ordinance promulgated under Article 123 of the constitution will be life-less after six weeks of the date of reassembly of the parliament. There is no exception to this provision and the same is mandatory and to be construed strictly. In view of these facts, the Second Ordinance has ceased to operate with effect from 7.2.1991.

63. That it is note-worthy that the First Ordinance has not been repealed by the Second Ordinance but the same has been withdrawn. There is difference between repeal and withdrawal.

64. That it is respectfully submitted that the First Ordinance was withdrawn by the Second Ordinance and it was the second Ordinance which was to be laid before the parliament within six weeks, but it was not done as a result of which the Second Ordinance ceased to operate with effect from 7.2.1991.

65. That it is submitted that due to not following the procedure established by law and the law declared under Article 123 of the Constitution, the government failed to lay the second Ordinance before the Parliament within the time prescribed, the result of which is that the provisions of Second Ordinance cannot be deemed to be in force with effect from 7.2.1991.

66. That by the Second Ordinance, the First Ordinance was withdrawn subject to the provisions made under Section 2. Section 2, sub clauses (a), (b), (c) and (d) create legal fiction and certain things are to be deemed under the said provisions. Since the Second Ordinance has ceased to operate, the provisions of Section 2 are no longer in force and deeming clause comes to an end.

67. That it is respectfully submitted that a legal fiction was created by the Second Ordinance by using the word "deemed". The simple meaning of the word "deemed" is that 'by operation of law it is to be presumed though not actually happened' and in view of this fact the deeming comes to an end with the cessation of the Second Ordinance.

68. That the Second Ordinance is a withdrawal Ordinance and not repealing Ordinance. The First Ordinance was withdrawn subject to the provisions of Section 2 of the Second Ordinance. A legal fiction was also created viz. 'deemed'. since the Second Ordinance has ceased to operate with effect from 7.2.1991, the deeming clause also comes to an end and new the things done by the First Ordinance have become final.

69. That the effect of the cessation of the Second Ordinance is that the Second Ordinance has no legal existence now and the things happened under the First Ordinance have become final and operative and the withdrawal of the First Ordinance has come to an end. Hence the First Ordinance stood revived.

70. That in view of the facts mentioned above, it is respectfully submitted that the suit filed by the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs and others cannot be tried as it has already bated by operation of law.

dated 23.11.92

"71. That the suit filed by the plaintiffs is not maintainable as the provisions of Section 92 of the C.P.C. and Section 14 of the Religious Endowment Act have not been complied with.

72. That the instant suit filed by the plaintiffs is not maintainable as no person of the Waqf Board (plaintiff No.1) has verified the suit. The suit has been verified by plaintiff No.4 without any sanction, authority or power from the Waqf Board, plaintiff No.1.

73. That under Section 64 of the Waqf Act, only Waqf Board can file a suit. Since the instant suit has not been filed by the Waqf Board as the same has not been verified by any authorised person of the Waqf Board, the same is not maintainable and liable to be dismissed.

74. That the Waqf Board cannot file suit with private persons. In the suit filed by the Waqf Board, individual plaintiffs cannot be impleaded. The instant suit filed by the plaintiffs, therefore, cannot be said to be a suit filed by the Waqf Board and so in view of Section 64 of the Waqf Act, the suit is not maintainable.

75. That the Waqf Board is an instrumentality of the State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution. It being the State agency, cannot file a suit against the State itself under whose control it functions.

76. That nobody or authority which is a State within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution can file any suit in representative capacity sponsoring the cause of one particular community. Every such 'State' has to function impartially and it should have no concern with the interest of a particular community.

77. That no State authority can indulge in any manner in communal activities and cannot file suit against any community. Therefore, plaintiff No.1 had no authority or power to file the instant suit in representative capacity on behalf of Muslim community and against Hindu community.

78. That the Waqf Board is not a person within the meaning of Order I Rule 8 of the C.P.C. and therefore, it cannot file a suit invoking the said provision. As such the instant suit filed in representative capacity and the permission granted by the court to sue as such is inoperative and void.

79. That the suit as framed is a suit for declaration only and the relief for delivery of possession is in the words that "In case in the opinion of the court…" which means that the plaintiffs are not seeking relief of possession and leave it to the court to grant possession suo motu. The reason is obvious that the suit was barred by limitation and so specific prayer has not been made."

80. That vide gazette notifications dated 7th and 10th October, 1991, the U.P. Government has acquired 2.77 acres of land for the purposes of providing amenities to the pilgrims and also to develop the same for tourism purposes around the area where Lord Rama, the principal deity sits. The Waqf Board and one Mohammad Hashim have challenged the said notifications alleging that the said acquired land is part of the property in dispute and as such the suit cannot proceed unless appropriate amendment is made by the plaintiffs as the suit will stand abated so far as it relates to the acquired land."

Reg. Suit No.12 of 1961

Sunni Central Board of Wakfs & Ors. …Plaintiffs

Versus

Gopal Singh Visharad & Ors. ….Defendants

ADDITIONAL WRITTEN STATEMENT UNDER ORDER VIII RULE 9 C.P.C. BY DEFENDANT NO.10 HINDU MAHASABHA.

The defendant, above named, respectfully begs to submits as

1. That the contents of para 21A of the amended plaint are not admitted. No Masjid or Babri Masjid ever existed at the land in question, and as such no Masjid was demolished on 6.12.1992. It is further false to allege that idols were placed only in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949, but the fact is that idols were in existence at the place in question from the time immemorial. It may be mentioned here that Babar was an invader and he had no legal authority to construct any Masjid at the sacred place of Hindus i.e. the birth place of Lord Shri Ram. Mughal invader Babar through his commander Mir Baqi tried to demolish the old glorious temple of Lord Shri Ram at the place in question, but he could not succeed in his mission. After the riot in 1934, the three domes of the temple were damaged. It is submitted that before the said date, the outlook of the building was of pure Hindu temple, but while carrying out repair works, the Britishers tried to give it the shape of mosque and three domes were constructed over kasauti pillars which were of temple. The Hindus have all along been in possession over the entire area of Shri Ram Janma Bhoomi. The land in question has all along been in possession of Hindus and devotees of Lord Shri Ram. The worship of Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman is going on since the time immemorial. It is further submitted that with a view to rennovate the old temple and to construct a new one, Kar Sewa was performed and the said action cannot be said to be in violation of any order passed by any Court. There was no order in

force against Hindus in respect of the temple property/structure. it is submitted that the people of the State had voted for Bhartiya Janata Party in the election as it was committed to fulfil the aspirations of the people to construct a glorious Shri Ram Temple at the place in question. It is true that the Bhartiya Janata Party Government did not resort to firing and barbarian action which was adopted earlier by the Government headed by Sri Mulayam Singh Yadav on 30.10.1990 and 2.11.1990. It is further submitted that the Government cannot suppress the Will of the people and it has to honour and fulfil aspirations of the people in the democratic set up. The Bhartiya Janata Party has neither abetted for demolition of the structure, nor did anything in violation of law. The devotees of Lord Shri Ram who were present in lacs decided to demolish the old structure. In fact no offence was committed and no law was violated in demolishing the structure of Hindu temple with an intent to construct a big temple. At this place, it may be mentioned here that the Hindus have never been fanatic; they allowed every religion to flourish in Bharatvarsh. There is no evidence in history to show that the Hindus ever demolished any mosque or place of worship of any other religion. The history speaks otherwise. Every Mughal invader and ruler from Mohammad-bin-Qasim to Aurangzeb and even thereafter demolished, destroyed and looted the temples of Hindus. The plaintiffs never had/have any concern with the land in question and also they are not entitled for restoration of the building or its possession.

2. That the contents of para 21-B of the amended plaint are not admitted. The Muslim law cannot be made applicable in Bharatvarsh. Muslim law is also subject to the provisions of Constitution; it is the Constitution which is supreme and not any personal law, muchless Muslim law. Muslims cannot use any open piece of land in question for offering prayers and they also cannot encroach upon the land of religious places of Hindus. Under Shastrik law applicable to Hindus, the property once vested in the deity continues to remain of the deity. It is specifically submitted that the entire property in question belongs to Shri Ram Lala Virajman who is in the existence from the time

immemorial and is being worshipped by His devotees at the place in question without any interruption till date. According to the own averments of the plaintiffs, the place in dispute has got no significance for them as they can offer prayers at any place, even in open.

It would be appropriate and in consonance with the principles of 'secularism' that the Muslims do not offer prayers within the vicinity of the birth – place of Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman, which is sacred for Hindus and offer their prayers beyond the area of Panchkoshi parikrama. That will create brotherhood and peace everywhere. The para under reply itself shows that the alleged mosque was unnecessary and meaningless for Muslims too. It is further submitted that over the land in question, no mosque ever existed and the Muslims are not entitled to encroach upon the land in question or offer prayers at that place.

3. That the contents of para 21-C of the amended plaint are not admitted. It is further submitted that no mosque existed over the land in question and no property or land belonging to mosque has been acquired. The entire area covered under the Ordinance No.8 of 1993 and Act No.33 of 1993 belongs to Hindus and the devotees of Shri Ram Lala Virajman. The judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court is being misinterpreted and nowhere Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the area covered by the Act belongs to any mosque or adjacent area will be provided for enjoyment of the crucial area of mosque portion as per requirement.

4. That the relief clause 24-BB of the amended plaint cannot be granted to the plaintiffs. It is further submitted that the said relief has not been allowed to be added by this Hon'ble Court vide its order dated 25.5.1995. It is further submitted that the property in dispute has not been described in Schedule-A to the plaint. The description in Schedule A of the plaint cannot be termed as suit property as no dimensions, width, the statement of survey numbers etc. have been given for identifying the property as required by Order VII Rule 3 C.P.C. and hence the property described in Schedule-A of the plaint cannot be termed as suit property being vague and unidentifiable on the spot. The plaintiffs are not entitled for the possession of the structure standing at the site as the land in question and the adjacent area belongs to Hindus and devotees of Lord Shri Ram. Please also see additional pleas.

ADDITIONAL PLEAS

5. That it is worth to mention here that Bharatvarsh was divided on the basis of the religion and Pakistan was created for Muslims and the rest part of Bharatvarsh remained for Hindus. Secularism was adopted in the Constitution as it is one of the pillars of Vedic religion. No religion of the World preaches religious tolerance and secularism except the Vedic scriptures. No other community or religious group can claim any privilege or additional rights in derogation of the rights of Hindus. The rights of other religious group or community are subject to the rights of Hindus.

6. That it is an undisputed fact that Lord Ram, Lord Krishna and Lord Shiv are cultural heritage of India which has been recognized by Constituent Assembly. In the original constitution, on which the members signed, the pictures of our recognized cultural heritage may be found which include the scene from Ramayana (conquest over Lank and recovery of Sita by Lord Ram). Thus the citizens of this country are entitled to pay homage to their Lord at His birth-place and it being sacred place for Hindus cannot belong to Muslims or any other community or religious group. Therefore, the claim of Muslims over the land in question is unconstitutional and is also against Islamic laws and in the circumstances, the plaintiffs cannot claim themselves to be Muslims entitled to file the suit.

7. That it may be mentioned here that even according to the plaintiffs, the devotees of Lord Shri Ram and Hindus in general came into possession of the disputed structure on 22nd/23rd December, 1949 i.e. before the commencement of the Constitution on 26th January, 1950. If it is so, it cannot be said that the Hindus have committed any wrong. They have rectified the curse of Mughal Slavery before the commencement of the Constitution. The said action of invaders had no sanction of law and after independence, it is the right of citizens to nullify every misdeed and wrong action of the invaders.

8. That the entire area including the place in question belongs to deity Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman and his devotees and worshippers are entitled to offer prayers, Pooja, Arti, Bhog etc. and to pay homage to their Great Lord. They have also right to construct a glorious temple.

9. That it is remarkable to mention here that under the debris of demolished temple structure, a lot of signs and materials concerning temple have been found. The answering defendant believes that under the orders of this Hon'ble Court, they would be in safe custody. It may be mentioned here that a very big Chabutara beneath the present structure exists which also reveals that there existed a glorious and big temple of Lord Shri Ram. There is no evidence, signs or material at all to show that there was any mosque.

10. That the statutory receiver has not been arrayed as party to the suit and as such the plaintiffs cannot claim any relief against the receiver.

11. That Sunni Central Board of Waqfs has no legal authority to file the suit and as such the suit is liable to be dismissed.

12. That the (amended) relief as prayed for by the amendment has also become time-barred.

13. That the amended relief cannot be granted to the plaintiffs as the same is not permissible under the law.

14. That the case is to be decided on the principles of justice, equity and good conscience. Prayer for injunction has to be refused if the case of the plaintiff does not come within the four corners of the said principles. Since the plaintiffs have failed to prove that their case comes within the ambit of justice, equity and good conscience, the suit is liable to be dismissed, as no relief can be granted.

In Re:-

The Sunni Central Board of Waqf & Ors. …Plaintiffs

Versus

Sri Gopal Singh Vishrad & Ors. ….Defendants

Written Statement on behalf of Baba Abhiram Dass and Pundarik Mishra, Advocate Bajrandas and Satyanarayan Das defendant no. is as follows:-

Para 1. The contents of Para 1 of the plaint is wrong and is denied.

Para 2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are absolutely wrong and are denied. There was never any battle between Babar and the Ruler of Ayodhya on any graveyard or Mosque alleged to be built (as alleged) by the said Babar.

Para 3. It is wrong and denied.

Para 4. It is wrong and not admitted.

para 5. It is wrong and not admitted.

Para 6. That the answering defendant has no knowledge of the facts mentioned in para 6 of the plaint hence the contents of para 6 are denied. The additional Paras added by the amendment as A to P are wrong and denied. See further pleas.

Para 7. It is denied.

Para 8. The contents of Para 8 are absolutely wrong and not admitted.

Para 9. The answering defendant has no knowledge of the allegations made in para 9 of the plaint hence they are denied. See Additional pleas.

Para 10. The contents of para 10 is denied. See further pleas.

Para 11. Para 11 is wrong and all the allegations made therein are denied.

www.vadaprativada.com

Para 12. Denied.

Para 13. The answering defendant has no knowledge about the allegations made in Para 13 of the plaint. Only this much is admitted that Babu Priya Dutt Ram was appointed Receiver of the Janam Astahn Temple at Ajodhya by this Hon'ble Court.

Para 14. Denied.

Para 15. Para 15 is so far admitted that the defendant no.1 did file a true case against a few Muslims and certain Government Officials for injunction and declaration. The case was filed in this Hon'ble Court on true and correct allegations.

Para 16. That the answering defendant admits only this much that Parmahans Ram Chander Dass did file another suit in this Hon'ble Court which is true and correct.

Para 17. That the answering defendant has no knowledge of the allegations contained in para 17 of the plaint hence denied.

Para 18. That only this part of the Para 18 of the plaint is admitted that Hindus do Puja etc. in the Janam Bhum temple and the Muslims are not allowed to go near that temple, which they wrongly and maliciously described as Mosque. The rest of the allegations of this para are denied.

www.vadaprativada.com

Para 19. Denied. The plaintiffs have no right to make the defendants to contest the suit in a representative capacity as a self appointed representative of the Hindu Community which extends from Madras to Kashmir and from Dwarika to Calcutta. None of the defendants represent all the Hindus in India. The Janam Bhum temple is a public charitable Institution and the answering defendant contest this suit in his individual capacity, there are Hindu living in various parts of the world outside India.

Para 20. Denied.

para 21. That the answering defendant has no knowledge of the facts mentioned in para 21 of the plaint, hence it is denied.

Para 22. Denied.

Para 23. That the contents of para 23 are wrong. The suit is hopelessly time barred. The Muslims have not been in possession of the property indispute since 1934 and earlier.

www.vadaprativada.com

Para 24. That the plaintiffs are not entitled to any relief and suit is liable to be rejected with costs.

FURTHER PLEAS

Para 25. That the members of the Hindu Community have from time immemorial been worshipping the site of Janam Bhum upto this time by virtue of their right and the Muslims were never in possession of the temple called as "Ram Janam Bhawan" If ever they were in interrupted possession of the falsely called "Babri Mosqu" their possession ceased there on in 1934 and since then Hindus are holding that temple in their possession and their possession has ripened into statutory adverse possession thereon since 1934. Even prior to 1934 continuous daily Hundu Puja is being done in that temple and the Muslims have never offered their prayers since 1934 in the temple falsely described as 'Babri Mosque'.

Para 26. That the said temple in dispute is a public charitable institution. it does not belong to any sect, group, math or individual or Mahanth or any Akhara and it is a public place of worship open to all the Hindus. No individual Hindu or Mahanth can be said to represent the entire Hindu Community as far as this ancient temple is concerned.

Para 27. That the suit is time barred as no action was taken in time from the orders of the City Magistrate under Section 145 Cr.P.C.

Para 28. that the suit is time barred and the plaintiffs were never in possession over the temple in dispute since 1934 and the Hindus were holding it adversely to them to their knowledge.

Para 29. That the suit deserves to be rejected because the Hindu Puja is going on in the said temple from the past at least 34 years i.e. 1934 and admittedly from January 1950 when the City Magistrate directed the defendant no.9 to carry on Puja as usual in the said temple.

Para 30. That the suit under Order 1 Rule 8 C.P.C. is bad as no one representing the Hindu Community has been made a defendant

in the suit hence the suit deserves to be rejected.

Para 31. That the suit be rejected with special costs as the plaintiffs have impleaded the defendants 1 to 4 and 9 knowingly fully well that they do not represent the Hindu Community but their individual interest only.

Para 32. That the plaintiff or plaintiff no.1 who claim rights under Act XIII of 1936 have no such right for the following among other reasons:-

(a) That the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act No.XIII of 1936 is ultra vires, the Govt. of India Act 1935, which had come into force before the passing of the above Act. It does not come under any of the items of list II of the Provincial list or list III of the concurrent legislative list, item no.9 of the concurrent list or item no.34 of the Provincial list cannot also come to save the above legislature even on the principle of Pith and substance. Item No.28 of list III of the Constitution has therefore been remodled.

(b) That any sanction under sub section (3) of Section 80 A of the former Government of India Act will not validate the legislation after the repeall of the former Government of India Act by means section 321 of the Government of India Act 1935.

(c) That in case the Act is considered to be ultra vires the suit is not being one relating to administration of Waqf, taking of accounts, appointment and removal of Mutwali, putting the Mutwalli in possession or settlement or modifications of any scheme of management for which powers and duties have been specified under section 18 (2) clause (e) of Act

XII of 1936, the present suit on behalf of the plaintiff No.1 can not be filed as required or permitted by the Act to be done by the Board (Sec.6(3).

(d) That the Act containing privileges based on classification of Waqfs on the ground of religion, particularly section 5 (2) of the Act is hit by article 14 and 19 of the constitution and is void under Article 13 (1) of the Constitution.

(e) That by Act XII of 1960, section 85 (2) of the above Act has been repleaded. The saving clause contained in the provision only saves the operation of the repealed Act in regard to any suit or proceedings pending in any court or to an appeal or application for revision against any orders that may be passed in such suit or proceedings subject thereto any thing done or any action taken in exercise of powers conferred by or under those Act shall unless expressly required by any Provision of Act XIII of 1936, be deemed to have been done or taken in exercise of the powers conferred by the new Act as if the new act were in force on the day on which such thing was done or action taken. Section 9(2) of the Act XV of 1960 could not save the finality of decision of Commission of Waqfs from being affected by provisions of Chapter I of Act XVI of 1960 but when there is no saving clause with regard to the decision u/s 5(2) in the provision to section 83 (2) the finality attached by section 5(3) will vanish after the repeal of the enactment.

(f) That the building and land in suit lying in the Province of Oudh become subject of Lord Canning Proclamations and all previous rights become non-existent. No fresh grant in respect of the property in suit having been made after the proclamation, the plaintiff or the Muslim Community have no right to sue.

(g) That the Commissioner of Waqf only has to make an enquiry about number of Shia and Sunni Waqfs in the District, the nature of each Waqf, the Government revenue, the expenses and whether it is one accepted under Section 2. The Commissioner of Waqf has only to see whether any transaction is Waqf or not, and that, to which sect the Waqf belongs and further whether such Waqf is or is not exempted by Section 2 of the Act. All these things he has to do in accordance with the definition of Waqf in Sec 3(1) of the Act XIII of 1936, an Act which exclusively meant for certain clauses of Muslim Waqfs. The finality conclusiveness is intended to give effect scheme of the administration under the Muslim Waqf Act and does not and cannot confer jurisdiction to decide the question of title as against non Muslim. The legislature under section 5(3) does not say that the court shall take judicial notice of the reports of the Commissioner of Waqfs and shall regard them as conclusive evidence that the waqf mentioned in such reports are Muslim waqfs as Waqfs done in Section 10 of the Taluq

(h) There has been no legal publication of alleged report and hence no question of any finality.

(i) That the purpose of publication is only to show to which section the Waqf belongs. It does not call upon objections or suit by persons not interested in what is held to be waqf or not vis by non Muslims.

Para 33. That the allegations made in the amended para 6A to 6e are all together wrong. Neither the plaintiff of the suit was suing in a representative capacity on behalf of the entire Hindu Community nor could represent the Hindu Community when he was perusing his personal interest to determine not the interest of Hindu community at large. The defendants of that suit was also not representing the Muslims or the Sunnis and the plaintiff of this suit cannot be legally considered as claiming through that defendant of that suit. The points now in issue were now directing and substantially in issue in the former suit and here is no resjudicata. There is no question of resjudicata as the dispute of the defendant that the Hindu's are worshipping the land in dispute (the site of Janam Bhum) from time immemorial and that they are entitled to continue worshipping and the other matters were not in issue in that suit and the matters of the present suit were foreign to that suit. Hence no question of resjudicata either actually or constructive arises in this suit.

Written Statement of Dharam Das, Chela Baba Abhiram Das, resident of Hanuman Garhi, Ayodhya, District Faizabad, impleaded as Defendant No.13, by order dated the 3rd May 1989, of the Lucknow Bench of the High Court in Miscellaneous Case No.29 of 1987, for withdrawal of the suit along with connected suits, under section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, for original trial by the High Court.

1. That the contents of paragraph 1 of the plaint are denied. It is submitted that Babar was not a fanatic but a devout Muslim who did not believe in destroying Hindu temples. It was Mir Baqi, who was a Shia and commanded Babar's hordes, who demolished the ancient Hindu temple of the time of Maharaja Vikramaditya at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, and tried to raise a mosque- like structure in its place with its materials. Babar was not an Emperor. He was a marauder. What was constructed was not a 'mosque' nor was it constructed for the use of the Muslims in general. It was not known as 'Babri Masjid', but was described as 'Masjid Janmasthan' in British times. Objective evidence of the demolition of the ancient temple and attempted construction of the 'Mosque' at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi existed in the form of the 14 Kasauti Pillars, the Sandal wood beam, and other structural features of the building, which are more fully detailed in the additional pleas. Mir Baqi did so on account of the superstitious influence of the so called Faqir named Fazal Abbas Qalandar who had demanded the destruction of the ancient temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi and the construction of a mosque at that place for him to offer prayers, although the doing so is opposed to tenets of Islam as disclosed by the Qoran and the Fatwas issued by Muslim theologians.

2. That the contents of paragraph 2 of the plaint are denied. The sketch map annexed to the plaint is wholly wrong, vague and out of all proportion and does not make any sense. There is no grave-yard anywhere at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, nor was there any such grave-yard as alleged at any time within 12 years of the institution of the suit. There was nothing, neither a mosque nor a graveyard, which vested or might have vested in the 'Almighty' of the Muslims, namely 'ALLAH' . According to the Islamic faith, as explained in the Fatawa-e-Alamgiri : Volume VI, page 214: "It is not permissible to build mosque on unlawfully acquired land. There may be many forms of unlawful acquisition. For instance if some people forcibly take somebody's house (or land) and build a mosque, or even Jama Masjid on it, then Namaz in such a mosque will be against Shariat" . The allegation about the loss of many lives in the battle that is said to have ensued between Babar's hordes led by Mir Baqi and the Ruler of Ayodhya must be related to the demolition of the ancient Hindu temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, by Mir Baqi; and in that context it is not denied: but it is denied that any of the graves of the Muslims who lost their lives in that battle more than 450 years ago were situated on, or anywhere near Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. It is

submitted that a Mosque and a graveyard go ill together according to the tenets of Islam, for the offering of prayers except the funeral prayers on the death of a person buried therein is prohibited in a graveyard. The khasra numbers of the alleged 'Mosque' and the alleged 'grave-yard' are all imaginary and fictitious, and are not identifiable at site. Their correctness is denied.

3. That the contents of paragraph 3 of the plaint are denied. There was no 'Mosque' and there could be no question of any grant for its upkeep or maintenance, or any such purpose. There is no evidence of any expenditure from the alleged grant on the upkeep or maintenance of the building alleged to be the 'Babri Masjid'.

4. That the contents of paragraph 4 of the plaint are denied. The alleged grant, if any, in cash or by way of revenue free land described as 'Nankar', must have been for personal services rendered or promised to be rendered by the grantee to the British in enslaving India by suppressing the First War of Independence of 1857, miscalled the Sepoy Mutiny by them.

5. That in paragraph 5 of the plaint the existence of the Chabutra 17'x21' within the premises of the building miscalled a 'mosque', is admitted; but the construction thereon was not "a small wooden structure in the form of a tent." It was the Temple of Bhagwan Sri Rama Lala. Originally there was a Temple erected at that place after the demolition of the ancient temple of Maharaja Vikrameditya's time. It is submitted that no Muslim Ruler could have permitted the raising of a temple at the place where the Chabutra was situated if the premises had been a 'mosque'. On the demolition of even that temple by Aurangzeb, the worship of Bhagwan Sri Rama Lala was carried on at that Chabutra, and there was a small Temple existing thereon, and not merely" a small wooden structure in the form of a tent."

The deity installed therein had been continuously worshipped without any break or interruption. That place called the Rama Chabutra.

Amended as per order of Court dated 21.08.95
Sd./- 04.09.95

6. That in paragraph 6 of the plaint, the fact of the filing of the suit by Mahant Raghubar Das against the Secretary of State for India is not denied, but the rest of the contents of that paragraph are denied. That suit was for permission to erect a permanent temple in place of the then existing structure at the Rama Chabutra. Mohammad Asghar was added later as a defendant on his own request. It is denied that the alleged 'mosque' at Janmasthan was a 'mosque' or that Moahammad Asghar was its Mutwalli. The result of that suit is wholly irrelevant in the present suit and does not bidn the answering Defendant or the Hindus in general or the worshippers of Bhagwan Sri Rama Lalla Virajman at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi in particular.

6-A. That the contents of paragraph 6-A of the plaint are denied.

6-B. That the contents of paragraph 6-B of the plaint are denied.

6-C. That the contents of paragraph 6-C of the plaint are denied.

6-D. That the contents of paragraph 6-D of the palint are denied.

6-E. That the contents of paragraph 6-E of the plaint are denied.

6-F. That the contents of paragraph 6-F of the plaint are denied. It is rather established by the judgments in that suit that Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, called the Janmasthan, was a sacred place of Hindu worship of Bhagwan Sri Ram, as the incarnation of Lord Vishnu, symbolized by the existence of the objects of worship like the Sita-Rasoi , the Charans, and the idol of Bhagwan Sri Rama Lala Virajman on the Chabutra, within the precincts of the building at Janmasthan, which was alleged to be a Masjid; and that there was no access to it except through that place of Hindu worship by which it was land-locked. Such a building could not be a Masjid according to the tents of Islam.

7. That the contents of paragraph 7 of the plaint are denied.
8. That the contents of paragraph 8 of the plaint are not admitted in the form in which they are stated. Correct facts are stated in the Additional Pleas.
9. That in paragraph 9 of the plaint the fact of the enforcement of the U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act in the year 1936 is not disputed. The rest of the contents thereof are denied. The alleged inquiry and report said to have been made by the Commissioner of Waqfs was an ex-parte affair. It is a waste paper, and is not binding on anyone, particularly the Hindus. Correct facts are stated in the Additional Pleas.
10. That the contents of paragraph 10 of the plaint are denied. correct fact are stated in the Additional Pleas.
11. That the contents of paragraph 11 of the plaint are denied. The Muslims were never in possession of the alleged 'mosque'. They never could recite prayers therein, and never recited any prayers therein till 23.12.1949, or any date even remotely within 12 years of the institution of the suit. Correct facts are stated in the Additional Pleas.

11-A. That the contents of paragraph 11(a) of the plaint are denied. It is incorrect that the structure raised at Sri Rama janma Bhumi, during the time of Babar after demolition of the Ancient Hindu Temple which existed there, was built by Babar, or that he was an Emperor, or that it was or could be a 'mosque'. There was and there could be no question of any exclusive or continuous possession by the Muslims over the site of the ancient Hindu Temple or any part or portion of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, which was by itself an object of worship by the Hindus and as such a deity having the status of a juridical person in the eye of law. The act of demolition of the ancient Hindu Temple and entering upon Sri Rama Janma Bhumi was a wrongful act of trespass, which did not, according to the tents of Islam, commend itself to Allah, for He does not accept the waqf of any property or thing taken by force or by an illegal act. A Waqf cannot according to Muslim Law be made of a thing or property not belonging to the Waqf as owner.

The attempt to raise a mosque-like structure did not succeed; and no

'mosque', deemed to be waqf according to Muslim Law, ever came into existence. The act of Mir Baqi was a fleeting act to trespass and not an act of entering into adverse possession by a person claiming ownership against the true owner, and no Muslim could by any such act of trespass or its repetition, confer any right, title or interest in the nature of a waqf in favour of ALLAH for the purposes of a 'mosque.' According to Muslim law, ALLAH alone is the owner in possession of all waqf property. A mutwalli is a mere manager, and neither the Mutwalli nor the beneficiaries of a Muslim waqf, can claim or have any rights of ownership or possession as an owner for, or on behalf of ALLAH. Title by way of a Muslim waqf, cannot, therefore, be acquired by adverse possession, for Allah does not accept the waqf of property by a wrongful act of adverse possession. The Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA VIRAJMAN in the ancient Temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, and the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI, which was by itself a Deity and worshipped as such since ever and had a juristic personality of its own, continued to own and possess the property rights of ownership and possession of the space of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi at Ayodhya, without any dent on them by any such acts of trespass as the demolition of the Temple or the attempt to raise a mosque—like structure thereat. The act of installation of the Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA under the central dome of the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, in the form of the idol of Bhagwan SRI RAMA LALA on Paush Shukla 3 of the Vikram Samvat 2006, by His worshippers, led by, among others, the answering defendants Guru, Baba Abhiram Das, was not a mischievous act, but a perfectly lawful exercise of their right by the Hindus to worship the Deity. The Muslims did not get any title by adverse possession, and the pre-existing right, title and interest of the Deities continued to exist uninterrupted, by any such act of Mir Baqi as is said to have been committed during Babar's time over 400 years ago. The act of the Hindus on Pausha Shukla 3, of Vikram Samvat 2006, was in furtherance and re-assertion of the pre-existing property rights of the Deity and their own right of worship. And BHAGWAN SRI RAMA did MANIFEST HIMSELF that day at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. Even the Muslim Havaldar, who kept guard at the police Outpost, Abdul barkat by name, experienced the Manifestation, by His Grace. The day is since them

celebrated as the Prakatya Dieas, every year, at Ayodhya. At any rate, it is submitted, in the altenative, that the Muslims having lost whatever fleeting possession they might have had by tespass over a part of the area of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, that was finally and effectively brought to an end, and they have no right, title or interest whatsoever in the land or the mosque-like structure at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya.

12. That paragraph 12 is not disputed in so far as the recording of a report of the 'incident' of 23.12.1949 by the police is concerned, but the contents of the report are not admitted to be correct. They are denied as motivated and incorrect.

13. That in paragraph 13 of the plaint, the fact of the passing of the preliminary order dated 29.12.1949, under Section 145 of the code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, is admitted, but for a correct appraisal of the terms of the order, the answering defendant relies on the order itself. Sri Priya Dutt Ram was appointed Receiver to manage the worship of the Deity of Bhagwan Sri Rama Lala Virajman under the central dome of the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, with the duties of a Shebait imposed on him. Admittedly, the Muslims were prohibited from entering upon the building premises and the surrounding area at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi. They had no legal or Constitutional right of offering Namaz in the building or doing anything else at the place. It was not a mosque at all. Babu Priya Dutt Ram died some twenty years ago and the Receiver appointed by the Civil Court in this very suit, with the duties of a Shebait imposed on him for arranging and managing the worship of the Deity, in the terms prescribed by the orders culminating in the order dated 23.7.1987, of the Hon'ble High Court in F.A.F.O. No.17 of 1977,Ram Lakhan Saran V. The Sunni central Board of Waqfs and others: had taken over and was in charge of the worship of the Deity.

14. That paragraph 14 of the plaint is denied. The action of the City magistrate was not illegal. But if the plaintiffs regarded it to be illegal or 'fraught with injustice', for having re-inforced their ouster from the premises, which, according to them, had already been completed on 23.12.1949, they ought to have challenged it and sought appropriate relief within the limitation of one year prescribed by Article 14 of the Schedule to the Indian Limitation act, 1908, which was in force at that time. it has to be added that the Constitution of India came into force on January 26, 1950, and therefore the action taken by the City Magistrate by passing the preliminary order which he did on 29.12.1949, or the giving of the charge of the management of the worship of the Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN under the central dome of the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, to the Receiver, Babu Priya Dutt Ram, could not be said to have deprived the Muslim citizens of India of any Constitutional rights, for, before 26.1.1950 no one had any such rights in India.

15. That in paragraph 15 of the plaint the filing of the suit No.2 of1950 by Sri Gopal Singh Vishard in his personal capacity is admitted, but the averment that the statement therein that the building in suit was a temple and that there were Deities installed therein, was a' false allegation', is itself false and incorrect, Indeed, the learned Civil Judge, In whose court the suit had been filed on 16.1.1950, issued an interim injunction in the terms prayed for, that very day; and, on the application of the District Government counsel, the interim injunction was clarified by the Court on 19.1.1950, by saying that: "The parties are hereby restrained by means of temporary injunction to refrain from removing the Idol in question from the site in dispute and from interfering with Puja etc., as at present carried on." This temporary injunction was confirmed after hearing the parties, by order dated 3.3.1951, by the learned civil Judge. On appeal by the Muslims to the high court, the temporary injunction was upheld by a Division Bench of the High Court by Judgment dated 26.4.1955. The injunction has remained in operation down to the present day.

16. That the filing of the second suit No.25 of 1950 by Paramhans Ram Chandra Das, now Mahant of Digambar Akhara, Ayodhya, for identical reliefs as in suit No.2 of 1950, after serving notice under section 80 of the Code of Civil procedure is admitted, in reply to paragraph 16 of the plaint; but it is not correct to say that all the defendants were the same as in suit No.2 of 1950. Although the first five Muslim Defendants were the same in both the suits, and the Defendants Nos.6 and 7 were also identical, namely, Uttar Pradesh State and Deputy commissioner, Faizabad, respectively; Defendants Nos.8 and 9 of suit No.2 of 1950, namely, the Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad, and Superintendent of Police, Faizabad, were not made parties to suit No.25 of 1950. The two suits were consolidated, and for all practical purposes they became one suit. All the five Muslim Defendants of the two suits are dead.

17. That in paragraph 17 of the plaint the fact of the filing of suit No.26 of 1959 (not 26 of 1960) is admitted but it has to be added that the Muslim Defendants to that suit, namely, Haji Phekku, Mohd. Faiq, and Mohd. Achhan Mian, who were defendants Nos.2,3 and 5 in suits Nos.2 and 25 of 1950, are dead, so that no one represents the Muslim community in that suit; and the Receiver Babu Priya Dutt Ram is also dead.

18. That in paragraph 18 of the plaint, the fact of the issue of the temporary injunction in suit No.2 of 1950 is admitted. It is also admitted that the Muslims were prohibited from entering any place within 200 yards of the area of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. The rest of the allegations are denied. It is denied that the building was a ‘mosque’, or that it was declared to be a public waqf, or that it was used by generations of Muslims as a ‘mosque’ for reciting prayers therein since its construction about 460 years ago. It may be pointed out that the suit was filed in 1961 and the building is said to have been erected by Mir Baqi in 1528. It could not, therefore, be said to have been constructed 460 years ago when the suit was filed, the period elapsed having been only 438 years between 1528 and 1961. It is further submitted that the issue of the temporary injunction was upheld even on appeal to the High Court by the Muslim Defendants to the suit. It cannot be said to be ‘fraught with injustice’, and a separate suit did not and does not lie to have that injunction set aside, whether by the Muslim public or otherwise, against the Hindu public or otherwise, whether under Order I, Rule 8, of the Code of Civil Procedure or under any other provision of law.

5. That paragraph 19 of the plaint is denied. The plaintiffs cannot and do not represent the entire Muslim community, nor do the defendants originally impleaded or added later, in fact represent, or can represent the entire Hindu community. The permission to sue in a representative capacity was obtained by the plaintiffs on the basis of misrepresentations and suppressions. Such permission is always open to be examined at the final hearing.

6. That paragraph 20 of the plaint is denied. The Receiver was by the express terms of the Order, required not to remove the Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN under the central dome of the building, but was, on the other hand required to continue the sewa and puja of the deity, and to receive on his behalf the offerings made by the devotees and the pilgrims. The Receiver's position was that of a curator or manager appointed to look after the affairs of a person who cannot personally do so. The position of the Idols was not and could not be disturbed. But consistently with that position the managerial duty and obligation was entrusted to the Receiver.

Amended as per court order dated
Sd./- 04.09.95

The possession of the Receiver was the possession of the Deity as through a Shebait appointed for him by the court. A suit for possession over a 'mosque' can only be filed by the Mutwalli thereof. Others who are not Mutwallis of a 'mosque' can only sue for a declaration that the place is a 'mosque'. The plaint does not idicate that there is, or ever was a Mutwalli of the alleged 'mosque', which can only mean that the building was not a ''mosque'' and there was no waqf in respect of it. Indeed, the plaintiffs suit was still-bora. It is barred by limitation and all the laws applicable to a suit of its nature; and it can never succeed. The plaint deserves to be rejected under

www.vadaprativada.com

order VII, Rule 11, of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

7. That paragraph 21 of the plaint is denied.

8. That paragraph 22 of the plaint is denied.

9. That paragraph 23 of the plaint is denied. The cause of action pleaded therein is fictitious. It could in no case be said to be renewed de-die-in-diem, inasmuch as the imaginary injury complained of does not constitute a continuing injury or a continuing wrong in the eye of law. The suit is hopelessly time-barred by the limitation of 6 years prescribed by article 120 of the Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, which squarely applies to the allegations and the cause of action pleaded in the plaint, throuh the answering defendant submits that there was in fact no cause of action for the suit, and the suit is only a malicious exercise in futility which is fit to be dismissed as such.

Amended as per courts
Sd./-04.09.95

10. That the plaintiffs are not entitled to the relief claimed, or any of them. The suit is liable to be dismissed with costs. In fact, it is false, malicious and vexatious and the defendants are entitled to be awarded the maximum amount of special costs by way of compensation against the plaintiffs.

www.vadaprativada.com

11. That the building in suit was no 'mosque' and its surrounding was not a grave-yard. It is a fact of history that there was an Ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramditya's time at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, and that was demolished by Mir Baqi. The dominant motive of Iconoclasts was the prejudice born of ignorance that Hindu temples were places of Idolatry, which was condemned by the Qoran. But as stated more fully, herein below, those who are acquisinted with the true knowledge of Qoran also know that a 'mosque' cannot be built in the place of a Hindu temple after forcibly demolishing it, for ALLAH DOES NOT accept Namaz offered at a place taken by force, or in a 'mosque' built on land obtained by Gasba or forcibly woithout title. it seems,

therefore, that the three domed structure raised at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi after demolishing the Ancient Hindu Temple, was not intended to be used as a 'mosque', and it was never used as 'mosque'. It was an act of putting down Idolatry. The alleged killing of Muslims in the battle that ensued with the Hindus, and who are alleged to have been buried at the place, only shows unmistakably that the demolition of the Temple led to a fierce struggle by the Hindus. The alleged existence of a graveyard all round it, also shows that the Muslims could not have gone to offer Namaz in the building, which was abandoned and never used as a 'mosque' by the Muslims.

12. That it is manifestly established by public records and relevant books of authority that the premises in dispute is the place where, BHAGWAN SRI RAMA manifested Himself in human form as an incarnation of BHAGWAN VISHNU, according to the tradition and faith of the Hindus. Again according to the Hindu faith, GANGA originates from the nail of the tee of BHAGWANVISHNU, and cleanses and purifies whatever is washed by or dipped into its waters. And BHAGWAN VISHNU having Manifested himself in the human form of Maryada Puroshottam Sri Ramchandra Ji Maharaj at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, those who tough the Earth or the footprints or BHAWAN SRIRAMA symbolised by the CHARANS at that place, are cleansed of their sins and purified. The Earth at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi could not have acted differently towards the Muslims who went there. They were also cleansed and purified of the evil in them by the touch of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA'S footprints, which like the waters of the GANGA purify all without any discrimination. The place, like the waters of the GANGA, remains unsullied, and has been an object of worship, with a juridical personality of its own as a Deity, distinct from the juridical personality of the presiding Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA installed in the Temple thereat, and has existed since ever even before the construction of the first temple thereat and installation of the Idol therein. Indeed, it is the VIDINE SPIRIT which is worshipped. An Idol is not in dispensable. There are Hindu Temples without any Idol. The Asthan Sri RAMA JANMA BHUMI has existed immovable through the ages, and has ever been a juridical person. The actual and continuous performance of Puja at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi was not essential for the continued existence or presence of the Deities at that place. They have continued to remain present , and shall continue to remain present so long as the place lasts, which, being land, is indestructible, for any one to come and invoke them by prayer. the Deities are Immortal, being the Divine Sprit or the ATMAN, AND MAY TAKE DIFFERENT SHAPES AND FORMS AS Idols or other symbols of worship according to the faith and aspiration of their devotees.

13. That it is indisputable that there was an ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, and that it was partly demolished and an attempt was made, by Mir Baqi, Commander of Babar's hordes, to construct a 'mosque' in its place. He was a Shia, and although demolition of a temple for constructing a ''Mosque''is prohibited by Islam, he attempted to do so under the superstitious influence of the so called Faqir, named, Fazal Abbas Qalander. He did not , however, succeed, for, as the story goes, whatever was constructed during the day feel down during the night, and it was only after making certain material concessions in favour of the Hindus for the continued preservation of the place as a place of Hindu worship, that the construction of the three- domed structure was somehow completed, and the construction of the minarets and certain other essential features of a public 'mosque' was not undertaken. Amended as per courts order

14. That the following facts would show that the three domed structure so raised by Mir Baqi was not a 'mosque' at all, namely-

(A) ALLAH does not accept a dedication of property for purposes recognized as pious and charitable, that is, as waqf under the Muslim Law, from a person who is not its rightful owner; for instance, ALLAH would not accept the dedication of stolen property from a thief. By his act of trespass supported by violence, for erecting a 'mosque' on the site of the ancient Hindu Temple at ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI, after demolishing it by the force of arms, Mir Baqi violated all the true tenets of Islam. it was a highly un-Islamic action. ALLAH never forgave him for that, so much so that every time an attempt was made to convert the place into a 'mosque', by misguided inconoclasts like him, they were killed without mercy in the battles that ensued, for violating HIS injunctions, for ALLAH had spoken thus to the Prophet IN the Qoran---

'And fight for the religion of GOD against those who fight against you; but transgress not by attacking them first, for GOD loveth not the transgressers. And kill them wherever ye find them; and turn them out of that whereof they have dispossessed you; for temptation to idolaotry is more grievous than slaughter; yet fight not against them in the holy temple, unless they attack you therein…."

Indeed, the whole history of the rise and fall of the Mughal Empire in India will stand testimony to it. Babar, who did not believe in iconoclasm founded the rule of Mughals in India.. Akbar his grandson, by his tolerance and secularism expanded it on all sides and converted the Mughal Rule into an Empire. Aurangzeb, the iconoclast fanatic, destroyed the Empire which was at the pinnacle of its glory when he deposed and imprisoned his own father Shahjahan and grabbed the crown.

(B) Inspite of all that Mir Baqi tried to do with the Temple, the space always continued to vest in possession with the Deities of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA VIRAJMAN and the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI. THEIR worshippers continued to worship THEM through such symbols as the CHARAN and the SITA RASOI, and the Idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN on the Chabutra, called the Rama Chabutra. No one could enter the three domed structure except after passing through these places of Hindu worship. According to the tenets of Islam there can be no Idol worship within the precincts of a 'mosque', and the passage to a 'mosque' must be free and unobstructed and open to the 'Faithful' at all times. It can never be land-locked by a Hindu place of worship; and there can be no co-sharing in title or possession with ALLAH, particularly in the case of a 'mosque'. His possession must be exclusive.

(C) A 'mosque', which is a public place of worship for all the Muslims, must have a minaret for calling the AZAN according to Baillie-----.

> "When an assembly of worshippers pray in a masjid with permission, that is delivery. But it is a condition that the prayers be with izan, or the regular call, and be public not private, for though there should be an assembly yet if it is without izan, and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no masjid, according to the two disciples." (Pt. 1, Bk. IX, ch. VII, Sec. I, p. 605)

Indeed, according to P.R. Ganapathi Iyer's Law relating to Hindu and Mahomedan Endowments, (2nd Edition, 1918, Chap. XVII, at p.388.) there has been no 'mosque' without a minaret after the first half century from the Flight.

(D) There was no arrangement for storage of water for vazoo, and there were the Kasauti pillars with the figures of Hindu Gods inscribed on them and the Sandalwood beam. Such a place could never be a 'mosque'.

(E) There is a mention in the Fyzabad Gazetteor of the burial of 75 Muslims at the gate of the Janmasthan and the place being known as Ganj Shahidan, after the battle of 1855 between the Hindus and the Muslims in which the Hindus succeded in resuming control over the premises, including the three domed structure. There have been no graves anywhere near the building or its precincts or the area appurtenant thereto, or surrounding it, for the last more than 50 years at least, but if the building was surrounded by a grave-yard soon after the annexation of Avadh by the British, the building could not be a 'Mosque' and could not be used as a 'mosque', for the offering of payers or Namaz, except the funeral prayers on the death of a person buried therein that is, the Namaz-e-Janaza, is prohibited in a grave-yard according to the Muslim authorities.

15. That thus, the worship of the Deities of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA VIRAJMAN and the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI has continued through the ages at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya. The space belongs to the Deities. No validwaqf was, or could ever be created of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi or any part of it, in view of the title and possession of the said Deities thereon, which has been all pervasive and continuous. ALLAH never claimed, or took, or got any title or possession over the said premises or any part of them. Nor has there ever been any person living or juridical, who might have put forward any claim to ownership or possession as owner of the said premises or any part of them. Occasional acts of trespass by iconoclasts were successfully resisted and repulsed by the Hindus from time to time; and there was no blemish or dent in the continuity of the title and possession of the said Deities over Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. No title could or did vest in ALLAH over any part of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, by any possession adverse to the Deities or in any other manner. Neither ALLAH nor any person on his behalf had any possession over any part of the premises at any time whatsoever, not to speak of any possession adverse to the ownership of the Deities.

16. That at any rate the Muslims could never acquire any right to worship at the place as in a 'mosque', by adverse possession. First, because the consequence of the violation of any injunction of the Qoran could not, according to Muslim Law, be worked out by lapse of time howsoever long. Secondly, in respect of a claim to pray, every single Muslim has the right to pray in a 'mosque' in his own independent and individual character. He does not derive that right from another such right of all the Muslims is similar but independent of each other. Even a newly converted Muslim gets that right on conversion, although none of his ancestors or members of his family had any such right. Therefore, it is impossible to say in law that those who have a right to pray in a 'mosque' are in possession of that right in the 'mosque' as a community. The fluctuating body of individual Muslims have this right as individuals to go into the 'mosque' and pray therein, but only so long as the 'mosque' continues to exists as a 'mosque'. This right to pray cannot be tacked on by a Muslim to the similar right of another Muslim, and cannot form the basis of any adverse possession in law, or acquisition of title to land by prescription as a waqf for a 'mosque'. The body of worshippers is only an undulating, ever changing body of individuals and not a corporation. Thirdly, the claim of a right to worship by going to a place as a 'mosque' is not a claim of a right to possession of the place as its owner and the factum of occupation of a place without any claim to title as owner, cannot clothe the occupier with ownership of the place, and the true owner's title remains unaffected by any such occupation, howsoever long it may be. A place can become a waqf for a 'mosque' only when Namaz is offered there with the permission of the owner and publicly in a group after the calling of azan.

17. That after the annexation of Avadh and the first war of independence, miscalled the Sepoy Munity by the British, an inner enclosure for the three-domed structure was created by raising a boundary wall with iron gratings in the courtyard of the building, which separated the Rama Chabutra and the Charans and the Sita Rasoi, from the building and divided the courtyard into two parts. The inner part in which the three domed structure was situated, was land-locked from all sides by the outer part in which the Rama Chabutra, the Charan and the Sita Rasoi were situate. The British thus tried to confine the Hindus to worship their Deities in the outer part of the courtyard, but no Muslim could enter the inner part of the courtyard or the three domed structure within it, except by passing through the outer courtyard, which had Hindu places of worship in it and was in their exclusive and constant occupation. This laid the seeds of trouble off and on whenever any Muslims wanted to go inside. The result was that no Namaz was offered inside the three domed structue, inspite of the attempt of the British Government to induce the Muslims to do so by raising the inner boundary wall. This was calculated attempt by the Britishers to encourage the Muslims to use the abandoned place as a 'mosque' and create differences between their Hindu and Muslim subjects, with the object of maintaining their power, particularly in the context of the

First War of Independence in which the Hindus and the Muslims had fought the British power shoulder to shoulder like brothers. However, the attempt to induce the Muslims, to use the building inside the inner enclosure as a 'mosque' did not succeed. There was an over-helming number of Hindus living all round the place, and the local Muslim population knew that the place was not a proper place for offering Namaz, as it was not a 'mosque' according to the true tenets of Islam. The Hindus never left the place and continued to worship the ASTHAN through such symbols of the DIVINE SPIRIT as the CHARANS, the SITA-RASOI and the Idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN on the Rama Chabutra within its precincts.

18. That with reference to the fact of demolition of substantial parts of the three domed structure at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi in the communal riots of 1934 at Ayodhya, which were sparked off by the slaughter of a cow by some fanatic, or a hired hoodluy and the fact of its reconstruction and renovation by the British Government, at its own cost through a Muslim Thekadar, stated in paragraph 8 of the plaint, it is submitted that the said act of the British Government must have been very much a part of their policy to divide the Hindus and the Muslims in order to rule India. If there really was a 'mosque' in existence with the grant of revenue free land of two villages attached, for its maintenance and upkeep, as alleged in the plaint, there ought to have been a Mutwalli to manage the waqf and to look after the 'mosque', and there could, and would have been no question of rebuilding and reconditioning the 'mosque' by the benign British Government at its cost, through a Muslim Thekadar, for the benefit of the loyal Muslim subjects of His Majesty the King Emperor of India, in order to teach Hindus a lesson, as they were raising their head against the British rule. The British were thus sowing the seeds of the two nation theory which ultimately led to the Partition of India. Nevertheless inspite of the British efforts, no prayers were ever offered in the three domed structure at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi even after the reconstruction and renovation, for the Muslims knew that the place was no 'mosque' inasmuch as ALLAH

does not accept Namaz offered at a place occupied without the permission of its owner, or on land occupied by Gasba, that is, without title.

19. That in 1936 the U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act, was passed. It established two Central Boards of Waqfs in U.P., namely the Sunnil Central Board of Waqfs and the Shia Central Board of Waqfs, to supervise and control the Muslim Waqfs of the two sects respectively. All the existing Waqfs were required to be surveyed and classified into Sunni and Shia waqfs by a Commissioner of waqfs, who was required to submit his report to the local Government, and the Government in its turn was required to send that report to the Central Board concerned, according to the sect to which the waqf belonged, whereafter the Central Board concerned was required to notify in the Gazette the waqfs of its respective sect. There was no such notification in respect of the 'waqf' of the 'mosque' in dispute. Allegation to the contrary is wrong. The Plaintiff waqf Board, has had no jurisdiction in respect of the premises even if it were a 'mosque'. Further, it took no action or postive steps for the custody or the care of the building or its establishment as a 'mosque'. No one acted as its Mutwalli, or Mauzin, or Imam, or Khatib, or Khadim. The descendant of Mir Baqi who was sought to be planted as the Mutwalli by the British was an opium addict. He denied that the grant of revenue free land was waqf for the purposes of the 'mosque', and instated claimed that it was his Nankar for services rendered to the British, and did not look after or manage the 'mosque' at all.

20. That on the independence of India from the British yoke, coupled with the Partition and the carving out of the new State of Pakistan, on the footing that the Hindus and the Muslims constitute two separate nations, and the mass killing and expulsion of Hindus from Pakistan, Baba Abhiram Das, the answering Defendant's Guru, who was the Propoganda Secretary of the Hindu Mahasabha at that time, resolved, along with Peramhans Ramchandra Das, Defendant No.2, who was the Secretary of the local unit of the Hindu Mahasabha at that time, and Gopal Singh Visharad, Defendant No.1, and several other, to restore

the sacred ASTHAN of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi to its pristine glory, in particular by removing the three domed structure raised thereat by Mir Baqi, which was an object of National shame for the Hindus. Pursuant to this resolution, action was initiated by taking a collective vow publicly for the restoration of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, at a public meeting held on 2.10.1949, the Gandhi Jayanti day, which was also the Bijaya Dashmi day that year, as the first step towards the fulfillment of the dream of the Mahatma of establishing Rama-Rajya in Bharatvarasha after independence from the British bohdage. After the taking of the collective vow their first step was to clear up the scattered mounds of earth which the Muslims claimed were their graves, in the areas around Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. This was followed up by Navahna Pathas, Japa and Sankirtan at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi. The first batch of 108 Navahna Pathas commenced on 16.10.1949. This was followed by 1108 batches of Nayahna Pathas. Japa and Sankirtan were also performed continuously. They continued in and outside the three-domed building, and within its precincts and on adjacent land all round, unabated, rather in rising crescendo, until the great event of the Manifesation of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA within the three domed building, under its central dome to be more precise, by the installation of the Idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA with all due ceremony at the auspicious hour Brahmamuhurta, during Shrgvan Nakshatra and Tula Lagna in the most auspicious constellation of the planes, named Harshan Yoga, on Thursday, Pausha Shukla 3, of Vikrama Samvat 2006. It may be added that although the Planet Sun was Dakshinayana Sanyasis and Variragis are permitted by the Sastras to instal a Deity even during Dakshinayana. The Idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA IS Chala and seated on a Silver Singhasan. Akhan-da Sankirtans and Japa have continued ever since without any break for the last about 40 years at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi.

21. That the suit is bad and not maintainable in law inasmuch as the Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN under the central dome of the building, and on the Rama Chabutra, and the Deity of

www.vadaprativada.com

ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI with such symbols of worship as the Charan and the Sita Rasoi, have not been made parties to the suit. It is also bad for want of Mutwalli of the alleged waqf.

22. That the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. has no jurisdiction or competence to meddle with the alleged 'waqf'; or the alleged 'mosque', or to sue in respect thereof for want of a proper and valid notification in its favour, in respect thereof, under Section 5 of the U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act, 1936, the notification published in the Official Gazette dated 26.2.1944, having already been held to be invalid by the Court's finding dated 21.4.1966 on issue No.17, in this suit, which has become finial and irreversible between the parties. Further, the suit when filed in 1961, was barred by the provisions of the U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act, 1960; only the Tribunal constituted under that Act had the jurisdiction to entertain a suit of this nature, if filed within the limitation prescribed by it, and the Civil court had no jurisdiction to entertain it.

23. That the suit as framed under Order 1 Rule 8 is incompetent and not maintainable. The permission granted by the court to the Plaintiffs to sue in a representative capacity for all the Muslims, is liable to be revoked, particularly because the Plaintiffs are all Sunnis, while the Shias did claim the alleged 'mosque' and alleged 'waqf' in respect of it to be a Shia waqf. The Defendants named in the suit cannot also represent all the various sects of Hindus in India.

24. That none of the plaintiffs have any right to sue for possession over the alleged 'mosque'.

25. That the relief for possession by the removal of the idols and other articles of Hindu worship, is in fact and in law a relief for mandatory injunction, and is barred bt the 6 years' limitation prescribed by Article 120 of the Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908. Otherwise too a person other than the Mutwalli of a Mosque cannot sue for its possession, and can only sue for a declaration that it is a mosque and, if out of possession or dispossessed, that its possession be made over to the Mutwalli, and to such a suit also Article 120 applied, and neither of the Articles 142 or 144 of the Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act,

1908 had any application. Further, on the pleas raised in the plaint, the Plaintiffs having claimed to have been effectively and completely dispossessed by the Preliminary order of attachment and appointment of a Receiver to maintain the worship of the Deity inside the three domed building, passed on 29.12.1949 under Section 145 of the code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, the suit is barred by Article 14 of the Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908. In as much as the plaintiffs have claimed that they were completely and effectively ousted from the building and the premises in suit by the Defendants act of 'placing' of Idols within the 'mosque', on December 23, 1949, their cause of action was finally complete and closed that day, and did not recur thereafter, according to their own allegations. It could not be said to arise thereafter de-die-in-diem, as it was not the case of a continuing wrong, within the meaning of Section 23 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908. In any view of the matter the suit is hopelessly barred by limitation, even on the allegations of the Plaint which is liable to be rejected under Order 7, Rule 11 of the code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and Section 3 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, casts a duty on the Court to dismiss the suit and not to proceed with its trial any further.

26. That it is essential in the interest of justice and the maintenance of peace and amity between the Hindus and the Muslims in India, and now, even for maintaining good international relations between India and Pakistan and some of the Muslim countries, that this dispute is speedily resolved by the court. So far as the answering Defendant is concerned he, along with the Vaishnavite Hindus of the Ramanandi Sampradaya whom he claims to represent, and to whom the Temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi belong as the persons entitled to look after the management of the worship and also as the true worshippers of the Deities who SIT there, would only be too willing to arrive at a negotiated settlement with the Muslim community, under the supervision or mediation of the court, for the honourable udinguishment of their claim to the demolished three doomed structure at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, and its re-erection at village

Sahanwa near the place where Mir Baqi's mazar stands. It may be stated that while there are many instances of removal of 'mosques' in Muslim countries, the place where Maryada Purshottam Bhagwan Sri Rama Chandra Ji Maharaj manifested himself in human form as an incarnation of Bhagwan Vishnu, according to the faith of the Hindus, cannot be changed. There are no Muslims residing anywhere near the place, who may require a 'mosque' there, for offering prayers, and the number of existing 'mosques' at Ayodhya is so large, as compared to the need for them, that some of them have even fallen into disrepair and ruins for want of maintenance. The answering Defendant has said this in the true tradition of the Ramananda Sampradaya Kabir, a Muslim by birth, was one of the most famous disciples of the Adiguru Ramanandachayra. Given the necessary goodwill and dedication to the national interest on both the sides, such a negotiated settlement is not impossible and the answering Defendant would hope and pray for it. indeed Prince Anjum Quqder, the President of All India Shia Conference, and a descendant of NawabWajid Ali Shah who ruled Avadh when it was annexed by the British, has come forward with the statement in reply to the suit filed on behalf of the Deities (Suit No.236 of 1989 of the Court of Civil Judge Faizabad, now registered as Other original Suit No.5 of 1989, in the High Court) that "he and the Muslims of India have the highest regard for Lord Rama". He has quoted from Iqbal the couplet: Amended as per order of court dated 21.08.1995 Sd./-

"Hae Ram ke wajood pa Hindostan ko naaz Ahle Nazar Samajhte hain uski Imame Hind."

ultimately he has said:

> "However, after all said and done, it is most respectfully submitted that if only this claim is proved that a Mandir was demolished and Babri Masjid was built on the Mandir land, this defendant and all other Muslims will gladly demolish and shift the mosque, and return the land for building of the Mandir thereon."

www.vadaprativada.com

And in support he has quoted, among others, the authority of the "celebrated Muslim historian and scholar Maulana Syed Sabahuddin Abdur Rahman (since expired)" in his well known treatise "BABRI MASJID", at page 5, at the very begining of its preface-

"On behalf of Muslims I also have a right to say that if it is proved that babri Masjid has been built after demolishing Ram Janam Bhoomi Mandir on its place, then such a mosque if built on such an usurped land deserves to be destroyed. No theologian or Alim can give Fatwa to hold Namaz in it." Prince Anjum Quder had also obtained a Fatwa from Ulema Maulana Saiyid Mohammad Naqi, who is now a resident of karachi and a Pakistani National since the partition, but is reputed to be the principal authority governing the Shias in such matters in the Sub-continent of India, Pakistan and Bangla Desh, that if the removal of the 'Babri Masid' is necessary in the present circumstances, for preserving the peace and resolving the dispute, then that may be done.

41. That in the Navajivan dated 27.7.1937, Mahatma Gandhi had expressed his views thus on the controversy relating to Sri Rama Janma Bhumi----

"It is a great sin to occupy by force any religious place of worship. During the Mughal times, due to religious fanaticism, Mughal rulers had occupied many such Hindu religious places which were sacred places of worship for the Hindus. Many of them were looted and destroyed, and many of them given the shape of a mosque. Although a temple and a mosque are both sacred places for worshipping God, and there is no deference between them, but the traditions and forms of worship of the Hindus and the Muslims are different from each other.

"From the religious point of view a Muslim can never tolerate the placing of an Idol by a Hindu in his mosque where he has been worshipping KHUDA. In the same way a Hindu will never suffer demolition of any of his temples where he has been regularly worshiping Rama, Krishna, Shankars, Vishnu and Devi, and the construction of a mosque in its place. All such disgraceful acts were symptoms of religious bondage. Hindus and Muslims should both try and resolve all such disputes by mutual settlement. The Hindus should generously return such Muslim places of worship as may be under their control. Similarly the Muslims should willingly return those places of Hindu worship which are in their possessions. This will resolve the differences between the two, and further Hindu Muslim unity which will prove to be a boon for the pious people of India."

42. That under the circumstances, the re evection of the demolished three domed structure, minus its kasauti columns and the sandalwood beam, somewhere near the Mazar of Mir Baqi at village Sahanwa, or any other place where the Muslims have a sizeable population and agree to its re-evection, on land to be provided by them, is the most sensible solution of the dispute for preserving the integrity of the Nation, and peace and amity on the sub-continent of India, Pakistan and Bangla Desh. The answering Defendant hopes and prays that the Hon'ble Court would bring that about by using its good offices, and remove once for all this festering sore from the body politic of India that is Bharat.

43. That as a result of the ruling of the Supreme Court, dated October 24, 1994, on the issue "whether the suit has abated or survives" given in the centeral of the questioned validity of the Acquisition of certain area at Ayodjya Act, 1993, to the effect that the acquisition of the entire area specified in that act except for the site of the demolished structure, described therein as "RAM JANAM BHUMI BABRI MASJID (including the premises of its inner and outer courtyards), situate in a part of plots nos.159 and 160 of village of Kot Ram Chandra Ayodjya, (of the last revenue settlement of the year (93A AD), was absolute and constitutionally valid, and that the rights title and interest therein stand transferred to, and west in the Central Government under Section 3 with the consequences detailed in Section 4(1) and (2) of that Act, the claim of a Muslim graveyard on that laid does not servive, and is fit to be dismissed without any further enquiry thereinto.

44. That the entire cause of action pleaded, and relief claimed in the suit, other than that in respect of the grave yard, relates to the demolished three domed structure which does not exist any longer, therefore, no part of the suit survives now, after the disappearance of the said structure.

45. That the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, has not been constituted for many years past in accordance with the requirements of the U.P. Muslims Waqf

Act 1960, and its present controller who is alleged to have been appointed illegally, by Janab Mohd. Azam Khan, the present Minster of Waqfs in the present government of Uttar Pradesh (who is also the convener of the Babri Masjid Act committee) has been restrained from performing certain functions of the Board until the issue of notification constituting the Board after the necessary election under the Act, by a division bench of the Hon'ble High Court sitting at Allahabad in writ petition no.37378 of 1994 filed by Janab. S.Farman Ahmad. The suit therefore, proceed due to the non-existence of the principal plaintiff, namely, the Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P.

46. That a statuary body like the Sunni Central Board of Waqf U.P., cannot represent all the Muslims generally, nor the Shia Central Board of Waqf U.P. and the Shia in particular, the other Muslims individuals who were joined as plaintiffs are also all of them Sunni Muslims and cannot therefore, represent the Shia Muslims withwhom there was a clear conflict of interest in the suit in view of the suit filed by the Shia Central Board of Waqfs U.P., against the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs U.P. claiming the alleged mosque to be a Shia Waqf, and the admitted fact that the alleged Mutwalli of the alleged waqf was a Shia and did not submit to the jurisdiction of the Sunni Waqf Board and even claimed that there was no waqf at all in his application to that Board. In view of the fact that the Mutwalli of the alleged Waqf had to be Shia Muslim the suit could not proceed without him and was had for his non-joinder, in as such as the alleged Waqf of property held by him for the maintenance of alleged mosque was a Shia Waqf and the Sunni Central Board of Waq could not appoint any Mutwalli in his place, or committee of Management for the alleged waqf of the alleged mosque, nor exercise any central in respect thereof. None of plaintiffs could, therefore, maintain the suit and in any case the ttreatment of the suit as a representative suit on behalf of Muslims was wholly illegal. This is in addition to the plea already taken that the Hindu defendants did not and cannot represent the Hindus generally the permission to sue in a representative capacity was illegal and non-est in law.

ADDITIONAL WRITTEN STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF DEFENDANT NO: 13

IN

Sunni Central Board of Waqf U.P. & Ors. …Plaintiffs

Versus

Gopal Singh Visarad & Ors. ….Defendants

ADDITIONAL WRITTEN STATEMENT ON BEHALF OF MAHANT DHARAMDASS (DEFENDANT NO.13) MOST RESPECTFULLY SHOWETH:-

21-A. That the contents of the paragraph nos:21-A added in the plaint are incorrect and denied. The building structure of Shri Ram Janam Bhumi which was demolished on 6.12.1992 was not a mosque and could not be called "BABRI MASJID". The demolition of the structure (wrongly called Babri Masjid) was not in violation of the order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court dated 15.11.1991, nor in violation of any orders of this Hon'ble Court dated 3.2.1986 or 7.11.1989, nor in violation of any other order of any court. The Deities were never removed from the place where they sat. The structure evected on 7.12.1992 was not an illegal structure, nor were any of these acts in violation of any order of any court or the above orders, or any undertaking. The people who demolished the structure (wrongly called 'the Mosque') were not miscreants or criminals. The demolition and destruction was not with the connivance of the then "State Government of B.J.P." There could be no question of any restoration of any structure as it then existed on 5.12.92. As already stated, the demolition of the building structure at Sri Ram Janam Bhumi was not in defiance, nor in violation of any orders of this Court or the Supreme Court.

21-B. That the contents of paragraph no.21-B added in the plaint are incorrect and denied. The land in suit had a structure wrongfully erected

thereon by "GASB" after wrongfully demolishing the Hindu Temple standing at Sri Ram Janam Bhumi by force of arms. it could not, be and never became a mosque under the law of the land, nor even according to the Shariat. There could thus be no question of the site of the demolished structure, being a mosque of the Muslims or there being any right to offer prayers therein or thereat.

21-C. That the contents of paragraph no.21-C as stated are denied. The structure at Sri Ram Janam Bhumi was not a mosque and could not be described as "Babri Masjid". The interpretation of the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court dated 24.10.94 is incorrect. Correct facts are stated in the additional pleas.

Relief Clause (bb): The clause (bb) has been wrongly inserted in the relief clause of para 24 of the plaint. The Central Government is a Statutory Receiver of the disputed area under Act 33 of 1993 as interpreted by the Supreme Court in its judgment dated 24.10.1994 reported in 1994 (VI) SCC 360. According to the findings recorded by this Hon'ble Court in order dated 25.5.1995 on C.M.Application No.9 (0) of 1995, there does not exist any lis now between the plaintiff and the Central Government and no such decree can be claimed in the suit.

46. That the amendments made in the plaint from time to time and with the permission of the court after its order dated 25.5.1995 on C.M. Application No: 9(0) of 1995 are not verified at all. They can not be read and relied upon as part of the plaint. The application for amendment was signed by Mohd. Hashim alone. he does not hold any power of Attorney or authority on behalf of other plaintiffs, and in particular the Principal plaintiff Sunni Central Board of Wakfs, U.P. The amendments made in the plainst cannot, therefore, be read and relied upon as part of the plaint.

47. That the contents of paragraph no:21-A are liable to be struck off for being unnecessary and vexatious and would prejudice and delay the fair trial of the suit. None of the allegations made therein are against any of the defendants in the suit, nor were any of them responsible for any of imaginary wrongs complained off therein. There is no claim for the restoration of building as it stood on 5.12.1992, obviously because Mohd. Hashim, who alone amongst the several plaintiffs had applied for amendment, must have known that the talk of restoration of the building as it existed on 5.12.1992 was moonshine and could not be decreed in the suit. No claim for any relief of retoration of building as it existed on 5.12.1992 has been made even after the amendment of plaint prayed for by him. The whole of the contents of para 21-A are meaningless and unnecessary. They would seem to have been made merely to tease, scandalize and provoke the devotees of Bhagwan Sri Ram Lala Virajman at Shri Ram Janma Bhumi. The allegations made are all incorrect and their retention as a part of the plaint will only delay the fair trial of the real issues between the parties in the suit.

48. That on the facts and grounds already stated in paragraphs 25,26,27,28,29,30,31 of the answering defendant's written statement, the structure at Shri Ram Janam Bhumi which was demolished on 6.12.1992 was not a mosque at all and its site always was and continues to be a place of worship for the Hindus and owned and possessed by Shri Ram Lala Virajman at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi. There could be thus no question of the place being a mosque or Muslims being entitled to offer prayers thereon after the demolition of the structure in view of the continuance of worship of Bhagwan Sri Rama Lala seated thereat under a canopy.

49. That the acquisition of the areas under the Acquisition of Certain Area of Ayodhya Act (Act No.33 of 1993) was not made for any of the purposes of the Central Government. The Central Government holds the land beneath the structure (Including the outer and inner courtyard) as a statutory Receiver until the adjudication of the dispute relating to the disputed area in the suits pending before this Court, when the Act was enforced (7.1.1993), viz, O.S.13,4 and 5 of 1989, with the obligation to hand over the disputed area aforementioned to the party found entitled thereto in suits, and to return the remaining area to the original owners thereof.

50. That clause (bb) has wrongly been inserted in the prayer clause. No relief can be granted against any person who is not a party in the suit. The Central Government is statutory Receiver of the area acquaired under

Act no.33 of 1993. It has not been appointed as such by this court. The structure in the form of canopy under, which Sri Ram Lala sits, is not an unauthorised structure, nor can the idols be removed therefrom by any decree of the court, more so in a suit in which neither the Deity nor Bhagwan Sri Ram Lala nor the persons who erected the canopy are parties.

51. That as already stated in para 2 of the written statement of answering defendant, the Khasra numbers of the alleged 'Graveyard' and 'Mosque' are all imaginary and fictitious and are not identifiable at site. In Schedule 'A' of the plaint, the said numbers are described as the 'Nazul Khasra' numbers. There is nothing like 'Nazul Khasra numbers in law. The law requires identification of immovable property in suit by numbers in a record of settlement or Survery vide order 7 Rule 3 C.P.C. No relief can therefore, be granted in the suit with refrence to Schedule A of the plaint. The Act 33 of 1993 also refers to the record of settlement of village Kot Ram Chandra, Pargana Haveli Avadh', Tehsil Sadar, District: Faizabad.

52. That in the light of supervening facts and circumstances, the disapperance and non-existence of the property in respect of which the relief is claimed in the plaint, the suit has become wholly infructuous and cannot be proceed with any further.

53. That the suit even after amendment of the plaint is not maintainable in law.

54. That the suit is liable to be dismissed with costs.

The defendant No.17, named above, most respectfully begs to submit as under:-

1. That the contents of para 21A of the amended plaint are not admitted. No Masjid or Babri Masjid ever existed at the land in question, and as such no Masjid was demolished on 6.12.1992. It is further false to allege that idols were placed only in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949, but the fact is that idols were in existence at the place in question from the time immemorial. It may be mentioned here that Babar was an invader and he had no legal authority to construct any Masjid at the sacred place of Hindus i.e. the birth place of Lord Shri Ram. Mughal invador Babar through his Commander Mir Baqi tried to demolish the old glorious temple of Lord Shri Ram at the place in question, but he could not succeed in his mission. After the riot in 1934, the three domes of the temple were damged. It is submitted that before the said date, the outlook of the building was of pure Hindu temple, but while carrying out repair works, the Britieshers tried to give it the shape of mosque and three domes were constructed over Kasauti pillars which were of temple. The Hindus have all along been in possession over he entire area of Shri Ram Janmaabhoomi. The land in question has all along been in possession of Hindus and devotees of Lord Shri Ram. The worship of Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman is going on since the time immemorial. It is further submitted that with a view to renovate the old temple and to construct

a new one, Kar Sewa was performed and the said action cannot be said to be in violation of any order passed by any court. There was no order in force against Hindus in respect of the temple property/structure. it is submitted that the people of the State had voted for Bhartiya Janta Party in the election as it was committed to fulfil the aspirations of the people to construct a glorious Shri ram Temple at the place in question. It is true that the Bhartiya Janata Party Government did not resort to firing and barbarian action which was adopted earlier by the Government headed by Sri Mulayam Singh Yadav on 30.10.1990 and 2.11.1990. It is further submitted that the Government cannot suppress the will of the people and it has to honour and fulfil aspirations of the people in the democratic set up. The Bhartiya Janata Party has neither abetted for demolition of the structure, nor did anything in violation of law. The devotees of Lord Shri Ram who were present in lacs decided to demolish the old structure. In fact no offence was committed and no law was violated in demolishing the structure of Hindu temple with an intent to construct a big temple. At this place, it may be mentioned here that the Hindus have never been fanatic; they allowed every religion to flourish in Bharatvarsh. There is no evidence in history to show that the Hindus ever demolished any mosque or place of worship of any other religion. The history speaks otherwise. Every Mughal invader and ruler from Mohammad-bin-Qasim to Aurangzeb and even thereafter demolished, destroyed and looted the temples of Hindus. The plaintiffs never had/have any concern with the land in question and also they are not entitled for restoration of the building or its possession.

2. That the contents of para 21-B of the amended plaint are not admitted. The Muslim law cannot be made applicable in Bharatvarsh. Muslim law is also subject to the provisions of Constitution; it is the Constitution which is supreme and not any personal law, muchless Muslim law. Muslims cannot use any open piece of land in question for offering prayers and they also cannot encroach upon the land of religious places of Hindus. Under Shastrik law applicable to Hindus,

the property once vested in the deity continues to remain of the deity. It is specifically submitted that the entire property in question belongs to Shri Ram Lala Virajman who is in existence from the time immemorial and is being worshipped by his devotees at the place in question without any interruption till date. According to the own averments of the plaintiffs, the place in dispute has got no significance for them as they can offer prayers at any place, even in open.

It would be appropriate and in consonance with the principles of 'secularism' that the Muslims do not offer prayers within the vicinity of the birth-place of Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman, which is sacred for Hindus and offer their prayers beyond the area of Panchkashi Parikrama. That will create brotherhood and peace everywhere. The para under reply itself shows that the alleged mosque was unnecessary and meaningless for Muslims too. It is further submitted that over the land in question, no mosque ever existed and the Muslim are not entitled to encroach upon the land in question or offer prayers at that place.

3. That the contents of para 21-C of the amended plaint are not admitted. It is further submitted that no mosque ever existed over the land in question and no property or land belonging to mosque has been acquired. The entire area covered under the Ordinance No.8 of 1993 and Act No.33 of 1993 belongs to Hindus and the devotees of Shri Ram Lala Virajman. The judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court is being misinterpreted and nowhere Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the area covered by the Act belongs to any mosque or adjacent area will be provided for enjoyment of the crucial area of mosque portion as per requirement.

4. That the relief claus 24-BB of the amended plaint cannot be granted to the plaintiffs. It is further submitted that the said relief has not been allowed to be added by this Hon'ble Court vide its order dated 25.5.1995. It is further submitted that the property in dispute has not been described in Schedule-A to the plaint. The description in Schedule A of the plaint cannot be termed as suit property as no dimensions, width, statement of survey numbers etc. have been given for identifying the property as required by Order VII Rule 3 C.P.C. and hence the property described in Schedule –A of the plaint cannot be termed as suit property being vague and unidentifiable on the spot. The plaintiffs are not entitled for the possession of the structure standing at the site at the land in question and the adjacent are belongs to Hindu and devotees of Lord Shri ram. Please also see additional pleas.

ADDITIONAL PLEAS

5. That it is worth to mention here that Bharatvarsh was divided on the basis of the religion and Pakistan was created for Muslim and the rest part of Bharatvarsh remained for Hindus. Secularism was adopted in the Constitution as it is one of the pillars of Vedic religion. No religion of the world preaches religious tolerance and secularism except the Vedic scriptures. No other community or religious group can claim any privilege or additional rights in derogation of the rights of Hindus. The rights of other religious group or community are subject to the rights of Hindus.

6. That it is an undisputed fact that Lord Ram, Lord Krishna and Lord Shiv are cultural heritage of Bharatvarsh, which has been recognized by Constituent Assembly. In the original constitution, on which the members signed, the pictures of our recognized cultural heritage can be seen which include the scene from Ramayana (conquest over Lanka and recovery of Sita by Lord Ram). Thus the citizens of this country are entitled to pay homage to their Lord at His birth-place and it being sacred place for Hindus cannot belong to Muslims or any other community or religious group. Therefore, the claim of Muslims over the land in question is unconstitutional and is also against Islamic laws and in the circumstances, the plaintiffs cannot claim themselves to be Muslims entitled to file the suit.

7. That it may be mentioned here that even according to the plaintiffs, the devotees of Lord Shri Ram and Hindus in general came into possession of disputed structure on 22nd/23rd December, 1949 i.e. before the commencement of the Constitution on 26th January, 1950.

If it is so, it cannot be said that the Hindus have committed any wrong. They have rectified the curse of Mughal Slavery before the commencement of the Constitution. The said action of invaders had no sanction of law and after independence, it is the right of citizens to nullify every misdeed and wrong action of the invaders.

8. That the entire area including the place in question belongs to deity Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman and His devotees and worshippers are entitled to offer prayers, Pooja, Arti, Bhog etc. and to pay homage to their Great Lord. They have also right to construct a glorious temple at the place in question.

9. That it is remarkable to mention here that under the debris of demolished temple structure, a lot of signs and material concerning temple have been found. The answering defendant believes that under the orders of this Hon'ble Court, they would be in safe custody. It may be mentioned here that a very big Chabutara beneath the present structure exists which also reveals that there existed a glorious and big temple of Lord Shri Ram. There is no evidence, signs or material at all to show that there was any mosque.

10. That the statutory receiver has not been arrayed as party to the suit and as such the plaintiffs cannot claim any relief against the receiver.

11. That Sunni Central Board of Waqfs has no legal authority to file the suit and as such the suit is liable to be dismissed.

12. That the (amended) relief as prayed for by way of amendment has also become time-barred.

13. That the amended relief cannot be granted to the plaintiffs as the same is not permissible under the law.

14. That the case is to be decided on the principles of justice, equity and good conscience. Prayer for injunction has to be refused if the case of the plaintiff does not come within the four corners of the said principles. Since the plaintiffs have failed to prove that their case comes within the ambit of justice, equity and good conscience, the suit is liable to be dismissed, as no relief can be granted.

15. That the suit cannot be termed as representative suit; the compliance of Order 1 Rule 8 of the C.P.C. has not been made. Hindu community as a whole has not been represented and legal procedure for the same has not been followed. The suit in the representative character is not maintainable.

16. That the waqf properties are not immune from the operation of law and no privilege or advantage can be given to waqf properties. The concept of mosque and graveyard, whatever may be under Islamic law, is subject to the provisions of the Constitution. The claim of the plaintiffs based on Islamic law, which is not applicable in Bharatvarsh, is to be rejected.

17. That the suit property has not been described till date. The schedule annexed to the plaint with the description of Nazul numbers has no sanction of law. Moreover, the same was no brought on record in accordance with law. Amendment of the plaint in this regard is time-barred and the same is also illegal, inoperative and void.

18. That the suit as framed is a suit for declaration and the relief for delivery of possession has not been made in specific terms as the said relief was time-barred on the date of institution of the suit. Now by way of amendment, relief of possession from statutory receiver is being sought and as such the plaintiffs are stopped from claiming possession of the property at this stage and the said claim has also become time-barred.

19. That the property in suit is the birth-place of Lord Shri Ram and this fact is established from the customs and usages having the force of law. At the time of the commencement of the Constitution on 26.1.1995, in view of Article 372 of the Constitution, all laws in force in the territory of India immediately before the commencement of the Constitution shall continue in force until altered, repealed or amended by a competent Legislature.

20. That it is submitted that the entire structure including inner and outer courtyard, sanctum sanctorium and Ram Chabutara is and was part of the same building. Those are all deities property and He can sit anywhere No likes within that campus.

21. That Schedule ‘A’ to the amendment application dated 2.1.1962 has not been signed by any party or counsel and in fact nobody can dare to sign the said paper and as such the said Schedule which is not signed and verified, cannot be added to the plaint. The genuineness of the said schedule is also disputed.

22. That according to the plaintiffs, the idols were placed in the structure on 22/23.12.1949. It cannot be disputed even by the plaintiffs that worship of the deity is going on since then and Arti Bhog and Pooja etc. are being offered, for more than 45 years.

23. That it is pertinent to mention that no suit has been brought by any person or body of persons from the Muslim side claiming dispossession of the deity. Thus, the possession of the deity is hostile to the interest of the plaintiffs which is in their knowledge, but no suit has been filed against the deity i.e. Shri Ram Lala Virajman. Thus the deity has perfected his title by remaining in adverse possession and the plaintiffs are stopped from challenging the existence of deity now and claiming possession which has become time-barred.

ADDITIONAL PLEA

Para 25. That the sketch map attached to the plaint is totally incorrect and is misleading. The details given in the plaint are wrong and imiginary. A correct sketchmap of the property indispute is annexed with the written statement as annexure "A" and which correctly shows the various cnstructions and placed in their relative positions.

Para 28. That the suit is time barred and the plaintiffs for the Muslim or any of its members have not been in possession within the limitation over the property in suit.

Para 29. That the contesting defendant does not take even a drop of water without the darshan of the said Lord Rama installed in the disputed place known as Janam Bhumi Lord Rama is a stadio of the answering defendants. The answering defendant is doing such darshan of the said Lord Rama continuously for 30-32 years. And thus accrued a right of Darshan of the said Lord Rama by prescription and long usur which the answering defendant have enjoyed peacefully and without any inturruption for more 30-32 years.

Para 30. That the plaintiffs suit deserves to be dismissed with costs.

Written Statement on behalf of Madan Mohan Gupta, the Convenor of Akhil Bharatiya Shri Ram Janam Bhumi Punrudhar Samiti, E-7/45, Bangla T.T. Nagar, Bhopal, newly added Defendant No. ____(added by the order dated 23.10.89 of the Hon'ble High Court) is as follows:-

1. That the contents of paragraph 1 of the plaint as they stand are wrong and are denied.
2. That the contents of paragraph 2 of the plaint are absolutely wrong and denied. There has never been any battle between Emperor Babar and the previous Ruler of Ayodhya nor any grave yard or mosque as alleged has been built or dedicated by Emperor Babar.
3. That the contents of paragraph 3 of the plaint as they stand are wrong and are denied. The grants, if any, as mentioned in the plaint were only political act and do not confer any rights on the disputed property.
4. That the contents of paragraph 4 of the plaint are not admitted.
5. That the contents of paragraph 5 of the plaint are denied.
6. That the contents of paragraph 6 of the plaint are denied. The answering defendants are not aware of any such alleged suit. Any sketch map filed by said Raghubir Das along with the alleged plaint would be fictitious and would not be binding on the answering defendants.
7. That the contents of paragraph 6-A, 6-B, 6-C, 6-E, 6-F of the plaint are denied. The building in dispute is a temple and not a mosque. Any alleged decision cannot and does not operate as res-judicata in the present suit. Neither the answering defendant nor the Hindu Public in general derive any title from the said Mahant Raghubar Das or his representatives and are not bound by their any action or conduct, nor any decision in the said suit No.61/280 of 1985.

8. That the contents of paragraph 7 of the plaint are denied.

9. That paragraph 8 of the plaint as it stands is denied.

10. That the contents of paragraph 9 of the plaint except for the act, as they stand, are denied. The alleged enquiry, if any, is wholly ex parte and behind the back of the Hindu Public in general and is not at all binding on Hindus as such.

11. That the contents of paragraph 10 of the plaint are not admitted as they stand, as neither the answering defendants nor the Hindu Public in general have been given any notice nor they had any knowledge of the same. Even otherwise, non-filing of any such suit could not convert a Hindu temple into a Muslim mosque.

12. That the allegations made in paragraph 11 of the plaint are totally false and are denied. The building which the plaintiffs allege as Babari masjid is and has been always the Ram Janam Bhumi Temple with the idols of Hindu God.

13. That the contents of paragraph 11-A of the plaint are denied.

14. That the facts stated in paragraph 12 are not within the knowledge of the answering defendants, hence denied. The plaintiffs are put to strict proof thereof.

15. That the contents of paragraph 13 of the plaint are not in the knowledge of the answering defendant. It is, however, emphatically denied that the Muslims have any legal or constitutional rights of offering prayers alleged at the sight of Ram Janam Bhumi.

16. That the contents of paragraph 14 of the plaint are denied.

17. That the filing of the suit as mentioned in paragraph 15 of the plaint is admitted but it is denied that the allegations that the building in suit was a temple and deities are installed are false, or wrong and are denied.

18. That the contents of paragraph 16 of the plaint are admitted.

19. That paragraph 17 of the plaint needs no reply.

20. That paragraph 18 of the plaint relates to the proceedings of suit no.2 of 1950 and needs no reply axcept that any thing contrary to the Court

21. That in reply to paragraph 19 of the plaint it is stated that the plaintiffs have no right to make the original defendants contest the suit in a representative capacity of the Hindu community who resides from Kashmir to Kanyakumari and from Dwarika to Assam and Nagaland. None of the defendants represent all the Hindus in India.

22. That paragraph 20 of the plaint as it stands is denied. The plaintiffs have no cause of action to file the present suit.

23. That the contents of paragraph 21 of the plaint as they stand are not admitted. The plaintiffs are put to strict proof thereof.

24. That paragraph 22 of the plaint is not admitted. The suit is undervalued.

25. That paragraph 23 of the plaint is denied. The suit is barred, the plaintiffs have no cause of action.

26. That paragraph 24 of the plaint is denied. The plaintiffs are not entitled to any relief and the suit is liable to be rejected with costs.

27. That Lord Rama, an incarnation of God, was born many many thousand years ago in Ayodhya and his birth place is known as Ram Janam Bhumi or Ram Janma Sthan. This birth place is worshipped for the last many thousand years by the Hindu public who believe in divine presence at Ram Janma Bhumi in Ayodhya and have a devout faith that by offering worship at that place they are the recipients of the bounties and blessings of God, and this by itself constitutes the feature of a temple in Hindu religion. However, a holy temple stood at this place in ancient times. At a later stage Maharaja Vikramaditya reconstructed and resusisticated Ram Janma Bhumi temple and for Hindus it is a Spiritual base of Hindu religion.

28. That according to Hindu scriptures and traditions, Ram was born between the close of Treta Yuga and beginning of Dwapar Yuga, and that the span of Dwapar Yuga was about eight lacs of years. He was God incarnate and took birth in human form to protect the saints, to destroy the evils and to establish Dharma and save the world. Since then for times immemorial he is being worshipped by Hindus with the highest devotion and reverence.

29. That the literature is full with the narration of ideal life lived by Ram on this earth beginning with Ramayana of sage Balmiki who according to the evidence in the treatise was a contemporary of Ram. Then comes sage Vyasa who has mentioned Ram at many places in Mahabharat and has written a summary in his holy Biography in Ramopakhyan parva which is part of Bara Parva, Purans, Arthashastras of Kautilya, Raghubansh of Kalidas, Satrabandha of great Bhakta King Prabarsein and multitudes of other books in many languages of India describe the life of Ram and in all these literatures Ayodhya and its sanctity are repeatedly described.

30. That the last but not the least is Ramcharitra Manas written by Goswami Tulsidas (1497-1623 AD), who was contemporary of four Moghal Emperors viz. Babur, Humaun, Akbar and Jahangir. In Uttarakhand of Ramayan he has described the devotion with which the functions of Ram Janma were celebrated in Ayodhya. Not a single word is to be found in this great treatise about the existence of Baburi Masjid or performance of Namaz at Ram Janma Bhumi.

31. That Ram is the most renowned and respected incarnations born in India. He was born on Navmi in the month of Chaitra according to Hindu calendar, which is popularly known as Ram Navmi. He killed demon Emperor Ravan and the entire episode is celebrated every year in the shape of Dussehra in every part of India. After the conquest of Lanka when Ram returned to Ayodhya, the said occasion was celebrated with great enthusiasm and the Diwali is the successor of that celebration which is still being celebrated all over India with participation of all members of religions, communities and sects. The Father of Nation, Mahatma Gandhi, was also a devotee of Ram. In fact when the assesian shot him the only word which came out from his mouth was ‘Hay Ram’. The ideal government commended by him was ‘Ram Rajya’. Ram thus enjoys respects of all mankind.

32. That in a very ancient book known as Ayodhya Mahatmya (A Guide for Travellers), the original of which is in Sanskrit but its translation by Ram Narain has been published in the journal of the Asiatic society of Bengal, Vol. 54 Part I, Chapter-I-C-4-1875 Calcutta 1875 states that all the four sons of emperor Dashrath were born in the palaces of their respective mothers. At one place it is described that Sita Rasoi is in Kaushalya Bhavan, the Janmasthal. The researchers have concluded that this ancient book appears to have come into existence during the tenure of Emperor Akbar. There appears to be no description of any so called Baburi Masjid alleged to have been constructed by Emperor Babur.

33. That the Faizabad Gazetteer, Volume 43 (XLIII) of the District Gazetteers of the United Provinces of Agra and Avadh compiled by Sri H.R.Nevill, I.C.S., published by Government Press in 1905 under the topic 'Directory' while dealing with Ayodhya (at page 12-F) affirmed that "The Janmasthan was in Ramkot and marked the birth place of Ram". Later on, it is said, "The Mosque has two inscriptions, one on the outside and the other on the pulpit; both are in Persian and bear the date 935 Hizri. Of the authensity of the inscriptions there can be no doubt, but no record of the visit to Ayodhya is to be found in the Musalman historians. It must have occurred about the time of his expedition to Bihar." It is to be noted that nothing has been found so far to establish the visit of Babur to Ayodhya. Only on the basis of these two inscriptions, the conclusion is being drawn all round that the mosque was built by Babur. It is very doubtful that it was so built. It appears to be a creation of Britishers sometimes in the Nineteenth century in order to create hatred between the two communities of India viz. Hindus and Muslims and thereby implement an effective policy of communal disharmony, and thereby create problems of law and order so that their annexation of Avadh may be justified on moral grounds. The script on the outer inscription of the mosque is pretty bold and more artistic, a style which was developed sometimes in the middle half of the Nineteenth century while the inner inscription is very fine and thin, a style developed in the latter half of the Nineteenth century. It is therefore absolutely certain that on the basis of these two inscriptions it cannot be concluded that either the mosque was built in 1528 AD or in 935 Hizri, or it was built by Emperor Babur or his

Governor Mir Baqui, as stated therein.

34. That in U.P. District Gazetters Faizabad published by U.P. Government in 1960 and edited by Smt. Esha Basanti Joshi at page 47 quotes the inscription inside the mosque and relies on it for the date of construction of the mosque. The translation of the inscription in Persian given by her is as follows:-

" By the command of Emperor Babur whose justice is an edifice reaching upto the very height of the heavens. The good hearted Mir Baqui built this alighting- place of angels; Buvad Khair Baqi! (May this goodness last for ever). The year of building it was made clear likewise when I said Buvad Khair Baqi (=935)."

This also shows that for both the things i.e. for year of construction and for naming Emperor Babur as the builder of the mosque, authorities have relied upon only on two inscriptions found in the mosque.

35. That in the Babur Nama translated by Annette Susannah Beveridge, Vol. II published by Sayeed International, New Delhi, in appendix 'U' the heading is "The Inscriptions of Babur's mosque in Ayodhya (Avadh)". While reproducing the inscription inside the mosque, and translating it at page IXXVIII after quoting the cuplets and giving its translation and working out the number 935 to identify the year, the author at the bottom appended the following note, which is very important:-

"Presumably the order for building the mosque was given during Babur's stay in Aud (Ayodhya) in 934 A.H. at which time he would be impressed by the dignity and sanctity of the ancient Hindu shrine- it (at least in part) displaced and like the obedient follower of Muhammad he was in intolerance of another Faith, would regard the substitution of a temple by a mosque as dutiful and worthy. The mosque was finished in 935 A.H. but no mention of its completion is in the Babur Nama. The diary for 935 A.H. has many minor lacunae; that the year 935 A.H. has lost much matter, breaking off before where the account of Aud might be looked for. On the next page the author says, "The inscription is incomplete and the above is the plain interpretation which can be given to the cuplets (aforesaid) that are to hand."

36. That the Britishers in achieving their object got a book published in 1813 by Laiden and known as Memoirs of Badruddin Mohd. Babur,

Emperor of Hindustan and for the first time in this book it was stated that Babur in March 1528 passed through Ayodhya and even though Laiden has not mentioned that Babur in Ayodhya demolished the Hindu temples and built the mosque in their place, yet the British rulers gave currency to this false news that Babur demolished the Ram Janma Bhumi Mandir and constructed the Baburi Masjid thereon. The translated Babur Nama, Memoirs of Babur, published in 1921 and translated by M.A.S. Beveridge has mentioned that Babur never interfered with the religion of others and even though he visited various Hindu temples he appreciated their archaeological beauties. It appears there are no evidences that Babur ever visited Ayodhya or demolished any Hindu temple in Ayodhya. To claim the disputed mosque as one built by Babur 400 years ago by the plaintiffs is therefore wholly wrong. In fact, in Faizabad Gazetters 1960 at page 352, it is said "It is said that at the time of Muslim conquest there were three important Hindu shrines (Ayodhya) and little else, the Janmasthan temple, the Swargadwar and the Treta-Ke-Thakur. The Janmasthan was in Ramkot and marked the birth place of Ram….."

37. That there was no mosque even till 1855 is established from the following narration in Faizabad Gazetteer 1960 at p. 63,where it is stated as under:-

"In 1855 a serious conflict between Vairagis and the Muslims at the site of Hanumangarhi in Ayodhya, both claiming it to be a place of worship connected with their respect respective religions. King Wajid Ali Shah is said to have appointed a Committee to investigate this matter which held a public meeting in Gulab Bari. It appears that among those assembled no one testified the existence of the mosque. Therefore, the Committee unanimously decided the issue in favour of the Vairagis. When the report of the Committee reached Lucknow, it caused a sensation among the Muslims. A council of action was formed of which Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi (District Lucknow) was elected leader. He was staying at Suhali and succeeded in attracting a large number of followers. On learning this the Vairagis started arrangements for the defence of the place. Wajid Ali Shah then ordered a regiment to guard it. At last on November 7, 1855 Maulvi Amir Ali started for Rudauli with his followers. On refusing to retrace his steps when ordered to do so by Captain Barlow, a fight ensued in which he and most of his followers were killed.

The Gazetteer for the above has in the Footnote appended referred

toKawal-ul-din Haider: Qaisar-ut-Tawarikh or Tarikh-I-Avadh Part II pp. 110-128 Mirza Zan : Radiqa-I-Shuhda (Lucknow 1772 A.H./1855-56 AD).

38. That in Faizabad Gazetter of 1905 at page 174 it is said "The desecration of the most sacred spot in the city caused great bitterness between the Hindus and Musalmans. On many occasions the feelings led to bloodshed and in 1855 an open fight occurred, the Musalmans occupying the Janmasthan in force and thence making a desperate assault on the Hanumangarhi. They charged up the steps of the temple but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then made a counter attack and stormed the Janmasthan, at the gate of which seventy five Mussalmans were buried, the spot being known as the Ganj Shahidan or the martyr's resting place. Several of the King's Regiment were present but their orders were not to interfere. Shortly afterwards Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi in Lucknow organized a regular expedition with the object of destroying the Hanumangarhi; but he and his forces were stopped in Barabanki district. It is said that upto this time both Hindus and Musalmans used to worship in the same building but since the mutiny the outer closure has been put up in front of the mosque and the Hindus who are forbidden their access to the inner yard make their offerings on a platform which they have raised in the outer one."

39. That in Aine Akbari also no mention of the existence of Baburi Masjid is to be found.

40. That in Faizabad Gazetter of 1960 at pages 351 and 352 it is said that "With the departure of the Court, the Hindus were left to themselves and numerous temples and monasteries sprang into existence. Naval Rai, the Deputy of Nawab Safdar Jung built a fine house in Ayodhya which still stands on the river front. Probably this rise in importance was due to the creating popularity of the Ramcharitra Manas of Tulsidas and the progress of this place became even more rapid after the annexation of the Avadh by the British. before the middle of the nineteenth century Ayodhya was regarded as a stronghold of Hinduism…."

41. That the following facts also establish that the mosque in dispute has not been built by Babur at all in 1528 nor is a mosque at all:-

(1) The tomb of this disputed Masjid if it is to be looked from behind would show that it is not in the style developed by Turkis during fifteenth century, nor the Mehrab of the Masjid in that style is to be found. Thus there is no tomb in the disputed Masjid as is to be found in other mosques generally.

(2) On the north door in the front facing each other there are two tigers. They are in the style of taking leaps and their tails are just in the same style when a tiger takes the leap. Between these two tigers there is a peacock. This is not a characteristic of a mosque.

(3) The various Hindu idols are painted or their scriptions are to be found in the disputed mosque.

(4) In the disputed mosque there is no provision for reciting Namaz. To this day it has no minorities, no place for storage of water for Vazoo.

(5) The Muslim Faith as adumbrated in Holy Koran does not permit the construction of a mosque on the site of temple after demolishing the temple.

www.vadaprativada.com

(6) Babur never dedicated the property of disputed mosque to Allah. Even supposing without admitting that Babur constructed the disputed mosque, yet as it has been done by committing trespass, demolishing the Temple, the abode of God, either by Babur or at his instance by Mir Baqi, the governor of Oudh, the dedication is wholly invalid and void. The material of the old temple was largely employed in building the mosque and a few of the original columns are still in good preservation. They are of closed grained black stone (Kasauti) bearing various Hindi Bas-reliefs. The outer beam of the main structure being of sandal wood, the height of the columns is 7 to 8 ft., the shape of the base, the middle section and the capital is square, the rest being round octagonal. There are two inscriptions in Persian. One on the outside and the other on pulpit bearing the date 935 Hizri. Subsequently, Aurangjeb also desecrated the shrines of Ayodhya which led to prolonged bitterness between Hindus and Musalmans. Latter also occupied Janmasthan by force and also made an assault on

(7) A mosque must be built in a place of peace and quiet and near a place where there is a sizeable and large number of Muslim population. According to the Tenets of Islam, a mosque cannot be built at a place which is surrounded on all sides by temples where the sound of music, of Conch shells or Ghanta Ghariyalis must always disturb the peace and quiet of the place.

(8) A mosque must have a minaret for calling the Ajan. According to Baille "When an assembly of worshippers pray in a Masjid with permission, i.e. delivery. But it is a condition that prayers be with Ajan or the regular call and be public and not private, for though there should be an assembly yet if it is without Izah and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no Masjid according to the true disciples." Indeed there has been no mosque without a minaret after the first half century fight. (See P.R. Ganapati Iyer's law relating to Hindu and Muhammadan Endowments 2nd Edition 1918 chapter XVII, page 388).

(9) According to the claim laid by the Muslims in the present suit, the building is surrounded on sides by a grave yard known as Ganj Shahidan. There is a mention in the Faizabad Gazetteer also of the burial of seventy five Muslims at the gate of Janmasthan and the place being known as Ganj Shahidan after the battle of 1855. Although there are no graves any where near the building at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi o in its precincts or the area appurtenant thereto for the last more than 50 years and if the building was surrounded by a graveyard during the British times soon after the annexation of Audh by them the building could not be mosque and could not be used as a mosque for offering of prayers except the funeral prayers.

42. That the mere displacement in part of the ancient Hindu temple of Ram Janma BhumiStahan will not take away the religious sanctity of the temple and the site inasmuch as the Hindu religion believes the presence of the divine spirit at the Ram Janma Bhumi Sthan, worship

whereat is conducive to the spiritual well being of the person as the place relates to the birth place of Lord Ram and to constitute temple it is not merely the presence of idols as such which is required. The acts of vandalism perpetrated either by Babur or by any other person after him would not take away the religious sanctity of the place or destroy the religious belief of the Hindus attached to that place, nor the place as such could be deemed to be out of possession of the Hindus as such. As Carneigy puts it "Ayodhya which is to the Hindus as Macca is to the Muhammadans, Jerusalam to the Jews. has in the traditions of the Orthodox, a highly mythical origin, being founded for additional security not on earth for that is transitory but on the chariot wheel of the Great Creator Himself which will endure for ever." It is intimately connected with the mass of legend relating to Ram and Suryabanshi (solar) race and was certainly the capital of several reigning dynasties." It is a place of great antiquity. According to Hindu mythology, it represents the forehead of Vishnu and is the chief of the seven cities (Saptapuri) of pilgrimage in India (See 1960 Faizabad Gazetteer at page 351). The worship at the place has continued since ever throughout the ages. The Hindus were never out of actual and legal possession. Their rights always remained and still exists on the land in dispute.

43. That according to the case set up by certain defendants and the documents filed by them or on their behalf, the Babari Masjid was a Sunni Waqf but its Mutwallis being the descendants of Mir Baqi were Shia Muslims. It is wholly incomprehensible in law that a Waqf created by a Shia Waqif would be a Sunni Waqf at all. The mosque according to the plaintiffs was built by Mir Baqi, who was a Shia and that he being the Waqif so were the Mutwallis one after the other. But fully aware of the realities the Shia Central Board of Waqfs U.P. did not agitate the matter, while the plaintiffs purported to take proceedings on the basis of some report of the Waqf Inspector. The said proceedings are not at all binding on the answering defendants or Hindus in general. The answering defendants were never parties to those proceedings, nor the entire Hindu community was represented in those proceedings taken by the Sunni Waqf Board. Those proceedings are clearly violative of principles of natural justice and are null and void.

44. That before the middle of the 19th Century, as mentioned above, Ayodhya was regarded as a stronghold of Hindus and the Ram Janma Bhumi was at all material time accessible to Hindus. Since then Hindus are in peaceful possession of the place and the temple in dispute and are performing the worship therein peacefully and uninterruptedly.

45. That in 1949 some members of the Muslim community tried to raise disputes whereupon the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. were initiated and even thereafter the Hindus continued to worship at the place. According to U.P. District Gazetteers Faizabad 1960 Annexures in Table 11 at page 450 shows that various fairs are being held on different days showing there large gatherings of Hindus varying from 2 lacs to 4 lacs, which confirms the description of Carneigy about Ayodhya being Macca to Hindus.

46. That the same Gazetteer Faizabad 1960 records a very important fact by Sri William Finch when it mentions as follows at page 50:-

> "William Finch, the English merchant who traveled through the Moghal Empire (1608-1611) says that Avadh is "a city of ancient note and seate of a Potan King, now much ruined; the castle built four hundred years ago. here are also the ruins of Rani Chand (s) 3 Castle and houses which the Indians acknowledge for the great God saying that he took a flesh upon him to see Tamasha of the world. In these ruins remayne certain Brahmens who record the names of all such Indians as work themselves in the river running thereby; which custume, they say, hath continued four lackes of years (which is three hundred ninety four hundred thousand and five hundred years before the world's creation). At the bottom against the word '3' which is indicated in the citation against the word 'Rani Chand' it is explained as follows:-
> > "Rani Chandra, the Hero of Ramayan. The reference is to the mound known as Ramkot or fort of Ram."

Thus it shows that after Babur during the time of Akbar, Ram Janma Bhumi Sthan was being worshipped by the Hindus which was noticed by the English traveller as well. It may be mentioned here that Audh was equivalent to Ayodhya.

47. That the temple and the Sthan has always been the public religious worship place for the last several thousand years and the interference, if any, by Babur in 1528 by displacement of a part of the Temple for a few years could not take away the legal rights of Hindus, speciallywhen after Babur's death the record of history establishers re-emergency of Hindus' possession over the same. The presence or absence of the idols would not in any way affect the right, title and interest of Hindus over the Sthan and the temple in dispute, nor it will affect in any way the religious character of Ram Janma Bhumi as a place being a part of the Hindu religion. It is not necessary that there must be idols installed at the place before it could be described as a temple and a part of the Hindu religion. As for example, Lord Krishna left this world at the place near Somnath in the State of Gujarat. The place is known as Prabhas Patan (Somnath) but at this place there is no idol of Lord Krishna. Yet the place is a very holy place for Hindus and is worshipped as the Hindus firmly believe that worship at this place would be conducive to their spiritual well being and peace. In the present case what is of the maximum religious importance for Hindus is the birth place of Lord Ram i.e. the Janma Sthan, the presence of idols on the place are of later origin when Vikramaditya repaired and resusticated the temple for the benefit of the worshippers who subsequently started imagining a particular image in which the God Ram is manifesting Himself as a divine person to them.

48. That, in the above circumstances, the ouster of Hindu community from Ram Janma Bhumi did not ever take place. The Hindus have always been and are still today in lawful possession and shall always be deemed to be in lawful possession of the site in dispute. In the alternative, even supposing without admitting that the Hindus were ousted, yet they have thereafter regained possession and have been exercising their rights of worship peacefully and to the knowledge of the plaintiffs for more than twelve years and thus perfected their title in the eyes of law. The suit is barred by limitation.

49. That Babur is alleged not to have made any endowment or waqf, nor

he could. The emperor does not if so facto became the owner of the whole earth of which he may be a ruler. There is no such concept that the ruler becomes the true owner of all the land in his kingdom if so facto. The site in dispute admittedly belongs to Hindus for the last thousand years. The ruler might have a superior right to levy taxes etc., but could not be deemed to be the actual owner. In these circumstances, the claim of the plaintiffs that Babur by annexation, which is emphatically denied, as there was no annexation as such, became the owner and made a Waqf when there was no battle between Babur and Raja of Ayodhya and no question of annexation of the territories arose. The general religious notions of the Hindu community prior as well as subsequent to Babur has always been that the temple and the Janma Bhumi Sthan, i.e. Ram Janma Bhumi, the birth place of the Creator and Lord Ram, are and have always been for the religious benefit of the Hindus, for the benefit of the truth and good as against evils and vices, the worship for which the place was used and stood dedicated was at no relevant time displaced, nor taken away and hence neither the plaintiffs nor the Muslims acquired any rights, title or interest in the disputed property. In fact Babur had no rights to give religious place of Ram Janma Bhumi of Hindus in perpetuity to Muslims or create any rights in favour of Muslims in perpetuity over the religious place of Hindus, which is against all cannons of justice, morality and good conscience. Further a place already dedicated cannot be rededicated.

50. That birth place of Ram is only located at one particular spot in Ayodhya. It cannot be shifted to any other place in the world. It is in the same position for Hindus as Macca for Muslims. As Macca cannot be shifted so Ram Janma Bhumi cannot be shifted. On the basis of national policy of assigning the weight of a particular place for a particular religion or a particular community, the belief and religious feelings of Hindus in this regard be given supreme importance as a mosque can be built in any other part.

51. That it has been the national policy of our country since India attained Independence to value and appreciate the depth of feelings of all communities concerned and redress the wrongs irrespective of the protests of the opponents on grounds of injuries to their religious feelings. The Govt. of India under Pt. Jawahar Lal Nehru and Sardar Patel placed the reconstruction of the Somnath Mandir in Gujarat in spite of opposition of some Muslims fundamentalists. Similarly, the claim of Christian fundamentalists on Vivekanand rock was brushed aside and the Govt. of India okayed the construction of Vivekanand Mandir near Kanya Kumari.

52. That the plaintiffs have no right to maintain the suit and the suit is liable to fail on this ground alone.

53. That the plaintiffs are not entitled to any of the reliefs claimed by them and the suit is liable to be dismissed with costs.

On behalf of defendant no.2O

(Regular Suit No.12 of 1961)

The Sunni Central Board of Waqf, U.P. and others ……Applicants.

Versus

Gopal Singh Visharad & Others ……Respondents

On behalf of defendant No.20 it is stated as under:-

1. That the allegations in para 21A of the plaint (amended) is not admitted as stated and is denied.
2. That the allegations of para 21B of the plaint (amended) is not admitted and is denied.

Corrected today to the permission of Hon'ble Court. Sd./- 07.01.96

3. That the allegations of para 21C is admitted to this extent that ordinance No.8A of 1993 was promulgated on 7.1.93 and latter on it was substituted by Act No.3 of 1993, these ordinance and the Act were challenged before the Hon'ble Supreme Court. It is also admitted that Union of India was held as Statutory receiver. Rest of the allegation of the aforesaid para is not admitted.

www.vadaprativada.com

ADDITIONAL PLEAS

4. That the disputed land is known as Ram Janam Bhomi, which is very sacred for the Hindus from time immemorial. There was a temple of Hindu deity 'Ram' on the aforesaid land. When Babar invaded India he partly destroyed the said temple. It is alleged that he had constructed a mosque. In fact the upper structure was constructed and remaining temple was left as it is. In this construction the malba of the temple was used. The pillars of the temple were also used in the construction. On the pillars, the figures of Hindu deity & holy signs were evidence that Hindu Temple was not completely destroyed. Thus

the temple structure existed and it is wrong to claim that a new mosque was constructed by Babar and handed over to Muslim community. The muslims were not offering prayer in the disputed structure as there were in graved figures of Hindu deity on the 14 pillars of the disputed structure. It is also wrong to say that the Muslims offer Namaz for last more than 46 years the muslims never offered Namaz. The land or place does not become mosque. Thus the claim of the plaintiff through amendment that the disputed land 'Ram Janam Bhomi' will become Babari Masjid as the Muslims had offered Namaz in the structure is wrong and incorrect. It is further stated that the nature of Ram Janam Bhomi will never be changed and it shall always remain as Ram Janam Bhomi even if Muslims have ever offered namaz in it and it will not become mosque under the eye of law. It is further stated that open land is the land of the temple and it cannot be a mosque.

5. That by destruction of the structure, the pillars were also destroyed which were evidence of Hindu Temple. It is not the destruction of Babri Mosque but a Hindu temple. The answering defendant No.20 is entitled to claim the land in dispute for constructing a temple of Bhagwan Ram on the disputed land.

6. That in case the court decree the suit for re-construction of the demolished structure, it is necessary that it should be built in the original shape and model having 14 pillars with the figures of Hindu diety, lotous, swastic and Ram Chabutara, Sita Rasoi and temple of Ram Lala.

7. That the building which was alleged as mosque is demolished and now the land is of the temple of Ram Janam Bhomi, which was demolished is claimed by the plaintiff through the amendment. The plaintiff has no right to claim the land of the temple which is the property of Hindus.

8. That the Babar never became an Emperer of India he was only an invadar, however no king or Government had a right to hand over or give the religious land to any person as such Babar had no right to construct a mosque over Ram Janam Bhomi and give it to Muslims, nor Muslims have any right to claim Ram Janam Bhomi.

9. That similarly the plaintiff cannot claim places of Hindus worship Sita Rasoi, Ram Chabutara. The claim of the plaintiff is without any basis nor they are in possession.

Replication to the amended written statement of defendant No.10 (President All India Hindu Maha Sabha).

The plaintiffs, above named, beg to submit as under:-

1. That the contents of paras 33 and 34 of the amended written statement as inserted under the order dated 28.10.1991 (hereinafter referred to as amended written statement) are the matters of record and they need no reply.
2. That the contents of para 35 of the amended written statement are denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the plaintiffs are not aware of any 3-point formula referred to in the para under reply. In any case no such formula finds embodied in the said Ordinance No.9 of 1990. It is further submitted that the land in dispute including the mosque in question was not even actually acquired and the same could not be even legally acquired and any such acquisition was absolutely illegal, unconstitutional and void.
3. That the contents of para 36 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. As already mentioned above, no such formula was ever agreed upon by the plaintiffs or by the leaders of both the communities much less by the Muslim leaders. The Muslim leaders had categorically rejected the said Ordinance and most of them had strongly urged for withdrawal of the same. The script of the T.V. and Air broadcast of the relevant dates, specially of 19th October 1990 to 23rd October, 1990 will be required by this Hon'ble Court to be perused for ascertainment of the fact that the said Ordinance was strongly opposed by the leaders of the Muslim community and also by leaders of Hindu community and even the Vishwa Hindu Parishad leaders had rejected the same.

4. That the contents of para 37 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. No physical charge of the entire property in dispute was ever taken over by the said Commissioner, Faizabad Division. The mosque in question had virtually remained in the custody of the Receiver all throughout. If any charge is alleged to have been taken over the same was only a paper transaction and it had no legal effect upon the custody or management of the mosque in question. It is also incorrect to say that the Ordinance in question was in respect of the property in suit. The boundaries of the property sought to be acquired by the first Ordinance were vague and in no case the same covered the property in suit which comprised of the 23 plots of land mentioned in the plaint. The northern boundary of the area sought to be acquired was upto the road linking Hanuman Garhi with Doraha Kuan while the property in suit includes plot No.238 also which falls in the further north of the said road and as such the land of plot No.238 (of Nazul Khasra) could not at all be said to have been acquired by the aforesaid First ordinance. Similarly in the Southern side the boundary of the acquired area extended upto Khasra plot No.172 of the 2nd Second Settlement while the property in suit includes land falling even beyond the said Khasra plot No.172 of the settlement and Nazul Khasra plot Nos.603, 606, 607, 610, 619, 620,621 and 628 etc. are all situated in the further south of the said plot No.172 of the 2nd settlement. Similarly the western boundary of the so-called acquired area mentioned in the first Ordinance extended upto the so-called road in Nazul plot No.577, while the fact is that the said Nazul plot No.577 was situated in the eastern side of the mosque in suit and not in the western side and as such the western boundary of the acquired area was absolutely wrong and vague and on that account also the said First Ordinance was absolutely illegal, defective, incomplete and void ab initio.

In the eastern boundary of the acquired property plot numbers, mentioned in the First Ordinance, are 1105, 1106 and 1118 which do not appear to be the plots of the Khasra of 2nd Settlement of Mauza Ram Kot. In any case these plots numbers are not situated in the eastern side of the property in suit as the plots numbers of the second settlement existing in the eastern side of the property in suit are 164,165,166 and 167 etc. As such the eastern boundary of the so-called acquired area was absolutely vague and unidentifiable. As such the said First Ordinance was illegal, non est and void even on account of the aforesaid ambiguity and vagueness.

5. That the contents of para 38 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. It is incorrect to say that the said First ordinance No.9 of 1990 was implemented in fact and spirit. In any case the property in suit was not covered by the aforesaid Ordinance No.9 of 1990 and as such there was no question of implementation of the said Ordinance in respect of the property in suit. It is also incorrect to say that the property in suit had ever vested in the Central Government. As already stated above the Receiver of the property had continued all through that period and he was never relieved of his responsibility. Moreover the land of Nazul Khasra plots nos.238, 603, 606, 607,610, 619, 620, 621 and 628 etc. was clearly situated beyond the northern and southern boundaries mentioned in the so-called acquired area under the aforesaid Ordinance and the boundary of the eastern and western sides being non-existent, incorrect, misleading and vague, the land of other plots in dispute could also not be said to have been acquired by the aforesaid Ordinance and as such the entire Ordinance was nothing but vague and indefinite in respect of the property sought to be acquired and in that view of the matter no portion of the property in suit could be said to have been acquired by the aforesaid Ordinance and as such there was no question of implementation of the said Ordinance in respect of physical possession on the spot or even otherwise.

6. That the contents of para 39 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. As already submitted above the said first Ordinance could not be implemented at all on account of its vagueness and uncertainty and other deficiencies regarding incomplete

details of the property sought to be acquired and as such there was no question of its being implemented.

7. That the contents of para 40 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. As the First Ordinance itself was vague, incomplete and void ab initio no consequences could be said to have been followed from the same. The averments made in the para under reply are merely imaginary and baseless. Neither the property in suit had ever vested in the Government and nor it was freed or discharged as alleged in the para under reply and the orders of injunction and appointment of Receiver etc. had continued to remain in force as the Ordinance in question could not at all be said to have applied to any portion of the property in suit much less the entire property in suit. The suit in question as well as the orders passed therein had all through remained operative. So also neither the Commissioner could be legally said to be an authorised person in respect of any portion of the property in suit much less the entire property in suit and as such there was no question of his taking actual possession of any portion of the property much less the entire property in suit.

8. That the contents of para 41 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. It is incorrect to say that the said first Ordinance was withdrawn under pressure of anyone but the same appears to have been withdrawn on account of the aforesaid deficiencies and illegalities which were undoubtedly pointed out to the then Prime Minister and his Cabinet colleagues and others. The motive imputed to the Prime Minister is also incorrect and false.

9. That the contents of para 42 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. Whatever was mentioned in the Second Ordinance would be evident from the contents of the same and legal effect of the same is a matter of argument regarding which submissions will be made during the course of arguments.

10. That the contents of para 43 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The President of India had absolute and full power to withdraw, repeal and revoke the said first

ordinance and to provide for the legal consequences of the same as are mentioned in the 2nd Ordinance. As already mentioned above the property in suit had never vested in the government and the same or at least major portion of the same was not at all covered by the First Ordinance and as such there was no question of vesting or divesting of the said property which was not at all covered by the First Ordinance and the property, if any, found to be covered by the First Ordinance could very well be divested by the said 2nd Ordinance and its sta us could be restored to its original position as if the first Ordinance had not at all been issued.

11. That the contents of para 44 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and the same being of argumentative nature, they would be replied during the course of argument. It is further submitted that the suit in question had not at all abated by the First Ordinance and as such the interim orders passed therein had also remained very much operative and in force in spite of the First Ordinance.

12. That the contents of paras 45, 46, 47, 48, 49 and 50 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The same contain legal pleas which have no basis but still the same will be replied during the course of arguments.

13. That the contents of para 51 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. As the suits and proceedings in question had never abated even by the First Ordinance, the same had always remained in existence and very much operative and in force. It is further submitted that even if the First Ordinance had caused any effect upon the said suit or orders, the said effect could very well be undone by the 2nd Ordinance and the same was undone by the said 2nd Ordinance.

14. That the contents of para 52 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The averments of the para under reply are argumentative in nature and the same will be replied during the course of arguments.

15. That the contents of para 53 of the amended written statement are

absolutely incorrect and hence denied as stated. It is further submitted that since allegations of malafide have been made against Sri V.P.Singh and his Cabinet colleagues they were required to be impleaded as parties to the instant suit if at all the said allegations are considered worth trial although the plaintiffs maintain that the said allegations are liable to be deleted or at least ignored as they are not at all relevant for the purposes of the instant suit.

16. That the contents of paras 54, 55 and 56 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that whatever advice is given by the Council of Ministers to the President of India, the same is not justiciable by the Courts of law and in any case the Courts cannot go into the circumstances which led to the enactment of any legislation and as such the circumstances which had necessitated the issuance of the second Ordinance cannot be investigated by this Hon'ble Court and the reasoning given in the 2nd Ordinance is to be read as is mentioned therein. It is also incorrect to say that the 2nd Ordinance hits the basic structure of the Constitution of India.

17. That the contents of para 57, 58, 59 and 60 of the amended written statement relate to the Union Government and as such the Union of India is liable to be impleaded in order to reply the same.

The plaintiffs maintain that the said second Ordinance having been legally promulgated on 23rd October, 1990 the same could remain in force for six weeks without being laid before any House of the Parliament and as such at least it had the effect of withdrawing the First Ordinance and by virtue of the said Second Ordinance it will be presumed that the First Ordinance had never been issued and had never seen the light of the day.

18. That the contents of paras 61, 62, 63 and 64 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the same are all argumentative in nature and will be replied during the course of arguments.

19. That the contents of para 65 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. There is no definite and

prescribed procedure for promulgating an Ordinance and the procedure which can be said to have been prescribed under the Constitution of India for issuance of an Ordinance has been followed and both the Ordinances were issued by following the same procedure and as such the Second Ordinance had the effect of nullifying and doing away with the first Ordinance.

20. That the contents of para 66 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the legal fiction of withdrawal makes the first Ordinance non-existent and as such the first Ordinance will not be deemed to have been issued and it never came into effect. The legal pleas will be replied during the course of arguments.

21. That the contents of paras 67, 68, 69 and 70 of the amended written statement are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and the same being of argumentative nature will be replied during the course of arguments.

It is, however, maintained that the instant suit had very much remained pending all throughout and the same had never abated either in part or in full and as such the same is liable to be tried.

STATEMENT OF SRI ZAFARYAB ZILANI, COUNSEL FOR PLAINTIFF IN O.O.S. 4 OF 1989 MADE UNDER ORDER X RULE 2 C.P.C. ON 22.04.2009.

For the purpose of this case there is no dispute about the faith of Hindu devotees of Lord Rama regarding the birth of Lord Rama at Ayodhya a described in Balmiki Ramayana or as existing today. It is, however, disputed and denied that the site of Babri Masjid was the place of birth of Lord Rama. It is also denied that there was any Ram Janam Bhoomi Temple at the site of Babri Masjid at any time whatsoever.

The existence of Nirmohi Akhara from the second half of Nineteenth Century onwards is also not disputed. It is, however, denied and disputed that Nirmohi Akhara was in existence and specially in Ayodhya in 16th Century A.D. or in 1528 A.D. and it is also denied that any idols were there in the building of the Babri Masjid up to 22nd December, 1949.

SUIT FOR DECLARATION AND INJUNCTION

1. That the plaintiffs Nos. 1 and 2, namely, Bhaagwan Sri Rama Virajman at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, also called Sri Rama Lala Virajman, and the Asthan Sri Rama Janma bhumi, Ayodhya, with the other Idols and places of worship situate thereat, are juridical persons with Bhagwan Sri Rama as the presiding Deity of the place. The Plaintiffs No. 3 is a Vaishnva Hindu, and seeks to represent the Deity and the Asthan as a next friend.

2. That the place Sri Rama Janma Bhumi is too well known at Ayodhya to need any description for purposes of identification of the subject matter of dispute in this plaint. However, for greater precision, two site plans of the building premises and of the adjacent area known as Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, prepared by Sri Shiv Shankar Lal pleader, in the discharge of his duty as a commissioner appointed by the court of Civil Judge, Faizabad, in Suit No.2 of 1950: Sri Gopal Singh Visharad Versus Sri Zahur Ahmad and others: along with his Report dated 25.5.1950, are being annexed to this plaint and made part of it as Annexures I, II and III, respectively.

3. That the said suit No. 2 of 1950 was filed on 16.1.1950, by Sri Gopal Singh Visharad against (1) Zahoor Ahmad, (2) Haji Pheku, (3) Mohammad Faiq, (4) Mohammad Shami, (5) Mohammad Achhan Mian, (6) Uttar Pradesh State, (7) Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad, (8) City Magistrate, Faizabad, and (9) Superintendent of Police, Faizabad. The plaintiff of that suit died recently and his name has been substituted by that of his son, who has been impleaded as Defendant No. 1, in this suit. Of the defendants, the first five Muslim individuals are dead and their names have been struck off under the orders of the Court. They have, therefore, not been impleaded as defendants in this suit. The defendants Nos. 6 to 9 of that suit have been impleaded as defendants Nos. 7 to 10, respectively, in this suit also.

4. That the relief claimed in that suit (No. 2 of 1950) was a declaration that the Plaintiff was entitled to perform the Puja and to have Darshan of Sri Baagwan Ram Chandra and others Virajman at Asthan Janma Bhumi without any hindrance, dispute or interruption, and that the Defendants had no right to interfere in the plaintiffs exercise of his said rights. A permanent injunction restraining the Defendants and their successors from ever removing the Idols of Sri Bhagwan Ram Chandra and others Virajman at Asthan Janma Bhumi, from the place where they were, or closing the entrance gate or other passages of ingress and egress, and from interfering or disturbing the Puja or Darshan in any manner whatsoever, was also claimed.

5. That an identical suit, being Suit No.25 of 1950, was filed a few months later, after serving a notice under section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, by Paramhans Ramchandra Das, who is now the Mahant of Digambar Akhara, Ayodhya. He has been impleaded as defendant No.2 in this Suit. The same five Muslim individuals were Defendants Nos. 1 to 5 in that suit, and on their death their names were also struck off under the orders of the Court. Of the remaining Defendants of suit No.2 of 1950, defendants Nos. 8 and 9, namely, the City Magistrate and the Superintendent of Police, Faizabad, were not impleaded in Suit No. 25 of 1950 and the only surviving defendants therein are the Uttar Pradesh State and the Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad, who have been impleaded as defendants Nos. 7 and 8, respectively, in this Suit.

6. That a third suit being suit No. 26 of 1959 was thereafter filed in the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad, by the Nirmohi Akhara, Ayodhya, who has been impleaded as defendant No.3 in this suit, claiming the relief of removal of Babu Priya Dutt Ram, Defendant No.1 thereto, from the management and charge of the temple of Janma Bhumi with the idol of Lord Ram Chandra and others installed therein, at Asthan Janma Bhumi, whereto he had been appointed as Receiver in the year 1950 by the City Magistrate,

Faizabad, in a proceeding under Section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. The other Defendants were (2) State of Uttar Pradesh, (3) Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad, (4) City Magistrate, Faizabad, (5) Superintendent of Police, Faizabad, (6) Haji Phekku, (7) Mohammad Faiq, and (8) Mohammad Achhan Mian. The said Defendants Nos. 2,3,4 and 5, are respectively Defendants Nos. 7,8,9 and 10 in this suit. The other Defendants have died and their legal representatives have not been brought on the record obviously because the cause of action did not survive against them.

7. That a fourth suit, being suit no. 12 of 1961, was thereafter filed by the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P., and 8 other Sunni Muslims on 18.12.1961 in the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad. The reliefs claimed were (a) A declaration that the property indicated by the letters A B C D in the sketch map annexed to the plaint is a "public mosque commonly known as 'Babri Masjid', and that the land adjoining the mosque shown in the sketch map by letters E F G H is a public Muslim grave-yard", and (b) "for delivery of possession of the mosque and grave yard in suit by removal of the idols and other articles which the Hindus may have placed in the mosque as objects of their worship." The Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. is being impleaded as Defendant No. 4 in this suit, and of the remaining plaintiffs of that suit, the only surviving plaintiffs No.7 and 9 are being impleaded as Defendants No. 5 and 6 hereto. Of the Defendants to that suit, the legal representatives of Defendants No. 1, 13, and 15, who have been impleaded therein, are being impleaded as Defendants No. 1.14 and 16 respectively in this suit. The surviving Defendants No. 2,3, 5.6,7,8,10,11,12, 14,17,18 and 19 of that suit, are being impleaded as Defendants No. 2,3,7,8,9,10,11,12,13,15,17,18 and 19 respectively, herein. Remaining Defendants No. 4 and 16 have died and have been left out.

8. That it needs to be stated that by an order dated 8.8.1962 of the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad, in Suit No. 12 of 1961, the plaintiffs thereof were permitted to sue, on behalf of the entire Muslim community, the Defendants No. 1 to 4 therein as representatives of, and for the benefit of the entire Hindu community. Of them, Defendant No.4 has since died. Defendants 10 to 19 were impleaded therein later, on their own request of themselves defendant No. 16 has since died, their legal representatives have not been impleaded in that suit. They have, therefore, been left out in this suit.

9. That it also needs to be stated that by an order dated 4.8.1951, suits No. 2 and 25 of 1950 were consolidated together, and by an order dated 6.1.1964 all the four suits were consolidated and Suit No. 12 of 1961 was made the leading case.

10. That it must also be stated that in suit No. 2 of 1950, an ad-interim injunction was issued on 16.1.1950, in the terms prayed for but on an application made by the Defendant District Magistrate, the ad-interim injunction was modified on 19.1.1950 to read as under-"the parties are hereby restrained by means of temporary injunction to refrain from removing the Idols in question from the site in dispute and from interfering with Puja etc., as at present carried on."

The aforesaid ad-interim injunction was confirmed by order dated 3.3.1951, after hearing the parties, in the following terms- "The interim injunction order dated 16.1.50 as modified on 19.1.50 shall remain in force until the suit is disposed of. "

A first appeal from that order, being F.A.F.O. No. 154 of 1951, in the High Court at Allahabad, was dismissed by judgement dated 26.4. 1955. The interim injunction continues to remain in force, ever since down to the present day.

11. That the issues were framed in all the four suits more than 25 years ago, but their hearing has not yet commenced. The Sewa and Puja of the plaintiff Deities has in the meanwhile been looked after by a Receiver, to begin with by Babu Priya Dutt Ram, appointed by the City Magistrate in the proceedings under Section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and later by Sri K.K. Ram Verma, who continued to function as such from 1970 onwards pending the passing of final orders by the Civil Court, in suit No. 12 of 1961. He was discharged by the Court of the IIIrd Additional District Judge, Faizabad, by order dated 25.8.1988. Sri L.P.N. Singh was appointed Receiver. He functioned upto 22.11.1988, when by an order of that date Sri Jamuna Prasad Singh was appointed as Receiver.

12. The when issues were framed, and when the suits were consolidated, more than twenty five years ago, the expectation was that the suits would be disposed of soon thereafter. But for one reason or another, they continued to remain pending, and still continue to remain pending, with a dim prospect of their immediate hearing. Although the sewa and puja of the plaintiff Deities was being conducted regularly and properly yet Darshan was allowed only from behind a barrier. It is true that in the Temples in the Southern parts of India, the devotees are not permitted to go near the Deities for their Darshan and Puja and must do so from behing a barrier, but that is not the custom in the Northern parts of India, and it was hoped that after the decision of the suits, the devotees would be able to have a closer Darshan of the Plaintiff Deity No.1.

13. That because of the indefinite delay in the disposal of the said suits, on an application made by Defendant No. 20, herein, in the interest of the worshippers, with the prayer for allowing a closer Darshan the Court of the Munsif Sadar, Faizabad, refused to pass orders but on appeal there from, the court of the District Judge, Faizabad by an order dated 1.2.1986, directed the authorities to remove the barrier by opening the locks on the gates O and P on the map, which is annexed hereto as Annexure No.1.

14. That the plaintiff Deities and their devotees are extremely unhappy with the prolonged delay in the hearing and disposal of the said suits, and the deteriorating management of the affairs of the Temple, particularly the way in which the Receiver has been acting. It is believed that a large portion of the money offered by the worshippers, who come in great numbers, is being misappropriated by the Pujaries and other Temple staff, and the receiver has not controlled this evil. Further, the devotees of the plaintiff Deities are desirous of having a new Temple constructed, befitting their pristine glory, after removing the old structure at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya.

15. That in order to improve the Temple administration and to reconstruct a new Temple at Sri Rama Janma bhumi, the sacred duty of managing and performing the sewa, archana and puja of the plaintiff Deities, and the task of protecting, renovating, reconstructing and developing the Temple premises, in short, of managing all their estate and all their affairs, was entrusted, by unanimous public opinion, to jagadaguru Ramanandacharya Swami

Shivaaramacharaya of Kashi, who was the head of the Ramananda Sampradaya to which most of the Sadhus and Vairagis of Ayodhya belong. The Trust so reposed in him by the Hindu public was formally declared by him by Deed of Trust dated December 18, 1985, and registered the same day with the Sub Registrar, S.D. No.1, at Delhi, Vide No. 16510 in Additional Book No.4, Volume 1156, at pages 64 to 69. A copy of the said Deed of Trust is annexed to and made part of this plaint as Annexure IV.

16. That by the said Trust Deed, apart from declaring himself to be the First Trustee for life and the Pramuk and Dharmakarta of the Trust, which was named Sri Rama Janma Bhumi Nyas by Jagadguru Ramanandacharya Swami Shivaramacharya, the following others were appointed as Trustees for life, namely :-

(2) Jagadguru Varishtha Shankaracharya Swami Shantananda Saraswati Ji Maharaj of Jyotishpeetha, Prayag.

(3) Gorakshapeethadhishwar Mahant Avedyanath Ji Maharaj of Gorakhpur.

(4) Mahant Nrityagopal Das Ji Maharaj of Maniram Chhaoni, Ayodhya.

www.vadaprativada.com

(5) Paramhans Mahant Ramchandra Das Ji Maharaj of Digambar Akhara, Ayodhya, now the acting Pramukh and Dharmakarta, Defendant No. 2.

(6) Santpravar Prabhu Dutt Ji Brahmachari of Sankirtan Bhawan, Jhusi, Prayag.

(7) Mahant Ram Kewal Das Ji Maharaj of Nirmohi Akhara, Ayodhya which is Defendant No. 3.

(8) Sri Vishnu Hari Dalmia, Tees Janwary Marg, New Delhi.

(9) Sri Ashok Singhal, 16/10 Hashimpur Road, Allahabad.

(10) Sri Dau Dayal Khanna, Nanda Vihar, Civil Lines, Moradabad. Of these Trustees, Sri Vishnu Hari Dalmia was named the Treasurer and Sri Ashok Singhal the Managing Trustee. In addition to the said 10 Trustees, power was given to the Marga Darshak Mandal of the Vishva Hindu Parishad to nominate 4 Trustees who are Mahatmas from different parts of India, and to its Governing Council to nominate 10 Trustees from among eminent Hindu citizens of India, and in exercise of the said power the

www.vadaprativada.com

following further Trustees have been appointed by the Vishva Hinduu Parishad namely:-

A. From among the Mahatmas:

(1) Jagadguru Madhwacharya Sri Vishwshtirtha Ji Maharaj of Udipi, Karnataka.

(2) Bhante Gyan Jagat, Budhist Bhikshu of Bodh Gaya, Bihar.

(3) Dr. Ramvilas Das Ji Vedanti of Ayodhya.

(4) Jadadguru Ramanujacharya Swami Purushottamacharya Ji Maharaj, Ayodhya.

B. From among Hindu citizens of India:-

(1) Sri Justice Shiv Nath Katju, Retired Judge, High Court, Allahabad.

(2) Sri Justice Deoki Nandan Agarwala, Retired Judge Rign Court, Allahabad, by whom this plaint is being filed as the next friend. Of the plaintiff Deities No. 1 and 2, and as plaintiff No.3.

(3) Rajmata Srimant Vijae Raje Scindhia of Gwalior.

(4) Sri Shrish Chandra Dikshit, Retired Director General of Police, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow.

(5) Sri Badri Prasad Toshniwal, Industrialist, New Delhi. The Trustees so appointed hold office for 4 years, and half their number retire by rotation once every two years, but are eligible for reappointment.

16-A. (1)That Jagadguru Ramanandacharya Swami Shivaramacharya of Kashi, who was the Pramukh and Dharmakarta of the Nayas had died and after him Paramhans Mahant Ramachandra Dasji Maharaj of Digambar Akhara, Ayodhya has been acting as the Pramukh and Dharmakarta of the Nyas.

(Added with permission of Court vide order dated 07.05.92 on C.M. No. 68 (o) of 1992).

(2) That Sant Pravan Prabhu Duttji Brahamachari, of Sankirtan Bhawan Jhusi, died after the institution of the suit.

(3) That the two vacancies among the trustees from among the Mahatmas have been filled up, according to the deed of Trust, by the appointment of the following as trustees of the Nyas, namely-

www.vadaprativada.com

(i) Veetraag Sant Paramhans Pujya Swami Vamdeoji Maharaj, of Anand Vrindavan, Vrindavan Mathura.

(ii) Mahant Dharam Dasji Maharaj of Sankat Mochan Mandir, Faizabad Road Ayodhya.

(4) That there were 5 vacancies among the Trustees to be appointed from among the eminent Hindu citizens of India, when the suit was filed. They have since been filled up, according to the deed of Trust, by the appointment of the following as Trustees of the Nyas, namely:-

(i) Sri Moropant Pingle, Dr. Hedgewar Bhawan Mahal Nagpur.

(ii) Sri Brahma Deoji, Sankat Mochan, Hanuman Mandir, Sector VI, Ramkrishna Puram New Delhi.

(iii) Sri Surya Krishnaji, Sankar Mochan, Hanuman Mandir Sector VI. Ramkrishnapuram, New Delhi and

(iv) Sri Yashuvant Bhai Bhatt, Sri Rama Janma Bhumi Nyas Karyalaya, Ramkot, Ayodhya".

(Amendment made with the oral permission of the Court on 25.08.1991).

17. That Sri Rama Janma Bhumi Nyas is directly interested in the seva, puja and other affairs of the Plaintiff Deities. It is being impleaded as Defendant No. 21 in this Suit.

18. That although the aforesaid suits have been pending trial for such an extraordinarily long number of years, they are inadequate and cannot result in a settlement of the dispute which led to their institution or the problems arising there from, inasmuch as neither the presiding Deity of Bhagwan Sri Rama Virajman nor the Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, the Plaintiffs Nos. 1 and 2 herein, who are both Juridical persons, were impleaded therein, although they have a distinct personality of their own, separate from their worshippers and sewaks, and some of the actual parties thereto, who are worshippers, are to some extent involved in seeking to gratify their personal interests to be served by obtaining a control of the worship of the Plaintiff Deities. Moreover, the events which have occurred during these four decades, and many material facts and points of law require to be pleaded from the view point of the Plaintiff Deities, for a just determination of the dispute relating to Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, and the land and

buildings and other things appurtenant thereto. The Plaintiffs have been accordingly advised to file a fresh suit of their own.

19. That it is manifestly established by public records of unimpeachable authority that the premises in dispute is the place where Maryada Purushottam Sri Ramchandra Ji Maharaj was born as the son of Maharaja Dashrath of the solar Dynasty, which according to the tradition and the faith of the devotees of Bhagwan Sri Rama is the place where HE manifested HIMSELF in human form as an incarnation of BHAGWAN VISHNU. The place has since ever been called Sri Rama Janma Bhumi by all and sundry through the ages.

20. That the place itself, or the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI, as it has come to be known, has been an object of worship as a Deity by the devotees of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA, as it personifies the spirit of the Divine worshipped in the form of SRI RAMA LALA or Lord RAMA the child. The Asthan was thus Deified and has had a juridical personality of its own even before the construction of a Temple building or the installation of the idol of Bhagwan Sri Rama thereat.

21. That it may be here stated that the Hindus do not worship the stone or the metal shaped into the form of their ISHTA DEVATA, or the stone of SALIGRAM which has no particular shape at all. They worship the Divine, which has no quality or shape or form, but can be known only when it manifests ITSELF in the form of an incarnation, and therefore, adopt the form of his incarnation as their ISHTA DEVA. For some even that is unnecessary. They can meditate upon the formless and the shapeless DIVINE and aspire for a knowledge of him through his grace. It is the SPIRIT of the DIVINE which is worshipped by most Hindus, and not its material form or shape in an idol. This SPIRIT of the DIVINE in an idol is invoked by the ritual of pranapratishtha. The SPIRIT of the DIVINE is indestructible and ever remains present everywhere at all times for any one to invoke it in any shape or form in accord with his own aspiration. Different persons are at different levels of realisation of the REALITY. Some find it helpful to pursue a particular set of rituals for their spiritual uplift. A large section of Hindus follow BHAKTI MARGA, and BHAGWAN SRI RAMA or BHAGWAN SRI KRISHNA is their ISHTA

DEVA.

22. That according to the faith of the devotees of BHAGVAN SRI RAMA LALA, or Lord Rama the Child, it is the Spirit of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA as the Divine Child which resides at Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi and can be experienced by those who pray there and invoke that Spirit for their spiritual uplift. That Spirit is the Deity. An idol is not necessary for invoking the Divine Spirit. Another example of such a Deity is that of KEDARNATH. The Temple of KEDARNATH has no Idol in it. It is the undulating surface of stone which is worshipped there as the Deity. Still another example of such a Deity is the Vishnupad Temple at Gaya, That too has no Idol in it. The place which is believed to have born the footprints of Bhagwan Vishnu is worshipped as Deity. Similarly, at Ayodhya, the very Asthan Sri Ram Janma Bhumi is worshipped as a Deity through such symbols of the Divine Spirit as the Charan and the Sita Rasoi. The place is a Deity. It has existed in this immovable form through the ages, and has ever been a juridical person. The actual and continuous performance of Puja of such an immovable Deity by its devotees is not essential for its existence as a Deity. The Deity continues to exist so long as the place exists, and being land, it is indestructible. Thus, Asthan Sri Rama Janma Bhumi is an indestructible and immovable Deity who has continued to exist throughout the ages.

23. That the books of history and public records of unimpeachable authenticity, establish indisputably that there was an ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya. That Temple was destroyed partly and an attempt was made to raise a mosque thereat, by the force of arms, by Mir Baqi, a commander of Baber's hordes. The material used was almost all of it taken from the Temple including its pillars which were wrought out of Kasauti or touch-stone, with figures of Hindu gods and goddesses carved on them. There was great resistance by the Hindus and many battles were fought from time to time by them prevent the completion of the mosque. To this day it has no minarets, and no place for storage of water for Vazoo Many lives were lost in these battles. The last such battle occurred in 1855. Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, including the building raised during Baber's time by Mir Baqi, was in the possession and control of

Hindus at that time. According to the 1928 Edition of the Fyzabad Gazetteer published by the Government Press, U.P. (at page 179)--"Ayodhya is pre-eminently a city of temples..... It is locally affirmed that at the time of the Musalman conquest there were three important Hindu shrines at Ayodhya and little else. These were the Janmasthan temple, the Swargaddwar and the Treta-ka-Thakur, and each was successively made the object of attention of different Musalman rulers. The Janmasthan was in Ramkot and marked the birthplace of Rama. In 1528 Babar came to Ayodhya and halted here for a week. He destroyed the ancient temple and on its site built a mosque, still known as Babar's mosque. The materials of the old structure were largely employed, and many of the columns are in good preservation, they are of close-grained black stone, called by the natives kasauti and carved with various devices. Their length is from seven to eight feet, and the shape square at the base, centre and capital, the rest being round or octagonal. The mosque has two inscriptions, one on the outside and the other on the pulpit, both are in persian and bear the date 935 Hijri.... and again according to the same Gazetteer (at page 180):- "This desecration of the most sacred spot in the city caused great bitterness between Hindus and Musalmans. On many occasions the feeling led to bloodshed, and in 1855 an open fight occurred, the Musalmans occupying the Janmasthan in force and then making a desperate assault on the Hanuman Garhi. They charged up the steps of the temple, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then made counter-attack and stormed the Janmasthan, at the gate of which seventy-five Musalmans were buried, the spot being known as the Ganj Shahidan or the martyr's resting place. Several of the king's regiments were present, but their orders were not to interfere. Shortly afterwards Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi in Lucknow organised a regular expedition with the object of destroying the Hanuman Garhi, but he and his forces were stopped in the Barabanki district. (Gazetteer of Barabanki, P. 168). It is said that upto this time both Hindus and Musalmans used to worship in the same building; but since the mutiny an outer enclosure has been put up in front of the mosque and the Hindus, who are forbidden access to the inner yard, make their offerings on a platform which they have raised in the outer one."

www.vadaprativada.com

24. That such a structure raised by the force of arms on land belonging to the Plaintiff Deities, after destroying the ancient Temple situate thereat, with its materials including the Kasauti pillars with figures of Hindu gods carved thereon, could not be mosque and did not become one in spite of the attempts to treat it as a mosque during the British rule after the annexation of Avadh. Some salient points with regard thereto are noted below.

(A) According to the Koran, ALLAH spoke to the Prophet thus-

"And fight for the religion of GOD against those who fight against you; but transgress not by attacking them first, for GOD loved not transgressors. And kill them wherever ye find them; and turn them out of that whereof they have dispossessed you; for temptation to idolatory is more grievous than slaughter. Yet fight not against them in the holy temple, until they attack you therein;....."

(B) According to all the Muslim authorities and precedents and the decided cases also, ALLAH never accepts a dedication of property which does not belong to the Waqif that is, the person who purports to dedicate property to ALLAH for purposes recognized as pious or charitable, as waqf under the Muslim law. By his acts of trespass and violence for raising a mosque on the site of the temple after destroying it by force, Mir Baqui committed a highly un-Islamic act. His attempt to convert the Temple into a mosque did not, therefore, create a valid dedication of property to Allah, whether in fact or in law, and it never became a mosque.

(C) That in spite of all that Mir Baqi tried to do with the Temple, the land always continued to vest in the Plaintiff Deities, and they never surrendered their possession over it. Their possession continued in fact and in law. The ASTHAN never went out of the possession of the Deity and HIS worshippers. They continued to worship HIM through such symbols as the CHARAN and SITA RASOI, and the idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAM LALA VIRAJMAN on the Chabutra, called the Rama Chabutra, within the enclosed courtyard of the building directly in front of the arched opening of its Southern dome. No one could enter the building except after passing through these places of Hindu worship. According to the Muslim religion and law there can be no Idol worship within the courtyard of a mosque, and the passage to a mosque must be free and unobstructed and open at all times to the 'Faithful'. It can never be through Hindu place of worship. There can be no co-sharing of title or possession with ALLAH in the case of a mosque. His possession must be exclusive.

(D) A mosque must be built in a place of peace and quiet, but near to a place where there is a sizeable Muslim population according to the tenets of Islam, and as insisted upon by it, a mosque cannot be built in a place which is surrounded on all sides by Temples, where the sound of music or conch shells or Ghanta Ghariyals must always disturb the peace and quiet of the place.

(E) A mosque must have a minaret for calling the Azan. According to Baillie "When an assembly of worshippers pray in a masjid with permission, that is delivery. But it is a condition that the prayers be with izan. or the regular call, and be public not private, for though there should be an assembly yet if it is without izan. and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no masjid, according to the two disciples." (Pt. 1. BK. IX, Ch. VII Sec. i,p. 605) Indeed, there has been no mosque without a minaret after the first half century from the Flight. (See-P.R. Ganapathi Iyer's Law relating to Hindu and Mahomedan Endowments, 2nd Edition, 1918, Chap. XVII, P. 388.)

(F) According to the claim laid by the Muslims in their suit No. 12 of 1961, the building is surrounded on all sides by grave-yard known as 'Ganj Shahidan'. There is a mention in the Fyzabad Gazetteer also, quoted herein above, of the burial of 75 Muslims at the gate of the Janmasthan, and the place being known as Ganj Shahidan. After the battle of 1855. Although there are no graves anywhere near the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, or in its precincts, or the area appurtenant thereto, for the last more than 50 years, if the building was surrounded by a grave-yard during the British times soon after the annexation of Avadh by them, the building could not be a mosque, and could not be used as a mosque, for the offering of prayers, except the funeral prayers on the death of a person buried therein, is prohibited in a grave-yard according to the Muslim authorities.

(G) As already stated, there is no arrangement for storage of water for Vazoo and there are the Kasauti pillars with the figures of Hindu Gods and Godesses inscribed thereon in the building.

(25) That the worship of the Plaintiff Deities has continued since ever throughout the ages at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. The place belongs to the Deities. No valid waqf was ever created or could have been created of the place or any part of it, in view of the title and possession of the Plaintiff Deities thereon. ALLAH, as conceived by the Muslims, never got any title or possession over the premises or any part of them. Nor has there ever been any person, living or juridical, who might have put forward any claim to ownership of the property or any part of it. Occasional acts of trespass or attempts to get into possession by the muslims were successfully resisted and repulsed by the Hindus from time to time, and there was no blemish or dent in the continuity of title and possession of the Plaintiff Deities. No title could or did vest in ALLAH over any part of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi by adverse possession or in any other manner. Neither ALLAH nor any person on his behalf had any possession over any part of the premises at any time whatsoever, not to speak of any adverse possession.

(26) That at any rate no prayers have ever been offered in the building at Sri, Rama Janma Bhumi, which was recorded as Janmasthan Masjid, during the British times, and confined, after the annexation of Avadh, to the area within the boundary wall raised by them adjacent to the arch openings, in the courtyard which is n ow enclosed by what may now be described as the outer boundary wall. The domes of the building and substantial parts of it were destroyed by the Hindus in the year 1934 during the communal riots which occurred by way of retaliation to cow slaughter by some Muslims at Ayodhya. Although the building was got re-built by the Government, no one dared to offer namaz therein. No action was taken by anyone for its use or management as a mosque. Neither of the two Boards of waqfs in U.P., namely the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs and the Shia Central Board of Waqfs, created on the passing of the U.P. Muslim Waqfs Act in 1936, took any action or postive steps for the establishment of the building as a mosque. No one acted as a Mutwalli or Muazzin or Imam or Khatib or Khadim of the building as a mosque.

(27) That after independence from the British Rule, the Vairagis and the Sadhus and the Hindu public, dug up and levelled whatever graves had been left in the area surrounding Sri Rama Janma Bhumi Asthan and purified the place by Akhand Patha and japa by thousands of persons all over the area. Ultimately, on the night between the 22nd 23rd December, 1949 the idol of Bhagwan Sri Rama was installed with due ceremony under the central dome of the building also.

(28) That although there have been no Muslims residing anywhere near the place, and no resistance was offered by any Muslim to any of these acts, the local authorities found it difficult to get out of their old habits acquired under the British Rule, and a First Information Report was recorded by the Police on their own and proceedings were initiated by the Additional City Magistrate under Section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, by recording a Preliminary Order dated 29.12.1949. The Magistrate did not identify any Hindu or Muslim individuals as parties to the dispute, and merely said that he was satisfied on information received from Police sources and other credible sources "that a dispute between Hindus and Muslims in Ayodhya over the question of rights of proprietorship and worship in the building claimed variously as Babri Masjid and Janma Bhumi Mandir..... is likely to lead to a breach of the peace." That was merely a device to take over the administration of the Janma Bhumi Mandir by the Government by appointing a Receiver, namely, B. Priya Dutt Ram, who was appointed as such by the same order, and after his death in 1970 Sri K.K. Ram Verma was appointed in his place by the City Magistrate, although he had dropped the proceedings under section 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, by order dated 30.7.1953, with the finding that there was no apprehension of the breach of peace any longer. Orders for appointment of Receiver have now been passed by the Civil Court, and Sri K.K. Ram Verma, who was functioning for more than 15 years under stay orders, has been replaced by a Civil Court Receiver.

(29) That the plaintiff Deities were not made parties to any of the aforesaid proceedings in which the orders of appointment of Receiver have been passed, whether by the City Magistrate or the Civil Court. The powers of a Receiver are derived solely from the orders of the Court. The Receiver was not authorised to remove any person from the possession or the custody of the premises, and in fact the Receiver never interfered with the possession of the Plaintiff Deities. No party to a proceeding could dispossess a third party,

nor could the Receiver interfere with the possession of a person who is not a party to the proceedings. At the highest, the Receiver acted like a Shebait. He did not disturb the possession of the plaintiff Deities. Their possession over, the building premises in disput ever since the installation of the first Plaintiff's Idol on the night between the 22nd and 23rd December, 1949, is admitted by all the concerned parties. Thus, independently of the original title of the Plaintiff Deities which continued all along, the admitted position of their possession places the matter of their title beyond any doubt or dispute. Even if there had been any person claiming title to the property adversely to the Plaintiff Deities, that would have been extinguished by their open and long adverse possession, which created positively and affirmatively a proprietary title to the premises in the Plaintiff Deities.

(30) That the Hindu Public and the devotees of the Plaintiff Deities, who had dreamed of establishing Ram-Rajya in Free India, that is, the rule of Dharma and righteousness, of which Maryada Purushottam Sri Ramchandra Ji Maharaj was the epitome, have been keenly desirous of restoring his Janmasthan to its pristine glory, as a first step towards that national aspiration given to us by Mahatma Gandhi. For achieving this, they are publicly agitating for the construction of a grand Temple in the Nagar style. Plans and a model of the proposed Temple have already been prepared by the same family of srchitects who built the Somnath Temple. The active movement is planned to commence from September 30, 1989, and foundation stone of the new Temple building, it has been declared, shall be laid on November, 9, 1989.

(31) That the plaintiff Deities not being a party to any of the litigations pending in the Courts, and being thus not bound or affected by anything which may be decided or not decided in any of the four suits pending as aforesaid for the last so many years, the Plaintiff No. 3 felt that the pendency of the said suits may present a hindrance, inasmuch as a declaration has been sought, privelously though, in suit No. 12 of 1961, by the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P., that the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi Ayodhya is a mosque known as 'Babri Mosque' and that the adjacent land is a Muslim Public graveyard, known as Ganj-Shadidan, and the Court had permitted the plaintiffs of that suit to sue the Defendants Nos. 1 to 4 thereof as representatives of the entire Hindu community. The Plaintiffs of that suit cannot represent the entire Muslim community because they are all Sunnis, and thus only asegment of the Muslim population, who have wide ranging differences with other sects of Muslims, particularly the Shias. Nor were the Defendants Nos. 1 to 4 competent or capable of representing the entire world of Hindus. The Defendants Nos. 1 and 2 have categorically stated that they do not represent any one else except themselves, and the Defendant No.3 has put forward a personal interest in the management of the worship of the Plaintiff Deities. Defendant No.4 is already dead. Under the circumstances the Plaintiff No. 3 has been advised to file this suit as the next friend for and on behalf of the Deities, to remove whatever obstacle there may be in the path of the fulfilment of the aforesaid programme, against all the contending parties.

(32) That according to the case taken up by the Defendants Nos. 4, 5 and 6 and the documents filed by them or on their behalf, the 'Babri Masjid' was a Sunni Waqf but its Mutwallis, being the descendants of Mir Baqi, were Shia Muslims. A judgement dated 30.3.1946 of Sri S.A. Hasan, Civil Judge, Faizabad, in suit No. 29 of 1945, of his Court, between the Shia Central Board of Waqfs U.P., as Plaintiff and the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs U.P., as the Defendant, has been produced in this context, although the judgement has not been relied upon or referred to in the Plaint of Suit No. 12 of 1961 to show that the Waqf of the Babri Masjid was a Sunni Waqf and that its Mutwallis were Shias. This position seems to be incomprehensible in law, inasmuch as a waqf created by a Shia Waqif would be a Shia waqf and could not be a Sunni Waqf. Admittedly, according to their case, the 'mosque' was built by Mir Baqi and that he was a Shia, and that he being the Waqif his heirs were the Mutwallis one after the other. But the Shia Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. did not agitate the case any further, either because of negligence or collusion in those difficult days of communal conflict immediately before the Partition. At any rate this judgement is not binding. Further according to a report dated 10.12.1949 of Mr. Mohammad Ibrahim, Waqf Inspector, and an office note signed by the Secretary of the Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. and dated 25.11.1948, Sri Javed Husain, the nambardar of village Sahanwa, and in the line of descent from Mir Baqi, was the Mutawalli of the

waqf, although it appears, he was not acting as such and did not submit to the jurisdiction of the said Board of Waqfs. The Shia Central Board of Waqfs, U.P., and Sri Javved Husain are also being impleaded as Defendants Nos. 22 and 23 in this suit. Prince Anjum Quder, who is the president of the All India Shia conference and that body as representatives of the Shia Muslims, have also been impeaded as Defendants Nos. 24 and 25 in the suit.

(33) That the entire premises at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, which contain, besides the presiding Deity of Plaintiff No. 1 other Idols and Deities and the Rama Chabutra, the Charan and the Sita Rasoi etc., along with the yards, enclosures and buildings, including the Sita Koop, and all that, constitute one integral complex. They have a single identity. The claim by the Muslims represented by the Defendants Nos. 4,5 and 6 is confined to the building and the area enclosed within the inner boundary wall, erected after the annexation of Avadh by the British. The rest of the area has not been claimed as 'Babri Masjid'. The claim that the surrounding area is a Qabristan known as Ganj Shahidan is vague and undefined. There are no graves anywhere for the last fifty years at least. The totality of the Facts and circumstances set out above demonstrate the utter hollowness of the claim put forward by the Muslims represented by Defendants Nos. 4,5 and 6 who do not represent the entire Muslim community. Besides, although admitting that Defendant No. 23 is the present Mutwalli of the 'Babri Masjid' since before 1948, he was not joined as a Plaintiff or Defendant in the suit No. 12 of 1961, in spite of the well established position in law that only a Mutwalli of mosque can sue for its possession, and even where a worshipper sues in respect of an existing mosque he must sue for possession being delivered to the Mutwalli and that he cannot ask for possession being delivered to him.

(34) That a sensible section of the Muslim community led by Prince Anjum Quder, Defendants No. 24, does not approve of the course adopted by the Defendant Nos. 4 to 6 and their like. Suggestions have been made from many quarters for ending the dispute by removal of the 'mosque' to suitable place where it could serve the interest of its beneficiaries. Although the Plaintiffs do not admit for a moment that the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, or any part of its precincts has ever been a mosque, they would not be averse to the proposal of removal of the materials of the building, except the Kasauti pillars and the like, for, the building will in any case have to be demolished for the construction of the new Temple which they propose to construct at the place.

(35) That the Muslims are as much the children of God as Hindus, and the Plaintiff No.3, believes in the policy of living in amity and goodwill with all the several communities and religious denominations in Free India. But having regard to the nature and significance of the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI for the Hindus, its sites cannot be changed. On the other hand, under the tenets of Islam a Mosque can be shifted under certain circumstances, and these circumstances are fully and entirely made out in the case of the 'Babri Masjid', if a mosque it ever was. The shifting of the so called 'Babri Masjid' from its present site at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, would, therefore, appear to be the most sensible solution of the acrimonious dispute which has been raging for some time past and threatening the peace of this land of SRI RAMA.

(35 H) That exasperated by the laws deleys, the saints assembled in a meeting held at Ujjain during May, 1992, resolved to start the KAR SEWA for the construction of New Temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi from the SHILANYAS site, on July, 9, 1992, and in their assembly at Ayodhya on July 6,7 and 8, 1992, that resolve was re-affirmed.

(35 I) The 30th November was fixed by the Assembly of saints or October 30, 1992 for the commencement of the KAR SEWA for constructing the new temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi after the break down of the talks for an amicable resolution of the Rama Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid dispute that had been initiated at the instance of the Prime Minister.

(35 J) That inspite of all efforts to the contrary, the KAR SEWAKS climbed up the three domed structure and brought it down with their bare hands, in about 5 hours after 11.A.M., on 6.12.1992. The debris was thereafter cleared and carried away by the KAR SEWAKS as holy mementos, leaving the place where the Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA was installed under the central dome of the demolished structure flat in the form of a CHABUTRA on which the Deity was immediately re-installed, the place was enclosed by a brick boundary wall and a canopy was also erected for the protection of the Deity, and PUJA was continued as of

(35 K) That owning full responsibility for the orders that firing shall not be resorted to by the security forces against the KAR SEWAKS and the inability to prevent the demolition of the three domed structure, Sri Kalyan Singh, the then Chief Minister of U.P. resigned from that office by the evening of 6.12.1992 but instead of acceptance of the resignation by the Governor, the Prime Minister advised the President to impose his own rule and notify the dissolution of the Legislative Assembly before midnight that day, which the President dutifully did under Article 356 of the Constitution.

(35 M) That shortly thereafter on January 7, 1993, the President Promulgated the ACQUSITION OF CERTAIN AREA AT AYODHYA ORDINANCE, No. 8 of 1993 and simultaneously referred to the Supreme Court, under Article 143(1) of the Constitution for its consideration and opinion, the following question:-

"Whether a Hindu temple or any Hindu religious structure existed prior, to the construction of the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Majid (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure) in the area on which the structure stood?"

(35 N) That the object and purpose of both the said measures adopted by the President on 7.1.1993, was stated therein to be the settlement of the "long-standing dispute relating to the structure (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure) commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi Babri Masjid, situated in village Kot Ramchandra in Aydhya." The preamble to the reference shows that the area in which the structure stood" is "located in Revenue Plot Nos. 159 and 160 in the said village Kot Ramchandra."

(35 O) That the device adopted by the Ordinance was the acquisition of the area in which the disputed structure stood, and vesting it for the time being in the Central Government until its transfer to any authority or other body, or trustees of any trust" willing to comply with the terms and conditions that may be imposed by the Central Government, which event, it must have been contemplated, would come after the settlement of the dispute in the terms of the opinion of the Supreme Court on the question referred. Under Sub-Section (3) of Section 4 of the ordinance all the suit and

proceedings relating to the said dispute that were pending in courts were abated, and until the resolution of the dispute and transfer thereafter of the area to some authority or other body or trustees of a trust by the Central Government, it was required by Section 7 of the Ordinance to manage and administer it, either by itself, or "a person or body of persons or trustees of any trust authorised" by it in this behalf who was called the " authorised person" according to the meaning assigned to that term under the definitions clause (b) of Section 2 of the Ordinance, Sub Section (2) of Section 7 of the Ordinance required that: "In managing the property vested in the Central Government under section 3, the Central Government or the authorised person shall ensure that the position existing before the commencement of this Ordinance in the area on which the structure (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure), commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid stood is maintained."

(35 P) That the said Ordinance was replaced and re-enacted as Parliaments Act No. 33 of 1993, which received the presidents assent on April 3, 1993, and was published the same day in the Gazette of India Extraordinary but was deemed to have come into force on the 7th January 1993, the day on which the Ordinance was promulgated.

(35 Q) That the Plaintiff Deities who are juristic persons in law could not have been, nor do they appear to have been acquired under the said enactment. Nor could the right of the Hindus in general and the devotees of SRI RAMA in particular to worship them be acquired or taken away. But the right to manage their property including the arrangements to be made for maintaining their worship on the SHEBAITI rights which in themselves constitute heritable property under the Hindu law, would seem to have been taken away and entrusted for the time being to the Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad, ex-officio under Section 7 of the enactment by the Central Government under cover of its responsibility to manage the area in which the disputed structure stood.

(35 R) That the Authorised person is required by sub-section (2) of Section 7 of the enactment to maintain status quo as it existed on the 7th January 1993, in the area in which the disputed structure stood. That is best illustrated by the affidavit of Sri Radhe Sham Kaushik, the Commissioner,

Faizabad, dated the 6th August 1993, in the Contempt Petition No. 97 of 1992. In the matter of Mohd. Aslam alias Bhure Verses State of U.P.: I.A. No. 10 of 1992: before the Supreme Court of India.

(35 S) That the validity of the said enactment (Ordinance No. 8 and Act No. 33 of 1993) was challenged in several writ petition in the Hon'ble Court which were with drawn by the Supreme Court for hearing and decision along with the hearing of the preliminary objection to the maintainability of the Presidential Reference under Article 143(1) of the Constitution. It was sought to be challenged in the connected O.O.S. No. 3 and 4 of 1989 in this Court as well, and an issue "whether the suit has abated or services" was raised thereupon. Notice was also issued thereafter to Attorney General of India, by the Hon'ble Court, but before the hearing of the issue could be taken up by it, it was stayed by the Supreme Court, while ordering the withdrawal of the writ petition against the acquisition from this Court to itself for hearing and decision.

(35 T) That by judgement dated October 24, 1994, of the Hon'ble the Chief Justice Mr. M.N. Venkatachalliah Hon'ble Mr. Justice J.S. Verma and Hon'ble Mr. Justice G.N. Ray, in the Transferred Cases Nos. 41, 43 & 45 of 1993: Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui etcetera Vs. Union of India and others connected with other Transferred cases and Writ Petitions and the Special Reference No. 1 of 1993 under Article 143(1) of the Constitution: the Supreme Court has declared the Sub Section (3) of Section 4 of Act No. 33 of 1993, to be unconstitutional and invalid, but upheld the validity of the other provisions thereof subject to the interpretation put thereon by it.

(After Para 35 and before Para 36 all paragraphs are added vide order dated 09.5.1995. Para 35 U struck of under the order of the court dated 03.08.1995. Paras 35 H, 35 I, 35 J, 35 K, 35 M, 35 N, 35 O, 35 P, 35 Q, 35 R, 35 S, 35 T, 35 U amended under vide order dated 09.05.1995 on C.M. A. No. 8 (O) of 1994. Sd/- 22.05.1995).

(36) That the cause of action for this suit has been accruing from day to day, particularly since recently when the plans of Temple reconstruction are being sought to be obstructed by vioient action from the side of certain Muslim Communalists.

(37) That the subject matter of dispute is situate within the limits of the

territorial jurisdiction of the Court.

(38) That the valuation of the suit for purposes of jurisdiction is placed at Rs. 11,11,101/- as the subject matter of the suit being inalienable, is incapable of valuation in terms of money and consequently that for payment of Court Fee it is Rs. 2,22, 220/-. The prescribed court fee of Rs. 500/- being the maximum, is being paid on the consequential relief of injunction.

(39) That the Plaintiffs claim the following RELIEFS:

(A) A declaration that the entire premises of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi at Ayodhya, as described and and delineated in Annexures I, II and III, belong to the Plaintiff Deities.

(B) A perpetual injunction against the Defendants prohibiting them from interfering with, or raising any objection to, or placing any obstruction in the construction of the new Temple building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, after demolishing and removing the existing buildings and structures etc., situate thereat, in so far as it may be necessary or expedient to do so for the said purpose.

(C ) Costs of the suit against such of the Defendants as object to the grant of relief to the plaintiffs.

(D) Any other relief or reliefs to which the Plaintiffs may be found entitled.

O.O.S NO. 5 OF 1989

1. Before giving para-wise reply to the plaint it is necessary to state that Shri Deoki Nandan Agrawal posing himself as the Next Friend has filed this long cumbersome suit embracing a wide range of matters and topics, mostly irrelevant collected from alleged many and various records and books and annals of history running into 39 long paragraphs. The suit was filed on 1.7.1989 before the Civil Judge Faizabad without serving any notice or duplicate of the plaint. The suit has since been transferred to this Hon'ble Court. On 11.8.1989 when the answering defendants learned counsel informed this Hon'ble Court that he will require sufficient time to collect necessary information and materials to enable him to file a full and complete written statement. This Hon'ble Court was pleased to observe that written statement may be filed on 14.8.1989 and then a supplementary written statement may be filed later. The answering defendant despite his best efforts could not collect necessary requisite information and materials to file a full and complete written statement and is filing this written statement reserving his right to file a supplementary written statement with fuller and more complete facts after making further inquiries and collecting more facts, for which a separate application for time is also being made.

2. That the present suit filed by B. Deoki Nandan Agrawal is purely a malicious suit and is designed to damage the title and interest of the answering defendant. He has no right to act as Next Friend of plaintiffs 1 and 2 and plaintiff no. 2 is not even a juridical persons. Nor has he any personal right to file the suit. The suit is liable to be summarily dismissed.

3. That it is wrong to say that Bhagwan Shri Ram is also called Ram Lala Virajman. The address of the plaintiff No. 1 is also incorrect. Bhagwan Shri Ram is installed not at Janma Bhoomi but in the Temple known as Janma Bhoomi Temple for whose delivery of charge and management the answering defendant has filed his suit No. 26 of 1959 (Now O.S. No.2 of 1989). The suit is liable to be dismissed for this incorrect description and

4. That the contents of para-1 of the plaint as drafted are totally wrong and are denied. The idol of Bhagwan Shri Ram is installed or is Virajman not at Ram Janma Bhoomi Ayodhya but in the temple known as Ram Janma Bhoomi Temple Ayodhya for whose delivery of charge and management the answering defendant has filed his suit referred to above. It is also totally wrong to say that Bhagwan Shri Ram is also known as "Ram Lala Virajman". He is not known as such more over the ward "VIRAJMAN" tacked with the words "Shri Ram Lala" is simply meaningless. Virajman is not the name or title of any deity but it simply means "resident or residing". "Asthan Shri Ram Janma Bhoomi Ayodhya" as stated in para-1 of the plaint is again a meaning less phrase. Asthan, simply, means a place and is not a juridical person. It is denied that the plaintiff No. 3(Shri Deoki Nandan Agarwal) is a Vaishnavite. He is not even a worshipper of the Deity installed in Shri Ram Janma Bhoomi Temple and has no right to sue. Nor can he represent the Deity or the so called Asthan. He is not at all interested in the welfare of the Deity in question. He lives at Allahabad and is not at all interested in Shri Ram Janma Bhoomi Temple and got maliciously interested to obtain cheap popularity by raising a slogan of constructing a new temple by arranging to spend Rs. 25 Crores when the temple belong to the defendant No.3, the answering defendant.

5. That the contents of para-2 of the plaint are denied. The birth place of Ram is not in dispute. The whole world knows that His birth place is in Ayodhya where the Temple Ram Janma Bhoomi stands. It is the temple known as Ram Janma Bhoomi Temple situate in mohalla Ram Kot Ayodhya which is in dispute in the various suit transferred to this Court, which by Muslims is said to be a mosque and which is claimed by the answering defendant as being the Temple of Bhagwan Shri Ram under his charge and management, and where of the Nirmohi Akhara is the Shebait of Bagwan Sri Ram. Annexure I, II and III are denied as incorrect. The plaintiffs should submit a fresh correct and complete plan. Many important places of the temple have not been shown in the said Annexures. They pertain to another suit and have no evidentiary value in the present suit.

6. That the contents of para-3 of the plaint are not denied.

www.vadaprativada.com

7. That the correctness of the contents of para-4 of the plaint can best be verified from the plaint of suit No. 2 of 1950. The plaintiffs have wrongly used the words Asthan Janma Bhoomi which is denied. It is the temple known as Shri Ram janma Bhoomi Temple at mohalla Ram Kot Ayodhya. Asthen Janma Bhoomi means the birth place of Shri Ram which is the entire city of Ayodhya. It is the temple referred to above which is question and not the birth place of Bhagwan Shri Ram.

8. That the contents of para-5 of the plaint are not denied.

9. That in regard to the contents of para-6 of the plaint it is submitted that the said contents are not denied except that the plaintiffs of the present suit filed by Sri Deoki Nandan Agrawal have maliciously used the words "Asthan Janma Bhoomi in place of the words Temple of Janma Bhoomi. The correct version of the plaint in suit No. 26 of 1959 shall appear from the said plaint itself which suit has been connected with the present suit.

10. That the contents of paras 7 to 10 of the plaint are all matters of record which may best be ascertained from the record of the suits which are all consolidated and connected.

11. That the contents of para-11 of the plaint are not denied.

12. That the contents of para-12 of the plaint are not denied except the last sentence which is irrelevant.

13. That the contents of para-13 of the plaint are matters of record which may be ascertained from the same.

14. That the answering defendant will reply to the first part of Para -14 of the plaint after making full inquiries. But the contents of the last sentence are emphatically denied. The answering defendant is the Shebait of Bhagwan Shri Ram installed in the temple in dispute, and he (the Nirmohi Akhara) alone has the right to control and supervise and repair or even to re-construct the temple if necessary. It is absolutely false to say that the devotees of the "plaintiff Deities are diserous to have a new temple constructed after removing the old structure.

15. That the contents of para-15 of the plaint are emphatically denied. The Nirmohi Akhara has no knowledge of the alleged Trust and he (the defendant No.3) reserves the right to give fuller reply to this para after making complete inquiry of the allegations contained in this para.

16. That the contents of para-16 of the plaint are emphatically denied. The answering defendant reserves his right to give fuller replies after making thorough inquiries. The alleged Trust has no relevance at all to the present dispute. In this para the name of Mahant Ram Kewal Das is mentioned at item No. 7 as also being a Trustee for life to the alleged Trust. Mahant Ram Kewal Das is a simple Sadhu and he was duped to become a Trustee without understanding fully the malicious plan of the alleged Trust to encroach upon the rights and interests of the Nirmohi Akhara which is Panchayate Akhara and is governed by the Panches of the Akhara. The Mahant is only a figure head without any power or authority to bind the Akhara through any act done by him or any transaction or entered by him. Even if Mahant Ram Kewal Das be proved to have accepted himself as Trustee, intelligently and consciously which is denied, the Nirmohi Akhara is not all bound by his alleged act and the alleged Trust even if proved has no bearing or relevance to the present dispute. The Nirmohi Akhara filed its suit in 1959 and the said Trust is said to have come into existence only in 1985 with an obvious design to damage the title and interest of the Akhara.

17. That the contents of para-17 of the plaint are totally wrong and are emphatically denied. The said NYAS is neither directly nor indirectly interested in the Sewa, Puja of Bhagwan Shri Ram which interest solely lies with the answering defendant. The said Nyas is only maliciously interested to encroach upon the rights of the Nirmohi Akhara who is the sole Shabait of the said Deity. The Nyas is irrelevant to the present dispute and is not at all a proper party to the suit.

18. The contents of para-18 of the plaint are emphatically denied. The plaintiffs have been wrongly advised to file this malicious suit. Asthan Shri Ram Janma Bhumi is not at all a juridical person. The answering defendant has already filed suit No. 26 of 1959 thirty years ago for the benifit of Bhagwan Shri Ram for a decree of delivery of charge and management of the temple to the Nirmohi Akhara.

19. That the contents of para-19 need no reply except that though the birth place of Bhagwan Ram is place where the temple known as Ram Janma Bhumi Temple is constructed but the dispute is not regarding the place of birth of Lord Rama but regarding the Temple known as Temple Shri Ram

Janma Bhumi. The belief that Lord Ram is the son of Raja Dashrath of solar Dynasty is not disputed.

20. That the contents of para-20 of the plaint are denied. They are products of imagination of the so called Next Friend of the plaintiffs 1 and 2. The plaintiffs studiously avoid to mention the subject of dispute as the Ram Janma Bhumi Temple for whose delivery of charge and management the Nirmohi Akhara has filed the suit No. 26 of 1959 and maliciously uses the phrase Asthan Sri Ram Janma Bhumi which is meaningless. The said Asthan is not a juridical person.

21. That the contents of para-21 of the plaint are the indivisual view of Shri Deoki Nandan Agrawal, the plaintiff No. 3 of the suit are totally irrelevant to the subject matter of dispute and have been vainly introduced in the plaint.

22. That the contents of para-22 of the plaint are the personal views of Shri Deoki Nandan and are totally irrelevant to the present dispute which relates to the Ram Janma Bhumi Temple.

23. That the contents of para-23 of the plaint refer to various alleged historical facts. They cannot be replied without making thorough investigation for which the answering defendant seeks time and will reply through a supplementary written statement later.

24. That the contents of para-24 of the plaint shall be answered after making further inquiry into the matter later through a supplementary written statement.

25. That the contents of para-25 of the plaint are denied. The temple in question along with the land and properly appertaining there to is already Waqf property where of the Nirmohi Akhara is the Shebait and Manager. The rest of the contents are only argumentative.

26. That in reply to the contents of para-26 of the plaint it is true that no prayers have ever been offered by any muslim in the Ram Janma Bhumi Temple which is claimed by some muslims on Mosque which it never was. The rest of the contents are matters of evidence which shall be inquired into by the answering defendant and then replied later through a supplementary written statement.

27. That the contents of para-27 of the plaint cannot be replied without making thorough inquiry for which the answering defendant needs time. But it is asserted that the idol of Bhagwan Ram was always there installed in the Temple. The answering defendant reserves the right to give fuller and more complete inquiry through a supplementary written statement.

28. That in reply to the contents of para-28 of the plaint only this much is admitted that the temple in question along with the appertaining properties was attached illegally under section 145 Cr.P.C. It was on account of this attachment that the Nirmohi Akhara filed Suit No. 26 of 1959. The rest is a matter of record.

29. That in reply to the contents of para-29of the plaint it is stated that the answering defendant has already filed suit No. 26 of 1959 for of delivery of charge and management of the said temple. The contents of para-29 are irrelevant. The plaintiffs have no right and interest a part from the rights of Nirmohi Akhara.

30. That the contents of para-30 of the plaint are denied. There is no movement of any construction of a new temple in place of the present temple. The Temple belongs to Nirmohi Akhara. No body else has a right to construct a new temple in its place except the Nirmohi Akhara.

31. That the contents of para-30 of the plaint are partly irrelevant and partly a matter of record and can be ascertained from the same. The plaintiffs of the suit have no real title to sue and they have been wrongly advised to file the suit only to harass the Nirmohi Akhara and to try to encroach upon its rights of management of the temple. There is a subdues observation regarding the fulfilment of the "Aforesaid programme" which obviously referes to the imaginary plan if reconstruction. This renders the entire suit as malicious and inconsistent with the relief sought and the suit is liable to be dismissed.

32. That the contents of para-32 of the plaint refer to various orders and report about which the answering defendant has no knowledge. He will give a reply after full inquiry regarding the said orders and reports through a supplementary written statement later.

33. That the contents of para-33 of the plaint are denied. The entire premises belong to the Nirmohi Akhara the answering defendant. There is no question of any mosque as Babri Masjid or any Qabristan.

34. That the contents of para-34 of the plaint are not known to the answering defendant. He will give complete reply after full inquiry through a supplementary written statement. But this is admitted that the Temple of Shri Ram Janma Bhumi was never a mosque. There is no question of demolishing the building at all nor of a new construction.

35. That the contents of para-35 of the plaint are irrelevant and need no reply.

36. That the contents of para-36 of the plaint are denied. The plaintiffs have no cause of action at all and the suit is liable to be dismissed.

37. That para-37 of the plaint is admitted.

38. That the valuation fixed in para-37 of the plaint is totally fictitious and is denied.

39. That the plaintiffs are not entitled to any relief at all. The premises mentioned by the plaintiffs belong to the Nirmohi Akhara and the Plaintiffs of this suit have no right of declaration against the right and titles of the Nirmohi Akhara. Nor are the plaintiffs entitled to any injunction as sought.

40. That the reliefs sought by the plaintiffs are both imaginary and inconsistent and contained a threat to demolish the temple of the Nirmohi Akhara for which the suit of the Akhara is pending. The suit is liable to be dismissed.

41. That the answering defendants will file a supplementary written statement later after making necessary inquiries into the various allegations made in the plaint. In any view of the matter this suit is liable to be stayed under Section 10 C.P.C. till the final disposal of the suit of Nirmohi Akhara.

Para 42. That site plan annexure 11 attached to the above noted plaint does not bear any plot nos. (settlement or Nazul) nor it is bounded as to give any definite identity of property. Temple Shri Vijay Ragho Ji Sakshi Gopal has never been subject matter of the any of the suit O.O.S. 4/1989 or O.O.S 3/1989 pending before this Hon'ble Court. Sumitra Bhawan is another temple shown in the site plan which is temple of Sheshaawatar Laxmanji Maharaj and that is why it is famous name of his mother Sumitra as Sumitra Bhawan. It has been in possession and management of Mahant Raj Mangal Das one of the panch of Nirmohi Akhara. The Nazul plot no. 588 measaming 1-6-13-15 Kachwanceis of Mohalla Ram Kot is recorded with Diety Laxamanji Maharaj through Ram Das Nirmohi who is Guru of Raj Mangal Das. Mah Ram Das of Sumitra Bhawan is recorded in settlement plot No. 168 to 174 as qubiz. Similarily Lomash Chaura Mandir, Sita Koop Mandir, Kuti shown is said map has distinct Diety of Bahgwan Ram Lalaji by the other panches of Nirmohi Akhara namely and respectively Mahant Dwarika Das, Mahant Naval Kishore Das and Ram Gopal Das who are all panches of Nirmohi Akhara. Sankat Mochan temple have been omitted in the said map whereas it did exist on the date of this suit. It has its diety Sankat Mochan Hanomanji and Thakur Ram Janki represented by Sarbarakar Ram Dayal Saran Chela of Ram Lakhan Saran. Late Ram Lakhan Saran and also belong to the spiritual family of Nirmohi Akhara as he was Naga Chela of Goliki Ram Lakhan Das, one of the old panch of Nirmohi Akhara. Other Samadhis in the name of famous sages have been owned and claimed by answering defendant No. 3 as Samadhies of old Sadhus of Nirmohi Akhara. Panches and Sadhus of Akhara are living in the surrounding since before the human memory. The outer Sahan carried a little temple of Bhagwan Ram

Lalaji along with other place which are regularly worshipped according to the customs prevailing amongst Rama Nandi Vairagies. The outer part with this temple of Ram Lallaji and other dieties have ever been in management and charge of Nirmohi Akhara as sheibiat till this outer portion with Bhandar was attached U/s 145 Cr.P.C. on 16.2.1982 and a receiver is appointed there vide order of Civil Judge Faizabad in Reg. Suit 239/82 Sri Ram Rama Nandi Nirmohi Akhara Versus K.K. Ram Varma etc. due to lootpat committed by Dharam Das. Mr. Deoki Nandan Agarwal has named himself to be witness of Dharam Das. Therefore, suit for all these properties by plaintiff 3 is not maintainable for want of possession and is barred by provision of Section 34 of Specific Relief Act.

Para 43: That outer portion consisting of Bhagwan Ram Lala on Sri Ram Chabutra along with other deities, chathi pujan sthan and Bhandar with eastern outer wall carrying engraved image of varah Bhagwan with southern and northern wall and also western portion of wall carries the present municipal No. 10/12/29 old 506, 507 and older 647 of Ram Kot ward of Ayodhya City had been a continious referred in man litigation since 1885 till Reg. Suit No. 239/82 of the Court of Civil Judge Faizabad and in every case Nirmohi Akhara was held always in possession and management of this temple so the Bhagwan Ram Lalaji installed by Nirmohi Akhara on this Ram Chabutra is a distinct legal entity owned by def. no. 3. That suit is bad for want of impleadment of necessary party as mentioned above.

Para 44: That attachment made in the 1949 is only in respect of main building of Garbh Grahya Carrying three “Shikher” where in the deity of Bhagwan Sri Ram Chandraji is installed by Nirmohi Akhara from time beyond the human memory and are since then is management and possession of it till the said property attached. Therefore, plaintiff 3 can not claim any right to represent him.

Para 45: That origin of installation pltf. 1 and 2 and dedication to it both have not been pleaded by plaintiff no. 3. Thus pleading is vague and misconceived.

Para 46: That suit is heavily time barred.

Para 47: That plaintiff No. 3 Mr. Deoki Nandan is office bearer of V.H.P. and is also member of defendant No. 2 the alleged Nayas which is not a legal constituent. There could be no delegation of an endowment to any other trust. Once a dedication to endowment is always a dedication for ever. Thus def. No. 21 altogether an illegal entity playing in the hands of V.H.P. Thus interest of Pltff. No. 3 as member of Nayas Def. No. 21 is adverse to Bhagwan Sri Ram Ji Pltff. No. 1.

Para 48: That outer portion with surrounding temples were illegally acquired by V.H.P. Backed BJP Govt. which notification 7.10.1991 is under the challenge in Writ Petition but same is void, illegal U/s 52 of T.P. Act.

Para 49: That plaintiff no. 1 can only be represented by Def. No. 3 along and therefore plaintiff 1 to transposed as defendant to be represented by defendant No.3.

Para 50: That suit is liable to be dismissed.

Para 51: That contents of para 16-A of the plaint are denied. That existence of alleged Nayas is ipso facto illegal and void. Jagada Guru Rama Nand had himself condemned the existence of alleged Nayas vide his interview of "Dainik Jan Morcha" before his death. Sri Ram Chandra Das has himself admitted the title, possession of Nirmohi Akhara since long.

Para 52: That disputed temple belongs to Nirmohi Akhara from before the time of Hanuman memory and mostly all the property in suit vests to be religious denomination of Panch Rama Nandi Nirmohi Akhara and thus there could be no divesting of the religious institution to any other endowment or Nayas. Def. No. 3 has not joined information of any such Nayas nor could it do legally.

Para 53: That said Nayas is also becomes illegal as non-constituent body being devoid of any title to disputed property.

in O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989

The defendant No. 4 begs to submit as under:-

1. That the contents of para 1 of the plaint are incorrect and hence denied as stated. Neither the plaintiffs Nos. 1 and 2 are the juridical persons and nor there is any Presiding Deity of Sri Ram Chandraji at the place in dispute and nor the plaintiff no. 3 has any locus standi or right to represent the so-called and alleged deity and Asthan as next friend. It is further submitted that the plaintiffs nos. 1 and 2 are not at all legal personalities (and as such they have no right to file the instant suit). As a matter of fact there has never been any installation of deity within the premises of the disputed place of worship known as Babri Masjid and the idol in question was stealthily and surreptitiously kept inside the mosque in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949 by some mischief-mongers against whom an F.I.R. had also been lodged at the Police Station Ayodhya on 23rd December, 1949.

2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the said plan as well as the report submitted by Sri Sheo Shanker Lal, and made part of this Plaint do not depict the correct position of the spot and the same cannot be relied upon for identification and description of the property in suit. The plaintiffs were, therefore, obliged to give the boundaries as well as the site plan of the property in suit and the plaint is defective in this respect.

3. That the contents of para 3 of the plaint are also denied as stated and in reply thereto only this much is admitted that suit No. 2 of 1950 had been filed by Sri Gopal Singh Visharad against Sri Zahoor Ahmad and others. It is incorrect to say that the original plaintiff of the said suit has died only recently. The fact is that Sri Gopal Singh Visharad had expired several years ago and no application for substitution has been moved in the said suit within the prescribed period (and as such the said suit had abated much before 1986 and the order of substitution passed in favour ofdefendant No. 1 is absolutely illegal and improper).

It is further submitted that the names of the Muslim defendants of the said suit had been wrongly struck off. The answering defendant is advised to state that the heirs of the Muslim defendants were liable to be substituted in place of the original Muslim defendants. Rest of the contents of the para under reply may be verified from the record of the original Suit No. 2 of 1950.

4. That the contents of para 4 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that whatever relief was claimed in the said suit No. 2 of 1950 would appear from the copy of the plaint of that suit.

5. That the contents of para 5 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the contents of the said suit No. 25 of 1950 may also be verified from the copy of the plaint of that suit, and in the absence of the relevant record it is not admitted that a valid notice under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure had been given prior to the filing of the aforesaid suit No. 25 of 1950.

(It is further submitted that the names of the Muslims defendants have been wrongly struck off).

6. That the contents of para 6 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto is submitted that since suit No. 25 of 1950 was also considered to be defective like Suit No. 2 of 1950, a third Suit had also been got filed which had been numbered as Suit No. 26 of 1959. Whatever was pleaded in Suit No. 26 of 1959 would appear from the copy of the plaint of that suit and it is absolutely incorrect to say that the idols of Sri Ram Chandraji and others have ever been installed in the said premises of Babri Masjid which has been wrongly described as Janam Bhoomi. (It is further submitted that the said Suit No. 26 of 1959 was also defective and not maintainable. It is also incorrect to say that the heirs of the Muslims defendants of the said suit were not liable to be substituted. The answering defendant is advised to state that the cause of action, if any, did survive even against the heirs and legal representatives of the said Muslim defendants). As all of them claimed the property in suit to be a mosque and none of them had ever admitted the said building to be a temple.

7. That the contents of para 7 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto only this much is admitted that suit No. 12 of 1961 was filed by the answering defendant and 8 other Muslims in the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad. The reliefs claimed in the said suit may be verified from the plaint of the said suit and it is incorrect to say that only plaintiffs Nos. 7 and 9 of the said suit are surviving. As a matter of fact the plaintiffs nos. 5 and 8 of the said suit No. 12 of 1961, namely Maulvi Mohd. Naseer and Vakiluddin are also very much alive and the plaintiffs nos. 2, 4,6 and 10 are survived by their legal representatives (and all of them are liable to be impleaded in the instant suit).

8. That the contents of para-8 of the plaint are denied as stated for want of definite knowledge and the same may be verified from the record.

It is further submitted that the aforesaid suit No. 12 of 1961 was filed in the representative capacity and the application for permission to sue in a representative capacity was allowed by the Court.

9. That in reply to para 9 of the plaint it is admitted that all the aforesaid four suits have been consolidated and suit no. 12 of 1961 had been made as the leading suit.

10. That the contents of para 10 of the plaint may also be verified from the record of the suit No. 2 of 1950.

11. That the contents of para 11 of the plaint are denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the plaintiffs nos. 1 and 2 cannot be treated as deities and also there arises no question of their Sewa and Pooja. Rest of the contents of the para under reply may be verified from the record.

12. That the contents of para 12 of the plaint are also denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there arises no question of Sewa and Pooja of the said alleged deities as no such deities exist in the building in question and the idols kept therein could not be treated as deities. It is further submitted that the restricted Pooja as carried on 16th January, 1950 could not be treated as Sewa and Pooja of the alleged deity. It is also incorrect to say that there has ever been any likelihood of the suits being decided in such a manner that any closer Darshan of the idols could be possible.

13. That the contents of para 13 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the defendant No. 20 had no right or title or locus standi to move the said application for the opening of the gate of the mosque for closer Darshan (and the defendant No. 20 being not at all a party to any of the aforesaid suits, he had no locus standi to file the Appeal before the District Judge, Faizabad, and the order dated 1.2.1986 passed by the District Judge, Faizabad, was patently and manifestly illegal and without jurisdiction) and two writ petitions are pending in the Hon'ble High Court against the aforesaid order dated 1.2.1986.

It is further submitted that the building in dispute is not the Janam Bhoomi of Sri Ram Chandraji and no idols of Sri Ram Chandraji were ever installed in the said building and as such there arises no question of any right or claim of the defendant no. 20 or of anyone else to perform Pooja and Darshan over there. The fact is that the property in suit is an old mosque known as Babri Masjid and the same was constructed during the regime of Emperor Babar.

14. That the contents of para 14 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the building in dispute is not a temple and as such there arises no question of any Pooja and Darshan being allowed to be performed over there. (It is reiterated that the plaintiffs nos. 1 and 2 are not the deities recognised by Hindu law and as such they have no legal entity).

It is further submitted that since the building in question is a mosque there arises no question of any new temple being constructed over the site of the said Babri Masjid (and the plaintiffs or anyone else have no right or locus standi to claim the removal of the old structure of the said mosque).

It is also relevant to mention here that neither any idols were kept in the said mosque prior to the incident of the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949 when the idols were surreptitiously or stealthily kept in the mosque by some mischievous elements and nor the said mosque was ever used for performing Pooja and Darshan etc. prior to 23.12.1949. As the plaintiffs Nos. 1 and 2 cannot at all be treated as deities, there is no question of unhappiness of the so called deities and their alleged devotees. It is, however, admitted that there has been unnecessary and unusual delay in the disposal of the suits referred to above and on account of the attachment of the mosque for the last about 39 years the condition of the building has also deteriorated. The Receiver appointed by the Court is not taking proper interest in the maintenance of the building and in spite of the orders of the Court, no repairs of the building have been undertaken for the last several years. The answering defendant is, however, not aware of the alleged misappropriation of the money by the staff appointed by the Receiver. The answering defendant is further advised to state that the alleged desire of removing the structure of the mosque and of constructing a temple on the site of the said mosque is wholly uncalled for and unwarranted and mischievous and any such attempt will be fraught with very dangerous consequences (and instigation of such unholy design and illegal activity also amounts to offence apart from being contemptuous) and in gross violation of the restraint order passed by the Hon'ble High Court in Writ Petition No. 746 of 1986: Mohd. Hashim Versus State of U.P. and others.

15. That the contents of para 15 of the plaint are absolutely incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that as there is no temple there arises no question of improving the administration and re-construction of the same or of managing the performance of alleged Sewa, Archana and Pooja etc. So also there being no deities, there is no question of protecting, renovating and re-construction and developing the alleged temple premises, and the building in question being a mosque there was no question or justification for creation of any Trust or for execution of any Deed of Trust and the so-called Trust and Deed of Trust are wholly uncalled for, unwarranted and illegal and the same have got no legal sanctity. The entire exercise done in this respect is based on imaginary concept of Ram Janam Bhoomi temple while no such temple ever existed over the premises in question.

16. That the contents of para 16 of the plaint are absolutely incorrect and hence denied as stated. As already stated above, the so-called Sri Ram Janam Bhoomi Nyas has got nothing to do with the building in dispute and as such it is absolutely irrelevant for the purposes of the instant case as to who are the Trustees and members of the same.

17. That the contents of para 17 of the Plaint are absolutely incorrect and

hence denied as stated. The so-called Nyas has got no concern with the property in suit and it is also not a legal person and no Sewa and Pooja being done in the building in question under the auspices of the said Nyas, there is no question of the impleadment of the Nyas as defendant No. 21.

18. That the contents of para 18 of the plaint are also denied as stated. Neither there is any Presiding deity and nor there is any Asthan as alleged in the para under reply and as such the plaintiffs nos. 1 and 2 are not at all the juridical persons and the suit filed on their behalf is wholly misconceived and non-maintainable. As already stated above, the idol was surreptitiously and stealthily kept inside the mosque in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949 and as such the said idol has neither been installed in accordance with the tradition and rituals of Hindu Law and nor there have been any ceremonies prescribed by Hindu Law for the installation of the idols and as such the idols kept in the mosque have got no legal entity and that being so there arises no question of impleadment of the same, and moreover, the plaintiff no. 3 has also got no direct right or title or concern with the property in suit and as such he is also not entitled to institute the present suit. In any case the instant suit having been filed after expiry of more than 39 years since after the attachment of the property in suit the instant suit is heavily barred by time and it is not at all maintainable even on this account.

19. That the contents of para 19 of the plaint are absolutely false and incorrect and hence denied as stated. Neither there is any public record, much less any record of unimpeachable authority showing that the premises in dispute is the place of birth of Sri Ram Chandraji and nor there is any historical or judicial record to testify the averments of the para under reply. As a matter of fact the religious books as well as the writing of Hindu scholars themselves make it very doubtful as to whether the personality of Sri Ram Chandraji is a historical personality. Similarly there are several versions about the place of birth of Sri Ram Chandraji and it is not at all settled, even amongst the Hindu scholars, as to where and in what period such a religious leader known as Sri Ram Chandraji was born. The booklets being circulated at Ayodhya by the Vishwa Hindu Parishad and other Hindu Organizations and other books of Hindu mythology describe the period of Sri Ram Chandraji as that of Treata Yug meaning thereby that he was born

more than 9 lakh years ago. According to Hindu mythology, there have been three Maha Prayleys during this period due to which the entire earth had submerged into water and as such according to Hindu mythology itself no specific place can be said to be the birth place of Sri Ram Chandraji. It is also pertinent to mention here that greatest authority of Hindu mythology on Sri Ramchandraji known in the recent history is that of Goswami Tulsidasji. He had written the book on Sri Ramchandraji known as Sri Ram Charitra Manas during the regime of Mughal Emperor Akbar who was the grandson of Mughal Emperor Babar and it is said that Sri Goswami Tulsidasji had composed the said Ram Charitra Manas at a place known as Datun Kund situated at a distance of about one kilometre from Ayodhya in district Faizabad and as such had there been any birth place of Sri Ramchandraji in Ayodhya, Goswami Tulsidasji must have specifically mentioned about the same in his Ram Charitra Manas and as a great devotee of Sri Ramchandraji Goswami Tulsidasji cannot be expected to have skipped over or concealed or kept quiet over such an important fact regarding the life history of Sri Ramchandraji and had there been any iota of truth in the story of Sri Ram Janam Bhoomi temple being there at Ayodhya at the site of the Babri Masjid during the regime of Emperor Babar or prior thereto and had there been any incident of demolition of any such temple and construction of Babri Masjid over the same, Goswami Tulsidasji must have taken up this matter in the Court (Darbar) of Emperor Akbar and Emperor Akbar must have undone the alleged wrong and specially so when the Court of Akbar was full of Advisors, councillors and ministers from Hindu community and his own Queen was also Jodha Bai. It is also relevant to mention here that even the location of present Ayodhya does not tally with the location of Ayodhya as given in the Balimik Ramayan and this also creates doubt about there being any place of birth of Sri Ramchandraji in the present Ayodhya situated in district Faizabad. Ayodhya mentioned in the Balmiki Ramayan is said to be situated at a distance of about 1-1/2 Yojana (equivalent to about 14-1/2 miles) from river Saryu flowing East to West which is presently running quite adjacent to the present Aydhya from West to East.

It is also absolutely incorrect to say that there is any historical or other evidence to the effect that Sri Ramchandrji had manifested himself in human form at the place where the idols are presently kept in the mosque in question.

It is also absolutely incorrect to say that the place known as Babri Masjid has ever been called as Sri Ram Janam Bhoomi prior to December, 1949.

20. That the contents of para 20 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there is no deity by the name of Asthan Ram Janam Bhoomi and as a matter of fact there is no said Asthan also within the premises of Babri Masjid.

It is also relevant to mention here that in 1885 Mahant Raghubar Das, Mahant of Janam Asthan of Ayodhya, had filed a suit against the Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohd. Asghar, Mutawalli of the said mosque in the Court of Sub-Judge, Faizabad, in which a site plan had also been annexed along with the plaint and in the said site plan the mosque in question was specifically mentioned in the western side of the Chabutra in respect whereof the said suit was filed for permission to erect temple over the said Chabutra. In respect of the said Chabutra the said Mahant Raghubar Das had stated that the temple of Janam Bhoomi was desired to be constructed over there, but the said Mahant could not succeed even in that suit which was ultimately dismissed on 24th December, 1885 by the Sub-Judge, Faizabad, and the appeal filed against the said judgement and decree dated 24th December 1885 was also dismissed by the District Judge, Faizabad, and the Second Appeal filed against the same had also been dismissed by the Judicial Commissioner of Avadh. The aforesaid suit was filed by Mahant Raghubar Das on behalf of other Mahants and Hindus of Ayodhya and Faizabad etc. As such the plaintiffs cannot claim any portion of the Babri Masjid to have been defied or having become a juridical personality by the name of Asthan Ram Janam Bhoomi and specially so when neither there has been any installation of deity and nor any personification of the same in accordance with the tenets of Hindu religion or law. It is further submitted that the plaintiffs are even estopped from claiming the mosque in question as the Janam Bhoomi of Sri Ram Chandraji as the plaintiffs' predecessors and specially Mahant Raghubar Das had confined his claim to the Chabutra (platform) of 17' x 21 ft. outside the said mosque as being Janam Asthan of Ram Chandraji and also because there already exists another temple known as Janam Asthan temple situate at a distance of less than 100 yards only from Babri Masjid and on its northern side.

21. That the contents of para 21 of the plaint are also denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the mythological concept of incarnation etc. is not at all relevant for the purposes of the instant case. However, the averments of the para under reply are not correct and consistent with Hindu Law and the same being a matter of legal nature it will be dealt at the appropriate stage. It is, however, relevant to mention here that neither there has been any installation of any deity within the premises in dispute and nor the ritual of Pranpratishtha in respect of any idol surreptitiously and stealthily kept inside the mosque in question was ever performed or observed; as such there arises no question of divine spirit having been created or manifested in the idol forcibly kept in the mosque in question in the night of 22nd-23rd December, 1949 about which an F.I.R. was lodged at the Police Station Ayodhya in the morning of 23.12.1949 by a Hindu Officer of the Police Station himself who had mentioned in the said F.I.R. that some mischievous element had kept the said idol in the preceding night in a stealthy and surreptitiously manner by sheer use of force and non the basis of the said F.I.R. a Criminal case had also been registered against those persons who had kept the said idol and subsequently proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. had been drawn by the Magistrate and as a result of the communal tension arising and developing on account of the aforesaid incident or keeping the idol in the mosque, the said building had been attached on 29.12.1949 and Suprudgar/Receiver for the care and custody of the said building had also been appointed who had drawn up a scheme of Management and the same was submitted on 5.1.1950.

22. That the contents of para 22 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the spirit of Sri Ram Chandraji as the divine child cannot be said to reside at any place or in any idol kept inside the said mosque and as such no idol or place of the said mosque can be said to be deity. It is further submitted that there is no comparison of Kedarnath or Vishnupad temple of Gaya with the Babri

Masjid. It is also relevant to mention here that there is no Charan or Sita Rasoi within the premises of Babri Masjid and the place known as Sita Rasoi is situated outside the premises of the said mosque. It is also incorrect to say that Pooja in any form was ever performed inside the mosque in question at any time prior to 23.12.1949.

23. That the contents of para 23 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there has never been any temple of Maharaja Vikramadittya's time at the site of the Babri Masjid and no authentic books of history and no public record of any unimpeachable authenticity can be cited in this respect. It is also incorrect to say that the mosque in question was raised at the site of any temple or after destroying any temple by force and arms. It is also not correct to say that the material used in the construction of the said mosque was almost all of it taken from any temple, and it is also incorrect to say that the pillars of the said mosque were wrought out of Kasauti or touchstone with figures of Hindu Gods and Goddesses carved on them. The fact is that such pillars are available at some other places also. It is also absolutely false and baseless to suggest that any resistance was put by the Hindus or any battle was fought from time to time to prevent the construction of the mosque. Regarding the shape of the structure of the mosque it is submitted that there is no requirement of any specific type of construction or structure for any mosque and existence of minaretes or or domes is not at all required for any mosque and so also there is no necessity of any place for storage of water for VAZOO for any mosque although in the close vicinity of Babri Masjid a well is very much there for taking out water for the purposes of Vazoo. There are several other mosques in India and even in Faizabad and Lucknow, which do not have minarets and even domes and one such mosque is situated within the premises of Dargah Hazrat Jahangir Samdani in Kachaucha Shareef district-Faizabad in which there are no domes or minaretes and one such mosque exists in the district of Lucknow in which there are five domes but no minaretes. It is also incorrect to say that any life was lost in any battle fought in respect of Babri Masjid and no battle in respect thereto had taken place till 1885.

It is also incorrect to say that the building of Babri Masjid raised during Babar's time had ever remained in the possession and control of

Hindus. The citation of Faizabad gazetteer given in the para under reply is based on hearsay information and the same cannot be said to be true and correct or in any way a reliable piece of evidence.

It is also relevant to mention here that bitterness had been created between Hindus and Muslims in respect of the mosque situated inside Hanuman Garhi and it was on the report of the demolition of that mosque that some Muslims had tried to take up arms under the command of Maulvi Ameer Ali, but they could not succeed on account of the army of the Nawab as well as British army posted for facing their challenge. The expedition of Maulvi Ameer Ali had, therefore, no concern or connection with the Babri Masjid and the observations of the contrary in the Gazetteer of Faizabad and Barabanki are, therefore, totally incorrect and no reliance can be placed upon the same. It is also incorrect to say that at any point of time Hindus and Muslims both used to worship in the same building known as Babri Masjid.

Had there been any such practice of worshipping by both the communities inside the Babri Masjid, mention of the same should have been made in the plaint of the Original Suit No. 61/280 of 1885: Mahant Raghubar Das Versus Secretary of State & another, decided on 14.12.85 by the Sub-Judge, Faizabad.

24. That the contents of para 24 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. At no point of time there ever existed any temple at the site of the Babri Masjid and it is absolutely incorrect to say that the said mosque was constructed, after destroying any ancient temple, with the material of the alleged temple. The mosque in question has always been used as a mosque since its construction during the regime of Emperor Babar.

The contents of the sub-paras (A) to (G) of the para under reply are also incorrect and the same are also denied as stated:

(A) That the contents of para 24(A) of the plaint are also denied as stated. The quotation of Quran is totally out of context and the same is not even correct and complete.

(B) That the contents of para 24(B) of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The land in question undoubtedly belonged to the state when the Mosque in question was constructed on behalf of the State and as such it cannot be said that it could not be dedicated for the purposes of the mosque. Emperor Babar was a Sunni Muslim and the vacant land on which the Babri Masjid was built lay in his State territory and did not belong to anyone and it could very well be used by his officers for the purposes of the mosque and specially so when the Emperor Babar himself consented and gave approval for the construction of the said mosque. It is absolutely incorrect to say that the site in question was the site of any temple and any temple was destroyed by Meer Baqi. Had anysuch incident of demolition of any temple taken place, the same must have been reported in any authentic book of Mughal history but no such incident finds mention in any authentic book of history and as such it is absolutely false and concocted to suggest that the mosque in question was constructed at the site of any temple.

(C ) That the contents of para 24(C) of the Plaint are also absolutely false and incorrect and hence denied as stated. No temple had ever existed at the site of the said mosque and there is no question of vesting of the site in any alleged deity. Similarly no Asthan and deity could be said to have ever existed over there and as such there arises no question of the possession of any deity or Asthan on the site in question. The alleged Ram Chabutra has also not remained in existence since the time of Babar out rather the same is the creation of around 1857 period.

It is also incorrect to say that the entry of the mosque could not be possible except after passing through any place of Hindu worship. The concept of the mosque has also been wrongly and incorrectly described in the para under reply.

(D) That the contents of para 24(D) of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. There is no such requirement for the construction of any mosque- that the same should be built in a place of peace and quiet and near to a place where there is a sizeable muslim population. It is also incorrect to say that the mosque cannot be built in a place which is surrounded by temples, where the sound of music and Konch shell, Ghanta Gharyal disturbs the peace and quiet of the place.

(E) That the contents of para 24(E) of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there is no specific shape of building of a mosque and there is no requirement of existence of any minaretes in a mosque. It is also not required that there should be any specific place or minaretes for calling the Azan. The quotations given in the para under reply are also irrelevant and out of context and the same do not even present a correct law.

(F) That the contents of para 24(F) of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. Whatever was mentioned in the plaint of Suit No. 12 of 1961 would appear from the copy of the same and the averments of the Faizabad Gazetteer referred to in the para under reply are neither authentic and nor correct. It is also incorrect to say that there were no graves near the building of the said mosque. The fact is that many graves existing in the Ganj-Shaheedan have now been mostly demolished by the Bairagis and that is why they are not now visible. It is reiterated that the mosque in question has been used for offering regular 5 time prayers up to 22nd December, 1949 and even Friday prayers have been offered in the same till 16th December, 1949 and the Imam of the said mosque who used to lead the prayers even in 1949 namely Maulvi Abdul Ghaffar son of late Mohd. Abdul Qadir. He had even filed his affidavit in writ petition No. 746 of 1986 : Mohd. Hashim Vs. District Judge, Faizabad and others, which is still pending in this Hon'ble Court.

(G) That the contents of para 24(G) of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is, submitted that there is a pucca well also outside the mosque in question for taking out water for the purposes of Vazoo.

(25) That the contents of para 25 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there never remained any deity in the mosque in question. It is also incorrect to say that no valid waqf of the mosque was ever created and the reference of command of law made in the para under reply is also incorrect and misleading.

It further submitted that the muslims possession has remained uninterrupted and continuous of the mosque in question since its construction and up to 22.12.1949 (and as such the alleged right or title, if any, of anyone else over the same has ceased to exist and the alleged right and title shall be deemed to have extinguished) on account of the uninterrupted and adverse possession of the muslims over the mosque in question for more than 420 years.

(26) That the contents of para 26 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply there to it is submitted that regular 5-time prayers used to be offered in the said mosque up to 22.12.1949 and Friday prayers were also offered up to 16.12.1949 and on 23.12.1949 when the muslims led by the Imam of the said mosque had approached the authorities of the district to offer Friday prayers in the said mosque they were persuaded to offer Friday prayer on that date in some other mosque with the specific assurance that they will be allowed to offer Friday prayers in the mosque in question on the next Friday falling on 30.12.1949. But before that the mosque in question had been attached by the Magistrate under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and since then the attachment of the said mosque is continuing and till now the said mosque is continuing in the custody of the Court.

It is further submitted that although communal riot of 1934 had nothing to do with the mosque in question but still some Bairagees had damaged a portion of the mosque and as such the District Magistrate of Faizabad had got the said damaged portion of the mosque repaired through a muslim contractor soon thereafter.

It is also incorrect to say that after the said repairs no one had dared to offer Namaz in the said mosque. As the mosque in question was very much in use there was no occasion for the Waqf Board to take any action or steps for the establishment of the building as a mosque.

It is also absolutely incorrect to say that there was no Mutawalli or Moazzin or Imam or Khatib or Khadim of the said mosque. The name of the mutawalli of the said mosque finds mention even in the Government Gazette of 1944 declaring the said mosque as a waqf and even at present there is a Committee of Management of the said mosque appointed by the U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf (answering defendant).

(27) That the contents of para 27 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The graves existing near the Babri Masjid were dug up and levelled mainly after 1949 and not just after Independence and in the night of 22nd-23rd December, 1949 some Bairagees had forcibly and illegally entered into the mosque and had kept the idol below the middle dome of the mosque about which an F.I.R. was lodged at Police Station, Ayodhya in the morning of 23rd December, 1949 and some of the culprits were even named in the FIR. It is absolutely incorrect to say that the idol of Bhagwan Sri Ram Chandraji was installed with due ceremony in the Central dome of the building in the 'aforesaid' night. It is also incorrect to say that any purification of the alleged Asthan was done by Akhand Ramayan and Jap by thousands of persons all over the area.

(28) That the contents of para 28 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. It is absolutely incorrect to say that no muslims have been residing near the Babri Masjid and as such no resistance was offered. The fact is that muslims reside not only behind the mosque but also in the localities situated in the southern and eastern side of the mosque. But no one being aware of the aforesaid keeping of idols in the late hours of the night could offer resistance at that time and when the muslims had come to know about the same on 23rd December, 1949, they had collected over the spit and had insisted for offering Friday prayers in the said mosque, but the district authorities present over there had persuaded the muslims not to offer prayer on that date and they had assured the muslims that the idols stealthily kept in the mosque would be removed by the next Friday and as such the muslims could offer prayer from the next Friday. In this view of the matter the muslims acted with restraint and as law abiding citizens and when the mosque was attached on 29th December, 1949, the muslims had started pursuing legal remedies. The said proceedings had started under section 145 Cr.P.C. and have not been dropped so far, but rather the same were stopped and consigned to record on account of the filing of the Civil suit and the same will be revived after the decision of the civil suit.

It is also relevant to mention here that the aforesaid act of keeping the idols in a stealthy manner was done with the connivance of some district officials and that is why the said idols had not been removed by those officials specially by the then District Magistrate Sri K.K. Nayyar in spite of the fact that the then Prime Minister, Sri Jawahar Lal Nehru as well as the then Chief Minister Pandit Govind Ballabh Pant had severally asked the District Magistrate Faizabad to get the idols removed from the mosque. In this respect one Sri Akshay Brahmchari, the then President of the District Congress Committee, Faizabad, had even undertaken fast in order to press the demand for the removal of the idols from the said mosque but on the

assurance given by the then Chief Minister Pt. Govind Ballabh Pant, he had broken his fast.

It is also incorrect to say that the Magistrate who had initiated proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. had not considered the dispute in question to be a dispute between Hindus and Muslims.

It is also incorrect to say that the said proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. had been dropped on 30th July, 1953 with the finding that there was no apprehension of breach of peace and order any longer.

(29) That the contents of para 29 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. There was no deity in the eyes of law in the said mosque and hence there was no occasion for the impleadment of the same either in the suit filed by the Hindus or in the suit filed by the muslims; the idols kept in the mosque could not be treated as deities and as such there arose no question to interfere with the so-called possession of any alleged deity. Moreover there being a restraint order of Injunction against the removal of the idols, the said idols could not be removed during the pendency of the suits. The possession of the building in question has remained with the Supurdgar/Receiver right from 5.1.1950 and as such no one else could be said to have been in actual and physical possession over the mosque in question since after 5.1.1950 up till now. It is also incorrect to say that the Receiver could be said to have acted like a onebiat. As there are no deities in possession of the site in question there arose no question of extinguishment of the rights of the muslims over the mosque in question on account of the alleged long and adverse possession.

(30) That the contents of para 30 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. Neither the Hindu public could be said to have dreamt of establishing Ram Raj after freedom and nor it could be said that the restoring of the alleged Janam Asthan to its imaginary glory has ever been the National aspiration of Mahatma Gandhiji. Mahatma Gandhi had never considered or treated Babri Masjid to be Janam Asthan of Sri Ram Chandraji and that is why his followers and disciples had never supported the act of keeping idols in the said mosque but rather they had treated the forcible act of keeping the idols in the mosque with the contempt it deserved. Sri Askshay Brahmchari was a disciple of Mahatma Gandhi and that is why he had undertaken fast in order to press his demand for the removal of the idols from the mosque. It is, therefore, absolutely incorrect to say that the devotees of Sri Ram Chandraji are agitating for the construction of a grand temple at the site of the said mosque. As a matter of fact this demand is being made by some disgruntled elements having their vested interest in making such demand and a large number of persons have been mislead to believe that as if the said Babri Masjid is the birthplace of Sri Ramchandraji.

It is further submitted that there is absolutely no justification for the present campaign being carried on for starting construction of Ram Janam Bhoomi temple at the site of the Babri Majid with effect from 9.11.1989. There is no question of construction of any such temple at the site of the mosque and muslims will never permit any such attempt being successful. The averments of the para under reply are most unwarranted and amount to incitement of an offence and also amount to contempt as the same has the effect of undermining the authority of the Court.

(31) That the contents of para 31 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there being no deity in the said mosque, there was no question of impleading the same as party. It is also incorrect to say that the four suits pending for the last several years were in any way insufficient for adjudication of the controversy in question. It is also incorrect to say that the pendency of the aforesaid suits could present any hindrance in the making of declaration about the nature and character of the building in question. It is also incorrect to say that the declaration sought in the Regular suit No. 12 of 1961 was in any way frivolous and it is also incorrect to say that the plaintiffs of Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 could not represent the entire muslim community. It is also incorrect to say that there are wide ranging differences amongst Shias and Sunni sects of the muslims in respect of the mosque in question. It is also incorrect to say that the defendants no. 1 to 4 and other defendants who have been impleaded later on in Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961, were not competent or capable of representing the entire Hindu community. In any case several other Hindus apart from defendants no. 1 to 4 had got themselves impleaded after publication of notice of the representative suit and the plaintiff no. 3 having not impleaded himself in the aforesaid Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 at the proper time, he could not now say that he was the next friend of the deity and that he could file a fresh suit in respect of the subject matter in issue. It is also incorrect to say that the plaintiff no. 3 was the next friend of Sri Ram Chandraji. Legally speaking the plaintiff No. 3 has never remained in any way concerned with the management and pooja etc. of the idols in question and as such he could in no way claim himself to be the next friend of Sri Ram Chandraji.

It is also relevant to mention here that the Shia sect has nothing to do with the waqf of the mosque in question and this matter has already been adjudicated upon by the Civil Judge, Faizabad in 1946 and it has been finally settled that the Babri Masjid is a Sunni Waqf.

(32) That the contents of para 32 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. It is incorrect to say that the mutwallis of the mosque in question were Shia muslims or the descendants of Mir Baqi. The answering defendant is advised to state that the judgement and decree dated 30th March, 1946 of the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad passed in Suit No. 27 of 1945 is binding upon the parties and controversy about the Shia or Sunni nature of the waqf in question has been set at rest by the aforesaid judgement and the said judgement has all along been relied upon by the Muslim parties in the matter in issue. It is, however, relevant to mention here that there is no legal bar for appointment of Shia Mutawalli of a Sunni Waqf; so also a Sunni Muslim can very well be appointed as mutawalli of a Shia Waqf.

It is pertinent to mention here that the person, who constructs the mosque or under whose supervision a mosque is constructed does not become a Wakif of the said mosque ipso facto and specially so when an officer or General of the Army of a king constructs a mosque on behalf of the King or Emperor the waqf is said to have been created by the Emperor and not by the officer. It is also incorrect to say that any Mutwalli of the waqf in question had not submitted to the jurisdiction of the Sunni Waqf Board after the creation of the said Board under the Waqf Act of 1936. From the record of the Board it is not borne out that Sri Jawwad husain was ever recorded as mutawalli of the said waqf and as such Jawwad Husain has been wrongly impleaded as a defendant in the instant case. So also the defendants No. 22, 24 and 25 have also been wrongly impleaded in the instant suit and their

impleadment appears to be mala fide and just to create a controversy about the nature of the Waqf. The suit is, therefore bad for misjoinder of parties.

(33) That the contents of para 33 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. Neither there is any Presiding Deity of plaintiff No. 1 and nor there are other deities over the premises in question and it is also incorrect to say that the so-called Charan (footsteps) and Sita Rasoee etc. constitute one integral complex and have a single identity. It is also incorrect to say that the claim of the muslims is confined to the building and the area enclosed within inner boundary wall. The area being claimed by the muslims is mentioned very specifically in the plaint of Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 and the description of the same can in no way be said to be vague and undefined. It is also incorrect to say that there are no graves in the vicinity of the said mosque for the last fifty years. It is not at all admitted that the defendant No. 3 is the present mutawalli of the Babri Masjid since before 1948. At present the said mosque has got a Managing Committee appointed by the answering defendant. It is also incorrect to say that only a mutwalli of the mosque can sue for its possession. The Board is a statutory Board having been created by the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 and now continuing under the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1960. The Waqf Act of 1960 was also passed to provide for better governance and administration and supervision of the Waqfs in Uttar Pradesh, and under Section 19 of the said Waqf Act, 1960 the Board has got the power of general supervision of all the Waqfs and it is the duty of the Board to do all things reasonable or necessary to ensure that the Waqfs under its superintendence are properly maintained, controlled and administered and under Section 19(2)(q), the Board has also been conferred with the power to institute and defend suit and proceedings in any Court of law relating to all waqfs. It is, therefore, absolutely incorrect to say that the Board or other muslims associated with the management and administration of the mosque in question or offering Namaz therein could not file the suit for possession registered as Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961.

(34) That the contents of para 34 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. It is also incorrect to say that Prince Anjum Qudar, defendant No. 24 or any other sensible and sizeable Section of the muslim community does not approve of the course adopted by the defendants no. 4 to 6. It is also incorrect to say that any responsible muslim has ever made any suggestion for the removal of the mosque to any other place. The concept of the removal of the structure of the mosque to any other place is quite foreign to the Muslim law and there is no possibility of any such course being adopted by the muslims in respect of the mosque in question. The concept of the mosque is that the entire area below as well as above the portion of the mosque remains dedicated to God Almighty and as such it is not the construction or structure of a mosque alone which is important but more important is the land on which the mosque stands constructed because the land also stands dedicated to God Almighty and the same cannot be removed. As such even if any person bearing the muslim name makes any suggestion of removal of the mosque to any other place, the same is of no value and significance as the principles of Islamic law do not permit any such removal. It is also preposturous to suggest that the building in question will have to be demolished for the construction of a temple in place thereof. While making such a statement the plaintiffs do not appear to be conscious about the grave and disastrous consequences that may follow, if any such proposal is given effect to. The muslims will never tolerate demolition of the mosque for the construction of a temple at the site thereof.

(35) That the contents of para 35 of the plaint are quite vague and ambiguous and also incorrect and hence denied as stated. There can be no dispute to the averments that all human beings including the muslims and Hindus are the creation of one and the same God and the plaintiffs of Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 as well as other muslims also believe in the policy of living in amity and goodwill with the members of all communities and religious denomination. That does not mean that the gesture of goodwill and amity should be shown to such persons who are bent upon demolishing the mosque. It is also incorrect to say that the site in question has got anything to do with the place of birth of Sri Ramchandraji and as such the same has got no significance of the alleged Asthan Sri Ramchandra Janam Bhoomi. The entire propaganda and publicity being carried out by the Vishwa Hindu Parishad and Ram Janam Bhoomi Yagya Samiti and their associates and allied bodies in this respect is nothing but sheer concoction and this is being done with the vested interests and political ambitions and as such it is not at all difficult for the plaintiffs of this suit as well as for the defendants of Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 to abondon their claim over the mosque in question and to construct a magnificent and grand temple of Sri Ramchandraji at any other free site which may not be the property of any other person or community. It is also incorrect to say that under the tenets of Muslim law the mosque can be shifted under certain circumstances.

(36) That the contents of para 36 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. No cause of action ever accrued to the plaintiffs to file the instant suit as they have never remained associated with the management or administration of the property in question. In any case if any cause of action in respect of the property in suit can be said to have accrued to the plaintiff No. 3, the same must be deemed to have accrued in December, 1949 when the property in question was attached and when the muslims had categorically denied the alleged claim of the Hindus to perform pooja in the mosque in question and that being so the instant suit is highly time barred. It is also relevant to mention here that the plaintiff no. 3 was required to give the specific date, month and year since when the alleged cause of action is said to have accrued and no such description having been given, the averments of the cause of action are incomplete and defective and the plaint is liable to be rejected on account of there being no cause of action as per averments of the plaint.

(37) That the contents of para 37 of the plaint are not disputed.

(38) That the contents of para 38 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated for want of requisite details. Neither the suit has been properly valued and nor the court fees paid is sufficient.

(39) That the contents of para 39 of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The plaintiffs are not entitled for any relief claimed in the para under reply and the suit is liable to be dismissed with special costs.

(40) That apart from the averments made above, attention of this Hon'ble Court is invited to the Additional Pleas in support of the averments made above.

Additional Pleas

41. That the instant suit is not at all maintainable and the plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 are neither deities and nor they can be treated as juristic person and the plaintiff no. 3 cannot claim himself to be the next friend of Bhagwan Sri Ram. As such none of the plaintiffs have any right to file the instant suit.

www.vadaprativada.com

42. That the instant suit is highly belated and the same is barred by the law of limitation and as such the same is liable to be dismissed on this account alone.

43. That the property in suit has also not been properly described and as such the instant suit suffers for want of material facts and particulars and on this account also the plaint is liable to be rejected.

44. That as the relief in the instant suit has been claimed against all the defendants including the Government and its officers arrayed as defendants no. 7 to 10, the suit could not be filed without giving notice under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure to the said defendants no. 7 to 10 and no such notice having been given and there being no averments in the plaint in this respect, the suit is liable to be dismissed on this account also and in any case the plaint is liable to be rejected for want of statutory notice.

45. That as the subject matter of the instant suit is a waqf property and stands registered as a waqf in the Register of Waqf maintained by the Sunni Waqf Board under Section 30 of the Waqf Act and a Gazette notification in respect thereto has also been issued by the State government in 1944 and the same stands recorded as a mosque even in the revenue record and other government records and the same is even accepted as a mosque by the State Government and its officers in the written statements filed in Regular Suit No. 2 of 1950 as well as in Regular Suit No. 25 of 1950, the instant suit could not be instituted against the answering defendants until the expiration of two months next after notice, in writing, had been delivered or left at the office of the Board as per requirement of Section 65 of the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1960 and no such notice having been given to the answering defendants by the plaintiffs, the suit is not maintainable and is liable to be dismissed.

(46) That even the reports of the Archeological experts have been to the effect that there appear to be no symptoms of human habitation in the present Ayodhya of more than 700 B.C. and also there appear to be no symptoms of any Fort or Palace or Old temple being there at the site of the Babri Masjid.

47. That the suit is barred by the provisions of Section 34 of the Specific

www.vadaprativada.com

Relief Act also.

48. That the suit is bad for misjoinder of parties and also because of non-joinder of necessary parties.

49. That the instant suit is absolutely frivolous, and vexatious and the same deserves to be dismissed with Special Costs.

1. That the contents of para 1 of plaint are denied. Neither the plaintiff no. 1 nor plaintiff no. 2 are the deities within the meaning of Hindu Law nor they are juristic person to file the suit. Remaining contents of para are also denied. Kindly see additional pleas.

2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are denied. The area and the places indicated in Annexures No. 1,2, and 3 of the plaint are neither Ram Janam Bhoomi nor Ram Janam Asthan. However, it is evident that there exists a mosque known as Babri Masjid, the existence of this mosque is established by record, Historic, Judicial and Revenue. The filing of the suit no. 2 of 1950 are not denied. However, the suit is wholly misconceived. The plaintiff of suit no. 2 of 1950 had no legal right and the suit is misconceived. (See the additional pleas).

3. That in reply to the contents of para 3 of the plaint, only the filing of the suit no.2 of 1950 is admittedly but not the contents of the plaint of the said suit. The remaining contents of para under reply are denied.

(Kindly see additional pleas).

4. That in reply to the contents of para 4 of the plaint it may be pointed out that relief claimed in suit no. 2 of 1950 is wholly misconceived and legally not sustainable, remaining contents of this para are denied.

(Kindly see additional pleas).

5. That in reply to the contents of para 5 of the plaint the filing of suit No. 25 of 1950 is admitted but the contents of the plaint of the said suit are denied. Remaining contents of the para under reply are also denied.

(Kindly see additional pleas).

6. That in reply to the contents of para 6 of the plaint the filing of suit No. 26 of 1959 is admitted while the allegations of the plaint of the said suit are denied, the initiation of the proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and the appointment of the receiver, which still continuous is also not denied. However, remaining contents of para under reply are denied.

www.vadaprativada.com

(Kindly see additional pleas).

7. That in reply to the contents of para 7 of the plaint, the suit No. 12 of 1961 including its contents are admitted. The Sunni Central Board of Waqf U.P. is the rightful Public Authority having right to have possession of the entire complex of Babri Masjid and also has a right to maintain it incouding the graveyard known as 'Ganj Sahheedan'. The claim of U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf has already been adjudicated in its favour.

8. That in reply to the contents of para 8 of the plaint, it may be pointed out that the order dated 8th August 1962 was rightly passed. Ramaining contents of para under reply are not admitted as framed.

9. That in reply to the contents of para 9 of the plaint, it may be pointed out that the averments relate to the judicial record, and hence are not denied.

10. That in reply to the contents of para 10 of the plaint it may be pointed out that at the time of granting of the said injunction the answering defendant was not a party to suit No.2 of 1950. The said suit was also not in the representative capacity. Hence the answering defendant is not bound from the said interim injunction. The answering defendant is advised to state that the interim injunction order dated 16.1.1950 as modified on 19.1.1950 was also beyond the scope of suit No.2 of 1950. Remaining contents of the para under reply are also denied. (See additional pleas).

11. That in reply to the contents of para 11 of the plaint it may be pointed out that pooja etc., even in the restricted way, was wrongly permitted. However, the appointment of receiver is not disputed. (Kindly see additional pleas)

12. That the contents of para 12 of the plaint are denied. The averments of para under reply, as regards performing religious ceremonies during the pendency of the suit is also incorrect and denied.

13. That the contents of para 13 of the plaint are not admitted as framed, answering defendant is advised to state that the order of District Judge dated 1.2.1986 is wholly illegal and is also void, being in utter violation of the principle of natural justice. However, the said order has been challenged in two writ petitions, vide W.P. No.746/86 and W.P.No.3106 of 1986. (Kindly see additional pleas etc.)

www.vadaprativada.com

14. That the contents of para 14 of the plaint are denied. There is no deity in the premises in dispute within the meaning and concept of Hindu Law and as such there is no question of devotees etc. The averments pertaining to the money received by the receiver are denied for want of definite knowledge.

15. That the contents of para 15 of the plaint are denied. There is no question of construction of any temple over the site in question. Answering defendant and his co-religionist have a right to resist any such attempt. There is no question of any management of the so called temple. The premises is a mosque and muslims have a right to offer namaz in it and U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf has a right to supervise and manage it. Neither Jagadaguru has any right or locus in the matter and nor he can execute any deed legally in respect of the premises in question. The answering defendant is not aware of the religious sect of the so called vairagies of Ayodhya. (Kindly see additional pleas also.)

16. That in view of the submissions made above the contents of para 16 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The so called trust deed is a nullity. It has no legal basis and the same has no relevance in the present controversy. (see additional pleas ).

18. That the contents of para 18 of the plaint are vehemently denied. No other suit is needed. The present suit is also barred by limitation. The averments of the para under reply have been made with a malafide intention, by which the plaintiff No.3 only wants to boost his own status, while he has no locus; neither there is any deity having a juristic personality (or juristic person) and nor the plaintiff No.3 is a next friend of any deity and the only persons who have a right to worship in the premises in dispute, i.e the mosque, are the muslims. (Kindly see additional pleas).

19. That the contents of para 19 of the plaint are vehemently denied. There is no evidence, historic or otherwise, to indicate that Sri Ram Chandra

Ji was born there. This all is a later concoction and there is no question of devotees. (see additional pleas also.)

20. That the contents of para 20 of the plaint are vehemently denied. As there is no deity , there is no question of any devotee and there is no question of any asthan also. It is an innovation even in Hindu Law; the answering defendant is advised to state that the so called asthan can not be treated as a juristic person and as such the suit is not maintainable on this court also.

21. That the contents of para 21 of the plaint are vehemently denied, the concepts of the various schools of though of Hindu religion are not relevant to the controversy before this Hon'ble Court. (see additional pleas.)

22. That the contents of para 22 of the plaint are denied, various philosophers, fiction and concept of Hindu religion are not relevant for the controversy to be adjudicated in the 4 suits referred to above. Hence the averments of the para under reply are only an effort to introduce new questions not legal but philosophical and spiritual, which are not relevant. (see additional pleas).

23. That the contents of para 23 of the plaint are denied, the narration of history in the plaint is false and baseless; no authentic book of history has been referred in the plaint. The premises has always been a mosque since its construction in sixteenth century, it has always been used by the muslims for offering namaz and for no other purposes. Remark in the gazette is no authentic record of history. It is only a generalised observation, the Gazette also does not make any reference of any authentic history or record. The pillars are not of Kasauti. However, it is not relevant as the fact remains that it is a mosque, and has always been used as a mosque and it is wholly incorrect that anybody else other than muslims worshipped in the building which is called Babri Masjid. The narration of history by the plaintiff is baseless and false. There is no evidence of the demolition of any temple for the construction of this mosque. (see additional pleas).

24. That the contents of para 24 of the plaint are vehemently denied, the quotation from Holy Quran has been incorrectly quoted and the same is out of context. There is no evidence of demolition of any temple. The contents of sub-paras are also denied, on the basis of judicial records and other evidence, it is clear that the premises in question has always been a mosque in which muslim had been offering regular namaz upto 22nd December, 1949. No specific shape or specific design has been prescribed for the mosque, in Islam. The shapes and architectural design of the mosque vary in different parts of the world and even in India. The Ganj-e-Shahidan also belongs to muslims and vests in God Almighty. The plaintiff has misrepresented about the contents of suit No.12 of 1961. The claim and the contents are clear in the plaint of suit No.12 of 1961, there is also a pucca well outside the mosque for 'vazoo'.

(Kindly see additional pleas also.)

25. That the contents of para 25 of the plaint are denied, the building has always been a mosque. In the night of 22/23 December 1949 some mischievous elements forcibly entered into the mosque and surreptitiously and stealthily kept the idol, the details of which have been narrated in the F.I.R. lodged at the Police Station, Ayodhya in the morning of 23rd December, 1949. A criminal case was also registered against several persons on the basis of said F.I.R. and a report was submitted to the Magistrate and the proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. were initiated and the premises was attached and the attachment continues.

26. That the contents of para 26 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The building known as Babri Masjid has always been in use as a mosque and the muslims have offered namaz in it since its construction till 22nd December, 1949. Some of those who offered namaz in it are still available. Some part of the mosque was damaged in the communal riot of 1934 and the same was repaired soon thereafter. The threat contained in the para under reply is most unwarranted. There was a litigation between Shia and Sunni Waqf Boards and in 1946 it was decided in favour of Sunni Waqf Board. The mosque is a Sunni Waqf and there was an Imam as well as a mutawalli of the said mosque. The averments in the para under reply are wholly incorrect and false.

27. That the contents of para 27 of the plaint are vehemently denied. As narrated in the foregoing paragraphs, some persons between the night of

www.vadaprativada.com

22/23rd December, 1949, illegally entered into the mosque about which F.I.R. was lodged at the police Station, Ayodhya in the morning of 23rd December 1949, some of the culprits were named in the F.I.R. and on that basis the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. were initiated and the mosque was attached, the attachment continues; there was no so called ceremony nor any supernatural happening.

28. That the contents of para 28 of the plaint are vehemently denied. It is incorrect that muslims do not live nearby. They do live there but the muslims were not in a position to prevent the aforesaid illegal act done with the connivance of the local administration. The Muslims acted as the law abiding citizens and pursued the legal remedy available to them but no party can be permitted to take benefit of the delay caused in court of law, Here it may also be pointed out that the rights of the muslims to offer Namaz should have been protected but the machinery of law failed in it, only the Muslims still have the right to offer Namaz in the building and no other community has any right in the said building. The proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. have not been dropped but after the filing of the suits the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. were stopped and consigned to record, the property in suit is custodial egisbeing still under attachment. However, Namaz has been offered in the mosque in question after 23.12.1949 also and Azan has also been called.

29. That in view of the submissions made in the foregoing paragraphs the contents of para 29 of the plaint are denied. Neither there is any deity and nor there could be any impleadment of it. Plaintiff No. 3 also has no locus standi and so also plaintiffs No. 1 and 2.

30. That the contents of para 30 of the plaint are denied. There is no question of any devotee, and the present campaign and proclamation made in the plaint has nothing to do with the struggle for freedom of the country, there is no question of construction of any temple there, such an attempt will be resisted, there is no legal right for the construction of temple on the site in question. The assertion in the para under reply are most unwarranted and amount to incitement of an offence, and also amount to contempt, by way of undermining the authority of this Hon'ble Court as, this Hon'ble Court on

3.2.1986 in W.P.746 of 1986 for maintaining status quo, is still in operation.

31. That the contents of para 31 of the plaint are denied. As there is no deity a there is no question of its next friend and a judicial decision will be binding upon all, disregard of the Rule of law pleaded in the plaint is regretted. Shia community has nothing to do with the waqf of the said mosque and this matter has already been adjudicated by the Civil Judge, Faizabad in 1946, and it has been settled that Babri Masjid is a Sunni Waqf.

32. That the contents of para 32 of the plaint are denied. Shia Waqf Board has no locus in this matter. The matter has already been adjudicated and as such now Sri Jawwad Husain has no legal ststus concerning the mosque in question. The reference of Shia political conference is also wholly irrelevant .

33. That the contents of para 33 of the plaint are denied. It may be pointed out that the entire complex belongs to waqf Babri Masjid, the existence of which can't be denied, the entire muslim community is represented by the Sunni Muslims parties and U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf, who are plaintiff in R.S. No.12 of 1961.

34. That the contents of para 34 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The premises has always been a mosque and it has been used as such and no one can remove the structure.

35. That no doubt that the Muslims fear the God, other contents of para 35 of the plaint are denied. None of the plaintiff has any status to maintain the suit.

36. That the contents of para 36 of the plaint are denied, plaintiff has no cause of action including the plaintiff No.3. The cause of action, if any, had accrued in 1528 A.D. When the Mosque was built.

37. That the contents of para 37 of the plaint need not reply.

38. That the contents of para 38 of the plaint are denied, the contents of para 38 of plaint are vague and it has not been properly valued.

39. That the contents of para 39 of the plaint are denied, the plaintiffs are not entitled to get any relief and the suit is liable to be dismissed with special costs.

ADDITIONAL PLEAS

40. That according to the inscription in the mosque, the said Babri Masjid

www.vadaprativada.com

was constructed by Mir Baqui, one of the commanders of the Babar in 1528 and since then it has been in use as mosque and the muslims always regularly offered namaz in it till the attachment.

41. That between the night of 22nd and 23rd December 1949 certain undesirable persons forcibly entered into the mosque and surreptitiously kept the idols in the said mosque.

42. That in respect of above occurrence an F.I.R. was lodged in Police station, Ayodhya by Police Officer with the Ayodhya Police Station on the morning of 23rd December 1949. A case of criminal trespass and religious hatred was registered on that basis and a report was submitted under Section 145 of the Cr.P.C. and Additional City Magistrate of Faizabad passed an order of attachment on 29th December 1949 and the mosque was attached.

43. That firstly under the order of the Magistrate the property was given under the charge of the receiver Sri Priya Dutt Ram and later on the suits were filed and arrangement regarding the property made under Section 145 of the Cr.P.C. was also accepted by the Civil Court, the receivers in course of time changed and uptill now the receiver is there.

44. That present suit is not maintainable. The plaintiff No.1 and 2 are not the Hindu deities to be termed as juristic person, the plaintiff No.3 can not be next friend of the deities. The plaintiff No.3 has no connection with the matter, and his sudden emergence only indicates his political motive in the matter.

45. That the suit is also barred by limitation and on this ground, also the suit is not maintainable.

46. That the some averments of the plaint contain a threat and constitute contempt of the courts of law including an excitement to violence and disregard for the rule of law. Hence plaint as such is liable to be rejected. The plaintiff No.3 undermines the authority of the court specially the interim order dated 3rd Feb. 1986 passed in writ petition No.746 of 1986 by this Hon'ble Court being there, for such contemptuous averments the plaintiff No.3 is liable to be punished.

47. That Babri Masjid (building in question) has always been a mosque and used as such, and only muslims have right to offer Namaz in it and U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf has a right of supervision and control.

48. That the property in suit is not described in accordance with the provision of Order 7 Rule 3 of C.P.C. and the plaint is liable to be rejected on this ground alone.

49. That the suit in question involves State and Govt. Officers and no notice as per plaint averments, as required under the law has been served and as such the plaint is liable to be rejected.

50. That Lord Rama in whose name the controversy in question has been created, according to authoritative texts of the historians and other scholar of Hindu Religion is mere an epic and imaginary figure and was never in existence. In India there have been authoritative pronouncements by the various historians and also by the seminars and symposium that Lord Rama never existed. It is mere an epic, besides above no period and place could be fixed till this date. After long research Holy Barahmins have come to conclusion that it is all mere an epic and legend.

51. That as per Balmiki's Ramayan which is supposed to be the only authoritative source of Lord Rama. The city Ayodhya where the property in question situates is not the place described in that book, the averment that at the site of Babri Masjid there was some temple which was demolished at the behest of Babar is absolutely incorrect and false. Shri Tulsidas who by his book Ram Charitra Manas has elevated the status of Lords Rama from Mariyada Prushottam to Bhagwan has not written about the demolition of any such temple in his book which was written after construction of Babri Masjid, at the Datoon Kund in Ayodhya itself which situates at a short distance from the Babri Masjid. Before Tulsi's Ram Charitra Manas, there were no temples of Lord Rama in any part of India instead there were temples of other gods and goddess and as such the contention regarding demolition of Rama Mandir is absolutely baseless and has been designed-ly thatched up to create communal disharmony and hatred between the two communities.

52. That the recent scientific investigation a, c-14 test which is radio carbon dating method has revealed the stones used in the building in question are less than 500 years in age and this falsifies the claim that the temple was demolished and by the same material the mosque was built, however, it is clarified that all such averments made in the plant are absolutely of no consequence in courts of law.

53. That property in question is continuously recorded as graveyard and mosque in the revenue records from prior to first settlement and the said entry coming unchallenged and there being three settlement also now the entries in revenue records are final and can not be questioned.

54. That after the enforcement of 1936 U.P. Muslim Waqf Act the property in question, after due inquiry in Survey, was notified in official gazette as waqf property to be registered with Sunni Central Board of Waqfs and the said notification having not been challenged and the property in question being recorded in the registers of Waqfs as Waqf property, now same can not be challenged.

55. That initially there was provided a cash grant from the period of King Emperor Babar and after British Rule in lieu of the said cash grant Zamindari of village Shahnavan, Bhoranpur and Sholipur was given for the Babri Masjid and the masjid in question was inter alia maintained by the income of said Zamindari property and the salary of Imam and Moazin etc. was paid and other expenses were also made.

56. That there have been a regular Imam in the said Mosque who led the Congregational five time prayers including Friday Prayer.

57. That the averments regarding accrual of cause of action are absolutely vague and lacking necessary material; who has decided to demolish the mosque and build the proposed temple at its site and how the plaintiff No. 3 became spokesman of such person has not been stated and for want of the same the plaint is liable to be rejected.

58. That the alleged pooja being carried on by the receiver as per orders in regular suit No. 2 of 1950 could not legally make any change in the situation because the receiver being the man appointed by the court and the property being custoddia legis and both parties being responsible for the expenses incurred by the receiver. Besides above, regular suit No. 2 of 1950 was an incompetent suit from the very beginning for non-compliance of Section 80 C.P.C. and after death of Gopal Singh Vishrad which occurred long ago the said suit has abated and no more survives in law, he himself having claimed no here table right in the said suit and non having come forward initially for being substituted or impleaded.

59. That Ram Janam Sthan Mandir exists in Ayodhya which is quit distinct and separate from the premises in question. Mahant Raghubar Das of Ram Janam Sthan Mandir filed regular suit No. 61/280 of 1885 for a portion of premises in dispute measuring 17 x 21 feet which was dismissed from the Court of Subordinate Judge, Faizabad and appeal against the said decree filed by Mahant Raghubar Das was also dismissed from the court of District Judge as well as the Judicial Commissioner, Avadh paralled to Hon'ble High Court. In the said suit the existence of Mosque in question has been very much unequivocally admitted and that admission is binding on the present plaintiffs as well as by estoppel and acquiscence and the said suit was decided with the clear findings that even if any wrong was done in 1528 A.D, that can not be undone now. The answering defendant factually disputing the statement that any wrong was done by or at the behest of King Emperor Babar is advised to state that said findings operate as res judicata and the instant suit is barred Under Section 11 C.P.C. Besides above regular suit No. 57 of 1978 filed on behalf of and in the name of alleged deity itself for the very property has been dismissed from the Court of Munsif, Faizabad and till this date no step has been taken to set aside that order as such the present suit is liable to be dismissed.

60. That the present suit is inter alia liable to be stayed as provided under Section 10 C.P.C. On account of pendency of the four suits referred to in the plaint itself.

61. That the plaintiff no. 3 has got no authority to represent the alleged deities and file suit on their behalf as next friend. The answering defendant is advised to state that plaintiff no. 3 being not entitled to file the suit has sought to regularise his illegal act by obtaining order of the court for being appointed as next friend. It is stated that next friend is appointed for minors, lunatics and persons of unsound mind and in some cases for executors and administrators etc. in case of deity as the dieties are ever represented by someone known as Manager, Shebait, Mahant or Sarvarakar etc. and the suits are also filed through such persons and not through next friend. In revenue records also names of such deities are entered through such persons and as such the order dated 1.7.1939 appointing the plaintiff no. 3 as next friend deserves to be recalled and the plaint rejected accordingly for which

separate application has been moved.

62. That the plaint is liable to be rejected for want of a real and subsisting cause of action and not seeking relief of possession under Section 34 Specific Relief Act and as per plaint averment there is no surviving cause of action in favour of the plaintiffs.

63. That as per plaint averment the matter concerning a large number of members of Hindu's community as well as Muslim community the suit as framed is not maintainable.

64. That annexures 1, 2 and 3 relied upon by the plaintiffs do not at all depict the correct spot situation and are subjudice, objection against the same by the state as well as other defendants has been filed and that has not been directed to be brought on record and as such there being no specification of the property in the plaint the suit is liable to be dismissed.

65. That the temporary injunction as initially ordered on 16.1.1950 and modified on 19.1.50 and continued since then as stated in the plaint has got no legal effect in as much as suit no. 2 of 1950 itself being not maintainable for want of compliance of Section 80 C.P.C. and the plaintiffs of that suit himself having repeatedly stated that the suit is for his individual rights and as such no body else can claim any assistance there from.

66. That in the plaint Lord Rama has been stated as son of Dashrath and thereafter the birth of child as Ram Lala has been stated, no period of the birth of the either has been given as such the plaint is liable to be rejected.

67. That there has been no concern of Lord Rama, Janki or of any person having faith in them with the land in question over which exists the Babri Masjid and adjoining area of graveyard. Admittedly, the mosque being in existence since 1528 and the deads having been buried the same could not be subject matter of any other type of Puja in practice and ASTHA if any if the same could survive from 1528 onwards till this date without any access to the place in no circumstances that Astha could not give a right for demolition of the mosque and the place where the deads or burried could not be purified to be used for any other purpose.

68. That the term he manifested himself in human form is beyond comprehenssion and vague.

69. That just the mosque was built and the deads were buried the site

became waqf property vested in almighty God and it will remain so vested eternally and the property once vested in the God can not be divested. The place where the mosque is built remains a mosque to the depth of the earth and even above the same and can not be removed or shiftted to any other place at all. No person on the earth can accord a permission for its removal or shifting.

70. That for the protection of the mosque any muslim interested in the up keep of the mosque can bring the suit and the averment that the suit having not been brought by Mutawalli has got no relevance in the matter. However the averment itself is contradictory.

71. That the averments that Muslims are children of the God is incorrect and against the Islamic faith. God has no child at all. Them muslims and all the living on the earth are creatures of God.

72. That in the instant suit a simple question of ownership and possession of land is involved which has to be decided in accordance with the law of the land and the claim of the plaintiffs on behalf of the alleged deities that by meare used some right accrued for them although factually in court has been repelled by the District Judge in appeal filed by Mahant Raghubar Das.

73. That the suit is bad form is joinder of defendants No. 22 to 25. They have got no concern with the property in question, they have been impleaded mala fide with ulterior motive collusively and with a view to create confusion and rift among the muslims interest.

74. That the defendant No. 3, 11, 12, 13, 21 and 25 are nor the natural, neigther legal persons and as such the suit is bad and liable to be dismissed for the misjoinder of such parties.

75. That site plan and the report prepared by Shri Shive Shanker Lal, pleader filed in regular suit No. 2 of 1950 is itself subjudice and can not be relied in present suit.

76. That the instant suit is absolutely vexatious and frivolous one and is liable to be dismissed with special cost having being filed with mala fide intention and ulterior motive.

O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989

Full party name to be typed.

Additional Written Statement of Defendants Nos. 4 and 5 in O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989

Defendants Nos. 4 and 5 beg to submit as under:-

1. That the contents of para 35-H of the amended plaint are denied as stated for want of definite knowledge. In any case the same are irrelevant and hence are denied as stated.

2. That the contents of para 35-I of the amended plaint are also denied as stated for want of definite knowledge. The averments of the para under reply are also irrelevant and are denied.

3. That the contents of para 35J of the amended plaint are denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the demolition of the Babri Masjid appeared to be a pre-planned, deliberate and intentional act on the part of the miscreants and criminals who had assembled at the site on the call of the Vishwa Hindu Parishad, Bajrang Dal and Shiv Sena etc. All the acts of the said so-called Kar Sewaks were totally illegal, unjustified and in violation of the orders of this Hon'ble Court as well as of the Hon'ble Supreme Court and amounted to blatant exercise of Rule of Jungle and the so called construction of make-shift temple and placing of idols in the same on 7.12.1992 was all totally illegal and contemptuous and the said idols could not be described as deity under Hindu law also.

4. That the contents of para 35-K of the amended plaint are also denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that Sri Kalyan Singh and his government had deliberately violated and flouted the orders of the this Hon'ble Court as well as of the Hon'ble Supreme Court and had even committed breach of their own undertaking given in the Hon'ble Supreme Court and as such the dismissal of the State Government headed by Sri Kalyan Singh was perfectly justified.

5. That the contents of para 35-L of the Amended Plaint are admitted only to this extent that the said writ petitions were allowed on Ist January,

www.vadaprativada.com

1993 against which Special Leave Petitions were filed in the Hon'ble Supreme Court which are still pending. Rest of the contents of the para under reply are denied as stated.

It is further submitted that the averments of the para under reply are totally irrelevant and frivolous.

6. That the contents of paras 35M, 35 N, 35-O and 35-P of the Amended Plaint are matters of record and the same may be verified from the said Ordinance and the Act. The averments contrary to the intent and meaning of the provisions of the said ordinance and the Act as explained by the Hon'ble Supreme Court are denied as stated.

7. That the contents of para 35-Q of the Amended Plaint are absolutely incorrect and are denied as stated. Neither there is any deity at the site in question and nor the idols in question can be said to have any juristic personality. The plea contained in the para under reply was raised even before the Hon'ble Supreme court but the same was not accepted. As there exist no deity there arises no question of any Shebaiti rights.

8. That in reply to the contents of para 35 R of the Amended Plaint it is submitted that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has discussed in detail the meaning and purport of Section 7(2) of the Act and the plea under reply is unwarranted and irrelevant.

It is further submitted that the averments contained in the affidavit of Sri Radhey Shyam Kaushik have neither been given in the para under reply and nor the answering defendants had definite information about the same and as such the averments regarding the same are liable to be deleted on account of being vague and ambiguous.

9. That the contents of paras 35-S and 35-T of the Amended Plaint may be verified from the record.

10. That the contents of para 35-U of the Amended Plaint are not disputed.

11. That the amendments sought in the Plaint and specially those contained in the paragraphs 35-H to 35-L of the Amended Plaint are totally irrelevant, vexatious and frivolous and the same are liable to be deleted.

12. That the plaintiffs have no right, title or claim over the property in suit and after the judgement of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, there remains no justification for the trial of the instant suit.

13. That the plaintiffs have no cause of action and specially so when the idols placed in the mosque surreptitiously in the night of 22nd-23rd December, 1949 have been removed on 6.12.1992. The claim, if any, regarding the said idols stood extinguished on the removal of the said idols.

Original Suit No. 236 of 1989

Full party name to be typed.

Written Statement of Defendant No. 24
In O.O.S. No. 05 of 1989

The defendant No. 24 begs to submit as under:-

1. That statement made in para 1 of the suit plaint, i.e. the claims of the plaintiff no. 3 seeking to represent the deity and the Asthan as a next friend are not admitted, and are contested. The holy deity and Asthan can not be made parties to this suit. Plaintiff no. 3 has not secured any authority to file the suit on behalf of plaintiffs No. 1 and 2. This defendant considers Lord Rama to be above the Jurisdiction of this Hon'ble Court. This defendant considers it a sacrilege to drag the name of Lord Rama into these mundane proceedings. Because this suit, like all suits before the Court, is also liable to be dismissed. But the plaintiff No. 3 is trying to make Lord Rama as the Plaintiff No. 1 in order to make sure plaintiff No.3 is not defeated because Lord Rama can not be defeated. This attempt should not be allowed to succeed.

2. That as regards the contents of para 2 thereof the answering defendant has no knowledge of Sri Rama Janam Bhoomi, by which is meant the exact spot of birth of Lord Rama. The site plans referred are alleged to be the part of court record, which can be verified by the court, and are not admitted to be correct. Today, there are at least three spots in Ayodhya claimed as the exact spots where Lord Rama was born, viz:

a. The spot being presently claimed by the plaintiff is being made known as Ram Janam Bhoomi Only since 22.12.1949.

b. The Ram Chabutra, in the courtyard outside the Babri Masjid Structure, is being known as Ram Janam Bhoomi only since 1855.

c. The Janamsthan site Rasoi Mandir, facing the Babri Masjid across the street, is traditionally known as Ram Janam Bhoomi since time immemorial.

The last 2 mentioned spots have not been abandoned by the believing devotees in Ayodhya.

3. With regard to the contents of paragraphs 3, 4,5,6,7, 8, 9 and 10 of the suit plaint, this defendant states that since he was not a party to any of the suits and actions mentioned, he has little knowledge about them. Since the statements concerned the relevant records of the mentioned cases, this defendant has nothing to say to that, and does not admit anything.

4. Statements made in paragraph 11 of the suit plaint are also matters of record. The answering defendant submits that the issues framed in all the four pending suits as stated may first and promptly be decidedly by this Hon'ble Court.

5. With reference to paragraph 12 of the suit plaint, it is most respectfully submitted that when the four pending suits were consolidated and the issues have been framed, the same should be decided without any further delay.

6. With regard to paragraph 13 of the plaint, this defendant is also dissatisfied with the order of the District Judge, Faizabad dated 1.2.1986. Since a writ petition against that order is pending in this Hon'ble Court, this answering defendant does not wish to discuss the same. But he simply requests this Hon'ble Court to dispose that pending writ petition simultaneously with the instant suit and other pending suits.

7. With reference to the statements made in the last sentence of paragraph 14 of the suit plaint, this answering defendant wishes to place on record that this defendant considers the mentioned structure as a mosque, popularly known as Babri Masjid, which can not be lawfully removed to make way for a Mandir.

8. With reference to the contents of paras 15 and 16 of the suit plaint, the answering defendant submits that unless the issues in the four pending suits are decided, and unless new issues in the instant Original Suit No. 236 of 1989 are framed and decided, and unless and until ownership is settled and decided by this Hon'ble Court of the land and structures called by the Muslims as Babri Masjid and Ganj-e-Shaheedan Qabristan and by the plaintiffs as Ram Janmsthan, formation of Trust comprising the disputed property is illegal and invalid.

9. With reference to the statements made in paragraph 17 of the Suit plaint, this defendant submits that when the Trust itself is illegal and invalid, making it as defendant No. 21 in this suit is meaningless. Further more such a step is also collusive, inasmuch as plaintiff No. 3 Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwala is one of the Trustees of the Trust, which has been made as defendant no. 21 in it. So, Mr. Agarwala represents both the plaintiffs as well as the defendants. If Lord Ram were really the plaintiff No. 1 such a faux pas would never have committed.

10. With reference to the statements made in paragraph 18, this defendant at the outset wishes to record the fact that he and the Muslims of India have the highest regard for Lord Rama. These sentiments of the Muslims are best reflected in the poem entitled "Ram" composed by the greatest Muslim thinker of India of the present century Allama Dr. Sir Muhammad Iqbal, who has summed up in just one verse of the long poem what Muslims of India think of Shri Ram Chanderji:

Meaning- India is proud of the existence of Ram. The intelligent-sia consider him as the leader of India.

This defendant submits that if Lord Ram himself could help it, he would not have liked his good name to be dragged into this unseemly and undignified controversy. Impleading of the great names of plaintiffs No. 1 and 2 is therefore, unauthorised and unwarranted. Plaintiff No. 3 has no right or authority to make the Deity and Asthan as the Platitiffs No. 1 and 2, as their consent has not been obtained by plaintiff No. 3, and the latter has not been authorised or appointed by plaintiffs No. 1 and 2 to act on their behalf. Politicians and communal minded fundamentalists have set up plaintiff no. 3 to file this frivolous suit in the name of the Asthan and Bhagwan Sri Rama to serve their own narrow political and selfish ends. The suit plaint filed asserts that "The plaintiffs above-named beg to state as under", and a number of incorrect statements based on ignorance of facts and law have been made thereafter. Had Lord Ram been really the plaintiff, such incorrect and ignorant statements would not have been made. In fact Lord Ram would not have subordinated himself, the way his devotee has done him.

11. The claim in paragraph 19 of the suit plaint that "the premises in dispute is the place where Maryada Purshottam Sri Ram Chanderji Maharaj was born" is denied and contested. This defendant submits that only since 22 December, 1949, about 40 years ago, such a belief has come into existence. If any documentary or recorded evidence is produced by the plaintiff No. 3 establishing beyond doubt that the present belief existed before 22.12.1949 also, this defendant will surrender all his opposition.

12. In this connection, this defendant further submits that when the Babri Masjid was being constructed in 1528 A.D. No such belief existed in Ayodhya, or elsewhere that the place where the mosque was being built was Ram Janam Bhoomi. Goswami Sant Tulsidas, the great biographer of Lord Ram was alive then, and wrote his epic biography "Ram Charitra Manas" about the year 1558 A.D., but did not complain that Babri Masjid was built on Ram Janam Asthan. The book Ram Charitra Manas is a public document.

In an earlier period, Valmiki wrote perhaps the first Ramayana. He also did not identify the presently contentious spot as Ram Janam Asthan.

In none of the several Ramayanas in several languages, the said contentious spot has been mentioned as the place of birth of Lord Ram.

13. Statements made in paragraphs 20 and 21 of the suit plaint are irrelevant to the issues in the suit, and are based on intricacies of philosophy and theology.

14. Religious sentiments of plaintiff No. 3 contained in para 22 of the suit plaint are respected but the following passage in it is strongly contested:

> "The place is a deity. It has existed in this immovable form through the ages, and has ever been a juridical person. ..... Thus Asthan Sri Rama Janama Bhumi is an indestructible and immovable Deity who has continued to exist throughout the ages."

Fact of the whole matter is that idea of Ram Janmsthan was first floated by British East India Company's agents in 1855 in order to destabilize the regime of this Defendant's forebear, the King of the realm Wajid Ali Shah. At that time a spot outside the structures of the Babri Masjid, in a corner of the courtyard was claimed as Ram Janam Asthan. But the King settled the dispute by partitioning out the plot 17 ft. x 12 ft. naming it as Ram Chabutra and by giving it to the Hindus to do "paats" of Ramayana, peace was then restored.

Again, for the first time on 22.12.1949 the Ram Janm Asthan claim

was shifted from Ram Chabutra to right inside the mosque just beneath the main large dome of the Babri Masjid.

Earlier than 1855, the undisputed Ram Janm Asthan was the old Janam Asthan Sita Rasoi Mandir across the street on a mound facing the Babri Masjid.

All the above mentioned three Ram Janam Asthans are now believed to be Lord Rama's probable places of birth, viz. (i) inside the Babri Masjid beneath the main dome since 1949, (ii) at Ram Chabutra in the courtyard of the Babri Masjid since 1855, (iii) at the old Ram Janam Asthan Mandir where Sita Rasoi is also situated, and whose present Mahant is Harihar Das, aged over 100 years.

15. That the statements made in the first two sentences of paragraph No. 23 of the plaint are the most important, and all Muslims of India are willing to make that as the issue and settle the dispute one way or other at this. Paragraph No. 23 opens thus:

"That the books of history and public records of unimpeachable anthenticity establish indisputably that there was an ancient temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time of Sri Rama Janam Bhumi Ayodhya. That Temple was destroyed partly and an attempt was made to raise a mosque thereat by the force of arms, by Mir Baqia commander of Babar's hordes."

The plaintiff No. 3 Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwal, in a booklet named "Sri Rama Janam Bhumi" published by "Sri Rama Janam Bhumi Mukti Yagna Samiti", 58, Rajendra Nagar, Lucknow, has written at page 2 as follows:-

> "That there was an ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time at Sri Rama Janam Bhumi is a fact of history, which is indisputable, although there is some controversy as to which of the Vikramaditya resurrected the place and built the magnificent Temple."

In paragraph No. 23 of the suit plaint there is a reference to 1928 Edition of the Fyzabad Gazetteer published by the then British Government in Uttar Pradesh, wherein at page 179 there are stories of Moghul Emperor Babar coming to Ayodhya, halting there for a week, destroying the ancient temple at Janamsthan, and building the Babri Mosque on its site the

materials of the old destroyed Mandir. But it is a well-known fact of history that Emperor Babar never came to Ayodhya. And that the Babri Mosque was built by Mir Baqi and not by Babar has been admitted in the suit plaint itself. Further more, Babar in his Babar-Nama, while recording his daily diary, has made no mention of visiting Ayodhya, destroying Mandir or building Mosque there, although in other pages of Babarnama many things adverse are also mentioned.

But the Fyzabad Gazetteer of 1877, this Defendant submits, does not contain any mention of destruction of any Mandir and building of Babri or any Masjid on the Mandir land. Of the two Gazetteers , the one contemporary and more near to the date concerned will have to be relied on.

District Gazetteers of the British Government, as is well known, were no works of history. They only reflected the policy of the alien Government to divide the vast population of India by creating conflicts such as the present one, and to perpetuate the minority rule of the foreign imperialist power. This defendant submits that all the aforesaid and other conflicting facts need to be investigated by this Hon'ble Court or by a Commission of Experts of history and archaeology to arrive at the truth.

However, after all said and done, it is most respectfully submitted that if only this claim is proved that a Mandir was demolished and Babri Masjid was built on the Mandir land, this defendant and all other Muslims will gladly demolish and shift the mosque, and return the land for building of the Mandir thereon.

But if this is not a fact, the Babri Masjid must in all fairness be returned to Muslims.

In this connection, the following quotation of Swami Swaroopananda Saraswati, the Shankeracharya of Dwarka Peeth, and published in the national newspaper on 14th May, 1987, is being reproduced below from Qaomi Awaz-Urdu Daily of Lucknow:

"CONDITION FOR RETURN OF BABRI MASJID TO MUSLIMS:

Pune (Maharashtra) 13 May-

Jagadguru Shankaracharyya Swaroppananda Saraswati has proposed that to resolve the Ram Janam Bhumi Babri Masjid tangle an Authority should be constituted.

www.vadaprativada.com

Addressing a gathering of the All India Virodhman Asthan Kwasi Jain Shraman Sangh here yesterday he said that if it is proved that Moghul Emperor Babar got the mosque constructed after demolishing Mandir, then surely the Hindus should get the Mandir. But if it is found that Hindu Administrators made the Mandir after destroying the mosque, then the place will have to be made over to Muslims."

In this connection, the celebrated Muslim historian and scholar Maulana Syed Sabahuddin Abdur Rahman (since expired) in his well-known treatise "BABRI MASJID" wrote at page 5 at the very beginning of his preface thus: (translation from Urdu).

"On behalf of Muslims I also have a right to say that if it is proved that Babri Masjid has been built after demolishing Ram Janam Bhoomi Mandir on its place, then such a mosque if built on such an usurped land deserves to be destroyed. No theologean or Aalim can give Fatwa to hold Namaz in it."

In the monumental theological work Fatawa-e-Alamgiri, volume 6 page 214, the following is the ruling: (translation).

"It is not permissible to build mosque on unlawfully acquired land. There may be many forms of unlawful acquisition. For instance, if some people forcibly take somebody's house (or land) and build a mosque or even Jama Masjid on it, then Namaz in such a mosque will be against Shariat."

Other assertions made in paragraph 23 of the Plaint, not specifically dealt with above, are contested and denied.

16. Parts of the contents of paragraph 24 of the suit plaint have been answered in para 15 above. This defendant submits that plaintiff No. 3 is not competent to interpret Koran, Islamic Shariat, and Islamic custom and practices which he has tried to do in sub-paragraphs A, B, C, D, E, F and G of the paragraph 24. The interpretations given are strongly contested. The contentions in the suit plaint in this regard are wholly irrelevant with the points at issue. This defendant states:

(A) That Emperor Babar or Mir Baqi did not destroy or demolish any Mandir.

(B) Emperor Babar or his commander Mir Baqi did not construct the mosque on the land of or on the ruins of any Mandir. Mir Baqi

www.vadaprativada.com

built the Babri Masjid on vacant land.

(C ) Sanctity of Babri Mosque was not affected by the creation of Ram Chabutra on the courtyard, or by the mosque being surrounded by Mandirs.

(D) There is no tenet of Islam against existence of a mosque in a noisy place, or in a non-Muslim locality.

(E) Minaret is no essential part of a mosque.

(F) Non-existence of a water reservoir in it does not make a Mosque as no mosque.

Finally speaking, if it is not a mosque how it is claimed that mosque was built after destroying the Mandir.

17. The statements made in paragraph 25 of the suit plaint are based on imagination, and are contested.

18. Statements made in paragraph 26 of the Suit Plaint are mostly irrelevant and are matters of record, the same are not admitted. Namaz particularly Friday Namaz used to be regularly held in the Babri Masjid, and the last Namaz was held on 22.12.1949. The Imam, who led the prayers regularly till 22.12.1949, was Maulana Haji Abdul Gaffar and he is alive and lives at Mohalla Qaziana, Ayodhya, District Faizabad. While the Plaintiffs have denied here that there was a Mutawalli, they have admitted in paragraph 32 of the plaint that defendant no. 23 was the Mutawalli of the Babri Masjid and that is why he has been made defendant. This itself shows that Lord Rama could not have been the Plaintiff of this Suit.

19. That the statements made in paragraph 27 of the suit plaint are incorrect. What actually happened on the night between 22.23 December, 1949 is best narrated by the then Deputy Commissioner of Faizabad himself in an affidavit filed by him on behalf of the State, being Defendant No. 6 in Regular Suit No. 25 of 1950. Xerox copy of relevant portion of the said Affidavit is being made Annexure 'A' hereto. Destruction of the graveyard, done by the plaintiff No. 3's party was an act of sacrilege and was illegal. The same was done after 23.12.1949. In this connection attention is invited of your Lordships to the Thana Diary entry made by the constable who was on beat duty on the said night between 22.-23 December, 1949, which is also in the records of Regular Suit No. 25 of 1950, which is before your

Lordships in this amalgamated hearing.

20. That as regards the contents of para 28 of the Suit Plaint, it is submitted that under the Constitution of Secular India religious places of all the communities ought to be protected by the Government, and the action of its officers for the protection of Babri Masjid and for preventing any breach of peace was fully justified. The Objection of the Plaintiff to this rule of law is unfortunate.

21. With reference to the statements contained in paragraph 29 of the Suit Plaint, it is submitted that the contents therein are imaginary and speculative and are not based on law. The claim of adverse possession in respect of religious places like Babri Masjid is unjustified and illegal. Moreover, the adverse possession if any was always with guilty knowledge, and was malafide.

22. That as regards the contents of paragraph 30 the answering defendant believes that the Hindu population of India has always been by and large secular, otherwise India would have been a Hindu Dharmic State. The infinitely small minority amongst Hindus, to which group the plaintiff no. 3 and the party of which he is the Vice-President namely the Vishwa Hindu Parishad belong, have little or no voice in the country. In last 42 years after India gained freedom from foreign rule, the plaintiff no. 3 and his like-minded political parties have never been able to win more than 1 or 2 percent of the total number of seats in the Indian Parliament thereby exposing their following in the country. The answering defendant believes that the Hindu public and devotees who have happily co-existed in Ayodhya with the Babri Masjid for over 400 years since its construction in 1528 will never commit an act of Adharma by demolishing the Babri Masjid and constructing a Mandir over it by illegal means as threatened by the Plaintiff No. 3 on 30.9.1989, especially when this Hon'ble Court is seized of the matter and an order for status-quo is in force. The threats contained in paragraph No. 30 amount, it is most respectfully submitted, to contempt of Court.

23. That the views contained in para 31 of the Suit Plaint are misconceived. The present suit is nothing but a guise to cover the short comings of the other original suits, and is bound to create more disputes than solve them. Contrary to what have been asserted in the plaint, the fact is that there are no differences between Shia and Sunni sects of Muslims in India and elsewhere so far as the protection of mosques, including the Babri mosque, is concerned.

24. That as regards paragraph 32 of the Suit Plaint, this Defendant states that the Babri Masjid was built by Mir Baqi, a Shia Muslim and the Mutawalliship devolved upon his descendants since inception in 1528 without break. But both Shia and Sunni Muslims used to offer Namaz in the Babri Masjid, as indeed in all Shia managed mosques all over the world, in their own different ways. Sunni Muslims however were permitted by the Shia Mutawalli to form their own daily Jamaat in the Babri Masjid since about 1925, because by then the Shia population in Ayodhya had dwindled. The Sunni Imam Maulana Haji Abdul Gaffar was the last Imam of Babri Masjid, who led the last Namaz on 22.12.1949.

25. That as regards paragraph 33 of Suit Plaint, since every mosque is a public property and all Muslims regardless of their sect are its beneficiaries, every member of the Muslim community has right to represent the case of a mosque. Attempt of the Plaintiff No. 3 to drive a wedge between Shias and Sunnis in this Hon'ble Court in the instant proceedings is deplored. The Sunni Central Waqf Board, Defendant No. 4, and its co-defendants No. 5 and 6, being the present three plaintiffs in Suit No. 12 of 1961 have the full support of this answering defendant as President All India Shia Conference in their just struggle for the recovery of Babri Masjid. In fact this is the reason no Shia Muslim, including the Shia Mutawalli of Babri Masjid, or the Shia Central Waqf Board or All India Shia Conference has ever opposed or contested the claim of Plaintiffs in Suit No. 12 of 1961. The possession of the Babri Masjid and the Qabristan or Ganj-e-Shahidan adjoining that mosque on the mosque land, which is with the Court Receiver and under an order of Status-quo of this Hon'ble Court, should not be interfered with by the Plaintiffs' party.

26. That as regards the contents of paragraphs 34 and 35 of the Suit Plaint, the answering defendant being a representative of the Shia Muslims of India is deadly against any form of sacriligious actions. He is of the firm view that no place of worship of any religion should be destroyed and no place of worship should be constructed on the ruins of the destroyed one. The

answering defendant firmly believes that the Babri Masjid was certainly not built after destroying the Vikramaditya Mandir or any temple. Yet, at the same time if it is unequivocally proved in this Hon'ble Court in the light of historical archaeological and expert scientific evidence that the Babri Masjid was really built after demolishing any Mandir on the Mandir land, only then this defendant will withdraw his opposition.

As a further concession to the Plaintiff No. 3 and to the Hindu community of India whose religious sentiments the said Plaintiff and his party are trying to wrongly arouse since last 3 years, this Defendant is prepared to withdraw his opposition also if it is unequivocally proved, in this Hon'ble Court that the belief, of Ram Janam Asthan being at the presently claimed spot inside the Babri Masjid, existed from before the Babri Masjid was built, existed from before the Babri Masjid was built. And that the Babri Masjid was knowingly built on the Ram Janam Asthan spot.

27. Regarding paragraph 36 of the Suit Plaint, it is submitted that no cause of action accrues to the plaintiffs.

28. With regard to paragraph 38 of the Suit Plaint, this Defendant submits that the suit has been under-valued.

www.vadaprativada.com

29. That as regards the contents of paragraph 39 of the Suit Plaint, this Defendant submits that the Plaintiffs have made out no case, and are not entitled to any relief, and the suit is liable to be dismissed.

30. It is irrelevant if the disputed Waqf is Sunnni or Shia. In either case ownership of the Waqf vests in almighty Allah.

31. Once it is admitted that a mosque was built hundreds of years ago and was used as such it became Waqf by user, irrespective of the fact whether or not legal formalities for creating a Waqf were observed.

32. The Suit is definitely barred by limitation.

33. The claim is also barred by the principle of estoppel.

O.O.SUIT NO. 5 OF 1989

Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman & others ..... Plaintiffs

Vs.

Rajendra Singh & others ..... Defendants

WRITTEN STATEMENT UNDER ORDER VIII RULE 1 OF C.P.C. ON BEHALF OF DEFENDANT NO. 25.

1. That the contents of para 1 of the plaint are denied. Neither the plaintiff No. 1 nor plaintiff no. 2 are the deities within the meaning of Hindu Law nor they are juristic person to file the suit. Remaining contents of para are also denied. Kindly see Addl. Pleas.

2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are denied. The area and the places indicated in Annexures No. 1, 2 and 3 of the plaint are neither Ram Janam Bhoomi nor Ram Janam Asthan. However, it is evident that there exists a Mosque known as Babri Masjid, the existence of this mosque is established by record, Historic, Judicial and Revenue. The filing of the suit no. 2 of 1950 are not denied. See the Addl. Pleas.

3. That in reply to the contents of para 3 of the plaint, only the filing of the suit No. 2 of 1950 is admitted but not the contents of the plaint of the said suit. The remaining contents of para under reply are denied. Kindly see Addl. Pleas.

4. That in reply to the contents of para 4 of the plaint it may be pointed out that the relief claimed in suit no. 2 of 1950 is wholly misconceived and legally not

5. That in reply to the contents of para 5 of the plaint the filing of suit no. 25 of 1950 is admitted but the contents of the plaint of the said suit are denied. Remaining contents of the para under reply are also denied.

6. That in reply to the contents of para 6 of the plaint the filing of suit No. 26 of 1959 is admitted while the allegations of the plaint of the said suit are denied. The initiation of the proceeding under Sec. 145 Cr.P.C. and the appointment of the receiver, which still continue is also not denied. However, remaining contents of para under reply are denied. See Addl.

Pleas.

7. That in reply to the contents of para 7 of the plaint, the suit No. 12 of 1961 including its contents are admitted, the same may be decreed.

8. That in reply to the contents of para 8 of the plaint, it may be pointed out that the order dated 8th august, 1962 was rightly passed. Remaining contents of para under reply are not admitted as framed.

9. That in reply to the contents of para 9 of the plaint, it may be pointed out that the averments related to the judicial record, and hence are not denied.

10. That in reply to the contents of para 10 of the plaint it may be pointed out that at the time of granting of the said injunction the answering defendant was not a party in suit no. 2 of 1950. The said suit was also not in the representative capacity. Hence the answering defendant is not bound by the said interim injunction. The answering defendant is advised to state that the interim injunction order dated 16.1.1950 as modified on 19.1.1950 was also beyond the scope of suit No. 2 of 1950. Remaining contents of the para under reply are also denied.

11. That in reply to the contents of para 11 of the plaint it may be pointed out that Pooja etc. even in the restricted way, was wrongly permitted. However, the appointment of receiver is not disputed.

12. That the contents of para 12 of the plaint are denied. The averments of para under reply, as regards performing religious ceremonies during the pendency of the suit is also incorrect and denied. See Addl. Pleas.

13. That the contents of para 13 of the plaint are not admitted as framed, answering defendant is advised to state that the order of District Judge dated 1.2..1986 is wholly illegal and is also void being in utter violation of the principles of natural justice. However, the said order has been challenged in two writ petitions, vide W.P. No. 746/86 and writ petition No. 3106 of 1986.

14. That the contents of para 14 of the plaint are denied. There is no deity in the premises in dispute within the meaning and concept of Hindu Law and as such there is no question of devotees etc. The averments pertaining to the money received by the receiver are denied for want of definite knowledge.

15. That the contents of para 15 of the plaint are denied. There is no question of construction of any temple over the site in question. Answering

defendant and his co-religionist have a right to resist any such attempt. The premises is a mosque and muslims have a right to offer namaz in it. Neither Jagadaguru has any right or locus in the matter and nor he can execute any deed legally in respect of the premises in question. The answering defendant is not aware of the religious sect of the so called vairagies of Ayodhya.

16. That in view of the submissions made above the contents of para 16 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The so called trust deed is a nullity. It has no legal basis and the same has no relevance in the present controversy.

17. That the contents of para 17 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The so called 'Nyas' has no locus in the matter, nor it can be a party to any suit.

18. That the contents of para 18 of the plaint are vehemently denied. No other suit is needed. The present suit is also barred by limitation. The averments of the para under reply have been made with a malafide intention by which the plaintiff no. 3 only wants to boost his own status, while he has no locus; neither there is any deity having a juristic personality (or juristic person) and nor the plaintiff No. 3 is a next friend of any deity and the only persons who have a right to worship in the premises in dispute, i.e. the mosque, are the muslims.

19. That the contents of para 19 of the plaint are vehemently denied. There is no evidence, historic or otherwise, to indicate that Sri Ram Chandra ji was born there.

20. That the contents of para 20 of the plaint are vehemently denied. As there is no deity, there is no question of any devotee and there is no question of any asthan also. It is an innovation even in Hindu law; the answering defendant is advised to state that the so called asthan can not be treated as a juristic person and as such the suit is not maintainable on this count also. Kindly see addl. pleas.

21. That the contents of para 21 of the plaint are vehemently denied, the concepts of the varous schools of thought of Hindu religion are not relevant to the controversy before this Hon'ble Court.

22. That the contents of para 22 of the plaint are denied, various philosophies, fictions and concepts of Hindu religion are not relevant for the controversy to be adjudicated in the 4 suits referred to above.

23. That the contents of para 23 of the plaint are denied. The narration of

history in the plaint is false and baseless. No authentic book of history has been referred in the plaint. The premises has always been a mosque since its construction in sixteenth century, it has always been used by the muslims for offering namaz and for no other purpose. Remark in the gazette is not an authentic record of history. It is only a generalised observation, the Gazette also does not make any reference of any authentic history or record. The pillars are not of Kasauti. However, it is not relevant as the fact remains that it is a mosque, and has always been used as mosque and it is wholly incorrect that anybody else other than muslims worshipped in the building which is called Babri Masjid. The narration of history by the plaintiff is baseless and false. There is no evidence of the demolition of any temple for the construction of this mosque.

24. That the contents of para 24 of the plaint are vehemently denied, the quotation from Holy Quran has been incorrectly quoted and the same is out of context. There is no evidence of demolition of any temple. The contents of sub-paras are also denied. On the basis of judicial records and other evidence, it is clear that the premises in question has always been a mosque in which muslims had been offering regular namaz up to 22nd December, 1949. No specific shape or specific design has been prescribed for the mosque in Islam. The shapes and architectural designs of the mosque vary in different parts of the world and even in India. The Ganj-e-Shahidan also belongs to muslims and vests in God Almighty.

25. That the contents of para 25 of the plaint are denied. The building has always been a mosque.

26. That the contents of para 26 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The building known as Babri Masjid has always been in use as a mosque and the muslims have offered namaz in it since its construction till 22nd December, 1949. some of those who offered Namaz in it are still available. Some part of the mosque was damaged in the communal riot of 1934 and the same was repaired soon thereafter. The threat contained in the para under reply is most unwarranted. There is no dispute between Shias and Sunnis over the mosque in question. Mosque is vested in almighty and every Muslim (Shias or Sunnis) have the right to offer Namaz in any Masjid. The averments in the para under reply are wholly incorrect and false.

28. That the contents of para 28 of the plaint are vehemently denied. It is incorrect that muslims do not live nearby. They do live there but the muslims were not in a position to prevent the aforesaid illegal act done with the connivance of the local administration. The muslims acted as the law abiding citizens and pursued the legal remedy available to them but no party can be permitted to take benefit of the delay caused in a Court of law. Here it may also be pointed out that the rights of the muslims to offer namaz should have been protected but the machinery of law failed in it. Only the muslims still have the right to offer namaz in the building and no other community has any right in the said building. The proceedings u/s 145 Cr.P.C have not been dropped but after the filing of the suits the proceedings u/s 145 Cr.P.C. were stopped and consigned to record.

29. That in view of the submissions made in the foregoing paragraphs the contents of para 29 of the plaint are denied. Neither there is any deity and nor there could be any impleadment of it. Plaintiff no. 3 also has no locus standi and so also plaintiffs no. 1 and 2.

30. That the contents of para 30 of the plaint are denied. There is no question of any devotee, and the present campaign and proclamation made in the plaint has nothing to do with the struggle for freedom of the country. There is no question of construction of any temple there such an attempt will be resisted, there is no legal right for the construction of temple on the site in question. The assertion in the para under reply are most unwarranted, amount to incitement of an offence, and also amount to contempt, by way of undermining the authority of this Hon'ble Court as, it may be pointed out that the interim order passed by this Hon'ble Court on 3.2.1986 in W.P. 746 of 1986 for maintaining status quo, is still in operation.

31. That the contents of para 31 of the plaint are denied. As there is no deity there is no question of its next friend and a judicial decision will be binding upon all. Disregard of the Rule of law pleaded in the plaint is regretted.

32. That the contents of para 32 of the plaint are denied. The matter has already been adjudicated.

33. That the contents of para 33 of the plaint are denied. It may be pointed out that the entire complex belongs to Waqf Babri Masjid, the existence of which cannot be denied.

34. That the contents of para 34 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The premises has always been a mosque and it has been used as such and no one can remove the structure.

35. That no doubt that the muslims fear the God, other contents of para 35 of the plaint are denied. None of the plaintiff has any status to maintain the suit.

36. That the contents of para 36 of the plaint are denied. Plaintiff has no cause of action including the plaintiff no. 3. The cause of action, if any, had accrued in 1950.

37. That the contents of para 37 of the plaint need no reply.

38. That the contents of para 38 of the plaint are denied, the contents of para 38 of plaint are vague and property in suit has not been properly valued.

39. That the contents of para 39 of the plaint are denied, the plaintiffs are not entitled to get any relief and the suit is liable to be dismissed with special costs.

ADDITIONAL PLEAS

40. That on behalf of the All India Shia Conference it may be pointed out that the premises in question always has been mosque and it is a mosque.

41. That in the night of 22/23rd December, 1949 certain persons forcibly entered into the mosque and put an idol in the same; against them an F.I.R. was lodged in the Police Station, Ayodhya in the morning of 23rd of December, 1949. A case under Section 448, 147, 148 I.P.C. etc. was registered, on the basis of that F.I.R. the proceedings under Section 145 were taken and the premises was attached. A receiver was appointed in the proceedings under section 145 of the Cr.P.C. later that arrangement was also maintained by the Civil Court in the Civil suits. The said premises is still under the control of the receiver and in other words the same is under the control of the Court. The premises when ever released must go to the Muslims to be used as a mosque. And no one has any right in respect of this premises except Muslims.

42. That it may also be pointed out that the suit is not maintainable. There is no Hindu deity as juristic person in relation to the premises in question nor there is any Hindu deity with the name and style of Asthan Sri Ram Janam Bhumi Ayodhya. It may also be pointed out that Sri Deoki Nandan Agarwal has no nexus with the premises in question nor he has any managerial and beneficial interest. He cannot be next friend to the deity. Hence the suit is not maintainable.

In the early hours of December, 23, 1949 the idol of Bhagwan Sri Ram Lala, which was already on Ram Chabutra was transferred to the place where he presently sits, that is, under the central dome of the disputed building. I was not personally present at that time at the p[lace. This information was conveyed to me by Paramhans Ram Chandra Das of Digamber Akhara. This transfer of the idol was done by Paramhans Ram Chandra Das and Baba Abhi Ram Das and certain other persons whose name I do not remember at the moment. I will have to look into the record to give their names.

www.vadaprativada.com

The idol is Chal Vigraha (moveable idol).

Paramhans Ram Chandra Das had informed me that all the due ceremonies were performed when the idol was transferred.

Presently, the property in suit is bounded on three sides by a wall constructed by the State Government recently and on the north by public road.

The entire area enclosed by the aforesaid wall belongs to the deity.

Suit for removal from management and charge of Temple Janma Bhoomi and delivery of the same.

www.vadapprativada.com

1. That there exists in Ayodhya, since the days of Yore an ancient Math or Akhara of Ramanandi Varagis called Nirmohis with its seat at Ramghat known as Nirmohi Akhara, the plaintiff no.1, which is a religious establishment of a public character, whereof the plaintiff no.2 is the present head as its Mahant and Sarbrahkar.

2. That Janma Asthan now commonly known as Janma Bhumi, the birth place of Lord Ram Chandra, situate in Ayodhya belongs and has always belonged to the plaintiff no.1 who through its reigning Mahant and Sarbrahkar has ever since been managing it and receiving offerings made there at in form of money, sweets, flowers and fruits and other articles and things.

3. That the said Asthan of Janma Bhumi is of ancient antiquity and has been existing since before the living memory of man and lies within the boundaries shown by letters A.B.C.D. in the sketch map appended hereto within which stands the temple building of Janma Bhumi marked by letters E.F.G.K P N M L E and the building denoted by letters E F G H I J K L E is the main temple of Janma Bhumi wherein is installed the idol of Lord Ram Chandra with Lakshmanji, Hanumanji and Saligramji.

4. That the said temple has ever since been in the possession of the plaintiff no.1 and none others but Hindus have ever since been allowed to enter or worship therein and offerings made there which have been in form of money, sweets, flowers and fruits and other articles and things have always been received by the plaintifs through their pujaris.

Para 4A-XI "That before the Judgment of the Writ Petition of 11.12.92 on 6th Dec. 1992 the Temples of Nirmohi Akhara were also demolished by some miscreants who had no religion caste or creed.

Para 4A-XII. "The main temple was demolished on 6th Dec. 1992".

Para 10 (Last) "and further cause of action against defendants 1 to 5 arises during pendency of the suit when the property and temples of plaintiff was demolished on 6th Dec. 1992 by same miscreants within the Jurisdiction of this Court." amended and added to plaint vide Court's order dt. 25.5.95 Sd./- 30.5.95

Para 4A. That Nirmohi Akhara plaintiff is the Panchyati Math of Ram Nandi sect. of Vairagies and as such is a religious denomination following its own religious faith and pursuit according to its own custom prevalent in Vairagies sect of Sadhus. The customs of Akhara Nirmohi have redued in writing on 19.3.1949 by Reg. deed.

Para 4B That plaintiff Nirmohi Akhara owns several temples in it and manages all of such temples through Panches and Mahant's of Akhrara. The whole temples and properties vest in Akhara i.e. plaintiff. The plaintiff being a Panchyati Math acts on democratic pattern. The management and right to management of all temples of Akhrara vest absolutely with Panches of Akhara and Mahant

5. That no Mohammadan could or ever did enter in the said temple building. But even if it be attempted to be proved that any Mohammadan ever entered it, which would be totally wrong and is denied by the plaintiffs, no Mohammadan has ever been allowed to enter it or has even attempted to enter it at least ever since the year 1934.

6. That in the year 1950, the City magistrate, Faizabad, the defendant No.4 without any lawful cause and with the active connivance of defendant no.2,3 and 5 and under the wrong persuasion of defendants nos.6 to 8 who claim to represent the Muslim community, attached the main temple shown by letters E F G H I J K L E in the said sketch map with all the articles mentioned in list 'A' appended hereto in a proceeding u/s 145 Cr.P.C. and placed the said temple and the articles under the charge of defendant no.1 as receiver on 5.1.1950.

7. That the plaintiffs have been wrongfully deprived of their management and charge of the said temple and have ever since the said wrongful attachment been waiting for the dropping of the proceedings u/s 145 Cr.P.C. but the same are unduly prolonged and lingered with the connivance of all the defendants and since no immediate termination of the same seems to be in sight and since the defendant no.4 refuses in connivance with other defendants to hand over charge and amendment of the temple to the plaintiffs from the hands of the receiver, the institution of the present suit has become inevitable.

8. That the plaintiffs are entitled that the management and charge of the said temple be delivered to the plaintiff no.1 through the plaintiff no.2 the former's mahant and Sarbarhrahkar.

9. That the defendants 6 to 8 claim to be the representatives of the Muslim Community which has got itself interested in the subject-matter of the suit in not getting the charge and management of the temple delivered to the plaintiffs and are exercising undue influence on the defendants 1 to 5. They are sued in their representative capacity on behalf of the entire Muslim community with the permission of the court.

10. That the cause of action for the suit arose within the jurisdiction of this Hon'ble Court on 5.1.50 on the defendant no.4 illegally taking over the management and charge of the temple with the said articles and entrusting it to the said receiver, the defendant no.1.

11. That the relief claimed by the plaintiffs is incapable of valuation the valuation for the purpose of jurisdiction is fixed at Rs.10,000/- and court fee of Rs.100/- is paid under schedule II Article 17 (6) of the Court fees Act.

12. That the notice of the suit as required by sec.80 C.P.C. has been given to the defendants 1 to 5 which was delivered to them between 6.10.59 and 12.10.59 and which has been replied by them through the defendant no.3 intimating their decision to defend the present suit.

13. That the permission of the court to file the suit against the defendants 6 to 8 on behalf of the themselves and all other members of the Muslim community has been obtained under order 1 rule 8 C.P.C.

1. Wherefore the plaintiffs pray for the following reliefs:-

(a) A decree be passed in favour of the plaintiffs against the defendants for removal of the defendant no.1 from the management and charge of the said temple of Janma Bhoomi and for delivering the same to the plaintiff through its Mahant and Sarbarhrahkar Mahant Jagannath Das. amended vide Hon'ble Court's order dt. 14.5.90 Sd./-

Additional Written Statement of Defendant No.9 (U.P. Sunni Central Board of Wakf).

The Defendant No.9 begs to submit as under:-

1. That the contents of para 4-A of the amended plaint are denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the Plaintiff is put to strict proof of the averments of the para under reply.

www.vadaprativada.com

2. That the contents of para 4-B of the amended plaint are also incorrect, hence denied as stated. The averments of the para under reply are even vague and unspecific and the plaintiff is put to strict proof of the same.

3. That the contents of para 4-G XI are also quite vague and ambiguous and hence are denied as stated. In this respect it is submitted that on 6th December, 1992 the so-called Ram chabutra was demolished alongwith the Babri Masjid by the miscreants collected at the instance of Vishwa Hindu Parishad etc.

4. That in reply to para 4-G XII of the amended plaint it is submitted that on 6th December, 1992 the building of the Mosque was demolished and the same could not be called or alleged to be the Main Temple.

5. That the contents of para 10 of the amended plaint are also denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the averments of the para under reply are quite vague as the plaintiff's suit does not pertain tot he so-called Ram Chabutra hence no cause of action can be said to have arisen to the plaintiff during the pendency of the suit on account of the demolition of the said Chabutra.

6. That in reply to the said amended portion of the plaint averments of the written statement of the answering defendant are also reiterated and it is further submitted that amendments made in the plaint are quite vague and ambiguous and the same are liable to be deleted.

WRITTEN STATEMENT UNDER ORDER VIII RULE I C.P.C. IN OTHER ORIGINAL SUIT NO.3 OF 1989

Nirmohi Aakhada etc. ……..Plaintiffs

Versus

Baboo Priya Dutt Ram & others ……..Defendants

Written Statement of the Defendant Umesh chandra Pandey

1. That the contents of para 1 of the plaint are not admitted. The plaintiff no.2, Mahant Raghu Nath Das, died and there has been no proper substitution in his place.

2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are denied. However, it is submitted that the Janma & Asthan is a holy place of worship and belongs to the deity of Bhagwan SHRI RAM LALLA VIRAJMAN there. It never belonged to and could not have belonged to the plaintiff no.1. It is denied that the plaintiff no.1 ever managed it.

3. That the contents of para 3 of the plaint, as written are denied. The holy JANMA ASTHAN OR JANMA BHUMI is actually a very very old temple, whereas the plaintiff AKHADA on the other hand is an institution and owes its existence for no longer than two hundred years. The correctness of the sketch map and the boundaries of the temple with reference to the map are not disputed. The main presiding deity of the temple is BHAGWAN SHRI RAM, although there are several other idols of other deities, termed as RAM DARBAR and are worshiped. Besides, there are other symbols, such as, 'CHARAN', SITA RASOI' etc. through whom the deity of BHAGWAN SHRI RAM therein is worshiped at SHRI RAM JANMA BHUMI, in addition to the ASTHAN OF SHRI RAM JANMA BHUMI, which by itself is a deity and worshiped as such.

4. That the contents of para 4 of the plaint are not admitted. A Hindu Temple is deemed to be possessed and owned by a deity. The principal deity of SHRI RAM JANMA BHUMI is BHAGWAN SHRI RAM. Any offerings must have been received by the Manager of the same from time.

5. That the contents of para 5 of the plaint are not admitted in the form they have been pleaded. Although it is made to appear that in he first war of independence in the year 1857 A.D., the British, to divide the Hindus and Muslims, mala fide acted by dividing the said ASTHAN by creating an inner enclosure and describing the boundary within the inner enclosure as a mosque but no Muslim who was a true Muslim, would appear to have frequented it for offering his prayer as the same is prohibited by the SHARIYAT. Moreover even ALAMGIR (EMPEROR AURANGZED) issued a mandate, known as FATWA-E-ALAMGIRI which clearly prohibits the offering of prayer by Muslim at such places. More so the KASAUTI pillars and the carvings of Gods and Goddesses thereon will clearly show that this place could not be used by a true Muslim for offering his prayers therein. It will also be seen that the place wrongly alleged as mosque virtually stood land-locked by Hindu Temple, wherein there was the worship of the deity going on. Entry to this inner enclosure was also obstructed.

The British tried to set up the descendents of MIR BAQI, a Shiya Muslim, as the MUTWALLI, but he denied the TAULLAT and never looked after the disputed place in any capacity, what to say of looking after as a MUTWALLI thereof.

6. That the contents of para 6 of the plaint are denied. The building was attached and the Receiver appointed by the order dated 29.12.1949 by the court of Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad. In the said proceedings, which was under Section 145 Cr.P.C. (As it then stood), the Muslims also joined. all those Muslim gentlemen, who have been arrayed as defendant Nos.6 to 8 in the suit, have died. The real and legal representatives of the defendant Nos.6 to 8 have not been properly brought on record, in accordance with the provisions of law.

In view of the facts stated hereinabove, the cause of action for the present suit, does not arise. The suit stands abated completely on the death of the last one of the defendants No.6 to 8, which occurred many years ago. The defendant Nos.3,4 and 5 to the suit are the mere posts and offices and are not juristic persons. The suit against them does not lie. So far as the defendant No.2 is concerned, it has not been impleaded in accordance with the provisions of law.

7. That the contents of para 7 of the plaint are not admitted. The plaintiff is not entitled to file the suit which apparently is beyond the period of limitation prescribed therefor in accordance with the provisions of law. The plaintiffs did not join the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. nor did they file any revision against the order passed by the Additional City Magistrate, in the competent court of law.

8. That the contents of para 8 of the plaint are denied. The plaintiff No.2 died and there is no proper and legal substitution made in the plaint.

9. That the contents of para 9 of the plaint are incorrect and are denied. No Muslim individual came to contest the said case as the representative of the Muslim community. The defendant Nos.6 to 8 were all Sunnis and they could not represent the Shia community of the Mohammedans. As such, it can not be said that the defendants Nos.6 to 8 could or were representing the Muslim community in general.

10. That the contents of para 10 of the plaint are not admitted. On the own showing of the plaintiffs, the cause of action arose in their favour on 5.1.1950, whereas the suit was filed by them in the year 1959. Thus the suit has been filed beyond the prescribed period of limitation. Further the plaintiffs, being not the Manager or the next friend, of the deity, are not entitled to file the suit.

11. That the contents of para 11 of the plaint are not admitted. The suit has not been valued in accordance with the provisions of law and, therefore, the payment of court fees also is not according to the provisions of law.

12. That the contents of para 12 of the plaint are denied for want of proper knowledge.

13. That the contents of para 13 of the plaint are not admitted. Even if any such permission, as mentioned by the plaintiffs, to sue the defendants No.6 to 8 on behalf of themselves and on behalf of all the members of the Muslim community, has been obtained under Order 1 Rule 8 of C.P.C., then it must be illegal and deserves to be recalled.

14. The plaintiffs are not entitled to the reliefs claimed.

ADDITIONAL PLEAS

15. That the suit, as framed, is bad in the eye of law. The defendants No.3 to 5 are mere posts and offices and are not juristic persons. The defendant No.2 has not been properly impleaded as a party to the suit. As such, the plaintiffs' suit is bad for the misjoinder of parties as also for non-joinder of necessary persons as the parties tot he suit.

16. That the plaintiffs' suit is barred by the provisions of Indian Limitation Act, as the same is much beyond the period of limitation prescribed by law.

17. That the plaintiffs had adequate remedies under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure (as it then stood) against the order, Returning Officer passed by the Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad under Section 145 of the Cr.P.C. The plaintiffs, having not availed of the said remedy within the time prescribed therefor and having not filed the suit within limitation prescribed therefor, their suit is liable to be dismissed on that score.

18. That at any rate, the Receiver appointed by the Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad under the provisions of the Section 145 Cr.P.C. having died and subsequently the Receiver having been appointed by the Civil Court in the Civil Suit under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code, the present suit of the plaintiffs in its present form, can not proceed and deserves to be dismissed on this count also.

19. That even if the Receiver, appointed by the Civil Court, is or be impleaded in the suit, then the same is illegal and without jurisdiction.

In this very court another suit the other original suit No.4 of 1989 (Regular Suit No.12 of 1961) is pending, wherein the plaintiffs in this suit are a party. If they have any right or claim for restoration of the property, alleged to be their, they could and can get their relief in the said other Original Suit No.4 of 1989.

20. That the Original Suit No.3 of 1989 (Suit No.26 of 1989) and the other Original Suit No.4 of 1989 (Regular Suit No.12 of 1961) are separate suits with different reliefs claimed and different causes of action. These two suits can not be termed

as the suits having been consolidated together, since the same would amount the misjoinder of causes of action. They can not be tried together.

21. That in view of the facts, stated hereinbefore, the suit (O.O.S.No.3 of 1989) is liable to be tried separately and is liable to be dismissed with costs.

The contents of paras 1 to 14 of the plaint are correct and those of W.S. are wrong and denied.

Para 15. The allegations contained in para 15 of the written statement are totally incorrect and are denied. The property in suit is neither a mosque nor is it known as Babri Mosque, nor was it built by Emperor Babar through Mir Abdul Baqi. Nor was it made wakf. The property in suit is the temple of Janma Bhumi.

www.vadaprativada.com

Para 16. The contents of para 16 of the written statement are totally incorrect and are denied.

Para 17. The contents of para 6 of the written statement are denied. Janma Asthan is a different temple not connected with the temple of Janma Bhumi and with which the plaintiffs have no concern. The temple of Janma Asthan is situated to the north of the temple of Janma Bhumi across the road passing between Janma Bhumi and Janma Asthan. The plaintiffs are not aware of the said suit, if any, filed by any person known as Mahat Raghubar Das as Mahant of Janma Asthan.

Para 18. The contents of para 18 of the written statement are totally wrong and are denied. If any, sketch map be found to have been filed by the said Raghubar Das in the said suit it would be totally false, fictitious and collusive and is not binding on the plaintiffs. The building in suit is nothing else but the temple of Janma Bhumi.

para 19. The contents of para 19 of the written statement are denied.

Para 20. That contents of para 20 of the written statement are pure concoctions are denied.

para 21. The contents of para 21 of the written statement are denied. It was beyond the authority and jurisdiction of the said Chief Commissioner of waqf to declare the temple of Janma Bhumi as a mosque. His decision and declaration to the said effect, if any, is totally null and void. The said notification, if any, is also null and void and of no effect in law. The plaintiffs were never intimated of any proceedings held by the said Chief Commissioner regarding the temple of Janma Bhumi, that is, the building in suit and if any proceedings were conducted secretly and surreptitiously they have no effect in law. The said notification, if any, is neither final nor is it binding on the plaintiffs.

Para 22. The contents of para 22 of the written statement are totally false and are denied. The Muslims were never in possession of the building in suit and the allegation regarding the perfecting of the right of the muslims over the building in question by adverse possession is a pure fiction, concocted for the purposes of the suit.

Para 23. The contents of para 23 of the written statement are totally false. The plaintiffs have always been in peaceful possession of the

Para 24. The contents of para 24 of the written statement are denied. The plaintiffs have ever been in possession of the temple in suit and no question of expiry of the period of limitation arises.

Para 25. The contents of praa 25 of the written statement are denied. Proper notice u/s 80 of the C.P.C. was given to the defendants 1 to 5. The other defendants have no right to take the plea of want of notice to the defendants 1 to 5.

Para 26. The contents of para 26 of the written statement are deliberately false and are denied. The muslim defendants as well as the other defendants and the whole muslim community know that the idol of the deity are installed in the building in suit i.e. in the temple of Janma Bhumi and regular puja of the idol is being performed under the receivership of the defendant no.1. No prayers were ever offered by any muslim in the said building. The suggestion of the defendants that any idol were installed in the suit building stealthily is false and malicious. The said building is not a mosque and the relief asked for is within the competence and jurisdiction of the civil court to grant.

Para 27. The contents of para 27 of the written statement are false, malicious and scandalous. It was the temple of Janma Bhumi which was the subject matter of proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and not any mosque as also admitted by muslims in the said proceeding. It is admitted that the proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. were illegal and were in total denial of justice to and in flagrant invasion on the fundamental rights of the plaintiffs in regard to their management of the said temple. The defendants had no interest in the building in suit and no question of invasion over their rights arises. It is the plaintiffs who have suffered the real loss and who have been deprived of their right of management of the said temple and receiving offerings made thereat.

Para 28. The contents of para 28 of the written statement are totally wrong and are scandalous. The only temple built on the sacred place of the birth of Lord ram Chandra is the Janma Bhumi temple in suit. There is no temple known as temple Janma Asthan as suggested by the defendants built on the place of birth of Lord Ram Chandra. The temple of Janma Asthan which is situate to the north of the temple of Janma Bhumi in suit is a separate temple which is not at all connected with place of birth of Lords Ram Chandra. The defendants seem to exploit the name of the said temple to create a confusion regarding the real place of birth of Lords Ram Chandra. They should point out clearly by correct location as to which is the Janma Asthan Temple mentioned in this para of their written statement. The idols of "Ram Chandra Ji and others" are installed in all the Hindu temples all the world over. The emphasis of communal bias alleged in the written statement is misplaced. The plaintiffs having been aggrieved by the invasion through the illegal proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. upon their fundamental rights of managing their own temple have taken recourse to the court of law in defence of their own legal right. it is the said defendants who supported and instigated by their own fanatic friends are advancing a false and a preposterous claim to the temple of Janma Bhumi by blaspheming it with the name of Babari Masjid. The plaintiffs claim has no relation with any election and to characterise the plaintiff's claim as an attempt to jeopardize the success of a secular state in India is simply scandalous. it is in fact this defendants and their supporters who by denying the plaintiffs rights and by putting up a false and a fanatic claim to the sacred

place of the birth of Lords Ram Chandra are out to blackmail the noble efforts of the Indian people to the attainment of a secular state.

Para 29. The contents of para 29 of the written statement are wrong and are denied. The description of the property has been correctly given in the plaint and the sketch map with all its inferences is correct.

Para 30. In reply to para 30 of the written statement the plaintiffs contend that they have been in possession and management of the temple of Janma Bhumi ever since the living memory of man. The said temple always belongs to the plaintiff and was managed through his Sarbarahkar the plaintiff no.2 being the present Sarbarahkar.

Para 31. The contents of para 31 of the written statement are denied.

Para 32. The contents of para 32 of the written statement are denied. If the former Government ever acknowledged the temple of Janma Bhumi in suit as Mosque it was simply preposterous and collusive.

Para 33. That contents of para 33 of the written statement are totally wrong and are denied. The plaintiffs suit as framed is maintainable.

Para 34. That contents of para 34 of the written statement are denied. The plaintiffs claim is perfectly justified. The plaintiffs have been in possession of the temple in suit for an immemorial

time and e en through the evidence of the construction of the temple by the plaintiff no.1 through his mac… Sarbarahkar may not be traced due to the lapse of immemorial age and want of written records the plaintiffs have acquired title to it by open and adverse possession for a period of time which is longer than the living memory of man.

Para 35. The contents of para 35 of the written statement do not call for a reply. The proceedings under order 1 rule 8 C.P.C. were properly taken. The plaintiffs have no objection to any muslim individual or institution joining the other defendants.

Para 36. The contents of para 36 of the written statement are denied. It is the said defendants who are deliberately resisting the plaintiffs claim on grounds known to them as false and it is they who should be ordered to pay special cost to the plaintiffs.

Replication on behalf of plantiff Nirmohi Akhara against the written statement of Defendant No.10.

(a) That the allegations contained in plain from para 1 to 14 are correct and are confirmed again.

(b) That the contents contained in para 1 of the written statement of defendant No.10 are denied. The defendant Umesh Chandra was not even in existence in the world when cause of action f the suit accrued. Defendant No.10 has been made a tool and lever by certain group of persons who want to demolish the secular sprit of constitution of India and want to create confussion denying even the mandate of order law occurs.

(c) That contents of para 3 as contained in the written statement of defendant No.10 are denied. Umesh Chandra being of 32 years of age cannot say anything about the Mahant of Nirmohi Akhara or about it's existence. Nor he has any clear conception of Nirmochi Akhara which has it's written customs being recognized some more than 500 years ago, in continuity, some of customs are written in a registered deed dated 19.3.49 (prior to date of attachment dated 29.12.49).

of India (1) Goverdhan Math at Puri, (2) Jyoti Math at Badrinath, (3) Saroda Math at Dwarka, (4) Sringari Math on the Tangabhadra.

(e) That practice of setting up Maths which was started by Shankracharya was followed by almost all the religious Teachers since then. The first in order of time was Ramanujacharya next followed by RAMAND.

(f) That Ramanand founded a sect of Vaishnabs known as Ramats which contains a large element of ascetic population who are to be found in Baharas and Ayodhya Ramanand had established several Maths. Ramanandi Maths consist solely of celebates. They obey no caste rules and admit even Sudras in their brother-hood. That RMATS worship one God in the form of Rama and they call themselves Dasses servants of Lords. Thus existence of plaintiff fraternity is coming down from the time of Rama Nand.

(g) That near about more than 500 years ago a great spiritual preceptor known as Shri Swami Brijanand Ji and Shri Balanand Ji belonging to Ramanandi sect of vairagies (belonging to fraternity of plaintiff) had established three Annu known as (1) Nirmohi, (2) Digamber, (3) Nirwani for protection, improvement of "Chatuha Rama Nandi Sampradaya" comprising seven Akhara in it as follows:-

(1) Sri Panch Ramanandi Nirmohi Akhara.

(2) Sri Panch Ramanandi Nirwani Akhara.

(3) Sri Panch Ramanandi Digambari Akhara.

(4) Sri Panch Ramanandi Santoshi Akhara.

(5) Sri Panch Ramanandi Khaki Akhara

(6) Sri Panch Ramanandi Niralambi

(7) Sri panch Ramanandi Maha Nirwani

(h) That aforesaid Akhara are Panchayati Math and act on a domestic pattern. The real power vests in Panchas. The appointment of Mahant is through election by Panchayat and has becomes only a formal head of institution.

(i) The Nirmohi Akhara being a Panchayat' Math can own several temple in it as such Nirmohi Akhara owns a temple known as Ram Janam Asthan i.e. Birth place of Lord Rama.

(j) That it would be pertinent to point out here that Kistwar plot No.163 of first regular settlement of 1861 has been a very big plot having 5 Bighas 19 Biswas of land in it but when in the year 1995 amended map was prepared a road bifurcating Janam Asthan now known as Ram Janam Bhumi lies towards sough of the Road whereas Janam Asthan of Gudar Dass lies towards north side of the Road leading from Hanuman Garhi to Janam Bhumi Road as shown in map of last settlement of 1937 A.D. by Kistwar no.159 and 160.

(k) That at the time of attachment of main building outer enclosures comprising of Ram Chabutara where diety of Bhagwan Ram Lala Ji is installed with Laxman Ji. Bharat Ji and Shatruhan Ji in a cage (Guffa), situate both in the eastern side and western side with Hanuman Ji are installed. The outer enclosure have panchmukhi Shanker Ji, Ganesh Ji etc. also with Chhatti Pujan Asthan where Holy Foot Prints of Lord Ram (Charo Bhaiya) are penerial source of worship of followers of brotherhood of Ram Nandi Vairagies. These outer enclosure was in possession of Nirmohi Akhara as the Fard of 145 Cr.P.C. proceedings it self depicts prior to attachment in 1882 Feb.

(l) The Nirmohi Akhara is a religious denominations and had been maintaining managing the disputed temples since long and as already said in the plaint always used to receive it's offering through Pujaris.

(m) That Baba Baldeo Das was pujari as well Panch of Nirmohi Akhara when attachment was made. His desciple Bhaskar Das now UP-SAPPANCH and General Agent of Nirmohi Akhara was there with him discharging the duties of Pujari. According to custom of Nirmohi Akhara 5 Sadhus 3 Pujaries 2 cooks and one Panch always used to live at Shri Ram Janam Bhumi. Building certificate for outer enclosure has always been passed in the name of Mahant Raghunath Das of Akhara.

(n) That Lord Ram Chandra installed in main temple belonged to Panchayati Math of Nirmohi Akhara. The big Deity of Lord Ram Chandra installed therein, is Achal Deity while a little Ram Lalla Ji as called Utsava Murti which according to custom prevalent in Bairagi Sect of Sadhus in Ayodhya are used to discharge certain outside ceremoney like Shrud Punoo etc. Beside there are six Salig Ram Bhagwan. There are Singhasan Silver 2, one Murti of Hanuman Ji and other parshades are there as detailed in para 3 of the plaint.

(o) That Panchas of Nirmohi Akhara and Panchas of Nirwani Akhara fought together against many civil forces to save Hanoman Garhi and Ram Janam Bhumi and as such Hanuman Garhi belonged to Panch Rama Nandi Nirwani Akhara similarly Sri Ram Janam Bhumi belonged to Panch Ramanandi Nirmohi Akhara and same custom riwaz Parampara as are applicable to Hanuman Garhi is and used to be discharged for darshan of Hindu Public at large by Nirmohi Akhara prior to attachment.

(p) That outer enclosure was owned and managed by Nirmohi Akhara, Plaintiff. In the year 1967 it was released by court of City Magistrate, Faizabad in favour Ram Lakhan Das, Goliki a Panch of Nirmohi Akhara in inter see dispute. Again in the year 1973 Regular Suit No.9/73 in the court of Civil Judge, Faizabad and several other disputed intersee upto Regular suit No.39/82 followed. The Judicial record and it's decisions are in favour of Nirmohi Akhara proving the title and possession of plaintiff. Since 1982 the outer enclosure is in possession of Receiver appointed by court in regular suit No.39/82 pending in the court of civil Judge III

Faizabad.

(q) That contents of para 6 of written statement of defendant No.10 are denied. The case was vehemently fought by Panch Nirmohi Akhara. Baldeo Das was a prominent figure who started Akhand Kirtan beneath Tin She Chabutara. He also filed written statement in 145 Cr.P.C. proceeding. Several Mohamdans of Vicinity had filed affidavit in favour of Nirmohi Akhara. The parties arrayed have been arrayed legally and constructive presence of all against whom order 1 rule 8 C.P.C. have been enlarged shall be presumed to exist by motion of law. There is no question of abatement in such a suit. The order dated 30.7.53 passed by City Magistrate in case u/s 145 C.P.C. case No.1/2/18 was only to consigned the record which shall be taken after the order of Civil court.

(r) The contents of para 7 of written statement of defendant No.10 are denied.

(s) That contents of para 8 of written statement of defendant No.10 is denied. Plaintiff being Panchayati Math is a legal entity which will never die. Some hidden greedy person may emerge to say any thing to their lust against Nirmohi Akhara, but Nirmohi Akhara as being eternal legal body had fought for and is fighting for his legal right regarding disputed temple.

(t) That contents of para 8,9,10,11,12,13 and 14 of written statement of defendant No.10 are denied.

(u) That contents of para 15 are denied being repetition only.

(v) That contents of para 17 are vague and are denied.

(w) That contents of para 18 and 10 of written statement of defendant No.10 are denied. The defendant No.10 is too short to give any advice to plaintiff.

(x) That contents of para 20 of written statement of defendant No.10 are denied.

(y) That contents of para 21 of written statement of defendant No.10 are misconceived and hence denied.

(z) That Umesh Chandra has been utilized just by Hindu Vishwa Parishad only as a lever for some ulterior motive best known to Umesh Chandra.

Present:- Sri Sarav Jeet Lal, advocate for plaintiff.
And Sri Mohd. Ayub, advocate for defendants 7 & 8.

Shri Sarab Jeet Lal, advocate states as follows:-

The plaintiff claims that this property in suit is believed to be the birth place of Lord Ram Chandra Ji. So there is a temple of Lord Ram Chandra on it. The plaintiff claims that this temple is in the management and of control of the plaintiff. It is further clarified that this property is not dedicated to the Idol although the temple is made in the land which is the birth place of Lord Ram. It is owned by the plaintiff and the temple was made by the plaintiff. It is added that the present suit is confined to property shown by letters E, F, G, I, J, K, L. although in directions were shown by letters E, F, G, H, P, N, M, L, E belongs to the plaint.

स्वत्व ज्ञापक तथा संतत निोधात्मक आदेश हेतु वाद पत्र

वादी निम्नलिखत वाद पत्र प्रस्तुत करता है

धारा1 यह कि मूल वादी 1सनातन धार्मवलम्बी अयोध्या निवासी है और अपने धर्मानुकूल देवतावों के मूर्तियों की पूजा व दर्शन करता था वर्तमान वादी भी अपने मृतक पिता (मूल वादी) की तरह ही सनातन धर्मावलम्बी व देवी देवताओं तथा देव स्थलों का दर्शन, पूजा आदि करने वाला है।

www.vadaprativada.com

धारा2 यह कि वादी जन्मभूमि में भी उस स्थान में जिसका विवरण नीचे दिया है उसमें जो भगवान श्री रामचन्द्र जी की मूर्ति तथा चरण पादुका आदि हैं उसका भी पूजा व दर्शन आदि करता आया है और बिना किसी रोकटोक के उस स्थान में भी पूजा व दर्शन करने का अधिकारी है और भविय में भी सदा करने का अधिकारी है।

धारा 3 यह कि उन दिनों मूल वादी अस्वस्थ था और स्वस्थ्य होने पर मकर संक्रान्ति अर्थात् 14 जनवरी सन् 1950 ई0 को जब पूजा व दर्शन करने के हेतु जन्मभूमि पर गया तो प्रतिवादी नंम्बर 6 युक्त प्रान्त के कर्मचारियों ने मूल वादी को भीतर जहाँ श्रीरामचन्द्र आदि की मूर्ति विराजमान है जाने से रोक दिया और यह ज्ञात हुआ कि प्रतिवादी 1 लगायत 5 तथा उनके अन्य सहधर्मियों के निराधार तथा असत्य दुराग्रह से प्रभावित होकर प्रतिवादी नंम्बर 6 ने अपने कर्मचारियों प्रतिवादी नम्बर 7 लगायत 9 के द्वारा हिन्दू जनता को उनके पूजा व दर्शन सम्बधी न्यायपूर्ण उचित अधिकार से वंचित कर रक्खा है । और प्रतिवादी नम्बर 6 प्रति वादीगण नम्बर 1 लगायत 5 आदि के दुराग्रह के कारण यह घोाणा करते हैं कि भविय में भी हिन्दू

जनता को इसी प्रकार उनके उपर्युक्त अधिकारों से वंचित रक्खेंगे इस अन्यायपूर्ण कार्य से मूल वादी के स्वत्वक अधिकार जिसका उसने सदा उपभोग किया था क्षति हो रही है और ऐसी परिस्थितियो में वर्तमान वादी को भी उसके उपरोक्त धार्मिक अधिकारों के प्रयोग में प्र ातिवादीगण द्वारा अनुचित व अवैध हस्तक्षेप की पूर्ण संभावना व आशंका है।

धारा 4 यह कि प्रतिवादी नम्बर 6 अपने कर्मचारियों अर्थात् प्रतिवादी नम्बर 7 लगायत 9 के द्वारा हिन्दू जनता पर अनुचित दबाव डाल रहे है कि भगवान श्री रामचन्द्र आदि की मूर्तियों को वर्तमान स्थान से हटा देगें अन्य प्रतिवादीगण उनका पूर्ण सहयोग दे रहे है और हर प्रकार इस अनुचित व अन्याय पूर्ण कार्य करने के लिए कटिबद्ध हैं।

धारा 5 यह कि उपर्युक्त अन्याय पूर्ण अनुचित व अवैध कार्य में समस्त प्रति वादीगण ाडयन्त्र रचे हुए है, जिससे वादी के स्वत्व व अधिकार पर आघात है और किसी भी दृटिकोण से प्रतिवादी गण नम्बर 1 लगायत 5का दुराग्रह मान्य नहीं हो सकता। और प्र ातिवादी नम्बर 6 लगायत 9 के उपर्युक्त घोाणा महिी विक्टोरियों की घोाणा जो उन्होनें धर्म के सम्बंध में राज स्थापित करने के समय भारतर्वा में किया था,उसके विरुद्ध है और राज्याधिकार के परे हैं तथा( द्वथ्द्धद्धड्ड ध्द्धड्ढद्ध) है,और प्रतिवादी नम्बर 6 लगायत 9 को स्द्वदृष्ड्ढद्धदश्ड्ढदद्द दृढ स्द्वड्डत्ड एहद्द 1935के द्वारा प्राप्त अधिकारों की सीमा के बाहर है, अतः यह नितांत अत्याचार पूर्ण कार्य है। और चूकिं यह सब कार्य न्याय व कानून के विरुद्ध है, अतः यह वाद-पत्र उपस्थित करना अनिवार्य हुआ।

धारा 6 यह कि वाद पत्र का विवाद कारण तारीख14जनवरी सन्1950ई0से इस न्यायालय के सीमा के भीतर उत्पन्न हुआ है व ततपश्चात् भी लगातार वर्तमान वादी के उपरोक्त धार्मिक अधिकारो के प्रयोग में प्रतिवादीगण द्वारा अनुचित व अवैध हस्तक्षेप होते रहने से इस न्यायालय के सीमाधिकार में उत्पन्न है।

धारा 6अ यह कि मूल वादी की मृत्यु दौरान वाद दिनाँक 28.12.89 को हो गयी । वर्तमान वादी उसका पुत्र व वैधानिक उत्तराधिकारी है और उसको भी अपने पिता की तरह वे समस्त धार्मिक अधिकार प्राप्त है अतः वर्तमान वादी को भी वाद चलाने का अधिकार है , प्रतिवादीगण 1ता 5 की भी मृत्यु हो चुकी है उनके स्थान पर किसी को पक्षकार बनाने की आवश्यकता नहीं है।

धारा 6ब यह कि न्यायालय के आदेश दिनाँक 17.10.88के अनुसार प्रतिवादी नं010 को मुकदमे में पक्षकार बनाया जा रहा है और वाद प्रतिवादी नं010के विरुद्ध भी दायर किया जा रहा है । तथा वाद पत्र के उपसम प्रतिवादी नं010के विरुद्ध भी मांगा जा रहा है।

धारा 7 यह कि इस वाद तथा उपशम का मूलाकंन वाद वादी 5100/-रुपया नियत करता है परन्तु वाद पत्र स्वत्व ज्ञापक तथा सतत निोधात्मक आदेश हेतु है ,अतः19 और 5100/-के दशांश पर 510/-पर 51 का न्यायशुल्क अर्थात की लगाता है ।

धारा 8 वादी निम्नलिखित उपशम का प्रार्थी है।

(क) यह घोाणा की जाये कि वादी अपने धर्म नियम तथा रीति के अनुसार श्री भगवान रामचन्द्र आदि विराजमान स्थान जन्मभूमि जिसका वि वरण निम्नांकित है के निकट जाकर विला रोक टोक निर्विवाद , निर्विघ्न पूजा व दर्शन करने का अधिकारी है और प्रतिवादीगण 1 लगायत 6 और 7 लगायत 9 व प्रतिवादी नं0 10 व उनके स्थानापन्नों को वादी के उपर्युक्त अधिकार में बाधा डालने का कोई अधिकार नहीं है।

(ख)स्थायी व सतत निोधात्मक आदेश प्रतिवादीगण के विरुद्ध प्रसारित किया जावे कि प्रतिवादीगण 1लगायत 6 और 7 लगायत 9 व प्रतिवादी नं010उनके

धारा-21 .धारा-80 जाब्ता दीवानी का उज्र (विरोध) वही ले सकता है, जिसके लिए धारा-80 का निर्माण हुआ है। प्रतिवादीगण नं0-1 लगायत 5 को यह उज्र करने का कोई अधिकार नहीं है ।

धारा-22. अस्वीकार है । प्रतिवादीगण नं0 - 1 लगायत 5 को अच्छी प्रकार विदित है कि मूर्ति इस स्थान में विराजमान है । वादीगण के - ज्ञान में सन् 1934 ई0 के पश्चात नमाज नहीं हुई और यदि किसी राजकीय कर्मचारी ने कोई ऐसी झूठी सूचना नमाज पढ़ने की दी है तो उसका कोई प्रभाव नहीं और किसी ऐसी असत्य सूचना या बलात दो - चार व्यक्तियों के नमाज़ पढ़ने से वादियों के 1934 ई0 से दिनांक दावे के दिन तक के मुसलसल अधिकार में कोई बाधा नहीं पड़ सकती है, विशेातः जबकि वह अधिकार प्रतिवादीगण के ज्ञान में भली प्रकार चला आ रहा था ।

धारा-23. अस्वीकार है,वाद पत्र में इसका विवरण स्पट रुप से अंकित है। राजकीय कर्मचारियों ने हिन्दू जनता तथा वादियों को विशेातः भीतर जाने तथा पूजा पाठ करने से रोक दिया और सरकारी कर्मचारियों का वही अवैध कार्य इस बात का मूल है ।

धारा-24. अस्वीकार है, कर्मचारी प्रतिवादी बनाये गये हैं ।

धारा-25. प्रतिवादीगण नं0-1 से लेकर 5 की असत्य बातों में आकर धारा-145 जाब्ता फौजदारी की कार्यवाही की,जिस प्रकार प्रतिवादीगण ने उल्लेख किया है, सब असत्य है ।

धारा-26. अस्वीकार है । प्रतिवादीगण को स्पट रुप से उस विधान पर प्रकाश डालना चाहिए,जिससे इस न्यायालय को समात का अधिकार नहीं है ।

धारा-27. मंदिर जन्म स्थान जिसके संबंध में प्रतिवादियों ने इस धारा में कथन किया है,

www.vadaprativada.com

वह सर्वथा दूसरा मंदिर है , जिसकी चौहद्दी निम्न प्रकार है -

उत्तर - हाता व परती व मंदिर बकब्जे कल्लू महापात्र

दक्षिण - सड़क पुख्ता

पूर्व - सड़क व सेहन व कुआँ

पच्छिम - हाता व परती ।

श्री अयोध्या जी में लगभग सभी मंदिरों में श्री रामचन्द्र जी की मूर्ति स्थापित है, जिनसे झगड़े वाले स्थान से कोई संबंध नहीं है । निर्वाचन की चर्चा इस धारा मे व्यर्थ तथा तथ्यहीन है और सर्वथा अप्रासंगिक है ।

धारा 28. गलत है ,अस्वीकार है, प्रतिवादीगण कोई खर्चा व हर्जा प्राप्त करने के अधिकारी नहीं हैं।

धारा-30. अस्वीकार है, व्यवहार डिग्री होने के योग्य है ।

www.vadaprativada.com

धारा-31. जैसा कि प्रतिवादीगण कहते हैं कि यह बाबरी मस्जिद है । इसे प्रमाणित करने में यदि वह सफल भी हों तो भी क्योंकि सन् 1934 ई0 से कभी कोई मुसलमान इस मंदिर के भीतर जाने नहीं पाया और हिन्दुओं का ही तब से अविराम रुप से स्पटतः प्रत्येक व्यक्ति के ज्ञान में अधिकार बना रहा,इसलिए प्रतिवादीगण अथवा अन्य किसी मुसलमान का यदि कोई हक रहा भी हो तो उस सबका अन्त हो गया और वह हक निराकृत हो गया । इस स्थान को मंदिर मानकर हिन्दू होने के नाते प्रत्येक हिन्दू उसमें बराबर आता-जाता रहा है, जिससे मंदिर का होना निश्चित रुप से परिपक्व हो गया है । यदि कभी किसी मुसलमान ने कुछ भी अपना हक प्रदर्शित करने का प्रयत्न किया तो उसके हक को अस्वीकार करते हुए हिन्दुओं ने विशेातः उस स्थान में रहने वालों ने उनको मार भगाया। पता चला है कि मुसलमानों ने परस्पर एक जाली तथा फर्जी व ाडयन्त्री अभियोग किसी सिविलजज के इजलास में योजित करके कुछ फर्जी कार्रवाइयां कराई हैं , जिससे वादी को इन्कार है।

www.vadaprativada.com

और उसका कोई प्रभाव इस व्यवहार पर नहीं पड़ सकता है ,विशेातःजबकि किसी हिन्दू को उसका पता भी न था ,सब कार्यवाही व फर्जी की गई है, उस अभियोग के काग़जात बिल्कुल अप्रासंगिक है, किसी प्रकार भी इस व्यवहार में मानने योग्य नहीं है ,

Q. In what capacity does the plaintiff seek to exercise the relief which is seeks in the plaint?

Ans. In my individual capacity.

Q. What is your individual capacity?

Ans. My individual capacity is distinct from public capacity and in this matter an idol worshiper . This shows that the plaintiff's counsel is not in a position to answer the court question. The plaintiff must present in court personally on the date fixed.

Q. Has your client any religion?

Ans. The plaintiff is a Sanatan Dharmi.

Sri Goswami States ABCDEF is the land and building in suit as indicated in the map of the Commissioner Sri Shiva Shanker Lal dated 25.5.50. It is the temple since 1934. Deities installed are Sri Sri Ram. The building existed prior to 1934. The plaintiff can't say for how long it have been existing. The plaintiff can't say who built it and what it was prior to 1934. Sri Gopal Singh Visharad came in on about 1934 to Ajudhya. He saw the …..... (murti) there, and began to worship them. Sri Paramhans instructs that the …..... (murti) were there from before 1934. Whenever he saw it was a temple. It has always been a temple. He can't say who got it constructed and dedicated.

The plaintiff do not admit that at any time the building was used for prayer or as a Mosque by the Mohammaden community. Babar never built it. He was never emperor of India. I deny that it was ever used as a mosque.

The plaintiffs confine their case to the construction shown by letters ABCDLKJPOHNGA as shown in the map of the Commissioner dated 25.5.50. The Chabutra and Mandir shown in the map of the Commissioner as “Ram Chabutra” and “Bhandar” are the same as those described in the eastern boundary of the temple in question in the plaint.

The replication para 31 filed in suit no. 25 of 1950 by Paramhans does not refer to the litigation mentioned in para 14 of the map filed by Zahur Ahmad and others. The proceedings mentioned in the last part of para 31 of the replication relate to those cases and proceedings which were between Mohammedans-sunnies & shias & others i.e. relating to suit no. 29 of 1945 of the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad.

Defendant Gopal Singh Visharat and Sri Param Hans Ram Chandra plaintiffs of both the suits no. 2/50 and 25 of 1950 accompanied by their counsel state that they do not want any relief with regard to constructions or structures indicated in the map of the Commissioner Shiv Shankar Lal dated 25.05.50. by the terms 'Sita Rasoi', 'Bhandar' and 'Ram Chabutra'. They say that the reliefs are asked for only with regard to property included in the said map by letters A, B, C, D, L, K, J, P, O, H, N, G, A.

www.vadaprativada.com

They further add that the term ' Janam Bhumi used in the plaint refers to Janam Bhumi of Sri Ram Chandra Ji and according the plaintiff's belief the property in the suit is the site of the same.

They add that there is no foot prints carved out on any stone or any stone image of any Charan Paduka (….....) referred to in para 2 of the plaint.

According to them at the place in suit near the idol of Bhagwan Ram Chandra Ji are kept wooden sandals or Charan Paduka and also a small pair of silver Charan Paduka . They are not fixed to any stone, structure or floor but are placed loose near the idol.

They are that the idol of Bhagwan Ram Chandra Ji at the place in suit is an Achal (_____) idol.

They add that in plaintiffs claim right of worship with regard to the said Idol and also with regard to the 'Charan Paduka'.

The plaintiffs also claim a right to worship all the deities and idols situated in the property in suit besides that of Bhagwan Ram Chandra Ji as for example Laxman Ji, Hanuman Ji, Sita Ji, Saliqram Ji, etc. They also claim a right to worship and have Darshan of these as well as they have a right to a Darshan of the site in question, as according to their belief it is the birth place of Sri Ram Chandra Ji.

To

The District Magistrate, Faizabad

Sir,

In compliance of a proper order duly served on me I assumed charge on the 5th of Jan. 1950 of the premises in dispute in the JNMBHUMI, Ajodhia, which were attached under Section 145. I am required to submit a scheme of its management. The most important item of management is the maintenance of the Bhog and Puja in the condition in which it was carried on when I took over charge.

The number of pujaris cannot be less than three. Two persons are required to keep constant watch to prevent the depredations of monkeys who snatch away the the flowers from the Singhasan and lift away other things.

www.vadaprativada.com

Below I give the various Bhogs which are being performed, the items of which they consist, and their daily cost.

Bhog No.1. Mangal Bhog consisting of dry fruits Rs.1/-

Bhog No.2 Shringar Bhog consisting of sweets Rs.1/8

Bhog No.3. Raj Bhog consisting of

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| a. Dal | Rs.1/- | |
| b. Rice | Rs.2/8 | |
| c. Ata | Rs.2/8 | |
| d. Sag | Rs.1/8 | |
| e. Masala | Rs.-/8 | |
| f. Ghee | Rs. 2/8 | Rs. 10/8 |

Bhog No.5 Arti bhog consisting of one seer of Laddoos Rs.3/-

www.vadaprativada.com

Bhog No.6 Bayaroo Bhog consisting of Puri, Sag, and Milk. Rs.7/-

Besides the Bhog, other commodities required for the Puja.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Kesar | Rs.-/4/- | |
| Agar Bati | Rs.-6/- | |
| Phul Mala in large quantity. | Rs.2/6 | |
| Chandan | Rs.-4/- | |
| Itra | Rs./8/- | |
| Light | Rs.3/- | |
| | Rs.6/12/- | Rs.6/2 |
| | Grand total | 31/2 |

In addition to this staff mentioned above there should be a supervisior at Rs.45/- to look to all these things.

The three Pujaries will be getting food in the form of Bhog. The Head Pujari will get Rs.15/ p.m. and the other two Rs.5/- p.m. each. There will be a kahar also who will be getting Rs.30/- p.m. This brings the total expenditure on the maintenance of the premises to Rs.1057/- p.m.

On the income side we have the cash offerings only. The income from offerings commencing from 23rd Dec. 1949 upto the 5th Jan. 1950 i.e. during the period before the charge was Rs.233/4/6. But the average monthly income will be Rs.300/- or thereabout only. The maintenance, therefore, becomes much too costly.

I shall, therefore, invite applications from parties willing to perform the Bhog at a cheap contract basis. I shall entrust the Bhog to the most suitable of these parties. My own idea is to spend between Rs. 10/- to s 15/- on all the daily items. Thus will bring down the expenses to about Rs.500/-

Locked boxes for cash offerings will be provided. The in case receipts will be entered in the account book daily. The cost of Bhog will be paid daily.

The watch and ward arrangement of the premises will continue as heretofore i.e. by the Police. The entry of the portion in dispute area will also be regulated as before. The Pujaris, my local representative and other persons employed by me should be allowed free access.

I await your instructions about funds.

The Magistrate in-charge should be intimated about this.

Yours faithfully

Affidavit

in

Criminal Misc. No. 208 of 1950.

Anisur Rahmam .....Applicant.

Versus

Rex ..... opposite party

Affidavit of Anisur Rahman son of Moulvi Wazirruddin, caste Syed resident of Mohalla Begampara, Ajodhya, Faizabad. I, Anisur Rahman aforesaid solemnly affirm and state as follows:-

1) That I am the sole applicant in this application and am fully acquainted with the facts deposed below.

2) That in Ajodhya there is a historical mosque built by Emperor Babar in 1528 A.D. Called the Babari mosque which has got a grant attached to it and is registered under the Waqf Act and the courtyard of the mosque is separated by a wall from small temple which is situated to its East.

3) That Hindus and muslims of Ajodhya have been peacefully and calmly carrying on their worship in the temple and prayers in the mosque respectively from times immemorial.

4) That on the 9th. Of November, 1949 it was found that two tombs and about 25 graves which lay outside the compound of the Babari mosque had been levelled down and the mosque in the cemetery known as the “Qanati” mosque had been dug up and a new platform adjacent to the aforesaid mosque was constructed and an idol placed on that platform.

5) That from 22.11.1949 the Hindus of the place started their 'Jap' (worship) on that place in which a large number of Hindus were collected and for that reason the police advised the muslims not to say their prayers in the surviving Babari mosque all the 5

times while the 'Jap' continued but confine it to Fridays only. In order to avoid a communal clash the muslims acted on the advice and continued to say their prayer every Friday up to December 16, 1949. Except for the Friday prayers the mosque used to be kept locked and guarded by the Police.

6) That on the night preceding the next Friday, namely the night between 22nd and 23rd December, 1949 the Hindus surreptitiously and clandestinely introduced an idol inside the mosque itself and put it on the "Member" (pulpit). Pandit Ram Deo Dubey Sub-Inspector Incharge of Ajodhya made the following report of the incident on 23rd December, 1949:

"On information received through Mata Prasad constable No. 1 when I reached the spot at about 7 in the morning., I learned that a crowd of 50 or 60 persons broke the locks which were put on the compound of the Babri Mosque, and by climbing the walls by ladders illegally entered into ("madakhilat") the mosque and have placed the idol of Shri Bhagwan and have written on the walls inside and outside Sita Ramji etc. in red and yellow. Constable no. 2 Hansraj who was on the duty prohibited them but they did not heed. He called the P.A.C. Guard for help which was there, but by that time all the persons had entered the mosque, High Officers of the District came to the spot and engaged themselves in management. Afterwards a crowd of 5000 collected and raised religious slogans and performed "Kriten" and wanted to go inside but nothing untowards happened due to proper arrangements. Abhey Ram Dass, Ram Shukul Dass, Sheodarshan Dass and 50 or 60 other persons whose names are not known have committed riot, trespassed into the mosque and have installed an idol in the mosque and have thus polluted ("napak") the mosque. The police men on duty and many others have been this incident and ..... this check has been prepared.

7) That the muslims of the vicinity were at that time persuaded by the authorities not to say their prayers that Friday. When the

muslims made a representation on 6th January 1950 they were again asked not to say their prayers for some time to come.

8) That in the meantime the District authorities instead of helping the muslims of the vicinity in getting back their mosque have issued notice on 29th December, 1949 under Section 145 Cr.P.C.

9) That in spite of the fact that all the matters have been within the knowledge of the authorities and the police guard has been posted on the spot since 12th November, 1949, and their strength was increased by posting an armed guard on 22nd November, 1949, the above mentioned incidents have taken place. They have created a tremendous sensation not only in Ajodhya but also in the town and District Faizabad.

10) That it is the petitioner's case that the District authorities are not free from communal bias and are rendering direct and indirect assistance to the ..... pass on the mosque. The petitioner apprehends that he cannot have a fair and impartial trial in that district.

11) That Ajodhya being a town with a large Hindu population the authorities appear to be wholly overwhelmed.

12) That Shri K.K.K. Nayer the present Deputy Commissioner of Faizabad has acquired a plot of land on a long lease for building purposes in the name of his wife Shrimati Shakuntala Nayer in Ajodhya proper by means of a registered deed dated 7.6.1967 and probably desires to be a resident of Ajodhya. He cannot therefore, go against the wishes the local people of the Hindu Majority of the place, and the applicant apprehends that he can have .....justice at their hands.

13) That the learned Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad Shri Markande Singh has attached the mosque and put in the charge of Shri Priya Dat Ram who has been .....an active part in the present agitation there. In original order he went to the length of ordering Receiver to arrange for the worship in the .....nearly as possible

as at present but subsequently scored it out.

14) That the local authorities are persisting in ..... of these proceedings and thus affording opportunity for the continued misuse of the mosque .... there is no apprehension of any breach of ..... the muslims are exhibiting a remarkable .....connection and in spite of the institution ..... suit in that connection in the court of the ..... Judge, Faizabad, which is registered as ..... In this suit even a temporary injunction has been issued against (1) Zahoor Ahmad (2) Haji Pheku (3) Haji Mohd. Faiq (4) Mohd. Sami (5) Mohd. Achchan (6) U.P. Govt. (7) Shri K.K.K. Nayer, District Magistrate, Faizabad. (8) Chaudhari Kirpal Singh S.P. and (9) Shri Markande Singh City Magistrate, Faizabad on 16.1.1950 as under:-

The prayer in the application for injunction is as follows:-

"Therefore the applicant prays that a temporary injunction be issue against the defts to the effect that they should not remove the idols of Shri Bhagwan Ram Chandra & others from Asthan Janam Bhum the details of which are given in the ..... till the decision of the case, and they further be ordered not to close the Ramesh Dwar and other passages of ingress and egress to the visitors and also that they should not place any obstacle in the Puja and Darshan."

15) That the entire atmosphere in Ajodhya and Faizabad is surcharged with communalism and in view of the highly strained relations between the two communities and also the district authorities not being free from communal bias neither Ajodhya nor Faizabad would be a proper place for the inquiry under section 145 Cr.P.C. proceedings and the life of the witnesses of the applicant would not be safe, as is being demonstrated by the activities near the Babri mosque.

16) That the contents of paras 1 to 15 of this affidavit are true to

In the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad

Regular Suit No. 2 of 1950

Sri Gopal Singh Vishard

Versus

Zahoor Ahmad and others

Order

The plaintiff Gopal Singh Visharad filed the present suit on 16.1.50 on the following allegations.

www.vadaprativada.com

He is a sanatanist Hindu resident of Ajodhya. He has always worshipped and visited the idol of Shri Ram chandra installed at Janma Bhumi Ayodhya. On 14.1.50 he was prevented from entering Janma Bhumi and worshipping the idol aforesaid by the officers of defendant No. 6 at the baseless instance and unfounded instigation of defendants 1 to 5, thereby jeopardising his right to worship at Janma Bhumi. The defendants 7 to 9 who are the local officers of the defendant no. 6 are exercising undue pressure on the local Hindu public inducing them to refrain from visiting Jaham Bhumi. They are being actively helped in this direction by defendants 1 to 5, who are in collusion with defendants 7 to 9. Neither the defendant No. 6 has nor defendants 7 to 9 have any right to interfere in religious matters or obstruct the plaintiffs right to worship at Janam Bhumi.

The relief sought by him are :-

(a) A declaration to the effect that he is entitled to worship and

www.vadaprativada.com

visit without obstruction or disturbance Shri Bhagwan Ram Chandra and others installed at Asthan Janma bhumi, and

(b) A perpetual injunction restraining the defendants from removing the idols of Shri Bhagwan Ram Chandra and other installed at Asthan Janma Bhumi aforesaid.

He prayed per separate application supported by an affidavit for an interim injunction against the defendants pending the decision of the suit. Notices were issued to the defendants and an interim injunction was granted in the meanwhile on 16.1.50. Notices were served on defendants 7 to 9 on 16.1.50. The defendant no. 7 moved an application on 8.4.50 seeking clarification or modification of the ex parte order of injunction issued by me on 16.1.50.

Thereupon the following order was passed:-

"The parties are hereby restrained by means of temporary injunction to refrain from removing the idols in question from the site in dispute and from interfering with puja etc. as at present carried on. The order dated 16.1.50 stands modified accordingly."

Defendants 1 to 5 (No. 1 Zahoor Ahmad, No. 2 Haji Pheku, No. 3 Mohd. Faiq No. 4 Mohd sami, No. 5 Mohd Achchan Miyan) filed objection against theinterim injunction of 13.2.50 challenging it on the grounds that the disputed site was part of the Babri Mosque, which was built by Emperor Babar; that it has been in the use of the Muslims as a mosque ever since; that the Hindus never worshipped or performed any puja there; and that the idols at present on the site were recently planted they also pleaded that suit was defective for want of notice under section 80 C.P.C. No further objections were filed by the defendants 6 to 9 (6. Uttar Pradesh State, 7 Deputy Commissioner Faizabad, 8 City Magistrate Faizabad, 9 Superintendent of Police, Faizabad) by 25.3.50. The objections dated 13.2.50 came up for hearing on 25.3.50 and Sir Iqbal Ahmad on behalf of the defendants 1 to 5 in his able arguments referred to various features of the building and the surroundings to support his contentions which were controverted on behalf of the plaintiff. This necessitated the issue of a commission to prepare a map of the building in question. On the date of the appointment of the commission, defendants 1 to 5 applied for taking of a photograph of building which were granted. Maps and photographs were accordingly prepared and now form part of the record.

The case came up for hearing again on ..... when the District Govt. Council (representatives of defendants 6 to 9 adopted the contentions of defendants 1 to 5 and further pleaded that the suit is bad for want of notice under Section 80 C.P.C. .....Plea of Section 80 C.P.C. is open to defendants 1 to 5. 1942 Bombay 339 is a case in point. It can, however, certainly be raised by defendants 6 to 9 who place reliance on the well known case of Bhagchand Versus Secretary of State, reported in 1927 P.C. 176 on behalf of the plaintiff it is strenuously urged that Bhagchand's case has no application to the facts of the present case. He bases his argument on Krishna Swami Versus Syed Ahmad, reported in 136 I.C. 777 (1932) and other earlier cases. The decisions on the point are without doubt conflicting. It will, therefore, be premature to decide at this stage as to whether the suit is liable to be thrown out for want of notice under section 80 C.P.C.

For the purpose of these proceedings it has to be seen whether the plaintiff has a fair question to raise as to the existence of the right alleged, whether he is endanger of loosing that right and whether irreparable injury or inconvenience is likely to result to him, in case the injunction order is drawn. It is conceded on all hands that the idol in question were on the disputed site before filing of the suit. It further appears from the copies of a number of affidavits of certain muslims residents of Ayodhya that at least from 1936 onwards the muslims have neither used the site as a mosque nor offered prayers there and that the Hindus have been performing their puja etc. on the disputed site. Nothing has been pointed out to discredit these affidavits, which along with the existence with the idols on the disputed site clearly show that the plaintiff has got the fair case to go to the trial. The defendants 1 to 5 rely on a number of documents to show that the building in dispute has always been mosque. It is not possible at this stage to anticipate any decision on this point because it will have to be decided after considering all the oral and documentary evidence that may be adduced by the parties in this case. The undisputed facts remains that on the date of the suit the idols of Shri Ram Chandra and others did exist on the site and that worship was being performed by the Hindus .....The affidavits referred to above does make out a prima facie case in favour of the plaintiff.

As to the balance of convenience, it is obvious that the effect of vacating the interim injunction at this stage is likely to deprive the plaintiff of the right claimed by him in the suit. Moreover, it is matter of admission between the parties that there are several other mosques in the Mohalla in question. The local muslims will not therefore, be put to much inconvenience if the interim injunction remains in force during the pendency of the case.

For these reasons, I hold that the status quo should be maintained.

Order

The interim injunction order dated 16.1.50 as modified on 19.1.50 shall remain in force until the suit is disposed off.

Affidavit of Anisur Rahman son of Moulvi Wazirruddin, caste Syed resident of Mohalla Begampara, Ajodhya, Faizabad.

I, Anisur Rahman aforesaid solemnly affirm and state as follows:-

1) That I am the sole applicant in this application and am fully acquainted with the facts deposed below.

2) That in Ajodhya there is a historical mosque built by Emperor Babar in 1528 A.D. Called the Babari mosque which has got a grant attached to it and is registered under the Waqf Act and the courtyard of the mosque is separated by a wall from small temple which is situated to its East.

3) That Hindus and muslims of Ajodhya have been peacefully and calmly carrying on their worship in the temple and prayers in the mosque respectively from times immemorial.

4) That on the 9th. Of November, 1949 it was found that two tombs and about 25 graves which lay outside the compound of the Babari mosque had been levelled down and the mosque in the cemetery known as the “Qanati” mosque had been dug up and a new platform adjacent to the aforesaid mosque was constructed and an idol placed on that platform.

5) That from 22.11.1949 the Hindus of the place started their 'Jap' (worship) on that place in which a large number of Hindus

were collected and for that reason the police advised the muslims not to say their prayers in the surviving Babari mosque all the 5 times while the 'Jap' continued but confine it to Fridays only. In order to avoid a communal clash the muslims acted on the advice and continued to say their prayer every Friday up to December 16, 1949. Except for the Friday prayers the mosque used to be kept locked and guarded by the Police.

6) That on the night preceding the next Friday, namely the night between 22nd and 23rd December, 1949 the Hindus surreptitiously and clandestinely introduced an idol inside the mosque itself and put it on the "Member" (pulpit). Pandit Ram Deo Dubey Sub-Inspector Incharge of Ajodhya made the following report of the incident on 23rd December, 1949:

"On information received through Mata Prasad constable No. 1 when I reached the spot at about 7 in the morning., I learned that a crowd of 50 or 60 persons broke the locks which were put on the compound of the Babri Mosque, and by climbing the walls by ladders illegally entered into ("madakhilat") the mosque and have placed the idol of Shri Bhagwan and have written on the walls inside and outside Sita Ramji etc. in red and yellow. Constable no. 2 Hansraj who was on the duty prohibited them but they did not heed. He called the P.A.C. Guard for help which was there, but by that time all the persons had entered the mosque, High Officers of the District came to the spot and engaged themselves in management. Afterwards a crowd of 5000 collected and raised religious slogans and performed "Kriten" and wanted to go inside but nothing untowards happened due to proper arrangements. Abhey Ram Dass, Ram Shukul Dass, Sheodarshan Dass and 50 or 60 other persons whose names are not known have committed riot, trespassed into the mosque and have installed an idol in the mosque and have thus polluted ("napak") the mosque. The police men on duty and many others have been this incident and ..... this check has been prepared.

7) That the muslims of the vicinity were at that time persuaded by the authorities not to say their prayers that Friday. When the muslims made a representation on 6th January 1950 they were again asked not to say their prayers for some time to come.

8) That in the meantime the District authorities instead of helping the muslims of the vicinity in getting back their mosque have issued notice on 29th December, 1949 under Section 145 Cr.P.C.

9) That in spite of the fact that all the matters have been within the knowledge of the authorities and the police guard has been posted on the spot since 12th November, 1949, and their strength was increased by posting an armed guard on 22nd November, 1949, the above mentioned incidents have taken place. They have created a tremendous sensation not only in Ajodhya but also in the town and District Faizabad.

10) That it is the petitioner's case that the District authorities are not free from communal bias and are rendering direct and indirect assistance to the ..... pass on the mosque. The petitioner apprehends that he cannot have a fair and impartial trial in that district.

11) That Ajodhya being a town with a large Hindu population the authorities appear to be wholly overwhelmed.

12) That Shri K.K.K. Nayer the present Deputy Commissioner of Faizabad has acquired a plot of land on a long lease for building purposes in the name of his wife Shrimati Shakuntala Nayer in Ajodhya proper by means of a registered deed dated 7.6.1967 and probably desires to be a resident of Ajodhya. He cannot therefore, go against the wishes the local people of the Hindu Majority of the place, and the applicant apprehends that he can have .....justice at their hands.

13) That the learned Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad Shri Markande Singh has attached the mosque and put in the charge of Shri Priya Dat Ram who has been .....an active part in the present

agitation there. In original order he went to the length of ordering Receiver to arrange for the worship in the .....nearly as possible as at present but subsequently scored it out.

14) That the local authorities are persisting in ..... of these proceedings and thus affording opportunity for the continued misuse of the mosque .... there is no apprehension of any breach of ..... the muslims are exhibiting a remarkable .....connection and in spite of the institution ..... suit in that connection in the court of the ..... Judge, Faizabad, which is registered as ..... In this suit even a temporary injunction has been issued against (1) Zahoor Ahmad (2) Haji Pheku (3) Haji Mohd. Faiq (4) Mohd. Sami (5) Mohd. Achchan (6) U.P. Govt. (7) Shri K.K.K. Nayer, District Magistrate, Faizabad. (8) Chaudhari Kirpal Singh S.P. and (9) Shri Markande Singh City Magistrate, Faizabad on 16.1.1950 as under:-

The prayer in the application for injunction is as follows:-

"Therefore the applicant prays that a temporary injunction be issue against the defts to the effect that they should not remove the idols of Shri Bhagwan Ram Chandra & others from Asthan Janam Bhum the details of which are given in the ..... till the decision of the case, and they further be ordered not to close the Ramesh Dwar and other passages of ingress and egress to the visitors and also that they should not place any obstacle in the Puja and Darshan."

15) That the entire atmosphere in Ajodhya and Faizabad is surcharged with communalism and in view of the highly strained relations between the two communities and also the district authorities not being free from communal bias neither Ajodhya nor Faizabad would be a proper place for the inquiry under section 145 Cr.P.C. proceedings and the life of the witnesses of the applicant

would not be safe, as is being demonstrated by the activities near the Babri mosque.

16) That the contents of paras 1 to 15 of this affidavit are true to my personal knowledge and belief, nothing has been concealed and no part of it is false. Sd.

D.M.

With reference to your order dated 11.3.50 on the .....of the Deputy Registrar in connection with the Crl. Misc. No. 208/50 Anisul Rehman Vs. State, I beg to offer my explanation parawise as follows:-

1. I have no knowledge regarding allegations contained in paras 1,2,3,4,5 & 7 of the affidavit filed by Shri Anisul Rehman and therefore I am not in a position to say anything about them.

2. I am not in a position to note any comment on the allegation in para 6, since the matter referred to therein are the the subject of a proceeding pending before me.

3. Regarding allegations contained in para 8, I beg to say that on being satisfied from credible sources that a dispute likely to lead to a breach of the peace between Hindus & Muslims in Ayodhya over the question of rights of proprietor ship & worship in the buildings claimed variously as Babri Masjid & Janam Bhumi Mandir, I passed an order u/s 145 Cr.P.C. and attached the said building. The parties were called upon to put in written statement of their respective claims with regard to the fact of actual possession of the subject of the dispute. As a matte of fact the order u/s q45 Cr.P.C. was meant to check an imminent breach of the peace.

4. Regarding allegations contained in para 9 I have to say that it is not clear what matters are alleged to have been within the knowledge of the authorities and therefore no explanation is possible. If however, it refers to existence of tension between the two communities on account of the building in dispute, Section u/s 145 Cr.P.C. was appropriately taken and it had the desired effect of preventing breach of peace.

5. The allegations in para 10 of the affidavit are vague & baseless and are denied.

6. With regard to the contents of para 11, I beg to state that it is a fact that Ayodhya has a large Hindu population, but it is wholly incorrect that the authorities were overwhelmed by the Hindus.

7. I have learnt that a Nazul plot in Ayodhya was acquired sometime ago by Shrimati Nayar, but I have no information that Shrimati Nayar acquired it for her. In this connection it may be worthwhile to mention that Shri Nayar is no more the District Magistrate of Faizabad.

8. As regards contents of para 13, I beg to say that the said buildings were attached & put incharge of Shri Priya Dutt Das. It is incorrect to say that he has been taking active part in the agitation. The alleged portion of my order scored out before signing and promulgating it, is, in no sense, a part of my order. I may, however, and that this portion was scored out as the time of signing the order as I felt that it was superfluous.

9. As regards contents of para 14, the court is equally eager to dispose of this case as speedily as possible. The case was stayed when the petitioner applied for the stay of the proceedings.

10. As for the allegations of para 15 I have to say that the allegations are unfounded, incorrect and unjustified.

Sir,

I beg to submit for your kind consideration and favourable orders:-

1) That in December 1949 proceedings referred to above were started in the court of the City Magistrate, Faizabad.

2) That I filed a Civil suit for declaration and injunction in the court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad suit No. 2 of 1950.

3) That one Ram Chandra Paramhans also filed a similar suit in the same court no. 250 of 1950.

4) That on the application of Mohammadan defendants the two suits were consolidated.

5) That in the case under Section 145 Cr.P.C. certain Muslim residents of Ajodhya had filed their written statements with affidavits.

6) That certified copies of about 20 affidavits were taken from the case under Sec. 145 Cr.P.C. and were filed in the said civil suits.

7) That I have come to know in the case under Section 145 Cr.P.C. no dates are now being fixed.

8) That the said filed of the case under Sec. 145 Cr.P.C. will be required in the court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad but as the file is before the High Court at Allahabad the Civil Judge, Faizabad will not be in a position to summon it.

P R A Y E R

The applicant therefore prays that the entire rile of the case

The 22nd, July, 1954 Gopal Singh Visharad
State Vs. Janam Bhumi & Babri Mosque under section 145 Cr.P.C.

ORDER

This is a case under Section 145 Cr.P.C. in which Shri Markandey Singh, Magistrate Ist class and Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad cum Ayodhya on 29th December, 1949 passed an order for attachment of the building claimed as Babri Mosque/Janam Bhumi Mandir and handed over possession of the same to Shri Priya Dat Ram, Chairman, Municipal Board, Faizabad cum Ayodhya as receiver for arranging for the care of the property in dispute. Shri Priya Dat Ram on January 5, 1950 assumed charge of the premises in dispute in Janam Bhumi Ayodhya.

An application for transfer of the case was moved in the high court of the judicature at Allahabad by Anisur Rahman s/o Molvi Waziruddin, but it was rejected on 30.5.50 by the Hon'ble High Court.

A Regular suit no. 2 of 1950 was filed in the civil court by Shri Gopal Singh Visharad against Zahoor Ahmad and others and the U.P. State, Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad, City Magistrate, Faizabad and Superintendent of Police, Faizabad are also parties to that suit. A temporary injunction as follows was issued on 3.3.51 by the learned civil judge, Faizabad.

"The parties are hereby restrained by the means of temporary injunction to refrain from removing the idols in question from the site in dispute and from interfering with puja etc. as at present carried on. The order dated 16.1.50 stands modified accordingly."

This case under Section 145 has been lingering on unnecessarily and dates are being fixed in the hope that the civil suit might be disposed of or the temporary injunction vacated.

The disputed property i.e. Babri Mosque/Janam Bhumi

premises are already in possession of the receiver Sri Priya Dat Ram appointed by the Additional City Magistrate under his order dated 29th December, 1949 referred to above and the said receiver has been looking after the property since 5.1.1950, the date of assuming charge. As the finding of the civil court will be binding on the criminal court, it is no use starting proceedings in this case under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and recording evidence specially when a temporary injunction stands, as it cannot be said what may be finding of this Court after recording the evidence of the parties. From the administrative point of view the property is already under attachment and no breach of peace can occur.

I, therefore, order that the file under Section 145 Cr.P.C. be consigned to record as it is and will be taken out for proceeding further when the temporary injunction is vacated.

O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989

Sunni Central Board of Wakf Vs. Sri Gopal Singh Visharad

Connected with

O.O.S. No. 1 of 1989,

O.O.S. No. 3 of 1989,

AND

O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989

The basic issue in all the suits is as to whether there was a Hindu temple or any Hindu religious structure existed and the alleged Babri Masjid was constructed after demolishing such temple at the site in question.

www.vadaprativada.com

Issue No. 1 (b) in O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989 Sunni Central Board of Wakf Vs. Sri Gopal Singh Visharad reads as under:-

> "Whether the building has been constructed on the site of an alleged Hindu Temple after demolishing the same as alleged by defendant No. 13?"

Issue No. 14 in O.O.S. No.5 of 1989 Bhagwan Sri Ram Virajman and others Vs. Rajendra Singh and others reads as under:-

> "Whether the disputed structure claimed to be Babri Masjid was erected after demolishing Janma Sthan Temple at its site?"

The Hon'ble President of India had referred the following question to the Supreme Court under Article 143 of the Constitution:-

www.vadaprativada.com

"Whether a Hindu Temple or any Hindu religious structure existed prior to the construction of the Ram Janm Bhoomi Babri Masjid (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure) in the area on which the structure stood?"

The Archaeological Science can help to resolve the question. In the modern age the Archaeological Science has achieved the great accuracy and points out from the excavation the past history particularly in regard to the past existence of the construction. Sri D.Mandal in his Book "AYODHYA ARCHAEOLOGY AFTER DEMOLITION" has opined as follows:-

"However, archeology can answer with a considerable degree of certainty, many questions about various past activities of people, for which material evidence is available. It is for this reason that archaeological research continues and is of importance. It is believed that sufficient archaeological material is available regarding the temple-mosque issue, pre-empting the need for further excavations at Ayodhya." (page 16)

He further states that "Archaeology does not generally deal with super structures, as these seldom remain standing and awaiting excavation. All that usually remains of structures is their foundations. It may well be that demolition notwithstanding, the remains of the foundations of the walls of the mosque are still in situ." (page 52)

If there was any temple or religious constructions on the disputed site or if it ever existed, foundation can be traced by excavation.

If it is ultimately decided to excavate the disputed land, in that event the excavation will be done by the Archaeological Survey of India under the supervision of five eminent Archaeologists (Excavators), even though retired, including two Muslims and the following procedure may be adopted.

(1) The videography of excavation work be done and if any artifacts are found, their photographs (coloured as well as black and white and slides) may be taken. Such artifacts/materials, if found, may be kept under the custody of the State of U.P.

(2) Complete documentation as sites, artifacts be done properly.

(3) The debris of disputed structure as existing after its demolition shall be removed.

(4) The excavation or removal of the debris may be done between 9.00 A.M. to 5.00 P.M.

(5) The Court may appoint observer for the excavation work.

(6) At present at the disputed site the idol of "Shri Ramlala" has been placed and its devotees are

www.vadaprativada.com

worshiping, it may be placed at the Chabutra situate east to the site till the excavation work is complete.

Before the final orders are issued in above terms, all the parties are invited to submit in writing, within two weeks, their views/suggestions.

We make it clear that the above proposal in regard to excavation is tentative till final decision is taken on this issue.

In the meantime before excavation, the Archaeological Survey of India will survey the disputed site by Ground-Penetrating Radar or Geo-Radiology and obtain the report with the aid including financial assistance by the Central Government of India.

O.O.S. NO. 4 OF 1989

Sunni Central Board of Waqfs & Others

Versus

Gopal Singh Visharad (now deceased) & Others

Hon'ble Sudhir Narain, J.
Hon'ble S.R. Alam, J.
Hon'ble Bhanwar Singh, J.

One of the important issues in the suit is whether there was any temple/structure which was demolished and mosque was constructed on the disputed site. We took the view that archaeological evidence will be of importance to decide such an issue. We had made a suggestion in regard to excavation of the site in question by an order date 1.8.2002 and invited the suggestions from the parties in this regard. It was further observed that till excavation order is passed the Archaeological Survey of India will get surveyed the disputed site by Ground Penetrating Radar and Geo-Radiology and will submit its report in this regard.

Certain objections were filed challenging our power to suo moto exercising such power. We rejected the objections on 23.10.2002 holding that the Court has power to suo moto summon any witness to record evidence, to summon any document from any person, to make local inspection or to appoint a commission for investigation if it thinks necessary or expedient in the interest of justice.

The Archaeological Survey of India placed the order for Ground Penetrating Radar Survey to Tojo-Vikas International Pvt. Ltd. It has conducted GPR survey and has submitted report along with annexures on 17th February 2003. the conclusion in the report is as follows:- (Numbering is done by us)

"1. In general terms, the main georadar features detected by the present survey are "anomaly alignments" across the main platform, north and south of the Sanctum Sanctorum extending to the Ram Chabutra area, the high amplitude "ringy sequence" towards the sough, and the mound structures to the east.

2. In their cross-section appearance and their areal pattern, the "anomaly alignments" may correspond to a wall foundation of some sort. In the Ram Chabutra area, the crossing patterns of those alignments and the different stratigraphic units from where they ((emerge)) suggest that they belong to successive construction periods rather than being contemporary to one another. As mentioned earlier, similar indications of successive structures are shown in other areas of the site such as shown on the example radar cross section 2 (Annex-D).

3. The ((ringy) and high amplitude)) sequence in the southern portion of Ram Chabutra area extends across the fences to the east to the main platform area to cover a rather large area. This sequence may be indicative of a flooring

structure of some sort, possibly stone slabs if its origin is ancient.

4. A third type of buried structures covers the entire eastern boundary of the site. It consists of buried mound structures with some internal texture or structure indicative of collapsed material. Similar types of anomalies have been detected to the south-west area just before the terrain slopes down.

5. Many small discrete anomalies have been detected at various depths – from 0.5 to 5.5 meters. Some of those anomalies appear to line up in some directions but could not be detected on some survey lines between them. As such they have been referred to "discontinuous alignment" on the geophysical interpretation map of Annex. A. They may correspond to pillars alignment, broken up sections of wall foundations or fortuitous patterns of independent objects or natural features.

6. In the zones of reworked material or rubbles indicated on the map, little penetration was achieved as the signal was severely scattered in those units. It is possibly that some of the trends or alignments stopping in those zones actually also extend further.

7. In the slope area to the west, which is undulating, filled with rubbles and steeply dipping, only small anomalies were detected at relatively shallow depths. They appear to line up

somewhat as indicated on the map; however, the wider line spacing and the poor data quality, on account of ground conditions in this area, due to bad coupling of the antenna with the ground, makes this interpretation difficult. This area as explained earlier is a debris zone where heterogeneous material was apparently dumped from the upper platform and the origin of those detected anomalies could also be debris.

8. We are also showing some indications on the map relative to the radar signal that are most probably related to geological factors such as dipping layers, recent fill sequence and zones of higher soil conductivity. They are part of the geophysical interpretation.

9. In conclusion, the GPR survey reflects, in general a variety of anomalies ranging from 0.5 to 5.5 meters in depth that could be associated with ancient and contemporaneous structures such as pillars, foundations walls slab flooring, extending over a large portion of the site. However, the exact nature of those anomalies has to be confirmed by systematic ground truthing, such as provided by archaeological trenching".

In para 9 of the report it is clearly stated that the exact nature of the structure, pillars, foundation walls, slab flooring etc. can be confirmed by excavation.

Learned counsel for the parties have filed objections to the report submitted by Tojo-Vikas International (Pvt.) Limited. They have also submitted their objections to the excavation as it was proposed in our order dated 1.8.2002.

We have heard Sri Abdul Mannan, Sri Zafaryab Jilani and Sri Mushtaq Ahmad Siddiqui learned counsel appearing for plaintiffs and, Sri Vireshwar Dwivedi, Sri M.M. Pandey, Sri R.L. Varma, Ranjana Agnihotri for the defendants in O.O.S. NO. 4 of 1989, Sri Ved Prakash appearing for the plaintiffs in O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 and Sri P.L. Misra appearing for plaintiffs of O.O.S. No. 1of 1989. We have also heard Sri D.S. Randhava appearing for Union of India and Sri R.S. Tripathi learned Standing Counsel for the State of U.P.

We deal with their objections in seriatum:

1. The first objection is that the report submitted by Tojo-Vikas International (Pvt.) Limited cannot be read as substantive evidence in the suit unless it is duly proved in accordance with law. It is urged that the persons who have prepared the report must be examined in the Court and secondly, the data collected by Tojo-Vika International (Pvt.) Limited should be made part of the record.

The report has been submitted on the basis of the results obtained by it by Ground Penetrating Radar system. The data is collected on the computer. It is reflection of Radar base and whenever any anomaly (in common parlance object) was found it has noted it. It is itself not conclusive and the report itself says that the measurements of Geo-Radar is based on the returning signals by a dielectric constant change. It is only guidance to an Archaeologist where to excavate. We are not recording any finding in regard to any foundation/construction on the basis of the report submitted by Tojo-Vikas International (Pvt.) Limited. The report itself states that the exact nature of anomalies/objects has to be confirmed by systematic truthing such as provided by archaeological trench.

2. The second objection of the learned counsel for the plaintiff is that the order of excavation will be in contravention of Section 7(2) of Acquisition of Certain Aria at Ayodhya Act, 1993 which reads as under:-

"7(2) – In managing the property vested in the Central Government under Section 3, the Central Government or the authorized person shall ensure that the position existing before the commencement of the Act in the area on which the structure (including the premises of the inner and outer courtyards of such structure), commonly known as the Ram Janma Bhumi – Babri Masjid, stood in village Kot Ram Chandra in Ayodhya, pargana Haveli Avadh, in Tahsil Faizabad Sadar, in the District of Faizabad of the State of Uttar Pradesh is maintained."

The aforesaid provision is a direction to the Central Government or the authorized person that it shall ensure that the position existing before the commencement of the Act in the area on which the structure, including the premises of inner and outer courtyards of such structure, commonly known as Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri Masjid is maintained. There is no direction for the Court restraining it in passing appropriate order in regard to trace out any evidenced, which is underneath the land.

3. The third objection is that Hon'ble Supreme Court passed an order on 24th October, 1994 in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui and others v. Union of India and others, (1994) 6 SCC 360, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraphs 86 and 87 directed for maintaining status quo. Further the judgment of the High Court dated 23rd February 1996 was challenged before the Hon'ble Supreme Court and in that appeal an order was passed on 10.5.1996 directing the parties to maintain status quo. It is contended that as Hon'ble Supreme Court has passed the order to maintain status quo, this Court should not do anything which amounts violation of the order passed by the Apex Court.

We have highest respect for the orders of the Apex Court. In our view the Apex Court has not restrained this Court from passing any order for excavation of the land in question to find the truth in regard to rival contentions of the parties. The order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court must be read in the context in which it was passed, namely, the parties should not raise any construction or do anything in regard to possession of the land till the matter is decided. We do not find that the excavation of the land in any way amounts to contravention of the order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. The parties themselves led archaeological evidence. They themselves say that archaeological evidence is important evidence to determine one of the important issues involved in the suit, namely, whether any religious structure existed prior to the disputed structure which has been demolished. In our order dated 1.8.2002 we have given detail reasons as to how foundation of walls, pillars etc. reflects upon the nature of construction. The earth may bear the testimony and the Court in appropriate circumstances can pass order for excavation of the land. The excavation is by digging the land and after it is dug, the earth is again filled in. Such excavation does not alter the nature of the land by putting any structure or in any way affecting the user of the land in future.

We, however, make clear, as observed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui's case (supra), that worship by Hindu devotees in the disputed area shall not be affected while excavation is in operation.

4. The fourth objection raised by Shri Vireshwar Dwivedi, Advocate is in regard to power of this Court to pass order for excavation. We have already discussed in detail on this aspect in our order dated 23rd October, 2002 that the Court has power to pass appropriate order for scientific investigation under Order XXVI Rule 10A of Code of Civil Procedure and in any case the principles under Order XVI Rule 4 and Order XVIII Rule 8 C.P.C. Read with Section 151 C.P.C. are applicable. We relied upon the decisions given in R.M.

Kanhaya Lal Bhargava and others – AIR 1966 SC 1899.

Considering the entire facts and circumstances the Archaeological Survey of India is directed to get the disputed site excavated as under:-

"The area shown in the report of the Commissioner submitted in Suit No. 2 of 1950 (OOS No. 1 of 1989) covering an area of approximately 100x100 shown in the map plan no. 1 referred to by letters A,B, C,D,E,F and thereafter northern portion up to the end of the raised platform and further to the west, south and east to the said site to the extent of 50 feet.

If it is necessary to excavate towards north or any area more than 50 feet to the disputed area, it can do so to find out the true position as regards to any foundation.

It is made clear that the archaeologists (excavators) shall not disturb any area where the idol of Shri Ram Lala is existing and approximately 10 feet around it and they shall not affect the worship of Shri Ram Lala and thus, status quo

as regards His Puja and worshippers' right of Darshan shall be maintained.

The excavation shall be done by Excavation Branch concerned specialized in excavation work within a period of one month from today. If they are engaged in other work it shall be suspended till the excavation in question is complete. If any additional staff is required the Archaeological Survey of India and Central Government shall provide it.

Tojo-Vikas International (Pvt.) Limited which has surveyed the site in question by GPR etc. shall assist the excavators by providing technical assistance at the time of excavation.

The work will commence within one week from today. The report will be submitted within one week from the date of completion of the excavation.

The archaeological Survey of India shall intimate the date of the commencement of the work to the Officer on Special Duty, Ram Janma Bhumi Babri Masjid. On receiving such information he shall intimate the date to the parties who can watch the excavation work.

Learned counsel for the parties can also appoint nominee including Archaeologist to watch the excavation work. IT is made clear that only one nominee of each contesting party at one time shall be entitled to remain present."

www.vadaprativada.com

Put up on 24th March, 2003 by which date the Archaeological Survey of India shall intimate to the Court of the progress made by it in regard to excavation.

Archaeological Survey of India
Introduction (pages 1 and 2)

The present excavation report deals with the excavation carried out by the Archaeological Survey of India during March-August 2003 at the disputed area of Rama-Janmabhumi-Babri Masjid located between Latitude 26º 47' 43.6" to 26º 47' 45.0" N and Longitude 82º 11' 31.1" to 82º 11' 39.9" E and around within the fifty feet limit. The excavated area is located in the town of Ayodhya in the district of Faizabad of Uttar Pradesh, within a close proximity of river Sarayu, on its right bank.

Topography and Climate

With the Ghaghra (ancient Gharghara) or Sarayu as the main river, the plain of the area are drained by seasonal water channels mostly flowing from north-west to south-east as per the general slope of the land and interspersed by numerous smaller water bodies where surface water gets collected after the rains. The region around Ayodhya along the river comes under its flood-plain having "scattered strips of alluvial land along the bank of the river which are very narrow in some parts and extensive in others. It is marked by large stretches of waste land covered with thick wild growth of jjhau (Tamarix) and Kasehri (thatching grass) providing shelter for wild animals. In this region the quality of soil varies from good clayee alluvium to pure white sand. The clay deposits yield a good rabi crop with very little labour but the kharif is usually precarious. The rest of the district is an upland in which wide expanses of cultivated fields are relieved only by habitations, with groves of mango and mahua and by small lakes and patches of dhak."

All the early geological formations have been buried to the depth of more than 300 meters due to Pleistocene and sub – recent alluvial deposits of rivers of the Indo-Gangetic system. The alluvium consists of inter-bedded deposits of sand, clay and gravel with varied thickness. The clay has been used for manufacturing bricks, tiles and pottery and "Inter-bedded with them also occur bands of kankar which is an irregular concretion of impure calcareous matter and occurs both in the nodular and block forms in almost all parts of the district, particularly in the vicinity of usar land. It is generally found in the same bed with clay in bands 10 to 30 feet thick occurring at depths varying from 20 to 70 feet below the surface." This calcareous mater has been used thoroughly in the past for lime making as well as in the form of structural blocks of buildings.

Ayodhya has a generally salubrious climate with four seasons round the year. The annual rainfall is 1026.5 mm having 45.3 average rainy days with rain of 2.5 mm or more mostly during monsoon. The average minimum temperature in January is about 8º C. (47º F.). Occasionally, it has been noticed that western cold waves bring down the temperature within a degree or two below the freezing point. Day temperature during summers in later May or early June reaches 46º C. (115º F). Violent dust and thunderstorms at times accompanied with hail are experienced in summer months.

High Court's Direction and GPR Survey

Hon'ble Special Full Bench of Allahabad High Court, Lucknow, in the matter of OOS No.4 of 1989- Sunni Central Board of Waqfs & others V/s Gopal Singh Visharad (now deceased) and others, took a view in the order dated 5 March, 2003 that archaeological evidence will be of importance to decide the issue "whether there was any temple/structuer which was demolished and mosque was constructed on the disputed sit" and observed that till excavation order is passed the Archaeological Survey of India will get the disputed site surveyed by Ground Penetrating Radar and

www.vadaprativada.com

Geo-radiology and will submit its report in this regard.

The Archaeological Survey of India placed the order for GPR Survey to Tojo-Vikas International (Pvt.) Ltd. (TVIPL), which conducted the GPR Survey and submitted its report along with annexures on 17.02.2003. The detailed GPR Survey was conducted "using State-of the -Art Ground Penetrating Radar ZOND-12 C. In addition to the GPR Survey, two resistivity profiles and many resistivity soundings were carried out. This survey was carried out from December 30, 2002 to January 17, 2003. The resistivity profiles and soundings were done to ensure the correctness of the depth single penetration in GPR and also to get a general idea about the nature of sub soil conductivity as GPR signal penetration gets largely affected by soil conductivity. The total area surveyed was about 3900 sq. meters demarcated by boundary slabs inscribed with the roman letters A, B, C, D, E, F, and thereafter northern portion to the end of the raised platform and further to the west, south and east the said site to the extent of 40 feet. The entire area was first mapped using DGPS (Differential Global Positioning System) and digital Total Station and a Geo-referenced Bse Map were prepared. Then the entire area was physically marked and divided into a 1 x 1 meter grid. The GPR Survey was carried out on this grid using 100 MHz high power antenna and 300 and 500 Mhz antennas." (Final Report on GPR Survey of the Disputed Site at Ayodhya, Abstract, p.2).

Pages No. (6 and 7)

Considering the entire facts and circumstances, the Archaeological Survey of India was directed by the Hon'ble Court through order dated 05.03.2003 to excavate disputed site as under:-

"The area shown in the report of the Commissioner submitted in Suit No.2 of 1950 (O.O.S No.1 of 1989) covering an area of approximately 100 x 100 shown in the map plan No. 1 referred to by letters A, B, C, D, E, F and thereafter northern portion up to the end of the raised platform and further to the west, south and east to the said site to the extent of 50 feet.

"If it is necessary to excavate towards north or any area more than 50 feet to the disputed area, it can do so to find the true position as regards to any foundation.

"It is made clear that the archaeologists (excavators) shall not disturb any area where the idol of Shri Ram Lala is existing and approximately 10 feet around it and they shall not affect the worship of Shri Ram Lala and thus, status quo as regards His Puja and worshippers' right of Darshan shall be maintained.

"The excavation shall be done by Excavation Branch concerned specialized in excavation work within a period of one month from today. If they are engaged in other work it shall be suspended till the excavation in question is complete. If any additional staff is required the Archaeological Survey of India and Central Government shall provide it.

"Tojo-Vikas International (Pvt.) Limited which has surveyed the site in question by GPR etc. shall assist the excavators by providing technical assistance at the time of excavation.

"The work will commence within one week from today. The report will be submitted within one week from the date of completion of the excavation.

"The archaeological Survey of India shall intimate the date of the commencement of the work to the Officer on Special Duty, Ram Janma Bhumi-Babri-masjid. On receiving such information he shall intimate the date to the parties who can watch the excavation work.

"Learned counsel for the parties can also appoint nominees including Archaeologist to watch the excavation work. It is made clear that only one nominee of each contesting party at one time shall be entitled to remain present."

"Put up on 24th March 2003 by which date the Archaeological Survey of India shall intimate to the Court of the progress made by it in regard to excavation."

In compliance of the Hon'ble High Court's direction, The

www.vadaprativada.com

Director General, Archaeological Survey of India, Janpath, New Delhi formed a 14 member team headed by Dr. B.R. Mani, Superintending Archaeologist, Archaeological Survey of India to start excavation at the disputed site vide letter no. F. No. 29/01/95-Pt IV, Dated 08.03.2003, addressed to Shri Narendra Prasad, OSD, Ram Janma Bhumi, Lucknow.

Pages No. 268-272

Excavation at the deputed site of Rama Janmabhumi-Babri Masjid was carried out by the Archaeological Survey of India from 12 March 2003 to 7 August 2003. During this period, as per the directions of the Hon'ble High Court, Lucknow, 82 trenches were excavated to verify the anomalies mentioned in the report of the Ground Penetrating Radar Survey which was conducted at the site prior to taking up the excavations. A total number of 82 trenches along with some of their baulks were checked for anomalies and anomaly alignments. The anomalies were confirmed in the trenches in the form of pillar bases, structures, floors and foundation though no such remains were noticed in some of them at the stipulated depths and spots. Besides the 82 trenches, a few more making a total of 90 finally were also excavated keeping in view the objective fixed by the Hon'ble High Court to confirm the structures.

The result of the excavation are summarized as hereunder :-

The Northern Black Polished Ware (NBPW) using people were the first to occupy the disputed site at Ayodhya. During the first millennium B.C. Although no structural activities were encountered in the limited area probed, the material culture is represented by terracotta figurines of female deities showing archaic features, beads of terracotta and glass, wheels and fragments of votive tanks etc. The ceramic industry has the collection of NBPW, the main diagnostic trait of the period besides the grey, black slipped and red wares. A round signet with legend in Asokan

www.vadaprativada.com

Brahmi is another important find of this level. On the basis of material equipment and 14 C dates, this period may be assigned to circa 1000 B.C. To 300 B.C.

The Sunga horizon (second-first century B.C.) comes next in the order of the cultural occupation at the site. The typical terracotta mother goddess, human and animal figurines, beads, hairpin, engraver etc. represent the cultural matrix of this level. The pottery collection includes black slipped, red and grey wares etc. The stone and brick structure found from this level mark the beginning of the structural activity at the site.

The Kushan period (first to third century A.D.) followed the Sunga occupation. Terracotta human and animal figurines, fragments of votive tanks, beads, antimony rod, hair pin, bangle fragments and ceramic industry comprising red ware represent the typical Kushan occupation at the site. Another important feature of this period is the creation of large sized structures as witnessed by the massive structure running into twenty two courses.

The advent of Guptas (fourth to sixth century A.D.) did not bring any qualitative change in building activity although the period is known for its Classical artistic elements. However, this aspect is represented by the typical terracotta figurines and a copper coin with the legend Sri Chandra (Gupta) and illustrative potsherds.

During the Post-Gupta-Rajput period (seventh to tenth century A.D.), too the site has witnessed structural activity mainly constructed of burnt bricks. However, among the exposed structures, there stands a circular brick shrine which speaks of its functional utility for the first time. To recapitulate quickly, exteriorly on plan, it is circular whereas internally squarish with an entrance from the east. Though the structure is damaged, the northern wall still retains a provision for pranala, i.e, waterchute which is distinct feature of contemporary temples already known from the Ganga-Yamuna plain.

Subsequently, during the early medieval period (eleventh-

twelfth century A.D.) a huge structure, nearly 50 m in north-south orientation was constructed which seems to have been short lived, as only four of the fifty pillar bases exposed during the excavation belong to this level with a brick crush floor. On the remains of the above structure was constructed a massive structure with at least three structural phases and three successive floors attached with it. The architectural members of the earlier short lived massive structure with stencil cut foliage pattern and other decorative motifs were reused in the construction of the monumental structure having a huge pillared hall (or two halls) which is different from residential structures, providing sufficient evidence of a construction of public usage which remained under existence for a long time during the period VII (Medieval-Sultanate level-twelfth to sixteenth century A.D.). It was over the top of this construction during the early sixteenth century, the disputed structure was constructed directly resting over it. There is sufficient proof of existence of a massive and monumental structure having a minimum dimension of 50 x 30 m in north-south and east-west directions respectively just below the disputed structure. In course of present excavations nearly 50 pillar bases with brick bat foundation, below calcrete blocks topped by sandstone blocks were found. The pillar bases exposed during the present excavation in northern and southern areas also give an idea of the length of the massive wall of the earlier construction with which they are associated and which might have been originally around 60 m (of which the 50 m length is available at present). The centre of the central chamber of the disputed structure falls just over the central point of the length of the massive wall of the preceding period which could not be excavated due to presence of Ram Lala at the spot in the make-shift structure. This area is roughly 15 x 15 m on the raised platform. Towards east of this central point a circular depression with projection on the west, cut into the large sized brick pavement, signify the place where some important object was placed. Terracotta lamps from the various trenches and found in a group in the levels of Periods VII in trench G2 are associated with the structural phase.

In the last phase of the period VII glazed ware sherds make their appearance and continue in the succeeding levels of the next periods where they are accompanied by glazed tiles which were probably used in the original construction of the disputed structure. Similarly is the case of celadon and porcelain sherds recovered in a very less quantity they come from the secondary context. Animal bones have been recovered from various levels of different periods, but skeletal remains noticed in the trenches in northern and southern areas belong to the period IX as the grave pits have been found cut into the deposition coeval with the late disputed structures and are sealed by the top deposit.

It is worthwhile to observe that the various structures exposed right from the Sunga to Gupta period do not speak either about their nature of functional utility as no evidence has come to approbate them. Another noteworthy feature is that it was only during and after Period IV (Gupta level) onwards upto Period IX (late and post Mughal level) that the regular habitational deposits disappear in the concerned levels and the structural phases are associated with either structural debris or filling material taken out from the adjoining area to level the ground for construction purpose. As a result of which much of the earlier material in the form of pottery, terracottas and other objects of preceding periods, particularly of Period I (NBPW level) and Period III (Kushan level) are found in the deposits of later periods mixed along with their contemporary material. The area below the disputed site thus, remained a place for public use for a long time till the Period VIII (Mughal level) when the disputed structure was built which was confined to a limited area and population settled around it as evidenced by the increase in contemporary archaeological material including pottery. The same is further attested by the conspicuous absence of habitational structures such as house-complexes, soakage pits, soakage jars, ring

wells, drains, wells, hearths, kilns or furnaces etc. from Period IV (Gupta level) onwards and in particular from Period VI (Early Medieval-Rajput level) and Period VII (Medieval-Sultanate level).

The site has also proved to be significant for taking back its antiquarian remains for the first time to the middle of the thirteenth century B.C. (1250 ± 130 B.C.) on the analogy of the C14 dates. The lowest deposit above the natural soil represents the NBPW period and therefore the earliest remains may belong to the thirteenth century B.C. Which is confirmed by two more consistent C14 dates from the NBPW level (Period I), viz. 910 ± 100 B.C. And 880 ± 100 B.C.) These dates are from trench G&. Four more dates from the upper deposit though showing presence of NBPW and associated pottery are determined by Radio-Carbon dating as 780 ± 80 B.C., 710 ± 90 B.C., 530 ± 70 B.C. And 320 ± 80 B.C. In the light of the above dates in association with the Northern Black Polished Ware (NBPW) which is generally accepted to be between circa 600 B.C. To 300 B.C. it can be pushed back to circa 1000 B.C. And even if a solitary date, three centuries earlier is not associated with, NBPW, the human activity at the site dates back to circa thirteenth century B.C. on the basis of the scientific dating method providing the only archaeological evidence of such an early date of the occupation of the site.

The Hon'ble High Court, in order to get sufficient archaeological evidence on the issue involved "whether there was any temple/structure which was demolished and mosque was constructed on the disputed site" as stated on page 1 and further on P. 5 of their order dated 5th March, 2003, had given directions to the Archaeological Survey of India to excavate at the disputed site where the GPR Survey has suggested evidence of anomalies which could be structure, pillars, Foundation walls, slab flooring etc. which could be confirmed by excavation. Now, viewing in totality and taking into account the archaeological evidence of a massive structure just below the disputed structure and evidence of continuity in structural phases from the tenth century onwards up to the construction of the disputed structure along with the yield of stone and decorated bricks as well as mutilated sculpture of divine couple and carved architectural members including foliage patterns, amalaka, kapotapali doorjamb with semi-circular pilaster, broken octagonal shaft of black schist pillar, lotus motif, circular shrine having pranala (waterchute) in the north, fifty pillar bases in association of the huge structure, are indicative of remains which are distinctive features found associated with the temples of north India.

1. By this order, we are disposing of the objections/additional objections against the report of Archaeological Survey of India (for short ASI), which it filed under sub-rule (1) of Rule 10, of Order XXVI of the Code of Civil Procedure (hereinafter referred to as the Code), in compliance of our order dated March 5, 2003.

2. One of the Central or core issues, to be decided by this Court in these four title civil suits, is as to whether the disputed structure namely Babri Masjid was built after demolishing a Hindu Temple. Vide orders dated August 1,2002 and October 23, 2002, we asked the ASI to carry out Ground Penetrating Survey/Geo Radiology Survey (GPR), of approximately 100 x 100 area of the disputed land, so as to ascertain possibility of proof of remnants of some earlier structure. In compliance of these orders, the ASI with the help of Tozo Vikas international Pvt. Ltd. undertook this exercise and submitted a report to the Court somewhere in February, 2003, indicating as many 184 anomalies, some of which find mention on pages 19 to 36 of ASI Report Volume-I. After considering this report and the views of the respective parties, this Court suo moto passed a detailed order on March 5, 2003, issuing a Commission to ASI under Order XXVI of the Code, to investigate into the matter by excavating the relevant area of the disputed land as indicated in the order and submit a report. Considering the sensitive nature of the dispute, the Court provided certain safeguards to ensure transparency in the task of ASI. Besides others, the Court permitted the parties or their counsels to remain present on the spot during the course of excavation proceedings. The Court also asked ASI to photograph and video-graph the process of excavation and to maintain record pertaining thereto. As it was not practicable for the Court to note and sort out day to day hurdles and objections, so it appointed two experienced judicial officers of Faizabad Judgeship to act as observer and obtain orders of the Court wherever the need might be.

3. A 14 members team of ASI initially headed by Dr. B.R. Mani, Superintending Archaeologist and subsequently by Sri Hari Majhi, Director (Antiquity) assisted by several officials of the Public Works Department and labourers, took about five months period (from March 12 to August 7, 2003) in carrying out the excavation work and thereafter submitted a bulky report in two volumes together with 45 site note-books, 12 albums containing 329 black and white photographs, w8 albums having coloured photographs, 11, video-cassettes (VHS), digital photographs in compact disc (6 DVD cassettes), Registers of Pottery, unsealed bones, architectural objects stored in tin-shed at the excavated site, individual list of 9 boxes containing bones, glazed-wares, antiquities etc. day to day Registers, Antiquity Registers.

4. Salient Features of ASI Report

"Volume-1 (Text), contains ten chapters, namely, Chapter-I Introduction, Chapter-IV Structure, Chapter-V Pottery, Chapter-VI Architectural Fragments, Chapter-VII Terracotta Figurines, Chapter VIII Inscriptions, Seal, Sealings & Coins, Chapter-IX Miscellaneous Objects and Chapter-X Summary of Results, running into 309 pages, appendices etc. With a view to verify 184 anomalies so pointed out in GPR Survey Report dated 17.02.2003, the ASI dug as many as 90 trenches, separated from each other by 0.50 M baulk all around ranging from 0.50 to 5.5 meter in depth, after dividing

the entire area into five parts namely (1) The Eastern Area (2) The Southern Area (3) The Western Area (4) The Northern Area and (5) The Raised platform. Of 184 anomalies so indicated in GPR Survey, 39 were found confirmed at specified depth and location, 74 were not found in spite of digging up to required depth and remaining 44 could not be probed owing to unavoidable constraints. The details of anomalies so verified by ASI can be seen on pages 19-36 of Volume-I.

5. The total deposit of about 10.80 m thick, was divided into 9 cultural periods namely (1) Period-I (Northern Balck Polished Ware Level referring to period prior to 200 B.C.) (2) Period-II (Sunga Level referring to 200 B.C. to 100 A.D.) (3) Period-III (Kushan Level referring to 100-300 A.D. (4) Period-IV (Gupta Level 400-600 A.D. (5) Period-V (Post Gupta Rajpur Level 700-1000 A.D. (6) Period-VI (early Medieval-Pre Sultanate Level 1100-1200 A.D. (7) Period-VII (Medieval Level 1200 to the beginning of 1600 A.D., (8) Period-VIII (Mughal Level and (9) Perood-IX (Late and Post Mughal Level). According to the description given on pages 38-46 of Volume-I, period-I yielded only broken weights fragments of votive tanks, ear-studs discs, hopscoches, a wheel made on disc, broken animal figurine (all in terracotta), an iron knife (broken), glass beads, bone point having no bearing on the point in issue. It was Period-II which indicated for the first time structural activity in stone and brick as noted in trench No.J 3. The Period -III (Kushan Level), evidenced huge-kiln, animal and human figurines, bangle fragements votive tank (all in terracotta), a hairpin in bone, a massive brick construction running into 22 courses at the bottom of Trench Nos. J 5 - J 6. Gupta Level was found to have 2M thick deposit, represented by layers 7 and 8 in Tr.N.G-7, layers No.9 and 10 in Tr. J5, J 6, layers No.7 and 8 in Tr.N.E-8 and F-8. It was from layer No.8 of Tr. No.G.7 that a Coin was recovered bearing image of king on obverse side and that of Garuda on the reverse side. The ASI reports in para-I of page-40 that it appeared that with a view to raise the level of the land, earth excavated from nearby area of the mound was utilized at this level as pottery and wares of early period were also found. The Period-V (Post Gupta-Rajpur Level) is said to have yielded a "Subsidiary Circular Shrine from baulk of Tr. Nos. E 8 and F 8 (figure 24 and 24-A of Vol.1), which according to ASI was built around 1000 A.D. And could be associated with Lord Shiva, as the shrine had water-parashute (parnala) towards north, resembling with chirenath brick temple of Shrawasti (U.P.), circular Shiva Temples near Rewa in M.P. At chardreha and mason, belonging to 950 A. D. and temples at Kurari and Tindauli in District Fatehpur (U.P.). The ASI says on page 41 of Vol. 1 that Period-VI, evidenced a massive north-south oriented brick wall (No. 17), markedly inclined towards east) in Tr. No.D-7, E-2, E-1 and ZF-1, possibly built around 1100-1200 A.D. Period-VII is said to have evidenced existence of a massive wall-16 in north-south orientation having length of about 150 feet, and also pillar bases towards east of this wall. The ASI says that a column based massive structure might have been raised on wall-16 and the 50 pillars, bases of which were noticed. This wall-16, which according to ASI was built around the end of 12$^{th}$ Century A.D., was having niches (Mehrab) facing towards east and was above the level of wall-17 (page-68). In sub-period-B of Period -VII there was found "a circular depression"(ghata shaped) (see plate 67) made by cutting the large brick pavement having the diameter of 1.05 m with a rectangular projection of 0.46 x 0.32 m towards west in the centre of the pavement, (if the central point was calculated on the basis of extent of length of wall-16 or wall-17 and longitudinal length of the alignment of pillar bases from north to south) suggesting as if the place was of importance (see page-42 of Report). The period -VIII (Mughal Level) having total ghickness of 23 to 25 cm., evidenced disputed structure-3. Its western wall-5 measuring 3.0m wide having five courses of calcrete blocks with occasional use of sand stone bricks, was found to be resting on wall-16 (see page-52, plate 24

and figure-5). Southern foundation wall-6 of disputed structure was found, resting over two pillar bases of earlier period (pillar base No. 34, 35, plate No.30 and also see page 52 of Vol.1). This wall-6 had three courses of clacrete blocks. It was taking turn at south-east corner forming wall-7 of eastern side of southern chamber of structure-3. Wall-7 in front of southern chamber of the disputed structure-3, rested over three pillar bases of the earlier period (see figure-6 of Vol.I). Width of this Wall-7 was 1.54 m with entrance to southern chamber having a gap of 2.65 m. Wall-8 that is northern wall of southern chamber of the disputed structure was 8.3 m. in length with an entrance to central chamber. The ASI could not probe into the site of central chamber, due to its close proximity to makeshift temple of Ram Lalla.

6. Reference to other salient features of ASI Report, can conveniently be made, by reproducing chapter X of Volume-I, which not only describes the features referred to above but also other such features which according to ASI, have some importance. Chapter X, reads as under:-

"Excavation at the deputed site of Rama Janmabhumi-Babri Masjid was carried out by the Archaeological Survey of India from 12 March 2003 to 7 August 2003. During this period, as per the directions of the Hon'ble High Court, Lucknow, 82 trenches were excavated to verify the anomalies mentioned in the report of the Ground Penetrating Radar Survey which was conducted at the site prior to taking up the excavations. A total number of 82 trenches along with some of their baulks were checked for anomalies and anomaly alignments. The anomalies were confirmed in the trenches in the form of pillar bases, structures floors and foundation though no such remains were noticed in some of them at the stipulated depths and spots. Besides the 82 trenches, a few more making a total of 90 finally were also excavated keeping in view the objective fixed by the Hon'ble High Court to confirm the structures.

The result of the excavation are summarized as hereunder:-

It is worthwhile to observe that the various structures exposed right from the Sunga to Gupta period do not speak either about their nature of functional utility as no evidence has come to approbate them. Another noteworthy feature is that it was only during and after Period IV (Gupta level) onwards upto Period IX (late and post Mughal level) that the regular habitational deposits disappear in the concerned levels and the structural phases are associated with either structural debris or filling material taken out from the adjoining area to level the ground for construction purpose. As a result of which much of the earlier material in the form of pottery, terracottas and other objects of preceding periods, particularly of Period I (NBPW level) and Period III (Kushan level) are found in the deposits of later periods mixed along with their contemporary material. The area below the disputed site thus, remained a place for public use for a long time till the Period VIII (Mughal level) when the disputed

structure was built which was confined to a limited area and population settled around it as evidenced by the increase in contemporary archaeological material including pottery. The same is further attested by the conspicuous absence of habitational structures such as house-complexes, soakage pits, soakage jars, ring wells, drains, wells, hearths, kilns or furnaces etc. from Period IV (Gupta level) onwards and in particular from Period VI (Early Medieval-Rajput level) and Period VII (Medieval-Sultanate level).

The site has also proved to be significant for taking back its antiquarian remains for the first time to the middle of the thirteenth century B.C. (1250 ± 130 B.C.) on the analogy of the C14 dates. The lowest deposit above the natural soil represents the NBPW period and therefore the earliest remains may belong to the thirteenth century B.C. Which is confirmed by two more consistent C14 dates from the NBPW level (Period I), viz. 910 ± 100 B.C. And 880 ± 100 B.C.) These dates are from trench G&. Four more dates from the upper deposit though showing presence of NBPW and associated pottery are determined by Radio-Carbon dating as 780 ± 80 B.C., 710 ± 90 B.C., 530 ± 70 B.C. And 320 ± 80 B.C. In the light of the above dates in association with the Northern Black Polished Ware (NBPW) which is generally accepted to be between circa 600 B.C. To 300 B.C. it can be pushed back to circa 1000 B.C. And even if a solitary date, three centuries earlier is not associated with, NBPW, the human activity at the site dates back to circa thirteenth century B.C. on the basis of the scientific dating method providing the only archaeological evidence of such an early date of the occupation of the site.

The Hon'ble High Court, in order to get sufficient archaeological evidence on the issue involved "whether there was any temple/structure which was demolished and mosque was constructed on the disputed site" as stated on page 1 and further on P. 5 of their order dated 5th March, 2003, had given directions to the Archaeological Survey of India to excavate at the disputed site where

the GPR Survey has suggested evidence of anomalies which could be structure, pillars, Foundation walls, slab flooring etc. which could be confirmed by excavation. Now, viewing in totality and taking into account the archaeological evidence of a massive structure just below the disputed structure and evidence of continuity in structural phases from the tenth century onwards up to the construction of the disputed structure along with the yield of stone and decorated bricks as well as mutilated sculpture of divine couple and carved architectural members including foliage patterns, amalaka, kapotapali doorjamb with semi-circular pilaster, broken octagonal shaft of black schist pillar, lotus motif, circular shrine having pranala (waterchute) in the north, fifty pillar bases in association of the huge structure, are indicative of remains which are distinctive features found associated with the temples of north India."

7. Volume-II contains photographs, (referred to as plates in the report of 235 objects/finds such as Ram Chabutra (Plates No. 14, 15, 16, 17), makara Pranala (Plate No.23), Southern wall of disputed structure resting over an earlier brick wall (Plate No.24), North-South oriented wall with plastered inner face (Plate No.29), Pillar-bases (Plate Nos. 35, 36, 37, 38, 42, 43, 44, 46, 47), a niche in north-south oriented brick-wall (plate no.52), Excavated graves in northern area (plate no. 58), partly damaged east facing brick built circular shrine (plate No. 59), Chirenath brick Temple of Shrawasti (plate no. 60), Ghata-shaped pit cut into large brick paving (plate no.67), glazed-ware large bowl (plate no.72), Rechiseled lotus medallion (plate no. 79), amalka stone (plate no.81), intact pillar with ghata-pallava (plate no. 82), broken Jamb with semi-circular pilaster (plate no. 85), architectural member with srivatsa motif stone (plate no. 88) glazed tiles fragments, terracotta (plates no. 99, 100, 101,102), smiling human head terracotta (plate no. 120), coins (plates no. 144 to 172), large amalaka shaped bead terracotta (plate no. 188), votive tank terracotta (plate no. 224), Divine couple stone (plate no. 235).

8. Main objections against the ASI report

The Sunni Central Board of Waqfs (plaintiff in O.O.S. No.4 of 1989) Mohd. Hashim (defendant No.5 in O.O.S. No.5 of 1989), Mahmood Ahmad (plaintiff No.9 in O.O.S. No.4 of 1989) and defendants No.6/1 & 6/2 in Suit No.3/1989 have filed separate objections/additional objections contending inter alia that ASI report should not form part of evidence and should be rejected out rightly for the following reasons.

1. that the report is one sided and is greatly influenced by certain preconceived theory or notions;

2. that ASI has adopted a biased and selective approach, as is evident from the fact that importance and impact of presence of several animal bones having cut marks, recovered from different floor levels of the respective trenches, has purposely and designedly been kept out of consideration and had the same been scientifically studied and the result taken into consideration, it would have not been possible for ASI to opine that things found were indicative of remains which are distinctive features found associated with temples of north India;

3. that in spite of clear cut directions of this Court to file all the papers-documents relating to the excavation, the ASI not only delayed the filing of certain relevant documents, but also destroyed the notes prepared by it at the time of study/analysis of various finds/architectural objects, which raises a grave doubt about the veracity of report;

4. that while the names of the authors of chapter 1 to IX are mentioned, but it is not known as to who authored chapter X captioned “summary of results” and so the whole of Chapter X deserves to be scored out from the report and cannot be allowed to form part of the evidence;

5. that on complaint, this Court directed that Sri B.R. Mani should not head the excavation team and in compliance of those orders Sri Hari Manjhi was deputed to head the team, but it is not know as to how Sri B.R. Mani continued his association with the task of excavation and how he co-authored the report;

6. that periodization done by ASI in Chapter III captioned "stratigraphy and Chronology" (pages 37 to 47 of Vol. 1) has no scientific basis;

7. that in absence of concordance of different layers/floors of respective trenches with each other, the basis of the report itself becomes doubtful;

8. that the report is full of inconsistencies and discrepancies and the conclusions therein appear to have been tailored to support a particular theory;

9. that theory of existence of massive structure on wall-16 and the 50 pillars, as shown in figure 23-B page 42-C of Volume I, is a concoction and unacceptable for the reasons inter alia that there were no pillar-bases and the same had no alignment with each other nor were at the same level nor had capacity to support load bearing pillars;

10. that theory of massive structure is totally ill-founded because ASI report is silent on the point as to where were the remaining three walls of that structure, if wall 16 was one of the walls;

11. that so called "circular shrine" (which according to ASI, had a waterchute in the north and could be associated with Lord Shiva) could also be a structure relating to Buddhism or Jainism, as considering the thin passage and little diameter, it was not possible for even a single person to enter and offer "Abhishekha";

12. that ASI has, without any firm basis, characterized mutilated stone sculpture (plates 235 of Vol. II of the report) as 'divine couple' and appears to have invented it at some later stage, as reference to it does not find in corresponding Site note-book or Day to Day Register;

13. that pillar door jam, octagonal shaft of pillars, amalka, divine couple stone with Srivatsa motif, lotus medallion, which ASI has taken into consideration for saying that there were remains of

temple on the site in question, were of no significance as the same has been recovered from debris;

14. that alleged Srivatsa (see Plate No. 88) could equally be associated with Jainism and lotus with Buddhism and Islamic religion;

15. that terracotta figurines (62 human & 131 animal) discovered from different trenches, belonged to ancient period and had no relevance;

16. that glazed-wares and glazed-tiles so recovered during the course of excavation spoke against the theory of existence of temple as all these were found below floor No.4 relating to Medieval Sultanat period;

17. that in view of what has been written by S.K. Meermira in his book “Indian Pottery” glazed tiles were proof of Muslim habitation;

18. that wall-16 had niches (mehrab) on the inner side which are distinctive features of Islamic building and even if it is accepted that the same existed prior to construction of Babri Masjid, the same could have been a Idgah or Kanati (roofless mosque);

19. that no idol, or statue of any Hindu deity and no object of Hindu worship was found on the site so as to entitle the ASI to say that there were remains of existence of temple of north India;

20. that how the conclusions of ASI came in the Indian Express in its issue of 13.8.2003, much before 22.08.2003, when the report was filed in Court an that indicates that ASI tailored the report on the lines given in S.P. Gupta's book titled “Ayodhya Puratatva Evam Itihas.”

9. Nirmohi Akhara (defendant No.3 in O.O.S. No.3 of 1989) filed its objection saying that some more area towards east of trenches NO.G-2,G-3,G-4 & G-5 should have been excavated so as to reach a correct conclusion. It however supports the ASI report.

10. The other side has also filed replies to these objections and additional objections, saying that objections are for the sake of objections and are not sufficient enough to reject the ASI report.

11. The Court had the advantage of hearing Sri Sidharth Shanker Ray, the learned Senior Advocate, Sri Z.Jilani, Sri Mustaq Ahmad Siddiqui, Sri Abdul Mannan and Sri Irfan Ahmad, appearing for the objectors, Sri Krishna Murti, the learned Senior Advocate, Sri R.L. Verma, Sri Bireshwar Nath Dwivedi, Sri Madan Mohan Pandey, Sri P.L. Mishra, Sri Ved Prakash and Km. Ranjana Agnihotri, supporting the ASI Report.

12. Sri Sidharth Shanker Ray has argued that the ASI was asked to excavate the site and report as to whether the disputed structure was raised after demolishing any Hindu temple, but the ASI is silent on the point of alleged demolition of Hindu temple and so the report can not be said to be as per directions of the court and deserves to be rejected. Sri Ray goes on to argue by referring to Kalhans Raj Tarangini, written somewhere in 12th Century A.D., that a historian desiring to peep into the bygone age mus keep a detached mind, rather like a Judge, and must avoid both bias (Dwesh) and prejudice (Raga). The learned counsel says that selective approach of ASI would reveal that it could not keep itself detached and unbiased. The learned counsel has also taken the Court through relevant pages especially pages 142, 143 of "Indian Archaeology in retrospect Vol. IV Archaeology and Historiography" edited by S. Settar Ravi Korisettar so as to say that one needs to adopt a critical openness of mind towards our pluralistic past and the present. Sri Ray has also referred to Chapter XIII captioned "The Evolution of the temple" of "Indian Architecture (Buddhist and Hindu Periods) written by PERCY BROWN, wherein the learned author says:

"The principal architectural features of the temple are as follows. Throughout the greater part of the country, the sanctuary as a whole is know as the vimana, of which the upper and pyramidal or tapering portion is called the sikhara, meaning tower or spite. Inside the vimana is a small and generally dark chamber or cella for the reception of the divine symbol. This cella is the garbha griha,

or "womb-house" and was entered by a doorway on its inner and usually, eastern side. In front of the doorway was a pillared hall, or mandapa, actually a pavilion for the assembly of those paying their devotions to the divine symbol in the cella. Some of the earlier temples indicate that the mandapa, was a detached building, isolated from the sanctuary by a definite open space, as in the "shore" temple at Mamallapuram, and originally in the Kailasanatha at Conjeeveram, both near Madras, and built about 700 A.D. A little later it became the custom to unite the two buildings, this forming an intermediate chamber, or vestibule, and called the antarala. Leading up to the main hall, or mandapa, is a porch or ardhamandapa, while there may be a transept on each side of this entral hall, known as the maha-mandapa. The most complete illustrations of the fully formed and co-ordinated temple structure, are the tenth century examples at Khajuraho, Central India, especially that known as the Kandariya Mahadeo (Chapter XXII). In this class of temple, each portion named above, has its separate pyramidal roof, rising in regular gradation, from the lowest over the porch (ardha-mandapa), to the lofty spire over the sanctum. In some parts of the country it became the practice to enclose the temple building within a rectangular courtyard by means of a continuous range of cells, facing inwards, the whole forming a substantial containing wall, and thus ensuring seclusion. One of the first temples of combine all these attributions, and to present a coordinated plan was that of the Vaikuntanath Perumal at Conjeeveram (cir. A.D. 740). Most of these early temples have a processional passage or pradak-shina patha consisting of an enclosed corridor carried around the outside of the cella."

13. Sri Ray wonders as to how in absence of these architectural features, ASI could opine about existence of temple of north India and how it could conceive existence of a "massive structure" in absence of other three walls, if wall-16 was one of the walls. According to Sri Ray, the story of existence of pillar bases which might have supported the pillar to bear the load of massive structure, is totally ill-founded for the simple reason that one of the pillar bases was having load bearing foundation nor was having alignment with each other nor being at the same level of the floor. He says that how is it that none of those alleged pillars said to have supported the massive structure, was found on the spot. Sri Ray says that alleged 'circular shrine' found in bulk of trench nos. E-8 and F-8, said to have been constructed in 10th century A.D., could not have been associated with Lord Shiva and could be associated with Lord Budha. Sri Ray goes on to argue that the passage was not sufficient enough to allow even one person to enter inside it and so the question of offering 'Abhishekh, could not have arisen. The learned counsel says that so called Parnala is nothing, but a space between the two rows of the bricks. According to Sri Ray, 'circular shrine' could also be said to be Ton, used to constructed by Jains, for commemorating Tirthankars. The learned counsel also contends that ASI did not apply its mind in giving the report and has not exhibited requisite "reasonableness" in terms of Wednesbury Principles, so deserves to be rejected. Sri Ray characterizes the report as intrinsically erroneous.

14. Sri Abdul Mannan, Sri Jilani, Sri M.A. Siddiqui and Sri Irfan Ahmad have also contended that the report being one sided, imaginative and unscientific and full of discrepancies, should not form part of the record. They argue, firstly there is no firm basis of say that western wall of disputed structure was resting on any pre-existing wall and secondly, even if it is accepted for the sake of argument that it was so, W-16 having niches could have been a Idgah or roofless mosque, as the question of construction of a temple after advent of Muslim Rule was unthinkable. They have also attacked theory of pillar bases, massive structure etc. and have criticized the ASI, for adopting partisan approach and in not considering the importance of animal-bones, having cut marks. It is argued that such a report must be rejected as placing it on record is likely to create confusion and increase the volume of evidence. The learned counsels have referred to certain judicial pronouncements to support their contentions that if the report is ex-facie absurd or unacceptable, has to be rejected before the Court gives its final verdict in the matter and unless the objections are considered and rejected, report can not be acted upon. We will deal with these judicial pronouncements at appropriate stage.

15. Sri Krishnamurty, Sri Veereshwar Dwivedi, Sri R.L. Verma, Sri M.M. Pandey, Sri Ved Prakash, Sri P.L. Misra and Km. Ranjana Agnihotri have submitted that there is no provision under Order XXVI of the Code, to reject the report of the commissioner and it becomes evidence under sub-rule (2) of Rule 10 without any express orders of the Court. Sri Krishnamurty has fairly conceded that the report of the commissioner such as the report of ASI in this case is not binding on the Court and has to be looked into in the light of other evidence. What Sri Krishnamurty says is that ASI report cannot be rejected simply on the ground of alleged bias, prejudice, selective approach etc., that too without giving an opportunity to ASI to explain its position. The learned counsel argues that allegations against ASI are totally ill-founded and in fact all possible transparency was observed as per directions of the Court and nothing was concealed from the parties or their counsels. It is argued that such a scientific investigation cannot be doubted on the basis of layman view and only expert can be pressed into service, to dispute the correctness of the contents of the report. The learned counsels supporting the ASI report and disputing the tenability of the objections against it, say that it has never been the case of objectors that there existed any Idgah or roofless mosque, earlier to the construction of disputed structure, and so they cannot say now that wall-16 could have been a wall of Idgah or roofless mosque. They say that no example of such roofless mosque or Idgah has been cited in the objections. The learned counsels have pointed out by referring to relevant portion of the Report and especially figure

3-B of volume-I, that there were found 17 rows of pillar-bases having five in each of the rows and these had load bearing foundation and so could have supported column based 'massive structure' in conjunction with wall-16. According to them, the objectors could not point out as to what architectural error the ASI committed or which widely accepted mode or method of excavation or analysis was violated by the ASI, in executing the task assigned to it. They have highlighted the same points which have been relied on by ASI for concluding that there were remains of temple on the site of the disputed structure. They say that possibility of bones in Hindu residences was not ruled out. The learned counsels have referred to certain judicial pronouncements so as to say that such a report cannot be rejected and must be looked into in the light of other evidence and the objections of the parties concerned. Sri R.L. Verma said some more area nearer to raised platform, should have been excavated so as to make things more clear.

Discussion and conclusion:

16. In considering the question as to whether ASI report should be rejected on the grounds raised in the objections or should the same be kept on record as a piece of evidence subject to these objections and evidence of the parties, this Court can not loose sight of the following aspects of the matter. The first thing which this Court would like to observe is that perhaps it was for the first time that any Court of law, issued a commission under Order XXVI of the Code, for investigation into a matter through a process of excavation of such a vast area covering about 100 feet X 100 feet area. The ASI itself says on page 9 of its report (see Vol. I) that in its career of more than 100 years, it was its first experience to execute a commission like this. The second aspect that we would like to highlight is that task assigned to ASI was not such, which could have been performed by a person or a body of persons, having no expertise in the field of archaeology. In other words the commission was not pure and simple under rule 9 of Order XXVI,

but also one under Rule 10-A. Another important feature of this commission is that the work assigned to ASI, was not only gigantic from the point of view of its volume, but was also otherwise sensitive. The enormity of the task can be gauged from the fact that team of more than a dozen officials of the department assisted by a number of labourers, took about five months in carrying out the excavation part and during this process dug as many as 90 trenches, ranging from 0.50 finds/archaeological objects. We were told during the course of arguments and rightly, so that once an area is subjected to such excavation, the second such exercise in the same area, is practically ruled out as the original position stands disturbed. This practical aspect has to be kept in mind, as no fresh commission for the same purpose is possible.

17. We do not find it necessary to refer to any judicial pronouncement on the point that commissioner's report under Rule 10 or 10-A of Order XXVI of the Code even if allowed to be a piece of evidence, is not binding on the court and its weight and evidentiary value is to be evaluated in the light of other evidence on record. Sri Krishnamurty has pointed out that provisions contained under Rules, 9,10 and 10-A of Order XXVI, do not envisage express orders of the court, for confirming or rejecting the report or for keeping it on record and according to sub-Rule (2) of Rule 10, it becomes evidence in the case without any orders of the Court. Some what similar views were echoed by a Division Bench of this Court in State of U.P. Vs. Smt. Ramshri and another AIR 1976 Allahabad, page 121. But Sri Krishnamurty was fair enough to concede that if Commissioner's report was absurd on the very face or was unacceptable on account of apparent flaw, the Court could refuse to treat it as evidence or to take it on record, in spite of the plain language of sub-rule (2) of Rule 10. The point can be more elaborated by giving one or two examples. Suppose a court issues a commission under rule 9, for investigating the matter relating to property 'A' and the commissioner files report about property 'B',

should not the court reject such a report? In an another case, a court asks the commissioner to prepare a survey map, and to report whether the disputed well situate in plot 'A' or 'B' and the commissioner prepares the survey map, with the help of disputed or unauthenticated settlement or municipal map or without taking any fixed points, should the court treat such a report and map as evidence in the case and thereby deprive itself of having assistance of a accurate survey map, in deciding the point in issue. What we want to say is that sub-rule (1) of Rule 10 should not be dissected or isolated from sub-rule (3) which indirectly hints at rejection of such a report, when it says 'where the court is for any reason dissatisfied with the proceedings of the commissioner, it may direct such further enquiry to be made as it thinks fit.' The observations of Privy Council, as made in Chandan Mall Vs. Chiman Lal AIR 1940 P.C. Page-3 and as construed by two learned Judges of this Court in Order dated 8.8.1991, passed in these very suits, also speak to the effect that where defects in the report are substantial and go to the root of the matter, it may be rejected, but where the defects are such that can be explained at the trial, it may be kept on record subject to the objections and evidence of the parties.

18. Relying on Parag Tools Corporation Ltd. Vs. Mahboobunissa Begum (Smt.) and others (2001) 6 SCC 238, Amarnath Tandon Vs. G.K. Bhargava LCD 1987 65, Harbans Lal Vs. Jagmohan Saran LCD 1986 (4) SC 235, Harbhajan Singh Vs. Smt. Shakuntala Devi Sharma and another AIR 1976 Delhi 175, Rajender and Co. Vs. Union of India and others (2000) 6 SCC 506 and Gopal Behar and others Vs. Lokanath Sahu and others AIR 1991 Orissa page-6, Sri S.S. Ray and other learned counsels appearing in support of the objections, have argued that unless the objections are rejected, the ASI report cannot form part of the record and the same cannot be treated as evidence, deferring the consideration of their objections to be decided in the light of other evidence. With due respect to the learned counsels, we find nothing in these cases, laying down that the objections against the commissioner's report should necessarily be accepted or rejected, before the conclusion of the trial of the suits. What the learned Judges have said in these cases is that the commissioner's report cannot be acted upon without first considering the objections against it. Parag Tools Corporation's case (supra) was not directly on the point. There the Apex Court remitted the matter to the commissioner for recording a finding on certain points. The authority issued a survey commission and recorded a finding, taking into account the report of the Commissioner. The State of Andhra Pradesh contended before the Apex Court that it was not within the scope of reference to issue a commission, but the Court was not impressed by this argument. In Harbans Lal's case (supra) the facts were that in proceedings under U.P. Act No. 13 of 1972, the Prescribed Authority as well as the learned Addl. District Judge, recorded a finding of fact, ignoring the report of commissioner against which objections were there. In a writ petition, the High Court considered the same and upset the finding of fact so recorded by the Prescribed Authority. On matter being taken to the Apex Court, their Lordships said firstly the High Court should not have upset the finding of fact in exercise of its writ jurisdiction and secondly the report of the commissioner should not have been treated final, when objections against the same were pending. In Amarnath Tandon's case, a learned Single Judge of this Court (as his Lordship then was), though based his decision on Harbans Lal's case, went a step ahead in observing in para-12 that report of the commissioner becomes final only when it is confirmed by the court. We think those observations were made in the peculiar facts and circumstances of that case and cannot be construed as laying down a law that the report and objections against it cannot be dealt with at the time of final disposal f the matter. Likewise in Harbhajan Singh's case (supra) a learned Single Judge was not considering the question as to when the report and objections against it, should be dealt with. What his Lordship said was that

report of the commissioner should not have been acted upon without first dealing with the objections against it. In Rajinder & Co. (supra) the Apex Court left the report to be dealt with by the authority concerned in the light of respective contentions, Gopal Behar's case (supra) related to a survey report. A learned Single Judge of Orissa High Court (D.P. Mahapatra J., as his Lordship then was), said that the report of the commissioner was simply and item of evidence and was to be considered along with other evidence in the case, with the observations that if the same was full of errors of serious discrepancies, it would not be safe to act upon it.

19. So, none of the above mentioned cases cited by the learned counsels for the objectors, is an authority to support the proposition that commissioner's report and objections against it, must necessarily be accepted or rejected, before the final verdict in the suit is pronounced and the same cannot be left to be decided along with other evidence.

20. We have no hesitation in saying even at the cost of repetition hat it all depends on the facts and circumstances of the case concerned, as to whether objections against commissioner's report can suitably be dealt with, before the suit goes for judgement or deserve to be dealt with, at the time of final disposal in the light of other evidence. Take for an example, survey report and map and the objections against it. Such type of report and the objections against it, can conveniently be dealt with them and there, as the matter may simply be confined to accuracy of fixed points, measurements, conformity of the map with field book etc. and no factual determination is necessitated. But cases where the commissioner's report relates to disputed facts, it may not be practicable for the court to accept or reject, except in the light of other acceptable material on record. Such report and the objections against the same are invariably dealt with and accepted or rejected in the light of other evidence on record.

21. As observed earlier, ASI report is also a report under Rule 10-

www.vadaprativada.com

A of Order XXVI, that is to say it is a kind of report submitted after a scientific investigation. The excavation, periodization of various floor levels of the respective trenches on the basis of figurines, the material found in the respective layers, archaeological importance of such finds/objects etc., is an expert work and is not a layman's job, which could be performed by anybody. Whether a particular structure found at floor level 3 or 4 was a 'shrine' associated with Lord Shiva as described by ASI or whether the same could also be associated with Buddhism or Jainism or whether so called pillar bases, were really the pillar bases and were having load bearing material or whether wall 16 said to have been constructed at the end of 12th century A.D., was the wall of alleged massive structure or was Idgah wall or roofless mosque or whether the objects/finds like Srivatsa, Amalka, door jamb, referred to in Chapter X of Vol. I, have any relevance, are the matters which cannot be decided here and now and can be decided only in the light of other evidence on record or that may be brought on record.

22. No doubt, the objections taken against the report have to be considered before ASI report is acted upon. But that situation will arise only when the Court decides the matter finally. It would also not be advisable nor expedient to make any comments at this stage as regards the tenability or otherwise of the objections. Whether the report is biased or one sided or suffers from discrepancies or infirmities, or is unacceptable on account of rough notes having been destroyed, delay being caused in placing of the documents before the Court or for any other reasons stated in the objections, has to be considered along with the rest of the evidence that has been brought on record or that may be brought on record. We are of the considered view that this is not proper stage to pronounce on those points. Whether analysis of animal bones and its result was material for giving any opinion as to existence or non-existence of any temple or Hindu temple, is also an aspect which has to be kept in mind when evidentiary value of this report is considered.

Whatever was found in the respective trenches is there, photographs video-graphs are there and this Court will have an occasion to consider all those things in the light of other evidence.

23. So we order that this ASI report shall be subject to the objections and evidence of the parties in the suit and all this shall be dealt with when the matter is finally decided.

Dr. Bhuwan Vikaram was one of the members of excavation team, which carried out excavation at the disputed site under the orders of the Court. He had also joined other excavators in preparing the two chapters of the report.

www.vadaprativada.com

On prayer of the plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989, Dr. Bhuwan Vikram was summoned to appear as witness before this Court. In response to the summons issued to him, he has moved an application being No.25 (O) of 2006 expressing his desire to appear as court witness instead of a witness of any party to the suit for the reason that the excavation was carried out under the orders of the Court.

Learned counsel for the opposite parties no. 4, 6 and 26 of the O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 has field objections against the application of Dr. Bhuwan Vikram.

Plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 at whose behest Dr. Bhuwan Vikram has been summoned as witness has also moved an application No. 27 (O) of 2006 consenting to the request of Dr. Bhuwan Vikram for permission to appear as court witness.

Learned counsel for the parties, namely, Sri Ravi P. Mehrotra

on application of Dr. Bhuwan Vikram, Sri Z. Jilani on objections and Sri Ved Prakash on application of plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 have been heard and since common questions are involved in all the applications, we, with the consent of all the counsel named above, are disposing of the said application by this common order.

As it appears from the subject involved precisely two questions arise:- firstly whether Dr. Bhuwan Vikram be permitted to appear as witness of the plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 summoned in the case and secondly, whether he be asked to appear as court witness.

So far as the first question is concerned, Dr. Bhuwan Vikram has expressed his unwillingness to appear as witness to any of the parties to the suit for the reason that he was a member to the excavation team which was conducting excavation under the orders of the Court and not at the behest of any party. The plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 has not said anything in regard to this prayer of Dr. Bhuwan Vikram, instead he has also prayed that Dr. Bhuwan be called to appears as court witness. Absence of any objection to the prayer of Dr. Bhuwan Vikram in this regard and the silence in regard to the prayer of plaintiff requiring Dr. Bhuwan Vikram to appear as its witness leads, to the presumption as may be drawn by us that in view of the reason stated by Dr. Bhuwan Vikram, the plaintiff is now not willing to examine him as his witness. Therefore, there appears implied consent to exempt/discharge Dr. Bhuwan Vikram from appearing as witness of the above plaintiff. We are, therefore, inclined to accept the prayer of Dr. Bhuwan Vikram so far as this part of this prayer is concerned. He need not appear as witness of the plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 as summoned.

As regards the other part of the issue, namely, his examination as court witness, it may be observed that it cannot be allowed for the reason that it is for the Court to take decision at the appropriate stage as to who should be examined as court's witness or not.

Therefore, it would be open for this Court to take decision at the appropriate stage as to who should be called upon to be examined from amongst the members of the excavating team of the ASI.

In view of the above, we hereby exempt Dr. Bhuwan Vikram from appearing as witness of plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989.

With the above observations, applications and objections against the application of Dr. Bhuwan Vkram stand disposed of.

IN THE HON'BLE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE OF ALLAHABAD LUCKNOW BENCH, LUCKNOW

C.M.Application No.107 (O) of 2003

Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. ……Plaintiff No.1 –Objector
In Re:

O.O.S. No.4 of 1989

Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. and others ……..Plaintiffs
Versus
Gopal Singh Visharad (now dead) and others ……Defendants

OBJECTION AGAINST THE REPORT OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA FILED ON 22.8.2003

The plaintiff No.1- Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. begs to submits as under:-

1. That the A.S.I. report has been prepared with a prejudiced mind and with one sided presentation of evidence. Although the A.S.I. Team was fully aware of the fact that a mosque known as the "Babri Masjid stood at the site, but in the repot, almost invariably, it has been referred to as "the Disputed Structure" e.g. on pages 15,16,17,48,51,54 and on many other pages. It is surprising that the A.S.I., which has already described the "disputed structure" in its earlier publications as "Babri Masjid", was reluctant to describe the same as Babri Masjid in its report under objection. Had the report been given without any pressure of the B.J.P. Govt. at the Centre, the A.S.I. would have referred to the structure, which stood before 06-12-1992, as "Babri Masjid" or atleast as Masjid or mosque. On the other hand, the A.S.I. has frequently used the word "Ram Chabutra" for describing the platform that existed in the outer courtyard of the mosque.

2. That the platform in the outer courtyard of the mosque described as “Ram Chabutra” by the A.S.I., was considered to be a water tank at some stage (P.49) and the report describes the squarish masonary platform of 1.50 x 1.55 m. found there to have been the earliest form of the Ram Chabutra, allegedly matching with the description of Vedi (Bedi) said to have been given by the Austrian traveller, Joseph Tiefenthaler, who visited the site around 1766-71and whose account was published in Latin and translated in French in 1786. This reference has been given without consulting the original Latin book or its translation in French but relying upon the unauthentic version of the same contained in the book written by Koenraad Elst, published in 1990 (Ram Janmabhoomi Vs. Babri Masjid). Without verifying the correctness of the said reference, the A.S.I. should not have relied upon the same in its report and specially so when the Book of Koenraad Elst was neither the work of any Archaeologist and nor was an authentic or reliable Book of History but rather the Author of the same had quoted some Mr. Abhas Kumar Chaterjee from his article published in India Express dated 26-3-90.

3. That the so called restraints/constraints, during the excavations, referred in the report regarding excavation of 90 trenches in a limited time of 5 months (P.9 to 10), have been exaggerated and the description about the time available for documentation, study, photography, drawing and chemical preservation etc. could also not be said to be limited to just a few hours. In fact the court had granted the A.S.I. extra time for this purpose and there was ample time for documentation and study and if any more time was required, the same should have been applied for, instead of making complaint about the alleged shortage of time in the report.

4. ARCHAEOLOGICAL EVIDENCE OF "MASSIVE STRUCTURE":-

4.1. That the theory of a so called "massive structure" below "Babri Masjid" (P.54), given by the A.S.I., is based mainly upon nearly 50 m long wall (wall 16) in the west and the dumps of brick bats which it claims to be "pillar bases", to its east. According to the A.S.I. they found 17 rows of the so called pillar bases from North to South; each row having 5 pillar bases while actually they have referred to 50 only, out of which only 12 were said to be completely exposed, 35 were said to be partially exposed and 3 could be traced in section only. The A.S.I. also asserts that the central part of the pillared structure was important and special treatment was given to its architectural planning. The A.S.I. also claims that the so-called pillar bases found in these excavations have settled the controversy regarding association of these so called pillar bases with different layers and load bearing capacity while the report fails to give any details about the actual regular layers and accurate depth of all these so called pillar bases. The remarks of the A.S.I. about the central part of the pillared structure also seem to be without any evidence. On what basis the A.S.I. is saying that this part was important and special treatment was given to it in architectural planning, is also not evident from the report.

4.2. That the A.S.I. failed to take into account that any medieval temple in classical style would be expected to have a Central portion with thick internal walls to support a high superstructure like a Shikhara, while the Key Plan of Structures shows, in H1, two lengths of a narrow wall or two walls, each less than a metre long, with a gap of about 70 cm. between them. No further information is given to convince us that there is an "exposed entrance" as stated on P.69.

4.3. That the A.S.I. Report itself describes traces of inner walls

having a width of 0.48 m to 0.55 m, attached with the earliest activities along with wall 16. These internal walls not only appear to be narrow and not more than two or three brick courses high, but also consisting of brickbats only. They are plastered over the sides and upper surface and it is difficult to infer that they were load bearing walls:

4.4. That regarding the said wall 16, an unexplained anomaly is that from the inner side its first phase of 10 courses is said to be plastered while on the exterior side plaster was provided in the second phase of its raising (four courses).

4.5. That no single example is offered by the A.S.I. of any temple of pre-Moghal times having such a lime- Surkhi floor, though one would think that this is an essential requirement when a purely Muslim structure is being appropriated as a Hindu one. Once this appropriation has occurred (page 41), we are then asked to imagine a "Massive Structure Below the Disputed Structure", the massive structure being a temple. It is supposed to have stood upon 50 pillars, and by fanciful drawings (Figures 23, 23A and 23B), it has been "reconstructed". [Though one may still feel that if was hardly "massive" when one compares Figure 23 (showing Babri Masjid before demolition) and Figure 23B (showing the reconstructed temple with 50 imaginary pillars!)] Now, according to the A.S.I.'s Report, this massive structure with "bases" of 46 of its alleged 50 pillars now exposed, was built in Period VII, the Period of the Delhi Sultans, Sharqi rulers and Lodi Sultans (1206-1526): This attribution of the alleged Grand Temple, to the "Muslim" period is not by choice, but because of the presence of "Muslim" style materials and techniques all through. This given the distorted view of medieval Indian history, must have been a bitter pill for the A.S.I.'s, mentors to swallow; and, therefore, there has been all the more reason for them to imagine a still earlier structure

assignable to an earlier time. Of this structure, however, only four alleged "pillar bases', with "foundations" attached to Floor 4, have been found; and it is astonishing that this should be sufficient to ascribe them to 10th-11th century and to assume that they all belong to one structure. That structure is proclaimed as "huge", extending nearly 50 metres that separate the "pillar-bases" at the extremes. Four "pillar bases" can hardly have held such a long roof; and if any one tried it on them it is not surprising that the result was "short-lived" (report, p. 269). All of this seems a regular part of the Mandir propagandist archaeology rather than a report from a body called the Archaeological Survey of India.

4.6. That the four alleged pillar bases dated to 11th-12th centuries are said "to belong to this level with a brick crush floor". This amounts to a totally unsubstantiated claim that surkhi was used in the region in Gahadavala times (11th –12th centuries). No examples are preditably offered. One would have though that Sravasti (Dist. Bahraich), from which the A.S.I. team has produced a linga-centred Shavite "circular shrine" of the said period for comparison with the so-called "circular shrine" at the Babri Masjid site, would be able to produce a single example of either surkhi or lime mortar from the Gahadavala-period structures at Sravasti. But such has not at all been the case. One can see now why it had been necessary to call this period (Period V) "Medieval-Sultanate" (p. 40) though it is actually claimed to be pre-Sultanate, being dated 11th-12th century. By clubbing together the Gahadavalas with the sultanate, the surkhi is sought to be explained away; but if so, the "huge" structure too must come to a time after 1206, for the Delhi Sultanate was only established in that year. And so, to go by A.S.I.'s reasoning, the earlier allegedly "huge" temple too must have been built when the Sultans ruled!

4.7. That the way the A.S.I. has distorted evidence to suit its temple theory is shown by its treatment of the mihrab (arched recess) and taq (niche) found in the western wall, which it turns into features of its imagined temple. The absurdity of this is self evident and particularly so when the inner walls of the niche are also found plastered, and the A.S.I. is able to produce no example of similar recess and niche from any temple.

4.8. That the structure denoted by wall 17 and a brick Crush floor in Period VI has not been allotted any number by the A.S.I. and the A.S.I.'s claims about the attribution of the walls and floors of "Periods VI and VII" to two successive temple structures cannot be accepted. The A.S.I.'s report in this respect also is full of contradictions and other infirmities.

4.9. That the reason why would the western wall be so massive (1.77 m) and the other walls so thin (0.48-0.55) is quite obvious. It should be noted that Wall 17 also was 1.86 m wide. Such wide western walls are a feature of mosque construction and not of temples. Temple walls, in fact, are of uniform thickness. If, as the A.S.I. points out, the Babri Masjid used this Wall 16 as a foundation for its western wall, then this Wall 16 can only have been the foundation of the Babri Masjid itself. Moreover, no Hindu temple has a long continuously straight western wall-this is only a feature of the mosque in India. In the case of a temple, a plinth or raised platform would be required and the walls would be broken by offsets, providing a cruciform plan to the temple form. Moreover, the temple would have mandapas in front of the grabagriha (the sanctum sanctorum) and any at the side of the latter would be very small and insignificant in nature. According to Krishna Deva, "the main compartments of the temple are axially articulated." (See temples of India by Krishna Dewa, 1995, Vol. I) In this case, as being suggested by the A.S.I., the central area now under the makeshift structure was the garbagriha and hence if so, the rest of the temple structure should have mainly projected towards the east, and not to such an extent to the north and south (as in Fig. 23A or 23B). The kind of structure as indicated in Fig.23B indicates the pre-eminence of the western wall which can only be the case in a mosque.

4.10. That the foundation of the Babri Masjid has some decorated stone blocks along with plain sandstone and calcrete blocks and bricks. This is natural in the construction of a foundation where any available motley material would be used, ass the foundation would not be visible. it has been pointed out by the A.S.I. (pp. 68, 269-70) that material from the structure associated with Wall 17, was reused to make Wall 16. However, if this had been the case, decorated blocks would have been used for the upper portions of walls rather than in the foundation. To corroborate their statement of the reuse of decorated blocks, the A.S.I. gives the example of the Dharmachakrajina vihara of kumaradevi of the 12th century A.D. at Sarnath. However, as can be seen in Plates 27-28, decorated blocks were used not for the foundations but in the enclosure wall of a vihara. Moreover, this structure was a vihara and cannot in any way be compared with a Hindu temple.

4.11. That it can also be pointed out here that Krishna Deva mentions (on P.11) that a temple customarily has a vedibandha consisting of moulded course. Even if the southern part of Wall 16 has not been excavated on its outer face to indicate the presence or absence of mouldings, we have the evidence of the outer face of Wall 16 in Trench ZE1, to the north , where no mouldings are to be seen. This kind of a plain wall with nothing but niches on its inner face can only be a mosque/Eidgah wall.

4.12. That On p.68 are described two niches in the inner side of Wall 16 at an interval of 4.60 m in trenches E6 and E7. These were 0.20 m deep and 1 m wide. A similar niche was found in Trench ZE2 in the northern area and these have been attributed to the first phase of construction of the so called' massive structure' associated with Wall 16. Such niches along the inner face of a western wall, are again characteristic of mosque/ Eidgah construction. Moreover, the inner walls of the niche are also plastered (as in Plate 49) which indicates that the plaster was meant to be visible. A temple niche (and if found, would be on the outer wall) would not be plastered if it were to hold a sculpture or a relief. In the first phase of construction, the supposed massive structure was confined to the thin wall found in Trenches ZE1-ZE1 in the north and E6-H5/H6 in the south (p. 41). How then does one explain the location of niches outside the floor area of the said massive structure? This is typical of a mosque, which has a long, wide north-south wall, with niches at intervals on its inner face and there may be a small covered area in the center. Which would have narrow demarcating walls.

4.13. That according to the A.S.I. (p. 42), the massive structure in sub-period B collapsed and its debris of brick and stone was levelled to attain height. "In this deposit, foundations to support pillars or columns were sunk which were overlaid with a 4-5 cm thick floor, which had a grid of square sandstone bases for pillars projecting out, only a few still survive."

If, as implied, the structure of sub-period B had collapsed and another floor constructed with another set of pillar bases, then these are not phases of construction of a structure but three separate structures. What is perhaps a more plausible explanation is that in the beginning of the 13$^{th}$ century, some Muslim structure was built with a well-polished lime-surkhi floor. There was a low enclosure

wall (0.40-0.50 m wide) demarcating the area from E6 to ZE! And extending east to the H series of trenches. Within this enclosure was probably a small central covered area of which the northern wall with a niche can be seen in Trench F2. This wall was narrower (0.35-40 m) thick. Probably this was wall structure only as can be seen by the narrow walls with no deep foundation. When this collapsed, the entire area was filled in with brickbats, stone slabs, calcrete blocks, brick nodules and mud to raise the level in order to construct the next lime-surkhi floor. This floor probably now functioned as an Eidgah or so as no structural activity has been observed in association. when this floor was degraded, another floor was raised, both floors being of poor quality.

4.14. That wall recesses or niches are observed in the mosque/Eidgah structure in a higher stratum also (P. 53) but the report fails to discuss about the same.

5. THE MYTH OF SO CALLED "PILLAR BASES":-

5.1. That the so called pillar bases are one or more calcrete stones resting upon brickbats, just heaped up, though A.S.I. claims that mud-mortar was also sometimes used. In many of them the calcrete stones are also not found at all. As one can see from the descriptive table on pages 56-57 of the Report not a single one of these supposed "pillar bases" has been found in association with any pillar or even a fragment of it; and it has not been claimed that there are any marks or indentations or hollows on any of the calcrete stones to show that any pillar had rested on them. The A.S.I. Report nowhere attempts to answer the question (1) why brickbats and not bricks were used at the base, and (2) how mud-bonded brickbats could have possible withstood the weight of roof-supporting pillars without themselves falling apart. It also offers not a single example of any medieval temple where pillars stood on such brick –bat bases.

1. That the Report's claim of these so called "pillar bases" being in alignment and their being so shown in infancy drawings (Figures 23, 23A and 23B), is not borne out by the actual measurements and distances, and there is indeed much doubt whether the plan provided by A.S.I. is drawn accurately at all, since there are enormous discrepancies between Fig. 3A (the main plan) and the Table in Chapter IV on the one hand, and the Report's Appendix IV, on the other.

2. That even those "pillar bases" that lie in the first north-south "row" on the west, lie at different distances from thick western wall: the distances varying between 3.60 and 3.86 m. The east-west distance between any two features (center to center) can vary from 2.9 to 3.3 m (a difference of 40 cm) (p. 55) whereas in the north-south direction there is greater variation between each feature and its neighbour: 3- 3.3 m in the north and in the south, and about 5.25 m in the central area. The use of the term "rows", therefore, is incorrect.

3. That the entire manner, in which the A.S.I. has identified or created the so called "pillar-bases" is a matter of serious concern. Complaints were regularly made to the Observers appointed by the High Court that the A.S.I. was ignoring calcrete-topped brickbat heaps where these were not found in appropriate positions and selected only such brickbat heaps as were not too far-off from its imaginary grids, and there creating the so called "bases" by clearing the rest of the floor of brick-bats. In this respect reference may be made to the complaints dated 21-5-2003, 7-6-2003, 28-6-2003, 26-7-2003 and 2-8-2003 etc.

5.5. That the most astonishing thing, that the A.S.I. so casually

brushes aside, relates to the varying levels at which the so called "pillar-bases" stand. Even if we go by the A.S.I.'s own descriptive able (pages 56-67), as many as seven of these so called 50 "bases" are definitely above Floor 2, and one is in level with it. At least six rest on Floor 3, and one rests partly on Floor 3 and 4. Since at least Floors 1 to 3 are even recognised by the A.S.I. to be floors of the Mosque, how can so many pillars be said to have been erected after the Mosque had been built, in order to sustain a so called earlier temple structure! Moreover, as many as nine so called "pillar bases" are shown as cutting through Floor No.3. So, are we to presume that when the Mosque floor was laid out, the so called "pillar bases" were not floored over? It is thus clear that the said structures are simply not "pillar bases" at all, but some kind of loosely-bonded brickbat deposits, which continued to be laid right from the time of Floor 4 to Floor 1.

www.vadaprativada.com

5.6. That the comparative stratigraphy of these 50 alleged bases also requires comment. The tabulation on p.p. 56 to 67 gives us the following data:-

2 bases (nos. 16, 26) were cut through Floor 4.

25 of them (from the Z-trenches in the north to the G 10 and H 10 trenches in the south) rested on Floor 4.

6 of them on Floor 3 (nos. 19,21,23,24,30,37).

1 (no. 28) actually is said to rest "at the junction of Floor 3 and 4"

2 of them cut through Floor 3 (nos. 12 , 15)

7 of them project above Floor 2 (nos. 1,2,3,5.7,8 and 14).

We thus see that these 50 features belong to different floors and therefore could not all have been functional at the same time. They lack coherence as architectural features. It is irresponsible, therefore, to repeatedly refer to "rows" of these features, as has been done in the report.

Some o these features appear to incorporate all sorts of material: pieces of brick, small stones and brick pieces, long stone slabs, and D-shaped large stones, etc. This also leads to the inference that all these structures could not belong to any one period.

5.7. That even the table on pages 56-67 o the A.S.I.'s Report may not correctly represent the layers of the alleged pillar bases, since its information on floors does not match that of the Report's Appendix IV, which in several trenches does not attest to Floor No. 4 at all, which the said "pillar-bases", in many cases, are supposed to have been sealed by, or to have cut through or stand on!

5.8. The most of these so called pillar bases of the northern side comprise of square sandstone slabs, perhaps resting on calcrete blocks (only one has been excavated that reveals the calcrete block). The inner dimensions of these pillar bases range from 48.5 x 43, 50 x 50, 47 x 46, 48 x 56, 49.5 x 49 and 51 x 51 cm. These dimensions are completely different from those of the pillars that have actually been recovered. The dimensions of the latte range from 21 x 21 to 24 x 24 cm. Thus, the pillars that could be said to have stood on the said northern pillar bases would certainly not be the blackstone pillars, used in the mosque, or any other pillars of the same or similar type.

5.9. That the A.S.I.'s assumption is that the floor, with which are associated these so called pillar bases in the north, is the same as Floor 2 in the south. However, it cannot be definitely said that the floors in E2, F2 or G2can be easily correlated with E1,F1 or G1 or with ZF! or ZG1.

5.10. That the A.S.I.'s own information on the said pillar bases is highly confusing and marked with discrepancies. For example, in the tabulation of so called pillar bases in Chapter IV, 50 'pillar bases' have been described and have been illustrated in Fig. 3A. The number and the location of these 'pillar bases', however, do not tally with information given in Appendix IV as illustrated in the following Table:-

……..

5.11. That, two 'pillar bases' are mentioned in H5, H10, G10 and ZH1 whereas only one in these trenches have been illustrated and described in the text. 'Pillar bases' in the L series of trenches and J2 have not been indicated in the Tabulation as illustrated above.

5.12. That on p. 55, distances between 'pillar bases' have been given, that in the east-west direction, center-to Centre distance was 2.90-3.30 m. However, the distance between 'pillar bases' 37 and 38 is 3.80 m. Similarly, these are not always in alignment as is the case with 'pillar base' 30 in Trench G6. "Pillar bases' 37 and 38 in Trench F8 are also not in alignment with each other.

5.13. That the dubious nature of the 'pillar bases' is illustrated by the figures attached with the complaints. The collection of calcrete and brickbats at a lower level than the above has been ignored by the A.S.I. even though it resembles their so called 'pillar bases'. At times, walls were cut to make 'pillar bases' as in Trench F6. The confusion between walls and 'pillar bases' is apparent in Trenches E1 and E2. The same is the case with 'pillar base' 27 in Trench H5. This is nothing but the southern part of Wall 18B.

5.14. That more serious problem has been created by giving Figs. 23A and 23B, showing the 'pillar bases' hypothetically. An incorrect impression is being created, by showing some 'pillar bases' where no structure was exposed at all and where no excavation was also done.

5.15. That there is an additional problem with the "pillar base" interpretation. Load carrying pillar bases require to rest on hard and resistant surfaces, on floor slabs or rammed floors of say 30 to 40 cm height, or else to be set into or enclosed in pits that are packed tight with filled material. The various sections in the report indicate that this is not the case (see, e.g., Figures 8,9,10 where the features appear to have only been set without packing into the ground, and interrupt the continuity of Floor 2, which is only a few entimeters thick, and les over a stratum not said to be homogeneous earth filling, or of rammed earth. Thus the very use of the words "rows" and "bases" is incorrect and misleading. These features could in some cases represent a pile of unused bricks, broken or entire. In other cases, they may have been used to fill hollows or to raise the level of the mound. In yet other cases they could have been used to shore up a heavy wall or else to function as an apron for a building.

5.16. That the A.S.I. should have surely looked about for other explanations of these heaps of brickbats, before jumping to its so called "pillar base" theory. There was another clear and elegant explanation when the surkhi-lime mortar bonded Floor No.4 was being laid out over the mound, sometime during the Sultanate period, its builders must have had to level the mound properly. The hollows and depressions then had to be filled by brickbats topped by calcrete stones (the latter often joined with lime mortar) to fill them and enable the floor to be laid. When in time Floor 4 went out of repair, its holes had similarly to be filled up in order to lay out Floor 3. And so again when Floor 3 decayed, similar deposits of brickbats had to be made to fill the holes in order to lay out Floor 2 (or, indeed, just to have a level surface). This explains why the so called “”pillar bases” appear to “cut through” both Floors 3 and 4, at some places, while at others they “Cut through” Floor 3 or Floor 4 only. They are mere deposits to fill up holes in the floors. Since such repairs were at times needed at various spots all over the floors, these brickbat deposits are widely dispersed. Had not the A.S.I. been so struck by the necessity of finding pillars and “pillar bases” to please its masters, which had to be in some alignment, it could have found scattered over the ground not just fifty but perhaps over a hundred or more such deposits of brickbats.

6. THE ALLEGED “CIRCULAR SHRINE”

6.1. That the sub-heading given to the discovery of a structure of burnt bricks as “The Circular Shine” at page 70 is indicative of the mindset with which the A.S.I. team did the excavation work. The A.S.I. team should have just said “The circular structure” because there is no evidence to make this structure a shrine. Just by comparing it with certain temple structures and not with circular walls and buildings of Muslim construction one can not come to the conclusion that the circular structure was a Hindu Shrine. No object of Hindu worship was found on this layer. The story of “parnala” is also a sheer figment of imagination and a conjecture without any evidentiary basis. The comparison at page 71 is irrelevant and also unrealistic. The layer on which this circular structure was discovered did not throw up any material to justify the naming of this circular structure as a shrine. The surviving wall, even in A.S.I.'s own drawing, makes only a quarter of circle and such shapes are fairly popular in walls of Muslim construction. And then there are Muslim built domed circular buildings also.

6.2. That the scale of the Plan (as given in Figure 17 of the Report), would have an internal diameter of just 160 cms or barely 5½. Such a small "shrine" can hardly be worth writing home about. But it is, in fact, much smaller. The plan in Fig. 17 shows not a circle (as one would have if the wall shown in Plates 59 and 60 are continued) but an ellipse, which it has to be in order to enclose the entire masonry floor. No "elliptic (Hindu) Shrine" is, however produced by A.S.I. for comparison the few that are shown re all circular. As Plate 59 makes clear the drawing in Fig. 17 ignores a course of bricks which juts out to suggest a true circle, much shorter than the elliptic one: this would reduce the internal diameter to even less than 130 cms. or just 4.3 feet! Finally, as admitted by the A.S.I. itself, nothing has been found in the structure in the way of image or sacred piece that can justify it being called a "shrine".

6.3. That "the southern part of the said structure was found resting over a 0.75m wide brick wall (Wall 19 A ) of 9 courses belonging to earlier period which runs in east-west direction and joins the end of the north-south oriented brick wall(Wall 19 B) having 7 extant courses of bricks and a width of 0.55 m, making the south-western corner of the earlier structure."

The wall 19A rests over a still earlier wall (Wall 20) which is 0.62 m wide." Another wall (Wall 21) is about 0.51 m away from structure 5 and northeast of it.

Wall 19 A and Wall 20 are considered to belong to the Post Gupta (Period V) and Gupta (Period IV) periods respectively. It appears from their description and from Plate 59 that the 'circular shrine' was built over existing walls without removing the walls. These earlier walls were of the preceding period as well as the same period. These earlier walls could not have been used as the foundation for the structure as they are of completely different dimensions and shape.

6.4. That the size of Structure 5 has an outer diameter of 1.6 m and measures 0.6 m in the inner area. The entrance is 0.5 m wide and length of the 'passage', from the entrance to the inner area is 0.4 m. Comparisons are being made with circular brick temples at Sravasti, Kurari, Masaon, Tinduli and Chandrehe (p 71, Fig. 18). The outer diameter of these structures range from 6.1 m (Masaon), 5.8 (Chandrehe and Chirenath), 5.5 m (Tinduli), 4.9 m (Kurari I ) and 3.6 m (Kurari II) (see Fig 18). The inner area of Kurari II, the nearest in size to the Ayodhya structure is 1.4 m, Kurari I is about 1.8 m and Chirenath is 2 m. The entrance measurements are 0.9 m for Kurari II and 0.7 m for Kurari I. The length of passage is 0.6 m for Kurari II and 1.5 m for Kurari I.

6.5. That all the circular shrines have a mandapa except for the Kurari temples Kurari I is also on a plinth with steps on the east. The closest in size to structure 5, Kurari II, is more than double the former structure. the inner area of Structure 5 is too small to even allow anyone to enter it. Where is the possibility, then, of performing any kind of abhisekha?

Out of all the temples illustrated in Fig. 18, four have the entrance from the west, one from the north and one from the east . Thus, it seems that the comparison between Structure 5 and these shrines is being stretched too far . Structure 5 has been dated to the 10th century AD. However, as will be evident from the Report, the

layers associated with this structure have mixed material, preventing any chronological determination of the structure.

6.6. That if, as pointed out by the A.S.I., subsequent structural activity (in Period VI) damaged the circular shrine, it is surprising that a letter so called temple would destroy an earlier Hindu religious structure. Moreover, a later temple could easily have incorporated an earlier temple into its plan and maintained the sanctity of the earlier structure. Instead, what is being suggested is that the central part of the later temple is much further away to the north, about 20 m away. Thus, it seems highly unlikely that this structure was a Hindu religious shrine.

6.7. That Structure 5 could well have been a stupa , belonging to perhaps the 6th or 7th century AD. Figure 24 giving a bird's eye view of the structure, shows a slight difference in diameter between the first few lower courses of bricks and the courses above them. This difference recalls the two parts of the stupa, the medhi (or the drum) ands the anda (or the higher rounded portion of the stupa). The 'opening' towards the east could well have been a niche for a Buddha figure. One of the reasons for considering this structure as a stupa is that it is too small to enter, which one would not have to do in the case of a Buddist Stupa. These religious structures symbolizing the Buddha are meant to be walked around and not entered.

6.8. That according to the Table placed after Page 37 (A.S.I. Report) this period V is represented by layers 6 and 5. Layer 6 is a flood deposit and layer 5 belongs to Gupta period. So the formulation of Period V assigned to Post Gupta – Rajput times is arbitrary. Thus whatever structures are said to have belonged to Period V, in fact, they belong to Period IV (Gupta Period).

6.9. That the Text says that layer 5 A is a contemporary layer of the shrine (structure 5 ) "below which lie walls 19 A and 20……..The layer below their working level is layer 7……." (page 72 of A.S.I. Report). There is existence of only one layer between layers 5A and 7, the layer 6 (A.S.I. Section, F8, Fig 16). Layer 7 has been dated 140 – 80 BC on 14c determination. The calibrated date read AD 90 – 340 (Page 72 A.S.I. Report). The range of calibrated date is extremely wide. However, on its maximum range it reds about 4th C.A.D. While layer 7 is dated to 4th century A.D. and layer 5A is being said to be contemporary to the Shrine which has been dated to 10th century A.D. The shrine on stylistic grounds has been dated to 10th century A.D. (Page 71, A.S.I. Report). The concerned two layers (i.e. 5A and 7) is intervened by only one layer. That is layer 6 could this lone layer represent a temporal duration of about six centuries ? It is ridiculous and fantastic. It is simply not possible. Thus the dating of the shrine to about 10th Century A.D. is arbitrary. The structure 5, whatever it may be either a simple structure or a Buddha circular stupa, in view of the radiocarbon data seems to have belonged to slightly later than circa 4th Century A.D. That is Gupta Period.

6.9. That there is yet another important feature of the so called Shrine that needs comment. it is about it's suggested water channel. Stylistically, its northward orientation has been marked to have some special significance.

The channel does not have a uniform width throughout. It does not have been a gradually decreasing width from south to north. It becomes suddenly very narrow at nearing its end. Thus it appears that it was not made for the purpose is has been suggested. It seems to have taken the existing from by the removal of mortar during excavations as was filled therein.

It did not function for draining water from south to north is evident by the fact there is no evidence of slope towards the direction in question. It has been measured by the levelling instrument at three at points of the channel. It was found that there is no sloe on its surface.

Further, had the so-called channel been in use for draining water for a longtime, then there should have been the remains of water residuals in the channel. Such evidence could be expected on the northern side of the circular wall corresponding along to the area of water discharge. But there is no such evidence either in the channel or on the surface of the wall in question.

7. THE "DIVINE COUPLE" AND OTHER ARCHITECTURAL MEMBERS:-

7.1 That the stone "mutilated sculpture of a divine couple" (p 272) is described on p.130 (Reg. No. 1184) and Plate 235. The lower portion alone is present, below the waist. The piece is so damaged that it is almost undecipherable. What aspects of this incomprehensible piece make it a "divine" couple, we are not told. Thus the report shows clear bias in the use of the adjective "divine" and also "couple".

7.2 That further, and more important, the recorded findspot (p.130) of this piece is Trenches K3-K4 (in the east ) and the recorded layer is "Debris". Clearly, this piece of sculpture does not come from a stratified context, leave alone the strata of Period VII.

7.3 That so too, a black schist pillar with a square base and octagonal shaft and intricate carving comes from surface debris above the topmost floor (Floor 1) in Trench F3 (p. 140), which is also of no relevance.

7.4 That regarding the octagonal stone that was said to have been

carved in twefth century style, it may be noted that according to the text (on p 56), it was found in Trench F-7, on pillar base 32 but as per table (on p.63) that was "resting on Floor 2", in Trench F6-F-7, while its foundation was resting on floor 4. It may be notice that in the Section Facing South West-East (E-F), no floor marked "Floor 4" is indicate.

7.5 That the theory of so-called temple rests on some other repotted architectural fragments also. Out of about 380 pieces that have been tabulated, 205 are featureless with only marks of dressing or in some cases are completely undressed stones. To give examples, No 122 (Reg. No. 882) kept in Manas Bhawan is a rectangular piece with pecking marks and partially polished (p 129), No.131 (Reg. No. 953) is a "rectangular slab with one of its sides nicely polished" (p.129), No. 3 (Reg. No. AYD-1 / 74) kept in the tin shed at the excavated site is "a rectangular partly dressed sand stone slab with an open groove meant for dowel" (p. 131). the majority of these came from the dump or fill and were in many cases part of the Babri Masjid walls. There were numerous others (particularly of calcrete) that were removed from the dump from trenches, during excavation, that were thrown away and are not tabulated. Out of 383 architectural fragments, only 40 came from stratified context. Out of this 40, too, none were specific to a temple, even the 8 that have been separately mentioned, pillar, doorjamb, octagonal shaft of pillar, amalaka, divine couple, slab with srivatsa motif, lotus medallion and a rechielled slab with lozenge design, are of no significance. The srivatsa design is associatd with Jainism ands the lotus design could as well be Budist or even Muslim. The lozenge design could well belong to a Muslim structure. It is also interesting that the floral design on the architectural fragment in Plate 90 matches the lower portion of the Arabic inscription in Plate 92. The latter depicts a floral design and the design, as well as the method of carving, in the two pieces are very similar. It is also mischievous to label a sculpture showing the waist portions of two human figures as representing a divine couple. Moreover, all the above noted 8 pieces came from the debris. The octagonal shafts has, in fact, not even been tabulated. Many of the architectural fragments are, as admitted, of different materials (pink sandstone), buff sandstone, spotted red sandstone, calcrete, and so forth), and it is well known that temples do not use stones of diverse colors and types for decoration.

7.6 That report admits that there are few architectural members (plates 92 to 94 ) which can clearly be associated with Islamic architecture and on stylistic grounds which might belong to 16th century A.D. onwards (page 122). On the same page in earlier sentences the report described certain architectural members. The photographs of these architectural members appear on plates 79, 80, 81, 84, 85, 86, 87, 89 and 90. The report says that stylistically these architectural members in general and pillars in particular may be placed in a time bracket of 10-12 century A.D. In Indo-Muslim architecture elements of early Indian architecture which were consistent with Islamic traditions were freely used. Foliage, floral and geometric designs as found in early Indian architecture were copied and used in the Indo-Muslim architecture and this is the important feature which distinguished Indo-Muslim architecture from that of Arabian Land and Persia. The elements and designs in Plates 79, 80, 81, 85, 86, 87, 89 and 90 are found in many muslim religious and other buildings. Lotus medallian as in pl. 70 are found as apex-stone in domes.

On what basis the style and design contained in plate no. 93,

The architectural members shown in plate no. 79, 80, 81, 84, 85, 86, 87, 89 and 90 do not contain any carving of a Hindu deity. Such elements and designs have been used in Indo-Muslim architecture and hence these architectural members may have been parts of a muslims structure. On what basis the A.S.I. remarks that these "emphatically speak about their association with temple architecture", is not known. What is the basis for placing these architectural members in time bracket of 10-12 century A.D. is also not given in the report. Plate No. 81 is not amalaka but a part of petal design. It has to e noted that the so-called amalaka (pl. 81) is a surface collection found in debris above floor-1 (page 141 Sr. No. 125).

7.7. That the octagonal stone block having so-called floral motif has been dated to 12th century A.D. on its alleged similarity with that one found in the Dharmachakrajina Vihar of Kumardavi at Sarnath (Plates 39 and 40 ). Even a cursory inspection clearly reveals that there is not the least similarity between the two. The Sarnath Specimen is rectangular on Plan while the Ayodhya one is Octagonal. Again the Sarnath specimen has depiction of floral motif but the Ayodhya specimen has different motif. Further, apart from the stylistic dissimilarity there is dissimilarity in their architectural technique as well. On the Sarnath Specimen the depiction of motif is in slightly low relief while on the Ayodhya one it is in very bold relief.

There is of course one very distinct similarity between the two. Both belong to the category of reused material. The Sarnath Vihar in question has been built mainly by reused earlier materials such as broken bricks, stone architectural members, both plain as well as decorated etc. The stone pilaster as cited for comparison with octagonal stone block is also a reused specimen. It, thus, cannot be contemporary to the builder of the Vihar in question. There is no question on the date of Kumardevi. There is no question on the date of Kumardevi. It is early 12th Century A.d. But there is of course a big question over the date of the pilaster cited for comparison. It is certainly of some earlier date it could be even of Gupta period.

So it is obvious that of the listed architectural members(stored in Manas Bhawan as well as in the Tin Shed at the excavation site, mostly collected from the surface or debris above floor1) majority of them are fragmentary and plain in nature. It is also obvious that they cannot be dated on stylistic ground.

7.8. That in view of the evidence drawn from the depositional history of the site there was no habitation at this site after Gupta period for a long time. It was reoccupied after a long desertion in 13th century A.D. Under this situation, many of the remains of architectural members having so called association with temples, as alleged, could have belonged to Gupta period.some of these said to have belonged to 10th – 12th century A.D. could ha e been brought here to be used as building material from some neighboring sites. This is the situation also of the decorated/moulded bricks. Needless to mention that moulded bricks were quite prevalent in Gupta Period.

7.9. INADEQUANCIES OF THE STRTIGRAPHY:-

8.1 That an essential requirement in an excavation report is a chapter that describes, one after the other, the main strata or levels found in the excavation, their nature (soil texture, colour,etc. ) and contents. For example in H.D. Sankalia and S.B. Deo, Report on the Excavations, at Nasik and Jorwe,

www.vadaprativada.com

Poona Deccan College, 1951, Chapter Two, entitled "Strata and Sturctures" contains on pp. 9-19 a description of all the strata in the different excavated areas of the site. Earth colours, textures, the presence of charcoal or ash, the slope of the strata, their depth, etc. are described. so also, in M.K. Dhavalikar et a., Excavations at Inamgagaon, Pune: Decan College, 1988, Chapter 7 on "Cuttings and Stratigraphy" describes the 16 layers of the site (pp. 121-125). Even though Inamgaon was occupied only in the chalcolithic period and is not a multi period site like Ayodhya, there is information on each of the 16 layers of themound inthis chapter. Veerapuram is a site on the Krishna river in Andhra Pradesh, with neolithic, megalithic (iron age), early historic, and early medieval (AD 300-400 ) levels. For this site too, the excavators have given a description of each of the 15 strata. See T.V.G. Sastri, M. Kasturi Bai, and J.V. Prasada Rao, Veerapuram: A type Site for Cultural Study in the Krishna Valley. Hyderabad: Birla Archaeological and cultural Research Institute, 1984, pp 15-19. But there is no such section, leave alone a chapter, in the Ayodhya repot. There are serious conseuences of this lacuna in basic excavation and recording procedure. Moreover, the descriptions in Chapters II (Cuttings), III (Stratigraphy and Cuttings) and IV (Structures) very rarely allude to the drawn sections presented in the report while sections present, n a sense, an "X-ray" of the history of a mound. It is on the basis of sections that the sequence and history of a mound is constructed.

8.2 That it may also be pointed out that, the descriptions given in the report are not always matched by the sections. The reverse is also true. The text does not state the periods to which the following layers belong:

(i) Trench 13: layer 6 with the inscribed stone (Figure 22);

www.vadaprativada.com

(ii) Trenches ZE1-ZF1: Layers 4 to 6 (Section Facing South, West-East (K-L); and

(iii) Trench E7 Layers 3 to 6 (Section Facing South, West-East (E-F).

8.3 That the text mentions (p.40, pp.68-69) a red brick crush floor of Period VI, attached to Wall 17, and states (p.40) that this floor can be traced in Trenches E8 and F8, G7, J5 and J6 and ZF 1. It is seen in the east section of F1. As regards trench G 7, we see this red floor in Photograph No. V, and we find a floor marked "Floor 4" in the section Facing South, West-East (E-F). But as regards E8, the Section Facing South, West-East (E-F). But as regards E8, the Section Facing South, West-East (C-D) marks (or numbers) Floors "1" and "2" only: which, the text indicates, belong to later periods, layers 3 and 4, below "Floor 2", are assigned to Period VI on p. 41. As for J5 and J6, the Section Facing South, West East (E-F) indicates "Floor 2" below layer 4, and, at a lower level, a very thick or flooring of brickbats.

The same problem is faced as regards ZF 1: the Section Facing South, West-East (K-L) does not mark or number any floors in the layers1 to 6, Layers 4 to 6, are not assigned to any of th periods of the sequence. ZF 1, was found to have been dug down 1 m against the north section, in which some broken bricks can be seen, but these are not the same as the red brick crush floor. Thus the numbering of the floors and other details are not according to the stratigraphy and the report is full of confusion.

8.4 That chapter II, III and IV mention the actual layer numbers, in specific trenches assigned to Periods 1 to VI. For instance, to Period VI which lies below the "massive structure ", belong the following (pp. 40-41).

|---|---|
| layers 5,6,7, | in Trench G2; |
| layers 3,3A, 4 | in Trench G7 |
| layers 5, 6 | in Trench J 5 and J 6; and |
| layers 3, 4 | in Trench E8 and F8 |

However, the text fails to mention which particular layers, in these and other trenches, pertain to Period VII (pp. 41-43), which very stratum is claimed to represent the alleged massive pillared hall. we could assume that in the published sections either one or two layers above those listed for Period VI would pertain to the so called "massive structure" Also, on page 42 is given the confusing information that the period is represented by

"layers 1 and 2 in almost all the trenches except those in the eastern area where the deposit was disturbed.... an in the northern area where the floor of the period VII-C remained exposed and under use till late. In the northern areas layers 2 and 3 belong to this period . The three floors of this period were not found in all the trenches uniformly.

We can only assume that in the southern area it is layers 1 and 2 (with Floors "2" and "3" as marked on the Section Facing South, West-East E-F) that represent this allegedly significant period and, by default, that nothing but the mosque floor lies over it. significantly, and as stated above, we are not told the periods to which layers 3, 4, 5 and 6 of Trench E 7 are assigned.

If G2 whose layers 5, 6 and 7 belong to Period VI, is counted as one of the "northern" trenches and layers 2 and 3 belong to period VII as the paragraph quoted above indicates, to which period can we assign its layer 4? If it is counted as one of the "southern" trenches (where, the para quoted above says, layers 1 and 2 belong to Period VII, to which period do layers 4 and 3 belong? With no

section drawing of G2 available, we are none the wiser. In the Schematic Cross Section of the Disputed Mound ands the Tentative Periodization of the Disputed site, in fact, no layer below layer 3 is mentioned in the relevant column.

Thus we see the consequences of the serious inadequacy of the report, mentioned above. Nowhere does the report tell us the content/colour/texture of the northern layers2 and 3, or the southern layers 1 and 2. No evidence is cited to show that layers 1 and 2 in the south of the mound are contemporary with layers 2 and 3 in the north of the mound. the paragraph on P. 42 of the report, quoted above, remains without substance.

8.5. that below "Floor 1" obviously belonging tot he mosque, we expect to see, in the sections and plans of the various trenches, a sequence of 3 floors, presumably from "Floor 2" downwards to a "Floor 4" of period VII with a Floor 5 belonging to period VI. But nowhere is there any section showing Floors numbered "4" (which we expect, from the text, to the lowest floor of the alleged "massive structure" of Period VII) or "5" (which we would expect to be of the Period VI below), and no section show a sequence of floors numbered "1" to "5".

On p. 42 the text mentions the most extensive floor of the mound, assigned to Phase C of Period VIII, but fails to state what number has been assigned to it in the relevant trenches.

In Photograph 24 of Trench E 7, we see a floor marked "Floor 3" at the bottom of the trench, uniformly touching the remnant plaster on the east face of the western wall, within the south chamber of the mosque. The acceptable inference would be that this "Floor 3" about 1 m below surface, belonging to the so called "massive structure", is actually in functional relationship with the brick-course levels of the north south wall on the west.

Below Floor 3, which is very approximately 1 m below surface in various trenches (as seen in several sections), a floor is marked "4" in the section Facing South, west-East (E-F), as also in Trench G7 (see also Photograph 5). This Floor 4, however, is shown as laying between layers 4 and 3A in the section (between layers 3 and 4 in the photograph). These layers 3 and 4, the text tells us (p.41), belong to the earlier Period VI. Thus "Floor 4" in this section cannot belong to Period VII or the "massive structure". moreover, this floor is quite different from the floors that lay above it in the west section of G7, as evident in Photograph # 5. Thus it would be "Floor 3" that belonged to period VII, which means that in this trench only two floors, 3 and 2, may possibly be assigned to that period.

In Photograph # 53, "Floor 4" is mentioned in the caption as the "first" floor associated with the north-south wall. It is shown at the base of the excavation. The trench is without number in both photograph and caption. The floor at the base of the trench lies several (30-40?) centimeters below what is marked "Floor 1" on the section. Moreover, the section labels above this floor mark only layers 3 and 2, with "Floor 1" between these layers.

The only other mention of "Floor 4" is in the hypothetical isometric reconstruction of the mosque and 'temple' in Figure 23A. This is only a suggested reconstruction.

True, it is said (pp. 42-43) that the numbering of the floors of Period VII differs from trench to trench. yet the question still remains s to which section in the report shows phases A to C of Period VI and their three floors. , whatever the numbers assigned to them. As pointed out earlier, the report nowhere states the nature and content of the layers distinguished as VIII A, VII B and VII C.

In strtigraphic terms, ten, the characteristics and contents of the 3 phases of "Period" VII as given in the text of the report, are thrown in doubt by lacunae and inconsistencies. Lacunae include not only an absence of 3 sequential floors in the sections of the relevant layers, but also the absence of information as to the content of the Strata below those assigned to Period VII in Trench E7, one of the more important on the mound as it contains an undisputed part of the mosque, the South chamber.

8.6. That a simple stratigraphic principle is that no wall can be accurately dated vis-à-vis floors, unless we can see from which level the foundation trench for the western wall was cut, an which floor seals (or runs over) that vertical foundation cut (running close along the wall). A wall can be used, even raised higher, in periods after it was originally built. If a floor runs right up to a wall, with no gap or interruption between them. We assume that the wall and floor are functionally related, i.e. that they belong to the same building it may be that the floor was laid after the wall was built, but not vice versa. the stratum to which the first construction of the wall dates, is indicated by the level from which the cut was for made its foundation. That cut, in its turn, will be dated by the floor or surface that seals the cut. The report does not state which layer or floor seals the so-called foundation trench mentioned on p. 41and p.69.

Photograph no.52 (Trench E8) purports to show a cut, indicating the date of the massive west wall, in the north face of the trench, but (a) this face or section (technically, the "Section Facing South") shows an animal burrow sloping away from the west wall towards the east. the burrow cuts the second floor from the top, and also the read crush floor below it. From the level of the latter, the read stratum, a cut goes down vertically, but is too far (about 75cm.) from the west wall to be appreciated as its foundation trench cut.

Besides, (b) there is no "proof" because I the photograph the cut in the floor at the bottom of the trench (this floor lies several

www.vadaprativada.com

centimeters below what is marked.

"Floor 2" on the second in the Photograph) is neither close to, nor parallel to, the line of the wall, and does not therefore, indicate the edge of a trench dug to make a wall.

In Photograph 55 of Trench ZE1 we see labels marking "Floor 1" and "Floor 2" in the section, and a floor (without number) at the base of the excavation area below, but there is no cut visible in the trench section close to the east face of the north-south running wall. the upper and lower floors run right up to the east face of the wall. Thus we cannot say that either of these floors was earlier than, and cut to make room for, the upper courses of the north-sough wall. the same observation follows from the Section Facing South, West-East (K-L), pertaining to Trench ZE1, east of Wall # 5 A.

So too no cut is visible in the Section E-F, Facing South, in E 7 inside the South Chamber of the mosque. Al that we have in this I a sequence of surfaces or strata below "Floor 3" coming straight up to the western wall in E7. There is no cut line, vertical or sloping, near the vertical edge of the wall.

9.TERRACOTA FIGURINES ____RELEVANCE OF:-

9.1 That during the excavation, the A.S.I. found 62 human 131 animal figurines. These discoveries are irrelevant to the question under inquiry. A large number of them belong to ancient period. The A.S.I. unnecessarily took pains to give details of terracotta figurines and to include their 33 plates (Pls. No. 104 to 136) knowing well that these figurines, most of which belong to ancient periods, were not at all relevant to the question contained in the Hon'ble Court's order. The chart below gives an idea of this exercise in futility. It is possible that the A.S.I. gave detailed description of human figurines and their photographs to lead

credence to its theory of an alleged temple-like structure beneath Babri Masjid.

9.2. That there are a large number discrepancies also in the description of these Terracotta finds, which also create doubts upon the bonafides of the A.S.I. Team giving such incorrect descriptions. it is true that when archaeological deposits are disturbed, it is not surprising to find earlier material in later levels. This happens when construction or leveling activities require the bringing in of soil from peripheral areas or the clearing and mixing of older deposits. On the other hand, the reverse is impossible, that is we cannot, in an earlier stratified

context, find material of later periods. However, the latter appears to the be case at Ayodhya in the context of terracota figurines as seen in the tabulation provided on pp.174-203. We find in numerous cases figurines of later periods in far earlier levels, as is evident from the following Table:-

9.3. That it may also be pointed out that on p.93 the Report mentions that shapes like sprinkler appear in Period IV (Gupta period). However, on p.80, sprinklers are mentioned from Period II (Sunga level) that evolved into their diagnostic forms in the subsequent Period III or Kushan period. So also on p.41, it is stated that layers 5,6 and 7 in Trench G2 belong to the Medieval Sultanate level. In the schematic cross-section and tentative periodization, layer 2 and 3 belong to the Medieval level. Hence, what is then layer 4?

10. GLAZED WARES AND GLAZED TILES:-

10.1. That the glazed ware, often called "Muslim" glazed ware, constitutes an equally definite piece of evidence, which militates against the presence or construction of a temple, since such galzed ware was not at all used in temples. The ware is all pervasive till much below the level of "Floor No.4", which floor is falsely ascribed in the Report to the "huge" structure of a temple allegedly built in the 11$^{th}$-12$^{th}$ centuries. The report tells us that the glazed ware sherds only "make their appearance" "in the last phase of the period VII" (p. 270). Here we directly encounter the play with the names of periods. On page 270, Period VII is called "Medieval Sultanate", dated to 12$^{th}$ –16$^{th}$ century A.D. But on p. 40 "Medieval- Sultanate" is the name used for Period VI, dated to 10$^{th}$ and 11$^{th}$ centuries. In Chapter V (Pottery), there is no statement made to the effect that the galzed ware appears in

"the last phase of Period VII" as is asserted in the Summary. Rather, it is there definitely stated that "the pottery of Medieval-Sultanate, Mughal and Late-and-Post Mughal period (Periods VII to IX)…indicates that there is not much difference in pottery wares and shapes" and that "the distinctive pottery of the periods is glazed ware: (p. 108). The placing of the appearance of Glazed Ware in the "last phase" of Period VII is thus a last-minute invention in the Report, to keep its "massive" temple, allegedly built in Period VII, clear of Glazed-Ware by a sleight of hand, because otherwise it would militate against a temple being built in that period. All this gross manipulation has been possible because the items of galzed pottery have not been attributed to their trench and stratum even in the select list of 21 items of glazed ware (out of hundreds of items actually obtained) on pages 109-11]. Seeing the importance of glazed ware as a factor for elementary dating (pre or post- Muslim habitation at the site), and in view also of the Hon'ble High Court's order dated 10-4-2003 about the need for recording of glazed ware, a tabulation of all recorded galzed-ware sherds according to trench and stratum was essential. That this has been entirely disregarded shows that, owing to the glazed-ware evidence being totally incompatible with any alleged temple construction activity in Period VI, the A.S.I. has resorted to the most unprofessional act of ignoring and manipulating the archaeological finds.

10.2. That Going by the Pottery Section of the Report (p. 108), not by its "summary", the presence of Glazed Ware throughout Period VII (Medieval, 12$^{th}$-16$^{th}$ centuries) rules out what is asserted on page 41, that a "column-based structure"---- (on the alleged pillar bases)-----was built in this period. How could Muslims have been using glazed ware inside a temple?

(To say that glazed ware was found at Multan and Tulamba before the 13th century, is hardly germaine to the issue, since, obviously these were towns under Arab rule with Muslim settlements since 714 AD onwards, and so the use of glazed ware over there can be expected.) The whole point is that glazed ware is an indicator of Muslim habitation, and is not found in medieval Hindu temples.

10.3. That the question whether particular sorts of glazed ware made by Muslim potters, could have been used in any medieval Hindu temple was dealt with by S.K. Mirmira, in Indian Pottery (Chanda: Gramodyaya Sangh, 1973) who states (pp. 5-7):-

"India was invaded and ruled by the Moslem dynasties since 1000 AD for a few centuries and along with them they had brought certain arts and crafts. Decorative pottery was one o them. In the 12th century AD Muslim rulers had encouraged many potters from their homelands to come and settle in India. These potters especially from Persia, knew hot to superimpose bluish green glaze on red clay wares…….As a result of this, the potters near Delhi have become famous for their bluish decorations… An enthusiastic Maharaja of Rajasthan near Jodhpur brought some potters from Arab countries…..

It is presumed that the reason for not adopting the glazing technique of Muslim craftsmen in religious; the orthodox Hindu potters did not relish the idea of learning the new technique from those who eat beef. In Khurja near Delhi there still a few Muslim potters, descendants of the Persian settlers, who still use this technique of glazing."

Concerning porcelain wares the author writes,

www.vadaprativada.com

"Indians because of religious prejudices did not like these, as they thought that bones were used in the clay for whitening the wares. Even in this day, in rural parts people call whitewares as 'farangi'……..Therefore, nobody even tried to adopt these techniques."

10.4. The story of Glazed Tiles is very similar. These too are an index of Muslim habitation. yet 2 Glazed Tiles are found in layers of Period VI which means that the layers are wrongly assigned and must be dated to period VII (Sultanate period). There could be no remains of any "huge temple" in these layers then.

10.5. That On p. 163, it is mentioned that glazed tiles "mainly come from debris and dump of the disputed structure. However, some of the glazed tile pieces have also been recovered from the depth which is lower than the disputed structure but from the levels of Period VIII and IX only." These are completely false statements and show the level of inaccuracy in the Report. Fist of all, the glazed tiles do not come from the debris and dump of the disputed structure. The debris and dump was removed from Trenches E2, F2, G5, F6, E6, D6, F3 and F4/F5 out of the excavated trenches. Glazed tiles that have been found from these trenches come from levels below the Babri Masjid floor and not from the debris or dump lying about it. some of the debris that had rolled down the western slope, was recovered from the B and C series of trenches. Glazed tiles from this debris add up to a total of 14, Second, of the 155 pieces of glazed tiles in the table provided by the A.S.I., 96 come from pits or fill in various trenches. Of the remaining 45, 29 come from Period VII but 14 are from Medieval levels (Period VII) and 2 from the Early Medieval level (Period VI). This has been gleaned from the table provided by the A.S.I. on opp. 164-72. Thus, the A.S.I.'s own information falsifies their claim that the glazed title pieces mainly come from Period VIII and IX.

11. GROSS OMISSION: EVIDENCE OF ANIMIAL BONES:-

11.1. One decisive piece of evidence, which entirely negates the possibility of a temple, is that of animal bones. Bone fragments with cut marks are a sure sign of animals being eater at the site, and, therefore, rule out the possibility of a temple existing at the site at the relevant time. As no record of bones was being maintained by the A.S.I. Team, the plaintiffs had moved application and thereupon directions were given by the Hon'ble High Court to the A.S.I. to record "the number and size of bones and glazed wares" (Order dated 10-4-2003). The Report in its "Summary of Results" admits that "animal bones have been recovered from various levels of different periods" (Report, p. 270). Any serious archaeological report would have tabulated the bones, by periods, levels and trenches, and identified the species of the animals. There should, indeed, have been a chapter devoted to animal bones/ remains. But despite the statement in its "Summary", there is no word about the animal bones in the main text of the Report. This astonishing omission is patently due to the A.S.I.'s prejudiced mindset with which the excavations were carried out and far of the fatal implications held out by the animal bone evidence for its preconceived temple theory. A partial table is being provided of animal bones as found in the various trenches at different levels as noted by the nominess of the plaintiffs (which may also be verified from the Day-to-Day register) and it is shown how these are found at all levels all over the site. The A.S.I.

perhaps knows that sacrificial animals' bones (if we are dealing here with a temple where animals were sacrificed, which, incidentally, has not been claimed for any Rama temple) cannot be represented by bone fragments with cut-marks strewn all over, but need to be found at particular spots, practically whole and entire, which is not here at all the case in even a single instance.

11.2. That the statements on pages 45, 55 and 271 etc. of the report, suggesting that probably this site was not a habitational site and had stratified cultural material only from the first seven periods or that it was only during and after Period IV (Gupta level) onwards upto Period IX (Late and Post Mughal level) that the regular habitational deposits disappear and the area below the disputed structure remained a place for public use for along time till the Period VIII (Mughal level) stand belied and negatived by the animal bone evidence and perhaps that is why the Animal bones were totally ignored.

Given below is a Table of animal bones found in various trenches at various levels, from records maintained by nominees during the excavations and more detailed and accurate Table may be prepared and filed by the A.S.I. with the help of day to day register.

11.3. That from the above table it is clear that animal bones have been found in NBP, Gupta, post Glupta, Early Medieval, Medieval and Mughal levels, in other words, practically from all levels. It should also be clear that bones were also found from the central supposedly significant area, as in Trenches F3 and F4/F5. In the case of F3, bones are coming from Early Medieval levels and in F4/F5 from Early Medieval and Medieval levels. If, as according to the A.S.I., post-Gupta levels onwards are not residential in nature but attest to levels with temples, and these levels are supposedly stratified, it is to be wondered at as to why animal bones were found even from the central part of the alleged temple. If, as the A.S.I. says, soil from earlier levels was used for construction, then it is surprising that for the construction of a temple, no sorting or sieving was done, as bones and other such materials are regarded as highly polluting.

12. POTTERY:-

12.1. That in Chapter V on Pottery, it is highly significant that the pottery of Periods VI, VIII and IX is all described together (see pp. 108-120). If stratum VII contained a structure so radically different from the mosque in VIII above, why were their finds not kept separate?

12.2. That the moreover, it is stated (p. 108) that the pottery of Periods VII, VIII and IX is combined together because "there is not much difference" in either wares or shapes. Thus the pottery of an insinuated "temple" structure is said to be of the same types as that of a mosque! Incidentally, chillum and hukka pieces are also recorded in this combined batch of pottery (p. 115). Can we expect such finds in a temple?

13. INSCRIPTIONS:-

13.1. That the short report on Inscriptions (on pages 204-06) one of which is in Nagari, and are are in Arabic, show how casual and preconceived in its notions was the A.S.I. The first is not to be dated with any certitude to the 11th century: its time range could be 7th –12th centuries; and it could be a Pala record of a Buddhist provenance--- a piece of evidence negativing the presence of a Hindu temple. On purely palaeographic rounds, the Arabic inscriptions can be dated to the 13th century with a much reason as to the 16th century.

13.2. That the so-called "Nagari" inscription has only five letters whose right-ward sloping limes in their lower portions proclaim their affinity to the Siddhamatrika script, 7th –12th centuries, out of which the Devanagari script has originated. Five letter are not sufficient to declare the letters as belonging to the 11th century (where the A.S.I. places construction of the "huge" temple. (See for the Sidhamatrika script and characters_ Richard Salomon, Indian Epigraphy, New Delhi, 1998, pp.32, 39-41). Thus the time-range of the inscription should be 7th –12th centuries. The decipherment is also hasty. The reading of the character next to la is ja (with a as in "jar"), not simple ja with 'a' as 'u' "judge". Further the A.S.I. should have asked itself about the suffix pala, which suggests a possible reference to one of the Pala rulers of Bengal and Bihar (8th- 11th centuries) who also held eastern U.P. (as shown by an inscription at Sarnath), and used the Siddhamatrika script. Their well-known patronage of Buddism seems to be the sole reason why the A.S.I. has avoided any further enquiry into the name-Pala found in this inscription.

13.3. That the bias of the A.S.I. is again manifest in how the two Arabic inscriptions found in the debris of the Mosque, are dealt with in the Report, (pages 205-6), with Plates 91 and 92. The A.S.I. epigraphist dates them both to the early sixteenth century, allegedly on the basis of the naskh characters employed. He gives no reason why the writing cannot be dated earlier, or placed within a larger range, say 13th- 18th century. In this respect reference may be given to the inscriptions on fronts of the Qutub Minar and the tomb of Iltutamish, both belonging to the first half of the 13th century (given in Tatsuro Yanamoto, et al., Delhi: Architectural Remains of the Delhi Sutanate Period, Tokyo, 1967, Plates 2b, 6b). It will be seen that the naskh is of the same style. Clearly, the A.S.I. epigraphist has not even considered the possibility of an earlier date, because he know he was expected to hold that all mosque materials must be dated to 1528, so that there be no thought that anything could belong to an earlier mosque/Eidgah on the site.

13.4. That the floral design of the stone slab in which the word

www.vadaprativada.com

"Allah" has been carved (Plate 92) should show to everyone how absurd it is to take a floral motif as a sure sign of a temple!

14. OTHER CONTRADICTIONS AND DISCREPANCIES:-

14.1. That there appears to be considerable confusion on the point as to when structural activity first began at the site. For example, on p. 37 it is mentioned that, "the site had seen successive structural activities which began from the middle of the Kushan level (Period III)." On p. 38 in the section on Period II (Sunga level) it is mentioned that, "it is this period that the site witnessed first structural activity in stone and brick, as noticed in J3."

14.2. That the descriptive term used for certain period changes from one chapter to another. For example, in Chapter III (Stratigraphy and Chronology), Period VI is described as the Medieval-Sultanate level. In the same chapter, the tentative periodization and schematic cross-section of the mound describes the period as Early Medieval-sultanate. however, in Chapter V (Pottery) and Chapter X (summary of Results) this same period is described as Early Medieval. In Chapter X, this period is also described as Early Medieval-Rajput. Period VII in Chapter III is described as Medial but the Chapter V and Chapter X, it is described as Medieval Sutanate.

14.3. That on p.44, it is stated that, "no deposit contemporary to the Mughal period exists on the mound presently." The next page (45) it points out that the last two periods (Mughal and Late Post Mughal) are only represented by structural activities. Further, on p. 271, the Report points out that, "there is an increase in contemporary archaeological material including pottery in the Mughal period.

14.4. That on page 41, it is mentioned that the earliest floor extended in the eastern area up to the H series of trenches in sub-period VIIA. In sub-period VIIB, the next floor extended up to trenches J4-J5-J6. On p. 42, it is indicated that in sub-period VIIC, the floor associated with the "pillar bases" is the most extensive on the mound. In Fig. 23A, however, Floor 4 (the said earliest floor) is shown as extending all over the mound while Floor 3 and 2 are more restricted providing a comolete contradictory picture.

14.5. That In Chapter III, on p. 42, Period VII is described thus: "Total deposit of this period is approximately 50 to 60 cm thick which includes layers 1 and 2 in almost all the trenches except those in the eastern area where the deposit was disturbed by the construction in the later periods and in the northern are where the floor of the Period VIIC remained exposed and under use till late." However, according to the tentative periodization and schematic cross-section in the southern area, layer 1 is shown to be clearly belonging to the Mughal period. So does layer 1 in the southern area belong to period VII or VIII?

14.6. That on p. 44, while discussing Period IX (Late and Post Mughal level), it is mentioned that first a partition wall was added and later an enclosure wall was built for the complex. However, it is well known that the Babri Masjid was built with an enclusure wall and around the mid-19$^{th}$ century, the area of the Babri Masjid was partitioned with a wall.

14.7. That on the same page (p.44) and on pp. 70 and 270 it is mentioned that there were burials in the late and post Mughal period (Period IX) in the north and south that have cut the top floors and were sealed by layer 1. According to the A.S.I.'s own admission, on p. 42, layer 1 in the southern area is supposed to be of the medieval period while in the schematic cross-section and tentative periodization, layer 1 is of the Mughal period. Therefore, if these burials are sealed by layer 1, then either they belong to the medieval period (Period VII- 12th to 16th centuries) or to the Mughal period (period VIII). It may be pointed out that it is in the former period that the alleged temple supposedly stood here.

14.8. That the tabulation of the "pillar bases" from pp. 56-57 mentions the floors on which they rest and in some cases to which they are contemporary. However, the floor numbers do not tally with the information provided in Appendix IV at the end of the text. For example, "pillar base" 22 on pp. 60-61 is indicated as resting on Floor 4 but on p.6 of the appendix, there is no Floor 4 in Trench F2. This discrepancy has been found in 21 cases out of 50.

14.9. That the tabulation of stone architectural fragments, in Chapter VI, also includes non-architectural members like S.No.3 (saddle), S.No.20 (bowl), S.No.48 (pestle), S.No.51 (pestle), S.No.76 (diya), S.No.78 (pestle), S.No.81 (elephant), S.No.90 (muller) and S.No.145 (dish). These, if of stone, should have been described in Chapter IX, on miscellaneous objects.

15. SUMMARY:-

15.1. While summarizing the objections against the A.S.I. Report it can be safely said that the objections mentioned above cannot be said to be exhaustive but rather the same are only indicative of the shortcomings, lacunae, partisan attitude, bias and unprofessional style and method of the said report and in short it can be said that the well wishes of Indian Archaeology have to consider that how the credibility and reputation of the A.S.I. can be revived after such a report, which has virtually destroyed the 142 years old image and distinguished past of such an erstwhile renowned organisation.

15.2. That since the "Summary of Results (P.P. 268-272 of the report) is not based upon the archaeological finds and material, no member of the A.S.I. Team takes responsibility for the same and that is why chapters I to IX are ascribed to one or more authors, but not so the last, chapter X, (Summary of Results).

15.3. That the conclusion drawn in the report (P. 272) about the alleged "remains" mentioned therein, being indicative of the "distinctive features found associated with the temples of north India" is totally baseless, unfounded and without support of any archaeological evidence.

15.4. That about the evidence of continuity in structural phases from the tenth century A.D. onwards up to the construction of the disputed structure, statigraphically, the situation is not so as has been alleged. The depositional history of the site clearly reveals that the site was abandoned and remained deserted for about six centuries after Gupta Period. That is, from about six to twelfth century A.D. It was reoccupied in 13th century by the people who used glazed ware, glazed titles, made floors of lime and surkhi and lived on food animals.

15.5. That the available positive material evidence relating to stratigraphy, depositional history, cultural assemblages and architectural technology clearly reveal that the structures lying below the Babri Masjid belong to the Islamic Period. There is nothing to indicate at all that there were any remains of an alleged temple.

PRAYER

It is therefore, prayed that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to reject the A.S.I. Report filed on 22-8-2003 and such other order/ orders as may be deemed just and proper in the circumstances of the case may also be passed in the ends of justice.

ADDITIONAL OBJECTION, AS PER ORDER DATED 19-1-2004, AGAINST THE A.S.I. REPORT OF AYODHYA EXCAVATION

The plaintiff No.1- Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. begs to submit as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

1. That in addition to the objections already filed against the A.S.I. report of Ayodhya Excavation these Additional objections are being filed in pursuance to the order dated 19-1-2004.

2. That at the very outset it may be pointed out that the papers submitted by the ASI do not contain an essential document Viz. the concordance of numbered layers in each trench with the Periods attributed by ASI to the same in its Report. It is, therefore, not at all clear as to how the ASI could make statements in its Report about the finds like pottery type, terra cotta artefacts, sculpute pieces and structural remains as belonging to certain periods. This is not possible without such a concordance covering all trenches. If such a concordance does not exist and was not prepared at all, it would mean that the ASI has made its statements about the

periods of structural remains and artefacts without any basis in stratification just to please its masters. If, on the other hand, a concordance was prepared, and it is now being withheld or has been destroyed, it would suggest that the ASI was itself apprehending that the same may go against their findings and as such they did not want their report to be tested on the basis of the same.

3. That even otherwise, from the ASI report and from other informations / papers etc. supplied to this Hon'ble Court by the ASI Team Leader, it can not be believed that the said report could have been directly feeded in the Computer by the authors of the same, as shown in the said report, and that being so a serious doubt has been created about the authenticity an genuineness of the said report and further submissions about the same can be made only after getting response of the ASI, as per order of this Hon'ble Court, passed on 20-1-2004 on the objection filed by the plaintiffs against the rely of Sri Hari Manjhi filed on 19-1-2004 against the application under section 340 Cr.P.C. As such the plaintiffs and other objectors may require to file further objections after perusing the response of the ASI to the aforesaid objections dated 20-1-2004.

4. That it is quite unimaginable that the entire report of excavation was directly feeded on Computer by the so called authors of the same without preparing any rough notes or draft report and the efforts made by the ASI not to bring those rough notes and draft reports etc. on record create serious doubts about the genuineness and correctness of the said report filed in this Hon'ble Court. In this respect the objections filed by the plaintiffs on 20-1-2004, against the reply of Sri Hari Manjhi filed on 19-1-2004 against the application moved under section 340 Cr.P.C., may be treated as a part of these Additional Objections.

5. That the stand taken by the ASI, for explaining the delay in depositing the photographs taken from the Digital Camera and Digital Cassettes of the same and the averments that the photography of the Digital Camera was done as a parallel reording with the manual photography and Video Filming, was also misleading and this indicated atleast negligence and carelessness of the ASI Team Leader. The very fact that Digital Cassettes were said not to have been ever seen by the ASI Team Leader also goes to establish as to how and to what extent he was in the control of the said excavation. Even the wrong mention of dates in these Digital Cassettes, as pointed out in the reply of the plaintiffs dated 4-12-2003 filed against the response of the ASI dated 1-12-2003, was of much significance and the said reply may also be perused in this respect and for other incidental matters to show the performance of the said ASI Team Leader regarding the preparation of this report.

BONES:-

6. That although this Hon'ble Court had taken care to ensure that the Bones and Glazed Wares etc. may also be preserved so that the same may be taken note of at the relevant time and from the affidavit of Sri Hari Manjhi dated 12-11-2003 it appears that apart from the sealed packets of bones preserved in pursuance to the order dated 26-3-2003 there were some other bones also which were mentioned on the register but the ASI report makes only casual and cursory mention about the said bones and perhaps no study and observation of the said bones was ever done by any member of the ASI Team. This deliberate omission on the part of the ASI team appears to be the result of some preconceived notions about the report which was to be given by the ASI because the study of bones was bound to lead o the inference that the layer in which the said bones were found could not belong to any period during which the alleged existence of any temple could be claimed as it was evident that in no temple, least of all in a Ram Temple, animals could be said to have been eaten and their bones left around.

7. That there is no chapter about the study of bones in the entire report and a casual reference about the bones on page 270 in the chapter of summary of results, without mentioning any contextual relationship of the said bones with the structural remains including those which were attributed by the ASI to a temple, goes to establish that the said conclusion made by the ASI (page 272) is totally unreliable, unfounded and incorrect. In this respect it may also be possible that the original report did contain such a chapter or sub chapter about the study/ observations regarding the bones but such information being found to be inconvenient to the pre-determined assumptions of the ASI, the same might have to be deleted from the report. however for the convenience of the court and for a better appreciation of the arguments to be advanced in this respect a chart showing layers and trenches etc. where the said bones were reported to have been found during the course of excavation may be submitted at the time of arguments for the disposal of the ASI Report.

8. That as the ASI has not offered any concordance of trench wise layers with the periods assigned to those layers by the ASI it was difficult to be accurate about the said periods. This omission may be said to be on account of lack of professionalism shown by the ASI Team but this may also be deliberate in order to evade any close checking of their claims and assumptions.

9. That from the ASI's own record we find that animal bones are found in the layers of Period VI, in practically every trench, whose layers have been attributed to specific periods by the ASI. This may be seen from the following Table:-

| Trench No. | Layer No. assigned to Period VI |
|---|---|
| E-6 | 4 (below Period VII layer 3) |
| E-7 | 4 (below Period VII layer 2) |
| F-4/F5 | 4 (below period VII layer 3) |
| F-8 | 3 |
| G-2 | 6, 6A |
| G-7 | 4 |
| J-2/J-3 | 4 |
| J-3 | 5 |

www.vadaprativada.com

How so many animal bones could have been scattered about in the layers of Period VI when allegedly a "massive" temple came to exist at the site in this very period? is a question that finds no answer in the Report. indeed, the doubts as to Floor 4, said to have been allegedly laid out as a temple floor in this period, also gow immensely when we find animal bones recorded in the context of Floor 4in trenches J-7 and E-9. Furthermore, animal bones continue to be found between Floor No.4 and Floor No.3 (claimed by ASI to be a temple floor laid out in Period VII) in trenches No.H-7 and G-7.

10. That the calm of ASI that the temple was rebuilt in period VII, resting on Floor No.3, it is worth mentioning that the animal bones were very much found in the layers of this period also in the central trenches:-

www.vadaprativada.com

| Trench No. | Layer No. belonging to period VII |
|---|---|
| E6 | 2 |
| F8 | 2 above layer 3 belonging to period VI |
| G-2 | 3 |
| J3/J4 | 3 |

It is thus evident that animal bones have been found just below Floor 3, belonging to this period (according to ASI) in trench G-7 as well as in J-7 and H-7. What should have surprised the ASI team still more is the presence of animal bones below Floor 2 (and so between Floors 2 and 3) in G-7. Sine Floor 2 is alleged by ASI to be the earliest mosque floor and Floor 3 to be that of the alleged temple, how could these animal bones be said to have remained there into a temple?

The number of animal-bone remains from these periods would be far more numerous, if in the case of the central trenches, where alone the ASI has identified layers with periods, the layers of bone-finds had been universally specified and/or if the ASI were to provide a concordance of layers with period in all the trenches.

Taken together, the animal-bone evidence clearly refutes any suggestion that there could have been a temple on the site in question in the period 11th to 16th century (ASI's periods VI and VII) and the Floors 4 and 3 could have belonged to an alleged temple.

GLAZED WARES AND GLAZED TILES

11. That in its Report the ASI makes, both explicitly and implicitly, an assertion that the kinds of glazed pottery and tiles found at the disputed site in Ayodhya through its excavations belong solely to the period after the arrival of the Muslims, i.e. from the 13th ce ntury onwards.

In Chapter V (Pottery), in the section on Period VI

www.vadaprativada.com

("Medieval Pre-Sultanate", 11th and 12th centuries- by the ASI's own description and dating) not a single glazed potsherd is described under Period VI (pages 104-108). The three periods VII, VIII and IX ("Medieval-Sultanate", "Mughal" and "Late-and-Post- Mughal), i.e. from 13th to 18th centuries, have their pottery described together (pages 108-120). In the very beginning on page 108 it is stated: "The distinctive pottery of these periods is the glazed ware made of well lavigated clay having ordinary terracotta core or whitish sandy core." (Italics ours.)

12. That regarding the glazed tiles, discussed on pages 163-73 of the Report, it is firmly stated (page 163): "Some of the glazed tile pieces have also been recovered from the depth which is lower than the disputed structure, but from the levels of Period VIII and IX only." (Italics ours.)

13. That there is thus a deep anxiety to project that all finds of glazed pottery and glazed tiles come from such levels as belong to the period after 1200 and preferably after 1526, so that none may think that there are glazed potsherds and glazed tiles anywhere about the levels where the ASI alleges a temple was first built and then rebuilt. The ASI can get away with this because nowhere in its Report does it provide any concordance of its numbered layers trench-wise with the Periods it has established.

14. That if we take up the evidence of the few trenches where the ASI has had to indicate in the text and charts of Chapter III ('Stratigraphy and Chronology'), the relationship between its numbered layers and the Periods it has established, it would be evident that there was no basis for the same. Now let us take Trench J-3. On the two Charts (placed between pages 37-8) the following layers of this trench are assigned to

particular periods:-

Layer 1: Period VIII "Mughal (16th –17h centuries)

Layer 2: Period VI "Medieval- Sultanate" (13th–15th centuries)

Layer 3: Period VII: "Medieval - Sultanate" (13th–15th centuries)

Layer 4: Period VI: "Early Medieval-Pre-Sultanate" (11th -12th centuries)

Layer 5: Period V: "Post-Gupta, Rajput" (7th–10th centuries AD)

(The nomenclature of periods is given here as per ASI application for "correction" submitted to the Court, and the dates, in terms of centuries, are also as stated by the ASI in Chapter III of its Report)

This position will be more clear from the Chart prepared on the basis of the ASI's records, made available to the parties as per orders of this Hon'ble Court, which has 3 Tables. This Chart is being filed herewith as Annexure No.1.

This assertion stands belied if we refer to the ASI's own recording made about different layers of the trench J-3, which shows as under:-

| Period | Layer | Description | Serial No. of the Table I of the Annexure No.I |
|---|---|---|---|
| VI | 4 | Glazed ware sherds (two pieces) | 8 |
| VI | 4 | Glazed ware sherds (J2/J3) | 186 |
| VII | 3 | Glazed ware sherds (J2/J3 baulk) | 190 |
| VII | 3 | Glazed ware sherds (J3/J4 baulk) | 191 |
| VII | 2 | Glazed ware sherds (three pieces) (J3/K3 baulk) | 213 |

www.vadaprativada.com

In addition Gritty Glazed Ware was found in Layer 5 (Annexure 1, Table II, S.N.3) and Blue Glazed Ware in Layer 5 (Annexure 1, Table III, S.N.9) and one piece of Glazed Ware with T.C. core (Annexure I, Table III, S.N.18) in Layer 4.

With such amplitude of glazed ware in Layers 4 and 5 in J-3, how can these layers be dated before the 13th century? The same result is obtained if one looks at Glazed tiles from the list of glazed tile fragments in the ASI Report itself (pages 164-173):-

|---|---|---|---|
| Period V | Layer 5 | Large rectangular fragment in three pieces | Serial No.9 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | 14 fragments of glazed tiles, floral designs, bluish green glaze | Serial No.18 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | Fragment of green glazed tile | Serial No.21 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | 10 fragments of green- and blue- glazed tiles | Serial No.23 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | Blue- glazed tile | Serial No.26 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | Rectangular strip with green glaze | Serial No.33 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | Fragment with greenish glaze | Serial No.34 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | Greenish glaze, perforated | |
| Period V | Layer 5 | Greenish glaze, perforated knob (fragment) | Serial No.35 |
| Period V | Layer 5 | Two glazed title pieces | Serial No.11 |

| Period VI | Layer 4 | Glazed tile fragment, blue glaze | Serial No.31 |
| Period VI | Layer 4 | Four fragment with blue green glaze | Serial No.11 |
| Period VI | Layer 4 | Blush green tile | Serial No.30 |

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| | | (fragment) | |
| Period VII | Layer 3 | Decorated blue-glazed tile (fragment) | Serial No.3 |
| Period VII | Layer 3 | Green glaze (two fragments) | Serial No.110 |
| Period VII | Layer 3 | Green glaze, one piece | Serial No.111 |
| Period VII | Layer 3 | 2 fragments, green glaze | Serial No.112 |
| Period VII | Layer 3 | Rectangular piece, dark green glaze | Serial No.113 |
| Period VII | Layer 3 | 2 pieces, green glaze | Serial No.114 |

15. That even if we ignore the finds from J-3, attributed to pits or not assigned to any layer, yet from the numerous pieces of glazed wares of Muslim provenance (as admitted in effect by the ASI's report) found in layer 4, attributed to Period VI, the same will be treated as of a period when the initial Floor No.4 of the alleged Rama temple is supposed to have been laid out, and in layer 3 attributed to Period VII, when the alleged second temple floor, 'Floor 3' was allegedly laid out. It is thus clear that not only the ASI's periodization is wrong but that there did not exist any temple over either Floor 4 or Floor 2 and so none existed at any time, since glazed tiles are not known to have been used in any temple before the seventeenth century- a reason why the ASI cleverly wishes to assign all glazed tiles found at the site to the 16th century and later.

16. That it may be mentioned here that besides a glazed ware sherd (Annexure 1, Table I, S.No.16) found in context of Floor 4, a 'diamond motif with green-glazed' tile has been found in J7 below Floor 3 (see item 24, page 165), along with a fragment with green glaze, also found below Floor 3 (item 25) in the same trnch, so that these glazed tiles are scaled by Floor 3, and, so must have come from a structure built on Floor 4. How could, then, the structure built on Floor 4 have been a temple or might have belonged to the 11th – 12th centuries (ASI's Period VI")?

PILLAR BASES:-

17. That while speaking about "pillar bases" (allegedly fifty of them), the ASI does not produce a single instance of any pillar base found anywhere else which might be of similar or identical nature in appearance and may as those which were claimed to have been discovered at the Babri Masjid site. This was so, also, because no load bearing pillar could ever have stood on mere mud-bonded heaps of brickbats. On the other hand we find at Sanghol as to how pillar bases actually look when archaeologists find them in excavation. Three Photographs of the Pillar Bases found at SANGHOL are being filed herewith as ANNEXURE NOS.2,3 and 4.

18. That the aforesaid Photographs illustrate how brick pillar bases should be constructed. These are probably of the Kushan period from the site of Sanghol in Punjab. Sanghol in Samrala Tehsil of Ludhiana district was excavated with gaps, from 1968 to 1990. These excavations were jointly conducted by the Department of Cultural Affairs, Archaeology and Museums, Government of Punjab and Excavation Branch 2 of the Archaeological Survey of India. Sanghol is a multi-period site with evidence of Late Harappan Bara culture and Sunga, Kushan, Gupta and Medieval periods. The site was evidently a flourishing center in the Kushan period when stupas and monastries were built.

The pillar bases in these photographs belong to a stupa-cum-monastery complex, the second and smaller complex that was excavated. The pillar bases are rectangular, made of large bricks neatly set in place with a depression in the middle to set the pillar. Annexure No.3 also shows clearly that the pillar bases are all uniform in size and in method of construction, and are accurately aligned. The contrast with the so-called "pillar bases" at Ayodhya is more than apparent. At Ayodhya the alleged "pillar bases" have no means to secure and hold pillars in place. They are all of varying dimensions and materials and are not in any accurate alignment. In short, they could not have, in actually, been pillar bases.

OTHER CALCRETE AND BRICK BUILDINGS OF AYODHYA:

19. That the ASI Team did not even bother to make a survey of other buildings made of Calcrete and Bricks situated in Ayodhya in order to appreciate the tentative period of the use of similar Calcrete Stones and Bricks at Ayodhya. In this respect the photographs taken from three different spots are being filed herewith as ANNEXURE NOS. 5 to 11. The photographs being filed herewith as ANNEXURE NOS. 5 to 9 are of the famous Mosque of Begum Barias site and the platform of the same built of Calcrete Stones and Bricks, while Annexure NO.10 is of a wall of the Mosque situated at Ram Ki Pauri, Ayodhya and the Photograph being filed herewith as ANNEXURE NO.11 is also of a wall of the Calcrete and Bricks situated at a place known as Mani Parbat at Ayodhya.

INHERENT CONRADICTIONS AND ANOMALIES:-

20. That from a perusal of the Day to Day Register, Antiquity Register and other documents as well as from a perusal of the final report it is evident that a large number of entries mentioned therein vary in description from each other and as such it is difficult to understand as to which entry and what material was relied upon by the authors of the report. These contradictions, variations and discrepancies will be pointed out in detail during the course of arguments, which have already been mentioned to some extent at earlier occasions. To illustrate this point it may be mentioned that what is now being called as "Divine Couple" was an ordinary stone when it was found and how and by whom it was described as a "Divine Couple" is not borne out from any record?

www.vadaprativada.com

CONCLUSION:-

From the aforementioned points as well as from the points mentioned in the earlier objection dated 8-10-2003 it is evident that the ASI report filed on 22-8-2003, is full of confusions, contradictions and discrepancies and the same does not appear to be based upon the material found during the course of excavation and most of the finds/antiquities have alsobeen either mis interpreted or ignored for arriving at the pre-determined conclusion. The said Report is, therefore, liable to be rejected and such other order/orders as may be deemed just and proper in the circumstances of the case are also liable to be passed in the ends of justice.

IN THE HON'BLE HIGH COURT OF JUDICATURE AT ALLAHABAD LUCKNOW BENCH, LUCKNOW

C. M. APPLICATION NO. 141 (O) OF 2003

Mahmood Ahmad ..... Plaintiff No. 9-Objector

In Re:

O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989

Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. and others ..... Plaintiffs

Versus

Gopal Singh Visharad (now dead) and others .....Defendants

OBJECTION AGAINST THE REPORT OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA FILED ON 22.8.2003

The plaintiff No. 9-Mahmood Ahmad begs to submit as under:-

1. That the A.S.I. Report had been prepared with motivated mind and pre conceived notion to convey the impression that as if there existed some temple like structure at the disputed site prior to the construction of the mosque known as the "Babri Masjid" while the fact is that the excavations in question have not revealed the existence of any such alleged Hindu structure of 11-12th century but rather the same have established the existence of Muslim constructions/ structures of 13th century existing at the time of construction of Babri Masjid.

2. That against the A.S.I. Report other plaintiffs have already filed some objections and the same are being adopted by this objector also and further objections may be filed after the examination/study of the day-to-day register. Filed Books, Video-graphs and photographs etc. which could not be properly studied so far due to shortage of time and non filing of complete documents by the A.S.I. Within time.

3. That if the mosque (period VIII) is said to lie directly over the structure of Period VII. implied to be an alleged temple, we must examine the stratigraphic relationship between the foundations of the stratum VIII structures and its lowest fill and floor on the one hand, and the uppermost strata/floors of VIIC (lying below such foundations) on the other. It is stated on p. 43 that the "floor of the previous period (Period VII-C) is found cut by the stone block (mostly calcrete) foundations of the disputed structure (mosque)". This is belied by the sentence that immediately follows "However, the north-south wall of the Period VII-A is retained as foundation for the back wall." Thus there is no question of a foundation cut for the western wall. It is also significant that this statement is not accompanied by any reference to a section or trench in which one can see this cut.

The first mosque floor (Floor I) is said to lie over a rammed earth packing, a layer of grey kankar, and then a thin white surface in that order (top to bottom) (p.43).

No section included in the report shows, between the mosque floors and the layers below them, any interruption or layer of debris, or a burnt level Photograph 55 of ZEI shows Floors 3 to 1 in sequence against the face of the latter. The same applies to Photograph 49 showing the north-south wall with a niche in ZE2 no cut is visible in strata 2 to 6 against its offset, no loose or burnt layer either.

4. That it could be argued that since the western wall of the VII Structure is said to have been used for the mosque, no interruption or cut could be expected against it. But what about the South Chamber of the mosque? Did its wall (labeled #6- #7 when it turns north), about 1.5 m wide and consisting of a foundation of 3 calcrete courses and 15 cm offset or footing of brick, cut through the strata of the alleged "massive pillared hall"?

To answer this question, let us first turn to (A) the north section of F7 (Section Facing South, West-East (E-F)). It shows the South Chamber wall against the north section of F7. There are no visible cuts in that floor, said to belong to the "massive structure". (B) In the west section of E7 (Section Facing East South-North (G-

H), the South Chamber wall runs up to the west wall (#5, #16) and therefore there is no excavated section here.)

(C) Figure 6 shows the sectional elevation of the west face of F7. The major part of this trench is occupied by the South Chamber of the mosque. Not only is it shown that the upper floors, Floors 1 and 2, run right up to the blocks of the chamber wall, and flush with its face, but so too the line depicting Floor 3, on which a "pillar base" is shown to rest, is also shown continuing right up to the (north) face of that wall. To the south of that wall in the same trench, another "pillar base" lies against it (the south chamber wall) and obstructs the reading of the section.

(D) Personal observation of the South Chamber wall, in E7, showed that it rises above a cement floor about 85 cm below surface. In the east section of E7 it was observed that the white strip that is this lower Floor 3, runs up to touch the South Chamber wall- it has not been cut.

In our study of Trench E7 at the site it was observed that the lime floor that lies about 1 m (or less) below the surface in a small part of E7, south of the Chamber wall (i.e. outside the Chamber) runs all the way up to the plaster on the exterior (south) face of the lowest bricks of the footing of the South Chamber wall.

5. That the footing marked as wall 18 D projects about 20-25 cm out from the base of the calcrete-block built South Chamber wall. It can be observed not only in E7 against the west-to-east run of the wall, but also against its south-to-north stretch. (See Figures 4 and 6 of the report, where both are clearly drawn.) The footing is 68 cm below the top of the upper calcrete-block course in the west-to-east stretch, 72 cm below in the south-to-north stretch. It is about 25 to 33 cm high.

6. That both footings are plastered. It can be seen that both are integral with the floor that lies about 85-95 cm below surface. The plaster on the footing of the south-to-north stretch is actually one with the material of that floor- the two are continuous. This is the clinching evidence that Floor 3 actually belongs to the Babri Masjid, and is not a floor of the alleged "massive structure" as stated in the report. The floor runs up, continuously as one layer over the east face of the footing in F7.

7. That it is interesting to observe that the footing against the south-to-north run of the wall, confirms our interpretation that it is a footing and not an earlier wall. Where Wall 7 meets, in F6, an east-west wall of stone blocks (the entrance to the Chamber), there lies a so-called "pillar base", a scatter of bricks perhaps supporting the corner 1.1 m to the south of the southern edge of this so-called "pillar base" begins the footing. This 1.1 m gap is extremely significant because along it we can see NO holes or gaps, nor bricks to indicate the presence of an earlier wall. This confirms that this brick work was a footing and not earlier and independent.

8. That while the South Chamber wall has no extant plaster, the west-east running North Chamber wall (Wall # 12 in E2) with a foundation of four courses of calcrete blocks was plastered with 4 cm thick lime plaster." (p.53). This was observed by us in trench E2. Plaster lay on the north face of the stone block courses as well as further east on the brick work that continues this wall. This reaffirms the connection between the Babri Masjid structure and Floor 3.

Therefore, the lime floor that lies about 1 m below surface would have been in a functional relationship with the South Chamber of the mosque. Both would then be of the same date.

9. That together with the absence of foundation cuts and any destruction level-there are, instead, layers that represent filling and raising of the surfaces of the mound-then, evidence of the South Chamber construction shows that alleged uppermost floor (VIIC) of the alleged massive structure was in fact functionally related to the mosque.

10. That if we were asked to infer that the construction found in so-called Period VII was an alleged "temple", we would need to prove the existence of a plinth on which that alleged temple, with its so-called “pillar bases”, was raised but we find that the floors and fill of period VI are only foundation of the earliest floor of Period VII in phase A.

11. That in view of the averments made above and also for the objections taken by other co-plaintiffs, it would be expedient and in the ends of justice to reject the A.S.I. Report

It is, therefore, prayed that A.S.I. Report onexcavation may kindly be rejected and any other appropriate order, deemed proper, may also be passed.

ADDITIONAL OBJECTION AGAINST THE REPORT OF ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA FILED ON 22.8.2003

The plaintiff No. 9-Mahmood Ahmad begs to submit as under:-

1. That these objections are being filed in addition to the objections already filed, on behalf of plaintiff No. 9, on 9.10.2003.

2. That the A.S.I. Report of excavation at Ayodhya does not at all comply with the requirements of well settled principles of excavation and submitting report on the basis of the same.

3. That the aforesaid report does not al all provide any concordance of its numbered layers in a trench wise manner giving periods which could be said to have been established on the basis of the same, although such a concordance was very essential in the instant report as the excavation covered a large number of trenches situated at least in an area of about 100 feet by 100 feet.

4. That in the absence of any such concordance having been prepared by the A.S.I. Or given in its report it was almost impossible to suggest with any definiteness and accuracy as to which layer pertained to which period, specially in the context of the finds of Glazed Wares and Glazed Tiles and as such the inference drawn in the report, that some of the Glazed Tiles pieces could be attributed to the level of period VIII and IX only, could not be a said to be a correct conclusion.

5. That the A.S.I. Report mentions about the bones only in a casual manner without giving any details about the proper identification of the species of animals to which they belonged, or whether they had cut marks or not and in a large number of cases no layers or strata were even recorded.

6. That even the notes and draft of the report etc. which must have been prepared before finalizing the report under objection, have not been brought on record and this also suggests the motive and deliberate effort of the A.S.I. Team leaders to conceal the real position.

7. That the following contradictions in the report also lead to the conclusion that the report and specially the last chapter of the report is not based on the material found during the course of excavation and study of the same but rather the same appears to be based upon some preconceived notions or may be the result of an afterthought:-

(i) On p. 37 it is mentioned that, " the site had seen successive structural activities which began from the middle of the Kushan level (Period III)." On 38, in the section on Period II (Sunga level) it is mentioned that, "it is this period that the site witnessed first structural activity in stone and brick, as noticed in J3."

(ii) In Chapter III (Stratigraphy and Chronology), Period VI is described as the Medieval-Sultanate level. In the same chapter, the tentative periodization and schematic cross-section of the mound describes the period as Early Medieval-Sultanate. However, in Chapter V (Pottery) and Chapter X (Summary of Results) this same period is described as Early Medieval. In Chapter X, this period is also described as Early Medieval- Rajput. Period VII in Chapter III is described as Medieval but in Chapter V and Chapter X, it is described as Medieval-Sultanate.

(iii) On p. 46, “in Trench J3, layers 1-6 belong to a pit” and on p.47 it is stated that layers 2-6 belong to a pit.

(iv) On p. 44, it is stated that, “no deposit contemporary to the Mughal period exists on the mound presently.” On the next page (45) it points out that the last two periods (Mughal and Late Post Mughal) are only represented by structural activities. Further, on 271, the Report points out that, “there is an increase in contemporary archaeological material including pottery in the Mughal period.”

(v) On p. 41 it is mentioned that, a “new style of construction is noticed in this period” (Period VII). But Wall 16 of Period VII is very similar in construction to Wall 17 of the previous period. There are also supposedly “pillar bases” in the earlier period as well. So what is this new style of construction ?

(vi) On the same page (p.41), it is mentioned that the earliest floor extended in the eastern area up to the H series of trenches in sub-period VIIA. In sub-period VIIB, the next floor extended up to trenches J4-J5-J6. On p. 42, it is indicated that in sub-period VIIC, the floor associated with the “pillar bases” is the most extensive on the mound. In Fig. 23A, however, Floor 4 (the earliest floor) is shown as extending all over the mound while floor 3 and Floor 2 are more restricted, providing a completely contradictory picture.

8. That the plaintiff No. 9 adopts the Additional objections filed by other plaintiffs also, especially those filed on behalf of the plaintiff No. 1.

9. That it would be very crucial for this Hon'ble court to know as to who had prepared the last chapter of the final report, namely, the chapter of summary of results and when was the same prepared and why the name/names of the author/ authors of the said chapter was/were not given in the report itself. As a matter of fact the report does not at all indicate as to when was it finalised and when was the same, if at all, signed and dated. There appears to be no

indication in the report even about the dates of preparation of different chapters by different persons and all these details also are required to be furnished to this Hon'ble Court in order to determine as to what value is to be attached to this report and in the absence of all these details the report is of no worth and is liable to be rejected.

In view of the facts and circumstances stated above the A.S.I. Report filed on 22.8.2003 is liable to be rejected.

The plaintiffs of O.O.S. No. 5 of 1989 most respectfully submit as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

1. That it is submitted that plaintiffs filed suit R.S. No. 12 of 1961 (Now O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989) jointly having united cause of action through one set of counsels and let one set of evidence, the objections dated 8/9.10.2003 and additional objections dated 03.2.2004 filed by plaintiff No. 9 of above suit against the repost of the A.S.I. Are not entertain able in face of the fact that objections dated 08.10.2003 and additional objections dated 03.2.2004 filed on behalf of U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, which has alleged the disputed property as Waqf property and other plaintiffs have merely alleged their right of offering namaz. The other plaintiffs have not claimed their any Title in the disputed property in view of above fact the objections and additional objections filed by plaintiff No. 9 are illegal, against law and against established procedure which are liable to be rejected outright and same are not liable to be considered at all as the plaintiff No. 9 is not entitled to file separate objections and additional objection against the report of the A.S.I.

2. It is wrong to say that the Archaeological Survey of India

report is prepared with motivated mind etc. rather the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad himself seems to be having the preconceived notion to malign the image of the Archaeological Survey of India which is an institution of repute having secular feelings combined with its scholarly and highly professional working. The excavation at disputed site have clearly exposed the remains of pre-Mosque structures one over the other and continuously three structural levels of Pre-Islamic religious constructions having affinity in the style of north Indian temple architecture.

3. Once the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad filed the objection against the report, he has not right to file further objections in the circumstances of the case.

4. It is submitted that the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad has not rightly studied the stratigraphy, drawings and photograph which clearly relates in the report how the massive wall No. 16 with its three phases A, B and C of period VII lies below the structure of the disputed structure of period VIII. It is very clearly mentioned in the report supported by photograph and drawings that the foundation of the disputed structures rests on wall No. 16 and it cuts the floors of the phase C of the temple below the disputed structure. The sections in Figs. 5, 6, 19 etc. and the key plan of structure (Fig. 3, 3A, 3B) and other plans given in the report clearly show the picture.

Floor-I can be clearly seen in sections at Figs. 5, 19 etc. and as such the allegation of the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad is wrong and misleading, made with a motivated mind against the Archaeological Survey of India team which worked at the site and submitted its report in record time. It is wrong to attribute floor 2 and 3 to the mosque along with floor-I as they lie below floor-I and below the level of the foundation of the mosque and thus they are clearly floors of the structure of pre-mosque origin. The photo-plate at 55 and 49 are very clear in this respect which show the succession of structural levels. It is not understood as to what sort of cut is being searched there by the plaintiff.

5. Since the western wall of period VII structure was used for the construction of the mosque as its foundation, it directly rests over it and no "Cut" should be searched there as thought by the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad who does not seem to have a sound knowledge and understanding of the structure. It is quite clear from the excavations that foundations of rest of the walls of the south chamber cut the top floor of the structures lying below it and the three courses of calcrete blocks in the foundation do not require a footing of bricks or brickbats below them.

(B) In the Section at G-H (Fig.5) the south Chamber wall is clearly shown running over the brick wall of the massive structure and floor 2 & 3 are also shown in the section up to the levels excavation was down and hence the contention of the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad is wrong, misleading and against the truth.

(C ) The Section elevation in Fig. 6 clearly shows the southern wall of disputed structure cutting the floor 2 of Period VII and floor shown in the interior side of the disputed structure to which it belongs in Period VIII. The floor 3 also runs below floor 2 and continues to run below the southern wall of the disputed structure as it is crystal clear in the Fig. 6 and not as per the contention of the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad who has failed to understand the sections.

(D) The objection filed by the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad that "a cement floor about 85 cm below surface exists with wall of south chamber rising over it", is wrong and misleading as no cement floor runs below 85 cm in the trench E7. Even the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad is wrong in stating that floor 3 runs up to touch the south chamber wall. Actually the floor 3 runs much below the level of the last course of the foundation of the south chamber wall and there is no question of it touching the south chamber. Both the statements are based on no evidence.

The objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad has tried to confuse the situation by stating that the lime floor lying 1m (or less) below surface "runs all the way to the plaster on the exterior (south) face of the lowest bricks of the footing of the south chamber wall". This is due to wring approach and misreading, presuming that the brick wall (No. 18D) below the calcrete stone foundation of south chamber is a footing of it. It is very clear that a calcrete foundation can not have brick footing and that too with plastered surface.

6. The objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad's objection about the wall no. 18-D and its projection and location connects the disputed structure to the south chamber is wring and misleading. The brick wall is connected to the pillar bases down below the disputed structure and runs along the alignment of wall No. 18-C to its parallel. The wall is plastered and therefore it cannot be footing of the foundation of south chamber. Thus in no way it can be connected to the structure of south chamber structure of the mosque of period VIII.

7. The contention of the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad that floor 3 belongs to Babri Masjid and the plastered brick wall below the clacrete stone foundation of the south chamber is a footing of the wall of the mosque is baseless and the conclusion as drawn is based on wrong reading of the report and wrong understanding of the structure. No footing of the foundation can ever be plastered-a fact which the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad has either forgotten to understand or mischievously trying to mislead the Hon'ble Court.

8. The gap in between two pillar bases is significant not to show any continuation of an earlier wall, but to show that there exists two pillar bases. It is ridiculous to search for a hole or gap there.

9. The plaster on wall has been noticed above the floor level over ground and not on its foundation. There can be no connection of the plaster of the wall with the floor 3 down below and as such

the contention of the objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad is baseless and does not carry any meaning and based on no evidence to prove the functional relationship of the floor 3 with south chamber of the so so called mosque.

10. The cutting of floor 2 is visible wherever it has been disturbed due to construction of the disputed structure whose foundation has cut the floor 2. Floor 2 lies much below this level and therefore there can be no relation of it with the wall or even the foundation of wall of the so called mosque.

11. The foundation of brick wall No.16 made of stone blocks are clear evidences of the constructional pattern of the temple below the mosque with existing pillar bases projecting over its floors. The objector Sri Mahmood Ahmad is wrong in searching for a foundation of a floor of period VII as only walls have foundation and not floors.

12. It is very much clear that the Archaeological Survey of India's report is correct, it should be upheld and the objections against the report should be rejected.

REPLY TO ADDITIONAL OBJECTION

13. That with reference to para 1 of additional objection it is submitted that the plaintiff No.9 has no right to file objection and additional objection, which are liable to be rejected as mentioned in para 1 above.

14. That with reference to the para 2 of additional objections it is submitted that they are vague. The plaintiff No.9 has failed to indicate what are the “well settled principles of excavation.” and out of them what has been voilated by the A.S.I.

15. That the contents of para 3 of the additional objection are vague, wrong and denied. The A.S.I. has filed all the records before this Hon'ble High Court on the basis of which is submitted its report with in the limited time granted by the Hon'ble Court on the particular point which the A.S.I. Answered. The plaintiff No.9 must have studied the report and also must have inspected all the records before filing his objections and additional objections but plaintiff No.9 I has failed to point out the mistake and irregularity committed by the A.S.I. In the report. It is also submitted that in case of regular excavations done by the A.S.I. Or such other organisations or persons, years are taken in it and then years are taken in preparation and submission of the report giving details in it, as may be observed by looking of the excavations and reports submitted in the past. In case the Hon'ble court need at any stage. The Hon'ble Court may direct the A.S.I. To appear and clarify anything. It is also submitted that the all the excavation work was done by the A.S.I. in the presence of the parties, their representatives experts nominees and the observers appointed by the Hon'ble Court who noted the records prepared by the A.S.I. on the spot and parties, their representatives signed on them.

16. That the contents of para 4 of the additional objections are vague wrong and denied. It is submitted that Glazed wares/Tiles has been carefully set out trench and layer wise at pages 164 to 172 of the report which has been studied by on behalf of plaintiffs. The plaintiff No.9 wanted to be mentioned in the report of the A.S.I. that the above wares were the exclusive invention of Muslims in India which fact is absolutely wrong and denied. Plaintiff No.9 has forgotten that sporadic Muslim invasion were for loot and plunder and return through North west frontier and which could not grow in to reign in North India (in which Ayodhya lies) till early 11$^{th}$ century A.D. Or regular sultanate Rule after Qutubuddin Aiback took over Delhi in 1192-93. On Sunniu Central Waqf Board showing the sultanate rule began in 1206 A.D. i.e. early 13th century and any imagination of the plaintiff No.9 that the wares/tiles recovered by the A.S.I. was of only Muslim period are totally wrong and denied. It is also submitted that with an intent to avoided repeatation of para 10 of the reply submitted against the objection of Sunni Central Waqf Board may be seen. It is also submitted Glazed Wares/Tiles were used in our country much prior to the period when Muslims invasion.

17. That the contents of para 5 of the additional objections are vague wrong and misconceived. It is submitted that the A.S.I. has complied with the directions contained in order dated 26-3-2003 mentioned in para 9 and order dated 10-4-2003 of the Hon'ble Court. The plaintiff No.9 has no where alleged that the A.S.I. failed to comply with the aforesaid orders. It is also submitted that the Hon'ble Court directed vide order dated 26-3-2003 para (1) (iii) "The register should further specify the nature of the finds i.e. bones and Glased wares etc." and the same is contained again in order dated 10-4-2003.

18. That the contents of para 6 of additional objectors are wrong, misconceived, based on unwarranted presumptions and irrelevant. The A.S.I. has confirmed that all the records relating to excavation has been filed by them. The rest of the contents of this para are denied. Order 26 of code of civil procedure does not require the Court commissioner to file his "notes or drafts." of report. Under the Evidence Act, they do not fall with in the definition of "Velvent" fact/evidence. The Hon'ble Court passed orders directing the A.S.I. to maintain records during excavation and the said record has been filed before this Hon'ble Court. There is no allegation by the plaintiffs that the A.S.I. failed to maintain the records during excavation as directed by this Hon'ble Court and ailed to file the records so maintained. There is a presumption under Section 114, Indian Evidence Act, that every official Act has been performed in a regular manner. The imputations of objector plaintiff No.9 have been alleged with an oblique motive which deserves to be struck off forthwith.

19. That the content of para 7 of the addition objections are specifically wring and denied excepting the extract of the report mentioned in sub-paras "(1) to (vii)" which may be seen with its reference and contents.

20. That the plaintiff No. 9 is fully aware that his objection and additional objections are not maintainable as mentioned in para 1 of this reply to the objection as plaintiffs have jointly filed the suit with a common cause of action seeking joint relief and he has not Locus standi in the circumstances of this case to file the same separately.

21. That with reference to para 9 of additional objections it shall be presumed that objection and additional objection had been filed after studying the whole report of the A.S.I. containing the names given in it who contributed to the report of which chapter to x is expressly a summary of chapters 1 to IX. It is also submitted that the Hon'ble Court directed A.S.I to do the work of excavation on the spot which carried out the excavation work through it team, the number of which was enhanced from time to time as directed by the Hon'ble High Court which plaintiff No. 9 is fully aware in view of above para 9 of additional objection has no meaning at all and mentioned only with an intents to enhance the number of paragraphs to please plaintiff No. 9.

Wherefore it is respectfully prayed that the objections and additional objections be rejected and the Archaeological Survey of India's Report on excavation be confirmed. Any other appropriate order which be deemed proper and just may also be passed.

Written Reply against objection filed by plff. No. 9 Mahmood Ahmad on behalf of Nirmohi Akhara.

The answering defendant no. 3 Nirmohi Akhara puts the following reply of the objection aforesaid as follows.

1. That reply to facts stated in para 1 and 2 are his own opinion which are based on wrong assumption of law and therefore are denied.

2. That allegation para 3 and 4 are subjected to only with regard to the harmony of the report, which was replied by the defendant no. 3 in detail against the objection of Sunni Central Board of Waqf. Therefore, the same reply is added. The word “Concordance” has been very liberally used by the Sunni Central Board. The word concordance is the word of art only, it is not basis of any such logic which is being canvassed by the plff no. 9 only two trenches i.e. 1/3 and G/7 have been tested up till natural soil and harmony of layers in these two trenches tallies with the section and plan and also with artifacts. Therefore, one need not always to search for a concordance in every trenches.

3. That the bones cannot work as a material object for searching the truth of the substance of a primitive temple or place of big worship and therefore finding whether it is incised work or lacerated one is immaterial.

4. That contents of paras 6 and 7 are repetition of early objection

filed other plff. and therefore of denied. Trench 1/3 and G/7 are only deep trenches dug till the natural soil and their section did bear the layer symptoms of cultural period.

Thus the reply may be taken to record.

C.M. APPLICATION NO. 142 (O) OF 2003

1. Haji Mahboob
2. Haji Abdul Ahad — Defendants No. 6/1 & 6/2 of O.O.S. 3/89-Objectors

In Re:

O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989

Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, U.P. and others ..Plaintiffs

Versus

Gopal Singh Visharad (now dead) and others ...Defendants

Objection against the A.S.I. Report filed on 22.8.2003.

The Defendants Nos. 6/1 and 6/2 of O.O.S. 3 of 1989-objectors beg to submit as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

1. That on 25.8.2003 this Hon'ble Court had granted 6 weeks time to the parties to file objections against the A.S.I. report and in compliance thereto the objectors are filing these objections.

2. That, however these objections are not complete as the objectors' counsel as well as their experts have not yet been able to examine and study all the required papers and photographs etc. as the same could not be submitted with time by the A.S.I. as per orders and directions given by this Hon'ble Court regarding the submission of the documents connected with excavation.

3. That while filing these separate objections, the objectors adopt and rely upon the objections filed by the plaintiffs of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989.

4. That the report of the Archaeological Survey of India (A.S.I.) submitted to the Hon'ble Court, on 22nd August, 2003 is an unprofessional document and full of motivated inferences. It is full of internal contradictions and discrepancies, a number of which are set out in the objections of Sunni Waqf Board, which are not being repeated here to avoid the bulk. The A.S.I.'s aim seems to be to so ignore and twist the evidence as to make it suit its "conclusions" tailored to support the fictions of the Sangh Parivar about the previous existence of an alleged temple. That follows in these Objections is only a list of some of the A.S.I.'s aim seems to be to so ignore and twist Snagh Parivar about the previous existence of an alleged temple. What follows in these Objections is only a list of some of the A.S.I.'s major acts of omission while leaving the detailed treatment of a whole series of A.S.I.'s deliberate oversights and suppressions of facts for the objections filed by the plaintiffs of O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989.

5. THE MANIPULATION OF PERIOD NOMENCLATURE AND STRATIGRAPHY

5.1 That the A.SI.'s Report is so lacking in elementary integrity that it tries to achieve its object by manipulating nomenclature. In Chapter III, "Stratigraphy and Chronology" it has names for Periods VI and VII that are coolly altered in the other Chapters in order simply to transfer inconvenient material of Period VI to Period VII and thus make Period VI levels purely "Hindu". On pages 30-41, the nomenclature for Periods v, VI and VII is given as follows:

Period V: Post-Gupta-Rajput, 7$^{th}$ to 10$^{th}$ Century

Period VI: Medieval-Sultanate, 11th-12$^{th}$ Century

Period VII: Medieval, 12th-16$^{th}$ Century

Now let us turn to "Summary of Results" (pp. 268-9). Here the nomenclature is altered as follows:-

Period V: Post-Gupta-Rajput, 7$^{th}$ - 10$^{th}$ Century

Period VI: Early Medieval, 11th-12$^{th}$ Century

Period VII: Medieval-Sultanate, 12th-16$^{th}$ Century

5.2 That transference of "Medieval-Sultanate" from Period VI to Period VII has the advantage of ignoring Islamic-period materials like Glazed ware or lime-mortar bonding by removing them arbitrarily from Period VI levels to those of Period VII so that their actual presence in those levels need no embarrass the A.S.I. in its

placing of the construction of a “massive” or “huge” temple in Period VI. The device is nothing but a manipulative fraud.

5.3 That this brings us to the way in which the entire stratigraphy has been fixed, and certain layers obviously of Islamic provenance pressed into pre-Muslim periods (Period VI and earlier). This kind of false stratigraphy had led to situations that are impossible in stratified layers, namely the presence of later materials in earlier strata. (The presence of earlier materials in later or upper layers is possible, but not the reverse). Obviously the entire stratigraphy has been falsified to invent an alleged temple in “post-Gupta-Rajput” times.

6. THE FANTASY OF ALLEGED TEMPLE STRUCTURES

6.1 That while digging up the Babri Masjid site, the excavators found four floors, numbered, upper to lower, as Nos. 1,2,3 and 4, Floor No. 4 being the lowest and so the oldest. FloorNo. 3 is linked to the foundation walls of the Babri Masjid-the A.S.I.'s “demolished” or “disputed structure”- built in 1528. Floor No. 4 is described by the Report as “a floor of lime mixed with fine clay and brick crush”, i.e. a typically Muslim style surkhi and lime floor. It is obviously the floor of an earlier mosque (qanati or open mosque or an idgah); and a mihrab and taq were also fond in the associated foundation wall (not, of course, identified as such in the A.S.I.'s report). Such a floor, totally Muslim on “stylistic grounds” (a favourite formula in the Report), is turned by the A.S.I. into a temple floor, “over which a column-based structure was built”.

6.2 That description of the semi circular brick structure as a circular shrine is a conjuncture without any basis and similarly the whole theory of a massive structure just below Babri Masjid is creation of an imaginative mind without any material evidence to support this fiction. The inferences drawn from various architectural members that they are indicative of remains which are distinctive features found associated with the temples of North India are totally incorrect as most of them might have been elements of a

muslim architecture and the remaining architectural members, i.e. the so-called divine couple are surface collections of no significance and also may be planted material.

6.3 That so called divine couple and so called amalaka have been recovered from the debris of the demolished Babri Masjid. The divine couple is certainly a planted piece. There is no evidence to describe the circular brick structure as a shrine Pranala or water-chute is figment of imagination. The discoveries made by the A.S.I. in the excavation prove that there was no Temple/Structure which was demolished to construct Babri Masjid on its site. There is nothing in the report to support the theory of demolition of a temple or structure to make place for construction of Babri Masjid.

6.4 That the most note worthy point is that no object of Hindu worship, no idol and no statue of any Hindu deity was recovered. Foliage patterns, so called Amalaka which is nothing but par of a stone block having petal design, broken octagonal shaft, lotus design medallions are not indicative of temple structure. These have been adopted and used in Indo-Muslim (Indo-Saracenic) architecture.

7. STRAY ALLEGED "TEMPLE" FINDS

That No Vaishnavite images have been found. All finds are stray ones, such as the black schist pillar, was visible within it when the Masjid had stood but was broken by the Karsevaks and buried in the Masjid debris in 1992. Whatever little in stone has come out (as one decorated stone or inscribed slab-used in a wall), like stones with "foliage patterns, amalaka, Kapotapadi door jamb with semi-circular pilaster, lotus motif" (Report, p. 271), are in total very few and all easily explicable as belonging to ruins elsewhere and brought for re-use during the construction of the Babri Masjid or the earlier mosque/Eidgah. Moreover, the lozenge design (plate 90) is probably Islamic (compare Plate 92, with Arabic inscription). The extremely short list that the A.S.I. is able to compile of such doubtful temple-relics shows that they did not come from any alleged “massive” temple at the site, but brought randomly from different earlier ruins. Moreover, the presence of Buddhist, Jaina and Shaivite sculpted stones and terracotta figures must also be taken into account, so that we can say, on the basis of the A.S.I.'s logic, that there could be a composite “Buddhist-Jaina-Shaivite” temple here, if at all, on the basis of all these stray finds Needless to say no example exists of there ever having been any such a temple anywhere in India. There was, therefore, no temple here.

8. ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA, NOT ACTING AS AN INDEPENDENT ORGANISATION: THE IMPOSED SAFFRON BIAS.

8.1 That bias, partisanship and saffronised outlook of the A.S.I.'s Report takes one's breath away. In almost everything the lack of elementary archaeological control is manifest. The one-page carbon-date report, without any description of material, strata and comments by the laboratory, is meaningless, and open to much misuse. There has been no thermoluminescence (TL) dating of the pottery, nor any carbon-dating of the animal or human bones, although these are necessary for dating the remains themselves and the strata in which they are found, in order to test the A.S.I.'s own manipulated chronology. Indeed, no care has been exercised in its references to chronology, and Period I “Northern Black Polished Ware” has been pushed back to 1000 B.C. in the “Summary of Results” (page 268), when even in Chapter II “Stratigraphy and Chronology”, the earlier limit of the period is rightly placed at 6$^{th}$ century B.C. (page 38). The urge is obviously to provide the maximum antiquity to habitation at Ayodhya, however absurd the claim may be. Whatever should please the masters,must be asserted, was motto of the A.S.I.

8.2 That Quite obviously saffronization and professional integrity cannot go together. What all well-wishers of Indian Archaeology have to consider is how, with a Report of the caliber we have examined, there can be any credibility left in the Archaeological

Survey of India, an organisation that has had such a distinguished past. Today there is no professional head of the A.S.I., a civil servant completely subject to the desires of the Government of the day, is in charge as Director-General. It cannot be overlooked that the occupant of the office of Director-General was changed almost simultaneously with the Hon'ble High Court's direction to the A.S.I to begin the excavations in early March. The signal given thereby was obvious, and the present Report should come as no surprise. Politicians gloating ever it are precisely those who have got it written.

8.3 National honour was deeply compromised when the Babri Masjid was demolished. Now the good repute of the Archaeological Survey of India had also suffered an irremediable blow. It has been shown up as entirely partisan and subservient to its master's wishes and its so-called "Conclusions" should be rejected by the Hon'ble High Court.

It is therefore prayed that this Hon'ble court may kindly be pleased to reject the A.S.I. Report in toto and any other order which may be deemed just and proper in the facts circumstances of the case may also be passed.

Objection against of ASI Dated 22.08.03 on behalf of Nirmohi Akhara Def No. 3.

The Objector puts following Objection:-

1. That much earlier to this day the Objector Nirmohi Akhara had chosen to file an objection requesting this Hon'ble Court to issue direction to A.S.I. to expose the relevant trenches covering the main domb (shikhar) of Sri Ram Janam Bhoomi's and had suggested to excavate properly the trench no. F/4, F/5, F/3 and towards east of these trenches G/2, G/3, G/4 and G/5.

2. That it would be relevant here to point out that Sri B.R. Mani the then leader of A.S.I. Team had himself thought it proper on the basis of G.P.R. Report of Tojo Vikas Ltd. And sought permission to excavate the said trenches.

3. That the report regarding exposition of Trench's F/3, F/4 and F/5 may kindly be scrutinize on the subject:-

(I) Under the head Raised platform at Page 17 report speaks excavation of ten trenches partly and its reference is given at serial no. 31 for F/3 no. 32 for F/D, 33 for F/4, 34 F/5 and 36 for F/6. Where according to own report of A.S.I. excavation was not conducted due to area restriction on the raised platform.

(II) An Autocad prepared by computer at figure 23 of the A.S.I. report vol. (I) after page 42 exactly shows the situation of three

domb (Shiker) along with figure 23-A shows two row of pillar bases surrounding the inner courtyard are shown. But the main central santuoereim where floor no. (I) marked in Auto cad figure 23(A) and were in the western and eastern side of the pillar and the wall trench no. F/4, F/5 and G/4, G/5 have been marked as shown in figure 3B after page no. 51. Remain un-excavated in trench no. 3 two pillar base squarish in nature only was exposed without detecting other pillar bases of the other trench, therefore excavation of Trench no. F/3, G/3, F/4, G/4, F/5, G/5 along with baulk is necessary to make the A.S.I. Report a complete and sound historical report in the excavation History.

4. That the A.S.I. Report is well reasoned and fully supported with instances and deserves to be brought on record as approved. Under chapter III statigraphy and chronologically Nine successive cultural period were arrived by the ASI Report based an human deposits potteries and artifacts and human amimal figurine based on the carbon determination of the charcol samples. The report is further supported by the embellishment in-tercota having seen large scale use of stone mainly for decorated architectural members. It is further strengthen by the achievement of a circumamambulatory passage i.e. pavement prior to Twelve century A.D.

It is therefore prayed the report of A.S.I. be brought on record as approved with the direction to excavate further trench-F/3, F/4, F/5, G/3, G/4, G/5.

Written reply to contents of Objection No. (O) filed by Shri S. Irfan Ahmed for Def. No. 6/1, 6/2 in O.O.S. 3/89 along with against other three objection namely of plf No. 9 of O.O.S. 4/89 of Plf 1 of O.O.S. 4/89 and of objection of Def. No. 5 of O.O.S. 5/89 Compositively on behalf of Nirmohi Akhara.

www.vadaprativada.com

The Defendant No. 3 Nirmohi Akhara puts the following reply against the said objections filed by the plaintiff of Suit No. O.O.S. 4/89 respectively:-

Reply against Mahmood Ahmad

1. So far the contents of this para are self exposed:-

Since opening line and is the real intention to malign and attack the A.S.I. team which they are attempting to do since the start of excavation work and further no case of any muslim- construction or structure of 13th century A.D. Have been ever set-out by any Muslim or any party of this case or even plaintiff's Sunni Central Board.

2. That more than 25 Experts were engaged by the plf of O.O.S. 4/89 and Mohamadon parties besides local nominee in abundance who kept on visiting the excavation site every day- during the course of excavation of work. At least 6 to 7 experts or archaeologist or historian or senior scholar of such subject along with parties and their nominee kept on keeping continuous watch on every work of excavation. Three members of their team always took every notes on spot and through they seldom signed the daily register where artifacts are noted but their presence cannot be denied inface of the entry register of excavated area. A list of such names are being appended as Annexure (A). Therefore, the excuse that they could not examine the day to day register etc., therefore they want to keep their right to file objection alive till unknown date is only a lame excuse.

3. That all the four objections which have been filed by the Muslim parties against the A.S.I. excavation report can be classified jointly in four categories namely as follows:-

A. Tainted with B.J.P. Govt. pressure, SAFFRON'S BIAS, with MOTIVATED MIND. Twist report to support the fictions of SANGH PARIVAR=

Respectively by (i) Sunni Central Board (2) Plf. no. 9 Mahmood Ahmed (3) Hazi Mehboob (4) Moh. Hashim.

(I) Basically four set of Composite pelfs having similar pleading have filed separate objection even adopting each other, are nothing but an attempt to create four Track for running the way to similar destination but one by one so that valuable time of court be wasted and confusion may be created by different argument by all the four counsel respectively. Is it not at all legally necessary to give and hear each plf's separately one by one. Are their pleading are distinct ? No but is certainly a device to misuse the process of law.

(II) That the attempt of plf of O.O.S. 4/89 had been from the very beginning was motivated to malign the good will of A.S.I. team initially indicating the name of one of the politician and a cabinet minister of central Govt. who in fact has not concern with ASI dept.

(III) That further immediate attempt was made by tendering an application by team leader of ASI without any legal right to do so, the plf. Attempt was to any how confront the team leader and to pressurise him that similar attack against ASI team was made on 21.5.03, 28.5.03, 8.6.03 and the most interesting event was made by an application dt. 7.6.03 given by Shri Z. Zilani Advocate with five pages with map with a statement that pillar should not be dismentle, therefore the record of the file itself speaks that attempt of plaintiff was from very inception to any how put alive sum attack against the ASI, so that in future if the report comes on the fact finding truth the same may be attacked unnecessarily.

B. Archaeological terms and Abbreviations

1. The Act No. 24/58 The Ancient Movement and Archaeological sites and Remains Act defines:-

Sec. (2)-

III- any article, object or thing illustrative of science and arts, craft, literature, religion customs morals or politics in bygone ages.

2. Some nomenclature and abbreviation used by ASI report and used in archaeology are narrated as below:-

|---|---|---|
| "Having Courses" | = | it forms construction |
| " No courses" | = | They do not form any construction |
| "Free standing wall" | = | Means without foundation |
| "Natural Soil" | = | Where no human deposits |
| "N.B.P.W." | = | 6 to 3 century B.C. |
| "SUNGA" | = | Second first century B.C. |
| "KUSHAN" | = | Ist to 3rd century A.D. |
| "GUPTA" | = | 4 to 6 century A.D. |
| "Post Gupta Rajput" | = | 7 to 10 century A.D. |
| "Early Medieval Sultanant age" | = | 11 to 12 century A.D. |
| MADIEVAL MUGHAL | | |
| Late Post MUGHAL | = | 12 to beginning of 16th A.D. |

3. Abbreviation used by A.S.I. Report has been given by ASI team on 7.11.03 which is being appended as Annexure (1).

C. Massive Structure pavement

(I) The presence of huge pavement towards eastern part of the inner and outer courtyard which has been shown in the report by series of trenches J-I onward K-1 onward with north projection with

www.vadaprativada.com

ZJ-1 and ZkI, a sample close photograph is being appended as Annexure (2) shows the esquire big-brick used before 12th century A.D. Therefore attack by the plaintiff on the report of the pavement is uncalled for and not sustainable.

D. Temple Structure and temple find

(1) That there was no ease of plff confined to their pleading or any statement of witness as the plff has closed the evidence to the effect that the large structure found beneath the outer and inner courtyard by the A.S.I. team has been a Muslim construction/structure of 13th century A.D existing at the time of the allege mosque. Therefore, the finds, the artifacts, the terracotta, figurien of animal, of Godess, of deity belonging to the religious emblem of Hindu Vedic Sanatan religion or dazzling evidence of a concrete fact finding of a existence of a huge Hindu Vedic religions structure which may be shown by the photograph appended as Annexure (3) to (7) with this reply.

www.vadaprativada.com

E. Ram Chabutra

(1) That the revelation of the inner chabutra on the same place J-6, J-7, K-6, K-7 and after 7 feet beneath of the surface based on concrete stone placed again on a surface shows the existence of the divine shrine which was closed by seven layers of the concrete stone covering nine meter by nine meter of the inner and outer courtyard is an indication of existence of inner chabutra belonging to the religious faith of Nirmohi-Akhara.

(2) That the said chabutra has-projection towards east which is very much clear from the photograph appended as Annexure (8 to 15) with this reply.

F. Existence of the foundation wall

The western wall has many courses which is based upon decorated stones therefore the said wall which is shown clearly in the photograph appended as Annexure ( ) are not free standing wall and further on the northern side the said wall has been turning toward east as shown on the photograph appended as Annexure (16 to 26) therefore this wall cannot be said by the pff. As being the wall of Idgah.

www.vadaprativada.com

G. DIVINE SHRINE

That how can plf explain the existence of the Shiv Argha which has all the indication of having a water chute toward north that is the recognized shape by the vedic Hindu sanatan cult and therefore the examples given by the ASI report are correct and cannot be assailed by the objection by the plaintiff on the flismy ground. A close photograph is being appended as Annexure (27 to 29) will show natural water chute.

H. PILLAR BASE

The pillar base and the structure which are shown by figure 23 and 23a are Autocad and exactly reveals the excavation works, therefore all the pillar which are shown in the report are there and there dismentling was objected by the plaintiff, therefore now they cannot say that it is assemblage of brick-bat. The exact photograph is being appended as Annexure (30 to 33)

www.vadaprativada.com

(2) The figurine, strong slab are still there, the photograph of figurine are appended as Annexure (3 to 7).

(4) That the applicant reserves it further right to put a reply as the inspection of the further register filed by ASI is yet to be done.

It is therefore prayed that the written reply may kindly be taken on the record.

OBJECTION OF THE PLAINTIFFS IN O.O.S. NO. 5 OF 1989 (Connected with the leading Suit O.O.S. No. 4 of 1989) AND OF RAMESH CHANDRA TRIPATHI, THE DEFENDANT NO. 17 IN THIS LEADING SUIT O.O.S. NO. 4 OF 1989, AGAINST THE REPORT OF THE ARCHAEOLOGICAL SURVEY OF INDIA, FILED IN THE SUIT ON 22.08.2003.

www.vadaprativada.com

The objectors above mentioned, most respectfully beg to submit their joint objections as under:-

1. That in this leading Suit connected with O.O.S. Nos 1 of 1989, 3 of 1989 and 5 of 1989, this Hon'ble Court, of its own, ordered the Archaeological Survey of India (for short A.S.I) to conduct Archaeological Excavation on the spot and submit its report, to facilitate the disposal of the issues of dispute between the parties to the suit, in compliance where of the A.S.I. has submitted it report on 22.08.2003.

2. That in its report (under objection) the A.S.I. has submitted the key plans (Fig. Nos. 3, 3A and 3B of Vol. 1 of its Report). However, the A.S.I. has failed to plot the property in dispute i.e. A, B, C, D, E, F in the aforementioned 3 figures of the KEY PLAN, which is very necessary for the effective and proper disposal of the issues of the dispute in the suits.

3. That the contour Map submitted by the A.S.I. in their Report,

is not full and complete in as much as it does not cover the contour Map of the Palaeo Channel of river Saryu and of Kuber Tila. In this case, the contour Map of the Palaeo-channel of river Saryu, is very essential to co-relate the position of various structural remains in relation in the flow of the river.

4. That in the text of its Report, the A.S.I. has not mentioned the angel of deviation of various structures, particularly of structures 16 and 17 (Walls) and also of the stone blocks of the Pillar bases. Although, they have been plotted in aforementioned figures Nos. 3, 3A and 3B and its mention is also found in Figure No. 8. This angle of deviation is essential in the matter.

Wherefore, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court be pleased to direct the A.S.I. to submit its Additional Report in the light of the aforementioned facts/submissions.

I, Dr. R. Nagaswamy aged about 76 years s/o Late Shri U.N. Ramchandran r/o 11, 22nd Cross street Besent Nagar, Chennai (Madras). The deponent do hereby take oath and state on oath as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

16. That the deponent retired from the post of Director of Archaeology Tamilnadu on 31.08.1988.

4. That the deponent underwent training in excavation and conservation from Archaeological Survey of India.

5. That the deponent worked as Director of Archaeology government of Tamilnadu continuously for a term of 22 years from 1966-88.

6. That during his service the deponent has conducted so many excavations and explorations.

7. That the deponent was appointed Vice Chancellor of Kanchipuram University of Madras in the end of February 1995 and served as such up to 1996.

16. That the deponent has conducted mainly following excavations:-

Pancalamkuruchi 1968 The palace remains of 18th cen chieftain a

Korkai 1968-69 A two thousand year old Port of the Pandyas.

Pallava medu 1970 17th cent habitation settlement at Kanchipuram.

Gangailondacholapuram 1980-82. A medieval Chola palace and capital.

Alagankulam 1986-87. A two thousand year old Roman settlement which has now become a site of International importance.

6. That Archaeological Survey of India which is more than on hundred years old and has produced the most outstanding stalwards in the field of Archaeology is known through out the world for its excellence in all spheres of Archaeological work especially in the field of excavation its work has been extremely accurate and scientifically praiseworthy. Archaeology provides scientific factual data for reconstructing ancient history and culture, and is an important tool of human understanding and AS.I. Has been doing this exercise admirably.

7. That no excavator can create or manufacture a structure consisting a number of courses inside a trench. In some places long walls may cut through several trenches but these are easily seen through the layers, the baulk and retain them.

…..... Though it is an Islamic country, and though the excavator is by an Mussalman they do not deny the existence of a Hindu temple lying buried but on the other hand it is a Hindu temple. They being excellent Archaeologists have no hesitation in stating the truth. Photocopy of relevant pages prepared and annexed with this affidavit as Annexure No.3.

32. That the Archaeological excavation at Ayodhya has shown indisputably that there existed a structure immediately beneath the disputed structure. It shows that the structure also had pillar bases. Pillar bases have been found in Mahasthan excavation in the Hindu temple area and that the Bangladesh Archaeologists have shown those pillar bases were meant to support a porch of a Hindu temple.

33. That from the perusal of the report it is clear that the layers are well stratified and the periodization has been done as per settled norms and the finds have also been recorded and interpreted properly.

35. That pillar bases are made up of some courses of brick bats and are either square or circular in formation; Calcreate stone blocks are kept on sand stone block- one decorated stone block was found here. The idea that they are not pillar bases but heaps of stone for holding floor level is not correct. The stones in the middle of the brick formation undoubtedly were intended for supporting pillars and this tradition seems to have been followed through the centuries in this areas where even indisputable pillar bases are found. Below this brick wall, was found another brick wall- decorated stone blocks were used on top of this wall. Beneath pillar bases, earlier pillar bases were found. Some more brick structures were found beneath these walls. Most of the pillar bases were found connected with 2nd floor.

36. That existence of circular shrine with pranal towards north proves existence of Hindu temple.

That the brick circular shrine is circular outside and square on the inner side, with a rectangular projection in the east with entrance, it has a water chute on the on the northern side which is obviously in level with the floor level of the inner sanctum clearly intended for the abhisheka to be drainied, As this seems to be secondary shrine dedicated to Siva in his linga form the shrine is built to smaller diamension. Smaller diamension of subsideray shrines with just minimum entrance space are seen in some of temples e.g. Mandasor, Rajsthan- Kumbharia Shantinath Temple relevant pages are photostat copies prepared from those books, are annexed with this affidavit as Annexure No. 4 and 5 (Temples of India by Krishna Deva, published by Aryan Books, New Delhi) The smaller diamension does not preclude the structure being a shrine. The absence of any significant artifacts belonging to other sister faiths like Buddhism or Jainism, precludes this structure being identified with any of those faith.

38. That in the opinion of the deponent the excavation report, its finds, proves beyond doubt the existence of a Hindu temple under the surface of the disputed structure.

39. That the presence of different bones in Hindu temple area is nothing unusual, nor does it minimize the sanctity of the temple premises. Bones in archaeological excavation are quite common.

Statement (Part-I)

Pages 60-61

Q: The temple which was said to be built by you in 11th century originated from which floor?

A: It originated in all probability from the level from where 11th century inscribed slab was found immediately beneath the floor of wall 17. I can answer its floor number after going through ASI report.

My conclusion that this earlier temple structure was built in 11th century, is based on ASI report volume 1and 2. This conclusion is based on plate no. 137 of ASI report volume 2 and page 152 chapter six relating to Architectural fragments and part of the same chapter at page 153 detailing the decorated bricks and also chapter eight dealing with inscription seal, sealing and coins, of the ASI report volume 1. Having seen plate no. 137 of the ASI report volume 2, the witness stated that this inscribed stone block belonged to earlier temple structure it was part of the structure.

Pages 61-62

A: This inscribed slab should have undoubtedly formed part of the wall of the earlier temple structure. By seeing this plate the period of slab can be inferred and i.e. this slab carries an inscription in 'Nagari script' which is dated with the help of palaeography by the ASI and as an epigraphic I agree with that dating. The date of inscription is 11th century. I want to say that the temple structure was built in all probability in 11th century and this inscription was engraved on the wall of that structure at that time. ASI people has mentioned in its report as to in which layer and in what condition this stone block was found I accept their statement. I don't think that this stone block remained in its original position but structure seem to have under gone some renovation and rebuilding. In my opinion the inscribed stone remain in the same area and level. I have already said that the structure has gone some renovation and rebuilding and the wall have been redone it has been dislodged from its original position.

For coming to conclusion that inscription of plate no. 137 belongs to 11th century, besides consulting the book of Shri Dhani I have also consulted the book Shivrama murti's book namely 'Indian epigraphy and south Indian scripts rest is based on my experience. The book referred to by me does not confine to South Indian scripts.

Pages71-72

….....The structure which was built in the 11th century at disputed site was repaired and renovated to proir to 16th century but it was not demolished. Whether the structure which built on the disputed site between 11th century to 16th century was demolished or not, will depend on the meaning of word demolition as to in which sense this word is being used.

Q: What meaning or meanings could be assigned to the word 'demolition' according to you?

A: According to me the word 'demolition' stands for destruction but I have to check-up the dictionary meaning with various shades of meaning.

The building which was built at the disputed site in 11th century is not one building but number of structures which were added during the second third phase of wall 16 and we do not know what restoration or renovation were carried out between 11th and 16th century.

A: There has been continuos building activity in 11th century

www.vadaprativada.com

when a big temple structure was erected which consisted of all the important parts of temple Architecture was found in North India like the base of a Temple with the 'Makar-Pranala' and Dwar-Shakha, Stone-Wall, Carved-Lintels and Shikhars with Aamalaka and so many other carved stone liked carved pillars with 'Ghat-Pallava' motif 'Kirti-Mukh' motif and 'Ganas' which indicate that a full fledge temple up to the 'Shikhar' was constructed and also enclosed by massive structure consisting of wall 17 and 16 in phases obviously to protect the main make temple structure which they also formed part and were built with in century i.e. 11th century.

In addition in the debris adjacent to the disputed structure was found a black crisp schist stone pillar which shows that some part of Mandapa that was part of the earlier temple was pulled out and used in the disputed structure. All this suggest that the temple which included the enclosure wall was pulled down which will come under the definition of demolition. I have nothing to add in this regard. If any question is put to me I will answer it.

A part of the temple which will consist of 'pillared mandapa' has been pulled down. The enclosure walls of this structure was to protect this temple. I don't think that all the four enclosure wall were present around the temple structure when demolition took place in 16th century because some portion of the walls is not excavated during excavation at disputed site due to restriction. The area which was covered by make shift structure has not been excavated besides some other area which have slopes and other in accessible conditions.

Learned cross examiner drew the attention of the witness towards his statement recorded on 18-8-2006 at page 39. The witness stated that during excavation at disputed site the remains of primary and secondary shrines which formed part of the whole Hindu temple complex, were found. Remains of one primary and remains of two secondary temples were found during the excavation. The remains of primary temple were found from number of floors but mainly above fourth floor while some have been found below forth floor also. The remains of one secondary temple were found contemporary with layer five while the remains of other secondary temple were found in a the area called 'Ram Chabootra'. It was found in number of trenches and had several floors and continued to come up to contemporary modern floor level.

By primary temple, I mean the main 'Deity' to which the structure is dedicated to. The secondary temples are built in the complex dedicated to other 'Deities' but are related metaphysically to the 'Deity'. It is not necessarily that primary and secondary temples should be constructed at the same level and at the same time. Primary and secondary structure may precede to each other in time and level both. This is regarding temple and structure. At the disputed site primary and secondary temple structures are not in same level. Structurally some walls have been found even in 1st - 2nd century B.C. thus the primary temple structure was at a lower level where as the secondary temple structure was at upper level . The primary temple structure can be ascribed to 1st – 2nd century B.C. where as the first secondary temple structure can be ascribed to ( circular shrine ) and assigned to 10th century and the second secondary structure 'Ram-Chabootra' (which is the secondary temple structures) can be ascribed in all probability to the time of 'Akbar'. I would not say that 'Ram-Chabootra' is of most modern time but I would only say that this structure was raised in the time of 'Emperor -Akbar'. A great full scale articulated temple structure resembling other north Indian temples was erected in all probability in the 11th century A.D. By 'articulated temple structure' I mean the base, the wall, the ceiling, the 'Shikhars', and 'Amalaka' confirming to the norms described, with several mouldings, niches, carved entrance frames and so on.

Learned cross examiner drew the attention of the witness towards figure 3A of the ASI report volume 1. The witness stated that walls 26 ,27, 25, 24, 23, 22 are the structures or relics belonging to that period i.e. 1st to 5th century A.D.

Most important structure found during the period from 6th to 10th century which is mentioned in the report is a circular shrine. Besides this structure some walls running around this circular shrine were are also found that belong to this period.

www.vadaprativada.com

Wall 19 a, 19b, 20, 21 probably 22 also relate to this period besides the circular structure. Circular structure has been marked as structure 5 in figure 3A of ASI report volume 1. The circular structure is assigned by the ASI to the 10th century. I accept this date.

The first important find after the 10th century is the inscribed stone fragment found below wall 18A and 18B and above layer 5A. This inscription as given in plate no. 137 of the ASI report volume 2. Other structures which were found in the excavation pertaining to this period are wall 17 and wall 16 which are mentioned as massive structure. That suggest two successive destruction to a great temple of the north Indian variety that was built in the early part of the 11th century at that site. The fragments and carved door frames and lintel

and other slabs built under wall 16 that are associated indisputably with a classical Hindu temple of considerable size, that existed at that excavated site which suffered damage in all probability around 1030 C.E once and construction of a protective wall i.e. wall no. 17 and another damage that was suffered around 1080 A.D that called for another protective wall i.e. wall 16 built around to protect what remained us a temple are the significant structure that have come up from 11$^{th}$ to 15$^{th}$ century C.E.

With reference to page 122 of ASI report volume 1 the witness stated that archaeological members mentioned from serial no. 1 to 286 ( page 122 to 152) have a description of what ever have been found in totality during course of excavation at the disputed site. The description in the list contain all the essential data which is furthur supplemented in the introductory part and if necessary will be furthur supplemented by furthur examination of the object concerned and I have seen the figures attached with this report. These figures also contain the scale. I considered that scales given there is correct. Place and depth of a particular thing can be located with the aid of these figures. I can't say from my memory as to the shape and size of the structure which existed between 1st to 5th century on the disputed site. One structure of 10th century is circular in shape and its external diameter is about 5 meter but I have to check up the report for other details. There are some walls which obviously belong to the primary structure but the available walls do not give any shape. In that particular period there are many walls so I don't mean that this refers to only western wall. The number of walls which in existed 6th to 10th century on the disputed site was about six. I can give its accurate number only by going through the report. The temples of northern India between 6th and 10th century well vary from simple to very big size and it is not possible to give the size of northern temple. Their number may be in hundreds. In my assessment the temple which existed at the disputed site between 6th and 10th century was of small or medium size. As the full relics are not available, it is not possible to guess the approximate size of this temple. The small medium size temples of above period of were of about 10 to 20 meters in length if it relates to central temple but it could also include an enclosure which can not be assessed as they depend upon individual temple. The measurement of 10 to 20 meters as mentioned by me is length of the temple were as its width it depending upon the ground plan and the shape of Deity to which it is dedicated. In some temples the width may be larger than its depth. This could have been the size of the primary temple. 'Garbh-Grih' is included in the above measurement. We may have small front 'Mandapa' pillared or with out pillar and small niches called 'Dev-Koshtas' and a very low 'Shikhar' which could be either a flat roof or a pyramidal 'Shikhar' with 'Shikhar' on top and surrounded by small secondary shrine or dedicatory shrine within it. 'Mandapa' is a extension of 'Grabha-Griha'. 'Jagmohan' is a term used most prominently used in 'Kalinga' region but in this part of India we generally call the front as 'Mandapa'. 'Mandapa' or 'Jagmohan' is part of the total structure and is used for both the deity and devotees. It is not necessary that 'GrabhaGrih' should always contain a 'Shikhar' but some time 'Mandapa' also contain 'Shikhar'. Even 'Grabhagriha' in some circumstance can be roof or with out a roof or with the 'Shikhar' or integrating the 'Mandapa' also with the 'Grabhgrih'. 'Parikrma' was provided in some temples in the main temple itself around the ‘Grabhagriha’ providing an outer wall which is integrated with the super structure as one unit or the ‘Parikrama’ may be going around the shrine on the enclosure. With in the enclosure and also out side the enclosure ‘Parikramas’ are provided. Temples can face, depending on the manifestation and nature of the prayer any cordinal direction. The secondary temple consist of a number of ‘Parivar’ devtas which may be integrated with the main wall of the sanctum or embedded with the enclosure wall or they may be located in the enclosure between the main wall and the enclosure wall. They face different direction depending upon the manifestation. The secondary temple would be located either in the prescribed direction or in any open space available depending upon the prayer of the pattron ; for example some temples may face south some west or even north depending upon what the pattern wants to achieved such as conquest or wealth or knowledge or health. Secondary temple may be raised in front of the primary temple depending upon the nature of the secondary deity for example the shrines of ‘Vahanas’ (mount such as ‘Garud’ or ‘Nandi’) are located exactly in front of the main temple. By word ‘koshtas’ I mean a ‘niche’ on the wall in which the secondary deity may be installed in made up of any material including paintings.

I do know about the 'Buddhist Stupas'. It is not possible that this circular structure will represent a 'Buddhist Stupa'. For the reason 'Buddhist Stupa' is a solid globular structure in which the relics of either Buddha or great Buddhist monks will be deposited inside and such Stupa will not have an entrance opining and no provision for draining the 'Abhisheka' water or liquid as found in the Hindu temple. There are hundreds of Hindu temple where a central deity is a ' Shiv-Linga' for which 'Abhiskhek' is performed daily a number of times which requires provision of 'Pranalas' in the northern direction as found in this circular shrine. There is no doubt what so ever that this circular shrine is a Hindu temple and not a 'Buddhist Stupa'. No 'Linga' is found here but as I have said in my earlier statement that this site has been attacked by iconoclasts in the 11th century once around 1030 C.E and again around 1080 C.E the idols have suffered and disappeared. No icon have been left in the site except a mutilated sculpture called Divine Couple.

In any structure the 'Pranala' need not necessarily be in the sanctum santoram. But in the Shiva temple it is a must and what is important that it should be oriented towards north and in most cases in the central part of northern direction in the 'Adhisthan' part of the shrine. There is no doubt that the shrine originally was a circular shrine which has been disturbed due to latter constructions. Those structure were not raised over the above structure of circular shrine but cutting the edges of the circular shrines. The shape of circular shrine was disturbed in 1030 or in 1080. It is not possible to say except to say some disturbance and attack has taken place in the 11th century. In my opinion the icons including 'Shiv-Linga' might have been desecrated around 1030 A.D when it was attacked by Syed Sadr Massad and Sultan Ibrahim in 1080 C.E. Syed Sadr Massad attacked in 1030 C.E where as Sultan Ibrahim in 1080 C.E. The attacked has been on the disputed site, it is difficult to say which part precisely was attacked at the time. It was a general attacked at both the times where some temple structure had been destroyed. I think that after the first attack in 1030 a full scale, classical Hindu temple with all articulated parts with carvings Pillars Entrance, Jam, Shikar was erected which suffered at 1080 attacked by Sultan Ibrahim.

Q: Is it correct to say that your above statement "I think that after the first attack.....by Sultan Ibrahi". Is in reply to my question for indicating the name of any other temple purported to be desecrated by the above persons in 11th century at Ayodhya?

A: I would call it the main temple.

Structure 4 consists of wall 16 and 17 and wall 18A, 18B and 18C with attached floors, floor 2 , floor 3, floor 3A and floor 4. Wall 16 is set to have been built in three phases the bottom one consisting of 10 courses of bricks and the upper one in 2 phases consisting of 6 courses of brick and floor 4 said to consist of red brick rammed floor. Wall 17 is set to be 1.86 meter in width. Wall 16 is of 1.7 meter width. Wall 16 runs to 50 meter and to east of these 2 walls are a number of pillar bases total number 50 all these constitute structure 4. Only these are the component of structure 4.

Q: Whether any thing more consisted structure 4 as per your own perception or as per ASI report?

A: As I have not visited the site and seen the structure my reply can not be based on my own perception but I can only say what is found in the report. I have nothing to add in the reply to the above question.

Whatever I have said about structure 4 constitute different part of the structures and the floors are attached to the walls and not found on the floor. Generally floors are laid after the walls are erected. In some instances structure can be even without floors. We lay steps to reach higher storey, the steps will be with out floor. The first step may be on a floor or even on a natural rocky surface or ordinary earth. I agree that any structure ultimately need a floor. The dimensions of the circular shrine is about 1.89 meter which is the diameter,( the diameter of the circle) with a rectangular projection 1.32 meter in length and 32.5 cm projected towards east. The inner square of the sanctum is about 60 cm. I am unable to say about the distance of circular shrine from southern part of wall 16. I am not even able to say about distance of circular shrine from any part of wall 16, because circular shrine is at a lower level and wall 16 at a higher level. It is correct to say that figure 3A (page 48A) is on scale. It is also correct to say that wall 16 and structure 5 have been shown in this figure. The circular structure is about 3 meter from wall 16. Structure 5 is in its eastern direction. The distance mentioned above is from southern end of wall 16. It is correct to say that structure 5 is below the floor of structure 4.

With reference to last sentence of last statement on 6th September 2006 the witness stated that the fragmentary 'Nagari' inscription found in trench J-3 located at the depth of 5.75 meter (plate no. 137) is the artefacts which indicates about the attack on 1030 C.E The other artefacts which relates to the 2nd attack in 1080 A.D is the carved entrance jam found beneath the foundation of wall 16 ( plate no. 25 and 26) These 2 artefacts which are indicative of the 2 attacks I have mentioned. At this stage the witness requested to see ASI's report volume 2. On being permitted to see this report after going through it the witness stated that in my opinion a number of stone slabs used as foundation, other than the carved entrance jam under wall 16, also belong to the Hindu temple which indicates the attack in around 1080 A.D its plate no. is 25. There are 8 stone pieces seen in this photograph the one adjoining the carved stone jam is also the carved stone slab lying up side down built into the foundation, it can be seen in the above plate no.25. Plate no. 50 illustrates the carved stone lintel which is related with the attack of 1080 and plate 51 also depicts the attack of 1080 A.D. Plate no. 52

Yesterday I have visited excavation site at Ayodhya but I have not visited the whole part of the excavation site I could see only what was visible on the upper part level. In some area 'Taurpolin' was removed and thus I could see that part also. There was no area which was not allowed to be seen by me but some of the trenches were too deep and dark so I could not see the depth of some of the trenches existing there. It is true that only two trenches J-3 and G-7 are very deep, rest of the trenches are not so deep. All of the trenches except J-3 and G-7 were seen by me yesterday. I have seen the trenches on all the 4 sides of make shift structure. Stones, carved stones and bricks used in walls 16 , 17 and 5 etc were also seen by me yesterday. I have seen circular shrine also. Now, I can easily reply about the location of the different trenches. I have also seen the floors visible in the different trenches. I have seen all the 4 floors of different trenches. After seeing the excavation site yesterday I hold the same view which I have expressed in my affidavit as well as in my earlier statement. I remained at the excavation site for 1 hour. All the persons who were there remained only for 1 hour because the site opened at 11 A.m. and was closed at 12 P.m. noon. In the present condition I should say that I am satisfied with this 1 hour visit. I was accompanied by Shri Ajay Pandey advocate, and also by Shri Madan Mohan Pandy Advocate. Mr. Triloki Nath Pandey was also present during this time with me. I saw some dignitaries and 1 Muslim gentleman and along with them was Mr. Verma Advocate.

In para 10 of my affidavit, I have mentioned about 26 books but none of them relate to the excavation of any north Indian site. If the term archaeology is to be confined to excavation only then none of these books deals with the principles of archaeology. In para 11 of my affidavit I have given the list of the books edited but none of these books relate to excavation of any north- Indian site. None of these books relates to the principles of excavations. None of the articles mentioned in para 12 of my affidavit relates to any north Indian site of excavation. None of the lectures delivered by me and mentioned in para 13 of my affidavit relate to any north Indian site of excavation. some of the lectures like 'Temples and festivals', 'Temples art and architectural and royal patrons and Shav-Pasupatas' in art and lectures do have reference of north Indian temples. The lecture I gave at 'Combodia' in 2005 and National Khmer research institute of Combodia also referred to north Indian temples and art. These references relates to north Indian temples of 'Gupta' period to $12^{th}$ – $13^{th}$ century A.D. There was no reference of any temple of Ayodhya in these lectures.

Prof. H.D. Sankalia was my guide in Ph.D. but I value his book more ' Archaeology in India' for it deals with the summary of all the excavations and the research. He was a great excavator. He is said to be the Doyen of Indian Archaeology. He was working in the Deccan college Puna under the University of Puna as a Professor in Archaeology. I have not heard the name of Prof. R.C. Gaur. Lothal is a Harappan site excavated by S.R. Rao who submitted his report published by ASI. This excavation was conducted some times around 1955 and 1962 but exact date I don't remember at this stage. M.S. Naga Raj Rao was Director General of Archaeology. He has also published some reports. He was an archaeologist. I have heard the name of Dr. Z. D. Ansari of Deccan college of Puna. It is known that Nagraj Rao and Dr. Ansari conducted excavation at 'Sangankallu'. There is a famous excavation conducted at a 'Atranji-Khera'. Dr Z.D. Ansari and Dr. N.K. Dhawilikar had conducted excavation at 'Kayatha'. Jagatpati Joshi was an archaeologist and Director General of ASI. He has also given excavation report regarding excavation at 'Bhagwan- Pura'. Dr. S.P. Deo is also a famous archaeologist, he also belongs to Deccan college of Puna. I have no idea whether he has given excavation report about 'Apegaon' excavation. I don't have any idea about the excavation at ' Tulza-Pur Gadhri' in Maharastra. Similarly I don't have any idea about the excavation at 'Nageshwar' in ( Gujrat) in the gulf of 'Katch'. The M.S. University of Baroda also conducts excavations and they bring their Archaeological series and reports of excavations also. Excavation at 'Pauni' it is a well known site. In all these excavations referred to above there is a separate chapter dealing with animal bones.

At this stage learned cross examiner Shri Z. Jilani Advocate, counsel for Sunni Waqf board U.P. filed Photostat copies of 11 extracts of different reports (paper no. 326 C1/A to 326 C1/ ). These papers were taken on record subject to the order of Hon'ble court.

All the papers mentioned herein above were shown to the witness who, after going through these papers, stated that extracts of all these 11 reports contain chapters dealing with animal bones or animal remains. If the bones are found from any excavation site then they are collected separately and studied and report on them is included in the full excavation report of the respective sites. With reference to page 270, last para, lines 5 and 4 from bottom, of ASI report volume 1, the witness stated that there is mention of recovery of animals bones from various levels of different period but there is no separate chapter dealing with these bones in this report.

Q: Don't you think that this a serious and major omission in the ASI report?

A: In my opinion, this is an extraordinary case where an archaeological excavation is conducted under the orders of the Judiciary to solve a specific problem regarding the existence of structure/ temple beneath a disputed structure and carried out and report submitted with in a very short period. In all probability the ASI concerned itself with the main problem, including some details of animal bones. It would have been useful to provide some more details about the animal bones in the report. In my opinion though in normal course of a full excavation a chapter on animal bone is essential but in this particular extraordinary case I am not able to asses why the ASI has omitted this chapter.

Plate no. 25 of the above report was shown to the witness who, after seeing this, stated that this plate does show foundation of wall 17. Meaning thereby that foundation of wall 16 is not visible in this plate. Carved stone visible in this plate forms part of foundation of the wall 17. Whether brick courses visible in this plate form part of wall 16 or 17 can be answered by me only after going through the ASI's report volume 1. I do not agree with the suggestion that the foundation wall as visible in plate 25 is part of 'Eid-Gah' wall. I am unable to say from the photograph whether any floor is visible in this plate.

Q: Whether you are in a position to tell that the upper level i.e. surface of floor 4 was above the decorated stone visible in plate no. 25?

A: I would like to correct my statement on the wall number and being a technical report I may be allowed to see the ASI report, volume 1, before giving the answer to this question.

Learned cross examiner drew the attention of the witness towards the statement recorded on 22-8-2006 recorded on page 87 para 3 which reads "and intangible basis may be noticed..... in 'Hindustan' ". The witness after going through the above portion of statement stated that I have not studied 'Aine-Akbari' as such I am not in a position as to say where the said statement is mentioned in 'Aine-Akbari'. I have read about this statement in a gazetteer. I will give the reference of this gazetteer tomorrow. It is wrong to say that such statement is not there in 'Aine-Akbari'.

With reference to my statement recorded on page 147; " it was attack by Syed Salar Masuad and Sultan Ibrahim" I don't know whether Sultan Ibrahim and Sultan Ibrahim Lodi were the same person or they are two different persons. I don't know as to which dynasty, Sultan Ibrahim refereed to by me, belong as the gazetteer that mentions Sultan Ibrahim and his attack does not give furthur details about his dynasty. Which is that gazetteer I don't remember at this stage. I will give its reference tomorrow.

www.vadaprativada.com

Q: The so called temple which you claim to have been erected on the disputed site in 11th century A. D. was a classical temple or any other kind of temple?

A: The temple at Ayodhya which I have mentioned, built in 11th century A.D. at the Janma-Asthan, was undoubtedly a classical temple. There are two temples 1. Classical temple 2. Non classical temple i.e. that sacred space or any self existing symbols, plat-form, trees, water sources and even ordinary huts would fall under non classical temples.

The description given under the heading 'Purification insemination and levelling' of the site are applicable to only classical temple. And this description does not apply to other types of temples which are not classical. It is not the material that is purified in this process as mentioned on page 14 to 17 but it refers to purification of site impregnation and levelling of the site, of new construction.

Q: My question is confined to the alleged kind of temple which you claim to have been erected on the disputed site in 11th century A .D. Kindly therefore reply my question in this reference?

A: The pillared structure in the disputed site in my opinion was attached to the enclosure wall which formed the western end. But about the pillar sizes I am unable to say.

I have seen only two pillars at the disputed site these pillars formed part of the disputed structure which was demolished in December 1992. The portions of pillars I saw were square in shape

at the bottom and octagonal with some carving usually found in temple. The dimension of pillar portion, I saw, was about 9X9 inches square. I have said in my statement that there were 14 pillars of this kind in the disputed structure.

Q: For a pillar of this dimension and height which were installed in the disputed structure. what should be the dimension of the pillar base?

A: It may be two and half feet square. If it is a stone a number of courses beneath it may be provided but if it is found on the stone platform, then no separate pillar base is required.

Having shown plate no. 31 of ASI report, volume II, the witness stated that I have not seen the spot which is visible in this plate. The other pillars which I have seen are similar to the one visible in the photograph of plate no. 31. The pillar bases which are visible in plate no. 37 of the above report are square in shape. I have seen these stone pillar bases on the spot. The dimension of these pillar bases is approximately 70 to 80 cm X 70-80 cm i.e. about two and a half feet. For installing a pillar on these pillar bases I don't think that any Iron dowel is required to hold it in position, it stands by its own weight and by the weight of it roofs. I do not think that the stone pillars were used in these type of pillar bases. The pillars that were used in these pillar bases might have been made of wood. Wooden pillars used on these pillar bases might have been of 9 X 9 inches. The height of the pillars depend up on the height of wall over which roof rests. Generally there are about 7 feet height pillars. The wooden pillar of 7 feet height may bear the load of tiled roof and not of a huge building super structure.

Q: Whether roof of the temple could be laid upon the pillars of 9 X 9 inches dimension and of about 7 feet height ?

A: It is possible it large number of pillars are used for the roof of a sloping style roof covered with tiles either metal or clay tiles, but in this case it was only part of the temple which had probably a tiles slope roof with not of much weight.

www.vadaprativada.com

Having seen plate no. 35 of the above report the witness stated that the pillar bases of bottom side are also of the same dimension as pillar base visible in plate no. 37.

Q: Whether dimension of pillar base as shown in plate no. 36 is also the same as that of the pillar bases shown in plate no. 37 and 38?

A: The dimension nearly is the same.

In plate no. 36 a small piece of stone is visible, attached with the pillar base. It is part of the pillar base. The length of both these stone will be about 60 to 70 cm ( about 2 feets).

Q: What would be the approximate length of bigger stone out of these two stones?

A: About 45 to 50 cm.

The structure which might have existed on the pillars supported by the pillar bases visible in plates 35, 36 and 37 might have been light slopping structure and not a big one. The height of this structure might have been about 8 to 9 feet.

www.vadaprativada.com

Q: Can you tell me whether any walls have also been found in the area in which pillar bases shown in plates 35, 36 and 37 existed?

A: In my opinion wall 16 could have been the wall at rear supporting the roof resting on the pillars existing on these pillar bases.

The concept of pillar base is that on the alleged pillar base which is in the shape of platform, a pillar is to rest on. The base of the pillar whether to be erected on a platform that is floor or with solid foundation, will depend upon the load the erected pillar is likely to be or has to bear. Though it is difficult to mention about the length and breadth of the temple structure which was demolished in 1030 A.D., yet I can assess that it would have been of about 10ft. x10ft. dimension. As I said earlier it might have been of about 15ft. height. I don't think that the said earlier structure had any connection with either wall 16 or 17. The old temple structure was not on the pillars. The pillar bases referred to by the ASI in its report might be the pillar bases of mandapa's pillars but not that of sanctum tower. As I can say only four pillar bases found by the ASI could be underneath the said mandapa portion but not that of sanctum tower. Probably, the said 'mandapa' was located in the east of the sanctum tower. (The witness prays for and is hereby allowed to refer to the ASI's report, Volume 1 in order to answer the question about the size of the alleged mandapa of the earlier temple.) After going through the ASI report volume-1, the witness answered as follows :

Perhaps the size of the mandapa of the earlier temple was about 10ft.x10 ft. The roof of the said mandapa must be resting on the pillars. There would have been four pillars to bear that roof.

report, volume 1, the witness said that pillar bases no.26 and 27 were probably the pillar bases of the pillars of the said old mandapa. It is difficult for me to identify the other two pillar bases of the mandapa. The distance between the two pillar bases no.26 and 27 must have been of 10ft. only. It is correct to say that there is no other alleged pillar base within 10ft. radius of pillar bases no.26 and 27. It is correct that the pillar bases no.26 and 27 were in north-east of the structure-3. After consulting the map and report of ASI, the witness said that the old sanctum-sanctorum tower which was demolished in 1030 AD would have been located in north-east of structure-3 as shown in figure 3A (Page 48A) of the report. Structure-3 indicated in figure 3A is a big area covered by disputed structure constructed in 1528 AD. Structure-3 must not be the part of the old temple which was demolished in 1030 AD. Structure 3 is not part of the old temple which was demolished in 1030 AD. I cannot give the name or dynasty of the king who constructed the old temple having been demolished in 1030 AD. However, I can disclose a fragmentary inscription found in trench J-3 and it is to the effect "NG PAL'. From this inscription, it is not decipherable as to what was the name of the king or dynasty of the constructor of the temple. In this case, it is not possible for me to refer the aforesaid inscription to the name of any dynasty or king. As a student of history, I cannot disclose as to who were the rulers in northern part of India of Ayodhya region connecting the aforesaid inscription because the word 'PAL' has been used for many northern Indian kings, dynasties and chieftains of all parts of India. The aforesaid inscription formed part of the wall of the earlier structure demolished partially in 1030 AD. The location from where the aforesaid inscription was recovered during excavation is not far away from the structure of the old temple. According to me, the place of trench J-3 from where the aforesaid inscription was recovered, certainly did not form part of the structure of the old temple. I say that the inscription was part of the old structure

because at the time of the old temple being demolished, its parts must have been scattered around the area. The aforesaid inscription was neither reused nor was found in debris rather it was found lying as such. According to me, that inscription was found in the section of a regular layer. If I am correct, it was perhaps layer 7. According to me, charts, pages no.37A and 37B of ASI report Volume 1, are tentatively prepared but they are not absolutely correct. As I can say layer 7 of J-3 cannot be assigned to Kushan period as shown in charts, pages no.37A and 37B. According to me, these two charts are not absolutely correct and even the ASI has referred to them as tentatively prepared. Similarly, it is not absolutely correct that layer 6, in part, may be assigned to Gupta period as shown in chart 37A of the ASI report. To ascertain periodization, these two charts may not be treated to be as the basis but we have to look to other parts of the report to come to the correct conclusion.

Q. On what basis, you have said that the layer in which the aforesaid inscription was found related to the 11th century period ?

www.vadaprativada.com

A. According to page 204 chapter 8, the ASI report has stated that the aforesaid inscription can be assigned to 11th century AD. This opinion is based on palaeography and not on the layer.

The report on page 204 says that the stone slab was found embedded in a section of wall in trench J-3 and located at the depth of 5.75 metres.

Palaeography is the general guide to ascertain the periodization of history. It can, however, be plus or minus of about 30 to 50 years. The letters of 'NG PAL' may be of somewhere between 950 to 1050 AD. In this way, the variation may be upto 100 years. Layers are also generally considered to be a source of periodization. Now we have definite source of periodization such as Carbon-14 dating, thermo-luminescent dating and special scientific techniques are being evolved for periodization and even the scientific study would have minus plus of about 100 years variation.

O.O.S NO. 5 OF 1989

( R. S. No.236 OF 1989)

19-09-2006 O.P.W.17 Dr. R. Nagaswami

I have no information about the name who might have constructed the second temple structure said to have been demolished in 1080 A.D. There is no discussion or reference in the ASI report about the temple structure said to have been demolished in 1030 A.D. and again in 1080 A.D.

I have mentioned about the demolition of the first and second temple structure as disclosed above on the basis of fragmentary inscription assigned to 11th century by the A.S.I. and also accepted by me on palaeographical ground and the two levels of carbon 14 dating as mentioned earlier read with 'The Attack On Ayodhya' by Syed Salar Masood mentioned in the gazetteer. For 1030 A.D. demolition of first temple structure, the only archaeological evidence available according to me is the inscribed slab referred to above. Wall 16 is built over a good number of carved stones of a classical temple assigned by the ASI in the report on stylistic ground to 11th Century and I accept it and this is the solid evidence found in this excavation beneath the foundation of wall 16 and on the basis of stratigraphic situation of wall 16 and 17 I say that the second temple was demolished in 1080 A.D.

It is correct that the ASI in its report has given no.3 to the disputed structure. Circular shrine has been given no.5 by the ASI. According to me, wall 17 is earlier to wall 16. Wall 17 had no connection with the earlier structure which was said to have been demolished in 1030 AD. However, wall 16 and 17 both have connection with the second temple structure which was said to have been demolished in 1080 AD. Both walls 16 and 17 belong to 11th century period but as stated earlier, wall 17 is earlier to wall 16. The ASI has in its report assigned the wall 17 of 11th century and wall 16 had different phases to 12th century. As per my knowledge, the ASI has assigned wall 16 of 12th century. But I defer with the view taken by the ASI and as per my opinion, wall 16 belongs to 11th century but there may be difference of 10 to 30 years as I have said earlier. Wall 16 was built after the attack of 1080 AD. in a hurried manner to protect the second temple existing there. Wall 16 might have been constructed some time around 1090 AD to 1100 AD. In respect of these periods given by me, there may be a difference of 10 to 30 years with the opinion given by the ASI. We have no evidence that the structure existing which was partially demolished in 1080 AD was restored or not. The size of the second structure which was demolished partially in 1080 AD may be about 15 to 20 sq. metres at the ground level and height would have been around 12 to 15 metres i.e. about 45 feet. The second temple structure which was partially demolished in 1080A.D. was a fully articulated structure with all the required parts of classical temple of northern India. The roof of the said temple was not resting on any pillar and it was therefore, obviously, resting on articulated walls. By articulated wall, I mean to say that the base will have a number of carved mouldings; walls which will have many carved pilasters, niches and sculptures. The entrance will have carved frames called 'panchshakhas' with beautiful creepers and other geometric designs with sculptures like Ganga and Yamuna at the entrance. The ornamental entrance lintel above and the ceiling will have a curved cornice, with a niches which is called 'Kapotaas' and the 'shikhara' above the sanctum sanctorum with a number of corner 'amalaka' too and on top there will be a full circular 'amalaka'. In short the articulated wall means the wall consisting of carved mouldings. The said structure must be built of carved stones. This structure must have been built sometime between 1030 to 1050 AD.

The said structure was a one floor structure meaning thereby there was no further floor above the ground floor. This structure consisted of 'garbh grah' and a short preceding mandapa. I cannot say as to whether the size of 'garbh grah' and mandapa was the same or different. The size disclosed by me of 15 to 20 metres was only in respect of 'garbh grah' and it does not include mandapa. The mandapa was situated in the eastern side of garbh grah. This mandapa could have been of about 3 to 4 in square metres projecting from garbh grah. Its height may be upto the level of lintel level and may be of 10 ft. height. This mandapa must have also been made of stones. The statement which I have made about the partial destruction of this structure mean that some part of the structure might have been demolished such as side projection or part of the shikhar etc. The rest of the part of the main structure remained intact and was standing upto shikhar level.

9 As you have said that this so called structure said to have been partially demolished in 1080 was not resting on pillars, can it be said that this so called structure of temple had no relationship with the so called pillar bases pointed out by the ASI in its report?

A. It is not correct to say that the pillar bases had no relationship with the temple structure which was partially demolished in 1080 AD. The pillar base found by the ASI in its report were part of the enclosure walls which supported the pillared arcade.

11. What do you mean by enclosure wall?

A. The enclosure wall means wall 16, which goes all around the temple standing partially demolished in 1080 AD. Wall 17 was also enclosure wall of that structure and it was also going all around the temple.

No foundation of these walls 16 and 17 were found on the northern, eastern and southern side of the disputed site because

there has been tremendous disturbances on all these three sides and also on the western side. The southern and northern side of walls 17 and 16 were not found standing. Wall 16 and 17 (enclosures walls all around) were not standing on any pillar bases.

Q. What kind of relationship these enclosure walls had with the so called pillar bases?

A. Pillar bases were supporting either a slopping roof or a flat roof and the end beams were resting on the wall 16.

Wall 16 was having roof all around supported by pillars. That means those roof were standing on pillar bases. The distance between the main temple structure and the structure of enclosure walls that is wall 16, was about 10 to 15 ft. all around.

(iv) What would have been the size i.e. width and length of the roof which you claimed to have been laid upon wall 16 at the one side and upon the pillars on the other side?

6. Length of the enclosure walls was found around little more than 50 metres on one side and width of the roof was of about 17 metres in 5 rows. Yes by row I mean that 5 pillars were standing in 17 metres. The distance between one pillar to other pillar base was about 3.5 metres.

The walls around and the roof thereon were in straight direction like wall 16 on the western side. Probably the roof that existed on pillars was also on straight direction on all the four sides. Voluntarily said that along with my affidavit I have given an illustration on pages 28/48 and 28/49 of my affidavit which gives an idea of the lay-out. The layout of temple which was partially demolished, as per my statement, in the year 1080 A.D., was more or less of the type as shown in illustration on page 28/48 of my affidavit. It is possible that while in illustration at page 28/48, no roof is shown on one side, the temple on the disputed site which was partially demolished in 1080A.D. had roof probably on all sides. The roof which was 17 meters wide all along the enclosure wall was resting on five pillars in a row along with width, meaning thereby, the first pillar was at the distance of about 3.5 meters from the wall and the last pillar in the row was on the outer end of the roof. The distance of the main temple structure was about 10 to 15 feet from the last pillar of this roof. This roof structure was the enclosure around the main temple structure and was not part of main temple structure. In this way the distance from the main structure of the temple and wall 16 on western side was about 60 feet. Similarly on the northern side also the main structure of temple would have been 60 feet from the wall on that side.

I have an idea of the disputed structure on the basis of photographs of the structure that existed up to 1992. The western wall of the disputed structure which existed until 1992 was resting on wall no.16. I do not remember the width of the disputed structure east-west. However, I can tell after going though the report. According to the ASI report the said width of the disputed structure east-west was about 30 feets. Similarly outer enclosure of the structure on eastern side also was about 20-25 feets. In this way, the structure that existed earlier and which was partially demolished in 1080 A.D. started where the disputed structure and its outer enclosure came to an end. The structure which was partly demolished in 1080 A.D. continued to remain in existence thereafter. The same continued to remain till the construction of the disputed structure. The three domed construction which was made in 1528 A.D., had 14 pillars with carving and some decoration. The same formed part of some earlier temple structure.

Q. According to your statement, these carved 14 pillars found in the disputed structure could not have formed part of the so called temple which was partially demolished in 1080 A.D. and which had continued, according to you, upto 1528 A.D.

A. The 14 pillars that were found in the disputed structure could not have formed part of that central sanctum structure which existed upto 1528 A.D. but they could have formed part of other mandap in the enclosures.

The enclosure walls around the temple structure on all sides, which was partially demolished in 1080 A.D., were constructed after 1080 A.D. This construction was made sometimes between 1090 A.D. to 1100 A.D. The width between the pillars of the said enclosure roof on all sides as stated by me as 3.5 meters was along the length also. According to my estimation, there would have been 17 rows of the pillars on one side of the enclosure wall. It means on one side enclosure roof had 85 pillars. In this way the total number of pillars, around the main structure, in the enclosure walls would have been 340.

In archaeology isometric view may be either a drawing on scale or a tentative drawing. In ASI's report Vol-1 figure 23 shows the isometric view of the disputed structure which was demolished in 1992. The portion indicated as floor 4A in the said isometric view has also been shown as part of said disputed structure. So is the position in regard to the portions marked as floor 2 and floor 3. As is shown in the said isometric view, floor 2 and floor 3 on the northern side, were out side the northern gate of the disputed structure. Figure 23A of the said ASI report is isometric view of the plan and not of the building. Figure 23 B of the said report shows the isometric view of the conjectural view of the pillars which might have existed on the excavated site. This conjectural view refers to the structure which came up after 1080 A.D. demolition, meaning thereby, the structure which was constructed between 1090 A.D. and 1100 A.D. This does not give the view that I have stated above because it is only a partial drawing. This map shows the western side of the structure described by me. This does not cover the temple structure that I mentioned which was partially demolished in 1080 A.D.. This does not help my view as mentioned above. It is difficult to say which of the pillar bases found by ASI

pertained to pillars about which I have stated above constructed between 1090A.D. to 1100 A.D. Although, I cannot give the exact number but the pillars found on the western side around wall 16 are related to the structure I mentioned earlier.

8. The ASI has not reported about any pillar base found towards west of wall 16?

A. Yes it is correct that ASI has not found any pillar base on the west of wall 16.

Most of the pillars bases to the east of the wall 16 belong to structure erected in 1090 A.D. The height of the roof resting on the enclosure walls was 8 to 9 feet including the bracket on the top of it. The said roof could be of tiles, as also of thin slabs of stone. Probably pillars were of woods and just possible that some of them might have been of stone. Wooden pillars can survive for about 500 years and we have example of wooden rafter which survive for about 2000 years. It is not possible to say whether all the wooden pillars which were installed in 1090A.D-1100 A.D. survived until 1528 A.D. or not. I can specify some of the pillars from the drawing given in Vol-1 which formed part of the structure of 1090 A.D. Pillar bases no. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7,8, 9 10,11,12,13,14 15, 16, 17,25, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, 35, 37, 38, 43, 44, 45, 47, 48 pertain to the roofed structure of the enclosure walls constructed in 1090A.D.-1100 A.D. I do not remember whether these pillar bases no. 1 to 8 and 13 and 14 were made of stone blocks or bricks. I cannot say what sort of pillar base was required in bases of wooden pillars. The distance between the pillars as given by me as 3.5 meters was only approximate and looking to the situation this distance between the pillars could vary also but it is not possible that distance could very up to 5 or 5.50 meters. I am not able to say upto what maximum extent the distance between the pillars could vary. In case the base is small, more accurate measurement shall be maintained but where the base is bigger, minor adjustment will be made at the time of

Q. Have you examined this aspect by keeping in view figure 3A that whether the pillars shown in this figure are in one alignment or not.

A. I have examined this aspect and have come to the conclusion that the alignment given does not pose any major problem. The pillars are in alignment within reasonable limits. Since figure 3A in ASI report is on scale, the distance between pillar bases can be accurately measured. However, I will not be able to measure this distance even if I am provided the scale because it is the specialisation of the surveyor and I am not a surveyor.

Q. My suggestion is that distance of so called pillar bases extends from 3 meters to 5.50 meters and even more and they cannot be said to be in one alignment?

A. The variation mentioned in the distance between pillar bases might be due to functional requirement as I have already mentioned earlier. Therefore, it is not correct to say that they are not in alignment.

Structure 5 (circular shrine) could not have formed part of roofed structure constructed in 1090-1100 A.D. Southern enclosure wall of the roofed structure constructed in 1090-1100 A.D. should have been further south of the circular shrine. It is not possible to say how far it was further south after the circular shrine.

8. According to your statement the so called temple structure partly demolished in 1080 A.D. might have started in the northern side around the place where the northern wall of the disputed structure existed upto 1992?

A. Yes.

In chapter VII in the ASI's report no conclusion has been given about the existence or non-existence of any temple of 11th or 12th century. In chapter seven of the above report. No reference to demolition of any temple is also given. It is true that conclusion of this chapter is given on page 174 itself. I agree with this conclusion given on page 174.

I don't know about any of the two persons mentioned as authors of chapter VIII (eight) on page 204. I have not even heard about them. I have gone through the entire chapter eight of above report. I agree with all the observations made in this chapter except the reading of the 'Nagri' inscription, the last letter. I would prefer to see the original. It is not available for me therefore I accept what ever is written about it in this chapter. The authors of chapter eight have not given opinion about the existence or non existence of any alleged temple of 11th or 12th century. They have not given any opinion even about the demolition of any alleged temple of 11th or 12th century.

I don't know any of the authors of chapter IX, which are mentioned at page 219. I have not even heard their names. Most of the items mentioned in this chapter are glan beads and precious stones. Some of them are glazed wares. The conclusion of this chapter is given only on page 219 but there is a note on page 228 about this. The authors of this chapter also had not given any opinion about the existence or non existence of any alleged temple of 11th or 12th century A.D. or even about demolition of any such temple.

Out of the four authors of chapter V (five) mentioned on page 73 of the above report I know two of them namely B. R. Mani and P. Venkatesan. B. R. Mani is well know in the field of archaeological excavation and P. Venkatesan, after serving as Superintending Archaeologist of temple survey in southern India, is working in Delhi as Director of Institute of Archaeology. P. Venkatesan according to me has worked on South Indian Temples and now he is in ASI's office in New-Delhi. I don't know whether P. Venkatesan has submitted any excavation report or not. I don't know whether P. Venkatesan has got specialisation in any branch of archaeology or not. I don't know about other two persons who are authors of this chapter. I have gone through this chapter in a very general way. In this chapter the authors have confined to dealing with the description of the potteries period wise. They have not given any opinion about existence or non existence of any alleged temple of 11th or 12th century A.D. They have not given any opinion about the demolition of any alleged Hindu temple of above period.

I have read about it in the gazetteer but I don't remember its reference in the gazetteer.

Q: From no historical text or source it appears that Syed Salar Masood had ever established any capital 10 or 20 miles away from Ayodhya or he had ever attacked on Ayodhya. What do you say about this?

A: I am confident that I did read about it, but I don't remember its reference at this stage.

Q: From no historical source or text it appears that any so called 'Sultan Ibrahim' had ever invaded Ayodhya much less around 1080 A.D. What do you have to say about this?

A: As the gazetteer has mentioned about the Sultan Ibrahim specifically and about his invasion of Ayodhya. I have taken it as a historical fact.

I have not examined any site not book. I agree that on page 270 the ASI has confined glazed wares sherd's from the last phase of period VII whereas on page 108 no such phase of period VII has been given for the occurrence of glazed wares. I don't find any discrepancy in the above two observations of ASI as given in page 270 and page 108. I accept both of these observation to be correct as it is not the glazed ware alone that determine the periodization. I don't think that glazed wares are of any vital importance in determining the periods as they have to be taken in considerations along with other finds and Carbon-14 dating. As already stated earlier it is the technique of manufacture, colour etc. which will show as to what date they belong.

I participated in Kalibangan excavation from 1961 to 1969. The title page of which has been filed as paper no. 327-C1/1 is the same report which I have referred above as having been published. This relates to the period of excavation from 1960 to 1969. The chapter on animal remains in this report, copy of which has been filed as paper no. 327C1/2 to 327C1/17 was written by the experts from Zoological Survey Of India and authors names of that chapter have been mentioned on the title page of the report paper no. 327C1/1. In this chapter on animal remains they have described the identification of the bones. There is no other chapter on animal bones in this report of Kalibangan excavation. The name B.B. LaL which finds place on title page of 327C1/1 along with the names of Jagat Pati Joshi, B. K. Thapar and Madhubala, is the same B. B. Lal who was Director General Of ASI.

Out of the five excavation reports mentioned in paper no. 327C1 my contribution is only in the report of Surkotada excavation. Similarly out of the eleven excavation reports mentioned in paper 326C1/A and 326C1/B, my contribution is only in the report of Bhagwanpura excavations. In excavation report of Surkotada, copy of titled page of which has been filed as paper no. 327C1/34 my name finds place along with the names of Arun Kumar etc as contributors of the report. The portion of the report entitled as ‘ Animal bone remains’ filed as paper no. 327C1/37 to 327C1/57 has been contributed by me. This is my full report which was submitted to ASI regarding animal bones. This report was prepared by me on the basis of study of bones on excavation site as

Q: Is it correct to say that if there was no expert on bones in the ASI team of excavation at Ayodhya it was the duty of leader of the said team to get the bones recovered at Ayodhya examined by some experts and to include the report of such expert in the final report of excavation submitted to the Court ?

A: I fully agree that the bones should have been got examined by some expert on the subject who could have submitted his report if possible at the time of the filing of the final report or later when the examination is completed.

My statement that niche in wall no. 16 cannot be the niche of Idgarh because of the reason that the same is not in the centre of the wall, is only one ground for saying that wall 16 is not the wall of Idgarh. However, I have not mentioned any other ground in my affidavit supporting my contention that wall no. 16 is not the wall of Idgarh. Since I have not seen the disputed structure when it existed, I cannot say whether there were arches in the walls or not. In figure 1 of plate no. 3 on page 8/1 of paper No.120-C-1/69 (Indian Architecture – Islamic Period), there are arches in the gate shown in the said picture but in the said gate, no niches are visible. Similar is the position in figure 1 of plate no.6 on page 8/4 of the said paper. However, in figure of plate no.8 on page 8/6, in addition to the arches, a niche is also clearly visible in the bottom of the left side of the grave. It is wrong to suggest that there is no niche in plate 8 on page 8/6.

'Parnala' is a term used for flow of water. Parnala is not used in all sorts of buildings for the exit of water from top of the roof. Parnala is used from inside the room of a temple generally from the garbhagrah i.e. Sanctum santorum. 'Parnala' is not used in all temple but used only in Shiva's temple. 'Parnala' is Sanskrit word. I do not agree with the suggestion that 'Parnala' is used for exit of water from the roof top of all sorts of building. The circular shrine of Mansar as referred to in para 31 of my affidavit and depicted at page 27/167 of my affidavit, is similar to the circular shrine excavated at the site in question. Voluntarily said the variation between the two is that in case of Ayodhya excavation, the circular shrine is circular externally and square internally whereas that at Mansar, it has a circular shape internally and both are called circular shrine. The dimensions of the circular shrine of Mansar( page no.27/167), is internally 1.5 metres east-west and 1.5 metres north-south on the point of the circle. I have neither given these dimensions in my affidavit, nor they are mentioned in Annexure No.20 of my affidavit. It is incorrect to say that the dimension of shrine depicted at page 27/167 is much larger that 1.5 metres as stated above, by me. Scale lying in the shrine is clearly visible. That scale is 50 centimetres long. The entrance gate in the Mansar shrine is located on the top side of the photograph. The entrance is 50 centimetres in width. The extent height of Mansar shrine is 10 courses of bricks i.e. 80 centimetres. The estimated height of the roof of the said shrine is 2.50 metres. The square

structure in the centre of the circle on page 27/167 is Yoni-peeth. It is 55 X 55 centimetres in diameter. To the back side of the wall of the circular structure, there is space and the square structure is detached from all the side of the circular structure. The height of the square structure is 35 centimetres. The height of the square structure is 35 centimetres from base and the roof over the structure must be 2.15 centimetres. It is incorrect to say that in this photograph(page 27/167), Parnala on the square structure is not visible for taking water of the structure outside the circular shrine.

The ASI has not used the word 'demolished' anywhere in the report either in respect of a 'temple' or in respect of a 'wall'. I have mentioned the word 'demolition/demolished' in the first and last line of page 20 of my affidavit on the basis of evidences, I have seen at the excavation site during my visit. The said evidences are, that in the foundation of the wall of the disputed structure, architectural fragments, as for example, 'Makar Pranal' and bricks of the earlier structure, were used. 'Makar Pranal' shown in plate 23 of ASI's report Vol. II is the same 'Makar Pranal' which I have referred to in the second para on page 20 of my affidavit. The said 'Makar Pranal' is in the foundation wall of wall no. 15. Said again that the said 'Makar Pranal' is actually in wall no.5. This 'Makar Pranal' was not found above wall no.16. This 'Makar Pranal' in wall no. 5 was abutting wall no.16. Wall no. 5 was abutting wall no.16. Wall no.5 was not directly resting on wall no.16. My statement to the effect on page 20 that wall no. 5 was directly resting over wall no. 16 is not correct in respect of one trench but it is correct in respect of the entire remaining length of the wall where I have stated that it was resting over wall no.16. I have not stated in my affidavit as to from where the 'Makar Pranal' of plate no. 23 came originally.

This is true that the Central Advisory Board of Archaeology of which I am a member is the highest Advisory Body for Archaeology. The last meeting of the said Board was held on 2nd August, 2006. I have received a notice for the meeting. Along with a notice I have received the minutes of the earlier meeting. It is wrong to say that a copy of the minutes of the Standing Committee held on 20/21.10.2005 was also enclosed alongwith the notice received by me. I had received minutes of the earlier meeting of Central Advisory Board of Archaeology only.

I am not a member of the said Standing Committee. The names of the members of the said Standing Committee are given in the Minutes dated 20/21.10.2005 at page 18. In the chart annexed to the said minutes of the Standing Committee as Annexure No.1, the details of the projects recommended/not recommended for the seasons 2005-2006 are given in the form of chart. It is correct to say that my project which was recommended by ASI is mentioned at Sl.No.35. At Sl. No.92 and 93 of this chart, there are proposals submitted by Dr. S. P. Gupta which were not recommended. Dr. S. P. Gupta is the same person who has written a book on Ayodhya and is the President of Indian Archaeology Society. The proposal at Sl. No. 94 was submitted by the same Indian Archaeological Society through Dr. S. P. Gupta. Alongwith me, Prof. Shiree Moosvi, Prof. Suraj Bhan, Prof. D. Mandal and Sri Sitaram Rai are also the members of the Central Advisory Board. All these four persons have appeared in this case as witnesses. Director General, ASI is the final licensing authority for the purpose of granting licence for excavation anywhere in India and he has a power to grant the licence, even if it is not recommended by the Standing Committee of the Central Advisory Board of Archaeology. The Central Advisory Board consists of eminent archaeologists, historians and scientists, apart from other important persons including Members of Parliament.

By 'photographs' used in last line of paragraph 14 of my affidavit, I mean photographs contained in volume II of the ASI's report and not any other photographs said to have been submitted by the ASI in this Court. The 'other connected records' mentioned in para 14 refers to Video which was displayed in this Court and no other record. I have not seen the 'antiquity register' or any other register or the drawings prepared during or after excavation except the two volumes of the report. The critical examination of the excavated structures, layers and deposits as referred in para 13 of my affidavit refers to my examination on the site on 6th and 7th August, 2003 before the report was submitted. I cannot give the number/s of the structures which were examined during those two days. I cannot say, as I do not remember, the total number of structures found by ASI in the excavation. I can only say that more than 15 structures were examined by me at the site. Ram Chabutara, circular shrine, wall nos. 5, 16, 17, 18, 19-A and 19-B are among those structures which I had examined during the aforesaid visit. I had examined these structures from the surface of the excavation site as I was not allowed to enter into the trenches. I examined them with my naked eyes without use of any instrument. Apart from structures, I had examined the deposits in the layers, etc., By 'deposits', I mean pits and dumps. I have not seen any glazed wares, polished wares, bones or any antiquity recovered from the excavation and therefore they do not come in the word 'deposits' used by me in para 13 of my affidavit.

My statement in para 15 of my affidavit is based entirely on the two volumes of the ASI report and not based on any other documents, including site note books and antiquity register. This is wrong to say that it is not evident from the report that the excavation was carried out following the scientific norms and also that the antiquity register and the day site note books were maintained properly and in accordance with the settled archaeological norms. This is correct to say that the site note books during excavation have to be prepared every day for the work done on that day. The antiquities found during excavation are sent to the antiquity section where they are recorded in the antiquity register. I cannot say whether there was any antiquity section during excavation at Ayodhya. I do not know that the antiquity register was prepared during excavation at the site.

Q. If you do not know, as to how the antiquity register was prepared and in what manner the site note books were prepared and maintained, then on what basis you can say that the excavation was carried out and report was given in conformity with the archaeological principles and norms and the report is a most scientific report.

A. I have made this statement on the basis of the end results of the excavation which have come out in the form of two volumes of the report by ASI.

Q. When you have not checked and examined either the antiquity register or the site note books, then on what basis you have said in your affidavit that the finds were recorded and interpreted strictly in accordance with the settled archaeological norms and on what basis you say that site note books have been duly recorded ?

A. In archaeology, like any other scientific profession, there is a professional ethics and the first lesson is strict honesty and aloofness from any distortion or conjecture. The findings have to be stated as they are found. So the question of having any doubt on the excavator does not arise so far as antiquity registers, site note books etc. are concerned. The entire report is always written on the basis of these primary records. Since I was satisfied with the statements given in the ASI's report, Volume 1 and drawings and photographs in Volume 2, I did not find it necessary to go through the voluminous antiquity records, site note books etc. Moreover, in the site note books, the recordings are made by each individual site supervisors and at the time of writing the report, all have to sit together for their respective chapters and come to a final conclusion in spite of the fact that recording in one site note book may slightly vary with the other site notebooks.

Q. Whether these so called pillar bases were meant for stone pillars or wooden pillars?

A. As far as I can surmise, these were meant for stone pillars.

**********

www.vadaprativada.com

I have not measured the distance between the pillar bases at the site in question but I measured the distances by scale in the drawings of the ASI's report. I measured it in the drawing of the figure no.3A (Volume 1 of the ASI's report), so far as I remember. Again said, I think, it is figure no.3 and not 3A.

On seeing the figure no.3 of the Volume 1 of the ASI's report, I can say that the number of the pillar bases are not mentioned in it but the trenches are certainly there. I have not measured their distances with reference to their number but I measured them with reference to their location in the trenches. In this figure, the distance between any set of two pillar bases is not approximately 5 metres. I don't agree with the suggestion that the distance between pillar bases no.48 and 49 is 5 metres as per ASI's report in figure no.3A( page 48A).

Q. Is it not correct to say that the distance of the pillar bases could be measured from this figure 3A on the basis of pillar base numbers?

A. Yes, they can be measured.

The distance between pillar no. 48 and 49 is approximately 4 metres. The distance between 47 and 48 is approximately 2 metres. The distance of pillar bases no.29 and 30 is about 4 and a half metres obliquely. The pillar base no.32 and 35 are in straight alignment of pillar base no.29. The distance between pillar base no.29 to 32 is slightly more than 2 metres. The distance between pillar bases no.32 and 35 is approximately the same as above. The distance between pillar bases no.22 and 25 is approximately 3 metres. It is wrong to suggest that the distance between pillar base no.22 and 25 is about 4 metres. The distance between pillar base no.15 and 22 is slightly more than 4 metres.

The pillar bases nos.2, 10, 15, 22 and 25 are in oblique alignment. The pillar bases no.11, 12, 13 and 14 are in alignment with pillar base no.10 on western side. The distance between pillar base no.11 and 12 is slightly more than one metre. The distance between pillar bases no.12 and 13 is the same i.e. one metre. The distance between pillar bases no.10 and 11 is little less than two metres. The pillar bases nos.15 and 16 are in straight alignment from west to east. The pillar bases nos.18 and 19 are in alignment from west to east. There is no pillar base towards the east of pillar base no.25. This is correct that there is no pillar base in between pillar bases no. 25 and 26. The distance between pillar bases no.25 to 26 is approximately 6.5 metres.

15. Kindly point out 17 pillar bases in north south orientation and 5 pillar bases in east west orientation in alignment with each other in figure 3A and in figure 3 of the ASI's report as you have mentioned in para 26 of your affidavit.

A. The pillar bases in 17 rows north to south starts from pillar base no.2,7, 10, 15, 22, 25, 28, 31, 34,40, 44, 47 and the remaining five in the un-excavated area. From the figure 3A, one can notice 12 pillar bases from western side in first row. The remaining five must be in the unexcavated area.

7. On what basis you have said in your para 17 of your affidavit that the Director of Ayodhya Excavation has made an analytical, comparative and critical assessment and has reached to the final conclusion in consultation with team members,

when no such mention is there in the ASI report?

A. The very fact that different chapters in the ASI report have been contributed by the team mates of the excavation-team clearly shows that there was consultation, analytical study, etc. amongst themselves after which the Director of the Team reached some conclusion which is recorded in chapter X of the A.S.I. report Volume I. Yes. The Director, who is also a contributor of some of the chapters, alongwith his team mates must have analytically, comparatively and critically made assessment of the different chapters and results thereupon alongwith his team-mates.

Q. The Director of the team at the time of submission of ASI report was Mr. Hari Manji and he has not contributed any chapter in the report alongwith any team member?

A. By Director of the team, I mean, the person, i.e. Dr. B. R. Mani who was for the longest period as Director of the team.

Q. Do you mean to suggest that the last chapter, i.e. Chapter X about conclusion was written by Dr. B.R. Mani as Director?

A. The conclusion part is sum-total of the results of the different chapters and it is not to be written by one individual. It is drafted jointly by all the contributors. Since Sri Hari Manji was the Director of the Team at the time of writing the report, therefore, he must have made consultation with the members of the team and thereafter on analytical, comparative and critical assessment, he must have reached to the conclusion.

Initially I joined in ASI as Deputy Superintendent Archaeologist. From 1958 to 1962 I worked as custodian in educational museum Etawa and state Museum Lucknow. By means of my affidavit of examination-in –chief, in nut shell I want to convey that as per the excavation report submitted by ASI there were structures under the disputed structure and several fragmentary sculptural and architectural remains have been encountered underneath. The structures which were found below disputed structure during excavation were Hindu structure. The remains of the sculptural and architectural fragments which were found below disputed structure were indicative to temple association.

Q: Whether the title of the book as given by you indicates that there has been a Pratihara period in Indian history and that pertain to central India ?

A: 'Pratihara' period indicates the time bracket of the imperial 'Pratiharas' dateable form 8th to 10th centuries A.D. and central India means the location of the temples of that region belonging to that time bracket. 'Pratiharas' were a ruling dynasty. Whole of India was not under their rule. It was only limited mostly in northern India. Uttar Pradesh as known today was under the rules of 'Pratiharas'. During their heydays Pratiharas ruled from parts of Himanchal Pradesh to Narmada in the south and from parts of Gujrat to parts of Bihar in the east. 'Pratihara' is a dynasties name of kings. They ruled from 8th to 10th century A.D. meaning there by they rule for about 300 years. They took over from some smaller King ruling from Ujjan and Kanauj in northern India. Pratihar surrendered rule from Chandelas, Paramaras, Kchchhapaghat etc. Prior to Prtihara's Kanauj was being ruled by 'Ayudha' dynasty. To be sure in this respect I have to refer to my book. I don't remember the who was ruling Ujjan prior to Pratihara.

Pages 13-14

I can mention the names of some Pratihara rulers such as Vatsaraj, Nagbhat, Bhoj, Mahendra Pal etc. I don't know whether people belonging to Pratihara dynasty are living these days in India or not. I don't know that whether the successors of Pratihara dynasty are living in Uttar Pradesh or not. So far study of Ancient Indian History was concerned in my course it pertains from the earliest period to 12th century A. D. By earliest period I mean from Palaeolithic period onwards. Palaeolithic period includes stone age. Rule of Pratihara dynasty does fall with in the course of Ancient History studied by me. I have also read Archaeology. Study of this subject was part of my M. A. degree. I have got practical knowledge of archaeology during my service period. I have not done any excavation. I have not written any excavation report. I have not scrutinised and reviewed any excavation report. I know Sri B .B. Lal and I have not worked under him. I don't think Sri B. B. Lal was holding any post in ASI in 1974, when I joined the service in ASI. Temples of Pratihara period have got significance. It is a transition period in architecture from Post-Gupta (7th century) to late Medieval (11th –12th century) temple architecture. Temples raised during Partihara period in northern India are know as Pratihara temples. Temples in India have been noticed in 4th –5th and 6th century A.D. Generally the temples of this period are known as Gupta temples. Temples in 1st 2nd and 3rd century have also been noticed in India but at very few places. No dynastic name is assigned for the temples of 1st to 3rd century A .D. Pratihara temples have got some distinguishing characteristic of their own. Temples have been noticed in other part of India also during period of 7th to 12th century A .D. They were known by the names of dynasty / regions in which they were constructed.

Q: Do you mean to say that as regards the style of temples, Nagar style of temple is a generic term and Pratihara style is a species of the same confine to central India ?

A: The term Nagar style includes the temples styles which developed in northern part of India right from Gujrat in the west to Bengal in the east including even certain parts of Deccan and south. The Pratihara style belongs to the region which was ruled by Pratihara kings in northern and central part of India during 8th to 10th century A. D.

top of Grabhgriha is at a higher level than the Shikhara of a Mandapa. Said voluntarily flat roofed temples were also constructed in early period. For instance in 5th , 6th century A. D. i.e. temples without Shikhars were also constructed. Shikharas can not be called domes. I am conversant with the word 'Gumbad' of Urdu language. There is no similarity in Gumbad and Shikaras as regards its architectural formations. One is pointed and pyramidal where as other is round and bulbous. In very late medieval period some Shikharas were of round shape. I don't remember even a single Shikara of round shape. I might have read somewhere about these types of Shikaras but I don't remember the reference at this time.

No temple of Pratihara style has a dome as super structure meaning there by in Pratihara temples no Gumbad type Shikhar is found.

Lata Vallari or Lata-Valli or Kalpa-Valli or Patra-Lata are the terms to denote the foliage pattern with an undulating stem. These terms come under Indian Art and are found in Shilpa text connected with decoration of temples. 'Shilpa' means engraving on stone and in broader sense includes all activity connected with sculpturing and construction work. Patra lata or Lata vallari has got significance with relation to Hindu temples and denote the idea of prosperity. They have been followed in Hindu temples as well as in palaces and later on in other buildings also. I have seen the Mosques. Such decorations are found in Mosques but the pattern and style are different. The pattern of these decoration in Hindu temples and palaces is the same and it differs when used in the Mosque if not taken from the remains of a Hindu temple. In Mosques if it is not taken from a Hindu temple it is more stylised and loose the pristine (earlier) nature. The stylisation does not mean that the decoration becomes more attractive but it looses the naturalistic treatment found in the earlier period. I can't say how other persons having no expertise in this field would notice the difference between these decorations found in Mosques and used in other places.

The other details such as Amalaka pattern and Mala designs are also visible to some of the pillars. By the term Purna ghata Pallava or Ghata Pallava is meant a pitcher over flowing with foliage motif containing water. Pitcher is also generally used to keep water. Pitcher are made up of earth or metals. Importance of water is common to every bodies. Foliage motif means the leaf and floral patterns coming out of Ghata and that makes the term Ghata Pallava. Foliage motif are the words of English language where as the word Pallava is of Sanskrit language which means leaves with stem. Pallava means leaves with stem. Foliage motif are two words. By the word foliage I mean Pallav and motif means pattern or design. I don't think there is any other nearest word in English for the word foliage. Floral means pertaining to flower, motif means pattern. Flower and Pallav are general terms applicable to any flower and leaf. The defaced statue indicated by me in the left side of pillar (paper no. 7/3) is not decipherable as it is not clear. By the term diamond pattern is meant a rectangular decoration found generally in the temples. Amalaka pattern is the constricted Amalaka found on the pillars. Mala design is garland motif. Diamond pattern, Amalaka, Mala design floral motif and Ghata Pallava are symbolic religious motifs found in the temples. These things are decorative objects or not depends on their placement. These things can be found in other buildings also.

The words door jambs is an English word and in Sanskrit it is called as Dwara-Shakha. Door-jambs are the supporting columns of lintel of the door way. Door jambs are in both sides and stand in vertical position and lintel is resting on them in horizontal position above them. Thus the door- jambs, lintel (uttarang) and door sill ( Udumbar). Door jambs, lintel and door sill comprise the door frame. Kapotpali, Kapot or Kapotika are the terms used for cornice slightly projected out in the scheme of the temple construction. Shaft means part of a pillar. Octagonal is the shape on the ground plan of a column or any other construction. In Sanskrit it is called 'Ashtashra' meaning eight-sided. These are the common component of a building but they attain sanctity when used in context with a temple. I don't know whether above components is used in Gurudwaras and Churches are given any sanctity by their followers. Above architectural members can be found in other buildings as well but the technical terms given in Shilpa text as Dwarashaka, Uttrang and Udumbar are not applicable to them. The other buildings will include religious buildings also. Madhyalata is the central shoot rising upwards in the middle of the Shikhara of the temple. Karna Amalaka is the constricted Amalaka placed on the corner portion (Karna) of the Shikhara to denote the storey of the Shikhara. Griva portion is the neck portion of the Shikhara below the top Amalaka of the Shikhar. Griva is a Sanskrit word. Indian Arts include the art which developed in India but it is commonly used in connection with the arts which originated in India. The architecture, sculpture, icons/ images , bronzes and paintings are studied in Indian Arts. This has no concern with any particular religion. It is true that statues may be found in the palaces. Besides Indian Arts I have expertise in Iconography also. Iconography is the study of images and their development through the ages. This is generally artistic study. Iconography is not related to any religion. There are large number of Gods and Goddesses which are worshiped by the followers of the Hindu religion. The one broad division is that the Gods are male deities and the Goddesses are the female deities. Some times there are composite forms also as in the case of 'Ardha-Narishvara'. I have never counted the number of Goddess ( devis ). I can distinguish one Goddess from the other if their images are placed before me. I have never tried to count the number of Goddesses. I am not aware whether roughly there are ten thousand Goddesses. I have never considered the problem of counting of different Goddess which I can distinguish.

Q. Whether you notice any contradiction in this para and para 2 of ASI report at page 271. Is here at page 37 the ASI has disagreed the result of $C^{14}$ test and at page 271 has relied upon the same. What do you say in this regard?

Ans. As I have emphasised repeatedly that I have not done any excavation or written a report on that and I am not an expert of $C^{14}$ dating so I am not in a position to reply this question, better the same may be asked with excavation experts. My field is limited to architecture and iconography as given in my affidavit.

Q: If you notice a pillared base structure in your saying of Mandapa shaped without any Garbhgriha there how will you determine it to be either a Mandapa pertaining to temple or a baithaka, varanda, cow-shade, pathshala or a madrasa ?

A: A Mandapa is associated with the Garbhgriha of a temple and if the Garbhgriha is not visible it may not be associated with a particular temple. If the construction of a Mandapa as a scheme of pillars which is indicative of a religious structure it may be associated with a temple.

The scheme is meant here to show the arrangement of pillars. I don't remember whether there is any prescribed scheme in Shilpa-text for a pillared Mandapa. As far as I know the usage of such scheme is not prohibited for other purpose.

Q: Are you of the view that in India all the Mosque or majority of Mosques has been raised by demolishing the Hindu temples ?

A: Some of the Mosques have been raised by demolishing Hindu temples. I can't say about all.

I am not aware of any other Mosque in Ayodhya except the disputed structure which was built after demolishing a temple. The disputed structure was raised in 1528 A. D. The disputed structure, which was raised in 1528 A. D, was a Mosque.

www.vadaprativada.com

Learned cross examiner drew the attention of the witness towards para 12 of his affidavit. The circular shrine mentioned in this para was constructed on the floor dateable to 9 –10th century A. D. I don't remember the floor number at which this circular shrine was noticed during excavation. I don't remember whether ASI people have mentioned any floor on which this circular shrine was situated.

Pages 62-63

Q: Whether your perception that disputed structure was raised after demolishing a temple is based on ASI report only or it is based on some other material ?

A: My perception is mainly based on the report of excavation conducted by the ASI.

Q: Kindly indicate the page and para where the ASI in its report has said that disputed structure was raised after demolishing a temple. ?

www.vadapratvada.com

A: On being permitted by the commissioner the witness after going through the report (vol-I ) stated that on page 272 of this report suggests the remains of pillared Mandapa, architectural and sculptural fragments of a Hindu temple just below the wall of the disputed structure suggests the existence of a temple below the disputed structure. Which implies that the earlier remains of a temple were reused after their demolition.

Q: Kindly indicate the sentence or the phrase as indicated by you at page 272 of the ASI report which say about the demolition of the structure ?

A: The content of last sentence on page 272 indicates that all architectural fragments and other remains used below the disputed

www.vadapratvada.com

structure were reused under it. They can be reutilized after demolition of the earlier structure. This part reads as "now viewing in totality ..... in the temples of north India".

Q: Can you indicate the particular phraseology by which you infer the demolition of earlier structure is stated?

A: The architectural members and their fragments utilised can be obtained only after demolishing the temple. Though the word demolition is not specifically given here.

Q: Do you find any difference in demolishing a structure by human agencies and raising another structure over the same and disappearance /demolition of structure by other causes ?

A: When a structure is demolished by human agencies its members are mostly fragmentary in nature and their utilisation is not in there proper places. So in the present case the suggestion is towards the demolition of earlier structures just below the disputed structure. If the destruction is by the natural forces the object remain scattered mostly in their original forms. I feel that in the present case the demolition was effected by human agencies to raise the disputed structure. The earlier structure was demolished prior to 1528 A. D. to raise the disputed structure.

It is not possible to give the exact time gap between the demolition of earlier structure and construction of the disputed structure in 1528 A. D. This time gap may be soon before the construction of the disputed structure or a few years before raising the disputed structure.

Pages 66-67

I don't find any phraseology at page 272 where it is mentioned that the earlier structure was demolished by human agencies.
According to me circular shrine can be dated in $9^{th}$ –$10^{th}$ century A. D. I have dated this structure on the basis of analogy given in the ASI

www.vadaprativada.com

report and also on my information that I have gathered by seeing circular temples of that period. The plan and formation of the circular shrine is comparable to other contemporary temples. I remember one temple known as Gargaja-Mahadev temple at Indor Guna District ( Madhya Pradesh ) which seem to me earlier than the circular temple in question. I don't remember any other temple of this kind existing prior to 9th century A. D. in India. I don't remember instantly whether circular shrines were raised in India after 9th –10th century A. D. I did not remember two days earlier also in this regard. I don't remember whether I knew this fact 2 years back or not.

*********

Q: May I know what is the basis of the dating of said temples by you ?

A: The temple has been dated in comparison with the other temples of central India and their architectural similarities and same can be seen in my book already referred to.

The temples whose help has been taken in dating Gargaja-Mahdeva temple are architecturally dated in my book. The temples with whom I have compared Gargaja Mahadev temple are 1. Teli ka mandir in Gwalior fort 2. Mahadev temple at Amrol. The names of other temples I don't remember at this point of time. This can be seen in my book.

Q: Were these two temples indicated by you above circular in shape comparable to Gargaja Mahdev temple ?

A: The architectural motifs are the basis of dating the Gargaja Mahadev temple and not their circular shape.

These two temples, according to me, can be dated to about 800 A. D. The basis of dating of these two temples is architectural motif and in one case the palaeography of inscription found therein.

The later two temples have also the Garbhagriha and Antarala preserved. 'Antarala' may be translated as Ante-chamber in front of the Garbhgriha. This Antarala is the integral part of Hindu temple often situated within the door way of the temple and very closely associated with the Garbhgriha. First thing is Grabhagriha infront of which is there after Antarala then other parts such as Mandapa etc. in a temple in north India. Antarala closely joins Grabhgriha and often is not demarcated separately.

Q: If one says that Mandapa should adjoin Grabhgriha as per set norms of Hindu temple, would it be incorrect ?

A: Between Grabhagriha and Mandapa there is generally a narrow Antarala.

There are a prescribed norms for the plan of a Hindu temple which is generally followed but sometimes the deviations are also made / found. The prescribed norms are generally followed in the construction of north Indian temples Existence of an Antarala is between Grabhgriha and Mandapa. I don't remember the size of above three temples. I don't remember the size and dimension of Gargaja Mahadev temple. I don't remember the size of circular shrine found during excavation. This circular shrine as far as I remember is found on the right side below the massive pillared structure. In Teli ka Mandir there is a small inscription engraved on the wall itself which also helps in dating this temple. The language of this inscription is Sanskrit and it is in the praise of the Goddess Durga. It's script is Brahmi. I have taken the help of epigraphists in the ASI in dating this inscription. I know little bit of palaeography but I am not an expert of that. I have already said that I have taken the help of epigraphists in dating the inscription. These epigraphists have helped me in reading and dating the same on palaeographic ground.

A: As I have already repeatedly stated that I am not an epigraphist so I may not be able to read or date the inscription with certainty without the help of any other epigraphists.

I don't remember the names and number of the epigraphists of ASI department whose assistance had been taken by me in dating the inscription of Teli ka Mandir.

Q: Have you taken into account historical aspect also in dating such inscription?

A: I have taken into account the history of architectural development also in dating the temple.

This dating is not only based on the epigraphical evidence but the architectural development and motif of the region have also been taken into account in dating the temple of Teli ka Mandir.

gah, Kanati-Masjid or any other building of common use and as such this question is most relevant )

A: Yes, I noticed semicircular arch shaped design over the wooden decoration. These are mere decoration here.

In the semicircular arches there is not a pilaster but on the sides there are wooden pilaster. I don't see any lintel in this decorative pattern. These pilaster are not supporting any lintel of a door way so they can not be called door jambs. In common parlance the common people make such decorations in there houses.

A: I am not an expert of glazed tiles so I am not in a position to give an opinion on these glazed tile fragments authentically.

At page 173 of the above report 9 stucco objects are listed. On all these objects I am not in a position to give my opinion. Only on the basis of description given against these objects. Some of these objects have been given in the photographic illustration of ASI report volume II on which I have already given my opinion. In absences of photographs of other objects I am not in a position give to my opinion authentically as to whether these objects are associated with any Hindu temple structure or not.

The building material of a collapsed temple can be reused in construction of an another temple. With the demolition of a temple, the religious sanctity of a fragment gets displaced but with its reuse in construction of another temple, the religious significance is again sanctified. It is immaterial whether such fragment is reused in foundation or at any other place of a temple, as far as I know. I have not seen any Buddhist temples. Of course, I have read about Buddhist temples. I don't think that any fragment recovered at the site in dispute during excavation belongs to a Buddhist temple. As far as I know there is no difference between the architectural features of a Buddhist and a Hindu temple and fragment members of a Buddhist and Hindu temple. As a matter of fact, it is the subject i.e. the idol etc. which distinguishes a Buddhist temple from a Hindu temple. On the basis of the other features like a circular shrine having been discovered at the site in dispute, I can say that the fragmented architectural members found at the site in dispute were associated with Hindu temple. Circular shrine is not the only specific feature indicating about a Hindu temple but there are other fragments of 11th and 12th Century which indicate about the existence of the temple. The presence of inscriptional evidence found at the site also indicates that a temple of Vishnu Hari was constructed there in the 12th Century A.D. .....Since I am not an excavator, I cannot say as to what was the level/floor of the pillared Mandapa. I have already said that the pillared Mandapa was below the floor of the disputed structure. I am not aware of the details of the floors and levels or the stratigraphy, therefore, I cannot answer with authority that the depression of the Garudadwaja was more or less at the same floor at which the surface of the disputed structure was found.

The pillared mandapa is datable to 11-12th Century A.D and since I am not an expert of stratigraphy, I cannot answer with accuracy about the date of construction of Garudadwaja's depression. On the basis of the ASI's report and its findings, as also the existence of the evidence of Vishnu Hari temple inscription, I have dated the said construction of a Hindu temple to be of 11-12th Century A.D. It is not amazing to date a structure at the same floor while plead ignorance about another structure of the same floor. In fact, I would repeat again that I am not an expert of stratagraphy. It is incorrect to say that I am deliberately giving an imaginary reply. I don't remember that as to whether ASI team has in its report dated this depression of Garudadhwaja or not.

I have not thoroughly studied the report of the ASI, though I have cursorily gone through it. Since my expertise are in iconography and temple architecture, I have specifically studied sculptures connected with Hindu temple and also noticed the report from the same point of view. Chapter VI of the report(Volume I) deals with the architectural fragments. Although other chapters do not deal with the field of my specialisation, yet I have cursorily gone through it. Alongwith the report, I have seen cursorily some of the designs/figures sketched by the ASI team.

Pages 108-113

The disputed structure was constructed in 1528 during the regime of Babar. I don't think that ASI has specifically said in its report that the disputed structure was constructed after the demolition of any Hindu temple. But some of the remains found in the foundation of the disputed structure suggest that the disputed structure was constructed after pulling down some Hindu structures. Except the ASI's report, I don't have any independent information about a Hindu structure having been pulled down before the construction of the disputed structure. Although, in the ASI's report, there is no specific indication about the demolition of a Hindu structure/temple, yet there are several remains of architectural members which suggests the pulling down of a Hindu temple before the construction of the disputed structure. In the ASI's report, there are specific findings in the summary which suggests that a Hindu structure/temple pre existed and was demolished before the construction of the said mosque.

According to me the last sentence of summary of ASI's report in Vol 1, at page 272 is suggestive of the fact that there existed temple prior to the construction of the disputed structure.

Q. Is it correct to say that in the aforesaid last sentence at page 272 starting from the word "now view in totality", there is nothing which may suggest or indicate that any temple or Hindu structure existed there at the site in dispute in or around 1528 A.D. before the construction of Babri Masjid.

A. "The mutilated sculpture of divine couple and carved architectural members including foliage patterns, amalaka, kapotapali doorjamb with semi-circular pilaster, broken octagonal shaft of black schist pillar, lotus motif, circular shrine having pranala (waterchute)

in the north 50 pillars base in association of the huge structure, are indicative of remains which are distinctive features found associated with the temples of north India"

This portion of the summary in the end of the ASI's report at page 272 indicates that there was a temple below the disputed structure as has been concluded by ASI.

21. Is it correct to say that the last lines of the aforesaid sentence of the ASI's report providing that the material referred therein was " indicative of remains which are distinctive features found associated with the temple of north India", do not suggest either existence of any such temple in or around 1528 A.D. or so called demolition of any such temple during that period.

A. Some of the pieces like pranala (waterchute) has been found laid in the foundation of the disputed structure. Similarly other pieces have been also found below the disputed structure at various places and these things suggest that the earlier structure might have been pulled down earlier to the construction of the disputed structure though there is no specific time mentioned in the report.

This is true that in this portion of the ASI's report there is nothing which is indicative of the fact that there existed temple in or around 1528 A.D. or the same was demolished also around that period before the construction of the disputed structure. Instantly I am not aware of any other portion of ASI's report in which there could be any indication regarding the existence or demolition of any temple prior to the construction of the disputed structure. My statement in paras 10 and 11 of my affidavit is not solely based on what is mentioned in the ASI's report at page 272 as referred to above but on other portions of the said report too, such as chapter 4 which deals about the structure.

The word pillared mandapa like structure" mentioned in para

www.vadaprativada.com

10 of my affidavit has been derived from the discussions in the ASI's report under the heading 'the massive structure below the disputed structure' from page 54 to page 56 of ASI's report Vol-1. Although I have not read chapter 4 of ASI's report in detail but I have gone through the said chapter cursorily.

(v) Have you studied in detail about the said "50 exposed pillar bases" as mentioned in para 2 of the ASI's report at page 54 under the heading "the massive structure below the disputed structure".

8. I have studied that 50 pillar bases were exposed of various shapes and sizes. 12 of them fully exposed, 35 partially exposed and 3 found in the Section of excavation. Thus, I have studied about the pillar bases cursorily.

14. Have you based your findings and inferences given in paragrphs 10 and 11 of your affidavit only on such cursory study of the so called pillar bases as given on pages 54 to 56 of the ASI's report Vol-1.

17. Yes. My finding in para 10 and 11 of my affidavit is based on cursory study of the aforesaid portion of ASI's report.

The words used in para 10 of my affidavit, namely, "pillared mandapa-like structure" have been conceived by me from the facts mentioned in the ASI's report at page 55, last para, regarding existence of the pillar bases and their alignment. My this opinion is based only on the basis of 50 exposed pillar bases and not on the basis of 17 rows of 5 pillars as mentioned on page 55. Although I am not an engineer but I have seen pillar bases of about 1 square meter or 1.5 meter square roughly to support the pillars to bear the load of huge structure. This is true that the ASI has used the word massive structure for a structure of the dimension of 50 meters x 30 meters. The structure of this size can be called a huge structure also. I cannot say what height would have been of the structure which might have existed prior to the construction of disputed structure at the disputed site. On the basis of the information available in the ASI report I can say that it was 'Nagar' type of temple which is generally found in the northern India on the disputed site before the construction of the disputed structure.

The pillared Mandapa which might have existed at the site in dispute would have been an elaborate Mandapa, that is developed one, having a large number of pillars. There would have been 50 or more number of pillars in that Mandapa. In the temples of Pratihara periods, I have not found a Mandapa with such a large number of pillars as found at the disputed site. Mandapa is always associated with the Garbhagrah of a temple and such garbhagrah is the main part of the temple where the main deity is installed. The garbhagrah of the temple at the site in dispute would have been at the centre place of such temple.

The Mandapa of the temple was in east, north and south of the said Garbhagrah.

Pages 115-122

.....By now I have not formed any opinion about the estimated size of the garbhagrah of the temple which might have existed at the disputed site prior to 1528 A.D. Said again, "the said garbhagrah would have been 15 x 15 metres in area, although I am not sure about it." Whatever inferences I have drawn, are based on ASI report. Since the details of pillar bases are furnished in the ASI's report including drawings, I have been able to disclose about the size of the Mandapa but such details being lacking about garbhagrah I am not able to disclose the size of the said garbhagrah. In my estimation in figure 3A the existence of pillar bases no.PB-2, PB-7, PB-10, PB-15, PB- 22, PB-25, PB-28, PB-31, PB-37, PB-43 and PB-47 being in one

www.vadaprativada.com

line and alignment reflect the length of the Mandapa which might have existed at the site in dispute. The garbhagrah would have located towards west of the aforesaid alignment starting from pillar base 2 coming down at pillar base 47. There is a possibility of said garbhagrah extending to some extent towards the east of the said alignment. It is correct that the said garbhagrah would not have extended beyond pillar base no.26 in the east. I am not sure about the exact location of the garbhagrah viz-a-viz the Mandapa. Whatever I have disclosed above, is all based on my inferences. There would have been no possibility of the garbhagrah of the earlier temple having located beyond the western wall no.16. I have not come across about the existence of wall or pillar base of the garbhagrah in the ASI report. With reference to the Aamalak recovered from the site in question, I cannot disclose either the height or the size of the temple. Even with reference to the number of architectural fragments and sculptures referred in the ASI report, I am not in a position to form any idea and disclose about the size of the garbhagrah or the temple. I was able to assess the size of Mandapa with the help of the number of pillar bases and the remains of some pillars. It is wrong to say that the remains of the pillars which I have noticed from the report of the ASI form part of the structure constructed in the year 1528 i.e. the mosque. The existence of the remains of such pillars on the surface of the disputed site might indicate that the pillars were reused in construction of the mosque although they seem to have belonged to an earlier Hindu temple. The pillars visible in plates nos.82 and 83 of ASI report, Volume –II, are the same pillars which were recovered at the site in dispute. The pillars visible in plate no.31 was also a pillar found at the surface of the floor of the disputed structure from the site in question. I have not stated about the existence of ‘garbhagrah’ on the basis of the above referred pillars but I have inferred about the existence of Mandapa on the basis of these pillars. In para 10 of my affidavit, I have mentioned about the existence of remains of a massive structure underneath—which I mean a pillared Mandapa. By massive structure, I mean Mandapa and not a temple which has not been found. Mandapas are associated with a temple though garbhagrah has not been excavated. Mandapa cannot exist without a temple and it is a part of temple. Since Mandapa is a part of temple, by massive structure I mean a part of temple. I have inferred, as said in my affidavit that a part of temple existed in the shape of massive structure at the site in dispute. Massive structure, as referred in para 10 of my affidavit, comprised of pillar bases and wall nos.16 and 17. All the 50 exposed pillar bases formed part of this massive structure.

The description of massive structure below the disputed structure has been given in para 2 on page 54 by the A.S.I. in its report, Volume 1 and in para 10 of my affidavit, I have referred to the same massive structure. The said massive structure comprised of 50 meter long wall (wall 16) in the west and 50 exposed pillar bases to its east. It is correct that A.S.I. has nowhere stated in its report that wall 17 formed part of the massive structure. Since wall 16 rested on wall 17, I inferred that wall 17 too was the part of the massive structure. It is my feeling that wall 17 served as foundation of wall 16. I understand that wall 17 was about hundred years older to wall 16. So the two walls are not contemporary. The construction of wall 16 is datable to about twelfth century. I agree with the opinion of the A.S.I. mentioned in para 2 at page 41 of its report Volume 1 that massive wall no.16 might have been constructed in sub-period (A), which starts from the end of the 12th century A.D. It is possible that the entire massive structure which existed earlier was constructed towards the end of the twelfth century A.D.

Q. Whether it is possible that the sub-period (A) might have extended upto beginning of 13th Century A.D.?

A. The extent of sub-period (a) can go upto the beginning of 13th century. I would add further that the possibility maybe on both sides and this period can go upto 1150 A.D. also.

I do not exactly remember who was the ruler of Ayodhya

towards the end of 12th century but certainly he belonged to the Gahadhwal dynasty. Now I recall he may be Jai Chandra. Jai Chandra was defeated by Mohd. Ghouri sometime around 1191. I cannot certify that the rule of Gahadhwal dynasty came to an end with the defeat of Jai Chandra. Also, I do not remember that Jai Chandra was the last ruler of Gahadhwal dynasty. I do not know as to who was the ruler of Ayodhya region after Jai Chandra's fall. Govind Chandra was the ruler, who got the massive structure beneath the disputed structure, constructed. Although I cannot give exact period of the rule of Govind Chandra, yet I can endeavour to say that he ruled from 1115 A.D. or so to 1160 A.D. or so. There is likelihood of the Vishu Hari Temple being the same massive structure found beneath the disputed structure referred in the ASI's report.

Generally speaking all the pillar bases will be on the same floor. The 50 pillar bases found during excavation of the disputed site should also be on the same floor. I have not examined from this point of view whether all the 50 pillar bases are on the same floor or not? I am not able to recollect whether ASI in its report has any where given the floors of 50 pillar bases referred to in the report and found during excavation. I know there are some appendix in the reports. Since I have not gone through the said appendix filed by the ASI in its report, therefore, I cannot say that all the details are there regarding pillar bases in the said appendix. Voluntarily said that since I am an expert of temple architecture and Iconography, therefore, I studied report thoroughly only from that point of view and I have not studied the report in regard to other fields connected with the excavation and therefore, I cannot answer regarding excavation, stratigraphy and placement of the flooring etc.

Q: You have specifically mentioned and stated about pillar bases said to have been found during excavation, so kindly let us know whether pillar bases do not concern with the excavation?

A: Since pillar bases referred to in the ASI's report formed part of temple architecture and therefore, I had studied about them in

Q. When you had based your findings on the said pillar bases whether you were not supposed to examine the details about the same as given in the ASI report ?

A. I think, I am not supposed to examine in details of the whole process of excavation how these pillar bases were found.

I have not read the details given on pages from 56 to 67 in regard to pillar bases referred to in the report of the ASI Volume 1. This is true that pillar base no 13 on page 59 is shown to be resting on floor 4 but I have not examined its correctness, therefore, I cannot certify that said pillar base was actually resting on floor 4 or not. I have not examined pillar bases referred to in the ASI report from that point of view as on which floor they were resting.

Q. Is it correct to say that you have not carefully gone through the report regarding the details of pillar bases as given in Chapter 4?

A. I have earlier said that I have gone through the report cursorily but I have assured myself that there were 50 pillar bases in number.

I have not examined the details of pillar bases but only on narration of the ASI report, I found that there were 50 pillar bases.

Q. Will it be correct to say that your statement on page 51 that you had carefully gone through both the volumes of the ASI report appear to be contradicted by your statement given today.

A. It is not contradictory at all because I have gone through the report cursorily and not thoroughly in all respects. I have used the word carefully and cursorily in the same sense.

Q. Do you subscribe to the view that pillar bases resting on floor 2 cannot form part of the structure in which pillar bases are resting on floor 4 and both these kinds of pillar bases could not be said to have been constructed at one and the same period?

A. I am not in a position to answer this question as I am not an expert of excavation process and their analysis as given by the excavators.

I have not studied any book pertaining to the rule of Gahadwala dynasty. I know about Rama Shanker Tripathi who has written history of Kannauj. I have not heard about Roma Niyogi who has authored a book 'The history of Gahadwala dynasty'. I don't know that Thakur Prasad Verma who is an historian is one of the plaintiffs of this suit in which I am appearing as witness. However, I know Mr. S. P. Gupta, who is an archaeologist. I can read and write Hindi easily. I have not read the book 'Ayodhya ka Itihas Evam Puratatva' (Ext. No. OOS 5-3, shown to the witness) authored by Thakur Prasad Verma and Swaraj Prakash Gupta. I have not even heard about this book. I have heard about the book of Hans Bakker on Ayodhya (Paper No.120 C-1/2) but I have not read it. I have perused one article written by Prof. K.V. Ramesh in which there is a reference to Vishnu Hari temple of Ayodhya.

It is correct to say that Vishnu Hari temple was not got constructed by Govind Chandra himself. However, his name occurs in the inscription as overlord of the region. My earlier statement at page 119 where I have stated that the temple was got constructed by Govind Chandra is still correct because the credit of the construction goes to overlord as acknowledged in the inscription. I don't agree with Hans Bakker's given view at pages no.256 to 260 with (Book Paper No.120 C-1/2) of his Book regarding Vishnu Hari temple being located at the Ghat of ChakkraTirth at Ayodhya. I agree that the duration of Govind Chandra's rule has been rightly given between 1114 to 1154 in this book at paper no.289 C-1/198 (Exhibit OOS 5-3). I have not heard that Salaar Masood had ever made any strike or assault at Ayodhya. The earlier structure, of which wall no.17 formed part, was constructed about 100 years prior to the massive structure of the temple.

I do not remember that wall no.17 had any association with any other structure found by the A.S.I. at the disputed site. I have no idea about the nature of the structure which might have existed alongwith the wall no.17. Perhaps, a smaller temple existed prior to the construction of wall no. 16 which was associated with wall no.17. I do not know whether the temple associated with wall no. 17 was demolished or it collapsed on its own. I have no idea about the size of the said temple of wall 17. Also I have no idea about the deity which might have been installed in the temple of wall 17. I think four pillar bases were associated with the temple of wall 17. I cannot point out with exactitude the serial numbers with their location of the said four pillar bases, I simply read it somewhere in A.S.I. report. It is my own inference that the structure associated with wall 17 was a temple, although it is not so mentioned anywhere in the A.S.I.'s report. The said four pillars associated with the structure of wall 17 might form part of the Mandapa.

Q. When you are not aware of the location of those four alleged pillar bases said to be associated with wall 17, how could you say that they might have been part of some Mandapa?

A. Generally the pillars are made to support a Mandapa.

I have not seen any Mosque having pillars to support roof of the Mosque. With reference to figure 2, plate XX of the book titled as 'Indian Architecture' (Islamic Period) by Percy Brown (Paper No.120 C-1/69), I can say that the pillars visible in it are not the original pillars of the structure of Mosque, rather these pillars are of a temple and they have been reused to support the roof of the Mosque. This

www.vadaprativada.com

Mosque in figure 2 might have been constructed in 1205 A.D. This "Adhai Deen ka Jhopara Mosque" is still in existence. Said voluntarily that this Mosque was built hurriedly during the time of Qutubuddin Aibak. The estimated height of these pillars is about 30 feet. In this figure of Adhai Deen ka Jhopara the left most pillar is visible with its pillar base. Maybe that the length and width of the said pillar base would have been 2 feet x 2 feet. They are stone pillars. The pillar base is also made of the stone. Each pillar has three different pillars, that is one upon another. The lintels visible in the roof of the mosque shown in figure 2, supported by the pillar capital, do have carvings and decoration. I cannot give a nomenclature of the said lintels' carving because it is not very clear.

In plate No. XXIV, figure 2, of the same book very heavy and small pillars are visible to support the high arches below the roof of the Mosque.

Q. Whether the roof of the Adhina Mosque situated in Panduva, referred to above, is or is not resting on the pillars?

A. The roof of the Mosque is resting on high arches which in turn are resting on heavy and short pillars.

All the pillars of each row appear to be of one and the same dimensions of Adhina Mosque . The pillar base of the pillars on right side may be 3 feet x 3 feet in dimension and the pillar base of the left row would have been 2 feet x 2 feet.

All the pillars shown in figure 2 of plate XX on page 24/4 as also all the pillars of plate XXIV on page 24/8 are on same floor. In figure 2 of Plate VI on page 8/4 of this book, all the pillars are in straight line as also the roof, with carving _and decoration, are in the same line and on the same floor. On the basis of motif decoration in the pillars and the ceilings carved in lotus pattern show that these pillars and the ceilings were of Hindu temple which were re-utilised in the Mosque. I cannot say for re-use of the pillars and the ceiling they were brought from somewhere else or they were re-used after demolition of the temple at the same site. I am sure that there existed

a temple at the site over the base of which a Mosque was constructed which is known as “Adhai Din ka Jhopara”. The gate shown in figure 1 of plate VI on page 8/4 is an addition and it was constructed for the mosque. The carvings shown in the said figure 1 of plate VI on page 8/4 are not similar to those of the pillars and ceiling of figure 2 of the said pillars. Although it is not very clear to me but it appears that in figure 1 something is written in Arabic calligraphy over the arch as well as the rectangular decoration surrounding it. In figure 2 of plate VI on page 8/5, there are two panels having a stylised foliage decoration and below the same in two panels, there is Arabic calligraphy. The upper two panels showing stylised foliage decoration seem to be of temple design of about 1200 A.D. or of period slightly later. I cannot say definitely whether the said two panels bearing temple carving were got prepared soon before the construction of the said Qutub Mosque or they were reused after being brought from somewhere else. I cannot assign any particular dynastic nomenclature to the said foliage patterns. The design of Arabic calligraphy in the lower two panels in the figure belong to the period around 1200 A.D. I may have seen the Qutub Mosque but I cannot actually recollect the area in which the said panels are located in the said Mosque. In figure 2 of plate XXV on page 28/1 there are lintels having carvings and decorations over the double arches. On the top there is a monogram like decoration but the same has no resemblance with any temple design or carving. In this photograph, the other designs or carvings also do not have any resemblance with carvings in Hindu temples. Figure 1 of plate XXXIV and of plate XXXV on pages 40/2 and 40/3 show the building of the same mosque and their roofs are resting on pillars. The height of the pillars in both the figures could be around 20 feet. The pillars in both the photographs are on the same floor. The pillar bases of the pillars of the two figures could be of maximum sizes in 3 feet by 3 feet.

In Sultanate period, in the beginning, kings and rulers utilised the pillars from Hindu temples to be used in the Mosques. Later on, they may have started making their own pillars, of which I am not aware. In Mughal period they started making/building their own pillars. Generally the Mughal rulers have not used any temple or religious buildings pillars and if any pillars have been sparingly used by the Mughal ruler, I am not aware about the same. I think that the base and capital of the pillars visible in Plate XXXIV figure 1 and Plate XXXV figure 1 of the book (paper no. 120/C-1/69) are indicative of the fact that these pillars were of some Hindu temples and reused in this Mosque.

I know the locus and level from where some of the architectural and sculptural remains, as referred to in para 13 of my affidavit, were found during excavation. The 'Makar Pranala' has been found at the top of wall no. 16 which served as the foundation of the disputed structure. As far as I remember, pieces carved with Patra-Lata or Kalpa-valli Motif were also found in wall no. 16. Only one stone piece carved with Patra-Lata or Kalpa-valli Motif has been seen by me in photograph. Pillar bases encased by orthostats and bhadraka-type have been found at floor No.3. I do not remember the trench number of such pillar base wherein it was found. Lower part of an octagonal pillar carved with foliage pattern has also been found from floor no.3. Piece carved with alternating padma and ratna (lotus and diamond) motifs was found reused in wall no. 16. These articles belonged to the temple structure of 11th century constructed on the site in dispute. I cannot say as to who got the said temple constructed in 11th century. The said temple might have remained for about a century or so. I cannot say whether the said temple was demolished by anyone or it fell down on its own. My impression regarding the construction of temple in 11th century and its existence for about a century at the disputed site is based on the ASI report and not any other evidences. At the moment, I cannot answer by looking the report cursorily about the existence of temple on the disputed site in 11th century where finds place in the report. However, if I go through it carefully, I can answer this.

9. Whether you have examined about the locus and level, etc. of the architectural and sculptural remains mentioned in para 13 of your affidavit from the ASI report or not?

18. Whatever I have seen and understood by going through the ASI Report, I have stated in my affidavit and above statement.

As far as I remember, the wall which served as a foundation wall of the disputed structure was numbered as wall no. 16 by ASI in its report, however, I do not remember what number was given by the ASI to the wall above wall no.16. Wall No. 16 served as the foundation wall of the disputed structure which was demolished in 1992.

The wall no.16 on the top of which Makar Pranala was found, was constructed in the 12th Century. The Makar Pranala visible in plate no.23 of ASI's report Volume 2 is the same Pranala which was found in wall no.16. In plate 25, a part of the foundation of wall no.16 is visible. As far as I remember, the stone portion, three courses of stone slabs, are of wall no.17 which also serves as foundation of wall no.16. Upon those slabs, the brick part, which has 16 or 17 courses, is wall no.16. In plate no.25, Makar Pranala is not visible. The other portion of wall no.16 at the top of which Makar Pranala was found is not visible in this plate. The plate no.25 is of different trench. Since I visited the site of excavation only for few hours and found most of the trenches filled up with bags, I cannot tell the location of individual trench. On the day of my visit, I did not find the label of trenches affixed at the top of that. However, I tried to locate the trenches from the figures given in the ASI's report. The trench E-8 and D-7 are adjacent to each other. Makar Pranala was found in trench D-7 and this wall 16 as depicted in plate 25 was found in trench E-8. The wall no.16 as visible in plate 25, must have been found on the western side of trench E-8. The Makar Pranala was found on the eastern side of wall no.16. The stone slab bearing Patralata or Kalpavalli motif is visible in plate no.25 in the second course of the stone blocks from the bottom. I have stated about this very Patralata or Kalpavalli motif in para 1 of my statement at page no.144. In plate 26 also, the close up of this very Patralata is visible.

********

It is correct to say that such Patralata or kalpavalli motif is never used in the foundation of the temple. The Patralata or Kalpavalli motif visible in plates nos.25 and 26 both is not at its original place rather it was reused in this position of the plate.

There is no size prescribed for the stone of a Patralata motif to be used in door jamb, lintels or Adhisthan of a temple. The size of such a stone having motif will depend upon the availability of the size of stone and the space where to be used and also as per the requirement of the constructor.

**********

www.vadaprativada.com

My aforesaid statement is correct. The object belongs to 11th Century but it was reused in the foundation of 12th Century temple. This stone bearing motif could have been used in door jamb or in the lintel in 11th century temple. I think the stone bearing motif which is visible in plate no.51 is fixed in the same foundation wall in which patralata motif stone is visible in plate no.25. The three stone courses visible in plate no.25 are not visible in plate no.51. It is incorrect to say that the wall visible in plate no.51 being found in trench D-7 and the wall which can be sighted in plate no.25 and found in E-8 cannot be the same wall. I can add that the same wall goes across both the trenches.

The brickbat structure visible in plate no.51, on which the scale is lying, according to me, is part of the wall no.17 but I am not sure as I have not seen the site. I cannot differentiate between the structure of wall no.16 and 17 from my study of the ASI report. I have given my statement before this court in respect of wall no.16 and 17 and about the carved stones, on the basis of my study of the ASI report and general impression gathered out of the ASI report.Statement in para 10 of my affidavit is based on my studying the ASI report and the impression drawn from the facts recorded therein. I have gone through both the volumes of ASI report cursorily but I have gone thoroughly through the report in respect of architectural fragments and other temple remains and finds in regard to the temple recovered during excavation. I have gone through Chapter 6 thoroughly only in respect of Architectural fragments found in the excavation and not in respect of stratification part of the excavation. I have gone thoroughly through chapter 6 of ASI report Volume 1.

My statement recorded in page 51that I have gone through both the volumes of Reports carefully is to this extent contrary that I have gone through the report thoroughly only in respect of chapter 6 regarding architectural fragments and other temple materials and that the other part of the report gone through by me cursorily.

This is correct to say that I have not verified and examined authenticity of this part of the ASI report which is from page 54 to 56 on the basis of other portions of ASI Report but relying on this part of the report I have recorded my statement in para 10 of the affidavit. Voluntarily said that no doubt I had gone through the second Volume of the ASI report also which contains photographic plates of the excavated site and finds in regard to my statements. My statement in para 10 is based on the study of ASI report in chapter IV from page 48 to 72 and Chapter VI from page 121 to 173 and the plates in volume II of the ASI report. I do not know whether ASI has specifically stated in its report about existence of the extensive pillared mandap like structure as has been stated by me in last part of para 10 of my affidavit or not but the said impression has been drawn by me on study of chapters IV and VI of the ASI Report Volume I and the plates in Volume II. The temples of Northern India as referred to by me in last line of my statement in para 10 refers to the temples of Northern India from 9th to 12th century.

www.vadaprativada.com

Q. Whether your statement in para 10 of the affidavit is based on the comparison of the architectural remains found at Ayodhya with the architectural remains of any other temple of 9th or 10th century of Northern India.

A. Yes. I have compared with the Gargaja Mahadeo temple, Indor, District Guna in Madhya Pradesh and Teli ka Mandir in Gwalior Fort of 9th century A. D.

**********

Only circular shrine found during excavation was compared by me with the temples of 9th century referred to above. I have read about the circular shrine in the ASI report but I cannot say whether there is any reference of the same in chapter VI of the report. The comparison of circular shrine was comparison of only structure and not of architectural fragments or of Architectural remains.

Having been shown figure 10 (page 60-A) of the ASI report volume-I. The witness stated that as I have not consulted this Figure no. 10 (page 60-A) I am unable to state any thing about it. Having been shown figures 8, 9, 11, 12 ,13 ,14 ,15, 16 (page nos. 58A, 59A, 62A, 66A, 66B, 68A, 68B, 69A) the witness stated that since I have not consulted these Figures therefore I am unable to state any thing about them.

Q: Are you aware of the fact that there are several discrepancies about the details of the so called pillar bases given on pages 56 to 67 of the ASI report as well as in the details given/shown in figures 8 to 14 and 16 referred to above ?

A: I don't know about the discrepancies as I have not consulted the above Figures.

The labels of floor 2, 3 and 4 are visible to me in plate no. 19. Other labels of floors or layers are not legible in this plate.

In plate no. 20 the labels of floor, structures and pit are legible. I don't remember whether, I have seen any figure or drawing in ASI's report regarding Ram Chabootra.

Q: Have you studied and examined figures 4(page 51B), 5(page52A), 6(page52B) and 7(page53A) of the ASI's report volume-I ?

A: I have not studied and examined the above figures.

Q: Do you remember as to whether you have studied and examined the details given in figures 19, 20 and 22 given on pages 39A, 39B and 38A of the ASI report ?

A: Having seen figures 19, 20 and 22 ( pages 39A, 39B and 38A ) the witness stated that I have not studied and examined these figures.

Q: Are you aware of the locus, levels and layers from where the objects/items mentioned in para 14 of your affidavit were allegedly recovered ?

A: Yes, I am aware of the locus and level of most of the objects given in para 14 of my affidavit but I am not aware of the actual locus of the objects found in the debris.

Q: Which of these objects referred in para 14 of your affidavit were found in the debris ?

A: I think they are the pieces of broken Amalaka, Stone slab, carved with Srivatsa Mark and Brick carved with Ardhratna design and rope design as given in para 14 of my affidavit. But the association of most of these objects is related to the structures prior to the disputed structure as they were found from the debris of disputed structure.

Q: Whether this debris of the disputed structure was found above the surface/floor of Babri Mosque demolished on 06-12-1992 ?

A: Yes, these above objects were found from the debris of the disputed structure, which had fallen down on 06-12-1992.

On paper no. 335C1/20, (page 300) in plate no. 153, reference of a niche is given. This niche is situated on the left side of the door-way of the temple. On paper no. 334C1/22, (page 216) in plate no. 32, a niche has been depicted in a Shiva temple at Dang, (Bhind) Madhya Pradesh. This temple belongs to about 800 A. D. This niche is at the height of about 1.5m above the ground. On two sides of this niche are pilasters. The height of this niche is about 1m. 'Kapili' niche is a niche which is located in the Kapili part of the temple. 'Kapili' is Sanskrit word used in architectural terms. On paper no. 334C1/16, (page 178) I have given the meaning of 'Kapili' as wall portion of the 'Antaral' on both the sides of a temple which is correct. On paper no. 334C1/23, (page 217) in plate no. 33, Karna-nicheh as been shown which mean the niche located on the 'Karna-portion' of a temple. Karna-portion of the temple is a corner portion. The height of this niche from the ground floor is about 1.5m. On paper no. 334C1/24, (page no. 220) in plate no. 37, Bhadra-niche has been shown, which mean the niche located on the Bhadra-portion of a temple. Bhadra-portion is the central portion of a temple. On page 334C1/ 15 (page no.177) the meaning of Bhadra is given as Central projection of a wall, which is correct. In paper no. 334C1/24, (page no. 220) the tentative height of the niche from ground floor is about 1m. In paper no. 334C1/25, (page no.232 ) in plate no. 54, the Karna-niche of a different temple is visible. It is about 1.5m from the ground floor. On paper no. 334C1/28 (page no. 236) in plate no. 60, there are several niches of smaller size in the lower part, whereas there is a big niche in the upper part. The niche in the upper part would be about 3.5meters from ground level. In paper no. 334C1/38 (page no. 268) in plate 110, Adhishthan-niche is visible. It may be at the height of about 50cm from the ground level. On paper no. 334C1/39 (page no. 269) in plate no. 112, is a Bhadra-niche at a height of about 2m from the ground level. In all the aforesaid above paper nos. 334C1/22, 23, 24, 25, 28, 29, 30, 38 and 39 all the niches have idols installed therein except the upper niche of paper no. 334C1/28, plate no. 60.

Q: Is there any difference between 'Mandapa' and 'Mukha-Mandapa' ?

A: Where there are two Mandapas in a temple the front one is called Mukha-Mandapa which gives entry of Mandapa.

Q: Whether 'Mukh-Mandapa' and 'Mandapa' are generally based on four pillars each ?

A: It depends on the size of 'Mandapa'.

Q: What may be the biggest size of Mandapa and what may be the smallest size of Mandapa ?

A: I am not able to answer this question as I have no measurement of the Mandapas available with me.

Q: In para 11 of your affidavit you have used the terms 'Mandapa' and 'Big Mandapa'. Did you have no idea about their estimated size while using these terms in your affidavit?

A: The earlier question was about the size of the biggest Mandapa and the smallest Mandapa for which I have no statistics with me. But in connection with my affidavit, para 11, I have to state that a Mandapa having indication of 50 pillars and extending in an area of about 50 to 60meters by 30meters can be said to be a big Mandapa.

Q: You have replied in respect of Big Mandapa kindly reply in respect of that Mandapa also which is not called big Mandapa or which may call a small Mandapa ?

A: The small Mandapa may be resting on four pillars only.

Q: What will be the tentative size / dimension of an entire

www.vadaprativada.com

temple, the Mandaps of which comprises of 50 pillars or more, in an area of about 50-60meter ?

A: I am not able to guess.

Q: You have already stated that apart from Mandapa the temple has Garbhgriha and other parts also. Kindly, therefore, let us know the estimated size of the Garbhgriha of a temple, the Mandapa of which comprises of about 50 pillars?

A: The situation of a Garbhgriha in relation to the pillared Mandapa at the disputed site has already been discussed in my earlier statements in detail and it is stated again that the situation of the Garbhgriha was below the central part of the disputed structure which has not been excavated. Furthur the size of a Garbhgriha depends on the type of temple because in Shilpa texts various types of temples have been discussed.

The three photographs, as referred in para 17 of the affidavit and contained on pages 7/9, 7/12 and 7/13 of Annexures 3 and 4 of the affidavit, are the photographs of Uma Maheshwar but the photographs are of different sculptures and not of one and therefore, they may have some slight variation in them. Uma Maheswar means Parvati and Shiva. In such sculptures of Uma Maheswar, the special feature is that they are seated in Alingan Mudra and their respective vehicles, namely, the lion and bull respectively are shown below their seat. In sculptures of Uma Maheswar, the special feature, so far as the face is concerned, in the image of Shiva, Jatabhar is shown over his head while the head of Uma is shown with a coiffure. In such types of sculptures, one hand of Shiva is around the bosam of Uma and the other hands may have either weapon such as trishul or trident and touching the chin of Uma. In the Uma Maheswhar sculptures, the legs of Uma and Maheswar both may be dangling down and resting on their mounts. So far as waist part is concerned, Shiva may be wearing Yagnopavita and girdle and Uma also may wear girdle. In para 17, 'which' refers to the three photographs in Annexures 3 and 4 referred to above.

Q. What similarities are there in the photographs as shown in plate 235 of ASI Report, Volume II and on pages 7/9, 7/12 and 7/13 of your affidavit?

A. The photograph shown in plate no.235 of Volume II of ASI Report captioned as 'divine couple' is badly damaged. Its upper part is not preserved, but the waist portion of both the figures seems to be in 'Alingan Mudra'. The Yagnopavita and girdle portion of the figure has Yagnopavita and the remnant of girdle, which is generally called as Mekhla in the left figure. The leg of female figure on the right side is dangling below and seems to be resting on the mount. The remains of tail of mount, lion, is also visible on the right side which indicate it to be the mount of Uma. Rest of the features as given in the photograph are not visible in the sculpture as it is badly damaged.

I, Jayanti Prasad Srivastav, aged about 74 yrs, s/o Late Yadunath Singh, r/o B-117 F3 Bharat Apartment Shalimar Garden Ex-2 Sahibabad, District Ghaziabad, do hereby solemnly affirm and state on oath as under:-

www.vadaprativada.com

1. That the deponent has retired as Superintending Archaeologist, Archaeological Survey of India, Government of India, excavation Branch II, Purana Quila New Delhi on 31.7.1991.

6. That the deponent also explored mounds and brick temples of Gharwal Period in village Nasirabad, Tehsil Misrikh, District Sitapur U.P.

22.A. That the excavation at disputed site was carried out by the Archaeological Survey of India from 12th March 2003 to 7th August 2003.

23 A. That the deponent spent five months i.e. March 2003 to August 2003 at the excavation site at Ayodhya and observed the entire excavation.

www.vadaprativada.com

25. That during excavation, the Archaeological Survey of India adopted the latest techniques of layout of trenches where limited space was available.

26. That the excavation work was planned in phased manner in particular areas as per significant signals pointed out by the Ground Penetrating Radar Survey.

27. That the Archaeological documentation including drawing and photography of the structural remains, pottery and antiquities were done in very organized manner as per the norms of Archaeology.

28. That in order to maintain transparency all the excavated materials including antiquities, object of interest, glazed pottery tiles and bones which were recovered from the trenches, were sealed in the presence of Advocates, Parties or their nominees and dept on the same day of their recovery in the Strong Room provided by the authorized persons.

29. That a large number of pillar bases had been found during excavations which indicates the existence of an extensive pillered mandap like structure.

30. That the evidence of pillar bases, circular or squarish are available in 50 places in different trenches from North to South and East to West in particular portion of the area, forming a sort of big rectangle, it is undoubtedly a very great evidence of Archaeological activity thus it can not be brushed aside lightly and casually. An evidence coming from the womb of the earth has got its own worth and relevance in Archaeological digging. The pillar bases found were neither created nor manufactured by the A.S.I. Creation or manufacture of walls, pillars and pillar bases is impossible. The pillar bases were found in presence of parties, their counsel, their nominees and observers appointed by this Hon'ble Court and never any oral objection was raised by any of them in respect of creation of pillar bases.

31. That a big stone 'Pranal' of crocodile shape with carving was found in the South West corner beyond the disputed structure during digging along with other carved stone Panels in the upper layers which definitely belong to some temple structure. A stone sculpture noted as divine couple in the antiquity seems to be the representation of Lord Shiva and Goddes Parvati.

32. That the presence of bones in the debris of the demolished temple can not be a reason for absence of the temple.

33. That Archaeological evidence of a massive structure just below the disputed structure is in itself an evidence of the continuity in structural phases from the 10th century onwards up to the construction of the disputed structure along with the yield of stone and decorated bricks as well as mutilated sculpture of divine couple and carved architectural members, including foliage paterns, amalaka, kapothpali, door jams with semi circular pilaster, broken octagonal shaft of black schist pillar, lotus motif, circular shrine, having a pranal in the North, fifty pillar basis in association of huge structure are indicative of the remains of a temple.

34. That there was a Temple Structure beneath the disputed Structure.

In no part of India human activities can be found older than that i.e. two lacs years. I cannot say exactly about the other parts of the world, in Europe and Africa there are some places where human activity goes around two lacs years.

My contribution in the excavation at Adamgarh was to the extent of digging of 14 trenches and preparation of day to day field note book. This is known as site note books also. The site note book and the field note book are one and the same. Day to day register is different. I had prepared the field note book of the concerned trenches excavated by me and not day to day register. Day to day register was prepared but it was not done by me. It was prepared by my other colleagues on the basis of all the field note books prepared by the Trench Supervisor present on the site. The field note book is prepared simultaneously at the time of excavation. If there are more than one trenches being excavated at the same time, the separate field note books in respect of the work are prepared after the day's work is over. The day to day register is prepared on the basis of the findings recorded in the note books.

The temple of Gahardwal period in Village Nasirabad was existing at that time. It is still existing. This was an archaeological work in the sense of exploration on the ground survey. The exploration which was done by me was brought to the notice of the Director, Archaeology and Museum, Lucknow. Thereafter, the Director of the State Archaeology got it protected. Archaeology includes the living structures to be brought to the notice of the Government and the scholars working on them. The temples in Nasirabad, Tehsil Mishrik, District Sitapur were made of carved bricks in North Indian Shikhar style of temples. In North India the Shikhar style temples are the only patterns of temples.

In Ayodhya during that period, I did not visit any important religious place of Muslims. Ayodhya is an important place of Hindus, Muslims, Jains. I have heard that Ayodhya is called Khurd Makka also. Khurd Makka means mini Makka. Important Jain Mandir is also in Ayodhya. I have read that Ayodhya is an important place for Buddhist also. Conclusion in an excavation report is arrived from the finds, as reported in various chapters contributed by the team members. Before arriving at the conclusion, all the members of the team sit together and discuss about various items included in the report and then a conclusion is drawn. This is normal practice in almost all excavations adopted in the matter of all excavations.

Stratification means determination of layers and it is done by studying finds found in different layers. In case any find has been wrongly identified then period determined on the basis of the said find will be wrong. For identification of the find one has to be expert in history and culture and the different types of finds. It is possible that a particular type of pottery was prevalent in different periods of four centuries.

Layers are determined on the basis of colour of the soil, composition of the soil and contents of the soil. When an excavation is started on the above mentioned basis, layers are marked. Afterwards, if the finds are considered to be of the same nature, they are decided to be of the same period and those layers are bracketed and if there is a change, the period also changes afterwards but if the layers are not marked, it is very difficult to separate items afterwards.

Every activity including the above i.e. filtering of soil and mixing of the water is recorded in field note-book by the trench supervisor. I did not notice mixing of the soil with water during excavation at Ayodhya but I had seen the soil being sieved in pottery yard.

Stupas do not have any particular size. They may be small, medium and big in size. The Stupas are circular and solid structures in hemispheric form in elevation. Sanchi Stupa according to me is the biggest I have seen. I do not exactly remember size of said Stupa. It may be roughly 100 Ft. in diameter on the base and 25 to 30 feets in height. The smallest Stupa, according to me, could be of 10 feet diameter. Pauni Stupas are also big Stupas. I do not remember at present whether I had found any relic in a Stupa at Pauni.

My statement in Paragraph 30 of my affidavit regarding existence of pillar bases is based on ASI report. It is based also on my personal noticing. All the 50 pillar bases were on floor three. The purpose of pillar bases was to have a mandapa like structure based on pillars over the said pillar bases. Pillars were also found during excavation over which roof of the mandapa could be placed surmounted by bracket and beam to make a roof during excavation in the central part at Ayodhya while removing debris during my presence, I have seen a pillar.

I am not very much conversant with Epigarphy and Palaeography. Epigarphy and Palaeography are same thing. In Palaeography on the basis of the forms of letters, its period is determined. Palaeography means writings on stone and Epigraphy means study of inscriptions. Caligraphy is in the same category dealing with writings from right to left pertaining to Arabic and Parsian languages in different styles. Age of a document can be determined broadly on the basis of Palaeography.

I have heard about chart of Concordance in relation to Stratigraphy to co-relate the finds with one each other in different trenches. According to me the object of chart of concordance is only to co-relate the findings in different trenches of the site. In the excavation conducted by me charts of concordance were prepared. It has got very much relevance on the finds of different layers.

It is not possible to decipher as to who has contributed this chapter. Since the name of persons contributing in different chapters are given in list of contents and here no name is mentioned against chapter X it could be the contribution of the Director of excavation of the site themselves. The Directors of this excavation were Sri Hari Manjhi and Sri B. R. Mani.

According to me chapter 10 could be authored by them jointly being the Co-Directors. It is my feeling. How could I know as to who authored this chapter when it is not mentioned in the report itself. After all this was within the purview of the directors and I was not supposed to know about it unless the report come out.

Colour, contents and composition of the soil are three distinctive features of a layer. By colour, I mean the colour of the soil of the layer. By content, I mean whatever is there in the soil of the layer and composition of the soil comes next to colour to mark a layer. For instance if the soil is loose it will be different from the compact soil and contents will come on the next stage. Loose, solid and compact are the three main components of a layer. For instance, generally, layer 1 may consists of humus if and is not very deep then the other layer 2 starts on the basis of loose or compact nature of the soil and so on so-forth, up to the natural soil at the bottom of a trench.

In my opinion it should have been mentioned as to who authored chapter X of the ASI's report volume-I but if other names of contributors have been given and in this particular chapter names are not given then naturally it goes to the concerned Directors whose name are given in the beginning of the report, they are the leaders of the excavation team.

On the basis of pillar bases I have mentioned about the existence of an extensive pillared Mandapa like structure in para 29 of my affidavit. On the basis of large number of pillar bases I have inferred about an extensive pillared Mandapa. All number of pillar bases in their existence north-south and east-west covering a vast area measuring about 160 feet X 90 feet or so. As per plan coming out from the excavation it was a rectangular structure. Its length was from north-south 160 feet and its width was approximately 90 feet in east-west direction. In my estimation this pillared structure could have been a very big hall consisting of about 84 or 88 pillars, traditionally known in Ayodhya. By 'Traditionally known' I mean to say that as known in the local tradition about this temple having 84 or odd pillars. Out of which 50 have been exposed on plan during this excavation. Regarding height of the pillared hall, I have not heard any thing but the height of temple is traditionally known of 5 storied building. I have heard in Ayodhya people saying so. I have heard in Ayodhya about both the above things i.e. existence of pillared hall and 5 storeyed temple. Main temple is said to be of i.e. 5 storeys. It was beyond the pillared hall. This 5 storeyed temple would have been facing towards the east direction. This temple might have been in the western side of the pillared hall. The size of this 5 storeyed temple would have been enormous. By seeing the size of the height of these pillars I infer that the temple would have been of about 45 feet in height approximately in the 'Punch-tala-Prasada form' of the temple architecture in the north Indian Shikhar style. My opinion about the temple being of 5 storeys is based on the local sayings, where as north Indian Shikhar style of this temple is based on the available

temples of that period at different places. I did not hear any thing from the people of Ayodhya about the height of the aforesaid temple except their saying that this temple was of 5 story and was of very good height. I have not heard any thing about the 5 storied height behind the pillared structure as stated above. In my estimation the size of the 5 storied temple would have been of 10feet X 10feet surrounded by a wall of 5feet width with an entrance in the east. This assessment is based on the distance between the different pillar bases to be approximately of 10feet. I heard about above facts during my stay at Ayodhya when excavation at disputed site was going on. I did not think as an archaeologist that this pillared hall could be any thing else except the big hall of the temple. Sayings can also be relied upon as one of the other two factors by an archaeologist records, remains and traditions (local sayings). Said voluntarily that there is an old saying of a famous writer Goetse, historian duty is to separate truth from the false certain from uncertain and to deduce doubtful from that which can not be believed. Thus while studying history, traditions may also be utilised as a source of information to a particular position in any part of the area where work is to be done. Traditions should be comparatively studied and on getting their conformation on the basis of some tangible evidence if any, they can be believed as a source other wise they can be rejected. Tradition need not have any time limit. Even a quite recent tradition can be relied upon if comparatively it is found to be correct. Traditions may be compared on the basis of available facts of a particular period at a particular place.

Q: As regards the tradition which you heard at Ayodhya in the year 2003 that at the disputed site there existed a 5 storied grand temple. You will compare this aspect by which thing and in what manner. Kindly indicate ?

A: There are published references of big temples having 3 to 5 to 7 storeys as the case may be called ‘Dwi-tal-prasada’, ‘Tri-tal-

www.vadaprativada.com

prasada', 'Punch-tal-prasads' and Sapta-tal-prasada' etc.

By such sayings and finding their reference in various books I inferred that there could be a 5 storied grand temple at the disputed site.

Local saying that there existed a grand temple at the disputed site was verified by me on the basis of tangible evidence i.e. the pillar bases exposed during the excavation from north to south and east to west at regular distance in alignment and in a symmetrical order. I do not consider the exposed pillar bases as the "so called exposed pillar bases" they are real pillar bases in-situ, which have been brought out on plan during the excavation. This is an evidence to conjure up a picture of the temple which could have existed there having a multicolumned big hall and entrance chamber as seen in the published works of temple architecture of that period at different places.

Q: Whether you compared the tradition/local saying about the existence of a grand temple at the disputed site by any other tangible evidence apart from the so called pillar bases ?

A: Such instances are available in the Indian history. Wherein temple Mandapa has been used after demolition for the construction of the mosques at Delhi, Ajmer and Dhar etc. I think I have replied the above question.

By the word conjure, I mean conjectural picture which could be based on the available evidence and it is very much in the practice in archaeological diggings. I have derived my inference regarding existence of temple at disputed site on the basis of the temples of $11^{th}$ – $12^{th}$ century A. D. Meaning thereby a temple was built in disputed site in $11^{th}$ – $12^{th}$ century which was demolished and a mosque was erected over it for which epigraphical and literary evidence is also available as already explained above. During excavation, different floors have been noticed at disputed site. The temple mentioned by me above existed at floor 3. This temple was built by a Gahadwal ruler of Kannauj some where around 1130 A. D.

The inscription of Mir Baqi installed in the disputed structure as epigraphical evidence and reference of Goswami Tulsi Das's book as literary evidence since the record, remains and traditions were there to prove the fact. Besides the above two evidences about the demolition of temple by Mir Baqi, I have not gone through any other evidence.

I may be incorrect in saying that there is mention of demolition of temple by Mir Baqi in the above inscription. It is wrong to suggest that there is no mention of the demolition of temple and construction of mosque over it in the literature of Goswami Tulsi Das.

In para 29 of the affidavit I have stated on the basis of large number of pillar bases that there could be an extensive pillared Mandapa like structure.

Q: Is it correct to say that now you have made an improvement and you state these alleged pillar bases to be a temple base ?

A: "I have always mentioned that the pillared halls were found in front of the Shrine" so there is no question of improvement in my statement. Volunteered and stated that I have already explained the position of the Vishnu temple at the site giving its probable dimensions to the west of the pillared hall.

As per my assessment there could be one very big pillared hall from north to south which could be divided into three parts.

Besides this big pillared hall there was no other hall but that big pillared hall could be divided into three parts viz. the central hall and the side two halls, Parahva mandapas in the north and south.

In figure 3-A ( page 48-A) of the ASI report volume-I all the 50 pillar bases are visible. In the northern portion there are 24 pillar bases which have been numbered as pillar base no. 1 to 24 in figure 3-A these were in the northern hall. Three pillar bases numbered as 25, 26 and 27 have been shown as exposed in the above figure might have been in the central hall. In the southern portion from pillar base no. 28 to 50 a shown in figure no. 3-A might have been these two pillar bases which have been stated to be in antarala could be in trench D-4. Other two pillar bases stated at entrance gate of 'Mukh-Mandapa' could be in trench no. H-4 somewhere.

A: The pillar bases, makar-pranala and figure of Shiva and Parvati riding on the mount of Nandi (bull), the evidence of Pushkarni (small pond) are some of these things which are indicative of a Shrine like edifice in that area.....

A: This Makar-pranala was itself an indication of some Shiva temple at the site.

A: I have explained the position that such pranalas are associated with the Shiviate shrines and that some such shrine must have been existed there near about, which is know demolished furthur in the earlier phase in that very area a circular small Sheviate shrine was excavated. Thus my position stands vindicated that in this part of whole complex some Shivaite shrines must have been there which is now demolished.

Q: What is your assessment whether by word 'near-by' you mean that some Shivite shrine was in the vicinity of the Makar-pranala where it has been noticed during the excavation or it was indicated by you associated with an alleged earlier circular shrine?

A: Since it was a part of demolished complex the evidence in hand is an indicative of some Shivite shrine which must have existed there near the place where Makar-pranala is found as some sort of subsidiary shrine of the Vishnu temple complex. I don't feel that this Makar-pranala was associated with the circular shrine found during course of excavation at the lower level.

The term 'Pushkarni' used in my above statement denotes a small pond. Pond is associated with the Shivate temple in the vicinity somewhere near about. These small ponds are not necessarily part of the Shiva shrine but are found near Shiva temple as one of the so many associated portions.

www.vadaprativada.com

Q: Could a ‘Pushkarni’ be conceived without a Shiva temple ?

A: Yes, there could also be a ‘Pushkarni’ or water reservoir even without that.

There should be a small water reservoir or Kund to collect water near a Shiva temple which comes out of the outlet. Meaning thereby this water reserved oil is used for storing water coming out from Shiva shrine after being offered by the devotees by Jal-Abhishek. The water to be offered is to be taken from the Puskarni or the well situated near about and the offered water falls in some small ‘Kund’. The water which comes from outlet after being offered by the devotees is stored in a small ‘Kund’ (storage enclosure).

Q: You mean to say that there are required two reservoir wires near by Shiva temple, one to take water to be offered at the Lingum and the other for storage of the same offered water ?

A: Yes, they are quite separate items.

For the reason this is a temple complex and temple architectural members have been found in this excavation so this could be a pillared hall in front of religious shrines only.

Q: Is it correct to say that religious shrine includes the place of worship of all religious sects ?

A: Religious sect could be Vaishnav, Shaiva or Shakt in front of which this pillared grand hall had been there. Here religious shrines mean temples of the above mentioned sects and not of Budhist or Jain or any other sects.

I know the 'Mosque', and 'Jama-Masjid' and 'Eidgah'. I do not know about 'Qanati-Masjid' but it could be a temporary Mosque prepared out of 'Qanat' which means a long cloth folding curtain with small Bamboo poles stitched therein at some regular intervals

for the camp purposes where tents are pitched and tent Colonies are erected temporary. I have heard about a Mosque having no roof but I have not come across the same. I have seen 'Eidgah' from a distance. Usually there is no roof in the 'Eidgah' building. 'Eidgah' are generally built out-side the inhabited area having a long north-south wall in the west. In 'Eidgah' only two prayers (Namaz) are held in a year namely 'Edul-fitr' and 'Edul-Zuha'. Due to large space required for such a Mass prayer 'Eidgah' is away from the thickly populated area of the village or town. If the population of an area increases in such a situation 'Eidgah' is shifted to an isolated area, which is not thickly populated. I don't know about any existing 'Eidgah' in Ayodhya. I don't remember whether I have seen 'Saket Degree-College' during my stay at Ayodhay (Faizabad). As such I am unable to state whether there is any 'Eidgah' near 'Saket Degree-College'. I don't recollect whether in any digging prior to this excavation at Ayodhya, 'Gold' was found or not however it is said that 'Gold' comes out of the dust of river bed in Ayodhya. I have heard that the site in dispute has been throne to floods from west and south and that Ayodhya had undergone some great flood in the past. Commonly it could be called as 'Khanda-pralaya' and not 'Maha-pralaya' because they are two different terms having definite meanings in the Ancient Indian tradition. I have used word 'Great-flood' for 'Maha-pralaya', for 'Khand-pralaya' it could be 'small flood'. It is said that Ayodhya came under a huge flood when the whole of the city was drowned under its waters but it could not be the part of 'Maha-pralya' or 'Khand-pralaya'. In huge flood the whole city came under water and must not have been totally vanished but must have been mostly destroyed.

Thus the total number of temples were three. All the aforesaid three temples were raised at the same period. These temples were existing over floor three. These three temples existed till their destruction i.e. up to 1528 A. D. These three temple were built in the early part of the 12th century A. D. i.e. somewhere near about 1130 A. D. during the time of 'Govind Dev' a 'Gahadwal' ruler of a Kanauj.

I feel when the main temple of 'Sri Ram Lala' was existing in the centre, there had been two other sub-shrines of 'Lord Shiva' in the south and 'Durga devi' in the north. Although there is no mention of above mentioned two subsidiary shrines in the ASI report but on the basis of finds I have drawn my own conclusions in this regard about these two shrines also. Regarding the shrine of 'Shiva', the stone decorated crocodile mouthed pranala (chute) was found during the excavation and the sculpture of 'Shiva-Parvati' was also found although it was in a very damaged position. Regarding 'Devi' temple the terracotta figurine of mother Goddess was found.

Similarly of what material these floors were made of is not mentioned. From this entry it is apparent that floor 1 and 2 were within the depth of 140 c. m. from the surface. The expectation is that floor no. 1must have been at upper level whereas floor 2, at the lower level and the maximum depth of floor 2, must be 140 c. m. and not beyond that.

During excavation I had seen three pillars out of which two pillar were in fore court where as the third one was brought out from the debris of the central part. These pillars could be from among the pillars used at the site as some of them had been used in the disputed structure. The height of the pillar found from the central portion in debris was 165 cm. It was square in the base. The base of this pillar could be about 30 to 35 cm. The pillars of same shape and size or even of more height could be there in the disputed structure itself as also reported and mentioned by R. Nath in his book, more over the district gazetteer of Faizabad mention a pillar being of 7 feet height along with a photograph although the place of its existence is not mentioned therein. I do feel that these pillars could have been used in the pillared hall which I have indicated in my earlier statement to be raised at floor 3. These pillars could be used as load bearing pillars also.

Q: Whether a pillared hall alleged to have been raised in 1130 A. D. is their any certainty that it must have existed for 400 years unless demolished ?

A: During the course of 400 years it could also fall down due to natural reasons and some additions and alteration could also be there covering that period about more than 16 generations.

Q: You have already stated that the area of disputed site has been flood prone and the area also being situated by the side of the river. Whether the pillared hall indicated by you could also be collapsed in course of time by the water of Siryu river flooded over the area ?

( Sri Ved Prkash Advocate, raised the objection that the question is presumptive and such a case has neither been pleaded nor any word has been put in the objections filed against the ASI's report, as such the question should not be permitted to be asked)

( Km. Ranjana Agnihotri Advocate, raised the objection to the above question that the in addition to the above objection I have to add that question is full of imagination and fantasy and totally is irrelevant such question should not be permitted to be asked )

A: Yes, this could be so before the construction of that massive wall which was there for the protection of the flood against this complex from the western side due to river but after that the possibility of the flood in the pillared hall area got reduced. This massive wall has been numbered as wall 16, by the A.S.I.

This note is not with me here in Lucknow. At page 55 of A.S.I. report volume-I, it is mentioned that 17 rows of pillar bases were constructed along the north-south running wall ( wall 16). They were quite in line with wall 16, which was in the west. The distance of the pillar base in each row from the said wall ranges from 3.60 to 3.86 meter. 17 rows of pillar bases have been mentioned as they have emerged from the excavation on plan. This on local tradition fact has not been mentioned here in page 55, by the A.S.I. people on the basis of information gathered from local citizens of Ayodhya. 'By plan I mean plan of the excavated trenches'. This plan is attached with the A.S.I. report as figure 3A ( page 48-A). I have referred here in above about this very plan. In my opinion grand pillared hall existed over these pillars. The roof of this hall must have been grand but also in consonance with the architecture of the central shrine in the north Indian 'Shikhar style' against the 'Mehrab style'. This could be having a north Indian pattern, Shikhar like, single storied hall, having pillars, brackets and beams. The Shikhar surmounted by 'finials'(kalghi) and four openings in the Shikhar. 'Finials' or 'kalgihi' is used at the top of the shrines. 'Finials' are used at the top of Mosques also.

'Pillar bases' is the structure on which the pillars were standing. It is true that walls stand on their foundation. It is not true that pillars also stand on their foundation but they stand on pillar bases. Pillars have got no foundation they stand on pillar bases which had foundation of 3, 4 or 5 courses as the case may be, over which the pillars stood. Pillar stood with the half of 'mortise holes',

www.vadaprativada.com

‘tenons’, ‘clamps’ and ‘grooves’, dowels etc. At the bottom there should be masonry pillar base. There should be a floor. Within the floor the foundation of the different pillar bases would be there, over which the pillars are made to stand. For pillar purposes foundation and pillar bases is the same thing. There is no distinction in saying ‘ foundation of a pillar’ or ‘pillar base’ both are the same. Pillar bases are of masonry work sometimes with calcrete stones also over them. Calcrete stones mean pieces of stones fitted in the centre of the pillar bases to give strength to the base, over which the stone pillars are made to stand. Same system will be applicable to masonry pillars, also as against stone pillars as mentioned herein above. Sometimes ‘wooden’ or ‘iron’ pillars are used, they also require base in the same manner for the support as stated above. In some cases stone blocks could be required for pillar bases but they should be in proportion to the masonry pillar base. There could be plaster over the pillar bases. As regards essentials of a pillar base nothing more is required for the same. I am conversant with the term ‘ orthostate’, it is one of the component. It is one of the special component of the pillar base. An ‘orthostate’ should always be there in a pillar base for giving strength to the pillar. A pillar base could be with out an ‘orthostate’ also with the help of plaster. A pillar base for a stone pillar could be of ‘mud-mortar’ also. I have come across the ‘mortise hole’. Said voluntarily they are collected and store in a tin-shade near disputed site. During excavation they were collected by the A.S.I. people and stored in two ‘tin-shades’ which lie out-side the excavated area in the south and west part of the mound. I don’t recollect the size of ‘mortise-holes’. I can not tell by memory their exact number, but the specimens of mortise-holes are there.

On being permitted by the commissioner, the witness perused the report and thereafter stated that there are about 80 mortise-holes, grooves in the collection of architectural members stored in the tin-shade at the excavated site as given from 131 to 152. These holes are reported at serial no. 1, 3,7 at page 131, at serial no. 9, 13, 15, 17, 18,

Q: Whether the architectural members mentioned by you as above ranging from pages 131 to 140 do been any special significance specially belonging to Temple or Mosque ?

In Muslim buildings also inverted lotus is seen on the top of the dome. Depiction of lotus is also common for other occasions in other buildings also. Same thing is applicable for flower designs also. 'Vase and foliage design' is not common in all buildings. Vase means 'Ghat'. 'Pallava' mean foliage pattern it is a common theme. It is considered to be auspicious and is generally found on the religious structures. In nut shell 'Ghata' means 'pitcher' or 'vessel' to store water and leaves coming out of it or 'pallava'. 'Ghata' does not include 'Surahi' but other earthen pots such as 'Gagar', 'Matka', 'Matki', 'Jhajhar' are included within the definition of 'Ghat'. 'Gamala' does not come under the category of a 'Ghata'. Importance of water is equally same for all the human beings rather living beings and this is why it is taken to be auspicious. 'Ghat' is desired to be full of water ( Purna-kalash). Design of 'Ghata' is seen in all types of buildings in various forms and even in stylised forms.

Sculptured motifs means any item or figure pertaining to human or animal or floral designs depicted or engraved on the stone.

'Gana' means attendant of Lord Shiva. 'Ganas' are invariably males whereas female attendance of 'Parvati' are called 'Yoginis'.

The distinguishing feature of the Ram-chabutra complex as noticed during excavation where peculiar type of floor levels was made out of the material dug from the area which was in the north side of the Ram-chabutra which in this excavation has been marked as trenches J-3, J-4, J-5 and J-6. I have read this fact somewhere in the report submitted by the A.S.I. regarding bringing of earth from the area which existed in the north of Ram-chabutra in order to maintain the different levels of Ram-chabutra. This act of bringing earth from adjoining area of Ram-chabutra might have been done during Mughal or late Mughal period, meaning thereby sometimes in 1602 to 1605 A. D during the last phase of Akbar's rule when Ram-Siya coin was introduced. Prior to that this area of Ram-chabutra might have been two or three meters lower than the present level situated in the area beyond the disputed structure in that direction.

Q: Whether 'Amalaka' is the design of the fruit 'Amala' halfed horizontally ?

A: The design of 'Amalaka' is having crevices in the circular form of an 'Amala' fruit. The top 'Amalaka' called 'Shirsh-Amalaka' is having a full 'Amalaka' and the Karna-'Amalaka' found on the 'Shikhar' part of the temple at the corner is in-part and not in-full denoting sculptured crevices. 'Amala' is considered an auspicious fruit of 'Durga devi'. There is no prohibition of use of fruit 'Amala' by the believers of other faith.

I have stated that glazed ware, glazed tiles and glazed potteries indicate Muslim civilization. Said voluntarily, however glazed tradition is a very old tradition as glazed wares started from 'China' and went up to 'Egypt' via 'Middle-east' and again it came to 'India' after the arrival of Mohd. Ghori. In between, glazed ware has been met with in 'Kushan' period also in the Indian sites. Sporadically it was also used in Kushan period. There is a difference of technique of glazing or making glazed wares from Ancient times to Medieval times. During excavation at disputed site glazed wares, glazed tiles and glazed potteries were found in different trenches and in different layers. There may be difference with regard to technique and manufacturing of glazed tiles, glazed wares and glazed potteries. I have not gone through the report submitted by the ASI with reference to their aspect of glazed wares/glazed pottery/glazed tiles.

If during excavation animal bones with cut marks are found from a particular site, then it can be inferred that persons consuming animal meat were residing in that area. It may also give a presumption that the people who were residing in that area were sacrificing animals for ritualistic purposes even though they may have different religions. The persons who sacrifice the animals may eat meat or they may not eat meat of these animals.

These are some of the Indigenous patterns which were there as against Lahore fort glazed ware which were having Persian themes. The glazed wares which were brought in 'Chines tradition' belonged to 'Kushan' period. I don't exactly remember the exact sites from where glazed wares of 'Chines tradition' were found during excavation.

I have referred in my statement about the inscription of Mir Baqi, it was fixed in disputed structure raised in 1528 A.D. paper no. 189C2/8, filed at the time of cross examination of P.W 15, was shown to the witness who, after seeing this paper, stated that this is the inscription which was fixed there. I have read its translation in English from which the date of construction of the disputed structure is inferred. My statement in this report is at page 68 ( in last para fourth line from the bottom), recorded on 19-01-2007 proclaim to this report.

This is true that in excavation matter the depth of various levels is very important in archaeological digging. During digging the finds recovered from various levels help in determining the period. Period to which whatever those finds belong. The finds help in determining the culture period and civilisation of that period. If there is a mistake in fixing the level and depth, it is likely to result in wrong result of the excavation regarding civilisation and periodisation. Voluntarily said that it is a hypothetical question in case of any variation regarding periodisation, the team leader having discussed with others finally determines the period with the help of co-ordination and result of all the trenches. In such situations, the chart of concordance is prepared or some other chart of explanation is furnished in the report. I have not examined the report from the point of view whether there is any concordance or explanation regarding any variation in depths mentioned or not. Variations are there in the report, but they have been properly explained. I have not checked from this point of view whether there is any explanation regarding variation in depths of raised platform area and other area. Srivatsa symbol is a religious motif found in sculpture as an art motif. It is the shape of engraving, if on stone, and may be found in the shape of painting also on paper or wall, as the case may be. Srivatsa is a star shaped design normally either carved or painted on the chest of the idol. Star/Srivatsa may be of any shape. The Star can be seen on different types of building also in form of carving as well as painting. The same would be of a religious significance when it is found on the chest of the idol. Engrave design in plate 88 is not a Star shaped design, but it has been described to be as Srivatsa motif by ASI in its II Volume. This is true that the design in the said plate 88 of ASI's report of Volume II, but I consider it to be Srivatsa because ASI has mentioned it as Srivatsa motif. Voluntarily said that the shape in this plate may also one of the types of Srivatsa, which I may not be aware of. The Srivatsa motif shown in plate 88 is not on the chest of idol or icon, but is on stone slab.

My statement in paras 29 and 30 of my affidavit is based on summary part of ASI report, Vol.1 which is in chapter 10 of the report. My said statements are based on last para on page 269 of the said summary. It is true that in ASI report the word 'Mandapa' like structure is not mentioned, but it is there in the ASI report that a structure having a huge pillared hall (or 2) is there, which is different from residential structure. I have drawn inference from the said report of the ASI, which has been described as pillared halls that it was a 'Mandapa' like structure. By pillared hall I mean that rectangular room type of structure, not of verandah type of structure. In my opinion, the hall type of structure in this case could have been about 15 feet in height. For a hall of 15 feet height, the height of pillars should be approximately 7 feet.

Q. How can be a room of 15 feet hall rest on 7 feet only ?

A: Seven feet pillar is quite sufficient to maintain Shikhar like roof of the hall having a height of 15 feet over the bracket and beams. Meaning thereby over the four pillars there could be a bracket and thereafter beam over that Shikhar type of roof, unlike arch roof or flat roof. In this way, the hall having 80 pillars had 24 Shikhar like roofs

www.vadaprativada.com

on the northern part and 24 on the southern part and 12 in central part i.e in total 60 Shikhar like roofs would have been there in these halls.

Q. If you say that one Shikhar was based on 4 pillars then the number of such Shikhar type structure being given by you as 60, the same should have been based upon 240 pillars ?

A: The number of pillars will remain the same i.e. 80 and the upper structure could also be managed on the same pillars. 15 Shikhar roofs type structure would be resting on 16 pillars north south and 5 Pillars east west.

Pages 212-214

Q. What was the type of roof of the alleged central shrine?

A: It could be 5 storyed type super structure as seen from the east. Roof could be of a flat type from inside having an opening on the east side.

www.vadaprativada.com

Q. What do you mean by 5 storyed structure?

A: Five storied structure means the ground floor thereafter the first, second , third and fourth. Such type of temples are called 'Panchatala Prasada'. The total height of aforesaid 5 storyed would be about 45 feet. The height of ground floor from floor to roof might be of 10 feet. The height of main shrine may be lesser than the height of pillared hall in front of the shrines. The two subsidiary shrines, which were in the north and south to the main shrine were having three storyed structures i.e. ground floor, first floor and second floor. The height of ground floor of both the subsidiary shrines could also be only of 10 feet . The height of these two subsidiary shrines would be about 27 feet in total. These shrines were resting on walls, not on pillars. Central shrine approximately could have been of 10x10 feet in size and the same size also holds for the two subsidiary shrines. All the three shrines were closed from three sides and there was only one entrance from the eastern side. These shrines were facing towards east. The size of 'Antaral' between these three shrines and pillared hall could be of 10 feet approximately.

Q. Do you find any reference in the ASI report about these three alleged shrines as stated by you ?

A: Yes. The ASI referred the central shrine as Sanctum santorum. Regarding the two subsidiary shrines towards the south, the ASI report mentions about its location towards south in the form of a subsidiary shrines south to central shrines as a circular temple. The circular above referred to, were subsidiary shrines as referred in the earlier period. The circular shrine referred at page 70 is different. It pertains to earlier period and not to the present subsidiary shrine, which I have stated above. As stated by me today is not mentioned in the ASI report. However, I have drawn inference from that part of the report where ASI has referred to circular shrines of earlier period as a subsidiary shrine, which indicated about the central shrine in the north to the subsidiary shrine. The ASI has not said anything in its report about the central shrines or the subsidiary shrines, during the period pillared structure was there. However ASI has referred in its report about the Sanctum Sanctorum, which according to me could be central shrine.

Q. Is it correct to say that ASI has no where referred in its report, as you have stated today in the Court that they have referred the Sanctum Sanctorum for such central shrine ?

A: Yes, it is correct that ASI has not referred in its report about the central shrine. The Sanctum Sanctorum is referrable to such central shrine of the report. However, the Sanctum Sanctorum finds place in its report.

In trench ZL-I no pillar base has been shown in figure 3-A. In trench L-I also no pillar base is shown. Similarly, in trenches L-2, L-3 and L-7 no pillar base is marked in this figure. In Appendix–4 on page 208 (internal page 17) in trench L-I parts of two pillar bases are mentioned in the chart. Similarly, in L-2 and L-3 trenches also parts of two pillar bases, one in each, are mentioned. Similarly, in trench L-7 two pillar bases are shown. In this way, according to the appendix-4, 8 pillar bases were noticed in trenches L-1, L-2, L-3 and L-7. No trench of M-series was undertaken for excavation. The 50 pillar bases, which according to me were exposed, were excavated by the ASI, were duly numbered also in figure 3-A by the ASI, do not include the pillar bases indicated in appendix-4 in L-series of trenches, i.e., L-1, L-2, L-3 and L-7.

Q: After seeing the description of 8 pillar bases on page 08 of the ASI report, Vol.I, would you like to say that there were 58 alleged exposed pillar bases about which you have earlier stated that the number was only 50.

Sri Ved Prakash, learned counsel appearing for the plaintiff in O.O.S. No.5 of 1989 raised an objection to this question on the ground that this appendix-4 is not part of the ASI report, as the same has been prepared separately under the direction of this Court.

We do not find any merit in the objection, as the entire

excavation was made under the orders of this Court and appendix-4 is prepared by the ASI, which finds place in Vol.I from pages 291 to 309. Thus, the objection is over ruled.

A: The 50 pillar bases have been numbered by the ASI in figure 3-A and they are in the western part of the excavated mound. The 8 pillar bases in trenches L-1, L-2, L-3 and L-7 are towards east of the excavated mound. These pillar bases are not included in the 50 pillar bases marked in the western area. Including the pillar bases of trenches of L-series, as indicated above, the total number of the so called exposed pillar bases would come to 58.

According to me, the excavation of trenches of H-series is on the western part of the mound and beyond the same towards the east, i.e., from trenches of J-series, the excavation is on the eastern part of the mount. Trenches of J-series will be called trenches of the eastern part of the mound. The pillar base no.6 falls near the baulk of trenches ZH-2 and ZJ-2. Pillar base 6 falls just on the brink of the western part of the mound. The pillar bases, which I presume could have been there up to H-series on the western part of the mound and not on the eastern part. The said pillar bases would not be in the trenches of J, K and L series. These exposed and unexposed pillar bases according to me, are of 12$^{th}$ Century. These pillar bases relate to the structure raised in 1130 A.D.

The distances between the pillars in north-south and east- west was approximately ten feet, the distance being little more in north-south as compared to east-west, but the difference is nominal, i.e., about 10 cms. The map is prepared on the scale of 5 mm. equal to 1 metre.

I can try to measure the distance of two pillars on the basis of scale given in figure 3 A. The northern end of wall 16 in figure 3A is 6 metres from pillar base no.2 i.e. PB 2. The horizontal distance between wall 16 and pillar base 15 is 5.6 metres. Similarly, horizontal distance between wall 16 and pillar base 20 is about 10 metres. As I understand my statement on page 159 before this Court regarding distance of pillar bases from wall no.16 which I have stated to be ranging from 3.60 to 3.86 metres is probably based on report of the ASI. In view of the actual measurement done by me on the basis of the scale in figure 3A the said statement regarding distances appears to be incorrect.

Distance between pillar base no.25 and pillar base no. 28 is about 12 metres. I do not remember whether trenches F-4 and F-5 were actually excavated or not. The same can be verified from the report. Part of pillar base as shown in trench F-3 in appendix 4 at page 297 is the same as shown in pillar base no.25 in figure 3A. Part of pillar base is shown to be in trench F-4 in appendix 4 at page 297, but said pillar base is not shown in trench F-4 in figure 3A. Since part of pillar base is shown in trench F-4 in appendix-4 at page 297, the same is to be taken as exposed pillar base although not shown in figure 3A. From appendix 4 , I can say that trench F-4 was also excavated. From entry in regard to trench F-5 on page 298 of the appendix-4 it is evident that trench F-5 was also excavated.

The distance between pillar base no. 49 and 50 is about 2.50 meters. Pillar base no. 49 is not in alignment with pillar base no. 45 in southern side and pillar base no. 47 and 48 are not in full alignment. There is no pillar base in between pillar base no. 27 and 50. The distance of pillar base no. 40 from wall 16 is about 4meters. There is no pillar base between wall no. 16 and pillar base no. 40. Pillar base no. 40 and 37 are not in full alignment. The distance between pillar base no. 41 and 44 is about 5meters and these pillar bases are not in alignment. The distance between pillar base no. 41 and 42 is about 2.50meters, they are also not in alignment. The distance between pillar base no. 38 and 39 is about 2.50 meters. The distance between pillar base no. 37 and 38 is about 3.50meters. The distance between these two pillar bases is about 2meters if the distance is taken from the corners. The distance between pillar base no. 38 and wall 16 is about 6meters. There is no other pillar base in between wall 16 and pillar base no. 38. Pillar base no. 37 and 38 are not in alignment. The distance between pillar base no. 34 and 38 is about 3meters. The distance between pillar base no. 34 and wall no. 16 is about 3meters. In between pillar base no. 34 and wall 16, there is structure 4. I can't say what is structure 4 on the basis of my memory. The distance between pillar base 34 and 35 is about 2meters. The distance between pillar base no. 35 and 36 is about 2meters. The distance between pillar base no. 36 and 39 is about 2.50meters. There is pillar base no. 30 in between pillar base no. 26 and 36. The distance between pillar base no. 26 and 30 is about 6 meters. The distance between pillar base no. 30 and 36 is about 5meters. There is no pillar base in between pillar base no. 26 and wall 16. Similarly there is no pillar base between pillar base no. 30 and wall 16. The distance between pillar base no. 29 and 30 is about 2meters and they are not in alignment. The distance between pillar base no. 30 and 32 is about 4meters and they are also not in alignment. I can not say by memory the nature of structure 3. Similarly I can not say about the nature of structure 9, which is near pillar base no. 29.

The distance between pillar base no. 18 and 19 is about 2meters. The distance between pillar base no. 17 and 18 is also about 2meters. Similarly the distance between pillar base no. 16 and 17 is about 2meter. The distance between pillar base no. 17 and 21 is about 3meters. The distance between pillar base no. 18 and 21 is about 3meters. Pillar base no. 18 and 17 are not in full alignment. Similarly pillar base no. 17 and 16 are not in full alignment. Same position is with pillar base no. 16 and 15. The distance between pillar base no. 20 and 21 is about 2meters. These pillar bases are not in full alignment but are partly in alignment. Pillar base no. 21 is in trench G-2.

The entry given on page 59, regarding pillar base no. 12, seems to be incorrect. According to me there are only two pillar bases in trench no. ZG-1 i.e. pillar base no. 8 and pillar base no. 11. Pillar base no. 12 falls on the baulk of trench ZG-1 and G-1. In trench G-1, I find two pillar bases i.e. pillar base no. 16 and 17. Pillar base no. 12 is partly on the baulk of trench G-1 and ZG-1. On page 59, pillar base no. 12 has been shown in trench ZG-1. Pillar base no. 12 falls in the baulk of trench ZG-1 and G-1. Thus the entry regarding pillar base no. 12 on page 59, is only partly correct.

Q: If pillar base no. 12 does not exist in trench no. ZG-1, as stated by you then the entry regarding the same made on page 59, is fully incorrect and how it is being said by you partly to be incorrect ?

www.vadaprativada.com

A: Because pillar base no. 12, is on the baulk between trench ZG-1 and G-1.

Figure 10 ( page 60-A) relates to trench G-1. Pillar base no. 16 and 17 have been shown in the plan of trench no. G-1. The sectional elevation shown in figure 10 also relates to trench G-1. On page 59, at the bottom, pillar base no. 16 has been shown in the baulk of trench F-1 and G-1. There is inconsistency between figure 10 and

description given on page 59, about pillar base no. 16. With reference to figure 11 (page 62-A), the witness stated that the plan of this figure relates to trench H-4 and H-5. The section given at the top on this page also relates to trench H-4 and H-5 which also goes up to trench H-6. In this plan only one pillar base no. 27 has been shown in trench H-5. In figure 3-A, also only one pillar base no. 27 has been shown in trench H-5. On page 302 (appendix-IV), at serial no. 92, two pillar bases have been shown in trench H-5. Thus figure 3-A and figure 11 are inconsistent with the description given on page 302. Plan of figure 12 ( page 66-A), relates to trench F-9, whereas sectional elevation shown in this figure relates to trench F-9. In figure 12, two pillar bases no. 43 and 44 have been shown in trench F-9. Pillar base no. 43 is circular in shape whereas pillar base no. 44 is squarish cum circular. On page 65, at the bottom pillar base no. 42 has been shown in the baulk of E-9 – F-9. There would be inconsistency between figure 12 and description of pillar base no. 43, on page 65, in the sense that trench no. E-9, is not given on figure 12 but the extension is there. In figure 3-A, pillar base no. 43 has been shown in trench F-9. Thus there is inconsistency between figure 3-A and description of pillar base no. 43 given on page 65. On page 299 ( appendix-IV), in trench F-9, two squarish pillar bases and a circular pillar base has been shown. Whereas in figure 3-A and figure 12, only two pillar bases have been shown in trench F-9, thus there is inconsistency among them. In the chart given on pages 56 to 67 in trench F-9, only one pillar base no. 44 has been shown thus there is inconsistency between this chart and description given on page 299 ( appendix-IV). Figure 13, on page 66, deals with plan and relates to trench no. G-9. The sectional elevation given in figure 13, relates to trench G-9 but it is between the pegs of G-10 and H-10. In figure 3-A ( page 48-A), in trench G-9, two pillar bases 42 and 45 have been shown. Pillar base no. 46 is in the baulk of G-9 and H-9. In figure 13, in trench G-9, only pillar base no. 45 has been shown. Pillar base no. 42 has not been shown in figure 13. Thus there is inconsistency between figure 13 and figure 3-A.

In the chart given on page 65, pillar base no. 42 has been shown in the baulk of trench G-8 and G-9.

Similarly in the plan also the trenches covered are ZE-1, ZF-1, ZG-1 and ZH-1. No pillar base has been marked in any of the trenches of the plan although the diagram is there in trench no. ZF-1 and ZG-1. The diagram is of one pillar base each in these two trenches. In trench ZF-1, the diagram of pillar base has been shown above floor 1, in the north-west corner, rather it is in the centre of the trench. Similarly in trench ZG-1, the diagram of the pillar base has been shown towards north-eastern part in the east of floor one and above the pit. Two diagram of the pillar bases have been shown with trench no. ZH-1, one towards south-western side and the other towards the south-eastern side. There seems to be an omission in not marking the pillar bases in the plan of figure 14, in respective trenches. In this plan pillar base has been shown in trench ZF-1. Since this pillar base has been shown in the plan of the drawing made by ASI, therefore it should be taken as correct. As this pillar base has been found on floor 1, therefore this must have been constructed in Post-Mughal era because floor-1 is the floor of the modern period. In the chart given from pages 56 to 67, pillar base no. 7, has been shown in trench ZF-1, projected over the surface of floor-2. The pillar base shown in the plan of figure 14, is this very pillar base no. 7. According to me depiction of this pillar base no. 7, in figure 14 is correct and the description of the same on page 57 of the above chart gives also the correct position.

In figure 3-A ( page 48-A), two pillar bases i.e. pillar base no. 7 and 10 have been shown in trench ZF-1 but in the plan of figure-14, only one pillar base has been shown and the other one was not shown. Thus there is discrepancy between figure-14, and the description given in the figure 3-A, and the chart of page 57. On page 297 (internal page 6), of appendix-IV, in trench ZF-1, three pillar bases have been shown. Thus there is discrepancy between the description given on above page 297, figure-14, figure 3-A and the description given in the chart on page 57, of the ASI report volume-I.

Thus there is clear discrepancy between figure-14, and in the description given in the chart on pages 58 and 59. Since only two pillar bases have been shown in figure 3-A, therefore there is discrepancy between this figure and description given on pages 58 and 59.

www.vadaprativada.com

On page 299 ( appendix-IV), at serial no. 73, in trench ZG-1, one squarish pillar base and one disturbed pillar base has been shown. The pillar base shown in the plan of figure-14, in trench ZG-1, is squarish in shape, the disturbed condition of the pillar base has been shown in the south-west corner of trench ZG-1, but it has not been marked as pillar base or numbered. According to me as per the plan in trench ZG-1, two pillar bases have been shown but these pillar bases have not been shown in the section of trench ZH-1, as the pillar bases fall towards the southern part of the trench which is away from that section.

In figure 3-A (page 48-A), pillar base no. 9 has been shown in the northern side and pillar base no. 13 has been shown in south-western side. Thus there is discrepancy in between figure 3-A and figure-14, regarding location of pillar base no. 9 and 13.

Pages 248-249

Out of them one pillar base was resting on floor-1, and the

www.vadaprativada.com

other on floor-2, but the position of third pillar base which is towards north, is not clear regarding the floor position in figure-7. First pillar base which is resting on floor-1, was constructed in Post-Mughal period, the other pillar base which was resting on floor-2, was constructed in late-Mughal period. Out of these pillar bases in trench G-2, the first pillar base which is resting on floor-1, is circular in shape where as the second pillar base which is resting on floor-2, is squraish in shape, the third pillar base the position of which is not clear regarding floor, is rectangular in shape. The circular pillar base can be considered as oval pillar base also. In the chart on page 60, pillar base no. 21, which has been shown in trench G-2, is the same pillar base which has been shown in the western side of the trench in figure-7. On page 61, pillar base no. 24, shown in trench G-2, is the same pillar base which is resting on floor-1, in figure-7. In the chart given on pages 56 to 67, the third pillar base, the floor position which is not clear, has not been shown. Thus there is discrepancy between the description given in the above chart on pages 56 to 67 and figure-7. In figure 3-A, in trench G-2, four pillar bases have been shown viz pillar base no. 20, 21, 23 and 24. In the chart given on pages 60 and 61, pillar bases no. 20 and 23, have been shown in the baulk of trench F-2 – G-2. My statement that there are four pillar bases G-2 is incorrect because two of these four pillar bases were in the baulk as has been described in the chart given from pages 56 to 67. There is inconsistency between figure 3-A and figure-7, in the sense that in figure-7, three pillar bases have been shown in trench G-2, whereas in figure 3-A, only two pillar bases have been shown in trench G-2, and remaining two pillar bases have been shown in the baulk. Figure 6 ( page 52-B), relates to trenches F-6 and F-7 in the plan whereas sectional elevation of this figure relates to trench F-8 and F-7 and partly F-6 also although trench F-6 is not mentioned.

Q: From a bare perusal of figure 3-A it appears that the so called pillar base no. 31 and 32 have been shown to exist in trench F-

www.vadaprativada.com

7 and as such there is clear discrepancy about their description given in the chart of so called pillar bases at page 63 and the said figure 3-A. What do you have to say on this ?

A: Yes, there seems to be a discrepancy between the two positions.

On page 298 ( internal page no.7 of appendix-IV), at serial no. 66, in trench F-7 partly extant pillar base has been shown in column-4. Whereas in figure 3-A and figure 6 two pillar bases have been shown in trench F-7. Thus there is discrepancy between description of trench F-7 given on page 298, and the depiction of pillar bases in F-7 as given in figure 3-A and figure 6. In the plan of figure-6, no pillar base has been marked or numbered in trench F-6 and F-7 but the diagram shows the existence of two pillar bases in F-6 and four pillar bases in trench F-7 out of which one pillar base in F-7 extent to trench no. F-6 also. Out of these four pillar bases central pillar base which is also extending to trench F-6 is circular. The second pillar base which is octagonal in shape also seems to be extending towards the baulk of F-6 and F-7. Third pillar base is circular and fourth one is semicircular as is evident from figure-6.

Two "brick walls" mentioned in between trenches E-6 and E-7 in figure 5 are part of wall 16. "Niche" shown towards the south of the above two brick walls is in upper part of wall 16. "Niche" shown below the words E-8 in figure 5 is below. This Niche is also in wall 16. The slopy position shown in between the trenches of E-6 and E-7 in figure 5 was on the spot also slopy, from north to south. No wall is shown in between the trenches E-6 and F-5. It is true that trenches E-4 and E-5 were not excavated, that is why they are not shown in this figure whereas trench E-3 was partly excavated, that is why it is shown in the figure 5.

In figure-4 there is no mention of floor-1, in trench D-6 as indicated at serial no.37 on page 294 in the said report of the ASI. In this way, there is an omission in figure-4 in regard to floor no.1 and trench-D-6. According to entry at serial no. 51 on page 295 in regard to trench E-6, Floors 1 to 4 were found in the said trench E-6. I cannot say whether the top floor mentioned in Figure-4 depicts floor 1 or not. Similarly I am not sure whether the words A,B,C, and B as indicated in plan, figure-4, depicts floor 1-A, 1-B, 1-C and 1-D or not.

In Plate 35 of Vol.I of ASI report, 9 pillar bases are visible as stated by me yesterday and they are PB 1 to 6 and thereafter PB 7 to 9 as described in figure 3-A of Vol.I of ASI report.

The witness having gone through the chart at page 56, 57 and 58 of Vol.I of ASI report, stated that it is correct that in respect of pillar bases No.1,2 ,3,5,6,7 and 8, the ASI has found that these pillar bases are projected over surface of floor 2. It is correct that ASI has not mentioned on which floor pillar base No.4 was found. It is also correct that ASI at page 58 in its report Vol.I has found that pillar base No.9 was available at the depth of 42 cm. from floor 2, cutting through floor 3. As per finding of the ASI in respect of pillar base no.9 it can be said that it was below floor 2, but it cannot be said that it was sealed by floor 2. However, it was cutting through floor 3. Pillar base No.9, in view of the opinion of the ASI, it could be assigned to the period of floor No.2.

The witness having gone through page 37-A of Vol.I of the report stated that in the chart of periodization, no reference of Z series of trenches is given. In the aforesaid chart at page 37-A of the report, Vol.I, floor 2 of trenches J-5 and K is assigned to Mughal period, while floor 2 of J-3 is assigned to late and post Mughal period. As it appears from the aforesaid chart prepared by ASI at page 37-A, the periodization has been mentioned on both the ends of the chart without indicating the method to read this chart, which could have been in the form of index and this is lacking in the chart. As per this periodization in the chart (page 37-A of the report, Vol.I) floor 3 is admittedly of Medieval period as seen from both the sides of periodization chart. Floor 4 of G-7 has been shown in the aforesaid chart to be of early Medieval Sultanate period; whereas floor 4 of some of the trenches of E,F,G,H and J series has been shown to be of Medieval period. Trench G-7 of floor 3 in the aforesaid chart is shown to be of Medieval period. In the aforesaid chart floor 5 has been shown only in trench No.J-5 and in no other trench reference of floor 5 has come. Floor 5 has also been shown in the chart to be of early Medieval Sultanate period.

www.vadapprativada.com

The ASI in its report in Vol.I has divided the Mughal period into two parts i.e. Mughal period, Period VIII and late and post Mughal Period, Period IX. Period VIII covers the period of Babar to Aurangnzeb i.e. 1525-1707 AD belonging to greater Mughals and late Mughals period starts after Aurangnzeb belonging to later Mughals i.e. 1708 to 1857 AD. The period of late Mughals is also called post-Mughal. Again he said that post-Mughal period in fact will be the period after 1857. It is also known as British or Modern period.

www.vadaprativada.com

Pages 282-283

I just recollect that ASI has divided period VII in three sub-periods A,B and C. Construction of wall 16 has been attributed by ASI to sub-period-A of period VII. According to ASI sub-period A of period VII starts from the end of 12th Century. The period prior to 1194 A.D. cannot be said to be period covered by the term "end of 12th Century".

Q. In view of the above statement is it correct to say that the so called massive wall (wall No.16) cannot be said to have been constructed prior to 1194 A.D. as per ASI report.?

A. (I will have to think over it and the reply will be given in the post-lunch-session).

(In post-lunch- session the witness gave reply to the above question in following words:)

According to me, the wall 16 could have been constructed

www.vadaprativada.com

sometimes between 1194 to 1199 A.D.

It is correct to say that the ASI in its report at page 41 has used the words 'end of 12th Century' in second Para because rule of Gahadwal dynasty had come to an end in the last decade of 12th Century. Jai Chand was the last ruler of Gahadwal dynasty who was defeated in 1194 by Mohammad Ghauri. With the defeat of Jai Chand the rule of Gahadwal dynasty came to an end. The rule of Mohammad Ghauri was started in 1194 but in fact it was established in 1205-06 A.D. as in the intervening period the position of Sultanate rule remained unstable because of the stiff local resistance.

So far I remember the said inscription was recovered in the year 1992 by some person but I do not know name of that person. I do not think that the said inscription was recovered by some archaeologist during excavation. It was an accidental find within the complex of the disputed structure. I do not recollect whether the accidental find was found by any Archaeologist or some officer of the Government. I did not very much bother to find out who was the actual person who found this inscription. However, the said inscription is said to have been found inside the central temple covered by the plaster and only after removal of the plaster, the inscription came out which was existing there.

Q. Is it correct to say that the said inscription is alleged to have been recovered from the debris of the disputed structure after its demolition on 6th December, 1992.

A: It is not correct to say that it was recovered from the debris but it was recovered from the wall of the disputed structure and at least that portion of the wall containing the inscription was intact and was in standing position and only when the plaster was removed, the inscription was noticed and taken out.

The temple referred by me in para 29 of my affidavit refers to the same temple whose description is there in the note (tippani) below translation of line no.21 of inscription on paper no.289 C-1/198 of the book of T.P.Verma and Dr. S.P.Gupta. I cannot say, as mentioned in the above note, whether the temple was reconstructed in place of some earlier construction during the period of Govind Chanda for the reason, I have not examined the inscription referred by me above from this point of view. According to me, the construction of temple that I have referred in my affidavit and statement was a fresh construction made in 1130 A.D.

Since the inscription does not give the date, I have concluded it to be of about 1130 A.D. and also to be the new temple as also pointed out by Dr. K.V.Ramesh in his book.....

….....This is correct to say that while giving affidavit as well as making statement in cross examination, before this Court, I have relied upon article of Dr. K.V.Ramesh only and have not taken into account the translation of the inscription as given in paper no.289 C-1/ 197 to 199, including the above note on 289 C-1/198.

This is correct that as disclosed in the article of Dr. K.V.Ramesh also the rule of Govind Chandra of Gahadwal dynasty was from 1114 to 1155 A.D. Sri K.V.Ramesh has not given in his article that the inscription was written and the temple was constructed in 1130 A.D., but in my own assessment as I have stated that the temple was constructed in 1130 A.D. and have also given the same period for the inscription.

In plate no.36 of the ASI report, Vol.II, two floors are also visible besides the pillar base no. 13. The said pillar base is in between the two floors. The floors are numbered from top to bottom. The floors which are visible in plate no. 36, are floors no.1 and 2. The top floor which was visible at the time of excavation will be called floor no.1 and the top floor i.e. floor no.1 was of Post- Mughal period over the entire disputed area. Second floor found in different trenches belong to different period. Second floor in trench no.ZH-1 visible in plate no. 36 is of Post-Mughal period. To me there appears to be a third floor also in plate no.36 in the central part as is seen from the plan of the trenches. The photograph in plate no.36 partly shows position of sections and partly plan of trenches. In plate no. 36 the section of ZH-1 facing north on the northern side is fully visible. Sections of east and west of the said trench are partly visible in plate no.36.

The ASI in its report on page no.28, at serial no.47, has mentioned that trench ZH-1 was excavated upto the depth of 80 cm. and one floor and the pillar base were found at a depth of 70 cm. and 55 cm. Voluntarily said that from the plan, other two floors are also to be seen within the excavated area of 80 cm., which are visible. The depth of the trench could be more than 80 cm. The depth given at serial no.47 as 80 cm. is in respect of anomaly only.

Q. In view of your above statement can it be said that ASI has wrongly mentioned on page 28 that the trench was excavated upto the depth of 80 cm.?

A. As seen from the trench position it seems to be so.

Looking to the plan position as visible in plate no.36 the statement of ASI on page 28 at serial no.47 regarding trench ZH-1 that further excavation beyond 80 cm. was not conducted upto the required depth where anomalies were shown, it is lacking.

Q. What do you mean by the term 'lacking' with reference to ASI report at page no.28 serial no.47.?

A. By using the term 'lacking' in my statement, I mean to say that the ASI has not disclosed the total depth of excavation in the trench.

Q. Do you mean to say that the ASI has not given total depth of the trenches excavated by them in their statement contained on page 28 at serial no.47.?

A. Yes, they have not given the total depth.

www.vadaprativada.com

The statement of ASI regarding the pillar base being found at the depth of 55 cm. in trench ZH-1 is correct.

Page 307

Site note-books prepared during excavation are primary piece of evidence regarding conducting of the excavation. As for as information part is concerned, the site note-book is the first source, but if the excavators do not feel necessary to include any part of the site note-book in the main report, it is his prerogative in view of the requirement of the situation and the information in the site note-book could be given somewhere in the remarks column only.

Q. What was the other material or document before the team leader other than the site note-book about the day to day progress of the excavation of a particular trench?

A. As far as information is concerned, the site note-book is the only source of information regarding details of excavation of a particular trench.

www.vadaprativada.com

This is correct to say that since the site note-book is the only source of information, the report is given on the basis of information contained in the said site note-book.

In all the excavation other than the excavation of the disputed site at Ayodhya site note-book alone is prepared on day to day basis and no day to day register is prepared as was prepared in this case under the orders of this Court.

The witness having seen the entry at page no.26 of the site note-book no.41and the entry made at serial no.47 at page 28 of Vol.1 of the report, said that there is a discrepancy between the two regarding the depth of floor and the pillar base. The entry made in the site note-book is to prevail over the entry made at page no.28 of the ASI report of Vol.I. As is evident from the entry on page no.27 of the site note-book no.41, the thickness of floor no.1 found on 15.4.2003 and removed on 16.4.2003, was 2 cm.

I cannot say regarding the number of the floor which was encountered at the depth of 105 cm. during excavation on 20.4.2003 of trench no.ZH-1 as mentioned in page no.31 of the site note book 41. The excavator should have numbered the different floors found by him during excavation. This is an omission in the site note-book. It was the last digging of the said trench no. ZH-1 which took place on 20.4.2003 as shown on page no.31 which deals with digging of 20.4.2003 and therefore, there is no entry in the site note-book in regard to trench no. ZH-1.

In this way the mention that the trench no. ZH-1 was excavated upto the depth of .80 metre as mentioned at serial no. 47 at page 28 of ASI report volume-I, is wrong. As the excavation has gone beyond one metre where the first anomaly was first noticed in GPR statement at serial no. 47 to the effect that further excavation was not conducted upto the required depth where anomaly was shown, is wrong. The entry in the last column of page no. 59 against pillar base no.13 of trench ZH-1 to the effect that the foundation was resting on floor no.4 and cutting through floor no.3 is faulty. The position of pillar base no. 13 in figure 9, deals with the description as per the site note book no. 41.

The size of this stone block marked as pillar base no.1as given on page 56 of the above report is not tallying with the size given on page 43 of the site note book number-41. The measurement of this sand stone block given on page 56, should be taken as correct because this measurement would have been given by the draftsmen of the excavation team.

This floor should be taken as floor-1. The stone block on the trench ZH-2 could be on the surface of floor-1. This squarish sand stone block has been mentioned as pillar base no. 5 on page 57 of the ASI's report volume-I. The measurement on page 57 of this sand stone block is different from the measurement of the same given on pages 42 and 43 of the site book no. 41. The measurement given on page 57 of the above report should be taken as correct because it is based on actual measurement made by draftsmen of the site.

Site note book no. 15 was shown to the witness. The attention of the witness was drawn to page 27 of this note book, the witness stated that this page deals with the baulk of trench F-6 – F-7. The description of the architectural fragment which was square at the base and octagonal at the top and was measuring 38 X 19cm refers to the description of the pillar base no. 32 as given on page 63 of the ASI report volume-I. This was placed on floor-2. On page 23 of the site note book no. 15 in the entry at serial no. 10 in the right side column there is mention of an architectural fragment of sand stone measuring 32.5 X 19cm.

In plate no. 38 of the ASI report volume-II orthostat is visible. Two 'mortise holes' are also visible but there is no 'groove' visible in plate no. 38. In plate no. 39 and 42 there is no orthostat. Similarly there is no 'mortise hole' or 'groove' in these two plates. In site note book no. 8, which is regarding the trench F-2, on pages 5 to 7 no pillar base is mentioned.

On page 24 of the ASI report volume-I, at serial no. 31, it is mentioned that G.P.R. survey indicated the anomalies in the form of alignments at the depths of 2.3 – 2.5metre and excavation was conducted only up to the depth of 1.50metre and furthur excavation was not conducted upto the required depth where the anomalies were shown in view of the importance of the exposed structure, whereas on page 13 of the site note book no. 7, it is mentioned that digging in trench F-2 closed at the depth of 2.53metre. Thus there is difference between these two descriptions. This description on page 24 of the above report was given by the persons in which Sri C. B. Patil was one of the co-authors. Both these description should be taken in their own way as faithful recording of the digging.

that of the right side. Both of these two pillar bases are in trench G-2. According to the chart of periodization given on page 37-A of the ASI report volume-I, floor-3 and floor-2 of trench G-2 have been shown to be of medieval period, seen from the left side of the chart. In plate no. 44 of the ASI report volume-II, pillar base no. 27 is visible in the eastern lower central side. This pillar base is resting on this floor. Floor number is given there which is very dim, perhaps it is floor-3. Orthostat is not visible in this plate. No 'mortise hole' and 'groove' is also visible in this plate.

….....Floor-5 which is visible in plate no. 52 is dated to 10-11$^{th}$ century. I think this has been dated by the ASI. This plate 52 pertains to trench E-8. Floor-5 is found in one or two other trenches also but I don't recollect their numbers at this stage.

Q: Is it correct to say that the so called floor-5 of trench E-8 has not been dated by the ASI in the charts given at pages 37-A and 37-B or at any other place in the ASI report volume-I ?

A: The periodization of floor-5 of trench E-8 has not been given in the charts given on pages 37-A and 37-B.

I have seen the graves as visible in plate no. 58 at the disputed site during excavation in the northern area. The face of the skeleton found in these graves was facing towards the west. If I remember correctly, no portion of the circular shrine as visible in plate 59 was found in the baulk of trench E-8 and F-8 but a portion of it could be near the baulk.

I had not excavated myself the trenches at Sanghol during excavation but got the excavation done by the Technical assistants serving under me. I remained at Sanghol during the concerned seasons mentioned in para 23 of my affidavit. I don't remember as to whether some pillar bases were recovered or not during excavation at Sanghol. Said voluntarily, the areas of operation to be covered by the ASI as against the area covered by the Punjab State Archaeology Department were separate. I had not visited Sanghol after the close of excavation of that site.

Q: Whether this site of Sanghol is being preserved and maintained by the ASI even at present ?

A: Some of the monuments at Sanghol sites are preserved and maintained by the ASI, which teh museum is maintained by the Punjab State Archaeology Dept. Chandigarh.

The report of Sanghol excavation has not been published but its results have been published in the "Indian Archaeology- A Review" volumes on year to year basis. I had not mentioned about the volumes of I.A.R. in which Sanghol excavation has been reported.

Q: Do you mean to say that some type of pillar bases were recovered at the Sanghol site ?

A: There could have been some type of pillar bases at Sanghol.

Q: Is it not correct to say that your statement contained in para 30 of your affidavit that so called pillar bases "were neither created nor manufactured by the ASI" has been made without examining the site note-books, concerned drawings and photographs and relevant observations made in this respect by the ASI at different places in the report ?

A: I was not supposed to go through the site note-books which are a part of the ground work of the ASI team, rather preliminarily ground work. I have gone through the ASI report only after its publication and I feel that the fact mentioned therein are faithful barring some draw backs found somewhere here and there in the report, which should be overlooked in view of this very important and major work completed during the very record period and duly published for perusal of the Hon'ble Court and World.

Q: Can you point out the floor or level from where the Arabic inscriptions visible in plates 91 and 92 of ASI report volume-II were found ?

www.vadaprativada.com

A: These two architectural members were found from debris of the central part of demolished structure.

The architectural members found from the debris can not be dated on the basis of stratigraphy however they can be dated on the basis of epigraphical characters. I don't have expert knowledge in epigraphy. However, I can understand a little but I can not date the architectural members on the basis of epigraphical characters. I can not date the architectural member of plate no. 91 and 92 on the basis of epigraphy. I have not studied the Arabic character of 13th century or of any other period.

I am aware that animal bones bearing cut marks were found in all parts and at all levels in the disputed site.

Q: Can bones of Sheep/Goat and other such animals be found at a temple site ?

A: Yes, bones of Sheep/Goat or such animals can be found in the area where some 'Shakti' and 'Shiva' temples are there where in

www.vadaprativada.com

animal sacrifices are practised.

I have not examined 'antiquity register' prepared by the ASI before filing of my affidavit in this Hon'ble Court. Said voluntarily, as it was not expected to be sheen by me. I had seen the antiquity register only during the course of excavation when it was put before everybody during excavation in the afternoon including my self.

Q: The register which was shown to the parties and their nominees etc. at the site is called 'day to day' register and not 'antiquity register' because antiquity register was never shown to any party, their nominee and their counsel at the site. What do you have to say in this regard ?

A: I had seen the 'day to day' register and not the antiquity register.

I have not seen the antiquity register prepared by ASI earlier to this day. In other excavations antiquity register is also prepared simultaneously on day to day basis. Antiquity register is prepared by an Antiquity Assistant or A Technical Assistant dealing with antiquities along with Pottery Assistant.

….....I do not know as to who has prepared the antiquity register filed in this Hon'ble Court by the ASI. At the time of writing of different chapters of the final report of the excavation the persons who contribute these chapters are required to study and examine this antiquity register.

(a. Visit to Kul (Aligarh) and Sambal.)

(Sep. 27th) On Saturday the Ist of Muharram we dismounted in Kul (Koel). Humayun had left Darwish (- i - ali) and Yusuf- i -ali in Sambal; they crossed one river, fought Qutb Sirwani and a party of rajas, beat them well and killed a mass of men. They sent a few heads and an elephant into Kul while we were there. After we had gone about Kul for two days, we dismounted at Shaikh Guran's house by his invitation, where he entertained us hospitably and laid an offering before us.

(Sep. 30th-Muh. 4Th ) Riding on from that place, we dismounted at Autruli (Atrauli).

(Oct. Ist- Muh. 4Th ) On Wednesday we crossed the river Gang (Ganges) and spent the night in villages of Sambal.

(Oct. 2nd – Muh. 6Th ) On Thursday we dismounted in Sambal.

After going about in it for two days, we left on Saturday.

(Oct. 5th – Muh. 9Th ) On Sunday we dismounted in Sikandara at the house of Rao Sirwani who set food before us and served us. When we rode out at dawn. I made some pretext to leave the rest, and galloped on alone to within a Kuroh of Agra where they overtook me. At the Mid-day Prayer we dismounted in Agra.

(March 28th) On Saturday the 7th of Rajab we dismounted 2 or 3 Kurohs from Aud above the junction of the Gagar (Gogra) and Sird (a). Till today Shaikh Bayazid will have been on the other side of the sird (a) opposite Aud, sending letters to the Sultan and discussing with him, but the Sultan getting to know his deceitfulness, sent word to Qaracha at the Mid-day Prayer and made ready to cross the river. On Qaracha's joining him, they crossed at once to where were some 50 horsemen with 3 or 4 elephants. These men could make no stand; they fled; a few having been dismounted, the heads cut off were sent in.

Following the Sultan there crossed over Bi-khub (var. Ni-Khub) SI. And Tardi Beg (the brother) of Quj Beg, and Baba Chuhra (the Brave), and Baqi shaghawal. Those who had crossed first and gone on, pursued Shaikh Bayazid till the Evening Prayer, but he flung himself into the jungle and escaped. Chin-timur dismounted late on the bank of standing-water, rode on at midnight after therebel, went as much as 40 kurohs (80 m.), and came to where Shaikh Bayazid's family and relations (nisba?) had been : they however must have fled. He sent gallopers off in all directions from that place : Baqi shaghawal and a few braves drove the enemy like sheep before them, overtook the family and brought in some Afghan prisoners.

We stayed a few days on that ground (near Aud) in order to settle the affairs of Aud. People praised the land lying along the Sird (a) 7 or 8 kurohs (14-16 M.) above Aud, saying it was hunting-ground. Mir Muhammad the raftsman was sent out and returned after looking at the crossings over the Gagar-water (Gogra) and the Sird (a)-water (Chauka?).

(April 2nd) On Thursday the 12th of the month I rode out intending to hunt.

Here in all known texts of the Babur-nama there is a break of the narrative between April 2nd and Sep. 18th 1528 A.D.- Jumada II.

12Th 934 AH. And Muharram 3rd 935 AH., which whether intentional or accidental, is unexplained by Babur's personal circumstances. It is likely to be due to a loss of pages from Babur's autograph manuscript, happening at some time preceding the making of either of the Persian translations of his writings and of the elphinstone and Haidarabad transcripts. Though such a loss might have occurred easily during the storm chronicled on f.376b, it seems likely that Babur would then have become aware of it and have made it good. A more probable explanation of the loss is the danger run by Humayun's library during his exile from rule in Hindustan, at which same time may well have occurred the seeming loss of the record of 936 and 937 AH.

(Oct. 22nd) By this time the treasure of Iskandar and Ibrahim in Dihli and Agra was at an end. Royal orders were given therefore, on Thursday the 8th of Safar, that each stipendiary (wajhadar) should drop into the Diwan, 30 in every 100 of his allowance, to be used for war-material and appliances, for equipment, for powder, and for the pay of gunners and matchlockmen.

(Oct. 24th) On Saturday the 10th of the month, Pay-master St. Muhammad's foot-man Shah Qasim who once before had sent to Heri with other letters to the purport that, through God's grace, our hearts were at ease in Hindustan about the rebels and pagans of east and west; and that, God bringing it aright, we should use every means and assuredly in the coming spring should touch the goal of our desire. After spending several days pleasantly in that place where there are gardens, running-waters, well-designed buildings, trees, particularly mango-trees, and various birds of coloured plumage, I ordered the march to be towards Ghazipur.

Ismail Khan Jalwani and Alaul Khan Nuhant had it represented to me that they would come to Agra after seeing their native land (want.) On this the command was, "I will give an order in a months."

U.- THE INSCRIPTIONS ON BABUR'S MOSQUE IN AJODHYA (OUDH).

Thanks to the kind response made by the Deputy-Commissioner of Fyzabad to my husband's enquiry about two inscriptions mentioned by several Gazetteers as still existing on "Babur's Mosque" in Ouch, I am able to quote copies of both.

a. The inscription inside the Mosque is as follows:-

1. Ba farmuda-i-Shah Babur ki adilash
   Banaist ta kakh-i-gardun mulaqi,
2. Bana kard in muhbit-i-qudsiyan
   Amir-i-saadat-nishan Mir Baqi
3. Bavad khair baqi! Chu sal-i-banaish
   Iyan shud ki guftam,- Bubad khair baqi.

www.vadaprativada.com

The translation and explanation of the above, manifestly made by a Musalman and as such having special value, are as follows:-

1. By the command of the Emperor Babur whose justice is an edifice reaching up to the very height of the heavens,

2. The good-hearted Mir Baqi built this alighting-place of angels;

3. Bavad khair baqi ! (May this goodness last for ever!).

The year of building it was made clear likewise when I said, Buvad Khair baqi (=935).

The explanation of this is :-

Ist Couplet:- The poet begins by praising the Emperor Babur under whose orders the mosque was erected. As justice is the (chief) virtue of kings, he naturally compares his (Babur's) justice to a palace reaching up to the very heavens, signifying thereby that the

www.vadaprativada.com

fame of that justice had not only spread in the wide world but had gone up to the heavens.

2nd couplet:- In the second couplet, the poet tells who was entrusted with the work of construction. Mir Baqi was evidently some nobleman of distinction at Babur's Court.- The noble height, the pure religious atmosphere, and the scrupulous cleanliness and neatness of the mosque are beautifully suggested by saying that it was to be the abode of angels.

3rd Couplet :- The third couplet begins and ends with the expression Buvad khair baqi. The letters forming it by their numerical values represent the number 935, thus:-

|---|---|
| B= 2, v=6, d=4 | total 12 |
| Kh=600, ai=10, r = 200 | " 810 |
| B = 2, a= 1, q = 100, i=10 | " 113 |
| | total 935 |

The poet indirectly refers to a religious commandment (dictum) of the Qoran that a man's good deeds live after his death, and signifies that this noble mosque is verily such a one.

b. The inscription outside the Mosque is as follows:-

1. Ba nam-i-anki dana hast akbar
   Ki khaliq-i-jamla alam la-makani
2. Durud Mustafa bad az sitayish
   Ki sarwar-i-ambiya du jahani
3. Fasana dar jahan Babur qalandar
   Ki shud dar daur giti kamrani.

The explanation of the above is as follows:-

In the first couplet the poet praises God, in the second Muhammad, in the third Babur.- There is a peculiar literary beauty in the use of the word la-makani in the Ist couplet. The author hints that the mosque is meant to be the abode of God, although He has no fixed abiding place.- In the first hemistich of the 3rd couplet the poet gives Babur the appellation of qalandar, which means a perfect devotee, indifferent to all worldly pleasures. In the second

hemistich he gives as the reason for his being so, that Babur became and was known all the world over as a qalandar, because having become Emperor of India and having thus reached the summit of worldly success, the had nothing to wish for on this earth.

The inscription is incomplete and the above is the plain interpretation which can be given to the couplets that are to hand. Attempts may be made to read further meaning into them but the language would not warrant it.

We were still a march or two from Oudh, when a messenger arrived from Chin Taimur Sultan, with intelligence that the enemy were encamped on the other side of the Saru, and that he would require to be reinforced. I dispatched to his assistance a thousand of the best men from the centre, under the command of Kazak. On Saturday, the 7th of Rajeb (March 28), I encamped two or three kos above Oudh, at the junction of the Gogra and Saru. Till that day, Sheikh Bayezid had kept his station, not far from Oudh, on the other side of the Saru. He had sent a letter to Sultan, for the purpose of overreaching him. Sultan having discovered his insincerity, about noon-day prayers sent a person to call for passing the river. When Karacheh had joined Sultan, they passed the river without delay. There were about fifty horse, with three or four elephants, on the other side, who being unable to stand their ground, took to flight. Our people brought down some of them, and cut off their heads which they sent me. Bikhub Sultan, Terdi Beg, Kuch Beg, Baba Chihreh, and Baki Shaghawel, passed the river after Sultan. Those who had passed over first continued till evening prayers in pursuit of Sheikh Bayezid, who threw himself into a jungle, and escaped. Chin Taimur Sultan having halted at night by a pool, mounted again about midnight (March 29), and renewed his pursuit of the enemy. After marching forty kos, he came to a place where their families and baggage had been, but they were already in full flight. The light force now divided itself into different bodies ; Baki Shaghawel with one division, following close upon the enemy, overtook their baggage and families, and brought in a few of the Afghans as prisoners.

I halted some days in this station, for the purpose of settling the affairs of Oudh and the neighbouring country, and for making the necessary arrangements. Seven or eight kos above Oudh, on the banks of the river Saru, is the well-known tract called the Hunting-ground. I sent Mir Muhammed Jalehban to examine the fords of the rivers Gogra and Saru, which he did. On Thursday, the 12th (April 2), I mounted, to set off on a hunting party.

When I arrived at Kabadian, Baki Cheghaniani, the younger brother of Khosrou Shah, who held Cheghanian, with the towns of Safa and Termez, sent the Khatib of Karshi, to express to me his wishes for my prosperity, and his desire to be permitted to join and accompany me as his prince; and, as I crossed the Amu, at the ferry of Ubaj, he himself came and paid his respects to me. At the desire of Baki Cheghaniani, I moved down towards Termez, when he brought his whole family and effects across the river and joined me, after which we proceeded towards Kahmerd and Bamian (places at this time held by the son of Ahmed Kasim, the sister's son of Khosrou Shah), intending to place our families in the fortress of Ajer, one of the towns of Kahmerd, and, after having put it in a posture of defence, to follow whatever plan seemed best to promise success. When we reached Aibek, Yar Ali Belal, who had formerly been in my service, and had conducted himself with bravery, but who had been separated from me during the commotions, and was now in the employment of Khosrou Shah, deserted wi6th several young cavaliers, and came and joined me, bringing assurances from the Moghuls in Khosrou Shah's service that they were all attached to my interests. On reaching the valley of Zindan, Kamber Ali Beg, surnamed Salakh (or the skinner), fled and came to me. In three or four marches we reached Kahmerd, having left our wives and families in the fortress of Ajer.

While we remained in the fort of Ajer, the marriage of Jehangir Mirza with the daughter of Sultan Mahmud Mirza by Khanzadeh Begum was consummated. They had been engaged during the lifetime of the Mirzas, their fathers.

At this same period, Baki Beg repeatedly, and with much earnestness, urged his sentiments, that to have two sovereigns in one country, and two generals in one army, was an unfailing source of confusion and ruin, and inevitably productive of rebellion, mutiny, and finally of dissolution ; as the poet says,

(Persian)- Ten dervishes may repose on the cloak,
But two sovereigns cannot be contained in the same climate.
The man of God, when he eats half a loaf,
Divides the other half among the poor and needy.
If a king subdues a whole kingdom, nay a climate, Still, as before, he covets yet another.

Awadh (Ajodhya) is one of the largest cities of India. It is situated in longitude 118º, 6', and latitude 27º, 22. It ancient times its populous site covered an extent of 148 kos in length and 36 in breadth, and it is esteemed one of the holiest places of antiquity. Around the envirous of the city, they sift the earth and gold is obtained. It was the residence of Ramachandra who in the Treta age combined in his own person both the spiritual supremacy and the kingly office.

At the distance of one kos from the city, the Gogra, after its junction with the Sai, (Saraju) flows below the seven yards in length respectively. The vulgar believe them to be the resting-places of Seth and the prophet Job, and extraordinary tales are related of them. Some say that at Ratanpur is the tomb of Kabir, the assertor of the unity of God. The portals of spiritual discernment were partly opened to him and he discarded the effete doctrines of his own time. Numerous verses in the Hindi language are still extant of him containing important theological truths. Bahraich is a large town on the banks of the river Sarju. Its envirous are delightful with numerous gardens. Salar Masud and Rajab Salar are both buried here. The common people of the Muhammadan faith greatly reverence this spot and pilgrims visit it from distant parts, forming themselves in bands and bearing gilded banners. The first mentioned was connected by blood with Mahmud Ghaznavi, and sold his life bravely in battle and left an imperishable name. The second was the father of Sultan Firoz king of Delhi and won renown by the recitude of his life.

In these ruins remayne certaine Bramenes, who record the names of all such Indians as wash themselves in the river running thereby ; which custome, they say, hath continued foure lackes of yeeres (which is three hundred ninetie foure thousand and five hundred yeeres before the worlds creation). Some two miles on the further side of the river is a cave of his with a narrow entrance, but so spacious and full of turnings within that a man may well loose himself there, if he take not better heed ; where it is thought his ashes were buried. Hither resort many from all parts of India, which carry from hence in remembrance certaine graines of rice as blacke as gun-powder, which they say have beene reserved ever since. Out of the ruines of this castle is yet much gold tried. Here is great trade, and such abundance of Indian asse-horne that they make hereof bucklers and divers sorts of drinking cups. About 250 m to the south-east of the Svargadvara mosque is ruin of another masjid very similar to the former. The two mosques stand symmetrically on both sides of the main bathing ghats, which are collectively called Svargadvara. The eastern mosque, built at the same time as the other one, replaces an old Visnu temple built by the last Gahadavala king Jayacandra in AD 1184. An inscription found in the ruins of the mosque testifies to the construction of this Vaisnava temple: "Inscription No. XLIV is written in twenty incomplete lines on a while sand-stone, broken off at either end, and split in two parts in the middle. It is dated samvat 1241, or AD 1184, in the time of Jayachchhandra of Kanauj, whose praises it records for erecting a Vaisnava temple, from whence this stone was originally brought and appropriated by Aurangzib in building his masjid knows as Treta-ki (sic:) Thakur. The original slab was discovered in the ruins of this Masjid, and is now in the Faizabad local museum." To my knowledge this inscription has never been published. The site is known as 'Treta ke Thakur' (Skt. Tretanatha), 'Lord of the Tretayuga' (i.e. Ramachandra), but the Sanskrit name is not attested in any written source.

The AM does not mention another Visnu temple at this place (on top of the Svargadvara ghats), unless formerly a Dharmahari temple (at present there is a temple of that name c. 500 to the sought-east of the ruins of the mosque) stood on this site. The Mahatmya states that Dharmahari lies to the sough-east of Candrahari, and is, like Candrahari, to be visited after a bath in Svargadvara: svargadvare narah snatva drstva dharmaharim vibhum/.

The legend accounting for the origin of Charmahari is a replica of that of Candrahari. The only significant difference is that the visiting person is Dharma. This Dharma, after propitiating Visnu, installed an idol of Hari with his own name prefixed. The uniformity of the legends of origin along with the perfect symmetry of the two mosques build by Aurangzeb, which in their turn replaced two Visnu temples both established by Gahadavala kings, strongly suggests that the temple erected by Jayacandra was known to the Mahatmya under the name of Dharmahari. Just as the two mosques on both ends of the Svargadvara ghats seem to have been a reflection of each other, so both Gahadavala Visnu temples might originally have been counterparts. It seems possible that a king who was to become the last Hindu ruler of this part of India to defend his realm against the mlecchas styled himself as an incarnation of Dharma."

There are two more ancient (Vaisnava) 'Hari-temples' mentioned in the AM. One of these, the Harismrti temple with the image of Guptahari, has already been noted above. The other one is Visnuhari. The legend of this idol relates that in former days a Brahmin named Visnusarman came to Ayodhya. Once there, he wished that Visnu would also reside in the town: ayodhyam agato visnur visnuh saksad vased iti/cintayan manasa viras tapah kartum samudyath//. Having thus propitiated Visnu the latter allowed on idol of himself to be installed by Visnusarman with the latter's forename prefixed to his own: ..... This legend might have been the archetype of the legends of Candrahari and Dharmahari. According to the S recension of the AM Visnuhari is the first Visnu idol installed in Ayodhya. The Mahatmya locates the temple on the bank of the Sarayu adjacent to the bathing place called Cakratirtha. Today no trace of this temple is to be found. Local tradition has it that it was completely destroyed by a flood of the Sarayu river. A house c. 350m from the site that is today recognized as Cakratirtha, contains a four-armed Visnu idol that dated from the eleventh or twelfth century.

In conclusion we may say that there is evidence for the existence of five Visnu temples in Ayodhya in the twelfth century:

www.vadaprativada.com

1) Harismrti (Guptahari) at the Gopratara ghat, 2) Visnuhari at the Cakratirtha, 3) Candrahari on the west side of the Svargadvara ghats, 4) Dharmahari on the east side of the Svargadvara ghats, 5) a Visnu temple on the Janmabhumi. Three of these temples have been replaced by mosques and one was swept away by the Sarayu. The fate of the fifth is unknown but the site is occupied today by a new Guptahari/Cakrahari temple.

As has been noted above the deification of Rama runs parallel with a reification of the city of Ayodhya. In the first half of the fifth century the identity of Saketa and Ayodhya was an established fact: Kalidasa uses both names synonymously and regards Rama as an avatara of Visnu.

The same period provides us with archaeological data that bear testimony to the existence of some form of veneration of the Rama incarnation of Visnu. A charter of the Vakataka queen Prabhavatigupta was issued "from the feet of the Lord of Ramagiri". In another inscription this queen proclaimed the bestowal of some villages to a Vaisnava teacher Canalasvamin, after these had first been offered (ritually) to the "feet of the Lord". Both inscriptions endorse the view that a sanctuary dedicated to Rama was situated on top of the Ramagiri hill, possibly enshrining the footprints (pada) of the Lord (bhagavat), spevifically those of his Rama incarnation. These footprints of the scion of the Raghu Race (raghupatipada) are referred to by Kalidasa. The same author also mentions a pond or tank in the neighbourhood of the hermitage of the Ramagiri that was dedicated to Sita. The allegiance of the poet to the court of Prabhavati-gupta's brother and nephew (Kumaragupta I and Skandagupta) makes an identification of the Ramagiri of the Meghaduta with the Ramagiri near the Vakataka capital Nandivardhana (modern Nandardhan about 30Km NE of Nagpur), from where these charters were issued, all the more likely. This hill

is known today as Ramtek and contains several old Vaisnava sanctuaries besides a temple didicated to Ramacandra.

A second stage in the rise of the cult seems to have been reached when Rama became depicted in his own right as a full form of Visnu. The oldest specimens testifying to this development may date from the tenth century. The Jaina temple of Parsvanatha in Khajuraho (c.AD 950-970) shows two images of Rama on the outer wall. The first one represents Rama holding the bow and arrow and the other shows him with four arms, holding the arrow for quiver ?) in his upper right and lower left hand, with his lower right hand blessing Hanumat and his upper left hand embracing Sita. From the eleventh century dates a temple at Osian (near Jodhpur) that represents Rama and Sita as Laksmi-Narayana."

Literary directions for the making of Rama images are not exactly congruous with the archaeological evidence. These prescription are found in several works dealing with iconography from the sixth century onwards. The Brhatsamhita and Visvaksenasamhita (both quoted in Smith 1969), and the Visnudharmottarapurana, which may all date from before AD 1000, give various iconographic descriptions of Rama and his attendants. According to the Vaikhanasagama and Visvaksenasamhita Rama should be depicted with only two arms, but the Padmasamhita allows the alternative of a four-armed image. This text declares that when an idol (bimba) of Rama is installed by itself (*svatantra) in the sanctum (*garbhagrha) it should have four arms. A group-image of Rama, Sita, and Laksmana is placed near it to be used in (special) ritual proceedings.

In view of the fact that only very few idols for the worship (arca, bimba) of Rama from before the 12th century have come to light it may be suggested that these inconographical descriptions, if not relating to ornamental sculptures on temple walls, were included in these texts chiefly for theoretical reasons and for the sake of completeness. These descriptions usually form part of passages in which all the incarnations of Visnu are systematically treated, and at the time they were conceived might not necessarily have reflected actual practice.

We conclude this survey of archaeological evidence (ante AD 1200) by mentioning the oldest idol of Rama known to us. It is an early Chola bronze image (c.AD 950) belonging to the Sri Kalyana Varadaraja Perumal temple in Paruthiyur (Thanjavur district) which was on display in the exhibition of 'Masterpieces of early South Indian Bronzes' (National Museum, New Delhi, spring 1983).

It is again the twelfth century that witnessed an invigorating renewal of orthodox religious activity. The existence of three temples exclusively dedicated to Rama is documented, and there might have been considerably more of which all traces have been lost due to ravages committed by later rulers." One puzzle remains: neither from the twelfth century, nor from the following centuries, are there more than a few rare pieces of evidence that bear testimony to the installation of Rama idols in Ramaite temples. Consequently the conclusion has been drawn that a Hinduistic temple cult of Rama did not appear before the 16th or 17th century. This theory is untenable in view of the evidence for the existence of Ramaite temples from the 12th century onwards, and secondly in view of the origin of a calas of Sanskrit texts that are exclusively devoted to the (temple) cult of Rama, who is considered to be the highest dimension of Visnu. The earliest texts which belong to this class, dating from the eleventh and twelfth centuries (and perhaps even earlier), will be dealt with below. The existence of detailed manuals of Ramaite ritual and festive ceremonies presupposes a cult in which they could be applied. The solution of the puzzle may be found in the description of one of the oldest know temples dedicated to Rama, the Rajivalocana temple.

Muhammad Tughlaq's successor, Firuz Tughlaq founded the present city of Jaunpur in AD 1359. After the invasion of Timur-i-lang, when confusion prevailed throughout the Sultanate, the Wazir Khwaja-i-Jahan, who was endowed with the title Malik-ush-Sharq, was sent by the Sultan Nasir-ud-din Mahmud to recover the eastern dominions in AD 1394. He took his residence in Jaunpur, and soon proclaimed independence. Avadh became part of the Sharqu territory until it was eventually recovered by Bahlol Lodi, the Sultan of Delhi, who appointed his nephew Mian Kala Pahar Farmuli governor of Avadh in the last years of his reign (+AD 1489). Ayodhya came under the control of the Lodis. About the aforementioned Lodi governor, Abbas Khan Sarwani remarks: "..... his jagirs were never disturbed and during all this time he gave his attention to nothing else except the accumulation of wealth. I have heard from persons of veracity that he had assured three hundred mans of red hard gold, and he did not purchase any other but golden jewelry." " Ayodhya might have been the right place for this hoarder since gold was found in its environs (see below).

Little is known as to the specific historical situation in Ayodhya under the rule of the Sharqis and Lodis. In the political domain the town had to concede much ground to the city of Jaunpur. Along with the weakness of central authority Hindu chiefs gradually strengthened their hold on the situation. With regard to this period Joshi remarks: "Under the Jaunpur kings Avadh was administered in a better way than under the Sultans of Delhi. The local zamindars and rajas also appear to have strengthened their position and the Saharq rulers (surrounded as they were by petty though independent principalities) had to placate them to maintain peace and order in their kingdom."

Scarcity of sources inevitably obscures the progress of the town during the fifteenth century. Subsequent history proves that the foundations were laid for a period of blossoming. An idea of the

prosperity and religious prestige which was attained on the eve of the age of the Great Moguls may be gleaned from the evidence left behind by the founder of the Mogul Empire.

The conqueror Zahir-ud-din Muhammad Babur visited Ayodhya in Hijri 934 (AD 1527). The new emperor writes in his diary that he was on the march to the Oudh and reached the town for the first time about March 29: "We stayed a few days on that ground (near Aud) in order to settle the affairs of Aud. People praised the land lying along the Sird (a) 7 or 8 kurohs (14-16 miles) above Aud, saying it was hunting ground." Unfortunately the diary breaks off after April 2 AD 1527, only to resume in September 18 AD 1528. In this interval a mosque was raised by order of Babur on the site of the Janmabhumi temple. Babur might therefore have stayed in Ayodhya somewhat longer or have returned later in the same year. Beveridge gives the translation of a fragment which probably deals with Ayodhya and which has obviously been displaced in the codex on which the translation of Leyden and Erskine was partly based. The passage contained in this section seems to be survival of the lost record of 934 AH (F. 339)... It may be a persian translation of an authentic Turki fragment, found, perhaps with other such fragments in the Royal Library. The translation of it runs: "After spending several days pleasantly in that place, where there are gardens, running-waters, well-designed buildings, tress, particularly mango trees, and various birds of coloured plumage, I ordered the march to be towards Ghazipur.

The columns of the Janmabhumi temple that were used in the construction of the mosque have been described above. The mosque itself contains two inscriptions, the translation of the one inside reading:

"By the command of the emperor Babur, whose justice is an edifice reaching up to the very height of the heavens, the good-hearted Mir Baqi built this alighting-place of angels. *Bavad khair baqi: (*May this goodness last forever). The year of building it was made clear likewise when I said buvad khair baqi" (=935 AH, i.e. AD 1528.)"

Another incomplete inscription is found above the entrance which provides no additional information. Mir Baqi Tashqandi was apparently appointed first Mogul governor of Avadh.

By the time of Babur Ayodhya, particularly the temple of the Birthplace had evidently gained such prestige that it aroused the envy of the new emperor, possibly incited by local Mussulmans for whom the flourishing of this Hindu centre of pilgrimage had for long been a thorn in the flesh. Local tradition has it that it was especially the pir Fazl Abbes Musa Ashikhan (whose grave is still marked today by two temple columns), who instigated Babur to demolish this denounced centre of idolatry.

Attestation regarding the existence of the idea of a Ramadurga are found from the second half o the 16th century onwards. The Ramakota seems to be alluded to by Tulsi Das in the RCM:

www.vadaprativada.com

"Every day Narada and Sanaka and toher high sages all came to Ayodhya to see the king of Kosala, and when they saw the city, they forgot they were ascetics. There were balconies inlaid with gold and jewels, with tesselated pavements of great beauty. All round the city were reared walls (kota) of wondrous charm, crowned with turrets of diverse hues, as though the nine planets had mustered an army to beleaguer Amaravati."

How this fort actually looked in the Kali age is reported by the English traveller William Finch (AD 1608-11):

"Heere are also the ruines of Ranichand [s] castle and houses, which the Indians acknowled(g)e for the great God, saying that he tooke flesh upon him to see the tamasha of the world. In these

www.vadaprativada.com

ruins remains certain Brahmenes, who record the names of all such Indians as wash themselves in the river running thereby."

According to Carnegy the oldest foundations of temples in Ayodhya date from the 17th century. Although the antiquity given by this author (obviously based on information provided by mahants) proves to be unreliable and is some times demonstrably wrong, we may infer from the survey presented by him that the Kanakabhavana is among the oldest foundations of this period. Carnegy mentions Lalajidasa as the founder 200 years ago (i.e. AD 1670). This Lalajidasa might indeed have been the first person to reclaim the holy site of Sita's palace. Smha 1957 mentions.

The Hanumat temple was founded by Abhayarama after he had got permission from the second Nawab of Avadh Safdar Jang (AD 1739-1754). The temple does not seem to have been completed before the middle of the 8th decade of the 18th century (see ad DA 17.2c).

Cp. DA 17.28cd-29 and DA 18.1-5.

There is some evidence for the existence of a shrine of a local tutelary deity on the Hanumantila which was, before it fell into the hands of the Vaisnavas, claimed as a site of worship by Saiva *samnyasis (*see ad DA 17.2c). The cult of Hanumat within Rama bhakti is a late phenomenon. Before it made its appearance within Vaisnavism it was already well-established in Saiva communions. Presumably, the basis of devotion to Hanumat by Rama bhaktas was provided by the rasa theory (which was generally acknowledged in the 17th century) which made him an example of the perfect Rama bhakta. However, the actual introduction of the cult of Hanumat might have come with the establishment of fighting sections within the Vaisnava communities in the early 18th century. The formation of akharas was modelled upon Saiva organizations in which Hanumat was worshipped (cp. Tripathi 1966, 7: the Gosains who occupied the Hanumantila 'worshipped Hanumat as if he were Bhairva'.). The Vaisnava vairagis took over this god as their tutelary deity. Ramanandi sadhus still show other customs which originally may have been peculiar to their Saiva examples (see Burghart in EHDL pp. 17-33).

www.vadaprativada.com

After the death of Akbar (AD 1605) his policy was continued by Jahangir (1605-1628). From his reign dates the first description of Ayodhya by a European visitor, viz. William Finch (AD 1608/11), whose report has been referred to above. From the same period dates the compiled description of Ayodhya that was made by Mitra Misra by order of Virasimha, the king of Orccha (AD 1605-1627), and which was based on the S recension and a chapter from the Nrsimhapurana. Although this description would have been somewhat out of date by the time Mitra Misra wrote his Tirthaprakasa, it is significant that this author does not reply on the DA recension, which was either still to be composed, or was too recent to be widely acknowledged as authoritative.

www.vadaprativada.com

Apart from the revised recension of the Ayodhyamahatmya other works on Rama bhakti began to appear in Sanskrit and Hindi in great numbers. Besides the Hanumatsamhita, the Brhatkosala-khanda, and the Avadhavilasa of Laladasa (composed in Ayodhya), B.P. Simha mentions eight more works pertaining to the Rasika school of Rama bhakti, to which we may subjoin the Anandaramayana.

Bulke adds two more works in Hindi and nine in Sanskrit belonging to the class of the building of which was commissioned by the queen of Tikamgarh, Vrsabhanu Kuvari, in AD 1887.

CHAPTER 21. THE JANMASTHANA.

Introduction

Notes to the textual evidence.

The most conspicuous fact with respect to the textual evidence relating to the tirtha Rama-janmasthana (Janmabhumi) is that on the one hand a description of this principle holy place is found in all MSS of the AM used for this edition, and on the other hand that the tirtha is not mentioned in other classical sources (e.g. Puranas, Laksmidhara's TVK, Nrsimhapurana MS, Jinaprabhasuri's TK, Bhusram., and Mitra Misra's TP). Such a silence is all the more surprising in view of the fact that archaeological evidence indicates the existence of a temple at this tirtha in the eleventh century. A reason for the omission of this holy place in the Bhusram and TP might be that at the time these texts were written the site was occupied by a mosque (built by Babur in AD 1528).

The DA recension, which presumably also dates from after the destruction of the original Janmabhumi temple, has merely taken over the description of the place as found in s and B, without adding more details and praise, yet it has connected the Janmasthana with an elaborate description of Ramanavami (OA 22, OA 23).

This chapter is interesting for text-criticism in that it illustrates the relationship between OA, B,and S. The analysis of this relationship in II, xxixf.leads to the conclusion that, since OA is not directly based on B and S but goes back to an a-type-of-text which comprised the textual materials of B and S, both agreement between B and S against OA (AM 21. 2d), as well as agreement between OA and B against S (AM 21, 1cd/4cd,2b,7b,9/15), are likely to occur. Since B rests on a later version of the 1-type-of-text than S, a version that stands nearer to the OA recension, a greater affinity of B with OA than with S can be expected, especially in regard to the sequence and the occurrence of verses (see 21.1cd/4cd and 21.9/15 (sequence of OAB vs. S), and 21.3-4, 8-11 (occurring in OAB missing in S) vs. 21.13ab (occurring in BS missing in OA)).

The fact that B represents the most direct or crudest version of the a-type-of-text, which was edited in S and in OA, while the latter has not extended the description of the birthplace (possibly for reasons advanced above), accounts for the given evidence that MS B actually contains the most complete version of this section of the Mahatmya. The incongruity of S with the a-type-of-text may have prompted the author of B(P), at variance with his normal procedure, to include the entire description of the Janmasthana, thus rewriting a passage of S that was felt to be insufficient. The omission in S of DAB 21.8-11 may have been caused by homoeoteleuton (OABS 21.7cd=OAB 21.11cd).

MS P, which omits several slokas ocurring in B (B 21.2-4) and replaces B 21.8 by another sloka, contains a hiatus after B 21.9 which is indicated by a sign …. truti. Slokas 11 and 12 are corrupt and rendered incompletely in Mss O1 and O2, and BS 21.12abcd seems to be an anacoluthon. Obviously this passage had become corrupt in an early stage of its transmission and the clumsiness of the Sanskrit that remained my have led the editor of A to delete it altogether.

The Janmabhumi may be conceived of as a compound which has comprised and still comprises several holy sites. The description is restricted to the Janmasthana temple itself in the S recension (OABS 21), but B has added two apparently subsidiary shrines-the palaces of Sumitra and Kaikeyi (OAB 25). The OA recension bears witness to a still further developed compound which comprised also two shrines of Sita, viz. Her kitchen and her well (Sitapakasthana (OA 24) and Sitakupa (OA 26). The abovementioned tirthas are today within a distance of 200m from

www.vadaprativada.com

the mosque of Babur. According to local tradition the shrines of Sumitra and Kaikeyi were destroyed along with the temple of the Janmasthana. An interpolation occurring only in edition A connects the three palaces (Kausalya, Kaikey, and Sumitra) with three ghats (tirthas) at the Sarayu (III, App.1 No.4). Due to a shift in the bed of the river these ghats are nowadays much in decay. Thus the glorification of the sacred complex of Rama's birthplace spreds over AM 21-AM 26.

In December 1949 new riots broke out between Hindus and Muslims. During the night of "The agitation continued for more than three years. It had serious repercussions on the law and order situation in this town and resulted in some assaults and murders. During these years the relations between the Hindus and the Muslims remained strained and the services of the police were constantly on call. The site of the dispute (i.e. the mosque of Janmasthana) is in police custody pending the decision of the civil court. The police maintains an armed guard on the spot for the protection of the building and the prevention of any breach of peace, and a temporary out-post has been established near the site of the dispute." (Faiz.Gaz. 249). This situation continues up to the present day.

www.vadaprativada.com

Modern situation.

Today the mosque and the railing set up by the British are still there. The lawsuit is still pending in the Court of the Civil Judge Faizabad. A sentry stands outside the fence and more soldiers are permanently quartered inside the mosque. No Muslims are allowed to enter the precincts and the Hindus may come only as far as the fence in front of the entrance gate where they have erected a small altar. On a platform near the altar groups of Hindus are continuously engaged in Kirtana. A pamphlet circulated among the many pilgrims who visit the place for darshan reads: "Shri Ram Janma Bhumi of Ayodhya is a very sacred place. Anticipating Hindu-

www.vadaprativada.com

Muslim friction the Govt. has declared it a disputed place and has taken possession over it. Regular case is being conducted in the civil and criminal court. Since December 27, 1949 day and night Akhand Kirtan is being performed with a determination that it will continue so long as "Ram Janma Bhumi" is not freed"... "It is the sacred duty of the entire Hindu Community to finance this holy cause donations (sic:) and thus earn immense "PUNYA". "A glimpse of the idols within the mosque can be seen. Offerings of food (sweets) can be given through the bars of the fence. At present only eleven Hindus are allowed to enter the mosque on special occasions to perform the puja of the idols (Sita and Rama).

On the northern side of the mosque is a new Janmasthana temple. The place was founded by a sadhu called Ramadasa, pupil of Devamurari (Prayaga), in the 18th century (Tripathi 1969, 75ff.). Gradually the hut built by Ramadasa evolved into the large temple that nowadays occupies the site. The temple is built around an inner court on the west side of which are two cellas. In one of these the images of Rama and his parivara deities are installed, the other one contains the idols of Dasaratha and his entourage. Against the wall of the court stands a piece of a door-jamb said to come from the old Janmasthana temple. It has been described in I, 44f. The temple is visited by many pilgrims.

OA 23.99. = OABS 5.2cd-3ab.

OA 23.107c. yamasthaleti. The holy place on the bank of the Sarayu dedicated to Yama is called Yamasthala. The place is unknown to BP and S.

Its location is said to be east of Gopratara (see OA 23.94b and CK: OA 23, 107cd-108cd v.1.).

Today the sanctuary of Yama lies c.1, 250m east of Gopratara on the bank of the Sarayu at the foot of the ruins of Fort Calcutta.

This tirtha is especially visited on Yamadvitiya (Karttika, su., 2), the second day after Divali. On this day a mela held on the sandbank (pulina, see OA 23.112b) in the Sarayu in front of the sanctuary (see OA 23.108). Thousands of votaries come to take a bath in the river and many of the women in particular visit the shrine of Yama to perform puja. The all-India festival of Yamadvitiya is described in Kane V, 207ff.; von stietencron 1972, 72f.; Meyer 1937 II, 208ff.

Yamasthala is included in the pradaksina of 14 kos that is held on Karttika, su. ,9 {VII(A)}.

The site for Yama worship bears more resemblance to a simple shrine of a folk cult than to a sophisticated sanctuary. Today no priests perform the worship, but the offerings are placed before the icon by the devotees themselves. As in the case of most folk cults it is impossible to give an estimate of the antiquity of this holy site. The omission of Yamasthala in BP and S points to a relatively recent origin, yet the place might have been the site of tree worship that was ignored by the earlier Sanskrit tradition (BP and S). As has been noted above (ad OA 23.56b), the pipal tree plays an important part in the legend and was obviously thought to be situated in the vicinity of the site where Yama was said to have built his sanctuary (OA 23.112). A malevolent yaksa that resided in this tree that was associated with the spirits of the deceased might easily have become connected with the personified sins, and by linking this numinous place with Yama the site became affiliated with the Sanskrit tradition while still preserving its original ominous character (note OA 23.105d akantaka). Yaksas associated with pipal trees are for instance noted in KSS 3.20.32-38 and KSS 12.94.68-72 describes a malevolent (raksasa living in an asvattha tree (cp. Crooke 1926 II, 99f.; Agrawala 1970, 117).

Today the main object of puja besides the shrine of Yama is a big pipal tree standing in the middle of the compound. This compound consists of several small shrines next to each other. They are situated on the bank of the river and are provided with ghats on both sides (east and west). The compound comprises (from east to west ) an altar with Visvanatha (containing a linga). At the foot of the tree lie several stones and trisula which are objects of puja. Lamps are lit and placed in front of the tree together with flowers and other offerings. The shrine of Yama, standing behind the pipal (west side), is a small square construction facing the river. A bas-relief painted black, representing a two-armed Yama riding on his buffalo, stands against the back-wall of the shrine. His right hand holds a sword (*khadaga), his left a shield (*khetaka).

The icon can be classified as folk-art and seems to be no older than the 19th century.

On Yamadvitiya, when I visited the sanctuary, many votaries (90% of whom were women) thronged before the shrine, casting flowers at the icon and lighting lamps in front of it (cp. Kane V, 207f.). According to some texts like the Vrataraja (see Kane V, 208) women worship the image of Yama on the occasion of Yamadvitiya in order that longevity may be bestowed upon their brothers (bhratur ayusyavrdhyartham) (cp. Meyer 1937 II, 208ff.).

Like wise A interpolates Kaikeyitirtha and Sumitratirtha after the respective descriptions of the palaces of both queens (see OA 24.8cd v.1., OA 25.2cd v. 1., OA 25.4cd v.1.; III, App. 1 No.4).

Location.

OA and CK agree that the kitchen (Sitapakasthana) is situated in the north-western corner (vayukone) of the Janmasthana.

Today a simple shrine is erected within the enclosure of the mosque of Babur in its NW corner. Before its destruction the Sitapakasthana was presumably a subsidiary shrine in the NW corner of the Nanmasthana precincts.

The new Janmasthana temple north of the mosque also contains a shrine of Sita's kitchen in the north-western part of the building. Tieffenthaler's report suggests that before the temple this site contained the shrine of Sitha Rassoi “der berruhmteste Ort” of Ayodhya (op. cit. 181).

CHAPTER 47. VISNUHARI AT CAKRATIRTHA.

Introduction

The last two slokas of this Agni/Cakratirtha mahatmya of P also occur in B (containing only the came Cakratirtha) but are missing in S and OA. They seem to contain an indication of the anteriority of P with respect to B. P 11.25ab (see below) naturally follows 24cd as it says that after a bath in Cakratirtha and the performance of a sradha sacrifice one attains bhukti and mukti and one's ancestors are satisfied. However, in MS B hemistich : 11.25ab concludes the description of Ramatirtha in which there is no mention of sradha sacrifice at all, hence the reference to the satisfaction of the ancestors is disconnected. The sloka that concludes the description of Ramatirtha in P (P 14.46ab.46ab, see B 77.25cd), on the other hand, is very similar to P 11.25 but rightly substitutes pitrtrptis ca jayate by jayate natra samsayah.

The close relation between Cakratirtha and Agnitirtha in P seems to be endorsed by the Nrsimhapurana MS there is thus an association of the Cakratirtha with Agnitirths, the same tirtha is associated with Visnuhari, a temple founded by Visnusarman, in S, OA, and Bhusram., although the latter does not mention Cakratirtha by name but deals with Visnuhari in the context of the 'Seven Haris'.

We shall give the (ofter corrupt) BP version of Agnitirtha/Cakratirtha separately below, followed by that of the Nrpur. MS and concluding with the description of Visnuhari in Bhusram. In the presentation of the AM's description of the Cakratirtha/Visnuhari complex (OA and S recensions) the BP version is not given.

The people of Ayodhya imagine, that after the death of Vrihadbala, their city was deserted, and continued so until the time of Vikrama of Ujjain, who came in search of the holy city, erected a fort called Ramgar, cut down the forests by which the ruins were covered, and erected 360 temples on the places sanctified by the extraordinary actions of Rama, of his wife Sita, of his brother Lakshman, and of his general Mahavira. The only foundation probably for such a tradition is, that Vikrama may have erected some temples, and that in the Mahabharat the genealogy of the family is continued no lower than the time of Vrihadbala, as being foreign to the subject of the book; but in the sri Bhagwat Vrihadbala is succeeded by 29 princes, and in the Bangsalata by 24. These, taken according to the scales of Rama's predecessors in Valmiki and the Sri Ghagwat, would give 18 princes, and this will give us 279, or 558 years, according as we call these successions reigns or generations, bringing the existence of the family down to the time nearly of Alexander; but none of the latter princes rose to considerable power, and they were vassals of the kings of Magadha. Their existence, however, throws a great doubt on the whole story concerning Vikrama.

This Vikrama is usually supposed to have been the personage from whom the era called Sambat is derived, and according to the reckoning used in Kosala, this ere commences 57 years before the birth of Christ, so that the city had been then deserted about 280 years. How the places remarkable for the actions of the God could be traced after such a long interval, and amidst the forest, seems rather doubtful; and the doubt will be increased, if we suppose that the latter Vikrama, the son-in-law of the Emperor Bhoj, was the person who constructed the temples at Ayodhya. This I am inclined to think was probably the case, for although Rama was probably worshipped before the time of the elder Vikrama, yet his worship, as that peculiarly distinguishing a sect of Bigots, seems to have been first established by Ramanuja about the time of the latter Vikrama, who may from thence be supposed peculiarly eager to discover the traces of the deity of his own sect. Unfortunately, if these temples ever existed, not the smallest trace of them remains to enable us to judge of the period when they were built; and the destruction is very generally attributed by the Hindus to the furious zeal of Aurungzebe, to whom also is imputed the overthrow of the temples in Benares and Mathura.

The bigot by whom the temples were destroyed, is said to have erected mosques on the situations of the most remarkable temples; but the mosque at Ayodhya, which is by far the most entire, and which has every appearance of being the most modern, is ascertained by an inscription on its walls (of which a copy is given) to have been built by Babur, five generations before Aurungzebe. This renders the whole story of Vikrama exceedingly doubtful, especially as what are said to be the ruins of his fort, do not in any essential degree differ from those said to have belonged to the ancient city, that is, consist entirely of irregular heaps of broken bricks, covered with sol, and remarkably productive of tobacco; and, from its name, Ramgar, I am inclined to suppose that it was a part of the building actually erected by Rama.

Although, I did not fail to visit the place, and whatever the Hindus reckon remarkable, I did not choose to take any measurements, so as to draw with any accuracy a plan of the space which the ruins occupy, as the doing so might have given offence to the government of the Nawab Vazir, in whose territory, separated from this district only by the river Sarayu, they are situated.

I may in a general manner observe, that the heaps of bricks, although much seems to have been carried away by the river, extend a great way, that is, more than a mile in length, and more than half a mile in width: and that although vast quantities of materials have been removed to build the Muhammedan Ayodhya or Fyzabad, yet the ruins in many parts retain a very considerable elevation; nor is there any reason to doubt, that the structure to which they belonged, has been very great; when we consider, that it has been ruined for above 2000 years. None of the Hindu buildings at present existing are in the least remarkable either for size for architecture, and they are all not only evidently, but avowedly, quite, modern, that is, they have been all erected since the reign of Aurungzebe, or most of them even within the memory of man. Although they are built on what I have no doubt are the ruins of the palace that was occupied by the princes of the family of the sun, their being built on the spots, where the events which they are intended to celebrate, actually happened, would have been extremely doubtful, even had the elder Vikrama built temples on the various places which had been destroyed by Aurungzebe, so that the spots selected by Vikrama might be known by tradition; but the whole of that story being liable to strong suspicion, we may consider the present appropriation of names of different places as no better founded than the miracles, which several of them are said to commemorate.

It is said that in digging for bricks many images have been discovered, but the few which I was able to trace were too much broken to ascertain what they were meant to represent, except one at the convent (Aakhara) of Guptar, where Lakshman is supposed to have disappeared. This represents a man and woman carved on one stone. The latter carries somewhat on her head, and neither has any resemblance to what I have before seen. The only thing except

these two figures and the bricks, that could with probability be traced to the ancient city, are some pillars in the mosque built by Babur. These are of black stone, and of an order which I have seen nowhere else, and which will be understood from the accompanying drawing. That they have been taken from a Hindu building, is evident, from the traces of images being observable on some of their bases; although the images have been cut off to satisfy the conscience of the bigot. It is possible that these pillars have belonged to a temple built by Vikrama; but I think the existence of such temples doubtful; and if they did not exist, it is probable that the pillars were taken from the ruins of the palace. They are only 6 feet high.

A GAZETTEER OF THE TERRITORIES UNDER THE GOVERNMENT OF THE EAST INDIA COMPANY, AND OF THE NATIVE STATES ON THE CONTINENT OF INDIA. COMPILED BY THE AUTHORITY OF THE HON. COURT OF DIRECTORS, AND CHIEFLY FROM DOCUMENTS IN THEIR POSSESSION. BY EDWARD THORNTON, ESQ. AUTHOR OF THE "HISTORY OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE IN INDIA."

PREFACE & (PAGE 739-40)

The desire repeatedly expressed in the General Courts of the East-India Company that an authentic Gazetteer of India should be offered to the British public in a cheap and convenient form, has led to the publication of the present edition. The work has been compiled by the authority of the Court of Directors, and though comprised within a single volume, it will be found to contain the great mass of information comprehended in the four volumes of the "Gazetteer of India." published by the same author in 1854.

This result has been obtained by retrenching some few redundancies, and by adopting an enlarge page and distributing the matter into two separate columns. By these means space has been also acquired for the insertion of much new matter, rendered necessary by the political and territorial changes which have been more recently taken place within our Eastern possessions. On the character of the work a few remarks will be sufficient. Its chief objects are,- Ist, To fix the relative position of the various cities, towns, and villages, with as much precision as possible, and to exhibit within the great practicable brevity all that is known respecting them; and, 2ndly, To note the various countries, provinces, or territorial divisions, and to describe the physical characteristics of each, together with their statistical, social, and political circumstances. To these have been added minute descriptions of the principal rivers and chains of mountains; thus presenting to the reader, within a brief compass, a mass of information which could not otherwise be obtained, except from a multiplicity of volumes and manuscript records.

The volume, in short, may be regarded as an epitome of all that has yet been written and published respecting the territories under the government, or political superintendence, of the British power in India. Its merits have been frequently discussed in the General Courts of the East-India Company, where successive Chairmen have borne ample testimony to the utility of the publication, and where it has been characterized by the best-informed among the Proprietors as "a complete history of India, untainted in any degree by political bias."

A town in the kingdom of the same name. It is situate on the right bank of the river Ghogra, which Buchanan considers hare to be "fully larger that the Ganges at Chunar," and which is navigable downwards to its mouth, upwards to Mundiya Ghaut, in the district of Bareilly. It extends about mile in a south-east direction, from the adjoining recent city of Fyzabad; the breadth of the town is some thing less from north east to south-west, or from the river landwards. The greater part of the site is on gently swelling eminences; but to the north-west, or towards Fyzabad, is low. Most of the houses are of mud, and thatched, though a few are tiled. Here, in a large building a mile from the river, is an extensive establishment, called Hanumangurh, or Fort of Hanuman, in honour of the fabled money-god the auxiliary of Rams. It has an annual revenue of 50,000 rupees, settled on it by Shuja-ud-daulah, formerly Nawaub Vizier. It is managed by a malik or abbot, the spiritual superior; and the revenues are dispensed to about 500 bairagis or religious ascetics, and other Hindoo mendicants of various descriptions; no Mussulman being allowed with the walls. Other establishments of similar character are Sugrimkilla, Ram-Prashad-ka-Kana, and Bidiya-Kund; maintaining respectively 100,250 and 200 bairagis. Close to the town on the east, and on the right bank of the Ghogra, are extensive ruins, said to be those of the fort of Rama, king of Oude, hero of the Ramayana, and otherwise highly celebrated in the mythological and romantic legends of India. Buchanan observes, "that the heaps of bricks, although much seems to have been carried away by the river, extend a great way: that is more than a mile in length, and more than half a mile in width; and that, although vast quantities of materials have been removed to build the Mahomedan Ayodha or Fyzabad, yet the ruins in many parts retain a very considerable elevation nor is there any reason to doubt that the structure to which they belonged has been very great, when we consider that it has been ruined for above 2,000 years." The ruins still bear the name of Ramgurh, or "Fort of Rama;" the most remarkable spot in which is that from which, according to the legend, Rama took his flight to heaven, carrying with him the people of his city; in consequence of which it remained desolate until half a century before the Christian era, and by him embellished with 360 temples. Not the smallest traces of these temples, however, now remain; and according to native tradition, they were demolished by Aurungzebe, who built a mosque on part of the site. The falsehood of the tradition is, however, proved by an inscription on the wall of the mosque, attributing the work to the conqueror Baber, from whom Aurungzebe was fifth in descent. The mosque is embellished with fourteen columns of only five or six feet in height, but of very elaborate and tasteful workmanship, said to have been taken from the ruins of the Hindoo fanes, to which they had been given by the monkey-general Hanuman, who had brought them from Lanka or Ceylon. Altogether, however, the remains of antiquity in the vicinity of this renowned capital must give a very low idea of the state of arts and civilization of the Hindoos at a remote period. A quadrangular coffer of stone, whitewashed, five

ells long, four broad, and protruding five or six inches above ground, is pointed out as the cradle in which Rama was…….as the seventh avtar of Vishnu; and is accordingly abundantly honoured by the pilgrimages and devotions of the Hindoos. Ayodhya or Oude is considered by the best authorities to be the most ancient city in Hindostan; and Princep mentions that some of its coins in the cabinet of the Asiatic Society of Bengal are of such extreme antiquity that the characters in which their legends are graven are totally unknown. According to Elphinstone, "from thence the princes of all other Indian countries are sprung." Buchanan conjectures that it was founded by Brahmins, whom he considers as an immigrant race, more advanced in civilization than the indigenous Indians. "These personages came from western Asia, introducing with them the Sanskrit language, generally admitted to be radically the same with Persian dialect; while the languages spoken among all the rude tribes that inhabit the fastnesses of India, and which are, probably, remains of its ancient tongue, have no sort of analogy to the languages of the West." This author supposes the city to have been founded by Vaiwaswata, one of this race, about 1,366 years before the Christian era. He considers that its renowned ruler Rama perished A.C. 775, involved in the destruction of his city by the hostile confederacy of his sons; that being rebuilt, it suffered a similar fate under the reign of Vridhabala, A.C. 512; and having lain for centuries desolate, was rebuilt A.C. 57, by Vikramaditya, the celebrated king of Oojein. Tod, however, and Wilford, fond of large numbers, place the foundation of Ayodha in an era more than 2,000 years B.C. The former writer states, without comment, a tradition that Lucknow, distant eighty miles from the present city of Oude is of comparatively recent date, as it is described in the Ayeen Akbery as one of the largest cities of Hindostan; and it is farther stated, "In ancient times this city is said to have measured 148 cose (perhaps 200 miles) in length, and thirty six cose in breadth. It is esteemed one of the most sacred places of antiquity." With the havili or municipal district attached, the city is assessed in the Ayeen Akbery at 50,209 rupees, a sum so moderate as to throw discredit on the previous statement of its being one of the greatest cities of India. The present population, according to Butter is 8,000 including 500 Mussulmans. Distant E. from Lucknow 75 miles, N. from Allahabad 95. Lat. 26° 47', long. 82° 11'.

www.vadaprativada.com

FOUR REPORTS

Volume I

PREFACE

The matter contained in these two volumes is the result of the archaeological survey which I conducted during four consecutive years from 1862 to 1865. The object of this survey cannot be better stated than in the memorandum which I laid before Lord Canningn in November 1861, and which led to my immediate appointment as Archaeological Surveyor to the government of India, as notified in the following minute:

www.vadaprativada.com

Minute by the Right Hon'ble the GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA in Council on the antiquities of Upper India, - dated 22nd January 1862.

"In November last, when at Allahabad, I had some communications with Colonel A. Cunningham, then the Chief Engineer of the North-Western Provinces, regarding an investigation of the archaeological remains of Upper India.

"It is impossible to pass through that part,- or indeed, so far as my experience goes any part- of the British territories in India without being struck by the neglect with which the greater portion of the architectural remains, and of jthe traces of by-gone civilization have been treated, though many of these, and some which have had least notice, are full of beauty and interest.

"By 'neglect' I do not mean only the omission to restore them, or even to arrest their decay: for this would be a task which, in many cases, would require an expenditure of labour and money far greater than any Government of India could reasonably bestow upon it.

www.vadaprativada.com

Page (iii)

"During the one hundred years of British dominion in India, the Government has done little or nothing towards the preservation of its ancient monuments, which, in the almost total absence of any written history, form the only reliable sources of information as to the early condition of the country. Some of these monuments have already endured for ages, and are likely to last for ages still to come; but there are many others which must son disappear altogether, unless preserved by the accurate drawings and faithful descriptions of the archaeologist.

He describes minutely all the temples and statues which surrounded the celebrated Pipal trree, known throughout the Budhist world as the Bodhi-drum. Several of the objects enumerated by the Chinese pilgrim I have been able to identify from their exact correspondence with his description.

The celebrated Bodhi tree still exists, but is very much decayed; one large stem, with three branches to the westward, is still green, but the other branches are barkless and rotten. The green branch perhaps belongs to some younger tree, as there are numerous stems of apparently different trees clustered together. The tree must have been renewed frequently, as the present Pipal is standing on a terrace at least 30 feet above the level of the surrounding country. It was in full vigour in 1811, when seen by Dr. Buchanan (Hamilton), who describes it as in all probability not exceeding 100 years of age. Hwen Thsang also describes an early renewal by King Purna Varmma after its destruction by King Sasangka, who dug up the ground on which it had stood, an moistened the earth with sugar-cane juice to prevent its renewal.

Immediately to the east of the Pipal tree there is a massive brick temple, nearly 50 feet square at bas and 160 feet in height from the granite floor of the lower story to the top of its broken pinnacle. This is beyond all doubt the Vihar, from 160 to 170 feet in height, described by Hwen Thsang as standing to the east of the Bodhi tree. Its base was about 20 paces square. It was built of bluish bricks plastered with lime; it was ornamented with niches in stages, each niche holding a golden statue of Buddha, and was crowned with an amalaka fruit in gilt copper. The existing temple, both in size and appearance, corresponds so exactly with this description, that I feel quite satisfied it must be the identical temple that was seen by Hwen Thsang. The ruined temple, as it now stands, is 160 feet in height, with a base of rather less than 50 feet square. It is built entirely of dark red brick of a bluish tinge, and has formerly been plastered all over.

FOUR REPORTS MADE DURING THE YEARS 1862-63-64-65,

By A.Cunningham, C.S.I. Volume I, Page 293 to 296

That this mound was the site of one or more Brahmanical temples seems almost certain from my discovery of a figure of Shasti, the goddess of fecundity, and of a pedestal bearing the date of Samvat 1193, or A.D. 1136, which is posterior to the extinction of Buddhism in Kanoj. I think it probable that excavations in this mound would be attended with success, as the two temples are said to have been built of stone, which no doubt furnished the whole of the materials for the Masjid and tomb of Makhdum Jahaniya.

XI. A-YU-TO, OR AYODHYA

From Kanoj the two Chinese pilgrims followed different routes, Fa Hian having proceeded direct to Sha-chi (the modern Ajudhya, near Fyzabad on the Ghaghra), while Hwen Thsang followed the course of the Ganges to Prayag, or Allahabad. The first stage of both pilgrims would, however, appear to be the same. Fa Hian states that he crossed the ganges and proceeded 3 yojans, or 21 miles, to the forest of Holi, where there were several Stupas erected on sots where Buddha had "passed, or walked, or sat." Hwen Thsang records that he marched 100 li, nearly 17 miles, to the town of Nava-deva-kula, which was on the eastern bank of the Ganges, and that at 5 li, or nearly 1 mile, to the sough-east of the town there was a Stupa of Asoka, which was still 100 feet in height, besides some other monuments dedicated to the four previous Buddhas. I thinkit probable that the two places are the same, and that the site was somewhere near Nobatganj, just above the junction of the Isan River and opposite Nanamow Ghat. But as there are no existing remains anywhere in that neighbourhood, the place has been most likely swept away by the river. This is rendered almost certain by an examination of the Ganges below the junction of the

www.vadaprativada.com

Isan. Formerly the river continued its course almost due south from Nanamow for many miles, but some centuries ago it changed its course first to the south-east for 4 or 5 miles, and then to the south-west for about the same distance, where it rejoined its old bed, leaving an island, some 6 miles in length by 4 in breadth, between the two channels. As Hwen Thsang's account places Nava-deva-kula on the very site of this island, I conclude that the town as well as the Buddhist monuments must all have been swept away by the change in the river's course.

On leaving nava-deva-kula, Hwen Thsang proceeded 600 li or 100 miles, to the south-east, and re-crossing the Ganges he reached the capital city of A-yu-to, which was 20 li, or upwards of 3 miles, in circuit. Both M. Julien and M. St. Martin have identified this place with Ayodhya, the once celebrated capital of Rama. But though I agree with them as to the probable identification of the name as that of the country, I differ with them altogether in looking for the capital along the line of the Ghaghra River, which is due cast from Kanoj, whereas Hwen Thsang states that his route was to the south cast. It is, of course, quite possible that the pilgrim may occasionally use the generic name of Ganges as the appellation of any large river, such, for instance, as the Ghaghra; but in the present case, where the recorded bearing of south-cast agrees with the course of the Ganges, I think it is almost certain that the Ganges itself was the river intended by the pilgrim. But by adopting the line of the Ganges we encounter a difficulty of a different kind in the great excess of the distance between two such well known places as Kanoj and Prayag. According to Hwen Thsang's route, he first made 100 li to Nava-deva-kula, then 600 li to Ayutho, then 300 li by water to Hayamukha, and lastly 700 li to Prayaga. All these distances added together make a total of 1,700 li, or 283 miles, which is just 100 miles, or 600 li, in excess of the true distance. But as a part of the journey, viz., 300 li, or 50 miles, was performed by water, the actual excess may, perhaps, not be more than 85 or 90 miles; although it is doubtful whether the distance of 300 li may not have been the road measurement and not the river distance. It is sufficient for our purpose to know that Hwen thsang's recorded measurement is somewhere about 100 miles in excess of the truth. The only explanation of this error that suggests itself to me is, that there may have been an accidental alteration of one set of figures, such as 600 li for 60 li, or 700 li for 70 li. supposing that the former was the case, the distance would be shortened by 540 li, or 90 miles, and if the latter, by 630 li, or 105 miles. This mode of correction brings the pilgrims's account into fair accordance with the actual distance of 180 miles between Kanoj and Prayag.

By adopting the first supposition, Hwen Thsang's distance from Nava-deva-kula to the capital of Ayutho will be only 60 lie, or 10 miles, to the south-east, which would bring him to the site of an ancient city named Kakupur, just 1 miles to the north of Scorajpoor, and 20 miles to the north-west of Cawnpoor. If we adopt the latter correction, the pilgrim's distance to Ayutho of 600 li, or 100 miles, will remain unchanged, and this would bring him via Manikpur, which is also an ancient place. By the first supposition the subsequent route would have been from Kakupur to Daundiakhera by boat, a distance of exactly 50 miles, or 300 li, and from thence to prayag, a distance of more than 100 miles, which agrees with the 700 li, or 116 miles, of the pilgrim. By the second supposition the subsequent route would have been from Khara to Papamow by water, about 50 miles, and thence to Prayag, about 8 miles of land, which agrees with the 70 li of the proposed correction. In favour of this last supposition is the fact that the bearing from Khara to Papamow of cast by south is more in accordance withHwen Thsang's recorded cast direction than the south-cast bearing of Daundiakhera from Kakupur. I confess, however, that I am more inclined to adopt the former correction, which places the chief city of Ayutho at Kakupur, and the town of Hayamukha at Daundiakher, as we know that the last was the capital of the Bais Rajputs for a considerable period. I am partly inclined to this opinion by a suspicion that the name of Kakupur may be connnected with that Bagud, or Vagud, of the Tibetan books. According to this authority a Sakya, named shampaka, on being banished from Kapila retired to Bagud, carrying with him some of Buddha's hairs and nail-parings, over which he built a chaitya. He was made king of Bagud, and the monument was named after himself (? Shampaka Stupa). No clue is given as to the position of Bagud; but as I know of no other name that resembles it, I am induced to think that it is probably the same place as the Ayutho of Hwen Thsang, which was also possessed of a Stupa containing some hairs and nail-parings of Buddha. Kakupur is well-known to the people of Kanoj, who affirm that it was once a large city with a Raja of its own. The existing remains of Kakupur consist of numerous foundations formed of large bricks, and more particularly of a connected set of walls of some large building which the people call "the palace." I have not yet visited this place, which lay out of my line of route, but I hope to have an opportunity of examining it hereafter.

XII. HAYAMUKHA OR AYOMUKHA

From Ayutho the Chinese pilgrim proceeded a distance of 300 li, or 50 miles, down the Ganges by boat to O-ye-mu-khi, which was situated on the north bank of the river, M.Julien reads this name as Hayamukha, equivalent to "Horse face," or "Iron face," which was the name of one of the D*anavas or* Titans. Neither of these names, however, gives any clue to the site of the old city; but if I am right in my indentifiction of Ayutho with Kakupur, it is almost certain tha Ayomukh must be the same as Daundiakhera. Hwen Thsang makes the circuit of the town 20 *li,*up-wards of 3 miles, but Daundikhera presents no appearance of having ever been so large. There still exist the ruins of an old fort or citadel, 385 feet square, with the walls of two buildings which are called the Raja's and Rani's palaces. The foundation of this citadel is attributed to Raja Raghunath Sinha, but he was apparently some comparatively modern Thakur, or petty Chief, as Daundiakhera is universally allowed to have been the capital of the Bais Rajputs, who claim descent from the famous Salivahan. As there are no remains of any buildings which can be identified with the momuments described by Hwen Thsang,the actual site of Ayomukha must still remain doubtful.

Much difficulty has been felt regarding the position of Fa-Hian's "great kingdom of Sha-Chi, and of Hwen Thsang's Visakha, with its enormous number of heretics," or Brahmanists; but I hope toshow in the most satisfactory manner that these two places are identical, and that they are also the same as the Saketa and Ajudhya of the Hindus. The difficulty has arisen chiefly from an erroneous bearing recorded by Fa Hian, who places Shewei, or Sravasti, to the south of Sha-chi, while Hwen Thsang locates it to the north-east, and partly from his erroneous distance of 7+3+10 = 20 yojans, instead of 30, from the well-known city of Sankisa. The bearing is shown to be erroneous by the route of a Hindupilgrim from the banks of the Godavery to Sewet, or Sravasti, as recorded in Ceylonese Buddhist works. This pilgrim, after passing through Mahissati and Ujani, or Maheshmati and Ujain, reaches Kosambi, and from thence passes through Saketa to Sewet, that is, along the very route followed by Hwen Thsang. We have, therefore, two

authorities in favour of Sewet being to the north of Saket. With regard to the distance, I refer again to the Buddhist books of Ceylon, in which it is recorded that from Sakespura (or Sangkasyapura, now Sankisa) to Sewet was a journey of 30 yojans. Now, Fa Hian makes the distance from Sankisa to Kanoj 7 yojans, thence to the forest of Holi, on the Ganges, 3 yojans, and thence to shachi 10 yojans, or altogether only 20 yojans, or 10 less than the Ceylones books. That Fa Hian's statement is erroneous is quite clear from the fact that his distance would place Shachi in the neighbourhood of Lucknow; whereas the other distance would place it close to Ajudhya, or Faizabad, or in the very position indicated by Hwen Thsang's itinerary. Here, again, we have two authorities in favour of the longer distance. I have no hesitation, therefore, in declaring that Fa Hian's recorded bearing of She-wei from Sha-chi is wrong, and that "north" should be read instead of "south."

I have now to show that Fa Hian's Sha-chi is the same as Hwen Thsang's Visakha, and that both are identical with Saketa or Ajudhya. With respect of Sha-chi, Fa Hinan relates that, on "leaving the town by the southern gate, you find to the cast of the road the place where Buddha bit off a piece of his tooth brush, and planted it in the ground, where it grew to the height of seven feet, and never increased or diminished in size." Now this is precisely the same legend that is related of Visakha by Hwen Thsang, who says that "to the south of the capital, and to the left of the road (that is, to the east as stated by Fa Hian), there was, amongst other holy objects, an extraordinary tree 6 or 7 feet high, which always remained the same, neither growing nor decreasing. This is the celebrated tooth-brush tree of Buddha, to which I shall have occasion to refer presently. Here I need only notice the very precise agreement in the two descriptions of this famous tree, as to its origin, its height, and its position. The perfect correspondence of these details appears to me to leave no doubt of the identity of Fa Hian's Shachi with the

Visakha of Hwen Thsang.

With respect to the identification of Visakha with the Saketa of the Hindus, I rest my proofs chiefly on the following points: 1st, that Visakha, the most celebrated of all females in Buddhist history, was a resident of Saketa before her marriage with Purnna Varddhana, son of Mrigara, the rich merchant of Sravasti; and 2nd, that Buddha is recorded by Hwen Thsang to have spent six years at Visakha, while by the Pali annals of Turnour he is stated to have lived 16 years at Saketa.

The story of the noble maiden Visakha is related at great lengthin the Ceylonese books. According to Hardy, she erected a Purvvdrama at Sravasti, which is also mentioned by Hwen Thsang. Now there was also a Purvvarama at Saketa, and it can hardly be doubted that this monastery was likewise built by her. She was the daughter of Dhananja, a rich merchant, who had emigrated from Rajagriha to Saketa. Now, amongst the oldest inscribed coins which have been discovered onlyat Ajudhya, we find some bearing thenames of Dhana Deva and visakha-Datta. I mention this because it seems to me to show the probability that the family of Dhananja and Visakha was ofgreat eminence in Saketa or Ayodhya; and Iinfer from the recurrence of their names, as well as from the great celebrity of the lady, that the city may possibly have been called Visakha after her name.

The identity of Saketa and Ayodhya has, I believe, always been admitted; but I am not aware that any proof has yet been offered to establish the fact. Csoma-de-koros, in speaking of the place, merely says "Saketana or Ayodhya," and H.H.wilson, in his Sanskrit Dictionary, calls Saketa "the city Ayodhya." But the question would appear to be set at rest by several passages of the Ramayana and Raghuvansa, in which Saketnagara is distinctly called the capital of Raja Dasaratha and his sons. But the following verse of the Ramayana, which was pointed out to me by a Brahman

of Lucknow, will be sufficient to establish the identity. Aswajita, father of Kaikeyi, offers to give his daughter to Dasaratha, Rajah of Saketanagara:-

Saketam nagaram Raja namna Dasaratho bali,

Tasmai deya maya kanyd Kaikeyi nama to jand.

The ancient city of Ayodhya or Saketa is described in the Ramayana as situated on the bank of the Sarayu or Sarju River. It is said to have been 12 yojans, or nearly 100 miles in circumference, for which we should probably read 12 kos, or 24 miles- an extent which the old city, with all its gardens, might once possibly have covered. The distance from the Guptar Ghat on the west, to the Ram Ghat on the case, is just 6 miles in a direct line; and if we suppose that the city with its subrubs and gardens formerly occupied the whole intervening space to a depth of two miles, its circuit would have agreed exactly with the smaller measurment of 12 kos. At the present day the people point to Ram ghat and Guptar Ghat as the eastern and western boudaries of the old city, and the southern boundary they extend to Bharat-Kund near Bhadarsa, a distance of 6 kos. But as these limits inclue all the places of pilgrimage, it would seem that the popel conside them to have been formerly insdie the city, which was certainly not the case. In the Ain Akbari, the old city is said to have measured 148 kos in length by 36 kos in breadth, or in other words it covered the whole of the Province of Oudh to the south of the Ghaghra River. The origin of the larger number is ovious. The 12 yojans of the Ramayana, which are equal to 48 kos, being considered too small for the great city of Rama, the Brahmans simply added 100 kos to make the size tally with their own extravagant notions. The present city of Ajudhya, which is confined to the north-east corner of the old site, is just two miles in length by about three-quarters of a mile in breadth; but not one-half of this extent is occupied by buildings, and the whole place wears a look of decay. There are no high mounds of ruins, covered with broken statues and sculptured pillars, such as mark the sites of other ancient cities, but only a low irregular mass of rubbish heaps, from which all the bricks have been excavated for the houses of the neighbouring city of Faizabad. This Muhammadan city, which is two miles and a half in length, by one mile in breadth, is built chiefly of materials extracted from the ruins of Ajudhya. The two cities together occupy an area of nearly six square miles, or just about one-half of the probable size of the ancient Capital of Rama. In Faizabad the only building of any consequence is the stuccoed brick tomb of the old Bhao Begam, whose story was dragged before the public during the famous trial of Warren Hastings. Faizabad was the capital of the first Nawabs of Oudh, but it was deserted by Asaf-ud-daolah in A.D. 1775.

According to the Ramayana, the city of Ayodhya was founded by Manu, the progenitor of all mankind. In the time of Dasaratha, the father of Rama, it was fortified with towers and gates, and surrounded by a deep ditch. No traces of these works now remain, nor is it likely, indeed, that any portion of the old city should still exist, as the Ayodhya of Rama is said to have been destroyed after the death of Vrihadbala in the great war about B.C. 1426, after which it lay deserted until the time of Vikramaditya. According to popular tradition this Vikramaditya was the famous Sakari Prince of Ujain, but as the Hindus of the present day attribute the acts of all Vikramas to this one only, their opinion on the subject is utterly worthless. W learn, however, from Hwen Thsang that a powerful Prince of this name was reigning in the neighbouring city of Sravasti, just one hundred years after Kanishka, or close to 78 A.D., which was the initial year of the Sake era of Salivahana. As this Vikramaditya is represented as hostile to the Buddhists, he must have been a zealous Brahmanist, and to him therefore I would ascribe the re-building of Ayodhya and the restoration of all the holy places referring to the history of Rama, Tradition says that when

Vikramaditya came to Ayodhya, he found it utterly desolate and overgrown with Jangal, but he was able to discover all the famous spots of Rama's history by measurements made from Lakshman Ghat on the Sarju, according to the statements of ancient records. He is said to have erected 360 temples, on as many dirrerent spots, sacred to Rama, and Sita his wife, to his brothers Lakshmana, Bharata, and Satrughana, and to the monkey god Hanumana. The number of 360 is also connected with Salivahana, as his clansman the Bais Rajputs assert that he has 360 wives.

There are several very holy Brahmanical temples about Ajudhya, but they are all of modern date, and without any architectural pretensions whatever. But there can be no doubt that most of them occupy the sites of more ancient temples that were destroyed by the Musulmans. Thus Ramkot, or Hanuman Garhi, on the east side of the city, is a small walled fort surrounding a modern temple on the top of an ancient mound. The name Ramkot is certainly old, as it is connected with the traditions of the Mani Parbat, which will be hereafter mentioned; but the temple of Hanuman is not older than the time of Aurangzib. Ram Ghat, at the north-east corner of the city, is said to be the spot where Rama bathed, and Sargdwari or Swargadwari, the "Gate of Paradise." On the north-west is believed to be the place where his body was burned. Within a few years ago there was still standing a very holy-Banyan tree called Asok Bat, or the "Griefless Banyan, " a name which was probably connected with that of Swargadwari, in the belief that people who died or were burned at this spot were at once relieved from the necessity of future births. Close by is the Lakshman Ghat, where his brother Lakshman bathed, and about one-quarter of a mile distant, in the very heart of the city, stands the Janam Asthan, or "Birth-place temple" of Rama. Almost due west, and upwards of five miles distant, is the Guptar Ghat, with its group of modern white-washed temples. This is the place where

Lakshman is said to have disappeared, and hence its name of Guptar from Gupta, which means “hidden or concealed.” Some say that it was Rama who disappeared at this place, but this is at variance with the story of his cremation at Swargadwari.

.....The mounds are surrounded by Musulman tombs and as it is the Muhammadan practice to bury the dead along the sides of the high roads close to their cities, I infer that the road which now runs close to the westward of the mounds, is one of the ancient high ways of the district. This is confirmed by the existence of an old masonry bridge of three arches over the Tilahi nala, to the north-west of the Mani-Parbat, as well as by the direction of the road itself, which leads from the south-end of the city straight to the Bharat-kund, and onwards to Sultanpur or Kusapura, and Allahabad or Prayaga. I notice this road thus minutely, because the identification which I am about to propose are based partly on its position and direction, as well as on the general agreement of the existing remains with the holy places described by the Chinese pilgrims.

The principal entrance to the fort lies in the hollow forming the duck's throat. The first part of the ascent, as far as the Alam-girii-darwaza, or lowest gate, is an easy rise up the gentle slope at the foot of the hill; but from the outer-gate to the top, the ascent is by a steep flight of steps said to be 360 in number. At about one-fourth of the distance, the road passes through the Sayidon-ka-darwaza, or "Sayid's gate," and about half way up through the Piron Paur, or "Pir's gate." Beyond this the ascent becomes very steep as it approaches the upper entrance, called Gaomukhi-darwaza, or "cow's mouth gate," or Alaj-giri-darwaza, was not built during the reign of Alamgir, as its name would seem to imply, but only repaired, or renamed, for the whole of the four gates are mentioned by Wm. Finch in A.D. 1610, or nearly 50 years before the accession of Alamgir. The Sayidon-ka-darwaza bears a short inscription dated in S. 1602, or A.D. 1545, which was probably the year of its repair by the Sayid governor of the fort. Its original Hindu name is unknown, as well as that of the third gate or Piron Paur. The upper gate, or Gaomukhi-darwaza, bears an inscription of S. 1857, or A.D. 1800, which was the date of its reconstruction by Ambajee, the Mahratta Governor under Doalat Rao Sindhia. Its previous name was hawa Paur, but it is said that Gaomukhi Paur was the original ancient name which was only restored by the Mahrattas.

The existing remains of the Hindu period of Narwar history are almost entirely confined to the few inscriptions which have already been noticed. But the numerous fragments of sculpture and architectural ornament, which are still to be seen in most of the

Muhammadan buildings, are sufficient to show that, in the flourishing days of Hindu sovereignty. It was probably only second to Gwalior in the number and magnificence of its temples and other edifices. The almost entire disappearance of Hindu remains is due to the wholesale destruction of the temples by Sikandar Ludi in A.H. 913, or A.D. 1508, when the fort fell into his hands by the capitulation of the Hindu garrison. The historian ferishta relates that this bigoted iconoclast remained there for six months "breaking down temples, and building mosques." Niamatullah, the historian of the Afghans, states that Sikandar, thinking the fort" so strong that it would be impossible to retake it, should it fall into the hands of the infidels, erected another fort around it to keep off the enemies." Ferishta merely records that "the king marched from Narwar, but after proceeding some distance along the Sindh River he resolved to surround Narwar with another wall, which was ordered to be immediately commenced." It is not clear from either of these accounts what was the exact nature of the works that were added by Sikandar Ludi. The simple meaning would seem to be that he added an outer line of walls, but as there are no outer walls now existin, and no traces of any former walls, I conclude that both historians must have mistaken the nature of Sikandar Ludi's additions. I think it very probable that his works must have been the two lofty inner walls which convert the central portion of the fort called the Bala-Hisar into a strong citadel that commands the other two portions, named Madar-hata and Dulha-kot.

The only work now existing in the fort hat can be atributed with any probability to the Hindus is a large tank in the citadel, called Magardhaj, or Makara-dhwaja. The name is a Hindu one, and is said to be that of the Raja at whose expense the tank was excavated. The work must have been rather costly, as the tank is 300 feet square at top, and from 35 to 36 feet deep, the whole being dug out of the solid rock. It was originally intended to hold 20 feet of water, but the thick coating of stucco, which once lined the interior, has long ago disappeared, and the tank is now quite dry except after heavy rain when it has a few feet of water, which, however, it retains only for a short time. When I last visited the fort, the bed of the tank was laid out as a garden containing a number of plantains and marigolds.

Of a later date, the only objects of interest are the iron gun of Sawai Jay Singh of Amber, and the Roman Catholic chapel and burial ground. The gun is of the most rude and primitive construction, being built up of nine parallel iron bars, which are held together by an outer casing of bronze. The lengh of the piece is 10 feet, and the diameter of the bore 3 ½ inches. it bears a Hindi insciption stating that the gun, named Phate-Jang, orthe "victorious in war" was made during here reign of Maharaja Jay Singh on the 10th day of the Waning Moon of Sravana, in the Samvat year 1753, or A.D. 1696.

The Roman Catholic cemetery is a walled enclosure, 115 feet in length by 83 feet in breadth, containing an entrance room, a small chapel, and 50 tombs. The chapel is a small apartment, 21 ½ feet long by 10 ½ feet broad, with a chancel at he end, 12 by 9 ¾ feet. Over he altar there are the letters I. H.S. surmounted by a cross. Of the tombs, two only bear inscriptions, of which one is in Portuguese and Persian, and the other in Persian only. The copy of the latter has been mislaid, but I remember that it simply recorded the death of a young girl eight years of age, named Margarita, who was the daughter of a hakim, or doctor. The other records the death of German, named Cornelius Oliver, in A.D. 1747. The Portuguese inscription in eight lines beneath a cross is as follows, the three lower lines being in smaller characters:

CORNELIO
TURAL DE

www.vadaprativada.com

NACIDOEM AQUI GR
ANO FALLECEO
AOS 7 DE NOV 1747

This is accompanied by a Persian inscription in two lines, one on each side of the slab, and perpendicular to the other inscription. It merely records the name and country of the individual in the following words:

Karnel Auliver Khom Faringi Aliman,

that is, "Cornelius Oliver, by race a German Faringi."

The existence of a Christian chapel and cemetery inside one of the strongest forts in Northern India, is fact as curious as it is interesting. From the position of Cornelius Oliver's tomb, in the very corner of the enclosure to the right hand of the chapel, I infer that it was most probably one of the first, if not the very earliest, of all the tombs, and, consequently, that the chapel must have been constructed somewhere about the same time. It is scarcely possible that any Christian establishment would have been permitted in such a position during the reign of the bigotted Aurangzib, whose governor everywhere displayed their religious zeal by the most rabid intolerance. I presume, therefore, that this Christian community was most probably not settled at Narwar until some time after the death of Aurangzib, when the rapid decay of the Muhammadan empire of Delhi led to the general employment of European artillerymen. A small company of 30 or 40 gunners, with their Native families, would have been quite sufficient to furnish 50 graves in the course of a few years.

The city of Narwar is no longer the prosperous place so graphically described by the poet Bhavabhuti, but a small town of not more than 4,000 inhabited houses, enclosed by a low wall of little strength. It has three gates, two of which, the Gwalior gate and the Jhansi gate, lead towards those cities, and the third, called the

Dobai gate, leads towards a tank of the same name. On all sides it is surrounded by crumbling houses and mounds of ruins. On one of these mounds, near the Jhansi gate, and in the old mahallah, or "ward," of kachipura, there is a large inscribed slab, 4 feet 9 inches long and 4 feet4 inches broad. The opening words, Om, Namah Siddhaya, are alone legible, as the slab has been purposely mutilated. At the end I thought that I could trace the word Samvat with the date of 1192, or A.D. 1135, but this reading is very doubtful. From the commanding position of the mound I judge that it must once have been the site of a large and important temple.

Outside the city, on the road towards Gwalior, there is a rought sandtone pillar, 23 feet 4 ½ inches in height, called the Jait-Kambh, or "column of victory." At 8 feet above the ground there is a sunken tablet, with an inscription of 33 lines, recording the genealogy of the Tomara dynasty of Gwalior, The list of names opens with Vira Sinha Deva, who established his independence immediately after the invasion of Timur, and ends with Sangrama, who succeeded to the nominal sovereignty about A.D. 1615, an died about 1630. The erection of the pillar must, therefore, have taken place during the early part of the reign of Shah Jahan, when the Kachhwahas were in disgrace for having sided with their relative, Prince Khusru, as already related in my account of the later Kachhwaha dynasty. We know that Sangrama's younger brother, Vira Mitra Sena, was in high favour with the Mogal emperor, by whom he was appointed governor of the fort of Rohitas, on the Son River, as recorded in the Rohitas inscription, which is dated in S. 1688, or A.D. 1631, after the death of Sangrama. It seems highly probable, therefore, that the tomara Prince, Sangrama, must have been the governor of Nawar at the time when the *Jait- Kambh, or "*conqueror's pillar" was erected.

On the side of the Gwalior road also there is a very fine large baori, or reservoir of water, 27 feet in diameter, with a flight of steps down to the water's edge, flanked on each side by shady cloister, supported on ten stone pillars. This baori belongs to the same period as the Jait- Kambh, as it bears an inscription dated in S. 1687, or A.D. 1630, and was therefore, most probably constructed during the temporary rule of the Tomara Princes in Narwar.

In the same direction there is a curious Sati monument erected to the memory of the two wives of Suundar Das, who was the upadya, or "spiritual guide," of the Kachhwaha Raja, Gaj Sinh, of Narwar. he accompanied the Raja to the Dakhan war, where he is said to have been killed about A.D. 1700, or perhaps, a few years later. The Raja sent his dopatta, or "plaid," to Narwar, which his two wives accepted, and burned themselves with it. They were named Ladham Devi and Surup Deve, or the "beloved wife," and "the beautiful wife," and their effigies are rudely sculptured under the inscription which records their names and those of their descendants. The present monument was erected in S. 1880, or A.D. 1823, by Josi Yadunath, the fifth in descent from Sundar Das, as the original Sati pillar, which was set up by the son, had become broken and defaced. There are several descendants of Sundar Das still living in Narwar, sipri, and Kulbaras, all of whom speak with pride of the noble act of their ancestor's wives.

The only produce of Narwar is crude iron, which is smelted in large quantities in all the neighbouring villages. The chief markets for this manufacture are in the Jhansi and Chanderi districts to the east and south, and in the Gangetic Doab to the north, where it competes successfully with English iron. The best ore is found in the vicinity of Gwalior, but, from the total want of fuel, the ore is carried to Karahi and Magraoni, near Narwar, where charcoal is comparatively cheap. But the great forests of Narwar, where Akbar used to hunt the wild elephant, are now gradually disappearing, and the consequent rise in the price of charcoal is daily adding to the cost of manufacture, so that the time is probably not far distant

when the soft malleable iron of Gwalior and Narwar will be driven from all the markets of the Doab by the cheaper and more brittle English iron.

Connected with Narwar are the two great bridges over the Sindh River,- one to the south, towards Sipri and Kulharas, and the other to the north, towards Gwalior, There is no inscription to determine the date of these bridges; but, from the great similarity of their designs with that of the smaller bridge at Nurabad, which was built in A.H. 1072 or A.D. 1661, during the reign of Aurangzib, there is every reason for believing the tradition of the people that these bridges also belong to the same period. This conclusion is corroborated by the journal of William Finch, who makes no mention of either of the bridges at the period of his visit in A.D.1610.

The south bride is situated in the midst of the hills at a place called Patti Ghati, near the smalt village of Dhongri, 10 miles to the south-west of Narwar. At this point the bed of the river is rocky throughout, and offers every advantae for the construction of a permanent bridge. But the fatal mistake of making the thickness of the piers equal to the span of the arches, which is common to all the Muhammadan bridges of this period, has filled half the channel with solid masses of masonry which “the indignant stream” has resented by working its way round each end of the bridge. From the position of two square turrets on one of the mid-channel piers, as well as from the general direction of both banks, I infer that the original bridge consisted of 22 arches, each of 19 feet 7 inches span, resting on solid piers 20 feet in thickness. The roadway was 20 feet in breadth and horizontal. As the bridge at present stands it consists of 26 of these arches, and of five smaller arches of 13 feet 9 inches span, resting on piers 16 feet 2 inches in thickness. The latter are at the northern end of the bridge, and, as they are still unbroken, I conclude, with some probability, that the Sindh River must have carried away the abutment at this end soon after it was built. But as these small arches afforded an additional waterway of only 68 feet 9 inches, the amount of relief was too small to be of any real use. The bridge was accordingly cut away at the southern end, where the bank now forms a deep bay, which extends no less than 180 feet beyond the 22nd and last arch of the original bridge. This increased channel was then bridged by four new arches of the same span as those of the first design, but they have again been swept away by the stream, and only the foundations of the piers are now traceable. The height of the piers to the spring of the arches is 15 ½ feet, and the height of the arches is 10 ¼ feet, and their thickness 3 feet. Up to the spring of the arches the piers have curved ends projecting 7 feet both up and down the stream. The upper part of each pier is pierced by a small arch of 4 feet span, or on-fifth of its thickness. As it at present stands the whole bridge is 1,204 feet in length, with 31 arches, of which 26 are large and 5 are small. Altogether the waterway amounts to only 577 feet 11 inches, while that of the solid mass of piers is no less than 592 feet 5 inches, or somewhat more than one-half of the actual breadth of the channel. The bridge is substantially and honestly built with large stones and excellent mortar, and the long stones of the parapet are carefully dovetailed together. But the original defect of blocking up one-half of the channel with a row of massive piers was fatal to the permanent stability of the bridge, which has been turned by the stream at least three times in 200 years, and which is now standing quite useless in the rainy season, and only accessible in the dry season by a ladder at one end.

The northern bridge is situated three miles to the north-east of the fort, where the bed of the Sindh River is partly firm rock and partly loose boulders. From the remains of a large pier or abutment near the north end I infer that the original bridge must have consisted of 22 arches like that the patti-Chati, each having a span of 19 feet 5 inches, with piers of the same thickness. The central pier was ornamented with two square open cupolas. The whole length of the original bridge, including two massive abutments, of which one is still standing, was 1,000 feet. After some time the three arches at the north end having been swept away by the stream, a new bridge of 10 small arches, each 11 feet 4 inches span, with piers of 13 feet 4 inches, was made at the same end, which has since shared the fate of its predecessor. The main piers and arches of this northern bridge are similar to those of the southern bridge at Patti-Ghati, and need not, therefore, be described. The piers have the same curved projections up and down stream, and the same small arches above. The masonry of the cental portion of the arches, however, must have been very inferior, as many of the arches have fallen down, although the roadway above istill intact, owing to which it is formed. The road-way is 32 feet 7 inches wide, which is increased to 110 feet at the ends by the splay of the abutments. When complete with its two additions and abutments, this northern bridge was1,098 feet in length.

AJUDHIA.

Ajudhia- Ajudhia, which is to the Hindu what Macca is to the Mahomedan, Jerusalem to the Jews, has in the traditions of the orthodox, a highly mythical origin, being founded for additional security not on the earth for that is transitory, but on the chariot wheel of the Great Creator himself which will endure for over.

In appearance Ajudhia has been fancifully likened to a fish, having Guptar as its head, the old town for its body, and the eastern parganas for its tail.

www.vadaprativada.com

Derivation- The name Ajudhia is explained by well-known local Pandits to be derived from the Sanskrit words, Ajud, unvanquished, also Aj, a name of Barmha, the unconquerable city of the Creator, But Ajudhia is also called Oudh, which in Sanskrit means a promise, in allusion it is said, to the promise made by Ram Chandr when he went in exile, to return at the end of 14 years. These are the local derivation; I am not prepared to say to what extent they may be accepted as correct. Doctor Wilson of Bombay thinks the word is taken from yudh to fight, the city of the fighting Chhatris.

Area.- The ancient city of Ajudhia is said to have covered an area of 12 jogan or 48 kos, and to have been the capital of Utar-Kausala or Kosala, (the Northern Treasure) the country of the Surajbans race of Kings, of whom Ram Chundar was 57$^{th}$ in descent from Raja Manu, and of which line Raja Sumintra was the 113$^{th}$ and last. They are said to have reigned through the Suth, Tireta, and

Dwapar Jugs, and 2,000 years of the Kul or present Jug or Era.

The description of the Ajudhia of Rama and the Ramayan has been beautifully rendered into verse by the distinguished Principal of the Benares College, Mr. Griffiths.

Her ample streets were nobly planned,
And streams of water flowed,
To keep the fragrant blossoms fresh,
That strewed her royal road.

There many a princely palace stood,
In line, on level ground,
Here temple, and triumphal are,
And rampart banner crowned.

There gilded turrets rose on high,
Above the waving green,
Of mango-groves and blooming trees,
And flowery knots between.

www.vadaprativada.com

On battlement and gilded spire,
The pennon streamed in state;
And warders, with the ready bow,
Kept watch at every gate,

She shone a very mine of gems,
The throne of Fortune's Queen;
So many-hued her gay parterres,
So bright her fountains sheen.

Her dames were peerless for the charm,
Of figure, voice, and face;
For lovely modesty and truth,
And woman's gentle grace.

Their husbands, loyal, wise and kind,
Were heroes in the field,

www.vadaprativada.com

And sternly battling with the foe,
Could die, but never yield.

Each kept his high observances,
And loved one faithful spouse;
And troops of happy children crowned,
With fruit their holy vows.

With the fall of the last of Rama's line, Ajudhia became a wilderness, and the royal race became dispersed even as the Jews. From different members of this dispersed people, the Rajas of Jaipur, Joudhpur, Udeypur, Jambu, &c., of modern times, on the authority of the "Tirhut Kuth-ha," claim to descend. Even in the days of its desertion Ajudhia is said still to have remained a comparative Paradise, for the jungle by which it was over-run, was the sweet-smelling keorah, a plant which to this day flourishes with unusual luxuriance in the neighbourhood.

Ban-Oudha.- In less ancient times when waste began to yield to cultivation, it took the name of Ban-Oudha or the Jangle of Oudh. With this period the name of Vikramajit is traditionally and intimately associated, when Budhism again began to give place to Brahminism.

The restoration by Vikramajit.- To him the restoration of the neglected and forest-concealed Ajudhia is universally attributed. His main clue in tracing the ancient city was of course the holy river Sarju, and his next was the shrine still known as Nageshar-nath, which is dedicated to Mahadeo, and which presumably excaped the devastations of the Budhist and atheist periods. With these clues, and aided by descriptions ehich he found recorded in ancient manuscripts , the different identified, and vikramajit is said to have indicated the different shrines to which pilgrims from afar still in

ghousands half-yearly flock.

Ramkot.- The most remarkable of those was of course Ramkot the strong-hold of Ramchandar. This fort covered a large extent of ground and according to ancient manuscripts, it was surrounded by 20* bastions, each of which was commanded by one of Rama's famous generals, after whom they took the names by which they are still known. Within the fort were eight royal mansions-!- where dwelt the Patriarch Dasrath, his wives, and Rama his deified son, of whom it has been plaintively sung-

"Lord of all virtues, by no stain defiled,
The king's chief glory was his eldest child,
For he was gallant, beautiful, and strong,
Void of all envy, and the thought of wrong.
With gentle grace to man and child he spoke,
Nor could the churl his harsh reply provoke,
He paid due honor to the gook and sage,
Renowned for virtue and revered for age.
And when at eve his warlike task was o'er,
He sat and listened to their peaceful lore,
Just pure and prudent, full of tender ruth,
The foe of falsehood and the friend of truth;
Kind, slow to anger, prompt at miseries call,
He loved the people, and was loved of all,
Proud of the duties of his warrior race,
His soul was worthy of his princely place.
Resolved to win, by many a glorious deed,
Throned with the gods in heaven, a priceless meed
What thought Brihaspati might hardly vie,
With him in eloquence and quick reply,
Nano heard the music of his sweet lips flow
In idle wrangling or for empty show.

www.vadaprativada.com

He shunned no toils that student's life befit,
But learned the Vedas and all holy writ;
And even eclipsed his father's archer fame,
So swift his arrow and so sure his aim.

To this praise for virtue his ancient father apparently had no pretension; for we are told that besides the three wives above marginally indicated, who caused him so much anxiety, there were 360 others of whom history says little.* A prodigality of connubial happiness which in modern days found its parallel also in Oudh, in the Kesar Bagh Harem of Wajid Ali Shah.

Note:- The same story and number of wives is also ascribed to Salivahara and Tilokchand.

Samundra Pal Dynasty.- According to tradition Raja Vikramaditta ruled over Ajudhia for 80 years, and at the end of that time he was outwitted by the Jogi Samundra Pal, who having by magic made away with the spirit of the Raja, himself entered into the abandoned body, and he sand his dynasty succeeding to the kingdom they ruled over it for 17 generations or 643 years, which gives an unusual number of years for each reign.

Note:- Ancient Hindu History is sadly mystified by the irrepressible appearance of Vikramditta. Wilford speaks of eight rulers of the name, extending over as many centuries. Something of the same kind may be said of Tilokchand in these parts, for the Bais, Bachgote and Siribastam families all had most prominent rulers of that name.

The Ajudhia Mahatum.- No account of Ajudhia would be complete with did not throw some light on the Ramayan and the Ajudhia Mahatum. Of the former of these works, I need not speak, for through the writings of Wheeler, Cust, Monier Williams &c. most readers are familiar therewith. I will therefore confine my remarks to the Ajudhia Mahatum, which is comparatively unknown.

www.vadaprativada.com

This work was prepared to the glorification of Ajudhia according to some, by Ikshawaku of the solar race, while others with more probability aver that it is a transcript from the Askundh and Padam Purans, and is not the production of any Raja. Be that as it may it is well that the essence of the work should be made available to the public, and in this view Mr. Woodburn c.s. Has been good enough to make a connected abstract for me, from a literal translation which I had made some years ago. This abstract is given as Appendix B.

Limits of Ouch.- It is not always easy to comprehend what is meant by the Oudh or Ajudhia of ancient times, for that territory has been subjected to many changes. So far as these are known to me, I give them below-

The Oudh of Rama.- Such intelligent natives as Maharaja Man Singh have informed me that at this period Oudh was divided into five portions, thus:- (1) Kosal or Utar Kosala, which included the present Trans-Gogra districts of Gorakhpur, Busti, Gondah and

Baraich. (2) Pachhamrath, which included the country between the rivers Gogra dnd Gomti, extending westwards from ajudhia to Nimkhar in Sitapur, (3) Purabrath, or the territory between the same rivers, extending eastwards towards Jaunpur, the limit not being traceable. (4) Arbar being the country around Pertabgurh, lying between the rivers Gomti and Son, probably the same that is still known as Aror or Arwar: and (5) Silliana, which incoluded some portion of the Nepal hills running along the then Oudh frontier.

The Oudh of Akbar.- Mention is made of the title of Subadar of Oudh as early as A.D. 1280, and it was one of the 15 subas or Governorships into which Akbar subdivided the empire in 1590 A.D. The Mahamadan attempt to change the name from Oudh to Akhtarnagar, never seems to have succeeded fully.

The boundaries of the old Suba differed materially from those of the present day, and a large part of what is now the eastern portion of the Province, including tanda, Aldemau, Manikpur, &c., was not in those days included in Suba Oudh, but in Allahabad. According to the Ain-i-Akbari the Suba then extended from and inclusive of Sirkar Gorakhpur, to Kanouj, and from the Himalayas to Suba Allahabad, 135 kos by 115 kos.

Suba Oudh contained five Sirkars, viz., (1) Oudh ; (2) Lucknow : (3) Baraich ; (4) Khyrabad ; and (5) Gorakhpur. The details of these are given below, but they are only approximately correct, and in regard to some places my information is incomplete.

With reference tot he remarks of Professor Wilson above referred to it may be observed that the Chinese traveller Hwen Thsang found no less than 20 Budhist monasteries with 3000 monks, at Ajudhia in the 7th century, and also a large Brahminical population with about 20 of their temples; so that after the revival of Brahminism the idea of monasteries was probably borrowed from the Budhists; or may it not have been that whole monasteries went from the one faith to the other, as they stood? If a Gour Brahmin in these days can legitimately supervise a Jain temple it seems just possible that the sectarian feelings of the Brahminists and Budhists and Jains of former times, were less bitter than we are liable to suppose.

www.vadaprativada.com

The monastic orders.- There are seven Akharas or cloisters of the monastic orders, or Bairagis, disciples of Vishnu, in Ajudhia, each of which is presided over by a Mahant or Abbot; these are:-

1. N*irbani,* or silent sect, who have their dwelling in Hanuman Garhi.
2. The Nirmohi, or void of affection sect, who have establishments at ramghat, and Guptarghat.
3. Digambari, or naked sect of ascetics.
4. The Khaki or ash-besmeared devotees,
5. The Maha-nirbani, or literally dumb branch,
6. The Santokhi, or patient family.
7. The Nir-alambhi, or provisionless sect.

www.vadaprativada.com

The expenses of these different establishments of which the first is by far the most important, are met from the Revenues of lands which have been assigned to them; from the offerings of pilgrims and visitors; and from the alms collected by the disciples in their wanderings all over India.

The Nirbani sect,- I believe the Mahant of the Nirbani Akhara or Hanumangarhi, has 600 disciples, of whom as many as 3 or 400 are generally in attendance, and to whom rations are served out at noon daily. The present incumbent has divided his followers into four Thoks or parties, to whom the names of four disciples as marginally noted, have been given.

1. Kishon Dasi.
2. Tulshi Dasi.
3. Muni Rami.
4. Jankisaran Dasi.

There appear to be as I have already pointed out in my “Notes on Races, &c., “ several grades of discipleship in connexion with

www.vadaprativada.com

I. There are the ordinary worshippers of all the different Hindu castes, who still retaining their position in the world and their home ties, become disciples in the simple hope that their prayers offered under the auspices of their spiritual guides, will be heard and their temporal wishes granted.

II. There are also those who forsaking the world and their homes, join the fraternity of devotees in view solely to their eternal well being, a privilege which is within the reach of all castes of Hindus. Of these later those who were Brahmins and Chhatris before initiation are exempted from manual labor, while the menial offices of cooking, sweeping, water drawing &c. devolve upon those of the brethren who were originally of the lower castes.

A disciple of the 2nd class isfor a time admitted as a novice and intrusted with unimportant secular offices only. He is then required to make a round of the great places of pilgrimage such as Dwarka Jagarnath, Gya *c., and on his return thence he is finally admitted to all the privileges of the order; celibacy is enforced, and those who surreptitiously marry, or steal, are expelled from the brotherhood. Brahmins and Chhatris are admitted membership without limit as to age, but candidates of other castes must be under the age of sixteen years, so that they may readily inbibe the doctrines of the order. The orders of the Mahand tand his advisers, the heads of Thoks, must be implicity obeyed. The best of the disciples are chosen to remain at the temple to conduct the devotions in solitude.

Nirmohi sect.- It is said that one Gobind Das came from Jaipur some 200 years ago and having acquired a few Bighas of revenue-free land, he built a shrine and settled himself at Ram Gaht. Mahant Tulshi Das is the sixth in succession. There are now tow branches of this order, one at Ram ghat and the other occupying the temples at Guptar Gaht. They have rent free holdings in Busti, Mankapur and Khurdabad.

The Digambari sect.- Siri Balram Das came to Ajudhia 200 years ago, whence it is not known, and havign built a temple settled here. Mahant Hira Das is the Seventh incumbent. The establishment of resident disciples is very small being limited to 15; they have several revenue free holdings in the district.

The Khaki sect.- When Ramchandr became an exile from Ajudhia his brother Lachhman is said in his grief to have smeared his body with ashes and to have accompanied him. Hence he was called Khaki and his admiring followers bear that name to this date. In the days of Shuja-ud-Dowla on Mahant Dya Ram is said to have come from Chitrkot, and having obtained 4 bighas of land, he thereon established the akhara, and this order of Bairagis now includes 180 persons, of whom 50 are resident and 100 itinerant. This extablishment has some small assignments of land in this, and in the Gondah district. Ram Das the present Mahant is seventh in succession from the local founder of the order.

The Mahanirbani sect.- Mahant Parsotam Das came to Ajudhia from Kotah Bundi in the days of Shuja-ud-Dowla, and built a temple at Ajudhia. Dial Das the present incumbent is the sixth in succession. He has 25 disciples, the great majority of whom are itinerant mendicants. The works Mahanirbani imply the worshipping of god without asking for favors, either in this world or the next.

The Santoki Sect.- Mahant Rati Ram arrived at Ajudhia from Jaipur in the days of Mansur Ali Khan, and building a temple founded this order. Two or three generations after him the temple was abandoned by his followers and one Nidhi Singh, an influential distiller in the days of the Ex-king, took the site and built thereon another temple. After this Khushal Das ofthis order returned to Ajudhia and lived and died under an Asok tree, and there the temple which is now used by the fraternity, was built by Ramkishn Das the present head of the community.

The Niralambhi sect.- Siri Birmal Das is said to have come

from Kotah in the time of Shuja-ud-Dowla, and to have built a temple in Ajudhia, but it was afterwards abandoned. Subsequently Narsing Das of this order erected a new building near Darshan Sing's temple. The present head of the fraternity is Ram Sevak, and they are dependant solely on the offerings of pilgrims.

The Janmasthan and other temples.- It is locally affirmed that at the Mahomedan conquest there were three important Hindu shrines, with but few devotees attached, at Ajudhia which was then little other than a wilderness. These were the "Janmasthan," the "Sargadwar mandir" also known as "Ram Darbar" and the "Tareta-ke-Thakur."

On the first of these the emperor Babar built the mosque which still bears his name, A.D. 1528. On the second Aurangzeb did the same A.D. 1658-1707; and on the third that sovereign, or his predecessor, built a mosque, according to the well known Mahomedan principle of enforcing their religion on all those whom they conquered.

The Janmasthan marks the place where Ram Chandr was born. The Sargadwar is the gate through which he passed into paradise, possibly the spot where his body was burned. The Tareta-ke-Thakur was famous ad the place where Rama performed a great sacrifice, and which he commemorated by setting up there images of himself add Sita.

Babar's mosque- According to Leyden's memoirs of Babar that emperor encamped at the junction of the Serwa and Gogra rivers two orthree kos east from Ajudhia, on the 28th March 1528, and there he halted 7 or 8 days settling the surrounding country. A well known hunting ground is spoken of in that work, 7 or 8 kos above Oudh, on the banks of the Surju. It is remarkable that in all the copies of Babar's life now known, the pages that relate to his doings at Ajudhia are wanting. In two places in the Babari mosque the year in which it was built 935 H., corresponding with 1528 A.D. is carved in stone, along with inscriptions dedicated to the glory of that emperor.

If Ajudhia was then little other than a wild, it must at least have possessed a fine temple in the Janmasthan; for many of its columns are still in existence and in good preservation, having been used by the Musalmans in the construction of the Babari Mosque. These are of strong close-grained dark slate-colored or black stone, called by the natives Kasoti (literally touch-stone,) and carved with different devices. To my thinking these strongly resemble Budhist pillars that I have seen at Benares and elsewhere. They are from seven to eight feet long, square at the base, centre and capital, and round or octagonal intermediately.

Hindu and Musalman differences.- The Janmasthan is within a few hundred paces of the Hanuman Garhi. In 1855 when a great rupture took place between the Hindus and Mahomedans, the former occupied the Hanuman Garhi in force, while the Musalmans took possession of the Janmastham. The Mahomedans on that occasion actually charged up the steps of the Hanuman Garhi, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then followed up this success, and at the third attempt, took the Janmasthan, at the gate of which 75 Mahomedans are buried in the "Martyrs' grave" (ganj-shahid.) Several of the King's Regiments were looking on all the time, but their orders were not to interfere. It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Mahomedans alike used to worship in the mosque-temple. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which in the mosque the Mahomedans pray, while outside the fence the Hindus have raised a platform on which they make their offerings.

The two other old mosques to which allusion has been made (known by the common people by the same of Nourang Shah, by whom they mean Aurangzeb,) are now mere picturesque ruins. Nothing has been done gby the Hindus to restore the old Mandir of "Ram Darbar." The "Tareta-ke-Thakur" was reproduced near the old ruin by the Raja of Kalu, whose estate is said to be in the Punjab, more than two centuries ago; and it was improved upon afterwards by Hilla Bai, Marathin, who also built the adjoining ghat A.D. 1784. She was the widow of Jaswant Rai, Holkar, of Indore, from which family Rs. 231 are still annually received at this shrine.

Eleven Hindus were killed. Several of the King's regiments were looking on all the time, but their orders were not to interfere. It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Muhammadans alike used to worship in the mosque-temple. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which, in the mosque, the Muhammadans pray; while outside the fence the Hindus have raised a platform on which they make their offerings. A second attempt was made shortly afterwards by Molvi Amir Ali of Amethi; the object was to seize the alleged site of an old mosque on the Hanoman Garhi.

The two other old mosques to which allusion has been made (known by the common people by the name of Naurang Shah, by whom they mean Aurangzeb, are now mere picturesque ruins. Nothing has been done by the Hindus to restore the old mandir of Ram Darbar. The Treta-ke-Thakur was reproduced near the old ruin by the Raja of Kalu, whose estate is said to be in the Panjab, more than two centuries ago; and it was improved upon afterwards by Aholya Bai, Marathin, who also built the adjoining ghat, A.D. 1784. She was the widow of Jaswant Rae, Holkar of Indor, from which family Rs.231 are still annually received at this shrine.

617. The restoration by Vikramajit.- To him the restoration of the neglected and forest-concealed Ajudhya is universally attributed. His main clue in tracing the ancient city was of course the holy reiver Sarju, and his next was the shrine still known as Nagesher-nath, which is dedicated to Mahado, and which presumably escaped the devastation of the Buddhist and Atheist periods. With these clues, and aided by descriptions which he found recoded in ancient manuscrips, the different spots rendered sacred by association with the worldly act of the defified Rama were identified and Vikramajit is said to have indicated the different shrines to which pilgrims from afar still in thousands half-yearly flock.

618. Ramkot- The most remarkable of those was of course Ramkot, the strong hold of Ramchandar. This fort covered a large extent of ground, and, according to ancient manuscripts, it was surrounded by 20*bastions, each of which was commanded by one of Rama's famous generals, after whom they took the names by which they are still known. Within the fortwere eight royal mansions,† where dwelt the patiarch Dasrath, his wives, and Rama, his deified son……

619. Sir H.Elliot mentions that on the occasion of Vikramajit's visit to Ajudhya he erected temples at 360 places rendered sacred by association with Rama. Of these shrines but 42 are known to the present generation, and as there are but few things that are really old to be seen in Ajudhya, most of these must be of comparatively recent restoration. Alist of these shrines is given as appendix A. (see para. 701), as well as of numberous thakurdwaras, &c., which have been, or are daily being, built by different nobles of Hindustan to the glorification of Ramchandar, his generals, and other members of his royal race. There are also six Mandirs of the Jain faith, to which allusion has already been made.

662. The Khaki sect.- When Ramchandar became an exile from Ajudhya, his brother Lachhman is said in his grief to have smeared his body with ashes and to have accompanied him. Hence he was called Khaki, and his admiring and his admiring followers bear that name to this date. In the days of Shuja-ud-dault one Mahant Daya Ram is said to have come from Chitrkot, and having obtained 4 bighas of land, he thereon established the akhara, and this order of Bairagis now includes 180 persons, of whom 50 are resident and 100 itinerant. This establishment has some small assignments of land in this and in the Gonda district. Ram Das, the present Mahant, is seventh in succession from the local founder of the order.

663. The Maha-nirbani sect.- Mahant Parsotam Das came to Ajudhya from Kotah Bundi in the days of Shuja-ud-daula, and built a temple at Ajudhya. Dial Das, the present incumbent, is the sixth in succession. He has 25 disciples, the great majority of whom are itinerant mendicants, the words 'Maha-nirbani' imply the worshipping of God without asking for favours either in this world or the next.

664. The Santokhi sect- Mahant Rati Ram arrived at Ajudhya from Jaipur in the days of Mansur Ali Khan, and, builing a temple, founded this order. Two or three generations after him the temple was abandoned by his followers, and one Nidhi Singh, an influential distiller in the days of the ex-king, took the site and built thereon another temple. After this Khushal Das of this order returned to Ajudhya and lived and died under an asok tree, and there the temple which is now used by the fraternity was built by Ramkishn Das, the present head of the community.

665. The Niralambhi sect.- Siri Birmal Das is said to have come from Kotah in the ime of Shuja-ud-daula and to have built a temple in Ajudhya, but it was afterwards abandoned. Subsequently, Narsing Das of this order erected a new building near Darshan Sing's temple. The present head of the fraternity is Ram Sewak, and they are dependent solely on the offerings of pilgrims.

666. The Janmasthan and other temples.- It is locally affirmed that at the Mahomedan conquest there were three important Hindu shrines, with but few devotees attached, at Ajudhya, which was then little other than a wilderness. These were the "Janmasthan," the "Sargadwar mandir," also known as "Ram Darbar," and "Tareta-ke-Thakur." On the first of these the Emperor Babar built the mosque which still bears his name, A.D. 1528; on the second Aurangzeb did the same, A.D. 1658-1707; and on the third that sovereign, or his predercessor, built a mosque according to the well-known Mahomedan principle of enfocing their religion on all those whom they conquered. The Janmasthan marks the place where Ramchandar was born. The Sargadwar is the gate through which he passed into Paradiese, possibly the spot where his body was burned. The treta-ke-Thakur was famous as the place where Rama performed a great sacrifice, and which he commemorated by setting up there images of himself and Sita.

667. Babar's mosque.- According to Leyden's Memoirs of Babar, that emperor encamped at the junction of the Serwu and Gegra rivers, two or three kos east from Ajudhya, on the 28th March, 1528 and there he halted seven or eight days, settling the surrounding country. A well-known hunting-ground is spoken of in that work, seven or eight kos above Oudh, on the banks of the Sarju. It is remarkable that in all the copies of Babar's life now known the pages that relate to his doings at Ajudhya are wanting. In two places in the Babari mosque the year in which it was built, 935 H., corresponding with 1528 A.D., is carved in stone, along with inscriptions dedicated to the glory of that emperor.

668. If Ajudhya was then little other than wild, it must at least have possessed a fine temple in the Janmasthan; for many of its columns are still in existence and in good preservation, having been used by the Musalmans in the construction of the Babari mosque. These are of strong close-graineddark slate-colored or black stone, called by the natives Kasoti (literally, touch-stone), and carved with different devices. To my thinking, these strongly resemble Buddhist pillars that I have seen at Benares and elsewhere. They are from seven to eight feet long, square at the base, centre, and capital, and round or octagonal intermediately.

669. Hindu and Musalman differnce.-The Janmasthan is within a few hundered paces to the Hanuman Garhi. In 1855, when a great rupture took place between the Hindu and Mahomedans, the former occupied the Hanuman Garhi in force, while the

Musalmans took possession of the Janmasthan. The Mahomeans on that occasion actually charged up the steps of the Hanuman Garhi, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then followed up this success, and at the third attempt took the Janmasthan, at the gate of which 75 Mahomedans are buried in the "Martys" grave" (Ganj-shahid). Several of the king's regim ents were looking on all the time, but their ordes were not to interfere. It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Mahomedans alike used to worship in the mosque temple. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which in the mosque the Mahomedans pray, while outside the fence the Hindus have, raised a platform on which they make their offerings.

670. The two other old mosques, to which allusion has been made (known by the common people by the name of Naurang Shah, by whom they mean Aurangzedb), are now mere picturesque ruins Nothing has been done by the Hindus to restore the old Mandir of "Ram Darbar." The "Tareta-ke-Thakur" was reproduced near the old ruin by the Raja of Kalu, whose estate is said to be in the Panjab, more than two centuries ago; and it was impoved upon afterwards by Hilla Bai Marathin, who also built the adjoining ghat, A.D. 1784. She was the widow of Jaswant Rae Holkar of Indore, from which family Rs.231 are still annually received at this shrine.

671. The Jain hierarchs; the Jain temples.- The generally received opinion of this sect is that they are a branch of the Buddhists who escaped the fate of the orthodox followers of Gautama in the eighth and ninth centuries, by conforming somewhat to Brahminism and even helping to persecute the Buddhists. Hence many Jains acknowledge Shiva, and in the south are even divided into castes. The precise period of the schism is unknown. The Jains recognize 24 Jainas or tirthankaras or

hierarchs, and in this they resemble the Hindus.

672. Adinath.- The first of these and founder of the sect was Adinath, also called Rishabbanath, also Adisarjidwal and Rikabdeo. This Jaina was thirteen times incarnate, the last time in the family of Ikshwaku of the solar race, when he was born at Ajudhya, his father's name being Nabi and his mother's Miru. He died at Mount Abu in Gujrat, where the oldest temple is dedicated to him, A.D. 960. The Jains, according to Ward (recent edition), allege that they formely extended over the whole of Aryu and Bharata- Khunda and that all those who had any just pretensions to be of Kshatriya descent were of their sect, and on the same authority Rishabha, another name for the same hierarch, was the head of this arheistical sect.

Ajodhya Town (in Sanskrit Ayodhya; now known as Ajudhia).- Town in Fyzabad District, united Provinces, situated in 26° 48' N. and 82° 12' E., on the right bank of the Gogra, and on branch of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway. Population (1901), 21, 584. The interest of Ajodhya centres in its ancient history. The old city has almost entirely disappeared, and only its outlines are marked by an extensive tract of elevated ground. But according to tradition Ajodhya was in remote antiquity one of the largest and most magnificent of Indian cities. It is said to have covered an area of 12 yojanas or 80 to 100 miles in circumference, though the limits according to modern tradition extend only about 6 miles from Guptar Ghat on the west to Ram Ghat on the east. Ajodhya was the capital of the kingdom of Kosala and contained the court of the great king Dasaratha, fifty-sixty monarch of the Solar line in descent from Raja Manu. The opening chapters of the Ramayana recount the magnificence of the city, the glories of the monarch, and the virtues, wealth, and loyalty of his people. Dasaratha was the father of Rama Chandra, the hero of the epic, whose cult has experienced a great revival in modern times. With the fall of the last of the Solar line, Raja Sumintra, the one hundred and thirteenth monarch, Ajodhya became a wilderness and the royal family dispersed. From different members of this scattered stock the Rajas of Udaipur, Jaipur, &c., claim descent. Tradition relates that Ajodhya was restored by king Vikramaditya of Ujjain, whole identity is a matter of dispute. Ajodhya was of small importance in Buddhist times, when Saketa became the chief city of Kisala. It is still uncertain where Saketa was situated, and it has been suggested that it occupied part of the ancient city of Ajodhya. Numismatic evidence points to the rule of a line of independent Rajas, in or near Ajodhya, about the commencement of the Christian era. The identifications of Ajodhya with the capitals of Sha-chi, 'O-yu-t'o, or Pi-so-kia, visited by the Chinese pilgrims, are all doubtful.

Under the rule of the early Muhammadan kings of Delhi, Ajodhya or Awadh was the seat of a governor whose authority extended over a varying tract of country. When Akbar had firmly established his power in Northern India, the city became the capital of a Subah or province. In the eighteenth century it was for a time the nominal head-quarters of the early Nawabs of Oudh. In 1765, however, Shuja-ud-daula made ‘his residence at FYZABAD, a few miles away, and Ajodhya lost all importance, except as a religious centre.

The present town stretches inland from a high bluff overlooking the Gogra. At one corner of a vast mound know as Ramkot, or the fort of Rama, is the holy spot where the here was born. Most of the enclosure is occupied by a mosque built by Babar from the remains of an old temple, and in the outer portion a small platform and shrine mark the birthplace. Close by is a larger temple in which is shown the cooking-place of Sita, the faithful wife of Rama. A lofty temple stands on the bank of the Gogra at the place where Lakshmana bathed; and Hanuman, king of the moneys, is worshipped in a large temple in the town, approached by an immense flight of steps, which bears the name Hanuman Garhi. Other noticeable temples built during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries are the Kanakbhawan, a fine building erected by a Rani of Tikamgarh, the Nageshwarnath templ, Darshan Singh’s temple, and a small marble temple built by the present Maharaja. Ajodhya also contains a number of Jain temples, five of which were built in the eighteenth century to mark the birthplaces of the five hierarchs who are said to have been born at Ajodhya. Besides the mosque of Babur, two ruined mosques, built by Aurangzeb, stand on the sites of celebrated Hindu Shrines-the Swargadwara, where Rama's body was cremated, and the Treta-ka-Thakur, where he sacrificed. An inscription of Jain Chand, the last king of Kanauj, has been found in the latter. Three graves are reverenced by Muslmans as the tombs of Noah, Seth, and Job, and the two last are mentioned under those names in the Ain-i-Akbari. A large mound close by, called the Maniparbat, is said to have been dropped by Hanuman when carrying a portion of the Himalays, while another tradition asserts that it was formed by the coolies who built Ramkot shaking their baskets as they left work; it possibly covers a ruined stupa.

Modern building include the spacious residence of the Maharaja of Ajodhya (see AJODHYA ESTATE) and two dispensaries. For administrative purposes Ajodhya forms part of the FYZABAD Municipality. There is little or no trade; but three great fairs take place annually in March-April, July-August, and October-November, which are sometimes attended by 400,000 persons. At special fairs the attendance has been estimated at as many as a million. There is one public school, while ten Sanskrit schools contain 350 students.

PREFACE

The articles dealing with the district of Fyzabad and its various subdivisions, towns and village in the old Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh, were taken almost wholly from the valuable and diffuse Settlement Report of Mr. A.F. Millett, which embodied a large proportion of the remarkable notes and reports of Mr. Patrick Carnegy and the late Sir John Woodburn. These contained much that is now obsolete and still more of a purely traditional and speculative character. In compiling the present volume I have found this work of great assistance, but I am far more deeply indebted to Mr. J.W. Hose, I.C.S., for the unsparing labour he has devoted to the collection of fresh material and to his valuable corrections and criticisms, The ancient history of the district has been furnished by Mr. R. Burn, I.C.S., and the rest I have collated from the various available sources.

Ajodhya is united with Fyzabad to form a singly municipality, and the details of its administration will be found in the article on the district headquarters. The first enumeration its inhabitants took place at the Oudh census of 1869, and it then contained a population of 9,949 souls. Since that time the place has rapidly increased in size. By 1881 the total had risen to 11,643, but has since almost doubled. There are no figures extant to show the number of inhabitants in 1891, as the town was already merged in the Fyzabad municipality; but at the last census of 1901 it contained 21, 584 souls, exclusive of the large number of visitors from the district and elsewhere who had come to attend the great fair on the 2nd of March. They lived in 6,471 houses, of which 2,920 were of brick or of masonry Watch and ward is maintained by a force of 40 municipal police, located in four chaukis. There is also a regular police-station, a post an telegraph office, a cattle-pound, and a number of schools. These include a vernacular middle school under the district board, and ten Sanskrit patshalas under private management, several of them maintained by the temple foundations. There is also a first class hospital given to the town by Rai Sri Ram Bahadur of Rasulpur and called by his name.

Ajodhya is undoubtedly a place of immense antiquity, but its early history is very obscure. The city is intimately connected with the mass of legend referrin to Ram Vhandra and the Solar race, and was certainly the capital of several reigning dynasties. What is know for certain of its history in ancient times has already been recorded in the opening pages of Chapter V. From the seventh century A.D. for a long period the place appears to have been almost deserted, though it rose again in importance under the Musalmans, who made it the seat of government for a large province. That it was still regarded as a holy spot by the Hindus is clear from the fact of its desecration by Babar and Aurangzeb, but it would appear that the presence of a Muhammadan governor and his court kept the Hindu shrines continually in the background. Ajodhya was a mint-town of Akbar and also of Muhammad Shah, some dams of the latter being inscribed "Akhtarnagar Awadh." It is not clear when Ajodhya first began to assume its present proportions: the change presumably occurred when the capital was removed to the new city of Fyzabad and the Qila Mubarak or fort of Saadat Khan near Lachhmangaht was abandoned for his country reisidence at the "Bangla". With the departure of the court the Hindus were left to themselves, and numerous temples and monasteries sprang into existence. Probably the rise in importance was in some degree due to the growing popularity of the Ramayan of Tulsi Das. The progress has been even more rapid since annexation; but before the middle of the nineteenth century Ajodhya was regarded as a great and even dangerous stronghold of Hinduism, as the constant fights between the rival creeds and the alarm they occasioned in court circles bear witness. This development was not due to any particular person. The great family of Sakaldipi Brahmans, whose representative bears the recent title of Maharaja of Ajodhya, had but little to do with the place, and the fine palace of the Maharaja in the east of the city and its adjoining temples are of very recent origin.

Ajodhya is pre-eminently a city of temples and apart from these there are but few points of interest in the place. Not all of these places of worship are connected with the Hindu religion. There are six Jain shrines which have been already mentioned in Chapter III in connection with Jainism in this district; and there are also the Musalman mosques and tombs. It is locally affirmed that at the time of the Musalman conquest there were three important Hindu shrines at Ajodhya and little else. These were the Janamasthan temple, the Swargaddwar, and the Treta-ka-Thakur, and each was successively made the object of attention of different Musalman rulers. The Janamasthan was in Ramkot and marked the birthplace of Rama. In 1528 A.D. Bar came to Ajodhya and halted here for a week. He distroyed the ancient temple and on its site built a mosque, still known as Babar's mosque. The materials of the old structure were largely employed, and many of the columsn are in good preservation; they are of close-grained black stone, called by the natives kasauti, and carved with various devices. Their length is from seven to eight feet, and the shape square at the base, centre and capital, the rest being round or octagonal. The mosque has two inscriptions, one on the outside and the other on the pulpit; both are in Persian and bear the date 935 Hijri. Of the authenticity of the inscription there can be no doubt, but no record of the visit to Ajodhya is to be found in the Musalman historians. It must have occurred about the time of his expedition to Bihar.

This desecration of the most sacred spot in the city caused great bitterness between Hindus and Musalmans. On many occasion the feeling led to bloodshed, and in 1855 an open fight occurred, the Musalmans occupying the Janamasthan in force and thence making a desperate assault on the Hanuman Garhi. They charged up the steps of the temple, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then made a counter-attack and stormed the Janamasthan, at the gate of which seventy-five Musalmans were buried, the spot being known as the Ganj Shahidan or the martyrs' resting- place. Several of the king's regiments were present, but their orders were not to interfere. Shortly afterwards Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi in Lucknow organized regular expedition with the object of destroying the Hanuman Garhi; but he and his forces were stopped in the Bara Banki district. It is said that up to this time both Hindus and Musalmans used to worship in the same building; but since the mutiny an outer enclosure has been put up in front of the mosque and the Hindus, who are forbidden access to the inner yard, make their offerings on a platform which they have raised in the outer one.

The other mosques were built by Aurangzeb and are now in ruins. That on the Swargaddwar replaced an ancient temple which has never been restored. The Treta-ka-Thakur marked the place where Ram performed a great sacrifice and set up images of himself and Sita. This was reproduced by the Raja of Kulu in the Punjab more than two centuries ago; it was improved by Ahalya Bai, the widow of Jaswant Rai Holkar of Indore in 1784, and the same person built the adjoining ghat. As the temple could not commemorate her name, she built another called after herself and gave an annual assignment of Rs.231 toit, the sum being still paid by the ruler of Indore. The ancient images were said to have beenrecovered from the river where they had been thrown by Aurangzeb, and were placed in the new Treta-ka Mandir. This temple is always closed during the day and is only opened at night on the 11th of the dark and light halves of each month, and for two or three nights on the occasion of the Ramnaumi and Katiki fairs. The temple is endowed with two or three villages in Basti. Purchased from the offerings made at the shrine.

Near the Mani Parbat are to tombes with are venerated as those of the patriarchs Seth and Tob. They are mentioned in the Ain-I-Akbari as being of six and seven yards in length respectively. They are agains spoken of in the Araish-i-Mahfil. To these coloney Wilford adds that of Noah, which is still shown near the police-station. The story goes that they fell here fighting the Hindus and thus acquired the rank of martyrs; pssibly there is some truth in the story, as it may be that certain Musalmans bearing these names were killed in one of the requent religious conflicts some four centuries ago, the date which Colonel Wilford assigns to the erections. Other shrines held sacred by Musalmans include that of Shah Juran Ghori, who is said to have come with Shahab-ud-din and destroyed the Jain temple of Adinath in Murao Tola near the Swargaddwar, giving his name to the mound on which his tomb stands; the shrine of

Naurahni Khurd Makka, on of the earliest Musalman immigrants and a renowned saint, said to have been named Mir Ahmad and to have derived his cognomen from Naurahni whence he came, and from the muhalla of Ajodhya in which his tomb stands; that of Khwaja Hathi, a follower of Babar, whose enshrined tomb on the Kabir Tila, one of the chief bastions of Ramkot, is still revered; and that of Makhdum Shaikh Bhikha, a western devotee, who flourished some 200 years ago and was buried to the east of the city. The shrines of Shah Saman Faiad-ras and of Shah Chup are other relics of Muhammadan antiquity, of which all traditions are lost.

The only remaining institutions of Muslaman origin are the Hayat Bakhsh and the Farhat Bakhsh, formerly royal gardens which have now passed into Hindu hands. The former was assigned to Pandit Uma Datt by the British Government, and the latter is partly owned by the Raja of Jaipur and partly by the Digambari faqirs to whom it was made over in part compensation for the Guptar Park in cantonments.

The Hindu temples are all intimately connected with the history of Ajodhya. Most of them are of comparatively recent origin, as it would appear that almost all the ancient shrines were destroyed by Aurangzeb and other Musalman zealots. The sacred places of Ajodhya are exceedingly numerous. The spot according to Hindu mythology represents the forehead of Vishnu and is the seat of learning and the chief of the seven tiraths. It is undoubtedly the most important centre of Vishnu worship in Oudh, if not in the whole of Upper India, and claims precedence over Muttra and Hardwar. It is only natural, therefore, that the sacred places connected with Vishnu in his various incarnations and especially that of Ram Chandra, the best known of all, should be many in number and should extend beyond the immediate precincts of the city, even as far as Bhadarsa and Bilharaghat. In 1902 a local committee was formed with the object of commemorating the coronation of His imperial Majestly King Edward VII, and a sum of over Rs.1,000 was collected and expended on the erection of stone pillars marking the sacred spots in Ajodhya and its neighbourhood. This work has been carried out and no fewer than 145 such stones have been erected; their ostensible purpose being to preserve the memory of the various holy spots and to serve as a guide to pilgrims and others interested in the place. A complete enumeration would be useless without some descriptive and historical account of each, and only the more important need be here mentioned.

The chief place of worship in Ajodhya is the ancient citadel of Ramkot which stood on elevated ground in the western portion of the city. The old ramparts have long is appeared, but the mound remains, and on it sat and a number of large temples. Foremost amoung these is the Hanuman Garhi, massive structure in the shape of a four-sided fort with circular bastions at each angle. Above this on the hill to the west stood the Janamasthan or birthplace of Rama, and close by are the Kanak Bhawan, a very fine building erected by the Rani of Tikamgarh or Orchha; the Sita Rasoi or Sita's kitchen; the Bara Asthan, the headquarters of a fraternity called the Bara Akhara; the Ratan Singhasan marking the place where Rama was installed after his return from exile; the Rank Mahal, Anand Bhawan, Kaushalia Bhawan or Janam Bhumi, and the temple of Amar Das, as well as many smaller temples and shirnes.

From the Hanuman Garhi the main road leads north to the river, passing, the Bhur and Shisha Mahal temples on the left, and on the right those of Kirshna, Uma Datt, and Tulsi Das. Along the river to the west of the road are the bathing ghats and above them a number of temples, the most important places being the Swargaddwar, the Janki Tirath, the ancient Nageshwarnath temple of Mahadeo, the Chandra Hari, Lachhmanghat or Sahasradhara, and the Lachhman Qila, on the site of the old Nawabi for known as the Qila Mubarak. East of the road along the river bank are many more

tmeples and holy places extending as far as Ramghat, near which is a cluster of shrines of more or less importance. Mention may be made of the Sugriva Kund, the Dharam Hari, the temple built by the Babu of Sursur in Muzaffarpur, the Mani Ram Chhaoni and Maharaja's marble temple a little north of the kotwali.

Beyond the Maharaja's palace and the Rani Bazar to the south, in the direction of Darshannagar, is the peculiar mond know as the mani Parbat. This tands some sixty-five feet high and is undoubtedly of artificial origin, possibly representing the remains of a Buddhist stupa. One legend, howe er, states that when Hanuman was sent back from Ceylon to the Himalayas to bring thence a healing herb for Llachhman's wound, be brought with him a whole mountain in order to makd certain of his errand, and a portion of this broke off and fell in Ajodhya. A second account, which is the locally accepted tradition, stats that the mound was made by Rama's labourers who, when returning home in the evening, cleaned their baskets at this spot; hence the name Orajhar or basket shakings. To the south-east of Ramakot are two smaller mounds, one of which is known as the Sugriva Parbat; and these, too, were supposed by General Cunningham to be of Buddhist origin.

PREFACE

The articles dealing with the district of Fyzabad and its various subdivisions, towns and village in the old Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh, were taken almost wholly from the valuable and diffuse Settlement Report of Mr. A.F. Millett, which embodied a large proportion of the remarkable notes and reports of Mr. Patrick Carnegy and the late Sir John Woodburn. These contained much that is now obsolete and still more of a purely traditional and speculative character. In compiling the present volume I have found this work of great assistance, but I am far more deeply indebted to Mr. J.W. Hose, I.C.S., for the unsparing labour he has devoted to the collection of fresh material and to his valuable corrections and criticisms, The ancient history of the district has been furnished by Mr. R. Burn, I.C.S., and the rest I have collated from the various available sources.

and Janunpur, at a distance of about two miles west of the Katahri station on the Oudh and Rohilkhand loop line, five miles south-east of Goshainganj, and some nine miles north-west from Akbarpur. To the south of the village runs the Marha river. The place is merely of importance as containing a police-station, a cattle-pound, and a small bazar in which markets are held twice a week. The population at the last census numbered but 233 inhabitants, the majority of whom were Brahmans. Ahrauli has a total area of 182 acres and is assessed to a revenue of Rs.75. The village lands are divided into three portions, two of which are held by the Saiyid taluqdars of Pirpur and the third by a resident Rajput.

AJODHYA, Pargana HAVELI OUDH, Tahsil FYZABAD

The ancient city of Ajodhya stands on the right bank of the ghagra, or Sarju as it is called within the sacred precincts, in latitude 26º 48' north and longitude 82° 13' east, at a distance of some four miles north-east from the city of Fyzabad, with which it is connected by a metalled road. Parallel to the latter runs the branch line of railway to Ajodhyaghat on the river bank, leaving the main line at Ranupali. The Ajodhya station lies about a mile and a half to the south of the town, to which it has access by a metalled road. A similar road runs south from the centre of the town to join the Jaunpur road at Darshannagar. Besides these there are several other branch and cross roads giving access to all parts of the place. The river is crossed by a bridge of boats at Ajodhyagaht, leased to the Bengal and North-Western Railway; in the rains its place is taken by a ferry steamer.

Ajodhya is united with Fyzabad to form a single municipality, and the details of its administration will be found in the article on the district headquarters. The first enumeration of its inhabitants took place at the Oudh census of 1869, and it contained a population of 9,949 souls. Since that time the place has rapidly increased in size. By 1881 the total had risen to 11,643, but has since almost doubled. There are no figures extant to show the number of inhabitants in 1891, as the town was already merged in the Fyzabad municipality; but at the last census of 1901 it contained 21,584 souls exclusive of the large number of visitors from the district and elsewhere who had come to attend the great fair on the 2nd of March. They lived in 6,471 houses, of which 2,920 were of brick or of masonry. Watch and ward is maintained by a force of 40 municipal police, located in four chaukis. There is also a regular police-station, a post and telegraph office, a cattle-pound, and a number of schools. These include a vernacular middle school under the district board, and ten Sanskrit patshalas under private management, several of them maintained by the temple foundations. There is also a first class hospital give to the town by Rai Sri Ram Bahadur of Rasulpur and called by his name.

Ajodhya is undoubtedly a place of immense antiquity, but its early history is very obscure. The city is intimately connected with the mass of legend referring to Ram Chandra and the Solar race, and was certainly the capital of several reigning dynasties. What is known for certain of its history in ancient times has already been recorded in the opening pages of Chapter V. From he seventh century A.D. For a long period the place appears to have been almost deserted, though it rose again in importance under the Musalmans, who made it the seat of government for a large province. That it was still regarded as a holy spot by the Hindus is clear from the fact of its desecration by Babar and Aurangzeb, but it would appear that the presence of a Muhammadan governor and his court kept the Hindu shrines continually in the background. Ajodhya was a mint-town of Akbar and also of Muhammad Shah, some dams of the latter being inscribed "Akhtarnagar Awadh." It is not clear when Ajodhya first began to assume its present proportions: the change presumably occurred when the capital was removed to the new city of Fyzabad and the Qila Mubarak or fort of

Saadat Khan near Lachhmangaht was abandoned for his country residence at "Bangla." With the departure of the ourt the Hindus were left to themselves, and numerous temples and monasteries sprang into existence. Probably the rise in importance was in some degree due to the growing popularity of the Ramayan of Tulsi Das. The progress has been even more rapid since annexation; but before the middle of the nineteenth century Ajodhya was regarded as a great and even dangerous stronghold of Hinduism, as the constant fights between the rival creeds and the alarm they occasioned in court circles bear witness. This development was not due to any particular person. The great family of Sakaldipi Brahmans, whose representative bears the recent title of Maharaja of Ajodhya, had but little to do with the place, and the fine palace of the Maharaja in the east of the city and its adjoining temples are of very recent origin.

Ajodhya is pre-eminently a city of temples and apart from these there are but few points of interest in the place. Not all of these places of worship are connected with the Hindu religion. There are six Jain shrines which have been already mentioned in Chapter III in connection with Jainism in this district; and there are also the Musalman mosques and tombs. It is locally affirmed that at the time of the Musalman conquest there were three important Hindu shrines at Ajodhya and little else. These were the Janamasthan temple, the Swargaddwar, and the Treta-ka-Thakur, and each was successively made the object of attention of different Musalman rulers. The Janamasthan was in Ramkot and marked the birthplace of Rama. In 1528 A.D. Babar came to Ajodhya and halted here for a week. He distorted the ancient tmple and on its site built a mosque, still known as Babar's mosque. The materials of the old structure were largely employed, and many of the columns are in good preservation; they are of close-grained balck stone, called by the natives kasauti, and carved with various devices. Their length is from seven to eight feet, and the shape square at the base, centre and capital, the rest being round or octagonal. The mosque has two inscriptions, one on the outside and the other on the pulpit; both are in Persian and bear the date 935 Hijri. Of the authenticity of the inscription there can be no doubt, but no record of the visit of Ajodhya is to be found in the Musalman historians. It must have occurred about the time of his expedition to Bihar.

This desecration of the most sacred spot in the city caused great bitternes between Hindus and Musalmans. On many occasion the feeling led to bloodshed, and in 1855 an open fight occurred, the Musalmans occupying the Janamasthan in force and thence making a desperate assault on the Hanuman Garhi. They charged up the steps of the temple, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then made a counter-attack and stormed the Janamasthan, at the gate of which seventy-five Musalmans were buried, the spot being known as the Ganj Shahidan or the martyrs' resting –place. Several of the king's regiments were present, but their orders were not to interfere. Shortly afterwards Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi in Lucknow organized regular expedition with the object of destroying the Hanuman Garhi; but he and his forces were stopped in the Bara Banki district. It is said that up to this time both Hindus and Musalmans used to worship in the same building; but since the mutiny an outer enclosure has been put up on front of the mosque and the Hindus, who are forbidden access to the inner yard, make their offerings on a platform which they have raised in the outer one.

The other mosques were built by Aurangzeb and are now in ruins. That on the Swargaddwar replaced an ancient temple which has never been restored. The Treta-ka-Thakur marked the place where Ram performed a great sacrifice and set up images of himself and Sita. This was reproduced by the Raja of Kulu in the Punjab more than two centuries ago; it was improved by Ahalya Bai, the widow of Jaswant Rai Holkar of Indore in 1784, and the same person built the adjoining ghat. As the temple could not commemorate her name, she built another called after herself and gave an annual assignment of Rs.231 to it, the sum being still paid by the ruler of Indore. The ancient images were said to have been recovered from the river where they had been thrown by Aurangzeb, and were placed in the new Treta-ka Mandir. This temple is always closed during the day and is only opened at night on the 11th of the dark and light halves of each month, and for two or three nights on the occasion of the Ramnaumi and Kaki fairs. The temple is endowed with two or three villages in Basti. purchased from the offerings made at the shrine.

Near the Mani Parbt are two tombs with are venerated as those of the patriarchs Seth and Tob. They are mentioned in the Ain-i-Akbari as being of six and seven yards in length respectively. They are agains spoken of in the Araish-i-Mahfil. To these Colonel wilford adds that of Noah, which is still shown near the police-station. The story goes that they fell here fighting the Hindus and thus acquired the rank of martyrs; possibly there is some truth in the story, as it may be that certain Musalmans bearing these names were killed in one of the requent religious conflicts some four centuries ago, the date which Colonel Wilford assigns to the erections. Other shrines held sacred by Musalmans include that of Shah Juran Ghori, who is said to have come with Shahab-ud-din and destroyed the Jain temple of Adinath in Murao tola near the Swargaddwar, giving his name to the mound on which his tomb stands; the shrine of Naurahni Khurd Makka, on of the earliest Musalman immigrants and a renowned saint, said to have been named Mir Ahmad and to have derived his cognomen from Naurahni whence he came, and from the muhalla of Ajodhya in which his tomb stands; that of khwaja Hathi, a follower of Babar, whose enshrined tomb on the Kabir Tila, one of the chief bastions of Ramkot, is still revered; and that of Makhdum Shaikh Bhikha, a western devotee, who flourished

some 200 years ago and was buried to the east of the city. The shrines of Shah Saman Fariad-ras and of Shah Chup are other relics of Muhammadan antiquity, of which all traditions are lost.

The only remaining institutions of Muslaman origin are the Hayat Bakhsh and the Farhat Bakhsh, formerly royal gardens which have now passed into Hindu hands. The former was assigned to Pandit Uma Datt by the British Government, and the latter is partly owned by the Raja of Jaipur and partly by the Digambari faqirs to whom it was made over in part compensation for the Guptar Park in cantonments.

The Hindu temples are all intimately connected with the history of Ajodhya. Most of them are of comparatively recent origin, as it would appear that almost all the ancient shrines were destroyed by Aurangzeb and other Musalman zealots. The sacred places of Ajodhya are exceedingly numerous. The spot according to Hindu mythology represents the forehead of Vishnu and is the seat of learning and the chief o the seven tiraths. It is undoubtedly the most important centre of Vishnu worship in Oudh, if not in the whole of Upper India, and claims precedence over Muttra and Hardwar. It is only natural, therefore, that the sacred places connected with Vishnu in his various incarnations and especially that of Ram Chandra, the best known of all, should be many in number and should extend beyond the immediate precincts of the city, even as far as Bhadarsa and Bilharaghat. In 1902 a local committee was formed with the object of commemorating the coronation of His Imperial Majesty King Edward VII, and a sum of over Rs.1,000 was collected and expended on the erection of stone pillars marking the sacred spots in Ajodhya and its neighbourhood. This work has been carried out and no fewer than 145 such stones have been erected; their ostensible purpose being to preserve the memory of the various holy spots and to serve as a guide to pilgrims and others interested in the place. A complete enumeration would be useless without some descriptive and historical account of each, and only the more important need be here mentioned.

The chief place of worship in Ajodhya is the ancient citadel of Ramkot which stood on elevated ground in the western portion of the city. The old ramparts have long disappeared, but the mound remains, and on it sat and a number of large temples. Foremost amoung these is the Hanuman Garhi, massive structure in the shape of a four-sided fort with circular bastions at each angle. Above this on the hill to the west stood the Janamasthan or birthplace of Rama, and close by are the Kanak Bhawan, a very fine building erected by the Rani of Tikamgarh or Orchha; the Sita Rasoi or Sita's kitchen; the Bara Asthan, the headquarters of a fraternity called the Bara Akhara; the Ratan Singhasan marking the place where Rama was installed after his return from exile; the Rank Mahal, Anand Bhawan, Kaushalia Bhawan or Janam Bhumi, and the temple of Amar Das, as well as many smaller temples an shrines.

From the Hanuman Garhi the main road leads north to the river, passing, the Bhur and Shisha Mahal temples on the left, and on the right those of Krisna, Uma Datt, and Tulsi Das. Along the river to the west of the road are the bathing ghats and above them a number of temples, the most important places being the Swargaddwar, the Janki Tirath, the ancient Nageshwarnath temple of Mahadeo, the Chandra Hari, Lachhmanghat or Sahasradhara, and the Lachhman Qila, on the site of the old Nawabi fort known as the Qila Mubarak. East of the road along the river bank are many more temples and holy places extending as far as Ramghat, near which is a cluster of shrines of more or less importance. Mention may be made of the Sugriva Kund, the Dharam Hari, the temple built by the Babu of Sursur in Muzaffarpur, the Mani Ram Chhaoni and Maharaja's marble temple a little north of the kotwali.

Beyond the Maharaja's palace and the Rani Bazar to the south, in the direction of Darshannagar, is the peculiar mond know

as the Mani Parbat. This stands some sixty-five feet high and is undoubtedly of artificial origin, possibly representing the remains of a Buddhist stupa. One legend, however, states that when Hanuman was sent back from Ceylon to the Himalayas to bring thence a healing herb for Lachhman's wound, be brought with him a whole mountain in order to makd certain of the errand, and a portion of this broke off and fell in Ajodhya. A second account, which is the locally accepted tradition, states that the mound was made by Rama's labourers who, when returning home in the evening, cleaned their baskets at this spot; hence the name Orajhar or basket shakings. To the south-east of Ramakot are two smaller mounds, one of which is known as the Sugriva Parbat; and these, too, were supposed by General Cunningham to be of Buddhist origin.

UTTAR PRADESH DISTRICT GAZETTEERS FAIZABAD

BY

(Shrimati) ESHA BASANTI JOSHI, B.A. (Hons),

Preface

This is the second in the series of the revised gazetteers of the districts of Uttar Pradesh (the first being that of the district of Lucknow). The first gazetteer of Faizabad was compiled by H.R. Nevill and was published in 1905.

Prior to 1905, information about this district was available, as a booklet, A Historical Sketch of Tahsil Fyzabad, Zillah Fyzabad, was written by the then deputy commissioner of the district (P. Carnegy) and published in 1870. The Reports of the first and second Settlements of the district contained much useful information and the district also found a place in the Ouch Gazetteer which was published in 1877.

The spelling of the name of the district (which is the same as that of the headquarters town) was changed from 'Fyzabad' to 'Faizabad' on November 4, 1947, by a Government order.

The spellings of Indian words in the text, such as dewan, vizir, sirkar, kutcha, etc., are the same as those used in standard English dictionaries and such words have not been italicised or included in the glossary.

Generally the figures pertaining to population are those of the census of 1951 (unless otherwise stated).

The more common and accepted diacritical marks have been used but only in the ancient history section of chapter II and in the portion relating to ancient culture in chapter XV. A glossary of Indian words and terms and a bibliography of the more important works used or referred to in the preparation of the gazetteer will be found at the end of the book.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the members of

the Advisory Board for having proffered their help and advice and for going through the drafts of the chapters and to the Central Gazetteer Unit for their suggestions and cooperation; the scheme of contents of this gazetteer conforms as closely as possible to the all-India pattern laid down by the Government of India. I would also like to thank those officials and non-officials who in one way or another (by supplying material, photographs and other types of data) have helped in the preparation, printing and bringing out of this volume.

The sunga line of Ayodhya had certainly become extinct with the advent of the Kushanas into whose hands Kosala passed in the 1st century A.D., and who ruled over it for a century or so. Tibetan and Chinese writings contain in the traditions of Kanishka's conflict with the kings of Saketa and Pataliputra and of their being subdued by him. This victory brought to him the famous poet and theologian, Asvaghosha, author of Bhddhacharita and Saundarananda who was originally a learned Brahmana of Saketa and had become a convert of Buddhism.

The third class belongs to a later dynasty and the coins are round pieces, struck from dies an usually bearing on the obverse the device of a bull facing an upright standard or spear and on the reverse a bird (presumably a cock) and a palm tree with a river (or snake) and sometimes a framed nandipada also. The names of rulers supplied by this series are: Sayyamitra, Ayumitra (Aryamitra), Sanghamitra, Vijayamitra, Kumudasena, Ajavarman and Devamitra. The actual sequence of these rulers is not known but there is little doubt that they belong to a single dynasty and were probably feudatories of the Kushanas. It appears that their rule lasted till the rise of the Guptas.

The Gupta- Chandragupta I was the real founder of the kingdom which he extended up to Saketa (Avadh) and Prayaga (Allahabad). If the spurious Gaya copper plate inscription is to be believed, his son and successor, the great conqueror Samudragupta, had a jayaskandhavara (camp of victory) in Ayodhya. The Vayupurana also mentions that Saketa (or Ayodhya) was included in the domains of Guptas.

According to tradition the credit for the restoration of Ayodhya goes to king Vikramaditya of Ujjai, who is usually identified with Chandragupta II Vikramaditya (379-413 A.D.), the son and successor of Samudragupta. There is reason to believe that in the 5th century A.D. Ayodhya rather than Pataliputra was the premier city of the Gupta empire.

www.vadaprativada.com

PAGES 35-36

Post Gupta Period- With the decline of the Gupta in the 6th century A.D., Ayodhya also began gradually to become desolate. At this time a new dynasty, that of the Maukharis, with its capital at Kanauj, assumed an important position on the political map of northern India and this kingdom included Avadh. A large hoard of Maukhari coins was discovered in village Bhitaura (pargana mangalsi, tahsil Faizabad) and some were found by Rivett Carnac in Ayodhya itself. Many of these coins were found to be associated with those of Siladitya-Pratapasila whom Sir Richard Burn identifies with Harsha Vardhana (606-647) into whose hands the dominions of the Maukharis had passed. if this is correct, it would be a direct proof that Ayodhya was under the rule of Harsha.

During his reign the famous Chinese pilgrim Hiuen Tasang (630-644 A.D.) passed through Avadh. Travelling from Kanauj and crossing the Ganga to the south he reached the O-yu-to country. The capital of this country, which was about a mile to the south of the river, has generally been identified with Ayodhya, although, on account of difficulties of direction ad distance, Cunningham proposes a different site for Hiuen Tsang's O-yu-to.

According to Hiuen Tsang, this region yielded good crops, was luxuriant in fruits and flowers and had a genial climate. The people had agreeable ways, were fond of good deeds and were devoted to practical learning. Here there were about 100 Buddhist monasteries, more than 3,000 Mahayani and Hinayani monks and only ten deva (non-Buddhist god) temples, the non- Buddhists being but few in number. Then the pilgrim goes on to give an account of the Buddhist scholars, Asanga and Vasubandhu, and of the Buddhist monuments of the place, but is silent about its government.

PAGES 46-47

Under the Jaunpur kings Avadh was administered in a better way than under the later Sultans of Delhi. The local zamindars and rajas also appear to have strengthened their position and the Sharqi rulers (surrounded as they were by petty though independent principalities) had to placeate them to maintain peace and order in their kingdom. It was in the reign of Ibrahim Shah Sharqi (1401-1440 A.D.) that Mir Saiyid Muhammad Ashraf Jahangir Simnani, author of Lataif-I-Ashrafi and number of important mystical works, went from Jaunpur to Kichhauchha (now in tahsil Tanda) and died there on 27h Muharam, 808 H. (25th July, 1405 A.D.). He is said to have exercised a great deal of influence on the local population.

From 1452 to 1480, Bahlul (the founder of the Lodi dynasty of the Afghans) had to wage incessant war against the Sharqi Sultans before he could put end to their power.

Avadh again became a part of the Sultanate of Delhi and was given by Bahlul to an Afghan noble named Kala Pahar Farmuli. Sultan Husain Sharqi, an ambitious man (who had retired to Bihar), took every opportunity to retrieve the ground he had lost. Avadh and Jaunpur remained in a disturbed condition till about 1495, when Sikandar Lodi was able to consolidate his empire as far as Bihar. But peace was short-lived, for many Afghan nobles were alienated from his successor, Ibrahim Lodi. In the early years of the latter's reign a civil war broke out between the Sultan and his brother, Jalal Khan, whose followers defeated Sai Khan, son of Mubarak Khan Lodi of Avadh. But Jalal Khan's power could not last very long and Avadh again came uner the sway of Ibrahim Lodi.

The Mughals- On the eve of Babur's invasion, Bayazid Farmuli held Avadh. After Ibrahim Lodi's death in the battle of Panipat (1526), he, with a number of other Afghan chiefs, joined Babur and a portion of Avadh, carrying a large amount of revenue, was assigned to him by Babur. But he soon rebelled against his new master who himself hastened towards the east in February, 1528, ordering Chin Timur Sultan to proceed in advance to crush the rebels. The latter reached Avadh as a result of which Bayazid and his family escaped to Ghazipur. Babur himself reached Avadh (Ayodhya) and stayed there for a few days and was greatly impressed with the "garens, running water, well designed buildings, trees, particularly mango trees, and various birds ofcoloured plumage." He appointed Baqi Tashqandi the governor of Avadh, who subdued the rebellious local chiefs. During his regime Baqi built a mosque in Ayodhya in 1528. The inscription inside the mosque gives the date of the construction of the building in the last line and is as follows:

Ba farmuda-I-Shah Babur ki adlash

Bina ist ta kakh-I-garun mulaqi

Bina kard in muhbit-i-qudiyan

Amir-i-saadat-nishan Mir Baqi

Buvad khair baqi-chu sal-i-benaish

Ayan shud ke guftam-Buvad Khair baqi

[By the command of the Emperor Babur whose justice is an edifice reaching up to the very height of the heavens, The goodhearted Mir Baqi built this alighting-place of angles; *Buvad khair baqi! (*may this goodness last for ever!) The year of building it was made clear likewise when I said, Buvad Khair baqi (=935).]

Pages 352, 353, 354

Ayodhya is pre-eminently a town of temples but not all the places of worship are connected with the Hindu religion. There are some Jain shrines and several Muslim mosques and tombs. It is said that at the time of the Muslim conquest there were three important Hindu shrines here and little else, the Janmasthan temple, the Swargadwar and the Treta-ke-Thakur. The Janmasthan was in

www.vadaprativada.com

Ramkot and marked the birthplace of Rama. It seems that in 1528 A.D. Babur visited Ayodhya and under his orders this ancient temple was destroyed and on the site was built what came to be known as Babur's mosque. The material of the old temple was largely employed in building the mosque and a few of the original columns are still in good preservation; they are of close grained balck stone (kasauti) bearing various Hindu bas-reliefs (see Plate I), the outer beam of the main structure being of sandal wood. The height of the columns is seven to eight feet, the shape of the base, the middle section and the capital is square, the rest being round or octagonal. There are two inscriptions in Persian, one on the outside and the other on the pulpit bearing the date 935 Hijri. Subsequently Aurangzeb also desecrated the shrines of Ayodhya which led to prolonged bitterness between the Hindus and Muslims. The latter occupied the Janmasthan by force and also made an assault on Hanuman Garhi. Attacks and counter-attacks coninued, culminating in the bloodshed of 1855 under the leadership of Maulvi Amir Ali. As a result, in 1858 an outer enclosure was put up on front of the mosque and the Hindus, who were forbidden access to the inner yard, had to perform their puja on a platform outside. Since 1949 the position has changed and the Hindus have succeeded in installing the images of Rama and Sita in the mosque owing to which the spot has become he object of much litigation. Now the inner yard is protected by an armed guard and only a few Hindu pujaris (priests) are allowed access to the inner sanctum.

Outside the outer wall of this contested shrine there is an old and broken image of the Varah (boar). There are a number of mounds in the vicinity bearing traces of different layers of brick work. A good view of the Saryu and the country beyond may be seen from the old platform o one of these mounds.

Other mosques built by Aurangzeb are now in ruins. That near Swargadwar replaced an ancient temple. Near the Maniparvat

there are two graves (venerated as those of the patriarchs Seth and Job) which are mentioned in the Ain-i-Akbari as being six and seven yards in length respectively. A grave about 9 yards long and reputed to be that of Noah, is situated near the police-station. Another shrine held sacred by the Muslims is that of Shah Juran Ghori who is said to have come with Shahabud-din and destroyed the Jain temple of Adinath in the Murao Tola near Swargadear, giving his name to the mound on which his tomb stands. The shrine of naurahni Khurd Makka takes its name from one of the earliest Muslim immigrants and a renowned saint, Mir Ahmad (who is said to have derived his cognomen from the place Naurahni from where he came). The tomb on Kabir-tila (one of the chief bastions of Ramkot) is still revered as that of Khwaja Hathi, a follower of Babur.

There are some other old shrines such as those of Makhdum Shaikh Bhikha (a devotee who lived about 250 years ago), of Shah Saman Fariad-ras and of Shah Chup. The only remaining institutions of Muslim origin are the Hayat Bakhsh and the Farhat Bakhsh, for mer royal gardens which later passed into Hindu hands.

Among the numerous temples of Ayodhyua is the Treta-ke-Thakur which marks the place where Rama performed an ashvamedh yajna and set up images of Sita and himself. About three centuries ago, the Raja of Kulu built a new temple, presumably on the same site. It was improved in 1784 by Ahalya Bai, the famous Holkar queen, who also built the adjoining ghat. The ancient images (of black stone) were said to have been thrown into the river by Aurangzeb and to have been recovered and placed in the new temple know as Kaleram-ka-mandir.

The chief place of worship in Ayodhya is the site of the ancient citadel of Ramkot which stood on elevated ground in the western part of the city. The old ramparts have long since disappeared but the mound remains and on it stand a number of temples. The Hanuman Garhi, a massive structure in the shape of a four-sided fort with circular bastions at each corner, houses a temple Hanuman and is the most popular shrine in Ayodhya.

The Mahant (pontiff) of Hanuman Garhi claims to have in his possession a record indicating that the present structure was constructed on the site of some land granted by a Nawab of Avadh to sadhu who cured him of a severe illness.

Among other places of interest is the Kanak-bhavan. Legend has it that Kaikeyi built it for Sita, and that it was originally the place of Rams. Subsequently it appears to have fallen into decay and to have been restored time and again by various kings, including Vikramaditya,. The present temple was built by Rani Krishnabhanu Kunwari of Orchha in 1891. There are some modern paintings and a small library here as well as a copy of Sanskrit inscription which seems to imply that on Tuesday, the 2nd of the dark fortnight of Pausa in Yudhisshthir samvat 2431, King Vikramaditya, the son of Gandharva Sen, restored this temple and installed in it the images of Rama and Sita.

Other sacred places are the Sita Rasoi (sita's kitchen), the Barasthan, the Ratna-singhasan (marking the place where Rama was enthroned after his return from exile), the Rang-mahal, Anand-bhawan, Kaushalya –bhavan and the temple of Ksheereshwarnath containing the image of Siva said to have been installed by Kaushalaya.

From Hanuman Gari the main road lads north to the river passing the Bhur and the Shish-mahal temples on the left and on the right those of Krishan, Uma dutt and Tulsidas. To Tulsidas is dedicated a temple, Tulsi-chaura, which is said to be the place where he started writing his great epic, Ramacharitmanasa.

AYODHYA, on the right bank of the Gogra River, Near Fyzabad in Oudh, is in latitude on 26° 48' 20" North; and longitude 82° 24' 40" E. It has now a population of 7518 of Hindus and Mahomadans but in ancient times it was the capital of the kingdom of Kosla, the Modern Oudh, ruled over by the great King Dasarath of the Solar line, and father of Ram Chandra. At one time it is said to have covered an area of 12 yojana, equal of 96 miles. During Buddhist supremacy Ajodhya decline, but on the revival of Brahmanism it was restored by King Vikramaditya (AD 57). There are many Jain Temple and three mosque on the site of three Hindu shrines, - the Janmsthan on the site where Ram was born, the Swarg Dwar (Mandir) where his remains were burns, and the Tareta Ka Thakur, framed as the seen of one of his great sacrifices. A mausoleum is here of the Babu Begum and is the finest in Oudh.

On the south the steps were much broken, and on the east he was unable to dig owing to the presence of huge banyan tree which stands in the very position which they would have occupied. His survey also revealed the very curious fact that the four gateways did not occupy the four cardinal points, the northern gate being 17 ½ ° to the east of the magnetic meridian.

There is a small lingam on the mound, which with the supposed statue of Sita-Mai in a small modern temple, shares the devotion of the villagers. The figure is 3' 4" in height, and presents a dancing girl resting on her left foot on prostrate human figure, with her right knee bent. Her left hand rests on her hips, while her right hand is raised above her head grasping the branch of the favourite sal tree. A parrot is perched on her upper left arm under the sal branches, which on the left side have broken into flower. The stone of which this statue is made is the common red sandstone of the Fathpur Sikri quarries near Mathura; and as the whole of the costume and the attitude and pose of the figure with the crouching man under the feet are similar to those of the Mathura figures, there is little doubt that this statue was carved at Mathura.

The ruined stupa is now named after this statur Sita-dohar, or "Sita's mound," and the large lake close by, which is about a mile in length, is simply known as Sita-dohar-tal, or "the lake of Sita's mound."

There is an isolated mound 500 feet to the west of this stupa,

which would appear to be the remains of a small monastery. The traces of the walls show a square of 80 feet, with towers at the four corners. A little further to the west-nor-west, at a distance of 3,700 feet from the stupa, there is a long low mound upwards of 800 feet from north to south and 500 or 600 feet from east to west, which may have been the site of the old town. It now belongs to the recently established village of Allabbakshpur; but as the land still belongs to Tandwa, the mound most probably represents the site of the old town visited by Fa Hian and Hiuen Tsiang. It is now called Bar-ki-bhari, or "banyan tree mound."

Near the great stupa on the south side there are the remains of several small isolated buildings containing from two to three rooms each.

At 300 feet to the east-south-east of the great stupa, there is a small round-shaped mound, which from its appearance seems to be the remains of a second stupa.

www.vadaprativada.com

The accounts given by the two Chinese pilgrims of the sacred buildings at Tandwa agree in all main points, but they disagree as to the number of stupas, which Fa Hian makes to be three, while Hiuen Tsiang describes only two. Both of the pilgrims were informed that Tandwa was the birth-place of Kasyapa Buddha, but this is at variance with the Buddhist chronicles, which refer his birth to Banaras.

II.- FAIZABAD DISTRICT

1. Ajudhya, famous place of pilgrimage, in pargana Haveli Audh of tahsil Faizabad, on the right bank of the river Ghagra, lat. 26º -47'., long. 82°-15' E., two miles east of head-quarters, is the ancient city of Ayodhya, described in the Ramayana as situated on the bank of the Sarayu, or Sarju river. It is said to have been 12 yojanas, or nearly 100 miles in circumference, for which we should probably read 12 kos or 24 miles,- and extent which the old city will all its

gardens might once possibly have covered. The distance from the Guptar Ghat on the west to Ram Ghat on the east is just six miles in a direct line; and if we suppose that the city with its suburbs and gardens formerly occupied the whole intervening space to a depth of two miles, its circuit would have greed exactly with the smaller measurement of 12 kos. At the present day the people point to Ram Ghat and Guptar Ghat as the eastern and western boundaries of the old city, and the southern boundary they extend to Bharatkund near Bhadarsa, a distance of six kos. But as these limits include all places of pilgrimage, it would seem that the people consider them to have been formerly inside the city, which was certainly not the case. In the Ain-i-Akbari the old city is said to have measured 148 kos in length by 36 kos in breadth, or in other words, it covered the whole province of Audh to the south of the Ghaghra river. The origin of the larger number is obvious. The 12 yojanas of the Ramayana, which are equal to 48 kos, being considered too small for the great city of Ramachandra, the Brahmanas simply added 100 kos to make the size tally with their own extravagant notions. The present city of Ayodhya, which is confined to the north-east corner of the old site, is just two miles in length by about three-quarters of a mile in breadth; but not one-half of this extent is occupied by buildings, and the whole place wears a look of decay. There are no high mounds of ruins covered with broken statues and sculptured pillars, such as mark the sites of other ancient cities, but only a low irregular mass of rubbish heaps, from which all the bricks have been excavated for the houses of the neighbourning town of Faizabad. This Musalman city, which is two miles and a half in length by one mile in breadth, is built chiefly of materials extracted from the ruins of Ayodhya. The two cities together occupy an area of nearly six square miles, or just about one-half of the probable size of the ancient capital of Rama.

According to the Ramayana, the city of Ayodhya was founded

by Manu, the progenitor of all mankind. In the time of Dasaratha, the father of Rama, it was fortified with towers and gates and surrounded by a deep ditch. No traces of these works now remain, nor is it likely, indeed, that any portion of the old city should exist, as the Ayodhya of Rama is said to have been destroyed after the death of Brihadbala, after which it lay deserted until the time of Vikramaditya of Ujjayini, who, according to tradition, came in search of the holy city, erected a fort called Ramgarh, but down the jangal by which the ruins were covered, and erected 360 temples on the spots sanctified by the extraordinary actions of Rama. The Vikramaditya of this story, General Cunningham takes to be Chandragupta II, of the Imperial Gupta dynasty, A.D. 395-415, whose rule certainly extended to Ujjayini, as his inscriptions have been found at Sanchiand Udaygiri Bhilsa.

The are several very holy Brahmanical and Jaina temples about Ayodhya, but they are all of modern date and without any architectural pretensions whatever; but there can be no doubt that most of them occupy the sites of more ancient temples that were destroyed by the Musalmans. Thus Ramkot, or Hanuman Garhi, on the east side of the city, is a small walled fort surrounding a modern temple on the top of an ancient mound. This fort is said to have formerly covered a large extent of ground, and, according to tradition, it was surrounded by 20 bastions, each of which was commanded by one of Rama's famous generals after whom they took the names by which they are still known. Within the fort were eight royal mansions, where dwelt Dasaratha, his wives, and Rama, his deified son. The name Ramkot is certainly old, but the temple of Hanuman is not older than the time of Aurangzib. Ram Ghat, at the north-east corner of the city, is said to be the spot where Rama bathed, and Svargadvaram, also called the Ram Darbar, on the north-west, is believed to be the lace where his body was burned. Treta-ke-Thakur is famous as the place where Rama performed a great sacrifice, and which he commemorated by setting up there images of himself and Sita. Close by is the Lakshmana Ghat, where his brother Lakshmana bathed, and about one quarter of a mile distant, in the very heart of the city, stands the Janmasthanam, or "birth-place temple," of Rama. Almost due west, and upwards of five miles distant is the Guptar Ghat, with its group of modern whitewashed temples. This is the place where Lakshmana is said to have disappeared, and hence its name of Guptar, for gupta, "hidden or concealed." Some say that it was Rama who disappeared at this place, but this is at variance with the story of his cremation at Svargadvaram.

There are five Digambara temples at Ayodhya which were built in Samvat 1781, in the time of Shuja-ad-daulah, to mark the birth-places of five Tirthamkaras, viz., Adinatha, Ajitanatha, Abhinandanatha, Sumatinatha, and Anantajit, who are said to have been born at Ayodhya. The temple of Adinatha is situated near the Svargadvaram on a mound, known as Shah-Juran-ka-tila, on which there are many Musalman tombs and a masjid. According to the local Musalman tradition, Makhdum Shah Juran Ghori, who came to Audh with Shahab-ad-din Ghori, destroyed the ancient temple of Adinatha and erected on its ruins the Musalman edifices which gave to the mound the name by which it is still known. Besides these five temples of the Digambaras there is a sixth temple of the Svetambaras, dedicated to Ajitanatha, which was built in Samvat 1881.

It is locally affirmed that at the Musalman conquest there were three important Hindu temples at Ayodhya: these were the Janmasthanam, the Svargadvaram, and the Treta-ke-Thakur. On the first of these Mir Khan built a masjid, in A.H. 930, during the reign of Babar, which still bears his name. This old temple must have been a very fine one, for many of its columns have been utilized by the Musalmans in the construction of Babar's Masjid. These are of strong, close-grained, dark-coloured, or black stone, called by the natives kasauti, “touch-stone slate,” and carved with different devices; they are from seven to eight feet long, square at the base, center and capital, and round or octagonal intermediately. On the second and third Aurangzib built masjids, which are now mere picturesque ruins. A fragmentary inscription of Jayachchhandra of Kanauj, dated Samvat 1241, and recording the erection of temple Vishnu, was rescued from the ruins of Aurangzib's Masjid, known as Treta-ke-Thakur, and is now in the Faizabad Museum.

La plus petite - - - - 4785771 Roupies.

Parmi les villes de cette province, Avad (ou Oude) & Lacnau sont deux des principales & des plus anciennes, & méritent une mention particulière.

Avad, appelée Adjudea, par les Indous lettrés, est une ville de la plus haute antiquité. Ses maisons ne sont (pour la plûpart) que de limon, couvertes de paille, ou de tuiles; plusieurs (cependant) sont de brique. La rue principale va du Sud au Nord, & a un mille environ de longueur. La largeur (de la ville) est un peu moins grande. Sa partie occidentale est assise sur une colline de terre, ainsi que celle du Nord. Celle du Nord-est repose sur des éminences. Vers Bangla elle est unie.

Aujourdhui cette ville n'est gueres peuplée, depuis la fondation de Bangla ou Féfabad, ville nouvelle où le Gouverneur a établi sa résidence, & où un très grand nombre (d'habitans d'Oude) se sont transplantés.

Sur la rive Sud (du Deva) se trouvent divers bâtimens construits par les gentils, en mémoire de Ram, qui se prolongent du Levant au Couchant (a).

Le lieu le plus remarquable eſt celui que l'on nomme Sorgadoári, c'eſt à dire: le temple céleſte. Car ils diſent que Ram a enlevé de là au ciel tous les habitans de la ville: ce qui a quelque reſſemblance avec l'aſcenſion du Seigneur. La ville alors déſerte fut repeuplée & rendue à ſon premier état par Bikarmadjit, ce fameux Roi d'Oudjen.

Il y avoit ici un temple conſtruit ſur le bord élevé du fleuve; mais Aurengzebe, toujours attentif à propager la ſecte de Mahomet & ayant en horreur les gentils, le fit démolir & remplacer par une mosquée accompagnée de deux obéliſques, afin d'abolir juſqu'au ſouvenir de la ſuperſtition Indoue. Une autre moſquée bâtie par les Maures eſt contiguë à celle-là vers le Levant.

Près du Sorgadoari eſt un édifice bâti en long par Nabalray, un Indou, cidevant lieutenant du gouverneur (proprætor) de cette province (a).

Mais un endroit fameux particulièrement, eſt celui qu'on appelle Sitha raſſoi, c'eſt à dire, la table de Sitha, femme de Ram. Ce lieu eſt attenant à la ville, au Midi, & ſitué ſur une éminence de terre.

L'empereur Aurengzebe a fait démolir la forteresſe appelée Ramcòt, & a élevé au même lieu un temple mahométan, à triple coupole. D'autres diſent qu'il a été conſtruit par Bàbor. On y voit 14 colonnes de pierre noire, hautes de 5 empans, qui occupoient l'emplacement de la forteresſe. Douze de ces colonnes portent maintenant les arcades intérieures de la Mosquée; deux (de ces 12) ſont placées à la porte du cloître. Les deux autres ſont partie du tombeau d'un certain Maure. On raconte que ces colonnes, ou plûtôt ces débris de colonnes artiſtement travaillées ont été apportées de l'ile de Lanca ou Selendip [appelée Ceylan par les Européens] par Hanumann, Roi des Singes.

On voit ſur la gauche une caiſſe carrée élevée à 5 pouces de terre, revêtue de chaux, longue d'environ 5 aunes, large tout au plus de 4. Les Indous la nom-

La raiſon en eſt, qu'il y avoit autrefois ici une maiſon où Beſchan nâquit en ſe produiſant ſous la figure de Ram, & où ſont auſſi nés, dit-on, ſes trois frères. Dans la ſuite Aurengzebe ou ſelon d'autres, Bâbor, fit raſer ce lieu: afin d'ôter aux gentils l'occaſion d'y pratiquer leurs ſuperſtitions; néanmoins ils rendent encore un culte ſuperſtitieux à l'un & l'autre endroit: ſavoir, à celui où étoit la maiſon natale de Ram, en en faiſant trois fois le tour, proſternés par terre. Les deux endroits ſont entourés d'une muraille baſſe garnie de créneaux. On entre dans l'avantſalle par une porte baſſe ceintrée.

Pas loin de là eſt un endroit où l'on creuſe des grains de riz noirs convertis en petites pierres, que l'on dit être cachés ſous terre depuis le tems de Ram.

La forteresſe conſtruite en quarré, aſſiſe ſur le bord élevé du fleuve, eſt munie de tours rondes & baſſes. Les murs ont beſoin de réparation. Elle eſt dégarnie d'habitans & point en état de défenſe. Autrefois les Gouverneurs de la Province y avoient leur réſidence: Sadatkhan effrayé par un mauvais augure la transféra à Bangla. Aujourd'hui elle eſt détruite de fond en comble.

Depuis l'endroit où ſont plantés les canons, jusqu'à Oude; par l'eſpace de 2 milles, le Gagra prend ſon cours vers l'Eſt, faiſant un double coude, l'un près de la partie occidentale de la ville, l'autre à peu de diſtance de là vers l'Oueſt; ſe repliant de là vers le N. d'Ingolſtadt en Bavière, mais le volume de ſes eaux eſt moindre. Dans la ſaiſon des pluies il s'étend fort au large; tellement que dans quelques endroits ſa largeur paſſe un mille & demi.

Bangla ou Feſabad a été fondée par Sádatkhan, après qu'il eut abandonné la ville d'Oude. Originaire de la Perſe, il fut, il y a plus de 40 ans, Gouverneur de cette province; il bâtit un palais (a), planta un jardin admirable, dans le goût Perſan, & établit ici ſa réſidence. Peu à peu cet endroit devint une ville, qui a plus d'un mille en longueur.

Le Gouverneur actuel, petit fils de celui-là, a orné la ville de pluſieurs bâtimens & jardins, après qu'en 1765 les Anglois la lui eurent rendue avec toute la province; il a auſſi aggrandi la place du marché qui étoit ci-devant étroite, & a muni la forteresſe d'un foſſé, de tours rondes & d'un rempart, en ſorte que la forte population en a fait une ville d'une très grande enceinte. La latitude géographique de cette place, obſervée en 1767, s'eſt trouvée de 26°. 29'.

On voit au milieu un trou ſoûterrain, couvert d'une coupole de grandeur médiocre. Tout auprès eſt un arbre Tamarinier haut & âgé. Un portique régne à l'entour. On dit que Ram, après avoir vaincu le Géant Ravan & être revenu de Lanka, eſt deſcendu dans cette foſſe & y a diſparu: de là vient qu'on a donné à l'endroit le nom de Gouptar, qui ſignifie: Départ pour les airs. Vous avez donc là une Deſcente aux enfers, de même que vous aviez à Oude une Montée au ciel. On pourra ſe faire par la figure une idée du local & de la forme de cet endroit. (b)

Le Gagra fait ici deux coudes en ſe diviſant en deux bras: l'un, le plus grand, prend ſon cours vers le Nord-eſt; l'autre, le plus petit, coule vers Bangla. De

Para wise comments on the objections raised by Shri Ved Prakash, Advocate for the plaintiff are as follows:

1. That on page no. 252 in para 6 line 2, the word "Fifabad" is said to have been wrongly spelt as Fesabad. The font used was that of 18th Century and not the modern French/English font. The exact spelling is Fesabad and is pronounced (in French) as फेजाबाद.

2. That on page no. 253 in the first line word the Sorgadoari has been retained with same spelling. The pronunciation of this word is सोंग दिवारी.

3. That the word 'Oudjen' (pronounced as उज्जैन ) was wrongly typed as Oude. It is acknowledged that the word 'oude' should be replaced with 'Oudjen'. The English equivalent of Oudjen is Ujjain.

4. It is submitted that the French word 'Empans' was duly translated as 'spans'. However, it is not legible whether it is 5 spans or 6 spans. The original document may be consulted for ascertaining the correct number.

(A) Sindi, (E) likewise Sara, Sadanpour, Gopamao, Khiri, Kherighar* with a prominent fortress partly made of stone and partly made of bricks, Khorkela, Laharopur, Matsehreta, (F)Nimcar on the eastern bank of Guomati, Hargaon.

According to the registers of the empire, the annual Income of this province is about 321317119 Dams
The highest - is about 9125651 rupees.
The smallest - [redacted] (G) - 4785771 rupees.

Of all the cities of this region, *Avad (*or Oude) and Lacnav are the two of the major and very ancient cities which are worth mentioning.

Avad called as Adjudea, by the educated Hindus, is a city of very olden times. Its houses are (mostly) made up of mud only; covered with straw or tiles. Many (however), are made of bricks. The main street goes from South to North and it has a length of about a mile. The width (of the city) is a little lesser. Its western side and that of North as well, are situated on a mud hill. (H) (*)That of north-east is situated on knolls. Towards Bangla it is united.

Today, this city (I) has been hardly populated., since the foundation of Bangla or Fesabad – a new city where the Governor established his residence – and in which a great number (of inhabitants of Oude) settled in.

On the South bank (of Deva) are found variuos buildings constructed by the nobles in memory of Ram, (J) extending from East to West (a)

(a) It is most likely that those shown in the Illustration XIII nos. 1 and 2 belong to these buildings.

www.vadaprativada.com

The most remarkable place is the one which is called Sorgadaori, which means : the celestial temple. Because they say that Ram took away all the inhabitants of the city from there to heaven : This has some resemblance/ similarity to the Ascent of the Lord. The city, thus deserted, was repopulated and was brought back to its earlier status by Bikarmadjit – the famous king of Oude (OUDH).

There was a temple in this place constructed on the elevated bank of the river. But Aurengzebe, always keen to propagate the creed of Mohammed and abhorring the noble people, got it demolished and replaced with a mosque and two obelisks, with a view to obliterate even the very memory of the Hindu superstition. Another mosque built by the Moors is adjacent to the one towards the East.

Close to Sorgadoari is a building constructed lengthways by Nabalray, a Hindu, a formerly lieutenant of the Governor (propraetor) of this region (a).

But a place especially famous is the one called Sitha Rassoi i.e. the table of Sita, wife of Ram, adjoining to the city in the South, and is situated on a mud hill.

Emperor Aurengzebe got the fortress called Ramcot demolished and got a Muslim temple, with triple domes, constructed at the same place. Others say that it was constructed by 'Babor'. Fourteen black stone pillars of 5 span high, which had existed at the site of the fortress, are seen there. Twelve of these pillars now support the interior arcades of the mosque. Two (of these 12) are placed at the entrance of the cloister. The two others are part of the tomb of some 'Moor'. It is narrated that these pillars, or rather this debris of the pillars skillfully made, were brought from the island of Lanca or Selendip (called Ceylan by the Europeans) by Hanuman, King of Monkeys.

On the left (K) is seen a square box raised 5 inches above the ground, with borders made of lime, with a length of more than 5 ells and a (L) maximum width of about 4 ells. The Hindus call it

Bedi i.e.'the cradle. The reason for this is that once upon a time, here was a house where Beschan was born in the form of Ram. It is said that his three brothers too were born here. Subsequently, Aurengzebe or Babor, according to others, got this place razed in order to deny the noble people, the opportunity of practising their superstitions. However, there still exists some superstitious cult in some place or other. For example, in the place where the native house of Ram existed, they go around 3 times and prostrate on the floor. The two spots are surrounded by a low wall constructed with battlements. (M) (*) One enters the front hall through a low semi-circular door.

Not far from there is a place where one digs out grains of black rice, turned into small stones, which are said to have been hidden under the earth since the time of Ram.

On the 24th of the Tschet month, a big gathering of people is done here to celebrate the birthday of Ram, so famous in the entire India.

www.vadaprativada.com

This vast city is a mile away from Bangla at the east towards E. N. E such that its latitude also will be greater by about one minute than that of Bangla.

The fortress constructed in square form situated on the elevated bank of the river, is equipped with round and low towers. The walls need to be repaired. It is uninhabited and is not protected. Earlier, the Governors of the province had their residence here. Sadatkhan(N) frightened by a bad forecast got it transferred to Bangla. Today, it is destroyed from top to bottom.

In a space of 2 miles, from the place where the canons are planted up to 'Oude', the Gagra takes its course towards east, making a double bend – one close to the western side of the city and the other, a little distance from there, towards the West. And bending from there towards the NE and ¼ E, it washes the city in the West; after that, it returns (O) towards the East, close to the northern side. But it has been changing its course almost every year. Its river bed is equal (in width) to that of Danube, near the citadel of

Ingoldstadt in Bavaria, but the volume of water is less. In rainy season, it increases breadth-wise in such a way that at some places, its breadth exceeds a mile and a half.

Bangla or Fesabad was founded by Sadatkhan, after he had abandoned the city of 'Oude'. A native of Persia, he was, the Governor of this province, more than 40 years ago. He constructed a palace (a) cultivated a nice garden, in the Persian style and established his residence here. Gradually, this place became a city, the length of which is more than a mile.

The Present Governor, grandson of that person, adorned the city with many buildings and gardens, after the entire province was returned to him by the British, in 1765. He also widened the passage which was narrow earlier and provided the fortress with a ditch, round towers and a rampart, so that the thick population could have a city with a big surrounding wall. (*)(P)The geographical latitude of this place, observed in 1767, was situated at 26° – 29°.

Goptargath is a place planted with thick trees, a mile away from Bangla, on the southern bank of Gagra. It is situated on a hill which is less steep, and is provided with mud towers on four sides. An underground pit is seen in the middle, covered with a medium sized dome. Near it is a very old and big tamarind tree.
A portico extends around it. It is said that Ram, after having defeated the Giant Ravan and having returned from Lanka, descended into this pit and disappeared. Deriving from this, this place was named 'Gouptar' which means 'Departure for the Air'. Therefore, you have Descent into the Hell, there, which is similar to 'Rising into the Sky' that you had in 'Oude'. One will be able to have an idea about the locality and shape/form of this place (b) from the figure.

The Gagra makes two bends here by dividing itself into two branches the bigger one flows towards North-East; the other smaller one flows towards Bangla.

(b) See the Illustration XVI where Galt is wrongly spelt from the original.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is half a mile from Gouptargath to the place of canons: the distance that Gagra covers from the West ¼ North West to the East and ¼ South East.

Lacnou or Lacnav (a) is no less than Adjudea in antiquity and it surpasses the latter in size and population. It was founded by Latschman or Lacman, brother of Ram, who gave his name to this city. It was renovated by Bikarmajit, king of 'Oude'.

On the other side of the bank of Goumati, is elevated a mud hill, where Latschman had his residence. In order to erase them from memory, Aurengzebe got a mosque, with two high minarets, constructed in this place. Another building covered with a dome and used as a tomb to a muslim (Q) [redacted] was built on the same hill. The residence of Latschman was razed.

The length of this city, from Racabgans in the South up to Issagans in the North, is about a mile and a half. The breadth from Chodagans, or from the East to West, is about more than a mile. *(R)*The entire circumference is about four miles. The city does not have walls, like Adjudea and Bangla. It has a great number of brick houses but mostly made of mud, covered with tiles, situated on the mud hill and scattered here and there. The bigger part of the city extends towards the east and it is situated on an elevated place. The smaller part is in the lower side. The roads are narrow and stinking because the people of the country have the habit of throwing all the garbage in the streets. Due to the unevenness of the ground, one can walk in this city (S) only by taking digressions and by climbing up and down.

The main building is, undoubtedly, the one named quintuplet palace (b) situated at a little distance from the southern bank of Goumati on an elevated place and constructed in the form of a fort with walls and tall towers. It has a

(a) The pronunciation of the latter name, ending with a sound which is something between the latin u and o, seems to me the best, through various inferences ; but one can also write : Lukno. The British write : Luknow, Luknouv etc., This city is shown through the Illustration XXXV. no. 2.

Of all the cities of this region, *Avad (*or Oude) and Lacnav are the two of the major and very ancient cities which are worth mentioning.

Avad called as Adjudea, by the educated Hindus, is a city of very olden times. Its houses are (mostly) made up of mud only; covered with straw or tiles. Many (however), are made of bricks. The main street goes from South to North and it has a length of about a mile. The width (of the city) is a little lesser. Its western side and that of North as well, are situated on a mud hill. That of north-east is situated on knolls. Towards Bangla it is united.

Today, this city has been hardly populated., since the foundation of Bangla or Fesabad (1) – a new city where the Governor established his residence – and in which a great number (of inhabitants of Oude) settled in.

On the South bank (of Deva) are found variuos buildings constructed by the nobles in memory of Ram, extending from East to West (a)

(a) It is most likely that those shown in the Illustration XIII nos. 1 and 2 belong to these buildings.

www.vadaprativada.com

The most remarkable place is the one which is called (2) Sorgadaori, which means : the celestial temple. Because they say that Ram took away all the inhabitants of the city from there to heaven : This has some resemblance/ similarity to the Ascent of the Lord. The city, thus deserted, was repopulated and was brought back to its earlier status by Bikarmadjit – the famous king of Oude (OUDH).[oudjen] (3)

There was a temple in this place constructed on the elevated bank of the river. But Aurengzebe, always keen to propagate the creed of Mohammed and abhorring the noble people, got it demolished and replaced with a mosque and two obelisks, with a view to obliterate even the very memory of the Hindu superstition. Another mosque built by the Moors is adjacent to the one towards the East.

Close to Sorgadoari is a building constructed lengthways by Nabalray, a Hindu, a formerly lieutenant of the Governor (propraetor) of this region (a).

But a place especially famous is the one called Sitha Rassoi i.e. the table of Sita, wife of Ram, adjoining to the city in the South, and is situated on a mud hill.

Emperor Aurengzebe got the fortress called Ramcot demolished and got a Muslim temple, with triple domes, constructed at the same place. Others say that it was constructed by 'Babor'. Fourteen black stone pillars of 5(?) span(4) high, which had existed at the site of the fortress, are seen there. Twelve of these pillars now support the interior arcades of the mosque. Two (of these 12) are placed at the entrance of the cloister. The two others are part of the tomb of some 'Moor'. It is narrated that these pillars, or rather this debris of the pillars skillfully made, were brought from the island of Lanca or Selendip (called Ceylan by the Europeans) by Hanuman, King of Monkeys.

On the left is seen a square box raised 5 inches above the ground, with borders made of lime, with a length of more than 5 ells(5) and a maximum width of about 4 ells. The Hindus call it

Bedi i.e.'the cradle. The reason for this is that once upon a time, here was a house where Beschan was born in the form of Ram. It is said that his three brothers too were born here. Subsequently, Aurengzebe or Babor, according to others, got this place razed in order to deny the noble people, the opportunity of practising their superstitions. However, there still exists some superstitious cult in some place or other. For example, in the place where the native house of Ram existed, they go around 3 times and prostrate on the floor. The two spots are surrounded by a low wall constructed with battlements. One enters the front hall through a low semi-circular door.

Not far from there is a place where one digs out grains of black rice, turned into small stones, which are said to have been hidden under the earth since the time of Ram.

On the 24th of the Tschet month, a big gathering of people is done here to celebrate the birthday of Ram, so famous in the entire India.

www.vadaprativada.com

This vast city is a mile away from Bangla at the east towards E. N. E such that its latitude also will be greater by about one minute than that of Bangla.

The fortress constructed in square form situated on the elevated bank of the river, is equipped with round and low towers. The walls need to be repaired. It is uninhabited and is not protected. Earlier, the Governors of the province had their residence here. Sadatkhan frightened by a bad forecast got it transferred to Bangla. Today, it is destroyed from top to bottom.

In a space of 2 miles, from the place where the canons are planted up to 'Oude', the Gagra takes its course towards east, making a double bend – one close to the western side of the city and the other, a little distance from there, towards the West. And bending from there towards the NE and ¼ E, it washes the city in the West; after that, it returns towards the East, close to the northern side. But it has been changing its course almost every year. Its river bed is equal (in width) to that of Danube. near the citadel of

Ingoldstadt in Bavaria, but the volume of water is less. In rainy season, it increases breadth-wise in such a way that at some places, its breadth exceeds a mile and a half.

Bangla or Fesabad was founded by Sadatkhan, after he had abandoned the city of 'Oude'. A native of Persia, he was, the Governor of this province, more than 40 years ago. He constructed a palace (a) cultivated a nice garden, in the Persian style and established his residence here. Gradually, this place became a city, the length of which is more than a mile.

The Present Governor, grandson of that person, adorned the city with many buildings and gardens, after the entire province was returned to him by the British, in 1765. He also widened the passage which was narrow earlier and provided the fortress with a ditch, round towers and a rampart, so that the thick population could have a city with a big surrounding wall. The geographical latitude of this place, observed in 1767, was situated at 26° – 29°.

Goptargath is a place planted with thick trees, a mile away from Bangla, on the southern bank of Gagra. It is situated on a hill which is less steep, and is provided with mud towers on four sides. An underground pit is seen in the middle, covered with a medium sized dome. Near it is a very old and big tamarind tree. A portico extends around it. It is said that Ram, after having defeated the Giant Ravan and having returned from Lanka, descended into this pit and disappeared. Deriving from this, this place was named 'Gouptar' which means 'Departure for the Air'. Therefore, you have Descent into the Hell, there, which is similar to 'Rising into the Sky' that you had in 'Oude'. One will be able to have an idea about the locality and shape/form of this place (b) from the figure.

The Gagra makes two bends here by dividing itself into two branches the bigger one flows towards North-East; the other smaller one flows towards Bangla.

(b) See the Illustration XVI where Galt is wrongly spelt from the original.

www.vadaprativada.com

It is half a mile from Gouptargath to the place of canons: the distance that Gagra covers from the West ¼ North West to the East and ¼ South East.

On the other side of the bank of Goumati, is elevated a mud hill, where Latschman had his residence. In order to erase them from memory, Aurengzebe got a mosque, with two high minarets, constructed in this place. Another building covered with a dome and used as a tomb to a muslim was built on the same hill. The residence of Latschman was razed.

The length of this city, from Racabgans in the South up to Issagans in the North, is about a mile and a half. The breadth from Chodagans, or from the East to West, is about more than a mile. The entire circumference is about four miles. The city does not have walls, like Adjudea and Bangla. It has a great number of brick houses but mostly made of mud, covered with tiles, situated on the mud hill and scattered here and there. The bigger part of the city extends towards the east and it is situated on an elevated place. The smaller part is in the lower side. The roads are narrow and stinking because the people of the country have the habit of throwing all the garbage in the streets. Due to the unevenness of the ground, one can walk in this city only by taking digressions and by climbing up and down.

The main building is, undoubtedly, the one named quintuplet palace (b) situated at a little distance from the southern bank of Goumati on an elevated place and constructed in the form of a fort with walls and tall towers. It has a

(a) The pronunciation of the latter name, ending with a sound which is something between the latin u and o, seems to me the best, through various inferences ; but one can also write : Lukno. The British write : Luknow, Luknouv etc., This city is shown through the Illustration XXXV. no. 2.

Ayodhyā Viṣṇu-Hari Temple Inscription

K. V. Ramesh

The subjoined stone inscription is engeaved on a rectangular stone slab, the written area roughly covering an area of 115 cms X55. cms. The slab as at present extant is diagonally broken in two leading to the loss of a couple of letters in almost every line. Besides, the first and last two lines have suffered heavy damage resulting in the loss of many letters. All in all, the loss of letters have proved a handicap to epigraphists and Sanskritists in the matter of fully interpreting the contents of the text. Nevertheless, the overall purport and the crux of its import are clear beyond doubt. In the first instance a hurriedly prepared estampage, and in recent times, a high quality estampage as well as some photographs were all provided by Dr. S.P.Gupta, Chairman, Archaeological Society of India, New Delhi for which I am highly thankful to him.

The text of the inscription is written in fairly chaste Sanskrit, the orthographical features being regular for the period to which the inscription belongs, namely the middle of the 12th Century A.D. The inscription is not in any way dated but may be assigned, with confidence, to the middle of the 12th Century on palaeographical grounds as well as the internal evidence provided by the inscriptional text in question.

But for the opening salutation to Śiva at the very beginning, the entire text of the inscription is composed in Sanskrit verse of fairly high literary excellence. As has been stated above, the palaeographical and orthographical features are normal for the period to which the inscription belongs, viz. the middle of the 12th century A.D. This was an important period of transition from classical Sanskrit to the North Indian vernaculars. This can be easily identified in contemporaneous inscriptions, including the present one, in the confusion in the use of class nasals and anusvāra, and in the employment of the sibilants and palatals.

As for the contents of the text, it is fully reflective of medeival vanity as far as the eulogies of the heroes mentioned in the inscription are concerned. The most important internal historical information we get from this epigraph is the mention of Govindachandra, obviously of the Gahadavala dynasty, who ruled over a fairly vast empire from 1114 to 1155 A.D.

Verse 1 is entirely lost. Verse 2, which is badly mutilated, refers to Trivikrama and,hence, may have been composed in praise of Lord Viṣṇu. Verse 3, which is also badly damaged, seems to allude to the near-total decimation of the warrior clans by Bhārgava-Paraśurāma. Verse 4 refers to the emergence of a Kṣatriya family, heroes born in which successfully resurrected the decadent warrior clans. According to Verse 5, in that noble family was born the beloved of the people, Māme. Verse 7 speaks of his detachment from mundane thingswhile Verse 8 informs us that he bequeathed his realm and wealth to his son Sallakṣaṇa. Verses 9 to 14 contain conventional praises showered on this Sallakṣaṇa in which the poet has displayed a high level of poetic imagination. Verse 15 refers to the birth of his son whose stunning resemblance to his father was the talk among the people. Verse 16 refers to this son as Alhaṇa and credits him with retrieving the past power and glory of his family. While the next two verses (17 and 18) contain his conventional praise, verse 19 gives the information that his nephew, Meghasuta by name, as superseding a certain Anayacandra and obtaining the Lordship of Saketa-maṇḍala through the grace of the senior Lord of the earth, Govindacandra. While verse 20 lauds the military might of this hero, verse 21 gives the important information that, in order to ensure his easy passage into the heavens, Meghasuta built a lofty stone temple for the god Viṣṇu-Hari. From verse 22 we learn that he, who was responsible for the stability of Govindacandra's empire, was succeeded by thr younger Āyuṣyacandra as the Lord of Sāketa-maṇḍala. Verse 23 contains his conventional praise. According to verse 24, he set up residence in the city of Ayodhyā, which was adorned with lofty abodes, intellectuals and temples, and added to the entire Sāketa-maṇḍala thousands of small and big water reservoirs. Verses 25 and 26 contain more conventional praises of Āyuṣyacandra. Verse 27, which is partly damaged, alludes to the well-known episodes of Viṣṇu's incarnations as Narasiṃha, Kṛṣna, Vāmana and Rāma. The badly damaged verse 28 refers to a king (probably Āyuṣyacandra) as warding off the danger of invasion from the west (i.e., from the invading Muslim forces). Verse 29, which is incomplete, mentions the king Āyuṣyacandra.

The reference to Sāketa-maṇḍala is interesting. It is well known that North India, just as in the case of the South, was divided into administrave divisions called maṇḍalas ( see the word maṇḍala in the indices to H.C.Ray's monumental two-volume work ' The Dynastic History of Northern India', II edn., 1973, Delhi.).

goddess) Caṇḍī ( i.e., Lord Śiva) , from thr rocking head-jewel . . . . genuine reputations which emanated from the opening in the skull-shaped spherical half of the universe . .In that family heroestook their birth, who were determined to resurrect the warrior clan which had been rendered weak by the wars waged by Bhārgava (Paraśurāma) (against them).

Lines4-5, verse 5. Noble was that very family which was the birth-place of valour which had successfully removed the sufferings of the other (Kṣatriya clans) in which Māme, the abode of thousands of perfect and extremely valorous deeds and who was the utmost favourite of the world.

Line5, verse 6. That very Son of the Sun (i.e., Karṇa), Māme, the unequalled hero of the world, uttered everyday the words " may I have no mercy on (my) body, may I not hanker for material wealth,may I be diligently disinterested in sensual temptations . . . .

Lines 5-6, verse 7. The thorny trees, like the sensuous villains, repeatedly wrote ( i.e., scratched) on the skins of the breasts and hips and loins of the womenfolk of the tribal villages of the plains and hills who had taken refuge in the thickets as a result of the destruction of their abodes in sportive wars waged by him.

Lines 6- 7, verse 8. His fame alone having pervaded till then the heavens, the high-minded [Māme], wishing to go to the heavens in person and reside there in that wonderful world, he bequeathed his entire realm along with all the wealth to his son Sallakṣaṇa just as the Sun-god had bequathed all his lustre to the Fire-god.

Line 7, verse 9. As a result of some unknown power of the gift of that realm, which had no bounds and was other-worldly, a super-human valour manifested itself in Sallakṣaṇa; it was indeed an earthly exception.

Lines 7- 8, verse 10. The sword was at the tip of his fingers, his hand was verily the great army, his fame, like sumptuously cooked delicacies, were ever palatable; even without a kingdom to rule, these personal instruments enabled him to spread extensively an empire sans worries.

Line 8, verse 11. He who was for long intervals enjoying himself on battle-fields, bore on his head his ruthless sword, which was quick to end the lives (of his enemies).

Lines 8-9, verse 12. Within the serene surroundings of the Malaya mountain, on the banks of the heavenly Ganges, at the entrances of the cave-dwellings of the Himalayas, in the caverns in which the hunter-tribes dwell, the accomplished womenfolk gaily sing (literally, read) the strings of his eulogy composed for the first time by the semi-divine beings moving about in the skies.

Lines 10-11, verse 13. On the advice tendered by the elders, in the terrains of the Himalayas, in the pristine pure regions of the Malaya (mountains), in the lands along the banks of the heavenly Ganges as well as in other regions the semi-divine unmarried girls, with intent to gain husbands, ever offer worship to the hands of the satiating images sculpted in his (i.e., Sallakṣaṇa's) likeness.

Lines 10- 11, verse 14. He who is to be offered oblations by the beautiful for the realization of their desires . . . . himself by the worlds . . . . in whose abode, which is pleasing with wealth and happiness, hi is sung about by multitudes of celestial singers.

Lines 11-12, verse 15. The people look upon as a phenomenon the fact that, Sallakṣaṇa, who was, through good fortune, enjoying the genuine company of the damsels of the heavens, had happily begotten a son who, by appearance, was no different from his father.

Lines 11- 12, verse 16. [That son] Alhaṇa, who was the beloved of the good people, is like a pointed saw to the war-mongers. He retrieved the splendour of the habitually fickle-minded Goddess of wealth by means of fair and persuasive means.

Line 12, verse 17. He was indeed extraordinary and whenever he confronted (his foes the heap of their) arrogance, accumulated over a protracted period, melted away. The garb of good deeds and bad deeds (worn by them) slipped away by his mere looks.

Line 13, verse 18. He was the destroyer of (his enemies' manliness, and made those who were afraid effeminate; as against the belief among the people, his eminence far dwarfed that of the lofty mountains.

Lines 13-14, verse 19. His nephew (literally brother's son), the widely celebrated Meghasuta, the illustrious one, who superceded Anayacandra; he earned the lordship of Sāketa-maṇḍala through the grace of his elder, the Lord of the earth, Govindacandra.

Line 14, verse 20. Not only did he, who was powerful, put an end to the arrogant warriors who were dancing in unrestrained frenzy in the battles constantly fought by him, but he also gave (to his people) an excellent army which was replete with (soldiers comparable to ) the wish-fulfilling trees.

Lines 15-16, verse 22. The position of Alhaṇa, whose tireless shoulders were like safety latches for the stability of the king Govindacandra's empire, was subsequently occupied by his younger (son?) Āyuṣyacandra.

Line 16,verse 23. Great poets dared not compare him with Sāhasāṅka and Śūdraka; out of sheer fear none save the God of Love dared draw the bow-string in his presence.

Line 17, verse 24. By him, who was of good conduct, and abhorred strife, while residing at Ayodhyā, which had towering abodes, intellectuals and temples, Sāketa-Maṇḍala was endowed with thousands of wells, reservoirs, alms-houses, tanks.

Lines 17-18, verse 25. The young damsels, who were as attractive as the female musk-deer and does, while they rested on the cool surfaces of the Himalayan rocks, sang about his (i.e., Āyuṣyacandra's) fame.

Line 18, verse 26. Whose bodily splendour, which was ever characterised by glowing eyes, was at all times pleasant with gentle feelings, was a source of salvation for the good just as (the holy pilgrimage centre) Kāśī is.

Lines 18-19, verse 27. Separating [the flesh and blood of the demon] Hiraṇyakaśipu from his skeleton, subduing [the demon] Bāṇa in battle, tearing asunder the arms of the [demon-]king Bali, and performing many valorous deeds, having killed the evil Ten-headed [demon Rāvaṇa], . . . . . .

Copy of report of the Deputy Commissioner Faizabad in compliance with Commissioner's dated 14.5.1877 recorded in the appeal of Mohd. Asgar incharge of the Janam Asthan Mosque at Ajodya kept in Mis. Appeal no. 56 decided on 13.12.77 by the Commissioner, Faizabad Dn in re Mohd. Asghar Vs. Khem Dass.

Report called for by Commissioner's note of 14 May 1877 recorded on the appeal of Mohammad Asgur in charge of the Janum Asthan Mosque at Ajdodhia.

1.A doorway has recently been opened in the wall of the Janum-Asthan not at all in Baber's mosque, but in the wall which in front is divided from the mosque by a railing. This opening was necessary to give a separate suit on fair days to visitors to the Janum-Asthan. There was one opening only, so the crush was very great and life was in/dangered. I marked out the spot for the opening myself so there is no need to depute any European officer. This petition is merely un/attempt to annoy the Hindu by making it dependent on the pleasure of the mosque people to open or close the 2nd door in which the Mohamdans can have …..... interest.

2. No objection was made to the opening of this second door.

3.On the 10th November 1873 Baldeo Das was ordered in writing by the Deputy Commissioner to remove an image placed on the Janum-Asthan platform. A report was made by someone (probably a police officer) that he had gone to the house of Baldeo Dass and found that the latter had gone to Gonda. The order was explained to Gyandas and other priests who said could not carry out the order. The order passed on this (15 …. was that if the other party (i.e. the complainant) would name person on whom an order of removal could be served such ….. should be served.

4. These apparently the matter-rested. There is no later on the file.

Parties represented

I visited the land in dispute yesterday in the presence of all parties.

I found that the masjid built by the Emperor Babar Stands on the border of the town of Ayodhya, that is to say to the West and South it is clear of habitations. It is most unfortunate that a masjid should have been built on land specially held sacred by the Hindus, but as that event occurred 356 years ago , it is too late now to remedy the grievance all that can be done is to maintain the parties in status qua . In such a case as the present one any inaction (sic) would cause more harm and derangement of order than benefit.

The entrance of the enclosure is under a gateway which bears the superscription “Allah”-immediately on the left as the platform or chabutara of Masonry occupied by the Hindus. On this is a small superstructure of wood in the form of a tent.

This chabutara is said to indicate the birth place of Ram Chandra . In front of the gateway is the entry to the masonry platform of the masjid. A wall pierced here and there with railings divides the platform of the masjid from the enclosure in which stands the “Chabutara.”

The words of the Sub Judge “ Bahari Ke durja ke arazi mai chabutara makbooza mudai wa Hindu logon ke hai- jo is mukam par ahil hunud paristis karte hai kadim kabza unka hai. jis se milkiyat unke mai koi kayam nahi hai ho sakta hai.”

The words are redundant and are to be struck out of the judgement. The only question decided in this case is that the position of the parties will be maintained.

The true object of the suit was disclosed by B. Kuccu Mal yesterday when we were standing near the masjid - namely the British Govt. as no respectable persons was asked. through its Courts to remedy an injustice committed by a Mohammadan Emperor. The Dy. Commissioner contends that the civil Court jurisdiction in this matter. The relief asked for brief in contravention of Clause (d) of Section 56 .Act I, 1877. It is not clear to me how the order of the 14 May, 1883 can be said to have been issued in connection with the public duties of any department of the Govt. of India on the local Government on the contrary the plaintiff states that the local Government has sent him no answer to his application . If it be said that the order of the 14 May, 1883 was passed by a Magistrate, then the section of the Criminal Procedure Code should have been cited under which the order was passed at page 304 V. I.L.R ,it is laid down that persons of whatever sect are at liberty to erect buildings there in conduct public worship provided neither invade the rights of property enjoyed by their neighbours nor cause a public nuisance etc. and subject to such directions as the Magistrates may give to prevent obstructions of the thorough fare or breaches of the public peace.

If the particular act complained of is to be viewed as the act of Govt. and that in the part which the Depy. Commissioner took he merely acted as officer of the Government intending to discharge his duties as a public servant with perfect good faith, even on the assumption if the act of the Depy. Commissioner was itself wrong as against the plaintiff and produced

damage to him, the plaintiff must have the same remedy by the action against the door(sic) whether the act was his own or whether it was done by order of the Superior powers. The civil irresponsibility of the local Government could not be maintained with any show of justice if its agents were not responsible from tortuous acts . The reason why this suit is dismissed is that there is no "injuria" nothing which would give a right of action to the plaintiff.

The decisions, which I have been able to find as to the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts being barred refer to questions of a public right determined by a Magistrate -for instance a Civil Court could not entertained to set a side an order of a Magistrate which declares a road to be a public road .

This appeal will be dismissed as the Mohammadan defendant intervened of his own will , his costs will be paid by plaintiff only as to Court fees and costs of copies the Government pleader is allowed costs Rs.16/- in each Court.

J u d g m e n t

Suit no. 29 of 1945.
Shia Central Board, U.P. Waqf,(Lucknow)
vs.
Sunni Central Board U.P. Waqf (Lucknow).

The dispute in this suit relates to an ancient and historic mosque in Janamasthan, Ajodhia, which was admittedly constructed during the reign of Babar Shah over four centuries ago. After the enactment of the U.P. Muslim waqfs Act (XIII of 1936), the mosque was included amongst the Sunni waqfs, a list of which was prepared by the chief Commissioner of Waqfs under S.4 of the Act and published in the Govt. Gazette, D.26.2. '44' (and has been under the defts. superintendence since then).

The plaintiff (Shia Waqfs Board )Seeks a declaration that the mosque is a Shia waqf together with the Idgah attached to it at Jalpa Mala, Ajodhia, and v. Bahrampur, Pargana Haveli, and 20 bighas odd land, known as Sholapuri grove Mahal Bahrampur, in Faizabad Tahsil. The case as sset out in the plaint was that the mosque was founded by Abdul Baqi, an Isna Ashri Shia, that it had been all along in possession of Shias who have been reciting there prayers therein and that its mutwallies too were shias belonging to Baqi's family. As regars the property, it was stated that the Nawab Vizor and subsequently the kings of Oudh, had granted a cash Nankar of Rs. 302/3/6 through parwanas & sannds for the maintenance of the mosque which was realised from the revenue of V. Shahnawa. The plaint proceeded that on the annexation of Oudh, the Nankar grant was maintained but the entire village Bahrampur and the Sholapur Grove was granted to the mutawallies for themaintenance of themosque and a decree for proprietary rights, revenue fee was passed in favour of the mutawallies at the time of the Ist. regular settlement and that the mutawalllies had been observing the trees of the grant and filing

accounts before the S.D.O.

Under the circumstances narrated above, the plaintiff claimed that he was entitled to its supervision as it was a Shia waqf as contemplated by the Act prior to the institution of this suit (on 4.7.45) the plaintiff had also sent a notice as required by S.53 and the cause of action was based on the publication in the Gazette as it was alleged that the chief commissioner of waqf had not sent the list of Sunni waqf to the plaintiff.

The deft (Sunni Board) asserted that the mosque was founded by Emperor Babar who was a Sunni, that is feshnavaz Khatebbad Muezzis have been of the same seat and that it had always been used by the Sunnis of Ajodhya for saying their Friday prayers. He further alleged that formerly the mutawallies were also sunnis , but it appears that one of them became a convert to Shiaism during the closing period of the reign of the kings of Oudh (who were Shias). The deft further denied that Baqi was Shia and that the mutawallies belonged to his family.

As regards the Idgah it was alleged that it was quite independent of the mosque but was similarly used by the Sunnis for their Id and Baqrid prayers.The deft. also agreed that v. Baharanpur ansd the Sholapur Grove were dedicated for the maintenance of the mosque. There were some other legal pleas also set up on defence which will appear from the issues.

the following issues arose for trial on the pleading (& the replications) in this case:-

1. (a) Was the mosque in suit built by Abdul Baqi an alleged by the plaintiff? If, so, was he a Shia as alleged?

(b) Whether the mosque or was constructed by Babar Shah as alleged by the deft ?

2. Is the suit within time?

3. Hs the mosque in suit been used by the members of the Sunni

www.vadaprativada.com

Act as alleged by the deft. for over 12 years? If so, its effect ?

4. Is the notice,Ex A-7 defective ? If so, its effect ?

5. To what relief, if any, is the plaintiff entitled?

Findings

Issues 1(a) & (b)

As has been mentioned the plaintiff hs in support of his case relied upon the fact that the mutawallis have all along remained Shias and were the descendents of Abdul Baqi. It would be convenient to dispose of the question whether the mutawallis are the descendants of Abdul Baqui before taking up the main question as to who was the founder of the mosque.

In the replication the following pedigree was given:-

that Kalab Husain is the present mutawalli and before his (his brother ) M. Zaki was the mutwawalli until about a year ago, Kalab Husain pedigree and says that he had heard it from M. Zaki and their father and their Phoophi, Mat. Elahan, all of whom are dead. Then there is the testimony of Mumtaz Husain (P.W.2) a retired Tahsildar, about 83 years old, and a Zamindar of this district. His grand daughter's daughter is married to Kalab Husain and he further deposes that his elder brother, Altaf Husain, was he further deposes that his elder brother, Altaf Husain, was married to the daugher of Mohd. Ali, a brooothher of Rajabali and that he hs been Sarfarazali, another brother of Rajabali and M. Asghar (his son) from whom he heard the pedigree.

This witness was posted in this district as a Girdawar Qanoongo in 1889-90 and subsequently as a Munsarim during the 2nd settlement operation in 1892-93 and had occasion to go to V. Shahnawa, about 3 miles from Ajodhia, which is the village in which Rajabali and his descendants have been residing. Lastly there is the deposition of S. Naze Husain (P.W.3) who is about 32 years old and testifies that he is agrand son of Mohd. Ali, one of the brothers of Rajabali, and that his mother was the daughter of M.Afzal son of …….. This witness is a resident of village……heard the pedigree from his parents who are dead. There is one more witness on this point, namely S. Mohd. Husain (P.W.4) who is a resident of Ajodhya and deposes to being a grandson of Sayed Ali, one of the brother of Rajabali, and that he heard in the pedigree from his father who is dead. The last two witnesses also depose that Rajabali and his brothers were the sons of Fateh Ali.

This pedigree finds indirect support from the defendant's witnesses also who deposs that they heard from their ancestors that the former mutawallis were Sunnis and that Rajabali too was that first a Sunni but had become a Shia later on. There is also Ext. A-13, which is an application by M. Zaki datd 20.7.1938, to the commissioner of Waqfs, Faizabad, objecting to the treating of Bahorampur and the land

in Bholapur waqf property and claiming that he had his ancestors were its proprietors. In this application too be gave his family pedigree which is further substantiated by Exs. 2/P.W. 1 and A 12 which are documents of the Summary settlement (1960).

As regards Abdul Baqi (who was admittedly a contemporary of Babar Shah) being a Shia, para 1 of Ex.A 13 contains a statements that all the persons given in the pedigree were Isra Ashri Shias. There is also the admission of the defendants' witnesses to which I have already referred, and in the opening of his case. Defts' learned counsel admitted that the descendants of Rajabali were Shian. The witnesses who have deposed about the pedigree have also stated that they heard from their ancestors that Mir Abdul Baqi(or Baqi) was a Shia and had come from Isphahan in Persia. There are verses engraved on tablet in the central arch of the mosque which will be repaired to later on, on which Mir Baqi has been described as an "Isphahani" i.e. a resident of Isphahan.

It was urged on behalf of the defts that the evidence about Mir Baqi being ashia was in admissible as it did not fall within the provision of S.32 (5) of the Evidence Act used in the absence of any……..the controry the perusal presumption was…. for the second proportion learned counsel relied upon the decisions reported in 30 Cal. (I.L.R.) 683 (at P. 686) 1932 Bombay (I.L.R.) 356 and 1933 Lah. (A.I.R.) 80.

There is no doubt that these authorities lay down that unless the contrary in proved, the general presumption is that the Muslims in India re (Hanafi) Sunnis but it is displaced by an equally good presumption in the present case, that Baqi being a Persian was a Shia as is borne out from the following passage in Bailie's Digest, Pt. II. P.1 (2nd Edition) Referring to the Arabian adage that "all people follow the religion of their kings". He says:-

" the saying was exemplified to the fullest extent in Persia, where the whole of the people have become Shofia (sik) since the

accession of the Sofee (aafavi) dynasty in A.D. 1499. The process of assimilation was less rapid in India, where though several of the Nawabs, or local governors, were (Sheealis (Shias…… This was eminently the case in Oudh (oudh), the Nawabs of which were hereditary viziers (Wazirs) of the empire……."

Now the mosque in suit was admittedly built during the time of Babar who ruled from 1526-1530 and is clear from the passage granted above that the Persians had become Shias before that period. It follows, therefore, that the presumption in the present case is that Baqi must have been a Shia. As regards the admissibility of the statement in S.13 and the deposition of the witnesses it has been observed in 1 Luck. (I.I.R.) 97, (at p.145) that a very liberal interpretation must be given to the words in S 32 (5) that "when the statement relates to the existence of any relationship by blood-relations", otherwise valuable evidence of family history would be excluded. In 27 I.S. 238 (at p.251), their lordships held that under S.49, the opinion of persons having especial means of knowledge regarding the usages of any family, are relevant. Lastly, in 1929 Cal. (A.I.R.) 533, it was laid down that declarations made before the controversy by dead persons on a matter of general or public interest, eventhough, hearsay, are admissible. In the present case, the witnesses examined by the plff on this point are related to Baqi's descendant, Sukoonat Bibi, and they depose to statements relating to a matter of general interest to the Muslim community as regards the mosque having been built by a Shia and also about the family traditions.

I, therefore, held that the evidence in this case proves that Abdul Baqi was a Shia.

Turning now to the main question whether the mosque was built by Abdul Baqi or by Babar Shah. It may be mentioned at the very outset that it was conceded by counsel for the plff. that Babar Shah was a Sunni, although in the replications a contrary assertion was made. It was also common ground between the counsels on both sides

www.vadaprativada.com

that the determining factor whether the mosque in suit was a “Shia” or “Sunni” waqf would be the religion of its founder as neither the waqf Act (XIII of 1936) nor the Muslim Law laid down any distinction between the two, and there was no prohibition for members of either sect to say their prayers in a mosque built by a member of the other sect.

The plff. has examined seven witnesses (P.ws 2-8) which include the witnesses who have deposed the pedigree in support of the mosque having been built by Baqi. All of them are Shias and depose to having said their daily prayers also sometimes in the mosque in suits.

It appears from the statement of S.Murtaz Husain (P.W.2) that besides learning from the members of Baqi’s family, namely M.Asghar and Sarfarazali (brother of Rabaali) and his own father that Baqi was one of the ministers of Babar and had built the mosque, he also made some inquiries in 1892-93 as Munsarin during the 2nd settlement. The witness deposes that Mr. Hoses the settlement officer, had asked him to find out the important placed in Ajudhia as he was going to visit it and the witness made inquiries from M. Abdul Karim, the Nazir Sadar and one Mir. Forzand Ali of Ajodhia, bother (sik) of whom are dead. S. Nazer Husain (P.W.3) mentions his mother who had heard from Sukoonat Bibi about the mosque, and Akbar Ali, Ashiqq Ali and Nasir Ali, sons of Syed Ali, a bother of Rajab ali. It may be mentioned again that he is a descendant of Mohd. Ali, another brother of Rajabali and his mother was a grand daughter of Rajabali. S. Mohib Husain (P.W.4) is a descendant of Syed Ali and says that he heard from his father (who was S/o Syed Ali), his uncle, Akbar Ali, who are dead that the mosque was built by Abdul Baqi. Kalab Husain (P.W.8) is the present mutawalli and says that he learnt from his father (M Razi) his brother, M.Zaki (who died only recently) and his father’s sister Mst. Elahan,that the mosque was built by Abdul Baqi. He further deposes that he maintains the mosque out of the income of it V.

Baharmpur and some land in V. Sholopuri, though he did not admit that it was waqf property. He admits that the Peshnamaz (or the Imams) and the muozzies (who are paid by him) have been Sunnis and that the expenses of faraweek (sik) i.e. the distribution of Sweets and payments of persons who recite the Qoran during the month of Ramzan have been met by him and his father, who died about 30 years ago.

The other set of witnesses, namely S. Husain Agha, Mirja Ali Husain and Kammant Husain (Ps.5-7) are residents of this city and depose to having attended an iftar (fast breaking ) party by S. Hasan Agha in 1932 and 1936 when a majliss was held and collective prayers were said. The mother of Rahan Aghar come from mohalla Qaziana of a Ajodhia and he deposes that he heard from her, his father and some other persons about Baqi being the governor of Oudh during Babar's time…….

The source of …… to be Mohd. Zaki, who was a frined of Mirza Ali Husain (P.W.6) as well as of Karamat (P.W.7) and they also used to go to Bhahnawa for attending majlisses during the chehlum. Their evidence is not of much consequences in view of the fact that the Ist set of witnesses are more qualified on account of their relationship to know about the matter in controversy and if their testimony is not accepted, no higher value can be attached to the testimony of the 2nd set of witnesses.

Turning now to the oral evidence adduced by the defendant, he has examined Ikramullah (D.W.1), a zamindar of Ajodha, Mir Abdul Ghafoor (D.W.2), a muafidar, Moulvi Abdul Ghaffar (D.W.3), the present Imam of the mosque, Abdul Wahab (D.W.4) and Karamatullah (D.W.5) All these persons are sunni residents of Ajodhia and depose to having said their Juma prayers and attended the faranech (sik) in the mosque and having heard from their ancestors that the mosque was built by Babar Shah. The evidence of Abdul Ghaffur (D.W.3) shows that the office of Imam has been hereditary in his family and before him his father and grand father were the Imans and this fact is admitted by Kalb Husain (P.W.8). The witness is also the author of a book containing the history of Ajodhia and says that he had heard from his grand father about the mosque having been built by Babar Shah. The evidence of the other witness does not deserve any particular discussion as it is manly concerned with the offering of prayers by they Sunni residents of Ajodhia, which has been admitted by Kalab Husain as well as in the oral pleadings. As regards their knowledge about the founder of the mosque, they even deny having heard the name of Mir Baqi, which appears to be untrue as will be shown later on. Moreover, if the matter rested upon oral evidence alone, I would prefer to rely upon the testimony of the Ist set of plff's witnesses as their source of knowledge was more direct.

There remains the documentary evidence produced by the parties. The plaint as well as the documents filed by the (Ex 3-13 and Exs 1 and 2/P.W.1) show that (torn)…….

was granted by Nawabs of Oudh and after the annexation the British Govt. maintained the grant but committed it by granting the superior proprietary rights free of revenue in V. Bahoram pur ( Sholapuri) to Mohd. Asghar and Mohd. Afzul (sons of Rajab Ali) for which a decree (Ex.12) was passed in 1870 (Ist settlement) Ex.s 2/P.W.1 and A 12 are the extracts from the register of Muafi grants in which investigations had been completed in 1860. These documents show that the original cash Nankar was granted by Babar Shah to MirBaqi, who has been described Molvi and muezzin of the Babari Mosque for his subistence and the expenes of (maintaining) the mosque. These documents also show that Rajaba Ali, who is described son in law of Baqi's grand son Hussain Ali, and his son, M. Asghar, were the holders at that time and it may be reiterated that these documents establish the pedigree up to M. Asghar beyond any doubt.

Ex.A 16 is an application given in 1866 (A.D.) by Afzal (s/o

Rajabali) who was one of the decree holders at the Ist. settlement (Ex.12) describing himself as the mutawalli, complaining against some bairagis of Ajodhia in which he stated that the musjid situate in Jananathan (i.e. the mosque in suit) had been built by Babar Shah, A.17 is a written statement by Mohd. Asghar of the year 1885 (in this court) in which too he has described Babar as the founder of the mosque and lastly in para 2 of Ex A 13 M. Zaki (in 1938) has made the same recital.

The Gazetteer of this district also contains references to this mosque at references to this mosque at Pp 173-174. It shows that according to local affirmations, Babar came to Ajodhia in 1528 A.D. and halted here for a week, during which he destroyed the Janamasthan temple and on its site built a mosque using largely the materials of the old structure. The author then goes on to remark that he record of the visit is to be found in Musalman historians but it must have occurred about the time of Babar's expedition to Bihar. The Ist. settlement report also gives the same history of this mosque and adds that according to soyders (sik) memoirs of Babar, the Emperor encamped about 5 or 6 miles from Ajodhya and stayed for a week, selting the surrounding country, though it was remarkable that his doings at Ajodhia were wanting in his own memoirs (Baharauama) (sik).

For the plff it was argued that in their applications, M.Afzul, M.Asghar, and M.Zaki had not given their source of knowledge and their admission were not binding on the plff. as the representatives of the Shia community. The rulings in 11own. 1590 and S. (sik)own 306 were cited but they are inapplicable as here it has not been shown that the admission were made under certain circumstances with some particular motive and surely these persons were in a such better position to know about the mosque than the present witnesses who lose their knowledge upon the statement of persons who in their own term (sik), did not know anything directly. It is also obvious that the whole of the evidence on this point is hearesay and it cannot be gain said that the statements of Mohd. Afzul and M.Asghar are much more valuable than the statements of the plff's witnesses who have deposed after a dispute has arisen about the founder of the mosque.

The history of the mosque in the Gazetter of the settlement report was also sought to be impungned (sic) on the ground that Babar's visit to Ajodhia was not mentioned in any historical work and the settlement officer was not required to make any such investigation. I am unable to accept these contentions also as the books (sic) are works (sic) of reference and admissible under S.57 of the Evidence Act. Moreover, in dealing with matters like the present when no direct evidence is available, such works based on investigation on the spot and local tradition assume great importance and unless disproved by superior evidence, must be accepted as containing a correct history of the subjects mentioned therein;-

Lastly, there are the two inscriptions in the mosque which have been reprudenced in any inspection notes. These are also referred to in the Gazetter and according to the date in the inscription on the pulpit, it was built in 923 Hijri, while according to the other it was in 935 H. corresponding with 1528 A.D.. These incorruptions were the sheet-anchor of the plff's case but I am of the opinion that they are inconclusive.

The Ist. inscription contains three in completes in Bersian and when translated runs as follows:-

"By the order of Shah Babar, whose Justice went up to the skies (i.e. was well-known), Amir (Noble) Mir Baqi, of lofty grandear, built this restiny place for angels in 923 Hijri".

The second inscription is more elaborate and contains in the usual gigh-flown language (sic) on enlogy of Babar and describes Mr. Baqi of Isphahan as his adviser and the builder of the mosque. This inscription no doubt supports the plff's case, because it does not say that it was by the order of Babar Shah and it only refers to the reign of

Babar but the Ist. comflet (sic) in the Ist increption (sic) near the pulpit, clearly supports the theory that Babar had ordered the building of the mosque as stated in the Gazette Returning Officer and the settlement report.

The aforementioned inference is trengthened from the fact that Babar had also made a grant for its upkeep.

Then, there is the admitted fact that within living memory the Imams and the Nuezzims in the mosque have been Sunnis, that they have been paid by mutawallis who have been shias, and that Faranech (sic), which is recited by Sunnis only and not by Shia (amongst whom it is prohibited) has been allowed by the mutwallis and paid for by them. In this connection, I may refer to Ex. A 20 which is a deed executed by H.Zaki in 1936 a agreed to pay the arrears to M. Abdul Ghuffer the Imam, and A 11, the accounts furnished by Kalab Husain (P.w.8. These facts are strongly suggestive of the fact that the founder of the mosque was a Sunni as had he been a Shia the funds for it maintenance would not have been utilised for Waqf. Act.

The notice, A 7, is also valid as it distinctly gives the cause of action.

In the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad
O.O.S. No. 1 of 1989
(Reg: Suit No.2 of 1950)

Shri Gopal Singh Visharad .....Plaintiff

Versus

Shri Zahur Ahmad and others .....Defendants

REPORT

Sir,

I was appointed a commissioner in the above case to prepare a site plan of the locality and building in suit on scale. Accordingly, in compliance with the order of the court, I visited the locality on 16.4.50 and again on 30.4.50 after giving due notice to the counsel of the parties, and made necessary measurements on the spot, on the first day of my visit none of the parties were present, but on the second day defendant no.1 was present with Shri Azimullah Khan and Shri Habib Ahmad Khan counsel. At about noon defendant no.1 presented an application, attached herewith, when the measurement work had already finished.

www.vadaprativada.com

Plan No.I represents the building in suit shown by the figure ABCDEF on a larger scale than Plan no.II, which represents the building with its locality.

A perusal of Plan no.I would show that the building has got two gates, one on the east and the other on the north, known as "Hanumatdwar" and "Singhdwar" respectively. The "Hanumatdwar" is the main entrance gate to the building. At this gate there is a stone slab fixed to the ground containing the inscription "1- Shri Janma Bhumi nitya yatra," and a big coloured picture of Shri Hanumanji is placed at the top of the gate. The arch of this entrance gate, 10' in height, rests on two black kasauti stone pillars, each 4' high, marked a and b, containing imaged of "Jai and Vijai" respectively engraved thereon. To the south of this gate on the outer wall there is engraved a stone image, 5' long, known as "Varah Bhagwan."

The northern gate, known as "singhdwar," 19'6" in height, has got at its top images of Garura in the middle and two lions one on each side.

On entering the main gate there is pucca floor on the eastern and northern side of the inner building, marked by letters GHJKL DGB on the north of the eastern floor there is a neem tree, and to the south of it there is the bhandara (kitcher). Further south there is a raised pucca platform, 17' x 21' and 4' high, known as "Ram Chabutra," on which stands a small temple having idols of Ram and Janki installed therein. At the south -eastern corner E there is a joint neem-pipal tree, surrounded by a semi-circular pucca platform, on which are installed marble idols of Panchmukhi mahadev, Parbati, Ganesh and nandi.

On the northern floor there is a pucca platform, 8' x 9', called "Sita Rasoi." On this platform there is a pucca chulha with chauka and belna, made of marble, affixed by its side. To the east of the chulha there are four pairs of marble foot prints of Ram, Lakshman, Bharat & Shatrunghna.

The pucca courtyard in front of the inner (main) building is enclosed by walls NHJK intercepted by iron bars with two iron bar gates at O and P as shown in the Plan no.I. At the sourthern end of this cortyard there are 14 stairs leading to the roof of the building, and to the south of the stairs there is a raised pucca platform 2' high, having a urinal marked U at its south-west corner.

There are three arched gates, X,Y and Z leading to the main building, which is divided into three portions, having arches at Q and R. There is a chhajja (projected roof) above the arch Y. 31

The three arches, Y, Q and R are supported on 12 black kasauti stone pillars, each 6' high, marked with letters c to n in Plan no.I. The pillars e to m have carvings of kamal flowers thereon. The pillar contains the image of Shankar Bhagwan in Tandava nritya form and another disfigured image engraved thereon. The pillar J contained the carved image of Hanumanji. The pillar n has got the image of Lord Krishna engraved thereon other pillars have also got carvings of images which are effaced.

In the central portion of the building at the north-western corner, there is a pucca platform with two stairs, on which is installed

www.vadaprativada.com

the idol of Bal Ram (infant Ram).

At the top of the three portions of the building there are three round domes, as shown separately in Plan no.I, each on an octagonal base. There are no towers, nor is there any ghusalkhana or well in the building.

Around the building there is a pucca path known as parikrama, as shown in yellow in Plan Nos.I & II. On the west of the parikrama, the land is about 20' low, while the pucca road on the northern side is about 18' low.

Other structures found on the locality have been shown in Plan no.II at their proper places.

The land shown by letters S and T is covered by huts and dhunis of sadhus.

Adjacent to and south of the land shown by letter T, there is a raised platform, bounded by walls, 4' 6" high, with a passage towards west, known as "shankar chabutra."

The pucca well, known as "Sita koop" has got a tin shed over it, and a stone slab is fixed close to it with the inscription "3- Sita koop". To the south -west of this well there is another stone slab fixed into the ground with the inscription "4-Sumitra Bhawan". On theraised platform of Sumitra Bhawan there is a stone slab fixed to the ground, marked , carved with the image of Shesh nag.

www.vadaprativada.com

The names of the various samadhis and other structures as noted in Plan no.II were given by sadhus and others present on the spot.

Plans nos.I and II, which form part of this report, two notices given to parties counsel and the application presented by defendant no.1 are attached herewith.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
Shiva Shankar Lal,
Pleader

Before the Katchehri Collectorate, District Faizabad, in the Court of Mr. Babrak Carnegi Deputy Commissioner on 31st August, 1863, Docket No. 2482, dated August 25, 1863 for Saheb Commissioner Bahadur, written by the Secretary to Chief Commissioner, received by post vide no. 116 dated August 28, 1863, with the undermentioned text. That for Rs. 302-3-6 the government had sanctioned for Masjid Janam Sthan a piece of land of Nuzul, for ever. Some land of Nuzul near Ayodhya be given, without paying Govt. revenue as Maafi for ever with all its income Rs. 302/3/6 per annum. The Deputy Commissioner was to send a map showing the land proposed to be given. In such a map contours and four corners should be clearly mentioned with correct measurement and be sent alongwith the report of the Commissioner. Order, Put up before the Court of Munshi Rai Ram Dayal Saheb Extra Assistant Commissioner Bahadur. Put up with previous file dated September 9, 1863 Sd/ officer. After perusal of the file, it was known that Rajab Ali and Mohd. Asghar are not present. It has to be enquired from them as to which land is desired to be given. Order : Put up on 16th September 1863.

Whereas before Rajab Ali and Mohd. Asghar, the proposal (Tajweez) was presented. The Naambardagaan told that land included in Shola Puri and Bhooranpur related to Nuzul may be given to us for 302/3 1/2. By inquiries from Sar Rishta it was cleared that Jama Adai Mauza Bhooranpur Rs. 193 and Jama Arazi Shivalapuri Rs. 162, total Rs. 355/- is for the whole year i.e. 52/12 1/2 Iradi with the condition that giving of the above mentioned plots of land are approved by the Assistant Commissioner Saheb Bahadur. After depositing Jamai 52/12.5, plot may be selected from Shivalapuri and total Mauza Bhooranpur may remain intact. Therefore it is ordered. Bamurad Sudoore order of the Court of Saheb Assistant Commissioner Bahadur District Incharge, be put up. Dated September 16, 1863 Sd/- Magistrate Ijlas Dr. Haque Saaheb Extra Assistant Commissioner Bahadur Incharge District Faizabzd. It is ordered that Munshi Ram Dayal Saheb Extra Assistant Commissioner Bahadur may forward a map of the two plots as per desire mentioned in the letter of the Secretary, Chief Commissioner. That as per his proposal, total land ..... 52/12/6 may be selected and after making adjustments, for both the plots as mentioned in the letter of the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, a map may kindly be prepared and forwarded. Then a proper report will be sent ..... in the meantime it is instructed that the same may please be sent urgently today. Dated September 28, 1863. Ijlas Munshi Ram Dayal Saheb Bahadur. Presented today and the petitioner was asked whether he was ready to pay the prices of the land, he replied in affirmative. So it was ordered that an Amin on wages may be deputed, through whom a map of Bhooranpur as Halka Had Bast and map of Sholapuri Kishtwar and clear may be prepared and the land Jama 52/12/6 of the govt. will remain in Halka Sholapuri. The Amin will add yellow colours to it, for identifying Nuzul Sarkar. Dated September 30, 1863 Sd/- Magistrate. Written by Lakshman Prasad Naqal Nawees.

Before Kutchehary Collectorate District Faizabad, Ijlas Mr. Babrak Carnegi Saheb Bahadur, Deputy Commissioner, on September 13, 1865 letter no. 2105 through Dak No. 867, dated September 9, instant with the following text. That the piece of land which the Deputy Commissioner has selected for Masjid Janam Sthan, has been approved. Therefore it is ordered that this application, be put up before Munshi Nand Kishore Saheb Bahadur Extra Assistant Magistrate with the request that it should be presented immediately along with (map of ) the land selected as compensation Yabinda Muawza. Sd/- Magistrate. Order of the Ijlas of Munshi Nand Kishore that the land selected as compensation, be given in possession and Dakhalnama be taken. Dated September 14, 1865 Sd/- Magistrate. Janab Aali Dam-e-Hashmatahu. Land Jama 302/35 as per following proposal, has been proposed I Mauza Bhooranpur Mauza Musallam Rs. 193 Aarazi Shola Puri Rs. 109/03, 1273 Fasli with an increase of Rs. 7/- has been approved. Jama Mauza Bhooranpur after being Ezad Patta has been issued i.e. patta has been issued, for Rs. 200 in place of Rs. 193. Therefore report dated September 6, 1865 contains detailed entries. However before giving the possession, without depositing additional amount for Jama land proposed earlier, may be given in possession of the applicant as ordered dated September 12, 1865. Sd/-Bhola Nath.

Ijalam Munshi Nand Kishore Saheb Extra Assistant Commissioner. It appears that compensation has been deposited. That for Bhooranpur it was Rs. 193 which continued till now. Now at the time of bandobast 1273 F, Rs. 7/- has been increased. In this way the patta for Rs. 200/- has been accepted. While, the map of compensation was prepared for approval, the Jama was Rs. 193. Now by Tameel Sudoor acceptance the meager increase of Rs. 7/- which comes to 2.5 percent, is not a big amount to be mentioned but information regarding this is necessary. Therefore it is ordered that this paper be put up before the Deputy Commissioner and without considering the increase. Possession may be given and after that adjustment may be made from Shola Puri land. Sd/- Magistrate September 16, 1865. Sd/- Magistrate. Written by Lakshman Prasad, Naqal Nawees.

Copy of the proposal (Tajweez) included in the file of Haqqiat Bandobast Sabid Bila Tahet Seer Register Aam 15047 decided on August 22, 1871. Ijlasi Janab Hakim Baandobast Saheb Bahadur Sabiq Faizabad. In the case of Mohammad Asghar etc. petitioners Vs. Govt. respondent ..... Arazi Ram Kot Pargana Haveli Oudh. The evidence of the petitioners after being recorded, and after the perusal of the same, the claim of Haqqiat-Aala Araazi is related to the Qabristan and trees of Imli situated in front of the door of the Masjid Babar Shah and Janam Sthan. After the inquiry it was found that the petitioner's have possession over the Imli trees, but the land is not that of the petitioners. This is a general Qabristan and the Courtyard and the door is that of Masjid and Janam Sthan. Such an Araazi could not be an individual property. It is therefore ordered: Degree for the right of possession of 21 trees of Imli, stood at Qabristan Aam no. Khasra as per file and Mauza Ram Kot, Pargana Haveli may be given to the petitioner and claim of the petitioner, regarding ownership rights over the Araazi of Qabristan be dismissed. A map of the degree be given to the parties and parwana in the name of Sadar Munsarim for compliance be issued, papers of bandobast be prepared and the file of the case be consigned to the office. अयोध्या (जनपद- फैजाबाद) के मौजा कोट राम चन्द्र के राजस्व अभिलेखों की प्रविष्टियों के सम्बन्ध में शासन द्वारा आदेशित जाँच पर आख्या ।

सचिव, राजस्व विभाग, उत्तर प्रदेश शासन के परम गोपनीय अर्द्ध शासकीय पत्र संख्या-378/पी एस/आर0एस0/92 दिनाँक 23 अक्टूबर, 1992 द्वारा अयोध्या में मौजा कोट राम चन्द्र के राजस्व अभिलेखों की प्रविष्टियों के सम्बन्ध में जिलाधिकारी, फैजाबाद द्वारा जाँच किये जाने के आदेश दिये गये। उक्त पत्र में जाँच के मुख्य विषय निम्नप्रकार अंकित हैं :-

(1) अयोध्या में मौजा कोट राम चन्द्र के प्रथम बन्दोबस्त 1861 के खतरे में भूखण्ड संख्या-163 के स्तम्भ नम्बर-2 एवं 16 में कुछ अनधिकृत कटिंग व परिवर्तन हुये हैं। स्तम्भ नं0-2 में "जमा मस्जिद" बढ़ाया गया है और स्तम्भ नं0-16 के शब्द समूह "यक चाह पोख्ता वाक़े है" को काटा गया है तथा उसके स्थान पर "मय कब्रिस्तान पोख्ता तादाद दरख्तान हस्ब मुन्दर्जा खसरा आबादी" बढ़ाया गया बताया जाता है।

(2) फैजाबाद के राजस्व अभिलेखागार में 1861 का मूल आबादी नकशा न होते हुए भी उसकी नकलें जारी की गई हैं, जो उच्च न्यायालय के समक्ष दाखिल हुई हैं। इस बात की जाँच की जाय कि उक्त नकलें कब और कितने और किसने और किस नकशे के आधार पर जारी किया है तथा 1861 का मूल आबादी नकशा अभिलेखागार में उपलब्ध है अथवा नहीं ।

(3) 1861 के प्रथम बन्दोबस्त के आबादी खतरे में अनेक स्थानों पर स्तम्भ 4 एवं 5 में अनधिकृत प्रविष्टियाँ कर दी गई हैं, जिसकी जाँच अपेक्षित है।

(4) द्वितीय बन्दोबस्त 1344 फसली के खतरे व खतौनी में भूखण्ड संख्या 171 और 172 में कब्रिस्तान की प्रविष्ट की गई है तथा उसी वर्ष के मानचित्र में कब्रिस्तान के कथित चिन्ह दिखा दिये गये हैं, जबकि प्रथम बन्दोबस्त में उक्त भूखण्डों के समरूपी पुराने खसरा नम्बरान 158 एवं 161 में कब्रिस्तान का इन्द्राज नहीं है और न मानचित्र में इन भूखण्डों में कब्रिस्तान दिखाया गया है। जाँच का विषय यह है कि द्वितीय बन्दोबस्त में उक्त भूखण्डों में किस प्रकार से तथा किस आधार पर कब्रिस्तान की प्रविष्टि की गई है ।

उक्त शासनादेश में यह भी उल्लिखित है कि सम्बन्धित अभिलेखों की जाँच के सम्बन्ध में आवश्यकतानुसार हस्तलिपि विशेषज्ञ की राय भी प्राप्त की जाय।

2- विन्दु संख्या-2 पर जाँच करने हेतु माननीय उच्च न्यायालय, इलाहाबाद लखनऊ पीठ, मण्डलायुक्त कार्यालय, फैजाबाद, मण्डलायुक्त कार्यालय, लखनऊ, मुख्य स्थाई अधिवक्ता, उच्च न्यायालय, लखनऊ पीठ आदि कार्यालयों से जाँच हेतु सम्पर्क करने और छानबीन करने की आवश्यकता पाई गई। चूँकि जिला मैजिस्ट्रेट फैजाबाद के पद पर कार्यरत रहते हुए प्रशासनिक व्यस्तताओं के कारण मेरा मुख्यालय से बार-बार बाहर जाना संभव नहीं था, अतः इस विन्दु पर जाँच हेतु मेरे द्वारा अपर जिला मैजिस्ट्रेट।नगर। श्री उमेश चन्द्र तिवारी को अधिकृत किया गया। श्री तिवारी ने अपनी जाँचरिपोर्ट दिनाँक 9.11.92 को प्रस्तुत कर दी है, जो इस रिपोर्ट के संलग्नक-दो। के रूप में अवलोकनीय है।

3- उपरोक्त वर्णित अभिलेखों की प्रविष्टियों में अनधिकृत कटिंग एवं परिवर्तन आदि की कथित शिकायत की जाँच हेतु हस्त लिपि विशेषज्ञ से जाँच कराये जाने की आवश्यकता पाई गई। तदनुसार अर्द्धशासकीय पत्र संख्या 254/ एस0टी0/राजभू/दिनाँक 27.10.92 द्वारा विशेष सचिव, गृह विभाग से इस जाँच हेतु शासकीय विशेषज्ञ की सेवायें उपलब्ध कराने का अनुरोध कियागया। विशेष सचिव, गृह विभाग के अर्द्धशासकीय पत्र संख्या-5019/पी एस-वी एस।अ।/ 92 दिनाँक 29.10.92 द्वारा पुलिस उप महा निरीक्षक, तकनीकी सेवाएँ, उत्तर प्रदेश, लखनऊ को यह निर्देश दिया गया कि वे हस्तलिपि विशेषज्ञ की तैनाती करते हुए उन्हें जिला मैजिस्ट्रेट, फैजाबाद से सम्पर्क करने हेतु निर्देशित करें। इस आदेश के अनुपालन में श्री एस0सी0 कम्बोज, सहायक निदेशक, विधि विज्ञान प्रयोग शाला, उत्तर प्रदेश, लखनऊ दिनाँक 30.10.92 को फैजाबाद आये और उन्होंने सम्बन्धित मूल अभिलेखों की प्रविष्टियों की प्रारम्भिक जाँच मेरे कार्यालय में की। उन्होंने यह व्यक्त किया कि गहन जाँच हेतु उक्त अभिलेखों की प्रविष्टियों की जाँच विधि विज्ञान प्रयोगशाला, लखनऊ में की जानी आवश्यक है। फलस्वरूप मूल अभिलेखों को एक मैजिस्ट्रेट और अभिलेखागार, फैजाबाद के कर्मचारी की

अभिरक्षा में विधि विज्ञान प्रयोगशाला, लखनऊ भेजा गया जहाँ श्री कम्बोज द्वारा इनकी गहन जाँच विज्ञान प्रयोग शाला में की गई। विधि विज्ञान प्रयोग शाला के सहायक निदेशक के पत्र संख्या 512-डाक-92 दिनांक 16-11-92 द्वारा उक्त जाँच आख्या प्राप्त हुई, जिसकी प्रति इस रिपोर्ट के संलग्नक।एक। के रूप में अवलोकनीय है।

4- उपरोक्त आख्याओं के प्राप्त होने पर मैंने स्वयं संगतअभिलेखों का गहराई से परीक्षण किया। शासन द्वारा सन्दर्भित जाँच के प्रत्येक बिन्दु पर मेरी आख्या निम्न प्रकार है:-

बिन्दु संख्या-।

अयोध्या में मौजा कोट राम चन्द्र के प्रथम बन्दोबस्त 1861 के खसरे में भूखण्ड संख्या-163 की प्रविष्टियों की छान-बीन की गई। उक्त के स्तम्भ संख्या-2 में उर्दू में "जमा मस्जिद आबादी जन्म स्थान" लिखा हुआ है। "जमा मस्जिद" शब्द स्तम्भ-2 में आबादी शब्द के ऊपर आधे स्तम्भ में लिखा गया है। यदि लिखने का आशय "आबादी "जमा मस्जिद जन्म स्थान" होता, तब आबादी शब्द जमा मस्जिद के पहले होना चाहिए था । इस बात से यह जिज्ञासा होती है कि क्या शब्द "जमा मस्जिद" तथा शब्द "आबादी जन्म स्थान" दोनों एक ही क्रम।तिक्वेन्त। में लिखा गया है अथवा भिन्न तिक्वेन्त में लिखा गया है । इस जाँच के क्रम में जिल्द बन्दोबस्त 1861 में यह देखा गया कि किन गाटों के सम्मुख शब्द "जमा" तथा"मस्जिद" कहाँ-कहाँ लिखा गया है। सामान्यत: नामान्तरण की प्रविष्टियों को छोड़कर पूरे जिल्द बन्दोबस्त की मूल प्रविष्टियाँ एक ही व्यक्ति के द्वारा लिखी होनी चाहिए ।उपरोक्त जिल्द बन्दोबस्त में खाता खतौनी संख्या 1,2,6 के खाना कैफियत में शब्द "जमा" तथा खसरा आबादी संख्या 13 व 47 के सम्मुख अंकित शब्द "मस्जिद" के लेखों की ओर विशेषज्ञ का ध्यान आकृष्ट कराते हुए उनसे यह राय देने की अपेक्षा की गई कि उपरोक्त खाता खतौनी संख्या 1,2,6 में अंकित शब्द "जमा" तथा खसरा आबादी संख्या 13 व 47 में अंकित शब्द "मस्जिद" तथा खसरे की भूमि गाटा संख्या-163 के स्तम्भ-2 में अंकित शब्द "जमा मस्जिद" में समानता है अथवा भिन्नता । इस बिन्दु पर विशेषज्ञ की राय से यह स्पष्ट होता है कि जिस व्यक्ति / व्यक्तियों ने खाता खतौनी संख्या 1,2, 6

----4

एवं खतरा आबादी संख्या 13 व 47 में शब्द "जमा" एवं शब्द "मस्जिद" लिखा है, उस व्यक्ति/व्यक्तियों ने गाटा संख्या 163 के स्तम्भ- 2 में उर्दू शब्द "जमा" एवं "मस्जिद" को नहीं लिखा है । इस प्रकार जिल्द बन्दोबस्त 1861 में एक ही शब्द भिन्न- भिन्न स्थानों पर भिन्न- भिन्न व्यक्तियों द्वारा लिखा गया है।

उपरोक्त गाटा संख्या 163 के स्तम्भ- 4 की प्रविष्टि को देखने से यह लगा कि शब्द "सरकार बहादुर" व ऐज़न के बीच शब्द "व अज़हर हुसैन" बाद में बढ़ाया गया है। हस्त लिपि विशेषज्ञ ने इस बात की पुष्टि की है कि स्तम्भ- 4 में उर्दू प्रविष्टि "सरकार बहादुर" व ऐज़न के बीच शब्द " व अज़हर हुसैन" बाद में इन्टरपोलेट किया गया है ।

विशेषज्ञ ने यह भी मत व्यक्त किया है कि गाटा संख्या 163 के स्तम्भ-16 में कटा हुआ उर्दू लेख " एक चाह पोखता वाक़े है" के बाद का लेख "मय कब्रिस्तान पोखता तादाद दरख्तान" एक ही क्वेन्ट में नहीं लिखे गये हैं, तथा उक्त दोनों लेखों के नीचे लिखा उर्दू लेख "हस्ब मुन्दर्जे खतरा आबादी" उससे भिन्न क्विन्ट में लिखा गया है । उपरोक्त तीनों लेखों की लिखावट एक दूसरे से भिन्न है ।

विशेषज्ञ ने यह भी स्पष्ट रूप से अंकित किया है कि उक्त के स्तम्भ-16 में विद्यमान उर्दू लेख "आबादी" तथा उसी के स्तम्भ-2 के उर्दू लेख "आबादी" भिन्न व्यक्तियों द्वारा लिखे गये हैं ।

समग्र रूप से खतरा 1861 के गाटा संख्या-163 के सम्मुख समस्त प्रविष्टियों के विशेषज्ञ द्वारा परीक्षण से यह स्पष्ट होता है कि गाटा संख्या 163 के स्तम्भ- 16 और स्तम्भ-2 में अंकित शब्द "आबादी" के लेख में भिन्नता, इसी गाटा के स्तम्भ-4 में शब्द "अज़हर हुसैन" का इन्टरपोलेशन , तथा इसी गाटा संख्या के खाना कैफियत अर्थात् स्तम्भ- 16 में उपरोक्त तीनों लेखों की लिखावट में भिन्नता यह स्पष्ट करती है कि गाटा संख्या-163 के स्तम्भ-2, 4 तथा 16 में उपरोक्त प्रविष्टियाँ बाद में बढ़ाई गई हैं ।

विन्दु संख्या-2

जैसा आख्या के पृष्ठ-2 के प्रस्तर-2 में अंकित किया गया है, इस विन्दु पर अपर जिला मैजिस्ट्रेट(नगर) से जाँच कराई गई, जिनकी जाँच आख्या दिनाँक 9.11.92 संलग्नक (दो) के रूप में अवलोकनीय है। अपर जिला मैजिस्ट्रेट(नगर) की उक्त जाँच आख्या इस जाँच आख्या का अंग समझी जाय। उक्त जाँच आख्या के अनुसार 1861 की सन्दर्भित आबादी नकशे की प्रतिलिपि संदिग्ध प्रतीत होती है। प्रथम बन्दोबस्त के उक्त आबादी का नकशा राजस्व अभिलेखागार, फैजाबाद में न तो उपलब्ध है और न ही उसकी नकल राजस्व अभिलेखागार, फैजाबाद से जारी की गई है। उक्त जाँच में यह भी अंकित किया गया है कि उक्त नकल किसके द्वारा बनाई गई है, इस पर मत व्यक्त करना संभव नहीं है। अपर जिला मैजिस्ट्रेट(नगर) की जाँच आख्या दिनाँक 9.11.92 से मैं सहमत हूँ।

1861 के प्रथम बन्दोबस्त आबादी खसरे में की गई कथित अनधिकृत प्रविष्टियों पर विशेषज्ञ की राय ली गई। विशेषज्ञ की राय इस विन्दु पर इस प्रकार है:-

"खसरा आबादी संख्या-1 के स्तम्भ 6,7,8 का उर्दू लेख "30 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार", संख्या 26 व 27 के बीच स्तम्भ 5,6,7 का उर्दू लेख"167 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार," संख्या 224, 225 के बीच स्तम्भ 6,7 का उर्दू लेख" 53 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार", संख्या 226 या 227 के बीच स्तम्भ 6,7 का उर्दू लेख"109 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार", संख्या 328 व 329 के बीच स्तम्भ 6,7 का उर्दू लेख "114 नम्बर आबादी किश्त वार", संख्या 347 व 348 के बीच स्तम्भ 5.6,7 का उर्दू लेख "128 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार", संख्या 350 व 351 के बीच स्तम्भ 5,6,7 का उर्दू लेख"130 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार", संख्या 422 व 423 के बीच स्तम्भ 5,6,7 का उर्दू लेख "102 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार", संख्या-429 व 430 के बीच स्तम्भ 5,6 का उर्दू लेख "104 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार", संख्या 430 व 431 के बीच स्तम्भ 5,6 का उर्दू लेख "163 नम्बर आबादी किश्तवार" अपने -अपने पृष्ठ के स्तम्भ 1 से 9 के शेष मूल प्रविष्टियों के क्रम में नहीं लिखे गये हैं।

----6

उक्त खतरा आबादी संख्या-431 से 456 के कैफियत के स्तम्भ 431 के सामने ,434 के सामने, 449 के सामने तथा खतरा आबादी के अन्तिम पृष्ठ के मध्य "इकरार मालकान" के ऊपर मिटाये जाने के चिन्ह विद्यमान हैं।

मैंने उक्त प्रविष्टियों तथा विशेषज्ञ की राय का विश्लेषण किया। मेरे मत में बन्दोबस्त के खतरा आबादी के उक्त आबादी संख्याओं के बीच में स्तम्भ 5 से 7 तक में जो प्रविष्टियां की गई हैं वह बाद में अन्य व्यक्ति/व्यक्तियों द्वारा बढ़ाई गई प्रतीत होती हैं जो सम्बन्धित पृष्ठों के स्तम्भ 1 से 9 तक के शेष मूल प्रविष्टियों के क्रम में नहीं लिखी गई हैं। खतरा संख्या 431 से 456 के कैफियत के खाने के भी समस्त लेख एक क्रम में नहीं लिखे गये हैं। खतरा आबादी संख्या 431 से 456 के कैफियत के स्तम्भ में 431, 434 व 449 के सामने तथा खसरा आबादी के अन्तिम पृष्ठ के मध्य "इकरार मालकान" के ऊपर मिटाये जाने के चिन्ह विद्यमान हैं । इस प्रकार स्पष्ट है कि उपरोक्त प्रविष्टियां अनधिकृत रूप से आबादी खतरा 1861 में की गई प्रतीत होती हैं ।

विन्दु संख्या 4-

द्वितीय बन्दोबस्त 1344 फसली में अंकित भूखण्ड संख्या 171 , 172 कब्रिस्तान दर्ज हैं और उस वर्ष के मानचित्र में सम्बन्धित गाटों को कब्रिस्तान के चिन्ह से दिखाया गया है। प्रथम बन्दोबस्त में इन गाटों के समरूपी नम्बरान क्रमशः 158 और 161 कब्रिस्तान दर्ज नहीं हैं और न ही नकशा किश्तवार में इन भूखण्डों को कब्रिस्तान दिखाया गया है।

उक्त विषय पर सम्बन्धित राजस्व अभिलेखों का निरीक्षण तथा अध्ययन किया गया। प्रथम बन्दोबस्त 1861 की खतौनी में गाटा संख्या 158 व 161 आबादी दर्ज हैं, तथा खतरा में गाटा संख्या 158 से संबंधित स्तम्भ 16 में "मिन जुमला नौ बरखत इमली के डिगरी निस्फ हिस्सा वहक मुतम्मात बदामू खटकिन ऊपर मुतम्मत गंगादेई मुद्दालेह वाकय 17 जनवरी, 1870 ई० इजलासी मुन्शी शिव प्रसाद साहब बहादुर से सादिर हुई फक़त" अंकित है तथा इसके स्तम्भ-2 , जिसकी पेशानी " नाम खेत का " है में "भीटा" अंकित है। उक्त खतरा में गाटा संख्या 161 से सम्बन्धित स्तम्भ

।6 में "मिनजुमला पाँच दरख्त, रीठा।, इमली 4 डिगरी निस्फ बहक मुतम्मात बदामू खटकिन ऊपर गंगादेई मुद्दालेह वाक़य ।7 जनवरी, ।870ई इजलासी मुन्शी शिव प्रसाद साहब बहादुर से सादिर हुई फ़क़त" अंकित है तथा इसके स्तम्भ-2 में "भीटा" अंकित है। उक्त दोनों नम्बरान प्रथम बन्दोबस्त में कब्रिस्तान अंकित नहीं हैं, जब कि कुछ अन्य नम्बरान का कब्रिस्तान होना अंकित है। अत: इससे यह विदित होता है कि उक्त नम्बरान ।58 व ।6। प्रथम बन्दोबस्त में "कब्रिस्तान" नहीं थे अन्यथा उस प्रकार दर्ज किये जाते ।

प्रथम बन्दोबस्त के उपरोक्त भूखण्ड संख्या ।58 व ।6। के मौजूदा नम्बरान क्रमश: ।7। व ।72 हैं। द्वितीय बन्दोबस्त इस ग्राम में वर्ष ।937 अर्थात् ।344 फसली में हुआ, जिसके अभिलेखों मेंउक्त नम्बरान ।7। व ।72 बतौर कब्रिस्तान दर्ज किये गये हैं तथा मानचित्र में भी बतौर कब्रिस्तान चिन्हित किये गये हैं, जब कि प्रथम बन्दोबस्त में यह आबादी अंकित हैं तथा उनपर स्थित दरख्तान के विषय में पारित डिगरी बहक मुतम्मात बदामू दिनाँक ।7 जनवरी, ।870ई इजलासी मुन्शी शिव प्रसाद साहब बहादुर का अमलदरामद अंकित है ।

प्रथम बन्दोबस्त की प्रविष्टि से भिन्न प्रविष्टि द्वितीय बन्दोबस्त में किए जाने के आधार एवं प्रक्रिया के सम्बन्ध में प्रभारी अधिकारी, राजस्व अभिलेखागार से आख्या माँगी गई। इस सम्बन्ध में उनकी आख्या दिनाँक 23.।।.92 प्राप्त हुई है, जो इस रिपोर्ट के संलग्नक ।तीन। के रूप में अवलोकनीय है। इस आख्या में वस्तु स्थिति इस प्रकार अंकित है:-

"दोनों जिल्द बन्दोबस्त को देखने से यह स्पष्ट नहीं होता है कि उक्त दोनों गाटों ।7। व ।72 पर कब्रिस्तान की प्रविष्टि किसके आदेश से हुई है। यद्दपि गत बन्दोबस्त में कब्रिस्तान की प्रविष्टि नहीं थी तो दूसरे बन्दोबस्त में कब्रिस्तान की प्रविष्टि करने के लिए प्रक्रिया यह है कि किसी सक्षम अधिकारी का आदेश होना चाहिए। किन्तु उक्त कब्रिस्तान से संबंधित प्रविष्टि के सम्बन्ध में कोई आदेश पत्रावली अभिलेखागार में उपलब्ध नही हैं"।

उपरोक्तिथ्यों से स्पष्ट है कि द्वितीय बन्दोबस्त में उपरोक्त गाटा संख्या ।7। व ।72 को किस प्रकार से किस आधार पर बतौर कब्रिस्तान दर्ज किया गया है इसके लिये कोई अभिलेखीय आधार उपलब्ध नहीं है।

परिस्थितियों में चाहे वर्ष 1909 में कमिश्नरी का मुख्यालय फैजाबाद रहा हो अथवा लखनऊ में रहा हो, 1909 के दस्तखत को पहचानने के लिए फैजाबाद कमिश्नरी तथा लखनऊ कमिश्नरी के समस्त वरिष्ठ लिपिकगण अपनी असमर्थता व्यक्त कर रहे हैं क्योंकि वर्तमान में जो भी वरिष्ठतम कर्मचारीगण दोनों कार्यालय में कार्यरत हैं अथवा कतिपय ऐसे कर्मचारीगण जो उपरोक्त कमिश्नरी से सेवा निवृत्त हो चुके हैं और जीवित हैं, उनसे भी सम्पर्क स्थापित करने पर कोई भी व्यक्ति उपरोक्त प्रतिलिपि नक्शा को जारी करने वाले व्यक्ति के हस्ताक्षर को पहचानने में असमर्थ हैं । ऐसी स्थिति में इस मामले को यह जाँच कि किस व्यक्ति द्वारा और किन परिस्थितियों में यह नक्शा मण्डलायुक्त के कार्यालय से जारी किया गया, जब कि मण्डलायुक्त के कार्यालय में कोई राजस्व अभिलेखागार नहीं होता था, संभव नहीं है । जाँच के दौरान यह भी विदित हुआ कि लखनऊ कमिश्नरी तथा फैजाबाद कमिश्नरी के अभिलेखागार में कभी भी कोई राजस्व अभिलेख नहीं रखे गये हैं, अतः 1861 प्रथम बन्दोबस्त के मूल आबादी नक्शा का होना तथा उससे नक्शे के प्रतिलिपि का जारी किया जाना अप्रासंगिक है । अतः यह नकल जो 1909 में कमिश्नरी कार्यालय से जारी किया जाना व्यक्त करती है संदिग्ध प्रतीत होती है क्योंकि कमिश्नरी अभिलेखागार में उक्त अभिलेख कभी भी उपलब्ध नहीं रहे, जिससे नकल जारी की जा सकती । मजीद जाँच से यह भी विदित हुआ कि नक्शे की नकल पर जो कमिश्नरी की मोहर लगी है, जिसका जारी किया जाना 1909 अंकित है, उस मोहर को कार्यालय का होना साक्ष्य के अभाव में सत्यापित नहीं हो पाया । इसके अतिरिक्त इस विषय पर यह भी व्यक्त करना है कि स्थानीय अभिलेखागार में मौजा कोट राम चन्दर के अभिलेखों के बस्ते में अथवा जिल्द बन्दोबस्त 1861 के अभिलेखों के साथ आबादी का कोई भी नक्शा उपलब्ध नहीं है अतः मेरे मत में नक्शा आबादी को कथित उक्त नकल संदिग्ध प्रतीत होती है । यह नकल किसके द्वारा बनाई गई इस पर मत भी व्यक्त करना सम्भव नहीं है । इस आशय के साथ आपके द्वारा प्रेषित नक्शा आबादी की प्रतिलिपि तथा अन्य सूचनाएँ जो भी आपने मुझे उपलब्ध कराई है, प्रेषित कर रहा हूँ ।

At this juncture it is pertinent to mention oral evidence adduced by the plaintiffs of OO.S. no. 4 of 1989.

Total number of witnesses examined by the plaintiffs are 32. These witnesses may be divided into three categories. The first category is of those witnesses who have deposed that Namaz was offered in the disputed building up to 22.12.1949. These witnesses can be considered under category (A). The second category of witnesses are those witnesses who have deposed about the principles of Shariat regarding nature of mosque. The 3rd category is of those witness who possesses the knowledge of history or archeology. Mohd. Hashim, PW-1, Haji Mahbood Ali, PW-2, Farooq Ahmad, PW-3, Mohd. Yaseen, PW-4, Abdul Rahma, PW-5, Mohd. Unus Siddiqui, PW-6, Hasmatullah Ansari, PW-7, Abdul Ajeej, PW-8, Saiyad Ablaq Ahmad, PW-9, Jalil Ahmad, PW-14, Dr. Mohammad Hashim Quidwai, PW-21 and Sibte Mohd. Naqvi, PW-25 can be placed under category (A).

www.vadaprativada.com

So far as evidence of PW-1, Mohd. Hashim is concerned, he has deposed that his residential house exists at a distance of three farlong from the disputed site. For the first time he offered Namaz in the Babri Mosque in the year 1938. People of Muslim community used to offer Namaz in this mosque. Last Namaz was offered by this witness on 22.12.1949. Idol was placed by Abhi Ram Das and others in the inner courtyard for the first time in December, 1949. He has broadly supported the plaint case in his examination in chief. In his cross examination, he has stated that a civil suit was filed by Mahant

www.vadaprativada.com

Raghubar Das in the year 1985 with regard to the platform which existed in the outer side of the mosque. This suit was dismissed up to the court of Judicial Commissioner. The mosque of Dorahi Kuan exists at about 200 yards from the disputed structure. This mosque existed prior to his memory. There are minarets in it, it is a very old mosque. He was cross examined about the affidavits filed in the proceedings of Section 145 Cr.P.C. On being cross examined, he has deposed that these affidavits were the result of the pressure exerted by the local people on the persons whose affidavits find place on the record of Section 145 Cr.P.C. Proceedings. The mosque which exists at the Vashista Kund is of Mughal period, two persons pressurized and assaulted the persons of Muslim community and compelled them to file affidavits in favour of Hindus. He went on to state that no pressure was applied in this regard by the District Administration and no complaint was lodged in this regard to the concerned authorities. He has also stated that the Muslim community of Ayodhya was very much annoyed with the then Deputy Commissioner K.K. Nayyer, but no complaint was made before him on the point of exerting pressure by the local people on those persons who succumbed to the pressure applied by the local people and consequently filed affidavits in favour of Hindus regarding property in suit.

He has also deposed that prior to placing of idols in the inner courtyard there was a law of jungle in Ayodhya and no officer was ready to entertain the complaint made by the persons of Muslim community. This jungle law persisted from one month before

22/23.12.1949. Baba Raghav Das was exhorting the Hindus to instal idols in the inner courtyard while Akshay Brahmachari was supporting the claim of Muslims. This Akshay Brahmachari was disciple of Basudev Brahmachari and was a strong Congress man. He was a leader of provincial level. He has admitted that no complaint was made by him to the Prime Minister or Home Minister regarding the installation of idols in the inner courtyard of the disputed building. He has also stated that no riot took place in Ayodhya prior to 1949, but subsequently he admitted that riot took place in 1912 and again in 1934. The riot of 1912 is know as Idul Fitr riot case. The incident of cow slaughter allegedly took place in Shahjahanpur. The people from Ayodhya returned from Shahjahanpur and took part in this riot. Village Shahjahanpur is situated in district Faizabad. A tax was imposed on the persons of Hindu community in the years 1934. He does not know about the involment of Mahant Narottam Das of Nirmohi Akhara in the years 1912 in connection of the riot which took place in this year. He does not know about Rahim Khan son of Ahmad Khan of Mohalla Kaziana, Ayodhya. He was not born in the years 1912 and has not inspected the record of this riot. So far as the riot of 1934 is concerned, he is fully conversant about it. The King of Alwar, who was expelled from Rajasthan started residing in Ayodhya in the years 1934. He was the man who was responsible for this riot.

This witness went on to state that he never visited Sutahti Mohalla and the Babri Masjid was damaged in the riot of 1934. Two person died in this incident and Sutahti Mohalla was put on fire in this incident. He has also stated that Namaz can be offered in open field, but namaz cannot be offered in the temple. He do not remember as to in which month he went to offer namaz for the first time in the disputed building. Similarly, he do not remember as to how many trees were there in front of the mosque. He does not know about the age of these trees, which were at a distance of 200-300 yards from the disputed building. There was a temple known as Manas trust temple. There are so many temples in the eastern side of this building, namely Kohbar Bhawan Mandir, Anand Bhawan Mandir, Rang Mahal Mandir and Amawa Mandir. He has also stated that there are at least 4500 temples in Ayodhya.

The second witness examined from the plaintiffs' sides falls within category (A) is PW-2, Haji Mahboob Ali. He has deposed that disputed mosque is at a distance of three Farlong from his house. He offered last Namaz in this building on 22.12.1949. Inner courtyard was always used for offering namaz by Muslim community of Ayodhya. Friday prayers were offered at Ayodhya only in two mosques. Same position was with the offering of Taravi-prayers. His father was plaintiff in this case. He was landlord and farmer and had two hundred Bighas land in his possession. The incident of 6.12.1992 took place in his presence. He has admitted that a stone slab is installed near the mosque, but he does not know as to what is written on the slab. In his further cross examination, he has stated that Friday prayers were offered in Ayodhya only in two mosques, the first was Kewde Wali Masjid and the second mosque was the disputed mosque.

He has admitted that there was a platform in the outer courtyard of the disputed building, which was about 21 feet long. He used to see Chulha, Chauka and Belan in the outer courtyard. People used to say that this place is Sita Rasoi.

He was not born in the year 1934 when allegedly riot took place. He does not know as to what was the reason behind this riot. He does not know whether the outer courtyard was attached in the year 1949 or not, but he has knowledge about the litigation, which took place in 1885. He has also admitted that the figures of any animal, bird or man cannot be depicted in a mosque building, but flowers and leaves can be depicted. He has denied that his statement regarding his age is false, but he has admitted that there were confusion and misconception about it. The cross examination conducted on behalf of the defendants goes to show that the age stated by this witness in his examination in chief is not reliable and the deposition made in the cross examination proves this fact. He has admitted that one fortnight before the incident on 22.12.1949, shoes, stones and pebbles were hurled on the persons, who went for offering Namaz in the disputed building, but he has clarified that no such incident took place with him. He has knowledge about the report of Waqf Inspector where it might have been mentioned that Hindus used to hurl pebbles, shoes and stones on those who went for offering namaz in the disputed building. He does not know whether any person exhorted the Hindu community with reference to disputed building. He has admitted the existence of Sita Rasoi, was existed in the outer lawn in the northern side of the building. Rolling pin etc. were there at Sita Rasoi. There was a thatched structure on the platform in the outer courtyard. He has admitted that Lord Rama was born in Ayodhya. He does not know about the details of the disputed property. He does not know as to when railing was constructed between the outer and inner courtyard. He does not know whether this was constructed by the Britishers or not. He has also stated that if any mosque is constructed after demolishing any temple, then no person of Muslim community would like to offer namaz in that building. He was confronted with the school certificate wherein his year of birth has been mentioned as 1944, on which he has stated that this date of birth is not correct. He has also admitted that no effort was made on his part to get this mistake corrected at any point of time.

The 3rd witness examined by the plaintiffs also falls within the category (A) and is PW-3, Farooq Ahmad, who has stated that he offered namaz in the Babri Masjid up to December, 1949. He is resident of Mohalla Navgazi. He has stated that his father was informed by Sub-Inspector, Ram Dev that some untoward incident was likely to happen with regard to the disputed property. On the suggestion of the Inspector, lock was put on the doors by him and he handed over the keys to his father. It was end of the month of December, 1949 when after offering namaz of Esha they had gone to their home. He has also stated that presence of minaret is not essential in a mosque. So far as dome is concerned it may or may not exist in a mosque. He has stated that his shop and house is near Post Office in

Ayodhya. Sub- Inspector Ram Dev was posted in Ayodhya 4 or 5 months back of the incident of December, 1949. He does not know as to who was the Sub-Inspector prior to the posting of Ram Dev. Sub-Inspector had apprehension that some persons may install the idols in the inner courtyard. He has admitted that no lock was put in the Babri Mosque prior to 22.12.1949. He has stated that no mosque or graveyard or tomb situate in Ayodhya was demolished by any person prior to 1949. This goes to show that he has no knowledge about the incident of 1934 when allegedly the disputed mosque was partially damaged. He has stated that all the records relating to mosques and graveyards, which were kept by his father were set on fire in the year 1992. He has admitted that if any mosque is constructed on the land of a person forcibly, then this mosque will not be termed as valid mosque. He has admitted that the place where disputed mosque existed was known as Kot Ram Chander. He has admitted the existence of Janam Sthan, Sita Rasoi in the outer courtyard. He went on to state that at the entrance gate in the northern side, thatched huts existed, which were small in size. People used to sit in it. He has stated that these huts were constructed by Muslims, but he has not been able to disclose the names of those persons as to who constructed these huts. He has also admitted that prior to the incident on 22/23.12.1949 in the eastern side of the building people used to recite holy names of God. This recitation was not confined only to Hindu community even persons of Muslim community would participate in it. There was a platform in Gang-e-Shahidan where people used to offer sacrifice in the holy fire. He has stated that about 82 Muslims died in the incident, which took place about 100 years ago. The bodies of these persons are buried in Gang-e-Shahidan. He has also admitted that the riot of 1934 took place prior to his memory. No damage was done to the disputed mosque in this incident, but later on he has admitted that the western wall and the dome of this mosque were damaged in the incident. Few persons of Muslim community were done to death and 10-12 houses were damaged in this incident. He has denied that police suo motu lodged F.I.R. on the incident of 22/23.12.1949. Indirectly he says that this F.I.R. was lodged by any person of Muslim community. But subsequently he admitted that he does not know, who recorded the F.I.R. of this incident. Head constable, Abdul Barkat used to write reports in Ayodhya Police Station. He has stated that no police force was deployed at the disputed site in the intervening night of 22/23.12.1949. He has admitted that no property pertaining to Mosque was attached in December, 1949. No person was appointed receiver with regard to the property of mosque. He has denied the fact that affidavits were filed in the proceedings of Section 145 Cr.P.C. in favour of Hindus by the persons of Muslim community. He does not know as to whether any report was lodged on the behest of Ram Dev, Sub-Inspector or any constable of Police Station, Ayodhya. The photographs of the Album (figure no. 76) has been shown to the witness who after viewing it has deposed that images of elephant and horses are engraved along with flowers and leaves on the columns which were fixed in the disputed building. He has also recognized the head of elephant, although he has clarified that so many changes have been done in it. In photograph no. 91 he has recognized the trunk of an elephant and also recognized "Kalash". He has recognized statue of a girl on the column. He has also admitted that he did not inform to his counsel about the changes and for the first time deposing about these changes in the court. He does not know as to any Waqf Inspector, Mohd. Ibrahim would come to visit the disputed site or not. Similarly, he does not recollect that after the death of Zaki Saheb, Mohd. Ibrahim used to come to his father or not. He does not recollect as to when Zaki Saheb died. He tried to correct his earlier statement, wherein he has deposed that only one lock was put in the door of railing in the disputed building in the intervening night of 22/23.12.49. He has stated that the last prayers were offered in this mosque on 16.12.1949. He does not know as to whether the statement to this effect was given by his father is correct or not. He has also stated that after putting the lock, he did not pay any heed to inform the Moazzin of the mosque, who was sleeping beneath the hut in the disputed building. He has denied that he had seen railing, rolling pin in the outer courtyard prior to 1949. He has also stated that he had not seen any platform in the outer courtyard prior to 1949. Subsequently, he has admitted these facts and stated that he used to see rolling pin. In contrast to his earlier statement, he has stated that right since 1934 up to 5.12.1992 platform, rolling pin and platform were there in the outer courtyard and no damage was done at any point of time to these articles. He admits that he never managed this mosque and is unable to state as to what is the duration when his father managed this mosque. He has also stated that the locks which were put in the disputed building on 22.12.1949 remained there up to 1986. Indirectly he denies that the lock was put by receiver after the attachment of property in suit.

www.vadaprativada.com

Another witness of category (A) is Mohd. Yaseen, PW-4 who has stated in his examination in chief that he is resident of Ayodhya. He always offered Namaz on Friday in Babri Mosque. Last Namaz was offered by him 47 years ago. On 22/23/12.1949, idols were placed inside mosque. There was arrangement for Wazu. Urinal was also present in the mosque. Mat and badhana were there, which were used by the persons of Muslim community who used to come over there for offering namaz. The idols of Hindu Gods and Goddesses were not engraved on the Kasauti pillars. In his cross examination, he has stated that there was a platform in the southern side of the mosque, which was 2-5 feet in height from the ground level. There was a hut over it. Rolling pin was there but there was no trace of any stove. He has stated that so far as he recollects any Hindu did not offer prayer in the outer courtyard. No riot took place in the year 1949 between Hindus ad Muslims, but he had heard from his mother that in village Shahjahanpur some dispute arose regarding cow slaughter. He was informed that one or two domes of the disputed building were demolished in this riot. He has also admitted that beside entrance gate of the building, people of Hindu community used to recite holy names of God. He had noticed this fact even on the last date when he had visited the site for offering Namaz.

He has stated that Ram Chabutra was not in existence. His house exists at a distance of 1.5 Km. from the Babri mosque. He has admitted that he is suffering from memory loss. If any person succeeds in proving that Babri Mosque was built after demolishing any temple, in that event he would not consider this mosque as a valid mosque. He has also stated that Namaz was never offered in the outer courtyard. He has also admitted the existence of black pillars of Kasauti.

Shri Abdul Rahman has been examined as PW-5 by the plaintiffs. He is Hafiz-Quran. Quran was recited in Babri Mosque in the year 1945-46. He always offered Namaz in the disputed building whenever he visited over there on Friday. He is resident of Ibrahimpur, Faizabad. In his cross-examination he has stated that if figures of animals and birds or human being are engraved on the walls of a mosque, then it is against the tenets of Islam. These figures cannot be even outside of a mosque. According to holy Quran, no image or figure should be in a mosque. If figures of animals and human being are present in a mosque, it is not approved according to Islamic tenets, whoever engraves aforesaid images, he is wrong doer in the eye of Islam and offering Namaz is prohibited at such place.

Next witness of this category is Mohd. Unus Siddiqui, PW-6 who is resident of Reedganj, Faizabad. He has stated in his examination in chief that prior to December, 1949, there was no idol in the inner courtyard. No Hindu entered in the inner courtyard prior to December, 1949. He is in legal profession and used to visit the site for offering namaz at the occasion of Shabe-Barat. In his cross-examination he has stated that between 1957 and 1960, he came to know as to who constructed the Babri Mosque. He does not know about its area. This mosque was named after emperor Babur as it was constructed on his command. He had heard that on the suggestion of a Muslim Saint, Musa Ashikan, Babur got the temple demolished and directed to construct mosque over there. According to the injunctions of Islam, no mosque can be constructed over a land which belongs to another person and he does not give his consent or transfer it in favour of the person who desires to construct a mosque. Offering namaz against the will of the person who is owner of that building is against Quranic injunctions. Demolishing a temple is prohibited under Islam and holy Quran does not authorize any person to construct a mosque after demolishing a temple.

www.vadaprativada.com

Shri Hasmatullah Ansari has been examined as PW-7. He is resident of Mohalla Kaziana, Ayodhya and was born in 1932. He offered Namaz in Babri Mosque at least 100 times. For the first time he offered namaz in the years, 1943. Prior to installing of idols in the inner courtyard he used to offer namaz in this building. In his cross examination statement he has deposed that there is no Muslim population in Mohalla Vashista Kund. No mosque can be constructed after demolishing a temple.

Shri Abdul Ajeej has been examined as PW-8, who is resident of Faizabad and was born in 1926. He offered namaz in the disputed building at least 100 times. He was ten years old when for the first time Namaz was offered in this building. At the time of recording of statement, he stated his age as 70 years. In his cross examination, he has stated that mosque cannot be constructed in another man's land without his consent. He has seen Kanati mosque in graveyard. No second mosque can be constructed in that very graveyard and only Kanati mosque can be constructed. He does not have much information about Ayodhya. He has no knowledge about the temples, Akharas and Saints of this place. From the very beginning this fact was in his knowledge that the population of Hindus is greater than the muslim population.

Shri Syeed Akhlak Ahmad, PW-9 is transporter by profession. His house is at a distance of nearly one farlong from the Babri mosque. He offered Namaz five times in Babri Mosque. He in his cross examination has narrated about the requirements, which are essential prior to construction of a mosque. One of the requirements is that the person who executes Waqf, must be owner of the property. He does not know whether Mir Baqi was Shia or Sunni Muslim. In History books he had read that disputed building was constructed on the command of emperor Babur, but his knowledge is limited only to the inscriptions. According to the tenets of Islam, no mosque can constructed after demolishing a temple. If there is any mosque, which is constructed after demolition of a temple, in that event offering Namaz at that place is a sin in the eye of Islamic injunctions. No mosque can be constructed over a land which has been grabbed forcibly from the rightful owner. He has admitted that after opening of the locks, people whose number was in lakhs used to visit this site for offering prayer and performing rituals. A mosque even cannot be constructed at a place where hut of any person existed and no consent was obtained from him.

Shri Suresh Chander Mishra, PW-13, is aged about 38 years. He is resident of district-Basti. In his examination in chief he has stated as if he is scholar of Hindu Religion, but from his cross-examination statement, it transpires that he is a political man and has no knowledge about the building in suit.

Now only two witnesses namely Dr. M. Hashim Qidwai, PW-21, and Mohd. Qasim Ansari, PW-23 come under category (A), who have stated that Namaz was offered in the disputed building, but so far as PW-21 is concerned, he has stated that for the first time in 1939 he had offered Namaz along with his family members and had continued up to 1941. At the time of Maghrib Namaz about 100 persons assembled over there while during Friday prayers approximately 200-300 persons used to take part in offering prayers. Dr. M. Hashim Qidwai, PW-21 retired as Reader from Aligarh Muslim University. He has also proved some papers. So far as Mohd. Qasim Ansari, PW-23 is concerned, he is 74 years of age. He is motor mechanic by profession. His house situate approximately at a distance of 3 farlong from disputed building. Last prayer was offered by him on 22.12.1949. In his cross-examination he has stated about the riots of 1934. He came to know from the newspapers about it.. The cause

behind this riot was allegedly cow slaughter, which was said to have occurred in village Shahjahanpur. He does not know about the location of this village. In this riot specially the dome of the mosque was damaged, but he does not know about its details as to what portion of the dome/domes was damaged in this incident.

Mohd. Qasim Ansari, PW-23, in his cross-examination has stated that Islam does not permit any person to grab the land or building of any person. Namaz cannot be offered at a place where figures of animals or human beings are depicted. He was shown figure no. 57. After viewing it he has stated that this is a platform where Hindu saints used to recite holly names of God. After viewing figure no. 72 he has recognized that rolling pin, impression of foot steps have been shown in it.

The second category of the witnesses is of those persons who have special knowledge about form or nature of a mosque. In this category PW-10, Mohd. Idris, PW-11, Mohd. Burhanuddin, PW-19, Maulana Atiq Ahmad, PW-22, Mohd. Khalid Nadvi, PW-25, Mohd. Sibte Naqvi, PW-26, Kalbe Jawad can be placed. They all have stated that they are well conversant with the Muslim religion. There is no specification for construction of a mosque. Minaret (Minar) is not essential part of a mosque. If a mosque is constructed on a vacant place, even then it would be just and proper. Even if idols are placed or pictures are depicted in a mosque, the mosque would not loose its character. In the statement of Maulana Atiq Ahmad, it is said that minaret, domes or provision for urinal is not integral part of a mosque.

It will not loose its character even if pictures are depicted on the walls. So far as statement of Shri Kalbe Jawad is concerned, he has deposed that there is no distinction between Shia and Sunni mosque. He categorically opined that no specification is provided for construction of a mosque. He has also stated that members of Shia community are actively involved and concerned with the present issue.

I have gone through the cross-examination statement of these witnesses, although at different places they have tried to narrate that minarets, provision for urinal, domes are integral part of a mosque. But their statement is contrary to the general belief prevailing amongst Muslims that if figures of human beings or animals are depicted in a mosque or idols are placed over there, then it cannot be termed as a valid mosque and according to Islamic injunctions no prayer can be offered. As mentioned above most of the witnesses have admitted that on the columns, which were fixed in the disputed building, figures of human beings, trunk of elephant were depicted besides flowers and leaves. Therefore, according to these witnesses, no namaz can be offered at a place where human figures or figures of animals or idols are placed in a mosque.

Third category of the witnesses is of expert witnesses. In this category learned counsel for the plaintiffs has mentioned PW-13, Suresh Chandra Mishra, PW-15, Sushil Srivastava, PW-18, Professor Suvira Jaiswal, PW-20, Professor Shirin Musavi, PW-27, Dr. Shereen F. Ratnagar, PW-28, Dr. Sita Ram Roy, PW-29, Dr. Jaya Menon, PW-30, Dr. R.C. Thakran, PW-31, Dr. Ashok Datta, PW-32, Dr. Supriya

Verma and DW 6/1, Mohd. Abid.

In his cross examination Shri Suresh Chandra Mishra, PW-13 has not been able to say whether he is theist or atheist. He has accepted that in "Raghuvansh" there is description of Lord Rama. He has also heard about poet Valmiki. From the bare reading of Valmiki Ramayan, it transpires that at the time when it was written human population was in Ayodhya. The traditions, behaviour, festival and dress code etc of that period are mentioned in it. He has accepted that he had read the history written by P. Carnegy about Ayodhya, but he does not recollect as to when this book was written. P. Carnegy was the Commissioner of Faizabad Division. The name of the book is- "A Historical Sketch of Tehsil Faizabad District Faizabad including Pargana Haveli Oudh and west road with old capital of Ayodhya and Faizabad". He has also stated that he has knowledge about 'Skanda Puran', one of its chapter is Ayodhya Mahatmya where places of pilgrimage of old historical importance are mentioned. According to Hindu mythology, Lord Rama was born in Ayodhya. He has described different words used in 'Ayodhya Mahatmya'. He has also admitted that person who believe in dignity of Lord Rama, they have faith that he was born at Ayodhya. He has also accepted that his parent had gone there to worship, the place which was recognized as a place of birth of Lord Rama, they had not gone to worship any idol. He has accepted that whenever he visited the site, the number of devotees were comparatively in large number than other temples. At the time of main festivals 20000-25000 people assembled at the site of birth

www.vadaprativada.com

place of Lord Rama.

Shri Sushil Srivastava, PW-15 has stated in his cross examination that P. Carnegy in his report has stated that there has been a temple at the place of birth of Lord Rama. Subsequently, emperor Babur got the mosque constructed. This note of P. Carnegy was published in the year 1867. He has admitted that he has no idea that the description given by the Britishers that mosque was constructed after demolishing a Hindu temple is wrong. He has also mentioned about the book written by Hans Bakker wherein it is mentioned that Babur got constructed a mosque at the place where temple existed. He has also referred Martin who states that at the place of disputed structure there existed a temple which was got constructed by King Vikramaditya. He is in full agreement with the description given in Ayodhya Mahatmya about pin pointing the birth place of Lord Rama. He accepts that he has seen a column on which "Bighneshwar" was written. He has also stated that the description prior to 1800 A.D. there is mention of worship of Hindus at the place of birth of Lord Rama which is known as Ram Kot. He also admits that disputed site comes within the area of Ram Kot. According to him even in 5th century A.D. People had belief that Lord Rama was born in Ayodhya. This belief revived in 11th century A.D. He has categorically accepted that in all the descriptions written by Britishers, the place of birth of Lord Rama is mentioned which is described as Ram Janam Bhoomi.

Shri Prof. Suraj Bhan, PW-16 in his cross-examination has admitted that he visited a place at Ayodhya, which was believed to be the site of Bighneshwar Temple. The people of that locality had affirmed that this place is Bighneshwar Temple. He has categorically admitted that at so many places even in absence of any deity that place itself is worshiped. He has admitted that the institution, on behalf of which he had made investigation about the disputed site, it's Chairman was Prof. Irfan Habib. He got grant from this institute for the investigation of this site.

Prof. Suvira Jaiswal, PW-18, has stated that in Skanda Puran there is a chapter of Ayodhya Mahatmya. She has also admitted that if people have faith at a particular place, then it is not necessary that there should be existence of any temple even that place of belief/faith can be worshiped under Hindu religion. He has accepted that he had read an article wherein it was mentioned that according to Abul Fazal Ram Nawmi festival was celebrated on the day of birth of Lord Rama. She has also admitted that in second century A.D. Shri Ram was recognized as incarnation of "Narayan". She has stated that in Valmiki Ramayan, the date of birth and place of birth of Lord Rama are mentioned. According to general belief amongst Hindus, Lord Rama was born in Ayodhya which worshiped by Hindus.

Next witness of the above category is Prof. Shirin Musavi, PW-20, who has stated that she is Professor in History Department in A.M.U. Since 1970. She had taught in Chikago University in 1984. Did Ph.D in 1980 in History from A.M.U. Was Head of the Department from 1997-99. She was also Secretary of Indian History-Congress for three year. She has been visiting Professor in foreign countries. She has stated that there is no evidence to suggest that disputed mosque was constructed after demolition of any temple. Muslims started residing at Ayodhya since 1206. On the basis of "Aaine Akbari", "Meerate Masoodi", Hadeeqe Sohada", Teffintheller's account, she came to the conclusion that there was no temple at the disputed site prior to construction of the mosque. In her cross-examination she has stated that since she has not visited disputed site, therefore, unable to state whether there exists image of Warah Devta or not. She has never seen the figure of pig. She has not seen the columns of black Bassalt in any mosque. She has seen the idols and images of Hindu God and Goddesses in the temple and has also seen stove, rolling pin etc. She has also seen foot prints and she has not seen these images or things in any mosque. No image or idol can be depicted or installed in any mosque. She is unable to state as to whether any Muslim would permit any Hindu to come in the mosque and make idol or figure in it or not?

www.vadaprativada.com

Shri Dhaneswar Mandal, PW-24 has stated that he is retired Professor of Department of Ancient History, Culture and Archeology in Allahabad University. Although he is not Ph.D, but many persons have done their research work and got Ph.D in his supervision and guidance. He joined as Exploration Assistant in 1960 and retired in 1993. He has been teaching for 33 years and did enormous archeological work. He is also author of Ext. 63 "Archaeology after Demolition". He has further stated that there is no evidence to the effect that any temple ever existed beneath the disputed mosque. This

witness has been examined twice. After submission of the the ASI report, he was again called as a witness from the plaintiffs' side. He has stated every aspect of excavation and supported the objection filed against the ASI report by the plaintiffs.

In his cross examination at page no. 15 he has stated that his memory regarding the dates of different events is week. This condition is continuing for two or three years. It is true that a stone slab can be carbon dated. His is holder of red card of Communist Party. He has stated that he has not seen black Bassalt columns in any mosque or temple. The reason is that he never visits any temple or mosque. After 600 A.D. And up to medieval period there was period of Rajputs. He has also stated that the bottom base of platform, which was in outer courtyard was 2.65 meter deep from upper surface of the ground.

Next witness of above category is Prof. Shreen F. Ratnagar, PW-27 who is Ph.D in Archaeology and fellow of British School of Archaeology. Did excavation at different sites in Iraq. She did P.G. Diploma in Archaeology and has been lecturer in J.N.U., Delhi. She is a writer of five books of archaeology. In her cross examination she has stated about the excavation conducted by Professor B.B. Lal at Ayodhya. By and large she has supported the contention of D. Mandal. In her cross-examination she has stated that knowledge of Purans is essential for understating the early first millennium A.D. At the time of recording the statement she has stated that she has not visited the disputed site till date. Valmiki Ramayan was written between 500 B.C. And about 300 or 200 B.C.

Dr. Sita Ram Roy, PW-28 is Ph.D and expert in Epigraphy and Numismatics. He was closely associated with excavation up to 1988. He had been associated with excavation at twelve-sites. From his study about the site in dispute, he is of the opinion that no temple existed at disputed site prior to construction of Babri Mosque. He has also stated that there was no temple at Ayodhya during 11th and 12th century.

In his cross-examination he has stated that he has read the literature of Kalidas- Meghdootam, Abhigayan Shakuntalam and Raghuvansham. There is description of Lord Rama and Ayodhya in Raghuvansham. This book was written in Gupta's period, which comes between 4th - 5th century A.D. The period of Rig Ved has been dated by the scholars as 1500 B.C. In Rig Ved river Saryu is mentioned. According to him Puranas were written during 4th - 16th century. Literature, old books, travellers account and accounts of ambassadors, who came from abroad are the source of knowledge of ancient history. Religious scriptures also come within this category.

He has admitted that according to Parjiter, the period of Lord Rama is 1600 B.C. He has admitted that the figures engraved on the Kasauti pillars were seen by him, but presently he is unable to describe about them. He was asked whether he recognized Dr. S.P. Gupta, Dr. T.P. Verma, Professor Devendra Swaroop and Ajai Mitra Shasthri. He has answered in affirmative. Although he has stated that he visited Ayodhya at least 20 times, but he could not tell the name of any other temple except Hanuman Garhi. He has also admitted that he had seen the trenches excavated by Professor B.B. Lal. No defect was detected by him with reference to the trenches and report of Professor B.B. Lal. He has also stated at page no. 61 of his statement that he never tried to investigate as to whether Rama was born in Ayodhya. He does not know as to when idol of Ram Lala was installed in the disputed structure.

Next witness of above category is Dr. Jaya Menon, PW-29. She is a Reader in the Centre of Advanced Study, Dept. of History A.M.U. Formerly she was lecturer in Badodara, M.S. University. She did her Ph.D from J.N.U., Delhi. She remained present during the excavation conducted by ASI. She has given detailed description in support of the objection against ASI report. In her cross-examination she has stated that she stayed for about 33 days in Hotel 'Shane Oudh' at Faizabad. She has accepted that expenditures during her stay were paid by Mr. Z. Jilani, but she is not very much sure about it as to who actually paid it. She has stated that normally “ghat” which was engraved at the Kasauti pillars is not found in a mosque. She has also accepted that figurines of elephant, tortoise and crocodile made of terracota were recovered during excavation. Such figurines were recovered from trenches. She is aware that crocodile is the seat of holy river Ganga. Similarly, tortoise is the vehicle of holy river Yamuna. Snake is associated with Lord Shiv. She has also admitted that she has not seen any mosque where figures of fish would have been engraved on the entrance gate. She had seen wall no. 16 and 17.

She admits that wall no. 16 was used as a foundation wall for the construction of the mosque and admits that she has not seen any such structure in which the foundation wall would have been raised on some other foundation wall already existing there. She has categorically admitted that wall no. 16 served as foundation to the wall of a mosque. Wall no. 17 was the foundation of wall no. 16. During excavation earlier she has not seen any wall resting on another foundation wall. There cannot be foundation walls one upon the other. In the present excavation, upper wall no. 16 was a wall which was later used as foundation. She went on to state that Garhwala rulers ruled Ayodhya from 1075 A.D. to about 1200 A.D. So many walls were recovered during excavation, such as walls no. 1, 2, 4, 8, 15, 18-a, 18-b, 18-c and 18-d, 19-b and 20. These walls were not of the disputed structure. She had not seen circular shrine at the site, as such she was not able to give her opinion about it's stratigraphy. She has admitted that a non Islamic structure was recovered during excavation. She cannot give the approximate year of it's construction. She opined that this might have been constructed during Gupta period. According to her, the oldest wall found in excavation was 1st to 3rd century A.D. During her stay she never made complaint regarding lack of supervision of trenches. She opined that circular shrine can be around 6th century A.D. She has not seen animal and human figurines of decorative stone in any mosque. She has also admitted that the pillars used in the disputed structure having floral designs and motifs and kalas were not noticed by her in any other mosque. She has stated that

www.vadaprativada.com

"Amlak" is a decorative stone which is normally found in the upper part of the shikhar of the temples. She has stated that there were two floors in the south other than the floor of the disputed structure. Thus, she categorically admits that these two floors were floors of a different structure. She opined that these floors should have been constructed between 1200 A.D. to 1529 A.D.

Next witness is Dr. R.C. Thakran, P.W-30 who has stated that he is a professor in the department of History in Delhi University. He is Ph.d. in archaeology. He was present during excavation at disputed site. According to him, the report submitted by A.S.I. is full of gross omissions and one sided presentation of evidence coupled with clear falsification of facts and motivated inferences. In his cross-examination, he has stated that daily register was maintained by ASI during excavation in which complete work done by the officers was recorded. He has admitted that much time was required to A.S.I. for complete analysis of the facts discovered during excavation. His statement which falsifies the objection filed against A.S.I. report, wherein he has said that it is not possible to create artificial pillar bases during excavation if the site is videographied during excavation. In that circumstance, it is not possible to create artificial pillar bases. He has admitted that two parties representing Muslim sides used to visit the site during excavation. All the artefacts recovered during a particular day were entered in the daily register. Two judicial officers were appointed as observers to supervise the excavation being done by the archaeologists. According to him, Ram Chabutra is an important

structural evidence about 30 pillar bases were seen by him. Different floors found during excavation represent different periods, on the basis of which it could be concluded that those might have been structure of temporary nature during different periods. Niches are also found in temples. He himself has no knowledge as to whether wall no.16 relates to any Idgah or not. His information regarding it is based on the opinion of Sri S.J.H. Zafari. He has no knowledge about the architecture of a temple of 12th century nor he has any knowledge about the temple architecture of present time. He has no knowledge about the distinctions between Mosque and Idgah. Although he admits that he had given description pertaining to it in his examination-in-chief. He went on to state that it is established that disputed structure was not constructed on virgin land. The site on which alleged Babri Mosque was constructed, constructional activities had started right from Kushan period and continued during subsequent periods also which include Gupta period, early medial period, Sultanat period and Mughal period. He could not say anything with certainty as to whether structures of different periods prior to the construction of disputed mosque would have been demolished or not. He has no knowledge about the form of mosque and tenets of Islam. Therefore, was unable to state as to whether Namaz could be offered or not at a place where images of different types were engraved. He has also admitted that he never visited the excavation site during excavation. He could not reply as to whether wall no. 5 is independent from wall nos. 16 & 17.

Next witness is Dr. Ashok Dutta, who has been examined as

PW-31. He is a lecturer in the department of archaeology, University of Calcutta. He has also given statement about A.S.I. report and opined that this report is one sided presentation with clear distortion of the material recovered during excavation. In his cross examination he has stated that literature is the biggest source of history. He has admitted that whenever he visited the excavation site he noticed that the drafts man was preparing sections, drawing and ground plans. Still photograpy and videography of the excavation site were also done at the time of excavation. For each and every trenches, there were a technical assistants who were supervising the excavation of the individual trenches. He opined that the floor immediately below the disputed structure consisted of Lime Surkhi. But he was not able to reply as to whether the floor as seen in plate no.43 is penetrating into the pillar base or not. A.S.I. has submitted its report within a sort spam of time which goes to show their ability. He is also of the opinion that more time was required for preparing such exhaustive report. He also admits that he was not involved with the excavation of temple structure of any site.

www.vadaprativada.com

According to report, he has stated that during excavation 62 human and 131 animal figurines were found. He says that a copper coin relating to Gupta period might have been recovered bearing image of a king on obverse site and on reverse side of which Srichand was written. He has also admitted that decorative stones are not generally used below the foundation level of any structure. He has also stated that recovery of bones is a very common feature of all the archaeological sites. He has also admitted that immediately below the disputed structure there were three floors. The 4th floor was Jeli and Surkhi floor. He states that a Ghat or (Vessel) was recovered from trench G-7 which is associated with Hindu religion. Amlak Shila is generally found on top of Hindu temple. The purpose of Makar Pranal is to remove the water from inside to outside and forms part of the Hindu temple architecture. He admits that wall no.16 was approximately 32 to 35 meters. But he does not recollect the length of wall no.17. Wall No. 16 is very important than rest two walls i.e. wall no. 17 & 5. He has stated that, " I do have regards to the integrity of the archaeologists". According to him the pillar bases mentioned by the A.S.I., some of them were in section and some intrenches. He admits that he is not expert of northern Indian Temple Architecture.

Next witness is Dr. Supriya Verma, P.W.-32. She did Ph.D. from J.N.U. She has been associate professor of archaeology in department of history, Hyderabad University. She was present along with Dr. Jaya Menon at site during excavation. She has narrated about different aspects of stratigraphy, periodisation, artefacts, animals bones, pillar base, brick bats. According to her, brick bats were selectively removed and pillar bases were created. In her cross- examination she has stated that she was nominee of Sunni Central Board and had drafted objections along with Dr. Jaya Menon against archaeological procedures being followed during excavation which were subsequently filed by Muslims parties. She was continuously present during excavation barring few exceptions. She states that

whether place for 'Wazoo' was found or not at disputed site, nothing could be said about it. She has not seen figure or figurines of human being in any mosque. 'Kalash' is not found in a mosque. She does not know whether the floral designs are depicted in a mosque building or not. Bones have no relation with civilization. Bones are not associated with any particular community. She was not able to reply as to whether bones could be found in a mosque or not. “Amlaka” is found on the top of a Shikhar of a temple. She was also not sure about the figures of 'Yaksha' and 'Yakshi' which were identified by the expert of iconography on the black basalt columns fixed in the disputed building. On being confronted with plate no.59 and 60, she admitted that “Shrine” is visible in these plates. So far as she recollects Gahadwala Dynasty may be dated from 1086 to 1196 A.D. She has also stated that as per findings of the ASI, it is established that there was some structure beneath the floor of disputed site. She agrees with the conclusion that there was some structure just below the disputed site. She has been all along present during excavation except for few days and states that pillar bases as described by ASI in the sections were not created in her presence. This goes to falsify that part of objection filed against ASI report, wherein it is stated that the pillar bases were created by the archaeologists of ASI. She admits that wall no. 17 is below wall no.16. The circular shrine found during excavation according to her was associated with wall nos. 19A, 19B, 20, 21 and 22. She also admits that wall no. 5 is resting on wall no.16. She categorically states that wall no.17 was used prior to the construction of the disputed structure. Wall 17 was of construction which existed prior to the construction of the disputed structure. Although she does not agree with the suggestion that wall no.17 was the foundation of wall no.16. She also admitted that wall no. 17 constructed earlier to wall no.16.

www.vadaprativada.com

From the side of the defendants and plaintiffs of O.O.S. No.5/1989, many witnesses have been examined, who have deposed that worship in the disputed building was going on continuously prior to 23.12.49, both in inner and outer courtyard. The inner courtyard was being worshipped as it was believed from times immemorial that Lord Ram who is considered as incarnation of Lord Vishnu took birth at a place which lies below the central dome of the disputed structure. Whole area of inner and outer courtyard has always been worshipped continuously either as holy place of birth of Lord Ram or there were Chabutra having idols of different Gods and Goddesses, Sita Rasoi, Charan etc. including Bhandar where saints doing Puja etc. used to reside thereat. All the witnesses examined from the side of the defendants and witnesses examined on behalf of the plaintiffs in O.O.S. No.5/1989 have categorically deposed that both inner and outer courtyard was composite and integral part of the one and the same building. Inner courtyard was worshipped being the birth place of Lord Ram and outer courtyard was extension of the inner courtyard where Ram Chabutra, Sita Rasoi, Charan etc. were being worshipped from times immemorial.

First category of the witnesses who have been examined on the point that disputed site which included inner and outer courtyard was being worshipped from times immemorial up to the demolition of disputed structure i.e. 6.12.1992, first witness is O.P.W. 1, Paramhans Ramchandra Das. He was 90 years at the time of his deposition. Earlier he had filed O.O.S, No. 2/89 (Regular Suit No.25/50) which was withdrawn later on. He has stated that he came to Ayodhya 75 years ago from the date of his statement. He has given the description about the history of Ramanandeeya Sampradaya and its Akharas. On the basis of Hindu scripture and Skund Puran he has stated that disputed site is birth place of Lord Ram. He has given description of the riot which took place in 1934 in which domes of the disputed structure were damaged and a fine of Rs. 80,000/- was imposed upon the Hindus of Ayodhya. He had not seen offering prayers by the persons of Muslim community in the disputed site at least after 1934 riot. He has admitted that idols from Chabutra were placed in the inner courtyard on 22/23.12.49. He has also proved "Nyas-Patra".

www.vadaprativada.com

Next witness of the above category is Hari Har Prasad Tiwari, O.P.W.-4 who is R/o Ghazipur and came to Ayodhya in 1934, remained in Ayodhya upto 1938. He has categorically stated about Hanumat Dwar, Ramchabutra, Sita Rasoi, Bhandar, Singhdwar, Charan, Parikrama. According to him, he did not see any person of Muslim community offering prayers on the disputed site.

O.P.W.5 is Ram Nath Mishra, who has stated that his age is 91 years at the time of statement. He is Purohit by profession and came to

www.vadaprativada.com

Ayodhya in 1932. He stated about Bhandar, Ram Chabutra, Sita Rasoi Gufa Mandir, Shanker Parvati Asthan etc. He has stated that from times immemorial all the persons of Hindu community consider that the place below central dome is the birth place of Lord Rama. He did not see any person of Muslim community offering Namaz in the disputed site. If any, endeavour was made by them, it was vehemently opposed by the persons of Hindu community, which included Sadhus of Ram Chabutra. They used to compel the persons trying to offer Namaz over there to run away. He has also stated that below central dome in the Niche idol of Lord Ram Chandra Ji was placed. Thus, he has stated that even between 1928 to 1949, both outer and iner courtyard was in the possession of the Hindus.

Next witness is O.P.W.6, Haushila Prasad Tripathi, whose age is 80 years. He is a freedom fighter. He came to Ayodhya in 1935 for the first time. He has been visiting Ayodhya since 1935 which continued upto 1945. He has described about Bhandar, Ram Chabutra, Shiv Asthan, Sita Rasoi. He never saw any person of Muslim community offering Namaz in the disputed site.

Next witness is O.P.W.7., Ram Surat Tiwari. He is of 73 years age, was appointed Lekhpal in 1953 and retired in 1988. He has stated about Shiv Darbar, Sita Rasoi, Gufa, Mandir, Charan, depiction of Varah Bhagwan, Parikrama, Kasauti Pillars. He had never seen any person of Muslim community offering Namaz in the disputed mosque. According to him, it was general belief amongst Hindus from times immemorial that Lord Rama took birth below central dome of the disputed structure. Had any person of Muslim community attempted to offer Namaz he would have been ousted and made to run away by the Sadhus residing over there at Ram Chabutra.

O.P.W.12, Sri Kaushal Kishore Mishra, R/o Ayodhya whose age is 75 years. He has categorically stated that after riot of 1934, no person of Muslim community ever succeeded in offering Namaz as Sadhus of Ram Chabutra by using force made them to run away.

O.P.W. 13, Narad Saran, whose age is 76 years and came to Ayodhya in 1946, he has described in detail about Charan, Sita Rasoi, Choolha, Gufa-Mandir. He has also stated that the place below central dome was continuously considered from times immemorial as birth place of Lord Rama.

D.W.17/1 is Ramesh Chandra Tripathi. He has stated that in the age of 77 years for the first time he had Darshan of disputed site. He has also stated about 1934 riot. He also states that Lord Rama took birth at the place which is just below the central dome.

www.vadaprativada.com

D.W. 20/3 is Bramchari Ram Raksha Nand. He has given statement of same effect. All the witnesses produced by the plaintiff of O.O.S. No. 3/1989 which are DW3/1 to 20, have categorically proved that all the persons of Hindu community in general and saints belonging to Nirmohi Akhara in particular always worshipped at Ram Chabutra, Charan, Sita Rasoi, Shiv Parvati etc. Although they have also tried to state that idols were also there in the inner courtyard even prior to 22/23.12.49. All the witnesses of this category have categorically stated that at least after 1934, no person belonging to

www.vadaprativada.com

Muslim community succeeded in offering Namaz as they were forcibly ousted and made to run away.

Many witnesses have been examined from the defendants side and plaintiffs of O.O.S No.5/89 to depose that they have special knowledge about Hindu religion and scriptures and also about place of birth of Lord Rama. The witnesses of this category is O.P.W.-16, Jagadguru Ramananda Charya Swami Ram Bhadra Charya, who is a great scholar having deep and vast knowledge of Hindu scriptures. On the basis of his thorough study on Balmiki Ramayan, Skund Puran, Kabitawali, Ram Tapneeyopanishad, Yajurved, he came to conclusion that disputed place is the birth place of Lord Rama. This place had been continuously being worshipped as the birth place of Lord Rama from times immemorial.

Next witness of this category is Swami Avi Mukoteshwara Nand Sarswati, DW-20/2. He is disciple of Sankara Charya Sawmi Swaroopa Nand. He has vast, deep and thorough knowledge of all the theist and atheist, philosophy of Hindu scriptures. On the basis of his thorough knowledge, he has deposed and affirmed the view that disputed place is the birth place of Lord Rama. He has given references from so many religious books of Hindu scriptures such as Balmiki Ramayan etc.

Dr. Ram Vilas Das Vedanti, DW-2/1-3 who is Ex. M.P. and obtained Ph.D. on the subject, "Balmiki Ramayan – Dharm Neeti", he has categorically stated that after 1934 riot Muslims were not allowed to offer Namaz in the disputed site. On the basis of his thorough and deep study on Balmiki Ramayan he had got his directorate degree. He says that Lord Rama took birth at the disputed site. In support of his contention he has referred Yajurved, Skund Puran and Literature of Goswami Tulsi Das and Rudramayan. He has stated that on the basis of the shape/form of the disputed structure it could be safely concluded that it was a temple and not a mosque.

In the next category of the witnesses claiming special knowledge of history and archaeology, Dr. S.P.Gupta, OPW-3 has been examined as first witness from the side of the plaintiffs of O.O.S. No.5/89. He is co-author of the book on Ayodhya which is Ext. O.O.S.-5-3. He retired as Director of Museum, Allahabad in 1990. He stated that 14 black pillars of disputed structure belong to the same temple of 11th - 12th century which was got demolished on the command of Emperor Babar through his minister Mir Baqi.

O.P.W.9, Dr. T.P. Verma, the co-author of the above book, was appointed next friend of Bhagwan Shri Ram Lala Virajman in O.O.S. No.5/89, after the death of Deoki Nandan Agarwal. He did Ph.D. on the subject, "The Palaeography of Bramhi Script in north India" from 2nd century B.C. to 3rd century A.D. was lecturer in B.H.U. from 1967 to 1993 in the Department of, "Ancient Indian History, Culture and Archaeology". He has also stated about 20 lines inscriptions (estampage paper no.203 C-1/1,2) being co-author of the above book, he has stated that in detail about all the views expressed by him with Sri S.P. Gupta in the above book and proved the plaint assertions of above suit.

O.P.W.10, Dr. K.B. Ramesh, next witness of the above category got his Ph.D. degree in 1965 in History from Karnataka University, was promoted the Chief Epigraphist in 1981 and retired as Joint Director General of ASI on 30.6.1993. He deciphered the 20 lines inscription (estampage paper no. 203C-1/1, 2) translated it in English and concluded that this inscription belonged to 12th century A.D. He has also proved his report (306C-1) in para 15 of his statement. Even M.N. Katti, who has also been examined has accepted that the views expressed by Dr. K.V. Ramesh on the above inscription and his translation is more accurate in comparison of the decipherment done by him. Since statement of Dr. K.B. Ramesh has been referred at various stages of the judgment, it is not required to give detailed description of his statement at this juncture.

Next witness of above category is O.P.W.11, Dr. Satish Chandra Mittal. He is Ph.D. in History. He retired as professor, History Department, Kurukchetra University. He opined that temple existing on Ram Janma Bhumi was destroyed and a mosque was constructed at that place.

www.vadaprativada.com

Next witness is O.P.W.15, M.N. Katti. He is Epigraphist. He joined A.S.I. in 1964, was promoted as Director Epigraphy. On the instruction of Director General, A.S.I. he had prepared etampaper of the inscription on the stone slab which is paper no. 203C-1/1, 2. He has submitted his report to Registrar, Lucknow Bench, High Court.

O.P.W. 17 is Dr. R. Nagaswami. He retired as Director of Archaeology, Tamil Nadu. He served on this post for 22 years. Did his Ph.D. in 1974, had been Vice Chancellor of Kanchipuram University. As far as objection filed by the plaintiffs of O.O.S. No. 4/1989 and in particular on the point that the archaeologist of A.S.I. created false pillar bases during excavation was strongly denied by this scholar who stated that it was not possible for an excavator to create pillar basis or structure consisting number of courses inside a trench. He is also expert on temple architecture and supported all the findings and conclusion arrived at by ASI in their report submitted after excavation at disputed site under the orders of this Court.

O.P.W.18, Arun Kumar Sharma, retired from the post of Superintending Archaeologist, ASI. He was member of the Central Advisory Board of Archaeology Government of India and served in ASI from 1959 to 1992. He has fully supported the conclusions arrive at by ASI after the excavation of disputed site. From the perusal of the statement of this witness, it transpires that he has extensive, deep and thorough knowledge of all the principles of excavation and has supported the report of ASI, submitted on 22.8.2003 in this Court, on all the counts.

O.P.W. 19 is Rakesh Dutt Trivedi, who retired as a Director of ASI and served this institution from 1974 to 1993. He worked as Head of the Temple Survey Project Northern India from 1977 to 1984. He is also writer of a book entitled as “Temples of Pratihar Period in Central India”. He has also stated about the structural and architectural remains of a massive structure underneath and Mandapa like structure which is generally found in the northern India. He has concluded that the indication of a temple which was demolished prior to construction of disputed mosque was found at the site.

Next witness of the above category is DW2/1-1, Rajendra Singh. He got Technical Education in Miller Trade Tool and Cutter Grinding. He was of the opinion that disputed place is birth place of Lord Rama where Guru Nanak, Guru Teg Bahadur and Guru Govind Singh visited for worshipping it as the birth place of Lord Rama. He has also written a book which is part of record.

Next witness is DW2/1-2, Ram Saran Srivastava. He is Ex. D.M. Faizabad. He joined on 19.07.1987 as D.M., Faizabad. Shilanyas was done during his regime. He has also written a book entitled as 'Sri Ram Janma Bhumi Babri Masjid Vivad Ek Dristikon". On the basis of the study of different Gazetteers and Revenue Records, he is of the opinion that disputed place is place of birth of Lord Rama. In Nazool and in Revenue Records disputed place is recorded as Janma Sthan. Mir Baqi had constructed the mosque after demolition of Ram Temple. Encyclopaedia Britanica also supports this proposition. Muslims were not allowed to offer Namaz after riots of 1934.

www.vadaprativada.com

D.W.13/1-3 is Bishan Bahadur. He is the Head of the Department in History in Varshney P.G. College Aligarh and stated that he has been teaching History for 35 years. About 22 persons have got Ph.D. degree in his guidance and supervision. He has stated about the Gaharwal Rulers and their pedigree and aggression. He has also stated about the aggression by Salar Mahmood. According to his study, on the command of Emperor Babar his commander Mir Baqi got constructed a mosque over disputed site after demolishing a temple. According to custom and tradition which is coming from generation to generation and from times immemorial, disputed site is considered as birth place of Lord Rama.

DW20/5, Jayanti Prasad Srivastava, who remained present almost during whole period of excavation conducted by ASI at disputed site, has stated that he joined ASI in 1957 and took part in so many excavations. He had observed entire excavation work at disputed site from 12.3.2003 to 07.08.2003. He opined that excavation was done as per principles and rules and pillar mandapa like structure was there. The archaeological evidence of a massive structure was found at the spot which could be dated from 10$^{th}$ century onwards upto the construction of the disputed structure. So many decorated stones, bricks mutilated sculpture of divine couple, carved architectural members, foliage pattern, Amalaka, Kapothpali, door jams with semi circular plaster, lotus motive, circular shrine, the pillar bases are indicative of the remains of earlier temple which existed over there, prior to its demolition and construction of mosque thereat.

On the basis of the above three category of witnesses, who have deposed on the point of worship being done continuously from times immemorial, on the disputed site, witnesses having special knowledge about Hindu Religion and deposing about the place of birth of Lord Rama on the basis of their study on Hindu religion and sculptures and witnesses having special knowledge of history/archaeology and also after critical examination of the statements given in their cross-examination.

The evidence was recorded by this Court in O.O.S. No. 4 of 1987 Sunni Central Waqf Board of Waqfs U.P. And others Vs. Gopal Singh Visharad and

www.vadaprativada.com

others which is leading case. Other three cases are connected with this case. In all there are 85 witnesses. In O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989 there are 28 issues ; in O.OS.No. 5 of 1989 there are 30 issues ; in O.O.S.No. 1 of 1989 there are 17 issues and in O.O.S,Bi, 3 of 1989 there are 17 issues.

Oral Evidence adduced on behalf of the plaintiffs in O.O.S.No. 4 of 1989

The plaintiffs have examined 32 witnesses. I have divided them into three categories. On the point of Namaz being offered up to 22.12.1949/23.12.1949 the statements of P.W.1 Mohammad Hashim, P.W.2 Haji Mahboob Ahmad, P.W.3 Farooq Ahmad, P.W.4 Mohamamd Yaseem, P.W.5 Abdul Rahman, P.W.6 Mohamamd Yunus Siddiqui, P.W.7 Hasmatullah Ansari, P.W.8 Abdul Azeez, and P.W.9 Syed Akhlaq Ahmad are on the record. Looking to their cross-examination their versions appear to be incorrect. Version given before the Court could not inspire confidence for the reasons recorded in the cross-examination. Thus, they are unreliable witnesses and they could not prove that Namaz was offered in the disputed building upto 22/23-12-1949.

Second category of witnesses are those witnesses who have deposed about the nature of the disputed structure alleging to be a mosque. These witnesses were properly examined and during the course of examination P.W. 10 Maulana Mohhd. Idrees, P.W.11 Maulana Mohd. Burhanuddin, P.W.19 Maulana Ateeq Ahmad, P.W.22 Maulana Mohd. Khalid Nadwi, P.W.26 Maulana Syed Kalbe Jawwad and P.W.25 Chawdhry Sibte Mohd. Naqbi have deposed before this Court. They are not the expert witnesses. They have not stated that they are authority on Mohammedan Law Accordingly when the defendants have adduced evidence on tenets of Islam, it has to be accepted ignoring their views.

As regards the witnesses produced by the plaintiffs against the report of A.S.I. and witnesses who claim themselves as historians

Versions of such witnesses have already been considered while giving findings on issue no. 1-B and they are also not be treated to be expert witnesses. Thus, their version against A.S.I. report is not accepted.

Hindus have produced witnesses to show that at the disputed site before the demolition regular worship was going on. Statements of OPW1, OPW 4, OPW 5, OPW7,OPW12, OPW13, OPW 12, OP W13, DW 17/1, DW 20/3 are supported by circumstantial evidence and reveal that in the outer courtyard worship was going on and in the inner courtyard the deities were placed in the intervening night of 22/12/1949 and 23/12/1949 and prior to it the Hindus worshipped the place and deities. The pillars inside and outside the building in question contained images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses including the place of birth of Lord Ram as deity.

O.P.W 16, DW 2/1/-3. DW 3/14 and DW 20/2 have been examined from Hindu side as these witnesses have claimed special knowledge about Hindu religion and Shastras and they have deposed about the place of birth of Lord Ram. Their testimony is reliable on the ground that it is corroborated from the version of historians and gazetteers.

Third category of the witnesses examined from Hindu side are those witnesses, who have special knowledge of history and archeology . These witnesses are OPW 9, OPW 10, OPW 11, OPW 15, DW 13/1-3, DW 2/1-1, dW2/1-2, OPW 3, OPW 17, OPW 18, OPW 19 and DW 20/5.

Their statements are reliable because they are experts and they have special knowledge in the field of history and archeology. Circumstantial evidence also corroborates their assertion.

Hon'ble Dharam Veer Sharma,J.

Writ Petition No. 746 of 1986 has been filed with the following reliefs;

(I) "To issue a writ, direction or order in the nature of certiorari or any other writ, order or direction quashing the orders, passed by opposite party no.1 dated 1.2.1986, contained in Annexures Nos. 5 and 6 to the writ petition;

(II) To issue a writ of mandate commanding opposite parties nos. 3 to 6 to maintain strictly the sanctity of the disputed premises and preserve the same prohibiting the opposite party no.2 and also others from disturbing the sanctity and preservation of the religious place;

(III) Any other writ, order or directions which may be deemed just and proper in the circumstances of the case may also be passed and issued in favour of the petitioner and against opposite parties; and

(IV) The writ petition be allowed with costs."

www.vadaprativada.com

The facts giving rise to the petitions are as under;

The petitioner heard a rumour in the city that some orders are likely to be passed regarding opening of the gates of Babri mosque from the Court of District Judge, Faizabad. Thereafter he engaged a counsel and came to know that some application was moved in Regular Suit No. 2 of 1950, which has already been transferred to this Court and the judgment is reserved. It transpires that some application was moved in the Court of Munsif, Faizabad and against the order, passed by the learned Munsif the appeal was preferred before the District Judge, which was registered as Civil Misc. Appeal No. 8 of 1986. It appears that in the night between 22/23-12-1949 idols were placed inside the disputed structure and the property was attached under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and was given in the custody of one Priya Dutt Ram. Thereafter Regular Suit No. 2 of 1950 was filed in the

www.vadaprativada.com

Court of Civil Judge by one Gopal Singh Visharad and against five Muslims and thereafter another suit being Suit No. 25 of 1950 was filed by one Param Hans Ram Chandra Das against the five persons along with State of U.P. In the year 1959 third suit was filed by Nirmohi Akhara, which was registered as Regular Suit No. 26 of 1959. Aforesaid suit was also contested. The matter having prolonged for the decades a suit being Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 was filed by Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, Lucknow, which in the representative capacity is OOS No. 4 of 1989 pending in this Court. It was directed by the Court that Pooja would continue and Receiver Priya Dutt Ram will continue to hold the charge. In the meantime, Priya Dutt Ram died and therafter Sri K.K.Raam Verma was appointed as a Receiver. It further transpires that an application was moved to open the locks of the gates in the Court of Munsif,Faizabad, who passed an order. Against the order, passed by the Munsif, Faizabad, an appeal was filed before the District Judge, Faizabad. That on 1.2.1986 at about 1 p.m. The petitioner applied to remain present in the proceedings and he should be impleaded as a respondent. Thereafter the petitioner moved another application before the District Judge. In the meantime, opposite party no.1 asked the parties to appear at 4.14 p.m. The opposite party no. 1 rejected the application for impleadment and pronounced the judgement. According to the petitioner, rejection of the application is not proper. The order, passed by the District Judge, is without jurisdiction. Annexure No. 6, the order speaks that every body is free to enter into the premises. The order is bad in the eye of law for the following reason;

The application moved by opposite party no. 2 was not entertained and the appeal was not maintainable and the learned Munsif has not passed any final order. After 36 years mandatory

injunction could not be granted altering the situation, which would cause irreparable injury to the petitioner as well as other Members of the Muslim Community. The property being custodia legis,hence position could not be altered.

On behalf of the opposite parties no. 3 to 6, a joint counter affidavit has been filed stating that premises is intact and district administration is keeping constant vigil and watch over the disputed structure. They have denied the averments of the petition.

On behalf of Param Hans Ram Chandra Das objections have been filed stating that the suit for declaration is barred by limitation and the petitioner has no lis in the matter. The petition is liable to be dismissed.

It transpires that the District Judge, Faizabad on 01.02.1986 dismissed the application for impleadment of Mohd.Hashim after considering the objections filed against the above application. It was contended on behalf of the appellants that respondents have already been arrayed as a party and the impleadment of Mohd.Hashim is not necessary in this case and he is not a necessary party and against whom the appellants are not seeking any relief against him.

It is further submitted on behalf of the appellants that even if the relief is granted it would not affect Mohd.Hashim. The learned District Judge took the view that contention appears to be correct.

After considering the pros and cons of the matter it transpires that the plaintiffs applied for interim injunction which was granted by the Court below and defendants were restrained from removing the idols in question from the site in dispute and the Pooja was allowed. It has been submitted by the appellants that the officers of the State Government are not acting in accordance with the spirit of the injunction order. In this case, Mohd. Hashim sought intervention and

moved the application that he should also be arrayed as a party. In this context, it appears that the appellant has not sought any relief against him nor he is affected party. Accordingly, he cannot be treated as a necessary party because in his absence the case can be decided. Who is a necessary party has to be seen in the light of the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Re: Udit Narain Singh Malpahoria vs. Additional Member Board of Revenue Bihar, AIR 1963, SC 786.

Learned District Judge has relied upon the case reported in AIR 1959 Orrisa 31, K. Raja Gopal Rao Vs. Dolgobind Sahu and Another and referred the relevant extract of the ruling which also goes to show that in case the appeal is allowed there would not be inconsistent decree in respect of the same litigation or in respect of the same subject matter. He has further relied upon AIR 1924 Calcutta 456, Bhupendra Nath Mookerjee Vs. Monohar Mukerjee and AIR 1927 Privy Council 252, V.P.R.V. Chockalingom Chetty Vs. Seethai Ache and Others.

Thus, on the basis of aforesaid rulings, I agree that since the appellant Mohd. Hashim is not going to be affected by the relief sought in the appeal, he is neither a necessary nor proper party and there is no occasion for the Court to presume that in his absence there would be any inconsistent order. Thus, vide order dated 1.2.1986 the impleadment application was rightly rejected by the District Judge and in the writ petition no. 746 of 1986 no interference is called for.

On behalf of U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, the order dated 1.2.1986 has been challenged by filing writ petition no. 3106 of 1986 on the ground that the District Judge has exceeded his jurisdiction and in case if the order is allowed to continue, it would be the abuse of the process of law.

I have heard the rival submissions of the parties, it transpires

that in Suit No. 2 of 50 appellant Umesh Chand Pandey filed an application to the effect that defendants no. 6 to 9 should be directed not to impose any restriction in the Pooja and Darshan of the applicant and other members of Hindu community and the premises in question be closed by locking the entrance gate.

Defendants no. 6 to 9 are State Officers. They stated that they had no intention to interfere in the Pooja or to flout the Court's order dated 3.5.51. It has further been submitted by them that idols installed in the disputed premises is visible from outside. Inside the gate there is an enclosure made of grills and in both the gates locks have been placed by whom is not within their knowledge and no record is available on this point that who had taken a decision to put the locks at the gates 'O' and 'P' but the priest is allowed to go inside performing the Pooja and Bhog through the gate 'O'. The lock of gate 'P' was never opened. It was submitted that for the last 35 to 40 years no members of the Muslim community has offered any Namaz or prayer and they were also not allowed to enter the place. There are certain idols also. District Magistrate further stated that there are other ways to protect idols in maintaining law and order besides closing the gates 'O' and 'P'. He clearly admitted that if the locks at the gates 'O' and 'P' are opened even then there are other ways to maintain peace and to protect the idols kept inside the premises. The S.S.P., Faizabad, Sri Karam Veer Singh also stated that it is not necessary to keep the locks at the gates for maintaining the law and order.

On behalf of the appellant, it was submitted that there was no necessity to create any artificial barrier by putting the locks at gates 'O' and 'P'.

After hearing the submissions of the parties, the District Judge took the view that members of other community i.e. Muslims are not going to be affected even if the locks of gates 'O' and 'P' are opened as they are not entering in the premises and the premises is under the possession of Hindus for the last 35 years and they are offering prayer and worships of the idols. District Judge has also mentioned in his order that the locks were puts on the doors without any order and the district authority stated that there is no apprehension of law and order problem in case if the locks are removed.

In view of the circumstances referred to above, keeping in view the provisions of Order 39 as well as Section 151 C.P.C. the order was passed by the District Judge to this effect that there was no justification for retaining locks after the assurance given by the District Magistrate and the S.S.P. Faizabad, referred to above and he allowed the appeal. I have pointedly ascertained from the learned counsel for the appellant as to what is wrong with the order especially in the circumstances when property in dispute has already been demolished and after the demolition of the property in suit how the present writ petition no. 3106 of 1986 is maintainable and what relief can be granted even if the writ petition is allowed and on what basis the locks can be kept at gates no.'O' and 'P' as has been done prior to the order dated 1.2.1986.

It is admitted between the parties that the disputed structure is not in existence, it has already been demolished. There is no place like door 'O' and 'P' at present.

Thus, at this stage, since the subject matter is not there, no direction can be issued to State Government to maintain the earlier order. However, after going through the order passed by the learned District Judge, it transpires that without any order the locks were put on door nos. 'O' and 'P', that too after the injunction order was passed by the civil court. District Judge insisted that District Authorities should inform him as to what was the cause and reason to lock the doors. The S.S.P. and District Magistrate admitted that they had no objection in case the locks are opened. Thus, this is a case in which the order of the civil court was not complied with and against that order the doors were closed by putting the locks and the District Judge, by his order removed the locks for which there cannot be any grievance to anybody especially under the circumstances when the Muslims were not visiting the place for the last 35 years and they have also not disputed this fact as to how there would be any hardship to them. It is also admitted to Muslims that the property is in possession and control of the Hindu community. It has to be seen whether the possession is legal or illegal but at this stage, it is submitted that Hindus were in possession of the property. The balance of convenience is always with the person who holds the property. Accordingly, the property was kept under the control of Hindus and in whose favour injunction order was granted which was confirmed and subsequently affirmed even by this Court and it is not possible for this Court to recall any order or to pass any order inconsistent to the order passed by this Court. Consequently, the order of the District Judge is without any infirmity and requires no interference. It would not be justiciable for this Court also to pass any order in exercise of powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for the reason that the subject matter has already been demolished and the matter has become almost academic. Needless to say that the suit is pending between the parties and that has to be decided by this Court and in that case also the subject matter will be considered.

Vis-a-vis the sequence of the events referred to above, I am of the view that the petitioner, U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf is also not in a position to object the order passed by the District Judge for the reasons that they contested the case upto this Court and the order of injunction became final and in pursuance of that order the District Judge passed the order in appeal pending before him. Thus, the writ petition no.3106 of 1986 also lacks merit.

In the result both the writ petitions fail and are hereby dismissed with no order as to costs.
