Syed Mohammad Afzal Mutawalli Babri situated at Oudh Khas Applicant/plaintiff	Application for demolishing the new Kothri which has been newly constructed by the respondent for placing idols etc inside the door of the Masjid where he has constructed a Chabootra.	Tulsidas etc Bairagiyan Janam Sthan Ram residents of Oudh-Defendants.

Gharib Parwar Salamat

Masjid Babri situated near Janam Sthan in Oudh Khas constructed by Shah Babar. The work of scavenging and cleaning was given to the applicants by the Mutawalli by the British Government, which still continues. There had always been a tussle with Hindus who have ever been expressing their interests in the affairs of the Masjid. Therefore on complaints several undertakings and sureties have been filed and a compromise has also been entered by them not to interfere with it. A good number of files of frequent such complaints in past are kept in the Collectorate, Yet, only due to the wisdom and justice of the Court,the Mosque could remain safe and protected. But for the last few days the Bairagis of Janam Sthan are trying to build a Shivala near Masjid. But due to our vigilance and reporting of the matter to the authorities and restriction imposed by the Government it remained free from any dispute. About a month back the defendants Tulsidas etc., Bairagis Janamasthan with the intention of planting idols etc in it have constructed a Kothri in an illegal manner within few hours inside the compound of the Mosque. The applicant informed the police vide Roznamcha Thana but till now no orders regarding demolition of the Kothri have been issued by the Government. Since owing to continuance of the existence of Kothari, there is apprehension of daily tussle and clash caused by Bairagiyan. Mr. Goldane Commissioner did not find even the Chabootra built near the Kothri in the past. At the time of Gadar, within two days Bairagiyan got the Chabootra constructed overnight. Because of this construction, there occurred so much rioting in the local populace. Now a small Kothri has been constructed within a short span of time. They can increase such constructions gradually as is their nature or habit. Therefore, after putting the real situation before your honour, it is prayed that mosque may remain protected from the dispute or quarrel of Bairagis and orders for dismantling the Kothari may be passed. *I deemed it my duty to inform you. Mohd. Asgar Vs. Government regarding Mauja Bahoranpur Taluka, Pargana Haveli Awadh. The dispute pertains to superior propriety right revenue free. The order reads as under:

"Parties present. The plaintiff who has been present at all the sittings in the other cases connected with this village is today absent, but as all the other cases are now concluded and his suit is under a grant from the British Government, his case is proceeded with.

I find that in answer to the Chief Commr's circ. 43/1463 of 21st May 1863 enquiring about endowment for support of mosques and other religious purposes in the Fyzabad District, a letter (No. 53 of 2nd July 1863) was sent by the D.C. stating that a sum of 302/2 was paid annually from the imperial revenue for the support of the Janamsthan mosque in Ajudhia. On the 28th Augt. the Commr. forwarded copy of the letter from the Secretary to the Chief Commr. to his address No. 2492 of 25th August 1863 which is as follows:

"With reference to your letter no. 829- of 9th ult I am directed to inform you that the Governor General has sanctioned the Chief Commr's proposal for the commutation of the cash payment of Rs. 302-2-0 granted in perpetuity for the support of the Janamsthan mosque at Fyzabad to a grant of land rent free estimated to yeild a yearly rental of that amount and to request that you will provided for the change by a grant of some Nazool land near Ajudhia."

In obedience to these orders a proposal was made and statement submitted (D.C's No. 381 dt. 16th Nov. 1864) to give over mauja Sholapur and Bahoranpur.

To this Commr replied in no. 1289 of 20th Nov: Reply to No. 381 dt/ 16th inst. states that the land included in Bahoranpur and Sholapur seems exactly to suit the requirement of the case. The cultivated area gives the exact nikasi wanted and there is no land likely to come under cultivation and thus give the muafidar larger income at the expanse of the state. ..... Beg D.C. will take an agreement from the manager of the Cantonment (Endowment) and Offg. Commr. will then report the grant for the sanction of suit Finl. Commr.

In No. 493 of 23rd Dec: 1964 submitted this argument.

The argument is on record under signature of Mohammad Asghar and Mohammad Afzal Ali.

Commr: in his No. 867 Dt/ 9th Septer: 1865 forwarded copy of J. C.'s 2105 dT/ 5/6 Septer: approving of the selection of land made by the Off: Dy. Commr. of Fyzabad for Janamsthan mosque.

In accordance with these orders all other suits relating to the village having been disposed of, I now decree as follows:

Decree

The superior proprietory right in Mauza Bahoranpur is decreed revenue free to Mohammad Asghar and Mohammad Afzal Ali."

2352. Exhibit 30 (Suit-1) (Register 5 page 107-116-C) is a copy of memo of appeal no. 56. It was filed by Syed Mohd. Asghar Ali before the Commissioner, Faizabad against the order dated 03.04.1977 of Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad. This appeal was decided by the Commissioner, Faizabad on 13.12.1877. The contents of the memo of appeal are as under:

دفہ ۴:- یہ کہ ثبوت تحریری جو حاکم ماتحت نے مندرجہ حکم فرمایا ہے کیفیت اسکی یہ ہے کہ ایک عمدہ ثبوت یہ ہے کہ دیوار احاطہ بیرونی مسجد کہ دروازے پر نام اللہ کا کندہ و تحریر ہے- چونکہ یہ ثبوت

تحریری سے حسب و حرکت------ بے لاءق ملاحظہ موقع کہ ہے پس کیونکہ عدالت ماتحت میں پیش ہو سکتا تھا اندریں اس ثبوت اپلیلانٹ امیدوار ہے کہ بنظر انصاف ملاحظہ موقع فرمایا جاوے تاکہ ثبوت بوجہ اصل وبحق اپلیلانٹ ظاہر ہو جاوے-

دفہ ۷:- اپیلانٹ شیتم رشیدہ امیدوار انصاف حضورکا ہے کہ بعد ملاحظہ مثل حکم مورخہ ۷ نومبر سن ۱۸۷۳ء کہ سررشتہ میں موجود ہے- ملاحظہ فرما کر ان امور جدید کا جو بنیاد باعث فساد و تقرار ہے تدارک و انستعدادفرمایا جاوے و حق رسی اپیلانٹ کی ہو- واجب تھا عرض کیا فقط

gifted Maafi. It should be entrusted to the Mutawalli of the mosque and not to Hindu defendants*.*

Section 2. That it is a general principle that matters related to Masjid should be handed over to Muslims and matters regarding Shivala and Temples should be handed over to the Hindus. No law intends nor is against this principle. In-spite of this, the subordinate officer accorded permission to the defendants for erecting a new door in the wall of the Masjid northwards. This act is in contravention of the general principle and rules and can not be acted upon simply because the defendants had never any concern with the wall of the Masjid. It is, therefore, requested that as per old tradition matters of the Muslims may be left to Muslims and religious matters regarding Hindus should be left to them.

Section 3. That from a perusal of the file of case Mohammad Asghar Appellant vs Mahant Baldeo Das dated November 7, 1873 in this court, it becomes clear that the order for removing the idol that is Charan Paduka has already been passed by this Court. Now since there is no permission to install an idol on the Chabootra, i, how can right over the wall of the Masjid could be given to the defendant, inasmuch as, giving such a permission would be violative of law and justice.

Section 4. That a written evidence as entered in the order of the officer, is to the effect that on the door of the outer wall of the Masjid the name of " Allah" is engraved, which is material written evidence and deserves to be taken into consideration. This could have been presented in the lower court in support of the appellant as required under the law.

This fact can be ascertained by spot inspection so that evidence in favour of the appellant may come to light.

Section 5. That wherein that appellant had himself requested that he could erect the door on his own expenses and he was ready to do so and that door could have been prepared and installed with cost of Rs.10-15. In that event, the appellant could have been granted permission or the Government itself could have done it. The defendant belonging to other religion could not have been accorded permission to construct the door against religious canons.. The respondent has cleverly done so for creating trouble in future. He wanted to spend more money to place idols along-with the door (sic). It is a matter of justice that how idols could be placed on the wall of the Masjid which would be against all the canons of Islam. It is a Sheer high-handedness of the idol worshippers against the Muslims. Therefore the appellant, demands justice from your honour so that likelihood of any possible riot in future could be avoided.

Section 6. That there has been old controversy between the respondent and the appellant and the Hon'ble Court has ordered that the respondent should not do any thing new on that place. But because of Baldeo Dass Baigragi being underground, the order dated November 7, 1873 could not be served upon him. That is to say, that the idol has not yet been removed as per orders. The respondent with the intention of occupying it continues to indulge in several activities on the wall and on being restrained by someone, he becomes aggressive and is bent upon to fight with him. So he has made a Chulha within the said compound which has never been done before. In the past, there was mere a small Chulha (kitchen) for Pooja which he has got extended.

Section 7. That the aggrieved appellants pray your honour to administer justice to him and after perusal of the order dated November 7, 1873, which is enclosed in the Sarishta, file and recent and new constructions may be removed and the appellant may kindly be given his rights . Deemed proper so prayed." (ETC)

2353. Exhibit 15 Suit 1 (Register 5 Page 41-43) : It is a copy of the report dated Nil of Deputy Commissioner Faizabad submitted pursuant to the Commissioner, Faizabad's order dated 14th May, 1877 passed in Misc. Appeal No.56, Mohd. Asghar Vs. Khem Dass. This report appears to have been called by the Commissioner on a complaint made against raising of a doorway in the wall of the disputed building. It appears that in the wall dividing mosque by a railing, the justification thereof was to provide a separate room on fair days to visitors to the Janam Asthan. The document being old there appears to be certain mistakes may be on account of legibility. It reads as under:

"A doorway has recently been opened in the wall of the Janum-Ashtan not at all in Baber's mosque, but in the wall which infront is divided from the mosque by a railing. This opening was necessary to give a separate route on fair days to visitors to the Janum-Asthan. There was one opening only, so the cruch (sic:rush) was very great and life was endangered. I marked out the spot for the opening myself so there is no need to depute any Europe officer. This petition is merely an attempt to annoy

the Hindu by making it dependent on the pleasure of the mosque people to open or close the 2nd door in which the Mohammedans can have no interest.

2. No objection was made to the opening of this second door.

3. On the 10th November 1873 Baldeo Das was ordered in writing by the Deputy Commissioner to remove an image place on the janam-Asthan platform. A report was made by someone (probably a police officer) that he had gone to the house of Baldeo dass and found that the latter had gone to Gonda. The order was explained to Gyandas and other priests who said could not carry out the order. The order passed on this (15) was that if the other party (i.e. the complainant) would name person on whom an order of removal could be served-such should be served.

(i) There apparently the matter rested. There is no later on the file."

2355. Exhibit A-8 (Suit 1) (Register 6, page 75) is claimed to be a copy of the statement of income and expenditure submitted by the earlier Mutwallis in the court of Civil Judge,

www.vadaprativada.com

Faizabad in Suit no. 29 of 1945. It is said that the aforesaid document gives the details of expenditure of the period of 1299 Fasli, 1306 Fasli and 1307 Fasli. This document and its contents have not been proved. It is said that the same were marked Exhibits by the trial judge himself on 26th August 1950 since they were filed after obtaining copy thereof from the record of the Court of Civil Judge where they were filed in earlier litigation. Sri Jilani learned counsel for Sunni Waqf Board could not tell as to how the contents of the said documents can be said to have been proved or treated to be correct in the absence of any witness having proved the same. It is not the case of the defendants no.1 to 5 (Suit-1) that any legal presumption can be drawn in respect of correctness of the contents thereof under law or that the said document constitutes a public document having been filed before any competent authority in accordance with law.

2356. In Sri Lakhi Baruah & others Vs. Sri Padma Kanta Kalita & others JT 1996 (3) SC 268, the Court considered the presumption of old documents under Section 90 of the Evidence Act and held in paras 15 to 18 as under:

> "Section 90 of the Evidence Act is founded on necessity and convenience because it is extremely difficult and sometimes not possible to lead evidence to prove handwriting, signature or execution of old documents after lapse of thirty years. In order to obviate such difficulties or improbabilities to prove execution of an old document, Section 90 has been incorporated in the Evidence Act, which does away with the strict rule of proof of private documents. Presumption of genuineness may be raised if the documents in question is produced from proper custody. It is, however, the discretion of the Court to accept the presumption flowing from Section 90. There is, however, no manner of doubt that judicial discretion under Section 90 should not be exercised arbitrarily and not being informed by reasons. ... The Privy Council, upon review of the authorities, however, did not accept the decision rendered in Khetter and other decisions of the High Court, where the presumption was attached also to copies, as correct. It was indicated that in view of the clear language of section 90 the production of the particular document would be necessary for applying the statutory presumption under Section 90. If the document produced was a copy admitted under Section 65 as secondary evidence and it was produced from proper custody and was over thirty years old, then the signature authenticating the copy might be presumed to be genuine; but production of the copy was not sufficient to justify the presumption of due execution of the original under Section 90. In this connection, reference may be made to decisions in Seethayya v. Subramanya (56 IA 146: AIR 1929 PC 115) and Basant v. Brijraj (AIR 1935 PC 115). In view of these Privy Council decision, disproving the applicability of presumption under Section 90 to the copy or the certified copy of an old document, in the subsequent decisions of the High Courts, it has been consistently held by different High Courts that production of a copy or a certified copy does not raise the presumption under Section 90. . . . . .But if a foundation is laid for the admission of secondary evidence under Section 65 of the Evidence Act by proof of loss or destruction of the 2357. Had it been a document filed by the defendants Hindu-parties, even if not proved, it could have been relied against them. But when the plaintiffs have filed said document, it was their obligation to prove it. A document filed in an earlier litigation in a Court of law, and after obtaining a copy thereof from that Court, if it is filed in another Court, it would not be either a public document merely because a certified copy has been issued by the Court, or an old document received from the proper custody. The person who is filing it has to prove the same.

2359. In any case, we have gone through the said documents also. The expenditure documents with respect to 1306 and 1307 Fasli in the initial part mention the words "Masjid Babri" but in respect of 1299 Fasli (i.e. 1892 AD) it does not mention the words "Masjid Babri". Instead it mention "Jama Masjid" or "Jama Masjid Oudh" or "Masjid Idgah" situated at Ranopali and Idgah. 2360. The documents pertaining to grant show that the same have nothing to do with any Idgah or Muslim religious place at Ranopali, which is quite at some distance from Mauza Ramkot. The expenses shown in the above documents in respect to 'Jama Masjid' and 'Idgah' as well as on the two village Bhooranpur and Sholapuri, e*x facie* do not appear to have any relevance with the building in dispute.

2361. Moreover, Page 81 Register 6 is a document in the form of an application by one Revati Ram Tewari Zamindar, resident of village Bahoranpur filed at the time of payment of Muavaza (compensation) before the Dy. Commissioner, District Faizabad on 16th April 1866. He claims to maintain his Patta regarding collection of fish; Abadi and building of Patta Kham Tahsil. The Dy. Commissioner, it appears to have ordered for consignment to office on 16th April 1866. In fact all the documents refer to some dispute in respect of the land at Bahoranpur and have no relevance for the site in dispute..

2362. Exhibit 24 (Suit-1) (Register 5 page 83-85) is a copy of the plaint dated 22.10.1882 of Suit No. 374/943 of 1882 filed by Mohd. Akhara situated at Oudh resident of Oudh (defendant).

The plaintiff begs to pray as under:

Description of the claim for Rs.30/- as rent for user of Chabutra and Takht situated near the door of Babri Masjid Oudh and regarding organizing Kartik Mela at the occasion of Ram Navami.

.... Haqqiat (Right) regarding 1288 Fasli and regarding 1289 Fasli at the rate based on its use as described in the lease.

1- That the courtyard and the Chabutra before the Masjid Janamsthan is the property of the plaintiff whereupon, from ancient times, is organized Mela Kartiki and Ram Navami. In other days shops of flowers and Batasha were being stalled*, the contract wherefor was of Rs.35/- per year. The plaintiff and the defendant had agreed to distribute this amount between themselves in the ratio of 50-50.*

2- That in 1288 Fasli, before Kartik Asnan and Ram Navami the defendant with mala fide intentions, as against the contract of Rs. 35/- made two shares of Rs.30/- only without consent of the plaintiff for both the festivals/fairs, whereas, the contract was given in favour of Faqir Murao, resident of Oudh. Action in this regard was taken in 1289 Fasli.

In 1288 Fasli Patta share of the plaintiff and the opposite party:

Rs.30/-=Rs.15+Rs15

"Ba Ijlas Munsif Sahab Bahadur. Mahant Raghubar Das Mahant Janamsthan situated at Ayodhya-Plaintiff vs. Secretary of state India Ba Ijlas Council. . . . . Defendant.

The abovenamed plaintiff begs to submit as under:

Permission for construction of temple over the Chabutra Janamsthan Ayodhya measuring towards north 17 feet, towards east 21 feet, towards south 17 feet and towards west 21 feet may kindly be granted to the plaintiff and the defendants may be restrained from interfering with such work. Thhe valuation of the claim cannot be assessed on market rate. Therefore as per Section no.17, Sub-section (6)Appendix no. 2 of the Act of. 70, court fees has been paid. From the enclosed map, the situation of the place would become clear.

1- That the Janamsthan situated at Ayodhya city

www.vadaprativada.com

Faizabad is an ancient religious and sacred monument of Hindus and the applicant is the Mahant of this religious place.

2- That the Chabutra Janamsthan measures east-west 21 feet, North-south 17 feet, wherein Charan paduka are stalled and a small Mandir is placed there*, which is worshipped by the Hindus.*

3- That the Chabutara is in the possession of the plaintiff and there being no building or shed, the petitioner and other Faqirs have to face all the seasons (in the open). In summer, we face sunheat, in rainy season rains and in winter severe cold. There is no harm to anybody if a temple is constructed there, rather by the construction of temple, the petitioner, Faqirs and other travellers would rest there and will get all comfort.

4- That on the objections of some Muslims the Deputy Commissioner Faizabad, in March or April 83, restrained construction upon which the plaintiff sent an application to the local Government. When no reply was received, the plaintiff filed a notice under section 424 C.P.C. on August 18, 84 in the office of the Secretary, Local Government but this one also met the same fate. As such the cause of the action arose in Ayodhya within the jurisdiction of this Court, on the date injunction order was granted.

5- That a well wisher citizen has a right to construct a building as he likes, on the land under his possession and ownership. It is the responsibility of a just Government to protect rights of the citizens and help them secure their rights so that peace and order may prevail and things

اول یہ کہ جب بابر شاہ مالک الملک بادشاہ وقت نے یہ مسجد تعمیر کیا و احاطہ مسجد کے دروازے کے اوپر سنگی پر لفظ اللہ کندا کرنسب کیا و معافی اسکے مصارف کو تحریر فرمای تو بمقابلہ مالک ملک مکانسن تعمیر گاہ بادشاہ وقف کے اندر ملکیت دوسرے شخص کی کہاں باقی رہی پس تا وقت بادشاہ تعمیر کنندہ مسجد نے اپنی مسجد کے احاطے کے اندر یا اسکے قاعم مقام دوسرے بادشاہ نے کوی جز زمین یہ زمین جس پر چبوترہ ہے مورثان مدعی کو نہ دی ہو مدعی مالک اس زمین کا نہیں ہو سکتا ہے- مدعی نے یہ ثبوت اس بلانیت نسبت چبوترہ کوی دستاویزکہ

نہ بادشاہ موصوف یا کسی اور بادشاہ و حاکم وقت پیش نہیں کے پس جبکہ مدعی نے نسبت اس ٹکڑہ زمین کے ملکیت اسپر حاصل نہیں کی تو غیر کے ملکیت میں قانوناً و انصافاً کوی حق اسکو مندر بنانے کا نہیں ہے۔

دفہ ۴:- اب لاءق غور فرمانے یہ امر ہے کہ بعد مدت چبوترہ جدید کن اختیارات سے نشیشت برخاست و آمدو رفت ہنود کے اس چبوترے پر رہی ہے- ظاہر ہے کہ نشیشت برخاست مدعی اور اسکے فرقے کے بشرطہ و شرط رہا بقدراس امر کے کہ کوی امر جدید نہ کرنے پاے قایم رکھے گے- پس ۱۸۵۷ء سےھی اختیارات مالیکان مدعی کو حاصل نہ ہوا بلکہ اگر مدعی یا کسی ہندو نے کوی امر جدید اندر احاطہ مسجد کرنا چاہا اسکی سرکار سے ممانعت کی گی اور ایک فقیر نے بطریق کوٹی چھپر ڈالا تھا وہ مسمار و دفہ کرا دیا گیا تو یہی مقام انصاف ہے کہ جب ۳۶۸ برس سے عموماً ۱۸۵۷ء سے خصوصاً کوی سند اپنی ملکیت کے یا کسی فیل مالیکانا کے جس سے ملکیت مدعی ظاہر ہو حاصل نہ کی تو کوی حق اسکو اندراحاطہ مسجد و عین فرش مسجد پر مندر بنانے کا دعوی نہیں ہو سکتا ہے پس یہ خیال مدعی کہ چبوترہ ہمارا ہےجب کہ چبوترہ ہمارا ہے تو اس پر مندر بنانے کا بھی اختیار ہمکو ہے محض منصفانیت مذہبی غلط فہمی ہوگی ہے کیوں کہ اس چبوترے پر بیٹھنا یا چڑہوا چڑھانے کا

دفہ ۵:- نقل احکام متعدد جو باوقات مختلف بمقابلہ ہم مدعا علیہ نسبت ممانعت امرجدید وانہدام مکان عین رسوی سیتا جی کہ بہ انہدام کوٹی جو فقیر نے بنای تھی بلحاظ عملدرآمد قدیم وعدم ملکیت مدعی انتظاماً و بنظر کشت وخون مابین اہل اسلام و ہنود جو پشتر ہوا تھا قانون باختیار جاءز خود صغہ مجازسے جاری کے ہیں- وہ واقع متعلقہ اس مقدمے کے اور یہ ثبوت کامل ہمارے بیانات کے ہیں اور انہی احکام سے خصوصاً حکم ۲۳ فروری سن ۱۸۵۷ء مدعی کو ظہور بنائے دعوی پیدا ہوی و حد سماعت عارض دعوی ہذا ہوی اور ان جملہ احکام واجباً منظوری سے عدالت دیوانی بھی چشم پوشی نہیں فرما سکتی- برابر وہ نافظ و جاری ہے مدعی نے انکو منسوخ نہیں کرایا اور بلا دعوی جاری تنسیخ اس مقدہم میں منسوخ نہیں ہو سکتی اور کوی احکام کے خلاف کوی فیصلہ صادر ہونا خلاف قانون ہے کیونکہ منسوخ ان احکام ناطقہ کے بلا دعوای داری کے لازم آتی ہے اس لے امیدوار ہوں کہ بادملاہزہ کاغذات وعذرات سے بہ اختیار دعوی مدعی حقیر سے فرمای جاوے، واجب تھا عرض کیا-

Raghubar Das Mahant Nirmohi Akhara situated at Oudh-Plaintiff vs. Sarkar Bahadur Qaisere Hind and Mohd. Asghar Khatib and Mutawalli Jama Masjid situated at Oudh. . . . . Defendant.

Suit for the construction of a Mandir over the Chabutra in the compound of the Masjid Babri. Gharib Parwar, Adiley Zamam Salamat.

1- That the case is very clear and needs justice. Though the arguments and objections of the plaintiff could be detailed here but with the fear of the lengthy process, the plaintiff submits in brief as under:

(i) When the Babar Shah Maalike Mulk and the king, constructed this mosque and got engraved Allah on the Sangi of the door of the Ahata Masjid and granted Maafi for the expenses, nobody else can claim the right of construction over there. Therefore until the king who has constructed the Masjid, allows to carry out construction within the compound of the Masjid or any successor of the King gives permission with respect to any part of the land of Masjid for construction or has given any part of the land to successors of the plaintiff, he could not become the owner of the land. The plaintiff has not submitted any documentary evidence regarding the ownership of the Chabutra. Neither the said Badshah nor any of the successors, or any other designated officer has given its ownership rights and as such in the eyes of law and justice he has no right to construct a Mandir over the said piece of land.

2- If the plaintiff thinks, he or the Hindus have any ownership right over it, the same is not correct, because it is clear that sometimes in Imambaras, Masjids and tombs and in other monuments, Muslims organize different congregations on different occasions. During other days Hindus also offer Nazr-o-Niaz. The Muslims do not stop their entry into the building. Similarly Muslims go into the religious buildings of Hindus also. Therefore, going of a person into and out of any building for offering Nazr-o-Niyaz does not make him owner or confers proprietory right of that place*.*

3- It is also clear that from the time of the construction of the Masjid till 1856, there was no Chabutra at this place. This was constructed in 1857 and on application of the Muslims the order of digging out the Chabutra was passed. Therefore, it is clear that the Chabutra was constructed in 1857*.*

4- Now it deserves a tension as to how a new Chabutra has been constructed for the meeting of Hindus. Their entry was subject to condition that nothing new would be done. As such since 1857 the petitioner has no ownership rights, instead if the plaintiff or any other Hindu tried to carry out any new activity, the Government restrained them. One Faqir made a thatched hut (chhappar) as Kuti which was demolished and he was ousted from that place. This requires justice inasmuch as for 368 years generally and from 1857, in particular, the plaintiff could not produce any document to show his ownership. He can never have any right to construct any temple on the floor of the Masjid. The claim of the plaintiff that the Chabutra is theirs and thereby acquired right to construct any temple, it is a mere misunderstanding

because the plaintiff has no ownership right or liberty to use the Chabutra or offer gift (Charhawa) over the Chabutra.

5- Copies of various orders passed at different times restraining the plaintiff from carrying out construction activities and orders for demolition of the house and Rasoi of Sita Ji and the Kuti which the Faqir has made, as per record are not the property of plaintiff. It would cause violence between Muslims and Hindus, which had taken place earlier. Orders have been issued under the authority of the Government. They are all related to this suit and are proof of our claim. The same orders, particularly the order dated February 23, 1857 gave rise to cause of action as such limitation for hearing has expired. Therefore the Civil Court could not overlook these facts. Therefore, the orders are in force. The petitioner did not get them cancelled. They could not be set aside without proper judicial verdict. Any such decision in contravention of the aforesaid order would be illegal and unlawful, as the same are self speaking and have not yet been set aside. Therefore, it is requested that after perusal of the documents and objections the claim of the obedient applicant objector may kindly be considered sympathetically. Deemed necessary so requested.

Yours faithfully Mir Mohd. Asghar, Mutawalli Masjid Babri, respondent. Dated December 22, 1885 through Mohd. Nazir Khan and Maulvi Mohd. Afzal, counsel for the respondents.

Most Respected Sir,

I beg to say that I was granted contract of Babri Masjid*. The work has already been completed about a year before, barring certain small piece of work for a value of Rs. 100/- or 200/-. The applicant is in dire need of money and only little work to the extent of Rs. 200/- is remaining, which I cannot carry out. The applicant has no other business. Kindly provide relief to me and my family. Besides, at the time of contract, it was agreed upon that part payments will be made according to Vasoolyabi. I have come to know that the enough revenue has been collected. I have already told orally to you that I was in trouble and needed money. During this time the applicant was not feeling well, so, he could not convey his grievance again.* Secondly, the applicant was required to construct the houses which were burnt during the riot, out of which 13 houses of Khaprail have been repaired before the rains commenced. A small piece of work in relation to doors etc is remaining. Further under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner Faizabad through Tehsildar (Nuzul) Faizabad, certain trees and shrubs were allotted to the applicant with the assurance that whenever the applicant gets money the price of the aforesaid would be deducted from the bill. The applicant has already collected material for repairs of the remaining houses. But due to paucity of of required money the applicant remained idle. So, I would request you to kindly consider my grief sympathetically and provide money to me and for this purpose. kindly issue necessary orders. Deemed necessary, so prayed.

" Gharib Parwar Salamat. I beg to state that my bill for the repair work of the houses was to the tune of Rs. 3604/- out of which the applicant has been paid 3287/1/6 only the reason for the officer under payment seems to be that the officer Nazul and Naib Tahsildar Faizabad at the time of inspection during repairs, proposed that the thickness of the two doors of 1-1/2 inch, valued at Rs 23/12 and Rs 16/11/3 be reduced to Rs 16/- and Rs 11/- respectively, the price of the windows was reduced to Rs. 4/ instead of Rs 7/. Sir, at the time of inspection of the after reducing the thickness of the three doors to 1-1/2 inches and that of windows the P.W.D. after revision of the price, approved Rs 23/12/-, Rs 16/11/3 and Rs 7/- respectively, and accordingly fixed the doors and windows years back. At the time of inspection of the officer incharge, those were found not in new condition, that is why deduction was proposed although the new doors and windows could certainly not be prepared at the proposed price. Therefore it is requested that inspection and revaluation of 3 doors- 1-1/4 inches and rates of the windows may be made by the P.W.D. and the applicant may kindly be paid his remaining amount. Applicant's bill in respect of Masjid Babri was of Rs. 7229/- out of which he has been paid Rs, 6825/12/- i.e. short by Rs 403/41- though the estimate was approved for Rs. 7329/- and the applicant has been paid lesser amount. 2379. Exhibit A-7 (Suit 1) (Register 6, page 63-73)=Exhibit 24 (Suit-4) Register 10 Page 137) is claimed to be an agreement between Syed Mohd. Zaki and Abdul Gaffar on 25th July 1936 with respect to payment of arrears of salary of Abdul Gaffar who is said to have worked as Pesh Imam in the waqf mosque Babri and contains further details about payment schedule etc. This document has been filed to show that the building in dispute was not only in possession of Muslims after 1934 but Pesh Imam and Mutwallis were there which shows that Namaz was also offered in the disputed building after 1934. However, entire document nowhere shows or even make a suggestion that Namaz was being offered in the disputed building for the period said document refers or otherwise. It is solely confined to the dispute of payment of salary to Sri Abdul Gaffar. Moreover, this document ex facie does not satisfy the requirement of a public document under Section 74 of Evidence Act, 1872 and nothing has been placed on record to show that it was filed after obtaining a copy thereof from a public authority in whose possession it ought to be. Evidently, it is a private document under Section 75 of Evidence Act and its contents have not been proved in accordance with law i.e. by any appropriate witness.

2380. The said document was filed in an earlier litigation i.e. O.S.No.29 of 1945 filed by U.P. Shia Central Waqf Board against U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board where it was marked as Exhibit A-20 but that fact by itself would not result in treating the said document proved in accordance with law and in any case the contents thereof having not been proved, cannot be taken to be correct. The above document, Exhibit A-7, does not qualify such degree, presumption in respect whereto under Section 80 of the Evidence Act could be drawn for the purposes mentioned therein. Certified copy of the said documents obtained from the Civil Court would only mean that such a document was filed thereat but the presumption as available to the certified copies of public document would not apply to the above documents, Exhibit A-7. Moreover, nothing spell out therefrom which may help plaintiffs (Suit-4) or the defendants no.1 to 5 and 10 (Suit-1) to prove their claim about the possession and offering of Namaz in the disputed premises.

2381. Exhibit A-4 (Suit-1) (Register 6, page 35-44)=Exhibit 21 (Suit-4) (Register 10, page 119-124) is claimed to be the report dated 16th September 1938 written by the District Waqf Commissioner, Faizabad addressed to the Chief Commissioner of Waqf, U.P. and it reads as under:

"Chief Commissioner of Waqfs, U.P.

These papers are submitted to you in the matter of Babari or Janam Asthan mosque at Ajudhya, which was built by Emperor Babar in 935 A.H.

A short history of the State grant made for the maintenance of this mosque is given below.

It appears that in 935 A.H. Emperor Babar built this mosque and appointed one Syed Abdul Baqi as the Mutawalli and Khatib of the mosque (vide cl.2 of written statement filed by Syed Mohd. Zaki to whom a notice was issued under the Waqf Act). An annual grant of Rs. 60/- was allowed by the Emperor for maintenance of the mosque and of the family of the first Mutawalli Abdul Baqi. This grant was continued till of the fall of the Moghal kingdom at Delhi and the ascendancy of the Nawab of Oudh.

According to Cl.3 of the written statement of Mohd. Zaki, Nawab Sa'adat Ali Khan, King of Oudh increased the annual grant to Rs. 302/3/6. No original papers about this grant by the King of Oudh are available.

After the mutiny, the British Government also continued the above grant in cash upto 1864 and in the latter year, in lieu of the cash grant the British Govt ordered the grant of some revenue free land in villages Bhuranpur and Sholeypur. A copy of this order of the British Govt has been filed by the objector Syed Muhammad Zaki (Vide flag A). This order says that "the Chief Commissioner under the authority of the Governor General in Council is pleased to maintain the Grant for so long as the object for which the grant has been made is kept up on the following conditions." These conditions require Rajab Ali and Mohd. Asghar to whom the Sannad was given, to perform duties of land holder in the matter of police, military or political service etc. The object mentioned above is elucidated in the Urdu translation as follows:

اوسی نانکارکو جب تک کہ مسجد جس کے واسطے یہ
نانکار دی گی تھی برقرار رہے حسب شراءط مفصلہ ذیل قاءم فرماتے
ہیں۔

"Thus the original object of the State grant of Emperor Babar and Nawab Saadat Ali Khan is continued in this Sunnad by the British Govt. also, i.e., maintenance of the mosque. The Nankar is to be enjoyed by the grantees for so long as the object of the grant i.e the Mosque, is in existence.

Syed. Mohd. Zaki, the objector, who is known as the Mutawalli of the Babari Mosque, and also calls himself as such raises an objection to the land in Sholeypur and Bhuranpur being regarded as a waqf, because he says the grant has been made for his subsistence only (نانکار). I do not agree with this view of his. The written filed by Mohammad Zaki himself is sufficient to show that the grant has been continued ever since 935 A.H. only because he and his ancestors were required to look after the mosque and keep it in proper condition out of the income allowed to them and also to provide for the maintenance of himself and his ancestors out of a part of the same grant.*

Clearly them the grant of land to Mohammad Zaki must be regarded as a Waqf, the purpose of which is the maintenance of the religious building known as the Babari Mosque.

The learned counsel for Mohammad Zaki has also argued.

1) That the particular grant of land in Sholeypur and Bhureypur has been made by the British Government. A Non-Muslim body and hence the grant cannot be regarded as Muslim Waqf.

(2) that the grant is a conditional one, being subject to resumption on non fulfilment by the grantee of any of the police Military or duties enjoined in the Sunnad, and that on account of these conditions the grant cannot be classed as a Muslim Waqf.

I do not agree with eitherview. Firstly the British Government only continued a grant which had been made by the Muslim Government originally and in these circumstances, I cannot but regard the grant as a Waqf.

2) As for the second point the conditions have been imposed upon the grantee, and not upon the way in which the grant is to be utilized, which latter purpose is recognised as maintenance of the mosque. It is clear that if the conditions are broken the enjoyment of the grant by the Mutwalli himself for his sustenance is to be withdrawn apparently implying that any other Mutwalli will then be appointed to administer the grant for the original purpose of maintaining the mosque. I am strengthened in this view because I find the mention of the object of the grant i.e. maintenance of the mosque at the very outset of the Sunnad and the desirability thereof seems to be clear from the whole Sunnad.

I also find that after the Ajodhya riot of 1934, Syed Mohammad Zaki presented an application (Ex. A) to D.

C., in which he clearly described himself as Mutwalli or trustee of the mosque and of the trust attached thereto.

I also find that this same Mohammad Zaki submitted accounts in 1925 in Tahsildar's court in which he stated that the income from the grant managed by him was utilized for maintenance of the mosque, pay of Imam Muezzin and the provisions of Iftari etc., during Ramzan after deduction of Rs 20/- per month for sustenance of the Mutwalli himself. The pay of Mutwalli in column 7 has not been stated by Mohd. Zaki. In view of the statement filed in Tahsildar's Court, this may be regarded as Rs. 20/- per month, although there is no reason to believe that the present Mutwali spends a much greater portions of the income on his own personal needs.

The present Mutwalli is of course a Shia. There is no information as to the sect to which Abdul Baqi himself belonged*, but the founder Emperor Babar- was admittedly a Sunni, the Imam and Muezzin at the mosque are Sunni and* only Sunnis say their prayer in it. I think therefor that this should regarded a Sunni trust.

I must say in the end that from the reports that I have heard about the present Mutwalli, he is an opium addict (vide his statement Flagged-) and most unsuited to the proper performance of the duties expected of a Mutwali of an ancient and historical mosque, which is not kept even in proper repairs. It is desirable that, if possible, a committee of management should be appointed to supervise the proper maintenance and repairs of the mosque and discharge of his duties by the Mutwalli.

The present Mutwalli is of course a Shia. There is no information as to the sect to which Abdul Baqi himself belonged, but the founder Emperor Babar- was admittedly a Sunni, the Imam and Muezzin at the mosque are Sunni and only Sunnis say their prayer in it*.* Abdul Ghaffar the present Pesh niwaz was examined by me. He swear that the ancestors of Mohammad Zaki were Sunnis who latter on was converted to Shia. He further said that he did not receive his pay during the last 11 years. In 1936 the Mutwalli executed a pronote promising to pay the arrear of pay by instalment but upto this time nothing actually was done. I think therefore that this should be regarded as a Sunni Trust.

I must say in the end that from the reports that I have heard about the present Mutwalli, he is an opium addict (vide his statement Flagged-) and must unsuited to the proper performance of the duties expected of a Mutwali of an ancient and historical mosque, which is not kept even in proper repairs. It is desirable that, if possible, a committee of management should be appointed to supervise the proper maintenance and repairs of the mosque and discharge of his duties by the Mutwalli.

2383. The said documents show that the (Waqf Commissioner) proceeded to treat the disputed building a mosque pursuant to some statement received from Syed Mohd. Zaki to whom he had issued notice under U.P.Act 1936 and thereafter took into consideration the genuineness of the grant of Rs. 302/3/6 though admitted that the original documents of the said grant alleged to be issued by the King of Oudh were not available.

2384. Sri P.N. Mishra as well as Sri M.M. Pandey learned counsel appearing for some of the Hindu parties drew our attention to the factum mentioned by the District Waqf Commissioner in his report that the object of the grant was to maintain the mosque and for the said purpose he has reproduced certain words in Urdu which is incorrect. They are right. We also do not find as to wherefrom the alleged original object in Urdu was found mentioned by aforesaid District Waqf Commissioner. It also appears from the aforesaid report that Syed Mohd. Zaki did not agree to the fact that the grant of land in village Sholapur and Bahoranpur was in connection with the Waqf, i.e. mosque but his stand was that the said grant was given to Sri Rajjab Ali and Sri Mohd. Asghar. The officer concerned however showed his disagreement on the ground that the original grant having been allowed since the period of Emperor Babur i.e., 935 A.H., i.e. 1528 AD the claim of Mohd. Zaki that the grant was personal was not correct. Further to treat the successors of Mutwalli the name of the first one is mentioned as Abdul Baqi but we are not shown by any of the counsels as to whether any such person existed in 1528 AD and had any relationship with the building in dispute or Emperor Babur. Another factum mentioned in the report is that one

Abdul Gaffar, according to the officer concerned, was the then Pesh Nawaz who was examined by him and he told that Mohd. Zaki was earlier Sunni and later on converted to Shia and for this reason also, since Emperor Babur was Sunni, the officer concerned recorded his opinion that it should be treated as Sunni Trust. He also found that the then Mutwalli was an opium addict and recommended for the constitution of a committee of management for maintenance of the building.

2385. Exhibit A-6 (Suit-1) (Register 6, page 49-61) is said to be an application/petition dated 1.10.1945 filed under section 15 of the Police Act (Act No.5 of 1861). 2386. The said application was filed for claiming damages of Rs. 15000/- on account of loss caused to the building in dispute on 27th March 1934 and removal of movable property kept in the said building and their residential houses. It gives the list of movable property which was lost in the said agitation worth Rs. 269/- and reads as under:

2387. The above document is not a public document and when it was filed, could not have been said to be 30 years old document. Even otherwise, it does not satisfy the requirement of Section 90 of the Evidence Act. This document, therefore, cannot be held proved. It is therefore difficult to place reliance on the contents of this document. In any case, it only shows that Syed Mohd. Zaki claimed himself to be Mutwalli, Babari Masjid and that he was managing the said mosque. It further says that besides damage to the building of the mosque, the other items kept in the said building have also been set on fire and therefore, he sought compensation of Rs.269/- on that account.

2389. Exhibit A-11 (Suit-1) (Register 6, page 163-165) appears to be a copy of some register but it is an extremely torn document and the contents on page 163 are almost illegible. Sri Jilani however placed reliance on entry contained in columns 13 and 14 thereof. Column 13 refers to order of the Chief Commissioner and reads as under:

> "So long the Masjid is kept up and the Muhammadans conduct themselves properly I recommend the continuance of the grant (signature illegible, officiating Chief Commissioner)"

2390. Column 14 is headed 'Final order of Government' and thereunder it is mentioned as under:

> "Released so long as the object for which the grant has been made is kept up vide Govt. order number 2321 dated 29th January 60"

www.vadaprativada.com

(The same document has also been filed as Exhibit 2 (Suit-4) Register 10 Page 31)

2391. Exhibit A-10 (Suit-1) (Register 6, page 153-155) is a document which has been heavily referred by both the sides. Its heading is as under:

> "Nakal register tahkikat maafi mashmula misil tahkikat maafi number mukdama 53 register misil band mukdama Rajab Ali (Apathniya)

2392. Exhibit A-21 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 233-235) is a copy of the Khasra pertaining to 1277 Fasli (1884 AD) showing entry of Plot No. 163 as Araji Juma Masjid.

2393. The above documents show that in order to justify the amount received by Mir Rajjab Ali and Mohd. Afjal and their successors in the form of the grant, they made some expenses on the maintenance of disputed structure and that was shown in the records also, which was inspected and found correct by the Government officials namely Tehsildar etc. The interesting thing discern from all these documents is that none of them throws any light on the fact whether the Muslim public visited the disputed premises for offering namaz during all this period. From the stand taken by Mohd. Zaki before the Waqf Commissioner, it is evident that the grant of the two villages was treated as personal grant and in one or the other documents, besides the word 'Mutwalli'/'khatib', it also mentions "Zamindar" qua the two villages grant whereof was allowed. Moreover in respect to Hindu fairs at Ayodhya i.e. Ram Navmi fair, they shared income of rental when some of the part of the land was allowed to be used by outsiders for keeping shops, with the Priest of Nirmohi Akhara, who were managing and possessing Ram Chabutara and other Hindu religious structures and places existing in the outer courtyard.

2394. Sri Jilani suggested when the building was maintained by a Muslim person, the said management was for the purpose of convenience to Muslim public for holding namaz. We find difficult to agree with this bald oral proposition for the reason that a presumption cannot substitute a fact. When a fact is seriously disputed, there has to be an evidence to prove that fact. Assumption cannot be stretched too far i.e. to that extent which is not even apparent or justified from the documents produced by the party concerned upon whom onus to prove lie.

2395. In support of the contention that the namaz was continuously offered in the building in dispute, a number of witnesses have been produced on behalf of the plaintiffs (Suit-4). They deposed to have offered namaz in the building in dispute (inner courtyard) before December, 1949 and upto 16th December, 1949 or 22nd December, 1949. That evidence will be considered a bit later. Here what we find is that realizing the problem, which the plaintiffs were having in the matter, instead of filing a suit for possession, they have sought a declaration about the status of the premises in dispute. Ex facie the provision of Limitation Act, which would be attracted, is not Article 142. The pleadings as well as other documents leave no doubt that the plaintiffs (Suit-4) have not made out any case of adverse possession; admitting the ownership of the property in dispute of the defendants and showing open, hostile, continuous and peaceful possession. However, we shall consider the

2396. So far as Article 144 is concerned, we are clearly of the view that the same has no application. It contemplates plea of adverse possession by the defendant and not plaintiff. Learned counsel for the plaintiffs (Suit-4) could not place anything to persuade us to take a different view and therefore, in our view, Article 144 is not applicable to Suit-4. However, this aspect we propose to discuss in detail while discussing issues pertaining to adverse possession/ possession.

2397. This leads us to consider the scope and extent of Article 120 L.A. 1908 and whether it will be applicable in this case.

2398. In Janki Kunwar Vs. Ajit Singh (1888) ILR 15 Cal 58 Articles 91 and 94 Schedule II, Limitation Act (Act No.XV of 1877) came to be considered. The Court found that though the suit purported to have been filed claiming possession of immoveable property in dispute and thereby claiming limitation for the same being 12 years but it was in fact not so since without getting the deed of sale set aside, the possession of immoveable property could not have been recovered and therefore necessarily a suit for setting aside the sale deed executed on 29th July, 1872 while the suit was filed on 16th February, 1884 hence barred by limitation under Article 91 of the said Act. The court held that if all the facts were known to the parties and yet he chose not to litigate upon the matter within the period of limitation prescribed in the statute, the suit would have to fail, hit by limitation prescribed in the statute.

2399. Similar view was expressed in Jafar Ali Khan (supra) where the Court said that without seeking a declaration, relief of recovery of possession cannot be stressed upon. In such a case the provision of limitation pertaining to recovery of possession would not apply. The Court relied on its earlier decision in Jagadamba Chowdhurani Vs. Dakhina Mohan (1886) 13 Cal 308 while observing that in such a case, prima facie, title remains with the defendant, and until that title is defeated or displaced, the possession of the defendant cannot be disturbed. The Court in para 7 held :

> ".....It may be taken to be established now that where in a suit for recovery of possession there is an obstacle in the way of granting relief in the shape of gift or settlement, the plaintiff cannot get any relief until such instrument is set aside; and as it has been said, if it is too late for setting aside the document, the suit for possession should also fail."

2400. In Pierce Leslie (supra) in para 7 the Court held:

> "Even if the suit is treated as one for recovery of possession of the properties it would be governed by Article 120 and not by Article 144. The old company could not ask for recovery of the properties until they obtained a re-conveyance from the new company. The cause of action for this relief arose in 1939 when the properties were conveyed to the new company. A suit for this relief was barred under Article 120 on the expiry of six years. After the expiry of this period the old company could not file a suit for recovery of possession."

2401. In Raja Ramaswami (supra) suit was filed for possession of the property in dispute and in the alternative prayed for a decree for Rs.1500, the consideration paid by her to the defendant for sale with interest thereon. In defence the plea of limitation was taken stating that the sale deed was executed on 6th February, 1905 though the suit was filed on 1st December, 1924. In para 19, the Court held :

> "As regards the first point, it has been well-settled by several decisions of their Lordships of the Privy Council that it is not the form of the relief claimed which determines the real character of the suit for the purpose of ascertaining under which article of the Limitation Act the suit falls. Though the relief claimed in the suit is possession of immovable property, yet if the property sued for is held by the contesting defendant under a sale or other transfer which is not void, but only voidable, and he cannot obtain possession without the transfer being set aside, the suit much be regarded as one brought to set aside the transfer though no relief in those terms is prayed for, but the prayer is only for possession of the property."

2402. The suit in question has been instituted on 18.12.1961. Cause of action arose, as per the own pleadings of the plaintiffs (Suit-4) in para 23 of the plaint, on 23.12.1949 and 29.12.1949. Admittedly the suit is much beyond the period of limitation if it it is to be governed by Article 120 of L.A. 1908. In that case, whether the prayer (Namaj) was held till 16.12.1949 or 22/23.12.1949 in the disputed building by Muslims would be of no consequence. The question of prayer or the prayer continued till December, 1949 may be relevant only if the applicability of Article 120 of L.A. 1908 is ruled out. In a suit for declaration of title Article 142 and 144 as such are not applicable and in the absence of any other provision, prescribing a different limitation, it is Article 120 which is attracted Limitation of six years is provided in Article 120.

2403. The plaint shows as also admitted by the plaintiffs

that their possession was obstructed and interfered in the night of 22/23.12.1949 when idols of Lord Ramlala were placed under central dome in the inner courtyard of the disputed building, and, apprehending public tranquillity and disturbance of peace, the City Magistrate attached that the part of the disputed area namely, the inner courtyard and placed it in the possession of a Receiver. Therefore, on 29.12.1949 and thereafter the property covered by the inner courtyard including the disputed building was not in possession of any of the defendants (Hindu Parties) who could have restored the same to the plaintiffs (Suit-4). The order dated 29.12.1949 was passed by the City Magistrate in exercise of his power under Section 145 Cr.P.C.. Neither the validity of the said order could have been challenged by filing a civil suit under Section 9 CPC, 1908, nor the same actually has been challenged in Suit-4 nor it would mean that the property which was attached by the Magistrate under Section 145 Cr.P.C. is in the hands of any individual defendant.

2404. In Partab Bahadur Singh, Taluqdar (supra) the Court held where an order under Section 145 CR.P.C. was made by the Magistrate for attachment of the disputed property and Tahsildar was appointed receiver, the possession of receiver in the eyes of law was the possession of the true owner and, therefore, in such a suit Article 120 L.A. 1908 shall be attracted and a suit brought within six years of the last invasion is in time. On page 395 of the judgment the Court said:

> "For the present it would be enough to say that in our opinion the attachment made in 1932 in pursuance of the order passed in the proceedings under S. 145, Criminal P.C., clearly gave rise to an independent cause of action for the plaintiff instituting the present suit for a declaration

and the said suit having been brought within six years of the attachment is not barred by Art. 120, Limitation Act, if it is found that he had a subsisting title on the date of attachment. Next it was contended that the suit was governed by Art. 142 Sch. 1, Limitation Act, and that the plaintiff's suit had rightly been dismissed because he had failed to prove his possession within limitation. The Subordinate Judge also has laid great emphasis on it and his decision appears to be mainly based on this ground. In our opinion this position is altogether untenable. It is common ground between the parties that in S. 145 Criminal P.C., proceedings the Magistrate passed an order for attachment of the property. The Tahsildar who was appointed receiver took possession of the property on 23rd February, 1932. The property was admittedly in possession of the Tahsildar as receiver at the time when the present suit was instituted. The possession of the receiver was in the eye of law the possession the true owner. In the circumstances the plaintiff could undoubtedly maintain a suit for a mere declaration of his title and it was not necessary for him to institute a suit for possession. The suit is neither in substance nor in form a suit for possession of immoveable property. Art. 142 has therefore no application."

2405. In Raja Rajgan Maharaja Jagatjit Singh (supra) the ratio laid down in Partab Bahadur Singh, Taluqdar (supra) was upheld. The Privy Council affirmed that in a suit for declaration of plaintiff's title to the land in possession of the receiver under attachment in proceeding under Section 145 Cr.P.C. by virtue of Magistrate's order, Article 142 and 144 L.A.

1908 are inapplicable and the suit is governed by Article 120 thereof. On page 49 the Privy Council observed:

> "With regard to the statutory period of limitation, Art. 47 of the Act does not apply, as there has been no order for possession by the Magistrate under S. 145, Criminal P.C. as the suit is one for a declaration of title, it seems clear that Arts. 142 and 144 do not apply, and their Lordships agree with the Chief Court that the suit is governed by Art. 120."

2406. In Ponnu Nadar and others Vs. Kumaru Reddiar and others, AIR 1935 Madras 967 the Court held that the real cause of action was the date of the order of the Magistrate and limitation started from the date of order. Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 was applicable and not Section 23 of the said Act. The relevant portions of the said judgment read as follows:

> "What in fact appears to have given rise to the Joint Magistrate's order was a police report of an apprehended breach of the peace between the rival fractions and all that the opposite party did was to adopt an attitude which gave rise to that apprehension. So far as that attitude itself is concerned, it is impossible to find in it a continuing wrong, nor do we find it easier to hold that when the Joint Magistrate passed the order with a view to prevent a breach of the peace there was a "continuing wrong" caused by the defendants' party. There is nothing to show that it was passed at their instance and even if it were, responsibility for passing it must be taken by the Court and not laid upon the party. Again, once an order was passed, the matter was taken out of the hands of the defendant

party, and it lay with the Nadars themselves to establish their right by suit.

From this point of view too we are not disposed to hold that even if there was a continuing wrong the defendant party was responsible for its continuance. Where the applicability of S. 23, Lim. Act, is doubtful the proper course must be, we think, to enforce against the plaintiffs the ordinary principles of limitation, and in the present case to apply Art. 47 would be applied to the case of an order under S. 145, Criminal P.C., time being taken to run from the date of the order. Adopting this view, the persons affected by the order of 1900 had a period of six years within which to establish their right, and we are not greatly impressed by the argument that, if the right itself may be indestructible, the remedy ought not to have been permanently lost by their failure to take action within that time. We must hold in agreement with 26 Mad. 410(1) that the suit is barred under Art. 120, Limitation Act."

2407. In Annamalai Chettiar (supra), Privy Council held that in case of an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted for the purpose of limitation Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 is applied. Relevant para of the judgment from page 12 reads as under:

"In their Lordships view the case falls under Art. 120, under which the time begins to run when the right to sue accrues. In a recent decision of their Lordships' Board, delivered by Sri Binod Mitter, it is stated, in reference to Art. 120."

2408. In Mst. Rukhma Bai Vs. Lal Laxminarayan (supra) the Supreme Court held where there are successive invasion or denial of right, the right to sue under Article 120 accrues when the defendant has clearly and unequivocally threatened to infringe the right asserted by the plaintiff in the suit. Whether a particular threat gives rise to a compulsory cause of action depends upon the question whether that threat effectively invites or jeopardizes the said right. Para 33 of the judgment says:

> "33. The legal position may be briefly stated thus: The right to sue under Art. 120 of the Limitation Act accrues when the defendant has clearly and unequivocally threatened to infringe the right asserted by the plaintiff in the suit. Every threat by a party to such a right, however ineffective and innocuous it may be, cannot be considered to be a clear and unequivocal threat so as to compel him to file a suit. Whether a particular threat gives rise to a compulsory cause of action depends upon the question whether that threat effectively invades or jeopardizes the said, right."

2409. In C. Mohammad Yunus (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that a suit for declaration of a right and an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with the exercise of that right is governed by Article 120. Under the said Article there can be no right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe the right. Relevant extract of para 7 of the judgment reads as under:

> "7. . . . The period of six years prescribed by Art. 120 has to be computed from the date when the right to sue accrues

and there could be no right to sue until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right. If the trustees were willing to give a share and on the record of the case it must be assumed that they being trustees appointed under a scheme would be willing to allow the plaintiffs their legitimate rights including a share in the income if under the law they were entitled thereto, mere denial by the defendants of the rights of the plaintiffs and defendant No. 2 will not set the period of limitation running against them."

2410. In Garib Das (supra) the Apex Court held that in a suit for recovery of possession after cancellation of sale deed in favour of the defendants on the ground that a previous valid waqf had been created, Article 142 was not applicable, the suit was to be filed within a period of six years that is to say Article 120 was applicable. Para 13 of the judgement reads as follows:

"13. The fourth point has no substance inasmuch as Article 142 of the Limitation Act was not applicable to the facts of the case. The suit was filed in 1955 within six years after the death of Tasaduk Hussain who died only a few months after the execution of the documents relied on by the appellants."

2411. In Dwijendra Narain Roy Vs. Joges Chandra De, AIR 1924 Cal 600 (page 609) the Court said:

"The substance of the matter is that time runs when the cause of action accrues, and a cause of action accrues when there is in existence a person who can sue and another who can be used . . . . . The cause of action arises when and only when the aggrieved party has the right to apply to the proper tribunals for relief. The statute (of limitation) does not attach to the claim for which there is as yet no right of action and does not run against a right for which there is no corresponding remedy or for which judgment cannot be obtained. Consequently the true test to determine when a cause of action has accrued is to ascertain the time when plaintiff could first have maintained his action to a successful result."

2412. This has been approved by the Apex Court in P. Lakshmi Reddy (supra).

2413. It is no doubt true that in the suit the plaintiffs have sought necessarily relief of declaration that the premises in dispute is a mosque. The premises in dispute has been demarcated by them as 'ABCD' in the map appended to the plaint. Relief -2 is worded in a manner showing that the same has not been asked from the Court but has been left to the discretion of the Court if it finds expedient then it may grant.

2414. The settled proposition about the property custodia legis is "the possession on behalf of the true owner". If the plaintiffs are true owner, possession on their behalf is already with the Receiver but realizing the fact that without settling dispute regarding status and nature of the disputed site and building, claim of the plaintiffs for possession from the Receiver would not succeed, they have sought the above declaration, which therefore constitute the actual and real relief in the suit and thus attract Article 120.

2415. For relief sought in the nature of declaration, Section 42 of the Specific Relief Act provides:

"Any person entitled to any legal character, or to any right as to any property may institute a suit against any person

denying or interested to deny, his title to such character or right, and the Court may in its discretion make therein a declaration that he is so entitled, and the plaintiff need not in such suit ask for any further relief." . . . . "Provided, that no Court shall make any such declaration where the plaintiff, being able to seek further relief than a mere declaration of title omits to do so."

2416. Certain provisions have been made in L.A. 1908 for certain suits, declaratory in nature for example Articles 92, 93, 118, 119, 125 and 129 but a suit for declaration of plaintiff's title or right to property is governed by Article 120 L.A. 1908 which provides a period of six years from the date of accrual of cause of action or right to sue.

2417. In Satya Niranjan Vs. Ramlal, 1925 P.C. 42 it was observed that the claims declaratory in their nature falling under Section 42 of the Specific Relief Act are governed by Article 120 of L.A. 1908.

2418. In Draupadi Devi (supra) the Court said:

"73. We may notice here that under the Code of Civil Procedure, Order VII Rule 1(e) requires a plaint to state "the facts constituting the cause of action and when it arose". The plaintiff was bound to plead in the plaint when the cause of action arose. If he did not, then irrespective of what the defendants may plead in the written statement, the court would be bound by the mandate of Section 3 of the Limitation Act, 1908 to dismiss the suit, if it found that on the plaintiff's own pleading his suit is barred by limitation. In the instant case, the plaint does not plead clearly as to when the cause of action arose. In the absence of such pleadings, the defendants pleaded nothing on the issue.

However, when the facts were ascertained by evidence, it was clear that the decision of the Government of India not to recognise the suit property as private property of the Maharaja was taken some time in the year 1951, whether in March or May. Dewan Jarmanidass, the plaintiff and the Maharaja were very much aware of this decision. Yet, the suit was filed only on 11.5.1960.

74. The Division Bench was, therefore, right in applying Article 120 of the Limitation Act, 1908 under which the period of limitation for a suit for which no specific period is provided in the Schedule was six years from the date when the right to sue accrues. The suit was, therefore, clearly barred by limitation and by virtue of Section 3 of the Limitation Act, 1908, the court was mandated to dismiss it.

75. As rightly pointed out by the Division Bench, the learned Single Judge ought to have permitted the plea to be raised on the basis of the facts which came to light. The Division Bench has correctly appreciated the plea of limitation, in the facts and circumstances of the case, and rightly came to the conclusion that the suit of the plaintiff was liable to be dismissed on the ground of limitation. We agree with the conclusion of the Division Bench on this issue."

2419. In Mt. Bolo Vs. Mt. Koklan (supra) right to sue for the purpose of Article 120 Limitation Act was considered and it was held:

"There can be no "right to sue" until there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that

2420. In M.V.S. Manikyala Vs. Narashimahwami AIR 1966 SC 470, the words "right to sue" under Article 120, LA 1908 was considered by the Apex Court and it was held that right to sue occurs for the purpose of the said Article. There is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and unequivocal threat by the respondents to infringe it. Every threat by a party to such a right, however, ineffective and innocuous it may be, cannot be considered to be a clear and unequivocal threat so as to compel him to file a suit. Whether a particular threat gives rise to a compulsory cause of action depends upon the question whether that threat effectively invades or jeopardizes the said right. [See: Mst. Rukhmabai Vs. Lala Laxminarayan (supra)]. It has been held in a catena of decisions that in a suit for declaration of title to immovable property, it is Article 120 LA 1908 and Article 113 LA 1963 which would be applicable.

2421. In Mohabharat Shaha Vs. Abdul Hamid Khan (1904) 1 CLJ 73, it was held when a plaintiff being in possession sues for a declaration of his title to immovable property, the residuary provision would apply, i.e., Article 120.

2422. In Aftab Ali Vs. Akbor Ali (1929) 121 IC 209 (All), the Court said that Article 120 undoubtedly applies to all declaratory suits except where separate provision is made. In such a case of declaration, it is no doubt has been held by this Court in Must. Salamat Begam Vs. S.K. Ikram Husain (1933) 145 IC 728 and Prarjapati Vs. Jot Singh (supra) that where owner is in possession, he acquires a cause of action on each occasion on which his rights are denied.

2423. There appears to be a consensus of opinion that

Article 120 applies to all suits of a declaratory nature where no consequential relief is sought or is necessary.

2424. From the pleadings and prayer 1 (Suit-4) of the plaint it appears that the status of the disputed premises claimed to be mosque by plaintiffs was threatened and disturbed by the defendants, i.e., the Hindu parties, by placing idols in the disputed building allegedly in the night of 22/23.12.1949 and this gave a cause of action to the plaintiffs to seek a declaration from the Court that the disputed premises is a mosque. For the said purpose the question of possession, dispossession and restoration of possession of the building in dispute is neither necessarily consequential nor in the absence of such relief the suit could have been dismissed under proviso to Section 42 of Specific Relief Act, 1877.

2425. The inter relationship qua Article 120 of Limitation Act, Section 42 of Specific Relief Act as also 146 Cr.P.C. came to be considered before the Division Bench of Calcutta High Court in Panna Lal Biswas (supra). The plaintiff-appellant Panna Lal Biswas was dispossessed sometimes in April 1904 by the defendant. Property in dispute was attached by the Magistrate under Section 146 Cr.P.C. on 10.6.1904. Ultimately a suit was filed for recovery of possession on 2.5.1906. The Court below dismissed the suit on the ground of bar of limitation observing that attachment shall not confer a fresh start for limitation from the date of attachment. The Court considered whether in such a case the suit is one for possession or for a mere declaration. It observed that in Goswami Ranchor Lalji Vs. Sri Girdhariji (1897) 20 All. 120 it was held that the suit is not for possession and, therefore, would be governed by 12 years rule of limitation. However, there is another decision of

Madras High Court in Rajah of Venkatagiri Vs. Isakapalli Subbiah (supra) wherein it was held that the suit was not for declaration and governed by Article 120, there was no continuing wrong.

2426. A Similar view was taken by Calcutta High Court in Brojendra Kishore (supra) but therein it further observed that it is a continuing wrong within the meaning of Section 23 of the Limitation Act and, therefore, the suit would not be barred by limitation.

2427. In Panna Lal (supra) the Court agreed that the view that the suit cannot be treated to be that of possession because possession is not with the defendants but with the Magistrate who is not, and cannot be a party to the Suit. It also agreed that Article 120 of the Limitation Act would apply.

2428. Then comes a question of continuing wrong. The Calcutta High Court observed that in Brojendra Kishore (supra) there was no dispossession prior to the attachment by the Magistrate and the cause of action might be said to have accrued from day to day commencing from the date of the attachment, but here in Panna Lal's case, dispossession took place in April 1904 and attachment was made in 10the June 1094. The cause of action, therefore, arose in April 1904 and rule of six years' limitation would apply. The Court, thereafter, proceeded to consider whether attachment would confer a fresh starting point, whether the suit is barred under Article 120 or 142. It agreed with the view that the possession of Magistrate is that of a stake holder and during continuance of attachment, the property was in legal custody i.e. custodia legis which must be held to be for the benefit of the true owner. In order to bring the case within the concept of continuing wrong, Calcutta High

Court in Panna Lal relied on Agency Company Vs. Short (supra) where it was held if a person enters upon the land of another and holds possession for a time and when without having acquired title under the statute, abandons possession, the rightful owner, on the abandonment is in the same position in all respect as he was before the intrusion took place.

2429. In Panna Lal's case, the possession was taken by the Magistrate and by that time the plaintiff was out of possession only for about two months. He had a subsisting title at that time and since Magistrate's possession was constructive possession of the true owner, the case would be covered within the principle of the Secretary of State Vs. Krishnamoni Gupta (1902) 29 Cal. 518. The Privy Council held "dispossession by the vis major of floods had the same effect as voluntary abandonment". If the possession of Magistrate was in law the possession of the true owner, the defendant's possession was determiend upon the Magistrate's taking possession under the attachment. In other words, the plaintiff must be taken to have been restored to possession constructively on the date of the attachment. He, therefore, got a fresh starting point, and that being so, the case would fall within the principle of Brojendra Kishore (supra) and thus can be treated as on of continuing wrong under Section 23 of the Limitation Act. The Court also referred an earlier decision of Calcutta High Court in Deo Narain Chowdhury Vs. C.R.H. Webb (1990) 28 Cal. 86 where it was held that limitation having already commenced to run from date of actual dispossession, the plaintiff could not have a fresh start of limitation from the date of subsequent attachment by the Criminal Court. The above case was distinguished by observing that the effect of attachment upon the question of

possession, so far as the true owner is concerned, was not considered in the earlier case.

2430. We find no simile with the present case inasmuch as, the plaintiffs are not claiming to be the owner but being the beneficiaries of the waqf, they have sought a declaration about the status of the property in suit. The question of providing a fresh cause of action on day-to-day basis would not arise to the plaintiffs. So far as the declaration is concerned, we are satisfied that it would be governed by Article 120.

2431. We are in agreement with the argument of the learned counsels for the defendants that a suit, if is barred by limitation, it is the statutory obligation on the part of the Court to dismiss it on the said ground by virtue of Section 3 of the Act and in such matters there is no question of any sympathy, hardship etc.

2432. In the matter of limitation sympathy, hardship, discretion etc. have no place. In Maqbul Ahmad Vs. Onkar Pratap Narain Singh (supra), Lord Tomlin observed, "there is no judicial discretion to relieve the appellants from the operation of the Limitation Act in a case of hardship or any authority in the Court to dispense with its provision." This has been followed in The Firm of Eng Gim Moh (supra) by a Full Bench of Rangoon High Court. In the above judgement the Court also disapprove the contention that continued attachment would confer a continuous cause of action.

2433. In Siraj-ul-Haq Khan (supra) the Court said:

> "But, in our opinion, there would be no justification for extending the application of S. 15 on the ground that the institution of the subsequent suit would be inconsistent with the spirit or substance of the order passed in the

previous litigation. It is true that rules of limitation are to some extent arbitrary and may frequently lead to hardship; but there can be no doubt that in construing provisions of limitation, equitable considerations are immaterial and irrelevant, and in applying them effect must be given to the strict grammatical meaning of the words used by them: Nagendra Nath Dey Vs. Suresh Chandra Dey, 34 Bom I.R. 1065: (AIR 1932 PC 165).” (para 19)

2434. Mere addition of the relief of possession would not attract a larger period of limitation provided by another provision namely, Article 142 or 144 of L.A. 1908 when on the basis of the pleadings itself it would be clear that a mere suit for declaration was necessary and the prayer for restoration of possession is superfluous for the reason that the defendants who dispossessed the plaintiff are not continuing in possession of the property in dispute on the date when suit was filed. The property in dispute came to be under attachment of the Court, i.e., custodia legis.

2435. It may also be mentioned that the relief no.3 has been added in 1995 after the decision of the Apex Court in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui's case. In our view, if the suit as framed, was already barred by limitation at the time when it was filed, the subsequent addition of prayer therein would not bring it within the period of limitation on the principle that the amendment shall relate back to the date of filing of the suit. This is what has been held in Vishwambhar & Ors. Vs. Laxminarain & Anr. 2001 (6) SCC 163. Mere allowing an amendment would not deprive the defendants from raising the plea of limitation as held by the Apex Court in Ragu Thilak D.John Vs. S. Rayappan & Ors. 2001 (2) SCC 472.

2437. Before concluding on this aspect, we may also refer to the submissions of Sri Siddiqui as contained in paras 3.4, 3.7, 3.8, 3.9 and 3.10 of his written submissions, which pertain to the applicability of Article 120 L.A. 1908. He has not referred to any provision other than Limitation Act where there is any extension of the period of limitation. The suggestion was made during the course of the argument that placement of idols inside the premises in dispute results in obstructing the right of worship of Muslims in general and this is a continuing cause of action. Hence Section 23 would be applicable and suit cannot be held barred by limitation. The submission needs consideration.

2438. It is true that in the paragraph, dealing with cause of action in the plaint, it is alleged by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) that the cause of action arose on 22/23 December, 1949 when some Hindus defiled and desecrated the mosque by placing the idol inside the building under the central dome and thereby interfered and obstructed the right of worship of the plaintiffs. If a suit is filed seeking a relief against obstruction to right of worship, probably it may attract the principle of continuing wrong, as provided in Section 23 of L.A. 1908 in view of law laid down by the Privy Council in Hukum Chand & Ors. Vs. Maharaj Bahadur Singh & Others AIR 1933 Privy Council 193. However, from the relief sought in the plaint, we find that the plaintiffs have not filed the suit seeking injunction for enforcement of right of worship but they have sought a declaration about the nature of the building in dispute and also for delivery of the possession in the capacity of possessory title

holder. Where a declaratory relief is sought, Section 23 L.A. 1908 is inapplicable. Section 23 reads as under:

> "23. In the case of a continuing breach of contract and in the case of a continuing wrong independent of contract, a fresh period of limitation begins to run at every moment of the time during which the breach or the wrong, as the case may be, continues."

2439. One has to make a distinction between a continuing wrong and continuance of the effect of wrong. In the case in hand, the facts pleaded by the plaintiffs show that they were ousted from the disputed premises on 22/23rd December, 1949 and the wrong is complete thereon since thereafter they are totally dispossessed from the property in dispute on the ground that they have no title. Hence, we find it difficult to treat the alleged wrong to be a continuing wrong. In Maulvi Mohammad Fahimal Haq Vs. Jagat Ballav Ghosh AIR 1923 Patna 475 it was held that the principle of Section 23 would have no application to a declaratory suit. In Mohd. Ata Husain Khan Vs. Husain Ali Khan, AIR 1944 Oudh 139 this Court took the view that Section 23 has no application to a suit for declaration of title. It has been held by the Apex Court recently, if the wrongful act causes an injury, which is complete, there is no continuance wrong even though the damages resulting from the act may continue. In Raja Ram Maize Products Vs. Industrial Court of M.P. 2001 (4) SCC 492 (Para 10) the workers demanded that they should be allowed to resume work but it was disallowed. The Court held that the cause of action is complete and it cannot be said to be a continuing wrong.

2440. In Radhakrishna Das Vs. Radha Ramana Swami (supra) the concept of continuing wrong has also been

explained by Orissa High Court and the Coury says:

> "Where the wrongful act produces a state of affairs, every moment's continuance of which is a new tort, a fresh action for the continuance lies in which recovery can be had for damages caused by the continuance of the tort to the date of the writ. And it may be added where the wrong consists in the omission of a legal duty, if the duty is to continue to do something, the omission constitutes a continuing wrong during the time it lasts, ... Where the wrong consists in an act or omission it must not be fleeting or evanescent like a slander uttered, but such as to produce a change in the condition of things which is a continual source of injury. There is a real distinction between continuance of a legal injury and continuance of the injurious effects of a legal injury. Thus, in the case of a bodily injury there is no continuing wrong as the injury ceases though the injurious effect may persist. In other words there must not be a single wrongful act from which injurious consequences follow, but a state of affairs every moment's continuance of which is a new tort. The commonest examples of continuing wrongs are found in interference with water supply and obstructions to rights of way and of light and air. Where adverse possession is claimed on the strength of the erection of a wall there is no continuing wrong within Section 23. The effect may continue but this does not extend the time of limitation ... Where, therefore, trespass amounts to a complete ouster the wrong is not a continuing one and successive actions will not lie on the principle of interest reipublica ut sit finis litium. ... Where a man suffers in respect of one and the same right, whether of the person,

property, or reputation, as the case may be, then if the act is not a continuing act but one over the consequences of which, when done, the doer has no further control, the cause of action is one and after recovery in an action for damage first accruing, no further action can be brought. In a case of trespass, the cause of action accrues when the trespass is committed. When the properties of the deity and the idol itself were taken possession of, the act which causes an encroachment of the plaintiff's right was at once complete and there is no continuance of damage or wrong within the meaning of the statute. The effect of the damage may continue but this does not extend the time of limitation. ... When the wrong amounts to dispossession of the plaintiff then even although it may be a continuing wrong the plaintiff cannot recover possession after 12 years because under Section 28, Limitation Act, he himself has got no right left which he can enforce. The real question is not whether the wrong is continuing or not, but whether the wrong amounts to a complete ouster of the plaintiff that is to his dispossession."

2441. In our view, the Orissa High Court has been right in observing that if a suit is filed for enforcing right on the property as such, the provisions of the Limitation Act would immediately be attracted, but if the suit is filed by a worshipper for enforcing his right of worship not based on any right to property of the idol or to an office, the only scrutiny which is to be made by the Court is whether there is any obstruction or prevention to the plaintiff for exercising his right of worship and nothing more than that. The question of title or ownership of the property would not be considered in such a case and there in such a matter, the plea of limitation may not come into way.

2442. We hereat would also consider the authorities cited by Sri Siddiqui in his written arguments. (Lala) Shiam Lal Vs. Mohamad Ali Asghar Husain AIR 1935 All 174 was a case where a suit for declaration of title was filed which was decreed by both the Courts below. The question raised as to whether Article 120 will apply when initially there was a denial of title and right to sue accrued or if there is any fresh denial at a later point of time which may give a cause of action to maintain suit and the limitation would run therefrom. The Court considered an earlier decision in Akbar Khan v. Turban (1909) 31 All. 9 and said that it is now well established that a mere entry of names does not debar the person against whom the entry is made for all times to come from suing for a declaration and any new invasion of rights which amounts to fresh denial of title confers on the owner in possession a fresh right to sue. The Court said that once right to sue accrue and period of limitation was allowed to lapse, there is no question of renewal of period of limitation applicable to declaratory suits otherwise it shall frustrate the very statue itself. An argument was raised therein that ignoring the earlier cause of action, which accrued in 1895, the right to sue to the plaintiff accrued on 23rd December, 1929, when he got the sale deed executed from Mt. Kaniz Bano and anything which took place prior thereto should not be taken into consideration for the purpose of limitation. This Court held, "I am not prepared to accede to this submission on behalf of the respondent because this would lead to the anomaly that a person who himself might have allowed limitation to run against him confers a right to sue unfettered by the plea of limitation by transferring the property to another. Indeed this would amount to saying that no rule of limitation applies to a declaratory suit where the defendants are interested in denying the plaintiff's right within the meaning of Section 42, Specific Relief Act. As observed by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Balo Vs. Koklan 1930 PC 270, the right to sue accrues when there is an accrual of the right asserted in the suit and its infringement or at least a clear and unequivocal threat to infringe that right by the defendant against whom the suit is instituted. The fresh act must be on the part of the defendants which can be said to amount to a fresh invasion of plaintiff's right or a fresh attempt to cast a cloud on the plaintiff's title and not merely a denial of the plaintiff's title when the plaintiff's attempt to assert his title because this denial would be merely a continuation of the denial made long ago."

2443. This judgment, instead of helping the plaintiff's goes against them. In the case in hand, threat to plaintiff's title, if for the moment we can say so, assuming what the plaintiffs say correct, was infringed or threatened at number of times, and the period was allowed to lapse repeatedly which was more than the statutory period of limitation.

A. As admitted by the plaintiffs, a dividing wall (iron grilled) was constructed separating the disputed structure from the non-Islamic structure, i.e., Ram Chabutra existing on the south-east side so that Muslims may worship in inner courtyard and Hindu may continue their worship in the outer courtyard in 1856-57. This was never assailed by the Muslims claiming an infringement of their right on the property in dispute.

B. When, according to them, the structures like Sita Rasoi, Chhappar (Bhandar) were created between 1955 to 1973, as is evident from the complaint of Mohd. Asgar, in this regard, and despite the orders passed by the authorities on the executive side the same were not removed.

C. In the year, 1934 Hindus tried to damage the building in dispute causing serious damage to the domes and enclosure walls. The building came in the custody of the authorities. Though request was made to permit Muslim to offer namaj therein, but there is no record to show as to whether it was actually allowed and if so when.

D. When the idols were placed under the central dome in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949, and regular daily Puja commenced according to Hindu Shastric Laws ousting Muslims from entering the property in dispute. Assuming that the latest cause of action in respect to the premises in the inner courtyard occurred on 22nd /23rd December, 1949, threatening the very authority and title of the said mosque, the suit ought to be filed in six years.

2444. Kali Prasad Misir (supra) is a judgment of a Division Bench of this Court wherein it was observed that the cause of action for the purpose of limitation actually arose when danger of actual dispossession faced by him in respect to plot no. 655 and this was altogether independent of any cause of action which may have been furnished to the plaintiff by the settlement entries made in the year 1887. For the said purpose this Court relied on an earlier decision in Rahmat-ullah Vs. Shamsuddin 1913 (11) ALJ 877 and Allah Jilai v. Umrao Husain (1914) I.L.R., 36 All., 492. We do not find how this judgment helps the plaintiffs, inasmuch as, after 22/23 December, 1949, no such further incident gaving rise to the plaintiffs to fresh cause of action has happened till the suit was filed. So far as the attachment proceedings by the Magistrate are concerned, they neither dispossessed the plaintiffs from the property in dispute nor otherwise caused any threat to the assumed title or ownership of plaintiffs or to the status of the disputed structure. The demolition of the building in 1992 and entrustment of the property in dispute with a statutory Receiver under Act 1993 would not give any benefit to the plaintiffs in the matter of limitation, inasmuch as, Relief no. 3 has been inserted by the plaintiffs (suit 3) by way of amendment in 1995 only. If the suit filed in 1961 was already barred by limitation, any subsequent amendment and addition of relief would not give a fresh lease of limitation to the plaintiffs. Limitation once starts running shall not stop and shall meet its natural consequence.

2445. Mata Palat (supra) is a Division Bench judgment in respect to a question as to whether leave to withdraw an application for execution of decree to make fresh application is permissible with regard to proceedings after decree. This Court held that Section 375A of C.P.C. 1882 did not apply to an application subsequent to the decree. The reliance placed on the above judgment is wholly misconceived and it has no relevance with the issue in question.

2446. Next is Prajapati Vs. Jot Singh (supra). It was a reference made by the local Government whether a decree of the Commissioner is correct or not. From the judgment it appears that no question of law was framed while making reference but the Court found that since the decree of the Commissioner proceeds merely on the point of limitation hence the reference was entertained and answered. This Court approving the judgment in Kali Prasad (Supra) held that a fresh cause of action has arisen to plaintiff to bring a suit, even though a prior cause of action had arisen to him beyond the period of six years of limitation laid down by Art. 120. No issue pertaining to limitation was considered therein and we find no relevance of the said judgment to the present dispute.

2447. Jagat Mohan Nath Sah Deo (surpa) is a decision pertaining to rights of tenent to sub-soil and we find nothing therein which may have any relevance to the case in hand.

2448. Suryanarayana (supra) is a single Judge decision holding that entry in the record of rights affords a fresh cause of action to the plaintiffs for filing a declaratory suit. If a suit is brought within six years from such date, it is not barred by limitation under Article 120 of the Limitation Act. The learned Single Judge followed an earlier decision in Anantharazu Vs. narayanarazu 1913 (36) Mad. 383. However, we find that the view taken in the above case is not consistent with the view of Allahabad High Court which was taken as long back in 1909 in Akbar Khan (Supra) followed in (Lala) Shiam Lal (Supra) and thereafter consistently. Even otherwise, it is not the case of the plaintiffs (Suit-4) that the cause of action record afresh after 22nd December, 1949 and in any case before six years before filing of suit in December, 1961. Therefore, also the above decision of Madras High Court does not help the plaintiffs.

2449. Muktakeshi Patrani & Ors. Vs. Midnapur Zamindari Co. Ltd. AIR 1935 Patna 33 is a Division Bench judgment stating that for a suit for a declaration and injunction, the period of limitation is six years from the date of the invasion of the plaintiff's right. As long as the title of plaintiff is not lost by adverse possession of the defendant, each invasion gives him a fresh cause of action. Again the position is same since there is no averment in the plaint as to how a fresh cause of action accrued to the plaintiffs and that too within six years from the date of filing of the suit, no credence can be lend to the plaintiffs with the support of the said judgment.

2450. Shankarrao Sitaramji Satpute & Ors. Vs. Annapurnabai AIR 1961 Bombay 266 again is a Division Bench decision which also does not help the plaintiffs. This is evident from para 32 of the judgment which says:

> "This disposes of the main point in the case. The next question to be considered is that of limitation. Now, according to Mr. Bobde, the learned Judge, was wrong in holding that the provisions of Sec. 28 of the Limitation Act extinguished the Plaintiff's right only with respect to two fields and not the remaining. It seems to us that the learned Judge of the Court below was wrong even in respect of those two fields also and that the Plaintiff's claim with regard to them should have been decreed, that is to say, both these fields should have been included int he list of property available for partition. In so far as the nine fields are concerned, it is not disputed that prior to the commencement of the proceedings under Sec. 145 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, they were being cultivated by Parasram who was a lessee from Gopalrao. When Gopalrao gave the lease, he was the sole surviving member in the family and as such he was in a position to grant the lease. In setion 145 proceedings, the learned Magistrate confirmed the possession of Parasram with respect to these fields. Now Parasram is not a party to the suit and the Plaintiff is not claiming any possession from him. The possession of Parasram would enure to the benefit of the members of the family who had interest in that property. There was no order by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate that only the Defendants Nos. 1 to 4 would be deemed to be in possession of the property or that Punjabrao was in possession of the property on their behalf. In these circumstances, the learned Judge of the Court below was right in holding that the Plaintiff's suit in respect of those fields was not barred."

2451. Nata Padhan & Ors. Vs. Banchha Baral & Ors. AIR 1968 Orissa 36 does not have any implication on any of the issue and help the plaintiffs in any manner. The learned Single Judge Orissa High Court found that during the pendency of suit before the Revenue Court, proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. was initiated and hence held that if the possession was given by the Magistrate pursuant to the final order passed under Section 145 Cr.P.C. that will have no impact since it is always open to the Civil Court to take a different view with respect to title and ownership and it is the order of the Civil Court which is ultimately prevail. It also held that no fresh suit is necessary to be filed to seek possession challenging the order of the Magistrate. We need not make any comment on these proposition for the reason that they have no relevance with the facts and dispute involved in the present case and therefore, this judgment also has no application.

2452. We are clearly of the view that suit in question is barred by limitation under Article 120 of the L.A. 1908.

2453. Issue no.3 (Suit-4) therefore, is liable to be answered in negative. However, before answering it finally, we also intend to test it on the anvil of Article 142 in the light of the oral evidence produced by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) as to whether

2454. In order to attract Article 142 what is necessary is that the plaintiffs were in possession of the property in dispute but dispossessed or discontinued the possession within 12 years within the date of filing of the suit by the defendants. The point in essence whether the suit has been filed within 12 years from the date, the plaintiffs is so dispossessed or discontinued of possession of the property in dispute.

2455. The submission of Sri Iyer, Senior Advocate, Sri P.N. Mishra and Sri M.M. Pandey, Advocates is that since 1934 no namaz has been offered in the inner courtyard or inside the alleged mosque and, therefore, the suit is hopelessly barred by limitation. In the alternative it is submitted that the last prayer was offered by the plaintiffs in the disputed premisses on 16.12.1949. The suit having been filed on 18.12.1961, it is beyond the period of 12 years and, therefore, is barred by limitation. They submitted that initially the plaintiffs, some of whom are also defendants in Suit-3 have pleaded that the last prayer was offered in the alleged mosque on 16.12.1949 but subsequently they took a contrary stand in the plaint (Suit-4) filed much after the date of filing their written statement in Suit-1 and Suit-3 and also in Suit-5. The admission of the plaintiffs in the written statement with respect to the date of offering Namaz is binding. The subsequent change in the stand needs to be ignored. In these circumstances, they submit that even if Article 142 would apply, Suit-4 is barred by limitation.

2456. Per contra Sri Jilani and Sri Siddiqui, Advocates submitted that 16.12.1949 was mentioned as the last Friday prayer but so far as the daily prayer is concerned it was continued and last offered on 22.12.1949. Several witnesses

examined by plaintiff (Suit-4) have deposed in its favour.

2457. The burden to prove initially lie upon the plaintiff to bring in the suit within the period of limitation.

2458. In Shyam Sunder Prasad (Supra) the Court also considered the question of burden of proof and observed:

> "4. The question, therefore, is on whom the burden of proof lies in a suit based on title and for possession. In view of Article 142 of the old Act, the burden, undoubtedly, is on the plaintiff-appellant to prove that he has title to and has been in possession and he was dispossessed and discontinued his possession within 12 years from the date of the filing of the suit. . . . . The defendant did not come to the court to establish his adverse possession by prescription. The burden of proof, therefore, does not rest on him. It is, therefore, for the plaintiff/appellant to prove that not only he had title to the plaint schedule property but also he had possession within 12 years and he was dispossessed or discontinued his possession within the period of limitation prescribed under Article 142. The burden, therefore, is always on him to prove that he had possession within 12 years from the date of the filing of the suit and he has title to the property."

2459. Let us examine first, how the right/interest in the disputed premises has been claimed by the plaintiff to be exercised and up to what time, in order to bring their suit within limitation vis a vis Articles 142.

2460. PW-1, Mohd. Hashim son of Karim Baksh is himself plaintiff no. 7 in Suit-4. He deposed in his examination-in-chief on 24.07.1996:

> ''पहली बार 1938 में बाबरी मस्जिद में नमाज पढ़ने गये थे।. . . . .

"For the first time I went to offer namaz at the Babari mosque in 1938. . . . . Namaz used to be offered five times at the Babari mosque. I have sometimes offered namaz five times and have also offered Jumma and Taravi namaz.. . . . . I offered the last namaz on 22nd December, 1949." (E.T.C)

2461. He also said that at that time Maulvi Abdul Gaffar was Imam and one Ismail was Moazzim of the said mosque. His age is 75 years in July, 1996, meaning thereby his year of birth comes to 1921. The dispute arises in December, 1949 and after more than 45 years the witness at the age of 75 could categorically recollect that he offered Namaj for the first time in 1938 but when asked about the month or the season, he could not tell and in fact gave interesting reply that had it be known to him that this would be necessary for deposing statement in the dispute he would have noted it down and kept in memory. On page 19, PW1 said:

''हमें यह नहीं मालूम कि किस मौसम में या किस माह में हम पहली बार बाबरी मस्जिद में नमाज पढ़ने गये। 1938 में जब पहली बार हम नमाज पढ़ने गये तो हम अकेले गये। हमारा घर मस्जिद के करीब था।''(पेज 19)

"I do not know in which season or in which month I went to offer namaz at the Babari mosque for the first time. In 1938, I was alone when I had gone to offer namaz for the first time. Our house is near the mosque." (E.T.C) 2462. Then on page 21 he says that he used to visit disputed building for Namaj hundreds of times in a year but does not remember name of anyone who offered Namaj in the

said building alongwith him though he admits that some persons of his locality used to come. He could also recollect that in 1938 when he offered Namaj for the first time in the disputed building, about 15-20 persons were there. In order to test the veracity of the statement pertaining to alleged visit to the mosque for hundreds of times, he was cross-examined about the topography of the building and site. On page 23-24 he said:

''विवादित मस्जिद के दो भाग हैं एक अन्दरूनी एक बाहरी। बाहर की दीवार पर दो फाटक हैं एक पूरब की तरफ एक उत्तर की तरफ थे। अन्दरी भाग में लोहे के जंगले लगे हैं उस जंगले की दिवार में तीन दरवाजे हैं। उसमें एक दरवाजा उत्तर की तरफ था। वह विवादित स्थल के बाहरी तरफ जो दरवाजा है उसी के सामने अन्दर वाले बंगले में ही दरवाजा था। यह अन्दरूनी भाग वाला दरवाजा लोहे की सरिया का बना हुआ था। उत्तरी भाग में जो बाहरी दीवार पर दरवाजा था वह लकड़ी का था। पूरब की तरफ कोई फाटक नहीं था। अपने होश से पूरब की तरफ दरवाजा न होने की बात देख रहा हूँ। पूरब वाले दरवाजे की ऊँचान हमसे तीन फुट ऊँचा थी। स्वयं कहा उस पर दोनों तरफ अल्लाह लिखा है।..... पूरब के बाहरी दरवाजे से दक्षिण की तरफ जो चबूतरा है वह 17 x 21 फिट है। इसकी ऊँचाई एक मीटर है। इसके ऊपर छपपर पड़ा है।.....इस चबूतरे पर हिन्दू देवताओं की मूर्ति आने वालो को दिखायी नहीं देती।'' (पेज 23–24)

''The disputed mosque has two portions – interior and exterior. The outside wall has two gates of which one was towards the east and the other towards the north. The inside portion has iron-made windows and the wall with those windows has three gates. Of them one gate lay towards the north. Facing the outside gate of the disputed site, the inside bungalow itself had a wall. This inside gate was made of iron rods. The gate at the outer wall located in the northern portion, was made of wood. There was no gate towards the east. With all my understanding, I am looking at there being no gate towards the east. The eastern gate was 3 feet higher than me. (Himself stated) The word 'Allah' is written on both of its sides. . . . . Towards the south of the outside gate in the east lies a chabutra measuring 17x24 feet. Its height is 1 metre. It has a thatched roofing. . . . . Idols of Hindu deities on this chabutra are not visible to visitors." (E.T.C.)

2463. His statement that there are three doors in the internal dividing wall made of iron angles etc. and that no gate was there on the eastern site, falsifies his knowledge about the topography of the disputed building. On page 33 he says that he offered Isha Namaj on 22.12.1949 in the night at 8.30 pm. Thereafter on page 54 he clarified that Friday Namaj was offered on 16.12.1949 but thereafter five times prayer continued till the night of 22.12.1949.

2464. On page 64 he said:

"22 दिसम्बर 1949 से पहले जायदाद मुतदाविया में इस्माइल की है ड्यूटी हर वक्त वहां रहती थी लेकिन उसकी रिहाइश वहां नहीं थी। इस जायदाद में रिहाइश किसी की नहीं थी। इस्माइल के अलावा इस जायदाद की देखभाल और कोई नहीं करता था सिर्फ इस्माइल को ही मुतवल्ली ने नियुक्त किया हुआ था।" (पेज 64)

"Prior to 22nd December, 1949, Ismail was always on duty at the disputed property but he had no residential facility there. Nobody had any residential facility at this property. Except for Ismail, nobody else took care of this property. Mutvalli had appointed only Ismail for this purpose." (E.T.C.)

2465. He also confirmed that there was no place for sleeping in the disputed building on page 70:

"इस जायदाद में यानी विवादित जायदाद में सोने की कोई जगह नहीं थी कोई मुसाफिर यहॉ बसेरा नहीं करता था।" (पेज 70)

www.vadaprativada.com

"This property, that is, the disputed property, had no place for sleeping and no tourist stayed there."(E.T.C.)

2466. On page 174 PW 1 says about placement of lock by Zahur Ahmad in the month of November, i.e., 22.11.1949 at the instance of police who had apprehension of danger. The witness is so simple that in a long cross-examination when he find some difficulty, on page 177, on 27.08.1996, he says:

''हमारे वकील साहब को मालूम होगा कि उस मुकदमें का पता हमें कब लगा। मुझे याद नहीं कि इस बाबत 21 अगस्त, 1996 को मैने अपना बयान वकील साहब के बताने पर या अपनी निजी सूझबूझ या जानकारी से दिया।'' (पेज 177)

"Our counsel must be in the know of the time when we had come to know of this case. I do not recall whether I gave statement in this regard on 21st August, 1996 on being tutored by the counsel or on my own understanding or knowledge." (E.T.C.)

2467. Then ultimately on page 186 (the cross-examination recorded on 29.08.1996) he admits about his weak memory and said:

''यह ठीक है कि उम्र की वजह से मेरी याददाश्त कमजोर हो गई है, यह बातें वकील साहब को याद होंगी।'' (पेज 186)

"It is true that my memory has weakened due to age. These points must be in the memory of the learned counsel." (E.T.C.)

2468. One thing he consistently said that he offered Namaj for the first time in the disputed building in 1938 and this he reiterated on page 190 also. There is a serious dispute about the age of PW-1. He admits to have filed a writ petition before this Court in 1986 where in the affidavit he mentioned his age as 55 years. If that is taken to be correct, his year of birth comes to 1931. He claims to have studied up to Class-5 and on page 66

says that he passed class 1 at the age of 8-9 and regularly passed subsequent classes within five years. Thereafter he studied Arabic from Imam Saheb. He admits that in 1949 he was studying. These facts are self speaking and, therefore, we find it difficult to believe the statement of PW 1 that he offered Namaj for the first time in the disputed building in 1938 and continuously thereafter or that he offered last prayer in the said building on 22.12.1949 in the evening.

2469. PW-2 Hazi Mahboob Ahmad son of Hazi Feku commenced his statement on 27.09.1996. He has disclosed his age as 58 years, meaning thereby his year of birth comes to 1938 but he has admitted to have passed High School and B.A. and on page 3 of the statement he admits that his year of birth in his High School certificate is mentioned as 1944 and he passed High School in 1961. He has also stated on page 3 that at the time of passing High School his age was 21 years since he took two years in the passing of High School but if that is also taken to be correct his year of birth would come to 1940 and not 1936. On page 11 he says:

> "मैंने आठ साल की उम्र में होश संभाल लिया था। जब मैंने होश संभाला तो उस वक्त तक मुतदाविया इमारत कुर्क नहीं हुई थी।" (पेज 11)
> "At the age of 8 years I came of age. When I came of age, the disputed building was not attached." (E.T.C.)

2470. His father Hazi Feku was defendant no. 3 in Suit-1 and defendant no. 6 in Suit-3. Since he has died, in Suit-1 there is no substitution but in Suit-3, PW 2 has been impleaded as defendant no. 6/1. On the one hand he has said in his examination-in-chief to have offered Namaj for hundreds of times in the disputed building, i.e., Friday Namaj as well as five times Namaj and and last one was on 22.12.1949. In view of his

admitted age mentioned in the High School certificate, i.e., 1944 it is unbelievable that in 1949 when he was just about 5 years of age had been offering Namaj and that too he had earlier offered for hundreds of times. On page 19 he says:

''जब मैंने होश संभाला तो मैं देखता था कि विवादित जायदाद की तरफ लोग आते जाते थे, लेकिन मैं उस रास्ते से ज्यादा नहीं जाता था, इसलिए मैं नहीं कह सकता कि आमतौर पर आने–जाने वालों पर कोई रूकावट थी या नहीं।. . . .जब हमने होश संभाला तो उसके बाद हम विवादित जायदाद की तरफ कभी गये ही नहीं, क्योंकि वहॉ पर बुत रख दिया गया था और मुसलमान डर की वजह से वहॉ जाते ही नहीं थे।'' (पेज 19)

''When I came of age, I used to see that people frequented the disputed property but I did not go by that way most of the time, hence, I can not say whether or not there was any bar on to-and-fro movements of visitors. . . After coming of age I certainly never went to the disputed property, because idol had been installed there and the Muslims did not go there out of fear.'' (E.T.C.)

2471. If he is correct in saying that he used to visit the disputed building for hundred times there was no occasion for him to say that he did not travel the way towards disputed property for most of the time and after coming to the age of understanding he did not go since idols were placed therein. The statement of PW 2, is unrealistic and lack trustworthiness.

2472. PW3, Farooq Ahmad has said that he used to offer Namaj in the disputed building, i.e., Babri Masjid. He offered Friday prayer. Last prayer was offered in this building by him in December, 1949. He went after offering Isha Namaj. This was the end of December, 1949. This statement was given by PW 3 on 07.10.1996 disclosing his age as 90 years, meaning thereby he claims his year of birth as 1906. However, he was confronted with an application filed on his behalf in Suit-4 in the year 1990,

i.e., Application No. 42-O of 1990 wherein mentioned his age in the affidavit as 65 years. He admitted to have put in his thumb impression on the said affidavit and says:

> ''वकील साहब ने गवाह का ध्यान पेपर नं0 101–सी जो कि दरख्वास्त 42–ओ 90 परदावा ओ0 एस0 नं0 4/89 की ओर दिलाया दस्तावेज देखकर गवान ने कहा मैंने हलफनामा देख लिया है इस पर मेरा निषान अंगूठा है। लेकिन दस्तखत मेरे नहीं है क्योंकि कि यह दस्तखत हिन्दी में है जब कि मैं उर्दू में दस्तखत करता हूँ। इसमें मेरी उम्र 65 साल लिखी है लेकिन यह उम्र मैंने नहीं बतलाई यह उम्र मैंने वैसे ही अंदाजे से लिखवा दी थी। '' (पेज 19)
>
> ''The learned counsel drew the attention of witness towards paper no. 101-C, which is Application 42-O/90 in OS no. 4/89. After looking at the document, the witness stated that I have seen the affidavit and it bears my thumb impression. However, the signature is not mine because the signature is in Hindi and I sign in Urdu. My age is mentioned as 65 years in it*, but this age was not given by me.* I had got this age mentioned casually by guess work*.'' (E.T.C.)*

2473. On page 70 he was confronted with another application which he filed on 18.03.1986 mentioning his age in the affidavit as 60 years. On page 70 he said:

> *''*मैंने अपने हलफनामें में अपनी उम्र का अन्दाजा देकर 60 लिखवाई *थी। इस वक्त मेरी उम्र अन्दाजन 90 साल है। मेरी उम्र 90 साल के करीब होने वाली बात सही है, हलफनामें में उम्र अन्दाजे से वकील साहब ने लिखवा दी होगी। हमारी दरख्वास्तें 1986 वाली वहॉ से खारिज हो गई थीं। . . . . .*मुझे ख्याल नहीं क्योंकि पुरानी बात हो चुकी है कि 1949 वाली मेरी वह दरख्वास्त मन्जूर हुई या नहीं।'' (पेज 70)
> *''*I had got my age mentioned as 60 years in the affidavit by guess work. At that time I was aged about 90 years. The fact about my age being around 90 years, is

www.vadaprativada.com

correct. The age in affidavit must have been mentioned by the advocate out of guess." (E.T.C.)

2474. He admits to have filed a suit against his cousins and brothers, i.e., Suit No. 138 of 1993 and therein he mentioned his age as 67 years in 1993. When confronted, he did not deny but says that he does not remember. On page 91 he says:

''यह भी ठीक है कि जमीन–जायदाद की बाबत मैंने अपने भाई–भतीजों पर और उन लोगों ने मुझ पर कई मुकदमें किये हुए है। . . . . .उसका मुकदमा नं0 138/93 है। मुझे ख्याल नहीं है कि मैंने उस मुकदमा में अपनी उम्र 67 साल लिखाई हो। . . . . . मुझे याद नहीं कि उस दरख्वास्त में मैंने अपनी उम्र 70 साल लिखाई हो।'' (पेज 91)

"It is also true that I have filed cases against my brother-nephews regarding land-property and they have also filed many cases against me. . . . . .It is case no. 138/93. I do not remember that I have mentioned my age as 67 years in it. ..... I do not remember that I had mentioned my age as 70 years in that application." (E.T.C)

2475. He does not understand the dates and admits it on page 71.

''मुझे तारीखों की मालूम नहीं।'' (Page 76)

2476. Then ultimately he also admits of his weak memory on page 101:

''यह बात सही है कि उम्र की वजह से मेरी यादष्त कमजोर हो चुकी है। '' (पेज 111)

"It is true that my memory has grown weak on account of age. " (E.T.C.)

2477. What we actually notice is that mainly he was produced to depose statement about putting lock in the disputed building in the night of 22.12.1949 and in reference thereto in a casual way he has said about offering of Namaj also. His statement about placement of lock is also self contradictory as shown below:

''मै ताला लेकर उनके साथ गया था और ताला लगाकर जब वापस आया तो वह मुझे मेरे वालिद के हवाले करके गये थे।. . . . . ताला बंद करने के लिए मुझे दरोगा साहब ने हिदायत दी थी।

उत्तरः– नहीं बन्द होता था।'' (पेज 12)

"I had gone with him with a lock and on return after putting the lock, he went back after giving me in the custody of my father. . . . . .. The inspector had instructed me to put the lock.

Question:- When the inspector asked to put the lock, does it mean that prior to it the disputed property was not locked?

Answer:- It was not locked." (E.T.C)

"Locks were not put at the mosque prior to that day. When I put the locks, the Muazzim was inside the mosque. He was in the courtyard gate and not in the inner part. He was in the outer courtyard. When I went to put the locks, the Muazzim was sleeping under the thatched roof. I did not wake him up. I returned home after putting the lock and the Muazzim kept sleeping peacefully."(E.T.C)

''मुझे वह तारीख याद नहीं लेकिन जुम्मे रात का दिन था जब दरोगा जी ने हमारे वालिद को ताला लगाने के लिए कहा था। हम दरोगा जी के साथ चले गये और ताला लगा दिया। वापसी पर आकर चाबी अपने वालिद को दे दी थी। यही ताले अदालत के हुकुम से 1986 में खोले गये। बीच में मुतवातिर ताला लगा रहा।'' (Page 100)

"I do not remember the date, but it was Jumme Raat, when the inspector had asked my father to put the locks. I had gone with the inspector and put the locks. After return home, I gave the keys to my father. These very locks were opened in 1986 by order of court. In meantime, it remained continuously locked." (E.T.C)

2478. On page 87 PW 3 says that when he visited the disputed building to place lock in the night of 22.12.1949 Moazzim was inside the mosque and was sleeping under thatched roof (Chappar) in the outer courtyard but this stand contradicted the statement of PW 1 where he said that there was no place for sleeping or studying in the disputed building. With respect to thatched roof in the outer courtyard, PW 1 on page 31/32 said:

''पूर्वी फाटक से अन्दर आने पर बाहरी दीवाल के अन्दर उत्तर

"On coming inside through the eastern gate there was a spacious shed towards the north inside the outside wall. I cannot tell whether it was a store house or not. This long shed was beneath the neem tree. People lived in the shed but I do not know who they were. Those who lived under this shed were Hindus, not Muslims.. . . . . The Parikrama (circumambulation), which was built towards the west of the attached place, was for the repair of the wall, not for parikrama. . . . . Inside the exterior wall of the attached property were two sheds and a chabutra (rectangular terrace). Another chabutra was adjacent to the eastern wall and was beneath the neem tree." (E.T.C.)

2479. PW1 on page 174 has said that on 22.11.1949 Zahur Ahmad had put a lock.

''नवम्बर के महीने में 22 नवम्बर 1949 को ताला जहूर अहमद ने लगाया था , उसने ताला पुलिस के कहने पर लगाया था ,पुलिस को खतरे का एहसास था '' (पेज 174)

"On the 22nd of November, 1949 Jahoor Ahmad had put a lock. He had put the lock at the behest of the police. The police had the apprehension of danger." (E.T.C.)

2480. This contradiction could not be explained by learned counsel for the plaintiffs and, therefore, we find difficult to believe the statement of PW 3 also about offering of Namaj in

2481. PW 4, Mohd. Yaseen has confined his statement about offering of Namaj on Friday and says that last time he offered Namaj in the disputed building about 47 years ago and since in the night of 22/23.12.1949 idols were placed therein, Namaj could not be offered on 23.12.1949. On page 1 he says:

''मैं जुम्मे की नमाज उसमें बराबर पढ़ता था। जुम्में के अलावा मैंने उसमें और कोई नमाज नहीं पढ़ी। आखिरी बार मैंने उसमें जुम्मे की नमाज आज से तकरीबन 47 साल पहले पढ़ी थी। 22/23 दिसम्बर 1949 की रात को उसमें मूर्ति रख दी गयी थी। इसलिए नमाज पढ़ना रूक गया।'' (पेज 1)

"I consistently offered Jumma namaz (Fridays' congregational prayers) thereat. Except for Jumma namaz, I did not offer any other prayer thereat. I, for the last time, offered Jumma namaz thereat nearly 47 years back. The idol was placed therein on the intervening night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949. This was the reason why the offering of the namaz came to an end." (E.T.C.)

2482. PW 4 has deposed his age as 66 years on 29.10.1996 when his examination commenced which takes his year of birth to 1930. On page 51 he says that prior to the incident of 1949 the Babari mosque was never locked. However on page 20, 21, 23 and 59 regarding Namaj he says:

''इस मस्जिद में जब मैं नमाज पढ़ने जाता था तो कम से कम 4–5 सौ आदमी तो हुआ ही करते थे।'' (Page 20)

"When I used to go to offer namaz at this mosque, there were at least 4-5 hundred people over there."(E.T.C)

''जिस रोज इस मस्जिद में नमाज पढ़ना बन्द हो गया उससे पिछले जुम्मे को भी हाषिम मियॉ मुझे इस मस्जिद में नमाज पर मिले थे और हमने एक–दूसरे की खैरियत पूछीं थी।'' (Page 21)

2483. When in the cross-examination several questions were asked about the internal topography etc. he said on page 59:

www.vadaprativada.com

"My memory is now feeble" (E.T.C.)

2484. When his statement was found contradictory to the statement of PW 1 who is plaintiff no. 7 in Suit-4 he justified himself by stating that PW 1 must have given wrong statement as is evident from the following:

*"अगर हाशिम मियां ने कोई ऐसा बयान दिया हो कि उस छप्पर के नीचे पुजारी लोग बैठते थे तो उनका कहना गलत है।

अगर हाजी महबूब ने ऐसा कुछ कहा है कि इस जगह को एक तरफ से पिछले 15–20 दिनों से बैरागियों ने घेरा हुआ था तो उनका कहना गलत है।" (पेज 48)*

"If Mr. Hashim has given any such statement that If Hazi Mahboob has stated that the recluses had surrounded this place from one side for last 15-20 days, then his statement is wrong*." (E.T.C)*

"1949 के हादसे तक जकी साहब मुतवल्ली थे उनके बाद ही जव्वाद साहब मुतवल्ली बने थे। . . .फारूख साहब का अगर ऐसा कुछ कहना है कि इस हादसे के वक्त मस्जिद का इंतजाम जहूर साहब करते थे तो इस बात की सही या गलत होने की जिम्मेदारी उनकी है। मैं तो सिर्फ यह जानता हूं कि मस्जिद का अंतजाम जकी साहब करते थे।"(Page 50)

"Mr. Zaki was the Mutwalli till the incident of 1949. Mr. Javvad became Mutwalli after him. . . . . If Mr. Farooq has made any such statement that Mr. Zahoor used to manage the mosque at time of the incident, then the responsibility for its correctness or incorrectness lies with him. I know only this much that the mosque was managed by Mr. Zaki."(E.T.C)

"अगर हाषिम मियां ने कोई ऐसा बयान दिया हो कि उन्होंने सिलाई का काम सिर्फ 1966 से 1976 तक किया है तो यह उनकी गलत बयानी है।" (Page 51)

"If Mr. Hashim has given a statement that he had carried out tailoring work only between 1966 to 1976, then it is his wrong statement."(E.T.C)

2485. This is really surprising that after almost 47 years from the date of dispute the PW 4 though could recollect that he offered Friday prayer regularly in the disputed building and that too he started at the age of 8 but when the internal topography sought to be enquired in cross-examination by placing before him the photographs of the disputed building, he finds it difficult in identifying the same and try to justify by taking recourse to his weak memory. The extent of his memory may be seen from what he has said on page 59:

''जब हिन्दुस्तान आजाद हुआ तब की मुझे होष है। उस वक्त मैं 11–12 साल का था (फिर कहा कि मैं 17 साल था)'' (पेज 59)

"I have remembrance of the time of independence of India. I was aged 11-12 years at that time (then stated that I was 17 years old)." (E.T.C)

2486. The veracity of statement can also be examined from what he has said on page 6:

''मैंने जो मकान मस्जिद के साथ लगता हुआ बनाया है इसकी जमीन रियासत अयोध्या से ली थी। जब मैंने यह जमीन ली उस वक्त मेरी उम्र 40–45 साल के करीब थी। मैंने यह जमीन माल गुजारी पर ली थी। मैंने इस बात के बाबत विकास प्राधिकरण के पास भी इन्दराज दर्ज करा दिया था, वहां से नक्शा पास होता है। मैंने यह मकान 1966 में बनवाया था उसके 2 साल बाद इस पर नगरमहापालिका का टैक्स लग गया था। मुझे अब याद नहीं कि जमीन लेने के कितने दिन बाद मैंने मकान बनवाया था, गालिबन 10–12 साल तो हो ही गये होंगें जमीन लेने और मकान बनवाने के बीच में।'' (पेज 6)

"The house built by me adjacent to the mosque, exists over the land obtained from Ayodhya Estate. When I got this land, I was aged about 40-45 years. I had taken this land on rent. I had also got an entry in this respect entered in the records of the Development Authority, from where map is approved. I had built this house in 1966. Municipal tax came to be imposed in connection with the same, two years later. As of now I do not remember after how many years of obtaining this land, I had built the house. There might have been an intervening period of nearly 10-12 years between the obtaining of land and the

2487. His year of birth comes to 1930. If he acquired land when he was 40-45 years old, the question of construction of house on the said land in 1966 does not arise particularly when he says that there was a gap of 10 to 12 years between acquiring of land and construction of house.

2488. PW 5, Abdul Rahman son of Saiuddin has deposed to have pronounced Holy Quran in the disputed building in 1945 and 1946. During the period he stayed at Ayodhya for pronouncing Holy Quran in Ramzan Taravi, he used to offer Namaj in the disputed building. He is not a local resident of Ayodhya but of Ibrahimpur, Pargana Mangalasi, District Faizabad. He has given his age 71 years on 05.11.1996 when his examination commenced. It means that his year of birth is 1925. In 1945-46, therefore, he must be of 20-21 years. He does not remember the age of his father at the time of death as well as his own age at the time of death of his mother. He admits of his marriage at the age of about 22 years but neither could tell the date when he was conferred with the certificate and Dastarbandi nor even the age or date of birth of his children.

"5-6 years after I started understanding things, I started my education. My father was at that time alive. I cannot correctly tell how long after my having come of age, he died. I guess it to be 10-15 years.

I have had my schooling in Lucknow also. I cannot orally tell in which year I studied in Lucknow. . . . . I got schooling at Madarsa Aaliya Phurkania at Chowk in Lucknow. . . . . .No form had been filled up for admission to the Lucknow school also; rather, my maternal uncle had gone there to get me admitted." (E.T.C.)

2489. Further about his visit at Ayodhya on page 27 and 31-32 he has said:

''जब मैं पहली बार अयोध्या कुरान शरीफ सुनाने गया तो अंग्रेजों की हुकूमत थी। इन दो दफे के इलावा यानि कि जब मैं इन 12–12 दिनों के लिए कुरान शरीफ सुनाने अयोध्या गया था मैं कभी बाबरी मस्जिद में नहीं गया। (खुद कहा कि मैं एक बार बहराइच गया था तो रास्ते में एक वक्त की नमाज मैंने बाबरी मस्जिद में भी पढ़ी थी।)उस समय सरयू दरिया में स्टीमर चलता था। बारिश के दिन थे। ये वाक्या 1947 में आजादी मिलने से पहले का था। मैं जब कुरान शरीफ वहॉ सुनाकर आया तो उसके दो–चार महीने बाद ही यह मौका आया था। . . . . शाम हो गयी थी मैंने नमाज या तो मगरिब की पढ़ी थी या असिर की पढ़ी थी। अब तक जो मुझे याद है यह नमाज मगरिब की नहीं थी। जिस वक्त मैंने नमाज पढ़ी उस वक्त वहॉ पर केवल मोअज्जिम थे जो अजान दिया करते थे। . . . .हम स्टीमर में बैठकर रात को गए थे। यह कहना गलत है कि शाम के बाद स्टीमर सेवाएं बन्द हो जाती हों।'' (पेज 27)

(Stated on his own) Once, on my way to Bahraich I had offered namaz one time at the Babri mosque. At that time, steamer was in use in the stream of the river Saryu. Those were rainy days. This episode preceded 1947 when independence was achieved. I had this chance only 2-4 months after I had returned from there after having recited the holy Quran. . . . . It was evening time; I had offered namaz, whether 'Magrib' or 'Asir'. As far as I remember, it was not 'Magrib' namaz. The moment I offered namaz, only muazzim was present there, who used to give 'Azan' calls. . . . . I had gone to Bahraich in a steamer during the night time. It is wrong to say that steamer services used to be in operational after evenings." "जब मैं अयोध्या पहली बार कुरान शरीफ सुनाने गया तो रमजान के महीने की पहली तारीख थी। (खुद कहा कि 29 शाबान को हम वहां पहुॅच जाते थे अगर चांद वहॉ नजर आ जाता तो वहां पढ़ा देते थे उसी रात को) मुझे सही याद नहीं कि मैं किस खास रोज (फिर कहा कि मुझे याद है कि मैं शाबान की 29 तारीख को अयोध्या पहुॅच गया था।) जब मैं अयोध्या पहुॅचा और वहां से वापस हुआ तो इस वक्फे में कितने जुम्मे पड़े मैं सही नहीं बता सकता लेकिन एक जुम्मा तो यकीनन आया था। यही तरीका अयोध्या आने–जाने का दूसरे साल भी रहा था। . . . .हो सकता है कि हमने वहां एक भी जुम्मा न किया हो और अपने घर चले आए हों लेकिन एक जुम्मा तो किया था। . . . . हमें याद नहीं है कि इस नमाज में मो0 हाशिम हाजी फेंकू, हाजी फायक या कयामत अली साहब थे या नहीं लेकिन हाजी फेंकू जरूर थे।" (पेज 31–32)

"When I for the first time went to recite the holy Quran at Ayodhya, it was the first day of the Ramzan month. (Stated on his own that we had reached there on 29th. When the moon was sighted there, we used to recite it that very night.) I do not correctly remember the particular day. (Further stated) I remember that I went to Ayodhya on 29th of the lunar month. I cannot tell how many Fridays intervened between the day I reached Ayodhya and the day I returned from there. But one Friday had certainly intervened. This was the very way in which we visited the Ayodhya the next year also. We may not have performed even a single Jumma and may have come back home; but one Jumma was certainly performed. . . . . We do not remember whether Mohammad Hashim, Hazi Pheku, Hazi Fayak or Qayamat Ali were present at this namaz or not, but Hazi Pheku certainly attended it." (E.T.C.)

2490. He claims to be related with Hazi Feku and said that he was invited for reading of Holy Quran at Ayodhya by Hazi Feku (i.e., father of PW 2) (at page 21-22).

2491. PW 6, Mohd. Unus Siddiqi son of Late Hafij Ahmad, a Pleader enrolled at Lucknow on 09.07.1955. He did his High School in 1948 and Intermediate in 1950 from Faizabad and thereafter he went to Lucknow for Graduation and to Aligarh for Post-Graduation and Law degree. He was earlier counsel of the plaintiffs in the suit but has stopped appearing since 1965. He claims to have offered Namaz in the disputed building for the first time at the age of 12-13 years in Shab-e-barat and thereafter every year during Shaberat except once when he offered Namaz in day time, i.e., on the Friday before placement of idols therein. His statement commenced on 29.11.1996 when he was 63 years of age meaning thereby his year of birth comes to 1933. In his cross-examination he admits that he is connected with this case since 1961. In his cross-examination on page 8 he admits his date of birth mentioned in the High School certificate as 27.08.1932. He visited the disputed building as Survey Commission in 1991 though the nature of this commission is not clear. Some part of his statement may be noticed as under:

''मैं अयोध्या के कुछ मोहल्लों को जानता हूं सभी को नहीं।

1957 और 1965 के बीच मुझे इस जायदाद के बाबत मालूम हुआ था कि यह कब और किसने बनवाई थी। मैं नहीं बता पाऊॅगा कि बुनियादी तौर पर इस जायदाद का कितना रकबा था।'' (पेज 9)

''I know some of the localities of Ayodhya, but not all of them.

''When I went there during nights, people were often seen sleeping in sheds. '' (E.T.C.)

''हमारे मोहल्ले के कुछ लोग भी हमारे साथ थे। हमारा मोहल्ला फैजाबाद में है न कि अयोध्या में। हमारे साथ अयोध्या का कोई आदमी नहीं था। हम लोग कई साईकिलों पर आये थे। 4–6 आदमी जरूर थे।

"Some other people of our locality were also with us. Our locality is in Faizabad, not at Ayodhya. No body from Ayodhya was with us. We had come on many cycles. We were certainly 4-6 persons. None of the persons who had gone with us are now alive; all of them are no more.

It was, as I guess, 10 or 11 O'clock at night when we reached the disputed property.. . . . Lamps were lighted at the disputed property on the site. I do not know who had arranged the lamps. We had not taken along the lamps. People frequented there. I guess that 50-60 people were certainly present there. . . . . I had offered 'Nafil' at half past 11." (E.T.C.)*

''यह सबसे पहली मर्तवा वहां जाने का और फातिया पढ़ने का वाका दिसम्बर, 49 के हादसे से तकरीबन 10–12 साल पहले का है। दिसम्बर, 1949 के हादसे से जो फौरी पिछला जुम्मा गुजरा था उस रोज मैंने वहॉ मुतदाविया जायदाद में नमाज पढ़ी थी। वह जुम्मे की नमाज थी।

मेरे खालाजाद भाई मो0 महमूद साहब भी मेरे साथ जुम्मे की नमाज में शरीक थे। यह नमाज दोपहर बाद तकरीबन सवा बजे के करीब पढ़ी गयी थी। मेरे ख्याल से चार पॉच सौ नमाजी तो जरूर थे। नमाजियों में अयोध्या और फैजाबाद दोनों जगह के लोग थे। . . . . मौलवी अब्दुल गफ्फार साहब ने इमामत की थी।'' (पेज 16)

"This incident of going and offering 'Fatiya' there for the first time, precedes December, 1949 incident by nearly 10-12 years. I had offered namaz at the disputed property on Friday immediately preceding the December, 1949 incident. That was Jumma Namaz.

My cousin, Mohammad Mahmood, had also attended the Friday Namaz with me. This namaz had been offered around a quarter past one in the afternoon. I guess that

namazists were certainly 400-500 in number. Among namazists were included people both from Ayodhya and Faizabad. . . . . Maulvi Abdul Gaffar had performed the job of Imam. "(E.T.C.)

"दिसम्बर 1949 के जिस जुम्मा को मैं नमाज पढ़ने मस्जिद में गया तो कुतबा हो रहा था। ..... उस समय में सोलह सत्रह साल का था।" (पेज 17)

"On which particular Friday in December, 1949 I went to the mosque to offer namaz, 'qutba' was in progress. . . . . At that time I was aged 16-17 years. (E.T.C.)

2492. On page 35, 39 and 41, PW 6 said:

"जब मैं बाबरी मस्जिद गया था पहली बार तब अपने होश संभाल चुका था (फिर कहा कि पहली और आखिरी बार दिन में एक ही दफा गया था और उस समय तक मैं होश संभाल चुका था) रातों के वक्त मैं चार पॉच दफे शब्बे बरात के मौके पर वहॉ गया था।"

www.vadaprativada.com

"When I went to the Babri mosque for the first time, I had begun to understand the things. (Further stated that I had gone there only once a day, for the first and last time). I went there 4-5 times during nights on the occasion of 'shab-e-barat'." (Page 35)

"उससे पहले मै। 22/23 दिसम्बर 1949 के पिछले जुम्मे की नमाज पर ही दिन के वक्त गया था।" (Page 39)

offer the Friday Namaz, I was standing south-wards in the middle of the inner courtyard. There was Friday Namaz; there was much crowd. People attending it were 400-500 in strength." (E.T.C.)

2493. However, regarding memory, when PW 6 was confronted with some contradiction in his statement he said on page 33:

"(अजखुद कहा कि मेरी याददाश्त कमजोर है)। मेरी याददाश्त की कमजोरी 1986 से होनी शुरू हुई है। (फिर कहा कि सन् 1987 से शुरू हुई है।) यह ठीक है कि अब आलम यह है कि वाजवकात मैं अपने लड़कों के नाम भी भूल जाता हूँ। .. . . .उसी वक्त से यानी 1987 से मेरी बिनाई भी कमजोर हो गयी है। मुझे उस वक्त सर में चोट लगी थी।" (पेज 33)

"(Stated on his own that my memory is weak). I began to develop weakness in my memory from 1986. (Again stated that it has started from 1987). It is true that condition has now become so serious that I forget even the name of my sons. . . . . My 'binai' (vision) has also weakened since that time, that is, from 1987. I had sustained head injuries at that time."(E.T.C.)

2494. PW 7, Hasmat Ulla Ansari, son of Niyamat Ulla has also deposed to have offered Namaz in the disputed building for hundreds of time starting from 1943. The last Namaz he offered in the disputed building about a week before the date when idol was placed therein, i.e. night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949. He further said that he offered Namaz till two days earlier from the date when the idol was placed. However, Namaz was offered in the disputed building till 22.12.1949 is also his statement. He has shown his age as 65 years in 1996, meaning thereby his year of birth comes to 1931. He is High School passed and in the High School certificate he admits to have

mentioned his date of birth 8.1.1934 though he claims that his correct year of birth is 1932. He studied upto Class 4th in a Madrasa at Kaziyana and, thereafter got admission in Katra Middle School at Suthati and studied thereat upto Class 6th and then went to Kolkata, sought admission in Class 8th thereat in Fafas Inter College wherefrom he passed High School. On page 12 he says:

''जब मुझे फाफस कालेज से सार्टीफिकेट मिला अपनी तालीम पूरी करने का तथा मुझे मालूम हो गया था कि मेरा तारीख पैदाइश गलत लिखी गयी है। मैंने आज तक उस गलती को दुरूस्त कराने का कोई कार्य वाही नहीं की।'' (पेज 12)

"When I got a certificate from the Fafas College on completion of my schooling and I came to know about incorrect mentioning of my date of birth, I have not till date taken any steps for rectification of the said mistake." (ETC)

''1949 के दिसम्बर के हादसे के वक्त मैं नाबालिग था।'' (पेज 35)

"I was a minor at the time of December, 1949 incident." (ETC)

2496. About his date of birth, on page 44 he says:

''मैंने जब से होश संभाला तभी से अपनी पढ़ाई शुरू कर दी थी। हम घर में तो पढ़ते ही थे फिर मदरसे में भी जाने लग गये। मेरे वालिद साहब एक सरकारी प्राईमरी स्कूल के टीचर थे उनको इस बात का इल्म था कि बच्चों को दाखिल करते वक्त किस किसी चीज की सूचना देनी जरूरी होती है। मेरा दाखिला आठवें दर्जे से पहले की पढ़ाई के लिए स्कूल में मेरे वालिद साहब ने ही खुद करवाया था। यह भी जरूरी है कि मेरी तारीख पैदाईश मेरे वालिद साहब ने खुद लिखवाई थी। यह जाहिर है कि जो तारीख पैदाईश उन्होंने लिखवाई थी वह सही होगी।'' (पेज 44)

"I started my learning since the time I had come to understand things. I did study at home and then began to go to school as well. My father was a teacher at a government primary school. He had the knowledge about which particular information is necessary to be given at the time of admission of children. My father had himself got me admitted to school for my pre-class VIII schooling. It is also natural for my father to have got my date of birth recorded on his own. It is explicit that the date of birth which he had got recorded must be true."(E.T.C.)

2497. On page 51, about his education he said:

''1962 से मैं शहर फैजाबाद में रहता आ रहा हूँ। . . . . जब मैं फार्ब्स इन्टर कालेज में पढ़ता था तब हर रोज अयोध्या से आता जाता था। मैं यहॉ पर जुलाई 1948 से मार्च 1951 तक पढ़ा था। हमारा स्कूल सुबह 10 बजे तक चलता था लेकिन शुक्रवार को सुबह 8 बजे से दोपहर 12 बजे तक चलता था। . . . . .कलकत्ता मैं 1946 से 48 तक डेढ साल तक रहा। वहॉ पर मेरे मामू थे मैं उनके यहॉ रहा था। मैं डेढ साल तक सुतहटी के मिडिल स्कूल में पढ़ा था। उसके पहले मैं चार साल तक मदरसे में पढ़ा था।" (पेज 51)

"I have been visiting the city of Faizabad since 1962. When I was a student of Forbes Inter College, I took to and fro trip to Ayodhya everyday. I studied here from July 1948 to March 1951. Our school used to run up to 10'O clock in the morning; but on Fridays it used to run from 8'O clock in the morning to 12:00 noon. . . . . I was in Kolkata for 1½ years between 1946 and 1948. my maternal uncle was there; I stayed at his place. I studied for 1½ years at the Suthati Middle School. ''I had for the last time offered namaz two days before the incident of idol being placed in this mosque. I had been consistently offering namaz there at that time. It would be wrong to say that I had continued to offer namaz only up to a week ahead of the incident of idol being placed. I have heard the December 5, 1996 statement of mine which says 'I consistently offered namaz up to one week preceding the time when idol was placed. This idol was placed on the intervening night of 22/23rd December, 1949'. This statement of mine is correct but it is also correct that I had for the last time offered namaz at this mosque two days prior to this incident. I had stated this thing earlier to the statement mentioned above.

"इस बयान में गलत लिखा गया है कि मुझे वहां पढ़ाई करने का सार्टीफिकेट मिला था। दरअसल मुझे कभी कोई सार्टीफिकेट नहीं मिला। यह कहना गलत है कि इस बाबत मैं कोई झूठ बोलता हूं।" (पेज 64)

"It is incorrectly written in this statement that I had been given a certificate for having studied there. As a matter of fact, I never got any certificate. It is wrong to say that I tell a lie in this respect."(E.T.C.)

"अयोध्या में हमारे मकान के अगल बगल मस्जिदें हैं 1949 से पहले भी मैं वहॉ नमाज पढ़ने जाता रहा हूँ। क्योंकि बाबरी मस्जिद जामा मस्जिद थी इसलिए मैं यहॉ भी नमाज पढ़ने जाता था यहॉ पर मैं जुम्मे की नमाज पढ़ता था और तराबी भी। जुम्मे की नमाज हर मस्जिद में नहीं पढ़ी जाती। कुछ खास खास मस्जिदों में ही पढ़ी जाती है।" (पेज 74)

"There are mosques in the vicinity of our house at Ayodhya. I had been to that place to offer namaz even earlier to 1949. Since the Babri mosque was Jama Masjid, I used to go to this place too in order to offer namaz. I used to offer Jumma namaz as also Taravi namaz here. Jumma namaz is not offered at every mosque. It is offered only in some particular mosques."(E.T.C.)

2499. On page 77 and 81 again he (PW-7) said:

"22 दिसम्बर, 1949 को मैंने इस मस्जिद में नमाज नहीं पढ़ी थी। 21 दिसम्बर 1949 को भी मैंने वहां नमाज नहीं पढ़ी थी। मैंने यह बयान ठीक किया है कि जब वहां बुत रखा गया तो उसके एक हफ्ता पहले तक मैं वहॉ पर मुतवातिर नमाज पढ़ता रहा था। मैं वहां पर पांचो नमाज तो नहीं पढ़ता था लेकिन असर की नमाज जरूर पढता था।" (पेज 77)

"I did not offer namaz at this mosque on 22nd December, 1949. I did not offer namaz there on 21st December, 1949 too. I have correctly deposed that I had continued to offer namaz there up to a week prior to the time when idol was placed there. I certainly did not offer namaz for five times but certainly offered 'Asr' namaz."(E.T.C.)

''मैंने मदरसा 1944 में छोड़ा था। सुतहटी का मिडिल स्कूल 1945 में छोड दिया था। फौर्ब्स इण्टर कालेज में मैंने दाखिला 1948 में लिया था। मैं वहॉ पढ़ने के लिए हर रोज अयोध्या से जाया करता था। पढ़ाई के वक्त मौसम और दिनों के साथ बदलते रहते थे। मैं साईकिल पर सवार होकर पढ़ने जाया करता था। जब मैं कालेज में जाता था तो नमाज फैजाबाद में ही पढ़ लिया करता था। शाम की नमाज घर के पास वाली मस्जिद में पढ़ता था। . .1949 तक जब मैं फैजाबाद में रहता था तो जुम्मे की नमाज फैजाबाद में पढ़ लेता था और अयोध्या में होता था तो बाबरी मस्जिद में पढ़ता था।

"I left the Madarsa in 1944. I left the Suthati Middle School in 1945. I was admitted at Forbes Inter College in 1948. I used to go to study there every day from Ayodhya. At the time of my education, season would change with the progress of days. I used to go to school by cycle. When I would go to college, I would offer namaz in Faizabad itself. I would offer the evening prayer at the mosque situated near our house. . . .. Till 1949, whenever I was in Faizabad I would offer Jumma namaz in Faizabad, and whenever I was at Ayodhya, I would offer namaz at the Babri mosque.

A tank was also built at the Babri mosque to supply water for 'vaju'. It was 4-5 feet high and would have been nearly 5 feet in length. That tank was not in use within my sight; water used to be filled in 'Matkas' (water

2500. About his age, on page 78 the witness (PW-7) says:

''मेरी सही पैदाइश 1932 की है न कि 1934 की। मेरी शादी 1955 में हुई थी। मैंने 1951 में हाईस्कूल पास किया था। 1943 में जब मैं इस मस्जिद में नमाज पढ़ने जाता था तो अपने वालिद साहब की उंगली पकड़कर नहीं जाता था। . . मैंने 9 साल की उम्र में मदरसा शुरू किया था।'' (पेज 78)

''The correct year of my birth is 1932, not 1934. I was married in 1955. I passed my high school in 1951. In 1943, whenever I went to offer namaz at this mosque I did not go holding the fingers of my father. . . . I started my schooling at Madarsa at the age of nine years.'' (E.T.C.)

2501. On page 85, PW 7 stated:

''नक्शा नजरी पेपर नं0 2/16क . . . .मैंने नक्शा नजरी देख लिया है, इसमें कुछ लाइने लगी हुई हैं। यह ठीक है कि इसमें पश्चिम की तरफ भी कब्रिस्तान दिखलाया गया है। लेकिन मौके के मुताबिक ऐसा नहीं था और इस तरह से यह नक्शा इस दह तक गलत है। . . . . . इस नक्शा–नजरी के हिसाब से कुछ मालूम नहीं पड़ता कि मस्जिद किस खास जगह पर कायम थी। जायदाद मुतदाविया तमाम मस्जिद की ही थी। . . . . यह उपर बताया गया चबूतरा मस्जिद में शामिल नहीं था। इस चबूतरे पर दूसरे लोग यानी हिन्दू लोग बुत रखने से पहले भजन–कीर्तन बगैरह किया करते थे। . . यह कहना गलत है कि बुत रखने वाली तारीख से 15 दिन पहले ही उस तरफ मैंने आना–जाना बन्द कर दिया हो। बुत रखने के एक महीना पहले ही वहॉ पर भजन कीर्तन शुरू हो गया था। यह भजन कीर्तन बैरागी लोग कर रहे थे। लेकिन ऐसा नहीं है कि वहॉ पर नेताओं के जोशीले भाषण मुसलमानों के खिलाफ होते रहे हों। यह बैरागी लोग संख्या में तीस–चालीस के करीब होंगे। जब हम लोग नमाज पढ़ने जाते थे, तो यह बैरागी लोग दंगा–फसाद या झगड़ा नहीं करते थे। यह लोग शंख–घड़ियाल या घण्टा नहीं बजाते थे। जब हम असर की नमाज पढ़ने जाते थे तो 8, 10 या 15 तक की तादाद में हुआ करते थे, जुम्मे की नमाज के वक्त यह तादाद काफी ज्यादा हो जाती थी।'' (पेज 85)

''Site plan (paper no. 2/16 Ka). . . . I have seen the site plan with some lines drawn therein. It is true that a graveyard is shown towards the west as well but it was not so at the site and in this way this site plan is incorrect. . . . . From this site plan nothing is known about a particular place where the mosque stood. The disputed property belonged mostly to the mosque. . . . . This Chabutra, mentioned above, did not form part of the mosque. Other people, that is, Hindus, before laying idol, used to perform 'Bhajan-Kirtan', etc. on this Chabutra. . . . . It is wrong to say that I had stopped visiting that site15 days before the day of laying idol. 'Bhajan-Kirtan' had started there a month before the laying of idols. 'Bairagis' (recluses) were performing 'Bhajan-Kirtan'. But it is not that leaders were delivering provocative speeches against Muslims there. These recluses would be nearly 30-40 in number. Whenever we would go to offer namaz, these recluses would not engage in riot, affray or quarrel. These people would not blow conchs, or ring gongs or bells. When we would go to offer 'Asr' namaz, we used to be 8, 10 or 15 in number. This number would rise considerably at the times of Jumma namaz."(E.T.C.)

2502. PW 8 Abdul Ajij, resident of Shahjahanpur, District Faizabad claims to have offered Namaz in the disputed building for hundreds of time starting at the age of ten years. He has stated his year of birth as 1926. His shop of making shoes is in Angooribagh, which he opens in the morning at 8, 9 or 10 and he returns therefrom in the evening as is evident from page 4:

''मेरा कारखाना टाट शाह मस्जिद के पास नही था। यह अंगूरी बाग में वाका था। यह कारखाना कंघी गली में नही था। हमारा कारखाना एक दुकान थी जिसमें हम जूता बनाते थे। हमारी दुकान बाजार के साथ सुबह

"My workshop was not near Tat Shah Mosque. It was situated in Angooribagh. This workshop was not in Kanghi Gali. My workshop was a shop, in which I used to make shoes. My shop used to open along with the market at 8, 9, 10 AM. I used to return home from my workshop in the evening." (ETC)

2503. Chowk Faizabad is at the distance of a mile from his residence while Ayodhya, Sinharhat is about three miles. On page 19 he said:

''मैंने न कहीं लिखा है न मुकम्मल याददाश्त है कि वहां जुम्मे की कुल कितनी नमाज पढ़ी हैं लेकिन 10–12 तो पढ़ी ही होंगी। ये नमाज 1949 के बाद की भी हैं। कुछ पहले की हैं।'' (पेज 19)

"Neither have I written it anywhere nor do I properly remember as to total how many namaz of Jumma were offered by me over there, but must have offered 10-12. These namaz include the post 1949 as well. Few are of earlier period." (E.T.C)

2504. On page 25, he (PW-8) said:

''शाहजहॉपुर की मस्जिद के बाद मैंने नमाज अपने मदरसे की यानी यतीमखाने की मस्जिद में पढ़ी है। यतीमखाना मदरसे की मस्जिद में मैं अपनी निजी तौर पर आराम से नमाज पढ़ लेता था। मुझे यह याद नहीं कि उसके कितने दिनों बाद मैं शाहजहॉपुर के बाहर की यानी फैजाबाद और अयोध्या की मस्जिदों में नमाज पढ़ने जाने लगा था।'' (पेज 25)

"After the mosque of Shahjahanpur, I have offered namaz at the mosque of my 'Madarsa' (school) i.e. the mosque of 'Yatimkhana' (orphanage). I used to privately offer namaz, as per my convenience, at the mosque of 'Yatimkhana Madarsa' (orphanage school). I do not remember as to

after which period thereafter had I started going to offer namaz outside Shahjahanpur i.e. at the mosques of Faizabad and Ayodhya." (E.T.C)

2505. He further said:

''झगड़े वाली जायदाद को मै जानता हूँ। मैं वहां का रहने वाला तो नही हूं लेकिन फिर भी चौहद्दी के बाबत कुछ बता सकता हूँ। गालबन इसके पूरब में गंजे शहीदा था। उत्तर की तरफ एक सड़क थी और उसके उपर जन्मस्थान वाका था। दक्खिन की तरफ कब्रिस्तान था। पश्चिम की तरफ मैदान था। झगड़ेवाली जायदाद तमाम की तमाम छत से ढकी हुई थी। मुझे ख्याल नही कि 1942 में ''भारत छोड़ो'' नाम का कोई आन्दोलन चला हो। मुझे ख्याल नही कि उन दिनों में सारी दुनिया में कोई जंग चल रही हो या 1945 में जापान पर कोई एटम बम गिराया गया हो। मैं सबसे पहली बार इस मस्जिद में नमाज पढ़ने आजादी से पहले गया था। मै यह नही बता सकता कि आजादी मिलने के कितने महीने या वर्ष पहले पहली मर्तबा इस मस्जिद में नमाज पढ़ने गया था। बहुत मुद्दत हो चुकी है इसलिए मैं नही बता सकता कि मैंने सबसे पहली बार इस मस्जिद में कौन सी नमाज पढ़ी थी। मैने उस मौके के नमाजियों की तादाद नही गिनी और मेरा बताया गया अंदाजा गलत भी हो सकता है। इसलिए मैं नही कह सकता कि उस मौके पर कितने नमाजी थे। मुझे इतना याद जरूर है कि मै अकेला नही था कुछ लोग और भी थे। उनमें हमारे गाव के लोग भी थें उनमें मो0 युसुफ साहब, सरदार अली भी शामिल थे। फैजाबाद शहर के लोगो की बाबत मैने ख्याल नही कियां। मुश्ताक नाम का चिकवा फैजाबाद का वहॉ पर था और इखलाक साहब भी थे। उस वक्त मो0 हाशिम नही थे वैसे वो वहॉ जाते रहते थे। हाजी महबूब वहॉ पर थे। अब्दुल आहद भी वहॉ पर मौजूद थे।'' (पेज 25.–26)

"I know the disputed property. Although I am not a resident of that place, instead I can give some information regarding the boundary. Probably in its east, was Ganje-Shahida. There was road towards north and the Janamsthan was situated above it. There was a graveyard towards south. There was a ground towards west. The entire disputed property was covered by roof. I do not recollect whether any 'Quit India' movement was launched in 1942. I do not recollect whether in that period some war had broken out in the whole world or that in 1945 some atom bomb had been dropped over Japan. I had gone to offer namaz in this mosque for the first time before independence. I cannot give as to how many months or year before independence, had I gone to this mosque to offer namaz for the first time. Much time has passed, as such I cannot tell as to which namaz was first offered by me in this mosque. I did not count the number of Namazists at that place at that time and the estimate given by me can also be wrong. As such, I cannot tell as to how many Namazists were there at that site. I do remember that I was not alone and few other persons were also there. They included people of my village as well. Mohd. Yusuf, Sardar Ali were also included in them. I did not care about the people of Faizabad city. Mushtaq, a Chikwa of Faizabad and Ikhlaq were also present there. At that time, Mohd. Hashim was not present there. However, he used to visit that place. Hazi Mehboob was present there. Abdul Ahad was also present over there." (E.T.C)

2506. On one hand he stated to have offered Namaz in the disputed building for hundreds of time but simultaneously repeatedly he has said of not being conversant with Ayodhya:

"मैंने अयोध्या को इतना नहीं देखा कि मैं इस सवाल का जवाब दे सकूँ कि इखलाक साहब के मकान में उनकी अपनी मस्जिद है या नहीं।" (पेज 27)

"I am not so much conversant with Ayodhya that I can answer whether Ekhlak has his own mosque in his house, or not*. (ETC)*

''मैं अयोध्या का रहने वाला नहीं बल्कि फैजाबाद का रहने वाला हूँ।'' (पेज 41)

"I am a resident of Faizabad and not Ayodhya." (E.T.C)

''मैं अयोध्या में ज्यादा घूमा हुआ नहीं हूँ।'' (पेज 59)

"I have not traveled much in Ayodhya." (ETC)

''अयोध्या के बारे में ज्यादा नहीं कुछ जानकारी है।'' (पेज 71)

"I do not have much knowledge about Ayodhya." (E.T.C)

2507. For verification of his age on page 16, he said that he was issued a certificate in 1942 wherein his date of birth is mentioned and he possesses the said certificate and has also brought it but then he said that the same he has left at the residence. However, he did not deny that in the last voter-list his age might have been mentioned as 60 years. On page 37, he claims to have offered Namaz in the disputed building on the last Friday before 22nd December 1949. He reached there at 12.00 and the Friday Namaz started at 1.00 PM. Razzak Saheb, Hashim Saheb and Hazi Ahad Saheb were present thereat and till the time of Namaz, the total attendance became 400-450. There were 8 or 10 pitchers containing water for Vazoo. On page 61, he says that the Country became independent in 1947 and before then he had been offering Namaz at the disputed building for about 13 to 14 years. For the first time, Namaz was offered in the disputed building when he was 11 or 12 years of age. Having given his year of birth as 1926, this statement does not appear to be correct being self contradictory.

2508. PW-9 Syeed Akhlak Ahmad S/o Syed Haji Abdul Sattar has also deposed to have offered Namaz in the disputed building prior to 1949. He claims that he used to offer Friday prayer (Jumma Namaz) but sometimes he offered all five prayers in the day. He did not offer Namaz after 22/23 December, 1949 since idol was placed thereafter and the mosque was closed for Namaz. The relevant part of the examination-in-chief to this effect are:

> ''1949 से पहले जुम्मे की नमाज में बाबरी मस्जिद में पढ़ता था। कभी–कभी मुस्तकिल तौर से मैंने पांच वक्त की नमाज भी बाबरी मस्जिद में पढ़ी है। .....22–23 दिसम्बर 1949 के बाद मैंने वहॉ पर नमाज नहीं पढ़ी है। क्योंकि वहॉ पर बुत रख दिया गया था और मस्जिद नमाज के लिए बंद कर दी गयी थी।''
>
> "Prior to 1949, I used to offer Jumma's Namaz in the Babri mosque. Occasionally, I have offered five times Namaz in Babri mosque on regular basis. ..... I did not offer Namaz at that place after 22-23 December, 1949, because idols had been installed there and the mosque had been closed for Namaz." (E.T.C.)

www.vadaprativada.com

2509. His year of birth comes to 1937 as he disclosed his age 60 years in February, 1997 when his deposition commenced.

2510. PW-9 has gone to the extent of stating that the Namaz was offered in the disputed premises even after the alleged incident of 22/23 December, 1949 and on page 8 he said:

> ''यह याद है कि 1949 के 22/23 दिसम्बर वाले हादसे के बाद भी वहॉ पर लोगों ने नमाज पढ़ा है। लेकिन मुझे अब ध्यान नहीं कि उस वक्त मेरी उम्र क्या थी।'' (पेज 8)
> "(I) remember that even after the incident of 22/23 December, 1949, people had offered namaz over there, but I do not remember at present as to what was my age at that time." (E.T.C)

2511. Though, he specifically remember about the date

and the time of his Namaz 50 years back but his memory is so disturbed that he is not able to tell the age of his father at the time of his death, the age of his sister or how much younger she is or when his father actually died, as is also evident from page 11 and 12:

> ''मेरे वालिद फौत हो चुके हैं। मैं उनकी फौतिगी की तारीख बतला सकता हूँ, लेकिन यह नहीं बता पाऊँगा कि उस वक्त उनकी क्या उम्र थी।'' (पेज 11)

My father had expired about 4-5 years after my marriage. It will also be difficult for me to tell as to how much younger my sister is to me, reference of whose marriage has been made. When my father died, I was jobless. At that time I had become major and my age was nearly 27 or 28 years." (E.T.C)*

2512. He has a mosque in his own premises, which, according to him, is 200 years old but could not explain as to why instead of offering Namaz in his own premises, he went elsewhere for offering Namaz and that too a daily Namaz on

22nd December, 1949 particularly when the disputed building was about one and half furlong from his residence. His admission about a mosque in his own premises and distance from his residence is on page 16 and 19:

''जो हमारी मस्जिद इस अहाते में है वह लखैरी ईटों से बनी है, उसे आलमगिरी कहते हैं और मेरे अंदाजे से यह ढाई सौ वर्ष पुरानी है। इस मस्जिद का कोई मुतवल्ली नहीं है। इस मस्जिद को कहीं से कोई ग्रान्ट नहीं मिलती।'' (पेज 16)

"My mosque within this campus, is made of 'Lakhairi' bricks. It is called Alamgiri and in my opinion, it is about 250 years old. This mosque has no Mutwalli. This mosque does not receive grant from anywhere." (E.T.C)

''मेरे मकान से विवादित जायदाद का फासला तकरीबन डेढ़ फर्लांग होगा।'' (पेज 19)

''The disputed property would be nearly one – a half furlongs away from my house.'' (E.T.C)

2513. On page 35, he said that for the first time he offered Namaz in the disputed building probably during summer time and it was Magrib Namaz. Then on page 37 he said that when he went for the first time for offering Namaz in the disputed building, he was about 13 or 14 year old and when he offered the last Friday Namaz in this building, he was 14 years of age whereafter he could not offer Namaz therein since it was closed. No namaz was allowed to be offered on 23rd December, 1949.

''यह बताना गैर–मुमकिन है कि मैंने सबसे पहली बार मुतदाविया इमारत मे जब नमाज पढ़ी तब हिज्री कैलेण्डर का कौन सा महीना था क्योंकि इस बात को एक मुद्दत हो चुकी है। मेरे ख्याल से मौसम बताना भी मुश्किल है लेकिन मेरा अंदाजा है कि मौसम गर्मी का रहा होगा। . . . . . आजादी मिलने के बाद तो मुझे इस मस्जिद में जाकर नमाज–पढ़ने की बात याद है उससे पहले भी गए होंगे लेकिन अच्छी तरही से याद नहीं

''It is difficult to tell which month of the Hizri calendar was going on when I went to offer namaz at the disputed structure for the first time, because a long time has passed since then. In my opinion, it is also difficult to tell the season but I guess that it would have been summer season. . . . . I do remember having gone to this mosque to offer namaz after attaining independence but I might have gone even earlier but I do not properly remember in this respect. As far as I remember, the first namaz that I offered at this mosque after independence, was Magrib namaz. But now it is not possible to tell its season.'' (E.T.C)

''जब मैं इस मस्जिद में पहली बार मगरिब की नमाज पढ़ने गया तो मेरी उम्र गालबन 13–14 साल की थी। जब यह आखिरी जुम्मे की नमाज मैंने इस मस्जिद में पढ़ी तो मेरी उम्र तकरीबन 14 साल थी। उस रोज की नमाज के बाद मैं इस मस्जिद में नमाज नहीं पढ़ सका क्योंकि उसे बन्द कर दिया गया था। . . . . .23 दिसम्बर को वहां पर नमाज नहीं पढ़ने दी गयी।'' (पेज 37)

''When I went to offer Magrib namaz at this mosuqe for the first time, I was perhaps aged 13-14 years. When I offered Jumma namaz at this mosque for the last time I was nearly 14 year old. After the namaz of that day, I could not offer namaz at this mosque because it was closed. . . . . Namaz was not allowed to be offered there on 23rd December.'' (E.T.C)

2514. The above statement would be interesting to see in the light of the fact that he has disclosed his age as 60 years in

February, 1997 in accordance whereto his year of birth comes to 1937 and if he offered first Namaz in the disputed building at the age of 13 even then it comes to 1950 though he admits that after 23rd December, 1949 Namaz was not allowed to be offered in the disputed building. This exercise shows the incorrectness and unreliability of his statement about the last date of offering Namaz as 22nd December, 1949. About his year of birth, he himself has stated on page 43 and he tried to make some improvement about his year of birth on page 48:

''लेकिन मैंने अपने बालदैन से सुना है कि मै सन् 1937 के आसपास पैदा हुआ था।'' (पेज 43)

"But I have heard from my mothers that I was born in or around 1937." (E.T.C)

''मैं अपनी शादी के वक्त अपनी एक्जेक्ट उम्र नहीं बता सकता क्योंकि मुझे अपनी पैदाइश का ऐक्जेक्ट तारीख सन् महीना इल्म नहीं है। मेरी पैदाइश सन् 1937 के आस पास की है जैसा कि मैं पहले कह चुका हूँ।''(पेज 48)

"I cannot tell my exact age at the time of my marriage because I do not know the exact date, month and year of my birth. I was born in or around 1937 as I have already stated." (E.T.C)

2515. Then we find that he also admits to have gone to Gonda for education at the age of 8/9 where he stayed for three years i.e. upto the age of 11/12.

''मैं जिस वक्त गोण्डा तालीम हासिल करने गया तो मेरी उम्र तकरीबन 8–9 वर्ष की थी। मैंने वहॉ पर हिफ्ज की तालीम तीन साल के लिए ली थी। . . . . . मैं तकरीबन 11–12 साल की उम्र में गोण्डा से अपनी तालीम पूरी करके वापस आ गया था।'' (पेज 49)

"When I went to Gonda to have schooling I was nearly 8-9 year old. I had acquired schooling in 'Hifz'

there for three years. . . . . I came back from Gonda after completing my education at the age of about 11-12 years." (E.T.C)

2516. Taking his year of birth as 1937, we find it extremely difficult to accept that when he was at Gonda, how occasion came to offer Namaz in the disputed building at all particularly when he claims that he offered Namaz in the disputed building after independence 1947:

''इन लोगों के साथ ज्यादातर मैंने जुम्मे की नमाज पढ़ी है और यह 1947 के बाद पढ़ी गयी है।'' (पेज 50)

"I have mostly offered Jumma namaz with these persons and I have done so after 1947." (E.T.C)

2517. On page 36 he said that he went in the disputed building about five or six days earlier to 22/23 December, 1949 for offering Namaz which was a Friday Namaz which again is a contradiction:

''मेरा अंदाजा है कि 22–23 दिसम्बर 1949 के हादसे से 5–6 रोज पहले मैं इस मस्जिद में नमाज पढ़ने गया था। वह जुम्मे की नमाज थी।'' (पेज 36–37)

"I guess to have gone to offer namaz at this mosque five-six days before the 22nd/23rd December, 1949 incident. That was a 'Jumma namaz' (congregational prayer of Friday)." (E.T.C)

2518. PW-14 Jalil Ahmad son of Mohd. Yakub also deposed about offering Namaz in the disputed building prior to 1949 i.e. before the placement of idol therein. He however confined his claim of offering Namaz on Fridays only and said:

''मैंने आखिरी बार इस मस्जिद में नमाज इसमें बुत रखने के पहले जुम्मा पर पढ़ी थी। मैंने उस मस्जिद में ईषा व जुमा दोनों की नमाजें पढ़ी हैं।''

www.vadaprativada.com

"My last Namaz in this mosque was the Jumma preceding the installation of idol therein. I have offered both Isha & Jumma Namaz in this mosque." (E.T.C.)

2519. PW-21 Dr. M. Hashim Qidwai S/o Abdul Mazid Qidwai had the occasion of visiting Fyzabad between July 1939 to October 1941 when his father was posted thereat. He was a student at Lucknow and used to visit Fyzabad in holidays during the period of posting of his father. For the first time he claimed to have visited Fyzabad in December, 1939. Regarding offering of Namaz, he said:

"दिसम्बर सन् 39 में मैं अपने परिवार के सदस्यों के साथ बाबरी मस्जिद देखने गया और वहीं पर मगरिब की नमाज पढ़ी उसके बाद मैं बराबर मई सन् 41 तक हर छुट्टी में फैजाबाद जाता रहा। इस दौरान मैंने 15–20 बार मगरीब की नमाज़ और चार–पांच बार असिर की नमाज और दो तीन जुमे की नमाज बाबरी मस्जिद में पढ़ी।"

"In December, 1939 I had gone to see the Babri mosque along with my family members and had offered the Magrib Namaz there. Thereafter, in every holiday I regularly visited Faizabad till the year 1941. In this period I offered the Magrib Namaz for 15-20 times, the Asir Namaz for 4-5 times and 2-3 Jumma Namaz, in the Babri mosque." (E.T.C.)

2520. On page 16 however he said:

"मैने पहली बार अलीगढ़ में अक्टूबर 1948 में नमाज अदा किया।"

"I offered Namaz first time in October 1948 at Aligarh."

2521. The witness had mentioned the factum about offering Namaz since 1942 to 1948 almost six years with such specification but when he was confronted that where was a mosque near the residence of his father at Fyzabad and details

www.vadaprativada.com

were asked he said :

"फैज़ाबाद कैण्ट में जहां हमारे पिता जी रहते थे उससे थोड़ी दूर पर एक मस्जिद है। मुझे इस समय उस मस्जिद का नाम याद नहीं है। चूँकि यह बात 60 वर्ष पुरानी है।" (पेज–31)

"In Faizabad cantt, there is a mosque just ahead of the place where my father lived. At this moment, I do not recollect the name of that mosque in as much as this matter is 60 years old." (E.T.C.)

"मैं नमाज पढ़ने कार से जाता था। उस मस्जिद में मेरे ख्याल में 10–15 दफे जुमे की नमाज पढ़ी थी।" (पेज–31)

"I used to go to offer Namaz by car. As far as I remember, I offered Namaz of Jumma(Friday prayers) 10 to 15 times in that mosque." (E.T.C.)

"इस समय मुझे मस्जिद का एरिया याद नहीं है अर्थात यह मस्जिद कितनी लम्बी व चौड़ी है।" (पेज –32)

www.vadaprativada.com

"At this time, I do not recollect the area of the mosque, that is, its length and breadth." (E.T.C.)

2522. He was in B.A. in Lucknow University during 1939-41, however, he added further and on page 38-39 said:

"जब मै अपने ससुर के साथ विवादित स्थल पर गया तो नमाज भी हम लोगो ने पढी थी। हमारे ससुर हमारे साथ बाबरी मस्जिद मगरिब की नमाज पढने 2–3 बार गये थे। हमारे ससुर हमारे साथ पहली बार सन् 1940 की पहली या दूसरी जनवरी को गये थे।" (पेज –38)

"When I went to disputed site, along with my father-in-law, we offered Namaz there. My father-in-law, along with me, had gone to Babari mosque twice or thrice to offer Namaz of Magrib(prayer offer just after sunset). For the first time, on 1st or 2nd January, 1940 my father-in-law, along with me, went there." (E.T.C.)

"हम लोग जब पहली बार अयोध्या देखने गये थे और जब मगरिब का वक्त हो गया तो नमाज पढ लिया खास मकसद अयोध्या देखना और मस्जिद को देखना दोनो ही था। अयोध्या देखने का एक मंशा यह भी था कि रामचन्द्र जी कहां पैदा हुए और दूसरा बाबरी मस्जिद को देखना था।" (पेज 38–39)

"It was the time of Magrib(prayers offered just after sunset) When we arrived at Ayodhya first time, we offered Namaz, our main purpose was to see Ayodhya and mosque both. The motive behind visiting Ayodhya was to see the birth place of Ramchandra Ji as well as Babari mosque*." (E.T.C.)*

2523. On page 41, he gave the exact date on which he visited the disputed building for the first time which reads:

"अपने वालिद के फैजाबाद वाले मकान से तकरीबन पौन घन्टा लगा था। पहली दफा जब मै बाबरी मस्जिद विवादित ढॉचा में गया था तो 27 दिसम्बर 1939 का दिन था।" (पेज –41)

"It took nearly forty five minutes in reaching there from my father's house at Faizabad. It was 27th December, 1939, when I visited first time the disputed Babari mosque*." (E.T.C.)*

2524. On page 47 he says that on the first and second visit on the disputed building he saw everything inside and outside which reads:

"मै जब विवादित भवन में पहली और दूसरी बार गया तो वहां सब चीजें मस्जिद के अंदर और बाहर देखा था। मस्जिद के अंदर गुम्बद थे खम्बे थे और दालान या हाल था मेरे ख्याल में 10–12 खम्बे रहे होगे।। स्वयं कहा कि मस्जिद के अंदर मेम्बर, मेहराब बना था। खम्बे मेरे ख्याल में पत्थर के थे। सीमेंट और चूने के नही थे। खंबे कई अर्थात मुखतलिफ रंग के थे। मुझे इस वक्त तफसील याद नही है पर कई रंग के थे। एक आध पत्थर लाल भी थे और एक आध काले भी रंग के थे। इन पत्थरों पर कुछ

नक्काशी थी। उन खंबो पर किसी जानदार का चित्र नहीं बल्कि नक्काशी थी। यह नक्काशी मुखतलिफ किस्म की कुछ फूल पत्ती अरायशी और कुछ तसवीर बनी थी।" (पेज–47)

"When I went to the disputed building at first and second time, I saw all the things inside and outside the mosque. Inside the mosque there were a dome, pillars, and a dalan or hall. As far as I remember, there would be 10-12 pillars. Stated that an arch & a member were built in the mosque. As far as I remember, there were pillars of stone. They were not made of cement and lime. The pillars were of different colours. At this moment, I do not recollect in detail about their colours, but they were of various colours. One or two stones were of red colour and other one or two of black colour. There were some engravings on these stones. There was no painting of any living things but only engraving on these pillars. Some flowers, leaves , Arayashi and paintings of different colours were used in this engraving." (E.T.C.)

2525. Then on page 54 he says:

"अजखुद कहा कि उस समय इतने सारे खम्बे वहॉ मौजूद नही थे।" (पेज –54)

"On his own stated that at that time pillars were not present there in such a large numbers." (E.T.C.)

2526. He gave further particulars of his first time visit the disputed building on 27th December, 1939 on page 61-62:

"जब मै पहली बार विवादित भवन में अपनी फैमिली के साथ गया था तो मैने मगरिब की नमाज वहां अदा की थी। मै पहली बार 27 दिसम्बर सन 1939 में गया था। हमारे साथ हमारे फैमिली के मेम्बर्स ने भी नमाज अदा की थी सिवाय मेरी कजिन सिस्टर के। जब हम पहली बार विवादित स्थल पर गये थे तो मेरी गाड़ी उस विवादित भवन के पूरब सडक पर खड़ी थी फिर कहा कि पूरब के गेट की ओर खड़ी थी। फिर कहा कि पूरब की

सड़क पर खड़ी थी।" (पेज 61–62)

"When I, along with my family, went to the disputed building at first time, I offered Namaz there just after sunset (Namaz of Magrib). I went there first time on December 27, 1939. Also, the other members of my family except my cousin sister offered Namaz, along with me. When I went to the disputed site at first time, my vehicle was parked on the eastern road of the disputed building. Then stated that the vehicle was parked at the eastern gate. Then stated that it was parked on the eastern road." (E.T.C.)

2527. His residence at Fyzabad Cantt. was about 5-6 miles from the disputed building. Subsequently at page 68 said:

"पर मेरी याददाश्त ने मेरा साथ नही दिया।" (पेज –68)

"But my memory failed me." (E.T.C.)

2528. He also made corrections in his earlier statement about the topography of the building and on page 73 said:

"मैने बाद में जब अपने बयान को पढ़ा तो मुझे ख्याल आया कि यह सही नहीं है और वास्तव में वहॉ जंगलेनुमा दीवार से पार्टीशन था। चूँकि 12 दिसम्बर के बाद आज ही मुझे मौका मिला इसलिए इस गल्ती को दुरूस्त करने के लिए पहले नहीं कहा।"*

"Later on when I read my statement, I realized that it was not correct and in fact there was a partition by window shaped wall. Since I got opportunity just today after December 12, I could not say earlier to rectify this mistake." (E.T.C.)

2529. According to him he did not visit Fyzabad or Ayodhya after May, 1941.

"मई 41 के बाद मेरा फैजाबाद और अयोध्या जाना नहीं हुआ।" (पेज –80)

"After May 41, I had no occasion to visit Faizabad and Ayodhya." (E.T.C.)

2530. PW-23 Mohd. Kasim Ansari also said to have offered Namaz in the building for about 8-9 years before its attachment in 1949 and last Namaz on 22nd December, 1949. He says:

www.vadaprativada.com

"आखरी मर्तबा वहां मैंने सन् 1949, 22 दिसम्बर को नमाज पढ़ी थी।"

"I last offered Namaz over there on 22 December, 1949." (E.T.C.)

2531. PW-23 is real brother of Mohd. Hashim i.e. PW-1. This he has stated and admitted on page 3 of the statement. Some part of his cross-examination may be noticed herein below to consider the reliability of his statement:

"यह ठीक है कि 22 दिसम्बर 49 के कब्ल से विवादित स्थल से कुछ दूरी पर नेतागण आदि आते थे, मजमा लगता था जिसमें भाषण आदि भी होता था। . . . . . उस रोज़ मैंने ईशा की नमाज सवा सात बजे पढ़ी थी। . . . . . मैं नमाज पढ़ने उस मस्जिद में अपने घर से गया था और फिर वापस घर लौट आया था। मैं उस समय मस्जिद में लगभग आधा घंटा तक रहा था।" (पेज 4–5)

"It is true that prior to 22nd December, 1949, leaders etc. used to visit upto a short distance of the disputed site,

and gathering used to take place in which speech etc. were also given. . . . . On that day, I had offered the Isha namaz at 7.15 PM*. . . . . I had gone from my house to that mosque to offer namaz and had returned thereafter. I remained in the mosque for about half an hour." (E.T.C)*

"जब मैं पहली मर्तबा विवादित ढाँचे में नमाज पढ़ने गया तो मेरी उम्र 12 वर्ष थी।" (पेज 43)

"When I, for the first time, went to offer namaz at the disputed structure, I was aged 12 years." (E.T.C.)

"विवादित मसजिद में 22 दिसम्बर, 1949 को इशा की नमाज शाम के करीब 7.30 बजे अदा की थी। . . . . . इशा की नमाज में मेरे साथ कितने और कौन लोग शामिल थे, इसकी अब गिनती याद नहीं है, न ही मैंने गिना था। नमाजियों की गिनती न करने की कोई खास वजह नहीं थी, बल्कि मन में दहशत होने की वजह से नमाज पढ़कर जल्दी घर लौट आया। " (पेज 50–51)

www.vadaprativada.com

"I offered 'Isha' namaz at the disputed site on 22nd December, 1949 at around 7:30 PM. . . . . As regards how many and which persons participated with me in the 'Isha' namaz, I now do not remember their number nor did I count them. There was no particular reason for not counting the strength of namazists; as a matter of fact, I hurried back home after offering namaz, due to fear in mind*." (E.T.C.)*

"जब मैं आखिरी इशा की नमाज़ विवादित इमारत में पढ़ने गया था तब फारुक मेरे साथ थे। . . . . . 22 दिसम्बर 1949 को अदा की गई इशा की नमाज़ में मेरे साथ हशमत उल्लाह भी शरीक थे। " (पेज 51–52)

"Farooq was with me when I had gone to offer Isha namaz at the disputed structure for the last time. . . . . . I was also accompanied by Hashmat Ullah at the 'Isha'

namaz offered on 22nd December, 1949. " (E.T.C.)

Note: This statement is not corroborated by these two persons Farooq (PW-3) and Hashmat Ullah (PW-7).

2532. PW-3 on page 23 said:

"22 दिसम्बर, 1949 की ईशा की नमाज़ में रहमान साहब और यूनुस साहब मेरे साथ थे।'' (पेज 23)"

"Rahman Saheb and Unus Saheb were with me at the Isha namaz on 22nd December, 1949." (E.T.C.)

PW-3 therefore, did not corroborate the statement of PW-23.

2533. PW-7 Hashmat Ullah on page 60 said :

''हम मस्जिद मे बुत रखे जाने वाला हादसा से 2 दिन पहले मैने आखरी बार नमाज पढ़ी।''

"I had for the last time offered namaz at the mosque two days before the incident in which the idol was placed there." (E.T.C.)

www.vadaprativada.com

Then on page 77, P.W.-7 categorically said:

''22 दिसम्बर,1949 को मैने इस मस्जिद मे नमाज नहीं पढ़ी थी।''

"I did not offer namaz at this mosque on 22nd December, 1949." (E.T.C.)

He (PW-7) at page 77 also denied offering of Namaz on 21.12.1949.

''21 दिस0 1949 को भी मैने वहां नमाज नहीं पढ़ी थी।''

"I did not offer namaz there on 22nd December, 1949 as well." (E.T.C.)

2534. PW-23 further said:

''मैं अब यह नहीं बता पाऊॅगा कि सन 49 में कुर्की होने के पहले मैं किस आखिरी जुमे में विवादित स्थल पर नमाज पढ़ने लगा। यह ठीक है कि कुर्की के पहले मैंने जुमे की नमाज पढ़ी थी लेकिन वह कौन सी तारीख थी और वह कौन सा जुमा था यह भी नहीं बता पाऊॅगा पर इतना जरूर याद है कि जिस महीने में कुर्की हुई थी उसमें एक या दो बार पहले

मैंने वहां जुमे की नमाज पढ़ी थी।'' (पेज 56–57)

"Now I am not in a position to tell on which Friday, prior to the 1949 attachment, I had started offering namaz at the disputed site. It is true that I had offered Friday namaz before the attachment but I am not in a position to tell what the date was and which Friday it was. However, I certainly remember that I had earlier offered Friday namaz there once or twice in the month the attachment had taken place."(E.T.C.)

''सबसे पहली बार विवादित ढॉचे में मैंने कौन सी नमाज और किस समय पढ़ी थी यह नहीं बता पाऊॅगा। शुरू में बचपन में मैं वहॉ खेलने भी जाया करता था पर जब बड़ा हो गया तो नमाज पढ़ने जाने लगा। . . . . . .जुमे की नमाज़ मैंने विवादित भवन के अंदर वाले भाग में पढ़ी थी। . . . . . .जुमे के अलावा जब मैं जमायत से वहां नमाज पढ़ने जाता था तो वहां दो चार छह से ज्यादा लोग होते थे मैंने कोई गिनती नहीं गिनी अंदाजन 10–15–20 रहते थे और कभी कभी उससे ज्यादा भी हो जाते थे। अर्थात पचास हो जाते थे।'' (पेज 58–62)

"I am not is a position to tell as to which namaz I offered at the disputed structure first of all and at what time. In the beginning, in my childhood, I used to go to play there but when I grew up I started going there to offer namaz. . . . . I had offered the Friday namaz in the inner part of the disputed structure. Besides on Fridays, whenever I lined up to offer namaz there used to be more than two or four or six people. I did not count their number. I guess their number to have been 10-15-20 and sometimes their number grew even greater, that is, up to fifty." (E.T.C.)

''विवादित ढॉचे में मैंने तरावी की नमाज भी पढ़ी है। मैं यह नहीं बता पाऊॅगा कि मैंने कै साल की उम्र में तरावी की नमाज पढ़ी थी। तरावी की नमाज रमजान शरीफ के महीने में पढ़ी जाती है। हमने जो नमाज

"I have also offered Taravi namaz at the disputed structure. I am not in a position to tell at what age I offered Taravi namaz. Taravi namaz is offered in the holy month of Ramzan. In the Taravi namaz which I had read, we were through the Quran in 15 days. Hafiz was teaching namaz but I am also not in a position to tell the name of the person who was teaching it. . . . . There was no Hafiz at all in Ayodhya at that time."(E.T.C.)

2535. PW-25 Sibtey Mohd. Nadvi himself has not claimed to have offered Namaz in the disputed building but says that he had been visiting Ayodhya in 1948 and thereafter and had seen people going to Babri Maszid for offering Namaz. His statement reads as under:

''1948 से ही मैंने नमाज़ियों को नमाज़ पढ़ने के लिए बाबरी मस्जिद जाते देखा है। नमाज़ पढ़ते नहीं देखा।.....मैंने ऐसा सुना है कि सन् 1948 के पहले भी बाबरी मस्जिद में नमाज हुआ करती थी।''

"Since 1948 I have seen Namazists going to Babri mosque to offer Namaz. I had not seen them offer Namaz. ....I have heard that Namaz was offered in Babri mosque even before year 1948." (E.T.C.)

2536. The statement of PW-25 about offering of Namaz in the disputed building prior to 1948 is purely hearsay hence inadmissible. He is not personally aware of the same. His visit to Ayodhya was in election canvessing during which he roamed various localities at Ayodhya for about 4-6 days

''इस चुनाव प्रचार के सिलसिले में मैं चार छः दिन अयोध्या घूमा था। . . . . .मैं चुनाव प्रचार के दौरान फैजाबाद में ठहरा करता था।'' (पेज

"I had travelled in Ayodhya for four – six days in connection with the said election campaign. .. . . During the election campaign, I used to stay at Faizabad."

2537. However, he did not visit any mosque during the said period.

"1948 में चुनाव के दौरान जाने से पहले मुझे इस बात की जानकारी थी कि विवादित ढॉचे के अलावा भी अयोध्या में दसियों मस्जिद हैं। मैं दसियों मस्जिदों में से किसी में नहीं गया।" (पेज 14–15)

"Before proceeding for election of 1948, I knew that apart from the disputed structure there were tens of mosques in Ayodhya. I did not visit any of the tens of mosques." (E.T.C.)

2538. He claims to have visited Ayodhya once or twice after the election campaign of 1948 but did not offer Namaz in any mosque.

"चुनाव प्रचार के बाद 1948 में एक दो बार फिर अयोध्या गया था। मैंने अयोध्या में कभी भी किसी मसिजद में नमाज अदा नहीं की।" (पेज 15)

"After the election campaign, I again visited Ayodhya on couple of occasions in 1948. I never offered Namaz in any mosque in Ayodhya." (E.T.C.)

2539. He, however, says that during election campaign Makbool Ahmad and Mukhtar Ahmad Kidwai went to offer Namaz and PW-25 stayed back in the vehicle. On page 16, however, he says:

"मैंने विवादित मस्जिद में मुख्य दरवाजे के अन्दर घुसते किसी को नहीं देखा।" (पेज 16)

"I did not see anybody entering the disputed mosque through the main gate." (E.T .C.)

www.vadaprativada.com

2540. Though he is well educated but did not give date of birth mentioned in his certificates and said that his real date of birth is 22nd September, 1926:

''मुझे याद नहीं है कि प्रमाण पत्रों में मेरी जन्मतिथि क्या है। परन्तु मेरी असली जन्मतिथि 22 सितम्बर 1926 है।'' (पेज 49)

"I do not remember what is my date of birth in the certificates. But my actual date of birth is 22nd September, 1926." (E.T.C.)

2541. When asked as to whether he was present when Makbool Ahmad and Mukhtar Ahmad Kidwai went to offer Namaz, on page 50-51 he said:

''इतना निश्चित कि जहॉ मैं खड़ा व बैठा था वह स्थान विवादित भवन के पिछवाड़े था।'' (पेज 50–51)

"It is definite that the place where I stood and sat, was on the back side of the disputed building." (E.T.C.)

2543. On behalf of plaintiff (Suit-3) i.e. defendant No.3 (Suit-4) number of witnesses have been produced to assert in general that they never saw any Muslim visiting the disputed place or offering Namaz therein. DW 2/1-2 Ram Saran Srivastava, who was posted as a District Magistrate, Fyzabad in July, 1987 and remained there for about three and a half years, in para 23 of his affidavit said that according to his studies and information, Namaz had not been offered in the disputed premises inside the disputed building since after 1934 and the same has not been used by Muslim community collectively or individually to offer Namaz. DW 2/1-2 appears to have born sometimes in 1937, his age being 68 years as per his affidavit

dated 20th January, 2005, the statement in the affidavit obviously is based on personal knowledge of the witnesses, therefore, hearsay for this purpose and to this extent is inadmissible in evidence. However, since he had an occasion to remain in an official capacity at Faizabad and, therefore, could have an opportunity to go through the official records also. Extracts of his statement which throw some light on the position as to how and in what manner, Namaz, if any, was offered in the disputed building or not, we may refer from pages 158 and 175:

''यह रिपोर्ट 23.12.49 की है। इस रिपोर्ट में विवादित भवन से संबंधित दिनांक – 22.12.49 व 23.12.1949 की स्थिति का उल्लेख है। इस रिपोर्ट के पृष्ठ 2 की पांचवी तथा नवीं पंक्ति में यह लिखा हुआ है कि ताला जुमे के रोज़ महज़ दो–तीन घण्टे के लिए खोला जाता है और इसी दौरान मस्जिद की सफ़ाई वगैरह और जुमे की नमाज़ होती है। अगले पृष्ठ पर यह लिखा हुआ है कि आज भी जुमा है तथा मुसलमान लोग जुमे की नमाज़ पढ़ने के लिए फैजाबाद से जरूर आवेंगे। न मालूम क्या हश्र हो। इसमें ''आज'' दिनांक 23.12.49 के लिए कहा गया है।'' (पेज 158)

''This report is of 23.12.1949. This report makes mention of the position of the disputed building as on 22.12.1949 and 23.12.1949. In the fifth and ninth lines on page 2 of this report it is written that the lock is opened only for two to three hours on the day of 'Zuma' and during this period cleaning etc. of the mosque is done and the Zuma Namaj (congregational prayer of Friday) is performed. It is written on the next page that it is also Friday today and Muslims will certainly come from Faizabad to offer congregational prayer of Friday. It cannot be said what will happen. Its 'today' stands for 23.12.1949.'' (E.T.C)

''यह सही है कि उपरोक्त पत्र व्यवहार डिप्टी कमिश्पर फैजाबाद द्वारा किए गए हैं।

उपरोक्त संलग्नक–ए के पृष्ठ –3 की तीसरी तथा चौथी पंक्तियों में यह लिखा हुआ है कि मस्जिद शुक्रवार की नमाज़ को एक घण्टे को छोड़कर शेष अवधि में ''विरान'' डेजर्टेड रहती है।'' (पेज 175)

"It is true that the afore said correspondence has been done by Deputy Commissioner Faizabad.

In third and fourth lines on page 3 of the afore-said Annexure-A, it is written that the mosque wears a deserted look, except for one hour during which congregational prayer of Friday is offered." (E.T.C)

2544. To the same effect is the statement of DW 2/1-3 as per para 17 of his affidavit, though he was not even born in 1934, his year of birth being 1944 (he gave his age as 51 years in affidavit dated 16th February, 2005).

2545. DW 3/1 to DW 3/20 in general have denied user of disputed building as mosque by Muslims and offering of Namaz in the disputed building but their statement is confined to the fact that they did not see any Muslim visiting the disputed place or offering Namaz. The statements in this regard are extremely vague and throw no light on the specific question as to whether Friday prayer on 16th December, 1949 or 5 times prayer on 22nd December, 1949 were offered by any Muslims in the disputed premises or not.

2546. For the purpose of issues in hand regarding limitation under Article 142 L.A. 1908, the question is whether last prayer in the disputed building was offered on 16th December, 1949 or 22nd December, 1949. In our view, none of these witnesses could have thrown any light on this aspect. The other witnesses produced are basically such who either have

deposed about the belief and faith of birth of lord Rama at the disputed place, and/or the existence of temple, and that they and other had been visiting the disputed site and building for worship believing that it was the place of birth of lord Rama. Some of the witnesses are in the category of Expert Historian, Archeologist etc.

2547. Most of the witness have sought to give statement in respect to the events took place more than four and a half decades ago and even more than that. Most of them have also ultimately admitted of their weak memory. On one hand they were very precise to give the date, period and day when they visited the premises in dispute for offering namaz such long back but at the end of the day most of them admitted of their weak memory. Their statements are so contradictory also that erode the degree of trustworthiness thereof. In State of Bihar Vs. Sri Radha Krishna (supra) the Apex Court said;

> "208. Indeed, as a mortal man is not infalliable so is human memory. It records facts and events seen with some amount of precision and accuracy, but with the lapse or distance of time, unless the facts or events are noted or recorded in writing, the facts or events fade, sequences get lost, consistency gives way to inconsistency, realities yield to imagination, coherence slowly disappears, memory starts becoming blurred, confusion becomes worse confounded, rememberance is substituted by forgetfulness resulting in an erosion of facts recorded by the memory earlier. This equally applies to facts merely heard by one from some other person. Thus, if a person having only heard certain facts or events repeats them after a long time with mathematical precision or adroit accuracy, it is

unnatural and unbelievable and smacks of concoction and fabrication being against normal human conduct, unless he repeats some special or strikingly unusual incident of life which one can never forget or where a person is reminded of some conspicuous fact on the happening of a particular contingency which lights up the past such as marriage, death, divorce, accident disappointment, failure, wars, famine, earthquake, pestilence, (personally affecting the subject and the like) etc., and revives the memory in respect of the aforesaid incidents. Of course, if the person happens to be an inimitable genius or an intellectual giant possessing a very sharp and shocking memory, the matter may be different. But, such persons are not born every day. To say, in this case, that all the witness one after the other, were geniuses is to tell the impossible. Weakness and uncertainty of human memory is the rule. The witnesses of the plaintiffs examined in this case are normal human beings suffering from the usual defects and drawbacks of a common man."

"209. Describing the vagaries of human memory, Ugo Betti so aptly and correctly observes:

"Memories are like stones, time and distance erode them like acid."

210. . . . . :

"How strange are the tricks of memory, which, often hazy as a dream about the most important events of a man's life, religiously preserve the merest trifles."

"211. Similarly, Baltasar Gracian in 'The Art of Worldly

www.vadaprativada.com

Wisdom' very aptly puts the frailties of human memory thus:

"The things we remember best are those better forgotten."

"219. .....there is a tendency on the part of the villagers to support a case of this kind by overstating their age so as to introduce an element of personal knowledge in order to prove old genealogies. On the other hand, the Pleader-Commissioner, who recorded the evidence being a lawyer and an educated person, would be in a much better position to estimate the correct age of the witness. However, nothing much turns on this discrepancy and we shall presume that in view of the very old age of the witness, his evidence merits serious consideration. There is no doubt that this witness was closely connected with the family of Bhagwati Prasad Singh, father of the Plaintiff Radha Kirshan Singh as he has admitted to. have scribed many documents on behalf of the family of Bhagwati Prasad Singh. Mukherji, J. also found that the witness was intimately connected with the family of Bhagwati Prasad Singh as this witness and his ancestors have scribed numerous documents for different members of the family and on this ground the learned Judge thought that he would be a more competent witness to depose about the genealogy than any other witness. Assuming what Mukherji, J. says is correct, the fact remains that being intimately connected with the family of the plaintiffs the witness cannot be said to be an independent one and he was deeply interested in the success of their case. Therefore, while this may not be a sole ground for rejecting his testimony his evidence has to be taken with great care and caution particularly when he is not deposing as an eye-witness but as a witness to the genealogy which he may have heard from his ancestors."

"226. Indeed, of this is the primordial and rudimentary reflex of his memory, then it is strongest possible circumstance to discredit his testimony and it leads to an irresistible inference that the story of repeated narration of the plaintiffs' genealogy is nothing but a pure figment of his imagination concocted to help and oblige his relation, friend, philosopher and guide (Bhagwati Prasad Singh). . . . . How can it be believed that if he could not even remembe r the names of his own near relations, he would remember the names in genealogies running into 12 degrees. . . . . we entirely agree with the conclusion of the dissenting Judge that it is impossible to place any reliance on the evidence of this witness."

"233. . . . . This important circumstance shows that his memory is very weak, in which case it is well-high impossible to believe that he would remember the genealogy narrated to him by his grand uncle though he could not give the names of the persons in whose presence the genealogy was narrated to him. He does not appear to have made any note of the genealogy on any paper when his grand uncle repeated the same, nor has he mentioned any particular occasion on which the genealogy was narrated to him . . . . Moreover, human memory, faint and vulnerable as it is not likely to reflect facts of 40-50 years back unless there is something in the shape of a particular document, mode, occasion or something to remind him."

"234. ....his evidence is inadmissible under Section 35 of the Evidence Act on a point of law, viz., being hit by the doctrine of post litem motam. . . . . He relates the facts of the battle of Marui which took place as far back as 1719."

"239. . . . . It is not understandable how he could remember the genealogy narrated to him long before if he could not remember the facts which were directly within his personal knowledge, viz., either the year of his marriage or of the death of his mother. Another person from whom the witness is said to have acquired knowledge of the genealogy is, according to him, Vashist Singh. He admits that he does not remember the time, year or even the occasion for hearing the genealogy from Vashist Singh nor does he remember how many other persons were present when Vashist Singh narrated the genealogy."

"243. Having regard, therefore, to the glaring inconsistencies arid discrepancies in his statement, the shortcomings of his memory which has been demonstratively shown by his subsequent statements as referred to above, it seems that his evidence regarding the narration of the genealogy by various persons is nothing but a cock and bull story."

"244. . . . His evidence also, therefore, us a rule of prudence has to be examined with great care and caution because he is interested in making statements which may go to support his case."

"247. . . . he has been asked to depose parrot like just to support his case. .. . . and gives a most feeble and unconvincing explanation that the omission was due to the fact that Ramruch Singh had gone away to Baraini."

"248. . . . .In this view of the matter, his statement is most unnatural and improbable and even if believed it does not prove the vital missing links."

2548. The stand taken by the Government authorities in their written statement filed in Suit-1 is that due to law and order situation the inner courtyard premises used to remain under lock and opened only for 2-3 hours on Fridays enabling Muslims to offer prayer thereat. No witness, however, has been produced on behalf of the State authorities.

2549. The evidence produced by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) is not creditworthy so as to believe what they have said. There is a report of Waqf Inspector of 10th December 1949 (Exhibit A-63 (Suit-1) (Register 8, page 523-527) wherein he has said:

"Copy of the report of Ibrahim Saheb Abul Bakra dated 23-12-1949 included in the waqf file no. 26 waqf Babri Masjid district Faizabad. The present condition of Babri Majid. To the secretary, on December 22, 1949 I visited Ayodhya to inquire into certain affairs of the Masjid Babri and Qabristan. It revealed the following facts: About 3 months back ...(sic).... a word was around that there should be organized path of Ramayan in the Babri Janam Sthan After Baba Raghudas went back, for about a month back big number of Hindus, Pujaris and Pandits collected. The path continued for weeks. During this period the Bairagis damaged and levelled the land before the Masjid and Qabristan in south ward, they pitched a Jhandi over

there and placed stones on certain graves. Sufficient police force was posted at the time of Ramayan Path, even the certain graves were demolished. The police arrested four persons who were later bailed out The Mazar of Khwaja Shabhi which is situated near the Qabristan, has been demolished and a Bairagi has erected Bairagi Jhanda. On the door of the lawn of the Majid there was a pucca grave which has been levelled and the Bairagis are sitting there placing stones. Near the well of the Masjid a Bairagi is living under a thatched roof. Before the path was held, the earthen pot and lota of the masjid was broken. The Moazzin was beaten up. They tried to dig the wall of the Masjid Two Muslim pilgrims were beaten up and as such they received serious injuries. Now there are two tents outside the Masjid. One of them is occupied by ...(sic).... police constable. In one of the other tents, constables of Batallion are living. They would be 8 to 9 in number. Now the door of the Masjid remains locked. That is to say that except for Fridays. There held no Namaz or Azaan. The keys of the Masjid are with the Muslims, but the police does not allow to open the lock, which is opened only on Friday for 3-4 hours. During this period dusting of the place is done and then Namaz is held. After this is over, the Masjid is again locked. During Friday prayer the Bairagis make hue and cry. When the Namazis pass through the stairs, shoes and rubbish is thrown on them from the adjourning houses. The Muslims are so scared that they do not protest. After Raghu Das Mr. Lohia also visited Ayodhya and delivered a lecture in which he urged the people to grow flower trees in place of graves. After

www.vadaprativada.com

that some officer from lucknow visited this place. The Bairagis told him that the Masjid was the Janam Sthan which should be handed over to them. He warned them against any violence. On this, Bairagis became angry with him, so he returned back to Faizabad with police escorte. Meanwhile Kanak Bhawan Ayodhya ...(sic).... Mahant ... (sic).... Raghubir, Vedanti ...(sic).... Deo Narain Darsi, Acharyaji Ashrmi ...(sic).... Bhawan invited Muslims for a talk. But no Muslim except for Zahoor Ahmad, turned up. The Hindus told him that the Masjid should be handed over to them. Then they will be treated as brothers otherwise enemies. I did not go to Ayodhya in the night. In the morning I came to know that Bairagis are trying to take possession of the Masjid forcefully. Today is Friday I visited the place to see that 10-15 Bairagis armed with ... (sic).... and phaora ...(sic).... were collected in the lawn of the Masjid. Many of the Bairagis were collected outside the door of the Masjid. ...(sic).... City Magistrate Kotwal city and police force are posted there. What will happen to the Muslims who would come here for Friday prayers. Now I am proceeding to Lakar Mandi, Gonda....(sic)...."

2551. This also shows that regular prayers could not have been held in the property in dispute. The overall situation, evidence etc. however, show that on some days, atleast weekly prayer on Friday held in the premises in dispute, and, at least, so far as 16th December, 1949 is concerned, it appears that on that date, Friday prayer was actually held in the inner courtyard but not thereafter.

2552. DW 2/1-2 Ram Saran Srivastava has stated on the basis of the official record that the premises of inner courtyard

kept in lock and allowed to be opened only on Friday for Jumma namaz for about 2-3 hours during which period cleaning and namaz used to be accomplished. This is also fortified from the document exhibit A-64 (Suit-1), which is a report of the Waqf Inspector. The other documents, which we have earlier referred to, also show that occasionally on certain days Adhan (ajjan) was called in the disputed building. On the contrary, no reliable evidence could be placed by the defendants that no Muslim ever entered building in dispute i.e. inner courtyard from 1934 or earlier till the night of 22nd/23rd December 1949. Therefore, while the visit of Hindu public in the inner courtyard and worship during the entire period has been proved, simultaneously it also cannot be said that the Muslims could never enter the disputed building for offering namaz at any point of time since 1934 and onwards.

2553. We, therefore, are inclined to believe that on 16th December, 1949, Friday prayer was held in the inner courtyard i.e. in the disputed building but the claim of the muslims that daily prayers used to be held therein cannot be believed. To this extent, Muslim parties have failed to prove. This does not mean that the entire premises in dispute shown by the letters 'ABCD' in the map appended with the plaint (Suit-4) was in the possession of the plaintiffs but it is only the inner Courtyard which remained open for all.

2554. The entire evidence however does not touch upon the area covered by the outer courtyard except suggesting that only for entering inner Courtyard, right of passage was utilised and nothing more than that. It is evident that the plaintiffs were never in possession thereof. In the outer courtyard on the south-east side there was a Ram Chabootara which was in possession of persons other than plaintiffs and this has continued at least from earlier to 1885 as is evident from the plaint where reference has been given to suit 1885 and the decision of the Court recognising existence of the said Chabootara in outer courtyard. On the north-west side, there is Sita Rasoi/Kaushalya Rasoi which is also being worshipped by Hindus continuously.

2555. At the best it may be said that the plaintiffs or other muslims were exercising right of egress and ingress for offering prayer in the respective part of the disputed building but otherwise in respect to the area covered by outer courtyard there is no averment in the entire suit that it was ever in the exclusive possession of the plaintiffs. It is not the case of the plaintiffs that they were dispossessed from the said part of the land at any point of time within preceding six years or 12 years from the date of filing of the suit. The possession of the area covered by Ram Chabutara and Sita Rasoi in outer courtyard, it appears, the plaintiffs have reconciled that it had been in possession of Hindus since long and, therefore, in respect to this part, we are of the view that Suit-4 is barred by limitation.

2556. The written statement of Mohd. Asgar, para 3 and 4 filed in Suit-1885 makes it clear that Chabutara was constructed in the outer courtyard in 1857 and it was never interfered or obstructed by muslims at any point of time. After the enforcement of L.A. 1859, the period of limitation, in such a case, was 12 years and therefore, in 1869 limitation expired for claiming possession of the said part of the land.

2557. In 1885 suit, the map prepared by the Court Amin shows three non Islamic structures in the outer courtyard and against that no action, as permissible in law, was taken by the Muslims or the said Mutawalli. Assuming that the ownership

lies elsewhere, after expiry of a period of 12 years, the title extinct by virtue of Section 27 of the Limitation Act, 1877 and therefore, even before the enactment of L.A.1908, the right, if any, possessed by the plaintiffs or anyone else in respect to the premises in outer courtyard extinct and stood conferred upon the persons who were in possession thereof.

2558. So far as the inner courtyard is concerned, we have already held that atleast on Friday, if not regularly, then occasionally, muslims had visited disputed building and that visit obviously could be for offering namaz. The official documents, proved by the defendants witness DW 2/1-2 Sri Ram Saran Srivastava show that Friday namaz used to be observed therein. OPW-9 has also admitted that both communities used to worship in the inner courtyard. We find no reason to disbelieve it. But here is not a case of exclusive possession since the defendant Hindu parties and Hindus in general had also been visiting inner courtyard for darshan and worship according to their faith and belief, hence, it can be said that the inner courtyard was virtually used jointly by the members of both the communities, may be to a large extent by the Hindus since Ayodhya is one of the most prominent, sacred and reverend place for Hindus, being the city of Lord Rama, and the place in dispute, they believe to be the birthplace of Lord Rama, it cannot be doubted that must have been visited in a very large number everyday, swollen multi-fold on special occasions of fares that is Ramnavami etc. The importance of Ayodhya from the point of view of Hindus has fairly been accepted and admitted by many of the witnesses of even the plaintiffs (Suit-4) i.e. muslims parties though same thing is not applicable for others. If Hindu people were already visiting the inner courtyard

and the disputed building for worship etc., we do not find any occasion of dispossession of muslims from the premises in dispute or discontinuation of possession as a result whereof somebody else has taken possession in order to attract Art. 142. The only thing which is claimed to have occurred on 22/23 December, 1949, is the placement of idol which according to OPW 1 and some other witnesses is mere shifting of idols of Sri Ram Chandra from the outer courtyard (Ram Chabutara) to inner courtyard. This placement of idol by itself cannot be termed as dispossession of muslims from the inner courtyard or the disputed building in the light of the meaning of 'dispossession' as we have discussed above. This is also not covered by the phrase "discontinuation of possession". It is probably for this reason that in the entire plaint there is not even a whisper that the muslim parties or the muslims or the plaintiffs were dispossessed or discontinued of possession by anyone on any particular date. The averments are different. Most of the witnesses have admitted that since the idols were kept inside the building, they did not go to the disputed building on and after 23 December, 1949. In this view of the matter we do not find that Art. 142 even has any application in this case.

2559. There is another aspect of the matter from which angle this argument may be seen. Suit has been filed for a declaration in respect to the entire area of the disputed building which included inner courtyard as well as outer courtyard. For the purpose of cause of action, the placement of idols in the mosque on 23rd December, 1949 has been pleaded in para 23 of the plaint. Sri Mohd. Ayub, counsel for plaintiffs (Suit-4), who had appeared before the Civil Judge, Fyzabad made statement under Order X, Rule 2 on 28th August 1963 and said:

2560. He again made another statement on 20th January, 1964 to the following effect:

"The property in dispute includes Babri Masjid and appurtenant to its boundary graveyard towards east, north and south .... On the outer side of railing of Babri Masjid and inside the boundary of main gate towards east-south, there is a Chabutara measuring 17 x 21 feet over which a wooden temple of wooden structure is built. In it, neither there were any idols of Hindus in past nor are till now. That place is also a part of mosque of Muslims. He does not know that the place had ever been any use of Hindus or not. It is also not known that the place had ever been in use of Muslims or not. ...."

2561. Therefore, plaintiffs admitted the existence of a Chabutara measuring 21 x 17 feet in the outer courtyard, which has a wooden temple structure thereon. This is also admitted by PW-1 on page 24. Infact it is said in the plaint also. Its existence, as referred to, was the subject matter of suit 1885 meaning thereby the said Chabutara was existing at least since 1885 and always in the outer courtyard of the disputed building. Besides, in the north of the disputed building, there existed Sita Rasoi/Kaushalya Rasoi and on the east-north side, in the outer courtyard, there was a Chappar which is also called Bhandar.

2562. About the above three structures, statement of various witnesses of plaintiffs (Suit-4) are:

(a) PW-1 (Mohd. Hashim)

''पूरब के बाहरी दरवाजे से दक्षिण की तरफ जो चबूतरा है वह 17 x 21

फिट है। इसकी ऊँचाई एक मीटर है। इसके ऊपर छपपर पड़ा है। . . . . . इस चबूतरे पर हिन्दू देवताओं की मूर्ति आने वालो को दिखायी नहीं देती।'' (पेज 24)

"Towards the south of the outside gate in the east lies a chabutra measuring 17x24 feet. Its height is 1 metre. It has a thatched roofing. . . . . Idols of Hindu deities on this chabutra are not visible to visitors." (E.T.C.)

''जो पहले मैंने कहा था पुजारी चबूतरे पर बैठते थे वह गलत है वहॉ पर कुछ लोग बैठते थे ओर यह बात सही हैं यह आम आदमी हिन्दू थे पर पुजारी या साधु नहीं थे ये लोग अयोध्या के नहीं थे।'' (पेज 27)

"My earlier statement that priests used to sit on the chabutra, is wrong. Some people used to sit there, and this fact is true. These ordinary people were Hindus, but not priests or saints."(E.T.C.)

''सन् 1949 में सीतारसोई फर्श के बराबर थी सीतारसोई पर चूल्हा चौकी बेलना चूने गारे का बना था वर्ष 1949 में। . . . . . .शुरू में हम लोग भी उसको करीब से देखते थे उस समय कोई तनाव नहीं था। उसकी आम लोग सीता रसोई कहते थे। हमने यह नहीं देखा कि आम लोग सीता रसोई का दर्शन करने जाते थे।'' (पेज 27)

"In 1949, Sita Rasoi was on a level with the floor. The 'chulha' (hearth), 'chauki' and 'belna' (rolling pin) at Sita Rasoi, was made of lime and brick powder in the year 1949. . . . . In the beginning, we also looked at it from a close range. There was no tension at that time. People in general called it Sita Rasoi. We did not see general public going to have darshan of Sita Rasoi." (E.T.C.)

1885 mention all these three structures in the outer courtyard and that map was never disputed. Exhibit 14 (Suit-4) (Register 10 Page 65) is the copy of the written statement filed by Mohd. Asgar claiming himself to be Mutwalli of Masjid Babari on 22nd December, 1885 and in para 3 thereof he himself said that the Chabutara was constructed in 1857. Para 5 of the written statement mentions about the existence of Sita Rasoi and Kuti also. His further assertion is that orders were issued about their removal but the same was not removed which in effect admits the existence of these two structures also in 1885 and prior thereto. The same has continued till 1950, as is evident from the map prepared by the Court's Commissioner Sri Shiv Shankar Lal Advocate. That be so, it is evident that virtually the entire outer courtyard had remained in possession of Hindus who have regularly visited thereat and worshipped. This is also fortified from Exhibit 15 (Suit -1), the report of the Deputy Commissioner Faizabad pursuant to the Commissioner order dated 14th May 1877 which describes the outer courtyard as Janam Asthan and building as Babar's mosque. Justification given for providing a separate room is rush of people/visitors to the Janam Asthan on fair day. This order also refers to the existence of an image on the Janam Asthan platform for which one Baldeo Das was ordered by Deputy Commissioner on 10th November, 1873 to remove the same. The report, however, does not show that the same was removed at all.

2564. Therefore, in respect to the outer courtyard, claim of the plaintiffs is clearly barred by limitation. In fact it stood barred long back but without making any distinction and without specifying the area of outer courtyard, the suit has been filed to claim the entire premises which includes the area in respect whereto such claim is barred long back and has actually extinct. We find it difficult to separate it and hence, the suit in its entirety has to be held barred by limitation. This is another reason.

2565. In view of the above discussion we have no option but to answer Issue No. 3 (Suit-4) in negative i.e. against the plaintiffs. We hold that Suit-4 is barred by limitation.

2566. Issue 10 (Suit-1) reads as under:

"Is the present suit barred by time?"

2567. Nobody pressed this issue before us. In respect to Suit-1 nobody advanced any argument even to suggest that Suit-1 is barred by limitation. The cause of action according to the plaintiffs arose on 5th January, 1950 when he visited, for offering worship, the disputed premises and allegedly obstructed. The suit having been filed within 10 days thereafter apparently it cannot be said to be beyond limitation. It is accordingly answered in negative i.e. in favour of the plaintiff (Suit-1).

2568. Issue No. 9 (Suit-3) reads as under:

"Is the suit within time?"

2569. The plaintiffs, in para 10 of the plaint dated 17.12.1959 (Suit-3) have pleaded that cause of action for the suit arose on 5th January, 1950 when defendant No. 4 (City Magistrate, Faizabad) illegally took over the management and charge of the temple with the articles kept therein and entrusted the same to the receiver- defendant No.1.

2570. In para 24 of the written statement dated 28.3.1960 filed on behalf of the defendants No. 6 to 8, it is pleaded that the suit in question is not within limitation.

2571. Defendant No. 9, Sunni Board, has not raised any separate objection with respect to limitation in Suit-3. In fact it had filed an application under Section 68 of U.P. Muslim Wakf Act, 1916 on 17/18 March, 1986 for its impleadment as one of the defendant and the same was allowed by this Court vide order dated 23rd August, 1990 wherein the statement of the learned counsel for the defendant No. 9 was also recorded that he adopts the plaint of suit 4 as a written statement in this suit. Defendant No.11 Mohd. Farooq, S/o Paddur Ahmad was allowed to be impleaded by order dated 09.12.1991 passed on his own impleadment application No.179/Ka-1 dated 01.4.1989. This Court also recorded the statement of Sri Jilani, Advocate, appearing for defendant No.11 that he will not file separate written statement and adopts the written statements filed on behalf of defendants No.6 to 8 and Sunni Board i.e. defendant No.9. The Court's order dated 23rd August, 1990 is as under.

> "No objections have been filed against this application. Apart from it, the applicant has statutory right to be impleaded under Section 68 of the U.P. Muslim Wakfs Act, 1960. Accordingly the application is allowed. The plaintiff shall amend the memorandum of plaint so as to implead U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqfs as defendant No.9. Learned counsel for the plaintiff shall carry out the amendment in the plaint within twenty four hours.
> Sri Jilani, learned counsel for the newly added defendant has stated that he adopts the plaint of Suit No.4 of 1989 as a written statement of this suit. He states that no separate written statement shall be filed in this Court."

2572. In the replication dated 13th May, 1963, the plaintiffs, in para 24, while denying para 24 of the written statement has said as under :

"24. The contents of para 24 of the written statement are denied. The plaintiffs have ever been in possession of the temple in suit and no question of expiry of the period of limitation arises."

2573. The defendant No.10-Umesh Chandra Pandey in his written statement dated 21st October, 1991 has also pleaded bar of limitation in para 10, 16 and 17 as under:

"10. That the contents of para 10 of the plaint are not admitted. On the own showing of the plaintiffs, the cause of action arose in their favour on 5.1.1950, whereas the suit was filed by them in the year 1959. Thus the suit has been filed beyond the prescribed period of limitation. Further the plaintiffs, being not the Manager or the next friend, of the Deity, are not entitled to file the suit."

"16. That the plaintiffs' suit is barred by the provisions of Indian Limitation Act, as the same is much beyond the period of limitation prescribed by law."

"17. That the plaintiffs had adequate remedies under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure (as it then stood) against the order, passed by the Additional City Magistrate, Faizabad under Section 145 of the Cr.P.C. The plaintiffs, having not availed of the said remedy within the time prescribed therefor and having not filed the suit within limitation prescribed therefor, their suit is liable to be dismissed on that score"

2574. Here also learned counsel for the plaintiffs could not dispute during the course of the argument that the suit in question would not be covered by Article 142 and 144 L.A. 1908 and therefore, it is Article 120 L.A. 1908 which would be applicable in the case in hand. He sought to rely on Article 47

also. In the light of own averments of plaintiffs (Suit-3) the cause of action arose on 5th January, 1950, the suit having been filed in 1959, it also suffers with the vice of limitation and has to be held barred by time for the reasons we have considered above while deciding Issue No. 3 (Suit-4). Article 47 has no application at all. The learned Counsel Sri Verma also could not show as to how it would cover this case.

2575. Learned counsel for the plaintiffs, however, submitted that for the purpose of limitation, the order dated 30.07.1953 of the City Magistrate Fyzabad deferring the proceedings, should be taken to be the commencement of period for limitation, but from that also we find that the limitation expired on 31st July, 1959. The suit was filed in October, 1959 and in that circumstance also it is barred by limitation prescribed under Article 120 L.A. 1908. We, however, would like to point out some more and different aspects in the matter.

2576. Suit-3 is confined to the premises covered by inner courtyard. The plaintiffs are neither seeking any declaration about the title nor claim that they have been dispossessed by anyone wrongly or illegally. What they actually plead is that the defendant no. 4 City Magistrate, Faizabad, has illegally taken over management and charge of the temple with articles kept therein and entrusted the same to Receiver defendant no. 1.

2577. The City Magistrate, Faizabad, had passed a statutory order in exercise of his powers under Section 145 Cr.P.C. 1898. Neither any declaration has been against the said order that it is illegal or bad, nor, in our view, such order could have been challenged in a suit. Enough remedy was available to the plaintiffs if aggrieved by the said order, by taking recourse to the provisions under Cr.P.C. 1898 itself. The plaintiffs did not

2578. We have discussed in detail that possession taken by a Receiver pursuant to an attachment order u/s 145/146 Cr.P.C. does not amount to deprivation of possession to the real owner but the Receiver holds property on behalf of the true owner. Assuming that any cause of action the plaintiffs had, the same could have been enforced firstly by showing their title or seeking a declaration about title, particularly when the title dispute had arisen, inasmuch as, the Muslim parties had already filed their objections claiming that the entire premises, i.e., inner and outer courtyard was a mosque and this was also being contested in another suit, i.e., suit no.1. The plaintiffs have not shown anything as to how they got title on the property in dispute. The prayer in effect made by the plaintiffs is nothing but a circuitous way of wriggling out of the real question of title and possession knowing it well that the declaration of title has already met the fate i.e. stand barred by limitation. There is no dispossession of plaintiffs by any person, either unauthorisedly or otherwise. Also there is no question of discontinuation of possession. The question of adverse possession does not arise. Therefore, Arts. 142 and 144 rightly have been conceded inapplicable. In the absence thereof the only provision which would be applicable in suit-3 is Art. 120.

2579. The question of continuing wrong also would not apply in the case in hand, inasmuch as, the law laid down by the Calcutta High Court in Panna Lal (Supra) could have been applicable if the plaintiffs could have shown to be the true owner of the property in dispute (i.e. inner courtyard) and not otherwise.

2580. Sri Verma stated that in the revenue entries, the name of the Mahant of Nirmohi Akhara was directed to be entered in 1941 and this shows the title of the plaintiffs over the entire property in dispute. We find no reason to agree. An entry in revenue record does not confer any title. When the dispute of title was already raised, the plaintiffs had to get this dispute settled in one or the other way failing which they would not succeed in claiming possession of the property in dispute (i.e. inner Courtyard). In any case, since Arts. 144, 142 and 47 are inapplicable and the counsel for the plaintiffs has also not been able to show any continuing wrong in the matter, we find that the suit is barred by limitation vide Art. 120 of the Limitation Act. Issue No. 9 (Suit-3) is accordingly answered in negative and against the plaintiffs 41(Suit-3).

"Whether the suit is barred by limitation?"

2582. In Suit-5, the plaintiffs in para 36 of the plaint have asserted that the cause of action for filing the suit has been accruing from day to day. It reads as under :

"36. That the cause of action for this suit has been accruing from day to day, particularly since recently when the plans of Temple reconstruction are being sought to be obstructed by violent action from the side of certain Muslim communalist."

2583. The defendant No.3 in para 36 of written statement dated 14th August, 1989 has denied the contents of para 36 of the plaint. However, specifically no plea with respect to limitation has been taken in the written statement. In the additional written statement dated 20th April, 1992 , the defendant No.3 in para 46 has said that the suit is heavily time barred. The defendant No.4 in paras 36 and 42 of written statement dated 26/29 August 1989

has averred, that the suit is barred by limitation:

> "36. That the contents of para 36 of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. No cause of action ever accrued to the plaintiffs to file the instant suit as they have never remained associated with the management or administration of the property in question. In any case if any cause of action in respect of the property in suit can be said to have accrued to the plaintiff No.3, the same must be deemed to have accrued in December, 1949 when the property in question was attached and when the muslims had categorically denied the alleged claim of the Hindus to perform Pooja in the mosque in question and that being so the instant suit is highly time barred. It is also relevant to mention here that the plaintiff no.3 was required to give the specific date, month and year since when the alleged cause of action is said to have accrued and no such description having been given, the averments of the cause of action are incomplete and defective and the plaint is liable to be rejected on account of there being no cause of action as per averments of the Plaint."
> "42. That the instant suit is highly belated and the same is barred by the Law of Limitation and as such the same is liable to be dismissed on this account alone."

2584. Defendant No.23- Javvad Husain in para 49 of the written statement dated 18.9.1989 has said that the suit is barred by limitation and similar is the plea of defendant No.24 in para 32 of written statement dated 4th September, 1989.

2585. Sri M.M. Pandey, learned counsel for the plaintiffs (Suit-5), however, sought to over come the difficulty which has arisen on account of objection about limitation by relying on

Oudh Laws Act 1876 and contended that it shall override and have precedence over the statute of limitation. He submitted that the Hindu Law since ancient time as it stood remained unchanged either by any Emperor or by any Legislature, hence the law as found originally in India relating to Hindu Deity must be applied. In the case of S. Darshan Lal Vs. Dr. R.S.S. Dalliwall, 1952 All 825 (DB), it is stated in para 16: "In an inhabited country, obtained by conquest or cessation, law already prevailing therein continues to prevail except to the extent English Law has been introduced, and also except to the extent to which such law is not civilised law at all……." The Court reiterated that view in para 18.

2586. This dictum which was laid down in the context of applicability of English Law in Indian territories conquered/ceded, constitutes a reasonable premise for application of then prevailing Hindu law at the time of conquest by Babar. Indeed, Privy Council held in Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj Vs. Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee , Amritsar, 1940 PC 116 at page 120 Col. 2, that "There is every presumption in favour of the proposition that a change of sovereignty would not affect private rights to property". It is nobody's case nor any evidence is led that during the Muslim rule commencing from late 12th/early 13th Century (Mohd Ghauri/Qutubbin Aibak who established 'Slave Dynasty' from 1206 AD) any of these laws was modified. Similarly, it is nobody's case nor any evidence that during Mughal rule from Babar till the advent of governance by East India Company (from 1757 with the Battle of Plassey) or that of British rule from 1858 (with Queen's Proclamation), any modification in these provisions of Hindu Law was made. The British had established regular COURTS to administer justice; Oudh ceded to East India Company in 1856 only. OUDH LAWS ACT (18 of 1876) provided what laws were to be administered in OUDH which includes Ayodhya and Faizabad. This Statute holds good even today by virtue of Article 372(1) of Constitution of India. A number of Acts were enacted governing relationships and situations in the Hindu Society, like Hindu Women's Right to Property Act, Hindu Succession Act, Hindu Marriage Act, Hindu Minority & Guardianship Act etc., both during the British times and post-independence of India, but none was framed to set out the rights, obligations and antecedents of Hindu Deity; hence Hindu Law as known to Dharma Shastras continue to apply to Hindu Deities.

2587. The Code of Civil Procedure covers a variety of Suits, e.g. relating to persons of Unsound Mind, Minors, Corporations, State Agencies but is totally silent on Hindu Deities. The general provisions of Limitation Act would not over-ride the special and clear Hindu Law found in Dharma Shastras which had ensured the rights of Deity to hold good in perpetuity, without interference by the State (King). Only those provisions of period of limitation laid down by Dharma Shastras could be affected by Limitation Act which were modified by any statute on specific subjects of Dharma Shastra provisions. There has never been any statute law governing Hindu Deity & Deity's property including the Temple which is 'His house'. The rights of Deities, Ram Janam Bhumi and Bhagwan Shri Ramlala, have to be determined exclusively/solely on the basis of the Hindu Law as known to Dharma Shastras and not imperfect analogies drawn from imperfect comparisons. He relied on Bhyah Ram Singh Vs. Bhyah Ujagar Singh, 13 MIA

373, PC which ruled firmly, where a text of Hindu Law is directly on a point, nothing from any foreign source should be introduced into it, nor should Court interpret the text by application to the language of strained analogies.

2588. It is pointed out that at pages 67 to 69 of Mulla's "Principles of Hindu Law" that in a very early decision (4 MIA 97-98) Privy Council conceded that 'it is quite impossible for us to feel any confidence in our opinion…….founded upon authorities (Hindu Dharmashastras) to which we have access only through translations, and when the doctrines themselves, and the reasons by which they are supported or impugned, are drawn from religious traditions, ancient usages and more modern habits of Hindoos, with which we cannot be familiar". He contended that these suits are very different from any litigation which figured in the past; they are admittedly of National importance and must be dealt with on a thorough scrutiny of what the true law is. With the adoption of Constitution of India with promises contained in Articles 13, 14 and Preamble, the decisions of Privy Council have only 'persuasive' rather than 'binding' effect: (See 1968 SC 1165, Nair Service Society Vs. K.C.Alexandar). Full effect must be given to Hindu Dharmashastras in these cases specially in the light of Oudh Laws Act.

2589. Preamble to Oudh Laws Act of 1876, "declares and amends the laws to be administered in Oudh" and only in Oudh. It is exhaustive of the Laws which the Courts of Oudh must apply in matters covered by the Act. This position continues even today by virtue of Article 372(1) of the Constitution of India. Section 3(b)(1) lays down what laws are to be applied in questions regarding 'any religious usage or institution, and requires the Courts to apply "custom applicable to the parties concerned which is not contrary to justice, equity_or good conscience, or has not been by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished and has not been declared to be void by any competent authority". Section 3(b)(2) requires to apply "the Muhammadan law in cases where parties are Muhammadans, and the Hindu law in cases where parties are Hindus, except in so far as such law has been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished, or has been modified by any such custom as is above referred to". Reading the two clauses together, the Section sets out the laws which must be applied to 'parties concerned'. In rights/obligations concerning Muhammadans, the Muslim law must be applied; in those concerning Hindus, the Hindu Law must be applied and after determination of those rights/obligations, if rights/equities have to be judged between Muhammedans and Hindus, then Equity, Justice and Good Conscience have to be applied for determination of 'Relief'. Section 3(f) requires to apply ".…….all enactments for the time being in force and expressly, or by necessary implication, applying to ……. Oudh or some part of Oudh". This demands that the Statute Law in force for the time being must be applied. It would be appreciate that this provision itself is Statutory so that the provision makes the Hindu/Mohammedan Law, so to say, to be a Statutory Law akin to 'referential legislation'. Instead of incorporating specific provisions of Hindu/Mohammedan Law into the Oudh Laws Act, it simply require those laws to be applied, wherever they may be found.

2590. Sri Pandey argued that in Bajya Vs. Gopikabai, 1978 SC 793, two categories of referential incorporation are recognised: (1) provision of another Statute is incorporated and

(2) the 'law concerning a particular subject as a genus' is incorporated. In later case, the legislative intent is to include all subsequent amendments made from time to time in the general law on the adopted subject. Oudh Laws Act belongs to second category; the important point is that there has never been any legislation on Hindu Deities, hence the original Dharmashastra law continues to apply.

2591. Section 3(g) requires that "in cases not provided for by the former part of this section, or by any other law for the time being in force, the Courts shall act according to justice, equity and good conscience". Section 4 says that "all local customs and mercantile usages shall be regarded as valid, unless they are contrary to justice, equity or good conscience……." Simply put, the provision accords primacy to 'personal law' (subject to any other law for the time being in force) and applies justice, equity and good conscience only when there is no personal law and that although local custom shall be deemed to be valid, yet Custom will have to stand the test of justice, equity and good conscience. Fundamentally, therefore, Hindu Law has to be applied on the rights/property and incidental matters concerning Hindu Deity and Temples unless such law has been modified by any statute or Custom; no such statute was ever enacted and no case of any modifying Custom ever arose in these cases.

2592. He further argued that, Section 16 of Oudh Laws Act lays down "Rule of Limitation" and applies Act XIV of 1859 to Oudh with effect from 4.7.1862. Act XIV of 1859 provided for one uniform law of limitation for all Courts in British India, but had not provided for extinction or acquisition of rights/title on the basis of possession. Section 16 of Oudh

Laws Act goes no further. Even so, Section 3(f) mentioned that "all enactments for the time being in force and expressly or by necessary implication applying to the territories…….of Oudh or some part of Oudh" will be applied by the Courts; Limitation Act of 1871 could fall within this category but for its exclusion as shall appear shortly. Extinction/acquisition of rights came to be provided for the first time by Sections 27 to 29 of Limitation Act IX of 1871 (vide page 8 of Vol. 1 of "Obhrai's Limitation and Prescription" on Limitation Act IX of 1908 published by Eastern Law House, Lahore and page 7 of Vol. 1 of Sanjiva Row's "Limitation Act 1963" Edn 1987 published by Law Book Co, Allahabad). Since the substantive rights of Deity under Hindu Law clearly provided that its rights are perpetual and cannot be extinguished under any circumstance, it must be treated to be a Statute Law under the Oudh Laws Act; it has only to be found out whether the provision for extinction under Act IX of 1871 is such as falls within the restrictive clauses of Section 3(b)(2) of the Oudh Laws Act. The only restrictive stipulation in that clause is: "except insofar as such law has been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished". Firstly, an Act of 1871 cannot alter or abolish any provision of 1876 Act. It is also significant that although Limitation Act 1871, which had provided for extinction/acquisition of ownership right on the basis of possession, was already on the Statute Book when Oudh Laws Act was enacted four years later and gave Statutory status to Hindu Law by 'referential legislation', Oudh Laws Act did not make a specific provision to curtail the substantive right of the Deity under Hindu Law. Secondly, the provision of 'altering/abolishing' enactment must alter or abolish the Hindu Law, it is not enough to provide for alteration/abolition of rights 'generally.' Limitation Acts of 1877 and 1908 similarly contained provision for extinction of rights similar to Act of 1871, which is not enough to alter or abolish the Hindu Law regarding Hindu Deities. The Hindu Law of Deities and law of limitation under these enactments need to be harmoniously construed. In this exercise, the procedure provided in a Statute for enforcement of substantive rights conferred thereby should be construed as far as possible so as to give effect to and not nullify those rights (1941 Mad 158, Palani Goundan Vs. Peria Gounden). Procedural enactments should be construed in such a manner as to render the enforcement of substantive rights effective: (1959 SC 422 (426), Velluswami Vs. Raj Nainar; 1989 SC 2206, M.V.Vali Press Vs. Fernandee Lopez). Finally, stipulations of Hindu Law regarding Deity, recognised by Section 3(b)(2) of Oudh Laws Act are 'particular' and 'special'; they shall over-ride the 'general' stipulation of Limitation Acts. There is no essential Jurisprudential or Constitutional requirement that for every right/remedy a period of limitation must be enacted; more so in respect of Hindu Deity which is conceived of by Hindu Dharmashastra Law as Immortal, Indefeasible, Timeless, Omnipresent & Eternal. After all, Transfer of Property Act or Indian Trusts Act admittedly does not apply to Hindu Deity. Hence, provisions of extinction of rights under any of the Limitation Acts would be ineffective over the perpetual rights of Deity under Hindu Law. Here, notice may be taken of Manu's edict no. 200 of Chapter 8 (at page 174 of "The Laws of Manu", Penguin Classics, Edn 2000) which lays down: 'If a man is seen to be making use of something, but no title at all is to be seen, then the title is the proof (of ownership), not the use;

this is a fixed rule'. Thus, according to Hindu Law, 'title' not 'possession' establishes ownership and that concept cannot be disturbed summarily through vague interpretations of general provisions relating to Limitation.

2593. Sri Pandey continued to submit vociferously that same result seems to flow from the principle of Reading Down a general provision in the context of the law as a whole, vide All Saints High School Vs. Govt of A.P. (1980) 2 SCC 478 para 112. Since the plain meaning of Section 3(b)(2) of Oudh Laws Act specifically confines the laws of Hindu religious institutions to the Hindu Personal Law, i.e., the Dharmashastra Law, which unmistakably confers absolute perpetual and indefeasible rights on Deity and His property, a mere general provision that the law of limitation would apply to any suit instituted in respect of 'any' property which may also include Deity and/or His property, thereby denying right of suit after expiry of a certain period of limitation will have to be 'Read Down' to prevent deprivation of Deity's clear perpetual rights.

2594. From the angle of Limitation Act, since the Deity who is the owner of the property, suffers from physical disability, its interests have to be looked after in perpetuity. Reliance is placed on Manathu Naitha Desikar Vs. Sundarlingam 1971 Mad 1(FB – para 20).

2595. In a bunch of WPs, decided by a DB of Rajasthan High Court, Ram Lal & another Vs. Board of Revenue & Others, 1990 (1) RLR 161, the DB held in para 8: 'It will not be out of place here to mention that there are series of judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court and the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the Deity or Idol should ordinarily be considered as minor in perpetuity'. In para 10, the High Court again said: "For the reasons mentioned above, we are of the view that the deity/idol should be treated as a minor in perpetuity……" When the offerings are made to the deity, they become property of the deity and not of the temple. Deity owns the offerings and the Pujari or the Shebait shall not be the owner of the offerings and the property of the deity'. This decision was followed in Temple of Thakurji Vs. State of Rajasthan & others, 1998 Raj 85 (para 11). These decisions also laid emphasis on the obligation of the State to protect the interests of the Deity as a perpetual minor. In Sri Banamali Neogi & others Vs. Sri Asoke Kumar Chattopadhyayay & others, 96 CWN 886 (para 10), Calcutta High Court held Deity to be a perpetual minor. Similarly, in Trilochan Das Adhikari & another Vs. Simanchal Rath & others, 1994(II) OLR 602, Orissa High Court held Deity to be perpetual minor. In foot-note (j) at page 12 of Mulla's Principles of Hindu Law, it is stated that grounds of disability were recognised in Hindu Law, for instance there was exemption from limitation in case of minors, property of King and deposits involving the element of Trust; obviously, dedication to Deity involves "Trust"; Indian Trusts Act does not apply, vide Section 1 of the Act. In Bishwanath Vs. Radha Ballabh ji, 1967 SC 1044, it was held that an Idol is in the position of a minor and when the person representing it leaves it in a lurch, a person interested in the worship can certainly be clothed with an adhoc power of representation to protect its interests.

2596. According to Katyayana, Temple property is never lost even if it is enjoyed by strangers for hundreds of years (P.V.Kane Volume III page 327-328); even the king cannot deprive temples of their properties. In Ramareddy Vs. Ranga

(1925 ILR 49 Mad 543) it is held that managers and even purchasers from them for consideration could never hold the endowed properties adversely to the Deity and there could be never adverse possession leading to acquisition of title in such cases. The Idol/Deity which is an embodiment of Supreme God and is a Juristic Person, represents the 'Infinite – the Timeless' cannot be confined by the shackles of Time. Brihadaranakya Upanishad (referred to in Mulla's Principles of Hindu Law at page 8) lays down: Om Purnam adah, purnam idam, purnat purnam udachyate; purnasaya purnam adaya, purnam evavasisyate ['That is Full, this is Full. From the Full does the Full proceed. After the coming of the Full from the Full, the Full alone remains' – at page (v) of Brihadaranyaka Upanishad by Krishnanand, pubished by the Divine Life Society, P.O. Shivananadanagar, District Tehri-Garhwal UP- 1984 Edn.] In Mahant Ram Saroop Das Ji Vs. S.P.Sahi, Special Officer-in-charge of Hindu Religious Trusts, 1959 SC 951 (para10), it recognised that "a Deity is immortal and it is difficult to visualise that a Hindu private debutter will fail …… Even if the Idol gets broken, or is lost or is stolen, another image may be consecrated, and it cannot be said that the original object has ceased to exist". In Idol of Thakurji Govind Deoji Maharaj Jaipur Vs. Board of Revenue Rajasthan, Jaipur, 1965 SC 906 (para 6), it is laid down: "An Idol which is juridical person is not subject to death because the Hindu concept is that the Idol lives for ever ……" Timelessness, thus, abounding in the Hindu Deity, there cannot be any question of the Deity losing its rights by lapse of time. Jurisprudentially also, there seems to be no essential impediment in a provision which protects the property rights of disabled persons, like a Deity, to remain outside the vicissitudes of human frailties for ensuring permanent sustenance to it and therefore to keep it out of reach of human beings, including the King. Every law is designed to serve some social purpose; the vesting of rights in Deity, which serve the social purpose indicated above since ancient times, is quite in order to serve social good.

2597. Oudh Laws Act has laid emphasis on application of principles of equity, justice and good conscience; but it is necessary to appreciate in what fields or areas, the Act requires those principles to be applied. Clause (g) of Section 3, lays down the broad principle that "in cases not provided for by the former part of this section or by any other law for the time being in force", Court has to act in accordance with justice, equity and good conscience. Section 3(b)(2) clearly stipulates that in matters relating to Hindu religious institutions, the Hindu Law shall apply; hence Clause (g) will not apply. Justice, equity and good conscience is made applicable to 'Custom' under Section 3(b)(1), but the law regarding Deity is part of 'personal law' under Section 3(b)(2) as distinguished from 'customary law'. Mulla mentions at page 65, that principles of Equity, Justice & Good Conscience were invoked only in cases for which no specific rules existed. In Gurunath Vs.Kamalabai 1955 S.C. 206, it has been held that in the absence of any clear Shastric text, Courts have authority to decide on principles of justice, equity and good conscience.

2598. It is a settled principle that 'Equity' follows 'Law', i.e. where Law is applicable, considerations of Equity do not come into play (vide, Halsbury's Laws of England 4th Edn, Vol 16, para 1204). Since Hindu Law specifically prescribes that the rights of Deity are not destroyed by another's possession

howsoever long, 'equity' cannot be applied to deprive the rights of Deity on the basis of possession.

2600. In Acharya Maharishi Narendra Prasad ji Vs. State of Gujarat, (1975) 1 SCC 2098 (para 26), while upholding the right of State to acquire property of Deity under Article 31 of the Constitution, laid down an exception by holding: "If on the other hand, acquisition of property of religious denominations by the State can be proved to be such as to destroy or completely negative its right to own or acquire movable and immovable property for even the survival of a religious institution, the question may have to be examined in a different light". This dictum was reaffirmed by Apex Court in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui's case, 1995 SC 605 (para 79); it was further held in para 77: "The protection under Article 25 and 26 of the Constitution is to religious practice which forms an essential and integral part of the religion"; the law stated in para 78 is: "While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially". This decision is in this very case and has to be respected fully. In the summary contained in para 82, the Court observed: "Obviously, the acquisition of any religious place is to be made only in unusual and extraordinary situations for a larger public purpose keeping in view that such acquisition should not result in extinction of the right to practice the religion, if the significance of that be such". Undoubtedly, Asthan Ram Janma Bhumi , Plaintiff No. 2 of OOS 5 of 1989, belongs to this very category of Deity – Class entirely by itself; hence the State can not acquire either the Deity or its property.

2601. As an independent special Class of person, there is no constitutional impropriety or illegality in having laws exclusively applicable to the Plaintiff-Deities of OOS 5 of 1989. A recent analogy is provided by The Public Waqfs (Extension) of Limitation Act, 1959 which accords a privilege to all the Muslim Public Waqfs in the period of limitation for certain types of civil suits upto 31st day of December 1970 for the only reason that in the wake of the partition of India Mutawallis of certain properties had migrated to Pakistan or those who stayed behind could not institute civil proceedings for recovery of possession of these properties. On this basis limitation has been extended in respect of all Public Waqfs. Similarly, laws exclusively applicable to Hindu deities could be had and read in the light of Oudh Laws Act, 1876, could apply the Hindu Dharma Shastra Law, which contains substantive as well as provisions relating to Limitation qua Hindu Deities. The legal position under the Hindu Dharma Shastra Law being as the one indicated above, destruction of Hindu Temple at the site of disputed structure or erection of Babri Masjid over it could never deprive the two Deities, Ram Janma Bhumi & Bhagwan Shri Ramlala of their ownership of the disputed property/area;

the Indian Law of Limitation is not applicable at all. Decision of Supreme Court in Shah Bano's case was upset by the Parliament on the ground of sensitivities of Muslim Community for Muslim Personal Law. Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937 was framed to apply personal law to Muslims. Sensitivities of Muslims stand even today in the way of adoption of a Common Civil Code for India envisaged by Article 44 of Directive Principles of State Policy in our Constitution. The Constitutional protection, if any, for such laws should also support special laws in the case of Hindu Deity, on principles of equality, particularly in view of Oudh Laws Act 1876 and Article 372(1) of the Constitution, he submitted.

2602. He relied on "The Hindu Law of Religious and Charitable Trusts" by B.K. Mukherjea para 4.10, page 158 which says:

> "A Hindu idol is, according to long-established authority, founded upon the religious customs of the Hindus, and the recognition thereof by courts of law, a 'juristic entity.' It has a juridical status, with the power of suing and being sued. Its interests are attended to by the person who has the deity in his charge and who in law is its manager, with all the powers which would, in such circumstances, on analogy, be given to the manger of the estate of an infant heir. It is unnecessary to quote the authorities; for this doctrine, thus simply stated, is firmly established."

2603. He refers to the "History of Dharma Shastra" by P.V. Kane, Vol. III Page 327-328–Narad IV, Page-83, where it states that women's property (Streedhana) and state property (land) is not lost even after hundreds of years when it is enjoyed without title. Katyayana (330) adds to the above list Temple

Property and what is inherited from the father or mother.

2604. Akin to an infant, in law the rights of the deity cannot be extinguished by limitation and he fortified this proposition referring to Pramatha Nath Mullick Vs. Pradyumna Kumar Mullick (supra), (Page 140) and Bimal Krishna Ghosh Vs. Shebaits of Sree Sree Ishwar Radha Ballav Jiu (supra) (Page 340).

2605. Referring to K. Manathunaitha Desikar Vs. Sundaralingam, AIR 1971 Madras 1 (FB) Sri Pandey submitted that since deity who is the owner of property suffers from physical disability, its interests have to be looked after in perpetuity.

2606. Sri Pandey also referred to Chapter 7 of the "Laws of Manu" (Penguin Classics, Edn 2000) at page 149, Manu's edicts nos. 201 to 203 lay down that on conquest, the King-conqueror "should make authoritative their own laws (i.e. of the vanquished) as they have been declared……"

2607. Ram Janmabhumi continued to exist as a Swayambhu Deity, owning Itself and the Temple, hence no question of extinction of title by Limitation or dispossession could arise. The important aspect of Hindu Law relating to Deities, thus, is that the Deity is never divested of its rights in its property; in the case of self-revealed Idol, coupled with the faith of its followers, there is no independent consecration and the real owner of the property dedicated to a Temple, is deemed to be God Himself represented through a particular Idol or Deity which is merely a symbol.

2608. Sri K.N. Bhat, Senior Advocate sought to argue that the deity being a minor, is entitled to have the protection under Section 6 of the Limitation Act and hence Suit-5 in the case in hand cannot be said barred by limitation.

2609. Sri Bhat contended that Suit-5 was filed seeking a declaration for the entire premises described and delineated in Annexures 1, 2, and 3 of Sri Ramjanambhumi at Ayodhya as belong to plaintiff-deities but after the decision of the Apex Court in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui (supra), the land in dispute would automatically confine to that which is occupied by the disputed stricture, i.e., inner and outer courtyard. Suit was filed in July 1989 and, hence, for the purpose of limitation it would be governed by LA 1963. Article 58 thereof is relevant which deals where a suit is filed to obtain any other declaration and limitation prescribed therefor is three years from which the period begins to run, i.e., right to sue first accrues. He submits that this period prescribed is subject to Section 4 to 24 of LA 1963. Section 6 (1) deals with legal disability and reads as under:

> "Where a person entitled to institute a suit ...at the time from which the prescribed period is to be reckoned is a minor...he may institute the suit...within the same period after the disability has ceased".

2610. For the purpose of attracting Article 58, the relevant date is when the right to sue first accrues. In this regard Sri Bhat submits that in the long history of this case on what date according to the defendants the period began to run is the moot question. Unless the defendants prove otherwise the plaint averments as to the cause of action should be the basis for applying the provisions about limitation. Plaint paragraph 18 explains why the present suit was filed despite the pendency of several other suits. In paragraph 30, it is pleaded, among others, that the Hindus were publicly agitating for the construction of a grand temple in the Nagar style. “Plans and a model of the proposed Temple have already been prepared by the same family of architect who built the Somnath temple. The active movement is planned to commence from September 30, 1989 and foundation stone of the new temple building, it has been declared, shall be laid on November 9, 1989.” The plaint also sets out the details of the pending proceedings under Sec.145 Cr.P.C. and before any of the steps mentioned in paragraph 30 could be taken like laying of the foundation stone, the title of the plaintiffs had to be declared. That is why on July 1, 1989, the suit was filed. Paragraph 36 of the plaint has to be read along with the other relevant averments. The defendant No.4 in response to the above paragraphs has asserted that the whole Rama temple was imaginary. It is no longer imaginary. It is a matter of public knowledge that the agitation for building a temple at the disputed area had gathered momentum throughout India, particularly from about the year 1989 culminating in the destruction of the structure on December 6, 1992. The averment that in 1989, there was a particular reason why the suit had to be filed is properly pleaded and justified. Therefore the suit is within the prescribed period of limitation."

2611. Per contra learned counsels for pro mosque parties submitted that it has been held by a Division Bench of this Court in Chitar Mal Vs. Panchu Lal (supra) that an idol is not a perpetual minor hence Section 7 of the Limitation Act (now Section 6) has no application and this view has also been followed by a Division Bench of Orissa High Court in Radhakrishna Das Vs. Radha Ramana Swami (supra), there is no question of giving benefit of Section 6 to the plaintiffs 1 and 2 (Suit-5). They further submit that the building in dispute

having been constructed several hundred years ago, the suit in question is ex facie barred by limitation.

2612. Sri Siddiqui, learned counsel appearing for the Muslim Parties, whose submission on the question of limitation has been adopted by Sri Jilani, contended that the entire reading of the plaint of Suit-5 does not show any accrual of right to sue within the period of limitation and, therefore, firstly there is no cause of action, whatsoever, and secondly in any case, the suit is ex facie barred by limitation. He submits that even if there existed any temple at site in dispute and as claimed by the plaintiffs (Suit-5) that it was demolished in 1528 so as to construct the disputed structure, a mosque, is taken to be correct, that shows that the right to sue accrued in 1528. The building had continued to exist at the site in dispute till Suit-5 was filed and when for the last four hundred years no remedy, as permissible in law, was availed by the plaintiffs, the same could not have been availed by the plaintiffs in 1989. He further submits that the latest cause of action, if any, at the best accrued on 29th December 1949 when the premises constituting inner courtyard was attached by the Magistrate in the proceedings initiated under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and if that be so, the point of commencement of limitation is the date of order passed under Section 145 Cr.P.C., i.e., 29th December, 1949. The suit having not been filed within the period of limitation of six years, as provided at that time under Article 120 of LA 1908, the present suit is ex facie barred by limitation particularly in the absence of any fresh cause of action having accrued to the plaintiffs as no such fresh cause of action has been demonstrated or specified in the plaint.

2613. Whether Suit-5 is barred by limitation or not is really a vexed question in the peculiar facts and circumstances of this case. We have already held that the two plaintiffs no. 1 and 2 are juridical persons and have decided the concerned issues accordingly. The question as to whether the disputed structure was constructed in 1528 by Babar or any of his agent has also been decided by us holding that the parties concerned have failed to prove the said issues.

2614. Be that as it may, it cannot be disputed that by the time Father Joseph Tieffenthaler visited the area of Avadh between 1766 to 1771, the disputed structure had already come into existence. As per local belief, it was caused by Aurangzeb after demolishing the then existing temple of Lord Rama at that very place. Though we have not expressed any final opinion as to whether it was actually constructed during the reign of Aurangzeb or not, but once it is certain that the disputed structure had come into existence by the time Father Joseph Tieffenthaler visited Ayodhya i.e. before 1766, even from that date more than two hundred years have passed. The question would be, can an issue be raked up after more than two centuries particularly when nothing governed at that time by any codified law but it was the rule of the King and his command was law of the land.

2615. Lots of authorities have been cited before us to suggest as to what is said in law of Shariyat when a Ruler conquers a territory vis a vis the subject of that territory. Similarly, what is said in Hindu laws in similar circumstances has also been placed before us. In the context of the modern International law also, various charters of United Nations dealing with the rights of the two sovereign authorities, dealing with the matter of transfer of power etc. have been cited. It is said that by mere change of King, the laws by which the subject was governed or was being governed would not automatically change and shall continue to be governed by the then existing personal laws. On behalf of plaintiffs (Suit-5), it is pointed out that under Hindu law the rights and privileges of the deity are well protected and it is also the obligation of the King to extend such protection since a deity is treated to be a minor and, therefore, the obligation of protection of minor's right has been imposed upon the King. The law of Shariyat also does not make any change. Further at that time there was no period of limitation prescribed under the statute, hence, the present suit cannot be said to be barred by limitation.

2616. First of all, let us examine the occasion and the purpose for which Suit-5 has been filed. Paragraphs 3 to 10 refer to various suits filed regarding the property in dispute between 16.1.1950 to 18.12.1961 in the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad and the interim injunction orders passed therein. Paras 11, 12, 13 and 14 complain about non disposal of those matters despite passage of more than 25 years since the first suit was filed. It also says that the plaintiffs deities and their devotees are unhappy with the prolonged delay in disposal of those cases and distorted affairs of temple in the hands of Receiver. A large amount of money offered by worshippers is being misappropriated by Pujaries and other temple staff uncontrolled by Receiver. The devotees of plaintiffs deities desire to construct a new temple at the disputed site after removing the old structure. Then para 15 to 17 relates to creation of a Trust, its object and purpose. In para 18, it says that in pending suits, the deities who are juridical persons have not been impleaded though they have a distinct personality of their own, separate from their worshipers and servers etc. Considering the events of previous four decades, the plaintiff-deities feel that their point of view also need be placed before the Court for a just determination of the dispute relating to Sri Ramjanambhumi, Ayodhya and the land and building and other things appurtenant thereto. It is in these circumstances that the plaintiffs are advised to file a fresh suit of their own. Then in paras 19 to 23 certain historical facts have been averred which we have already given, thus not repeating. In para 24, it is said that building constructed in the shape of mosque could not have been so for the reason that it did not conform to tenets of Islam in various ways. Paras 25 and 26 deny the averments that despite construction of the building and called as Mosque, prayer was never offered therein by the Muslims and on the contrary, the plaintiffs deities were continued to be worshipped thereat by Hindus. Paras 27 and 18 relate to the incident of 22nd/23rd December, 1949 when the idol of Bhagwan Sri Ram was installed under the central dome of the building and there was no obstruction by the Muslims since neither any one resided near the place in dispute nor otherwise they offered any resistance. The facts regarding attachment proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C., handing over premises within the inner courtyard to the Receiver are also mentioned. Para 29 says that the deities being legal persons own the property in dispute also and having been placed in inner courtyard from 22nd/23rd December, 1949 have perfected their title by all means since they are not party to any of the proceedings. It is also said that in the absence of impleadment of deities, if somebody otherwise is claiming title, the possession of plaintiffs is adverse since 22nd/23rd December, 1949 and they have perfected title as the others' title, if any, extinguished after twelve years from 22nd/23rd December, 1949. Having said so, paras 30 and 31 say that Hindu public and devotees of plaintiff-deities having decided to proceed for construction of a new temple and since the plaintiff-deities are not party in the litigation pending in the Court, they are not bound by those proceedings in any manner, but in order to remove any doubt or obstruction in the path of fulfillment of desire of the construction of a new temple, the present suit has been advised to be filed. Thereafter, it is said that the defendants 4, 5 and 6, i.e. the Muslims parties and Sunni Board, have confined their claim in Suit-4 to the building and area encroached in the inner courtyard. It is also said that the right of management of a Mosque, Muslim waqf, is within Mutwalli and the defendant no. 23, Late Javvad Husain was disclosed to be Mutwalli of the so claimed Mosque upto 1940 and hence he has been impleaded in the present suit, but he did not file any suit or joined as plaintiff seeking possession of the property in dispute being its Mutwalli. This also shows that there existed no Mosque according to Shariyat law. Thereafter, History from 1990 to 1995 including the enactment of Act, 1933 and the Apex Court's decision in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui (supra) is mentioned. Then in para 36, it is said that cause of action for suit is accruing from day to day, particularly, since recently when the plan for re-construction of temple is sought to be obstructed by violent action from the side of Muslim community. Based on the above pleadings, the two reliefs have been sought; one is for declaration and another for perpetual injunction.

2617. The facts, as are pleaded, in fact, are a bit puzzle-some and make it very difficult at first flush to understand as to what really cause of action was which the plaintiffs claim to have accrued day to day and how the suit is protected from the clutches of the statute of limitation.

2618. To understand the things, let us first summarize the facts as pleaded, mostly whereof, we have already referred and some of which already considered in the earlier part of this judgement.

(a) The place in dispute is believed by Hindus as the birthplace of Lord Rama. Since time immemorial continuously being visited and worshipped by Hindus.

(b) At the place in dispute a non-Hindu structure was raised by or on behalf of or at the command of a Muslim Ruler before the visit of Tieffenthaler, i.e., 1766-71 AD in Oudh. This structure was treated and called as 'Mosque' by the local people throughout and others also.

(c) Despite construction of a building by Muslim Ruler, called and understood by the local people as 'Mosque', Hindu people continued to visit and offer worship according to their faith and belief that the place is where Lord Rama was born and, therefore, sacred and pious.

(d) Construction of the building, which though treated as Mosque, caused no impact on the belief of Hindus about the sacredness or piety in any manner.

(e) Within the premises of the undivided Mosque, there existed a non Islamic structure, i.e. a Bedi which was noticed by Tieffenthaler in his Traveller's Account when he visited Avadh area between 1766 to 1771 and the travel account published in 1786.

(f) This place of worship and non Islamic structures added with the passage of time, i.e., Sita Rasoi/ Kaushalya Rasoi/ Chhati Pujan Sthal, Chhappar/ Kuti/ Bhandar and

(g) These structures were noticed in 1858, 1873, 1885, 1949, 1950 and continued till demolition of the entire disputed structure on 6th December 1992. (This is as per the record of this case.)

(h) Despite the entire disputed structure called Mosque, the British Government also recognised the rival claims of two communities; inasmuch, to pacify violent dispute among the two communities, they divided the disputed area in two parts so that two sections may separately offer their prayer/ worship and may not have any occasion to clash with each other.

(i) Despite this division, on one hand Hindus kept possession of the portion for which Britishers allowed them to continue their worship i.e. outer courtyard, but also continued to enter the portion meant for Muslims for their religious activities (i.e. inner courtyard). Entry of Hindus in that area (inner courtyard) continued unabashed despite repeated complaints, removal orders, actions etc. (Record from 1858 to 1885 fortify it.)

(j) The disputed structure, treating a Mosque, the Britishers, allowed a Nankar/ grant to two Muslim persons, namely, Mir Razzab Ali and Mohd. Asghar, who claimed to be the fourth/fifth in succession of the alleged founder Mutwalli of the building in dispute, i.e. Syed Abdul Baki and pursuant to that grant the said persons claimed to have incurred expenses on the maintenance of building in dispute such as white washing, cleaning repairing etc.

(k) On 22nd/23rd December, 1949, the idols of Ram Lala

were kept by Hindus in the inner courtyard i.e. the premises meant to be used by Muslims by the Britishers after dividing premises sometimes in 1856-57.

(l) Thereafter, on 29rd December 1949 though the internal part of the disputed premises, i.e. inner courtyard was attached by the Magistrate by an order under Section 145 Cr.P.C. yet the fact remains that he also ensured worship of the idols kept under the central dome in the inner courtyard according to Hindu Shastrik laws and to the same effect an injunction order was also passed by Civil Court on 16.1.1950 clarified on 19.1.1950, confirmed on 3.3.1951, which attained finality after dismissal of F.A.F.O. No. 154 of 1951 by this Court on 26th April 1955.

(m) Worship, as permitted, has continued by Hindu people and admittedly since 23rd December 1949 no Muslim either has entered the entire premises in dispute or offered Namaz thereat.

(n) However, worship by Hindus in general since 29.12.1949 also had continued from the iron grilled door of the dividing wall and only priests/ Pujaries were allowed to enter the premises for worship in accordance with Shastrik procedure.

(o) In 1986, the District Judge Faizabad by order dated 1.2.1986 directed for removal of locks, to open the doors so that the Hindu public may worship the idols under the inner courtyard by entering the site.

2619. The above facts show that despite several litigations, in one or the other way, so far as the plaintiffs in the present suit are concerned, their status or their worship continued to be observed and followed in one or the other manner. No action or inaction in the meantime was such whereagainst the plaintiffs could claim a grievance and a right to sue which ought to have been availed by them within a particular period of limitation. It is an admitted position that under Islamic laws, no concept of limitation is recognised while in Hindu laws, the rights earned by prescription on certain matters are provided which excludes deity.

2620. In this entire episode, taking it back to a few hundred years, the only occasion which to some extent could have been said to be adverse to the plaintiffs was when the disputed structure was raised. Neither at that time the concept of legal principles, as we have today under the codified laws of British India and thereafter, was recognised and/or known, nor the plaintiffs, in view of the subsequent events, had any cause of action. Moreover, as a matter of fact, the place in dispute continued to be visited by the Hindus for the purpose of worship, Darshan etc. The religious status of plaintiff-deities remained intact. We do find mention of the factum that despite construction of the building as Mosque, the Hindus visited there and offered worship continuously, but we find no mention, whatsoever, that the Muslims also simultaneously offered Namaz at the disputed site from the date it was constructed and thereafter till 1856-57. At least till 1860 we find no material at all supporting the claim of the Muslim parties in this regard. On the contrary, so far as the worship of Hindus in the disputed structure is concerned, there are at least two documents wherein this fact has been noticed and acknowledged. There is nothing contradictory thereto.

2621. Father Joseph Tieffenthaler in his book

"Description : Historique Et Geographique : Del'inde" has written:

> "On the left is seen a square box raised 5 inches above the ground, with borders made of lime, with a length of more than 5 ells and a maximum width of about 4 ells. The Hindus call it Bedi i.e. 'the cradle. The reason for this is that once upon a time, here was a house where Beschan was born in the form of Ram. It is said that his three brothers too were born here. Subsequently, Aurengzebe or Babor, according to others, got this place razed in order to deny the noble people, the opportunity of practising their superstitions. However, there still exists some superstitious cult in some place or other. For example, in the place where the native house of Ram existed, they go around 3 times and prostrate on the floor. The two spots are surrounded by a low wall constructed with battlements. One enters the front hall through a low semi-circular door."

2622. Same thing has been said in the Edward Thornton's Gazetteer (supra) published in 1858. It also said as under:

> "A quadrangular coffer of stone, whitewashed, five ells long, four broad, and protruding five or six inches above ground, is pointed out as the cradle in which Rama was born, as the seventh avatar of

Vishnu; and is accordingly abundantly honoured by the pilgrimages and devotions of the Hindoos."

2623. The factum that in the premises within the inner courtyard, Hindus used to worship for hundred of years has been admitted by the alleged keeper of the disputed structure namely, Mohammad Asgar who in his complaint application dated 30th November 1858 (Exhibit No. 20, Suit 1) has said:

ہنود پوجا کرتے تھے

''मुक़ाम जनम स्थान का सदहा बरस के निशान पड़ा रहता था व अहले हुनूद पूजा करते थे'' (Hindi Transliteration by the Parties)

"Previously the symbol of Janam had been there for hundreds of years and Hindus did puja." (E.T.C)

2624. The first document, which mentions about the worship in the disputed structure by Muslims also is P. Carnegi's Historical Sketch (supra) published in 1970 where he has mentioned:

"It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Mahomedans alike used to worship in the mosque-temple. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which in the mosque the Mahomedans pray, while outside the fence the Hindus have raised a platform on which they make their offerings."

2625. In "Gazetteer of Oudh" by Mr. W.C. Benett (1877) (Book No. 11) (Supra) what was observed by Carnegy has been repeated verbatim as is evident from the following:

"It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Muhammadans alike used to worship in the mosque-

temple. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which, in the mosque, the Muhammadans pray; while outside the fence the Hindus have raised a platform on which they make their offerings."

2626. Same thing was repeated in A.F. Millitt's "Report on Settlement of Land Revenue of the Faizabad" (supra) (para 669); "Fyzabad A Gazetteer being Vol. XLIII of the District Gazetteers of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh" (supra) (at page 174); Fyzabad-A Gazetteer being Volume XLIII of the District Gazetteers of the United Provinces of Agra & Oudh" (1928) (supra) (at page 180)

2627. In "Uttar Pradesh District Gazetteers-Faizabad" (1960) (supra), however, there is slight difference and it says as under:

"Attacks and counter-attacks continued, culminating in the bloodshed of 1855 under the leadership of Maulvi Amir Ali. As a result, in 1858 an outer enclosure was put up in front of the mosque and the Hindus, who were forbidden access to the inner yard, had to perform their puja on a platform outside. Since 1949 the position has changed and the Hindus have succeeded in installing the images of Rama and Sita in the mosque owing to which the spot has become the object of much litigation. Now the inner yard is protected by an armed guard and only a few Hindu pujaris (priests) are allowed access to the inner sanctum."

2628. The facts mentioned by P. Carnegy recognise this fact that so far as the Hindus are concerned, their visit and worship at the disputed site and disputed structure continued unabated and uninterrupted despite having been raised threat a

structure which was known and treated by the local people as Mosque. Even the new structure did not in any manner influenced the belief and faith of Hindus on the disputed area. This continued to constitute core of their belief and faith about birthplace of Lord Rama, its continued sanctity, status and piety and that it had not lost merely on account of that construction. That is how their worship continued throughout.

2629. After 1956-57, when partition wall was raised, the administrative intention was that Hindus should stay in outer courtyard and not enter in the inner courtyard but in fact that could not accomplish as is evident from several complaints made by Mohammad Asgher, self claimed Mutwalli of the Mosque in dispute.

2630. If we look at the entire issue in the light of the above facts, we find that there was no occasion for the plaintiffs to feel aggrieved that on a particular date, any right has accrued to sue. Article 58 of LA 1963 provides the period of limitation, which is to commence from the date right to sue first accrued. Unless it is shown as to when right to sue first accrued, the suit in question cannot be thrown on the ground of limitation. While considering Issue No. 3 (Suit-4), we have already discussed that right to sue does not mean a mere fanciful apprehension but it ought to be a substantive threat to the very sustenance of the plaintiff concerned leaving with him no option but to approach the Court, failing which he is bound to loose all kind of his interest. It may happen that in a particular case, unsubstantial occasions may arise frequently pursuant whereto if a person files a suit asserting that the same has given him an occasion to sue, the suit may not be dismissed on the ground that apprehension or the possible injury is so negligible that he/she ought not have filed the suit. That is the choice of the plaintiff, but, in our view, the "right to sue" accrued for the first time would be when there is a substantial threat necessitating the person concerned to seek remedy and only then it can be said that the limitation would start running which shall not stop thereafter. In the present case, the defendants have not been able to show any such occasion. Therefore, we are of the view that the plaintiffs cannot be non suited on the ground of limitation. In these circumstances, to avoid any misconception in the mind of others and to place the record straight, if they approach a Court of law seeking a declaration of their rights which are continuously, unabatedly have continued, it cannot be said that the suit is impermissible by attracting any particular provision of the limitation. It cannot be said that the Suit-5, in the above facts and circumstances, is bad on account of the statute of limitation and any provision thereunder.

2631. There are some more angles. The first, the Gods are described in view of the hymns and meaning, human attributes – in necessity of the human mind and language but it does not necessarily follow therefrom that images of these Gods clothe in such human attributes were artificially prepared and worshipped. It is to the Puranik age that we owe their existence.

2632. In the ancient Hindu scriptures, temples or idol's property is said not to be lost even if enjoyed by strangers for hundreds of years. Katyayan says that temple's property is never lost even if it is enjoyed by strangers for hundreds of years. In P.V.Kane's History of Hindu Shastra Vol.3 it is said that even the king cannot deprive temples or their properties. Under Hindu laws though right based on prescription to some extent are provided but they are not applicable in the case of women,

2633. "Manusmrti", Discourse VIII, Verse CXLIX (149) says:

"A pledge, a boundary, minor's property, a deposit, a property enjoyed by favour, women, King's property, and the property of a Vedic scholar are not lost by adverse possession."

2634. In "Brihaspati Smriti" says, "Female slaves can never be acquired by possession, without a written title; nor does possession create ownership in the case of property belonging to a King, or to a learned Brahman, or to an idiot, or infant.

2635. "The Naradasmrti", says:

"73. A pledge, a boundary, the property of children, unsealed and sealed deposits, women, the King's property, and a learned brahman's property are not lost through possession."

"75. The property of women and kings is never lost, even if it is, possessed without title for hundreds of years."

2636. "Yagyavalkyasmritih", says:

''आधिसोमोपनिक्षेपजडबालघनैर्विना।
तथोपनिधिराजस्त्रीश्रोत्रियाणां धनैरपि।।25।।

''भाषा– आधि (बन्धक), सीमा, उपनिक्षेप, जड़ (मंदबुद्धि), बालक का धन, उपनिधि, राजधन, स्त्रीधन, श्रोत्रिय का धन दूसरे द्वारा दस या बीस वर्ष तक भोगे जाने पर भी अपने स्वामी के अधिकार से हीन नहीं होते हैं।।25।।

2637. "Shukranitih"Chapter IV, Part 5, Verse 225 says:

''आधिः सीमा बालधनं निक्षेपोपनिधिस्तथा।
राजस्वं श्रोत्रियस्वं च न भोगेन प्रणश्यति।।''

''हिन्दी– बंधक रखी गई वस्तु, गॉव की सीमान्त भूमि, नाबालिग का धन, धरोहर, स्त्रीधन, राजधन तथा वेदपाठी ब्राह्मण के धन पर कब्जा कर लेने से ही कोई उसे पा नहीं सकता।''

www.vadaprativada.com

2638. It may be noticed that the Sanskrit word 'बाल' has been defined in Sanskrit-English Dictionary of Sir Monier Monier Williams, first published in 1899, corrected Edn. 2002, reprint Delhi 2005 by Motilal Banarsidass Publishers, Delhi at page 728 and reads as under:

> बाल- young, childish, infantine, not full-grown or developed (of persons and things); simple, foolish, child, boy (esp. one under 5 years); a minor (minors are classified as Kumara or boys under 5 years of age; Sisu under 8, poganda from the 5th to the end of the 9th or till the 16th year, and kishora from the 10th to the 16th year); a fool, simpleton …

2639. The first meaning which is applicable on persons and things includes within its ambit a "deity" also.

2640. In the area of Oudh, British Rule came into force in 1856 and not prior thereto. During Muslim Rule, Governors were appointed but no material has been brought to our notice that in the matter of Hindu Laws, any interference was made by the Islamic Rulers. It is mostly in the administration of criminal justice, to some extent, there was an interference and control by Islamic Rulers otherwise the people used to approach the locally constituted bodies like Gram Panchayat etc. for resolving their disputes in accordance with their personal laws. It does not appear to be interfered or altered by the command of the king.

2641. When Subedar of Oudh declared himself an independent ruler and conferred Nawab Wazir in the second half of 18th Century, then also with respect to the dispute redressal system there was no major change and the personal laws and tenets continued to occupy high position as it was. In 1801, East India Company entered into a treaty with the Nawab of

Lucknow but even that treaty did not cause any impact upon the personal laws of Hindus within the territorial area of Oudh province with which we are concerned. It is only in 1856 AD, when the area of Oudh or the Oudh province was annexed to the East India Company, the Britisher's Laws came to be imposed upon the citizens of Ayodhya and Faizabad. But then also so long as the matters were not caused by statutory laws, the two communities continued to be governed by their personal laws.

2642. The first Limitation Act was enacted in 1859 AD which did not contain any provision regarding prescription or extinction of right which was introduced vide Limitation Act 1871. In 1876, in the peculiar nature of the territory of Oudh as also considering different circumstances prevailed thereat, Oudh Laws Act, 1876 was enacted which was applicable only to Oudh. Section 3 thereof talks of the statutory law to be administered in Oudh and says as under:

> "Statutory law to be administered in Oudh.- The law to be administered by the Courts of Oudh shall be as follows:--
>
> (b) in questions regarding succession, special property of females, betrothal, marriage, divorce, dower, adoption, guardianship, minority, bastardy, family relations, wills, legacies, gifts, partitions or any religious usage or institution*, the rule of decision shall be-- (1) any custom applicable to the parties concerned which is not contrary to justice, equity or good conscience, and* has not been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished, and has not been declared to be void by any competent

(2) the Muhammadan law in cases where the parties are Muhammadans, and the Hindu law in cases where the parties are Hindus, except in so far as such law has been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished*, or has been modified by any such custom as is above referred to:*

(c) the rules contained in this Act:

(d) the rules published in the Official Gazette as provided by section 40, or made under any other Act for the time being in force in Oudh:

(e) the Regulations and Acts specified in the second schedule hereto annexed, subject to the provisions of section 4, and to the modifications mentioned in the third column of the same schedule:

(f) subject to the modifications hereinafter mentioned, all enactments for the time being in force and expressly, or by necessary implication, applying to the territories which, immediately before the 1st November, 1956, were comprised in Part A States and Part C States or Oudh, or some part of Oudh:

2643. Section 16 thereof provides for Rule of Limitation and reads as under:

"16. Rule of limitation.- The Judicial Commissioner's Circular No. 104 of July, 1860, shall be held to have been a notification within the meaning of section 24 of Act 14 of

www.vadaprativada.com

1859, and such Act shall be deemed to have been in force in Oudh from the fourth day of July, 1862*; and all orders and decrees passed under the rules contained in the said Circular, or under the said Act, shall be deemed to have been passed under a law in force for the time being.*

Nothing in this section affects the provisions of section 102, 104, 105, 106, 107 and 108 of the Oudh Rent Act (19 of 1868) with regard to the limitation of suits under that Act."

2644. Thus the personal Laws in the matter of religious usage of institution and also in the matter of minority etc. were to continue. Hindu idol or the deity was always treated as a person to be protected by the king like a minor or women and that legal position has not been shown to us having gone under change by any authority at any point of time. We have some earliest judgments on this aspect and do find nothing contrary.

2645. In Prosunno Kumari Debya & Anr. Vs. Golab Chand Baboo 1875 L.R. 2 I.A. 145, a decision of Privy Council dated 3rd February, 1875 in para 18 said:

"The authority of the sebait of an idol's estate would appear to be in this respect analogous to that of the manager for an infant heir*, ..."*

2646. It also held in para 14 that the debuttor property in Hindu Law is unalienable:

"There is no doubt that, as a general rule of Hindu law, property given for the maintenance of religious worship and of charities connected with it is inalienable*."*

2647. However, in the interest of the idol, for its maintenance etc. it found that if the Shebait, the person responsible for managing the affairs of the idol, is not given power to deal with the property to the extent it is required for meeting necessities of the deities, that would be against the interest of the deity and its sustenance. In para 19 of the judgment, accordingly, it says:

> "It is only in an ideal sense that property can be said to belong to an idol; and the possession and management of it must in the nature of things be entrusted to some person as sebait, or manager. It would seem to follow that the person so entrusted must of necessity be empowered to do whatever may be required for the service of the idol, and for the benefit and preservation of its property, at least to as great a degree as the manager of an infant heir. If this were not so, the estate of the idol might be destroyed or wasted, and its worship discontinued, for want of the necessary funds to preserve and maintain them."

2648. The Privy Council relied on an earlier decision in Hunooman Persaud Panday Vs. Mmsumat Bdbooee Manraj Koonweree 6 Moore's Ind. App. Ca. 243 in observing the idol as 'infant heir'.

2649. Then Division Bench of Calcutta High Court in Girijanund Datta Jha & Anr. Vs. Sailajanund Datta Jha 1896 ILR 23 Ca1. 645 considered the question as to whether 'Charao' to the idol would be the property of the priest or shebait or not. It was noticed that about the religious endowment virtually nothing has been said in the religious scriptures, may be for the reason that it was sought to be managed by the person who had highest respect and belief that they shall deal with the situation effectively. The court rejected argument that an idol is only an emblem of God, and offerings made to the God, not for use of the idol but for the use of the God's creatures and by priests in particular and said "it cannot, we think, prevail in its broad

generality in a Court of law at the present day. Decisions too clear and authoritative to be doubted or disregarded have repeatedly laid down that an idol in Hindu law is capable of holding property, and that property dedicated to an idol belongs to an idol*."*

2650. Again in Palaniappa Chetty and Anr. Vs. Deivasikamony Pandara 1917 L.R. 44 I.A. 147 in para 7 the Court said:

> "In Prosunno Kumari Debya v. Golah Chand Baboo L.R. 2 Ind. Ap. 145, 151 the Rajah Baboo, the shebait of an idol, a man of profligate habits, having spent the income of the debottar property on his own pleasures, borrowed a sum of Rs. 4000 from the respondent, and, by a bond and rahinama, pledged the debottar property for the payment of this sum. In both these securities it was stated that the money was borrowed for the services of the idol and the expenses of the temple. The Zillah Judge before whom the case was tried held as a fact that the money had been borrowed and expended for these purposes. Two decrees were obtained by the respondent, the lender, against the shebait, each directing that the debt should be paid by the shebait personally, or else be realized out of the profits of the debottar land. The appellant, the successor in office of Rajah Baboo, instituted a suit to set aside these decrees and have the debottar property released from an attachment issued in execution of them. The point decided was that the decrees, being untainted by fraud or collusion, and having been passed after the necessary and proper issues had been raised and determined, had the force of judgments of a competent Court and were binding on the appellant, the succeeding shebait, who was a continuing representative of the idol's property. Though the question was not raised whether the debottar lands themselves could be sold under the above-mentioned decrees, the passage from the judgment of Knight Bruce L.J., above extracted, was quoted, and some observations were made by Sir Montague E. Smith, who delivered the judgment of the Board, touching the alienability of debottar land which have been relied upon. First, the learned judge said : "There is no doubt that as a general rule of Hindu law property given for the maintenance of religious worship and of charities connected with it is inalienable," and then, after quoting a passage from the judgment of Lord Chelmsford in a case to be presently referred to, he proceeds thus: "But notwithstanding that property devoted to religious purposes is, as a rule, inalienable, it is in their Lordships' opinion competent for the shebait of property dedicated to the worship of an idol, in the capacity as shebait and manager of the estate, to incur debts and borrow money for the proper expenses of keeping up the religious worship, repairing the temples or other possessions of the idol, defending hostile litigious attacks and other like objects. The power however to incur such debts must be measured by the existing necessity for incurring them. The authority of the shebait of an idol's estate would appear to be in this respect analogous to that of the manager for an infant heir as denned in a judgment of this Committee delivered by Knight Bruce L.J." On the next page he adds : "It is only in an ideal sense that property can be said to belong to an idol; the possession and management of it must, in the nature of things, be entrusted to some person as shebait or manager*. It would seem to follow that the person so entrusted must of necessity be empowered to do whatever may be required for the service of the idol and* for the benefit and preservation of its property at least to as great a degree as the manager of an infant heir. If this were not so the estate of the idol might be destroyed or wasted and its worship discontinued for want of the necessary funds to preserve and maintain them."

2651. The status of idol as a minor has not been disputed or challenged in any authority whether of High Court or judicial committee/Privy Council in the pre-independent period or thereafter in the Apex Court. It is only with respect to Section 7 or Section 6, as the case may be, in various statutes of limitation where special provision in respect to legal disability have been made, some of the authorities have said that for the purpose of the aforesaid statutory provision idol cannot be considered 'a minor' for all the purposes i.e. in perpetuity.

2652. In Kuarmani Singha Vs. Wasif Ali Murza 1915(28) I.C. 818; Rami Kuar Mani Singh Vs. Nawab of Murshidabad AIR 1918 PC 180; Sarat Kamini Dasi Vs. Nagendra Nath Pal AIR 1926 Cal. 65 and Deutsch Asiatische Bank Vs. Hiralal Burdhan & Sons 1918 (47) I.C. 122 it was observed that Section 6 of the Limitation Act recognises only three classes of persons being under legal disability namely minor, insane and idiot and thus it cannot be extended any more. A Division Bench of Patna High Court in Naurangi Lal & Others Vs. Ram Charan Das AIR 1930 Patna 455 noticing the above decisions and also that there appears to be some deficiency in the existing law of limitation, held that the Court is bound by the said decisions and therefore, benefit of section 6 cannot be made available to a minor. This decision of Patna High Court was set aside in appeal by the Privy Council in Mahanth Ram Charan Das. Vs. Naurangi Lal (1933) L.R. 60 I.A. 124.

2653. What we find is that three kinds of legal disability provided in the Limitation Act do not talk of the nature of person whether legal or natural. We have referred to some of ancient Hindu scriptures to throw some light on the concept, status and position of idol in Hindu religion for the purpose that the idol was treated to be in the position of a minor not because of the recognition or declaration by British Indian Courts about its being a legal person or juridical person but because of the then existing and continuing position of the idol in Hindu law being treated as minor and capable of holding and acquiring property and in furtherance thereof, its recognition as legal person was granted. Therefore, the idol enjoyed the status of a minor not by virtue of subsequent declaration of law but on account of the recognition of its pre-existing status before the application of the codified laws during British regime whether it was prior to the take over by the British Government or subsequent thereto.

2654. No decision has doubted the status of idol as a minor or infant. Then the next question comes up if it enjoys the status of minor or infant, can it be said that this status is good for a few purposes and not for others, and, if so, what is the logic or rationality of this differentiation and the basis thereof.

2655. It is true where an idol's property is being looked after by a Shebait, the law expected him to discharge duties

effectively and honestly. Similarly, beneficiaries of the deity i.e. the worshippers can also take appropriate action for protection of idol and its property, as and when they found something wrong. But in a case where both do not act to the degree of expectation, or where there is no Shebait at all, and the worshippers simply confine their attention to the benefits and not to the moral duties of protecting the idol's property etc., can it be said for that reason, the idol shall suffer though it is an admitted position that it being a legal person or a juridical person in law cannot act on its own. The maxim contra non valentem agere non currit praescriptio (Prescription does not run against a person who is unable to act) comes into effect and should be made applicable in the case of idol. We find no reason as to why in such a case it should not be observed. Here we are not concerned with all the juridical persons or legal person and it is not necessary for us to consider whether every juridical person or legal person would enjoy the status of minor or infant or not. Suffice it for us to concentrate only to the case of idol or deity in respect to Hindu law where its status is well recognised under the ancient Hindu scriptures which had continued and recognised as such by the British Indian Courts also. The only exception is that a restricted alienability of the debuttor's property has been allowed and that too for the benefit of the idol so that the necessary expenses and funds for maintenance of deity may be available without any obstruction. In fact this restricted alienability of debuttor's property is consistent with the rights of minor.

2656. This is how in various authorities, status of 'deity' as minor has been considered. In K. Manathunainatha Desikar Vs. Sundaralingam AIR 1971 Madras 1, a Full Bench of

Madras High Court in para 20 of the judgment, observed:

> "The deity, a juristic entity, is the proprietor who never dies but labours under physical disability which renders it necessary that its interests should be looked after in perpetuity. ...."

2657. Following the decision of the Apex Court in Bishwanath Vs. Sri Thakur Radha Ballabhji, AIR 1967 SC 1044, a Single Judge of Rajasthan High Court (Hon'ble Dr.B.S.Chauhan as His Lorship then) in Temple of Thakurji Vs. State of Rajasthan & Ors. AIR 1998 Rajasthan 85 in para 10, said:

> "there is no doubt that by fiction, the deity/idol is to be treated as minor and physically disabled person. It has been recognised by the Court from time and again ....."

2658. The Court followed an earlier decision of Rajasthan High Court in Ram Lal (Supra).

2659. A Single Judge in Trilochan Das Adhikari & Anr. Vs. Simanchal Rath & Ors. 1994 (11) Orissa Law Reviews 602 has also said:

> "Defendant No.9 (Sri Madan Mohan Swamy Bije) is a deity who is a perpetual minor."

2660. The plaintiffs 1 and 2 are deities and juridical persons, as we have already held. A juridical person cannot act in the materialistic world on its own but has to be represented by a natural person. In the context of a Hindu deity, normally it is represented and managed by a Shebait who has the right to manage the affairs of the deity and in furtherance thereof takes all such actions, as are needed for discharge of its obligations of maintenance of a deity, which includes right to file suit or be sued also. This, however, does not mean that the basic right

vested in the deity stands disappeared or extinguished and the deity becomes, in its status, subordinate to Shebait as if right of protection which every owner possess stands transferred to a person who has authority to manage and possess on behalf of deity. These two things are different and on this aspect some of the authorities we have already discussed while considering Issue No. 3 (Suit-4) and issues relating to juridical personality of plaintiffs 1 and 2 (Suit-5). Though it may be a bit repetition at this stage also but we find no escape therefrom in order to avoid any confusion in the matter and also realising the importance and wide ramifications. It is rather more important as the learned counsels for the Muslim parties have raised serious doubt. Thus also, it needs to be dealt with carefully in detail hereat despite bearing criticism of repetition which normally a Court of law avoids.

2661. An idol or deity in Hindu law enjoys a different status and class in itself. As we have already noticed, the Apex Court In Jogendra Nath Naskar (supra) and Deoki Nandan Vs. Murlidhar (supra) recognised that an idol is a juridical person capable of holding property. A Full Bench of this Court in Jodhi Rai Vs. Basdeo Prasad (supra) held that a suit respecting the property in which the idol is interested is properly brought and defended in the name of the idol, although ex-necessitate resi the proceedings in the suit must be carried on by some person who represents the idol usually the manager or shebait.

2662. To be more precise, it is not disputed before us that an idol/deity is like an infant or minor and, therefore, has to be acted through a guardian but what is contended is that the provisions specially made for minor like Order XXXII Rule 1

C.P.C. and Section 6 LA 1963 would not apply to the case of an idol/deity since it is not a minor in perpetuity.

2663. Let us consider first the authorities cited against the proposition that a deity is a minor in perpetuity as to what reasons have been assigned therein. We intend to proceed with Division Bench decision of this Court in Chitar Mal Vs. Panchu Lal (supra). This has been relied on in support of the contention that an idol is not under disability under Section 7 of the Limitation Act (Section 6 in the existing Act) since it cannot be deemed to be a perpetual minor for the purpose of limitation. This Court relied on two decisions of Privy Council in Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra) and Damodar Vs. Lakhan Das (supra). The former is a decision rendered in 1904 and later was handed down in 1910. These two decisions have been followed in some other cases subsequently also. Therefore, it would be necessary to consider them also in detail.

2664. In Chitar Mal Vs. Panchu Lal (supra) one Ram Narain brother of Jai Narain made gift of his share in a joint house property to the idol of Shri Chaturbhujji Maharaj installed in a temple in Ajmere. This gift was executed on 9th January, 1903. The Manager of the temple sold the gifted portion to Smt. Bishni, widow of a son of Ram Narain. On 5th December 1908 Chitar Mal, son of Jai Narain sued for a declaration that the property in suit consisting of half the house formerly owned by his father was trust property and transfer of the said property to Smt. Bishni was null and void and that the property be made over to the trustees of the temple of Shri Chaturbhujji after dispossessing the defendant. The suit was filed after 12 years from the date the Manager of the temple sold the gifted portion to Smt. Bishni. It was pleaded in para 11 of the plaint that bar of limitation is saved by virtue of Section 10 of the Limitation Act. This plea was decided against the plaintiff and Section 10 of the Limitation Act was held inapplicable. The matter came up before this Court in a reference made by the District Judge formulating three questions under Section 17 of Regulation No. 1 of 1877 Regulations. The applicability of Section 10 was not subject matter of reference, as is evident from following:

> "The suit was instituted more than 12 years after the date of sale, so it was pleaded in para. 11 of the plaint that under the provisions of Section 10 of the Limitation Act the bar of limitation was saved. This plea was decided against the plaintiff and the ence to us does not cover that point."

2665. Three questions formulated by the lower Appellate Court in Chitar Mal (supra) where as follows:

> *"(1) Whether the deed, dated the 17th April, 1905, could constitute an alienation of the dedicated property (*318T*waqf) which was under the management of the Marwari faction of the Biradri of Agarwals at Ajmere and thereby give rise to adverse possession.*
> (2) Whether Respondent No, 1 could acquire any title to the said property.
> (3) Whether in the circumstances of the present case Respondent No. 1 could claim the benefit of the law of limitation especially in view of paras. 1 and 2 of he written statement."

2666. In respect to issue no. 2, the argument put forth on behalf of the plaintiff, Chitar Mal, before the Court was that idol suffered the disability of perpetual minority, so any suit by idol at any period of time after the date of transfer would be saved from bar of limitation under Section 7 of LA 1908. It is this argument which was to be dealt with by this Court in the facts of that case.

2667. Reliance was placed on the comments of a learned author in Sastri's Hindu Law, 5th Edn., Chapter XIV on page 726 which says:

> "As regards limitation it should be considered whether S. 7 of the Limitation Act is not applicable to a suit to set aside an improper alienation by a shebait of the property belonging to a Hindu god. As the god is incapable of managing his property he should be deemed a perpetual minor for the purpose of limitation."

2668. It was not disputed before the Court that idol enjoyed the status of a minor. This Court also noticed that a transfer by minor is void ab-initio and in that case the question of proper or improper alienation would not arise. For this purpose reference was made to Mohori Bibee Vs. Dharmodas Ghose (1902) 30 I.A. 114 (P.C.). Thereafter, the Court proceeded to consider two judgments of the Privy Council in Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra) and Damodar Vs. Lakhan Das (supra) so as to refute the argument of the plaintiff's counsel on the applicability of Section 7 of the Limitation Act in that case.

2669. In the first case, i.e., Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra), what we find is, at the time of wrong alienation of property, the person entitled to manage the dedicated property of the idol, i.e., Shebait himself was a minor. After attaining majority, he brought a suit for restoration of the property and this suit was filed within three years from the date of attaining majority by the Shebait. Privy Council held the suit within time by referring to Section 7 of Limitation Act observing that it is in

ideal sense the property is owned by the idol but in effect the right to sue and be sued vests in Shebait or Manager of the property and, therefore, if he was minor at the time when cause of action with respect to dedicated property arose, on attaining majority, he could have filed suit. It appears that in some of the later cases, these words that "it is only in ideal sense that the property vests in the idol and being a juridical person, he can sue or be sued but in effect the right is vested in Shebait have been read by as if the Shebait has snatched away the vested right and status of the idol and everything would only be governed by the status of Shebait with respect to the property in debuttar. In fact, in subsequent authorities, where the above decision was relied, the Court read it by saying that the right is vested in shebait and not in idol. This negative declaration of the right of a idol to file a suit or not in its own name was neither in consideration before the Privy Council in Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra) nor any such declaration was made but it appears that the above sentence was read as a natural corollary that the idol loses any right, whatsoever, to sue or be sued. With great respect, we find that it is this addition of the words which has resulted in some authorities denying something to idol which otherwise probably never intended by the Privy Council.

2670. We find it difficult to chew this decision for more than one reason. The observations are in respect to the practicability of the thing since by its very nature, the idol neither can move nor can act in a particular manner nor can think or understand as to what is good or bad, being a legal person and not a natural person. The faith of the people on the power and status of idol is well known and is beyond the pale of judicial review. It is the spirit and the existence of the Supreme

Being which is worshipped in the symbolic form of image but otherwise the existence of Supreme Being is not dependent on the existence of the images or idols. The worshippers believe in existence of such Supreme Being which is capable of providing all kind of happiness, salvation etc. to the worshipper but then in respect to the worldly affairs, the rights, obligations, privileges whatever may be of the idol, they have to be looked after by some natural person. To this extent, the position is same in respect to all legal persons. Their right for sue or be sued is always looked after and acted upon by an individual or group of individuals of natural persons. It does not mean that every thing which is vested in the legal person, can be deemed to be actually vested in the individual natural person to the effect of excluding the legal person to any extent or divesting him of his own right. Besides every legal person or juridical person whether is a minor or not, is a matter which is yet to be considered but qua a Hindu idol, it can not be disputed that in Hindu Laws, it has always been treated a minor, and this has neither ever been doubted nor found otherwise. Earlier British India Courts normally used the word 'Infant'.

2671. In the matter of idol, one can presume a situation where there is no Shebait or Manager or an identified person for managing the affairs. By its very nature, the people on their own go and worship and the procedural aspect of worship is looked after by a section of people on their own. For example where Hindus go for worship at a place where there is no individual who works as Shebait but a section of the people called “Pandas” etc., who, on their own take care of the procedural aspects of worship and for that purpose get remuneration called Dakkshina or Dan. If a property dedicated to such place in the name of the idol or deity exists thereat and there is no identified Shebait or Manager, would it mean that the property shall not vest in anyone and that if somebody occupies the dedicated property of idol unauthorizedly, the plea of adverse possession can be taken against the idol which being not a person cannot take care of property of its own.

2672. Similarly, even where a Shebait or Manager is there, but if he or she itself indulges in some unauthorized act or mismanagement of the property of the idol and wrongly alienates or allows a possession to continue in collusion with a third party, can it be said that the idol is bound by such act of the Shebait and after lapse of certain period, a well wisher of the idol or the idol itself though a bonafide worshipper cannot take action on account of the application of provisions of limitation.

2673. In both the two cases of Privy Council which were relied on in Chitar Mal (supra), we find that there was a Shebait for managing the affairs of the property of the idol. He entered into certain transactions of dedicated property of idol with third person. It was not a case where the Court found that the act of Shebait was unauthorized in the sense that it was not initiated for the benefit of the idol. No case of fraud, collusion etc. found. The attempt on the part of the parties, who initiated litigation later on, was to wriggle out of such transaction of property which was entered by earlier Shebait within their own rights on behalf of idol.

2674. To our mind, a contract with minor is void but where the guardian of a minor or guardian of an infant has dealt with the property of minor/infant and alienate some part of the same for the benefit of the minor or infant, such transaction of guardian has always been upheld otherwise very purpose of having a guardian or caretaker would stand frustrated and may result in serious consequences to the very existence and subsistence of the minor. In none of the two cases of the Privy Council which were relied on by the Division Bench in Chitar Mal (supra), these questions were involved and as a matter of proposition of law, the Privy Council in none of these two cases has said that an idol cannot be treated to be a perpetual minor. To us it appears that this inference has been read in by the Court in the above decisions considering the provisions of limitation relied by the Privy Council in the two cases but that was in the context of the facts of those cases and not as a matter of legal proposition as to whether idol is a perpetual minor or not.

2675. Though we are not doubting the correctness of the decision of the Privy Council nor it is necessary for us to suggest that the judgments of the Privy Council are not binding upon us in the absence of otherwise law declared by the Apex Court, but it would be necessary to consider as to what was the issue before the Privy Council and what has been decided by it and whether it constitutes a binding precedent upon this Court.

2676. In Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra), the Calcutta High Court held that the idol being a juridical person is capable of holding property. Limitation, therefore, would start running against it from the date of transfer and a suit filed beyond the period of limitation from that date is barred by limitation. It does not appear that the question as to whether idol is a minor or not was considered by the Calcutta High Court. The Privy Council in absence of any such issue before it, obviously had no occasion to look into this question but then from the facts of that case it found that the Shebait himself was a minor at the time when the property in suit of idol was transferred. He had filed suit on attaining majority within the period of three years as contemplated under Section 7 of the Limitation Act. Privy Council held that since the person who was managing the affairs of the idol himself was minor, considering the peculiar circumstances that a legal person itself cannot take action but has to be acted by a natural person who also was under disability, Section 7 would apply to such natural person and held the suit within time.

2677. The matter in effect was decided in favour of the idol though the reason may be different. But a strange question arises. Can there be a guardian of a minor who himself is a minor. The law of the land on the date, as applicable to minor, does not contemplate a guardian or a care taker of a minor who himself is minor. In other words, it is inconceivable that a minor can be assigned duties to take care and manage the affairs of another minor. Such a situation may have arisen more than hundred years back and what were the reason behind it, we need not go into that. We are satisfied that such a situaiton cannot arise in law of independent India governed by the Constitution where such right of management can be exercised by a guardian who has to be, by necessity, a major and not a minor. Secondly, the judgment in Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra) nowhere says that an idol is not minor, what to say of perpetual minor or not.

2678. Now we come to the second case of Damodar Das Vs. Lakhan Das (supra). There it appears that the idol again was being looked after and managed by a Shebait, i.e., Senior Chela or Mahant of the Math. Under an agreement with another, who has been termed as Junior Chela, half of the property of the Math was transferred to him. The successor in the office of

Senior Chela/Mahant of the Math, filed a suit against Junior Chela for recovery of the transferred half of the property. This suit was filed after twelve years from the date of transfer. Privy Council held it barred by limitation on the ground that from the date of agreement, the possession of the property by Junior Chela, by virtue of terms of agreement, was adverse to the right of the idols and that of the Senior Chela representing that idol. Therefore, the suit is barred by limitation. Here again what we find is that the property was transferred to Junior Chela by Senior Chela, i.e., Shebait of the idol under an agreement. While observing that the possession became adverse from the date of transfer under the agreement, with great respect we find that the very ingredients of adverse possession were not being in issue before the Court hence the same were not addressed inasmuch whether such transfer can constitute adverse possession or not, it does not appears to be an issue raised, argued and decided before the Privy Council. The Apex Court in a catena of decisions, which we have considered in detail, while discussing the issues relating to possession/adverse possession, has held as to what constitute adverse possession in law. It is a well settled dictum that in order to constitute adverse possession there has to be a hostile possession with the animus possidendi, open, peaceful and continuous. An intention to possess the property against the owner against his interest is one of the necessary ingredient held by the Apex Court in a catena of decisions to constitute adverse possession. In Damodar Vs. Lakhan Das (supra), the property was transferred to Junior Chela under an agreement by a person who was competent and duly authorized to manage the property of the idol, a minor. The intention on the part of the transferee to hold the property adverse against the owner obviously was lacking. Junior Chela got possession under an agreement that was a permissive possession. This aspect has not been raised, argued and decided. It appears that proceeding on the assumption that there existed an adverse possession on that date, the matter has been decided. In the matter of adverse possession, we are bound by the law laid down by the Apex Court in view of Article 145 of the Constitution and in such a case, the judgment of Privy Council is not binding on this Court.

2679. Moreover, it does not appear that the questions as to whether the idol is a minor or whether Section 7 has any application in the matter were at all raised and decided. On the contrary, the Court has upheld the finding of the High Court that in law, the property is vested not in Mahant, but in the legal entity, i.e., the idol and the Mahant is only its representative and manager. Once this finding is accepted, the transfer of a property unauthorizedly or possession of a property by another even otherwise can not be treated to be adverse to the idol, a minor, when it cannot act on its own and protect itself from such unauthorized act. In any case, it need not be necessary to go into this aspect for the reason that if a transaction has been made by a proper and validly appointed Shebait or a person about whose status there is no dispute, on behalf of minor, one may not wriggle out of the transaction on the ground that the contract was on behalf of minor and, therefore, void for the reason that the guardian of a minor can enter into certain transactions for the benefit of minor. The said proposition has nothing to do where it is not shown that the minor or the idol has any Shebait at all to look after its interest.

2680. In our view, the decisions of this Court in Chitar Mal Vs. Panchu Lal (supra) has extended the two decisions of the Privy Council in Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra) and Damodar Vs. Lakhan Das (supra) to the extent of a proposition in so many words which do not appear to have been laid down therein and, therefore, with respect to the Hon'ble Judges, we find ourselves unable to agree with the same.

2681. Relying on Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra) an argument was raised in Shree Mahadoba Devasthan Vs. Mahadba Romaji Bidkar and others, AIR 1953 Bombay 38 that since the right to file suit is vested in the shebait or manager as observed by the Privy Council in Jagadindra Vs. Hemanta (supra) hence a suit by idol is not maintainable. This was exactly what has been read by some of the High Courts in the above two judgements which was sought to be argued before the Bombay High Court also. The Division Bench, however, rejected the submission. It said that it is only an extension of the principle of responsibility from the image or idol of the manager, or to use the other words, from the principal to the agent to vest the right of protection of the property which is incidental to the right of possession and management thereof by way of filing a suit in connection with the same, in the shebait. The extension of the right in the shebait however does not mean that the right which the image or the idol as a juridical person has by virtue of its holding the property to file a suit in regard thereto is by any process eliminated.

2682. Be that as it may, in our view, reference to Section 6 of LA 1963 need not at all be necessary. It is not required in this case to go into the question whether a deity suffers a "legal disability" to attract the aforesaid provision or not. The matter can be decided without going into this aspect and without considering the question as to whether the judgements taking the contrary view, which one thereof is correct and ought to be followed by us. The nature of the Hindu idol/deity and its various facets have been considered by us while dealing the issue pertaining to juridical personality and above also. What we are now going to discuss may at times reflect on repetition to what we have already said but in this case we have not much bothered about it for the reason that the issue involved is of extraordinary nature and we do not want to leave any occasion or doubt or confusion particularly when the judgement in this case is already so voluminous.

2683. We may crystalise hereat what are settled notions qua an idol/deity, its property as also the rights powers and duties of a Shebait as argued by the other side also. They are:

(i) A Hindu idol duly consecrated is a juridical person, can acquire property, sue and be sued and enter into transactions with others like a natural person;

(ii) By its very nature since an idol or deity is a fictitious person cannot act on its own. It has to work on being represented by a natural person. In the case of Hindu idol, it is the Shebait who has right to possess and manage property of the idol and also to discharge duties of daily services to be rendered to the idol. Its position is that of a custodian of a property and the idol itself but it does not mean that he is the owner. In case of necessity, i.e., for the benefit of the idol i.e. for necessity, the property of the idol can be alienated by the Shebait but no more no less. The Shebait is a peculiar kind of office with which attach duties and obligations. Only in a very restricted sense it can be transferred;

(iii) Qua the property of the idol, the position of Shebait is

(iv) The position of idol as a minor though recognised for some purposes but not for all purposes since they are considered to be a major from the date of its consecration but for entering into transactions with natural persons it needs to be represented by a natural person, i.e., Shebait and none else; (5) The right to file suit for the benefit or on behalf of the idol vests in a Shebait but with certain exceptions namely, where the Shebait is guilty of maladministration etc. or where there is no Shebait, in such a case a worshipper as a next friend may bring a cause representing the idol but not otherwise; (6) The difference between Shebait and next friend is that a Shebait is under an obligation to take such steps as are necessary for the protection of an idol but a worshipper may be permitted to represent idol for its benefit but has no legal obligations as such to do so. Moreover, a worshipper must be such who is a beneficiary and not more benevolent.

2684. It is in the context of these principles we may consider the question of limitation vis a vis Section 6 of LA 1963 but before doing so we feel it expedient to have a glance over some of the relevant well considered authorities throwing light on the above propositions.

2685. Deity is conceived as a living being and is treated in the same way as the master of the house would be treated by his humble servant. In Rambrahma Chatterjee Vs. Kedar Nath Banerjee (supra) Mookerjee, J. recognised the above concept of Hindus and observed that the normal type of continued worship of a consecrated image includes the sweeping of the temple, the process of smearing, the removal of the previous day's offerings of flowers, the presentation of fresh flowers, the respectful oblation of rice with flowers and water, and other like practices. It also observed that the daily routine of life is gone through with minute accuracy; the vivified image is regaled with the necessaries and luxuries of life in due succession, even to the changing of clothes, the offering of cooked and uncooked food, and the retirement to rest. The religious customs of Hindus in respect to Hindu idol have been recognised by the Court of Law life a juristic person under the English system. A juristic person under English system has no body or soul. It has no rights except those which are attributed to it on behalf of some human beings. But in the concept of Hindus belief the lump of metal, stone, wood or clay forming the image of Hindu idol is not a mere moveable chattel. As already observed it is conceived by Hindus as a living being having its own interest apart from the interest of its worshippers. The observations of Mookerjee, J. in Rambrahma Chatterjee Vs. Kedar Nath Banerjee (supra) were approved by the Judicial Committee in Pramath Nath Mullick Vs. Pradhyumna Kumar Mullick (supra). It can thus be said that a Hindu idol/deity is a juristic person of a peculiar type.

2686. The various services of a deity, some of which we have referred above, cannot be performed or observed by deity itself for the simple reason that it is not a natural person. Besides, the daily services of the deity in a case where the deity has been dedicated with some property moveable or immoveable, its possession, management and protection is also needed to be cared by a natural person. After dedication of the property to the deity the proprietary title to the property is vested in the idol. But because of its very nature it may not actually possess or manage the said property hence the need of Shebait arises. It is also a well recognised custom amongst Hindus.

2687. Sheba (i.e., in Hindi 'Sewa') means 'service' and the person who renders it is called 'Shebait' (i.e., in Hindi 'Sewaiat'), i.e., "one who render service".

2688. It is true that the ancient Hindu scripture is mainly silent on the subject of Shebaity rights and duties but in the last almost one and half century and more, a lot of judicial precedents have come throwing light on the subject and many of the propositions laid down therein have also got approval of the Apex Court in the post independent era. In normal course whenever an image or idol is set up and consecrated, there, needs be a Shebait to serve and sustain the deity whose tabernacle the image is.

2689. Duties and privileges of a Shebait primarily are those of one who feels it sacred. He must take the image into his charge and custody; he must see that it is washed, fed, clothed and tended and that due provision for its worship is made. The main concern of a Shebait appears to be to carry out duly the sacred duties of its office which he may perform personally or if permitted by the customs may appoint a qualified assistant to help in his stead. As already observed when an image is consecrated, usually property is also dedicated to its use. This is a common practice. Such property vests in the idol but the right to possess and the duty to manage the property vests in the Shebait. It would be important to mention the distinction that the right to possess and duty to manage does not cloths the Shebait with the right of ownership or title over the property but what we have said should be taken no more and no less. It is only the right to possess and duty to manage and nothing else. With regard to such property the position of Shebait is that of a trustee though in true sense he cannot be said to be a trustee as per the provisions of the Indian Trust Act or like.

2690. But then there has to be seen distinction between the property owned by a deity and the deity itself. With regard to the service of deity and duties appertained to it a Shebait is in the position of the holder of an office in the dignity.

2691. In Maharanee Shibessouree Debia Vs. Mothornath Acharjo (1869) 13 M.I.A. 270 an issue was raised whether a Shebait was entitled to sell certain Jammas connected with a Taluk. The Judicial Committee held that Taluk itself, with which these Jammas were connected by tenure, was dedicated to the religious services of the idol. The rents constituted, therefore, in legal contemplation, its property. The Shebait had no legal property, but only the title of a manager of a religious endowment. In the exercise of that office, it could not alienate the property, though it might create proper derivative tenure and estates comfortable to usage.

2692. Then came in 1875 another decision in Prosanna Kumari Debya Vs. Gulab Chand (supra). In this case the powers of Shebait were considered qua debutter property and the Judicial Committee observed that the Shebait had no title to the legal property but has a title of manager of a religious endowment. In the exercise of that power, it may not alienate the property, but may create proper derivative tenures and estates conformable to usage. It said that it is competent for the Shebait in the capacity of Shebait and Manager of the estate, to incur debts and borrow money for the proper expenses of keeping up the religious worship, repairing the temples or other possessions of the idol, defending hostile litigious attacks, and other like objects. The power, however, to incur such debts must be measured by the existing necessity for incurring them. Judicial Committee referred to a judgment of Lord Justice Knight Bruce in Hunooman Persaud Pandey Vs. Mussumat Babooee Munraj Koonweree 6 Moore's Ind.App. Ca. 243 observing:

> "The power of the manager for an infant heir to charge an estate not his own is, under the Hindu law, a limited and qualified power. It can only be exercised rightly in a case of need or for the benefit of the estate. But where, in the particular instance the charge is one that a prudent owner would make in order to benefit the estate, the bona fide lender is not affected by the precedent mismanagement of the estate. The actual pressure on the estate, the danger to be averted, or the benefit to be conferred upon it, in the particular instance, is the thing to be regarded. But, of course, if that danger arises or has arisen from any misconduct to which the lender is or has been a party, he cannot take advantage of his own wrong to support a charge in his own favour against the heir grounded on a necessity which his own wrong has helped to cause. Therefore the lender in this case, unless he is shewn to have acted mala fide, will not be affected, though it be shewn that with better management the estate might have been kept free from debt."

2693. In this context, the Judicial Committee in Prosanna Kumari Debya (supra) said:

> "there is no doubt that, as a general rule of Hindu

www.vadaprativada.com

Law, property given for the maintenance of religious worship and of charities connected with it is inalienable. . . . . But, notwithstanding that property devoted to religious purposes, is as a rule, inalienable, it is, in their Lordships' opinion, competent for the shebait of property dedicated to the worship of the idol, in his capacity as shebait and manager of the estate, to incur debts and borrow money for the proper expenses of keeping up the religious worship, repairing the temples or other possessions of the idol, defending hostile litigious attacks, and other like objects. The power, however, to incur such debts must be measured by the existing necessity for incurring them."

2694. The disputes which have arisen before the Courts time and again are mostly in two context, i.e., (1) Relating to the transfer of property of idol; and, (2) Relating to the assignment/transfer/ alienation of the rights, duties, obligations or tests with the Shebait. The various authorities, therefore, from time and again have dealt with these issues in the context thereof differently for the simple reason that they did not find any specific answer on these questions in Hindu religious scriptures and, therefore, mostly rely on the common law of the land as well as principle of equity, justice and good conscience. We would refer hereafter both the sets of authorities to give a clear idea of the distinguishing features of the two.

2695. There is a third aspect also on which some authorities have come, i.e., the alienation of the deity or its temple itself. In Pramath Nath Mullick Vs. Pradhyumna Kumar Mullick (supra) the Privy Council held that the idol cannot be regarded a mere chattel. It is not property in true sense and their destruction, degradation or injury is not within the power of their custodian. An idol is extra commercium. It can never be the subject matter of commerce as also held in Khetter Chunder Ghose Vs. Hari Das Bundopadhya (supra).

2696. In Smt. Panna Banerjee and Ors. Vs. Kali Kinkor Ganguli (supra) Justice Deb in his concurring judgement observed that a deity is not a chattel but a juridical person. No custom can ever validate sale of any deity. Even legal necessity of the deity cannot destroy the very existence of the deity by selling it in open market. His Lordship said that the very thought of it is opposed to the fundamental concept of Hindu jurisprudence. It is against public policy. It is wholly unreasonable. It is absolutely repugnant to Hindu law. It is so repulsive to the judicial mind that every court is bound to strike it down in limine. In para 66 of the judgment His Lordship observed:

> "66. No one has ever heard that a deity can be served or be sold by hits and bits. The deity is indivisible. It is the Supreme Being. The deity is not a property and no one can be its owner not even its founder*. The shebaits are the managers of the deities though in reality they are its glorified servants.* No shebait can ever be the owner of any deity. He is the custodian of the idol but this custody does not nor can it ever confer any right on him to sell the deity."

2697. This judgment was confirmed by the Apex Court in appeal and is reported in AIR 1974 SC 1932 holding that the transfer of Shebaity rights was illegal for the principal reason that neither the temple nor the deity nor the Shebaity right can be transferred by sell in pecuniary consideration. The transfer by

sale is void in its inception. We may mention hereat that various reasons were assigned in the concurrent judgment but they have not been approved by the Apex Court except the reason that the transfer of Shebaity rights of temple of deity by way of sell is illegal.

2698. What was observed with respect to deity, the same sanctity was extended to the abode of deity, i.e., the temple in which deity live and it has been distinguished from other endowed property of the deity. This we find, recognised by this Court in Mukundji Mahraj Vs. Persotam Lalji Mahraj (supra). Therein the plaintiff deity was installed in a temple at Mathura. Defendant purchased half of the temple in execution sale and took its possession. Deity brought action for recovery of possession of the said part of temple from the defendants. The Division Bench of this Court observed:

> "Whatever may be said about a permanent alienation of endowed property other than a temple, in the very nature of things, having regard to the duties of a Manager or a Shebait towards the idol or institution, there can be no necessity of alienating the temple or any portion of it in which the idol is installed. The maintenance of the entire building is the prime concern of the Manager or the Shebait.
>
> The temple has a special sanctity distinct from other endowed property. To alienate the temple itself is to cut at the root of the very existence of the idol in the habitation intended by the founder. Hindu Sentiment views the alienation of a temple as a sacrilege. Not until the idol has been removed from the temple in accordance with shastric rites and has assumed a new habitation and the temple

www.vadaprativada.com

abandoned as a place of worship may the temple be alienated or sold in execution of a decree...."

2699. To the same effect is another decision in Madan Mohan Saha Banik and Ors. Vs. Rakhal Chandra Saha Banik and Ors., AIR 1930 Calcutta 173.

2700. Here we may understand the meaning of the term temple. The meaning of the word "temple" vide "Concise Oxford Dictionary", page 1261 is "edifice dedicated to service of God; or place in which God resides." The "New English Dictionary, Vo. IX, Part II" says, "an edifice or place regarded primarily as the dwelling place or 'hose' of a deity; hence an edifice devoted to divine worship. Historically, the word is applied to a sacred building of Egyptians, Greeks, Romans, etc. but now to those of Hinduism, Budhism, Confucianism, Todism, Shudasm, etc."

2701. The legal principle which are applicable to the endowed property have to be distinguished from the case where such power of alienability is sought to be conceived or pleaded in respect to the very deity itself or its temple in which it is consecrated or which is the permanent abode of the deity. The preservation and not destruction of the deity and its property is the paramount and highest duty of each and every Shebait is the general law laid down by the Judicial Committee in pre-Indian constitutional era and thereafter to the same effect is the law laid down by the Apex Court also. The legal necessity of a deity cannot be so unruly that it can rule over the deity. The alienation of the endowment as a whole is not bounded by Hindu Law. The endowment as a whole can never be the subject matter of alienation even for the legal necessity of a deity for it would destroy the very purpose and the object for which the endowment is created. It will not only destroy the endowment but will devour the deity too. The temple is the residential house of a deity. The deity is entitled to be worshipped in its permanent abode. Its permanent residence cannot be disturbed. The idol cannot be removed like a chattel. The temple cannot be vivisected. It is impartible. No part of it can be sold even for the deity's legal necessity. It is res extra commercium. Every Hindu regards it as a sacred place. To sell a part of the temple is to endanger the very existence of the consecrated idol and to put an end to the sanctity attached to it.

2702. This is how the distinction of the property owned by deity and its temple where it is consecrated needs to be considered and seen.

2703. The Apex Court also in Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar Vs. Som Nath Dass (supra) recognised the relationship between an idol and Shebait and said:

> "When an idol was recognised as a juristic person, it was known it could not act by itself. As in the case of minor a guardian is appointed, so in the case of idol, a Shebait or manager is appointed to act on its behalf. In that sense, relation between an idol and Shebait is akin to that of a minor and a guardian. As a minor cannot express himself, so the idol, but like a guardian, the Shebait and manager have limitations under which they have to act."

2704. In Jogendra Nath Naskar (supra) while recognising the juridical personality of an idol consecrated in a Hindu temple the Apex Court quoted with approval the following extract amongst others of West J. in Manohar Ganesh Tambekar & Ors. Vs. Lakhmiram Govindram

> "A Hindu who wishes to establish a religious or charitable institution may according to his law express his purpose and endow it and the ruler will give effect to the bounty or at least, protect it so far at any rate as is consistent with his own Dharma or conception or morality."

2705. An idol is a juridical person because it is adored after its consecration in a temple. The followers recognise an idol to be symbol for God.

2706. Here we may also keep in mind that all these cases are in the context of a Pratisthit idol and not Swayambhu. In the context of Swayambhu its juridical personality and concept of juridical person would remain the same but therein the concept of appointment of Shebait etc. may be a little bit different. In the case of a Swayambhu, i.e., self created deity since there is no founder or creator of endowment the question of appointment of Shebait by founder does not arise. Either by custom or otherwise by intervention of the Court, as the case may be, a Shebait may be appointed or that a Swayambhu deity if continued to be worshipped by believers without having any identified Shebait, there may be a section of persons performing duties of Shebait without any formal appointment or undertaking such job and in such a case it cannot be said that the idol cannot be dedicated any property but whenever a property is dedicated for the purpose of possession and management someone has to be appointed and if necessary by the Court also. Non appointment of Shebait, however, in case of Swayambhu deity will not either destroy the deity itself or will nullify or make ineffective the very existence of such deity. Deity will continue since it is the belief of the followers of the worshippers who come with the belief that there exists a Supreme Being which is bodiless and shapeless and is capable of fulfilling all their wishes and to provide them happiness and salvation. It is a deity which the worshippers discover. Therefore, in order to consider a case where the deity is in the form of a Swayambhu more particularly in the form of a place, the concept of alienability whether under the statutory law or otherwise is to be seen in the light whether it pertains to some property constituting part of the endowment or the very existence of the deity. When something relates to the very existence of a deity, since it is a juridical person the question of alienability does not arise as a juristic person like Hindu deity cannot be alienated though in respect to several other judicial person like commercial etc. the position may be different but that will not apply to a case of deity governed by Hindu Laws.

2707. Now we proceed to consider, in this context, the law vesting right to sue or be sued upon the Shebait. The Shebait since was entitled to possess and manage the property of the deity, it was observed that normally the debutter's property is inalianable but for the benefit of the deity the Shebait may transfer the property, create charge thereupon. In Jagadindra Nath Vs. Hemanta Kumari (supra) the Judicial Committee observed that the only person competent to act or sue on behalf of the idol is the Shebait or in the case of Math the manager. This observation has been approved subsequently by the Apex Court in Bishwanath Vs. Sri Thakur Radha Ballabhji (supra).

2708. The right to sue on behalf of idol, therefore, is conferred on a natural person and if that is so the question would be whether the provisions of limitation would apply to a case where there is no such person who possesses right to sue or

be sued. It is true that this decision of Privy Council in Jagadindra Nath Vs. Hemanta Kumari (supra) has been doubted by a Single Judge of Calcutta High Court in Nagendra Nath Palit Vs. Robindra Narain Deb, AIR 1926 Cal. 490 and this has also been noticed by the Apex Court in Sarangadeva Periya Matam Vs. Ramaswami Goundar (supra) but the Apex Court has not expressed any final opinion either way.

2709. We also mention at this stage another decision in Damodar Das Vs. Adhikari Lakhan Das (supra) wherein the Privy Council gave benefit of Section 6 though otherwise the limitation had expired on the ground that on the date when the cause of action accrued the Shebait was minor and as soon as he attained majority he filed suit within the period of limitation provided under Section 6 hence the suit was not barred by limitation. If it is presumed that whether there existed Shebait or not but once the property is alienated or cause of action has accrued the limitation must be held to commence and shall not stop, it would be difficult to understand the legal proposition laid down in Damodar Das Vs. Adhikari Lakhan Das (supra) by taking recourse to Section 6 of the Limitation Act when it held that the Shebait on attending the majority can file the suit. We find that the decision of the Patna High Court in Naurangi Lal & Others Vs. Ram Charan Das (supra) was reversed by Privy Council in appeal in Mahanthram Charan Das Vs. Naurangi Lal and others, (1933) LR 60 IA 124. The Patna High Court took the view that Article 144 of the Limitation Act shall attract from the date of alienation of property which was illegal and, therefore, the possession became adverse from that very date. But the Privy Council reversing the judgment held that the Mahant was at liberty to dispense the property of a Math during the period of his life and, therefore, it was good to the extent of Mahant's life interest and the possession would become adverse thereafter since for the subsequent period the alienation was bad. We have no doubt in our mind that whenever a suit is filed for and on behalf of an idol or deity it is the idol or deity which is normally a party though represented through a Shebait. But in a case where no Shebait is available, the deity or idol being in a position of minor since the right to sue vests in the Shebait, as such may not go unless some beneficiary comes forward to undertake to file a suit as next friend. The difference between Shebait and next friend is that the Shebait is under a kind of obligation to protect the interest of the idol or the deity but the worshipper is not under any such obligation though if he comes to the Court and show his bonafide i.e. approach to the Court for filing a suit for the benefit of an idol, his suit cannot be dismissed as not maintainable.

2710. Basically we have got two sets of decisions. Though on our own we do not find much difficulty in reconciling them but it appears that sometimes due to non raising of the relevant issues in the matter and sometimes as obiter the decisions have gone in wider terms creating a difficult situation in a given case.

2711. The case of Jagadindra Nath Vs. Hemanta Kumari (supra) and its follow up decisions are those where right to sue were held vested in the manager alone or in other words it is the manager who is entitled to represent the juristic person and can speak or act on its behalf. The second set of decisions where the temple or math are juridical personality, and said that the property is not vested in the manager but in the idols or institutions, i.e. Jodhi Rai Vs. Basdeo Prasad (Supra),

Pramath Nath Mullick Vs. Pradhyumna Kumar Mullick (Supra), etc.

2712. In the second set of cases it is quite obvious that an argument could have been raised that the limitation must be held to start from the date of alienation irrespective of the non-existent or incapacity of the Shebait or manager. The reason is that in Jagadindra Nath Vs. Hemanta Kumari (supra) the Privy Council says that the possession and management of the dedicated property belong to Shebait and this carries with it the right to bring whatever suit are necessary for the protection of the property. Every such right is vested in the Shebait not in the idol. The declaration is quite clear. This decision has been referred to with approval Bishwanath Vs. Sri Thakur Radha Ballabhji (supra). Dwijendra Narain Roy Vs. Joges Chandra De (Supra) in the matter of application of limitation the Court held:

> "The substance of the matter is that time runs when the cause of action accrues, and a cause of action accrues when there is in existence a person who can sue and another who can be sued. . . . . The cause of action arises when and only when the aggrieved party has the right to apply to the proper tribunals for relief. . . . The statute (of limitation) does not attach to a claim for which there is as yet no right of action and does not run against a right for which there is no corresponding remedy or for which judgment cannot be obtained."

2713. These observations receive approval of the Apex Court P. Lakshmi Reddy Vs. L. Lakshmi Reddy (Supra).

2714. Be that as it may, all these authorities which make observations in one or the other way relates either with the property of the idol/deity or a math or the rights of the office of Shebait but in no case the question arose as to what would happen when it is a case pertaining to the very existence of the deity and no natural person in the form of Shebait is available. Now it is beyond doubt that in order to be a temple or deity, test of public religious worship on that place as a matter of right needs to be satisfied and nothing more than that. In Ram Jankijee Deities (supra) the Apex Court has observed:

> "It is further to be noticed that while usually an idol is consecrated in temple, it does not appear to be an essential condition."
> "If the people believe in the temples' religious efficacy no other requirement exists as regards other areas."
> "It is a human concept of a particular divine existence which gives it the shape, the size and the colour."

2715. While considering the applicability of limitation in the case of the deity and its property a distinction has to be seen in a case where the endowment's property is involved and where the very deity or the corpus of the deity itself is involved. Where the corpus of the deity is involved it being a juridical person, the Limitation Act as such would have no application. It applies to the rights and obligations of the parties concerned but not to the very person and its personality. If a dispute arose whether a person is alive or dead, it cannot be said that the dispute arose 10 years or 20 years back but he is seeking a declaration after expiry of the period of 6 years or three years, therefore, the suit is barred by limitation or he cannot seek declaration. Such a case, in our view, would be a case of continuous wrong and, therefore, no limitation will stand in his way. Similarly, where the very existence of a juridical person like deity or idol comes into picture or that it seeks declaration about itself from a Court of Law, the position would be different.

2716. We may point out that earlier when the suit was filed it was in respect to a much wider area which included not only the place which we have held as deity, but also appurtenant land which was claimed by the deity as property belong to it. But now the matter is confined only to the place which is being claimed by Hindus that according to their belief and faith, it is the most revered, sacred and pious place being birthplace of Lord Rama over which they have been visiting since time immemorial, offering their worship continuously despite change of structure or no structure, as the case may, over the said land. Here the nature of the deity is different as it is in the form of a place, can never be destroyed nor could be destructed, therefore, if the deity claims a declaration from the Court, the plea of limitation, in our view cannot be made applicable. There is thus no question of taking recourse to Section 6 or 7 of the Limitation Act. In Bishwanath Vs. Sri Thakur Radha Ballabhji (supra), the Court in respect to the capacity in which a deity can act observed that it is in the position of minor but there is nothing to suggest that the Apex Court sought to undo all judgments otherwise wherein to certain other aspects the statutory provisions had been made applicable observing that it cannot be treated to be a minor in perpetuity for the purpose of those provisions only.

2717. It would be useful to refer a Division Bench decision in Tarit Bhusan Rai (supra) where the point of similarity and dissimilarity between a natural minor and a Hindu idol had been noticed in para 12 and 13 as under:

"12. The points of similarity between a minor and a

Hindu idol are : (1) Both have the capacity of owning property. (2) Both are incapable of managing their properties and protecting their own interests, (a) The properties of both are managed and protected by another human being. The manager of a minor is his legal guardian and the manager of an idol is its shebait. (4) The powers of their managers are similar. (5) Both have got the right to sue. (6) The bar of Section 11 and Order 9, Rule 9, Civil P.C, applies to both of them.

13. The points of difference between the two are : (1) A Hindu idol is a juristic or artificial person but a minor is a natural person. (2) A Hindu idol exists for its own interest as well as for the interests of its worshippers but a minor does not exist for the interests of anybody else. (3) The Contract Act (Subs-tantive law) has taken away the legal capacity of a minor to contract but the legal capacity of a Hindu idol to contract has not been affected by this Act or by any other statute. (4) The Limitation Act (an adjective law) has exempted a minor from the operation of the bar of limitation but this protection has not been extended to a Hindu idol."

2718. But this decision also makes it clear that the physical capacity is lacking in an idol to sue as it is vested in Shebait. The Court also referred to an earlier decision in Bimal Krishna Ghose and Ors. Vs. Shebaits of Sree Sree Iswar Radha Ballav Jiu (supra) stating:

"In India, the Crown is the constitutional protector of all infants and as the deity occupies in law the position of an infant. . . "

2719. Drawing parity with infant Calcutta High Court in

Tarit Bhusan Rai (supra) held:

> "The case of an idol is similar to that of an infant only to this extent that both must act through some agents. But the analogy does not seem to extend beyond this. An idol from its very nature is a perpetual dependent and its incapacity in this respect is perpetual. It would therefore be reasonable to expect that the law which recognised its personality must have made some provision for supplementing this perpetual incapacity. As has been pointed out above, the law recognises the shebaits for this purpose and appoints them, as it were, to be the persons who are to represent the idol for all juridical purposes. In fact, though the idol is recognised as the owner, it is owner only in an ideal sense. The right of suit is really in the shebait." (para 49)

www.vadaprativada.com

2720. It further said in para 50 of the judgement referring to the Judicial Committee in Masjid Shahid Ganj v. Shiromani Gurudwira Parbandhak Committee (supra):

> "50. As has recently been observed by the Judicial Committee in Masjid Shahidganj v. Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, Amritsar, the procedure of our Courts allows for a suit in the name of an idol or deity though the right of suit is really in the shebait. No doubt an idol is recognized as a, juridical person capable of having interests demanding legal protection. But this is so only in an ideal sense. Strictly speaking, the law of the present age at least does not concern itself with anything outside human interest and all the recognitions and protections accorded to the idol must have been thought necessary because of the existence of some ultimate human interests."

2721. To some extent the care in this context has been taken by making provisions like Section 92 in the Code of Civil Procedure. The fact remains where the question of deity or the idol itself comes and it seeks a declaration for itself, the provisions of Limitation Act, in our due consideration, would not be attracted.

2722. The Fourth angle: It is a deity which has filed the present suit for enforcement of its rights. The religious endowment in the case in hand so far as Hindus are concerned, as they have pleaded in general, is a place of a peculiar and unique significance for them and there cannot be any other place like this. In case this place is allowed to extinguish/extinct by application of a provision of statutes, may be of limitation or otherwise, the fundamental right of practicing religion shall stand denied to the Hindus permanently since the very endowment or the place of religion will disappear for all times to come and this kind of place cannot be created elsewhere.

2723. In Ismail Farooqui (supra), Supreme court has considered the plea of validity of acquisition of land under Land Acquisition Act that once a waqf of mosque is created, the property vests in almighty and it always remain a waqf hence such a property cannot be acquired. While negativing this plea, the Apex Court said that a plea in regard to general religious purposes cannot be said to be an integral part of religion which will deprive the worshippers of the right of worship at any other place and therefore, such a property can be acquired by the State. However, the position would be otherwise if the religious property would have been of special significance and cannot be one of several such kind of properties. It will be useful to reproduce the relevant observation in this regard:

"78. It appears from various decisions rendered by this Court, referred later, that subject to the protection under Articles 25 and 26 of the Constitution, places of religious worship like mosques, churches, temples etc. can be acquired under the State's sovereign power of acquisition. Such acquisition per se does not violate either Article 25 or Article 26 of the Constitution. The decisions relating to taking over of the management have no bearing on the sovereign power of the State to acquire property."

"82. While offer of prayer or worship is a religious practice, its offering at every location where such prayers can be offered would not be an essential or integral part of such religious practice unless the place has a particular significance for that religion so as to form an essential or integral part thereof. Places of worship of any religion having particular significance for that religion, to make it an essential or integral part of the religion, stand on a different footing and have to be treated differently and more reverentially."

2724. The above observations show if the religious endowment is of such nature, which is of specific significance or peculiar in nature, could not have been found elsewhere, the acquisition of such property by the Government will have the effect of depriving the worshippers their right of worship under Article 25 of the Constitution and such an acquisition even under the statutory provision, cannot be permitted. We find sufficient justification to extend this plea to the statute of limitation also, inasmuch as, if the statute pertaining to acquisition cannot be extended to a religious place of special significance which may have the effect of destroying the right of worship at a particular place altogether, otherwise the provision will be ultra vires, the same would apply to the statute of limitation also and that be so, it has to be read that the statute of limitation to this extent may not be availed where the debutter's property is of such a nature that it may have the effect of extinction of the very right of worship on that place which is of peculiar nature and specific significance. This will be infringing the fundamental right under Article 25 of the Constitution.

2725. In fact this reason could have been available to the plaintiffs (Suit-4) also had it been shown by them that the mosque in question for them was a place of special significance but this has already been observed by the Apex Court in respect to this particular mosque that like others it is one of the several mosques and by acquisition of the place it will not have the effect of depriving such fundamental right of Muslims. It is always open to them to offer prayer at any other place like they could have done here but Hindus are not placed on similar footing. According to Hindus, this is a place of birth of lord Rama and that be so, there cannot be any other place for which such belief persists since time immemorial. Once this land is allowed to be lost due to the acts of persons other than Hindus, the very right of this section of people, as protected by Article 25, shall stand destroyed. This is another reason for not attracting the provisions of limitation in the present case.

2726. The fifth angle: Last aspect is also an important one. The suggestion is that the first cause of action arose when at the disputed site the structure was raised but no action for redressal of grievance was taken within reasonable time. Thereafter the cause of action must have arisen when the property in dispute was attached and the suit for declaration having not been filed within six years thereafter. Hence the suit is barred by limitation. If we take as if the disputed structure was raised in 1528 AD, whether any remedy was available to the plaintiffs 1 and 2 and whether inaction on their part cause any irreparable loss to the extent of preventing from raising the dispute after a long time. The reign of Babar in India was only for four years i.e. from April, 1526 to 1530. We have not been informed as to what changes he made in the judicial system and in what way a dispute could have been raised by the idol at that time. The king, normally, enjoyed all powers whether legislative, judicial or administrative except only to the extent he authorised somebody to exercise his power otherwise. His command was supreme and constituted law. Even the religious law could have prevailed at that time only to the extent the king would have permitted it. None could have sought justification of the king's action before any authority. At least nothing has been brought before us to show otherwise. Some light has been thrown on this aspect in "India During Muslim Rule" by Maulana Hakim Syed Abdul Hai translated by Mohiuddin Ahmad published by Academy of Islamic Research and Publications, Lucknow first edition in English in 1977 (Series No.111) Chapter II page 77 which deals with the "Administrative System" of Muslim Monarchs.

2727. About the political system, it says that the muslim kings follow the rule governed by 'Shariah' and also policies guided by political exigency. For the period of Chingiz Khan, it says that he himself formulated a code of laws:

> "Chingiz Khan had also formulated a code of laws, called Yassa—from which Siyasah meaning politics is derived-which continued to be the supreme law of the lands

ruled by his progeny. They scrupulously adhered to the Yassa until they captured the sough eastern lands of Kirghiz steppe, Iran, Iraq and other countries. But by the time Mangols entered India they had accepted Islam and had become conversant with the Shariah, the teachings of the Quran and Islamic way of life. Nevertheless, instead of accepting the Shariah as the only rule of conduct governing both public and private life, they contrived an amalgam of laws, some divinely ordained and others upheld by their national conventions. On the one hand, they allowed the Qazis to guide them in religious matters, to administer the trusts and settle personal affairs having a direct bearing on religion, such as, marriages, inheritance, etc. But, on the other hand, they continued to follow the Yassa in political affairs and other matters taken out of the purview of Shariah as, for example, interdiction of quarrels amongst them. The Mongols used to appoint another dignitary known as Hajib for the administration of these customary usages.

Theft, adultery, wilful lies, lying or giving of false evidence, sorcery, spying were punishable by death under the Yassa. It dealt with in a similar manner with those who caused loss to their business partners thrice or did not restore the runaway slave to his owner. If the arms left behind or dropped by a soldier were not restored to him by the man following him, he too was to be put to death.

2728. The muslim dynasties of India can be termed as Slaves, Khiljis, Tughlaqs, Saiyids, Afghans and Moghuls. The administrative system followed by them, which included the dispute settling forum, is mentioned as follows:

"(1) Slave and Khilji Dynasties

The Slave and Khilji kings followed more or less the same type of administrative system with a fairly extensive official hierarchy, of which the important offices are mentioned here.

Wazir*-As the head of the imperial secretariat, he held the highest post and was next only to the King. His functions included administration of the realm, supervision of the state revenues and expenditure and all other important matters related to these. The Wazirs were assisted by Mushrif (accountant) and Mustaufi (auditors) who used to keep him posted with the necessary details of income and expenditure. The Wazirs were also known as Khwaja-i-Jahan.*

Arz-ul-Mam-lik-The post was equivalent to Chief of the Staff of modern times. Being responsible for the maintenance and administration of armed forces, he also inspected the troops and approved the appointment to all ranks. Anybody desiring recruitment as an archer had to bend the different types of bows kept by the 'Arz-ul-Mamalik. The rank of the candidates depended on his ability and prowess to bend these bows. Similarly, an intending horsemen had to strike a drum while riding a galloping horse. The candidate for archer horseman had to shoot an arrow into a ball lying on the ground from the galloping horseback. The more expertise one showed in taking the correct aim, the higher one rank was given.

Hajib-There were different grades of Hajibs. Under the Chief Hajib were his deputies call Naib Hajib, and then Sharaf-ul-Hujjab, Saiyid-ul-Hujab and their assistants.

Quazi-The Qazis were required to enforce the rules of the Sharian and decide the civil and criminal suits of the people. A Qazi was appointed in every pargana while the Chief Justice or Qazi-ul-Quzat had his headquarters in the imperial capital. He was a member of the imperial court and was known as Sadr-i-Jahan.

Amir Dad-The officer was charged with the responsibility of deciding the disputes between the grandees of the king. The expenditure on this office, paid as remuneration to the officer, was 50,000 dinars annually.

Shahna-e-il. was the superintendent of royal elephants who controlled the expenses on elephant stables, mahawants, etc.*

Shahna-e-marat. The officer equivalent to Engineer-in-Chief was responsible for the execution of public works specially, the castles and palaces.*

(ii) The Moghuls

The administrative set-up of the Moghuls practically remained unchanged during the long period of their rule. They, too, had a long list of dignitaries which has been given here under two categories.

In the first category were included those nobles and dignitaries who always accompanied the emperor in camps and cantonments, and counselled him in the management of the State affairs.

Wakil-i-Mutlaq. He was the prime-minister, and one of the highest grandees, who was the custodian of the royal seal. The importance of his office placed him only next to the emperor, above all other nobles and dignitaries.*

Wakil-i-Mutlaq normally held one of the ranks between Panj-hazari and Nuh-Hazari.*

Madar-ul-Muham held the rank of a Wazir and his business was to keep a watch over State expenses. The officer could be deemed as the Chief Secretary of the emperor, He was assisted by a number of Mustafis.*

Nobles holding the rank of Chahar-hazari to Haft-hazari were appointed as Madar-ul-Muham.

Ddiwan-i-Ala was the auditor of State revenues and expenditure. An officer holding the rank of a Hazari was* appointed to this post.

Mir-Bakshi supervised the administration of armed forces, approved the appointment of new recruits, presented them before the emperor and fixed their ranks and pay. The Mir-Bakshi had three more Bakshis under him, one each for the horsemen, archers and artillery. The Mir bakshi was also appointed from amongst the nobles holding the rank of the commanders of a few thousand troops.*

Sadr-us-Sudur. The function of the Sadar-us-Sudur was to look after the welfare of religious teachers, men of piety, orphans, widows and other poor and needy persons, to sanction stipens for them and to appoint the Qazis. He had also to be a grandee holding the rank of the commander of a few thousand troops.*

Qazi-ul-Quzat was required to enforce the rules of the sharian and ensure their observance by the people in their daily lives. He also decided cases relating to dissolution of marriages, payment of loans etc. Qazi-ul-Quzat was also a dignitary of the State holding a high rank.*

Mufti-ul-Askar. Appointed from amongst the grandees of rank and authority, his function was to pronounce juristic opinion in accordance with the Hanafite school of jurisprudence.*

Muhtasib acted as the censor of public morals. It was his duty to check the use of intoxicants like liquor, opium and hashish, to suppress immoral practices and to interdict the entry of women of dissolute character in public gatherings and fairs. He was also required to control the market and put down hoarding, fraud and other* malpractices.

Daroga-i-Adalat. Acting as a special court of appeal for those who could not gain access to the king, he held the court daily from morning till noon and decided the law-suite in accordance with the rules of the Shariah or the customary usages, as the case required. Such cases as he thought fit to be decided personally by the king, were referred to the latter for hearing in the imperial court held on each Wednesday.*

Dabir was the royal amanuensis who took down the royal orders and edicts which were later copied by calligraphers. Such letters or orders bore king's titles as the top in golden letters and the royal seal was affixed by the Amir-ul-Umra before being despatched.

Mir Tuzak was the Lord Chamberlain responsible for enforcing court etiquettes and making arrangements for the royal functions. It was his duty to obtain the orders of the emperor and notify the holding or cancellation of such functions.*

Mir Atish-As the lord of Artillery, he supervised all the affairs relating to the established of the imperial heavy and light artillery.*

Mir Saman looked after the royal wardrobe, jewellery and ornaments.*

Khan-i-Saman, a trusted grandee; had the charge of the imperial kitchen.*

Darogha-i-Ibtiya. The officer was responsible for the purchases required for the royal household.*

Darogha-i-Jawahirkhana A Darogha was appointed for the imperial treasury of precious stones. The* officer had to be a skilful jeweller capable of classifying the jewels and other precious stones.

Darogha-i-Kutub Khana. It was his duty to properly maintain the royal library.*

Darogha-i-Ghusalkhana. This officer was charged with the responsibility of informing the emperor about the presence or absence of dignitaries entitled to attend the Diwan-i-Khas (court of private audience).*

Darogha Arz-i-Mukarrar. The cases relating to revenue affairs and grant of jagirs requiring a revision of the earlier orders were brought to the notice of the emperor by Darogha Arz-i-Mukarrar.*

Darogha Dak Chauki. He read out all letters and communications to the emperor received from outlying areas and subas.*

Darogha-i-Khawasan. He was the superintendent of all the menial and maid servants attached to the royal household.*

Akhor Begi was responsible to the emperor for proper maintenance of royal stables, grazing grounds reserved for them and the establishment required for these.*

Shahna-i-Fil was responsible for the royal stables of elephants and all matters relating thereto.*

Kotwal was the custodian of law and order with extensive powers to protect the life and property of the citizens and to root out theft and brigandage.*

The provincial set-up of the Moghul administration consisted of the following officers:

Subedar was head of the civil administration as well as the armed forces stationed in a suba. Holding a mansab*

www.vadaprativada.com

between she-Hazar and Haft-Hazari, he had the overall charge of provincial administration ranging from maintenance of law and order and collection of revenues to the maintenance of imperial forces. Normally the Subedars were paid 24 lakh rupiahs annually but they were also granted a Jagir and were occasionally rewarded for meritorious work. The Subedars had their headquarters in the capital of the provinces or in some important and central town of the Suba.

Bakshi was also a mansabdar, appointed by the Emperor. His duties comprised selection and posting of military personnel, superintendence of the mustering for branding and verifying the troopers' horses and similar other matters connected with the armed forces.

Diwan. Being the book-keeper of the provincial government, he was responsible for keeping the accounts of income and expenditure of the suba. The Diwan was appointed by the emperor but the order for his appointment was issued under the seal of the prime-minster. He was assisted by a Peshkar (Personal Assistant), Darogha Kachehri (Court Inspector), Mushrif Daftar (Accountant) and Tahwildar (Treasurer). These officers were provided with a contingent of subordinate staff consisting of Munshi Kachehri, Huzur Nawis, Suba Nawis, Muharir Khalsa, Muharir Daftartan, Muharir Daftar-pai-baqi and Muharir sar-rishta.*

Faujdar. He was the officer, at the provincial level, charged with the responsibility for maintaining law and order, imposing punishment on the criminals and gangs of the robbers and putting down rebellions.*

Sadar. He was an officer appointed by the emperor on the recommendation of the Sadr-us-Sadur, and was attached to the Subedar to look after the welfare of theologians, mystics and the poor. He was authorised to grant stipends to such persons.*

Qazi. A Qazi was appointed in every pargana for the administration of Justice. His office consisted of a Mufti (Legist), Wakil Shara'I (expounder of the SharI'ah laws), Muharir Munaskha (registrar of law suits) and Mushrif (accountant).*

Muhtasib. Like the Muhtasib of the imperial capital, one was appointed in each city or a Mohal, by the Sadr-us-Sudur. His monthly remuneration was one hundred and fifty rupiahs in addition to a horse allowance of ten rupiahs.*

Darogha-i-Adalat was required to hold his court from early morning till afternoon for the hearing of cases instituted against nobles and dignitaries so that the persons who could not approach the king or the governor should not be deprived of justice. The plaintiffs were allowed to present their cases in person or through their attornies. The Darogha tried to compound the cases through mutual agreement of the parties but if his efforts failed, he asked the witnesses to be produced and communicated his decision to the civil authorities for execution of his judgement. The civil authorities were also required to devote two days in a week for this purpose.*

Waqa-i-Nigar. Reporters were appointed in each suba, sakar and pargana to inform the centre about every event, big or small. They sent two despatches every day; in* the evening covering the news of the day and in the morning covering the happening during the night. These despatches were delivered to Darogha Dak Chauki who immediately sent them to the capital for the perusal of the monarch. Thus the emperor kept himself informed of all happenings from Qandahar to Bengal. Since the Waqa-i-Nigars could distort or misrepresent any event, four other officials holding different ranks viz. Special Waqa i Nigars, Sawaneh Nigars (biographers), Khufia Nawais (Secret agents) and Karkaras (postmen) were also required to send their reports. If any discrepancy was found in the reports received from different sources, the emperor instituted enquiries through other agencies.

Kotwal was posted in a each city by the Mir Atish. His duties were analogous to the Kotwal in the Capital.

Thanakar performed the duties of the Kotwal in the parganas.

Amal Guzar. It was his duty to collect Ushr and Khiraj as well as to adopt measures for the improvement of the quality of land and bringing waste land under cultivation.*

Khazanadar. The officer was the local custodian of state income and was responsible for remitting it to the imperial treasury.*

Qanungo. A qanungo or registrar of cultivated lands was appointed in every pargana to supervise the measurement of area sown and to maintain necessary records in this connection.*

Tipakchi. A junior official was charged with the responsibility of recording the units of cultivated area,* quality of land, name of cultivators, the yield harvested and the revenues assessed thereon. One tipakchi was appointed for each big village or a group of villages."

2729. Then on page 100, in the aforesaid book, he has mentioned about the judicial policies which reads as under:

"As stated elsewhere, the administrative policy of the Muslim monarchs, from the very beginning, was based on the canons of the Shraiah and what they called Siyasat, the principles devised by them from usage for running the administration. Accordingly, they gave over the administration of religious matters to the Qazis but kept their own grip over temporal affairs like punishment of the criminals, social justice and fair deal to their subjects. The sultans of the Slave dynasty as well as the kings succeeding them allowed the Qazis only to enforce the five fundamental religious duties enjoined by Islam, to look after the trusts and welfare of orphans and to try cases relating to marriages, inheritance and loans. Qazi-ul-quzat, holding charge of the Qazis at lower levels was a grandee of the king. Similarly, an Amir-ul-Umra was appointed over the grandees of the State. He had to be a man of piety with commanding personality, for, acting as Amir-i-Dad, he was empowered to hear the cases against persons of rank and authority. Kotwal was responsible for enforcing social security and maintenance of peace in the realm. Another officer, known as Muhtasib, kept in check the unsocial practices like gambling, drunkeness, promiscuousness, supervised wieghts and measures and took action against short weighing and fraudulent practices in business affairs. All such cases were also brought to the notice of the king or the Subedar in the province.

Reform By Sher Shah

In addition to the Qazis, Muftis and Kotwals, Sher Shah appointed another officer, known by the name of Amin, to decide the revenue and criminal cases and also to see that the populace was not oppressed by the administrative wing. Such Amins, appointed in each pargana, had a Sadar Munsif in the district to supervise over them. If any such case was brought before the Sadar Munsif, he decided the matter and then sent a report to the King.

Reforms of the Moghuls

During the Moghul period, a Qazi was appointed in every city, big or small. At the top was Qazi-ul-Quzat, a dignitary of the state and counsellor of the emperor. Since he always accompanied the king, he was also called Qazi-ul-Askar. All religious matters were entrusted to his charge and he was assisted by a Mufti, Wakil Shara-i, Muharir Manakhsha, Mushrif and few other officers.

In the provinces the Sadar Qazi was the superintendent of the Qazis in the districts, parganas and cities, Similarly, the provincial Kotwal had the charge of Thanedars in the parganas. Another officer, normally a man known for his piety and wisdom, was appointed by the Central Government to supervise the working of the religious courts of the Qzais. Known as Darogha-i-Adalat, he held his court daily from morning till afternoon so that all those persons who could not approach the king or a grnadee could appear before him. Darogha-i-Adalat, either himself decided the cases in accordance with the Shari'ah law or customary usage or referred them to the Subedars or Faujdars. The last mentioned officers were also required to devote one or two days in every week for deciding all cases referred to them after making due enquiries.

Imperial Court

The mughal emperors held a court of justice once in a week. Wednesday was earmarked for the purpose when they sat in the Diwani-i'Am attended by a group of Qazis, Muftis and religious doctors. Nazir-i'Adlia or Mir'Adl, a special officer appointed for the purpose, presented the complainants one by one before the emperor who sympathetically listened to the grievances of the subjects and decided the cases on the advice of theologians.

If the case produced before the emperor pertained to a far off place, and edict was issued to the Subedar to restore justice to the plaintiff or produce both the parties before the emperor.

The French traveller Bernier writes that 'the emperor (Alamgir) used to hold a court of justice once in every week when Nazir ' Adlia presented the petitions before him one by one'.

Aurangzeb's sense of Justice

Aurangzeb gave the highest priority to the dispensation of justice. In addition to holding the Imperial Durbar daily, he sat in a special court known as Daulat Khana, every day after the afternoon prayers where Nazir-i'Adlia presented the petitions of complainants before him. Thereafter the emperor held courts in the Diwan-i-'Am and

www.vadaprativada.com

Diwan-i-Khas, where again Nazir-i-Adlia produced the plaintiffs deserving a personal hearing before the emperor. The emperor gave a patient hearing to them and either wrote the orders with his own hand or dictated the orders passed by him. His industry in administration of justice was marvellous; for he often devoted the entire period between the afternoon prayers and the 'asr to decide the cases brought to him, and then attended to other official matters with a smiling and cheerful countenance.

Wakalat-i-Shari'ah

Aurangzeb was the first monarch of India who appointed Wakil-i-Share'is in all suba courts with a wide jurisdiction over the subordinate courts in the districts and parganas. He always selected just and pious men for this post and charged them with the responsibility of making enquiries in all cases including even those brought against his own Imperial majesty. He had also allowed the populace, through an imperial proclamation, the permission to lodge cases in the courts of Qazis against the Emperor. He improved and systematised the practice followed in the appointment of Muhtasibs."

2730. We do not find any system in the above which empowered at that time, subject to challenge a Firman of the king or an order of the king particularly in the matter of desecration of religious place of idolaters by the king himself or under his command or with his approval. In any case, it is nobody's suggestion that at that time there existed any provision of limitation. The Nawab Subedar of Oudh separated sometime in the later half of 18th century from Mughal kingdom but so far as the policy towards religious matters qua Muslim and Hindus

are concerned, there does not appear to be any change. Moreso, in the meantime, as we have already shown, the Hindus continued to enter the disputed structure, offer worship and Darshan thereat and therefore, vis a vis plaintiffs, the piety and sacredness as also the belief of Hindus continued along with worship.

2731. The Hindu worshippers tried to enforce their right to the exclusion of Muslims sometime in 1853-55 but with the intervention of the British Government, sometime in 1856-57, a partition wall said to have been raised dividing the area between the two communities. However, this arrangement could not detain Hindus as we have noticed from several documents. They continued to enter the arena provided for Muslims (i.e., inner Courtyard) and it appears therefrom that Hindus continuously worshipped in the inner courtyard also though at time the Muslims Friday prayers were also held thereat, may be under the safety provided by the administration. In 1949, though it is true that the property was attached, but simultaneously it is also true that the worship of deities in the disputed structure has continued not only in the outer courtyard but also in the inner courtyard.

2732. Thus for all practical purposes, since the worshippers continued to be benefited by worship and darshan for which the public temple is meant, it cannot be said any cause of action accrued to the plaintiffs to file a suit at any stage earlier.

2733. The benefit of a temple or deity is not for the idols but the real beneficiaries are the worshippers and the purpose of endowment is the maintenance of that worship for the benefit of the worshippers. We have already referred to the relevant authorities on this aspect and add one more i.e. Kapoor Chand & Others Vs. Ganesh Dutt and others 1993 (Supp.) 4 SCC 432 where following the earlier decision in Deoki Nandan Vs. Murlidhar 1956 (1) SCR 756, the Court said as under:

> "The temple has been found to be a public temple. In respect of a public temple, the law is well-settled that the true beneficiaries of religious endowments are not the idols but the worshippers and that the purpose of the endowment is the maintenance of that worship for the benefit of the worshippers. The worshippers have a right to file a suit to set aside a transfer of immovable property comprised in a Hindu religious or charitable endowment made by a manager thereof for valuable consideration."

2734. The pleading in the suit for filing the same is that a decision was taken by majority of the worshippers to construct a new temple but apprehending some dispute thereupon, to have clarity in the matter, the present suit has been filed.

2735. A person can always approach a Court seeking declaration whenever there is some doubt though in true sense it may not be said that any of his right has been infringed by the other side giving a cause of action to file a suit. From the pleadings of the defendant also we have not been able to find out as to how and in what manner they claim that the limitation arises for the purposes of the present suit on a particular date and commencing therefrom the suit is barred by limitation.

2736. Coming to the submission of Sri M.M.Pandey that on account of the Oudh Laws Act, the limitation statute would not be applicable to the present matter we find difficult to agree for the reason that a bare reading of Section 3 shows that if the matter is covered by the statute, that will prevail. Where the personal laws and statute operate in the same field, it is the statute which shall prevail as also held by the Privy Council in Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj (supra) which has been approved by the Apex Court in Ismail Farooqui (supra).

2737. In this particular and peculiar case, one most important aspect is that the disputed place is believed to be the birth place of Lord Rama by Hindus. We have already held that it is a deity and therefore, a legal person. Thus the position of the place in this case is in dual capacity. This constitutes a legal person and simultaneously it is also the property of the legal persons i.e. a deity. The possession can be on a property and not the person. Regarding the declaration, which the plaintiffs 1 and 2 have sought before us, we have not been shown the exact date from which such period would have commenced so as to non-suit the plaintiffs on the ground of limitation. Neither the plaintiffs 1 and 2 were disturbed at any point of time in 1949 or even prior thereto. The only one occasion which at the best could have been there of disturbance is the structure of the temple which is said to have been disturbed sometime in the late 17th century or early 18th century. However, that disturbance does not appear to have caused any interference in the maintenance of worship of the place in dispute and that is how the worshippers continued to be benefited. This has continued even when the property was attached on 29th December, 1949 but it was ensured that the worship by Hindus shall continue. We, therefore, find no period of commencement wherefrom it can be said that the suit stand barred by limitation. Mere filing of some other suit by some other persons, in which the deity is not impleaded, cannot necessarily give a cause of action to the deity necessarily to file a suit or to suffer the cause of limitation.

2738. In the entirety of the matter, we are of the view that suit in question cannot be dismissed on the ground of limitation. The Issue No.13 (Suit-5) is answered in negative i.e. in favour of the plaintiffs. The suit is not barred by limitation.

(I) Issues relating to Possession/Adverse Possession:

2739. Issues no. 7 (Suit-1); 3 and 8 (Suit-3); 2, 4, 10, 15 and 28 (Suit-4); and 16 (Suit-5) fall in this category.

2740. The issues no. 7 (Suit-1) reads as under:

"Have the Muslims been in possession of the property in suit from 1528 A.D. continuously, openly and to the knowledge of plff and Hindus in general? If so, its effect?"

2741. The related pleadings are in paras 9, 10, 16 and 17 of the written statement filed by defendants no. 1 to 5, which read as under:

2742. In the replication filed by the plaintiff, para 10 of the aforesaid written statement has been replied as irrelevant. Para 16 has been denied and para 17, as pleaded, has been denied. It is said that Section 42 of the Specific Relief Act has no application in the matter. In para 31, possession of Muslims of the disputed premises atleast since 1934 has been denied stating:

2743. The defendant no. 6, in para 12 of his written statement has said that the disputed premises was known as "Babari mosque" and for a long period has been used as mosque for the purpose of worship by Muslims. It has not been used as a temple of Sri Ram Chandraji. The defendant no. 8 has not said anything in the written statement on this aspect while defendant no. 9 in para 12 has taken the same stand as that of defendant no. 6. The defendant no. 10 in its written statement has taken a stand similar to that of defendant no. 1 to 5 and in paras 11, 15, 17 and 18 has further pleaded:

"11. That the Emperor Babar had given a grant of Rs. 60/- per annum for the maintenance and annual repairs and other expenses relating to the said mosque which had remained being paid during the Moghal regime, and during the regime of Nawabs of Avadh the said grant was enhanced and the British Government had also continued the said grant and at the time of the First Settlement, the land of Mauza Sholapur and Bahuranpur was settled as Mafi for the expenses of the said mosque.

2744. The issues no. 3 and 8 (Suit-3) read as under:

"Have plaintiffs acquired title by adverse possession for over 12 years?" (Issue 3)

"Have the rights of the plaintiffs extinguished for want of possession for over 12 years prior to the suit*?"*

(Issue 8)

2745. Paras 2, 4 and 5 of the plaint says:

"2. . . . . plaintiff no. 1 who through its reigning Mahant and Sarbrahkar has ever since been managing it and receiving offerings made there at in form of money, sweets, flowers and fruits and other articles and things.

4. 2746. The defendants no. 6 to 8 have denied the above paragraphs of the plaint and in paras 15, 16, 22 and 23 have pleaded:

''धारा 15– यह कि जायदाद का मुदैयान ने दावा किया है वह शहनशाह हिन्द बाबर बादशाह के तामीर करदा मसजीद मासूमें बाबरी मसजिद है जिसको शहनशाह मजकूर ने अपने बजीर व मदारूल मोहाम मीरबाकी के सहतनाम से 1528 ई0 में तामीर कराया। और मुसलमानान के लिये वक्फ आम कर दिया जिसमें तमाम मुसलमानान का हक हबायत है।''

"Section 23 – The plaintiffs never had possession or title over the disputed building nor do they have such possession or title. For this reason, the claim is not fit to be allowed by the Court." (E.T.C.)

2747. In the replication filed by the plaintiff, para 16 of the written statement of defendants 6 to 8 has been denied and in paras 22, 23, 24, 30 and 34, it further pleads as under:

"22. The contents of para 22 of the written statement are totally false and are denied. The Muslims were never in possession of the building in suit and the allegation regarding the perfecting of the right of the muslims over the building in question by adverse possession is a pure fiction, concocted for the purposes of the suit.

23. The contents of para 23 of the written statement are totally false. The plaintiffs have always been in peaceful possession of the building in suit*.*

24. The contents of para 24 of the written statement are denied. The plaintiffs have ever been in possession of the temple in suit and no question of expiry of the period of limitation arises*.*

30. In reply to para 30 of the written statement the plaintiffs contend that they have been in possession and management of the temple of Janma Bhumi ever since the living memory of man. The said temple always belonged to the plaintiff used and was managed through his Sarbarahkar the plaintiff no. 2 being the present Sarbarahkar.

34. The contents of para 34 of the written statement are denied. The plaintiffs claim is perfectly justified. The plaintiffs have been in possession of the temple in suit for an immemorial time and even through the evidence of the construction of the temple by the plaintiff no.1 through his Mahant and Sarbarahkar may not be traced due to the lapse of immemorial age and want of written records the plaintiffs have acquired title to it by open and adverse possession for a period of time which is longer than the living memory of man."

2748. The defendant no. 9 has filed an additional written statement but in respect to the above issues there is no specific pleading.

2749. The defendant no. 10 in its written statement has denied paras 2, 4 and 5 and says:

"2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are denied. However, it is submitted that the JANMA ASTHAN is a holy place of worship and belongs to the deity of Bhagwan SHRI RAM LALLA VIRAJMAN there. It never belonged to and could not have belonged to the plaintiff no. 1. It is denied that the plaintiff no. 1 ever managed it.

4. That the contents of para 4 of the plaint are not admitted. A Hindu Temple is deemed to be possessed and owned by a deity. The principal deity of SHRI RAM JANMA BHUMI is BHAGWAN SHRI RAM*. Any offerings must have been received by the Manager of the same from time to time.*

5. That the contents of para 5 of the plaint are not admitted in the form they have been pleaded. Although it is made to appear that in the first war of independence in the year 1857 A.D., the British, to divide the Hindus and Muslims, mala fide acted by dividing the said ASTHAN by creating an inner enclosure and describing the boundary within the inner enclosure as a mosque but no Muslim who was a true Muslim, would appear to have frequented it for offerring his prayer as the same is prohibited by the SHARIYAT*. Moreover even ALAMGIR (EMPEROR AURANGZEB) issued a mandate, known as FATWA-E-ALAMGIRI which clearly prohibits the offering of prayer by Muslim at such places. More so the KASAUTI pillars and the carvings of gods and Goddesses thereon will clearly show that this place could not be used by a true Muslim for offerring his prayers therein. It will also be seen that the place wrongly alleged as mosque* virtually stood land-locked by Hindu Temple*, wherein there was the worship of the deity going on. Entry to this inner enclosure was also obstructed.*

The British tried to set up the descendents of MIR BAQI, a Shiya Muslim, as the MUTWALLI, but he denied the TAULAAT and never looked after the disputed place in any capacity, what to say of looking after as as MUTWALLI thereof."

2750. In replication, while replying written statement of defendant no. 10, the plaintiffs have said that Nirmohi Akhara through its Pujaris has always been managing the disputed premises. However, in para 16 it has made averments regarding "ownership" and "management of only outer enclosure" and says as under:

"16. That outer enclosure was owned and managed by Nirmohi Akhara, plaintiff*. . . . . Since 1982 the outer*

enclosure is in possession of Receiver appointed by Court in Reg. Suit No. 39/82 pending in the Court of Civil Judge III Faizabad."

2751. The issues no. 2, 4, 10, 15 and 28 (Suit-4) read as under:

"Whether the plaintiffs were in possession of the property in suit upto 1949 and were dispossessed from the same in 1949 as alleged in the plaint?" (Issue 2)

"Whether the Hindus in general and the devotees of Bhagwan Sri Ram in particular have perfected right of prayers at the site by adverse and continuous possession as of right for more than the statutory period of time by way of prescription as alleged by the defendants?" (Issue 4)

"Whether the plaintiffs have perfected their rights by adverse possession as alleged in the plaint?" (Issue 10)

www.vadaprativada.com

"Have the Muslims been in possession of the property in suit from 1528 A.D. continuously, openly and to the knowledge of the defendants and Hindus in general? If so, its effect?" (Issue 15)

"Whether the defendant no.3 has ever been in possession of the disputed site and the plaintiffs were never in its possession?" (Issue 28)

2752. The relevant pleadings are in paras 2, 11 and 11(a) of the plaint which read as under:

"2. . . . . The mosque and the graveyard is vested in the Almighty. The said mosque has since the time of its construction been used by the Muslims for offering prayers and the graveyard has been used as graveyard. . . .

*11. That the Muslims have been in peaceful possession of the aforesaid mosque and used to recite prayer in it, till 23.12.1949 when a large crowd of Hindus*, with the mischievous intention of destroying, damaging or defiling the said mosque and thereby insulting the Muslim religion and the religious feelings of the Muslims,* entered the mosque and desecrated the mosque by placing idols inside the mosque*. The conduct of Hindus amounted to an offence punishable under sections 147, 295 and 448 of the Indian Penal Code.*

11(a) That assuming, though not admitting, that at one time there existed a Hindu temple as alleged by the defendants representatives of the Hindus on the site of which emperor Babar built the mosque, some 433 years ago, the Muslims, by virtue of their long exclusive and continuous possession beginning from the time the mosque was built and continuing right upto the time some mischievous persons entered the mosque and desecrated the mosque as alleged in the preceding paragraphs of the plaint, the Muslims perfected their title by adverse possession and the right, title or interest of the temple and of the Hindu public if any extinguished."

2753. The defendant no. 1 while denying paras 2 and 11 of the plaint in paras 23 and 25 of his written statement have said:

"23. That para 23 of the plaint is wrong. The suit is hopelessly time barred. The Muslims have not been in possession of the property in dispute since 1934 and earlier*.*

25. That the Muslims were never in possession of the temple called Ram Janam Bhumi. If ever they were in possession of the so-called Babri mosque, there possession

ceased thereon in 1934, and since then Hindus are holding that temple in their possession and their possession has ripened into statutory adverse possession thereon since 1934. Prior to 1934 continuous daily Hindu puja is being done in that temple and the Muslims have never said their prayers since 1934 in the temple falsely described as Babri Mosque."*

2754. Similar is the stand taken in the written statement of defendant no. 2. Paras 23, 25 and 28 are not quoted being almost verbatim.

2755. In the common replication filed in reply to the written statement of defendants no. 1 and 2, plaintiffs in paras 25, 28, 34 and 35 have pleaded:

"25. The allegations contained in para 25 of the written statement are denied. The Hindu Public never held the mosque and Ganje-Shahidan in their possession nor did puja therein since 1934 as alleged by them.

28. Denied. The Muslim public has been in possession of the property in suit as mosque for the last 450 years when the mosque was constructed.

34. That it is absolutely wrong that the Hindu Public took possession of the property in dispute in 1934 and is holding possession of it as temple since then and have thus completed title by adverse possession. The possession of the Muslims community continued as ever and they have been saying their prayers in the mosque as such. The Hindu public of course in 1934, did some mischief to destroy the mosque and damage was caused to some extent, which was got repaired by the Government at the cost of the Government and the Hindu public was charged with

punitive tax. It is absolutely baseless that the Hindu public came in possession much less peaceful possession of the property in suit.

35. That the Muslim public as representative of the wakf has been in continuous possession of the property in suit for last 450 years, i.e., since the time the mosque was constructed and even if the Hindu public had any interest whatsoever in the property in suit before that period the Muslim public representing the wakf perfected his title to the property in suit by their long undisturbed open possession against the interest of the Hindu public which amounts to adverse possession of the wakf and thus title or interest if any, of Hindu public has extinguished.

2756. The defendants no. 3 and 4 in their written statement in paras 11, 13(C), 29, 30, 34 and 35 have said as under:

"11. . . . . the question of any Muslim or the Muslim community having been in peaceful possession of the same and having recited prayers till 23-12-49 does not arise. . . .

13(C). . . . . The said Temple Ram Chabutra had an history of judicial scanning since 1885 A.D. and it existence and possession over temple Ram Chabutra was ever since in possession of Nirmohi Akhara and no other but Hindus allowed to enter and worship there and put offering in form of money, sweets, fruits, flowers etc. which has always been received by Panches of Nirmohi Akhara.

29. That the said temple has ever since been in the possession of the defendant no. 3 and none other but Hindus have ever since been allowed to enter or worship therein and offerings made there, which have been in form of money, sweets, flowers and fruits and other articles and things, have always been received by the defendants 3 and 4 through their Pujaris.

30. That no Mohamedan could or ever did enter in the said temple buildings. But even if it be attempted to be proved that any Mohamedan ever entered it which would be totally wrong and is denied by the answering defendants, no Mohamedan has ever been allowed to enter or has ever attempted to enter it atleast ever since the year 1934.

34. . . . . plffs for the Muslim community or any of its members have not been in possession within limitation over the property in dispute.

35. That even if the plaintiffs succeed in showing that any Muslim ever said prayers in the building in question or used the same as a Mosque, or that the possession of the answering defendant and the Deity (Shri Thakur Ram Janki) was for any period of time disturbed by the Muslims or any of them, the answering defendant and the Deity, have again matured their title by continuous and adverse possession, open and hostile to the plaintiff and their community by remaining in continuous possession of the said building, that is, the temple of Janam Bhoomi for more than 12 years and in any case ever since 1934, during which period the Hindus have been continuously doing worship and making offerings to the deity installed therein and the answering defendant have been managing the said temple and taking offerings made thereat."

2757. In the additional written statement dated 28/29 November, 1963, the defendants no. 3 and 4 in paras 38 and 39

have said:

> "38. The building in question was always a temple as shown in the written statement of the answering defendants. Emperor Babar never built a mosque as alleged by the plaintiffs and Muslims were never in possession of the building in question.
> 39. The allegation of the plaintiffs in their amended paragraph 11(a) of the plaint that "some mischievous persons entered the mosque and desecrated" it is only the mischievous concoction. No question of the Muslims perfecting their title by adverse possession or of the extinction of the right, title or interest of the temple and of the Hindu public at all arises as the Muslims were never in possession."

2758. In the replication the plaintiffs in paras 27, 30, 32, 34, 35, 37, 38 and 39 have said:

> "27. Denied. The property in suit is not a temple as alleged and has never been in possession of the defendants as alleged.
>
> 30. Denied. The Muslim public has always been saying prayers and visiting the Mosque and Ganje-Shahidan which is the property in suit for last 450 years when the mosque was built.
> 32. Denied. The defendants have never been in possession or in-charge of the property in suit as alleged. The filing of the suit mentioned in this para is admitted. Rest is denied.
> 34. Denied. The plaintiffs and Muslims public have been in possession for last 450 years.
> 35. Denied. The plaintiffs have been in possession of the property in suit as Mosque and Ganje-Shahidan for last 450 years and it is absolutely wrong that the Hindu public ever had possession of any sort over the property in suit as temple, as alleged by the defendants in this para.

37. That the Muslim public had been in continuous and open possession of the mosque and Ganje-Shahidan for last 450 years, i.e., the time when the mosque was built. In 1934 of course the Hindu public out of mischief attempted to destroy the mosque and in their attempt they damaged the mosque at places which damage was repaired by the Government at the expense of the Government and Hindu public was penalised by punitive tax for their unlawful actions.

38. That the possession of the Muslim public was not disturbed and they remained in possession of the property as mosque and saying their usual prayers continuously upto December 1949 when Hindu public by force entered the mosque, by breaking open the lock of the mosque and desecrated the mosque by placing idols inside the mosque which being made by the police proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. were started and to avoid apprehension of breach of peace the mosque was placed in custody of a Receiver. The Receiver is still holding the property for the benefit of Muslim public*.*

39. That the Muslim public as representative of wakf has been in continuous possession of the property in suit for last 450 years i.e. since the mosque was built and even if the Hindu public had any interest whatsoever in the property in suit before that period of 450 years the Muslim public as representative of wakf has perfected title to the property in suit by their long undisturbed open possession against the interest of Hindu public to their knowledge which amounts to adverse possession of the wakf and thus the title or interest, if any, of the Hindu public has been extinguished."

2759. The additional written statement dated 21st August, 1995 of defendant no. 3, para 2 and 3(i) says:

"2. That the contents of para 20 of the plaint is evasive and plaintiffs who are not in possession nor they were in possession ever over the disputed inner or outer site*. 3(1) . . . . . The Chabutara is in possession of the defendant no. 3*, Nirmohi Akhara."*

2760. The defendant no. 10 while denying the above mentioned paragraphs of the plaint has said in paras 25 and 26 as under:

"25. That the plaintiffs have never been in possession of the property in dispute, nor they have any right to take possession thereof or make any constructions thereon, under the law of the country as aforesaid.

26. That the land and property in dispute has been throughout in uninterrupted possession of the Hindu community as a whole and in the ownership of Lord Sri Ram, and the plaintiffs never had or have any concern with the land and property in dispute."

2761. In the additional written statement dated 12th September, 1995 the defendant no. 10 in para 1 says:

"1. . . . . The Hindus have all along been in possession over the entire area of Shri Ram Janma Bhoomi. The land in question has all along been in possession of Hindus and devotees of Lord Shri Ram."

2762. Defendant no. 13, Baba Abhiram Das and defendant no. 14, Pundarik Mishra have contested the claim of plaintiffs, stating in paras 23, 25 and 28 as under:

"23. . . . . The Muslims have not been in possession of the property in dispute since 1934 and earlier.

25. That the members of the Hindu Community have from time immemorial been worshipping the site of Janam Bhum upto this time by virtue of their right and the Muslims were never in possession of the temple called as "Ram Janam Bhawan". If ever they were in uninterrupted possession of the falsely called "Babri Mosque" their possession ceased there on in 1934 and since then Hindus are holding that temple in their possession and their possession has ripened into statutory adverse possession therein since 1934. Even prior to 1934 continuous daily

Hindu Puja is being done in that temple and the Muslims have never offered their prayers since 1934 in the temple falsely described as 'Babri Mosque'.

28. . . . . the plaintiffs were never in possession over the temple in dispute since 1934 and the Hindus were holding it adversely to them to their knowledge."

2763. The defendant no. 13/1 in its written statement in paras 11, 11A and 31 says as under:

"11. That the contents of paragraph 11 of the plaint are denied. The Muslims were never in possession of the alleged 'mosque'. There was and there could be no question of any exclusive or continuous possession by the Muslims over the site of the ancient Hindu Temple or any part or portion of Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, which was by itself an object of worship by the Hindus and as such a Deity having the status of a juridical person in the eye of law. . . . . The act of Mir Baqi was a fleeting act of trespass and not an act of entering into adverse possession by a person claiming ownership against the true owner, and no Muslim could by any such act of trespass or its repetition, confer any right, title or interest in the nature of a Waqf in favour of ALLAH for the purposes of a 'mosque'. According to Muslim law, ALLAH alone is the owner in possession of all Waqf property. A Mutwalli is a mere manager, and neither the Mutwalli nor the beneficiaries of a Muslim Waqf, can claim* or have any right of ownership or possession as an owner for, or on behalf of ALLAH. Title by way of a Muslim Waqf, cannot, therefore, be acquired by adverse possession*, for Allah does not accept the Waqf of property by a wrongful act of adverse possession. 31. That after the annexation of Avadh and the first war of independence, miscalled the Sepoy Mutiny by the British, an inner enclosure for the three-domed structure was created by raising a boundary wall with iron gratings in the courtyard of the building, which separated and Rama

The British thus tried to confine the Hindus to worship their Deities in the outer part of the courtyard, but* no Muslim could enter the inner part of the courtyard or the three-domed structure within it*, except by passing through the outer courtyard, which had Hindu places of worship in it and was in their exclusive and constant occupation.* This laid the seeds of trouble off and on whenever any Muslims wanted to go inside*. The result was that no Namaz was offered inside the three-domed structure, inspite of the attempt of the British Government to induce the Muslims to do so by raising the inner boundary wall.* This was a calculated attempt by the Britishers to encourage the Muslims to use the abandoned place as a 'mosque' and create differences between their Hindu and Muslim subjects*, with the object of maintaining their power, particularly in the context of the First War of Independence in which the Hindus and the Muslims had fought the British power shoulder to shoulder like brothers. However, the attempt to induce the Muslims to use the building inside the inner enclosure as a 'mosque' did not succeed. There was an over-helming number of Hindus living all round the place, and the local Muslim population knew that the place was not a proper place for offering Namaz, as it was not a "mosque" according to the true tenets of Islam.* The Hindus never left the place and 2764. In the additional written statement the defendants no. 13/1, Mahant Dharam Das in para 48 says:

"48. . . . . site always was and continues to be a place of worship for the Hindus and owned and possessed by Shir Ramalala Virajman at Sri Ram Janma Bhumi.. . . . ."

2765. The defendant no. 17 in his additional written statement dated 14.09.1995 has averred in paras 1 and 23 as under:

"1. . . . . The Hindus have all along been in possession over the entire area of Shri Ram Janambhoomi. The land in question has all along been in possession of Hindus and devotees of Lord Shri Ram*. . . . ."*

23. That it is pertinent to mention that no suit has been brought by any person or body of persons from the Muslim side claiming dispossession of the deity. Thus the possession of the deity is hostile to the interest of the plaintiffs which is in their knowledge, but no suit has been filed against the deity i.e. Shri Ram Lala Virajman. Thus the deity has perfected his title by remaining in adverse possession and the plaintiffs are stopped from challenging the existence of deity now and claiming possession which has become time barred."

2766. The defendant no. 18 in his written statement in para 29 said:

"29. That contesting defendant does not take even a drop of water without the darshan of the said Lord Rama

www.vadaprativada.com

installed in the disputed place known as Janam Bhumi Lord Rama is a stadio of the answering defendants. The answering defendant is doing such darshan of the said Lord Rama continuously for 30-32 years. And thus accrued a right of Darshan of the said Lord Rama by prescription and long user which the answering defdt. have enjoined peacefully and without any interruption for more 30-32 years."

2767. The defendant no. 20 in para 44 and 48 of his written statement said:

"44. That before the middle of the 19th century, as mentioned above, Ayodhya was regarded as a stronghold of Hindus and the Ram Janma Bhumi was at all material time accessible to Hindus. Since then Hindus are in peaceful possession of the place and the temple in dispute and are performing the worship therein peacefully and uninterruptedly.

48. That, in the above circumstances, the ouster of Hindu community from Ram Janma Bhumi did not ever take place*. The Hindus have always been and are still today in lawful possession and shall always be deemed to be in lawful possession of the site in dispute. In the alternative, even supposing without admitting that the Hindus were ousted, yet they have thereafter regained possession and have been exercising their rights of worship peacefully and to the knowledge of the plaintiffs for more than twelve years and thus perfected their title in the eyes of law. The suit is barred by limitation."*

2768. The issue no. 16 (Suit-5) read as under:

"Whether the title of plaintiffs 1 & 2, if any, was

www.vadaprativada.com

extinguished as alleged in paragraph 25 of the written statement of defendant no.4? If yes, have plaintiffs 1 and 2 reacquired title by adverse possession as alleged in paragraph 29 of the plaint?"

2769. The above issue has been framed with reference to para 29 of the plaint and para 25 of the written statement of defendant no. 4 which (relevant extract) read as under:

(Plaint)

"29. The Receiver was not authorised to remove any person from the possession or the custody of the premises, and in fact the Receiver never interfered with the possession of the Plaintiff Deities*. No party to a proceeding could dispossess a third party, nor could the Receiver interfere with the possession of a person who is not a party to the proceedings. At the highest, the Receiver acted like a Shebait. He did not disturb the possession of the plaintiff Deities. Their possession over the building premises in dispute ever since the installation of the first Plaintiff's Idol on the night between the 22nd and 23rd December, 1949, is admitted by all the concerned parties. Thus,* independently of the original title of the Plaintiff Deities which continued all along, the admitted position of their possession places the matter of their title beyond any doubt or dispute*. Even if there had been any person claiming title to the property adversely to the Plaintiff Deities, that would have been extinguished by their open and long adverse possession, which created positively and affirmatively and proprietary title to the premises in the Plaintiff Deities."*

(Written statement of defendant no. 4)

"25. That the contents of para 25 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there never remained any deity in the mosque in question*. It is also incorrect to say that no valid waqf of the mosque was ever created and the reference of command of law made in the para under reply is also incorrect and misleading.*

It further submitted that the muslims' possession has remained uninterrupted and continuous of the mosque in question since its construction and upto 22-12-1949 (and as such the alleged right or title, if any, of anyone else over the same has ceased to exist and the alleged right and title shall be deemed to have extinguished) on account of the uninterrupted and adverse possession of the muslims over the mosque in question for more than 420 years."

2770. From the above pleadings it is evident that on one hand the Muslim parties claim to possess the disputed building since the date of its construction and offering prayer (Namaz) thereat but simultaneously have taken the plea of adverse possession and have claimed the right of ownership on the basis of expiry of limitation for re-entering into possession by the alleged Hindu owner in case they are able to prove their case of ownership. The Hindus similarly have staked their claim otherwise.

2771. The pleadings and evidence in support of the above issues divide the period of dispute since 1528 AD into four, (1) prior to 1528 AD; (2) prior to 1855 AD; (3) from 1855 AD to 1934 AD; and (4) from 1934 AD to 22/23 December 1949.

Besides, he referred to the statement of PWs 1-9, 14, 21, 23 and 25 to show that there was continuous prayer (Namaz) in the disputed building.

2773. On the contrary, Hindu parties have claimed their continuous possession on the property in dispute since time immemorial and in any case since 1934 AD. They say that no prayer (Namaz) has been offered in the disputed building earlier and in any case since 1934 AD and, therefore, possession of Hindus on the disputed site cannot be disturbed after expiry of the period of limitation within which they could have been dispossessed by the Muslim parties. Plaintiff (Suit-3) has also got examined a number of witnesses deposing about worship prior and since 1934 till 1949 and thereafter and the possession of Nirmohi Akhara throughout.

2774. Sri P.N.Mishra, assisted by Miss Ranjana Agnihotri, Advocates appearing on behalf of defendant No.20 (Suit-4) submitted that the defence taken by defendant No.20 is that there was no mosque at all at any point of time and it was throughout a temple wherein Lord Ram was being worshipped by Hindus, being his birth place. However, in any case, the plea of "adverse possession" on the part of plaintiffs (Suit-4) is wholly misconceived. He pointed out that the basic ingredients to prove a case of "adverse possession" are that there should be hostile, open, continuous possession against the "rightful owner". The possession should be peaceful, uninterrupted and must have continued for 12 years. There should be animus possidendi with the person claiming adverse possession against rightful owner. He submits that the plaintiffs (Suit-4) have not pleaded anywhere in the plaint as to who was the owner of the disputed property whereagainst the plaintiffs (Suit 4) held property in dispute and that too open, hostile and peaceful. There is no date of possession on which the same became adverse to the real owner and in any case the possession was never peaceful since throughout interruption and interference of Hindus had continued. He contends that in fact the evidence on record shows that the disputed property continued to be in possession of the Hindus, if not in entirety the substantial part thereof, and it cannot be said that the plaintiffs (Suit-4) have matured their right thereat. He further submits that on one hand the plaintiffs have claimed themselves to be the owner of the property in question but simultaneously the plea of adverse possession continuing for 12 years and more, maturing in title, has been taken though the law is well settled that inconsistent and mutually destructive pleas cannot be taken. He submits that if the plaintiffs (Suit-4) intended to raise the plea of adverse possession maturing in title, it was incumbent upon them to give up the title, which is not the case and therefore, the case set up by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) in respect to adverse possession is liable to be rejected. On the various aspects, connected with the plea of adverse possession, he cited and relied on the following authorities: Qadir Bux Vs. Ramchand (supra); Hemaji Waghaji Jat Vs. Bhikhabhai Khengarbhai Harijan & Others AIR 2009 SC 103; Ejas Ali Qidwai & Ors. Vs. Special Manager, Court of Wards, Balrampur Estate & Ors. 2775. Sri Mishra also submitted that in the case of adverse possession, if continued for 12 years maturing in title extinguishing the title of the rightful owner, no equity lie in favour of the person who has raised the plea of adverse possession. The claim of adverse possession needs to be examined strictly and if there is any gap, the plea must have to fail. Time creates title and therefore animus, who possesses the property adversely against true owner to his knowledge, is the essence of the matter. It is said that in Mohammedan Law, the concept of limitation is not recognised. Nor that of adverse possession. The suit, as pleaded in the plaint, does not prove the case of adverse possession. It is said that the doctrine of

'election' is also applicable here since the plea with respect to ownership as well as adverse possession maturing in ownership simultaneously cannot be taken.

2776. It is contended that, in law, if a person does not acquire title, the same cannot be vested only by reason of acquiescence or estoppel on the part of others and reliance is placed on National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mastan and another 2006 (2) SCC 641, R.N. Gosain Vs. Yashpal Dhir 1992 (4) SCC 683, Nagubai Ammal and others Vs. B. Shama Rao and others AIR 1956 SC 593 and C. Beepathumma (supra).

2777. In order to show that there was no possession of Muslims and in any case, since 1934, the Muslims have never visited the disputed site and it was continuously in possession of the Hindus, he referred to certain statements and affidavits filed before the City Magistrate, Faizabad in proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. He referred to the statements of Peeru dated 11th February, 1950 which is on record of the proceedings under Sections 145 Cr.P.C. (Register Vol.1, page 99) and the written statement of Anisurrahman (Vol. 2 Page 215) which has been adopted by Mohd. Hasim, one of the plaintiff of Suit-4. Placing reliance on M/s Kamakshi Builders Vs. M/s Ambedkar Educational Society and others AIR 2007 SC 2191; Dinomoni Chowdharani (supra), Baroda Prosad Roy Chaudhry Vs. Rai Manmath Nath Mitra 41 Indian Cases 456 and State of T.N. Vs. T. Thulasingam and others 1994 Supp. (2) SCC 405, he submitted that the statements before the Magistrate in proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. can be taken and considered in evidence in a civil suit.

2778. Sri M.M. Pandey, learned counsel for the plaintiffs

(Suit-5) in the context of Issue No. 16 (Suit-5) has submitted:

(A) Apart from the indefeasible rights of the Deity as mentioned by Katyayana (see para 54 supra), and King's duty to protect the Deity (see para 43 supra) the fundamental claim of Plaintiffs of OOS 5 of 1989 is that under Hindu Law, neither the Deity nor Deity's property is 'alienable', hence alienation thereof is void; consequently no right or title thereto can be prescribed by 'Adverse Possession'. This claim is supported by very recent decision of Supreme Court in the case of Amarendra Pratap Singh Vs. Tej Bahadur Prajapati and others, 2004 SC 3782 = (2004) 10 SCC 65. The matter related to sale of certain lands by aboriginal tribal to a certain non-tribal purchaser without the statutory permission of the Competent Authority under Orissa Scheduled Areas Transfer of Immovable Property (by Scheduled Tribes) Regulation 1956; Para 3 of the Regulation provided that any transfer of immovable property by a member of a Scheduled Tribe to a non-tribal shall be absolutely null and void and of no force or effect unless made in favour of another member of a Scheduled Tribe "or with the previous consent in writing of the Competent Authority". Previous permission not having been obtained, the purchaser claimed to have perfected title to transferred land by Adverse Possession for over 12 years under Limitation Act. In para 22, dealing with Article 65 and Section 27 of Limitation Act, the SC emphasised a distinction between acquisition of title 'as of own right' and due to 'default or inaction of the true owner to protect the property', and held the person in adverse possession

"acquires title not on his own but on account of default or inaction on the part of the real owner, which stretched over a period of 12 years results into extinguishing of the latter's title. It is that extinguished title of the real owner which comes to vest in the wrong-doer. The law does not intend to confer any premium on the wrong doing of a person in wrongful possession; it pronounces the penalty of extinction of title on the person who though entitled to assert his right and remove the wrong-doer and re-enter into possession, has defaulted and remained inactive for a period of 12 years, which the law considers to be reasonable for attracting the penalty." In para 23, the SC held: "The right in the property ought to be one which is alienable and is capable of being acquired by the competitor. Adverse possession operates on an alienable right. The right stands alienated by operation of law, for it was capable of being alienated voluntarily and is sought to be recognised by doctrine of adverse possession……." Reliance was placed, in para 24, on Mahdav Rao Waman Vs Raghunath Venkatesh, AIR 1923 PC 205 holding that it was somewhat difficult to see how a stranger to a Watan can acquire a title by adverse possession for 12 years, the alienation of which is, in the interests of the State, inalienable; the SC noticed that this decision of PC was followed in Karimullah Khan Vs. Bhanu Pratap Singh, AIR 1949 Nag 265 holding that "title by adverse possession on Inam land, Watan land and Debutter was incapable of acquisition". Debutter is 'dedicated' property, like property of Deity. Rejecting the claim of adverse possession, SC held in para 25: "It is clear that the law does not permit a right in immovable property vesting in a tribal to be transferred in favour of or acquired by a non-tribal unless permitted by the previous sanction of the Competent Authority …… It is so because a tribal is considered by the Legislature not to be capable of protecting his own immovable property …….. The State is the custodian and trustee of the immovable property of Tribal and is enjoined to see that the Tribal remains in possession of such property. No period of limitation is prescribed by Para 3A of the Regulation of 1956. The prescription of period of 12 years in Article 65 of Limitation Act becomes irrelevant so far as the immovable property of a Tribal is concerned. The Tribal need not file a Civil Suit which is governed by the law of limitation. It is enough if he, or anyone on his behalf moves the State, or the State itself moves into action to protect him and restores the property to him. To such an action, neither Article 65 of Limitation Act nor Section 27 thereof would be attracted." This ruling of the Supreme Court applies fully to these Suits. The antecedents of a Tribal, under the Orissa Regulation, strongly resemble those of a Hindu Deity. Manu's edict no. 163 of Chapter 8 says: 'an act done by a person……wholly dependant …… is invalid' ("The Laws of Manu" Penguin Classics, Edn 2000 page 170). Similar proposition is set out in Verse 35 of Chapter 1 in Part 2 (English page 288-89; Sanskrit page 106) of Naradsmriti ("Critical Edition and Translation" 1st Edn 2003 by Richard W. Larviere – Shri Jainendra Press, New Delhi): "Those who know the teaching of Shastra say that anything done by a minor or by one who is not independent is invalid." Protection of disabled persons rights in Hindu Law is mentioned in Yajnavalkya Smriti in verse 25 of 2nd Prakarnam of 2nd Chapter at page 94 (Translated by M.N.Dutta, First Edn 2005, Parimal Publications, Delhi) as follows: "But these limitations of 20 & 10 years respectively do not hold good in the case of …….. properties of invalid and minor……."Deity is 'wholly dependant' and 'perpetual minor', hence Deity's immovable property is inalienable; the Deity is unable to manage it's affairs which are managed by a Shebait, and if the Shebait mismanages or fails to protect its interests, a 'next friend' or 'worshipper' is competent to move the machinery of law and the State, too, is under an obligation to protect its rights/interests. Since Hindu Law alone contains the provisions applicable to Hindu Deity – in the absence of any Statute setting out the rights/obligations/antecedents of a Hindu Deity – and contains the law that rights of the Deity are not lost by adverse possession for any length of time, Indian Limitation Act (including Article 65 or Section 27) cannot be applied to the Deity, hence its rights cannot be lost by adverse possession. In this connection a very significant observation by PC may be noticed in the case of Mosque known as Masjid Shahidganj Vs. Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee 1940 PC 116 on the possible effect of the Mosque being treated to be a 'juristic person', the suit having been filed in the name of the Mosque as Plaintiff. At page 119, Col. 2, Sir George Rankin observed as follows: "The choice of this curious form of suit was motivated apparently by a notion that if the Mosque could be made out to be a juristic person, this would assist in establishing that a mosque remains a mosque for ever, that Limitation cannot be applied to it, that it is not property but owner of the property." This is precisely what the Plaintiffs of OOS 5 of 1989 claim; Plaintiffs 1 & 2 are Hindu Deities/Juristic Entities in their own right in accordance with the Hindu Law, are Owners of Themselves, everlasting, incapable of being destroyed, and are not mere properties, hence law of Limitation cannot be applied to them. Another significant observation by the PC, in the context of application of Limitation Act to suits relating to Muslim or Hindu religious institutions, at page 122 col. 1 is: "At the same time, the procedure of the Courts in applying Hindu or Mahomedan Law has to be appropriate to the law which they apply. Thus the procedure in India takes account necessarily of the polytheistic and other features of the Hindu religion and recognises certain doctrines of Hindu Law as an essential thereto, e.g. that an Idol may be the owner of property". This necessarily called for application of the principles of Hindu Dharmashastra Law to the question of limitation in respect of the Hindu Deity, but in stead of doing so, the PC simply made a broad observation at page 122 col. 1, that 'there has never been any doubt that the property of a Hindu religious endowment – including a thakurbari – is subject to the law of limitation'. Citations noted by PC are: 37 I.A. 147, Damodar Das Vs. Lakhan Das and 64 I.A. 203 (= AIR 1937 PC 185), Ishwari Bhubanshwari Thakurani Vs. Brojo Nath Dey. The expression, 'there has never been any doubt…….' only indicates that PC was simply relying upon previous decisions which, did not really examine the Hindu Dharmashastras or the Oudh Laws Act pointed out by us above. Indeed in Ishwar Bhuvaneswari's case, the property had ceased to be 'dedicated' by virtue of a 'consent decree of 1904', hence point of adverse possession over Deity's property did not survive (see page 188-89); even so, the PC held (at page 187 col. 2) that the efffect of a valid deed of dedication is to place the property comprised in the endowment extra commercium and beyond the reach of creditors. The decision, therefore, is not an authority on the point of 'adverse possession/Limitation Act'. Rulings holding that Limitation Act applies to Hindu Deity or that Deity is not a perpetual minor or does not suffer from disability, suffer from a common deficiency, viz., they do not deal with Hindu Dharmashastra Law or Oudh Laws Act or effect of Referential Legislation contained in Oudh Laws Act or the doctrine of "Reading Down" a statutory provision; they were rendered 'per Incuriam', hence are not binding precedents: State of UP & another Vs. Synthetics & Chemicals Ltd, (1991) 4 SCC 139 (paras 40 & 41), Sunita Devi Vs. State of Bihar, (2005) 1 SCC 608 (para 19) and Mayuram Subramanian Vs. CBI, (2006) 5 SCC 752 (para 11).

www.vadaprativada.com

(B) Referring to an English decision, the SC has noticed in paras 30 and 31 of 2007 (25) LCD 1374 (SC), RT. Munichikanna Reddy Vs. Revamma that in Adverse Possession, 'Force' is excluded (so forcible demolition of Hindu Temple and erection of Babari Mosque, would not qualify for adverse possession' – indeed, such place is Ankah, taken Ghasbi, i.e. by force where saying of Namaz is held to be illegal by Islamic scriptures. Manu's edict no. 168 in Chapter 8, on use of force is as follows: "What is given by force, enjoyed by force, and also what is written by force, indeed all matters that are done by force Manu has declared to be undone" ("The Laws of Manu", Penguin Classics Edn 2000, page 170). That is what must be done to DS.

(C) Katyayana Smriti clearly lays down that mere wrongful possession for any length of time of Temple property would not confer ownership on anybody. 'Temple' takes within its ambit, both the Deity and the structure within which it resides; Temple is the Home of the Deity. Since Hindu Deity is a juristic person, it enjoys right of 'constructive possession'. There can be no 'ouster' of Swyambhu Deity; trespass by an outsider, adversely to the Deity, only constitutes temporary suspension of user of the property by Deity which stands automatically restored when the trespass terminates or is sought to be terminated through Court process. Since Law of Limitation does not apply to a Hindu Deity, termination of trespass at any point of time revives Deities' actual possession supplementing its constructive possession. This concept of 'revival' is not to be confused with a case where title/right to property is lost under Section 27 of Limitation Act or by adverse possession – there is no 'revival of right'; the title/right of a Hindu Deity is never lost, what is revived is actual possession only.

(D) The record of these suits establish that members of

Muslim Community of Ayodhya could not enjoy peaceful or uninterrupted possession over DA so as to enable them to acquire title by adverse possession. The law of Adverse possession was created by Statute for the first time in 1871; but between 1608-11, William Finche found Hindus treating DA/DS to be the birthplace of Ram, in 1786 Tieffenthaler found Hindu devotees worshipping DA/DS as birthplace of Ram and in 1853 itself, Muslims ceased to enjoy exclusive possession of DS, as DA including DS – i.e. the building itself – within the boundary walls of disputed area, were forcibly taken possession of by Hindus, leading to fierce fighting in which Muslims were killed of whom 75 (or so) were buried outside the disputed premises (called Ganj Shaheedan), that although in 1855, the British administrators erected a wall through the platform in front of DS to separate the areas of possession of Hindus & Muslims, a determined group of Sikhs re-occupied DS in 1858 and could not be dislodged despite Administration's intervention and that worship was done by Hindus inside the DS. Ext. 2 of SB Suit dated 29.6.1880, the Register of Muafi clearly record that this is the Masjid in Ayodhya for possession of which Hindus and Muslims fight and are rival claimants. This proves that throughout the period from 1853 to 1880 Muslims could never be in continuous peaceful possession of DS/DA. In application dated 02.11.1883, Ext. 18, Md. Asghar admitted possession of Mahant Raghubar Das not only on the Chabutra Janmasthan but also on Sita Rasoi abutting towards North of DS which is mentioned by Tieffenthaler too. In 1885 came the Suit of Mahant

Raghubar Das. Md. Asghar/Md. Javed as Mutawalli of Babri Basjid stated in their written statement Ext. A-23 that the Ram Chabutra was constructed in 1857 which the Muslims had complained of and applied for demolition and orders were passed for its demolition and that the plaintiffs and other Hindus used to have ingress/egress into the campus of the Masjid, had been assembling/dispersing, coming/going and making offerings as they do at other religious places like Imambaras/Masjids for their spiritual benefit. This proves that the Hindu devotees had access to DS and were worshipping and making offerings inside the DS. Thus SB have failed to establish continuous peaceful possession for any specific period of 12 years to acquire title by adverse possession.

(E) It is admitted that in the year 1934 during communal riots caused by cow slaughter by some Muslims at Ayodhya the domes of DS and substantial part thereof were destroyed by the Hindus. The damage was repaired by the government and not by SB or the Muslim community on their own. In Para 22 of written statement dated 21.2.1950 (In reply to Plaint of Gopal Singh Visharad's Suit OOS 1 of 1989), Defendant Nos. 1 to 5 (all local Muslims including Zahoor Ahmad D-1, Haji Pheku D-2 and Md. Faiq D-3) stated that Namaz had been offered in DS till 16.12.1949. The truth of this statement is challenged on behalf of the Plaintiff, particularly in view of important contradictions appearing in evidence on behalf of SB, and the significant position is that SB filed the Suit OOS 4 of 1989 on 18.12.1961, i.e., at least two days after the expiry of 12 years from the date (16.12.1949) when the last Namaz was allegedly offered. Indeed two reports dated 10.12.1949 (Ext. A-63) and dated 23.12.1949 (Ext. A-64) of Waqf Inspector Md. Ebrahim addressed to the Secretary of SB establish that at least from September 1949 no Namaz or Azan was being offered in DS except on Fridays and that too under great stress and fear of Hindus, Sikhs and Bairagis. Considering all the material on record it is established that DS was not used by Muslims peacefully and regularly for any specific period of 12 years during any time at least from 1853 to 22.12.1949 and that, on the contrary, Hindu devotees had continued to offer their prayers throughout that period and specifically from 1934 Plaintiffs 1 and 2 had been in possession of DS to the exclusion of Muslims.

2779. Except Suit No.1, ownership of the disputed property has been claimed in all the remaining suits. The plaintiffs (Suit-3) have claimed disputed site and the building as property of Nirmohi Akhara. In Suit-4 the plaintiffs' claim that the disputed building being a mosque is a waqf and therefore, it belongs to Almighty. In Suit-5, the plaintiffs No.1 and 2 claimed to be the Deity (a juristic personality) and therefore, owner of the disputed site.

2780. Since some of the parties have claimed their title matured due to inaction on the part of true owner for the last more than twelve years despite possession, hostile to them, therefore, the title of the true owner having extinguished, they have become owner by virtue of adverse possession and for this reason, the aforesaid nine issues have been framed to consider the above pleas.

2781. To understand the concept of "adverse possession" it would be necessary to have a clear idea about the concept of "possession" and "ownership" in respect to immovable property and also the law, if any, before the codification of law during British regime, i.e., on and after 1857 AD, and also during the period of East India Company when the matter used to be governed by the Regulations framed by the East India Company. Here we propose to consider the above concept also in the context of laws followed by Hindus and Muslims prevailing at the relevant time.

2782. First we come to the English Law on the subject.

2784. "Pollock" says, "In common speech a man is said to be in possession of anything of which he has the apparent control or from the use of which he has the apparent powers of excluding others*".* The stress laid by Pollock on possession is not on animus but on de facto control.

2785. "Savigny" defines possession, *"*intention coupled with physical power to exclude others from the use of material object." Apparently this definition involves both the elements namely, corpus possesssion is and animus domini.

2786. The German Jurist 'Savigny' laid down that all property is founded on adverse possession ripened by prescription. The concept of ownership accordingly as observed by him involve three elements-Possession, Adverseness of Possession, (that is a holding not permissive or subordinate, but exclusive against the world), and Prescription, or a period of time during which the Adverse Possession has uninterruptedly continued.

2787. "Holmes" opined that possession is a conception which is only less important than contract.

2788. According to Salmond on "Jurisprudence", 12th Edition (1966) (First Edition published in 1902) by P.J. Fitzgerald, Indian Economy Reprint 2006 published by Universal Law Publishing Co. Pvt. Ltd. Delhi (hereinafter referred to as "Salmond's Jurisprudence"). On page 51, it says that the concept of "possession" is as difficult to define as it is essential to protect. It is an abstract notion and is not purely a legal concept. It is both a legal and a non-legal or a pre-legal concept. He tried to explain the concept of possession with reference to different factual and legal concepts.

2789. The first one is "possession in fact". It is a relationship between a person and a thing. The things one possesses in his hand or which one has in his control like clothes he is wearing, objects he is keeping in his pocket etc. For such things it can be said that he is in possession of the things in fact. To possess one would have to have a thing under his physical control. If one captures a wild animal, he get possession of it but if the animal escapes from his control, he looses possession. It implies that things not amenable in any manner to human control cannot form the subject matter of possession like one cannot possess sun, moon or the stars etc. Extending the above concept, "Salmond" says that one can have a thing in his control without actually holding or using it at every given moment of time like possession of a coat even if one has taken it off and put down or kept in the cupboard. Even if one fall asleep, the possession of the coat would remain with him. If one is in such a position, has to be able in the normal course of events to resume actual control when one desires, the possession in fact of the thing is there. Another factor relevant to the assessment of control is the power of excluding other people. The amount of power that is necessary varies according to the nature of the object.

2790. The possession consisted of a "corpus possessionis" and "animus possidendi". The former comprised both, the power to use the thing possessed and the existence of grounds for the expectation that the possessor's use will not be interfered with. The latter consisted of an intent to appropriate to oneself the exclusive use of the thing possessed.

2791. Then comes "possession in law". A man, in law, would possess only those things which in ordinary language he would be said to possess. But then the possessor can be given certain legal rights such as a right to continue in possession free from interference by others. This primary right in rem can be supported by various sanctioning rights in personam against those who violates the possessor's primary right; can be given a right for compensation for interference and a dispossession and the right to have his possession restored from the encroacher.

2792. Another facet of possession is "immediate" or "mediate possession". The possession held by one through another is termed "mediate" while that acquired or retained directly or personally can be said to be "immediate or direct". There is a maxim of civil law that two persons could not be in possession of the same thing at the same time. (Plures eandem rem in solidum possidere non possunt). As a general proposition exclusiveness is of the essence of possession. Two adverse claims of exclusive use cannot both be effectually realised at the same time. There are, however, certain exceptions, namely, in the case of mediate possession two persons are in possession of the same thing at the same time. Every mediate possessor stands in relation to a direct possessor through whom he holds. Two or more persons may possess the same thing in common just as they may own it in common.

2793. Then comes "incorporeal possession". It is commonly called the possession of a right and is distinct from the "corporeal possession" which is a possession of the thing.

2794. In "The Elementary Principles of Jurisprudence" by G.W. Keeton, II Edition (1949) published by Sir Isaac Pitman and Sons Ltd. London (First published in 1930), "possession" has been dealt in Chapter XV. It says:

> "'Possession,' says an old proverb, "is nine points of law." Put in another way, this implies that he who has conscious control of an object need only surrender his control to one who can establish a superior claim in law."

2795. The essentials of possession in the first instance includes a fact to be established like any other fact. Whether it exists in a particular case or not will depend on the degree of control exercised by the person designated as possessor. If his control is such that he effectively excludes interference by others then he has possession. Thus the possession in order to show its existences must show "corpus possessionis" and an "animus possidendi".

2796. Corpus possessionis means that there exists such physical contact of the thing by the possessor as to give rise to the reasonable assumption that other persons will not interfere with it. Existence of corpus broadly depend on (1) upon the nature of the thing itself, and the probability that others will refrain from interfering with the enjoyment of it; (2) possession of real property, i.e., when a man sets foot over the threshold of a house, or crosses the boundary line of his estate, provided that there exist no factors negativing his control, for example the continuance in occupation of one who denies his right; and (3) acquisition of physical control over the objects it encloses. Corpus, therefore, depends more upon the general expectations that others will not interfere with an individual control over a thing, then upon the physical capacity of an individual to exclude others.

2797. The animus possidendi is the conscious intention of an individual to exclude others from the control of an object.

2798. Possession confers on the possessor all the rights of the owner except as against the owner and prior possessors. "Possession in law" has the advantage of being a root of title.

2799. There is also a concept of "constructive possession" which is depicted by a symbolic act. It has been narrated with an illustration that delivery of keys of a building may give right to constructive possession all the contents to the transferee of the key.

2800. It would also be useful to have meaning of "possession" in the context of different dictionaries.

2801. In "Oxford English-English-Hindi Dictionary" published by Oxford University Press, first published in 2008, 11th Impression January 2010, at page 920:

> "possession-1. the state of having or owning something. 2. Something that you have or own"

www.vadaprativada.com

2802. In "The New Lexicon Webster's Dictionary of the English Language" (1987), published by Lexicon Publications, Inc. at page 784:

> "pos-ses-sion-a possessing or being possessed II that which is possessed II (pl.) property II a territory under the political and economic control of another country II (law) actual enjoyment of property not founded on any title of ownership to take possession of to begin to occupy as owner II to affect so as to dominate."

2803. In "Chambers Dictionary" (Deluxe Edition), first published in India in 1993, reprint 1996 by Allied Publishers Limited, New Delhi at page 1333 defines 'possess' and 'possession' as under :

> "possess poz-es', vt to inhabit, occupy (obs.); to have or hold as owner, or as if owner; to have as a quality; to seize; to obtain; to attain (Spenser); to maintain; to control; to be master of; to occupy and dominate the mind of; to put in possession (with of, formerly with in); to inform, acquaint; to imbue; to impress with the notion of feeling; to prepossess (obs)."*
> "possession the act, state or fact of possession or being possessed, a thing possessed; a subject foreign territory"*

2804. In "Corpus Juris Secundum", A Complete Restatement of the Entire American Law as developed by All Reported Cases (1951), Vol. LXXII, published by Brooklyn, N.Y., The American Law Book Co., at pages 233-235:

> "Possession expresses the closest relation of fact which can exist between a corporeal thing and the person who possesses it, implying an actual physical contact, as by sitting or standing upon a thing; denoting custody

coupled with a right or interest of proprietorship*; and "possession" is inclusive of "custody." although "custody" is not tantamount to "possession." In its full significance, "possession" connotes domination or supremacy of authority. It implies a right and a fact; the right to enjoy annexed to the right of property, and the fact of the real detention of thing which would be in the hands of a master or of another for him. It also implies a right to deal with property at pleasure* and to exclude other persons from meddling with it*. Possession involves power of control and intent to control, and all the definitions contained in recognized law dictionaries indicate that the element of custody and control is involved in the term "possession."*

The word "possession" is also defined as meaning the thing possessed; that which anyone occupies, owns, or controls; and in this sense, as applied to the thing possessed, the word is frequently employed in the plural, denoting property in the aggregate; wealth; and it may include real estate where such is the intention, although this is not the technical signification.

It is also defined as meaning dominion; as, foreign possessions; and, while in this sense the term is not a word of art descriptive of a recognised geographical or governmental entity, it is employed in a number of federal statues to describe the area to which various congressional statutes apply.

"Possession" in the sense of ownership, and as a degree of title, and as indicating the holding or retaining of property in one's power or control, is treated in Property."

2805. In "Black's Law Dictionary" Seventh Edition (1999), published by West Group, St. Paul, Minn., 1999, at page 1183:

> "possession. 1. The fact of having or holding property in one's power; the exercise of dominion over property. 2. The right under which one may exercise control over something to the exclusion of all others; the continuing exercise of a claim to the exclusive use of a material object. 3. (usu. pl.) Something that a person owns or controls; PROPERTY (2). 4. A territorial dominion of a state or nation."

2806. In Black's Law Dictionary (supra) the following categories of possession have also been referred and explained:

> "Actual possession, adverse possession, bona fide possession, civil possession, constructive possession, corporeal possession, derivative possession, direct possession, effective possession, exclusive possession, hostile possession, immediate possession, incorporeal possession, indirect possession, insular possession, mediate possession, naked possession, natural possession, notorious possession, peaceable possession, pedal possession, possession in fact, possession in law, possession of right, precarious possession, quasi possession and scrambling possession."

2807. Since the nature of possession, its various ingredients and effect etc. in the peculiar kind of this case may be required to be considered at the appropriate state, we find it necessary to see the manner in which the above kinds of categories of possession have been described in Black's Law Dictionary (supra):

> actual possession. Physical occupancy or control over

adverse possession. A method of acquiring title to real property by possession for a statutory period under certain conditions, esp. a non-permissive use of the land with a claim of right when that use is continuous, exclusive, hostile, open, and notorious*.*

bona fide possession. Possession of property by a person who in good faith does not know that the property's ownership is disputed.

civil possession. Civil law. Possession existing by virtue of a person's intent to own a property even though the person no longer occupies or has physical control of it.

www.vadaprativada.com

constructive possession. Control or dominion over a property without actual possession or custody of it. - Also termed effective possession; possessio fictitia.

corporal possession. Possession of a material object, such as a farm or a coin. - Also termed natural possession; possissio corporis.

derivative possession. Lawful possession by one (such as a tenant) who does not hold title.

direct possession. Something that a person owns or controls.

effective possession. See constructive possession.

exclusive possession. The exercise of exclusive dominion over property, including the use and benefit of the property.

www.vadaprativada.com

hostile possession. Possession asserted against the claims of all others, including the record owner. See Adverse Possession.

immediate possession. Possession that is acquired or retained directly or personally. - Also termed direct possession.

incorporeal possession. Possession of something other than a material object, such as an easement over a neighbour's land, or the access of light to the windows of a house. - Also termed possessio juris; quasi-possession.

indirect possession. See mediate possession.

mediate possession. Possession of a thing through someone else, such as an agent. - Also termed indirect possession.

naked possession. The mere possession of something, esp. real estate without any apparent right or colorable title to it.

natural possession. Civil law. The exercise of physical detention or control over a thing, as by occupying a building or cultivating farmland.

notorious possession. Possession or control that is evident to others; possession of property that, because it is generally known by people in the area where the property is located, gives rise to a presumption that the actual owner has notice of it. - Also termed open possession; open and notorious possession.

peaceable possession. Possession (as of real property) not disturbed by another's hostile or legal attempts to recover possession.

pedal possession. Actual possession, as by living on the land or by improving it.

possession in fact. Actual possession that may or may not be recognized by law. - Also termed possessio naturalis.

possession in law. 1. possession that is recognized by the law either because it is a specific type of possession in fact or because the law or some special reason attributes the advantages and results of possession to someone who does not in fact possess. 2. see constructive possession. - Also termed possessio civilis.

possession of a right. The de facto relation of continuing exercise and enjoyment of a right as oppose to the de jure relation of ownership. - Also termed possession juris.

precarious possession. Civil law. Possession of property by someone other than the owner on behalf of or with permission of the owner.

quasi possession. See incorporeal possession.

scrambling possession. Possession that is uncertain because it is in dispute.

2808. In "Words and Phrases" Permanent Edition, Vol. 33 (1971), published by St. Paul, Minn. West Publishing Co., at pages 91-92:

"'Possession' as used in statute is not synonymous with physical bodily presence of adverse claimant; continuous bodily presence is not required, but rather question is one of fact which must be determined from circumstances of each case*.*

"Possession" is a common term used in every day conversation that has not acquired any artful meaning.

"Possession", in any sense of term, must imply, first, some actual power over the object possessed, and,

secondly, some amount of will to avail oneself of that power.

"Possession" is one of the most vague of all vague terms, and shifts its meaning according to the subject-matter to which it is applied,--varying very much in its sense, as it is introduced either into civil or into criminal proceedings.

Possession is that condition of fact under which one can exercise his power over a corporeal thing to the exclusion of all others.

To constitute possession, there must be such appropriation of the land to the individual as will apprise the community in its vicinity that the land is in his exclusive use and enjoyment*, and* notice of possession to be sufficient must be of the open and visible character*, which from its nature will apprise the world that* the land is occupied*, and* who the occupant is*."*

2809. In "Jowitt's Dictionary of English Law" Vol. 2 Second Edition-1977, Second Impression-1990, published by London Sweet & Maxwell Limited, at pages 1387-1389:

"Possession, the visible possibility of exercising physical control over a thing, coupled with the intention of doing so, either against all the world, or against all the world except certain persons. There are, therefore, three requisites of possession. First*, there must be actual or potential physical control.* Secondly*, physical control is not possession, unless accompanied by intention; hence, if a thing is put into the hand of a sleeping person, he has not possession of it.* Thirdly*, the possibility and intention must be visible or evidenced by external signs, for if the thing*

shows no signs of being under the control of anyone, it is not possessed; hence, if a piece of land is deserted and left without fences or other signs of occupation, it is not in the possession of anyone, and the possession is said to be vacant. The question whether possession of land is vacant is of importance in actions for recovering possession.

Possession is actual, where a person enters into lands or tenements conveyed to him; apparent, which is a species of presumptive title, as where land descended to the heir of an abator, intruder, or disseisor, who died seised; in law, when lands had descended to a man and he had not actually entered into them, or naked, that is, mere possession, without colour of right.

The primary meaning is physical control. A secondary meaning is physical control by an agent or servant, or by relation back, e.g., by the owner having entered without remaining in physical possession (Ocean Accident etc., Corporation v. Ilford Gas Co. [1905] 2 K.B. 493).

Possession may also extend over a thing in itself uncontrolled within an inclosure which is controlled, such as horses, sheep or cattle within a fenced field. See Animals Ferae Naturae.

Possession may connote different kinds of control according to the nature of the thing or right over which it is being exercised. A man may possess an estate of land; if he leases it he will be in possession of the rents and profits and the reversion, but not of the land which is in the lessee who may being an action of trespass against the lessor. In regard to real property a mere right without possession is not sufficient to found an action of trespass; for instance, until 1926 a lessee before entry having a mere interesse termini could not bring an action for trespass on the land demised (Wallis v. Hands [1893] 2 Ch. 75). See Possessio Fratris.

The adage, possession is nine parts of the law, means that the person in possession can only be ousted by one whose title is better than his*; every claimant must succeed by the strength of his own title and not by the weakness of his antagonist's.*

Possession does not necessarily imply use or enjoyment.

Possession gives rise to peculiar rights and consequences. The principal is that a possessor has a presumptive title, that is to say, is presumed to be absolute owner until the contrary is shown, and is protected by law in his possession against all who cannot show a better title to the possession than he has.

With reference to its origin, possession is either with or without right.

Rightful possession is where a person has the right to the possession of (that is, the right to possess) property, and is in the possession of it with the intention of exercising his right. This kind of possession necessarily varies with the nature of the right from which it arises; a person may be in possession of a thing by virtue of his right of ownership, or as lessee, bailee, etc.; or his possession may be merely permissive, as in the case of a licensee; or it may be a possession coupled with an interest, as in the case of an auctioneer (Woolfe v. Horne (1867) 2 Q.B.D. 358). So

the right may be absolute, that is, good against all persons: or relative, that is, good against all with certain exceptions; thus a carrier or borrower of goods has a right to their possession against all the world except the owner.

In jurisprudence, the possession of a lessee, bailee, licensee, etc., is sometimes called derivative possession, while in English law the possessory interest of such a person, considered with reference to his rights against third persons who interfere with his possession, is usually called a special or qualified property, meaning a limited right of ownership.

Possession without right is called wrongful or adverse, according to the rights of the owner or those of the possessor are considered. Wrongful possession is where a person takes possession of property to which he is not entitled, so that the possession and the right of possession are in one person, and the right to possession in another. Where an owner is wrongfully dispossessed, he has a right of action to recover his property, or, if he has an opportunity, he can exercise the remedy of recaption in the case of goods, or of entry in the case of land."

control over a thing, coupled with the intention of doing so, either against all the world, or against all the world except certain persons. There are, therefore, three requisites of possession. First, there must be actual or potential physical control. Secondly, physical control is not possession, unless accompanied by intention; hence, if a thing is put into the hand of a sleeping person, he has not possession of it. Thirdly, the possibility and intention must be visible or evidenced by external signs, for if the thing shows no signs of being under the control of anyone, it is not possessed.

"1. Physical control, whether actual or in the eyes of law, over property; the condition of holding at one's disposal (S. 66, T.P. Act); 2. the area in one's possession (S. 37, Indian Evidence Act).

Possession is a detention or enjoyment of a thing which a man holds or exercise by himself or by another, who keeps or exercise it in his name.

"Possession is said to be in two ways-either actual possession or possession in law.

"Actual Possession," is, when a man entreth into lands or tenements to him descended, or otherwise.

"Possession in Law, is when lands of tenements are descended to a man, and he hath not as yet really, actually, and in deed entered into them: And it is called possession in law because that in the eye and consideration of the law, he is deemed to be in possession, inasmuch as he is liable to every mans action that will sue concerning the same lands or tenements."

The term has been defined as follows: Simply the owning or having a thing in one's power; the present right and power

2813. There is a distinction between the terms "possession", "occupation" and "control". The distinction between "possession" and "occupation" was considered in Seth Narainbhai Ichharam Kurmi and another Vs. Narbada Prasad Sheosahai Pande and others, AIR 1941 Nagpur 357 and the Court held:

"Bare occupation and possession are two different things. The concept of possession, at any rate as it is understood in legal terminology, is a complex one which need not include actual occupation. It comprises rather the right to possess, and the right and ability to exclude others from possession and control coupled with a mental element, namely, the animus possidendi, that is to say, knowledge of these rights and the desire and intention of exercising them if need be. The adverse possession of which the law speaks does not necessarily denote actual physical ouster from occupation but an ouster from all those rights which constitute possession in law. It is true that physical occupation is ordinarily the best and the most conclusive proof of possession in this sense but the two are not the same. It is also true that there must always be physical ouster from these rights but that does not necessarily import physical ouster from occupation especially when this is of just a small room or two in a house and when this occupation is shared with others.

The nature of the ouster and the quantum necessary naturally varies in each case.”

2814. The distinction between “possession”, “occupation” or “control” was also considered in Sumatibai Wasudeo Bachuwar Vs. Emperor, AIR (31) 1944 Bom. 125 and the Court held:

“Some documents containing perjudicial reports were found in a box in the house occupied by the applicant and her husband. When the house was raided by the police, the husband was out and the applicant (wife) produced the keys with one of which the box could be opened. In addition to perjudicial reports, there were some letters in the box addressed to the applicant. Held,. (1) that, prima facie, the box containing the documents would be in the possession of the husband and the mere fact that in his absence he had left the keys with the applicant (wife) would not make her in joint possession with himself; nor did the fact that there were letters in the box addressed to the wife mean that she was in joint possession of all the contents of the box; (2) that the wife was in the circumstances in possession of the box within the meaning of R. 39(1) of the Defence of India Rules; (3) that occupation in R. 39 (2) of the Defence of India Rules meant legal occupation, and the applicant could not be held to be in occupation or control of the house so as to render her guilty under R. 39 of the Defence of India Rules.”

Continuous possession.- The meaning of the word "continue" means to keep existing or happening without stopping and the word "continuous" describes something that continues without stopping. In a case where the plaintiff was in possession for a period of five years at a time on the basis of a lease, the moment the period of lease expired, the Court held in Kartik Mandal Vs. De jure possession.- A possession deemed in law though actually it is in possession of another is de jure possession as held in Kottakkal Co-operative Urban Bank Vs. Balakrishna AIR 2008 Ker. 179*.*

Exclusive possession.- In Nirmal Kanta (Smt.) Vs. Ashok Kumar 2008 (7) SCC 722*, the respondent no. 2 was accommodated by respondent no. 1 to assist him in his cloth business by helping customers to assess the amount of cloth required for their particular purposes. The said activity did not give respondent no. 2 exclusive possession for that part of the shop room from where he was operating and where his sewing machine had been affixed. This view taken by the Court below was upheld by the Apex Court.*

Hostile possession A possession against the real owner within his knowledge constitute hostile possession.

Where a person is not sure who is the true owner, the question of his being in hostile possession does not arise and it would also not result in assuming that he was denying title of true owner. This is what was held by this Court in Ramzan Vs. Smt. Gafooran (supra). When a person claims possession over a property showing himself to be the owner, the question of showing hostile possession would not arise. Similarly, in Gopendra Goswami Vs. Haradhan Das AIR 2009 Gau 41*, it was held that* mere possession over a land cannot be treated hostile to the title of the real owner unless it is shown that the real owner has the knowledge and thereupon the possession of the stranger continued*.*

Physical possession.- It is the actual possession over the land. (See : Dhara Singh Vs. Fateh Singh AIR 2009 Raj. 132)

2816. Possession can also be classified as under:

(a) De facto possession (b) De jure possession (c) Symbolic possession (d) Joint possession (e) Concurrent possession. Besides, some more categories are forcible possession, independent possession, lawful possession, permissive possession and settled possession.

2817. A retrospect of ancient post, the concept of possession in ancient laws in different civilizations was known to the mankind. A comparative study we find, in the work of "Sir Henry Summer Maine" (in short 'Maine'). He is considered to be the founder of comparative jurisprudence of ancient laws. Much earlier in 1861 AD, comparative jurisprudence under the

heading "Ancient Law"-Its connection with the Early History of Society and its Relation to Modern Ideas, was written by "Sir Henry Sumner Maine". The edition before the Court is one published by Dorset Press in 1986 at United States of America.

2818. "Sir Maine" was highly influenced by Roman Law. He observed in Chapter-I under the heading "Ancient Codes":

> "The most celebrated system of jurisprudence known to the world begins, as it ends, with a Code. From the commencement to the close of its history, the expositors of Roman Law consistently employed language which implied that the body of their system rested on the Twelve Decemviral Tables, and therefore on a basis of written law. . . ."
>
> "The ancient Roman code belongs to a class of which almost every civilized nation in the world can show a sample, and which, so far as the Roman and Hellenic worlds were concerned, were largely diffused over them at epochs not widely distant from one another." (Page 1)

2819. In respect to the Laws in East and in particular Hindus, he observed:

> "But in the East, as I have before mentioned, the ruling aristocracies tended to become religious rather than military or political, and gained, therefore, rather than lost in power; while in some instances the physical conformation of Asiatic countries had the effect of making individual communities larger and more numerous than in the West; and it is a known social law that the larger the space over which a particular set of institutions is diffused, the greater is its tenacity and vitality. From whatever

cause, the codes obtained by Eastern societies were obtained, relatively, much later than by Western, and wore a very different character. The religious oligarchies of Asia, either for their own guidance, or for the relief of their memory, or for the instruction of their disciples, seem in all cases to have ultimately embodied their legal learning in a code; but the opportunity of increasing and consolidating their influence was probably too tempting to be resisted. Their complete monopoly of legal knowledge appears to have enabled them to put off on the world collections, not so much of the rules actually observed as of the rules which the priestly order considered proper to be observed. The Hindoo code, called the Laws of Menu, which is certainly a Brahmin compilation, undoubtedly enshrines many genuine observances of the Hindoo race, but the opinion of the best contemporary orientalists is, that it does not, as a whole, represent a set of rules ever actually administered in Hindostan. It is, in great part, an ideal picture of that which, in the view of the Brahmins, ought to be the law. It is consistent with human nature and with the special motives of their authors, that codes like that of Menu should pretend to the highest antiquity and claim to have emanated in their complete form from the Deity. Menu, according to Hindoo mythology, is an emanation from the supreme God; but the compilation which bears his name, though its exact date is not easily discovered*, is, in point of the relative progress of Hindoo jurisprudence,* a recent production*." (Page 14)*

2820. Further he says:

"The fate of the Hindoo law is, in fact, the measure of

the value of the Roman code. Ethnology shows us that the Romans and the Hindoos sprang from the same original stock, and there is indeed a striking resemblance between what appear to have been their original customs. Even now, Hindoo jurisprudence has a substratum of forethought and sound judgment, but irrational imitation has engrafted in it an immense apparatus of cruel absurdities. From these corruptions the Romans were protected by their code. It was compiled while the usage was still wholesome, and a hundred years afterwards it might have been too late. The Hindoo law has been to a great extent embodied in writing, but, ancient as in one sense are the compendia which still exist in Sanskrit, they contain ample evidence that they were drawn up after the mischief had been done*." (Page 16-17)*

2821. The concept of possession has been discussed by "Sir Maine" in Chapter-VIII under the heading "The Early History of Property". Referring to the natural modes of acquiring property known in Roman law he observed:

"The wild animal which is snared or killed by the hunter, the soil which is added to our field by the imperceptible deposits of a river, the tree which strikes its roots into our ground, are each said by the Roman lawyers to be acquired by us naturally." (Page 203)

2822. Therefore, one of the mode of possession is occupation or occupancy.

2823. "Sir Maine" further says :

"Occupancy is the advisedly taking possession of that which at the moment is the property of no man, with the view (adds the technical definition) of acquiring

www.vadaprativada.com

property in it for yourself. The objects which the Roman lawyers called res nullius—things which have not or have never had an owner*—can only be ascertained by enumerating them. Among things which never had an owner are wild animals, fishes, wild fowl, jewels disinterred for the first time, and lands newly discovered or never before cultivated. Among things which have not an owner are moveables which have been abandoned, lands which have been deserted, and (an anomalous but most formidable item) the property of an enemy. In all these objects the full rights of dominion were acquired by the Occupant, who first took possession of them with the intention of keeping them as his own—an intention which, in certain cases, had to be manifested by specific acts." (Page 203)*

www.vadaprativada.com

"If the Roman law of Occupancy is to be taxed with having had permicious influence on any part of the modern Law of Nations, there is another chapter in it which may be said, with some reason, to have been injuriously affected. In applying to the discovery of new countries the same principles which the Romans had applied to the finding of a jewel, the Publicists forced into their service a doctrine altogether unequal to the task expected from it. Elevated into extreme importance by the discoveries of the great navigators of the 15th and 16th centuries, it raised more disputes than it solved. The greatest uncertainty was very shortly found to exist on the very two points on which certainty was most required, the extent of the territory which was acquired for his sovereign by the discoverer, and the nature of the acts which were necessary to complete the adprehensio or assumption of sovereign possession. Moreover, the principle itself, conferring as it did such enormous advantages as the consequence of a piece of good luck, was instinctively mutinied against by some of the most adventurous nations in Europe, the Dutch, the English, and the Portuguese. Our own countrymen, without expressly denying the rule of International Law, never did, in practice, admit the claim of the Spaniards to engross the whole of America south of the Gulf of Maxico, or that of the King of France to monopolise the valleys of the Ohio and the Mississippi. From the accession of Elizabeth to the accession of Charles the Second, it cannot be said that there was at any time thorough peace in the American waters, and the encroachments of the New England Colonists on the territory of the French King continued for almost a century longer. Bentham was so struck with the confusion attending the application of the legal principle, that he went out of his way of eulogise the famous Bull of Pope Alexander the Sixth, dividing the undiscovered countries of the world between the Spaniards and Portuguese by a line drawn one hundred leagues West of the Azores; and, grotesque as his praises may appear at first sight, it may be doubted whether the arrangement of Pope Alexander is absurder in principle than the rule of Public Law, which gave half a continent to the monarch whose servants had fulfilled the conditions required by Roman jurisprudence for the acquisition of property in a valuable object which could be covered by the hand." (Page 206-207)

www.vadaprativada.com

"To all who pursue the inquiries which are the

subject of this volume Occupancy is pre-eminently interesting on the score of the service it has been made to perform for speculative jurisprudence, in furnishing a supposed explanation of the origin of private property. It was once universally believed that the proceeding implied in Occupancy was identical with the process by which the earth and its fruits, which were at first in common, became the allowed property of individuals. The course of thought which led to this assumption is not difficult to understand, if we seize the shade of difference which separates the ancient from the modern conception of Natural Law. The Roman lawyers had laid down that Occupancy was one of the Natural modes of acquiring property, and they undoubtedly believed that, were mankind living under the institutions of Nature, Occupancy would be one of their practices. How far they persuaded themselves that such a condition of the race had ever existed, is a point, as I have already stated, which their language leaves in much uncertainty; but they certainly do seem to have made the conjecture, which has at all times possessed much plausibility, that the institution of property was not so old as the existence of mankind. Modern jurisprudence, accepting all their dogmas without reservation, went far beyond them in the eager curiosity with which it dwelt on the supposed state of Nature. Since then it had received the position that the earth and its fruits were once res nullius, and since its peculiar view of Nature led it to assume without hesitation that the human race had actually practised the Occupancy of res nullius long before the organisation of civil societies, the inference immediately

www.vadaprativada.com

suggested itself that Occupancy was the process by which the 'no man's goods' of the primitive world became the private property of individuals in the world of history." (Page 207-208)

2824. "Maine" has quoted "Blackstone" as under:

"'The earth,' he writes, 'and all things therein were the general property of mankind from the immediate gift of the Creator. Not that the communion of goods seems ever to have been applicable, even in the earliest ages, to aught but the substance of the thing; nor could be extended to the use of it. For, by the law of nature and reason he who first began to use it acquired therein a kind of transient property that lasted so long as he was using it, and no longer; or to speak with greater precision, the right of possession continued for the same time only that the act of possession lasted. Thus the ground was in common, and no part was the permanent property of any man in particular; yet whoever was in the occupation of any determined spot of it, for rest, for shade, or the like, acquired for the time a sort of ownership, from which it would have been unjust and contrary to the law of nature to have driven him by force, but the instant that he quitted the use of occupation of it, another might seize it without injustice.' He then proceeds to argue that "when mankind increased in number, it became necessary to entertain conceptions of more permanent dominion, and to appropriate to individuals not the immediate use only, but the very substance of the thing to be used." (Page 208-209)

2825. Explaining occupancy, Maine observes :

"Occupancy first gave a right against the world to

www.vadaprativada.com

an exclusive but temporary enjoyment, and that afterwards this right, while it remained exclusive, became perpetual. Their object in so stating their theory was to reconcile the doctrine that in the state of Nature res nullius became property through Occupancy*, with the inference which they drew from the Scriptural history that the Patriarchs did not at first permanently appropriate the soil which had been grazed over by their flocks and herds." (Page 209-210)*

2826. Referring to 'Savigny', 'Sir Maine' observed:

"It is not wonderful that property began in adverse possession. It is not surprising that the first proprietor should have been the strong man armed who kept his goods in peace. But why it was that lapse of time created a sentiment of respect for his possession—which is the exact source of the universal reverence of mankind for that which has for a long period de facto existed—are questions really deserving the profoundest examination, but lying far beyond the boundary of our present inquiries." (Page 212)

"Occupancy is the advised assumption of physical possession; and the notion that an act of this description confers a title to 'res nullius', so far from being characteristic of very early societies, is in all probability the growth of a refined jurisprudence and of a settled condition of the laws. It is only when the rights of property have gained a sanction from long practical inviolability, and when the vast majority of the objects of enjoyment have been subjected to private ownership, that mere possession is allowed to invest the first possessor with dominion over commodities in which no prior proprietorship has been

asserted. The sentiment in which this doctrine originated is absolutely irreconcilable with that infrequency and uncertainty of proprietary rights which distinguish the beginnings of civilisation. Its true basis seems to be, not an instinctive bias towards the institution of Property, but a presumption, arising out of the long continuance of that institution, that everything ought to have an owner. When possession is taken of a 'res nullius', that is, of an object which is not, or has never been, reduced to dominion, the possessor is permitted to become proprietor from a feeling that all valuable things are naturally the subjects of an exclusive enjoyment, and that in the given case there is no one to invest with the right of property except the Occupant. The Occupant in short, becomes the owner, because all things are presumed to be somebody's property and because no one can be pointed out as having a better right than he to the proprietorship of this particular thing." (Page 212-213)

2827. Referring to "laws of ownership" followed in India by Hindus, 'Sir Maine' says:

"The Roman jurisprudence will not here assist in enlightening us, for it is exactly the Roman jurisprudence which, transformed by the theory of Natural Law, has bequeathed to the moderns the impression that individual ownership is the normal state of proprietary right, and that ownership in common by groups of men is only the exception to a general rules. There is, however, one community which will always be carefully examined by the inquirer who is in quest of any lost institution of primeval society. How far soever any such institution may have undergone change among the branch of the Indo-European family which has been settled for ages in India, it will seldom be found to have entirely cast aside the shell in which it was originally reared. It happens that, among the Hindoos, we do find a form of ownership which ought at once to rivet our attention from its exactly fitting in with the ideas which our studies in the Law of Persons would lead us to entertain respecting the original condition of property. The Village Community of India is at once an organised patriarchal society and an assemblage of co-proprietors. The personal relations to each other of the men who compose it are indistinguishably confounded with their proprietary rights, and to the attempts of English functionaries to separate the two may be assigned some of the most formidable miscarriages of Anglo-Indian administration. The Village Community is known to be of immense antiquity*. In whatever direction research has been pushed into Indian history, general or local, it has always found the Community in existence at the farthest point of its progress. A great number of intelligent and observant writers, most of whom had no theory of any sort to support concerning its nature and origin, agree in considering it the least destructible institution of a society which never willingly surrenders any one of its usages to innovation. Conquests and revolutions seem to have swept over it without disturbing or displacing it, and the most beneficient systems of government in India have always been those which have recognised it as the basis of administration.*

The mature Roman law, and modern jurisprudence

following in its wake, look upon co-ownership as an exceptional and momentary condition of the rights of property. This view is clearly indicated in the maxim which obtains universally in Western Europe, Nemo in communione potest invitus detineri ('No one can be kept in co-proprietorship against his will'). But in India this order of ideas is reversed, and it may be said that separate proprietorship is always on its way to become proprietorship in common. The process has been adverted to already. As soon as a son is born, he acquires a vested interest in his father's substance, and on attaining years of discretion he is even, in certain contingencies, permitted by the letter of law to call for a partition of the family estate. As a fact, however, a division rarely takes place even at the death of the father, and the property constantly remains undivided for several generations, though every member of every generation has a legal right to an undivided share in it. The domain thus held in common is sometimes administered by an elected manager, but more generally, and in some provinces always, it is managed by the eldest agnate, by the eldest representative of the eldest line of the stock. Such an assemblage of joint proprietors, a body of kindred holding a domain in common, is the simplest form of an Indian Village Community, but the Community is more than a brotherhood of relatives and more than an association of partners. It is an organised society, and besides providing for the management of the common fund, it seldom fails to provide, by a complete staff of functionaries, for internal government, for police, for the administration of justice, and for the apportionment of

www.vadaprativada.com

2828. Regarding village communities and their system of holding land, Sir Maine observed:

> "The process which I have described as that under which a Village Community is formed, may be regarded as typical. Yet it is not to be supposed that every Village Community in India drew together in so simple a manner. Although, in the North of India, the archives, as I am informed*, almost invariably show that the Community was founded by a single assemblage of blood-relations, they also supply information that men of alien extraction have always, from time to time, been engrafted on it, and a mere purchaser of a share may generally, under certain conditions, be admitted to the brotherhood. In the South of the Peninsula there are often Communities which appear to have sprung not from one but from two or more families; and there are some whose composition is known to be entirely artificial; indeed, the occasional aggregation of men of different castes in the same society is fatal to the hypothesis of a common descent. Yet in all these brotherhoods either the tradition is preserved, or the assumption made, of an original common parentage. Mountstuart Elphinstone, who writes more particularly of the Southern Village Communities, observes of them (History of India, i. 126): 'the popular notion is that the Village landholders are all descended from one or more individuals who settled the village, and that the only exceptions are formed by persons who have derived their rights by purchase or otherwise from members of the original stock. The supposition is confirmed by the fact* that, to this day, there are only single families of landholders in small villages and not many in large ones; but each has branched out into so many members that it is not uncommon for the whole agricultural labour to be done by the landholders, without the aid either of tenants or of labourers. The rights of the landholders are theirs collectively and, though they almost always have a more or less perfect partition of them, they never have en entire separation. A landholder, for instance, can sell or mortgage his rights; but he must first have the consent of the Village, and the purchaser steps exactly into his place and takes up all his obligations. If a family becomes extinct, its share returns to the common stock." (Page 217-219)

2829. On page 223 he further says:

"In India, not only is there no indivisibility of the common fund, but separate proprietorship in parts of it may be indefinitely prolonged and may branch out into any number of derivative ownerships, the de facto partition of the stock being, however, checked by inveterate usage, and by the rule against the admission of strangers without the consent of the brotherhood*."*

2830. The Hindu Dharam-shastras containing legal principles are mainly in Smritis. Narada-smriti or Naradiya Dharmasastra contains the laws with regard to 'property' or and 'possession' are stated as under:

"43. All transactions depend on wealth. In order to acquire it, exertion is necessary. To preserve it, to increase it, and to enjoy it : these are, successively, the three sorts of activity in regard to wealth.

44. Again, wealth is of three kinds : white, spotted, and black. Each of these (three) kinds has seven subdivision.

45. White wealth is (of the following seven sorts) : what is acquired by sacred knowledge, valour in arms, the practice of austerities, with a maiden, through (instructing) a pupil, by sacrificing, and by inheritance. The gain to be derived from exerting oneself to acquire it is of the same description.

46. Spotted wealth is (of the following seven sorts) : what is acquired by lending money at interest, tillage, commerce, in the shape of Sulka, by artistic performances, by servile attendance, or as a return for a benefit conferred on some one.

47. Black wealth is (of the following seven sorts) : what is acquired as a bribe, by gambling, by bearing a message, through one afflicted with pain, by forgery, by robbery, or by fraud.

48. It is in wealth that purchase, sale, gift, receipt, transactions of every kind, and enjoyment, have their source.

49. Of whatever description the property may be, with which a man performs any transaction, of the same description will the fruit be which he derives from it in the next world and in this.

50. Wealth is again declared to be of twelve sorts, according to the caste of the acquirer. Those modes of acquisition, which are common to all castes, are threefold. The others are said to be ninefold.

51. Property obtained by inheritance, gifts made from love, and what has been obtained with a wife (as her

dowry), these are the three sorts of pure wealth, for all (castes) without distinction.

52. The pure wealth peculiar to a Brahman is declared to be threefold : what has been obtained as alms, by sacrificing, and through (instructing) a pupil.

53. The pure wealth peculiar to a Kshatriya is of three sorts likewise : what has been obtained in the shape of taxes, by fighting, and by means of the fines declared in lawsuits.

54. The pure wealth peculiar to a Vaisya is also declared to be threefold : (what has been acquired) by tillage, by tending cows, and by commerce. . . . .”

2831. Similarly, Brihaspati Smriti deals with 'possession' as under:

“2. Immovable property may be acquired in seven different ways, viz. by learning, by purchase, by mortgaging, by valour, with a wife (as her dowry), by inheritance (from an ancestor), and by succession to the property of a kinsman who has no issue.

3. In the case of property acquired by one of these seven methods, viz. inheritance from a father (or other ancestor), acquisition (in the shape of a dowry), purchase, hypothecation, succession, valour, or learned knowledge, possession coupled with a legitimate title constitutes proprietary right.

4. That possession which is hereditary, or founded on a royal order, or coupled with purchase, hypothecation or a legitimate title : possession of this kind constitutes proprietary right.

5. Immovable property obtained by a division (of the estate among co-heirs), or by purchase, or inherited from a father or other ancestor), or presented by the king, is acknowledged as one's lawful property ; it is lost by forbearance in the case of adverse possession.

6. He who is holding possession (of an estate) after having merely taken it, occupying it without meeting with resistance, becomes its legitimate owner thus; and it is lost (to the owner) by such forbearance.

7. He whose possession has been continuous from the time of occupation, and has never been interrupted for a period of thirty years, cannot be deprived of such property.

8. That property which is publicly given by co-heirs or others to a stranger who is enjoying it, cannot be recovered afterwards by him (who is its legitimate owner).

9. He who does not raise a protest when a stranger is giving away (his) landed property in his sight, cannot again recover that estate, even though he be possessed of a written title to it.

10. Possession held by three generations produces ownership for strangers, no doubt, when they are related to one another in the degree of a Sapinda ; it does not stand good in the case of Sakulyas.

11. A house, field, commodity or other property having been held by another person than the owner, is not lost (to the owner) by mere force of possession, if the possessor stands to him in the relation of a friend, relative, or kinsman.

12. Such wealth as is possessed by a son-in-law, a learned Brahman, or by the king or his ministers, does not become legitimate property for them after the lapse of a

13. Forcible means must not be resorted to by the present occupant or his son, in maintaining possession of the property of an infant, or of a learned Brahman, or of that which has been legitimately inherited from a father.

14. Nor (in maintaining possession) of cattle, a woman, a slave, or other (property). This is a legal rule.

15. If a doubt should arise in regard to a house or field, of which its occupant has not held possession uninterruptedly, he should undertake to prove (his enjoyment of it) by means of documents, (the depositions of) persons knowing him as possessor, and witnesses.

16. Those are witnesses in a contest of this kind who know the name, the boundary, the title (of acquisition), the quantity, the time, the quarter of the sky, and the reason why possession has been interrupted.

17. By such means should a question regarding occupation and possession be decided in a contest concerning landed property ; but in a cause in which no (human) evidence is forthcoming, divine test should be resorted to.

18. When a village, field, or garden is referred to in one and the same grant, they are (considered to be) possessed of all of them, though possession be held of part of them only. (On the other hand) that title has no force which is not accompanied by a slight measure of possession even.

19. Not to possess landed property, not to show a document in the proper time, and not to remind witnesses (of their deposition) : this is the way to lose one's property.

20. Therefore evidence should be preserved carefully; if

this be done, lawsuits whether relating to immovable or to movable property are sure to succeed.

21. Female slaves can never be acquired by possession, without a written title; nor (does possession create ownership) in the case of property belonging to a king, or to a learned Brahman, or to an idiot, or infant*.*

22. It is not by mere force of possession that land becomes a man's property ; a legitimate title also having been proved, it is converted into property by both (possession and title), but not otherwise.

23. Should even the father, grandfather, and great-grandfather of a man be alive, land having been possessed by him for thirty years, without intervention of strangers.

24. It should be considered as possession extending over one generation ; possession continued for twice that period (is called possession) extending over two generations ; possession continued for three times that period (is called possession) extending over three generations. (Possession continued) longer than that even, is (called) possession of long standing.

25. When the present occupant is impeached, a document or witness is (considered as) decisive. When he is no longer in existence, possession alone is decisive for his sons.

26. When possession extending over three generations has descended to the fourth generation, it becomes legitimate possession, and a title must never be inquired for.

27. When possession undisturbed (by other) has been held by three generations (in succession), it is not necessary to produce a title ; possession is decisive in that

28. In suits regarding immovable property, (possession) held by three generations in succession, should be considered as valid, and makes evidence in the decision of a cause.

29. He whose possession has passed through three lives, and is duly substantiated by a written title, cannot be deprived of it ; such possession is equal to the gift of the Veda.

30. He whose possession has passed through three lives and has been inherited from his ancestors, cannot be deprived of it, unless a previous grant should be in existence (in which the same property has been granted to a different person by the king).

31. That possession is valid in law which is uninterrupted and of long standing ; interrupted possession even is (recognised as valid), if it has been substantiated by an ancestor.

32. A witness prevails over inference ; a writing prevails over witnesses ; undisturbed possession which has passed through three lives prevails over both.

33. When an event (forming the subject of a plaint) has occurred long ago, and no witnesses are forthcoming, he should examine indirect witnesses, or he should administer oaths, or should try artifice."

2832. Thus in brief, the concept of possession in ancient laws may be stated that Possession in Roman law recognised two degrees of possession, one is being detentio (or possessio naturalise) of the object/thing; and the other is possessio strictly or possessio civilise. Roman law appears to be mainly concern with developing a theory to distinguish between detention and possession from each other. Physical control of an object by sale, a bailee or an agent was considered only as detention and all other kinds of physical control were treated as possession.

2833. In Muslim law a man in possession of property although by wrongful means has obvious advantages over the possessor. The possessor is entitled to protection against the whole world except the true owner. [The Principles of Mohammedan Jurisprudence (1911)].

2834. In 'Ancient Indian Law' possession was nothing but a legal contrivance based on the considerations of dharma. Use and enjoyment of property was restricted and controlled by the holy scriptures. In old Hindu law possession was of two kinds. (a) with title; and (b) without title where possession continued for three generations. Enough importance, however, was given to title (agama) to prove possession. Katyayana said, "there can be no branches without root, and possession is the branch".

2835. Possession, therefore, has two aspects. By itself it is a limited title which is good against all except a true owner. It is also prima facie evidence of ownership. In Hari Khandu Vs. Dhondi Nanth, (1906) 8 Bom.L.R. 96, Sir Lawrence Jenkins, C.J. observed that possession has two fold value, it is evidence of ownership and is itself the foundation of a right to possession. The possession, therefore, is not only a physical condition which is protected by ownership but a right itself.

2836. In Supdt. & Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, West Bengal Vs. Anil Kumar Bhunja & Ors. AIR 1980 SC 52 the possession was described by the Court in paras 13, 14 and 15 as under:

"13. "Possession" is a polymorphous term which may have

different meanings in different contexts. It is impossible to work out a completely logical and precise definition of "possession" uniformly applicable to all situations in the contexts of all statutes. Dias & Hughes in their book on Jurisprudence say that if a topic ever suffered from too much theorizing it is that of "possession". Much of this difficulty and confusion is (as pointed out in Salmond's Jurisprudence, 12th Edition, 1966) caused by the fact that possession is not purely a legal concept. "Possession", implies a right and a fact; the right to enjoy annexed to the right of property and the fact of the real intention. It involves power of control and intent to control*. (See Dias and Hughes, ibid)*

14. According to Pollock & Wright "when a person is in such a relation to a thing that, so far as regards the thing, he can assume, exercise or resume manual control of it at pleasure, and so far as regards other persons, the thing is under the protection of his personal presence, or in or on a house or land occupied by him or in any receptacle belonging to him and under his control, he is in physical possession of the thing.

15. While recognising that "possession" is not a purely legal concept but also a matter of fact; Salmond (12th Edition, page 52) describes "possession, in fact", as a relationship between a person and a thing. According to the learned author the test for determining "whether a person is in possession of anything is whether he is in general control of it".

2837. In this case we are concerned with the concept of adverse possession. A person other than owner, if continued to have possession of immoveable property for a period as prescribed in a Statute providing limitation, openly, without any interruption and interference from the owner, though he has knowledge of such possession, would crystallise in ownership after the expiry of the prescribed period or limitation, if the real owner has not taken any action for re-entry and he shall be denuded of his title to the property in law. 'Permissible possession' shall not mature a title since it cannot be treated to be an 'adverse possession'. Such possession, for however length of time be continued, shall not either be converted into adverse possession or a title. It is only the hostile possession which is one of the condition for adverse possession.

2838. Ordinarily an owner of property is presumed to be in possession and such presumption is in his favour where there is nothing to be contrary. But where a plaintiff himself admits that he has been dispossessed by the defendant and no longer in proprietary possession of the property in suit at the time of institution of the suit, the Court shall not start with the presumption in his favour that the possession of the property was with him. Mere adverse entry in revenue papers is not relevant for proof of adverse possession. Possession is prima facie evidence of title and has to be pleaded specifically with all its necessary ingredients namely, hostile, open, actual and continuous.

2839. In Gunga Gobind Mundul Vs. Collector of the 24-pergunnahs 11 Moore's I.A., 345 it was observed by the Privy Council that continuous possession for more than twelve years not only bars the remedy, but practically extinguishes the title of the true owner in favour of the possessor. This was followed by a Division Bench of Calcutta High Court in Gossain Das

Chunder Vs. Issur Chunder Nath 1877 III ILR 3 (Cal.) 224.

2840. In Gossain Das Chunder (supra) the High Court held that 12 years continuous possession of land by wrong doer not only bars the remedy also extinguishes the title of the rightful owner. It confers a good title upon the wrong doer.

2841. In Bhupendra Narayan Sinha (supra) the Privy Council held where a person without any colour of right wrongfully takes possession as a trespasser of a property of another, any title which he may require by adverse possession will be strictly limited to what he has actually so possessed. That was an interesting case of dispute of ownership in respect to subsoil. It was held that there can be separate ownership of different strata of subsoil, at all events where minerals are involved. If a grant of surface right was given by the owner and the licensee is given possession to carry out the said right, by quarrying stones etc. possession of subsoil in the eyes of law remain with the owner though it is only a constructive possession but in the absence of anything to show that with the knowledge of the owner the licensee held possession of subsoil and minerals therein and continued with that possession for statutory period of limitation to continue its ownership such plea of adverse possession in respect to subsoil cannot be accepted.

2842. In Basant Kumar Roy Vs. Secretary of State for India & others AIR 1917 PC 18, it was held:

> "An exclusive adverse possession for a sufficient period may be made out, in spite of occasional acts done by the former owner on the ground for a specific purpose from time to time. Conversely; acts which prima facie are acts of dispossession may under particular circumstances fall short of evidencing any kind of ouster. They may be susceptible of another explanation, bear some other characters or have some other object. ... If, as their Lordships think, no dispossession occurred, except possibly within twelve years before the commencement of this suit, article 144 is the article applicable, and not article 142."

2843. In Board Nageshwar Bux Roy Vs. Bengal Coal Co. AIR 1931 PC 18 the observation in respect to adverse possession similar to what has been noted above were made and the said judgement was followed in Bhupendra Narayan Sinha (supra).

2844. The law in respect to adverse possession, therefore, is now well settled. It should be nec vi nec clam nec precario. (Secretary of State for India Vs. Debendra Lal Khan, AIR 1934 PC 23, page 25). This decision has been referred and followed by the Apex Court in P. Lakshmi Reddy (supra) (para 4). The Court further says that the possession required must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that it is possession adverse to the competitor. [Radhamoni Debi Vs. Collector of Khulna, 27 Ind App. 136 at p. 140 (PC)]. The case before the Apex Court in P. Lakshmi Reddy (supra) was that of co-heirs where the plea of adverse possession was set up. In this regard it was held:

"But it is well settled in order, to establish adverse possession of one-co-heir as against another it is not enough to show that one out of them is in sole possession and enjoyment of the profits, of the properties. Ouster of the non-possessing co-heir by the co-heir in possession who claims his possession to be adverse, should be made out. The possession of one co-heir is considered, in law, as possession of all the co-heirs. When one co-heir is found to be in possession of the properties it is presumed to be on the basis of the joint title. The co-heir in possession cannot render his possession adverse to the other co-heir, not in possession, merely by any secret hostile animus of his own part in derogation of the other co-heir title. It is settled rule of law that as between co-heirs there must be evidence of open assertion of hostile title, coupled with exclusive possession and enjoyment by one of them to the knowledge of the other so as to constitute ouster."

2845. In Thakur Kishan Singh Vs. Arvind Kumar, AIR 1995 SC 73 the Court said:

"A possession of a co-owner or of a licensee or of an agent or a permissive possession to become adverse must be established by cogent and convincing evidence to show hostile animus and possession adverse to the knowledge of real owner. Mere possession for howsoever length of time does not result in converting the permissive possession into adverse possession."

www.vadaprativada.com

2846. In Sheo Raj Chamar & another Vs. Mudeer Khan & others AIR 1934 All. 868, it was held:

""If, indeed it did, the defendants have acquired a right by sheer adverse possession held and maintained for more than 12 years. The adverse possession to be effective need not be for the full proprietary right."

2847. In Saroop Singh Vs. Banto and others, 2005(8) SCC 330 the Court held in para 30:

"30. Animus possidendi is one of the ingredients of adverse possession. Unless the person possessing the land has a requisite animus the period for prescription does not commence. . . . ."

www.vadaprativada.com

2848. In T. Anjanappa (supra) the pre-conditions for taking plea of adverse possession has been summarised as under:

> "It is well-recognised proposition in law that mere possession however long does not necessarily mean that it is adverse to the true owner. Adverse possession really means the hostile possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of title of the true owner and in order to constitute adverse possession the possession proved must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to as to show that it is adverse to the true owner. The classical requirements of acquisition of title by adverese possession are that such possession in denial of the true owner's title must be peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be open and hostile enough to be capable of being known by the parties interested in the property, though it is not necessary that there should be evidence of the adverse possessor actually informing the real owner of the former's hostile action."

2849. In P.T. Munichikkanna Reddy (supra) it was held:

> "It is important to appreciate the question of intention as it would have appeared to the paper-owner. The issue is that intention of the adverse user gets communicated to the paper-owner of the property. This is where the law gives importance to hostility and openness as pertinent qualities of manner of possession. It follows that the possession of the adverse possessor must be hostile enough to give rise to a reasonable notice and opportunity to the paper-owner."

2850. In the above case the Apex Court discussed the law in detail and observed:

"Adverse possession in one sense is based on the theory or presumption that the owner has abandoned the property to the adverse possessor on the acquiescence of the owner to the hostile acts and claims of the person in possession. It follows that sound qualities of a typical adverse possession lie in it being open, continuous and hostile." (Para 5)

"Efficacy of adverse possession law in most jurisdictions depend on strong limitation statutes by operation of which right to access the court expires through effluxion of time. As against rights of the paper-owner, in the context of adverse possession, there evolves a set of competing rights in favour of the adverse possessor who has, for a long period of time, cared for the land, developed it, as against the owner of the property who has ignored the property. Modern statutes of limitation operate, as a rule, not only to cut off one's right to bring an action for the recovery of property that has been in the adverse possession of another for a specified time, but also to vest the possessor with title. The intention of such statutes is not to punish one who neglects to assert rights, but to protect those who have maintained the possession of property for the time specified by the statute under claim of right or colour of title."(Para 6)

"Therefore, to assess a claim of adverse possession, two pronged enquiry is required:

1. Application of limitation provision thereby jurisprudentially "willful neglect" element on part of the owner established. Successful application in this regard distances the title of the land from the paper-owner.

2. Specific positive intention to dispossess on the part of the adverse possessor effectively shifts the title already distanced from the paper owner, to the adverse possessor. Right thereby accrues in favour of adverse possessor as intent to dispossess is an express statement of urgency and intention in the upkeep of the property" (Para 9)

2851. In para 12 of the judgment, referring to its earlier decision in T.Anjanappa (supra), the Court held that if the defendants are not sure who is the true owner, the question of their being in hostile possession and the question of denying title of the true owner do not arise. It also referred on this aspect its earlier decision in Des Raj and others vs. Bhagat Ram(Dead) by LRs. And others 2007(3) SCALE 371 and Govindammal v. R. Perumal Chettiar and others JT 2006(1) SC 121.

2852. In Annakili Vs. A. Vedanayagam and others, AIR 2008 SC 346 the Court pointed out that a claim of adverse possession has two elements (i) the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff; and (ii) the defendant must continue to remain in possession for a period of 12 years thereafter. Animus possidendi is held to be a requisite ingredient of adverse possession well known in law. The Court held:

"It is now a well settled principle of law that mere possession of the land would not ripen into possessor title for the said purpose. Possessor must have animus possidendi and hold the land adverse to the title of the true owner. For the said purpose, not only animus possidendi must be shown to exist, but the same must be shown to exist at the commencement of the possession. He must continue in said capacity for the period prescribed under the Limitation Act. Mere long possession, it is trite, for a period of more than 12 years without anything more do not ripen into a title."

2853. In Vishwanath Bapurao Sabale Vs. Shalinibai Nagappa Sabale and others, JT 2009(5) SC 395 the Court said:

". . . . for claiming title by adverse possession, it was necessary for the plaintiff to plead and prove animus possidendi.

A peaceful, open and continuous possession being the ingredients of the principle of adverse possession as contained in the maxim nec vi, nec clam, nec precario, long possession by itself would not be sufficient to prove adverse possession."

2855. In Dasami Sahu Vs. Param Shameshwar Uma Bhairabeshwar Bam Lingshar and Chitranjan Mukerji (1929) A.L.J.R. 473, Hon'ble Sulaiman, J. of this Court held that there can be adverse possession, not only as against the idols but over the idols themselves. That adverse possession can be acquired against idols in respect of property dedicated in their favour and for the said purpose, reliance was placed on Maharaja Jagadindra Nath Roy Bahadur V. Rani Hemanta Kumari Debi (1904) 1 A.L.J.R.585; Rao Bahadur Man Singh

Vs. Maharani Nawlakhbati (1926) 24 A.L.J.R. 251 and Damodar Das Vs. Lakhan Das (Supra). It further held:

> "In our opinion the same principle applies whether the adverse possession is exercised by a total stranger or by the donor himself. So long as such decision is exercised to the ouster and knowledge of Chittaranjan's mother, who alone can hold the property on behalf of the idols, it would mature into title after the lapse of the prescribed period."

2856. On the question of whether the claim of adverse possession may succeed against the idol and over the idol, we have already discussed the matter while considering issues relating to limitation. The judgements of Privy Council in Maharaja Jagadindra Nath Roy Bahadur (supra) and Damodar Das Vs. Lakhan Das (supra) have also been considered and explained thereat. They were also explained by the Privy Council in Mahanth Ram Charan Das. Vs. Naurangi Lal (supra) where the Privy Council set aside the judgment of Patna High Court which had followed the said two judgments.

2857. In certain circumstances, it may not be doubted that a deity may acquire property by adverse possession and that the property of a deity may also be lost by adverse possession. Those circumstances where it may happen are quite restricted and we need not go in depth on this aspect in this judgment. However, suggestion that an idol /deity can itself be acquired by adverse possession, with great respect cannot be accepted for the reason that if an idol truly consecrated is a legal person, the question of application of the doctrine of adverse possession would wholly be inapplicable since it applies to a property and not a person. The person's property may be subject matter of possession but the person itself cannot be.

2858. In Secretary of State Vs. Debendra Lal Khan (supra) it was held that the period of possession of a series of independent trespassers cannot be added together and utilized by the last possessor to make up the statutory total period of adverse possession. This was followed in Wahid Ali & another Vs. Mahboob Ali Khan AIR 1935 Oudh 425.

2859. Applying the principle of adverse possession on a waqf property of Oudh, a Single Judge in Ramzan & Anr. Vs. Mohammad Ahmad Khan AIR 1936 Oudh 207 held:

> "If a takiadar in possession of a graveyard sells a portion of it to some other person who builds a house, and if the Mohammadan community are apathetic in the matter and allow the encroachment to remain for more than 12 years, then it might will be held that the person in possession had perfected his title by adverse possession for more than 12 years over the portion of the graveyard sold to him. In my opinion it could not be further held that the takiadar by asserting a right of adverse possession in respect of one portion of the graveyard has thereby perfected his title by adverse possession in respect of the whole graveyard."

2860. However, the Court further held that the possession of a takiadar started as a permissive possession and the mere building of kothris on the land by the takiadar would not imply renunciation of the takiadar's permissive possession or the open and public assertion of a hostile title and therefore decline any relief on the ground of alleged adverse possession.

2861. In Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj and others (supra) the very question cropped up for consideration is as to whether the principle of adverse possession can be applied to a mosque or not. It is necessary to have facts in brief which led to the said dispute. There stood a structure having three domes and five arches at Naulakha Bazar, Lahore constructed as a mosque having projecting niche (mehrab) in the centre of the west wall and claimed to have been established in the year 1134 A.H. (1722 A.D.) by one Falak Beg Khan. Sikhs claimed that the mosque having been built by demolishing a Gurdwara, they took possession and occupation of the said building alongwith courtyard, well and adjacent land sometime about 1762 A.D. when the Sikh power grown in that part of India. After taking possession at some point of time and during the Sikh domination, the land adjacent to the mosque building (but the north of Naulakha Bazar) became the site of a Sikh shrine (gurdwara)and the tomb of a Sikh leader named Bhai Taru Singh situated thereon. Sikh rule after 1762 continued and expanded under Maharaja Ranjit Singh who in 1799 A.D. established him as the Ruler of Punjab. After his death and ten years thereafter in 1849 the area of Punjab became part of British India by annexation when the Sikhs lost what is called by the Britishers as "second Sikh War". A part of the building in the meantime was also used for the worship of Guru Granth Sahib or the holy book of Sikhs and the other parts were being used for secular purposes. The reason of occupation and possession taken by Sikhs as explained by them, mentioned in the trial court's order was that the land adjacent to the building was a place of martyrs on which spot Bhai Taru Singh and other Sikhs suffered for religious reasons at the hands of the then Muslim rulers and a lot of women and children had been executed thereat. It came to be established that after the Sikhs having taken possession and control of the above property did not allow the Muslims to have access to the building for any purpose whatsoever upto 1853. For the first time in 1850 a criminal case was brought by one Nur Ahmad claiming himself to be Mutawalli. He also brought proceedings before the Settlement Department in 1853. As he was out of possession since long, nothing helped him. Hence, a civil suit was filed on 25th June 1855 in the Court of Deputy Commissioner, Lahore against Sikhs in possession of the property. The suit was dismissed on 14th November 1955 by that officer and further on 9th April 1856, by the Commissioner. The appeal was also dismissed by the Judicial Commissioner on 17th June 1856. In 1925 the Sikh Gurdwaras Act (Punjab Act 8 of 1925) was enacted pursuant whereto a Government notification was issued on 22nd December 1927 including the old mosque building and the land adjacent thereto belonging to Sikh Gurdwara named "Shahid Ganj Bhai Taru Singh". Several claims were filed claiming rights and one of that was by Anjuman Islamia of Punjab on behalf of Muslims filed on 16th March 1928 claiming that the land and property were dedicated for a mosque and did not belong to the Gurdwara. The claim of Anjuman Islamia failed before the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal on 20th January 1930 on the ground of adverse possession and the previous decision operating as res judicata. In 1935 the building was demolished causing much resentment amongst the Muslims. A civil suit was filed on 30th October 1935 in the Court of District Judge, Lahore against the Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee and the Committee of Management for the Notified Sikh Gurdwaras at Lahore, who were in possession of the disputed property. The relief claimed therein was a declaration that the building was a mosque in which the plaintiffs and all followers of Islam had right to worship and an injunction restraining from any improper use of the building and any interference with the plaintiffs' right of worship. A mandatory injunction was also sought to reconstruct the building. The suit was dismissed on 25.5.1936 and the first appeal was dismissed by a Full Bench of Lahore High Court on 26th January 1938. The judgment of the Full Bench is reported in AIR 1938 Lah. 369 (FB). The majority decision of the High Court held that the suit in question was governed by Limitation Act 1908 and the defendants having completed their possession maturing in the right of ownership, the plaintiffs have lost it on the principle of adverse possession and the defence of the plaintiff appellant that the principle of adverse possession does not apply to Muslim religious place, i.e., mosque, was rejected. The Privy Council upheld the decision of the High Court. Before the Privy Council the relief was confined to the actual site of the mosque building. The first question which was considered by the Privy Council was who possessed the title when the sovereignty of that part of the territory passed on to the British Government in 1849. In this context the Privy Council observed:

> "It may have been open to the British on the ground of conquest or otherwise to annul rights of private property at the time of annexation as indeed they did in Oudh after 1857*. But nothing of the sort was done so far as regards the property now in dispute. There is nothing in the Punjab Laws Act or in any other Act authorizing the British Indian Courts to uproot titles acquired prior to the annexation by applying to them a law which did not then obtain as the law of the land. There is every presumption in favour of the proposition that a change of sovereignty would not affect private rights to property."*

2862. For the above proposition the Privy Council placed reliance on West Rand Gold mining Co. Vs. The King (1905) 2 KB 391. The Privy Council also observed that before considering the claim of the plaintiffs regarding application of Muslim Law in respect of limitation and adverse possession to the above property certain important questions need to be considered which are:

(a) Who then immediately prior to the British annexation was the local sovereign of Lahore ?

(b) What law was applicable in that State to the present case ?

(c) Who was recognized by the local sovereign or other authority as owner of the property now in dispute ?

2863. It was held that before calling upon the courts to apply Mahomedan Law to events taking place between 1762 and 1849 first it was necessary to establish that this was the law of the land at that time recognized and enforced as such. The Privy Council observed in this regard:

"If it be assumed, for example, that the property in dispute was by general law or by special decree or by revenue-free (muafi) grant vested in the Sikh gurdwara according to the law prevailing under the Sikh rulers, the case made by the plaintiffs becomes irrelevant. It is not necessary to say whether it has been shown that Ranjit Singh took great interest in the gurdwara and continued endowments made to it by the Bhanji Sardars as was held by Hilton J. (20th January 1930) presiding over the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal. Nor is it necessary that it should now be decided whether the Sikh mahants held this property for the Sikh Gurdwara under a muafi grant from the Sikh

rulers. It was for the plaintiffs to establish the true position as at the date of annexation. Since the Sikh mahants had held possession for a very long time under the Sikh State there is a heavy burden on the plaintiffs to displace the presumption that the mahants' possession was in accordance with the law of the time and place. There is an obvious lack of reality in any statement of the legal position which would arise assuming that from 1760 down to 1935 the ownership of this property was governed by the Mahomedan law as modified by the Limitation Act, 1908."

2864. Then considering the question of application of Limitation Act, the Privy Council held that the rules of limitation which apply to a suit are the rules enforced at the time of institution of the suit, the limitation being a matter of procedure. Since the suit was filed in 1935 when Limitation Act 1908 was in force, hence that would obviously apply to the suit in question. It held:

"But the Limitation Act is not dealing with the competence of alienations at Mahomedan law. It provides a rule of procedure whereby British Indian Courts do not enforce rights after a certain time, with the result that certain rights come to an end. It is impossible to read into the modern Limitation Acts any exception for property made wakf for the purposes of a mosque whether the purpose be merely to provide money for the upkeep and conduct of a mosque or to provide a site and building for the purpose. While their Lordships have every sympathy with a religious sentiment which would ascribe sanctity and inviolability to a place of worship, they cannot under the Limitation Act accept the contentions that such a building cannot be

possessed adversely to the wakf, or that it is not so possessed so long as it is referred to as "mosque" or unless the building is razed to the ground or loses the appearance which reveals its original purpose."

2865. The attempt on the part of the plaintiffs to demonstrate that the land and building of a mosque are not mere property but a juristic person was not accepted by the Privy Council and to that extent, the otherwise view taken by Lahore High Court was also reversed by observing :

"The argument that the land and buildings of a mosque are not property at all because they are a "juristic person" involves a number of misconceptions. It is wholly inconsistent with many decisions whereby a worshipper or the mutwalli has been permitted to maintain a suit to recover the land and buildings for the purposes of the wakf by ejectment of a trespasser. Such suits had previously been entertained by Indian Courts in the case of this very building. The learned District Judge in the course of his able and careful judgment noted that the defendants were not pressing any objection to the constitution of the suit on the ground that the mosque could not sue by a next friend. He went on to say:

It is proved beyond doubt that mosques can and do hold property. There is ample authority for the proposition that a Hindu idol is a juristic person and it seems proper to hold that on the same principle a mosque as an institution should be considered as a juristic person. It was actually so held in 59 P R 1914, p. 200 (Jindu Ram v. Hussain Bakhsh, (1914) 1 AIR Lah 444) and later in Maula

Bux v. Hafizuddin, (1926) 13 AIR Lah 372.

That there should be any supposed analogy between the position in law of a building dedicated as a place of prayer for Muslims and the individual deities of the Hindu religion is a matter of some surprise to their Lordships*. The question whether a British Indian Court will recognize a mosque as having a locus standi in judicio is a question of procedure.* In British India the Courts do not follow the Mahomedan law in matters of procedure (cf. Jafri Begum v. Amir Muhammad Khan, (1885) 7 All 822 at pp 841.2, per Mahmood J.) any more than they apply the Mahomedan criminal law or the ancient Mahomedan rules of evidence*. At the same time the procedure of the Courts in applying Hindu or Mahomedan Law has to be appropriate to the laws which they apply. Thus the procedure in India takes account necessarily of the polytheistic and other features of the Hindu religion and recognizes certain doctrines of Hindu Law as essential thereto, e.g.* that an idol may be the owner of property. The procedure of our Courts allows for a suit in the name of an idol or deity though the right of suit is really in the shebait*: 31 IA 203 (Jagadindranath v. Hemanta Kumari (1905) 32 Cal 129)*

Very considerable difficulties attend these doctrines- in particular as regards the distinction, if any, proper to be made between the deity and the image : cf. 37 Cal 128 at p 153 (Bhupati Nath V. Ram Lal (1910) 37 Cal.128), Golap Chandra Sarkar Sastri's Hindu Law, Edn. 7, pp. 865 et seq. But there has never been any doubt that the property of a Hindu religious endowment-including a thakurbari- is

subject to the law of limitation: 37 I A 147 (Damodar Das V. Lakhan Das (1910) 37 Cal 885); 64 IA 203 (Iswari Bhubaneshwari Thakurni V. Brojo Nath Dey (1937) 24 AIR PC 185). From these considerations special to Hindu law no general licence can be derived for the invention of fictitious persons. It is as true in law as in other spheres "entia non sunt multiplicanda praeter necessitatem." The decisions recognizing a mosque as a "juristic person" appear to be confined to the Punjab:153 P R 1884 (Shankar Das Vs. Said Ahmad (1884) 153 PR 1884) ; 59 P R 1914 (Jindu Ram v. Hussain Bakhsh, (1914) 1 AIR Lah 444), Maula Bux v. Hafizuddin, (1926) 13 AIR Lah 372. In none of these cases was a mosque party to the suit, and in none except perhaps the last is the fictitious personality attributed to the mosque as a matter of decision. But so far as they go these cases support the recognition as a fictitious person of a mosque as an institution–apparently hypostatizing an abstraction. This, as the learned Chief Justice in the present case has pointed out, is very different from conferring personality upon a building so as to deprive it of its character as immovable property.

It is not necessary in the present case to decide whether in any circumstances or for any purpose a Muslim institution can be regarded in law as a "juristic person." The recognition of an artificial person is not to be justified merely as a ready means of making enactments-well or ill-expressed -work conveniently. It does not seem to be required merely to give an extended meaning to the word "person" as it appears in the Punjab Preemption Act, 1905, or in the definition of 'gift' contained in S. 122, T.P.*

Act. It is far from clear that it is required in order that property may be devoted effectively to charitable purposes without the appointment of a trustee in the sense of the English law. It would seem more reasonable to uphold a gift, if made directly to a mosque and not by way of wakf as having been made to the mutwalli than to do so by inventing an artificial person in addition to the mutwalli (and to God in whom the ownership of the mosque is placed by the theory of the law).

There Lordships do not understand that in this respect a mosque is thought to be in any unique position according to the authorities on Mahomedan law. "A gift may be made to a mosque or other institution" (Tyabji's Principles of Mahomedan Law, Edn.2, 1919, page 401, cf. Abdur Rahim's Muhammadan Jurisprudence, page 218). A gift can be made to a madrasah in like manner as to a masjid. The right of suit by the mutwali or other manager or by any person entitled to a benefit (whether individually or as a member of the public or merely in common with certain other persons) seems hitherto to have been found sufficient for the purpose of maintaining Mahomedan endowments. At best the institution is but a caput mortuum, and some human agency is always required to take delivery of property and to apply it to the intended purposes. Their Lordships, with all respect to the High Court of Lahore, must not be taken as deciding that a "juristic personality" may be extended for any purpose to Muslim institutions generally or to masques in particular. On this general question they reserve their opinion; but they think it right to decide the specific

question which arises in the present case and hold that suits cannot competently be brought by or against such institutions as artificial persons in the British Indian Courts.

2866. The nature of the right of an individual to offer prayer in the disputed building treating it to be religious one was also considered in reference to the application of the provisions of Limitation Act, i.e., Article 144 and the Privy Council said:

> "The property now in question having been possessed by Sikhs adversely to the waqf and to all interests thereunder for more than 12 years, the right of the mutawali to possession for the purposes of the waqf came to an end under Art, 144*, Limitation Act, and the title derived under the dedication from the settlor or wakif became extinct under S. 28. The property was no longer for any of the purposes of British Indian Courts, "a property of God by the advantage of it resulting to his creatures." The main contention on the part of the appellants is that the* right of any Moslem to use a mosque for purposes of devotion is an individual right like the right to use a private road*, 7 All 178 (Jawahra v. Akbar Hussain, (1884) 7 All.178) that the infant plaintiffs, though born a hundred years after the building had been possessed by Sikhs, had a right to resort to it for purposes of prayer; that they were not really obstructed in the exercise of their rights till 1935 when the building was demolished; and that in any case in view of their infancy the Limitation Act does not prevent their suing to enforce their individual right to go upon the property. This argument must be rejected.* The right of a Muslim worshipper may be regarded as an individual

right, but what is the nature of the right? It is not a sort of easement in gross, but an element in the general right of a beneficiary to have the waqf property recovered by its proper custodians and applied to its proper purpose. Such an individual may, if he sues in time, procure the ejectment of a trespasser and have the property delivered into the possession of the mutawali or of some other person for the purposes of the waqf. As a beneficiary of the religious endowment such a plaintiff can enforce its conditions and obtain the benefits thereunder to which he may be entitled*. But the title conferred by the settlor has come to an end by reason that for the statutory period* no one has sued to eject a person possessing adversely to the waqf and every interest thereunder the rights of all beneficiaries have gone*: the land cannot be recovered by or for the mutwali and the terms of the endowment can no longer be enforced: cf. 41 Mad 124 at p. 135 (Chidambranatha Thambiran v. Nallasiva Mudaliar (1918) 5 AIR Madras 464).* The individual character of the right to go to a mosqe for worship matters nothing when the land is no longer waqf and is no ground for holding that a person born long after the property has become irrecoverable can enforce partly or wholly the ancient dedication*."*

www.vadaprativada.com

2867. It also held that rights of worshipers stand or fall with the wakf character of the property and do not continue apart from their right to have the property recovered for the wakf and applied to its purpose. As the law stands, notice of the rights of individual beneficiaries does not modify the effect under the Limitation Act of possession adverse to the wakf.

2868. Gnanasambanda Pandara Sannadhi Vs. Velu Pandaram and another (1899) 27 IA 69 is a decision by the Judicial Committee, pertains to application of Article 144 of Act XV of 1877 (Limitation). It held that "there is no distinction between the office and the property of endowment. The one is attached to the other; but if there is, Art.144 of the same schedule is applicable to the property. That bars the suit after twelve years' adverse possession."

2869. We may also notice at this stage that the Privy Council also deprecated the practice adopted by the trial court therein permitting the parties to produce religious experts and obtain their opinion when the matter was to be seen in the light of codified law. The Privy Council also observed that system of expert adviser has gone long back and ought not have been continued in that case. It would be appropriate at this stage to refer the above observations:

> "A third feature of the suit has reference to the method of trial, the learned District Judge having been persuaded that the mode by which a British Indian Court ascertains the Mahomedan law is by taking evidence. The authority of Sulaiman J. to the contrary, 47 All 823 at p.835 (Aziz Banu Vs. Muhammad Ibrahim Hussain (1925) 12 AIR All.720), was cited to him but he wrongly considered that S. 49, Evidence Act, was applicable to the ascertainment of the law. He seems also to have relied on the old practice of obtaining the opinions of pandits on questions of Hindu law and the reference made thereto in 12 MIA 397 at pp. 436-9 (Collector of Madura v. Moottoo Ramalinga Sathupathy (1868) 12 MIA 397). No great harm, as it happened, was done by the admission of this class of evidence as the witnesses made reference to authoritative texts in a short and sensible manner.

But it would not be tolerable that a Hindu or a Muslim in a British Indian Court should be put to the expense of proving by expert witnesses the legal principles applicable to his case and it would introduce great confusion into the practice of the courts if decisions upon Hindu or Muslim law were to depend on the evidence given in a particular case, the credibility of the expert witnesses and so forth. The Muslim law is not the common law of India; British India has no common law in the sense of law applicable prima facie to everyone unless it be in the statutory Codes, e.g. Contract Act, transfer of Property Act*. But the Muslim law is under legislative enactments applied by British Indian Courts to certain classes of matters and to certain classes of people as part of the law of the land which the Courts administer as being within their own knowledge and competence.* The system of "expert advisers" (muftis, maulavis or in the case of Hindu law pandits) had its day but has long been abandoned, though the opinion given by such advisers may still be cited from the reports*. Custom, in variance of the general law, is matter of evidence but not the law itself. Their Lordships desire to adopt the observations of Sulaiman J. in the case referred to:*

It is the duty of the Courts themselves to interpret the law of the land and to apply it and not to depend on the opinion of witnesses however learned they may be*. It would be dangerous to delegate their duty to witnesses produced by either party. Foreign law, on the other hand,*

is a question of fact with which Courts in British India are not supposed to be conversant. Opinion of experts on foreign law are therefore allowed to be admitted."

2870. This decision of the Privy Council has been followed by the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui (supra) involving the property in dispute before us to discard the contention on behalf of the parties (pro mosque) that a property of a waqf or mosque cannot be a subject matter of compulsory acquisition under the provisions of Land Acquisition Act, 1894 since a Muslim religious property cannot be compulsorily acquired.

2871. In (Sm.) Bibhabati Devi (supra) it was observed that in order to claim a right of ownership applying the principle of adverse possession it is a condition precedent that the possession must be adverse to a living person. Herein the appellant was possessing the property under a mosque after the death of the defendant, it was held that the possession cannot be said to be adverse.

2872. In Chhote Khan & others Vs. Mal Khan & others AIR 1954 SC 575, the Court observed that no question of adverse possession arises where the possession is held under an arrangement between the co-sharers.

2873. The Court in P. Lakshmi Reddy (supra) quoted with approval Mitra's Tagore Law Lectures on Limitation and Prescription (6th Edition) Vol. I, Lecture VI, at page 159, quoting from Angell on Limitation:

"An adverse holding is an actual and exclusive appropriation of land commenced and continued under a claim of right, either under an openly avowed claim, or under a constructive claim (arising from the acts and

circumstances attending the appropriation), to hold the land against him (sic) who was in possession. (Angell,

www.vadaprativada.com

sections 390 and 398). It is the intention to claim adversely accompanied by such an invasion of the rights of the opposite party as gives him a cause of action which constitutes adverse possession."

2874. It further held:

"Consonant with this principle the commencement of adverse possession, in favour of a person, implies that that person is in actual possession, at the time, with a notorious hostile claim of exclusive title, to repel which, the true owner would then be in a position to maintain an action. It would follow that whatever may be the animus or intention of a person wanting to acquire title by adverse possession his adverse possession cannot commence until site animus."

2875. In Karbalai Begum Vs. Mohd. Sayeed (1980) 4 SCC 396 in the context of a co-sharer, it was held:

"...It is well settled that mere non- participation in the rent and profits of the land of a co-sharer does not amount to an ouster so as to give title by adverse possession to the other co-sharer in possession."

2876. In Annasaheb Bapusaheb Patil Vs. Balwant (1995) 2 SCC 543 the Court, in para 15, said:

"15. Where possession can be referred to a lawful title, it will not be considered to be adverse. The reason being that a person whose possession can be referred to a lawful title will not be permitted to show that his possession was hostile to another's title. One who holds possession on behalf of another, does not by mere denial of that other's title make his possession adverse so as to give himself the benefit of the statute of limitation. Therefore, a person who enters into possession having a lawful title, cannot divest another of that title by pretending that he had no title at all."

2877. In Vidya Devi Vs. Prem Prakash (1995) 4 SCC 496 the Court in paras 27 and 28 held:

"27...it will be seen that in order that the possession of co-owner may be adverse to others, it is necessary that there should be ouster or something equivalent to it. This was also the observation of the Supreme Court in P. Lakshmi Reddy case which has since been followed in Mohd. Zainulabudeen v. Sayed Ahmed Mohideen.

28. 'Ouster' does not mean actual driving out of the co-sharer from the property. It will, however, not be complete unless it is coupled with all other ingredients required to constitute adverse possession. Broadly speaking, three elements are necessary for establishing the plea of ouster in the case of co-owner. They are (i) declaration of hostile animus, (ii) long and uninterrupted possession of the person pleading ouster, and (iii) exercise of right of exclusive ownership openly and to the knowledge of other co-owner. Thus, a co-owner, can under law, claim title by adverse possession against another co-owner who can, of course, file appropriate suit including suit for joint possession within time prescribed by law."

2878. In making above observations, the Court also relied on its earlier decisions in P. Lakshmi Reddy (supra) and Mohd. Zainulabudeen Vs. Sayed Ahmad Mohideen (1990) 1 SCC 345.

2879. In Roop Singh Vs. Ram Singh (2000) 3 SCC 708 it was held that if the defendant got the possession of suit land as a lessee or under a batai agreement then from the permissive possession it is for him to establish by cogent and convincing evidence to show hostile animus and possession adverse to the knowledge of the real owner. Mere possession for a long time does not result in converting permissive possession into adverse possession. The Court relied on its earlier decisions in Thakur Kishan Singh (supra).

2880. In Darshan Singh Vs. Gujjar Singh (2002) 2 SCC 62 in para 7 and 9, the Court held:

> "...It is well settled that if a co-sharer is in possession of the entire property, his possession cannot be deemed to be adverse for other co-sharers unless there has been an ouster of other co-sharers."
> "9. In our view, the correct legal position is that possession of a property belonging to several co-sharers by one co-sharer shall be deemed that he possesses the property on behalf of the other co-sharers unless there has been a clear ouster by denying the title of other co-sharers and mutation in the revenue records in the name of one co-sharer would not amount to ouster unless there is a clear declaration that title of the other co-sharers was denied."

2881. In order to defeat title of a plaintiff on the ground of adverse possession it is obligatory on the part of the respondent to specifically plead and prove as to since when their possession came adverse. If it was permissive or obtained pursuant to some sort of arrangement, the plea of adverse possession would fail. In Md. Mohammad Ali Vs. Jagadish Kalita & Ors. (2004) 1 SCC 271 with reference to a case dealing with such an issue amongst co-sharers it was observed that "Long and continuous possession by itself, it is trite, would not constitute adverse

possession. Even non-participation in the rent and profits of the land to a co-sharer does not amount to ouster so as to give title by prescription.

2882. It was also observed in para 21 that for the purpose of proving adverse possession/ouster, the defendant must also prove animus possidendi.

2883. In Amrendra Pratap Singh (supra) considering as to what is adverse possession, the Court in para 22 observed :

> "What is adverse possession? Every possession is not, in law, adverse possession. Under Article 65 of the Limitation Act, 1963, a suit for possession of immovable property or any interest therein based on title can be instituted within a period of 12 years calculated from the date when the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff. By virtue of Section 27 of the Limitation Act, at the determination of the period limited by the Act to any person for instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property stands extinguished. The process of acquisition of title by adverse possession springs into action essentially by default or inaction of the owner. A person, though having no right to enter into possession of the property of someone else, does so and continues in possession setting up title in himself and adversely to the title of the owner, commences prescribing title into himself and such prescription having continued for a period of 12 years, he acquires title not on his own but on account of the default or inaction on part of the real owner, which stretched over a period of 12 years results into extinguishing of the latter's title. It is that extinguished title of the real owner which comes to vest in the

wrongdoer. The law does not intend to confer any premium on the wrong doing of a person in wrongful possession; it pronounces the penalty of extinction of title on the person who though entitled to assert his right and remove the wrong doer and re-enter into possession, has defaulted and remained inactive for a period of 12 years, which the law considers reasonable for attracting the said penalty. Inaction for a period of 12 years is treated by the Doctrine of Adverse Possession as evidence of the loss of desire on the part of the rightful owner to assert his ownership and reclaim possession."

2884. However, the Court further observed that if property, by virtue of some statutory provisions or otherwise, is alienable, the plea of adverse possession may not be available and held. :

"23. The nature of the property, the nature of title vesting in the rightful owner, the kind of possession which the adverse possessor is exercising, are all relevant factors which enter into consideration for attracting applicability of the Doctrine of Adverse Possession. The right in the property ought to be one which is alienable and is capable of being acquired by the competitor. Adverse possession operates on an alienable right. The right stands alienated by operation of law, for it was capable of being alienated voluntarily and is sought to be recognized by doctrine of adverse possession as having been alienated involuntarily, by default and inaction on the part of the rightful claimant, who knows actually or constructively of the wrongful acts of the competitor and yet sits idle. Such inaction or default in taking care of one's own rights over property is also

www.vadaprativada.com

capable of being called a manner of 'dealing' with one's property which results in extinguishing one's title in property and vesting the same in the wrong doer in possession of property and thus amounts to 'transfer of immovable property' in the wider sense assignable in the context of social welfare legislation enacted with the object of protecting a weaker section."

2885. The Court also observed that the judicial precedents should not be stressed too harsh and observed:

"A judicial decision is an authority for what it actually decides and not for what can be read into it by implication or by assigning an assumed intention to the Judges, and inferring from it a proposition of law which the Judges have not specifically laid down in the pronouncement." (Para 28)

2886. In para 14 of the judgment in Amrendra Pratap Singh (supra), the Court also deprecated the practice of following dictionary meaning as absolute while interpreting statute and said :

"Dictionaries can be taken as safe guides for finding out meanings of such words as are not defined in the statute. However, dictionaries are not the final words on interpretation. The words take colour from the context and the setting in which they have been used. It is permissible to assign a meaning of a sense, restricted or wider than the one given in dictionaries, depending on the scheme of the legislation wherein the word has been used."

2887. In L.N. Aswathama & another Vs. V.P. Prakash JT 2009 (9) 527 the Court, in para 17 and 18 said:

"17. The legal position is no doubt well settled. To establish a claim of title by prescription, that is adverse possession for 12 years or more, the possession of the claimant must be physical/actual, exclusive, open, uninterrupted, notorious and hostile to the true owner for a period exceeding twelve years*. It is also well settled that long and continuous possession by itself would not constitute adverse possession if it was either permissive possession or possession without animus possidendi. The* pleas based on title and adverse possession are mutually inconsistent and the latter does not begin to operate until the former is renounced. Unless the person possessing the property has the requisite animus to possess the property hostile to the title of the true owner, the period for prescription will not commence*."*

"18. ...When a person is in possession asserting to be the owner, even if he fails to establish his title, his possession would still be adverse to the true owner. Therefore, the two pleas put forth by the defendant in this case are not inconsistent pleas but alternative pleas available on the same facts*. Therefore, the contention of the plaintiffs that the plea of adverse possession is not available to defendant is rejected."*

2888. Further, in para 25 the Court said :

"25. When defendant claimed title and that was proved to be false or fabricated, then the burden is heavy upon him to prove actual, exclusive, open, uninterrupted possession for 12 years*. In this case we have already held that he did not make out such possession for 12 years prior to the suit."*

2889. Where a plea of adverse possession is taken, the pleadings are of utmost importance and anything, if found missing in pleadings, it may be fatal to such plea of adverse possession. Since mere long possession cannot satisfy the requirement of adverse possession, the person claiming it must prove as to how and when the adverse possession commenced and whether fact of adverse possession was known to real owner. (R.N. Dawar Vs. Ganga Saran Dhama AIR 1993 Del. 19). In Parwatabai Vs. Sona Bai 1996 (10) SCC 266, it was stressed upon by the Apex Court that to establish the claim of adverse possession, one has to establish the exact date from which adverse possession started. The claim based on adverse possession has to be proved affirmatively by cogent evidence and presumptions and probabilities cannot be substituted for evidence. The plea of adverse possession is not always a legal plea. It is always based on facts which must be asserted, pleaded and proved. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour since he is trying to defeat the right of the true owner and, therefore, he has to specifically plead with sufficient clarity when his possession became adverse and the nature of such possession. (See Mahesh Chand Sharma Vs. Raj Kumari Sharma AIR 1996 SC 869.

2890. In Parsinnin Vs. Sukhi (1993) 4 SCC 375, it said that burden of prove lies on the party who claims adverse possession. He has to plead and prove that his possession is nec vi, nec clam, nec precario i.e., peaceful, open and continuous.

2891. Article 144 L.A. 1908 shows that where a suit for possession is filed, it is the defendant to whom the plea of adverse possession is available and it is he who has to take necessary pleadings. A suit by a plaintiff based on adverse possession is not contemplated by Article 144 inasmuch the suit

contemplated therein is for restoration of possession and where a person is already in possession, though adverse possession, the question of filing a suit for possession would not arise. If the chain of possession or continued possession ceased or interrupted, particularly at the time of filing of the suit, the adverse possession extinguishes and the earlier long possession, may be of more than the statutory period, would not give any advantage if the possession has been lost at the time of filing of the suit.

2892. Besides, alternative plea may be permissible, but mutually destructive pleas are not permissible. The defendants may raise inconsistent pleas so long as they are not mutually destructive as held in Biswanath Agarwalla Vs. Sabitri Bera & others JT 2009 (10) SC 538.

2893. In Gautam Sarup Vs. Leela Jetly & others (2008) 7 SCC 85, the Court said that a defendant is entitled to take an alternative plea but such alternative pleas, however, cannot be mutually destructive of each other.

2894. In Ejas Ali Qidwai and others (supra) certain interesting questions cropped up which also attracted certain consequences flowing from annexation of province of Oudh in 1857 by the British Government. It appears that one Asghar Ali and his cousin Muzaffar Ali granted a mortgage by conditional sale of the entire estate of Ambhapur (commonly known as the Taluka of Gandara) and certain villages to the then Maharaja of Balrampur. The mortgaged property situated in District Bahraich, which was in the Province of Oudh. The mortgagee brought an action to enforce his right, got a decree in his favour and ultimately possession of the property in 1922. The sons of Asghar Ali thereafter brought an action in civil court for recovery of their share of the mortgaged property on the ground that it was the absolute property of their father and on his death devolved on all the persons who were his heirs under the Mahomedan Law. They challenged Iqbal Ali's right to mortgage the whole of estate and impeached the mortgaged transaction on various grounds. The claim was resisted on the ground that succession to the estate was governed by the rule of primogeniture according to which the whole of the estate descended first to Asghar Ali and after his death to his eldest son Iqbal Ali. The defence having been upheld the claim was negatived by the trial court as well as the court of appeal. Before the Privy Council the only question raised was whether the succession to the property was regulated by the rule of primogeniture or by Mahomedan Law.

2895. The Privy Council while considering the above question observed that the Province of Oudh was annexed by the East India Company in 1856 but in 1857 during the first war of independence by native Indians much of its part was declared independent. Soon after it was conquered by the British Government and it got reoccupation of the entire province of Oudh. Thereafter in March 1858 the British Government issued a proclamation confiscating, with certain exceptions "the proprietary right in the soil of the Province" and reserved to itself the power to dispose of that right in such manner as to it may seem fit. On 10th October 1859 the British Government (the then Government of India) declared that every talukdar with whom a summary settlement has been made since the re-occupation of the Province has thereby acquired a permanent, hereditary and transferable proprietary right, namely in the taluka for which he has engaged, including the perpetual

privilege of engaging with the Government for the revenue of the taluka. Pursuant to that declaration, Wazir Ali with whom a summary settlement of Taluka has already been made was granted a Sanad which conferred upon him full proprietary right, title and possession of the estate or Ambhapur. In the said grant, there contained a stipulation that in the event of dying intestate or anyone of his successor dies intestate, the estate shall descend to the nearest male heir according to rule of primogeniture. Subsequently, in order to avoid any further doubt in the matter, Oudh Estates Act I of 1869 was enacted wherein Wazir Ali was shown as a Tallukdar whose estate according to the custom of the family on or before 13.2.1856 ordinarily devolved upon a single heir. However, having noticed this state of affairs, the Privy Council further observed that this rule was not followed after the death of Wazir Ali and the Taluka was mutated in favour of his cousin Nawazish Ali. He was recorded as owner of Taluka. Thereafter in 1892 Samsam Ali entered the joint possession with Nawazish Ali and after death of Nawazish Ali, Samsam Ali was recorded as the sole owner. The system of devolution of the property was explained being in accordance with the usage of the family and when the name of Asghar Ali was recorded, he also made a similar declaration. Faced with the situation the appellant sought to explain the possession of Nawazish Ali as adverse possession but the same was discarded by the Privy Council observing:

> "The principle of law is firmly established that a person, who bases his title on adverse possession, must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to a denial of his title to the property claimed."

2896. It appears that the plaintiffs initially sought to maintain their claim of continued ownership, possession and disruption against the Government authorities but later on the plea of adverse possession against the defendant-Muslim parties has been taken which makes the stand of the plaintiffs inherently inconsistent and mutually destructive. The plaintiffs ought to have elected one or the other case and could not have taken a plea which is not an alternative but mutually destructive.

2897. In Nagubai Ammal and others Vs. B. Shama Rao and others, AIR 1956 SC 593 the Court considered the doctrine of election and observed:

> "18. An admission is not conclusive as to the truth of the matters stated therein. It is only a piece of evidence, the weight to be attached to which must depend on the circumstances under which it is made. It can be shown to be erroneous or untrue, so long as the person to whom it was made has not acted upon it to his detriment, when it might become conclusive by way of estoppel.
> Reliance was placed on the well-known observations of Baron Park in Slatterie v. Pooley, (1840) 6 M & W 664 (669) (C) that "what a party himself admits to be true may reasonably be presumed to be so", and on the decision in 34 Ind App 27 (B), where this statement of the law was adopted. No exception can be taken to this proposition. But before it can be invoked, it must be shown that there is a clear and unambiguous statement by the opponent, such as will be conclusive unless explained."
>
> "The ground of the decision is that when on the same facts, a person has the right to claim one of two reliefs and with

www.vadaprativada.com

full knowledge he elects to claim one and obtains it, it is not open to him thereafter to go back on his election and claim the alternative relief. The principle was thus stated by Bankes, L. J.:

"Having elected to treat the delivery to him as an authorised delivery they cannot treat the same act as a misdelivery. To do so would be to approbate and reprobate the same act".

The observations of Scrutton, L. J. on which the appellants rely are as follows :

"A plaintiff is not permitted to 'approbate and reprobate'. The phrase is apparently borrowed from the Scotch law, where it is used to express the principle embodied in our doctrine of election- namely, that no party can accept and reject the same instrument. Ker v. Wauchope (1819) 1 Bligh 1 (21) (E) : Douglas-Menzies v. Umphelby 1908 AC 224 (232) (F). The doctrine of election is not however confined to instruments. A person cannot say at one time that a transaction is valid and thereby obtain some advantage, to which he could only be entitled on the footing that it is valid, and then turn round and say it is void for the purpose of securing some other advantage. That is to approbate and reprobate the transaction".

It is clear from the above observations that the maxim that a person cannot 'approbate and reprobate' is only one application of the doctrine of election, and that its operation must be confined to reliefs claimed in respect of the same transaction and to the persons who are parties thereto. The law is thus stated in Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume XIII, page 454, para 512:

"On the principle that a person may not approbate and reprobate, a species of estoppel has arisen which seems to be intermediate between estoppel by record and estoppel in pais, and may conveniently be referred to here. Thus a party cannot, after taking advantage under an order (e. g. payment of costs), be heard to say that it is invalid and ask to set it aside, or to set up to the prejudice of persons who have relied upon it a case inconsistent with that upon which it was founded; nor will he be allowed to go behind an order made in ignorance of the true facts to the prejudice of third parties who have acted on it". (para 23)

2898. The Doctrine of election was described by Jarman on Wills, 6th Edn. Page 532 as under :

"The doctrine of election may be thus stated. That he who accepts a benefit under a deed or will must adopt the whole contents of the instrument conforming to all its provisions and renouncing every right inconsistent with it. It therefore a testator has affected to dispose of property which is not his own, and has given a benefit to the person to whom that property belongs, the devisee or legatees accepting the benefit so given to him must make good the testator's attempted disposition, but if, on the contrary, he choose to enforce his proprietary rights against the testator's disposition, equity will sequester the property given to him, for the purpose of making satisfaction out of it to the person whom he has disappointed by the assertion of those rights."

2899. This has been followed in several cases noticed and followed by a Division Bench of Madras High Court in Ammalu Achi Vs. Ponnammal Achi & others AIR 1919

www.vadaprativada.com

Madras 464. The above judgment, however, shows that the doctrine of election as followed therein was that of applicable in England based on English decision since Sections 35 of Transfer of Property Act, 1882 and 172 of Succession Act, 1865 were found by the Court as enunciating the doctrine of election as enforced in England but those sections were not applicable to Hindus in India.

2900. In R.N. Gosain Vs. Yashpal Dhir (supra), the Court said:

> "10. Law does not permit a person to both approbate and reprobate*. This principle is based on the doctrine of election which postulates that no party can accept and reject the same instrument and that "a person cannot say at one time that a transaction is valid any thereby obtain some advantage, to which he could only be entitled on the footing that it is valid, and then turn round and say it is void for the purpose of securing some other advantage". [See:Verschures Creameries Ltd. Vs. Hull and Netherlands Steamship Co. Ltd. (1921) KB 608, 612 (CA), Scrutton, LJ]. According to Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th Edn., Vol. 16, "after taking an advantage under an order (for example for the payment of costs) a party may be precluded from saying that it is invalid and asking to set it aside". (para 1508).*

2901. In National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mastan (supra) the Court said:

> "23. The 'doctrine of election' is a branch of 'rule of estoppel', in terms whereof a person may be precluded by his actions or conduct or silence when it is his duty to speak, from asserting a right which he otherwise would have had. The doctrine of election postulates that when two remedies are available for the same relief the aggrieved party has the option to elect either of them but not both*. Although there are certain exceptions to the same rule but the same has no application in the instant case."*

2902. The question of effect of gap in continuous possession came to be considered in Devi Singh Vs. Board of Revenue for Rajasthan and others, (1994) 1 SCC 215 and in para 5 the Court held as under:

"The salutary principle of appreciation of evidence in possessory matters is that when a state of affairs is shown to have existed for a long course of time but a gap therein puts to doubt its continuity prudence requires to lean in favour of the continuity of things especially when some plausible explanation of the gap is forthcoming."

2903. Since adverse possession is a plea to usurp title over immovable property which otherwise the claimant does not possess and its successful claim would mean that the real owner shall be denuded of his title and the same would stand conferred upon the claimant, the pleadings in this aspect, have been held of utmost importance. They have to be very clear, emphatic and to the extent of covering every necessary ingredient to satisfy the claim of adverse possession. The claimant cannot take advantage of default on the part of the other side but has to set up his case on his own failing which it is he, who has to suffer. Since this kind of claim has the result of defeating the very right of an otherwise rightful person, the law is very strict on this aspect. It needs a thorough and minute inquiry into the claim of the person who asserts title on the basis of adverse possession.

2904. In Abubakar Abdul Inamdar (supra) in the context of Articles 64 and 65 of L.A. 1963 emphasizing the importance of pleadings in para 5 of the judgment the Apex Court said :

> "With regard to the plea of adverse possession, the appellant having been successful in the two Courts below and not in the High Court, one has to turn to the pleadings of the appellant in his written statement. There he has pleaded a duration of his having remained in exclusive possession of the house, but nowhere has he pleaded a single overt act on the basis of which it could be inferred or ascertained that from a particular point of time his possession became hostile and notorious to the complete exclusion of other heirs, and his being in possession openly and hostilely. It is true that some evidence, basically of Municapal register entries, were inducted to prove the point but no amount of proof can substitute pleadings which are the foundation of the claim of a litigating party. The High Court cought the appellant right at that point and drawing inference from the evidence produced on record, concluded that correct principles relating to the plea of adverse possession were not applied by the courts below. The finding, as it appears to us, was rightly reversed by the High Court requiring no interference at our end." (Para 5)

2905. In Ram Charan Das (supra) the property of a Mutt was alienated by Mahant by executing a Mukararri (permanent lease) in favour of one Munshi Naurangi Lal. The sale deed of the land in dispute was also executed to another one and in both the documents it was said that they were executed to meet the expenses and necessities of the Mutt. After the death of Mahant, a suit was filed by successor in office against the lessee and purchaser etc. claiming possession of the property in dispute to

Mutt. The defendants besides others, took the plea of adverse possession also. The question was did the possession of the concerned defendant became adverse to Mutt or Mahant representing the Mutt on the date of relevant assurance or date of death of the concerned Mahant. The trial court held the latter date to be correct while the High Court took a contrary view and upheld the former date. The Privy Council held:

> " In other words a mahant has power (apart from any question of necessity) to create an interest in property appertaining to the Mutt which will continue during his own life, or to put it perhaps more accurately, which will continue during his tenure of office of mahant of the mutt, with the result that adverse possession of the particular property will only commence when the mahant who had disposed of it ceases to be mahant by death or otherwise. If this be right as it must be taken to be, where the disposition by the mahant purports to be a grant of a permanent lease, their Lordships are unable to see why the position is not the same where the disposition purports to be an absolute grant of the property nor was any logical reason suggested in argument why there should be any difference between the two cases. In each case the operation of the purported grant is effective and endures only for the period during which the mahant had power to create an interest in the property of the mutt."

2906. Recently, the Apex Court has considered in detail the various authorities on the question of adverse possession in Hemaji Waghaji Jat (supra) and in para 18 observed that plea of adverse possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show : (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession.

2907. The Court also referred to its earlier decision in D.N. Venkatarayappa (supra) observing :

> "Therefore, in the absence of crucial pleadings, which constitute adverse possession and evidence to show that the petitioners have been in continuous and uninterrupted possession of the lands in question claiming right, title and interest in the lands in question hostile to the right, title and interest of the original grantees, the petitioners cannot claim that they have perfected their title by adverse possession."

2908. In D.N. Venkatarayappa (Supra), the Court emphasized the importance of pleading as also the pre requisites of plea of adverse possession and said :

> "3. ...What requires to be pleaded and proved is that the purchaser disclaimed his title under which he came into possession, set up adverse possession with necessary animus of asserting open and hostile title to the knowledge of the true owner and the later allowed the former, without any let or hindrance, to remain in possession and enjoyment of the property adverse to the interest of the true owner until the expiry of the prescribed period. The

classical requirement of adverse possession is that it should be nec vi, nec clam, nec precario."

"... ordinary classical requirement of adverse possession is that it should be nec vi, nec clam, nec precario and the possession required must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that it is possession adverse to the competitor."

"apart from the actual and continuous possession which are among other ingredients of adverse possession, there should be necessary animus on the part of the person who intends to perfect his title by adverse possession."

"A person who under the bona fide belief thinks that the property belongs to him and as such he has been in possession, such possession cannot at all be adverse possession because it lacks necessary animus for perfecting title by adverse possession."

"... one of the important ingredients to claim adverse possession is that the person who claims adverse possession must have set up title hostile to the title of the true owner."

"...there is not even a whisper in the evidence of the first petitioner with regard to the claim of adverse possession set up by the petitioners. It is not stated by the petitioners that they have been in continuous and uninterrupted possession of the lands in question."

"But, the crucial facts to constitute adverse possession have not been pleaded. Admittedly, the appellant came into possession by a derivative title from the original grantee. It is seen that the original grantee has no right to alienate the land. Therefore, having come into possession under colour of title from original grantee, if the appellant intends to plead adverse possession as against the State, he must disclaim his title and plead his hostile claim to the knowledge of the State and that the State had not taken any action thereon within the prescribed period. Thereby, the appellant's possession would become adverse. No such stand was taken nor evidence has been adduced in this behalf. The counsel in fairness, despite his research, is unable to bring to our notice any such plea having been taken by the appellant."

"Therefore, in the absence of crucial pleadings, which constitute adverse possession and evidence to show that the petitioners have been in continuous and uninterrupted possession of the lands in question claiming right, title and interest in the lands in question hostile to the right, title and interest of the original grantees, the petitioners cannot claim that they have perfected their title by adverse possession"

"...person, who comes into possession under colour of title from the original grantee if he intends to claim adverse possession as against the State, must disclaim his title and plead his hostile claim to the knowledge of the State and the State had not taken any action thereon within the prescribed period."

"5. ... in claiming adverse possession certain pleas have to be made such as when there is a derivative title as in the present case, if the appellants intend to plead adverse possession as against the State, they must disclaim their title and plead this hostile claim to the knowledge of the State and that the State had not taken any action within the prescribed period, it is only in those circumstances the appellants' possession would become adverse. There is no material to that effect in the present case. Therefore, we are of the view that there is no substance in any of the contentions advanced on behalf of the appellants."

2909. In Mahesh Chand Sharma (supra), the necessity of pleading was emphasized and the Court in para 36 said :

"In this connection, we may emphasise that a person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of the true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all the facts necessary to establish his adverse possession. For all the above reasons, the plea of limitation put forward by the appellant, or by Defendants Nos. 2 to 5 as the case may, be is rejected."

www.vadaprativada.com

2910. Here we may also refer to some more judgements which have been cited by Sri P.N. Mishra, Advocate, advancing his arguments on the issues pertaining to adverse possession.

2911. In Smt. Bitola Kuer (supra) in para 16 the Court said :

"It is well settled that tile ordinarily carries with it the presumption of possession and that when the question arises is to who was in possession of land, the presumption is that the true owner was in such possession. In other word" possession follows title. The inevitable Corollary from this principle is that the burden lies on the person who claims to have acquired title by adverse possession to prove his case."

2912. In Prabhu Narain Singh (supra) in para 6 the Court observed :

"A person claiming title to any land by adverse possession has to be very specific about the area of the land and the period over which he has been in possession."

2913. In Ramzan Vs. Smt. Gafooran (supra) the Court observed :

"27. It is, therefore, explicit that unless there is specific plea and proof that adverse possessor has disclaimed his right and asserted title and possession to the knowledge of the true owner within a statutory period and the true owner has acquiesced to it, the adverse possessor cannot succeed to have it established that he has perfected his right by prescription."

"29. As pointed out above, where the defendants are not sure who is the true owner and question of their being in hostile possession then the question of denying title of true owner does not arise. At the most, the defendants have claimed and which is found to be correct by the trial court that they have been in possession of the disputed property since the inception of the sale deeds in their favour. They came in possession, according to their showing, as owner of the property in question. It follows that they exercised their right over the disputed property as owner and exercise of such right, by no stretch of imagination, it can be said that they claimed their title adverse to the true owner."

2914. In Raja Rajgan Maharaja Jagatjit Singh (supra) it was held that the defendant-appellant has to establish that the title to the land in suit held by the owner under the First Settlement of 1865 had been extinguished under Section 28 of the Limitation Act due to the adverse possession of the defendant-appellant or his predecessors for the appropriate statutory period of limitation and completed prior to the possession taken under attachment by Tehsildar who thereafter held it for the true owner. It also says:

> "It is well established that adverse possession against an existing title must be actual and cannot be constructive."

2915. In Md. Mohammad Ali Vs. Jagdish Kalita (supra) also the change brought in 1963 under Article 65 qua the earlier Act of 1908 was pointed out and the Court observed:

> "By reason of the Limitation Act, 1963 the legal position as was obtaining under the old Act underwent a change. In a suit governed by Article 65 of the 1963 Limitation Act, the plaintiff will succeed if he proves his title and it would no longer be necessary for him to prove, unlike in a suit governed by Articles 142 and 144 of the Limitation Act, 1908, that he was in possession within 12 years preceding the filing of the suit. On the contrary, it would be for the defendant so to prove if he wants to defeat the plaintiffs claim to establish his title by adverse possession."

2916. Mahadeo Prasad Singh and others Vs. Karia Bharthi, AIR 1935 PC 44 is a judgment which deals with the issue of commencement of limitation under Article 144 of Limitation Act 1908. It was held therein that a person in actual possession of Math is entitled to maintain a suit for recovery of property pertaining to Math not for his own benefit but for the benefit of Math. On the matter of limitation the Court held:

> "It is common ground that the article of the Indian Limitation Act of 1908 applicable to the claim is Article 144, which prescribes a period of 12 years from the date

when the possession of the appellants became adverse to the math. Their case is that in 1904, when Rajbans settled his dispute with the plaintiff, he ceased to be the mahant of Kanchanpur and repudiated the title of the math of the village of Saktni as well as to the other villages which he got in pursuance of the compromise. On that date, it is contended, he began to hold the property adversely to the institution, and the action, which was brought after the expiry of 12 years from that date, was barred by time."

2917. To the same effect is the view taken in Gopal Datt Vs. Babu Ram, AIR 1936 All 653.

2918. From the above discussion what boils down is that the concept of adverse possession contemplates a hostile possession, i.e., a possession which is expressly or impliedly in denial of the title of the true owner. Possession to be adverse must be possession by a person who does not acknowledge the other's right and in fact deny the same. A person who bases his title on adverse possession must show by clear and unequivocal evidence that his possession was hostile to the real owner and amounted to denial of his title to the property claimed. In order to determine whether the act of a person constitutes adverse possession is 'animus in doing that act' and it is most crucial factor. Adverse possession commences in wrong and is aimed against right. A person is said to hold the property adversely to the real owner when that person in denial of owner's right excluded him from the enjoyment of his property. Adverse possession is that form of possession or occupancy of land which is inconsistent with the title of the rightful owner and tends to extinguish that person's title. Possession is not held to be adverse if it can be referred to a lawful title. The persons

setting up adverse possession may have been holding under the rightful owner's title, i.e., trustees, guardians, bailiffs or agents, such person cannot set up adverse possession. Burden is on the defendant to prove affirmatively.

2919. An occupation of reality is inconsistent with the right of the true owner. Where a person possesses property in a manner in which he is not entitled to possess it, and without anything to show that he possesses it otherwise than an owner, i.e., with the intention of excluding all persons from it, including the rightful owner, he is in adverse possession of it. Where possession could be referred to a lawful title it shall not be considered to be adverse. The reason is that a person whose possession can be referred to a lawful title will not be permitted to show that his possession was hostile to another's title. One who holds possession on behalf of another does not by mere denial of other's title make his possession adverse so as to give himself the benefit of the statute of limitation. A person who enters into possession having a lawful title cannot divest another of that title by pretending that he had no title at all.

2920. Adverse possession is of two kinds. (A) Adverse from the beginning or (B) that become so subsequently. If a mere trespasser takes possession of A's property, and retains it against him, his possession is adverse ab initio. But if A grants a lease of land to B, or B obtains possession of the land as A's bailiff, or guardian, or trustee, his possession can only become adverse by some change in his position. Adverse possession not only entitles the adverse possessor, like every other possessor, to be protected in his possession against all who cannot show a better title, but also, if the adverse possessor remains in possession for a certain period of time produces the effect either of barring the right of the true owner, and thus converting the possessor into the owner, or of depriving the true owner of his right of action to recover his property although the true owner is ignorant of the adverse possessor being in occupation.

2921. In Hari Chand Vs. Daulat Ram (supra) the Court held if the encroachment was not new one but the structure was in existence prior to acquiring title over the property the decree on the basis of adverse possession cannot be granted in favour of the plaintiff. Paras 10 and 11 of the judgment read as under:

> "10. On a consideration of these evidences it is quite clear that the disputed kachha wall and the khaprail over it is not a new construction, but existed for over 28 years and the defendant has been living therein as has been deposed to by Ramji Lal vendor of the plaintiff who admitted in his evidence that the land in dispute and the adjoining kachha walls had been affected by salt and the chhappar over the portion shown in red was tiled roof constructed about 28 years back. This is also supported by the evidence of the defendant, D.W. 1, that the wall in dispute was in existence when the partition was effected i.e., 28 years before. On a consideration of these evidences the Trial Court rightly held that the defendant had not trespassed over the land in question nor he had constructed a new wall or khaprail. The trial court also considered the report 57C by the court Amin and held that the wall in question was not a recent construction but it appeared 25-30 years old in its present condition as (is) evident from the said report. The suit was therefore dismissed. The lower appellate court merely considered the partition deed and map Exts. 3/1 and 3/2 respectively and held that the disputed property fell to the share of the plaintiff's vendor and the correctness of the partition map was not challenged in the written statement. The court of appeal below also referred to Amin's map 47 A which showed the encroached portion in red colour as falling within the share of plaintiff's vendor, and held that the defendant encroached on this portion of land marked in red colour, without at all considering the clear evidence of the defendant himself that the wall and the khaprail in question existed for the last 28 years and the defendant has been living there all along. P.W. 1 Ramji Lal himself also admitted that the wall existed for about 28 years as stated by the defendant and the kachha walls and the khaprail has been effected by salt. The lower appellate court though held that P.W. 1 Ramji Lal admitted in cross-examination that towards the north of the land in dispute was the khaprail covered room of Daulat Ram in which Daulat Ram lived, but this does not mean that the wall in dispute exists for the last any certain number of years, although it can be said that it is not a recent construction. Without considering the deposition of defendant No. 1 as well as the report of the Amin 57 C the IInd Addl. Civil Judge, Agra wrongly held that the defendant failed to prove that the wall in dispute and the khaprail existed for the last more than 12 years before the suit. The Civil Judge further held on surmises as "may be that the wall and khaprail have not been raised in May, 1961 as is the plaintiff's case, but they are recent constructions." This decision of the court of appeal below is wholly incorrect being contrary to the evidences on record."

"11. On a consideration of all the evidences on record it is clearly established that the alleged encroachment by construction of kuchha wall and khaprail over it are not a recent construction as alleged to have been made in May 1961. On the other hand, it is crystal clear from the evidences of Ramji Lal P.W. 1 and Daulat Ram D.W. 1 that the disputed wall with khaprail existed there in the disputed site for a long time, that is 28 years before and the wall and the khaprail have been affected by salt as deposed to by these two witnesses. Moreover the court Amin's report 57 C also shows the said walls and khaprail to be 25-30 years old in its present condition. The High Court has clearly came to the finding that though the partition deed was executed by the parties yet there was no partition by metes and bounds. Moreover there is no whisper in the plaint about the partition of the property in question between the co-sharers by metes and bounds nor there is any averment that the suit property fell to the share of plaintiff's vendor Ramji Lal and Ramji Lal was ever in possession of the disputed property since the date of partition till the date of sale to the plaintiff. The plaintiff has singularly failed to prove his case as pleaded in the plaint."

2922. In Maharaja Sir Kesho Prasad Singh Bahadur (supra) the Hon'ble Privy Council has held that mere receipt of rent by persons claiming adversely is not sufficeint to warrant finding of adverse possession. The possession of persons or their predecessors-in-title claiming by adverse possession must have "all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness" necessary to displace the title of the persons against whom they claim. Relevant extracts from page 78 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "the mere fact that many years after the sale the Gangbarar maliks or persons depriving title from them are obtaining rent for the land is in itself very significant. Even in a locality exposed to dilution by the action of the river this circumstance alone might be given considerable weight. But without sufficient proof to cover the intervening years it was most reasonably held by the learned Subordinate Judge to be insufficient. The circumstance that the Maharaja was not in possession or in receipt of rent is, it need hardly be said, insufficient under Art. 144 to warrant a finding of adverse possession on behalf of the respondents or their predecessors-in-title. Their Lordships are of opinion that on the materials produced it cannot be contended that the learned Subordinate Judge was obliged in law to find that the possession of the principal respondents had "all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness" (per Lord Shaw 126 CWN 66610 at p. 673) necessary to displace the title of the Maharaja, and they think that no reason in law exists why his finding of fact in this respect should not be final."

2923. In Ramzan and others Vs. Smt. Gafooran (supra) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that unless there is specific plea and proof that adverse possession has disclaimed his right and asserted title and possession to the knowledge of the true owner within the statutory period and the true owner has acquiesced to it, the adverse possessor cannot succeed to have it established that he has perfected his right by prescription. Where the adverse possessor was not sure as to who was the true owner and question of his being in hostile possession, then the question of denying title of true owner does not arise. Relevant paras 27, 29 and 30 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "27. It is, therefore, explicit that unless there is specific plea and proof that adverse possessor has disclaimed his right and asserted title and possession to the knowledge of the true owner within a statutory period and the true owner has acquiesced to it, the adverse possessor cannot succeed to have it established that he has perfected his right by prescription."
> "29. As pointed out above, where the defendants are not sure who is the true owner and question of their being in hostile possession then the question of denying title of true owner does not arise. At the most, the defendants have claimed and which is found to be correct by the trial court that they have been in possession of the disputed property since the inception of the sale deeds in their favour. They came in possession, according to their showing, as owner of the property in question. It follows that they exercised their right over the disputed property as owner and exercise of such right, by no stretch of imagination, it can be said that they claimed their title adverse to the true owner."
> "30. Viewed as above, on the facts of the present case, the possession of the contesting defendants is not of the variety and degree which is required for adverse possession to materialise."

2924. In Qadir Bux Vs. Ramchand (supra) the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court has held that the term "dispossession"

applies when a person comes in and drives out others from the possession. It implies ouster; a driven out of possession against the will of the person in actual possession. The term "discontinuance" implies a voluntary act and openness of possession followed by the actual possession of another. It implies that a person discontinuing as owner of the land and left it to be dispossessed by any one who has not to come in. Relevant para 30 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "30. The main point for consideration is whether in such circumstances it can be said that the plaintiff had been dispossessed or had discontinued his possession within the meaning of Article 142 of the First Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act. The term "dispossession" applies when a person comes in and drives out others from the possession. It imports ouster: a driving out of possession against the will of the person in actual possession. This driving out cannot be said to have occurred when according to the case of the plaintiff the transfer of possession was voluntary, that is to say, not against the will of the person in possession but in accordance with his wishes and active consent. The term "discontinuance" implies a voluntary act and abandonment of possession followed by the actual possession of another. It implies that the person discontinuing has given up the land and left it to be possessed by anyone choosing to come in. There must be an intention to abandon title before there can be said to be a discontinuance in possession, but this cannot be assumed. It must be either admitted or proved. So strong in fact is the position of the rightful owner that even when he has been dispossessed by a trespasser and that trespasser abandons

possession either voluntarily or by vis major for howsoever short a time before he has actually perfected his tittle by twelve years' adverse possession the possession of the true owner is deemed to have revived and he gets a fresh starting point of limitation – vide Gurbinder Singh v. Lal Singh, AIR 1965 SC 1553. Wrongful possession cannot be assumed against the true owner when according to the facts disclosed by him he himself had voluntarily handed over possession and was not deprived of it by the other side."

2925. In Gurbinder Singh and another Vs. Lal Singh and another, AIR 1965 SC 1553 the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in order that Article 142 is attracted the plaintiff must initially be found in possession of the property and should have been dispossessed by the defendant or someone through whom the defendants claim or alternatively the plaintiff should have discontinued possession. It has also been held that in a suit to which Article 144 attracted the burden is on the party who claims adverse possession to establish that he was in adverse possession for 12 years before the date of suit and for computation of this period he can avail of the adverse possession of any person or persons through whom he claims but not the adverse possession of an independent trespasser. Relevant paras 6, 8 and 10 of the said judgment read as follows:

"6. In order that Art. 142 is attracted the plaintiff must initially have been in possession of the property and should have been dispossessed by the defendant or someone through whom the defendants claim or alternatively the plaintiff should have discontinued possession. It is no one's case that Lal Singh ever was in possession of the property. It is true that Pratap Singh was in possession of part of the property--which particular part we do not know--by reason of a transfer thereof in his favour by Bakshi Singh. In the present suit both Lal Singh and Pratap Singh assert their claim to property by success on in accordance with the rules contained in the dastur ul amal whereas the possession of Pratap Singh for some time was under a different title altogether. So far as the present suit is concerned it must, therefore, be said that the plaintiffs--respondents were never in possession as heirs of Raj Kaur and consequently art. 142 would not be attracted to their suit."

"8. Mr. Tarachand Brijmohanlal, however, advanced an interesting argument to the effect that if persons entitled to immediate possession of land are somehow kept out of possession may be by different trespassers for a period of 12 years or over, their suit will be barred by time. He points out that as from the death of Raj Kaur her daughters, through one of whom the respondents claim, were kept out of possession by trespassers and that from the date of Raj Kaur's death right up to the date of the respondents' suit, that is, for a period of nearly 20 years trespassers were in possession of Mahan Kaur's, and after her death, the respondents' share in the land, their suit must therefore be regarded as barred by time. In other words the learned counsel wants to tack on the adverse possession of Bakshi Singh and Pratap Singh to the adverse possession of the Raja and those who claim through him. In support of the contention reliance is placed by learned counsel on the decision in Ramayya v.

Kotamma, ILR 45 Mad 370: (AIR 1922 Mad 59). In order to appreciate what was decided in that case a brief resume of the facts of that case is necessary. Mallabattudu, the last male holder of the properties to which the suit related, died in the year 1889 leaving two daughters Ramamma and Govindamma. The former died in 1914. The latter surrendered her estate to her two sons. The plaintiff who was a transferee from the sons of Govindamma instituted a suit for recovery of possession of Mallabattudu's property against Punnayya, the son of Ramamma to whom Mallabattudu had made an oral gift of his properties two years before his death. Punnayya was minor at the date of gift and his eider brother Subbarayudu was managing the property on his behalf. Punnayya, however, died in 1894 while still a minor and thereafter his brothers Subbarayudu and two others were in possession of the property. It would seem that the other brothers died and Subbarayudu was the last surviving member of Punnayya's family. Upon Subbarayudu's death the properties were sold by his daughters to the third defendant. The plaintiffs- appellants suit failed on the ground of limitation. It was argued on his behalf in the second appeal before the High Court that as the gift to Punnayya was oral it was invalid, that consequently Punnayya was in possession as trespasser, that on Punnayya's death his heir would be his mother, that as Subbarayudu continued in possession Subbarayudu's possession was also that of a trespasser, that as neither Subbarayudu nor Punnayya completed possession for 12 years they could not tack on one to the other and that the plaintiff claiming through the nearest reversioner is not barred. The contention for the respondents was that there was no break in possession so as to retest the properties in the original owners, that Punnayya and Subbarayudu cannot be treated as successive trespassers and that in any event the real owner having been out of possession for over 12 years the suit was barred by limitation. The High Court following the decision of Mookerjee J. in Mohendra Nath v. Shamsunnessa, 21 Cal. LJ 157 at p. 164:(AIR 1915 Cal. 629 at p. 633), held that time begins to run against the lastfull owner if he himself was dispossessed and the operation of the law of limitation would not be arrested by the fact that on his death he was succeeded by his widow, daughter or mother, as the cause of action cannot be prolonged by the mere transfer of title. It may be mentioned that as Mallabattudu had given up possession to Punnayya under an invalid gift Art. 142 of the Limitation Act was clearly attracted. The sons of Govindamma from whom the appellant had purchased the suit properties claimed through Mallabattudu and since time began to run against him from 1887 when he discontinued possession it did not cease to run by the mere fact of his death. In a suit to which that Article applies the plaintiff has to prove his possession within 12 years of his suit. Therefore, so long as the total period of the plaintiff's exclusion from possession is, at the date of the plaintiff's suit, for a period of 12 years or over, the fact that this exclusion was by different trespassers will not help the plaintiff provided there was a continuity in the period of exclusion. That decision is not applicable to the facts of the case before us. This is a suit to which Art. 144 is attracted and the burden is on the defendant to establish that he was in adverse possession for 12 years before the date of suit and for computation of this period he can avail of the adverse possession of any person or persons through whom he claims--but not the adverse possession of independent trespassers."

"10. This view has not been departed from in any case. At any rate none was brought to our notice where it has not been followed. Apart from that what we are concerned with is the language used by the legislature in the third column of Art. 144. The starting point of limitation there stated is the date when the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff. The word "defendant" is defined in S. 2(4) of the Limitation Act thus:

'defendant' includes any person from or through whom a defendant derives his liability to be sued".

No doubt, this is an inclusive definition but the gist of it is the existence of a jural relationship between different persons. There can be no jural relationship between two independent trespassers. Therefore, where a defendant in possession of property is sued by a person who has title to it but is out of possession what he has to show in defence is that he or anyone through whom he claims has been in possession for more than the statutory period. An independent trespasser not being such a person the defendant is not entitled to tack on the previous possession of that person to his own possession. In our opinion, therefore, the respondents' suit is within time and has been rightly decreed by the courts below. We dismiss this appeal with costs."

2926. In S.M. Karim Vs. Mst Bibi Sakina (supra) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the alternative claim must be clearly made and proved, adverse possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and a plea is required at the least to show when possession becomes adverse so that the starting point on limitation against the party affected can be found. A mere suggestion in the relief clause that there was an uninterrupted possession for "several 12 years" or that the plaintiff had acquired "a possible title" was not enough to raise such a plea. Long possession is not necessarily adverse possession and prayer clause is not a substitute for a plea. Relevant paras 3 to 5 of the said judgment read as follows:

> "3. In this appeal, it has been stressed by the appellant that the findings clearly establish the benami nature of the transaction of 1914. This is, perhaps, true but the appellant cannot avail himself of it. The appellant's claim based upon the benami nature of the transaction cannot stand because S. 66 of the Code of Civil Procedure bars it. That section provides that no suit shall be maintained against any person claiming title under a purchase certified by the Court on the ground that the purchase was made on behalf of the plaintiff or on behalf of someone through whom the plaintiff claims. Formerly, the opening words were, no suit shall be maintained against a certified purchaser and the change was made to protect not only the certified purchaser but any person claiming title under a purchase certified by the Court. The protection is thus available not only against the real purchaser but also against anyone claiming through him. In the present case, the appellant as plaintiff was hit by the section and the

"4. It is contended that the case falls within the second sub-section under which a suit is possible at the instance of a third person who wishes to proceed against the property, though ostensibly sold to the certified purchaser, on tie ground that it is liable to satisfy a claim of such third person against the real owner. Reliance is placed upon the transfer by Syed Aulad Ali in favour of the appellant which is described as a claim by the transferee against the real owner. The words of the second sub-section refer to the claim of creditors and not to the claims of transferees. The latter are dealt with in first sub-section, and if the meaning sought to be placed on the second sub-section by the appellant were to be accepted, the entire policy of the law would be defeated by the real purchaser making a transfer to another and the first sub-section would become almost a dead letter. In our opinion, such a construction cannot be accepted and the plaintiff's suit must be held to be barred under S. 66 of the Code."

"5. As an alternative, it was contended before us that the title of Hakir Alam was extinguished by long and uninterrupted adverse possession of Syed Aulad Ali and after him of the plaintiff. The High Court did not accept this case. Such a case is, of course, open to a plaintiff to make if his possession is disturbed. If the possession of the real owner ripens into title under the Limitation Act and he is dispossessed, he can sue to obtain possession, for he does not then rely on the benami nature of the transaction. But the alternative claim must be clearly made and proved. The High Court held that the plea of adverse possession was not raised in the suit and reversed the decision of the two courts below. The plea of adverse possession is raised here. Reliance is placed before us on Sukan v. Krishanand, ILR 32 Pat 353 and Sri Bhagwan Singh and others v. Ram Basi Kuer and others, AIR 1957 Pat 157 to submit that such a plea is not necessary and alternatively, that if a plea is required, what can be considered a proper plea. But these two cases can hardly help the appellant. No doubt, the plaint sets out the fact that after the purchase by Syed Aulad Ali, benami in the name of his son-in-law Hakir Alam Ali continued in possession of the property but it does not say that this possession was at any time adverse to that of the certified purchaser. Hakir Alam was the son-in-law of Syed Aulad Ali and was living with him. There is no suggestion that Syed Aulad Ali ever asserted any hostile title against him or that a dispute with regard to ownership and possession had ever arisen. Adverse possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and extent and a plea is required at the least to show when possession becomes adverse so that the starting point of limitation against the party affected can be found. There is no evidence here when possession became adverse, if it at all did, and a mere suggestion in the relief clause that there was an uninterrupted possession for "several 12 years" or that the plaintiff had acquired "an absolute title" was not enough to raise such a plea. Long possession is not necessarily adverse possession and the prayer clause is not a substitute for a plea. The cited cases need hardly be considered, because each case must be determined upon the allegations in the plaint in that case. It is sufficient to point out that in Bishun Dayal v. Kesho Prasad, A.I.R. 1940 P.C. 202 the Judicial Committee did not accept an alternative case based on possession after purchase without a proper plea."

2927. In B. Leelavathi Vs. Honamma (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the adverse possession is a question of fact which has to be specifically pleaded and proved and in the absence of any plea of adverse possession, framing of an issue and adducing evidence it would not be held that the plaintiffs had perfected towards the title by way of adverse possession. Para 11 of the judgment read as follows:

"11. Plea of adverse possession had been taken vaguely in the plaint. No categorical stand on this point was taken in the plaint. No issue had been framed and seemingly the same was not insisted upon by the plaintiff-respondent. Adverse possession is a question of fact which has to be specifically pleaded and proved. No evidence was adduced by the plaintiff-respondent with regard to adverse possession. Honnamma, the plaintiff in her own statement did not say that she is in adverse possession of the suit property. We fail to understand as to how the High Court, in the absence of any plea of adverse possession, framing of an issue and evidence led on the point, could hold that the plaintiff-respondent had perfected her title by way of adverse possession."

2928. In Dharamarajan Vs. Valliammal (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that in a claim of adverse possession openness and adverse nature of the possession has to be proved against the owner of the property in question. Relevant para 11 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"11. In our opinion none of these questions could be said to be either question of law or a substantial question of law arising out of the pleadings of the parties. The first referred question of law could not and did not arise for the simple reason that the plea of adverse possession has been rightly found against the plaintiff. Karupayee Ammal's possession, even if presumed to be in a valid possession in law, could not be said to be adverse possession as throughout it was the case of the appellant Dharmarajan that it was a permissive possession and that she was permitted to stay on the land belonging to the members of the Iyer family. Secondly it has nowhere come as to against whom was her possession adverse. Was it adverse against the Government or against the Iyer family? In order to substantiate the plea of adverse possession, the possession has to be open and adverse to the owner of the property in question. The evidence did not show this openness and adverse nature because it is not even certain as to against whom the adverse possession was pleaded on the part of Karupayee Ammal. Further even the legal relationship of Doraiswamy and Karupayee Ammal is not pleaded or proved. All that is pleaded is that after Karupayee Ammal's demise Doraiswamy as her foster son continued in the thatched shed allegedly constructed by Karupayee Ammal. There was no question of the tacking of possession as there is ample evidence on record to suggest that Doraiswamy also was in the service of Iyer family and that he was permitted to stay after Karupayee Ammal. Further his legal heirship was also not decisively proved. We do not, therefore, see as to how the first substantial question of law came to be framed. This is apart from the fact that ultimately High Court has not granted the relief to the respondents on the basis of the finding of this question. On the other hand the High Court has gone into entirely different consideration based on reappreciation of evidence. The second and third questions are not the questions of law at all. They are regarding appreciation of evidence. The fourth question is regarding the admissibility of Exhibit A-8. In our opinion there is no question of admissibility as the High Court has found that Exhibit A-8 was not admissible in evidence since the Tehsildar who had issued that certificate was not examined. Therefore, there will be no question of admissibility since the document itself was not proved. Again the finding of the High Court goes against the respondent herein. Even the fifth question was a clear cut question of fact and was, therefore, impermissible in the Second Appeal."

2929. In A.S. Vidyasagar (supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that permissive possession is not adverse possession and can be terminated at any time by the rightful owner. Relevant para 5 of the judgment reads as follows:

"5. Adverse possession is sought to be established on the supposition that Kanthimathi got possession of the premises as a licensee and on her death in 1948, the appellant who was 4 years of age, must be presumed to have become a trespasser. And if he had remained in trespass for 12 years, the title stood perfected and in any case, a suit to recovery of possession would by then be time-barred. We are unable to appreciate this line of reasoning for it appears to us that there is no occasion to

term the possession of Kanthimathi as that of a licensee. The possession was permissive in her hands and remained permissive in the hands of the appellant on his birth, as well as in the hands of his father living then with Kanthimathi. There was no occasion for any such licence to have been terminated. For the view we are taking there was no licence at all. Permissible possession of the appellant could rightfully be terminated at any moment by the rightful owners. The present contesting respondents thus had a right to institute the suit for possession against the appellant. No oral evidence has been referred to us which would go to support the plea of openness, hostility and notoriety which would go to establish adverse possession. On the contrary, the Municipal Tax receipts, Exts. B-39 and 40, even though suggestedly reflecting payment made by the appellant, were in the name of Kuppuswami, the rightful owner. This negates the assertion that at any stage did the appellant assert a hostile title. Even by examining the evidence, at our end, we come to the same view as that of the High Court. The plea of adverse possession thus also fails. As a result fails this appeal. Accordingly, we dismiss the appeal, but without any order as to costs."

2930. In Goswami Shri Mahalaxmi Vahuji Vs. Shah Ranchhoddas Kalidas, AIR 1970 SC 2025 the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that a party cannot be allowed to set up a case wholly inconsistent with that pleaded in its written statement. Relevant para 8 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"8. We may now proceed to examine the material on

record for finding out 'the true character of the suit properties viz. whether they are properties of a public trust arising from their dedication of those properties in favour of the deity Shree Gokulnathji or whether the deity as well as the suit properties are the private properties of Goswami Maharaj. In her written statement as noticed, earlier, the Ist defendant took up the specific plea that the idol of Shree Gokulnathji is the private property of the Maharaj the Vallabh Cult does not permit any dedication in favour of an idol and in fact there was no dedication in favour of that idol. She emphatically denied that the suit properties were the properties of the deity Gokulnathji but in this Court evidently because of the enormity of evidence adduced by the plaintiffs, a totally new plea was taken namely that several items of the suit properties had been dedicated to Gokulnathji but the deity being the family deity of the Maharaj, the resulting trust is only a private trust. In other words the plea taken in the written statement is that the suit properties were the private properties of the Maharaj and that there was no trust, private or public. But the case argued before this Court is a wholly different one viz., the suit properties were partly the properties of a private trust and partly the private properties of the Maharaj. The Ist defendant cannot be permitted to take up a case which is wholly inconsistent with that pleaded. This belated attempt to bypass the evidence adduced appears to be more a manor than a genuine explanation of the documentary evidence adduced. It is amply proved that ever since Mathuranathji took over the management of the shrine, two sets of account books have been maintained,

one relating to the income and expenses of the shrine and the other relating to that of the Maharaj. These account books and other documents show that presents and gifts used to. be made to the deity as well as to the Maharaj. The two were quite separate and distinct. Maharaj himself has been making gifts to the deity. He has been, at times utilising the funds belonging to. the deity and thereafter reimbursing the same. The account books which have been produced clearly go to show that the deity and the Maharaj were treated as two different and distinct legal entities. The evidence afforded "by the account books is tell-tale. In the trial court it was contended on behalf of the Ist defendant that none of the account books produced relate exclusively to the affairs of the temple. They all record the transactions of the Maharaj, whether pertaining to his personal dealings or dealings in connection with the deity. This is an obviously untenable contention. That contention was given up in the High Court. In the High Court it was urged that two sets of account books were kept, one relating to the income and expenditure of the deity and the other of the Maharai so that the Maharai could easily find out-his financial commitments relating to the affairs of the deity. But in this Court Mr. Narasaraju, learned Counsel for the appellant realising the untenability of the contention advanced in the courts below presented for our consideration a totally new case and that is that Gokulnathji undoubtedly is a legal personality; in the past the properties had been dedicated in favour of that deity; those properties are the properties of a private trust of which the Maharaj was the trustee. On the basis of this

newly evolved theory he wanted to explain away the effect of the evidence afforded by the account books and the documents. We are unable to accept this new plea. It runs counter to the case pleaded in the written statement. This is not a purely legal contention. The Ist defendant must have known whether there was any dedication in favour of Shri Gokulnathji and whether any portion of the suit properties were the properties of a private trust. She and her adviser's must have known at all relevant times the true nature of the accounts maintained. Mr. Narasaraju is not right in his contention that the plea taken by him in this Court is a purely legal plea. It essentially relates to questions of fact. Hence we informed Mr. Narasaraju that we will not entertain the plea in question."

2931. In the matter of plea of adverse possession, mutually inconsistent or mutually destructive pleas must not be taken in the plaint. Whenever the plea of adverse possession is raised, it pre supposes that onwer is someone else and the person taking the plea of adverse possession is not the actual owner but has perfected his title by prescription since the real owner failed to initiate any proceeding for restoring the possession within the prescribed period under the statute.

2932. In P Periasami Vs. P Periathambi (supra) it was said:

"Whenever the plea of adverse possession is projected, inherent in the plea is that someone else was the owner of the property."

2933. In Mohan Lal v. Mirza Abdul Gaffar (1996) 1SCC 639, the Court said"

"As regards the first plea, it is inconsistent with the

second plea. Having come into possession under the agreement, he must disclaim his right thereunder and plead and prove assertion of his independent hostile adverse possession to the knowledge of the transferor or his successor in title or interest and that the latter had acquiesced to his illegal possession during the entire period of 12 years, i.e., up to completing the period his title by prescription nec vi, nec clam, nec precario."

2934. In Karnataka Board of Wakf Vs. Government of India & others (2004) 10 SCC 779, the Court held that whenever the plea of adverse possession is projected, inherent therein is that someone else is the owner of the property. In para 12 it said:

"The pleas on title and adverse possession are mutually inconsistent and the latter does not begin to operate until the former is renounced."

2935. The decision in Mohal Lal (supra) has also been followed in Karnataka Board of Wakf (supra) and in para 13, the Court said:

"As we have already found, the respondent obtained title under the provisions of the Ancient Monuments Act. The element of the respondent's possession of the suit property to the exclusion of the appellant with the animus to possess it is not specifically pleaded and proved. So are the aspects of earlier title of the appellant or the point of time of disposition. Consequently, the alternative plea of adverse possession by the respondent is unsustainable."

2936. The propositions laid down above, in our view, admit no exceptions and we are in general respectful agreement.

2937. Thus in the light of the above legal principles, we shall endeavour to find out whether Muslims are in possession of the property in suit i.e. Suit-1 from 1528 AD continuously, openly and to the knowledge of plaintiff and Hindus in general, and, if so, its effect. Here we may remind that property in suit with reference to Suit-1 means the inner courtyard and the building.

2938. First of all, the pleadings need be seen to find out entry of Muslims for taking possession of the property in suit, as claimed, from 1528 AD. Their case is that (a) the disputed structure was raised by Emperor Babar after conquering India and during the period when he stayed at Ayodhya through his Governor/Commander/Counselor (Vazir) Mir Baqi in 1528 AD. (b) After construction of the disputed structure he dedicated it as Waqf in general for the benefit of entire Muslim and Muslims, therefore, have a right of worship therein. (c) Emperor Babar after the above construction of the disputed mosque (disputed structure) made a grant of Rs. 60/- per annum from his royal treasury towards Khitabat (recitation of Khutb), repair and miscellaneous expenses of disputed mosque. (d) The above grant continued during Mughal regime. During the period of Nawabs of Awadh, the amount of grant was increased to Rs. 302 Anna 3 paissa 6 per annum. The above grant continued by British Government also and at the time of first settlement.

2939. It is in fact not disputed by learned counsels for the parties that Babar-Nama, whether translated by A.S.Beveridge or others i.e. John Layden, William Erskine, F.G.Talbot, Elphinstone etc. none contains anything to show that Babar ever entered Ayodhya city or crossed Saryu river or otherwise reached thereto. The description available in Babar-Nama (the description for the period 3rd April, 1528 to 17th September, 1528 is not available), shows that Babar reached near Ayodhya on 28.3.1528 AD and stayed about 2-3 kos away but with respect to his visit or entry in Ayodhya, at least in Babar Nama, there is nothing. Therefore, the question that he himself visited Ayodhya and commanded for construction of a mosque thereat does not arise. Similarly whether he issued such a command to anyone is also not shown. Al least it is not proved at all. The claim of the Muslim parties that as a result of dedication by Babar, they came in possession, therefore, is rendered baseless and falls on the ground.

2940. It is also not in dispute that there is no evidence, documentary or otherwise, which may show that Babar or any of his agent made any waqf or dedicated any property for public use or that the Muslims in general or in particular were placed in possession of any part of the land comprising the disputed site and no direct evidence is available.

2941. We do find the situation improbable due to lapse of long time but then in order to find out correctness of such a positive averment, we have an option to look into other material to search for other probabilities. Reason being that these are the facts pleaded by defendants 1 to 5 (Suit-1), as is evident from para 9 and 16 of the plaint. This is a fact in issue, therefore, evidence has to be adduced by the defendants 1 to 5 (Suit-1). The burden lie on them. Since all the four suits were clubbed together and evidence has been recorded permitting to be used interchangeably we make no distinction in evidence if led on behalf of muslim parties. On this aspect, their stand is substantially same.

2942. The burden primarily lie on the party who desires the Court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of fact which he asserts. In other words, a person who has invited a Court to give judgment on any legal right or liability and in support thereof has pleaded existence of certain facts to prove the existence of those facts, the result of the person failing to do so, would go against him. When the muslim parties plead that the Muslims have possession over the wakf Maszid Babri since 1528, the burden of proof lie upon the plaintiffs to prove existence of the said facts. There cannot be any defence that the matter relates back to an event which occurred 433 years back, and suit was filed after more than 400 years, therefore, it is not possible to produce any direct evidence. Since it is a fact not admitted by the other side, i.e., the Hindu parties, burden of proof lie upon the muslim parties to prove the aforesaid facts. In a issue relating to the title no presumption can help. This would also not be a matter of public history for which the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books and documents of reference under Section 57 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as "Evidence Act"). In a title suit, the contents of Gazetteer etc. also cannot be relied to prove title of the party concerned but they have to prove the same by producing relevant evidence. Though we have not excluded various historical documents and books made available to us to find out the truth, primarily onus lie upon the muslim parties to place relevant evidence so as to claim successful execution of the plea of continuous possession.

2943. Issue No. 7 (Suit-1) though not very specifically but is based on the claim of Muslim parties that they have matured their title due to adverse possession, whereupon this issue has been framed and, therefore, requisite pleadings and proofs, i.e., onus would lie upon the defendants no. 1 to 5 and 10. We have reproduced the pleadings of the defendants 1 to 5 and 10 relevant for the aforesaid Issue No. 7 (Suit-1) and it is evident therefrom that the claim for title on account of adverse possession was pleaded only in para 16 of the written statement of defendants no. 1 to 5 but no such pleading find mention in the written statement filed on behalf of defendant no. 10. The defendants no. 1 to 5 have died long back and there is no substitution in Suit-1 except of defendant no. 2/1. Therefore, strictly speaking, except defendant no. 2/1, the defendants no. 1 and 3 to 5 cease to be party in Suit-1. However, no evidence led on behalf of these defendants.

2944. The pleadings of defendant no. 10 are much short of the requirement of such a case of possession. Despite our best endeavour, we find no clear averments or something even suggesting their claim with regard to title on the basis of adverse possession. The principles laid down for defence based on adverse possession necessitates party to plead who is the owner of the property against whom he is possessing the land to his knowledge, and is continuously, openly enjoying it peacefully for the period of limitation prescribed under the statute and that too exclusive and uninterrupted. We find no such pleading in the written statement of defendant no. 10 (Suit-1). In fact, the defendant no. 10 in para 19 of its written statement has pleaded that the plaintiff has neither shown any personal claim or title over the property in suit nor has been able to set up any right or title over the said property on the basis of customary or easementary right. Para 19 of the written statement of defendant no. 10 in Suit-1 is reproduced as under:

> "That the plaintiff has neither shown any personal claim or title in the plaint over the property in suit nor he has been able to set up any right or title over the said property on the basis of customary or easementary right,"

2945. This shows that the defendant no. 10 was aware that the suit has not been filed by the plaintiff claiming himself to be the owner of the property in dispute or having a title over the same in any other manner. Further, from a reading of para 10, 11 and 25 of the written statement of defendant no. 10 together, it appears that the claim of defendant no. 10 throughout in Suit-1 is that the ownership of the property in dispute vest in God almighty after the creation of Wakf and construction of a Mosque by Mir Baki during the regime of Emperor Babar and since then, it is continuously being used and possessed by Muslims for worship and none else. In para 17 of the written statement, defendant no. 10 has pleaded that the plaintiff has never remained in possession or occupation of the building in suit, he has no right, title or claim over the said property and as such the suit is barred by the provisions of Section 41 of the Specific Relief Act. In para 15, the case set up is that Muslims had all along remained in possession of the said mosque right from 1528 AD upto the date of attachment of the said mosque under Section 145 Cr.P.C. We may add that the date of attachment is 29th December, 1949. Therefore, in the entire written statement of defendant no. 10, we fail to find any case of adverse possession set up by defendant no. 10. So far as simple possession since 1528 AD is concerned, even in that respect no evidence has been placed.

2946. It would be useful to refer certain observations of a Single Judge of this Court in Abdul Halim Khan Vs. Raja Saadat Ali Khan and others, AIR 1928 Oudh 155, which, in our view, squarely applies to the facts and pleadings of this case

and we are in respectful agreement therewith:

> "One of the general principles governing the law of limitation is that a person can only be considered to be barred, if he has a right to enter and does not exercise that right within the period fixed by the Limitation Act. The maxim of law is contra non valentem agree nulla currit praescriptio (prescription does not run against a party who is unable to act); vide Broom's Legal Maxims, 9th edn., p. 576. Accordingly possession cannot become adverse against a person as long as he is not entitled to claim immediate possession. Ex facie it must follow that a person who is not in existence cannot be considered to be in a position to claim whether immediate or otherwise. It is evident that in the eyes of the law the plaintiff did not come into existence as long as he was not adopted. His adoption took place on 27th July 1914. He must be deemed to have come into existence only then. It was, therefore, obviously not possible for him to claim possession of the property before that date, and if he was not in a position to claim it at all, having not been then in existence, it would be absurd to say that another person was in possession adversely to him. One might fairly ask: "Adverse against whom?" It certainly cannot be adverse against the plaintiff, who was not then in existence. It may have been adverse against any other person, but we are not concerned with such person unless the plaintiff can be shown to have derived his title from such person." (page189-190)

2947. Recently, in Vishwanath Bapurao Sabale (supra), the Apex Court in respect to a claim of title based on the pleading of adverse possession said as under:

"for claiming title by adverse possession, it was necessary for the plaintiff to plead and prove animus possidendi.

A peaceful, open and continuous possession being the ingredients of the principle of adverse possession as contained in the maxim nec vi, nec clam, nec precario, long possession by itself would not be sufficient to prove adverse possession."

2948. What should have been pleaded and what a person claiming adverse possession has to show has been laid down by the Apex Court categorically in Karnataka Board of Wakf (supra) :

> "11. In the eye of the law, an owner would be deemed to be in possession of a property so long as there is no intrusion. Non-use of the property by the owner even for a long time won't affect his title. But the position will be altered when another person takes possession of the property and asserts a right over it. Adverse possession is a hostile possession by clearly asserting hostile title in denial of the title of true owner. It is a well- settled principle that a party claiming adverse possession must prove that his possession is "nec vi, nec clam, nec precario", that is, peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that their possession is adverse to the true owner. It must start with a wrongful disposition of the rightful owner and be actual, visible, exclusive, hostile and continued over the statutory period. ..... Physical fact of exclusive possession and the animus posdendi to hold as owner in exclusion to the actual owner are the most important factors that are to be accounted in cases of this nature. Plea of adverse

possession is not a pure question of law but a blended one of fact and law. Therefore, a person who claims adverse possession should show: (a) on what date he came into possession, (b) what was the nature of his possession, (c) whether the factum of possession was known to the other party, (d) how long his possession has continued, and (e) his possession was open and undisturbed. A person pleading adverse possession has no equities in his favour. Since he is trying to defeat the rights of true owner, it is for him to clearly plead and establish all facts necessary to establish his adverse possession."

2949. Earlier also, a three-Judges Bench of Apex Court in Parsinni & another Vs. Sukhi (supra) laid down the following three requisites for satisfying the claim based on adverse possession:

"5. The appellants claimed adverse possession. The burden undoubtedly lies on them to plead and prove that they remained in possession in their own right adverse to the respondents. .... Possession is prima facie evidence of title. Party claiming adverse possession must prove that his possession mast be "nee vi nee clam nee precario" i.e. peaceful, open and continuous. The possession must be adequate, in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that their possession is adverse to the true owner."

2950. In Maharaja Sir Kesho Prasad Singh Bahadur (supra), it was held that in order to obtain a favourable finding of adverse possession, one must have to satisfy all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness. Reliance was placed on Kuthali Moothavur Vs. P. Kunharankutty AIR 1922 PC 181.

2951. We can look into this issue from another angle. A perusal of the entire plaint (suit-1) would show that the plaintiff's case is not that of title or ownership of the property in dispute. What he actually claim is that he believes and treat the site in dispute being the birth place of Lord Rama having certain religious symbols like, idol of Lord Rama, Charan Paduka etc. which is worshipped by Pooja and Darshan since long past without any obstruction and is entitled to exercise his aforesaid right of worship without any interference. He expressed an apprehension of removal of existing idols of Lord Rama kept at the place in dispute, the boundary whereof is mentioned at the bottom of the plaint (suit-1), hence, he has sought a declaration that he is entitled to visit and worship the place in dispute without any obstruction according to religious scriptures of Hindus and the defendants have no right to interfere in the aforesaid right of the plaintiff. He further has sought a permanent mandatory injunction restraining the defendants from removing idols of Lord Rama from the place they are, not to put lock on the entry door and not to create any obstruction in Pooja and Darshan in any manner. The boundary given at the bottom of the plaint shows that the premises in dispute in Suit-1 constitute only the "inner courtyard" and "building" existed thereat. In fact, the plaintiff has not even mentioned the existence of any building but he has simply said that at the place at which the idols of Lord Rama were existing on the date of filing of the suit be not removed. The plaint is verified and signed on 13th January 1950 and filed in the Court on 16.1.1950. Therefore, averments in various paragraphs of the plaint obviously relate at least to that date.

2952. There is no claim of ownership or title by the plaintiff. It is a simple suit seeking continuous enforcement of right of worship and a restraint order against the defendants from creating any obstruction in exercise of the said right. In the absence of any claim set up by the plaintiff about his title etc., we find no occasion on the part of the defendants to claim that they are possessing property in dispute continuously, openly and to the knowledge of the plaintiff, and Hindus in general, when all this has nothing to do with the plaintiff's right of worship which he claims to have been exercising much before the date of filing of the suit and want continuance of that right without any interference. So far as the plea of holding possession of the property in dispute against the Hindus in general is concerned, we find that a statement under Order X Rule 2 C.P.C. was made on behalf of the plaintiff on 15.09.1951 wherein it has clearly been stated that Suit-1 is not a representative suit but has been filed for enforcing personal right of worship of the plaintiff, as is evident from following:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "Q. In what capacity does the plaintiff seek to exercise the relief which he seeks in the plaint.
>
> Ans. In my individual capacity.
> Q. What is your individual capacity.
> Ans. My individual capacity is distinct from public capacity and in this matter an idol worshipper."

2953. The case set up by the defendant-muslim parties against the plaintiffs in this case is a bit in deviation to what actually the dispute is. The plaintiffs neither asserted his possession over the property in dispute nor disputed anybody's possession. 'Possession' means what we understand even if it has to be seen in the context every time as defined and discussed in detail above. The consensus of the meaning of the word possession or what the term "possession" connotes is something showing actual power over the object concern, amount of will one can exercise, and intention to possess something. Not the least, the power of authority to exclude others is also an integral part thereof. Possession is nine parts of the law means the person in possession can only be ousted by one whose title is better than his. All these factors, in our view, are absent when a person claims exercise of a right other than based on possession. The plaintiff has sought to assert right of worship at the place in dispute, alleging some kind of interference at the end of defendants. He has sought a declaration about his right of worship, and, its enforcement without any restriction and further that the place in dispute as it stood on the date he filed the suit should remain undisturbed since he had been exercising his right of worship with the same status in the past also. The later question necessarily give birth to another question as to whether the status of the place in dispute, as stated on the date of filing of the suit, was actually the same for sufficiently past time as claimed by the plaintiff. That may be one which need to be decided on the basis of evidence, but so far as principal question is concerned it remains the same, i.e., enforcement of right of worship only, without claiming title, ownership or possession of the property. A worshipper when go to a religious place does not come into possession of the place of worship since it is a kind of incorporeal right not connected directly with the possession of the property in the sense, the term "possession in law" usually is known but it is a kind of enjoyment of a property and that too temporarily, for a small time, though frequently. As stated by the Privy Council in Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj (supra) the right of worshipper may be regarded as an individual right. It is not a sort of easement in gross but an ultimate in general right of a beneficiary. This individual character of the right to go to a mosque or temple for worship matters nothing when the land is no longer a waqf or a temple. If for one or the other reasons the subject itself goes or disappear the right of all beneficiaries would also go and then the worshipper cannot ask for recovery or reconstruction of the endowment on the ground that since he had a beneficiary right of worship, for his right cannot extend beyond subject matter. In this case, the defendant, probably to defeat this assertion of the plaintiff that the property in dispute is a temple open for worship by a Hindu, pleaded the construction of mosque in 1528 AD and continuous possession and worship by muslims since then. The initial onus lie upon the plaintiff, but having discharged the same, it shifts to the muslim side. The onus is different than burden. Onus may continue to shift. That being so, obviously the onus lie upon the muslim parties to prove it. To start, they proceeded with two inscriptions claimed to be fixed on the property in dispute since the time it was constructed. Those inscriptions, we have already discussed in detail while discussing issues relating to period of construction, and have held that it is not proved that those inscriptions were installed in 1528 AD or that the building in dispute itself was constructed in 1528 AD and the muslim parties pleading this fact have not been able to prove it. The two inscriptions have been held unworthy of any reliance.

2954. Next comes a complaint dated 28.11.1858 submitted by Thanedar Sheetal Dube and some other documents which we shall discuss a bit later. But at this stage we may point out that the claim of adverse possession in the light of Article 144 or

extinction of title vide Section 27 of the Limitation Act, in a case where enforcement of a right of worship is involved, may not be attracted.

2955. When a right of worship is claimed and it is said that no obstruction should be created therein, it is a de die indium right and interference, if any, as and when made also would confer a fresh cause of action. The Privy Council in Hukum Chand Vs. Maharaj Bahadur Singh (supra) has said that the section of the Swetambari in placing charans with the nails in three of the shrines is a wrong of which the Digambaris are entitled to complaint and is a continuing wrong, as to which under Section 23 a fresh period begins to run at every moment of the day on which the wrong continues.

2956. That being so, since the cause of action is a continuing one, the question of any benefit under Article 144 of LA 1908 even otherwise would not arise.

2957. If we take the Issue 7 (Suit-1) as if it only talks of possession of the property in suit continuously, openly from 1528 to the knowledge of plaintiff, and Hindus in general, and having no concern with the building, the nature of possession, whether adverse or otherwise, even then we find that Muslims have completely failed to prove the same. Except of bare pleadings, nothing has been brought on record to prove that the Muslims kept possession of the property in Suit from 1528 and onwards. The issues pertaining to date of construction have already been decided by us and we have recorded a finding that the Muslim parties have failed to prove that the disputed structure was constructed in 1528. In view of the aforesaid finding, the question of possession of property in dispute by Muslims in 1528 even otherwise would not arise. There are a few published documents, i.e., books which throw some light about the persons visiting the disputed site between 1528 to 1858. The first one is a Travellers' Account of William Finch who visited India between 1607 to 1611. Therein neither he found any such Mosque in the area called fort of Ram Chandra nor he found any Muslim person visiting that area. Instead he has mentioned that Hindus visit the place in the belief that it is the place belong to Lord Rama. This Traveller's Account has been published by William Foster in his book "Early Travels in India" (supra) (Book No. 60). At page 176 thereof (Exhibit 19 Suit 5, Register 21 Page 271), William Finch has said:

> "the castle built foure hundred yeeres agoe. Heere are also the ruines of Ranichand(s) castle and houses, which the Indians acknowled(g)e for the great God, saying that he tooke flesh upon him to see the tamasha of the world. In these ruines remayne certaine Bramenes, who record the names of all such Indians as wash themselves in the river running thereby; which custome, they say, hath continued foure Iackes of yeeres ..."

2958. Then comes the Traveller's Account of Father Joseph Tieffenthaler, who visited Oudh area sometimes between 1766 to 1771. He mentions, Emperor Aurengzebe got the fortress called Ramcot demolished and got a Muslim temple, with triple domes, constructed at the same place. Others say that is was constructed by 'Babor'. Fourteen black stone pillars of 5 span high, which had existed at the site of the fortress, are seen there. Tieffenthaler did not find any Muslim visiting the said place which is clearly the place in dispute. Tieffenthelar, however, has referred to the visit of Hindus and their worship in the disputed site by going for parikrama thrice and prostrating

www.vadaprativada.com

2959. Then comes Walter Hamilton's "East India Gazetteer" (supra) (first published in 1828). On page 353 under heading 'Oude', he says:

> "This town is esteemed one of the most sacred places of antiquity."
> Pilgrims resort to this vicinity, where the remains of the ancient city of Oude, and capital of the great Rama, are still to be seen; but whatever may have been its former magnificence it now exhibits nothing but a shapeless mass of ruins. .... among which are the reputed site of temples dedicated to Rama, Seeta, his wife, Lakshman, his general, and Hanimaun (a large monkey), his prime minister. The religious mendicants who perform the pilgrimage to Oude are chiefly of the Ramata sect, who walk round the temples and idols, bathe in the holy pools, and perform the customary ceremonies."

www.vadaprativada.com

2960. In 1858 came another "Gazetter" of Edward Thornton (supra) (Book No. 10) (Exhibit 5, Suit-5). There also is a mention of building of a Mosque after demolition of a temple. It also says that the Mosque is embellished with fourteen columns of only five or six feet in height, but of very elaborate and tasteful workmanship. It also talks of a quadrangular coffer of stone, whitewashed, five ells long, four broad, and protruding five or six inches above ground as the cradle in which Rama was born as the seventh avatar of Vishnu; and is accordingly abundantly honoured by the pilgrimages and devotions of the Hindus. This clearly show the existence of the Bedi found by Tieffenthaler at the disputed site, reiterated by Edward Thornton in his Gazetteer published in 1858, and that the Hindus used to visit the property in suit but there is nothing to show that at any point of time Namaz was offered by Muslims and they used to visit it.

2962. A perusal of the said letter/application shows that it was a kind of information conveyed by the above police official seeking instructions for further action but do not show either that the Muslims were in possession of the property or the building in dispute or the disputed site or that there used to be any Namaz therein. But this, however, shows that on the site in dispute, existence of Mosque is recognised.

Respected Sir, It is matter of your honour's attention. Kindly consider the fact that Masjid is a place of worship of the Muslims and not that of Hindus. Previously the symbol of Janamasthan had been there for hundreds of years and Hindus did Puja. Because of conspiracy of Shiv Ghulam Thandedar Oudh Government, the Bairagis constructed overnight a Chabutra up to height of one 'Balisht' until the orders of injunction were issued. At that time the Deputy Commissioner suspended the Thanedar and fine was imposed on Bairagis. Now the Chabootra has been raised to about 1¼ yards. Thus sheer high-handedness has been proved. Therefore it is requested that Murtaza Khan Kotwal City may be ordered that he himself visit the spot and inspect the new constructions and get them demolished (sic) and oust the Hindus from there; the symbol and the idol may be removed from there and writing on the walls be washed.".

2964. This complaint is also in the same line as that of the letter dated 28th November, 1858 (Ex.-19, Suit 1). It also does not show that regular Namaz was offered in the disputed building or disputed site or that the Muslims used to visit regularly or occasionally treating it a place of worship. On the contrary, complaint says that the Hindu religious symbols have been placed inside and for hundreds of years Hindus are worshipping thereat. This goes against the claim that Namaz was going on. It proves that no namaz inside at least till 30th November, 1858 when the above complaint was made or offered. Further, at the disputed site, worship by Hindus was continuing and that too for the last hundreds of years.

2965. Exhibit 21 (Suit-1) (Register 5 page 69-72A) is a report dated 01.12.1858 submitted by Sheetal Dubey Thanedar Oudh communicating the order of higher authority to Sant Nihang Singh, Faqir for leaving the place but receive no reply. Sheetal Dubey reported what actually transpired. There is nothing to show that actually the aforesaid/Nihang was evicted from the disputed site or that symbol of worship etc., he had created, was removed. It also appear that Sheetal Dubey sought further instructions from higher authority. To us, this document also does not help the Muslims to prove their possession at the disputed site and the building.

2966. Exhibit 22 (Suit-1) (Register 5, page 73) is again a report dated 6th December, 1858 of Sheetal Dubey informing that the notice of eviction was served upon Nihang Singh Fakir. This also does not inform the consequences of such service.

2967. It appears that an order was passed to oust the Fakir and remove symbol and to arrest him and send to the Court. Exhibit A-70 (Suit-1) (Register 8, Page 573) is a copy of the said order dated 15th December, 1858.

Robekar issued today in which Jhanda (flag) was uprooted from the Masjid Janam Asthan and the Faqir residing therein was ousted. Ordered that the case be consigned to the office. Dec. 10, 1858."

2969. Exhibit 31 (Suit 1) (Register 5, Page 117-121) is another application dated 05.11.1860 by Mir Rajab Ali complaining that a Chabootara and a pillar made within Babari Masjid Oudh may be removed after due enquiry as it is in violation of law. However, there is a mention that whenever the Moazzim calls for Azan, Bairagis create nuisance by blowing Conch shell. Nothing more is said therein.

2970. Exhibit 54 (Suit-4) (Register 12 page 359) is an application dated 12th March, 1861 by Mohd. Asghar, Mir Razab Ali and Mohd. Afzal as Khateeb/Moazzin, Masjid Babri situated Janam Asthan Oudh stating that some Imkani Singh has made a Chabutara near Masjid Babri at Janam Asthan Oudh and

despite of order to remove, has not complied the same. There is nothing to show that there was any compliance even thereafter and at any point of time later.

2971. It appears that Deputy Commissioner Fyzabad on 18th March 1862 directed to consign the record to office.

2972. There are some further documents i.e. Ex. A-16 (Suit 1) (Register 7, page 185-191); Ex. A-14 (Suit 1) (Register 7 Page 181); Ex. A-17 (Suit 1) (Register 7 page 193-197) regarding the grant of village Bahooranpur and Sholapuri in lieu of the cash grant of Rs.302 and 3 and a half anna for maintaining the mosque subject to showing a conduct of peace and to perform all duties of landholders in matter of police and political service as required by them by the authorities and not to favour in any way the enemies of British Government. It appears that the three persons were more interested in obtaining the land grant and the building in dispute was used by them as object for such gain but no document shows that at any point of time either the Muslims attended the mosque to offer Namaz therein till then or that even those persons who were alleging or representing themselves as Khatib or Mutwalli of the mosque ever made any arrangement for ensuring offering of Namaz by Muslims therein.

2973. Exhibit A-13 (Suit-1) (Register 6 page 173) is an application dated 25.09.1866 by Mohd. Afzal Mutwalli Masjid Babri situated at Oudh complaining about a Kothari constructed by some Bairagis and that they are also trying to built a temple near mosque. The request was made to stop them and remove construction already made.

2974. The above complaint was made by Mohd. Afzal though earlier only Mohd. Asgar and Mir Rajab Ali has claimed

themselves to be Mutwalli of the said mosque and obtained grant in their name. How and in what manner Mohd. Afjal became Mutwalli is not known.

2975. Exhibit 29 (Suit-1) (Register 5, page 105) dated 12th October, 1866 is an order of Deputy Commissioner, Faizabad on the complaint of Mohd. Afzal against Tulsidas and others directing consignment of record to office.

2976. It appears that Mohd. Asgar as Khatib and Mohd. Afjal as Muazzim Masjid Babari moved an application dated 22nd February, 1870 stating their claim on 21 trees of Imli on the ground that Masjid Babari situtated at Janam Asthan is ancestral and under the possession of them since ancient times hence a decree be issued in respect to graveyard and Imli trees in their favour.

2977. By order dated 22nd August, 1871 Exhibit 25 (Suit 1) (Register 5 page 87) the claim of Mohd. Asgar about ownership of graveyard was rejected but regarding the tamarind trees, his claim was allowed.

2978. Exhibit 30 (Suit 1) (Register 5 page 107) is a memo of appeal no. 56 filed against the order dated 3rd April 1877 of Deputy Commissioner Faizabad whereby he had granted permission to Hindus to open a new door in the northern outer wall of the disputed building. It was complained that the wall being that of the mosque, this alternation could not have been allowed to Hindus. It also complained that on 7th November, 1873 Mahant Baldev Das was ordered to remove idol i.e. Charan Paduka but has failed to comply. Hence permission to open a door in the wall of Masjid Babari could not have been given to him. He also complained of making of a "Chulha" in the compound for Puja by Baldeo Dass Bairagi and request was made for removal of this new construction.

2979. Exhibit 15 (Suit 1) (Register 5 page 41-43) is a report submitted by the Deputy Commissioner on the appeal of Mohd. Asgar permitting opening of a door on the northern outer wall of the disputed building. He treated outer compound i.e. the outer courtyard as Janam Asthan and the disputed building inside the grilled partition wall as mosque and said that for the convenience of visitors to Janam Asthan and rush on fair days, the said opening was allowed in public interest. He also declared attempt of Mohd. Asgar lacking bona fide.

2980. Mohd. Asgar filed suit no.374/943 Exhibit 24 (Suit 1) (Register 5 page 83-85) claiming rent against user of Chabutara and Takhat near the door of Babari Masjid for organizing Kartik Mela at the occasion of Ram Navmi regarding 1288-1289 Fasli. It shows that in the courtyard and Chabutara, since ancient times, Mela Kartiki and Ram Navmi was being organized. This suit was dismissed on 18th June, 1883.

2981. An application dated 2nd November, 1883, Exhibit 18 (Suit 1) (Register 5 Page 55) was submitted by Mohd. Asgar as Mutwalli Masjid Babari claiming that he is entitled to get the wall of mosque whitewashed but is being obstructed by Raghubar Das though he has right only to the extent of Chabutara and Rasoi.

2982. The Assistant Commissioner thereafter passed the following order on 22nd January, 1884 Exhibit 27 (Suit 1) (Register 5 Page 95):

"Copy of the order sheet dated January 22, 1884 in case no. 19435-Janamsthan, Judgement dated January 22, 1884, Ijlasi Janab Assistant Commissioner Sahab Bahadur Faizabad.

Syed Mohd. Asghar vs. Raghubar Das.

Today the case was called out in presence of the parties. As per orders of the Deputy Commissioner, parties were informed accordingly. Raghubar Das was restrained from carrying out repairs etc in the internal and outer part of the compound and Mohd. Asghar was advised not to lock the outer door of the mosque. It is necessary that the old existing orders be observed and complied with and there should be no interference in it.

Order.
All the papers be consigned.
Dated January 22, 84.
Sd/- English."

2983. Raghubar Das made a complaint dated 27.06.1884 Exhibit 28 (Suit 1) (Register 5 Page 99-101) to the Assistant Commissioner requesting him to make spot inspection since the Muslims were violating the order of desisting from whitewashing the wall.

2984. Then comes the admitted litigation (mentioned in written statement) relied by the defendant Muslim parties heavily, i.e., 1885 Suit which also says that in the outer courtyard there existed Ram Chabutara, Sita Rasoi and the same visited by Hindus but there is not even a whisper that the Muslims at any point of time visited the disputed site and offered Namaz.

2985. In order to find out whether the words or phrases used by the parties in the plaint amounts to admission or not one has to find out whether the assertion is clear and unambiguous or it is sometimes a loose expression due to the reason of draftman casualness or otherwise. In Mohd. Shah Vs. Fasihuddin Ansari (supra) while observing that the assertions of one Gulab were nothing but loose expression, the Court observed:

"Inadvertent expressions of dubious and ambiguous meaning cannot be twisted into admissions against the maker's interest when the surrounding circumstances

indicate that he had been consistently asserting the contrary over a series of years. Something stronger than that would be required. Had the assertions been clear and unambiguous the matter would have been different but "Imambara mosque compound" is anything but clear."(Para 33)

2986. It is true that P. Carnegy in his book "Historical Sketch" (supra) has mentioned in detail about Ramkot and thereafter he has dealt with the disputed place on pages 20 and 21. Under the heading "Hindu Muslim Differences", he has said:

"The Janmasthan is within a few hundred paces of the Hanuman Garhi. In 1855, when a great rupture took place between the Hindus and Muhammadans, the former occupied the Hanuman Garhi in force, while the Musalmans took possession of the Janmasthan*.....The Hindus then followed up this success, and at the third attempt took the Janmasthan, at the gate of which 75 Mahomedans are buried in the "Martyrs' grave" (Ganj-Shahid.)* ..... It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Mahomedans alike used to worship in the mosque-temple*. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes,* within which, in the mosque, the Mahomedans pray; while outside the fence the Hindus have raised a platform on which they make their offerings*.*

2987. This report was published in 1870. If we consider the above observations of P. Carnegy in the light of the documents placed on record of the corresponding period, i.e., 1858 to 1885 as discussed above, we find that till 1885 the property in dispute remained in possession of Hindus in which they continued to visit for worship. In the alleged riot of 1855 temporarily Muslims took possession but thereafter the Hindus regained it. Then the British authorities tried to resolve dispute by creating a dividing wall sometimes in 1856-57 but it is evident from the report of 28th November, 1858 and complaint dated 30th November, 1858 (Exhibit 20, Suit-1) (Register 5, page 65), that despite grilled dividing wall erected by the British authorities restraining Hindus from entering the inner courtyard, worship by Hindus in the inner courtyard continued against which complaints were made frequently. Sometimes when they made some new structure for worship, orders were passed for removal thereof but whether all such orders were executed, is not known. Amongst all these things, one thing which we find missing is mention of Namaz or possession of by Muslims of the disputed building and/or the property in dispute.

2988. Even if we assume some truth in what has been said by P. Carnegy, it does not mean that the property in dispute (inner courtyard) was in possession of any particular community or individual. It shows on the contrary that both Hindus and muslims, freely, frequently and openly were visiting the place in dispute for worship and that being so this itself belie the claim of muslim parties in this suit necessitating answer of the issue in question in negative, i.e., against the defendants.

2989. The issue in question needs to be answered whether the muslims being in possession of the property in suit from 1528 AD continuously, openly and to the knowledge of plaintiff and Hindus in general and if so its effect. Therefore, in order to get answer of this issue in favour of the defendants at whose pleading it has been framed, unless it is shown by cogent material that the muslims came into possession of the property in suit in 1528 AD, they cannot succeed. As we have already held while discussing issues relating to period of construction, this itself could not have been proved that the building in dispute was constructed in 1528 AD, and therefore the question of possession of property in suit in 1528 AD would not arise. No material to show possession of muslims from 1528 AD atleast till 1855 is on record. When the first aspect itself is not proved, the further occasion to suggest that such imaginary possession was continuous, open, to the knowledge of the plaintiff does not arise. Moreover the plaintiff could not have the knowledge of the possession of muslims from 1528 AD since he claimed to be a mere worshipper at the property in dispute and on this aspect also the defendants muslim parties have failed to discharge their burden. The knowledge and opinion need be qua real owner. No such owner is pleaded. It is suggested that since a lot of complaints etc. were made by Rajjab Ali and Mohammad Asghar since November 1858 and onwards, and they were also sanctioned grant by the British Government for maintenance of the mosque in respect whereto no Hindu party raised any objection, hence by the conduct of Hindus, a presumption can be drawn that the muslims were in possession of the property since very beginning.

2990. The conduct of the parties, though is a relevant fact, but in a title suit cannot succeed simply by referring to one or the other party, but one has to prove his own case. In M/s Kamakshi Builders (supra) the Court said:

> "24. . . . . Conduct may be a relevant fact, so as to apply the procedural law like estoppel, waiver or acquiescence, but thereby no title can be conferred.
> 25. It is now well-settled that time creates title.

www.vadaprativada.com

26. Acquisition of a title is an inference of law arising out of certain set of facts. If in law, a person does not acquire title, the same cannot be vested only by reason of acquiescence or estoppel on the part of other.

28. . . . by reason of presumption alone, the burden is not discharged, a title is not created.

29. A claim of title by prescription by Respondent No. 1 again is not tenable. It based its claim on a title. It had, therefore, prima facie, no animus possidendi*."*

2991. Neither the conduct of the plaintiff or other Hindu parties can help the defendants nor in the absence of any evidence to show entry of muslims in property in suit from 1528 AD, we find an occasion to decide issue in question in affirmance. Though not specifically worded but the ingredients mentioned in issue 7 (Suit-1) reflects to the claim of adverse possession taken by the defendants muslim parties (Suit-1). We have no hesitation in holding that such a claim has not been proved at all.

2992. In order to set up a claim based on adverse possession, it is incumbent upon the person who has set up this plea to prove that:

(1) So and so is the owner of the property.

(2) The defendant is possessing the property from a particular date.

(3) The possession is to the knowledge of the owner, hostile, continuous, exclusive, uninterrupted and peaceful with an intention of possession i.e. animus possidendi.

(4) The possession has continued for twelve years and more and, therefore, the title of owner stands extinguished creating a title by prescription in such defendant.

2993. Though there are some documents showing the account statements of the Mosque in dispute but the fact remains that the defendants have completely failed to discharge burden of proof even prima facie of the facts as pleaded by them so as to succeed on this issue. Issue No. 7 (Suit-1) is, accordingly, decided in negative i.e. against the defendant-Muslim parties.

2994. Now coming to Issue No. 3 (Suit-3), it has to be kept in mind that this suit is also confined to the premises within the inner courtyard and not to the entire premises, i.e., the outer and inner courtyard including the building. This is what stated by the counsel for Nirmohi Akhara in his statement made on 17.5.1963 under Order X Rule 1 CPC.

2995. Sri Sarabjeet Lal, Advocate, counsel for the plaintiff Suit-3) on 17th May, 1963 got his statement recorded and besides other said:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "The present suit is confined to property shown by letters E F G H I J K L although the entire area shown by letters E F G H P N M L E belongs to the plaintiff."

2996. He also stated that the plaintiffs are the owner of the property in dispute and further said:

> "This property is not dedicated to the idol although the temple is made on the land which is the birth place of Lord Ram. It is owned by the plaintiff and the temple was made by the plaintiff."

2997. There is no averment in the entire plaint that any of the defendant is the owner of the property in dispute, that the plaintiffs are having possession of the said property in the knowledge of the true owner, with an intention to possess it adversely, i.e., hostile possession, continuous and peaceful.

What is said in para 5, if the muslims attempted to prove that they have ever entered it, it would be wrong, they have not been allowed to enter it atleast ever since the year 1934. The basic pleadings to claim adverse possession and necessary ingredients are ex facie absent. Mere long possession does not constitute adverse possession [See S.M. Karim Vs. Mst. Bibi Sakina (supra)].

2998. As already discussed above in detail in order to set up and succeed on a plea of adverse possession, one has to show as to who is the true owner, the date from which he is possessing the property, the knowledge of the true owner of such possession as also that the possession is hostile and the possessor has intention to hold possession denying the title of the true owner or in defiance of the right of the true owner. The possession is continuous, uninterrupted, peaceful and has continued for more than 12 years. The entire plaint is conspicuously missing of all the above kind of pleadings, in the absence whereof, the plea of adverse possession cannot succeed.

2999. Moreover the statement of the plaintiff's counsel is that the property is owned by the plaintiff; the temple is made by the plaintiffs, hence question of holding property in dispute in a hostile possession, against true owner, does not arise. It also show that the plaintiffs (Suit-3) had no animus possidendi. That is completely absent. In the absence of pleadings, though no evidence is admissible, but we may add at this stage that no document whatsoever to support the necessary ingredients of adverse possession even otherwise had been placed on record by the plaintiffs (Suit-3). Most of the evidence is in respect to the structures which are in the outer courtyard and the right and possession of the plaintiffs on the said property in the last several decades. But so far as the inner courtyard is concerned, only oral evidence has been produced and the attempt also had been to show that they use to visit the premises in the inner courtyard to offer worship of Ram Lala's idol thereat and that Pujaris of Nirmohi Akhara used to perform Sewa thereat. We have discussed these witnesses and it has been demonstrated that virtually all of them on this aspect lack creditworthiness, hence unreliable.

3000. A lot of documentary evidences have also been filed by the plaintiff (Suit-3) in support of his claim for possession, but we find that the same do not help the plaintiff (Suit-3) for throwing light in respect to the premises within inner courtyard. Most of the documents are of the period subsequent to the date of attachment and they are concerned with the premises in outer courtyard. These are:

(B) Exhibit M2 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 17, page 9) is a copy of the order dated 26.06.1956 passed by the Additional District Magistrate, Faizabad to the following effect:

> "S.O. Ayodhya
> There is no objection if the thatch is repaired. Please inform the applicant."

(C) Exhibit M3 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 17, page 11) is a copy of the application dated 21.12.1962 by Abhiram Das addressed to the City Magistrate, Faizabad seeking permission of celebrating anniversary from 21s to 29th December, 1962 in the disputed site.

(D) Exhibit M4 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 17, page 13) is a copy of the report of Sri Priya Dutt Ram, Receiver of the disputed premises addressed to the City Magistrate, Faizabad and it reads as under:

> "I am connected with only the premises under dispute within the railings and the walls on the so-called Anniversary Day, only two vedic Pundits enter it, and perform HAWAN on a temporary clay after, and the same should be allowed this year as well.
>
> As far as function outside the premises, they have no concern with me.
> Of course, it is in my knowledge that on so-called Anniversary Day, some functions were organized by Sri Abhiram Dass and also by the Janambhumi Sewa Samity for the last five years, I have been out of Faizabad."

(E) Exhibit M5 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 17, page 15) is a copy of the order dated 21.12.1962 passed by the District Magistrate, Faizabad allowing the applicant Abhiram Das to hold the Ramayan Path and religious ceremonies in the ground of Janambhumi temple from 21st to 29th December, 1962.

(F) Exhibit M6 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 17, page 17) is a copy of the order dated 26.12.1962 of Sri S.N. Sharma, the then City Magistrate, Faizabad on an application filed by Sri Abhiram Das directing S.O. Ayodhya to take steps for maintaining law and order in the observance of religious function by Sri Abhiram Das in the ground of

Janambhumi temple and one Baba Baldev Das at Sumitra Bhawan and to prevent any disturbance from Baba Baldev Das at the Janambhumi temple site.

(G) Exhibit M7 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 17, page 29) is a copy of Khatauni 1374 Fasli which has been filed to show that some land was gifted by worshipper in the name of Janambhumi Ayodhya in respect whereto the entries were made in khatauni in December, 1967. The aforesaid land situate at Tahsil Navabganj, District Kunda.

(H) Exhibit 2 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 49) is a copy of the order dated 9.2.1961 of City Magistrate, Faizabad permitting replacement of the covers or sirki covers by the sheets on the applicant's own land uncovered by attachment provided it is in accordance with the laws of Municipality. Sri R.L. Verma submitted that this shows continuous possession of plaintiff (Suit-3) on the disputed land but we do not find anything to fortify the above submission in the above document and in our view it is not relevant for the purpose of suit in question.

(I) Exhibit 3 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 51) is a copy of some certificate issued by Municipal Board, Faizabad. The document is torn and the handwriting part therein is illegible. In our view, such a document cannot be relied or accepted for any purpose. In any case, one of the remark contained therein is as under:

> "(3) There will arise no right of ownership over the land from this certificate on which permission is granted to build the house or building but the applicant himself will be responsible of all sort of dispute whatever may arise in respect of title."

This remark is self speaking and, therefore, lends no credence to the plaintiffs (Suit-3).

(J) Exhibit 4 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 53-57) contains two copies of the Architect's map and a certificate no. 397 dated 6th September 1963 of Executive Officer, Municipal Board, Faizabad for the period 25.3.1964 to 24.3.1965 permitting some construction pertaining to tin shed. It is sought to argue that since Ram Chabutara was in the possession of the plaintiff (Suit-3), they were also permitted to make construction thereon by Municipal Board, Ayodhya. In any case, it pertains to outer courtyard.

(K) Exhibit 5 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 59) is a copy of the letter dated 6.2.1961 submitted by Vedanti Rajaram Chandracharya to the City Magistrate, Faizabad complaining that they have been permitted by Nagar Palika, Faizabad to place a tin shed on the outer side of Janambhumi but the Police is preventing it and says that they have no authority. Therefore, the Police may be directed not to create any obstruction in the said function.

(L) Exhibit 6 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 61-64) is a copy of the application dated 27.9.1950/29.12.1950 against the order passed by the City Magistrate under Section 145 Cr.P.C.

(M) Exhibit 7 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 65-67) is a copy of the order dated 30.7.1953 passed by Sri Prem Shankar, City Magistrate, Faizabad for consigning record of 145 Cr.P.C. proceeding since the civil suit was already pending and, therefore, he directed that subject to further orders in those matter or when the temporary injunction is

vacated till then the proceedings are being consigned to record.

3001. Some documents of an earlier period have also been filed but they also show an arrangement made by the plaintiff (Suit-3) outside the inner courtyard rather outside the premises in dispute and, therefore, do not help the plaintiff (Suit-3) for deciding the issue in question in their favour. These are:

(A) Exhibit 8 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 69) is a copy of the agreement permitting Jhingoo son of Gaya for providing drinking water to the pilgrimages visiting Ramjanambhumi site at Ayodhya. It is said to be written on 11.6.1900.

(B) Exhibit 9 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 73-75) is a copy of agreement of Theka Shop of Janambhumi Ramkot Ayodhya by Gopal son of Babu in favour of Narottamdas on 13.10.1942.

(C) Exhibit 10 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 77-79) is a copy of the agreement dated 29.10.1945 regarding Theka Shop in favour of Narottamdas.

(D) Exhibit 12 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 93 to 99) is a copy of the judgment dated 22.10.1923 of Additional Subordinate Judge, Faizabad in Appeal No. 10 of 1923 Mahant Narottamdas Vs. Ramswaroop Das. It appears that a suit claiming possession over a plot no. 163 measuring 2 bigha 2 biswa was raised but the said suit was dismissed by the Trial Court vide judgment dated 22.10.1923. It is unrelated with disputed site. The order of the Court said as under:

"Judgment

The applt as Mahant & manager of the temple

www.vadaprativada.com

Janam Asthan alias Janam Bhumi, Akhara Nirmohi situat in M. Kot Ramchandar, Ajudhya sued the respdt in the Court of the Munsif of Fyzabad for the recovery of possession of 3 bis. 17 bisw. land out of a plot no. 163 measuring 2 big 3 bis situate in M. Kot Ramchandar, Ajudhya Parg. Haweli Oudh on the allegations that he was the owner for the said plot as being in possession of the same since a long time. That in Dec. 1921 the deft wrongfully dispossessed the plff appt out of the aforesaid land in building A compound with a chabutra (platform) thereon. Hence the suit.

The respdt admitted the building of a compound & chabutra on the plot in question but denied the claim. He pleaded that the applt had no right in the land in suit nor had he ever been in possession of the same. That the land in suit appertained to the temple of Mast Ram as its sahan. That it belonged to Mast Ram, who was in possession of the same. That Bhagwan Das & Gopal Das chelas of Mahant Mast Ram gave the land in suit to Bhagwan Das Udasi chela of Mahanta Madho Ramji by a registered deed dated 25th Oct.. 1892. That Bhagwan Das Udasi gave the land in suit to Narayan Das by a registered deed dated 11th January, 1896. That (Narayan Das) on the death of Narayan Das, the deft as his chela was in possession of the land in suit. That the deft & his predecessors in interest had been in adverse proprietary possession of the land in suit for the last 30 years. That the claim

was barred by time & plff had not right to sue. The plff applt in his replication said that the land in suit marked red in the plan drawn by the amin appointed for the purpose was all along parti land till the deft made the chabutra in dispute. That the land in suit belonged to the nazul and the plff or mahant of the Janam Ashthan & his predecessors had all along been in possession and in leased his title on possession. That no lease from the nazul had been taken. The deft denied the land in suit to have ever belonged to the nazul department. The learned Munsif dismissed the claim. The plff has preferred this appeal on various grounds taken in the memorandum of appeal. Now the main point for determination in this appeal is whether the plff has been in possession of the land in suit for a long time and as such is he entitled to recover possession from the deft.

It is admitted by the plff that the land in suit belongs to the nazul & that no lease has been taken from the nazul. The deft is admittedly now in possession of the land in suit*. Under these circumstances the plff cannot sue the deft for possession,* because possession is, in general, a good title against all but the true owner, i.e. the nazul Department*.*

Again it is admitted by the plff in his replication that the land in suit was all along parti land till the deft made the chabutra in dispute. Now the land in suit bring admittedly parti land, the plff

cannot acquire any right in it by placing a takht on it as he swear. The deft, therefore, who is in possession, may not have an indefeasible right as against the nazul, has yet a better right than the plff & therefore he may set up the right of the nazul with land in suit in order to disprove that of the plff.

Besides the plff evidence goes to show that his lessee used to keep their shops just in front of the Janam Ashthan gate (vide evidence of PW1). Assuming that the plff was in possession of any portion of the plot no. 163 by leasing the same to the sellers of flowers & batashas he cannot be in possession of the land in suit thereby, because the front of the Janam Ashthan is a long way off the land in suit as is shown by the amin's plan inasmuch as it has been held that a wrong-two rights by adverse possession must be confined to the land of which he is in actual possession. The plff has not been proved to be in actual possession of the land in suit. It may be in actual possession of a portion of the plot no. 163 on portion of which is the land in suit, just in front of the Janam Ashthan gate, but the land in suit far off the front of the said gate. Hence his rights be confined to the portion of the plot no. 163 just in front of the Janam Ashthan gate & not to the land in suit. Under these circumstances I am of opinion that this appeal must fail. I therefore dismissing the appeal with costs confirm the decree of the Court below. Order 41 rule 30 C.P.C.

3002. There are some other documents which, in our view, cannot be considered as an evidence in favour of the plaintiff (Suit-3) i.e. Exhibit 1 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 15-47), being a copy of the agreement said to be executed by Panches of Nirmohi Akhara on 19.3.1949 duly registered in Sub-Registrar's office, Faizabad. This lays down about the constitution, functioning etc. of Nirmohi Akhara.

3003. Whatever is stated in the above document is something to which the defendants are not party at all and, therefore, on the question of title or possession, the above document, in our view, is not relevant.

3004. Some documents have been filed to show that the land in dispute was recorded in revenue records as Nazul land and the name of Mahant of plaintiff (Suit-3), i.e. Mahant Raghubar Das was directed to be entered showing that he was in possession of the entire property in dispute, which are:

(A) Exhibit 11 (Suit-3) (Register Vol. 9, page 89) is a copy of the Nazul department's certificate dated 30.10.22 stating that the land belong to Nazul and the plaintiff as Mahant of Janamsthan and his predecessors have all along been in possession and he has title or possession.

(B) Exhibit 52 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 12, page 347 to 352) is a certified copy of the Khasra abadi of Mauza Ramkot, Ayodhya 1931 AD issued by Nazul Office, Faizabad in February, 1990.

On page 331, Nazul khasra map's copy has also been filed, which is part of the Exhibit 49.

3005. It is no doubt true and also admitted by the parties that the land in dispute commencing from the first settlement of 1861 AD has been mentioned as Nazul and there is no change in its status. It is also evident from Exhibit-49 (Suit-4) that in plot no. 583 and the area mentioned therein, name of Mahant Raghubar Das was directed to be mutated in place of Ram Charan Das by order dated 6th February, 1941 but this by itself, in our view, would not be conclusive evidence to show that the entire property possessed by plaintiff (Suit-3), particularly when the details of property in respect whereto the mutation was observed is also mentioned in Clause 16 which refers to the construction in outer courtyard and even outside the premises in dispute.

3006. There is an Auditor's report, i.e., Exhibit 32 (Suit-4) (Register 11 Page 177) for the period 1947-48, but that document, in our view does not help the plaintiff (Suit-3) for adjudication of the issues in question.

3007. A copy of the F.I.R. Dated 23rd December 1949 has been filed by the plaintiff which shows the placement of idols inside the inner courtyard and it goes against the plaintiff. Exhibit 51 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 12, page 337 to 338) is a copy of the FIR No. 167 dated 23rd December 1949 under Sections 147, 295, 448 I.P.C. alleging the placement of idols under the central dome of the disputed building in the night of 22/23.12.1949. The FIR was registered on the information given by Pandit Ramdev Dubey, Sub-Inspector, In-charge Police Station, Ayodhya, District Faizabad.

3009. The defendants, on the contrary, have filed certain documents, which are also of subsequent period, i.e, post 1950 to show that plaintiff could not have been in possession of the inner courtyard as they could enter the same with the permission of Receiver only.

3010. Exhibit A-12 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 16, pages 120-123) is a copy of the statement of Sri Abhiram Das dated 18.3.1978 recorded by District Judge, Faizabad and para 3 thereof reads as under:

> '3.. जन्म भूमि मन्दिर में पूजा पुजारी करता था मन्त्र और बोलता था। मन्त्र बोलने वाले का नाम लक्ष्मण दत्त शासनी पुत्र अम्बिका पांडे है जो यहॉ अदालत में खड़े हैं। वहॉ शुरू में बाबू प्रिया दत्त राम की नियुक्ति में पुजारी था विष्टिाद्यत्र शैली के मतलब है कि हम भगवान की पूजा के समय भगवान, माया और जीव तीनों की भावना की जाती है और वैदिक मन्त्र बोलते हैं। और भगवान के स्नान से लेकर सोलह प्रकार की पूजा होती है यह पूजा एक आदमी द्वारा नहीं हो सकती। अगर पुजारी को मन्त्र मालूम है तो वक्त पड़ने पर वही पूजा कर सकता है। मन्दिर के अन्दर प्रवेश करने के लिये परमीशन का अधिकार बाबू प्रिया दत्त राम को था।''

3011. After attachment, the Receiver took charge and obviously thereafter none could have entered the attached portion without permission of Receiver or the Court.

3012. Some further documents filed by the defendants,

which, in our view, not relevant, are:

(A) Exhibit A-14 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 16, pages 143-146) is a certified copy of objection dated 16.7.1982 of Sri Dharam Das filed before Additional District Magistrate (Administration/Nazul Officer) Faizabad in mutation proceeding no. 101/133/26/866. It was mentioned therein that there is a public temple in the disputed premises where the existing temple was constructed about 450 years ago at the commencement of Mughal Empire and since then, it is a subject matter of dispute between Hindus and Muslims. Rest of the part is not relevant for our purposes.

(B) Exhibit A-15 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 16, pages 150-153) is a copy of affidavit dated 16.7.1982 of Dharam Das before the Nazul Officer, Faizabad in mutation proceeding. It is almost a true copy of Exhibit A-14.

(C) Exhibit A-3 (Suit-4) (Register Vol. 16, pages 136-142) is a certified copy of FIR against Dharam Das under Section 395 I.P.C. in Case Crime No. 87 dated 17.2.1982. We, however, find no relevance of the said document with the issue in question.

3013. There are some documents, which contain some judgements etc. of criminal proceedings, which have been filed to show that in the matters related to the premises in dispute, some proceedings were initiated against Mahant of Nirmohi Akhara showing that Nirmohi Akhara was in possession of entire premises in dispute, i.e.:

preferred against the order of Shri R.B.Saxena, sentencing the appellant Bhaskar Das to one month simple imprisonment and fine of Rs.50/-. The appeal was allowed and the conviction order was set aside.

(B) Exhibit C3 ((Suit-5) (Register 24 Page 23-28) is a copy of the order dated 5th September, 1966 passed by Sri B.S.Shukla, City Magistrate, Faizabad in Case No.533 of 1966 (State Vs. Prem Das & Others) under Section 107/117 Cr.P.C. The allegation pertains to the disturbance created by the accused persons at Ram Janam Bhumi on 25th March, 1966 on account of a dispute regarding Pujariship and possession of Ram Janam Bhumi Ayodhya.

(C) Exhibit C4 (Suit 5) (Register 24, Page 29-36) is a copy of the judgment dated 22.10.1923 of Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad in Civil Appeal No.10 of 1923 (Mahant Narottam Das Vs. Ram Swaroop Das). The aforesaid appeal was filed against the judgment dated 12th December, 1922 of Sub Judge, Fyzabad dismissing the suit with costs. The appeal was also dismissed.

(D) Exhibit C7 (Register 24, Page 54-56) is a copy of the judgment dated 13th May, 1983 of K.K.Singh, IV Addl. Sessions Judge, Faizabad in Criminal Revision No.60 of 1982 (Dharam Das Vs. Sri Panch Rama Nandi Nirmohi Akhara through Ram Kewal Das & 2 others). The revision was filed against the City Magistrate, Faizabad order dated 6th March, 1982 under Section 145 Cr.P.C.

(E) Exhibit C8 (Suit-5) (Register 24, Page 57-71) is a copy of the Commissioner's report dated 13.10.1973 submitted by Sri Pareshwari Dutt Pandey, Advocate Commissioner in Original Suit No.9 of 1973 (Nirmohi Akhara Vs. Ram Lakhan Saran Das) in the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad. The Commissioner has also submitted a map which included the disputed site also.

(F) Exhibit C9 (Suit 5) (Register 24, Page 73-77) is a copy of written statement dated 29th December, 1950 submitted by Baba Abhay Ram Das in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. before the City Magistrate, Faizabad. In para 6 thereof Abhay Ram Das has said that outside the disputed premises there is some land and building which is property of Nirmohi Akahara which they are entitled to use being in possession. In para 8 it says that no muslim has entered the disputed premises since 1935 and no prayer has been offered by them.

(G) Exhibit C11 (Suit-5) (Register 24, Page 99-101) is a copy of the notice dated 22.12.1934 published by Sri J.P.Nikalsan, District Magistrate, Faizabad with respect to the fine imposed under Section 15A(2) of the Police Act and for its realization from the Hindu resident of Ayodhya.

3014. However, we do not find that the said judgements are admissible and relevant for the issue in question in view of the law laid down in Seth Ramdayal Jat Vs. Laxmi Prasad AIR 2009 SC 2463, which we have already discussed above.

3015. Another set of documents, i.e. Exhibit C1, C5, C6, C10, brief details whereof is as under, are also not much relevant to the point in issue:

(A) Exhibit C1 (Suit-5) (Register 24 Page 11) is a photocopy of the charge certificate dated 5th January 1950 by Priya Dutt Ram Receiver.

(B) Exhibit C5 (Suit 5) (Register 24, Page 37-45) is a

copy of the plaint in suit no.426 of 1989 (Mahant Ram Gopal Das & others Vs. Ashok Singhal & Others) filed in Court of Civil Judge Fyzabad. The above suit was decided on 04.12.1991.

(C) Exhibit C6 (Suit 5) (Register 24, Page 47-51) is a copy of a Commissioner's report dated 08.11.1989 in O.S. No.426 of 1989 (Mahant Gopaldas & Others Vs. Vishwa Hindu Parishad & Others) submitted by Sri Uma Kant Malviya, Court Amin, Civil Court, Faizabad.

(D) Exhibit C10 (Suit-5) (Register 24, Page 81-92) claims to be a copy of the statement of expenditure from December, 1985 to April, 1987 incurred by Sri Ram Janmabhumi Nyas and also contains some details of the said trust.

3016. These documents also, in our view, do not lend any help to the plaintiff (Suit-3). Even otherwise fail to serve any purpose for adjudication of the issue in question with respect to possession either way.

3017. On behalf of defendants, it was pointed out that other Hindu parties have also supported their claim that the idol under the central dome inside the inner courtyard was placed in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949, meaning thereby till then there could not have been any occasion of possession for Nirmohi Akhara, hence, the question of possession or loss of possession of the premises within the inner courtyard for the last 12 years does not arise at all. In this regard, the argument of Sri P.N. Mishra in respect to Register 3 was pointed out, which was as under:

(A) Record of proceedings of Suit-2 (contained in Register 3) which has already been dismissed as withdrawn was referred by Sri Mishra. He sought to rely on the written statement filed therein on behalf of the defendant No.1 to 5 i.e. Zahoor Ahmad, Haji Feku, Haji Mohd. Faiq, Mohd. Shami and Mohd. Achhan Miya dated 18th January, 1951 (Page 41-46 Register Vol. 3) to show that it has consistently been the case of the Muslim parties that Namaz was offered in the disputed building till 16th December, 1949 and he strongly relied on para 22 thereof which read as under:

> ''दफा 22. यह कि मुद्दाअलेहुम मुजीब को इल्म नहीं है कि जायदाद मुतदाविया यानी मस्जिद बाबरी के अन्दर कोई मूर्ति है. 16 दिसम्बर सन् 1949 ई0 तक उसमें नमाज हुई. उस वक्त तक उस मे कोई मूर्ति न थी लेकिन अगर कोई मूर्ति मस्जिद के अन्दर किसी शख्स ने चोरी व बदनियती से बाद तारीख मजकूर रख दिया है. तो उससे मस्जिद की सरीही बेहुरमती व नापाकी मुतसव्विर है. और फेल मजकूर कानूनन मुजरिमाना है. और अगर मुद्दई या कोई दूसरा शख्स मस्जिद मजकूर में मूर्ति पूजने या दर्शन करने के ग़रज से मस्जिद के अन्दर दाखिल होना चाहता है तो वह जुर्म का मुर्तकिब है. चुनाचे ऐसी हालत मे अदालत दीवानी दादरसी मतलूबा देने से कासिर है. बहर हाल उससे मुद्दई या किसी गैर मुस्लिम को मस्जिद मजकूर मे कोई हक नहीं पैदा हो सकता।''
>
> "Section 22. The respondent Mujib has no knowledge of any idol in this controversial building that is Babri Masjid. Upto December 16, 1949 Namaj was offered in it upto that time there was no Murti. But after that if any person with wrong intentions, has placed one, it would be considered as desecration and would be treated as a criminal act and if the petitioner or any other person enters the Masjid with the intention of doing Puja of the idol or for Darshan, it would be considered as a criminal act. Therefore in such circumstances the civil court cannot provide any relief. However as a result of this the petitioner or any non Muslims would have no right in the Masjid." (E.T.C.)

(B) He (Sri Mishra) submitted that for the first time the stand was changed when suit 4 was filed and that changed stand continued thereafter, as is also evident from the written statement filed on 11.5.1989 (Page 125-141 Register 3) on behalf of U.P.Sunni Central Wakf Board in Suit 2 wherein in para 22 he tried to explain his earlier stand to bring in Suit 4 within the period of limitation. Para 22 reads as under:

"That the muslims have remained regularly offering prayers in the mosque in question upto 22.12.1949 and Friday prayers were also offered upto 16.12.1949 and as such the idols kept in the mosque in a stealthy and mischievous manner in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949 will not confer any right or title upon the plaintiff or upon anyone else to perform Pooja in the said mosque."

3018. Referring to the above submissions, it is said that even if it is found that Namaz was last offered in the inner courtyard on 16th December, 1949, it rule out any possibility of claim of possession of the plaintiff (suit-3). Learned counsel for the parties submitted that the record of Suit-2 has not been detached since the evidence was filed collectively after clubbing all the suits.

3019. Register 4 contains Exhibit- 1 to 15 (Suit-2). The said documents have been retained in view of the order passed by this Court while dismissing Suit 2 as withdrawn since all the suits were proceeding collectively and the evidence were allowed to be adduced and relied on interchangeably. It contains exhibits 1 to 15 filed by plaintiffs (suit 2). However, none of the party has placed reliance on any of the said documents during the course of the argument, therefore, we refrain from referring any of the above document of Register 4.

3020. Register 5 contains 34 exhibits filed by plaintiffs (Suit 1). Exhibits 1 to 14 are copies of the affidavits/ statements filed by certain Muslims before the Magistrate in proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. wherein they have admitted that since 1935 Muslims have not offered any Namaz in the disputed building and it is continuously in possession of the Hindus and also they have no objection in case the disputed building is handed over to Hindus. The aforesaid documents to the extent to prove the fact that the same were filed before the Magistrate and constitute part of the record of 145 Cr.P.C. proceeding before the City Magistrate is not disputed but to believe the contents thereof, in our view, it was necessary to produce the authors of the documents and to give an opportunity of cross-examination to the other parties against whose interest the documents contain certain averments. None of the author of the said documents have produced and they are also not party to the proceedings individually. We have no benefit of testifying the correctness of the contents of the said documents. In the absence of any one available to prove the contents of the said documents, in our view, the same cannot be relied and therefore, nothing turn out from the aforesaid documents either in favour or against any of the parties.

3021. The question as to whether the idols were kept in the disputed structure under the central dome on 22nd/23rd

December, 1949 or were already there, has been considered and decided above, and, therefore, in view of those findings, it cannot be said that the plaintiff (Suit-3) possessed the premises in dispute in the capacity as Shebait or manager or owner twelve years prior to the date of accrual of cause of action.

3022. Some of the Hindu parties including plaintiffs (Suit-5) have taken a categorical stand that the idols were placed inside the building under central dome in the inner courtyard in the night of 22/23 December, 1949. OPW 1, witness produced by the plaintiffs (Suit-5) though has made statement to much extent in favour of the plaintiff (Suit-3) in respect to various other aspects, but so far as the inner courtyard is concerned, about the idols, he has also joined stand with the plaintiffs (Suit-5). This issue we have already decided and, therefore, need not to discuss further hereat. But what at this stage we say is that issue 3 (Suit-3) was the responsibility of the plaintiffs (Suit-3) to prove, which they have miserably failed.

3023. Whatever the evidence has been produced by the plaintiffs (Suit-3), none has said anything about the adverse possession of the plaintiff and that too in regard to premises in inner courtyard. Twenty witnesses have been produced but even a single one has not uttered a word about adverse possession of plaintiffs on the suit property. Adverse possession is a question of fact. It has to be specifically pleaded and proved. In the absence of proper pleading, evidence, oral or documentary, the claim of title based on adverse possession neither can be entertained nor can be accepted.

3024. Besides, when the plaintiffs have stated that they are the owner of the property in dispute and the disputed structure which according to the plaintiffs (Suit-3) was a temple, owned by them, the question of entertaining the plea of adverse possession does not arise at all. In any case, the assertion of the plaintiff that the defendants have never entered the premises in dispute since 1934 pre supposes that prior to 1934 their entry in the disputed premises is admitted. With regard to the period subsequent to 1934, we find that the evidence placed by the plaintiff (Suit-3) did not prove that the defendant-Muslim parties could never enter the premises in dispute till its attachment by the Magistrate under Section 145 Cr.P.C. This aspect we have already considered in detail while discussing Issue No. 12 (Suit-4) and Issue No. 3 (a) (Suit-5) and have recorded a finding that in all probabilities Namaz in the building in dispute i.e. inner courtyard was offered on 16th December, 1949. In view of the above, we have no hesitation in deciding Issue No. 3 (Suit-3) in negative i.e. against the plaintiff.

3025. Issue No. 8 (Suit-3) is virtually a reversal of the previous one. It is based on the plea of the defendant muslim parties that the property in dispute is in their possession since its very inception and, therefore, if the plaintiffs have any right whatsoever, it has extinguished due to expiry of more than 400 years since the date when the Babari mosque was constructed i.e. 1528 AD.

3026. At the outset we would like to mention that question of extinction of right of plaintiff would arise only if they have such right. On the one hand the plaintiffs have miserably failed to prove any title or ownership in respect to the property in dispute and secondly they themselves have pleaded acquisition of title by adverse possession on account whereof issue no. 3 (Suit-3) has been framed but having failed therein, in our view, the question of conferring a right upon the defendants, as a result of extinction of such illusory right of the plaintiff, would not arise. This issue in effect is in reference to Section 27 of LA 1908 which is not attracted.

3027. Besides others, two documents are heavily relied by the defendant-Muslim parties on this issue i.e. the judgments in Suit-1885 as well as dated 30.3.1946 of Civil Judge, Faizabad in Regular Suit No. 29 of 1945, Shia Central Board of Wakf Vs. Sunni Central Board of Wakf (Exhibit A-42, Suit-1) (Register 8, Pages 431-432). It is contended that Mahant Raghubar Das in Suit-1885 had not disputed that on the west side of Chabutara, there was a Mosque and the District Judge, Faizabad on his spot inspection found that the said mosque was constructed more than 300 years ago by Babar, the said observation is nothing but his finding which had not been disturbed in the Second Appeal by the Judicial Commissioner and, hence, the claim of the defendant-Muslims parties on the said Mosque since 1528 is duly proved. The plaintiffs cannot wriggle of the said judgment and findings recorded therein, to stress upon their claim otherwise. Referring to the judgment dated 30.3.1946 it is contended that there also the Civil Judge has recorded a finding that the Mosque was constructed by Babar and not by Mir Baki in 1528 and that being a finding recorded in a judgment, which is judgment in rem, the issue stands closed for all purposes. The defendants' claim on the Mosque since 1528, therefore, is duly proved.

3028. The effect of the judgment in Suit-1885 we have already discussed in detail while considering the issues relating to res judicata, estoppel etc. Without going in details and repeating all the things again, suffice is to mention that Mahant Raghubar Das sought permission to make a temple on Ram

Chabutara, which existed in the outer courtyard measuring 21"X17" and for the said permission filed the aforesaid Suit. There was no dispute about the nature of any structure in the vicinity and other connected issues as to who constructed it, when it was constructed etc. Whatever has been observed by the District Judge in his judgment, cannot be said to be a finding on an issue since there was no such issue at all and, hence, the same would not help the defendant-Muslim parties in the present suits.

3029. Various authorities on the question of res judicata we have already referred to above, but since for the purpose of the issue in question again those very documents have been relied, we propose to give more authorities on the subject which make the things further clear as to how such observation cannot be treated to be an adjudication of an issue creating a right in the party.

3030. In Prosunno Kumari Debya Vs. Golab Chand (supra), the Judicial Committee said that to attract the principle of res judicata one has to see that necessary and proper issues were raised, tried and decided in suit and the decree is untainted by fraud or collusion.

3031. In Profulla Chandra Vs. Prabartak Trust AIR 1954 Cal. 8, in para 15, 16, 18, 19 and 20, the Court observed:

> "Res judicata or as it is also sometimes called Res Adjudicata literally means "the thing adjudged", and the doctrine known by that name rests on the principle that a matter, once adjudged cannot be reopend. In its practical application the doctrine or the rule of res judicata bars the trial of an issue, previously decided. In essence, therefore, the rule postulates a previous decision or adjudication & a

recurrence of the matter of issue, there or then adjudiced or decided. It is the decision or adjudication which operates as res judicata ..... In the application, therefore, of the rule as res judicata, what matters is the decision and not the reasoning of the Court and one requirement of the rule is the identity of the issue or eadem questio. ..... As pointed out by Bankes L. J. in the case of --'Jones v. Lewis (1919) 1 KB 328 (A), it is the "decision and not the reason of the decision"- which operates as res judicata. This is clearly supported by the pronouncement of the Judicial Committee in the case of -'Broken Hill Proprietary Co. Ltd. v. Municipal Council of Broken Hill, (1926) AC 94 (B) .....the plea of res judicata succeeded because in each of them the 'res' in the later proceeding had already been adjudged in the earlier and the issue in either was eadem questio. .... what mattered was the decision and not the reasoning of the Court on the former occasion. .... The principle enunciated by Bankes L. J. as set out above, and affirmed or recognised in the other cases cited, as shown in the preceding paragraph, was accepted by the Full Bench of this Court in -- 'Santosh Kumar v. Nripendra Kumar', AIR 1949 Cal 430 (FB) (F) and also by our earlier Full Bench in the well-known and oft-quoted case of - 'Tarini Charan v. Kedar Nath AIR 1928 Cal 777 (FB) (G) where Rankin, C. J. observed at pages 782 of the Report that > "what is conclusive between the parties is the decision of the Court and that reasoning of the Court is not necessarily the same thing as its decision. The object of the doctrine of res judicata is not to fasten upon parties special principles of law as applicable

to them inter se, but to ascertain their rights and the facts upon which those rights directly and substantially depend, and to prevent this ascertainment from becoming nugatory by precluding the parties from reopening or recontesting that which has been finally decided.

The first part of this observation clearly restates the above principle and in the lines that follow, read in the light of the later Full Bench case, above cited, there appears to be nothing which detracts from the correctness or efficacy of the said principle or whittles down its scope. That this is so becomes abundantly clear when we turn to the submission which was accepted by the Full Bench in this latter case of AIR 1949 Cal 430 (FB) (F)'. That submission appears at page 431 of the Report and is in these terms:

"What is res judicata is the point directly decided or the order passed & not the reason thereof."

The language shows a full and complete acceptance of the principle, quoted above, from (1919) 1 KB 328 (A) and the Full Bench must be taken to have put upon it the seal of its own authority. .... The position is thus well established that I what is res judicata is the decision and not the reason thereof."

3032. This decision very succinctly elaborate as to when the principle of res judicata would be attracted and, in our view, apply with full force in this case.

3033. Now coming to the judgment dated 30.3.1946, we propose to consider it in a bit detail though we are satisfied that even this judgment cannot be relied for the purpose for which defendant-Muslim parties have referred the same. It has been

relied on by the defendants-Muslim parties to show that the building in dispute has already been held to be a Sunni mosque and that judgment of the Civil Judge, Faizabad has attained finality. Our attention was drawn to the following finding of the Civil Judge, namely, "My conclusion therefore is that the mosque in suit was founded by Babar Shah and not by Abdul Baqi. I answer the issue accordingly." Having gone through the above judgment, firstly we find that it was an inter se dispute between Shia Central Board of Waqf and Sunni Central Board of Waqf. In the present case the judgment is relevant only to show that such a suit was filed and decided by the concerned Court as also its result. The findings are recorded on various issues inter parties, i.e. those who were before the Civil Judge Faizabad in the above case are binding but the learned counsel for the defendants Muslim parties could not show as to how the same would bind the plaintiffs Suit-1 or other Hindu parties in rest of the suits since none was impleaded in the aforesaid suit. Besides a careful reading of the said judgment shows the following facts:

1. It was an admitted case by both the parties that the mosque in dispute known as Babri mosque was constructed during the reign of Babar four centuries ago.

2. The said mosque was included in the list of Sunni Waqfs prepared by Chief Commissioner of Waqfs under section of U.P. Act 13 of 1936 i.e. U.P. Muslim Waqf Act and notified on 26th February 1944. The claim of Shia Waqf Board was that the said mosque is a Shia Waqf together with Idgah attached to it at Jalpa Nala, Ajodhia and village Bahranpur Pargana Haveli and 20 Bighas additional land known as Sholapur grove in Mohal

Bahoranpur Tahsil and District Faizabad.

3. Five issues were framed therein and for our purposes issues no. 1, 2 and 3 are relevant which are reproduced as under:

> "1(a) Was the mosque in suit built by Abdul Baqi as alleged by the plff ? If so, was he a Shia as alleged ?
> or
>
> (b) Whether the mosque was constructed by Babar Shah as alleged by deft ?
> 2. Is the suit within time ?
> 3. Has the mosque in suit being used by the members of the Sunni sect as alleged by the deft for over 12 years ? If so, its effect ?"

4. In respect of issue no. 1 the Court has taken note of pedigree of Abdul Baqi which was pleaded by the defendant Sunni Waqf Board and says as under:

www.vadapativada.com

S. Hizabi Ali
Hussain Ali
Sukoowat Bibi=Rajab Ali
/
Ali Naqi — M. Afzal — M. Asghar
T.M. Razi
Kalab Husain — M. Zaki

5. In March 1945 when the suit was filed Kalab Husain came to be represent Mutwalli and a year ago, M. Zaki was Mutwalli.

6. Referring to Babur Digest part II, page 1 (2nd

www.vadapativada.com

Edition), the Civil Judge has quoted an Arabian adage that "All people follow the religion of their kings". He further noted:

> "It is said that the saying was exemplified to the fullest extent in Persia where whole of the people have become Shias since the occasion of the Safee (Safavi) dynasty in AD 1499. The process of assimilation was less rapid in India, where though several of Nawabs or local Governors were Shias (Shias.....). This was eminently the case in Oude (Oudh), the Nawabs of which were predictory Viziers (Wazirs) of the empire."

7. The mosque in suit was admittedly built during the time of Babar who ruled from 1526-1530 and it is clear from the passage quoted above that the Persians have become Shias before that period.

8. The Civil Judge besides oral evidence considered the following two documentary evidence:

(i) Documents pertaining to grant of cash Nankar; and

(ii) Documents relating to grant received from the Government.

9. A gazetteer making reference of disputed mosque at page 173 and 174 was considered by the Civil Judge and in regard to the disputed mosque the Civil Judge observed as under:

> "It shows that according to local affirmations Babar came to Ajodhia in 1528

www.vadaprativada.com

AD and halted there for a week during which he destroyed the Janamasthan temple and on its site built a mosque using largely the materials of the old structure. The author then goes on to remark that no record of the visit is to be found in Musalman historians but it must have occurred about the time of Babar's expedition to Bihar. The first Settlement Report also gives the same history of this mosque and adds that according to Leyden's Memoirs of Babar, the Emperor encamped about 5 or 6 miles from Ajodhia and stayed for a week settling the surrounding country through it was remarkable that his doings at Ajodhia were wanting in his own memoirs (Baburnama)."

www.vadaprativada.com

10. Serious arguments advanced raised against the authenticity and admissibility of the facts stated in the gazetteer aforesaid in respect whereof the Civil Judge held as under:

"The history of the mosque in the Gazetteer & the Settlement Report was also sought to be impugned on the ground that Babar's visit to Ajodhia was not mentioned in any historical work & the Settlement Officer was not required to make any such investigation. I am unable to accept these contentions also as the works are works of reference and admissible u/s 57 of the Evidence Act. Moreover, in dealing with the matters like the present when no direct evidence is available, such works based on investigations on the spot and local tradition assume great importance & unless disproved by superior evidence must be accepted as containing a correct history of the subjects mentioned therein."

11. The Civil Judge thereafter referred to two inscriptions which were also referred in gazetteer and discussed in the same as under:

"Lastly, there are the two inscriptions in the mosque which have been reproduced in my inspection notes. These are also referred to in the Gazetteer & according to the date in the inscription on the pulpit it was built in 923 hijri while according to the other it was in 935 H. corresponding with 1528 A.D. These inscriptions were the sheet-anchor of the plff's case but I am of the opinion that they are inconclusive.

The first inscription contains three couplets in Persian & when translated runs as follows;

"By the order (بفرمودہ) of Shah Babar, whose justice went up to the skies (i.e. was well known) Amir (Noble) Mir Baqi of lofty grandson built this resting place for angels in 923 hijri".

The second inscription is more elaborate and contains in the usual high-flown language an eulogy of Babar and describes Mir Baqi of Sophahian as his admirer & the builder of the mosque. This inscription no doubt supports the plffs' case, because it does not say that it was by the order of Babar Shah & it only refers to the reign of Babar but 1st couplet in the 1st inscription near the pulpit clearly supports the theory that Babar had ordered the building of the mosque as stated in the Gazetteer & the settlement report."

3034. The above judgment shows that on the question that the building in dispute was constructed in 1528 there was no dispute between the parties since it was a lis inter se between two Wakfs Board. The nature of building that it was a Mosque was also not in dispute. The only question was whether it is a Shia Wakf or a Sunni Wakf. The entire matter had proceeded in this context. We have no hesitation to say that this judgment is neither binding upon the plaintiffs before us nor can be relied on to contend that a particular finding recorded therein is final and that it should be treated to be a judgment in rem.

3035. One more aspect. The judgment shows that in the year 1928, Syed Abdul Baki, claimed to be the first Mutwalli appointed by Babar itself, and in genealogy Mohammad Zaki was seventh in generation. It is apparently unbelievable that commencing from 1528 till 1945, i.e. more than 400 years, there could be only seven generations in the entire genealogy. We have no hesitation in not accepting the same.

3036. Before us, the case set up and argued by the defendants is that Babar never entered Ayodhya and, hence, there did not arise any occasion for him either to get the alleged temple demolished or direct for construction of a Mosque, but it was Mir Baki who had been there and got it constructed. In the judgment relied on by the defendants, an issue was raised, whether Mosque was built by Abdul Baki or Babar. A finding was recorded that it was constructed by Babar as pleaded by Sunni Board. Evidently, the case set up before this Court is wholly different and inconsistent to what was pleaded and

3037. Further, there is nothing on record to show that name of the Mir Baki was Syed Abdul Baki or that Syed Abdul Baki was the same person as Mir Baki. In "Babarnama" no person is named as Mir Baki or Syed Abdul Baki. No document showing that there existed person in the name of Mir Baki or Abdul Baki in 1528 has been placed before us. When Babar himself never entered Ayodhya, the question of appointment by him of a Mutwalli would not have arisen. Even otherwise, on the question as to who constructed the disputed structure and when, we have already recorded a finding that the plaintiffs (Suit-4) or the Muslim parties have failed to prove that the disputed structure was constructed in 1528 either by Babar or any of his agent on his command.

3038. Moreover, a judgment by itself is not a piece of evidence except to the extent it is provided under Section 41 to 43 of the Evidence Act.

3039. In the context of Section 43 of Evidence Act, it is no doubt true that a judgment is admissible provided it is a relevant fact in issue as held in Seth Ramdayal Jat Vs. Laxmi Prasad (Supra). In a civil case, the judgment of a Criminal Court may be relevant where the fact in issue is about the existence of such a judgment or not, but not more than that. The evidence discussed in the judgment of a Criminal Court or the fact that a person has confessed his guilt in his statement is not admissible in evidence in a civil suit. This is what was held in Perumal Vs. Devarajan & others AIR 1974 Mad. 14 and was quoted with approval in Seth Ramdayal Jat (supra). The Apex Court also approved a Patna High Court decision in Lalmani Devi & others Vs. Jagdish Tiwary & others AIR 2005 Pat. 51. The

Court said that acquittal or conviction in a criminal case has no evidentiary value in a subsequent civil litigation except for the limited purposes of showing that there was a trial resulting in acquittal or conviction, as the case may be. The findings of the Criminal Court are inadmissible. The Apex Court also followed its earlier decision in Anil Behari Ghosh Vs. Smt. Latika Bala Dassi & others AIR 1955 SC 566 taking the same view. There appears to be a somewhat different authority in Shanti Kumar panda (supra) where an observation was made that an order passed by the Executive Magistrate in proceedings under Section 145/146 Cr.P.C. is an order by a Criminal Court based on a summary inquiry. The order is entitled to respect and weight before the competent Court at the interlocutory stage. In Ramdayal Jat (supra), the Apex Court observed that this observation in Shanti Kumar Panda (supra) is per incurrium being in conflict of a three-Judges decision in K.G. Premshanker Vs. Inspector of Police & another JT 2002 (8) SCC 87. The argument of possibility of conflict in decisions was rejected in Seth Ramdayal Jat (supra) stating:

> "27. In regard to the possibility of conflict in decisions, it was held that the law envisages such an eventuality when it expressly refrains from making the decision of one Court binding on the other, or even relevant, except for certain limited purposes, such as sentence or damages. It was held that the only relevant consideration was the likelihood of embarrassment."

3040. The Court further held that the Civil Court must decide a suit on its own keeping in view the evidence which have been brought on record before it and not in the light of the evidence brought on record in the criminal proceedings. The

Court also observed that an earlier decision in M/s Karam Chand Ganga Prasad & another Vs. Union of India & others 1970 (3) SCC 694 holding that the decision of the Civil Court will be binding on the Criminal Courts but the converse is not true was overruled in K.G. Premshanker (supra) and this fact has been noticed also in Syed Askari Hadi Ali Augustine Imam & another Vs. State (Delhi Administration) & another JT 2009 (4) SC 522.

3041. Then it considered the question of admissibility of an admission made by a party in a previous civil proceeding. It was held that admission in the civil suit is admissible. With respect to an admission made in a pleading, the Court relied on Gautam Sarup Vs. Leela Jetly (supra) where it was held that an admission made in a pleading is not to be treated in the same manner as an admission in a document. An admission made by a party to the lis is admissible against him proprio vigore. The same thing was reiterated in Ranganayakamma & another Vs. K.S. Prakash JT 2008 (8) SC 510.

3042. Here the admission in Suit 29/1945 was that of Sunni Board that the disputed structure was constructed by Babar and therefore this admission may operate against it but the findings of civil court shall not bind the plaintiffs.

3043. Yet another angle, the plaintiffs set up the case of being owner of the property in dispute, i.e., the land and building both having constructed the building also. However, no evidence whatsoever has been put forth to support the ownership or title over the property in dispute. In the entire plaint there is no averment as to how the plaintiff claim to own the property in dispute. In para 2 they have asserted that Janamsthan, i.e., Janambhumi is the birthplace of Lord Rama

situate in Ayodhya and always belong to the plaintiff no.1. How and in what manner it belong to plaintiff no. 1 is not stated. Then in para 3 of the plaint it is said that a temple building of Janambhumi existed on the disputed land and the said temple ever since is in possession of the plaintiff no. 1 (para 4). But here also it is not said as to how and when they came into possession of the property in dispute. In the statement under Order X Rule 2 CPC the plaintiffs have said that the temple was made by the plaintiff and the land which is the birthplace of Lord Rama is owned by the plaintiff. But in support of the above two statements no evidence has been placed at all. Sri Verma sought to rely on a registered deed of the bye-laws of Nirmohi Akhara wherein Janamsthan is also mentioned amongst the properties of Nirmohi Akhara and submits that this document clearly shows that the place in dispute is owned by the plaintiffs (Suit-1). We fail to understand as to how a document sought to be prepared by plaintiff himself can create a right or title on a property and in any case can be used as an evidence against a third party. Merely because they got it registered and have placed on record a certified copy thereof, that does not mean that the contents thereof and their truth stand proved. The only effect of filing a certified copy of a document after obtaining from the authority in whose possession legally it ought to be is that a formal proof stands dispensed with but that does not mean that the correctness of the contents thereof also will stand proved unless it is proved by producing cogent evidence. When a certified copy is filed or when an old document of thirty years is produced from proper custody, what shall be deemed to stand proved has been considered time and again.

3044. In V. Seethaya & Ors. Vs. P. Subramanya Somayajulu & Anr. A.I.R. 1929 Privy Council 115, it was held:

> "Their Lordships agree with the learned Chief Justice and his coleagues in the High Court that the document was admissible as evidence of the terms of the lost original. The document is over 30 years old and is produced from proper custody*. By S. 90, Evidence Act of 1872, the Court may* therefore presume the signatures authenticating the copy to be genuine."

3045. In the context of Sections 65 and 90 of the Evidence Act, a Single Judge of Calcutta High Court in Khetter Chunder Mookerjee Vs. Khetter Paul Sreeterutno 1880 ILR 5 (Calcutta) 886 observed that Section 90 provides where any document, purporting or proved to be thirty years old is produced from any custody which the Court in the particular case considers proper, the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of such document, which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person, is in that person's handwriting; and, in the case of a document executed or attested, that it was duly executed and attested by the persons by whom it purports to be executed and attested. The Court said that the execution of a document produced from proper custody, and more than thirty years old, need not be proved, if the document is produced.

3046. In Land Acquisition Officer and Mandal Revenue Officer Vs. V. Narasaiah (2001) 3 SCC 530 it was held that the certified copy of a registered sale deed would be admissible in evidence. The above decision was approved by the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in Cement Corpn. Of India Ltd. Vs.

Purya (2004) 8 SCC 270.

3047. In Sarabjit Rick Singh Vs. Union of India (2008) 2 SCC 417 the Court in para 39 said :

> "It may be true that a document does not prove itself. Its contents, unless admitted, should be proved in terms of the provisions of the Evidence Act, unless the contents of the documents are said to be admissible by reason of a provision of a statute, as for example, Section 90 of the Evidence Act. But what misses the aforementioned submission/contention is that whereas the contents of the document is to be proved for the purpose of trial but not for the purpose of arriving at an opinion in regard to existence of a prima facie case in an enquiry."

3048. Sri Verma, relying on the work of Sri A. Ghosh in the "Law of Endowment (Hindu & Mahomedan)" by A. Ghosh, Second Edn. published by Eastern Law House, Calcutta (page 148-149) submitted that even hearsay statements are admissible in suit for recovery of possession filed by Shebait who is wrongly ousted and reads as under:

> "In a suit to recover property claimed by the plaintiffs as shebaits lately in possession and wrongfully ousted therefrom, it was held that the statements made by the ancestors of plaintiffs and defendants were receivable as evidence. It is enough to say that possibly, possession and user in the apparent capacity of shebaits might, if unrebutted by any other evidence at all, be sufficient as evidence of title (so far as it goes) to make out a prima facie case in favour of the plaintiffs. In Srish Chandra v. Rakhalananda 41 C.W.N. 1103 Guha and Mitter, JJ. discussing the question whether hearsay statements in regard to instalation and sheba of a deity are admissible or not, held that "the evidence given on the side of the plaintiffs, so far as it consisted of the statements by the plaintiffs in their evidence given in Court in support of the position that the deities Radha Gobinda and Lakshmi Narain Jiu were worshipped by them and maintained by the Kashimbazar Estate from generation to generation, that the plaintiffs' family had been doing the worship at the cost of the said Estate; that one of the plaintiffs, 65 years of age, heard about the origin of vritti from his father and the tradition descended from father to son, and the worship of the deities continued on the expenses paid, Rs. 4000 as vritti or annual grant, by the Kashimbazar Estate: that the vritti was received from the last five generations and the history of its origin came down as tradition in the family from father to son, as deposed by another plaintiff aged 63 years, was subjected to the comment that it was altogether inadmissible inasmuch as it was hearsay evidence. It was also contended on the 'authority' of the decisions in Lekraj Kuer v. Baboo Mahpal Singh 7 I.A. 63 : 5 C. 744 that regard being had to the provisions of Sec. 2 of the Indian Evidence Act, which has repealed all rules of evidence, not contained in any of the statutes or regulations, it was for the plaintiffs to make out that the evidence given by them was admissible under some provisions of the Indian Evidence Act. It is to be noticed in this connection that Sec. 2 (1) of the Indian Evidence Act repeals the whole of the English Common Law on Evidence so far as it was in force in British India before the passing of the Indian Evidence Act, and that provisions of the law, in effect, prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself. It must be recognised, however, that the principle of exclusion adopted by the Indian Evidence Act, should not be applied so as to exclude matters which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth. Applying this principle to the case before us, the evidence of tradition in the family of the plaintiffs, can not be characterised and placed in the category of mere hearsay evidence inadmissible under the law .... The evidence coming from the plaintiffs' side, consisted of a tradition handed from time immemorial; and the evidence given by some of the plaintiffs was admissible as statement of opinion as to a family tradition, which was founded upon information derived from deceased persons. The relaxation of the rule as to reception of hearsay evidence must be held to be permissible where such a course tends to the due investigation of truth, and the attainment of justice."

3049. In a title suit, complete evidence showing ownership has to be placed on record. In Karnataka Board of Wakf Vs. Government of India & others (2004) 10 SCC 779, the Apex Court said that in a title suit, concrete evidence showing ownership must be placed on record. In para 8, the Court said:

"The contention of appellants that one Arabian saint Mahabari Khandayat came to India and built the Mosque and his lineal descendents possessed the property, cannot be accepted if it is not substantiated by evidence and records. As far as a title suit of civil nature is concerned, there is no room for historical facts and claims*. Reliance on borderline historical facts will lead to erroneous conclusions.* The question for resolution herein is the

factum of ownership, possession and title over the suit property. Only admissible evidence and records could be of assistance to prove this."

3051. The defendants muslim parties have set up a claim that the building in dispute got constructed by Babar through his Commander Mir Baqi in 1528 AD and was given as public waqf to muslims resulting in a right vested in muslims in general. It is also said that the muslims have continued to keep possession in the shape of waqf over the Babari mosque from 1528 AD up to the present. It is further said that in case it is found that any temple existed on the site of the disputed structure, in that case also since the possession of the defendant muslim parties over the property in dispute continued for the last 400 years which is in the knowledge of the plaintiff to the suit or other Hindus and, therefore, they have lost any right over the property in dispute. It is not the case of the defendants that the Hindus in general or the plaintiffs are the owner of the property in question.

3052. In order to decide issue 8 (Suit-3), whether the rights of plaintiff have extinguished for want of possession over 12 years prior to the suit it has to be seen as to in which capacity the plaintiffs are claiming possession, what they have proved and only then the question of extinction will arise. A right extinguished, if somebody is deprived of possession of a property for more than 12 years under Section 28 of the LA 1963 and Section 27 of LA 1908 which are pari materia. The question of extinction of right would arise if somebody has right over the property and that too in the capacity as owner. If one is not owner of the property in question the occasion of loss of right or extinction of such right does not arise. In the case in hand since the plaintiffs have completely failed to show that they have right as owner over the property in dispute, or a title vested in the plaintiffs regarding the property in question, the occasion of loss of such right or extinction of such right does not arise at all. It is also not the case where the defendants have admitted title or ownership of the plaintiffs and hence they have no occasion to lead any evidence to prove such title. Had it been so, something could have been said and there could have been an occasion for this Court to consider whether the plaintiffs had the possession in the property in dispute for preceding 12 years prior to the date of filing of the suit or not.

3053. Mohammad Shah Vs. Fasihuddin Ansari & others AIR 1956 SC 713 is the case where the plaintiffs admit that the defendant is in possession of certain property but they (plaintiffs) assert that the possession of the defendant is on behalf of Sunni Mohammad community. For this reason, the plaintiffs say that a declaratory suit will lie and no need to sue for possession. It is also contented that no question of limitation or adverse possession can arise because firstly the possession is and always has been that of the community through the defendant and secondly because the defendant is a trustee under a trust for a specific purpose and so cannot set up a title hostile to the trust. In that case neither of the side possessed any document of title. It was held that the burden lies upon the

plaintiffs. Defendant is admittedly in possession and except for the fact that he (defendant) is in possession on their (plaintiffs') behalf (a fact which the defendant denies), the plaintiffs are out of possession. Hence, the plaintiffs must prove that the defendant is in possession on their behalf. It also held that a stranger to the trust could have encroached on the trust estate and would in course of time have acquired a title by adverse possession. But a Mutwalli cannot take up such a position.

3054. Sri Verma, however, submitted that before the Magistrate, in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C., a number of evidences were filed by the Muslim parties admitting that the possession of the property in dispute is with the Hindus. Muslims have never visited since 1934 the said building and the same may be handed over to Hindus. It is contended that the said documents are admissible in evidence having been filed in statutory proceedings and that would show that the defendants' claim for adverse possession has no basis at all.

3055. We may clarify at this stage since we are referring and mentioning at many places the register number and page number in respect to the documentary evidence filed by the parties that the documents (exhibits) are running in a few thousand pages. Condition of most of the documents is also precarious being quite old. Many were already in torn conditions and it was difficult to preserve so as to be used by the Court during arguments. In the circumstances, various documents filed by the parties in these cases marked 'exhibits', for the convenience of the parties, were directed to be scanned and bound in the form of registers, which have been prepared and are 42 in numbers. We, therefore, while discussing the exhibits and other documents filed by the parties, for

3056. Register Nos.1 and 2 contain documents and papers relating to the proceedings conducted under Section 145 Cr.P.C. and have in all, 322 pages (Register 1 page 1-132 and Register 2 pages 133-322).

3057. Our attention is drawn to written statement dated 17th January, 1950 (Page 69-75 Register 1) of one Srivastava Narayan Prasad Sinha raising the question of ownership/ proprietorship of the disputed premises stating that he is representative of Raja Ram Narain, who enter into a treaty on 22nd August, 1757 and 23rd February, 1758 claiming possession including Faizabad Nazul area. He submitted that under the orders of Emperor Babur, a temple of Lord Ram Chandra Ji and Vishnu, situated at the place, was dismantled and using the material including pillars affixed there, the disputed building was constructed. He also refers to the existence of two places of worship within the enclosure of the disputed premises and continued worship by Hindus in the said two places. He gave some other facts showing how Raja Ram Narain came into picture, who own and possess the disputed premises Sri Sinha, however, neither has come up in the Civil Court to raise such a claim nor is represented before us. The version contained in his written statement filed before the Magistrate in the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. remain his ex parte version having not been proved as per the prescribed procedure in law. Therefore, we find it difficult to look into those aspects, as said by him in the aforesaid written statement.

3058. Our attention was also drawn to the affidavit filed by Sri Anisur Rahman, S/o Maulvi Vaziruddin along with his criminal transfer application No.208 of 1950 (Page 87-94 Register 1) wherein para 2 he said "...the courtyard of the mosque is separated by a wall from a small temple which is situated to its East." It also says "Hindus and muslims of Ajodhya have been peacefully and calmly carrying on their worship in the temple and prayers in the mosque respectively from times immemorial."

3059. Sri P.N. Mishra, and Sri Verma, learned counsels drew our attention to paragraphs 4 and 5 of the affidavit which reads as under:

> "4. That on the 9th of November, 1949 it was found that two tombs and about 25 graves which lay outside the compound of the Babari mosque had been levelled down and the mosque in the cemetery known as the "Qanati" mosque had been dug up and a new platform adjacent to the aforesaid mosque was constructed and an idol placed on that platform."
>
> "5. That from 22.11.1949 the Hindus of the place started their 'Jap' (worship) on that place in which a large number of Hindus were collected and for that reason the police advised the muslims not to say their prayers in the surviving Babari mosque all the 5 times while the 'Jap' continued but confine it to Fridays only. In order to avoid a communal clash the muslims acted on the advice and continued to say their prayer every Friday upto December 16, 1949. Except for the Friday prayers the mosque used to be kept locked and guarded by the Police."

3060. It is contended that though the above affidavit is a part of the transfer application filed before this Court, which has already been rejected vide judgment dated 30th May, 1950 by Hon'ble B. Bhargava as His Lordship then was, but the facts asserted therein amounts to admission on the part of the Muslims and therefore, facts contrary to what have been pleaded by them subsequently can validly be ignored. They are estopped from changing their statement. It is said that it is an admission and therefore, is binding on the Muslim parties. They cannot take a stand which has been taken by them through their representative Anisur Rahman in the above matter.

3061. They also drew our attention to certain affidavits filed by Sri Hasnu, S/o Aladin and Wali Mohammad S/o Hasnu dated 8th February, 1950 (Register 1, Page 95) stating that the disputed building was constructed by demolition of Janam Bhumi temple. Hindu and Muslim both were offering worship. After 1857, Muslims were offering Namaz on Friday inside the mosque. In the outer enclosure, Hindus were worshipping Lord Ram Chandra Ji and except of Friday they were also worshiping inside the mosque. There has been consistent agitation between Hindu and Muslim. In 1934 some part of the mosque was damaged but all Hindus were acquitted. Thereafter Muslims stopped offering Namaz and Hindus are continuously worshipping since then and till date. The deponents have no objection if the said mosque is handed over to Hindus. Copies of affidavits filed by Sri Peeru S/o Varati dated 11.02.1950 (Page 101 Register 1); Mohd. Umar S/o Wazir dated 11.02.1950 (Page 105 Register 1); Azimullah S/o Razab dated 13.02.1950 (Page 109 Register 1); Latif S/o Abdul Aziz dated 13.02.1950 (Page 113 Register 1); Mohd. Hussain S/o Wasau dated 14th February, 1950 (Page 119 Register 1); and Abdul Jalil S/o Abdul Wahid dated 14th February, 1950 (Page 121 Register 1) were also placed before us. Besides the affidavits, the aforesaid persons also filed their separate written statements before the concerned Magistrate in the proceeding initiated under Section 145 Cr.P.C., which are also part of the record i.e. Register 1. All these affidavits have similar contents.

3062. Register 2 also contain copies of affidavits worded in the similar languages, as noticed above, which have been filed by the following:

1. Jaan Mohammad S/o Husaini dated 14.02.1950 (Page 137)
2. Abdul Sattar S/o Shamsher Khan dated 16.02.1950 (Page 141)
3. Abdul Ganni S/o Allah Bux dated 16.02.1950 (Page 143)
4. Rozeed S/o Tunnu Dated 16.02.1950 (Page 147)
5. Hosaldar S/o Ghirau dated 16.02.1950 (Page 151)
6. Ramzan S/o Jumman dated 16.02.1950 (Page 153)
7. Gulley Khan S/o Nawab Ali dated 16.02.1950 (Page 157)
8. Mohd. Ismail dated 16.02.1950 (Page 161)
9. Abdul Shakur S/o Eedan dated 16.02.1950 (Page 165)
10. Abdul Razzak S/o Wazir dated 16.02.1950 (Page 171)
11. Naseebdar S/o Jahan dated 24.02.1950 (Page 177)

3063. The above affidavits in Register 2 are also accompanied with the written statement of the said persons. It is mentioned on the back of the written statement that the same were received by the Magistrate, verified by the persons claims to have filed the same and thereafter were taken on record.

3064. The admissibility of the aforesaid affidavits and the contents thereof was disputed by Sri Jilani, and other counsels who have adopted his arguments, stating that said documents were filed before the Magistrate but the averments therein, at the best, are ex parte version and those deponents have neither been examined as witnesses nor the Muslim parties had any occasion to cross examine them. Therefore, the aforesaid documents are inadmissible.

3065. On the contrary, Sri P.N.Mishra and Sri R.L.Verma, learned counsels submitted that the documents filed in statutory proceedings are admissible in evidence to the extent that the facts stated therein amounts to an admission and the same can be relied on by the other party in subsequent judicial proceedings. No authority in support of the above submission covering the issue directly cited by the learned counsels. We are, however, of the view that in the absence of the authors being available for cross-examination by the other side their ex parte version, if any, contained in the documents filed even before a statutory authority, cannot be relied on and cannot partake the nature of an admission binding on a party in the subsequent judicial proceedings.

3066. We may notice at this stage the reply dated 05.04.1950 (Page 195 Register 2) submitted by the then City Magistrate, Faizabad i.e. Sri Markandeya Singh before this Court in the criminal transfer application filed by Sri Annisur Rahman wherein para 3 he said :

> "Regarding allegations contained in para 8, I beg to say that on being satisfied from credible sources that a dispute likely to lead to a breach of the peace between Hindus & Muslims in Ayodhya over the question of rights of

proprietorship & worship in the buildings claimed variously as Babri Masjid & Janam Bhumi Mandir, I passed an order u/s 145 Cr.P.C. and attached the said building. The parties were called upon to put in written statement of their respective claims with regard to the fact of actual possession of the subject of the dispute. As a matter of fact the order u/s 145 Cr.P.C. was meant to check an imminent breach of the peace."

3067. So far as the District Magistrate is concerned, on page 199 Register Vol.2 is a letter dated 6th April, 1950 by Sri J.N.Ugra, while forwarding explanation of Sri Markandeya Singh, City Magistrate, Faizabad wherein he has said that he himself (Sri Ugra) has taken charge as District Magistrate, Faizabad on the afternoon of 14th March, 1950 and had nothing to do with the case at any stage. At the cost of repetition we may place on record hereat these two documents which were taken into consideration by this Court and thereafter the transfer application was rejected. There are two written statements filed by Sri Baba Abhayram Das dated 29th December 1950 (Page 203 Register 2) and Baba Baldev Das dated 27.09.1950/29.12.1950 (page 207 Register 2) wherein it has been said that the property in dispute for the last more than 12 years is in possession of Nirmohi Akhara and also owned by it. From 1935, no Muslim person has ever enter the disputed premises and has also not offered any prayer (Namaz) therein.

3068. On Page 211 Register 2 is a statement of Sri Sattar Mohammed S/o Barsani dated 21.04 (year is illegible) stating that the building in dispute was constructed by Babur in 1528 A.D. and was made a public wakf for the benefit of Muslims in general and since then for several hundreds years

uninterruptedly Muslims are offering Namaz therein till December, 1949.

3069. Sri Anisur Rahman also filed his separate written statement dated 08.07.1950/29.12.1950 (Page 215-219 Register 2) and with respect to the nature of the disputed property, period of construction/possession and worship etc. from para 1 to 9 it says as under:

"Section 1. That the controversial building situated in Mohalla Ram Kot Ayodhya city was built by the king of Hind Shah Babar and is a Masjid known as Babri Masjid. This Masjid was built by the said king Babar after he won Hindustan in 1528 A.D. in Ayodhya and made it a general Waqf for all the Muslims who have a right to offer prayers there.

Section 2. That after getting the Masjid constructed Shahanshah Babar, for khitabat and other expenses in respect of the Masjid sanctioned an amount as a recurring gift fund from the Royal Treasury which continued to be given during the royal regime of Moghuls. After the down fall of this royal kingdom, Nawabeen of Oudh continued the tradition and the recurring grant for the Masjid was regularly paid. Not only this Nawab Asifuddaula of Oudh, increased this amount of grant for the Masjid to Rs. 302-3annas and 6pies. This amount of recurring gift later continued in the British regime after the down fall of Oudh. During Bandobast first the British Govt. did not paid cash to the Mutawallis, instead they allotted two Mawaziat of Sholapuri and Bahoranpur adjacent to Ayodhya as moafi for the expenditure of Babari Masjid.

Section 3. That the possession of the general Muslim as well as the party number2 as Waqf Aam over the controversial building that is Babri since 1528 continues till date.

Section 4. That the party number2 and general Muslim possess the controversial premises as Masjid offer prayers and recite Namaz in it for more than 400 years, without any hindrance what soever and this fact is well in the knowledge of party number 1 and the Hindus.

Section 5. That neither the party number 1 nor the Hindus had any right over the controversial building that is Babri Masjid. They never had nor have any possession over it.

Section 6. That the controversial building that is Babri Masjid was never or is Mandir Janam Bhoomi. It has never been a Mandir of Ram Chandraji :

Section 7. That party number 2 and general Muslims offered Namaz Juma till December 16, 1949.

Section 8. That some mischievous Hindus including the party number1, On November 12, 1949 began Jaap near the controversial building that is Babri Masjid in which large number of Hindus gathered and they damaged some of the graves and outer wall of the Masjid. That the party number 2 informed the district officers and they simply posted a guard there so that this act might not be repeated again.

Section 9. That on November 22,1949 when a word was around that some unlawful elements would attack the controversial building that is Babri Masjid, the district officers were informed who increased the number of guards on the spot who began locking the Masjid after every namaz."(E.T.C.)

3070. In para 13 thereof Sri Anisur Rahman also said that Sunni Central Board of Wakf U.P. is a necessary party and that he has right to offer worship in the said building hence the idols placed therein be immediately removed and his right of worship be restored.

3071. Since all these persons have neither been examined nor cross examined before this Court, therefore, these documents can not be read in evidence. Be that as it may, what we find is a piquant situation in this case. The plaintiffs have set up a case claiming ownership of the property in dispute but have failed to discharge their burden particularly when the defendants have not admitted their title. The defendants at the first instance have set up a case based on their title and possession but, thereafter, have pleaded that in any case their possession having continued for hundred years, the title, if any, of the plaintiff stands extinguished. The plea of extinction of title will depend on a proven fact that the other person has a title, only then the question of extinction will arise. If the title has not extinguished of that person, and no one else is pleaded by the defendant as owner against whom he claims to have matured a title by prescription, the defendants' plea of adverse possession would also fail. We have already referred to various authorities showing necessary ingredients of adverse possession, how and in what manner it has to be pleaded and proved. All these legal mandatory requirements are apparently missing not only in the pleading but parties have also failed to prove their case so far as the question of adverse possession is concerned. We have considered witnesses of Muslim parties i.e. PW 1 to 9 and few others. Many of them have categorically stated that in the entrance gate of dividing wall, no lock ever put till 22nd December 1949. It is also not the case that there was some other arrangement made to check entry of the members of one community and it was confined to another community. It appears to us, that, no person was restricted from entering the premises in dispute (inner courtyard) and in fact there was no restriction at all whatsoever to any one's visit to the premises in dispute (inner courtyard) for the purpose of worship. The mere entry of Muslims in the premises in dispute in such manner, by no mean can be termed as 'possession' what to say of "exclusive possession" so as to meet the requirement of plea of adverse possession.

3072. The documents or orders under Section 145 Cr.P.C., since do not decide the matter of title, only to a limited extent can been seen. On a question as to who is entitled for possession, it was held in Dinomoni Chowdhrani Vs. Brojo Mohini Chowdharani (supra) that the Police orders referable to Criminal Procedure Act applicable in 1867 and 1876 for preventing breaches of peace are admissible in evidence on general principles as well as under Section 13 of the Evidence Act to show that such orders were made. They decide no question of title. Under Section 145 Cr.P.C., the Magistrate, if possible, is to decide which of the parties is in possession of the land in dispute and once he take such a decision, he would pass an order declaring such party entitled to retain possession until evicted in due course of law. The Judicial Committee held:

> "This necessarily makes them evidence of the following facts, all of which appear from the orders themselves, namely, who the parties to the dispute were; what the land in dispute was; and who was declared entitled to retain possession. For this purpose, and to this extent, such orders are admissible in evidence for and against every one when the fact of possession at the date of the order has to be ascertained."

3073. Even otherwise it cannot be said that the plaintiffs had "possession" of the property in dispute i.e. inner courtyard. They never entered the premises exclusively, prior to 22.12.1949, for the purpose of managing, maintaining or worshipping in the capacity of priest, Pujari or Mahant and, therefore, the question of extinction of their right even otherwise does not arise. OPW 1 a witness produced on behalf of plaintiffs (Suit-5) has stated that in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949 idols from Ram Chabutara in the outer courtyard were shifted to the building in the inner courtyard and placed under the central dome of three domed structure. He has also said that from 23rd December, 1949 and onwards Pooja etc. of the idols were observed by the Mahants and priests of Nirmohi Akhara till the property was attached under Section 145 Cr.P.C. vide order

dated 29th December, 1949 of Magistrate. On this aspect neither any evidence contradicting the said statement has been placed by the defendants muslim parties nor OPW 1 has been cross-examined on this aspect but this is not admitted by plaintiffs and hence cannot be read in their favour.

3074. However, as we have already said, the Hindus continue to visit inner courtyard for the purpose of worship. It may be said that the members or people of Nirmohi Akhara were not included in those persons, i.e., Hindus. The nature of worship has also been clarified by some of the witnesses that they used to worship the place which they believe as birthplace of Lord Rama in inner courtyard as also images of Gods and Goddesses carved on the black Kasauti stone pillars which were there in the disputed building in the inner courtyard. Therefore, entry of plaintiffs in the inner courtyard as a mere worshipper atleast till the date when the property was attached may not be doubted but the issue in question is about extinction of their rights which means the right in the capacity of the owner or title as contemplated under Section 27 of LA 1908. In this context we find that the plaintiffs have failed to prove any such right, and the question of extinction thereof does not arise.

3075. The suit having been filed in 1959, it cannot be said that in the preceding 12 years the plaintiffs never had possession over the property in dispute (inner courtyard). Neither the plaintiffs could discharge burden of proof that they own the property in dispute nor the defendants could prove by leading trustworthy evidence that the plaintiffs were the owner but remain dispossessed from the property in dispute for over 12 years and that prior or upto the date of the suit, defendants fulfilled all the requirement to clear the plea of adverse

3076. Issue 2 (Suit-4) relates to the possession of the property in dispute of the plaintiffs upto 1949. The burden to prove this issue lie upon the plaintiffs. The concept of property in Suit is different than what it was in Suits-1 and 3. Suits-1 and 3 were confined to the premises covered by the inner courtyard of the disputed site. Suit-4, however, relates to the entire premises, i.e., inner and outer courtyard both excluding a small area in the southern side. The plaintiffs, therefore, have to prove first that they were in possession of the entire property, i.e., inner and outer courtyard both upto 1949 and only then the question of their dispossession from the same in 1949 would arise.

3077. Besides, we may also mention at this stage and shall discuss it later in detail that there is no factual averment in the plaint that the plaintiffs were dispossessed at any point of time in 1949. On the contrary their case is that in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949 idols were kept in the building in dispute, i.e., the premises marked as A B C D in the map appended to the plaint which means the inner and outer courtyard both. This placement of idols resulted in obstructing the right of worship of plaintiffs, as well as defiled and desecrated the mosque. These are three different things and their ingredients are also different. However, we shall discuss it in detail later on.

3078 At this stage, we are concentrating on the question whether the plaintiffs have discharged burden of proof about their possession of property in suit as a whole, i.e., inner and outer courtyard, up to 1949.

3079. In para 5 of the plaint (Suit-4) itself the plaintiffs have averred:

> "5. That in the mosque, but outside the main building of the mosque, there was Chabutara 17' x 21' on which there was a small wooden structure in the form of a tent which is still there."

3080. Regarding this Chabutara they have read certain averments pertaining to an earlier litigation between Mahant Raghubar Das and the State in 1885 in which one Mohd. Asghar claiming himself Mutwalli of Babari Mosque also appeared as defendant no. 2. Paragraphs no. 6, 6A, 6B, 6C, 6D, 6E, 6F and 7 relate to the said litigation and various judgements passed therein. It read:

> "6. That in 1885, one Mahant Raghubar Dass alleging himself to be the Mahant of Janam Asthan instituted a suit (Original Suit No. 61/280 of 1885) against the Secretary of State for India in Council and Mohd. Asghar, Mutawalli of the Babri mosque, for permission to build a temple on the Chabutra 17' x21' mentioned in para 5 above, in the court of the learned Civil Judge, Faizabad which was dismissed, and an appeal from the said decree was also dismissed.
>
> By the learned District Judge, Faizabad (Civil Appeal No. 27 of 1885). In the sketch map filed alongwith the plaint in Suit No. 61/280 of 1885 the entire building, with the exception of the Chabutra 17' x 21' was admitted to be mosque and was shown as such*.*
>
> 6A. That the cause of action for the suit in Suit No. 61/280 of 1885 in the Court of the Civil Judge, Faizabad, arose on the refusal of the Dy. Commissioner of Faizabad on the representation of some Muslims to grant permission to Mahant Raghubar Dass, Mahant of Janam Asthan for the construction of a temple on the ground that a temple could not be permitted to be built on land adjoiing the mosque (meaning thereby the Babri Masjid).

6B. "In that suit Regular Suit No. 61/280 of 1885 of the Court of Civil Judge, Faizabad Mahant Raghubar Dass was suing on behalf of Himself, on behalf of Janam Asthan, and on behalf of the whole body of persons interested in Janam Asthan and Mohd. Asghar, Mutawalli of the Babir Masjid was made a defendant."

6C. Mohammad Asghar Defendant Mutawalli of Babir Masjid contested the suit inter-alia on the ground that the land on which the temple is sought to be built is not the property of the plaintiff or of the Asthan, that the said land lies within the Ahata of Babari Masjid and is the property of the Masjid*.*

6D. That in the suit mentioned above the matter directly and substantially in issue was:-

(i) the existence of the Babari Masjid.

(ii) the right of Hindus to construct a temple on land adjoining the Masjid.

The existence of the mosque was admitted by the plaintiff in that suit and the Suit of the plaintiff was dismissed on the further ground of public policy.

6E. If the building was not a masjid but a temple as alleged in the present suit the matter might and ought to have been pleaded by Mahant Raghubar Dass in the former suit (suit No. 61/280 of 1885 mentioned above) and shall be deemed to have been a matter directly and substantially in issue in that Suit and the plea that the building is not a Masjid but a temple cannot be raised in the present suit. For the reasons mentioned above the decision in the former suit operates as resjudicate in the present Suit.

6F. That on the admission contained in the plaint of Regular Suit No. 61/280 of 1885 mentioned in the preceding paragraphs it must be taken an established fact that the building now claimed by the Hindus as the temple of Janam Asthan was and is a mosque and not a temple.

7. That the suit mentioned above was a sensational case, in which the entire Hindu public and more specially all the Mahants of Ajodhiya and other respectable Hindus of Ajodhiya and Faizabad were deeply interested."

3081. The sketch map filed alongwith the plaint in Suit-1885 has been relied upon by plaintiffs as is evident from para 6 of the plaint stating that the said Chabutara was shown therein in the mosque premises. In para 6 referring to the order of the Deputy Commissioner, the plaintiffs said, "a temple could not be permitted to be built on land adjoining the mosque (meaning thereby Babari masjid)." It shows that the plaintiffs also believed that the actual building structure only constitute mosque and rest of the area between the outer wall and the building was land adjoining the mosque and not the mosque itself or part of the mosque itself. The written statement filed by Mohd. Asghar in 1885 suit has been referred to in para 6(C) and copy thereof has also been placed on record as Exhibit A-23, Suit-1, Register 7, page 255, Admitting that the said Chabutara was constructed in 1857, he, however, submitted that the said action was unauthorised. In para 5 he admits that Sita Rasoi and a Kuti has also been constructed and despite of the orders

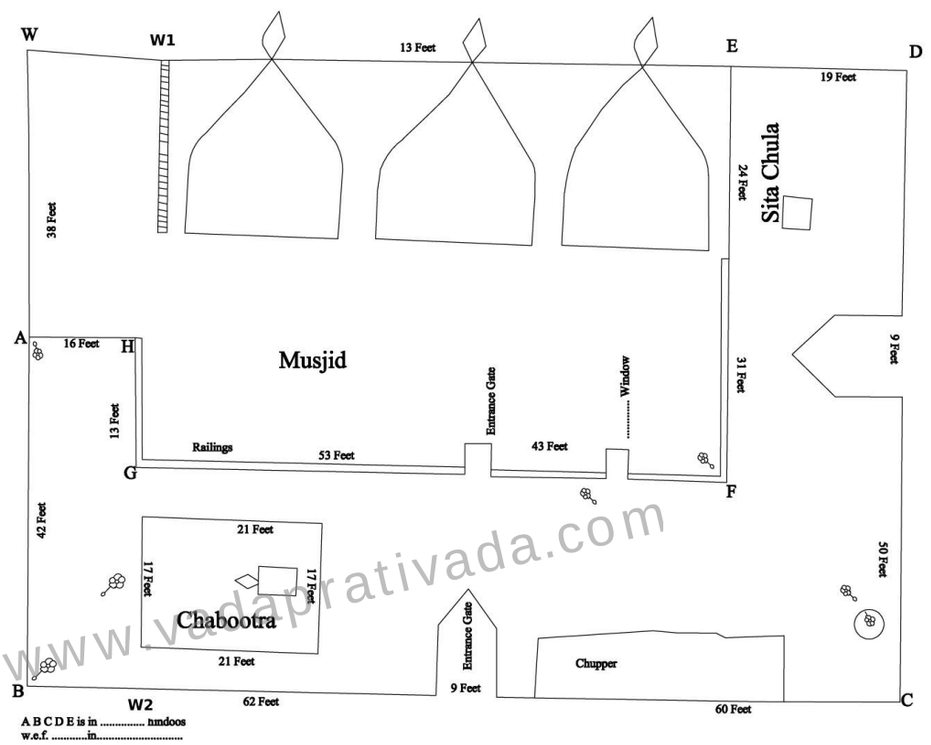
having been issued the same are not removed.

3082. The map appended to the plaint in Suit-1885 is also on record as Exhibit A 22 (Suit-1), (Register 7 page 239) and it would be appropriate to reproduce the said map (only disputed site):



Note: The rectangular area covered by letters W B W1 W2 on the extreme southern side is not the part of property in dispute in Suit-4.

3083. There is an endorsement at the bottom of the said map as under:

> "A B C D E is in the possession of the Hindus. W E F G H is in possession of Mohammedans."

3084. It also shows that the partition wall 'F G' has one entrance gate and on its northern side there was a barbed window. In the outer courtyard three structures are shown, i.e., Chabutara, Chappar and Sita Chulha. (also called Sita Rasoi and Chhatti Pujan Sthal)

3085. The correctness of the map was not disputed in 1885 Suit. The Court in 1885 appointed Gopal Sahai Amin's Commission to prepare the map by spot inspection and submit report. This map was submitted alongwith report dated 6th December 1885. The report is Exhibit A 24 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 275) and the Gopal Sahai Amin Commissioner's map is Exhibit A 25, (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 277). There is nothing on record to show that this map was ever disputed by defendant no. 2, i.e., Mohd. Asghar in the said suit. Therefore, as long back in 1885 in the outer courtyard three non Islamic structures existed and the premises of the outer courtyard was claimed to be possessed by Hindus which by itself was not disputed. Only this much was contested that this possession is unauthorised. Issue no. 5 (Suit-1885) pertains to the correctness of the measurement of Chabutara and in the judgement dated 24.12.1885 of the trial court, i.e., Sri Hari Kishan, Sub-Judge Faizabad, he said:

www.vadaprativada.com

> ''निस्बत तनकीह पन्जुम के मौक़े पर पैमाइश की और पैमाइश नक़्शा सही है जो मुताबिक़ मुन्दर्जा दावा है कि मुहम्मद असग़र को भी उस तादाद मुन्दर्जा अर्ज़ी दावा में अब कुछ उज्र न रहा बल्कि वह कुछ तादाद कुछ इन्च में कम है तादाद फ़ीट सही है।''
> "Regarding Issue no. 5 I took the measurement on-the-spot and found the map to be correct which is in consonance with the plaint. Mohd. Asghar also does not have any objection whatsoever with regard to the figure mentioned in the plaint, rather the measurement is a few inches less but number of feet is correct."

3086. For Chabutara and other things, the finding recorded by trial court, not disputed in appeal, and also before us by the plaintiffs (Suit-4), who in fact, rely on the said judgement, are as

"निस्बत तनक़ीह शशुम बमुलाहिजा मौक़ा ज़ाहिर है कि चरन यानी पादुका नक़्श है कि जिसकी परसतिश होती है सिवाय इसके चबूतरे से मन्दिर बाक़ैय चबूतरे पर एक मूरत ठाकुर जी रखी हुई है जिसकी परस्तिश होती है। चबूतरा मक़बूजा मुद्दई है कि जो कुछ उस पर चढ़ावा चढ़ता है वह मुद्दई लेता है कि इस बात यानी चढ़ावा को इस वक़्त मुहम्मद असग़र मुद्दालैह भी तसलीम करते हैं। गवाहान मुद्दई से कब्ज़ा मुद्दई का बखूबी साबित है कि इस वजह से दीवार कटहरेदार हद हिन्दू मुसलमान अलहदा अर्से से क़ायम हुई है जिसका ज़िक्र आइन्दा मौक़े पर होगा। गवाहान मुद्दालैह क़ब्ज़ा चबूतरा मुद्दई से नवाक़फ़ियत ज़ाहिर करते हैं। दरमियान मस्जिद व चबूतरे के एक पुख्ता दीवार कटहरेदार है कि नक़्शा मुरत्तिबा अमीन इसलाहे दावा के मुलाहिजा से बखूबी कैफियत मौक़ा मुनकशिफ़ हो सकती है और साफ़ ज़ाहिर है कि हुदूद दरमियान मस्जिद व चबूतरे की क़ायम की गई है और इसकी ताईद सरकारी ग़ज़ेटियर से जो क़ब्ल मुतानाजा हाल के मुरत्तिब हुआ बखूबी हासिल है कि पेशतर हिन्दू व मुसलमान दोनों इस मुक़ाम पर परस्तिश करते थे सन् 1855 में बाद लड़ाई दरमियान हिन्दू व मुसलमान एक दीवार कटहरे की वास्ते रफ़े निज़ा के बना दी गई कि अन्दर उसके मुसलमान व बाहर हिन्दू लोग परस्तिश करें।"

In 1855, after the riot between Hindus and Muslims, a barbed wire fencing was erected to avoid any clash between Hindus and Muslims so that Muslims may offer prayers inside and Hindus outside."*

3087. In appeal, the District Judge, with respect to the existence of the structures at the premises in dispute, in judgment dated 18.03.1886, Exhibit A 27 (Suit-1), Register 7, page 319/320, observed:

"The entrance to the enclosure is under a gateway which pears the superscription "Allah" ---- immediately on the left is the platform a chabutara of masonry occupied by the Hindus. On this is a small superstructure of wood in the form of a tent.

This chabutara is said to indicate the birthplace of Ramchandra*. In from of the gateway is the entry to the masonry platform of the masjid. A wall pierced here and there with railings divides the platform of the masjid from the enclosure on which stands the "Chabutara"."*

3088. This position of the outer courtyard had continued thereafter inasmuch as when Suit-1 was filed on 16th January, 1950 the Civil Judge appointed an Advocate Commission of Sri

Shiv Shankar Lal who also prepared a map wherein the three structures, i.e., Chabutara, Bhandar and Sita Rasoi have been shown to exist in the outer courtyard in same way. The plaintiffs have not placed any evidence to show that so far as the premises in outer courtyard, and these three structures are concerned, possession of Hindus was ever disturbed or denied or they were ever dispossessed. It is also not said that Muslims ever entered and visited premises in outer courtyard with animus possidendi, On the contrary it appears that during the fairs held at Ayodhya, i.e., Ramnavami fair etc., the rush of Hindu public used to swell so much so that the executive authorities found it necessary to have another gate for safety purposes and sometimes in 1873-74 this gate was constructed and opened in the northern wall which the defendants Hindu parties called "Singh Dwar".

3089. So far as the premises in the inner courtyard is concerned, it appears to be true that the Britishers divided the premises with the intention that the Muslims shall worship in the inner courtyard and Hindus in the outer courtyard but immediately since thereafter, i.e., from 1858 and onwards we find a lot of documents on record demonstrating that the Hindus continued to enter the premises in the inner courtyard also and offered worship thereat. There was no restriction in the entry inside the inner courtyard in any manner. The entrance door in the dividing grilled wall was never locked. It is difficult to hold that the possession of the premises inside the inner courtyard remain only with the plaintiffs. Here the "possession" means right possession, uninterfered possession by the unwanted person and capacity to control others interference.

3090. There is no evidence that the Muslims had the possession of the property in dispute after its construction in the form of mosque by a Muslim Ruler before Tieffenthaler' visit but on the contrary, Hindus continued to enter the disputed premises and worship thereat as we find mention, as long back as in 18th century, in the Travellers Account of Joseph Tieffinthaller who visited Oudh area between 1766-1771 and his write up was published in 1786. We have already quoted the relevant extract above. This fact was also reiterated in the subsequent Gazetteers of Edward Thornton which was published in 1858.

3091. The plaintiffs (Suit-4), however, have filed certain Statements of Account and Auditor's Report, orders under Section 92 CPC, waqf related documents etc. to claim that the maintenance of the building in dispute was entrusted to Mutawalli who was looking after the mosque and, therefore, symbolic possession of the building in dispute had to be with Muslims. We may have a bird eye view of these documents also.

3092. These documents can be placed in five categories, (i) copies of revenue records; (ii) income-expenditure accounts; (iii) the documents relating to repair of the damaged building in 1934 riot; (iv) the orders under Section 92 C.P.C.; and (v) correspondence with the Sunni Board regarding wakf and its registration etc.

3093. In the first category, i.e. copies of revenue records, comes the following:

(A) Exhibit A-30 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 333-335) is a copy of the Khewat Patwari Mauza Bahoranpur of the period 1332 Fasli (1929 A.D.). In respect of certain plot number, it mentions the name of Mir Mohammad Zaki as Numberdar and in the column of partners it mentions the

www.vadaprativada.com

name of Mohd. Zaki, Amzad Ali and Mir Nazim.

This document relates to Mauza Bahoranpur's property wherein Mir Mohammad Zaki is shown as Numberdar. His successor, in his reply dated 20th November 1945 (Exhibit A-66, Suit-1), in para 9 has claimed that his property is not wakf but Nankar Maafi. We are not concerned with the said property of Mauza Bahoranpur and, therefore, do not propose to make any comment on the said document. Suffice it to say that this document does not help Muslim parties in any manner.

(B) Exhibit A-37 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 417) is a copy of Khasara Abadi Mashmoola Misil bandobast Sabik relating to Mauza Ramkot Pargana Haweli Awadh Tehsil and District Faizabad dated 20.03.1950.

(D) Exhibits A-39 and A-40 (Suit-1) (Register 7, pages 421 and 423) are the copies of the map Kishtwar Misil Bandobast Sabik Mauza Ramkot Pargana Haweli Tehsil and District Faizabad dated 09.03.1950 and Intekhab Naksha Abadi Mauza Ramkot Pargana Haweli Tehsil and District Faizabad.

3094. These revenue documents have been placed to show that there is mention of existence of a mosque in the area in dispute by referring plot area. The revenue entries do not create any right. When contested, particularly in a title suit, the facts

have to be proved on their own. Even otherwise what is contained in the revenue entries would not show that a particular party was in possession. As we have already discussed above, the possession of the plaintiffs (Suit-4) even if we assume what they claim to be correct, is not of a continuous nature. The alleged Mutawalli of the disputed structure or the disputed waqf is not before the Court. Even the so called Pesh-Emam or Moazzim have not appeared even as a witness in this case. On the one hand the plaintiffs claim that till 1949 there was a Mutawalli, a Pesh-Emam and a Moazzim for maintaining the mosque as also taking care of regular Namaj by muslims but strangely none of them have taken any step as a result of the incident of 22/23 December 1949. There is not even a complaint by any of them what to say of their deposition as witness in these cases. It is contended that an affidavit of Pesh-Emam, Abdul Gaffar was filed in a writ petition pending before this Court against the order dated 01.02.1986 passed by the District Judge for opening of locks. We cannot take notice of such affidavit since the deponent has not appeared in the witness box offering himself for testifying creditworthiness of his averments. These revenue records, therefore, to our mind do not help the plaintiffs in any manner on the issue with which at present we are confronted with.

3095. The legal status of entry in revenue record was considered and the Court held that it does not confer ownership or title. Relying on an earlier decision in Jattu Ram Vs. Hakam Singh, 1993 (4) SCC 403, in Suraj Bhan Vs. Financial Commissioner, 2007 (6) SCC 186 the Apex Court said:

> "9. ....It is well settled that an entry in revenue records does not confer title on a person whose name

appears in record-of-rights. It is settled law that entries in the revenue records or jamabandi have only "fiscal purpose" i.e. payment of land revenue, and no ownership is conferred on the basis of such entries. So far as title to the property is concerned, it can only be decided by a competent civil court (vide Jattu Ram v. Hakam Singh 1993 (4) SCC 403)."

3096. In the second category, i.e, income-expenditure accounts comes:

(A) Exhibit A-72 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 337-355) is a copy of the accounts alleged to be submitted by Syed Mohd. Zaki in Case No. 64 in the Court of Tahsildar Faizabad on 9th July 1925 for the period 18.04.1923 to 06.04.1924 with respect to the income from the grant of Mauza Bahoranpur and Sholapur.

(B) Exhibit A-31 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 357-377) is a copy of the accounts alleged to be submitted by Syed Mohd. Zaki in Case No. 64 in the Court of Tahsildar Faizabad on 31.03.1926 for the period 07.04.1924 to 28.03.1925 with respect to the income from the grant of Mauza Bahoranpur and Sholapur.

(C) Exhibit A-32 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 379-399) is a copy of the accounts alleged to be submitted by Syed Mohd. Zaki in Case No. 64 in the Court of Tahsildar Faizabad on 23.08.1927 for the period 29.03.1925 to 24.04.1926 with respect to the income from the grant of Mauza Bahoranpur and Sholapur.

(D) Exhibit A-33 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 401-407) is a copy of the accounts alleged to be submitted by Syed Mohd. Zaki in Case No. 64 in the Court of Tahsildar

Faizabad for the period 25.09.1941 to 12.09.1945 with respect to the income from the grant of Mauza Bahoranpur and Sholapur.

(E) Exhibit A-35 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 413) is a copy of accounts of income and expenditure relating to 1.4.1947 to 31.03.1948 as per Section 57 of U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1936.

Most Respected Sir,

I beg to say that I was granted contract of Babri Masjid*. The work has already been completed about a year before, barring certain small piece of work for a value of Rs. 100/- or 200/-. The applicant is in dire need of money and only little work to the extent of Rs. 200/- is remaining, which I cannot carry out. The applicant has no other business. Kindly provide relief to me and my family. Besides, at the time of contract, it was agreed upon that part payments will be made according to Vasoolyabi. I have come to know that the enough revenue has been collected. I have already told orally to you that I was in trouble and needed money. During this time the applicant was not feeling well, so, he could not convey his grievance again.* Secondly, the applicant was required to construct the houses which were burnt during the riot, out of which 13 houses of Khaprail have been repaired before the rains commenced. A small piece of work in relation to doors etc is remaining. Further under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner Faizabad through Tehsildar (Nuzul) Faizabad, certain trees and shrubs were allotted to the applicant with the assurance that whenever the applicant gets money the price of the aforesaid would be deducted from the bill. The applicant has already collected material for repairs of the remaining houses. But due to paucity of of required money the applicant remained idle. So, I would request you to kindly consider my grief sympathetically and provide money to me and for this purpose. kindly issue necessary orders. Deemed necessary, so prayed.

" Gharib Parwar Salamat. I beg to state that my bill for the repair work of the houses was to the tune of Rs. 3604/- out of which the applicant has been paid 3287/1/6 only the reason for the officer under payment seems to be that the officer Nazul and Naib Tahsildar Faizabad at the time of inspection during repairs, proposed that the thickness of the two doors of 1-1/2 inch, valued at Rs 23/12 and Rs 16/11/3 be reduced to Rs 16/- and Rs 11/- respectively, the price of the windows was reduced to Rs. 4/ instead of Rs 7/. Sir, at the time of inspection of the after reducing the thickness of the three doors to 1-1/2 inches and that of windows the P.W.D. after revision of the price, approved Rs 23/12/-, Rs 16/11/3 and Rs 7/- respectively, and accordingly fixed the doors and windows years back. At the time of inspection of the officer incharge, those were found not in new condition, that is why deduction was proposed although the new doors and windows could certainly not be prepared at the proposed price. Therefore it is requested that inspection and revaluation of 3 doors- 1-1/4 inches and rates of the windows may be made by the P.W.D. and the applicant may kindly be paid his remaining amount. Applicant's bill in respect of Masjid Babri was of Rs. 7229/- out of which he has been paid Rs, 6825/12/- i.e. short by Rs 403/41- though the estimate was approved for Rs. 7329/- and the applicant has been paid lesser amount. Therefore the applicant may kindly be furnished details as to which amount has been deducted so that the applicant may move your honour. Applicant: Tahauwar Khan the Thekedar dated April 30, 1936."

"Garib Parvar Salamat,

Janabe Ali, Respectfully it is submitted that certain houses in Ayodhya were burnt in the riots, which were constructed by the contractor long back but the contractor could not get the money so far. The query in this behalf revealed that estimate concerning those houses had been lost somewhere and due to which the Engineer of PWD after perusing the bill returned the file. The payment of bill could not be made in absence of estimate. Respected Tehsildar Saheb, Estimate of Nazul rate was obtained from the contractor again, Urdu copy whereof is available with the applicant. If ordered, the applicant can produce the same or copy of the said, My bills in respect of houses may very kindly be sent to Engineer Saheb so that the bills may be checked and contractor may get money because he is in dire need of money.

3100. All these documents pertaining to repairing etc. of the building in dispute pursuant to its damage in 1934 riot and show that there was a substantial damage to building including its domes, stones inscriptions etc., which were repaired by Muslim contractors. However, no order has been placed before us to show that as a matter of fact, premises in dispute was ever handed over to Muslims or they were allowed to offer Namaz in the building in dispute. At least their documents do not help the Muslim parties so far as this aspect of the matter is concerned.

3101. In the fourth category, i.e. orders under Section 92 C.P.C., comes:

(A) Exhibit A-29 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 331)=Exhibit 28 (Suit-5) (Register 23, page 667) is a copy of the order dated 18.12.1929 of Legal Remembrancer of Government of U.P. communicating sanction for institution of a suit under Section 92 C.P.C. The subject matter is mentioned as under:

"The mosque built by Emperor Babar and known as Babar's mosque in village Ramkot, Ajodhya city, and the proceeds and profits of village Bahuranpur and of about 12 Bighas of village Sholapur pergana Haveli, set apart for the upkeep of the said mosque."

It is addressed to the following:

"1. Hafiz Mumtaz Hosain, son of S.Tafazzul Hasain, resident of Bazar Salarganj

2. Haji Agha Mirza, son of Mirza Azam Beg, resident of Mohalla Sabzimandi, 3.Haji Mohammed Yasin, son of S.Mohammed Hafeez resident of Mohalla Rakabganj, Fyzabad.

4. Hakim Abdul Wahab son of Dr. Khuda Bux, resident of Singarhat.

5. Zahoor Ahmad, son of Noor Mohammad, resident of Mohalla Naugazi and

6. Mohammad Shafi, son of Ghorey, Mohalla Sotahti, Ajodhya."

(B) Exhibit A-68 (Suit-1) (Register 8, page 559) is a copy of the order dated 19.01.1929 passed by Deputy Commissioner Faizabad directing the applicant to file application seeking sanction for filing a suit u/s 92 C.P.C. in respect of Bahoranpur Sahnawa.

(C) Exhibit 27 (Suit-5) (Register 23, Page 665)(the

document appear to be incomplete. Neither the date of the order is legible nor to whom it was addressed is mentioned therein and therefore cannot be relied on. However, it is claimed to be copy of the Government order according sanction under Section 92 C.P.C. for institution of a suit. The subject matter is mention as under:

"The mosque built by Emperor Babar and known as Babar's mosque in village Ramkot, Ajodhia city, and the proceeds and profits of village Bahuranpur and of about 12 bighas of village Sholapur pergana Haveli Oudh, set apart for the upkeep of the said mosque."

3102. These documents on the one hand show that some muslim persons obtained permission from the Government under Section 92 for institution of the suit but it is an admitted fact that no record is available to show that any suit actually filed by anyone. In fact what we find is that sanction was granted under Section 92 CPC but further details as to how and why the said sanction was granted and what thereafter happened is not known to us. Due to lack of attending information we are not in a position to take these documents into consideration for forming opinion either way in the context of the issue in question.

3103. In the fifth category, there is correspondence with Sunni Board with regard to Wakf, its registration etc.:

(A) Exhibit A-67 (Suit-1) (Register 8, page 547-558) is a copy of the reply dated 19/20 July 1938 filed by Mohd. Zaki to Waqf Commissioner pursuant to notice u/s 4 of U.P. Waqf Act 1936.

Objection

Gharib Parwar Salamat.

In the matter of the above subject, it is submitted that a notice under Section 4 of the Muslim Waqf Act 1936 has been issued by the Court and served upon me. Therefore in reply to the same, the applicant submits the following objections:

(1) That the necessary pedigree of the applicant belonging to the Shia Sect case is as under:

*(Applicant) (alive) : : :

Section 6: That from First Settlement ownership right of the property aforesaid was entered in favour of Mohd. Asghar and Mohd. Afzal, ancestors of the applicant vide order dated 3rd February 1870 passed by the Settlement Officer and the applicant and their ancestors have been in continuous possession over the said property.

Section 7*: That the ancestors and the applicant have been incurring required expenditure for the protection and upkeep of the mosque.*

Section 8*: That in view of the fact that after annexation of Oudh the British Government granted cash Nankar to the ancestors of the applicant as compensation and thereafter a decree of right over the property in dispute in favour of the ancestors of the applicant was passed; therefore, the property cannot vest in Waqfs and the same is not covered under Muslim Waqf Act since the property has been granted by the British Government, i.e. Non-Muslim.*

Section 9*: That in any case the property in dispute is out of the purview of the restriction imposed by Section 2 of Muslim Waqfs Act 1936 because a considerable portion of income is spent by the applicant towards persona requirement.*

Section 10: That the applicant is filing this objection in compliance of the order of the Hon'ble Court which may kindly be accepted and taken on record . In case the objections are not found sufficient or satisfactory, the applicant be afforded opportunity to plead his case through counsel before the Hon'ble Court.

نمبر ۳: یہ کہ سفیدی اور مرمت اکتوبر سن ۴۱ میں ہوی تھی۔ ٹھکیدارسفیدی کی ایک نقل رسید مزدوری خانہ خدمت ہے۔ دوسرے سال بوجہ ہواءی اڈہ کی تعمیر سے اینٹ اور مسالہ نہیں ملتا تھا بوجہ سفیدی نہیں ہو سکی۔ صرف زینا باہر سے ہوا تھا امسال ضرورت سفیدی اور مرمت کی ضرورت ہے جسکی میں فکر کر رہا ہوں

نمبر ۴: پیش امام کی تنخواہ ماہ اگست سن ۴۳ آخر شوال حال تک صرف ۷روپیہ باقی ہے اور کوی بقایا نہیں ہے۔ ایک نقل رسید پیس امام ارسال خدمت ہے۔

نمبر ۵: مسجد کہ متعلق نہ کوی وقف ہے نہ کوی اسوقت تک کوی متولی مقرر ہوا۔ جاءداد متعلقہ شاھی معافی ہے جو مورثان کو ملی تھی اور جاءداد مذکور کا بحیثیت مسلمان ہونےکے انتظام و دیکھ بھال و مرمت وغیرہ کیا کرتا پھر اسطرح میں بھی۔ ۱۷فروری ۴۱ء سے نمبردار مقرر ہوا ہوں اور مسجد کا کام انجام دیتا ہوں۔

نمبر ۶: یہ کہ بموجب حکم ۲۷ اکتوبر ۴۳ سنی وقف بورڈجناب سید رحمت حسین صاحب ایڈوکیٹ کے پاس بغرض جانچ حسابات گیا تھا اڈیٹر صاحب نے ۴۱ نومبر یوم اتوار کو جانچ کیلے بلایا ہے۔

نمبر ۹: یہ جایداد وقف نہیں ہے بلکہ نانکار معافی ہے جسکی نقلیں فراہم کرکے روانہ کرونگا۔

نمبر ۱۲: یہ بدنظمی کی شکایت بالکل غلط ہے۔ عالیجاہ مسجد ایسے موقعہ پر واقعہ ہے کہ اکثر بلوے ہوچکے ہیں اور ہر وقت ایدنشہ نقص امن کا رہتا ہے اسوجہ سے صورتحال کو دیکھ کر انتظام کیا جاتا ہے۔

www.vadaprativada.com

دوسری وجہ شکایت کی محض میرے شیعہ ہونے مولوی پیش امام وغیرہ کرتے ہیں اور دوسروں کو بھی امادہ کرتے ہیں ورنہ ایسا کچھ نہیں ہے۔

नं02– यह कि चटाई फर्श जानमाज़ वगैरह सिर्फ रोजमर्रा की जरूरत भर को मौजूद रहता है। वाकी फर्श जानमाज़ वगैरह अलाहिदा मौलवी अब्दुल गफ्फार पेस इमाम के यहां रक्खा रहता है जिसको मुअज्जिन हर जुमे को ले आता है और बाद नमाज़ जुमा फिर वहीं रख दिया जाता है क्योंकि अकसर फर्स वगैरह मस्जिद से चोरी हो गया है। उस वजह से कुल फर्श हरवख्त नहीं रहता।

नं03– सुफेदी और मरम्मत अक्टूबर सन् 41 से हुई थी। ठेकेदार सुफेदी की एक नक़ल रसीद मज़दूरी खाना खिदमत है। दूसरे साल बवजह हवाई अड्डे की तामीर के ईंटे और मसाला नहीं मिलता था। इस वजह से सुफेदी नहीं हो सकी। सिर्फ ज़ीना बाहर हुआ था। इमसाल जरूरत सुफेदी और मरम्मत की जरूरत है जिसकी मैं फिक्र कर रहा हूं।

नं04– पेश इमाम की तनख्वाह माह अगस्त सन् 43 आखिर शाबान हाल तक सिर्फ 7 रू0 बाकी है और कोई बकाया नहीं

है। एक नकल रसीद पेस इमाम हरसाल खिदमत है।

दफा 5– मस्जिद के मुतालिक न कोई वजह है और न कोई उस वख्त तक कोई मुतवल्ली मुकर्रर हुआ है। जायदाद मुतालिका साही मुआफी है जो मूरिसान को मिली थी और जायदाद मज़कूर का नम्बरदार वहैसियत मुसलमान होने के इन्तजाम व देखभाल व मरम्मत वगैरह किया करता है। इस तरह से भी 16 फरवरी, 41 से नम्बरदार मुकर्रर हुआ हूं और मस्जिद का काम अनजाम देता हूं।

'' Before Secretary, Sunni Waqf Board, Lucknow, letter no. 5607 dated 27.10.43, reply letter no. 527 dated 27.10.43.

1. That it is totally wrong that Hindu Sadhus are exceeding their limits in the mosque. The northern portion of the thatch over the land over which they own right conferred by the Court, has fallen down and is lying as it was. It is possible that on account of being bent or fallen it appears to be bigger in size. When they will start erecting the thatch, your honour will be informed after measurement. That cottage has no concern with the mosque.

10.That floor mats (used for sitting at the time of offering Namaz) are available only to the extent of routine use. Remaining floor mattress etc. are separately kept with Maulvi Abdul Gaffar, Pesh Imam, which are brought by the Moazzin on Fridays and are kept back at the same place after Namaz because most of the mattresses have been stolen from the mosque and for that reason the entire mattresses are not available at all times.

3. Whitewashing and repairs were carried out in October 1941. Copy of the contractor's receipt of whitewash with respect to wages to labourers is filed. The following year due to construction of aerodrome there was

paucity of bricks and sticking material. For this reasons whitewashing could not be carried out. Only the outer stairs was whitewashed. This year, there is requirement of whitewashing and repairs for which I am concerned.

4. Salary of Pesh Imam from August 43 till the month of Shaban to the tune of Rs. 7/- is in arrears and there is no other dues except it. Copy of a receipt of payment of salary to Pesh Imam is filed.

5. There is neither any waqf in respect of the mosque nor any Mutwalli has been appointed till date. The property is Nankar Shahi Maafi which was granted to the ancestors of the applicant on account of being a Mussalman and Numberdar and they looked after the management and repairs etc. Likewise, from 17.2.1941 I have been appointed Numberdar and performs the work of mosque.

6. That order dated 27.10.1943 of Sunni Waqf Board was sent to Sri Syed Rahmat Hussain, Advocate for purposes of audit of accounts. Wadekar Saheb called for scrutiny on 21 November , Sunday.

7. We are not aware as to what decision had been taken by the Waqf Commissioner since Waqf Board. Since the property in question has been included in the Sunni Waqf Board, for this reason, being helpless I am abiding by this order. For this purpose, being left with no option I intend to approach the Civil Court since cause of action will arise after gazette publication for which I am waiting.

8. This amount of subscription should be deposited with the stipulation that the property from which this amount is fetched, is not a waqf rather it is Malikana Maafi, copy of which would be submitted after procuring the same. The amount which is available will be submitted after complete accounting and in case there is any defect, that would be again sent.

9. This property is not Waqf rather it is Nankar Maafi*, copy of which will be sent after procuring it .*

10. Account of expenditure is totally correct which has been verified by the Tehsildar. It is wrong that the mosque was not whitewashed. Account of whitewashing is correct. This year no whitewash was carried out and I am managing for the same.

11. Salary of Pesh Imam was in arrears of Rs. 35/-of the previous year and for the current year Rs. 40/- which has been paid to him. In this way, the salary of Moazzin stands due and the account regarding it has been given to the Court. Copy of receipt of Pesh Imam is filed.

12. That the complaint of mismanagement is wholly wrong. Sir, this mosque has been built on such a place where often riots took place and every year there is apprehension of breach of peace. Therefore, seeing the situation, arrangement is made. The second reason of compliant is since I am a Shia, Maulvi, Pesh Imam are against me and also provoke others too. Otherwise, it is not so. Therefore, it is respectfully prayed that my reply may kindly be considered and in case it contains anything mischievous I may be pardoned and if any defects has crept in, the same may kindly be communicated to me.

Syed Kalabe Husain, s/o Mohd. Razi, r/o Bahoranpur, P.O. Darshan Nagar, Fyzabad. 20.11.1943."

This document shows that the movable items

necessary for namaz were not kept in the building in dispute and were brought every time on Friday by Muazzin and after namaz, the same were taken away. This also shows an admission of the author that there was only Friday namaz in the building in dispute and the outer courtyard has nothing to do with mosque.

Present condition of Babri Mosque , Ayodhya.

To the secretary,

On December 22, 1949 I visited Ayodhya to inquire into current state of affairs of the Masjid Babri and Qabristan and continued throughout the day. It revealed the following facts:

*Three months back Baba Raghu Das came to Ayodhya to see Janamasthan and said emphatically to Bairagis and priests that recitation of Ramayan should be organized at Janamasthan. This news spread all around the nearby areas. After one month of departure of Baba Raghu thousands of Hindus, Pujaris and Pandits assembled there. The path (recitation) continued for weeks. During this period the Bairagis dug and levelled the most of the land in front of the Masjid and southern عشری تھے اور ہیں-

Qabristan and pitched flag over there and placed stones on certain graves. Sufficient police force was deployed at the time of Ramayan recitation, even then certain graves were dug. The police arrested four persons who were later on bailed out. The Mazar of Khwaja Hati Rahamatullah which is situated on a mound near the Qabristan, has been demolished and a Bairagi after pitching a Jhanda (flag) stayed there. On the door of the lawn of the Masjid there was a pucca grave which has been levelled and the Bairagis are sitting after placing stones thereon. Near the well of the Masjid a Bairagi is living under a thatched roof. Before the path was held, the earthen pot and lota of the masjid were broken. The Moazzin was beaten up. They tried to destroy the inscription of the Masjid. Two Muslim pilgrims were beaten up and as such they sustained severe injuries. Now there are two tents outside the Masjid. One of them is occupied by police personnel. In other tent, sepoy of Batallion are living. Total number of these sepoys would be 8 to 9. Now the door of the Masjid remains locked. That is to say, except for Fridays, there held no Namaz or Azaan. The keys of the Masjid are with the Muslims, but the police does not allow to open the lock, which is opened only on Friday for 3-4 hours. During this period cleaning of the place is done and then Namaz is held. After this is over, the Masjid is again locked. During Friday prayer the Bairagis make hue and cry and when the Namazi pass through the stairs, shoes and rubbish is thrown on them from the adjoining houses. The Muslims are so scared that they do not protest. After Raghu Das, Mr. Lohia also visited Ayodhya and delivered a lecture in which he urged the people to grow flower trees in place of graves. However, some officer from Lucknow visited this place. The Bairagis told him that the Masjid was the Janam Sthan which should be handed over to them. He warned them against any violence. On this, Bairagis became angry with him, so he returned back to Faizabad under police protection. Meanwhile Mahant of Kanak Bhawan, Ayodhya, Raghubar Das, Vedanti Ji, Deo Narain Darsi, Acharyaji Ashrmi, attempted to invite Muslims for a talk. But no Muslim except for Zahoor Ahmad, turned up. The Hindus told him that the Masjid should be handed over to them, only then the two communities would be brothers otherwise enemies. I did stayed at Ayodhya in the night. In the morning, I came to know that Bairagis are trying to take possession over the Masjid forcefully. Today is Friday I visited the spot when I saw that 10-15 Bairagis armed Dandas and spears had assembled in front of the door of the mosque. Many of the Hindus of nearby localities were also asssembled there. City Magistrate, Kotwal city and police force were posted there. I do not know as to what will happen to the Muslims who would certainly come here for offering Friday prayers. Now I am proceeding to Lakad Mandi, Gonda. Sd/- 23.12.49" (ETC)

3104. These documents show at the best that, Namaj, only on Friday, used to be offered in the disputed structure in the inner courtyard and for rest of the period the building remain unattended by muslim. So far as the report of Waqf Inspector dated 10.12.1949 and 23.12.1949 are concerned almost all the witnesses of plaintiffs (Suit-4) who have been examined on this aspect have expressed their ignorance about his visit on the dates on which Mohammad Ibrahim claimed to have prepared the said reports. Neither the author has been examined nor even otherwise the two documents have been proved. The documents cannot be termed to be "public document" merely because the copy thereof has been issued by the Sunni Board since they do not answer the description of "public document" under Section 74 of the Evidence Act. Even otherwise the truth of the contents of these two documents, in accordance with law, was necessary to be proved. Mere filing of a document or marking as 'exhibit' does not mean, that the truth of the facts mentioned therein shall be deemed correct unless proved otherwise. We have already referred to the relevant law on this aspect and need not to repeat hereat.

3105. Besides above, there is a copy of the notification dated 26th February, 1944 under U.P. Act of 1936 (Exhibit A-34 (Suit-1) (Register 7, page 409-411) but this document is no more relevant since it has already been held invalid so far as the property in dispute is concerned vide the Civil Judge, Faizabad's order dated 21.04.1966. The plaintiffs have sought to mention that it is a Government Gazette but a perusal of the document shows that it is a document of the Sunni Board titled as a notification and not a copy of the Government Gazette.

3106. Exhibit A-71 (Suit-1) (Register 8, page 577) is a copy of Shajra Nasab (family tree) of owners of Mauza Bahooranpur, Pargana Haweli Oudh, Tahsil and district Faizabad Haqqiat Maafi in the form of Zammdari. A major portion of the document is illegible and could not be read or transliterated in Hindi and as such the portion which could be read is being quoted hereunder along with English translation.

3107. Considering the entirety of the above evidence and discussion and in the absence of anything contrary, we are satisfied that prior to 1855, there is no evidence of possession by Muslims of the property in suit. They did not have possession of the premises in outer Courtyard atleast since 1856-57 when the dividing wall was raised by the Britishers. They at the best might have enjoyed only the right of passage so as to enter the inner courtyard. The entry in the outer courtyard using part of the premises as passage would not constitute 'possession'. As we have already discussed in detail, the possession means power of control over the matter of subject. If it is a physical control, it should be either actual or a possession of a nature which is so treated in the eyes of law. Possession is a polymorphous term. It has different meanings in different contexts. One of the simple definition is a visible possibility of exercising physical control over a thing compelled with the intention of doing so either against all the world or against all the world except some persons. All these things are missing so far as the premises within the outer courtyard is concerned wherein there existed non Islamic structures which were visited and worshipped by Hindus continuously since as long back as noticed by Tieffenthaler in 18th century i.e. between 1766 to 1771 when he visited Avadh area. The possession in the outer courtyard was open and to the knowledge of Muslim parties, inasmuch, a person, claiming himself to be the Mutwalli of the Mosque in dispute, made several complaints, as is evident from the documents of 1858 and onwards, but the fact remains that those structures continued in the said premises and the entry of Hindus and their worship also continued. In this context, the claim of the plaintiffs that the entire property in dispute i.e. the outer and inner courtyard had been in their possession upto 1949 cannot be accepted.

3108. However, so far as the inner courtyard is concerned, though it cannot be said that the muslims never visited the premises in the inner courtyard or no Namaj ever was offered therein till 1949, but that by itself would not constitute possession of the property in dispute in the manner the term 'possession' is known in law. This is a beneficiary enjoyment by the plaintiffs muslim parties shouldering with their Hindu brethren and visiting premises within the inner courtyard for the purpose of worshipping in their own way. On this aspect various angles we have already noticed above. An additional factor is that on the one hand it is the claim of plaintiffs that since regular Namaj used to be held in the disputed building and the requisite material like Farsh, pitchers, broom etc. was also present and in the custody of Moazzim, but, no such material was found by the Receiver when he took charge of the premises in the inner courtyard pursuant to Magistrate's order dated 29.12.1949. The inventory which he had prepared, nowhere mention any item which relates to muslim use for Namaj and instead all the items relates to worship by Hindus. None has made any complaint that the goods meant for Namaj have been damaged, looted or stolen by anybody. There is a complete silence on this aspect of the matter. In 1934 when there was a riot and there was substantial damage to the building, in respect to the goods allegedly kept in the disputed building a claim was made by Syed Mohd. Zaki

giving details of those items but nothing of that sort has happened in December, 1949 or thereafter. Meaning thereby we have no option but to draw an inference that no such material existed thereat. This also weaken claim of the muslim with regard to exclusive possession, in the form of continuous worship.

3109. This is not the end. The documents referred above may not prove the claim of possession of the property in suit as such, but cumulative effect thereof is explicit that there was no abandonment by Muslims of the property in dispute. They continued to exercise their claim over it, got its recognition from Britishers in the form of grant. The maintenance of building by Muslims to the extent of disputed structure and partition wall is also evident. The defendants have not shown anything otherwise. The entry of Muslims in inner courtyard for Friday Prayer is also evident. The status of Hindus and Muslims both, in visiting the place in dispute is common i.e. worshippers. The only difference is that Hindus visit entire property while for Muslims it was confined to inner courtyard. Once the possession, may be a part of the premises, is proved, it relates back unless proved otherwise.

3110. Subject to what we have said above, the plaintiffs have failed to prove that the property in suit, i.e., premises marked as A B C D in the map appended to the plaint was in possession of the plaintiffs up to 1949. However, we may clarify that so far as the premises constituting inner courtyard is concerned this much can be said that Muslims and Hindus alike used to go therein and, therefore, possession of premises in the inner courtyard, if technically it can be said, remained with the members of both the communities. But so far as the outer

3111. So far as dispossession from the property in suit in 1949 is concerned, we are of the view that the question of dispossession of plaintiffs from outer courtyard does not arise since it was not in their possession in 1949 and prior thereto, as we have already discussed. So far as the inner courtyard is concerned they have discontinued with the possession atleast from 23rd December, 1949 and onwards while possession of Hindus which was earlier enjoyed by them alongwith members of Muslim communities continues. So far as dispossession is concerned, neither the plaintiffs have alleged that they were dispossessed at any point of time nor have proved the same. Issue no. 2 (Suit-4) is, therefore, answered in negative and against the plaintiffs.

3112. Issue No. 10 and 15 (Suit-4) are covered by our findings already recorded in relation to issues 7 (Suit-1), 3 and 8 (Suit-3) and 2 (Suit-4) and, therefore, for the reasons stated therein, both these issues are answered in negative and against the plaintiffs and Muslims in general.

3113. So far as Issue No. 28 (Suit-4) is concerned, in view of our discussion and findings qua Issues No. 3 and 8 (Suit-3), it is evident that the disputed site has to be understood bifurcated in outer courtyard and inner courtyard. So far as outer courtyard is concerned, it is evident that the Hindu religious structures existed therein since last more than 150 years i.e. sometimes after 1856-57 and they are being managed and administered by the Priest of Nirmohi Akhara, defendant no. 3, Therefore, to that extent, i.e. to the extent only upto outer courtyard, the disputed site can be said to be possessed by defendant no. 3 and the plaintiff ceased to have possession of outer courtyard accordingly. So far as the inner courtyard, which is another part of the disputed site is concerned, it does not appear that the same remained in possession of any of the parties exclusively. This aspect also we have already considered above. The premises within inner courtyard remained to be visited by the members of both the communities meaning thereby there was no obstruction to any one to enter the same. This continued till 22nd December, 1949 and since thereafter the plaintiffs are ousted even therefrom but this ouster is immaterial since it was under the orders of District authorities initially and Court's order subsequently. Hence, not being voluntary, it would not make any difference.

3114. However, the defendants no. 3 is not able to prove that it was in possession of the disputed site, which for the purpose of the present suit, means the premises shown by letters A B C D in the map appended to the plaint, i.e., the inner courtyard and outer courtyard including the disputed structure. In the same manner plaintiffs have also failed to prove the same. These aspects we have already discussed in detail while considering issues no. 7 (Suit-1), 3 and 8 (Suit-3) and 2 (Suit-4). For the reasons and discussions therein, we answer issue 28 (Suit-4) holding that since the plaintiffs have already failed to prove their possession of the disputed premises as we have said while considering issue no. 2 (Suit-4), the further question whether the plaintiffs were never in possession does not arise. It is covered by our above discussions, reasons and findings. The defendant no. 3, however, has also failed to prove its possession of the disputed site (i.e., outer and inner courtyard including the disputed building) in its entirety ever. This we have discussed

3115. So far as Issue No. 4 (Suit-4) is concerned, it is again based on the plea of adverse possession. None of the defendants in the suit in question has pleaded the ingredients as are necessary to encompass a claim of adverse possession. On the contrary, pleadings are that the place in dispute itself is a deity being birthplace of Lord Rama, has continuously been visited by Hindus for worship. In any case exclusive possession by Hindus of the premises in dispute has not been proved for the entire land in dispute, i.e., the disputed site. It is only the premises covered by the outer courtyard, as we have already discussed, since 1856-57, i.e., after the erection of dividing wall by the Britishers, muslims people have not used the same for any purposes, but so far as inner courtyard is concerned, the premises therein has not remained confined to be used only by Hindus. At times muslims have also visited to offer Namaj thereat. Therefore, so far as the outer courtyard is concerned, it may be said that the right of prayer by Hindus had perfected having continued exclusively for more than a century but the same would not apply so far as the premises within the inner courtyard is concerned, which has been used by both the sides may be more frequently by Hindus and occasionally or intermittently by muslims. Issue 4 (Suit-4) is answered accordingly.

3116. Issue 16 (Suit-5) at the first instance is covered by what we have discussed and held in regard to issues no. 7 (Suit-1), 3 and 8 (Suit-3) and 2, 4, 10, 15 and 28 (Suit-4). Only one more aspect need be considered hereat. We have already answered the issues regarding plaintiffs 1 and 2 that they are juridical persons. The premises in dispute insofar as held to be the birthplace, if any, having been held to be a juridical person, question of its possession and the application of doctrine of adverse possession would not be attracted. Therefore, the question of loss of title would not arise. Consequently, the question of reacquisition of title also would not arise.

3117. The issue in question (latter part) has been framed based on the pleadings in para 29 of the plaint. It says that the idols were kept in the building in dispute in the night of 22/23 December, 1949. They remain thereat continuously. The attachment of the premises within inner courtyard by Magistrate and giving charge to Receiver did not affect the position of idol since they continued to stay where they were and continued to remain in possession of the property in dispute thereat. For their ejectment from the premises in question a suit could have been filed within 12 years. Suit-4 was filed on 18th December, 1961. Though it is true that the plaintiffs 1 and 2 were not party to the said suit and, therefore, an order of ejectment in their absence may not be passed against them but this is also true that their continuance in the inner courtyard is not on account of a total inaction on the part of muslim parties but due to the interim injunction order passed by the trial court directing the parties to maintain status quo. Later on similar orders were passed by this Court and Apex Court also. It is well settled that act of the Court shall prejudice none. Irrespective of whether the plaintiffs 1 and 2 are party in any suit or not but the order of injunction benefits them and restrain muslim parties from taking any action otherwise. The injunction order was passed on 16th January 1950 in one or the other manner is continuing till date. Later on similar orders were passed by others including this Court also. Therefore, the plaintiffs 1 and 2 in effect are the beneficiaries of

judicial orders for retaining their position in the inner courtyard of the disputed site. It is well established that actus curae neminem gravabit.

3118. In Kerala State Electricity Board and another Vs. M.R.F. Limited and others, 1996 (1) SCC 597 the Court said:

> ".....it has been held by the Privy Council that one of the first and highest duties of all the Court is to take care that act of the Court does not cause injury to any of the suitors."
>
> "There is no manner of doubt it is an imperative duty of the court to ensure that the party to the lis does not suffer any unmerited hardship on account of an order passed by the Court. The principle of restitution as enunciated by the Privy Council in rodger's case (Supra) has been followed by the Privy Council in later decisions and such principle being in conformity to justice and fair play be followed."

3119. In Gursharan Singh and others Vs. New Delhi Municipal Committee and others, AIR 1996 SC 1175, it has been held:

> "In view of the legal maxim "acts curiae neminem gravidity" which means that an act of court shall prejudice no man, N.D.M.C. is justified in making a claim for interest over the arrears which have remained unpaid for more than 12 years because of the interim orders passed by this Court. This aspect of the matter has been examined by this Court in the case of Raj Kumar Dey and Ors. v. Tarapada Dey and Ors. [1988]1SCR118 . Although in the interim orders it has not been stated that in event of dismissal of the appeals and the writ petition, the appellants and the writ petitioner shall be liable to pay interest over the arrears of the licence fee, but that shall not debar this Court from passing any order in respect of payment of reasonable interest over the said amount."

3120. In Kanoria Chemicals and Industries Ltd and others Vs. U.P. State Electricity Board and others, JT 1997(2) SC 545 the Court said:

"It is equally well settled that an order of stay granted pending disposal of a writ petition/suit or other proceeding comes to an end with the dismissal of the substantive proceeding and that it is the duty of the court in such a case to put the parties in the same position they would have been but for the interim orders of the court. Any other view would result in the act or order of the court prejudicing a party (Board in this case) for no fault of its and would also mean rewarding a writ petitioner inspite of his failure. We do not think that any such unjust consequence can be countenanced by the courts."

3121. In South Eastern Coalfields Ltd. Vs. State of M.P. and others 2003 (8) SCC 648, the Court recognized the principle that wrong order should not be perpetuated by keeping it alive. Recognizing the maxim auctus curiae neminem gravabit, it was held that no one shall suffer by an act of the Court and such a rule is not confined to an erroneous act of the Court but act of the Court embraces within its purview all such acts as to which the Court may form an opinion in any legal proceedings that the Court would not have so acted had it been correctly apprised of the facts and law. It is duty of the Court to apply the restitution putting the parties in the same position as they would have been, had the order, subsequently found to be erroneous by the Court, would not have been passed. In para 28 of the judgment, it was held-

> "The injury, if any, caused by the act of the court shall be undone and the gain which the parties would have earned unless it was interdicted by the order of the court would be restored to or conferred on the party by suitably commanding the party liable to do so. Any opinion to the contrary would lead to unjust if not disastrous consequences. Litigation may turn into a fruitful industry. Though litigation is not gambling yet there is an element of chance in every litigation. Unscrupulous litigants may feel encouraged to approach the Courts, persuading the Court to pass interlocutory orders favourable to them by making out a prima facie case when the issues are yet to be heard and determined on merits and if the concept of restitution is excluded from application to interim orders, then the litigant would stand to gain by swallowing the benefits yielding out of the interim order even though the battle has been lost at the end. This cannot be cannot be countenanced." (emphasis added)

3122. The decision in South Eastern Coalfields Ltd. (supra) taking note of the above principle has also been followed by this Court in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 41872 of 1992, Shesh Mani Tiwari Vs. District Inspector of Schools, Jaunpur and another, decided on 17.12.2009.

3123. In this context we are not inclined to admit the claim of the plaintiffs 1 and 2 which is based on the situation which has arisen, amongst other also, due to the judicial orders. We, therefore, answer issue no. 16 (Suit-5) by observing that in this case plea of adverse possession is not attracted either for the plaintiffs 1 or 2 or as claimed by defendant no. 4 and, therefore, relying on the plea of adverse possession neither there was any occasion of extinction of title, if any, of plaintiffs 1 and 2 nor reacquisition thereof. Issue no. 16 (Suit-5) is answered accordingly.

(K) Issues relating to characteristics of Mosque, dedication by Babur and whether a valid waqf was created.

3124. Issues no. 6 (Suit 3), 1, 1(B)(b), 1(B)(c), 19(d), 19(e), 19(f) (Suit 4) and 9 (Suit 5) fall in this category.

3125. Issue no.6 (Suit 3) is:

> "Was this alleged mosque dedicated by Emperor Babar for worship by Muslims in general and made a public waqf property?"

3126. The necessary pleadings relevant for the above issue are in para 15 of the written statement of defendants no.6 to 8 and in para 15 of the replication filed by plaintiffs (Suit 3), which are as under:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "धारा 15– यह कि जिस जायदाद का मुद्दैयान ने दावा किया है वह शहनशाह हिन्द बाबर बादशाह की तामीर करदा मशजीद मौसूमे बाबरी मसजिद है जिसको सहनशाह मजकूर ने अपने वजीर .... के एहतमाम से .... तामीर कराया। और मुसलमानान के लिये वक्फ आम कर दिया जिसमें तमाम मुसलमानान का हक इबादत है।" (Written Statement)
>
> Para 15- That the property which has been claimed by the plaintiffs is the Babri Mosque built by Emperor Babar of India in his name, who got it built through his Minister . . . . and thereafter he made a waqf and consecrated to Muslims wherein Muslims have right of worship." (E.T.C.)
>
> "Para 15.- The allegations contained in para 15 of the written statement are totally incorrect and are denied. The property in suit is neither a mosque nor is it known as

www.vadaprativada.com

Babri Mosque, nor was it built by Emperor Babar through Mir Abdul Baqi. Nor was it made wakf. The property in suit is the temple of Janma Bhumi." (Replication)

3127. Issues No. 1, 1-B(b), 1-B(c), 19(d), 19(e) and 19(f) (suit 4) are:

Issue No.1 "Whether the building in question described as mosque in the sketch map attached to the plaint (hereinafter referred to as the building) was a mosque as claimed by the plaintiffs*?"*

Issue No.1-B(b) "Whether the building stood dedicated to almighty God as alleged by the plaintiffs ?"

Issue No.1-B(c) "Whether the building had been used by the members of the Muslim community for offering prayers from times immemorial? If so, its effect?"

Issue No. 19(d) "Whether the building in question could not be a mosque under the Islamic Law in view of the admitted position that it did not have minarets?"

Issue No. 19(e) "Whether the building in question could not legally be a mosque as on plaintiffs' own showing it was surrounded by a graveyard on three sides?"

Issue No. 19(f) "Whether the pillars inside and outside the building in question contain images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses? If the finding is in the affirmative, whether on that account the building in question cannot have the character of Mosque under the tenets of Islam?"

3128. In the plaint (Suit 4), the relevant pleadings are in paras 1, 2 and 21-B. Defendants no.1 and 2 in para 2 of their written statement hence denied that the alleged mosque was built as dictated by Babar. Similar is the denial by defendant no.3 in his written statement.

3129. In the written statement of defendant no.13, the relevant pleadings are in paras 11-A , 25 and 28 in which it is said:

> "11-A....The attempt to raise a mosque-like structure did not succeed; and no 'mosque', deemed to be Waqf according to Muslim Law, ever came into existence. The act of Mir Baqi was a fleeting act of trespass . . . ., and no Muslim could by any such act of trespass or its repetition, confer any right, title or interest in the nature of a Waqf in favour of ALLAH for the purposes of a 'mosque'.
>
> "25. That the building in suit was no 'mosque' and its surrounding area was not a grave-yard. . . . . ALLAH DOES NOT accept Namaz offered at a place taken by force, or in a 'mosque' built on land obtained by Gasba or forcibly without title. It seems, therefore, that the three-domed structure raised at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi . . . ., was not intended to be used as a 'mosque', and it was never used as 'mosque'. . . . . The alleged existence of a grave-yard all round it, also shows that the Muslims could not have gone to offer Namaz in the building, which was abandoned and never used as a 'mosque' by the Muslims."
> 28. That the following facts would show that the three-domes structure so raised by Mir Baqi was not a 'mosque' at all, namely---
>
> (A) ALLAH does not accept a dedication of property for purposes recognised as pious and charitable, that is, as waqf under the Muslim Law, from a person who is not its rightful owner*, for instance, ALLAH would not accept the dedication of stolen property from a thief. By his act of*

trespass supported by violence, for erecting a 'mosque' ....."

(B) Inspite of all that Mir Baqi tried to do with the Temple, the space always continued to best in possession with the Deities of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA VIRAJMAN and the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI. THEIR worshippers continued to worship THEM through such symbols as the CHARAN and the SITA RASOI, and the idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN on the Chabutra, called the Rama Chabutra. No one could enter the three domed structure except after passing through these places of Hindu worship*. According to the tenets of Islam there can be* no Idol worship within the precincts of a 'mosque*', and the passage to a 'mosque' must be free and unobstructed and open to the 'Faithful' at all times. It can* never be land-locked by a Hindu place of worship*; and there can be* no co-sharing in title or possession with ALLAH*, particularly in the case of a 'mosque'. His possession must be exclusive.*

(C) A 'mosque', which is a public place of worship for all the Muslims, must have a minaret for calling the AZAN*. According to Baillie-*

"When an assembly of worshippers pray in a masjid with permission, that is delivery. But it is a condition that the prayers be with izan, or the regular call, and be public not private, for though there should be an assembly yet if it is without izan, and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no masjid, according to the two disciples." (Pt. 1, BK. IX, Ch. VII, Sec. I, p. 605)

Indeed, according to P.R. Ganpathi Iyer's Law Relating

to Hindu and Mahomedan Endowments, (2nd Edition, 1918, Chap. XVII, at p. 388) there has been no 'mosque' without a minaret after the first half century from the Flight."*

(D) There was no arrangement for storage of water for Vazoo, and there were the Kasauti pillars with the figure of Hindu Gods inscribed on them and the Sandalwood beam. Such a place could never be a 'mosque'.

(E) There is mention in the Fyzabad Gazetteer of the burial of 75 Muslims at the gate of the Janmasthan and the place being known as Ganj Shahidan, after the battle of 1855 between the Hindus and the Muslims in which the Hindus succeeded in resuming control over the premises, including the three-domed structure. There have been no graves anywhere near the building or its precincts or the area appurtenant thereto, or surrounding it, for the last more than 50 years at least, but if the building was surrounded by a grave-yard soon after the annexation of Avadh by the British, the building could not be a 'Mosque' and could not be used as a 'mosque', for the offering of prayers or Namaz, except the funeral prayers on the death of a person buried therein, that is, the Namaz-Janaz, is prohibited in a grave-yard according to the Muslim authorities."

3130. The defendant no.17 in his additional written statement has denied para 21-B and further says:

"....Muslim cannot use any open piece of land in question for offering prayers and they also cannot encroach upon the land of religious places of Hindus."

3131. Defendant no.20 has replied the relevant averments

of the plaintiffs in respect to the above issues in para 2 and 41 of its written statement:

"2. That the contents of paragraph 2 of the plaint are absolutely wrong and denied. There has never been any battle between Emperor Babar and the previous Ruler of Ayodhya nor any grave yard or mosque as alleged has been built or dedicated by Emperor Babar."

"41. That the following facts also establish that the mosque in dispute has not been built by Babur at all in 1528 nor is a mosque at all*:-*

(1) The tomb of this disputed Masjid if it is to be looked from behind would show that it is not in the style developed by Turkis during fifteenth century, nor the Mehrab of the Masjid in that style is to be found. Thus there is no tomb in the disputed Masjid as is to be found in other mosques generally.

(2) On the north door in the front facing each other there are two tigers. They are in the style of taking leaps and their tails are just in the same style when a tiger takes the leap. Between these two tigers there is a peacock. This is not a characteristic of a mosque.

(3) The various Hindu idols are painted or their scriptions are to be found in the disputed mosque.

(4) In the disputed mosque there is no provision for reciting Namaz. To this day it has no minerettes*,* no place for storage of water for Vazoo*.*

(5) The Muslim Faith as adumbrated in Holy Koran does not permit the construction of a mosque on the site of temple after demolishing the temple*.*

(6) Babur never dedicated the property of disputed

www.vadaprativada.com

mosque to ALLAH. Even supposing without admitting that Babur constructed the disputed mosque, yet as it has been done by committing trespass, demolishing the Temple, the abode of God, either by Babur or at his instance by Mir Baqi, the Governor of Oudh, the dedication is wholly invalid and void. The material of the old temple was largely employed in building the mosque and a few if the original columns are still in good preservation. They are of closed grained black stone (Kasauti) bearing various Hindi Bas-reliefs. The outer beam of the main structure being of sandal wood, the height of the columns is 7 to 8 ft., the shape of the base, the middle section and the capital is square, the rest being round or octagonal . . . . . Subsequently, Aurangjeb also desecrated the shrines of Ayodhya which led to prolonged bitterness between Hindus and Musalmans. Latter also occupied Janmasthan by force and also made an assault on Hanumangarhi. Attacks and counter attacks continued under the leadership of Maulvi Amir Ali (See page 352 of Faizabad Gazetteer 1960).

(7) A mosque must be built in a place of peace and quiet and near a place where there is a sizeable and large number of Muslim population. According to the Tenets of Islam, a mosque cannot be built at place which is surrounded on all sides by temples where the sound of music, of Conch shells or Ghanta Ghariyalis must always disturb the peace and quiet of the place.

(8) A mosque must have minerette for calling the Ajan. According to Baille "When an assembly of worshippers pray in Masjid with permission, i.e. delivery. But it is a condition that prayers be with Ajan or the regular call and be public and not private, for though there should be an assembly yet if it is without Izah and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no Masjid according to the true desciples." Indeed there has been no mosque without a minerette after the first half century fight. (See P.R. Ganapati Iyer's law relating to Hindu and Muhammadan Endowments 2nd Edition 1918 Chapter XVII, page 388*).*

(9) According to the claim laid by the Muslims in the present suit, the building is surrounded on sides by a grave yard known as Ganj Shahidan. There is a mention in the Faizabad Gazetteer also of the burial of seventy five Muslims at the gate of Janmasthan and the place being known as Ganj Shahidan after the battle of 1855. Although there are no graves anywhere near the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi or in its precincts or the area appurtenant thereto for the last more than 50 years and if the building was surrounded by a graveyard during the British times soon after the annexation of Audh by them the building could not be mosque and could not be used as a mosque for offering of prayers except the funeral prayers."

3132. In the additional written statement, the defendant no.20 while denying para 21-B of the plaint, in para 2, has further said in para 5:

"That by destruction of the structure, the pillars were also destroyed which were evidence of Hindu Temple. It is not

www.vadaprativada.com

the destruction of Babri Mosque but a Hindu temple. The answering defendant No. 20 is entitled to claim the land in dispute for constructing a temple of Bhagwan Ram on the disputed land."

3133. Issue No.9 (suit 5) is as under:

"Was the disputed structure a mosque known as Babri Masjid?"

3134. The necessary pleadings relevant for the above issue are in para 24 of the plaint which are:

"That such a structure raised by the force of arms on land belongings to the Plaintiffs Deities, after destroying the ancient Temple situate thereat, with its materials including the Kasauti pillars with figures of Hindu gods carved thereon, could not be mosque and did not become one in spite of the attempts to treat it as a mosque during the British rule after the annexation of Avadh. Some salient points with regard thereto are noted below.

(A) According to the Koran, ALLAH spoke to the Prophet thus--

" And fight for the religion of GOD against those who fight against you; but transgress not by attacking them first, for GOD loveth not the transgressors. And kill them wherever ye find them; and turn them out of that whereof they have dispossessed you; for temptation to idolatry is more grievous than slaughter, yet fight not against them in the holy temple, until they attack you therein; . . . . . "

(B) According to all the Muslim authority and precedents and the decided cases also. ALLAH never accepts a dedication of property which does not belong to the Waqf that is, the person who purports to dedicate property to

ALLAH for purposes recognised as pious or charitable, as waqf under the Muslim law. By his acts of trespass and violence for raising a mosque on the site of the Temple after destroying it by force, Mir Baqi committed a highly un-Islamic act. His attempts to convert the Temple into a mosque did not, therefore, create a valid dedication of property to ALLAH, whether in fact or in law, and it never became a mosque.

(C) That in spite of all that Mir Baqi tried to do with the Temple, the land always continued to vest in the Plaintiff Deities, and they never surrendered their possession over it. Their possession continued in fact and in law. The Asthan never went out of the possession of the Deity and HIS worshippers. They continued to worship HIM through such symbols as the CHARAN and Sita Rasoi, and the idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN on the Chabutra, called the Rama Chabutra, within the enclosed courtyard of the building directly in front of the arched opening of its Southern dome. No one could enter the building except after passing through these places of Hindus worship. According to the Muslim religion and law there can be no Idol worship within the courtyard of a mosque and the passage to a mosque must be free and unobstructed and open at all times to the 'Faithful'. It can never be through a Hindu place of worship. There can be no co-sharing of title or possession with ALLAH in the case of a mosque. His possession must be exclusive.

(D) A mosque must be built in a place of peace and quiet, but not to a place where there is a sizeable Muslim population, according to the tenets of Islam, and as

insisted upon by it, a mosque cannot be built in a place which is surrounded on all sided by Temples, where the sound of music or conch shells or Ghanta Ghariyals must always disturb the peace and quiet of the place.

(E) A mosque must have minaret for calling the Azan. According to Baillie. "When an assembly of worshippers pray in a masjid with permission, that is delivery. But it is a condition that the prayers be with izan. or the regular call, and be public not private, for though there should be an assembly yet if it is without izan. and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no masjid. According to the two disciples." (Pt. I. BK. IX, Ch, VII Sec. i.p. 605). Indeed, there has been no mosque without a minaret after the first half century from the Flight. (See-P.R. Ganapati Iyer's Law relating to Hindu and Mahomedan Endowments, 2nd Edition, 1918. Chap. XVII, P. 388.)

(F) According to the claim laid by the Muslims in their suit No. 12 of 1961, the building is surrounded on all sides by grave-yard known as 'Ganj Shahidan'. There is a mention in the Fyzabad Gazetteer also, quoted herein above, of the burial of 75 Muslims at the gate of the Janmasthan, and the place being known as Ganj Shahidan. After the battle of 1855. Although there are no graves anywhere near the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, or in its precincts, or the area appurtenant thereto, for the last more than 50 years, if the building was surrounded by a grave-yard during the British times soon after the annexation of Avadh by them, the building could not be a mosque, and could not be used as a mosque, for the offering of prayers, except the funeral prayers on the death of a person buried therein, is prohibited in a grave-yard according to the Muslim authorities.

(G) As already stated, there is no arrangements for storage of water for Vazoo and there are the Kasauti pillars with the figures of Hindu Gods and Godesses inscribed thereon in the building."

3135. The defendant no.4 in para 24 has replied as under:

"That the contents of para 24 of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. At no point of time there ever existed any temple at the site of the Babri Masjid and it is absolutely incorrect to say that the said mosque was constructed, after destroying any ancient temple, with the material of the alleged temple. The mosque in question has always been used as a mosque since its construction during the regime of Emperor Babar.

The contents of the sub-paras (A) to (G) of the para under reply are also incorrect and the same are also denied as stated:

(A) : That the contents of para 24(A) of the plaint are also denied as stated. The quotation of Quran is totally out of context and the same is not even correct and complete.

(B) That the contents of para 24(B) of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The land in question undoubtedly belonged to the State when the mosque in question was constructed on behalf of the State and as such it cannot be said that it could not be dedicated for the purposes of the mosque. Emperor Babar was a Sunni Muslim and the vacant land on which the Babari Masjid was built lay in his territory and did not

belong to anyone and it could very well be used by his officers for the purposes of the mosque and specially so when the Emperor Babar himself consented and gave approval for the construction of the said mosque. . . . . .

(C) That the contents of para 24(C) of the Plaint are also absolutely false and incorrect and hence denied as stated. . . . . The alleged Ram Chabutra has also not remained in existence since the time of Babar but rather the same is the creation of around 1857 period.

It is also incorrect to say that the entry of the mosque could not be possible except after passing through any place of Hindu worship. The concept of the mosque has also been wrongly and incorrectly described in the para under reply.

(D) That the contents of para 24(D) of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. There is no such requirement for the construction of any mosque – that the same should be built in a place of peace and quiet and near to a place where there is a sizeable Muslim population. It is also incorrect to say that the mosque cannot be built in a place which is surrounded by temples, where the sound of music and Konch shell, Ghante Gharyal disturbs the peace and quiet of the place.

(E) That the contents of para 24 (E) of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there is no specific shape of building a mosque and there is no requirement of existence of any minarets for calling the Azan*. The quotations given in the para under reply are also irrelevant and out of the context and the same do not even present a correct law.*

(F) That the contents of para 24 (F) of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. Whatever was mentioned in the Plaint of Suit No. 12 of 1961 would appear from the copy of the same and the averments of the Faizabad Gazetteer referred to in the para under reply are neither authentic and nor correct. It is also incorrect to say that there were no graves near the building of the said mosque. The fact is that many graves existing in the Ganj-Shaheedan have now been mostly demolished by the Bairagis and that is why they are not now visible. It is reiterated that the mosque is question has been offering regular 5 times prayers upto 22nd December, 1949 and even Friday prayers have been offered in the same till 16th December, 1949 and the Imam of the said mosque who used to lead the prayers even in 1949 namely Maulvi Abdul Ghaffar son of late Mohd Abdul Qadir. He had even filed his affidavit in writ No. 746 of 1986 : Mohd Hashim Vs. District Judge, Faizabad and others, which is still pending in this Court.

(G) That the contents of para 24 (G) of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there is a pucca well also outside the mosque in question for taking water for the purpose of Vazoo."

3136. Defendant no.5 has denied para 24 of the plaint in para 24 of his written statement.

3137. In brief, the case of the plaintiffs (Suit 4) or the pro-mosque parties is that the building in dispute was constructed in 1528 AD at the command of Emperor Babar by his commander Mir Baqi, when Babar had conquered Hindustan. He dedicated the said building to Almighty and made it a public wakf. Since then it is being used for offering namaz by muslims in general. It is a public wakf and cannot be treated a Hindu temple.

3138. It is also said that the matter being almost 500 years old, one cannot be expected to adduce evidence to show the facts as to what occurred at that time or what actually existed or happened in 1528 AD, to demonstrate the manner in which waqf of disputed property was created. If the property in dispute has been used as mosque and Namaz has been offered therein, this itself is sufficient evidence to prove the building in dispute as mosque i.e. a waqf validly created. It is the evidence by "user" which must be taken into account by the Court to find out whether there existed waqf or not and whether the building in dispute was dedicated as waqf to God or not. Once there is a waqf, the building and site both belong to God and cannot be treated otherwise so as to change its nature, whether by placing idols or by offering worship etc.

3139. On the contrary, all the learned counsels for pro-temple parties (Hindus) supporting the case of Hindu temple contended that the disputed site itself is a place of specific significance for Hindus being the "birth place of Lord Rama", "an incarnation of Lord Vishnu". This place whether was occupied by Hindus or not but on its own is a "Deity" having been worshipped by Hindus for time immemorial and much earlier from the period when it is said that the disputed building was constructed. The site in dispute was not owned by any private individual but it belong to a Deity. Neither Babar nor Mir Baqi was owner of the property. There is nothing to show that they obtained or acquired this property by valid means i.e. gift, purchase, etc. In order to constitute a waqf in accordance with Shariyat law one of the crucial factor is that the land must belong to the Waqif. Neither Babar nor Mir Baqi were owner of the property in dispute therefore, had no occasion or right to create a waqf in accordance with Shariyat Law. Construction of a Muslim religious place on the place of another religion is not permitted and that too by demolishing a religious structure of another religion. That was not and cannot be a valid dedication to God. No question arose to create a valid waqf in accordance with Shariyat Law. Once a valid waqf was never created, the claim of the disputed building as a mosque, existing since 1528 AD, is wholly baseless and imaginary. In the absence of existence of a valid waqf, the mere fact that Muslims at some point of time offered Namaz in the disputed building, assuming though not admitting, would not make the same a waqf i.e. mosque (The factum that Namaz was offered in the disputed building is seriously disputed but the argument has been advanced in the alternative).

3140. Besides the documentary and oral evidence, a lot of precedents, judicial and religious literature and history books on the subject have been cited.

3141. In view of our findings recorded on the issues, whether the building in dispute was constructed in 1528 AD by Emperor Babar or any of his agent in negative, the issues in question immediately would also stand negatived. When the building in dispute itself was not constructed in 1528 AD by Babar or any of his agent, the question of creation of a waqf by dedication to Almighty by any of them would not arise. All these issues without any further discussion thus deserve to be answered against the pro-mosque parties. However, we shall consider these issues further on merits, presuming for the purpose of these issues only, at this stage, that the building in dispute, if constructed in 1528 AD by Babar or any of his officer under his dictates, whether it satisfies the requirement of a waqf, as is known in Sharii i.e. according to tenets of Islamic law or otherwise and other aspects involved in these issues.

3142. The first question, as would crop up immediately, is what is a waqf in law of Shariyat, how it can be created or could be created and what the religious sanctions are in this regard, as also the relevant judicial precedents, if any.

3143. Some aspects of the matter pertaining to waqf have already been discussed while considering the issues relating to U.P. Act 1936 and 1960 but there it was confined only to the extent, it was necessary for adjudication of those issues. Here the issues are simply related with Islamic law on waqf as also the power, privileges, obligations etc. of conqueror or a king or a emperor or an invader, as the case may be.

3144. The Islamic religious scriptures in this regard, relevant for our purposes, have been referred in sufficiently great detail by Sri P.N.Mishra, Advocate assisted by Ms. Ranjana Agnihotri counsel for defendant no.20 (Suit 4) and that itself give enough idea on this subject.

3145. Firstly, he submits that Islam guarantees religious freedom and tolerance. It does not permit usurpation of sacred religious places of others. There does not arise any question of a valid construction of a mosque at a place where a Hindu temple existed or a place which, for its peculiar nature and specific religious importance, very pious to the persons of another religion, i.e., Hindu. In this regard he referred Holy Quran, Hadith & several other books on islamic laws.

3146. The Holy Quran and the Holy prophet has commanded that no one should be compelled to change religion. Idolater should be allowed to worship in their own way. The Holy prophets have appeared in every community and they should not be compared but respected and a Muslim can maintain good relation with his Pagan (i.e. worshipper of multi-deities) relative.

3147. The Noble Qur'an, Surah-2 Al-Baqarah, Ayat 256 at P. 42 reads as follows:

> "256. There is no compulsion in religion. Verily, the Right Path has become distinct from the wrong path. Whoever disbelieves in Taghut and believes in Allah, then he has grasped the most trustworthy handhold that will never break. And Allah is All-Hearer, All-Knower."

3148. The Holy Quran (The Noble Qur'an, Surah 109 Al-Kafirun, Ayat 1-6, page 603) permits people of other religion to carry out their religious practices according to their own religion. English translation of the said Ayat reads as follows:

> "1. Say (O Muhammad .. .. .. to these Mushrikun and Kafirun): "O Al-Kafirun (disbelievers in Allâh, in His Oneness, in His Angels, in His Books, in His Messengers, in the Day of Resurrection, and in Al-Qadar)!

3149. The Holy Quran (The Noble Qur'an, Surah-10

Yunus, Ayat 47 at page 214) recognizes birth of Messengers of the Almighty in every community or nation. English translation of the said Ayat reads as follows:

> "47. And for every Ummah (a community or a nation) there is a Messenger; when their Messenger comes, the matter will be judged between them with justice, and they will not be wronged."

3150. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 3.595 p. 610-611 reveals that Holy Prophet commanded not to give a Prophet superiority over another. Relevant portion of the said Hadith reads as follows:

> "The Prophet said, "Do not give a prophet superiority over another, for on the Day of Resurrection all the people will fall unconscious and I will be the first to emerge from the earth, and will see Moses standing and holding one of the legs of the Throne. I will not know whether Moses has fallen unconscious or the first unconsciousness was sufficient for him."

3151. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.407 reveals that Holy Prophet allowed a Muslim to keep good relation with his mother who was pagan i.e. idolater. The said Hadith reads as follows:

> "Narrated Asma 'bint Abi Bakr: During the period of the peace treaty of Quraish with Allah's Apostle, my mother, accompanied by her father, came to visit me, and she was a pagan. I consulted Allah's Apostle, "O Allah's Apostle! My mother has come to me and she desires to receive a reward from me, shall I keep good relation with her?" He said, "Yes, keep good relation with her."

3152. Sri Mishra contended that freedom of religion and

religious practices to Hindus during Islamic Rule was granted to the Hindus and they were not forced to be governed by Islamic Law.

3153. Law of Shar as interpreted by Great Imam Abu Haneef recognized right of freedom of religion & religious practices of the Hindus of India under Islamic Rulers. Sultan Sikandar Lodi was dissuaded by the Greatest Alim of that age Miyan Abdullah Ajodhani from demolishing a Hindu Temple & putting ban on religious practices of the Hindus. Even Emperor Aurangzeb who later on caused demolition of several Temples of the Hindus throughout his Empire, in his Firman dated 1659 admitted that Shariyat do not permit to demolish old Temples and impose restriction on performance of customary and other religious rituals of the Hindus.

3154. Ibn Battuta tells that Muhammad bin Tughlaq had granted permission to rebuild demolished Idol Temples to the King of China. During the reign of Caliphs, the people of other faith i.e. Zimmis were allowed to carry out processions, observe festivals, beat drums, erect places of worship & maintain images therein.

3155. In Waqiyat-i-Mutaqi written by Rizkulah Mutaqi (b. 1491-92 & d. 1581 A.D.), Tabkats I Akbari by Khwaja Nizamuddin Ahmad (completed in 1592-93 A.D.) and Tarikh-i-Shahi (completed in the beginning of Emperor Jahangir's reign) it has been narrated that once upon a time when Sultan Sikandar Lodi (1488-1517 A.D.) was the Crown prince and known as Nizam Khan, he sought opinion of Alims for the purpose of demolishing an ancient temple of Hindus at Thaneshwar and putting ban on Hindus from taking holy dip in the Sacred pond at Thaneshwar. Alims unanimously made a request to him for putting that question to Greatest Alim of the age Miyan Abdullah Ajodhani who was available at that place. On being asked, the Great Alim Abdullah Ajodhani replied that Shar does not permit destruction of ancient temple and prohibition of customary rites of the Hindus. From said answer Sikandar Lodi became very much annoyed and drew his sword inter alia stating that 'first I will kill you and thereafter attack Thaneshwar'. Then Alim fearlessly answered that 'everyone has to die on one day and when anyone goes near a tyrant then he does it knowing fully well that his death is certain. I am not worried about my life but I say that if you had nothing to do with Shar then there was no need to put this question to me but since you asked me that question of Shar I replied it in accordance with Shar'. In "Uttar Taimoorkalin Bharat Bhag.1" (History of the Part-Taimoor Sultans of Delhi, Part 1) pages 104, 228 and 322 narrates it as follows:

उसने अपनी बाल्यावस्था में जब कि वह शहजादा था यह सुना कि थानेश्वर में एक कुण्ड है, जहाँ हिन्दू एकत्र होकर स्नान करते हैं। उसने आलिमों से पूछा कि ''इसके विषय में शरा का क्या आदेश है?'' उन्होंने उत्तर दिया कि ''प्राचीन मंदिरों को नष्ट करने की अनुमति नहीं है। जब कि उस कुण्ड में प्राचीन काल से स्नान करने की प्रथा चली आ रही है, उसमें स्नान का निषेध आपके लिए उचित नहीं।'' शहजादे ने कटार निकाल ली और उस आलिम की हत्या का संकल्प करते हुए कहा कि, ''तू काफिरों का पक्षपाती है।'' उस बुजुर्ग ने उत्तर दिया कि, ''जो कुछ शरा में लिखा है उसे मैं कहता हूँ और सत्य बात कहने में कोई भय नहीं।'' शहजादा संतुष्ट हो गया।

3156. In his Farman/Manshur of Emperor Aurangzeb of 15th March, 1659 AD. has said that in accordance with the Sharia the ancient temples, are not to be destroyed as such there should be no interference in offering prayers in temples of the Hindus. In spite of the fact that subsequently this ruler himself caused demolition of several temples, in his Firman dated 1659 he has accepted that sharia neither permit to interfere with the worship of the Hindus nor allows to destroy their temples.

3157. Ibn Battuta who held the office of the Kazi of Delhi as also functioned as Mutawalli of the Mausoleum of Sultan Kutubuddin during the reign of Sultan Mahommed Bin Tughlaq has noted down that Sultan Mahommed Bin Tughlaq had granted permission to the King of China to rebuild the idol temples that were demolished by his army in Himalayan region subject to payment of Jizya. Page 214 of the book 'IBN BATTUTA Travels in Asia and Africa 1325-1354' translated and selected by H.A.R. Gibb (first published in 1929 reprinted in 2007 by Low Price Publications, Delhi) reads as follows:

The king of China had sent valuable gifts to the sultan, including a hundred slaves of both sexes, five hundred pieces of velvet and silk cloth, musk, jewelled garments and weapons, with a request that the sultan would permit him to rebuild the idol-temple which is near the mountains called Qarajil (Himalaya). It is in a place known as Samhal, to which the Chinese go on pilgrimage; the

Muslim army in India had captured it, laid it in ruins and sacked it.' The sultan, on receiving this gift, wrote to the king saying that the request could not be granted by Islamic law, as permission to build a temple in the territories of the Muslims was granted only to those who paid a poll-tax; to which he added "If thou wilt pay the jizya we shall empower thee to build it. And peace be on those who follow the True Guidance."

3158. Syed Amir Ali in his book "The Spirit of Islam" (at p. 272) substantiate that the Islam itself has ever maintained the most complete tolerance in respect of religion and if any excesses was done, it was by the passions of the ruler, using religious element as a pretext. Relevant extract thereof is as under:

"If we separate the political necessity which has often spoken and acted in the name of religion, no faith is more tolerant than Islam to the followers of other creeds. "Reasons of State" have led a sovereign here and there to display a certain degree of intolerance, or to insist upon a certain uniformity of faith; but the system itself has ever maintained the most complete tolerance. Christians and Jews, as a rule, have never been molested in the exercise of their religion, or constrained to change their faith. If they are required to pay a special tax, it is in lieu of military service, and it is but right that those who enjoy the protection of the State should contribute in some shape to the public burdens. Towards the idolaters there was greater strictness in theory, but in practice the law was equally liberal. If at any time they were treated with harshness, the cause is to be found in the passions of the ruler or the population. The religious element was used only as a pretext."

3159. The 'Spirit of Islam' (at p. 273) records the facts that the Holy Prophet gave guarantee of freedom of religion to the Christians of Najran and the neighbouring territories, inter alia, stating that there would be no interference with the practice of their faith, monks would not be removed from their Monastery and no image would be destroyed. It says:

"Has any conquering race or Faith given to its subject nationalities a better guarantee than is to be found in the following words of the Prophet? "To (the Christians of) Najran and the neighbouring territories, the security of God and the pledge of His Prophet are extended for their lives, their religion, and their property—to the present as well as the absent and others besides; there shall be no interference with (the practice of) their faith or their observances; nor any change in their rights or privileges; no bishop, shall be removed from his bishopric; nor any monk from his monastery, nor any priest from his priesthood, and they shall continue to enjoy every thing great and small as heretofore; no image or cross shall be destroyed; they shall not oppress or be oppressed; they shall not practise the rights of blood-vengeance as in the Days of Ignorance; no tithes shall be levied from them nor shall they be required to furnish provisions for the troops."

3160. The 'Spirit of Islam' (at p. 273-274) records the facts that during the reign of Caliphs, the people of other faith i.e. Zimmis were allowed to carry out processions, observe festivals, beat drums, erect places of worship. Relevant extract of the said book reads as follows:

"After the subjugation of Hira, and as soon as the people had taken the oath of allegiance, Khalid bin-Walid issued a proclamation by which he guaranteed the lives, liberty and property of the Christians, and declared that "they shall not be prevented from beating their nakus and taking out their crosses on occasions of festivals." "And this declaration," says Imam Abu-Yusuf, "was approved of and sanctioned by the Caliph and his council."

The non-Moslem subjects were not precluded from building new churches or temples. Only in places exclusively inhabited by Moslems a rule of this kind existed in theory. "No new Church or temple," said Abdullah bin Abbas, "can be erected in a town solely inhabited by Moslems: but in other places where there are already Zimmis inhabiting from before, we must abide by our contract with them."

The best testimony to the toleration of the early Moslem government is furnished by the Christians themselves. In the reign of Osman (the third Caliph), the Christian Patriarch of Merv addressed the Bishop of Fars, named Simeon, in the following terms: "The Arabs who have been given by God the kingdom (of the earth) do not attack the Christian faith; on the contrary they help us in our religion; they respect our God and our Saints, and bestow gifts on our churches and monasteries."

3161. Sri Mishra submitted that idolater Hindus were recognised as Zimmis by the Great Imam Abu Haneef. Since Empeor Babar was follower of Imam Abu Hanif's school, had no right to erect mosque over a Hindu shrine. Hindus were recognized as Jimmis in 712 AD by the Great Imam Abu Haneef by virtue of authorities conferred upon the Doctors of Islam by Hadiths for the purpose of showing the people right path on the basis of correct interpretation of Law of Shar. Mahomed Kasim Feristha in his book "Tarikhe Feristha" records that in reply to a question of Sultan Allaooddeen Khiljy, Kaji Mugdis answered him that the Hindus were granted status of Jimmi by the Great Imam Abu Huneef. Sri Mishra quoted page 198 of the English Translation of "History of the rise of the Mahomedan Power in India till the year AD 1612" translated by John Briggs (first published in 1829 reprinted in 2006 by Low Price Publications, Delhi) which reads as follows:

> "First question. "From what description of Hindoos is it lawful to exact obedience and tribute?"--Answer. "It is lawful to exact obedience and tribute from all infidels, and they can only be considered as obedient who pay the poll-tax and tribute without demur, even should it be obtained by force; for, according to the law of the Prophet, it is written, regarding infidels, 'Tax them to the extent that they can pay, or utterly destroy them.' The learned of the faith have also enjoined the followers of Islam. 'To slay them, or to convert them to the faith;' a maxim conveyed in the words of the Prophet himself. The Imam Huneef, however, subsequently considers that the poll-tax, or as heavy a tribute imposed upon them as they can bear, may be substituted for death, and he has accordingly forbidden that their blood should be heedlessly spilt. So that it is commanded that the Juzeea (poll-tax) and Khiraj (tribute) should be exacted to the uttermost farthing from them, in order that the punishment may approximate as nearly as

3162. In 712 AD Imam Abu Hanifah recognised the Hindus of Sind and Multan as Jimmis. 'The Mughal Empire' edited by Sri R.C. Majumdar (3rd Edn. 1990 published by Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, Bombay) at page 538 reads as follows:

> In 712 A.D. Muhammad bin Qasim, the conqueror of Sind, accorded the Hindus of Sind and Multan the status of zimmis which was the special privilege of Christians and Jews, the famous Muslim Jurist, Abu Hanifah, recognised this enactment as legal.

3163. It is contended that the Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2681, 2682 & 2685 reveal that a learned jurist is greater than a thousand worshippers. Commentator explains that as a learned jurist does not only correct himself and is safe from the illusion of the Saitan, but also he protects others against the plots, conspiracies and errors of the devil and he guides them correctly by teaching the issues of religion. He is superior than a dedicated worshipper who lacks firm knowledge, the benefit of his worship is restricted to his own self, and also it is easy for the Satan to misguide him. From the said Hadith it can be inferred that superiority to the learned jurist has been given only for the purpose to tell the people what is right or wrong according to religion. Said Hadiths read as follows:

> "2681. Ibn Abbas narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "The Faqih is harder on Ash-Shaitan than a thousand worshippers." (Da'if)

the benefit of his worship is restricted to his own self, and also it is easy for the Satan to misguide him; while a learned jurist does not only correct himself and is safe for the illusion of the Satan, but also he protects others against the plots, conspiracy and errors of the devil and he guides them correctly by teaching the issues of religion.

2682. Qais bin Kathir said: "A man from Al-Madhinah came to Abu Ad-Darda when he was in Dimashq. So he said: "What brings you O my nephew? he replied: 'A Hadith has reached me which you have narrated from the Messenger of Allah'. he said: 'You did not come for some need?' He said: 'No'. He said: 'Did you come for trade?' He said: 'No, I did not come except seeking this Hadith'. So he said: 'Indeed, I heard the Messenger of Allah saying: 'Whoever takes a path upon which he seeks knowledge, then Allah makes a path to Paradise easy for him. And indeed the angels lower their wings in approval of the one seeking knowledge. Indeed forgiveness is sought for the knowledgeable one by whomever is in the heavens and whomever is in the earth, even the fish in the waters. And superiority of the scholar over the worshipper is like the superiority of the moon over the rest of the celestial bodies. Indeed the scholars are the heirs of the Prophets, *and the Prophets do not leave behind Dinar or Dirham. The only legacy of the scholars is knowledge, so whoever takes from it, then he has indeed taken the most able share. (Da'if)*

2685. Abu Umamah Al-Bahili narrated: "Two men were mentioned before the Messenger of Allah. One of them a worshipper, and the other a scholar. So, the messenger of Allah said: "The superiority of the scholar over the worshipper is like my superiority over the least of you.' Then the Messenger of Allah said: 'Indeed Allah, His angels, the inhabitants of the heavens and the earths – even the ant in his hole, even the fish – say Sulat upon the one who teaches the people to do good." (Hasan)"

3164. Sri Mishra explained the concept of "Jeziyah" and contended that freedom of religion was subject to payment of Jeziyah. As the Hindus were paying the said tax which was in the nature of a protection tax, it was the duty of Islamic Rulers and army of Islam to protect religious Hindu shrine and life of Hindus. he elaborated the above submission in multifold ways.

3165. The Divine Law of Shar contained in Holy Quran and Hadiths guarantees freedom of religion and religious practices to the Jimmis/ Dhimmiz (protectees) who pay jizya (a tax taken from the non-Muslims who are in the protection of the Muslim government). There were 20 conditions of Jeziyah one of which permits Muslim traveller to stay in Jimmis' temple while other permits them to stay in Jimmis' home for three days. These terms and condition were in practice which is very much apparent from the disclosure of Ibn Battuta that he stayed in the house of an old lady who was a Jimmy as in the city there was only one House of the Governor. Riyazu-S-Salatin, A History of Bengal on its page 67 has recorded the fact that Bakhtiyar Khilaji stayed in a temple within the territory of Kamrup Kingdom during his retreat from Tibbat campaign without harming the Temple.

3166. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.386 p. 836-837 reveals that the Holy Prophet's command was for the Muslim army to fight against the persons of other faith till they worship Allah alone or agree to pay jizya. It say:

"Our Prophet, the Messenger of our Lord, has ordered us to fight you till you worship Allah Alone or give Jizya (i.e. tribute); and our Prophet has informed us that our Lord says:-"Whoever amongst us is killed (i.e. martyred), shall go to Paradise to lead such a luxurious life as he has never seen, and whoever amongst us remain alive, shall become your master."

3167. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.404 p. 843-844 reveals that asylum to non-Muslims living in Muslim territory was granted by Allah and His Holy Apostle. Relevant extract of the said Hadith reads as follows:

". . . Narrated said: Abu Huraira once said (to the people), "What will your state be when you can get no Dinar or Dirhan (i.e. taxes from the Dhimmis)?" on that someone asked him, "What makes you know that this state will take place, O Abu- Huraira?" He said, "By Him in Whose Hands Abu Huraira's life is, I know it through the statement of the true and truly inspired one (i.e. the Prophet). "The people asked, "What does the Statement say?" He replied, "Allah and His Apostle's asylum granted to Dhimis, i.e non-Muslims living in a Muslim territory) will be outraged, and so Allah will make the hearts of those Dhimmis so daring that they will refuse to pay the Jizya they will be supposed to pay."

3168. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol. III) Hadith 1731R1 p. 180-181 reveals that when Holy Prophet appointed anyone as commander of an army he specially commanded them to invite the enemies who are polytheists to three course of action and if they respond anyone of these the commander must accept it and keep from doing them any harm.

Out of three options one was to demand Jizya from the people who refused to accept Islam and if they agree to pay no harm should be done to them. The said Hadith reads as follows:

> "(1731R1) It has been reported from Sulaiman b. Buraid through his father that when the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) appointed anyone as leader of an army or detachment he would especially exhort him to fear Allah and to be good to the Muslims who were with him. He would say: Fight in the name of Allah and in the way of Allah. Fight against those who disbelieve in Allah. Make a holy war; do not embezzle the spoils; do not break your pledge; and do not mutilate (the dead) bodies; do not kill the children. When you meet your enemies who are polytheists, invite them to three courses of action. If they respond to any one of these, you also accept it and keep from doing them any harm. Invite them to (accept) Islam; if they respond to you, accept it from them and desist from fighting against them. Then invite them to migrate from their lands to the land of Muhajirs and inform them that, if they do so, they shall have all the privileges and obligations of the Muhajirs. If they refuse to migrate, tell them that they will have the status of Bedouin Muslims and will be subjected to the Commands of Allah like other Muslims, but they will not get any share from the spoils of war or fai' except when they actually fight with the Muslims (against the disbelievers). If they refuse to accept Islam, demand from them the Jizya. If they agree to pay, accept it form them and hold off your hands. If they refuse to pay the tax, seek Allah's help and fight them. When you lay siege to a fort and the besieged appeal to you for protection in the name of Allah and His Prophet, do not accord to them the guarantee of Allah and his Prophet, but accord to them your own guarantee and the guarantee of your companions for it is a lesser sin that the security given by you or your companions be disregarded than that the security granted in the name of Allah and His Prophet be violated. When you besiege a fort and the besieged want you to let them out in accordance with Allah's Command, do not let them come out in accordance with His Command, but do so at your (own) command, for you do not know whether or not you will be able to carry out Allah's behest with regard to them."

3169. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol. III) Hadith 1732 and 1733 p. 182 reveals that when Holy Prophet deputed anyone of his Companions on a mission he always directed him to show leniency and not to create aversion towards religion. The said Hadiths says:

"(1732) It is narrated on the authority of Abu Musa that when the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) deputed any of his Companions on a mission, he would say: Give tiding (to the people); do not create (in their minds) aversion (towards religion); show them leniency and do not be hard upon them."

"(1733) It has also been narrated by Sa'id b. Abu Burda through his father through his grandfather that the Prophet of Allah (may peace be upon him) sent him and Mu'ath (on a mission) to the Yeman, and said (by way of advising them): Show leniency (to the people); don't be hard upon them; give them glad tidings (of Divine favours in this world and the hereafter); and do not create aversion. Work in collaboration and don't be divided."

3170. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 2.559 p. 381, 4.387 p. 837, and 5.351 p. 1103-1104 reveal that Holy Prophet allowed the King of Aila as well as Bahrain who were non-Muslims to remain and rule over their respective countries subject to payment of Jizya. Relevant extract from the Hadith 2.559 and 5.351 as well as full text of hadith 4.387 is as under:

"....A strong wind blew at night and a man stood up and he was blown away to a mountain called Taiy, The King of Aila sent a white mule and a sheet for wearing to the Prophet as a present, and wrote to the Prophet that his people would stay in their place (and will pay Jizya taxation.)"

(Hadith Sahih Bukhari 2.559 at p. 381)

"Narrated Abu Humaid As-Saidi: We accompanied the Prophet in the Ghazwa of Tabuk and the king of 'Aila presented a white mule and a cloak as a gift to the Prophet. And the Prophet wrote to him a peace treaty allowing him to keep authority over his country."

(Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.387 at p. 837)

"Allah's Apostle sent Abu 'Ubaida bin Al-Jarrah to Bahrain to bring the Jizya taxation from its people, for

www.vadaprativada.com

Allah's Apostle had made a peace treaty with the people of Bahrain and appointed Al-'Ala' bin Al-Hadrami as their ruler. So, Abu 'Ubaida arrived with the money from Bahrain."

3171. Sacred Compilation of Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol. 3) Hadith 1587 and 1588 p. 355 reveal that Holy Prophet took Jizya from the Zoroastrians of Hazar & Bahrain, Caliph Umar and Caliph Uthman took it in Persia from Persians. The said Hadiths read as follows:

"1587. Bajalah narrated that 'Umar would not take the Jizyah from the Zoroastrians until 'Abdur-Rahman bin 'Awf informed him that the Prophet took the Jizyah from the Zoroastrians of Hajar." (Sahih) There is no more dialogue in the Hadith than this. And this Hadith is Hasan Sahih."

"1588. Malik narrated from Az-Zuhri, that Saib bin Yazid said: "The Messenger of Allah took the Jizyah from the Zoroastrians of Bahrain, and 'Umar took it in Persia, and 'Uthman took it from the Persians."

3172. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 2.475, 4.287, 4.388 and 5.50 reveal the recommendation of Caliph Umar to his successor to abide by the rules and regulations concerning the Jimmis/Dhimmis (protectees). Relevant portion of the said Hadiths reads as follows:

". . . I recommend him to abide by the rules and regulations concerning the Dhimmis (protectees) of Allah and His Apostle, to fulfill their contracts completely and fight for

(Hadith Sahih Bukhari 2.475 at p. 355)

"Narrated 'Amr bin Maimum: 'Umar (after he was stabbed), instructed (his would-be-successor) saying, "I urge him (i.e. the new Caliph) to take care of those non-Muslims who are under the protection of Allah and His Apostle in that he should observe the convention agreed upon with them, and fight on their behalf (to secure their safety) and he should not over-tax them beyond their capability."

(Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.287 at p. 798)

"Narrated Juwairiya bin Qudama at-Tamimi: We said to 'Umar bin Al-Khattab, O Chief of the believers! Advise us. "He said, "I advise you to fulfill Alla's Convention (made with the Dhimmis) as it is the convention of your Prophet and the source of the livelihood of your dependents (i.e. the taxes from the Dhimmis.)"

(Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.388 at p. 837)

". . . I also recommend him concerning Allah's and His Apostle's protectives (i.e Dhimmis) to fulfill their contracts and to fight for them and not overburden them with what is beyond their ability."

(Hadith Sahih Bukhari 5.50 at p. 1004)

3173. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.657 reveals that the Holy Prophet said that incarnation of Jesus would abolish Jizyah from non-Muslims. The said Hadith reads as follows:

"Narrated Abu Huraira: Allah's Apostle said, "By Him in

www.vadaprativada.com

Whose Hands my soul is, surely (Jesus), the son of Mery will soon descend amongst you and will judge mankind justly (as a Just Ruler); he will break the Cross and kill the pigs and there will be no Jizya (i.e. taxation taken from non Muslims). Money will be in abundance so that nobody will accept it, and single prostration to Allah (in prayer) will be better than the whole world and whatever is in it." Abu Huraira added "If you wish, you can recite (this verse of the Holy Book):--'And there is none Of the people of the Scriptures (Jews and Christians) But must believe in him (i.e. Jesus as an Apostle of Allah and a human being) Before his death. And on the day of Judgment He will be a witness Against them."

3174. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 8.809 and 8.825 reveal that the Holy Prophet administered justice to a Jew according to his scripture Torah. The said Hadith reads as follows:

Narrated Ibn 'Umar : A Jew and a Jewess were brought to Allah's Apostle on a charge of committing an illegal sexual intercourse. The Prophet asked them. "What is the legal punishment (for this sin) in your Book (Torah) ?" They replied, "Our priests have innovated the punishment of blackening the faces with charcoal and Tajbiya." 'Abdullah bin Salam said, "O Allah's Apostle, tell them to bring the Torah." The Torah was brought, and then one of the Jews put his hand over the Divine Verse of the Rajam (stoning to death) and started reading what preceded and what followed it. On that, Ibn Salam said to the Jew, "Lift up your hand." Behold ! The Divine Verse of the Rajam was

under his hand. So Allah's Apostle ordered that the two (sinners) be stoned to death, and so they were stoned. Ibn 'Umar added : So both of them were stoned at the Balat and I saw the Jew sheltering the Jewess."

"Narrated 'Abdullah bin 'Umar: The jews came to Allah's Apostle and mentioned to him that a man and a lady among them had committed illegal sexual intercourse. Allah's Apostle said to them, "What do you find in the Torah regarding the Rajam?" they replied, "We only disgrace and flog them with stripes." 'Abdullah bin Salam said to them, 'You have told a lie the penalty of Rajam is in the Torah.' They brought the Torah and opened it. One of them put his hand over the verse of the Rajam and read what was before and after it. 'Abdullah bin Salam said to him, "Lift up you hand." where he lifted it there appeared the verse of the Rajam. So they said, "O Muhammad! He has said the truth, the verse of the Rajam is in it (Torah)." then Allah's Apostle ordered that the two persons (guilty of illegal sexual intercourse) be stoned to death, and so they were stoned, and I saw the man bending over the woman so as to protect her from the stones."

3175. Sri Misra argued that according to the Holy Prophet, in one land there cannot be two Qibalahs and/or Idgah and Mosque as such Sri Ramjanmasthan temple and a mosque cannot and could not have co-exist in the disputed site.

3176. The Holy Prophet hascommanded that there must not be two sacred buildings of worship of two different religions in one land, in other words there cannot be a Masjid and an Idol Temple in one land. The Holy Prophet has said that as

Jizyah cannot be imposed upon Muslim, two Qiblas cannot be in one land, coexistence of two Qiblas one of Hindus and other of Muslims in one land is mandatorily forbidden according to Shar. The Holy Prophet also says that neither prayer can be offered by forming rows between two columns nor funeral prayer can be offered in a mosque. An Idgah is a place where funeral prayers or the prayers of the two Ids are usually offered. As such same site cannot be a Masjid from very first day must be laid on piety not on hypocrisy and it must be always maintained by the Muslims. The Holy Prophet says that a Masjid must not be used as a home and place of gossiping. Imam Aboo Yoosuf and Imam Moohummud the disciples of the Great Imam Abu Haneef say that if at least two times prayer is not offered followed by Adhan/Ajan then the place is not a Public Mosque. The Mosque retained columns of Hindu Temple. Presence of Chulha, found during the ASI's excavation, indicates that said building was being used as home of Deities and Sevayats & Pujaris; it never acquired the status of a Masjid according to Muslim Law and belief.

3177. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol. 2) Hadith 633 reveals that in one land there must not be two Religious buildings of two different religions. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> 633. Ibn Abbas narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "Two Qiblahs in one land are of no benefit, and there is no Jizyah upon the Muslims." (Da'if)

3178. Neil B.E. Baillie in his Book 'A Digest of Mahommedan Law' Part-First (Second Edition 1875) at its page 616 records that Imam Aboo Yoosuf and Imam

www.vadaprativada.com

Moohummud, the disciples of the Great Imam Abu Haneef say that if at least two times prayer is not offered followed by Adhan/Ajan then the place is not a Public Mosque. Relevant extract from the above referred pages reads as follows:

> "When an assembly of worshippers pray in a musjid with permission, that is delivery. But it is a condition that the prayers be with izan, or the regular call, two times or more, and be public, not private. For though there should be an assembly, yet if it is without izan, and the prayers are private instead of public, the place is no musjid according to the two disciples. But if one person were appointed to officiate both as mooezzin and imam, and he should make the call, and then stand up and pray alone, the place would become a musjid by general agreement."

3179. Divine "The Holy Quran Surah 9 At-Taubah Ayat 107-110" commands that foundation of a Mosque must be laid from the first day on piety not hypocrisy otherwise a mosque built by hypocrite is destined to crumble down. The said Holy Ayat reads as follows:

> "107. And as for those who put up a mosque by way of harm and disbelief and to disunite the believers and as an outpost for those who warred against Allah and His Messenger (Muhammad) aforetime, they will indeed swear that their intention is nothing but good. Allah bears witness that they are certainly liars."*
> "108. Never stand you therein. Verily, the mosque whose foundation was laid from the first day on piety is more worthy that you stand therein (to pray). In it are men who love to clean and to purify themselves. And*

www.vadaprativada.com

Allah loves those who make themselves clean and pure [i.e. who clean their private parts with dust (which has the properties of soap) and water from urine and stools, after answering the call of nature.]"

"109. Is it then he who laid the foundation of his building on piety to Allah and His Good Pleasure better, or he who laid the foundation of his building on the brink of an undetermined precipice ready to crumble down, so that it crumbled to pieces with him into the Fire of Hell. And Allah guides not the people who are the Zalimun (cruel, violent, proud, polytheist and wrong-doer)."

"110. The building which they built will never cease to be a cause of hypocrisy and doubt in their hearts unless their hearts are cut to pieces. (i.e till they die). And Allah is All-Knowing, All-Wise."

(Be it mentioned herein that this Holy Ayat came down in respect of Masjid-i-Jarar built in Madina by the hypocrites with ulterior motive. Ultimately this Masjid was burnt and destroyed on command of the Holy Prophet.)

3180. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 4.403 reveals that the Holy Prophet has termed such a person hypocrite who breaks promise, did not honour covenant, tells lie and behave in a very imprudent and misleading manner. The said Hadith reads as follows:

"Narrated 'Abdullah bin 'Amr : Allah's Apostle said, "Whoever has (the following) four characteristics will be a pure hypocrite: "If he speaks, he tells a lie; if he gives a promise, he breaks it, if he makes a covenant he proves treacherous ; and if he quarrels, he behaves in a very imprudent evil insulting manner (unjust). And whoever has one of these characteristics, has one characteristic of a hypocrite, unless he gives it us."

3181. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol. 5) Hadith 2684 reveals that two things will not be together in a hypocrite that is to say good manners and fiqh in the religion. Said Hadiths and comments thereto read as follows:

"2684. Abu Hurairah narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "Two things will not be together in a hypocrite: Good manners, and Fiqh in the religion." (Da'if)

3182. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol 1) Hadith 321 reveals that Masjid cannot be used as a home nor a place for gossiping. Relevant portion of said Hadith reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"Ibn Abbas said, "It is not to be used as a home nor a place for talking about this or that."

3183. In view of the fact that during the ASI's excavation at suit premises a Chulha (an oven) has been found. It leaves no doubt that said structure was being used as home of Hindu deity and Chulha was being used for preparing food for the deity as such said structure cannot be inferred to be a Masjid.

3184. Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol. 1) Hadith 229 reveals that the Holy Prophet had commanded the Muslims not to pray between two columns. Said Hadith reads as follows:

"229. Abdul-Hamid bin Mahmud said: "We prayed behind one of the Amirs, the people compelled us such that we prayed between two columns. When we had prayed, Anas

www.vadaprativada.com

bin Malik said: 'We would be prevented from this during the time of Allah's Messenger." (Sahih)

3185. In the disputed structure there were several columns and in course of forming rows for offering prayer those columns were unavoidable, the said structure thus was not fit for offering prayer.

3186. Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol. II) 973 as interpreted by Imam Abu Hanifa on the basis of a Hadith recorded in Abu Dawud reveals that funeral prayer in the Mosque was prohibited.

"(973) 'Abbad b. 'Abdullah b. Zubair reported that A'isha ordered that the bier of Sa'd b. Abu Waqqas be brought into the mosque, so she can pray for him. The people disapproved this (act) of hers. She said: How soon the people have forgotten that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) had offered the funeral prayer of Suhail b. Al-Baida but in a mosque."

3187. There is a difference of opinion among the jurists whether a funeral prayer can be offered in a mosque or not. It is on the basis of this hadith that Imam Shafi'i of the view that it can be offered in a mosque. Imam Abu Hanifa and Imam Malik on the basis of a hadith recorded in Abu Dawud (viz. The Messenger of Allah said: He who offers funeral prayer in the mosque has nothing for him) disapprove the funeral prayer in the mosque.

3188. In Idgahs/Musallas funeral prayers can be offered. In his book "Mahommedan Law", Syed Ameer Ali, describes Mosques and Idghas or Musalla as follows:

"The word masjid is derived from sijda, devotion, and

means a place of devotion or a place where prayers are offered to the Almighty.

A very fair description of an ordinary mosque is given by Herklot in his Qanoon-i-Islam. Musallas are prayer-grounds, and the word is derived from the word salat or prayers. In India, they are generally called Idgahs or namaz-gahs, and consist of a plot of ground set apart for the performance of the daily prayers or the Id prayers*."*

"Every ground set apart for prayers is not necessarily a musallah and subject to the rules governing a mosque. A musalla is a place where funeral prayers or the prayers of the two Ids are usually offered. In such cases only the place where the congregation gather and the worship is performed that is governed by the rules governing a mosque."

(Mahommedan Law by Syed Ameer Ali, 5th Edn. Reprint 2009, published by Hind Publishing House, Allahabad, p. 418, 419 and 420)

3189. The next submission is that structure having images/idols and designs cannot be a Masjid under Law of Shar as such the disputed structure as it was cannot be termed "mosque". This argument was elaborated and supported as under:

A. The holy prophet has said that angles do not enter in a house which has images, portraits, pictures, idols etc. and even the designed garments detract attention from prayer and, for that reason prohibited to decorate a mosque with pictures. As the disputed structure on its columns and other parts had engraved/chiseled

images/idols of Load-bearing Yakshas, Devis, Divine – couples, Kalash, Lotus, Leaves, Varah, Swastikas, Srivatsa, Kapot-pallis, etc., it does not comes withing the definition of Masjid according to Muslim Religious Law ans belief but it comes within the definition of a Hindu Temple according to Hindu Personal Religious Law and belief.

B. The sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 528 reveals that the Holy Prophet prohibited to decorate Mosques with pictures. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> (528) A'isha reported: Umm Habiba and Umm Salama mentioned before the messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) a church which they had seen in Abyssinia and which had pictures in it. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: When a pious man amongst them (among the religious group) dies they build a place of worship on his grave, and then decorate it with such pictures. They would be the worst of creatures on the Day of Judgement in the sight of Allah."

www.vadaprativada.com

From the aforesaid Hadith it is crystal clear that there is forbiddance in Islam to decorate the Mosque with pictures. As such a building decorated with pictures can't be declared as a Masjid.

C. The sacred Compilations Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111and 2112 as well as Jami' At Tirmidhi (Vol.-V) Hadith 2804 reveal that the Holy Prophet has acknowledged that the Angles do not enter a house in which there is an object of images or a dog. Said Jami' At Tirmidhi read as follows:

"2804. Ibn Abbas narrated: "I heard Abu Talhah saying: 'I heard the Messenger of Allah saying: "The angels do not enter a house in which there is a dog or an object of images*." (Sahih)*

Comments:

The taking or drawing of a picture is not allowed, keeping it is also not permissible, and whoever does so is deprived of the blessed and merciful supplications of the angels; while a person is in need of mercy and blessing at every moment. Likewise, a dog is an impure animal and some are of a satanic nature and the angels despise the devil."

(Jami' At Tirmidhi (Vol.-V) Hadith 2804)

From the aforesaid Hadiths it is crystal clear that a building which contains images or dogs does not come within the definition of an "Abode of Angels" for the reasons of such building being hated by the angels.

D. The sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 556 reveals that the Holy Prophet prohibited to use designed garment at the time of prayer. Said Hadith reads as follows:

"(556) A'isha reported: The Apostle of Allah (may peace be upon him) prayed in a garment which had designs over it, so he (the Holy Prophet) said: Take it to Abu Jahm and bring me a plain blanket from him, because its designs have distracted me."

www.vadaprativada.com

From the aforesaid Hadiths it is known that designs detract attention from prayer wherefrom it can be necessarily inferred that a Masjid wherein prayer is offered to Almighty must not have design in it otherwise it will detract the attention of the worshippers from prayer and lose its status of being a Masjid.

E. The Muwatta' Imam Malik (para 1743) reveals that the Holy Prophet declined to use a pillow (mattress) painted with pictures and said that no angles enter the house that contains a picture as also that the makers of pictures will suffer punishment on the day of judgment said Muwatta 1743 reads as follows:

"(1743) 'A'ishah reported that she bought a pillow (mattress) on which were painted pictures. When the Messengers of Allah (may peace be upon him) saw it, he kept standing at the door of her apartment and did not enter and his face showed signs of displeasure. She said : Messenger of Allah, I repent and ask forgiveness of Allah and His Messenger ; what fault is mine? He asked : What pillow (mattress) is this? She said : I bought it, so that you may sit on it, recline on it. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said : The makers of pictures will suffer punishment on the Day of Judgment. They will be told to give life to what they had painted in the world. Then he added : No angels enter the house that contains pictures."

3190. There cannot be a mosque in a place surrounded by graves as facing towards graves Namaz cannot be offered. This according to Sri P.N.Mishra, Advocate, is another reason for not

treating the disputed building a mosque. Elaborating the above submission, Sri Misra said:

A. In the schedule of the plaint the suit premises has been shown to be surrounded on all four sides by the graves, and sacred Hadiths prohibit from – offering prayers towards graves, visiting the graces of strangers, sitting on graves and erecting tent over a grave as such according to Islamic Law and tenets the scheduled Premises was never appropriate place for offering prayers to Merciful Almighty Allah. As such no deceleration of Mosque as prayed for can be granted.

B. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith 1050 reveals that the Holy Prophet has commanded not to sit on the graves nor perform Salat i.e. prayer towards graves.

1050. Abu Marthad Al-Ghanawi narrated that the Prophet said: "Do not sit on the graves not perform Salat towards them." (Sahih)

(He said:) There are narrations on this topic from Abu Hurairah,' Amr bin Hazm, and Bashir bin Al-Khasasiyyah.

(Another route) with this chain, and it is similar.

C. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith 1054 and ibid (Vol.1) Hadith 230 reveals that the Holy Prophet had prohibited Muslims from visiting the graves except the grave of their mothers. The said Hadith reads as follows:

"1054*. Sulaiman bin Buraidah narrated from his father that the Messenger of Allah said: "I had prohibited you*

www.vadaprativada.com

from visiting the graves. But Muhammad was permitted to visit the grave of his mother: so visit them, for they will remind you of the Hereafter."

Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith 1054

"320. Ibn 'Abbas narrated: "Allah's Messenger cursed the women who visit the graves, and those who use them as Masajid and put torches on them." (Da'if)

Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-1) Hadith 230

As such to go an alleged Mosque surrounded on all four sides by graveyards means to visit the graves of strangers every day which act has been prohibited in Islam wherefrom it can be safely inferred that the Muslims are forbidden from offering prayers in a graveyard-locked place/building.

D. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2890 reveals that even a tent cannot be erected over the grave as it incites sin.

"2890. Ibn Abbas narrated: "One of the Companions of the Prophet put up a tent upon a grave without knowing that it was a grave. When he realized that it was a person's grave, he recited Surat Al-Mulk until its completion. Then he went to the Prophet and said, 'O Messenger of Allah (Indeed) I erected my tent without realizing that it was upon a grave. So when I realized there was a person in it I recited Surat Al-Mulk until its completion.' So the Prophet said: 'It is a prevention, it is a salvation delivering from the punishment of the grave." (Da'if)*

E. Neil B.E. Ballie in his Book 'A Digest of

Mohommedan Law' Part- First (Second Edition 1875) containing the doctrines of the Hanifeea Code of Jurisprudence at page 621-22 records that the bodies buried in the ground can be exhumed by the rightful owner if the land was usurped. Relevant extract from the above referred paged reads as follows:

> "When a body has been buried in the ground, whether for a long or short time, it cannot be exhumed without some excuse. But it may be lawfully exhumed when it appears that the land was usurped, or another is entitled to it under a right of pre-emption."

Be it mentioned herein that the Plaintiff' witnesses have admitted that the graves were dug up by the Hindus after purchasing the lands wherein graves were located. It is settled law that public Graveyard can not be sold wherefrom it becomes crystal that it was not a public Graveyard meant for the Muslims.

F. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-2) Hadith 1052 reveals that the Holy Prophet had prohibited plastering graves, writing on them, building over them and treading on them.

> "1052. Jabir narrated:" The Messenger of Allah prohibited plastering graves, writing on them, building over them and treading on them."(Sahih)

As such it cannot be inferred that the plasterd graves mentioned in Commissioner's report in 1950 were built by Emperor Babur of his soldiers who died in alleged war between him and the then ruler of Ajodhya because the Emperor Babur was a scholar of Hanafi School of Islamic

www.vadaprativada.com

Law which does not permit to built plastered graves of soldiers.

3191. Sri Mishra pointed out certain other prohibitions in Islamic Law which according to him amounts to a 'command' against construction of a mosque in violation thereof and said:

A. In vicinity of bells there cannot be a mosque because it is revelation of the holy Prophet that bell is abode of saitan, contrary to it bell is integral part of 16 organs of religious customs of worship of the hindus as such as all along bells remained in the disputed site it can't be a mosque.

B. In a Hindu Temple ringing of bell is integral part of worship while according to Shar bell is considered to be an instrument of Satan and angels do not enter such a house where bell is as such. A place where angels do not enter can't be a Masjid. The Gazetteer of 1877-78 and Millet's Settlement Report say that till 1855 Hindus were worshipping in the same and one building which was allegedly known as Mosque-temple said to be erected by Moghul Emperor Babur over the sacred site of Sri Ramajanamsthan by demolishing Hindu temple of that shrine and on annexation of Oudh to British India (on 13th February, 1856 and Lord Canning's proclamation on 15th March, 1859, confiscating all proprietary rights in the soil of the Oudh Province) the Administration made an enclosure bifurcating the Temple compound and thereby ordered Hindus not to enter inside the said building inconsequence whereof Hindus erected a platform in the Temple compound just after enclosure and started

worshiping thereon. From the several applications of the persons claiming to be Mutvallis/ Muezzins/ Khattibs, it however is apparent that even after 1855 and onwards Hindus were continuously worshipping in the said temple and, from their application of 1883 it becomes crystal clear that in addition to performing Idol worship in the said disputed Temple-Mosque building Hindus were celebrating their festivals as such for all practical purposes said building was a Hindu temple and according to Musalman Law due to presence of Idols & Bells it was not at all a Masjid.

C. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 2113 and 2114 reveal that the Holy Prophet had said that Angels do not accompany the person who has with him a bell because the bell is the musical instrument of the Satan. The said Hadiths read as follows:

"(2113) Abu Huraira reported Allah's Messenger (may peace be upon him) had said: Angels do not accompany the travellers who have with them a dog and a bell."

D. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 377 as well as Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-1) 190 reveal that the Holy Prophet did not approve the method of giving Ajan/ Adhan by ringing the bell like the persons of other faith; of course, reason behind this was that it was an instrument of Satan. Said Hadiths read as follows:

"(377) Ibn Umar reported: When the Muslims came to Medina, they gathered and sought to know the time of prayer but no one summoned them. One day they discussed the matter, and some of them said: Use something like the bell of the Christians and some of them said: Use horn like that of the Jews. Umar said: Why may not a man be appointed who should call (people) to prayer ? The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: O Bilal, get up and summon (the people) to prayer."

"190. Ibn ' Umar narrated. "When the Muslims arrived in Al-Madinah, they used to assemble for the Salat, and guess the time for it. There was no one who called for it (the prayer). One day they discussed that and some of them said that they should use a bell like the bell the Christians use. Others said they should use a trumpet like the horn the Jews use. But 'Umar [bin Al-Khattab] said: 'Wouldn't it be better if we had a man call for the prayer?" He said: "So Allah's Messenger said: 'O Bilal Stand up and call for the Salat."

E. In 'Ibn Battuta' Travels in Asia and Africa' (1325-1354) on page 142, Ibn Battuta writes that he became surprised when he heard bells ringing on all sides of the mosque wherein he was staying. In his note on page 357 of the said book the editor/translator explains that the Muslim hold the ringing of bells in the greatest abhorrence and believe that the angles will not enter the house wherein bells are rung. As the suit premises was surrounded by all sides from the temples and even in the alleged Temple – Mosque building Hindus were worshipping by Ringing bells, according to Shar it cannot be termed as mosque. Relevant extracts from the said book read as follows:

> "We stayed as Kafa in the mosque of the Muslims. As hour after our arrival we heard bells ringing on all sides. As I had never heard bells before, I was alarmed and bade my companions ascend the minaret and read the Koran and issue the call to prayer. They did so, when suddenly a man entered wearing armour and weapons and greeted us. He told us that he was the qadi of the Muslims there, and said "When I heard the reading and the call to prayer, i feared for your safety and came as you see.
> Muslim hold the ringing of bells in the greatest abhorrence, and attribute to the Prophet the saying : "The angels will not enter any house wherein bells are rung."

F. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-II) 851 & 851R3 reveal that it was commanded by the Holy Prophet that Muslims must observe silence during sermon on Friday. The said Hadiths reads as follows:

> "(851) Abu Huraira reported what Allah's Messenger (SAW) had said: If you ask your companion to be quiet on Friday while the Imam is delivering the sermon, you have in fact chattered."
> (851R3) On the authority of Abu Huraira that the Holy Prophet said: "If you said to your companion: Be quiet, on Friday, and the Imam is delivering the sermon, you have in fact chattered.

From the aforesaid Hadith it becomes clear that in the noisiest place where bells were/are being rung and Conch Shells were/are being blown prayer could not be offered. As it is admitted by the then alleged Mutawalli that Conch Shell was being blown by the Pujari Neehang Singh even in 1861 said Structure can't be a Masjid but for all practical purposes it was/is only Temple.

G. As there was no provision of water for Wadu in the disputed structure it can't be a mosque it was all along a Hindu temple. Without performing wadu by pure water in a mosque one cannot offer prayer. One Hadith says that for Friday's prayer one should take a bath in his house and thereafter perform wadu (Vazu) in a Mosque and then he should offer prayer from which it becomes crystal clear that performing wadu in a mosque is mandatory pre condition for offering one's prayer to Almighty Merciful Allah. As Friday's prayer is offered in congregation at least on that day huge quantity of water is required but in the alleged Temple-Mosque premises there was no such provision of water for Muslims for performing wadu from which it can be safely inferred that said structure was neither meant for offering Salat nor was a Masjid at all but all along it was a temple, as such the same cannot be declared Baburi Masjid.

H. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-II) 844 & 855 reveal that before offering Friday's prayer one should take a bath in his house and thereafter perform Wadu in a Mosque. Said Hadiths read as follows:

(844) 'Abdullah reported that he heard Allah's Messenger (SAW) who said: When any one of you intends to come for Friday prayer, he should take a bath.

(845) 'Abdullah (b. 'Umar) reported from this father, that while he was addressing the people on Friday (sermon), a person, one of the Companions of the Messenger of Allah (SAW), entered (the mosque). 'Umar said to him loudly: What is the time hour (for attending the prayer)? He said: I was busy today and I did not return to my house when I heard the call (to Friday prayer), but I performed ablution (only). Upon this 'Umar said: Just ablution! You know that the Messenger of Allah (SAW) commanded (us) to take a bath (on Friday).

I. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-I) 225; (Vol.-II) 844-847R1 and Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-1) Hadith 1-5, 90, 200-201, 497-498 say that prior to offering prayer performance of Wadu by pure water is necessary and for Friday's prayer it is must to take bath in one's house then visit the Masjid and perform Wadu in it by water prior to offering prayer.

1. Ibn Umar narrated that the Prophet said: "Salat will not be accepted without purification, nor charity from Ghulul" (Sahih) Hannad said in his narration, "except with purification" (Sahih)

2. Abu Hurairah narrated that Allah's Messenger said: "When a Muslim, or believer, performs Wudu, washing his face, every evil that he looked at with his eyes leaves with the water-or with the last drop of water, or an expression similar to that-and when he washes his hands, every evil he did with his hands leaves with the water-or with the last drop of water- until he becomes free of sin." (Sahih).

3. 'Ali narrated that the prophet said: "The key to Salat is the purification, its Tahrim is the Takbir, and its Tahlil is the Taslim. (Hasan)

4. Jabir bin 'Abdullah, may Allah be pleased with them, narrated that Allah's Messenger said: "The key to Paradise is Salat and the key to Salat is Wudu." (Hasan)"

5. Anas bin Malik said: "When the Prophet entered the toilet he would say: 'O Allah! Indeed I seek refuge in You."'

Shu'bah (one of the narrators) said: "Another time he said: 'I seek refuge in You from Al-Khubthi and Al-Khabith.' Or: 'Al-Khubthi and Al-Khaba'ith.'" (Sahih)

90. Ibn 'Umar narrated: "A man greeted the Prophet (with Salam), and he was urinating, so he did not respond to him." (Sahih)

200. Abu Hurairah narrated that Allah's Messenger said: "None should call the Adhan except for one with Wudu." (Da'if)*

497. Samurah bin Jundab narrated that Allah's Messenger said:"Whoever performs Wudu on Friday, then he will receive the blessing, and whoever performs Ghusl then Ghusl is more virtuous." (Hasan)*

498. Abu Hurairah narrated that Allah's Messenger said "Whoever performs Wudu', performing his Wudu' well, then he comes to the Friday (prayer), and gets close, listens and is silent, then whatever (sin) was* between that and (the last) Friday are forgiven for him, in addition to three days. And whoever touches the pebbles, he has committed Lagha (useless activity)." (Sahih)

J. The Holy Quran Surah 5 Al-Maidah Ayat 6 and the Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.I) 367-370 provides that Tayammum i.e. purification by clean earth can be done only in extreme exigency at the time of travelling or war campaign when water is not available otherwise Wadu must be performed by water.

"6. O you who believe! When you intend to offer As-Salat (the prayer), wash your faces and your hands (forearms) up to the elbows, rub (by passing wet hands over) your heads, and (wash) your feet up to the ankles. If you are in a state of Janaba (i.e. after a sexual discharge), purify yourselves (bathe your whole body). But if you are ill or on a journey, or any of you comes from the Gha'it (toilet), or you have been in contact with women (i.e. sexual intercourse), and you find no water, then perform Tayammum with clean earth and rub therewith your faces and hands. Allah does not want to place you in difficulty, but He wants to purify you, and to complete His Favour to you that you may be thankful."

(367) A'isha reported: We went with the Apostle of Allah (may peace be upon him) on one of his journeys and when we reached the place Baida or That Al-Jaish, my necklace was broken (and fell some where). The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) along with other people stayed there looking for it. There was neither any water at that place nor was there any water with them (the Companions of the Holy Prophet). Some people came to my father Abu Bakr and said: Do you see what' Aisha has done? She has detained the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) and the people accompanying him, and there is neither any water here or with them. So Aby Bakr came there and the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) was sleeping with his head on my thigh. He (Abu Bakr) said: You have detained the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) and the people and there is neither water here for with them. She (Aisha) said: Aby Bakr scolded me and uttered what Allah wanted him to utter and nudged my hips with his hand. And there was nothing to prevent me from stirring but the fact that the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) was lying upon my thigh. The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) slept till it was dawn at a waterless place. So Allah revealed the verses pertaining to Tayammum and they (the Holy Prophet and his Companions) performed Taymmum. Usaid b. Al- Hudair who was one of the leaders said: This is not the first of your blessings, O Family of Abu Bakr. Aisha said: We made the camel stand which was my mount and found the necklace under it.

(368) Shaqiq reported: I was sitting in the company of Abdulla and Aby Musa, when Abu Musa said: O' Abdel – Rahman (kunya of Abdullah b. Masud), what would you like a man to do about the prayer if he experiences a seminal emission or has sexual intercourse but does not find water for a month? Abdullah said: He should not perform Tayammum even if he does not find water for a month. Abdullah said: Then what about the verse in Sura Maida: If you do not find water betake yourself to clean with dust ? Abdullah said: If they were granted concession of the basis of this verse, there is a possibility that they would perform Tayammum with dust on finding water very cold for themselves. Abu Musa said to Abdullah: You have not heard the words of Ammar: The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) sent me on an errand and I had a seminal emission, but could find no water, and rolled myself in dust just as a beast rolls itself. I came to the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) and mentioned that to him and he (the Holy Prophet) said: It would have been enough for you to do this. Then he struck the ground with his hands once and wiped his right hand with the help of his left hand and the exterior of his palms and his face. Abdullah said: Didn't you see that Umar was not fully satisfied with the words of Ammar only ?

(369) Umair, the freed slave of Ibn' Abbas, reported: I and Abdel-Rahman b. Yasir, the freed slave of Maimuna, the wife of the Apostle (may peace be upon him) came to the house of Abu'l -Jahm b. Al- Harith Al-Simma Ansari and he said: The Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) came from the direction of A-Jamal well and a man met him; he saluted him but the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) made no response, till the Holy Prophet came to the wall, wiped his face and hands and then returned his salutations.

(370) Ibn Ymar reported: A man happened to pass by the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) when he was making water and saluted him, but he did not respond to his salutation.*

Since there was no provision of water reservoir in the disputed premises the question of performing wadu by huge crowd for Friday's prayer did not arise at all in other words the said structure was never used as Masjid for offering congregational prayer on Friday but all along remained as Hindus' Shrine.

Do you consider the providing of drinking water for the pilgrims and the maintenance of Al-Masjid Al-Haram (at Makkah) as equal to the one who believes in Allah and the Last Day, and strives hard and fights in the Cause of Allah? "When 'Abdullah bin 'Umar returned, 'Umar asked him, "What (news) do you have? " He replied, "O chief of the believers She has allowed you (to be buried there)." Now 'Abdullah bin 'Umar went to his land and was attacked at night, and his hands and feet were dislocated, and as we have no enemies there except those Jaws, they are out enemies and the only people whom we suspect, I have made up my mind to exile them." When Umar decided to carry our his decision, a son of Abu Al-Haqiq's came and addressed 'Umar, "O chief of the believers, will you exile us although Muhammad allowed us to stay at our places, and made a contract with us about out properties, and accepted the condition of our residence in our land?" Umar said, "Do you think that I have forgotten the statement of Allah's Apostle, i.e ; what will your condition be when you are expelled from Khabar and your camel will be carrying you night after night ?" The Jew replied, "That was joke from Abul-Qasim." 'Umar said,"O the enemy of Allah! You are telling a lie." better than which I have never had, what do you suggest that I do with it? The Prophet said, "If you like you can give the land as endowment and give its fruits in charity." So Umar gave it in charity as an endowment on the condition that would not be sold nor given to anybody as a present and not to be inherited, but its yield would be given in charity tot he poor people, to the Kith and kin, for freeing slaves, for Allah's Cause, to the travelers and guests; and that there would be no harm if the guardian of the endowment ate from it according to his need with good intention, and fed others without storing it for the future."(Page 714)

"Narrated Jubair bin Haiya: 'Umar sent the Muslims to the great countries to fight the pagans. When Al-Hurmuzan embraced Islam, 'Umar said to him, "I would like to consult you regarding these countries which I intend to invade." Al-Hurmuzan said, "Yes, the example of these countries and their inhabitants who are the enemies of the Muslims, is like a bird with a head, two wings and two legs; if one of its wings got broken, it would get up over its two legs, with one wing and the head; and if the other wing got broken, it would get up with two legs and a head, but if its head got destroyed, then the two legs, two wings and the head would become useless. The head stands for Khosrau, and one wing stands for Caesar and the other wing stands for Faris. So, order the Muslims to go towards Khosrau." So, 'Umar sent us (to Khosrau) appointing An-Nu'man bin Muqrin as our commander. When we reached the land of the enemy, the representative of Khosrau came out with forty-thousand warriors, and an interpreter got up saying, "Let one of you talk to me!" Al-Mughira replied, "Ask whatever you wish." The other asked, "Who are you?" Al-Mughira replied, "We are some people from the Arabs; we led a hard, miserable, disastrous life: we used to suck the hides and the date stones from hunger; we used to wear clothes made up of fur of camels and hair of goats, and to worship trees and stones. While we were in this state, the Lord of the Heavens and he Earths, Elevated is His Remembrance and Majestic is His Highness, sent to us from among ourselves a Prophet whose father and mother are known to us. Our Prophet, the Messenger of our Lord, has ordered us to fight you till you worship Allah Alone or give Juizya (i.e. tribute) ; and our prophet has informed us that our Lord says:--- "Whoever amongst us is killed (i.e martyred), shall go to Paradise to lead such a luxurious life as he has never seen, and whoever amongst us remain alive, shall become your master." (Al-Mughira, then blamed An-Nu'man for delaying the attack and) An-Nu'man said to Al-Mughira, "If you had participated in a similar battle, in the company of Allah's Apostle he would not have blamed you for waiting, nor would he have disgraced you. But I accompanied Alla's Apostle in many battles and it was his custom that if he did not fight early by daytime, he would wait till the wind had started blowing and the time for the prayer was due (i.e. after midday)." (Page 836/837)

"Narrated Abu Humaid As-Saidi: We accompanied the Prophet in the Ghazwa of Tabuk and the king of 'Aila presented a white mule and a cloak as a gift to the Prophet. And the Prophet wrote to him a peace treaty allowing him to keep authority over his country." (Page 837)

"Narrated Juwairiya bin Qudama at-Tamimi: We said to 'Umar bin Al-Khattab, Jo Chief of the believers! Advise us. "He said, "I advise you to fulfill Alla's Convention (made with the Dhimmis) as it is the convention of your Prophet and the source of the livelihood of your dependents (i.e. the taxes from the Dhimmis.)" promise, he breaks it, if he makes a covenant he proves treacherous ; and if he quarrels, he behaves in a very imprudent evil insulting manner (unjust). And whoever has one of these characteristics, has one characteristic of a hypocrite, unless he gives it us." (Page 843)

“Narrated 'Ali:

We did not, write anything from the Prophet except the Qur'an and what is written in this paper, (wherein) the Prophet said, "Medina is a sanctuary from (the mountain of) Air to so and-so, therefore, whoever innovates (in it) an heresy or commits a sin, or gives shelter to such an innovator, will incur the Curse of Allah, the angels and all the people; and none of his compulsory or optional good deeds of worship will be accepted And the asylum granted by any Muslim Is to be secured by all the Muslims even if it is granted by one of the lowest social status among them. And whoever betrays a Muslim in this respect will incur the Curse of Allah, the angels and all the people, and his compulsory and optional good deeds of worship will not be accepted. And any freed slave will take as masters (befriends) people other than his own real masters who freed him without taking the permission of the latter, will incur the Curse of Allah, the angels and all the people, and his compulsory and optional good deeds of worship will not be accepted." Narrated sa'id: Abu Huraira once said (to the people), "What will your state be when you can get no dinar or dirhan (i.e. taxes from the Dhimmis)?" on that someone asked him, "What makes you know that this state will take place, O Abu- Hu raira?" He said, "By Him in

"Narrated Muhammad bin Ibrahim bin Al-Harith : from Abu Salama bin 'Abdur-Rahman who had a dispute with some people on a piece of land, and so he went to 'Aisha and told her about it. She said, "O Abu Salama, avoid the land, for Alla's Apostle said, 'Any person who takes even a span of land unjustly, his neck shall be encircled with it down seven earths." (Page 849)

"Narrated Salim's father : The Prophet said, "Any person who takes a piece of land unjustly will sink down the seven earths on the Day of Resurrection." (Page 849)

3197. Para 5.50 from Volume 5 of Sahih Bukhari: Hadith (supra):

"Narrated 'Amr bin Maimun : I saw 'Umar bin Al-Khattab a few days before he was stabbed in Medina. He was standing with Hudhaifa bin Al-Yaman and 'Uthman bin Hunaif to whom he said, "What have you done ? Do you think that you have imposed more taxation on the land (of As-Swad i.e. 'Iraq) than it can bear ? " They replied, "We have imposed on it what it can bear because of its great yield. 'Umar again said, "check whether you have imposed on the land what it can not bear. " They said, "No, (we haven't)." 'Umar added, "If Allah should keep me alive I will let the widows of Iraq need no men to support them after me." But only four days had elapsed when he was stabbed (to death)..... I also recommend him concerning Allah's and His Apostle's protectives (i.e.Dhimmis) to fulfill their contracts and to fight for them and not overburden them with what is beyond their ability." 3198. Bk.59: Military Expeditions led by the Prophet (pbuh) (Al-Maghaazi) of Sahih Bukhari: Hadith paras 5.351, 5.542 and 5.543 are as under:

"Narrated Al-Miswar bin Makhrama : That 'Amr bin 'Auf, who was an ally of Bani 'Amir bin Luai and one of those who fought at Badr in the company of the Prophet, said, "Allah's Apostle sent Abu 'Ubaida bin Al-Jarrah to Bahrain to bring the Jizya taxation from its people, for Allah's Apostle had made a peace treaty with the people of Bahrain and appointed Al-'Ala' bin Al-Hadrami as their ruler. So, Abu 'Ubaida arrived with the money from Bahrain. When the Ansar heard of the arrival of Abu 'Ubaida (on the next day) they offered the morning prayer with the prophet and when the morning prayer had finished, they presented themselves before him. On seeing the Ansar, Allah's Apostle smiled and said, "I think you have heard that Abu 'Ubaida has brought something?" They replied, "Indeed, it is so, O Allah's Apostle !" He said, "Be happy, and hope for what will please you. By Allah, I am not afraid that you will be poor, but I fear that worldly wealth will be bestowed upon you as it was bestowed upon those who lived before you. So you will compete amongst yourselves for it, as they competed for it and it will destroy you as it did them." (page 1103/1104)

"Narrated 'Umar bin Al-Khattab: By Him in Whose Hand my soul is, were I not afraid that the other Muslims might be left in poverty, I would divide (the land of) whatever village I may conquer (among the fighters), as the Prophet divided the land of Khaibar. But I prefer to leave it as a (source of) a common treasury for them to distribute it revenue amongst themselves." (page 1183)

"Narrated 'Umar:

But for the other Muslims (i.e. coming generations) I would divide (the land of) whatever villages the Muslims might conquer (among the fighters), as the Prophet divided (the land of) Khaibar." (page 1183)

3199. Bk.65: Food, Meals of Sahih Bukhari: Hadith paras 7.354:

"Narrated Jabir bin "Abdullah : There was a Jew in Medina who used to lend me money up to the season of plucking dates. (Jabir had a piece of land which was on the way of to Ruma). That year the land was not promising, so the payment of the debt was delayed one year. The Jew came to me at the time of plucking, but gathered nothing from my land. I asked him to give me one year respite, but he refused. This news reached the Prophet whereupon he said to his companions, "Let us go and ask the Jew for respite for Jabir." All of them came to me in my garden, and the Prophet started speaking to the Jew, but he Jew said, "O Abu Qasim ! I will not grant him respite." When the Prophet saw the Jew's attitude, he stood up and walked all around the garden and came again and talked to the Jew, but the Jew refused his request. I got up and brought some ripe fresh dates and put it in front of the Prophet. He ate and then said to me, "Where is your hut, O Jabir? " I informed him, and he said, "Spread out a bed for me in it." I spread out a bed, and he entered and slept. When he woke up, I brought some dates to him again and he ate of it and then got up and talked to the Jew again, but the Jew again refused his request. Then the Prophet got up for the second time amidst the palm trees loaded with fresh dates, and said, "O Jabir! Pluck dates to repay your debt." The Jew remained with me while I was plucking the dates, till I paid him all his right, yet there remained extra quantity of dates. So I went out and proceeded till I reached the Prophet and informed him of the good news, whereupon he said, "I testify that I am Allah's Apostle." (Page 1575/1576)

3200. Bk.80: Laws of Inheritance (Al-Faraa'id) of Sahih Bukhari: Hadith paras 8.755, 8.756 and 8.760 are as under:

“Narrated Abu Huraira: The Prophet said, "If somebody dies (among the Muslims) leaving some property, the property will go to his heirs; and if he leaves a debt or dependants, we will take care of them." (page 1903)

www.vadaprativada.com

"Narrated Usama bin Zaid: the Prophet said, "A Muslim cannot be the heir of a disbeliever, nor can a disbeliever be the heir of a Muslim." (page 1903/1904)

"Narrated Abu Huraira: Allah's Apostle said, "There were two women with whom there were their two sons. A wolf came and took away the son of one of them. That lady said to her companion, 'The wolf has taken your son.' The other said, 'But it has taken your son. ' So both of them sought the judgment of (the Prophet) David who judged that the boy should be given to the older lady. Then both of them went to (the Prophet) Solomon, son of David and informed him of the case. Solomon said, 'Give me a knife so that I may cut the child into two portions and give one half to each of you.' The younger lady said, 'Do not do so; may Allah bless you ! He is her child.' On that, he gave the child to the younger lady." Abu Huraira added : By Allah ! I had never heard the word 'Sakkin' as meaning knife, except on that day, for we used to call it "Mudya." 3201. Next comes Bk. 81: Limits and Punishments set by Allah (Hudood) from which paras 8.763 and 8.809 are as under:

"Narrated Abu Huraira : Allah's Apostle said, "When an adulterer commits illegal sexual intercourse, then he is not a believer at the time he is doing it; and when somebody drinks an alcoholic drink, then he is not believer at the time of drinking, and when a thief steals, he is not a believer at the time when he is stealing: and when a robber robs and the people look at him, then he is not a believer at the time of doing it." Abu Huraira in another narration, narrated the same from the Prophet with the exclusion of

"Narrated Ibn 'Umar : A Jew and a Jewess were brought to Allah's Apostle on a charge of committing an illegal sexual intercourse. The Prophet asked them. "What is the legal punishment (for this sin) in your Book (Torah)?" They replied, "Our priests have innovated the punishment of blackening the faces with charcoal and Tajbiya." 'Abdullah bin Salam said, "O Allah's Apostle, tell them to bring the Torah." The Torah was brought, and then one of the Jews put his hand over the Divine Verse of the Rajam (stoning to death) and started reading what preceded and what followed it. On that, Ibn Salam said to the Jew, "Lift up your hand." Behold ! The Divine Verse of the Rajam was under his hand. So Allah's Apostle ordered that the two (sinners) be stoned to death, and so they were stoned. Ibn 'Umar added : So both of them were stoned at the Balat and I saw the Jew sheltering the Jewess."(Page 1916/1917)

3202. Para 9.447 of Bk. 92: Holding Fast to the Qur'an and Sunnah is as under:

"Narrated Abu Huraira : While we were in the mosque, Allah's Apostle came out and said, "Let us proceed to the Jews." So we went out with him till we came to Bait-al-Midras. The Prophet stood up there and called them, saying, "O assembly of Jews ! Surrender to Allah (embrace Islam) and you will be safe !" They said, "You have conveyed Allah's message, O Aba-al-Qasim" Allah's Apostle then said to them, "That is what I want: embrace Islam and you will be safe." They said, "You have conveyed the message, O Aba-al-Qasim." Allah's Apostle

then said to them, "That is what I want," and repeated his words for the third time and added, "know that the earth is for Allah and I want to exile you from this land, so whoever among you has property he should sell it, otherwise, know that the land is for Allah and His Apostle." (Page 2069/2070)

3203. Referring to the above, it is contended by Sri Mishra, that what emerges from the above is that the Prophet never intended to get a mosque constructed at a place which has not been acquired validly and in this regard he set up very high principles which have to be treated "the law of Sharii" binding on all the Muslims and cannot be ignored at all.

3204. The next authority in this regard he placed is Sahih Muslim by Imam Muslim (1st Edition 2001, fourth edition 2005) (published by Islamic Book Service, New Delhi). He cited paras 142 and 142R1 (Chapter 63), paras 226 and 226R1 (Chapter 3), paras 227, 227R1, 227R2, 228, 229, 230, 231, 231R1, 232, 232R1 (Chapter 4), paras 240, 240R1, 240R2, 240R3, 241, 241R1, 241R2, 242, 242R1, 242R2 (Chapter 9), para 244 and 245 ((Chapter 11)) which are as under:

"(1) The Holy Prophet has explained now polytheism gradually develops. Is strats from the pious intention, i.e. building of a temple by the grave of a pious man so that there should be assocition of a religious piety to a place of worship. But steadily the people begin to look upon the religious man as a demigod and then elevate him to a higher status of Godhood. This undermines the belief in the oneness of Allah.

The pictures of the pious men are displayed in the temples in order to keep alive their sacred memories, but with the march of time the people begin to worship them.

"Footnote (2): In this tradition, the government's responsibility towards the citizens has been put on a par with father's or a mother's responsibility towards their children. Just as the father is a shepherd – that is, a guardian – morally and legally bound to ensure the maintenance and well being of his family, the government is morally and legally bound to endure the moral, spiritual, social and economic well-being of its citizens, whose affairs it has under-taken to as minister.

The simile of a shepherd is highly significant in this connection. It recalls to one's mind the sympathetic tale of The Prophet as a guide of mankind going astray. The idea behind it is that the shepherd is more careful of the well-being of his flock then even the flock itself. He is always on the alert with regard to his flock and takes full care of the animals so that these may not go astray and fall victims to the beasts of prey. The Prophet is shepherd of humanity, always thinkings of their welfare, of their sufferings and always exhorting them to move along the path of righteousness and religious piety. There is a deep love in the hearts of The Prophet for the ailing humanity and a strong will to cure it. It is with a spirit of deep love, him and it shall punish him in the Hell, and he (Ibn 'Abbas) said: If you have to do it at all, then paint the pictures of trees and lifeless things; and Nasrb. 'Ali confirmed it."

"Footnote (2) These words of Ibn 'Abbas implied a sanction for the painting of lifeless things, for example, tress, flowers, landscpae, mountains and rivers, etc. But the style in which the eminent Companion of The Holy Prophet (may peace be upon him) expressed this sanction clearly indicated that it is not something very much desirable. It should not, however, lead on to conclude that Islam is opposed to art. Art is the expression of spiritual values in terms of beauty, arts is thus a response to the glory of God, to the beauty of god, and to Divine goodness also which it interprets in terms of beauty. Thus, as long as the sense of ideal beauty exists in the world, love for art cannot be banished from the human souls. Islam is not opposed to art; it is rather in one sense akin to religion as both art and religion are an expression of man's sense of spiritual significance of the universe. Both are an attempt to perceive, not the things which are temporal, but the things which are unseen and eternal. It is, however, wrong to conceive that the expressions of art should necessarily be the same as the so-called Lovers of art have suggested. These expressions differ with the fundamental attitude that the people adopt in regard to the unseen realities of the universe and to the ideals of beauty. The painting of pictures and the carving of statues are not, therefore, the only channels of artistic expressions. There are hundred and one other ways of giving captivating forms to one's

sense of beauty and to one's perception of unseen Reality. Islam has no doubt prohibited the paiting of living and the carving of human statues, but Muslim artists have expressed their artistic genius in so many other forms. The essense, almost the symbol, of that tradition was the arabesque: That rather involved arrangement of geometrical forms stylized plan-elements and lettering that has become the hail-mark of Islamic art, and on which so much of Islam's artistic genius has been expended.

"190. Ibn ' Umar narrated. "When the Muslims arrived in Al-Madinah, they used to assemble for the Salat, and guess the time for it. There was no one who called for it (the prayer). One day they discussed that and some of them said that they should use a bell like the bell the Christians use. Others said they should use a trumpet like the horn the Jews use. The mosques in the world are the houses of Allah, the centre of the spread of His religion and of preaching, an explicit place for His remembrance and every need will be compensated in the Hereafter accordingly: therefore the construction of a mosque is a deed of great fortune: the more sincerity there is in a deed the more marvellous the house will be in Paradise. Participating in the construction of a mosque is also a form of it."

Comments:

The expression 'Kalimat Al-'Adl' (just statement) as used here, means commanding what is good and prohibiting what is evil. To enjoin good to a tyrannical ruler or prohibit him from doing wrong is inviting disaster for oneself, may perhaps signing one's own death warrant, while going out to face an enemy is not necessarily to court injury or death. That is why admonishing a tyrannical ruler has been described in the Hadith as the highest form of Jihad."

Comments:

a. Every one of us should learn the Ahadith with the mention of acting upon them in case due to some reason, he is not able to act upon them, he must teach them to those who would act upon them.

b. It is an accepted fact that warding off harm and destruction is of greater importance in life than going after gains and profits. It is also a patent truth that a person who has the gut to avoid unlawful acts also has the courage to perform virtuous deeds. It must also be noted that failing to carry out the commanded acts is an act of sin. Therefore, the greatest form of worship and obeisance to Allah is to avoid all things declared hateful or unlawful by Him."

Comments:

The Hadith is in fact intended to convey the idea that the world, when compared to the Hereafter, is as insignificant as is the drop of water sticking to a man's finger in comparison with the sea. The parable has just been coined to deliver a message. Otherwise in reality, the world does not weigh even as much as we understand from the parable since the world, along with all its paraphernalia, is at best temporal and limited while the Hereafter is limitless and never ending. And it is a known fact that the limited and temporal cannot be compared with the never ending and limitless."

2324. Abu Huraitah narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "The world is a prison for the believer and Paradise for the disbeleiver." (Sahih)

(Abu Eisa Said:) This Hadith is Hasan Sahih.

Comments:

The main characteristic of a prison is that the prisoner in it is not free to lead a life of his choice, but is bound by the laws of the prison and the whims of its officers. He is neither free in eating and drinking, nor in sleeping and awakening, nor in moving about nor in meeting with the people at will. In short, he has no freedom of any kind in a prison house, and has willy-nilly to obey the orders of others. The second thing is that no prisoner loves his prison like home, but is always on the lookout to somehow get out of it. Paradise, one the other hand, is a place where the inhabitants will have no such restrictions. Each person will live a life of his choice, and every desire of his will be fulfilled, and he will never feel the desire to get out of it."

The taking or drawing of a picture is not allowed, keeping it is also not permissible, and whoever does so is deprived of the blessed and merciful supplications of the angels; while a person is in need of mercy and blessing at every moment. Then reliance was placed on "The Spirit of Islam (A History of the Evolution and Ideals of Islam with a Life of the Prophet)" by Syed Ameer Ali (First Published in 1923, reprinted in LPP 1990, 1995, 1997, 2002, 2010 published by Low Price Publications, Delhi), the relevant parts are as under:

"A mosque was soon built, in the erection of which Mohammed assisted with his own hands; and houses for the accommodation of the exiles rose apace. Two brothers, who owned the land on which it was proposed to build the mosque, had offered it as a free gift; but as they were orphans, the Prophet paid them its value.

The building was simple in form and structure, suited to the unostentatious religion he taught. The walls were of brick and earth, and the roof of palm leaves. A portion of the mosque was set apart as a habitation for those who had no home of their own.

Everything in this humble place of worship was conducted with the greatest simplicity. Mohammed preached and prayed standing on the bare ground or leaning against a palm tree, and the devoted hearts around him beat in unison with his soul-stirring words.

"He who is not affectionate to God's creatures and to his own children," he would say, "God will not be affectionate to him. Every Moslem who clothes the naked will be clothed by God in the green robes of Paradise."

In one of his sermons he thus dwelt on the subject of charity : "When God created the earth, it shook and trembled, until He put mountain upon it to make it firm.

Then the angels asked, 'O God, is there anything in Thy creation stronger than these mountains?' And god replied, 'Iron is stronger than the mountains, for it breaks them.' 'And is there anything in Thy creation stronger than iron?' 'Yes; fire is stronger than iron, for it melts it.' 'Is there anything in Thy creation stronger than fire?' ' Yes, water, for it quenches fire.' 'O Lord is there anything in Thy creation, stronger than water?' 'Yes; wind, for it overcomes water and puts it in motion.' 'Oh, our Sustainer, is there anything in Thy creation stronger than wind?' 'Yes; a good man giving alms; if he give with his right hand and conceal it from his left, he overcomes all things." (Page 54)

"It was about this time that the Prophet granted to the monks of the monastery of St. Catherine, near Mount Sinai, and to all Christians, a Charter which has been justly designated as one of the noblest monuments of enlightened tolerance that the history of the world can produce. This remarkable document, which has been faithfully preserved by the annalists of Islam, displays a marvellous breadth of view and liberality of conception. By it the Prophet secured to the Christians privileges and immunities which they did not possess even under sovereigns of their own creed; and declared that any Moslem violating and abusing what was therein ordered, should be regarded as a violater of God's testament, a transgressor of His commandments, and a slighter of His faith. He undertook himself, and enjoined on his followers, to protect the Christians, to defend their churches, the residences of their priests, and to guard them from all injuries. They were not to be unfairly taxed; no bishop was to be driven out of his bishopric; no Christian was to be forced to reject his religion; no monk was to be expelled from his monastery; no pilgrim was to be detained from his pilgrimage. Nor were the Christian churches to be pulled down for the sake of building mosques or houses for the Moslems. Christian women married to Moslems were to enjoy their own religion, and not to be subjected to compulsion or annoyance of any kind on that account. If Christians should stand in need of assistance for the repair of their churches or monasteries, or any other matter pertaining to their religion, the Moslems were to assist them. This was not to be considered as taking part in their religion, but as merely rendering them assistance in their need, and complying with the ordinances of the Prophet which were made in their favour by the authority of God and of His Apostle." (Page 84)

"Accordingly, towards the end of this year, during the month of pilgrimage, Ali was commissioned to read a proclamation to the assembled multitudes, on the day of the great Sacrifice (Yeum-un-Nahr), which should strike straight at the heart of idolatry and the immoralities attendant upon it : "No idolater shall, after this year, perform the pilgrimage; no one shall make the circuit (of the temple) naked ; whoever hath a treaty with the Prophet, it shall continue binding till its termination; for the rest, four months are allowed to every man to return to his territories; after that there will exist no obligation on the Prophet, except towards those with whom treaties have been concluded." (Page 108)

"The great Teacher, who was fully conscious of the exigencies of his own times, and the requirements of the people with whom he had to deal,- people sunk in a slough of social and moral despond, - with his keen insight and breadth of views, perceived, and one may say foretold, that a time would come when the accidental and temporary regulations would have to be differentiated from the permanent and general. "Ye are in an age, "he declared, "in which, if ye abandon one-tenth of what is ordered, ye will be ruined. After this, a time will come when he who shall observe one-tenth of what is now ordered will be redeemed.

As we have already observed, the blight which has fallen on Musulman nations is not due to the teachings of the Master. No religion contained greater promise of development, no faith was purer, of more in conformity with the progressive demands of humanity.

The present stagnation of the Musulman communities is principally due to the notion which has fixed itself on the minds of the generality of Moslems, that the right to the exercise of private judgment ceased with the early legists, that its exercise in modern times is sinful, and that a Moslem in order to be regarded as an orthodox follower of Mohammed should belong to one or the other of the schools established by the schoolmen of Islam, and abandon his judgment absolutely to the interpretations of men who lived in the ninth century, and could have no conception of the necessities of the twentieth.

Among the Sunnis, it is the common belief that since the four Imams, no doctor has arisen qualified to interpret the laws of the Prophet. No account is taken of the altered circumstances in which Moslems are now placed; the conclusions at which these learned legists arrived several centuries ago are held to be equally applicable to the present day. Among the Shiahs, the Akhbari will not allow his judgment to travel beyond the dictates of "the expounders of the law." The Prophet had consecrated reason as the highest and noblest function of the human intellect. Our schoolmen and their servile followers have made its exercise a sin and a crime." (Page 183/184)

"And hence it is that most of the rules and regulations which govern now the conscience of so many professors of the faith are hardly derived from any express and positive declarations of the Koran, but for the most part from the lego-religious books with which the Islamic world was flooded in the later centuries. "Just as the Hebrews deposed their Pentareuch in favour of the Talmud," justly observes an English writer, "so the Moslems have abolished the Koran in favour of the traditions and decisions of the learned." "We do not mean to say," he adds most pertinently, "that any Mohammedan if asked what was the text-book of his religion, would answer anything but the 'Koran' , but we do mean that practically it is not the Koran that guides his belief or practice. In the Middle Ages of Christendom it was not the New Testament, but the Summa Theologica of Thomas Aquinas, that decided questions of orthodoxy; and in the present day, does the orthodox churchman usually derive his creed from a personal investigation of the teaching of Christ in the Gospels? Probably, if he refers to a document at all the Church Cateehism contents him; or if he be of a peculiarly inquiring disposition, a perusal of the Thirty-nine Articles will resolve all doubts. Yet he too would say his religion was drawn from the Gospels, and would not confess to the medium through which it was filtered. In precisely the same way modern Mohammedanism is constructed, and a large part of what Moslems now believe and practise is not to be found in the Koran at all."

And yet each system, each school contains germs of improvement, and if development is now stopped, it is not even the fault of the lawyers. It is due to a want of apprehension of the spirit of the Master's enunciations, and even of those of the fathers of the Church." (Page 185)

"In the hour of his greatest triumph, when the Arabian Prophet entered the old shrine of Mecca and broke down the idols, it was not in wrath or religious rage, but in pity, that he said-"Truth is come, darkness departeth," -announcing amnesty almost universal, commanding protection to the weak and poor, and freeing fugitive slaves.

Mohammed did not merely preach toleration; he embodied it into a law. To all conquered nations he offered liberty of worship. A nominal tribute was the only compensation they were required to pay for the observance and enjoyment of their faith. Once the tax or tribute was agreed upon, every interference with their religion or the liberty of conscience was regarded as a direct contravention of the laws of Islam. Could so much be said of other creeds? Proselytism by the sward was wholly contrary to the instincts of Mohammed, and wrangling over creeds his abhorrence. Repeatedly he exclaims, "Why wrangle over that which you know not; try to excel in good works; when you shall return to God, He will tell you about that in which you have differed." (Page 213)

"...An examination, however, of the principles upon which the relations of Moslem states with non-Moslem countries were based, shows a far greater degree of liberality than has been evinced by Christian writers on international law. It is only in recent times, and under stress of circumstances that non-Christian states have been admitted into the "comity of nations." The Moslem jurists, one the other hand, differentiate between the condition of belligerency and that of peace. The expression, Dar ul-Harb, thus includes countries with which the Moslems are at war; whilst the States with which they are at peace are the Dar ul-Aman." The harbi, the inhabitants of the Dar ul-Harb, is an alien, pure and simple. He has no right to enter Islamic States without express permission. But once he receives the aman or guarantee of safety from even the poorest Moslem, he is perfectly secure from molestation for the space of one year. On the expiration of that period, he is bound to depart. The inhabitant of the Dar ul-Aman is a mustamin. The aman may be for ever or for a limited duration; but so long as it lasts, the mustamin's treatment is regulated in strict accordance with the terms of the treaty with his country." The mustamins were governed by their own laws, were exempt from taxation and enjoyed other privileges." (Page 215)

"It has been said that a warlike spirit was infused into medieval Christianity by aggressive Islam! The massacres of Justiman and the fearful wars of Christian Clovis in the name of religion, occurred long before the time of Mohammed.

Compare, again, the conduct of the Christian Crosaders with that of the Moslems. "When the Khalif Omar took Jerusalem, A.D. 637, he rode into the city by the side of the Patriarch Sophronius, conversing with him on its antiquities. At the hour of prayer, he declined to perform his devotions in the Church of the Resurrection, in which he chanced to be, but prayed on the steps of the Church of Constantine, for, said he to the Patriarch, 'had I done so, the Musulmans in a future age might have infringed the treaty, under colour of imitating my example.' But in the capture by the Crusaders, the brains of young children were dashed out against the walls, infants were pitched over the battlements; men were roasted at fires; some were ripped up, to see if they had swallowed gold; the jews were driven into their synagogue, and there burnt; a massacre of nearly 70,000 persons took place;" (Page 220)

"This latter document has, for the most part, furnished the guiding principle to all Moslem rulers in their mode of dealing with their non-Moslem subjects, and if they have departed from it in any instance the cause is to be found in the character of the particular sovereign. If we separate the political necessity which has often spoken and

acted in the name of religion, no faith is more tolerant than Islam to the followers of other creeds. "Reasons of State" have led a sovereign here and there to display a certain degree of intolerance, or to insist upon a certain uniformity of faith; but the system itself has ever maintained the most complete tolerance. Christians and Jaws, as a rule, have never been molested in the exercise of their religion, or constrained to change their faith. If they are required to pay a special tax, it is in lieu of military service, and it is but right that those who enjoy the protection of the State should contribute in some shape to the public burdens. Towards the idolaters there was greater strictness in theory, but in practice the law was equally liberal. If at any time they were treated with harshness, the cause is to be found in the passions of the ruler or the population. The religious element was used only as a pretext." (Page 272)

"The non-Moslem subjects were not preluded from building new churches or temples. Only in places exclusively inhabited by Moslems a rule of this kind existed in theory. "No new Church or temple," said Abdullah bin abbas, "can be erected in a town solely inhabited by Moslems; but in other places where there are already Zimmis inhabiting from before, we must abide by our contract with them." In practice, however, the prohibition was totally disregarded. In the reign of Mamun, we hear of eleven thousand Christian churches, besides hundreds of synagogues and fire-temples within the empire. This enlightened monarch, who has been represented as "a bitter enemy" of the christians, included in his Council the representatives of all the communities under his sway,- Moslems, Jews, Christians, Sabaeans and Zoroastrians; whilst the rights and privileges of the Christian hierarchy were carefully regulated and guaranteed.

It is a notable fact, with few parallels even in modern history, that after the conquest of Egypt the Caliph Omar scrupulously preserved intact the property dedicated to the Christian churches and continued the allowances made by the former government for the support of the priests.

The best testimony to the toleration of the early Moslem government is furnished by the Christians themselves. In the reign of Osman (the third Caliph), the Christian Patriarch of Mery addressed the Bishop of Fars, named Simeon, in the following terms: "The Arabs who have been given by God the kingdom (of the earth) do not attack the Christian faith, on the contrary they help us in our religion; they respect our God and our Saints, and bestow gifts on our churches and monasteries."

In order to avoid the least semblance of high-handedness, no Moslem was allowed to acquire the land of a zimmi even by purchase. "Neither the Imam nor the Sultan could dispossess a zimmi of his property."

The Moslems and the zimmis were absolutely equal in the eye of the law. "Their blood, "said Ali the Caliph, "was like our blood." (Page 274)

"An examination of the political condition of the Moslems under the early Caliphs brings into view a popular government administered by an elective chief with limited powers. The prerogatives of the head of the State

were confined to administrative and executive matters, such as the regulation of the police, control of the army, transaction of foreign affairs, disbursement of the finances, etc. But he could never act in contravention of the recognised law.

The tribunals were not dependent on the government. Their decisions were supreme; and the early Caliphs could not assume the power of pardoning those whom the regular tribunals had condemned. The law was the same for the poor as for the rich, for the man in power as for the labourer in the field.

As time advances the stringency of the system is relaxed but the form is always maintained. Even the usurpers, who, without right, by treachery and murder seized the reins of government and who in their persons represented the pagan oligarchy which had been displaced by the teachings of Islam, observed more or less the outward semblance of law-abiding executive heads of a representative government. And the rulers of the later dynasties, when they overstepped the bounds, often unlimited, of arbitrary power, were restrained by the sentence of the general body of jurisconsults, which in all Musulman States serves as a constitutional check on the sovereign. In the early times, however, the "Companions" of the Master formed as it were an effective Council of the State. The consideration attached to the title of "Companion of the Prophet "was as great in the camp as in the city. The powerful influence which they possessed increased with the conquests of the Moslems." (Page 278)

"The importance which Islam attaches to the duties of sovereigns towards their subjects, and the manner in which it promotes the freedom and equality of the people and protects them against the oppression of their rulers, is shown in a remarkable work on the reciprocal rights of sovereigns and subjects, by Safi-ud-din Mohammed bin Ali bin Taba Taba, commonly known as Ibn ut-Tiktaka. The book was composed in 701 A.H. (1301-2), and is dedicated to Fakhr ud-din 'Isa bin Ibrahim, Ameer of Mosul.

The first part deals with the duties of sovereigns to their subjects, and the rules of the administration of public affairs and political economy. The author describes the qualities essential for a sovereign,-wisdom, justice, knowledge of the wants and wishes of his people, and the fear of God; and adds emphatically that this latter quality is the root of all good and the key to all blessings, "for when the king is conscious of the presence of God, His servants will enjoy the blessings of peace and security." The sovereign must also possess the quality of mercy, and "this is the greatest of all good qualities." He must have an ever-present desire to benefit his subjects, and consult with them on their wants; for the Prophet consulted always with his Companions, and God hath said." "Consult with them on every affair." In the administration of public affairs, it is the sovereign's duty to superintend the public income, guard the lives and property of his subjects, maintain peace, check the evil-doer, prevent injuries. He must always keep his word, and then, adds the author significantly. "the duty of the subject is obedience, but no subject is bound to obey a tyrant." Ibn Rushd (the great Averroes) says, " the tyrant is he who governs for himself, and not for his people."

*The laws of the Moslems, based on equitable principles, and remarkable for their simplicity and precision, did not demand an obedience either difficult to render or incompatible with the intelligence of mankind. The countries where the Moslems established themselves remained exempt from the disastrous consequences of the feudal system and the feudal code. "Admitting no privilege, no caste, their legislation produced two grand results, -that of freeing the soil from factitious burdens imposed by barbarian laws, and of assuring to individuals perfect equality of rights." (Page 288/289)

3217. Sri P.R.Ganpati Ayyer while adopting the submission of Sri Mishra also placed before us certain extracts from "Hindu and Mahomedan Endowments" by Abdur Rahim 1918. Chapter XIV relating to Mohammeden Law of Waqfs, to the following effect:

"It may be a truism to say that the appropriator can only constitute such property as wakf as over which he has a disposing power. If he is not the owner of the property, no wakf can attach. This is also the Shiah Law. Although this may be a t.ism certain other consequences may appear to flow from this. It may be thought that if somehow the appropriator acquires the ownership later on or the true owner consents later on, the wakf will not be affected. The former part of the statement at that seems, however, not to represent the Mahomedan Law. Thus Baillie in his Digest

of Mahomedan Law says: "It is also a condition that the thing appropriated be the appropriator's property at the time of the appropriation; so that if one were to ...rp a piece of land, appropriate and then purchase it from the owner, and pay the price, or compound with him for other property, which is actually delivered up it will not be a wakf. Then a man make an appropriation for certain good purposes if had belonging to another, and then becomes the proprietor of the wakf is not lawful, though it becomes so if allowed by the proprietor." so also, according to the Shiah Law, "if one should appropriate a thing which is not his own, the wakf will not be valid. But if the real owner should sanction the appropriation, that will give it validity according to some of .doctors, the sanction being tantamount, in their opinion, to the new appropriation." If the appropriator is owner only of the shares out of 16 and purports to make the whole wakf it will good to the extent of the appropriator's share.

If possession is necessary for the validity of a wakf the some other consequences flow from the condition that a person should own the property which he appropriates as wakf. Thus it is said in Baillie : "If a bequest were made of land of which the legatee immediately makes a wakf, after which the testator dies, the land is not wakf; or if a donee of lands should make an appropriation of it before taking possession, and should make an appropriation of it before taking possession, and should thus take possession, the wakf will not be valid. Yet if possession were taken of land given by an invalid gift, and it were ten made a wakf, it will be lawful, the donee being responsible for its value; and if one should purchase by an invalid sale, take possession, and then make an appropriation of the subject of sale in favour of the poor, the wakf will be lawful, subject to the like responsibility for its value to the seller; but if the appropriation were made before taking possession, it will not be lawful. When a man buys land by a lawful sale and make an appropriation of it before taking possession and paying the price, the matter is in suspense until he pays the price and takes possession, when the wakf is lawful, but if he die without leaving any property, the land is to be sole, and the wakf is void. And if a right is established in the property or it is claimed by a shoofee, under his right of pre-emption, after the purchase has been made, the wakf is void." The principle deducible from the above is that a wakf of property before the full proprietary rights in it have vested in the person appropriating it is, generally and subject to certain exceptions, invalid."

3218. He also placed reliance on the "Principles of Mahomedan Law" by Sir D.F.Mulla, First Edition 1906, 19th Edition revised by Mr. M. Hidayatullah in 1990 (Fourth Reprint in 1993). Paras 174 and 176 are as under:

"174. The dedication must be permanent.- The dedication must be permanent. A wakf, therefore, for a limited period, e.g., twenty years, is not valid. Further, the purpose for which a wakf is created must be of a permanent character."

"176. Subject of wakf must belong to wakif.- The property dedicated by way of wakf must belong to the wakif (dedicator) at the time of dedication. A person who is in fact the owner of the property but is under the belief that he is only a mutawalli thereof is competent to make a valid wakf of the property. What is to be seen in such cases is whether or not that person had a power of disposition over the property."

3219. Sri Ravi Shankar Prasad, Senior Advocate contended that the impugned mosque is contrary to Quranik injunctions and cannot be termed as mosque in terms of Islamic Law. Referring to "Mulla's Principle of Mohammedan Law" edited by M. Hidayatullah 19th Edition, he submitted that there is a consistent view of various authorities, i.e., Macnaghten, Amir Ali, Baillie and Hedaya as translated by Hamilton mentioned in the said book there is a consistent view that where the title of the land was disputed no valid mosque can be constructed thereat.

3220. A mosque built without the consent of the land owner is against the wishes of Allah and is clearly prohibited. In "Principles and precedents of Moohummudan Law" by W.H. Macnaghten, 1825 (Second Edition), Chapter X, Case No. V page 335 which deals with the case of mosque built without the consent of the land owner. He refers to the following:

"Both land and building are included in the term mosque. It is neither simply land nor simply building but it comprises both. The land is the chief part of it because the foundation of the mosque stands upon it and the superstructure is dependent on the land. Under these circumstances without the consent of the Fakeer who is the landlord, the building cannot in the legal sense be termed a mosque because no one is at liberty to erect a building on the land of another without that other's consent and if he do so the law sanctions its being razed to the ground."

3221. He refers to page 336-337 of the aforesaid book of W.H. Macnaghten where the author has quoted Kazee Khan:

"The appropriation of a superstructure without its basis is not allowable, an edifice independently of its founder is not a mosque. Further as per Shurhi Viqya if anyone build or plant on the land of another let the thing built or planted be razed or rooted out*."*

3222. In "The Law Relating to Gifts, Trusts and Testamentary Dispositions Among the Mahommedans" by Syed Ameer Ali (Tagore Law Lectures, 1884) at page 236 and 337it says:

"A sovereign cannot give any portion of the land acquired by treaty and negotiation to be converted into a mosque without the consent of the owners, but he can give any portion of the land acquired by war, provided it does not interfere with the rights of way possessed by any individual."

Hedaya is quoted as " If a person usurps land and build and plant thereon , he will be desired to eradicate and raise his plants or buildings"

3223. He submitted that the above passage shows that if the right of way of an individual is important then the right of an entire community to offer worship at the land in question is of greater sanctity. He also referred to the following passage from "A Digest of Moohummudan Law" by Neil B.E. Baillie (1875), Chapter VII, page 616, title "How a Musjid is Constituted" says:

"A sick man has made his mansion a Musjid and died but it neither falls within a third of his property nor is allowed by his heirs: the whole of it is heritage and the making of it a Musjid is void because the heirs having a right in it there has been no separation from the rights of mankind and a confused portion has been made a Musjid which is void."

3224. In "The Hedaya" (A Commentary on the Mussulman Laws) translated by the order of the Governor General by Charles Hamilton (Premier Book House, Lahore):

"If a person convert the centre hall of his house into a mosque giving general admission into it, still it does not stand as a mosque but remains saleable and inheritable because a mosque is a place in which no person possesses any right of obstruction; and wherever a man has such a right with respect to the surrounding parts the same must necessarily affect the place enclosed in them. The place, therefore, cannot be a mosque; besides it is necessarily a thoroughfare for the family and consequently does not appertain solely to God."

3225. Regarding "The History of Islam" by Akbar Shah Najeebabadi, revised by Safi-ur-Rahman Mubarakpuri, published by Darussalam, Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, he submitted that the said book was written in Urdu Language in 1972 and became a classic thereafter. It contains an authentic events in concise form from the famous histories of Islam written in Arabic and Persian languages. Its English translation was done by Darussalam in three volumes. He refers from Vol. I page 148. It narrates the histories of prophet into Al-Madinah. There is a specific reference about a deserted land being the property of two orphan boys Sahl and Suhail. The said land was offered by Muadhbin Afra for building a mosque as the two orphan boys were related to him and he would make them part of the land. But the Prophet asserted "I want to buy it and will not take it without paying the price." Sri Prasad contended that authentic real life of Prophet shows that the Holy and Noble sole imposed strict injunctions for building a mosque, i.e., land of an orphan despite the consent of guardian was not agreed to be taken unless price is paid for, could the Babari mosque erected forcibly by breaking a temple at a place held sacred by Hindus, be at all described as a valid mosque and can the plaintiffs seek any declaration as such when the disputed structure is not a valid mosque in terms of Islamic Law. He also referred to certain extracts of Holy Quran by Mohammad Abdul Haleem Eliasi, translated in English by Abdullah Yusuf Ali, first published in 1934 revised edition 2000 by Eliash Family Book Service, Charminar, Hyderabad, India.

3226. He pointed out that the meaning of the word Islam means peace and submission. Koran is Al-Furqan, i.e., one showing truth from falsehood and right from wrong. Hence any forcible construction of a mosque is against Quranik injunctions and void ab initio. The disputed structure known as Babari mosque is an invalid structure and has no protection in Islamic Law.

3227. Sri G. Rajagopalan, learned Senior Advocate advancing the submissions in the line of Sri P.N. Mishra, Advocate and Sri Ravi Shankar Prasad, Senior Advocate submitted that the meaning of the word mosque or a waqf needs satisfaction of certain essential ingredients required by Islamic texts. It is admitted by the plaintiffs that the disputed structure was built after a war between Babar and the then King of Ayodhya. There is no pleading that it was a vacant site and the mosque was built thereat for the benefit of muslims. It is well said that "Men may lie but circumstances never". A bare look of the photographs of the disputed structure would show that non islamic structure was converted into Islamic one. On the victory at Ayodhya, Babar or his commander built the structure in question with a view to deprive Hindus of their Holy spot, i.e., the revered and pious place of birth of Lord Rama. Their attempt to continue to maintain the building in question as mosque failed later, on the construction of Ram Chabutara and others which were non-Islamic structures and also continuous worshipping by Hindus. A mosque cannot have several Hindu features including idols carved on the pillars affixed in its building. Then he refers to the essential conditions of the arrangement of wazoo, absence of minarets to contend that the building in dispute could not be a mosque since these are the essential features of all mosque. For this purpose he placed reliance on "Hindu and Mohammaden Endowments" by P.R. Ganapathy Iyer 1918, page 388. Whether built or could not be built as a mosque, the portion of the site continued to be worshipped by Hindus. When the building had several Hindu idol carvings and the outer courtyard of the building was used for Hindu idol worship, the structure could not be used as mosque at all. It cannot be presumed that the muslims would offer prayer/Namaz at a structure which is against the tenets of Islam. He also contended that the necessary pleadings are absent. The details as to who was the wakif, whether Babar or his commander, what was the nature of dedication, whether he was owner of the site, in what manner the property was acquired and was there a divestment of interest are some important questions which have not been pleaded at all and in the absence of relevant pleadings and facts the same cannot be added by evidence only. He also pleaded that there is no evidence that Babar was sovereign as there was no coronation of Babar at all. Even if it is admitted that Babar was a king he has no proprietary right in the soil so as to dedicate the land in question to God. In India as well as in Islamic countries king never own the soil but only collect tax. If in Islamic countries only the king own soil, the concept of waqf itself would not have originated. He refers to Dr. Paras Diwan's "Law of Endowments, Wakfs and Turst" mentioning about first waqf in Islam, as follows:

> "The Wakfs are founded on the two traditions of the Prophet though the fact of the matter is that they were developed in the later Islam by ijma, the consensus of the learned. The first wakf is Islam came into existence in the following circumstances: The land on which the prophet laid the foundation of Masjid Navi in Medina in the first century of Islam belonged to two orphans. The Prophet insisted to pay the price of land, but the orphans entered. "No, by God we will not take the price, we will take it from God". The second tradition is:One omer Ibn-al-khattab on acquiring land in Khyber went to the Prophet and sought his counsel as to how could be make the best use of the land, for a pious and charitable purpose. The Prophet declared, "Tie up the property (corpus) and devote the usufruct to human beings, and it is not to be sold or made the subject of gift or inheritance; devote its produce to your children, your kindered and the poor in the way of God. "Acting accordingly, Omer laid down that the property would not be sold or given away in gift, nor would it devolve by succession; its income would be devoted to charity, for the poor, slaves should be freed, provisions should be made for travelers, and guests should be entertained."

3228. In order to constitute a waqf ownership of land is mandatory and in case of conquer by a person as king, the only right he had is to collect tax but would not own the soil. He refers to various instances when the muslim kings had purchased lands for construction of Tombs etc. In the alternative he submitted that the outer courtyard is occupied by Hindus since long time and a property partly cannot be occupied by muslims and Hindus so as to constitute a waqf. If there is no valid creation of waqf the fact that prayers offered therein would not make it a waqf. He lastly submitted that Sunni Board has no right to file a suit since the property in question is not a waqf in accordance with the Islamic tenets.

3229. Sri R.L. Verma adopting all the above arguments advanced on behalf of learned counsels for various parties moved ahead with his arguments relying on "Muslim Vidhi (A Text-Book of Mahomedan Law)" by Mahesh Prasad Tandon, 5th Edn. published by Allahabad Law Agency wherein on page 212 the learned author has referred to Amir Ali's book (Vol. 1, 4th Edn. Page 201 to the following effect:

> ''परिणामतः यदि एक वक्फ, किसी ऐसी सम्पत्ति के लिए किसी व्यक्ति द्वारा सृजित किया जाता है जिसे कि विधि–विरूद्ध ढंग से अर्जित किया गया है, तो वह अवैध होगा।''

3230. Sri R.L. Verma placed reliance on "Law of Endowments (Hindu & Mahomedan)" by A. Ghosh, Second Edn. published by Eastern Law House, Calcutta. It says that the waqf is the detention of a thing in the implied ownership of Almighty God, in such a manner that its profits may revert to or be applied for the benefit of mankind; and the appropriation is obligatory, so that the thing appropriated can neither be sold, nor given, nor inherited. Under Shia law, waqf is a contract while under the Sunni law, it is a unilateral disposition of property, and as such not subject to the rules of contract. In respect to the Shia law of waqfs, the author has further said on page 491-492 as under:

> "Perhaps the most notable of these cases is Wasiq Ali Khan v. The Government which, though a case relating to a Shia Wakf, viz, the celebrated endowment under the will of Haji Muhammad Mohsin for the Imambara at Hooghly was dealt with by the Sadar Dewani Adalat upon the principles of the Sunni school of Mahomedan law which was then prevalent as the Mahomedan law administered by the Courts of British India. The case was decided so long ago as the 22nd of September 1836, and it is a matter of doubt whether in those days the Shia law was ever administered by the Courts of the British India as the rule of decision, even when Shias were concerned. Mr. Baillie at the outset of the introduction to his Imameea law describes the history of the manner in which the Shia law came to be recognised in India, and it may be safely stated that it was not till the ruling of their Lordships of the Privy Council in Rajah Deedar Hossien v. Ranee Zahooroon-nissa decided in 1841 that the enforceability of the Shia law by the British Courts in India was placed upon a firm footing. In that case their Lordships observed, 'it is true that the Sunni law has generally prevailed, because the great majority of the Indian Mahomedans are Sunnis, there being very few families of the Shia sect except those of the reigning princes, which will account for the prevalence of the Sunni doctrines in the Courts, but there is no practice which excludes the application of the Shia law to the rights of persons professing the tenants of that sect."

www.vadaprativada.com

3231. In Sunni law, according to Abu Hanifa, a detaining of it in the ownership of the appropriator, but without the power of alienation, and a bestowing of its produce in charity. The learned author on page 498-499 says:

"It must, therefore, be taken that the Shia law recognises wakf not as a unilateral disposition of property, as it is

recognised in the Sunni law, but as a contract which , according to the requirements of juristic notions, irrespective of either of these two systems, must be a transaction inter vivos, and this ex necessitate rei. The Sharayi-ul-Islam in describing the rule as to wakf goes on to say: Conditions that relate to the waqf itself, which are four in number, first, it must be perpetual; second, absolute and unconditional; third; possession must be given of the mowkoof, or thing appropriated , and, fourth it must be entirely taken out if the waqif or appropriator himself. So that if the appropriation is restricted to a particular time or made dependent on some quality of future occurrence, it is void.' Under the Shia law, a wakf can be created by will. A mental act although afterwards sufficiently expressed in conduct will not, unless clothed in appropriate words, create a wakf. A mere statement in a will of some gift in the past cannot be referred back to the date, still undetermined, when that gift is afterwards alleged to have been made, or such a narrative statement cannot in any view be an adequate substitute for the oral deceleration of dedication to God, which the Mahomedan law appears imperatively to require, synchronously with the act of dedication itself. There is a plain distinction between giving in charity and declaring that one had given in charity. And for the purpose of fixing the origin of the wakf, if there is a wakf at all, the mere statement in a will that at some past date the testator had set apart such and such funds for charitable objects, is of comparatively slight value. Where there has been no actual delivery a clear declaration is necessary to create a valid wakf. "The Mahomedan law, which only allows a testator restricted powers of disposition over his property, contains no such restriction as regards gifts inter vivos but does not recognise such gifts as valid unless possession is given to the donee. This also applies to wakfs or gifts for religious or charitable purposes, at any rate among Shias. Further, in the case of wakfs or gifts for charitable purposes, the Shia law imposes a further restriction that the wakif or settlor shall not retain for himself any interest in the subject or the gift. This restriction, for which reasons of a religious character are assigned, undoubtedly operates as check on the creation of wakfs not from purely religious motives, but with a view of defeating the rights of heirs and transmitting the possession and control of the settlor's property after his death to other persons in the character of mutawallis. This restriction is the last of the four conditions as to the validity of wakfs laid down in the Suraya, the leading Shia authority, as follows: '(i) It must be perpetual; (ii) absolute and unconditional; (iii) possession must be given of the mowkoof of the thing appropriated, and (iv) it must be entirely taken out of the wakif or appropriator himself. Where the settlor under colour of fixing her salary as mutawalli, was really reserving for her life-time a portion of the income or usufruct of the property far in excess of what was assigned in the deed to future mutawalis or could reasonably have been assigned to them, it was a clear violation of the condition."

3232. On page 600-601, with respect to Mosque, it says:

"Where a mosque is a public mosque open to the use of all Mahomedans without distinction of sect, a Mahomedan who, in the bonafide exercise of his religious duties in such mosque, pronounces the word 'Amin' in a loud tone of voice, according to the tenets of his sect, does nothing which is contrary to the Mahomedan ecclesiastical law or which is either an offence or civil wrong, though he may by such conduct cause annoyance to his fellow worshippers in the mosque. But any person, Mahomedan or otherwise. Who goes into a mosque not bonafide for religious purposes, but malafide to create a disturbance there and interferes with the devotion of the ordinary frequenters of the mosque, will render himself criminally liable. A mosque, from its very nature, is dedicated for worship and is open to all Muslims local and others. It is dedicated for a specific purpose and not to the local Muslims for such benefit as they may choose to derive therefrom. They cannot of right claim to use it for any other purpose however meritorious or beneficial it may be to the members of the local Muslim community. "It is a well recognised principal that if a person has an undoubted legal right to say his prayers in a mosque the Courts cannot refuse to recognise that legal right merely because an anticipated breach of peace is to be committed by the other side. A mosque does not belong to any particular sect; for once it is built and consecrated, any reservation for people of a particular locality or sect is void, and persons not belonging to that locality or sect are entitled to worship in it, whether or not any particular sect had

www.vadaprativada.com

contributed towards the site or the building of the mosque and had been saying their prayers in it and every person who believes in the unity of God and the mission of Mahammad as a prophet is a Mussalman, to whatever sect he may belong, and that the Shias satisfy the test; and that there is no such thing as a Sunni or a Shia mosque though the majority of the worshippers at any particular mosque may belong to one or other sect either generally or at various times." In Mahomedan law there can not be any private mosque. When once a place is dedicated to be a mosque, it becomes public property, it is property of God. Therefore where a person in charge of such a mosque claims the property as his private estate, he is liable to be removed from charge of such mosque. But there can be right of exclusion in case of mosques belonging to a particular sect."

www.vadaprativada.com

3233. It also says that a place may be dedicated as mosque or Masjid without there being any building.

3234. In Syed Mohd. Salie Labbai & others Vs. Mohd. Hanifa & others AIR 1976 SC 1569, the Court observed:

"Once the founder dedicates a particular property for the purpose of a public mosque, the Mahomedan Law does not permit any one from stopping the Mahomedan public from offering prayers and reciting Koran etc. ...Under the Mohammedan Law if a land has been used from time immemorial for burial ground then the same may be called a wakf although there is no express dedication. ...in cases where a graveyard has existed from time immemorial or for a very long time, there can be a presumption of a lost

grant. It is open to a Court to infer from circumstances that a plot of land covered by graves, which has been used as a graveyard, is in fact a graveyard and had been set apart as such by the original owners and made a consecrated ground even though a registered document is not now forthcoming."

"The word "wakf" means detention or appropriation. According to the well recognized Hanafi School of Mahomedan Law when a Mahomedan dedicates his property for objects of charity or to God, he completely parts with the corpus which vests in God and never returns to the founder*. Mahomedan Law contemplates two kinds of Wakfs- a wakf which is private in nature where although the ultimate object is public charity or God. but the property vests in a set of beneficiaries chosen by the founder who appoints a Mutawalli to manage the wakf property. We are, however, not concerned with private wakfs which are normally known as wakf-alal-aulad. We are concerned with public wakf i.e. dedication made for the purpose of public charity e.g. an Imam-Bada, a mosque, a Serai and the like.* So far as the dedication to a mosque is concerned, it is governed by special rules and special equity in the light of which a particular dedication has to be determined. A mosque is obviously a place where the Muslims offer their prayers. It is well-known that there are certain formalities which have to be observed by the Muslims before they observe the prayers. These formalities are-

(i) Wazoo i.e. washing of hands and feet in a manner

prescribed by Shariat:

(ii) the recitation of "Azaah" and "Ikamat" which is usually done by the Pesh Imam or the Muayzin;

(iii) there must be a person who possesses virtuous qualities and a knowledge of Koran and other religious rites who should lead the prayers.

This is necessary in case of prayers offered in congregation.

3235. In "Law of Endowments (Hindu & Mahomedan)" by A. Ghosh, Second Edn. published by Eastern Law House, Calcutta, on page 602 it is provided that the questions raised in a Mahomedan community relating to a Mahomedan mosque and tomb ought to be decided by Mahomedan law so far as the same is applicable to the particular community and not expressly or impliedly negatived by the general law of the land. (See: Advocate General of Bombay vs. Yusufally 24 Bom. L.R. 1060).

3236. Sri M.M. Pandey, learned counsel for the plaintiffs (Suit-5) has submitted that according to established Mohammedan Law and evidence on behalf of Plaintiffs of OOS 4 of 1989, no Wakf can be created over property which is not owned by the Wakif and if a Masjid is erected at a religious place of another religion, Allah does not accept any Namaz offered at such place. Islam does not recognise Wakf of property which belongs to another or has been obtained by use of force or by demolishing place of worship of another religion. PW 3 Farookh Ahmad (at p. 16), PW 10 Mohd Idris (at p. 24 & 104) and PW 11 Mohd Burhanuddin (at p. 7 &14) admit this position under Islam. Paper No. 107 C1/218 to 225 is write-up by Dr.

Amaresh Arya, M.A., M.O.L., Ph D (formerly Dr. Amir Ali who taught Islamic theology at Medina in Saudi Arabia) captioned "Mosque, Mausoleum and Endowment in Islamic Shariat". At page 107C1/221 it is mentioned: "According to Shariat the site which has been occupied unauthoritatively should not be used for constructing any Mosque or for cultivation (Fathva Siddeeq-ul-Itasan)", and "Also all the temples which are deliberately replaced by Mosques, performing of 'Namaz' on such a place is also prohibited". Disputed building is therefore Un-Islamic.

3237. A compilation of 'Problems & Solutions' issued by the highest theological authority of Iran, sets out 9 Conditions for an appropriate place of worship. The publication, 73rd Edition, dt. 21 Ramzanul-mubarak 1413 Hijri (=1992), is captioned: "Tauzihul-masayal, mutabiq ba Fatwai, Murajja Azimushshan Jahan Tashbih, Hazrat Ayatullah Al-azami Aaqai-Haaj Syed Mohammad Raza Mausoovi Galpayagani, Madzallah-ul-Aala". It is published by Darul-Quranul-Karim, Iran. Problem No. 875 deals with 'Makan Namaz Guzar' and the solution sets out 9 conditions of which the 1st Condition is that the place is Ankah, i.e., saying Namaz at such a place is 'Batil' (=false/illegal) which is 'Ghasbi' (taken forcibly), and even if Namaz be said on land, or on own sheet (farsh) or wood (takhat) thereat, it would be Batil.

3238. One is reminded of what QURAN says. A 'Dar Al-Chaura, Beirut, Lebanon' publication of English Translation of Quran, approved by 'The Supreme Sunni and Shia Councils of Republic of Lebanon', quotes verse No. 2:186 (at page 20), 'Do not usurp another's property by unjust means ……' Verse No. 2:190 (at page 21) commands: ' Fight for the sake of Allah those that fight against you, but do not be aggressive. Allah does not love the aggressors. Similar Hindi translation of these verses is contained at page 67 of "Quran Sharif" 5th Edition 1981, of Hafiz Mohd. Hanif & Sons, Book-sellers, Mubarakpur Azamgarh (UP) published by "Lucknow Kitabghar", printed by 'Lucknow Publishing House", Lucknow. It is absolutely clear that if Babar ordered disputed structure to be erected at the site of a Hindu Temple or if Mir Baqi erected it, under Babar's order, at the site of a Temple demolished for the purpose, both the acts violated Quranic injunctions thereby both are guilty of erecting an Un-Islamic Mosque. The so-called Babri Masjid, therefore, was void ab initio, violated Islamic mandate and must be treated to be non-est, i.e, even if physically existent, it had no legal existence.

3239. Sri Pandey relied on Keshavan Madhava Menon v. State of Bombay, 1951 SC 128, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court relied on Black's Law Dictionary (III Edn.) for the meaning of the word 'void' in para 18:

> "The meaning of the word "void" is stated in Black's Law Dictionary (3rd Edn.) to be as follows:-
> "null and void; ineffectual; nugatory; having no legal force or binding effect; unable in law to support the purpose for which it was intended; nugatory and ineffectual so that nothing can cure it; not valid.""

3240. A Masjid erected in violation of injunction of Islam was 'unable to support the purpose for which it was intended', namely offering namaz, but Allah could not accept namaz in such a masjid. He sought support from Baljinder Singh v. Rattan Singh, JT 2008(10) SC 98 (para 25) where Hon'ble

Supreme Court quoted from "Words and Phrases by Justice R.P. Sethi" and said: "Void- Black's Law Dictionary gives the meaning of the word "void" as having different nuances in different connotations. One of them is of course "null or having no legal force or binding effect" and the other is "unable in law, to support the purpose for which it was intended".

3241. He further submits that on facts, justice, equity and good conscience are in favour of plaintiffs of (Suit 5) rather than plaintiffs (Suit 4).

3242. In para 1204 of Halsbury's Laws of England (supra) it is stated that 'equity implies a system of law which is more consonant than the ordinary law with opinions current for the time being as to just regulation of mutual rights and duties of men living in a civilised society. When Babar became Emperor as a conqueror and did not frame any law governing Hindu Deities/Temples, the Hindu Law prevailing at that time had to be applied by him as indicated above.

3243. In general, when the word 'conscience' was used, this denoted the conscience of the Defdt., and the Court by decree in personam can prevent of making an unconscionable use of rights at common law. The correction of Defendant's conscience was the ground of the interference of equity in case of fraud, breach of trust and 'wrong and oppression generally (Ft.Note 1, HLE Supra). The special imperfections of medieval common law, as to its administration were that its judgments were not capable of being adapted to meet special circumstances or were turned into a means of oppression. The Court of Chancery, in so far as it remedied these defects, afforded an improved system of attaining justice, but this was the difference between law and equity. Law and equity have both the same end, which is to do right. Where it differed from the law, this was in order to moderate its rigour, to supply its omissions, to assist the legal remedy, or to relieve against the evasion of the law or the abuse of legal rights; it supplies omissions by exacting conscientious conduct from the defendant when the law recognised no binding obligation (Ft. Note 3, HLE Supra). Babar could not be permitted, in equity or good conscience, arbitrarily to deprive the Deity of its rights and possession at the disputed site.

3244. An application of these principles of equity to the present suits, entitles the plaintiffs (Suit 5) to the relief sought. The pith and substance of the plaint case in Suit 5 is that the disputed site is the birthplace of Bhagwan Shri Ram, that before Babar's invasion, a Temple stood there, that worship of the birthplace and the temple by Hindu public had been going on since ancient/immemorial time, that the temple was destroyed by the hordes of Babar and at its site Babri Masjid was constructed, that a structure raised by force of arms on Deities' land after destroying their temple, could not be treated to be a legal/valid mosque according to Islam, and the Quran as shown above. In view of this command of Quran, conversion of Temple into Mosque did not create a valid dedication of the property to Allah in fact or in law (para 24 of Plaint). In reply to these pleadings, Sunni Central Boards of Wakf, Defdt. No 4, stated (in para 24 of WS) that the quotation of Quran was 'out of context', 'not correct' 'nor complete'; but the Sunni Board did not set out any context, nor the 'correct' or 'complete' quotation in written statement or anywhere in evidence. Regarding Plaintiff's case of

failed (lack of) dedication to Allah, the reply is that Babar was the Emperor, "the vacant land on which the Babri Masjid was built lay in the State territory and did not belong to anyone and it could very well be used for the purpose of the Mosque and specially so when the Emperor himself consented and gave approval for construction of the said Mosque". This is incorrect. Babar never became Emperor. The land was a Hindu Deity as birthplace of Bhagwan Shree Ram, hence was owned by the Deity, whose Temple was standing thereat, as Deity's House in possession of Bhagwan Shree Ram; therefore it could not vest in the Conqueror/Emperor. As conqueror, it was Babar's duty to protect the birthplace/temple. A significant fact stated by Supreme Court in Ismail Farooqui's case, (1994) 6 SCC 360 (para 11) is that in the White Paper (Chapter II, para 2.8) of the Central Government preceding the Acquisition of Certain Areas at Ayodhya Ordinance No. 8 of 1993, re-enacted as Central Act No. 33 of 1993, Muslim leaders had stated that if it was proved that a Hindu Temple had existed on the site of the Disputed Structure and was demolished on Babar's orders for construction of Babri Masjid, the Muslims would voluntarily hand over the disputed shrine to Hindus. It is also important that according to para 4 of the Supreme Court Judgment, the Acquisition "Bill was introduced in the Parliament leading to the above enactment and the said Reference to this Court was made in the historical background set out in the White paper". The legal effect is that since these facts stand proved, the Central Govt. itself would be estopped from denying the remedy sought by the Plaintiffs in Suit 5, and would have to feed the estoppel by grant by the equitable doctrine of Estoppel, vide, Renu Devi V. Mahendra

Singh & Others (2003)10 SCC 200.

3245. Lastly he submits that these very established facts would amount to "wrong and oppression" and "unconscionable use" of his rights as Emperor, if at all, in as much as he violated settled Usage/Custom of Hindu Community which Babar was bound to protect as 'conqueror' enjoined by Hindu Law (the Law of the 'Subject"). In the case of S. Darshan Lal Vs. Dr. R.S.S Dalliwall, 1952 All 825 (DB), it is stated in para 16: "In an inhabited country, obtained by conquest or cessation, law already prevailing therein continues to prevail except to the extent English Law has been introduced, and also except to the extent to which such law is not civilised law at all……." Earlier, Privy Council had ruled in Mosque known as Masjid Shahidganj Vs. Shiromani Gurdwara Parbandhak Committee, 1940 PC 116 at page 120, 'There is every presumption in favour of the proposition that a change of sovereignty would not affect private rights to property'. It also constituted violation of injunctions of Babar's own religion contained in the Quran, and equity would require Babar to purge his own conscience of the 'wrong, oppression, and violation of Holy Laws of his own Subjects and those of his own religion'. Similar equities would prevail between the present parties to these suits in as much as 'wrongs' committed by Babar, could not become 'right' by mere lapse of time, and would continue to be wrongs even today. The 'general law' of extinction of rights contained in the Limitation Act is not enough to over-ride the substantive rights of the Deity under 'special' Hindu Law; no law of limitation can apply to the rights and property of Deity.

3246. So far as the general principles of Islamic law as referred to in these very authenticated books are concerned, the same are not disputed by any of the learned counsels for the muslim party i.e. by Sri Jilani, Siddiqui and Irfan Ahmad. The authority and authenticity of the english translation of the aforementioned books are also not disputed.

Essentials of Waqf in Shariat Law

3247. Having given our anxious considerations, we find that in a simple and well elaborated manner various aspects of waqf are contained in above Islamic religious scriptures. It is really strange, despite such clarity in the thoughts and its solution contained in Shariyat scriptures exceptionally large number of cases have come up before British Indian Courts, as well as the Indian Courts after independence involving disputes relating to waqf and waqf property. We propose to consider some of the authorities, relevant on this aspect hereinunder:

www.vadaprativada.com

3248. A Division Bench of Bombay High Court in Said Maher Hussain Vs. Haji Alimahomed Jalaludin and others, AIR 1934 Bombay 257 has summarised essential condition to constitute a waqf and on page 264 has held:

> "there must be a declaration of dedication which should be made contemporaneously with the act of dedication ..... The wakif must divest himself of the ownership of the property ..... Physical delivery is not essential, but such possession as is possible must be given."

3249. About mosques, it had been observed that there are some special rules. Wilson's Anglo-Mahomedan Law, Amir Ali's Muhammadan Law and Tyabji's Principles of Muhammadan Law are referred to and the Court has said:

> "When once a building has been set apart as a

mosque it is enough to make it wakf if public prayers are once said there with the permission of the owner. But though a declaration of dedication and completion by some act giving practical effect to it are essential, it was not always necessary that there should be any direct evidence of these things. Dedication may be inferred from long user as wakf property . . . . . there can be no doubt as to this principle which is recognised in all the text books."

3250. In Har Prasad and others Vs. Fazal Ahmad and others, AIR 1933 PC 83 it was held that the capacity and intention of wakif at the time of executing waqfnama is relevant and crucial. If subsequently it is found that the waqfnama was executed believing certain facts existing which subsequently found non existing, the waqf, merely because the waqfnama was executed, would not stand created.

3251. In Commissioner of Wakfs and another Vs. Mohammad Moshin, AIR 1954 Calcutta 463 a Division Bench of Calcutta High Court held that waqf is a purely Mohammedan institution and concept. Its creation and incidents are governed by the Mohammedan law. The Court cannot sanction creation of waqf contrary to the Mohammedan law. In Mohammedan law no one but the owner of the property can make a waqf of it. In that case a waqf was sought to be created on behalf of a minor by a guardian and that was claimed to be sanctioned by the District Judge under Section 29 of Guardians and Wards Act 1890. The Court held it impermissible in law for the reason that the Mohammedan law says that a minor cannot create a waqf. If the creation of waqf by the guardian is really an act of the minor through the guardian, then to uphold it would amount to allowing something being done indirectly which could not be done directly. It also observed that the idea of agency in relation to an infant is foreign to Muhammadan law and from that point of view also guardian under Muhammadan law has no power to make a waqf of the ward's property as the creator himself is not owner of the property.

3252. In N.C.Ramanatha Iyer Vs. Board of Commissioners for Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras AIR 1954 Madras 492, the Court observed that dedication is a fact which can be inferred from the circumstances of the particular case and need not necessarily be based upon documentary evidence. It also observed following the commendation of P. B. Ganapathi Aiyar's Hindu & Mahomedan Endowments at' page 136.

3253. The term "waqf" has recently been considered in the light of the law of Islam in Faqruddin Vs. Tajuddin 2008 (8) SCC 12 and in para 35, it says:

> "`Wakf' would mean taking out something out of one's ownership and passing it on to God's ownership dedicating its usufruct - without regard to indigence or affluence, perpetually and with the intention of obtaining Divine pleasure - for persons and individuals, or for institutions or mosques and graveyards, or for other charitable purposes."

3254. The question as to whether a public mosque is open for worship to all Muslims irrespective of the consideration that in different sects, there is difference in the manner of offering Namaz, came to be considered before a Full Bench of this Court in Jangu & others Vs. Ahmad Ullah & others 1889-1891 ILR

13 (All.) 419. It was held that in a public mosque all Mohammadans were entitled to say their prayers. Justice Mahmood in his concurrent but separate judgement referred with approval his earlier observations in Queen-Empress Vs. Ramzan ILR, 7 All. 461:

> "Now, it is the fundamental principle of the Muhammadan law of wakf, too well known to require the citation of authorities, that when a mosque is built and consecrated by public worship, it ceases to be the property of the builder and vests in God (to use the language of the Hedaya) 'in such a manner as subjects it to the rules of Divine property, whence the appropriator's right in it is extinguished, and it becomes a property of God by the advantage of it resulting to his creatures.' A mosque once so consecrated cannot in any case revert to the founder, and every Muhammadan has the legal right to enter it, and perform devotions according to his own tenets, so long as the form of worship is in accord with the recognized rules of Muhammadan ecclesiastical law. The defendants therefore were fully justified by law in entering the mosque in question and in joining the congregation, and they were strictly within their legal rights, according to the orthodox rule of the Muhammadan ecclesiastical law, in saying the word 'amin' aloud."

3255. His Lordship further held :

> "I have no doubt that under the Muhammadan law of wakf, and the Muhammadan ecclesiastical law, which we are bound to administer in such cases under s. 24 of the Civil Courts Act (VI of 1871), the provisions of which have been

reproduced in s. 37 of Act XII of 1887, a mosque when public is not the property of any particular individual or even a body or corporation of any other human organization which in the law has a personality. In the eye of the Muhammadan law a mosque is the property of God, it must be recognized as such, and subject only to such limitations as the Muhammadan ecclesiastical law itself provides, it is public property, being the property of God for the use of his servants, and every human being is entitled to go and worship there so long as he conforms to the rules of the Muhammadan ecclesiastical ritual of worship."

3256. In Ata-Ullah & another Vs. Azim-Ullah & another 1889 ILR 12 (All.) 494 another decision was rendered by a five-Judges Bench of this Court on 5th November, 1889, i.e., the very next day when the Full Bench judgment in Jangu Vs. Ahmad Ullah (supra) was rendered wherein also a similar question was considered as to whether the Mohammedans of different sects as a matter of right can offer prayer in a public mosque built by one of the sect of Mohammedans. Facts show that the mosque was built by Hanafis sect of Mohammedans and used as their place of worship since inception. Plaintiffs described themselves as Muhammadis to whom the defendants, i.e., "the Hanafi sect of Muslims" called Wahabis sought to offer prayer in the above mosque which was objected to by the defendants saying that the system of prayer of two is different, therefore, the plaintiffs cannot offer prayer in the mosque established by Hanafi sect of Muslims. Rejecting this contention it was held by Sir John Edge, Kt., Chief Justice as under :

"...no authority has been brought to our notice to show that a mosque which has been deviated to God can be appropriated exclusively to or by any particular sect or denomination of the Sunni Muhammadans, and without very strong authority for such a proposition, I for one could not find as a matter of law that there could be any such exclusive appropriation. As I understand, a mosque to be a mosque at all must be a building dedicated to God and not a building dedicated to God with a reservation that it should be used only by particular persons holding particular views of the ritual. As I understand it, a mosque is a place where all Muhammadans are entitled to go and perform their devotions as of right, according to their conscience."

3257. It was also held that merely for the reason that there is some difference in the practice of offering prayer, it cannot be said that though these persons are Muhammadans but belong to category who are other than followers of prophet and it was observed :

"No authority has been brought before us to show that these persons by reason of any views which they may entertain as to ritual, could be treated by any orthodox Muhammadans as persons other than followers of the prophet."

3258. Hon'ble Justice Mahmood in his separate but concurrent judgment observed :

"...so long as a mosque is a mosque, that so long as the plaintiffs are persons who call themselves Muhammadans and entitled to worship, there is absolutely no authority to say that any sect or any creed or any portion of the community can restrain others who claim to have the right which to use the language of Muhammadan law, God and his Prophet gave them, from putting such right into exercise."

3259. In Musaheb Khan Vs. Raj Kumar Bakshi, AIR 1938 Oudh 238 the question was whether a compound having a mosque, an Imambara and a number of tombs are liable to be attached and sold in execution of a decree obtained against their owner, inasmuch as they were alleged to have become dedicated property or waqf, on account of a term contained in the will executed by the owner, whereby he had transferred full proprietary rights to a legatee and his representatives in perpetuity, but had made a direction to continue certain religious celebrations on the premises. The Chief Court of Oudh referring to certain passages appearing in Baillie's "Commentary on Mohammedan Law"; Syed Ameer Ali's "Principles of Mohemmadan Law" and Tyabji's "Mohammedan Law", held:

"Even if a mosque, that is a building having the appearance of a mosque, is built in a place which is not enclosed, that is, is not situated in such a man's house, something more than the mere appearances of a mosque are needed before it will become entitled to be treated as a mosque for all time. There must be proof of dedication or of permission or of user such as by the saying of prayers in congregational manner . . . . . the mere construction of a mosque in a private house does not make it a mosque in the sense of a public place of worship."

3260. In Khalil Ahmad and another Vs. Sheikh Mohd. Askari and others, AIR 1965 Allahabad 320 the question came up for consideration was whether the building in dispute was a public mosque or a private place of worship. A Single Judge of this Court held that before a building can be said to be a public mosque, the requisite essentials are (i) the building must be set apart as a mosque; (ii) public prayers must have been said in it at least once, even with the permission of the owner; and (iii) there must have been long user of the same as a place of worship by the public at large. This Court also held that like a private chapel in England or a private Hindu temple in India there could also be a private mosque for offering prayers by the owners and the members of his family, and such private mosque are not unknown in India. The two glaring examples of such mosques are in the Red Fort at Delhi and Agra, where the members of Mughal Royal family used to offer prayers in the mosques situate within the four walls of their forts. The Court further observed, "obviously it could not have been suggested that simply because those buildings were shaped and domed like mosques and the members of the royal family regularly offered prayers therein, the same had become wakf property so as to entitle the general public to get into such private mosques and offer prayers in congregation as of right."

3261. In Garib Das and others Vs. Munshi Abdul Hamid and others, AIR 1970 SC 1035 it was held that a waqf inter vivos is completed by a mere declaration of endowment by the owner. It was also held that the founder of a waqf may constitute himself the first mutawalli and in such a case when the founder and the mutawalli are the same person, no transfer or physical possession is necessary. It is also not necessary in such a case that the property should be transferred from the name of the donor as owner into his name as mutawalli.

3262. In Abdul Ghafoor Vs. Rahmat Ali & others AIR 1930 Oudh 245, a learned Single Judge considered the question of proof of Waqf by user and held that once it is established that Mahomedan public used the land as burial ground, in the absence of direct evidence of dedication, the wakf can be established by evidence of user. The Court further said that if there is no authority to establish the land as public wakf, on the ground of user there must be evidence of continued use upto the present day. The rule which allows evidence of user to take the place of dedication is a rule of necessity. In the case of old wakf, it is not possible to secure direct evidence of dedication and so it has been ruled that even in the absence of such direct evidence, a Court can hold a wakf to be established on evidence of long user. It also observed that once land has been dedicated for the purpose of a cemetery, it must always be regarded as a cemetery unless for any reason the land turns out of the use as a cemetery. Once a wakf is established either by evidence of dedication or by evidence of user, it is in essence of the wakf that it should be permanent.

3263. In Chhutkao Vs. Gambhir Mal AIR 1931 Oudh 45 it was reiterated by another Single Judge that it is a well understood principle of Mahomedan law that a wakf may be established by the evidence of user. It is also reiterated that land once used as a cemetery is always regarded as cemetery unless for any reason, it turns out to be unfit for use as such and that once a wakf is established either by evidence of dedication or by

evidence of user, it is in essence of the waqf that it should be permanent.

3264. In Punjab Wakf Board, Ambala Vs. Capt. Mohar Singh AIR 1975 SC 1891 it was held that mere mention of a property in a notification issued under Section 55 (2) of Wakf Act, 1954 showing the property to be an Idgah or the exercise of power by the Board under the Muslim Wakfs Act by itself would not establish and identify the property to be a wakf property unless it is shown that there was a valid wakf created and existed which was so notified under the Act.

3265. In Anjuman Islamia & others Vs. Munshi Tegh Ali & others 1971 (3) SCC 814, it was held that if there is a very big property, the mere fact that there existed a Mosque and a School which is probably a Wakf property would not mean that the entire area is a Wakf property unless the evidence is so made available. In order to show that the entire area is a wakf property by long and immemorable user, the evidence has to be produced to the effect that the entire property is a wakf and not only the Mosque or the School and the land occupied thereat.

3266. The question with respect to plot of land as to whether it is a graveyard in the sense of Mahomedan law, i.e. to say "extra commercium" and dedicated for the benefit of Mahomedans in general in such sense that private ownership therein does not exist, was considered in Ballabh Das and another Vs. Nur Mohammad and another AIR 1936 Privy Council 83. The matter had arisen from the judgment reported in AIR 1931 Oudh 293. History of dispute was set out by the learned Subordinate Judge, stating that in the mutiny of 1857 many people left the city of Lucknow. At the first Regular

Settlement the Government found it extremely difficult to determine the title to the tenements of the persons who returned and occupied them. Seeing the previous insecurity of life and property from which the people had suffered at the hands of ruffians, it was not only difficult for them to prove their title, but an enquiry into title was bound to prolong the settlement operations to an inordinate length. The Government therefore ordered that persons in possession be recorded as proprietors of their tenements and the sites thereof. One Kale Khan was recognized by the Government as the owner of plot No. 108. Lord Canning's Proclamation of 15 March 1858 confiscated all land in Oudh, and every right in the soil in the city of Lucknow was vested in the Crown. By the letter of the Financial Commissioner of Oudh dated 7th August 1868, lands were granted to people whom the Crown liked to grant. It was at the first Regular settlement, therefore that for the first time in the city of Lucknow anybody's title was created to any land. All previous rights including those of the grandfather of Mirza Mahmud Beg, if any, had been swept away by confiscation. The subordinate Judge observed that neither it could be proved that Kale Khan made a Waqf nor that he ever divested himself of his rights so as to deprive him of the ownership of the plot in suit. The District Judge confirmed the judgement of the Subordinate Judge but it was reversed in the Chief Court of Oudh. The Privy Council disagreed with the view taken by the Chief Court that the land would become a Waqf immediately upon the burial of even a single person but observed that if a landowner allows one or two of his relatives to be buried in his orchard, he would not necessarily be held to have dedicated the land as a cemetery. It

held:

> "The owner who permits one or two burials to take place in his orchard would not describe his orchard as qabristan. If the plaintiffs had to make out dedication entirely by direct evidence of burials being made in the ground, and without and record such as the khasra of 1868, to help them, they would undoubtedly have to prove a number of instances adequate in character, number ad extent to justify the inference that the plot of land in suit was a cemetery. The plaintiffs however are not in this position."

3267. It further held that when in Khasara of 1868 one comes across a description of certain land by the word "qabristan" or "grave-yard", this, prima facie at all events, means that the land is a grave-yard in the sense known to the Mohamedan Law. With respect to the entry in khasara of First Settlement the Privy Council observed that the khasara itself is the instrument which confers or embodies the right and there is no other document which creates title and khasra and map are not merely " historical materials" but are instruments of title or otherwise the direct foundation of rights. For this purpose reliance was placed on Wali Mohammad V. Mohammad Bakhsh AIR 1930 PC 91.

Status of Mosque and Mutwalli

3268. In Shanker Das Vs. Said Ahmad (1884) P.R. No.153 of 1884 Lahore High Court considered the rights of Mutawalli of a mosque and observed:

> "We are of the opinion that though theoretically wakf property belongs to no human owner, nevertheless a

www.vadaprativada.com

mosque, as a concrete example of wakf, is an institution, and its possession is legally maintained by its lawful guardian for the time being: in virtue of his position, the guardian can resist trespass, recover debts, make purchases and mortgages all in virtue of the right which resides in the institution. In the same way we think the mosque, as an institution, might acquire an easement by prescription; and that being so, we cannot think of any rule or principle by which we could deny to the mosque (as an institution) the same right of preventing strangers approaching its walls by the exercise of a right of pre-emption, as other house-holders have. The object of the right of pre-emption is to secure the cohesion of families, and obviate the inconvenience of a mixed or alien neighbourhood among private house-holders. Now it can hardly be denied that exactly the same convenience, which results to a private house from the exercise of the right may result also to a mosque.

"We have no hesitation in deciding, on this principle, that the mosque as an institution has practically proprietary rights exercised through the guardian, and that one of the rights is to claim, on the ground of vicinage a right of pre-emption in the case of sales of adjoining properties."

3269. This has been followed in Jindu Ram Vs. Hussain Baksh & Anr. AIR 1914 Lahore 444 where the Court observed:

".....all that is necessary for him to establish is that he is the sole guardian and manager of the mosque and of the property appertaining thereto; that the legal ownership in the mosque and the property attached does not vest in any other person; and that he alone deals and is entitled to deal with the outside world on behalf and for the benefit of the mosque in all its legal relation. It is in this sense that the muttawali of a mosque or the manager of a Hindu religious institution by whatever name he may be called, can be appropriately said to be "a person whose immovable property," though it is not his private property, clothes him with a right of pre-emption regarding property contiguous to the mosque or temple, as the case may be, under clause seventhly of S. 13(1) Punjab Pre-emption Act."

3270. In Wahid Ali & another Vs. Mahboob ali Khan AIR 1935 Oudh 425, the Court held that a Muslim Wakf is not a trust and a Mutwalli cannot be said to be trustee. This Court relied on two judgments of Privy Council in Vidya Varuthi Thirtha Vs. Balusami Ayyar AIR 1922 PC 123 and Abdur Rahim Vs. Narayan Das Aurora AIR 1923 PC 44 and also pointed out that contrary and otherwise view taken by the Bombay High Court in Dattagiri Vs. Dattatraya (1904) ILR 27 Bom 236; Allahabad High Court in Behari Lal Vs. Muhammad Muttaki (1898) 20 All 482 and Calcutta High Court in Nilmony Singh Vs. Jagabandhu Roy (1896) 23 Cal 536 wherein the persons holding properties generally for Hindu or Mohammadan religious purposes were treated as trustee were dissented by Privy Council. It held that a Muslim Wakf in which the property is vested in God, the Mutwalli has no power of alienation and he cannot be compared with a Mahant of a Hindu religious endowment.

3271. With respect to position of 'Mutawalli' and

'sajjadanashin', also the Apex Court says in Faqruddin (Supra) in para 36:

> "It is beyond any doubt or dispute that a Mutawalli is the temporal head. He is the manager of the property. Office of Sajjadanashin, however, is a spiritual office. It has to be held by a wise person. He must be fit for holding the office."

3272. With respect to a waqf, the Court considered as to who can file a suit to recover possession of a waqf and in para 55 and 58 held as under:

> "55. It may further be true that the land in question were not Wakf lands but `Wakf Aulad'. Indisputably, however, both Wakf land as also the land in question are under the management of Mutawalli. He, apart from the Wakf land, holds the land in suit on behalf of the beneficiaries. The present appellants are also beneficiaries of the Wakf. If the right to recover possession must vest in a Mutawalli and if by reason of his status of `Matmi', Tajuddin did not become a Mutawalli, which declaration in his favour must be held to have been legally made by the High Court, the respondents relying on or on the basis of the purported Wills executed in their favour cannot claim independent right to recover possession."
> "58. The said principle was applied in a case of Debendra Nath Mitra Majumdar v. Sheik Safatulla AIR 1927 Cal 130, stating:
>
> > "That the right of the plaintiff to hold the properties of the wakf is a right appurtenant to his office as the Mutwalli cannot be disputed : Gnanasambandha

3273. Besides Sharii text and precedents, plaintiffs (Suit 4) produced six witnesses as Experts in "Islamic religious matters" to depose on the above aspect of the matter. These are PW 10, Mohd. बद्र एक मुकाम का नाम था। जंगे बद्र काफी मशहूर है। यह गालबन छः या सात हिजरी साल में हुई थी। यह लड़ाई पैगम्बर साहब के अनुयायियों और कबीला कुरैश के बीच में लड़ी गई थी।'' (पेज 18)

"After Hazrat-e-Mabiya, Yazid sat on the throne in his place. It is said that somebody had poisoned the water offered to Hasan Sahib drinking which he passed away by and by. Imam-e-Hussain, younger brother of Imam-e-Hasan, had been a claimant to the office of Caliph. He had gone from Medina to Mecca and from Mecca to Kufa and was locked in battle with Yazid.

72-73 people had martyred in the battle of Karbala. . The younger son, Hazrat Ali Asgar, had certainly martyred and his wife and sister had been imprisoned. . . Muharram used to be celebrated even earlier and it was in existence earlier as well. This incident had taken place on the 10th day of Muharram. So, after that it came to be celebrated with much more fervour . . . . I have to say that both Shia and Sunni communities celebrate Muharram." (E.T.C)

Khalid Nadvi in his statement said that there is no reference about the form or shape in a particular manner to be observed for construction of a mosque in Holy Quran or Holy Hadis. No such reference is found in other books of Shariat law. Neither a dome nor a minarate nor a well nor arrangement of water for wazoo are essential conditions for constructing a mosque. He further said that once there constructed a mosque, it would remain for ever as it is and neither by placement of any idol nor otherwise its status or position would stand altered. Even if, followers of any other religion start practicing their religious faith in a mosque, that would not affect the status of mosque at all. In his cross-examination on pages 3 and 4 he says:

"कुरान के लुगवी मायने पढ़ना के हैं। कुराने शरीफ की व्याख्या कुछ इस प्रकार की जा सकती है कुराने पाक अल्लाह का नाजिल करदा आखिरी किताब है जो मोहम्मद (स0अ0व0) पर 23 साल की मुद्त में हजरत जिब्रील (अ0स0) के वास्ते से मक्के और मदीने मे नाजिल हुई।.....अग्रेंजी मायने मे भी कुरान को खुदा की किताब कहा जा सकता है।" (पेज–3)

3285. With respect to his statement-in-chief about the characteristics of mosque he however has admitted on page 27 that he has not acquired any special knowledge in this regard as under:

"मैनें इस सिलसिले में कोई विशेष ज्ञान अर्जित नहीं किया कि मस्जिद का आकार व स्वरूप क्या हो। फिकह की ब़ाज किताबो में मैने यह पढ़ा है कि मस्जिद के आदाब और अहकाम क्या हो। परन्तु उसकी बनावट के बारे में कहीं नहीं पढ़ा है। और न ही उसके तर्जे तामीर का कोई तरीका बताया गया है।" (पेज–27)

"I did not acquire any specific knowledge as to what the shape and form of a mosque should be. In certain books of Fiquah I have read what 'Aadab'(manners) and 'Ahkam'(orders) should be followed in a mosque. But I have nowhere studied about its structure, nor is there any mention of any style of its construction." (E.T.C.)

3286. Neither he has ever visited Ayodhya nor has himself seen the disputed building, therefore, other part of his statement in cross-examination in this regard is wholly irrelevant. His admission about visit to Ayodhya is on pages 24/25:

"यह कहना सही है कि चूंकि मै कभी अयोध्या नहीं गया इसलिए मुझे इस बात की जानकारी नहीं है कि विवादित स्थल कहां पर है और किस स्थिति में है।" (पेज 24–25)

"It is correct to say that since I never visited Ayodhya, I do not know where the disputed site stands and in what position it is." (E.T.C.)

3287. He has tried to explain the reason of construction of disputed building of Babari Mosque by Mir Baqi while stating on pages 11/12 that Mir Baqi lived at Ayodhya and since there was a large population of muslims thereat he found it necessary to construct Babari mosque thereat since mosque is normally constructed where there is a settlement of muslims. He, however, denied any knowledge about the exact muslim population at the relevant time of Ayodhya and also any knowledge about the existence of any mosque at Ayodhya as is evident from page 11/12 and 22 as under:

"मीर बाकी अयोध्या में रहता था। बाबरी मस्जिद बनाने की जरूरत इसलिए थी कि वहॉ पर मुसलमानों की कसीर आबादी थी और इसलिए जहॉ मुसलमानों की आबादी होती है वहॉ मस्जिद बनाई जाती है। आबादी की तादाद (संख्या) का इल्म मुझे नहीं है।" (पेज 11–12)

"Mir Baqi lived at Ayodhya. The Babri mosque was needed to be constructed because there was a large population of Muslims. A mosque is constructed where there is a settlement of Muslims. I do not know exact figures of the Muslim population." (E.T.C.)

"विवादित ढॉचा/बाबरी मस्जिद तामीर करने के समय अयोध्या में और भी मस्जिदें थीं। कितनी मस्जिदें थीं, यह तफसील से नही बता सकता हूँ।" (पेज–22)

3289. His statement is basically to the extent that since the mosque vests in Allah irrespective of sect a muslim belongs, he can offer Namaz and on the basis of sect, i.e., Shia or Sunni no difference can be made out. On page 6 he is said to have heard about offering of Namaz in the disputed building before 1948 as under:

"मैंने ऐसा सुना है कि सन् 1948 के पहले भी बाबरी मस्जिद में नमाज हुआ करती थी।" (पेज 6)

"I have heard that Namaz was offered in Babri masjid even before year 1948." (E.T.C.)

3290. On page 8 he admits of big difference in the manner of offering Namaz by Shia and Sunni and said:

"शिया और सुन्नी में बहुत बड़ा फर्क है। . . . शिया और सुन्नी के नमाज पढ़ने के तरीके में भेद है।" (पेज 8)

"There is much difference between Shia and Sunni. ..... There is difference in the manner of offering Namaz between Shia and Sunni." (E.T.C.)

3291. He, however, admits to have never offered Namaz at Ayodhay and said:

''चुनाव प्रचार के बाद 1948 में एक दो बार फिर अयोध्या गया था। मैंने अयोध्या में कभी भी किसी मसिजद में नमाज अदा नहीं की।'' (पेज 15)

''After the election campaign, I again visited Ayodhya on couple of occasions in 1948. I never offered Namaz in any mosque in Ayodhya.'' (E.T.C.)

3292. Though he says that he had seen some of his other acquainted persons to have visited the disputed building for offering Namaz but on page 16 he says:

''मैंने विवादित मस्जिद में मुख्य दरवाजे के अन्दर घुसते किसी को नहीं देखा। . . . मैंने उन्हें नमाज पढ़ते नहीं देखा।'' (पेज 16–17)

''I did not see anybody entering the disputed mosque through the main gate... .. .. I had not seen them offer Namaz.'' (E.T.C.)

3293. Then further he could not explain the exact extent of difference in the manner of offering Namaz between Shia and Sunni as evidence from page 26:

''मैंने सुन्नी फिकह का अध्ययन नहीं किया इसलिए मैं शिया और सुन्नी लोगों के नमाज पढ़ने के तरीके में क्या क्या फर्क है पूरी तरह से नहीं बता सकता। लेकिन जाहिरा तौर पर शिया हाथ खोल कर नमाज पढ़ते हैं और सुन्नी हाथ बांधकर नमाज पढ़ते हैं। शिया और सुन्नी की अजान में यह अंतर है कि शिया जिन कल्मों को अजान में कहते हैं उन सबको सुन्नी अजान में नहीं कहते हैं। और उतनी बार नहीं कहते।''

(पेज 26)

''I have not studied Sunni 'Fiquah'. As such I can not fully tell about the differences in the manner of offering of Namaz by Shia and Sunni people. However, apparently Shia offer Namaz open handed and Sunni offer Namaz close handed. The difference in 'Ajan' (prayer call given from mosque) of Shia and Sunni is that the 'Kalmas' (Fundamental formula of the Quran) in 'Ajan' of Shia are not present in the Sunni 'Ajan' and they are not announced that number of time." (E.T.C.)

www.vadaprativada.com

3294. Rest of his statements in respect to Babar, Mir Baqi, construction of building etc. are wholly irrelevant and inadmissible since he neither is an Expert Historian nor claims to possess any personal knowledge but whatever statement he has given are on hearsay basis.

3295. From the books of 'Sharii' and the relevant extracts mentioned above, broadly, some of the features, which are permissible or impermissible for a believer of Islam while offering Namaz in a mosque or for construction of a mosque or for spreading islamic religion and religious practices, are as under:

i. No compulsion in religion.

ii. People of other religion are permitted to carry out other religious practices according to their own religion but if they are residing under an Islamic reign, he may have to pay certain amount.

iii. Messengers of the almighty born in every community or nation.

iv. No Prophet be given superiority over another. Superiority to a learned has been given only for the purpose to tell the people what is right or wrong according to religion.

v. Freedom of religion was subject to payment of Jizya. The Islamic Rulers and army of Islam are under duty to protect religions, shrine and life of those isolator who paid tax (Jazya) which was in the nature of a protection tax.

vi. The temples of non-islamic people could be utilized for stay by a muslim travellors.

vii. At one place, two separate building of worship or two religions cannot exist.

viii. No Jizya upon the Muslim.

ix. In a public mosque, there cannot be a prayer without adhan (Ajan)

x. An assembly of worshippers pray in a Masjid with permission, that is delivery.

xi. Foundation of a mosque must be laid on piety and not hypocrisy.

xii. A mosque cannot be used as a home nor a place of gossips.

www.vadaprativada.com

xiii. Prayer between two columns is prevented.

xiv. Funeral prayer in the mosque is not permitted.

xv. Images, portrait, pictures, idols etc. as also designed garments having pictures are prohibited in a mosque.

xvi. Sitting on the graves and performing of Salat towards graves is not permitted.

xvii. Musical instrument i.e. bell etc. is not permissible in the mosque or in the vicinity thereof.

xviii. Where bells are ringing or conch shells are blown, prayer would not be offered.

xix. Before offering Friday prayer, one should take a bath in a house and perform Wudu (ablution) in the mosque.

xx. Before other prayers, Wuzu i.e. cleanliness of hand, face and feet is necessary.

www.vadaprativada.com

xxi. A mosque is to be built on a land obtained in a valid manner and by the owner or with the permission of the owner. In other words, user of land for the purpose of mosque in an unjust manner strictly prohibited.

3296. For the purpose of a waqf, valid in Shariyat Law, one must satisfy the following requirements:

i. The land must belong to Waqif.

ii. There must be dedication which is permanent.

iii. For a public waqf, the delivery to Mutawalli or anyone else on his behalf.

3297. The above factors have been enumerated on a careful reading of the books of Sharii, as also the relevant authorities on the subject, noticed above. We find that the so called religious experts at several places have made statements which are strictly not in conformity to what has been said in the texts, the extract whereof, we have already referred, and at times is contrary thereto. It is now settled that in the matter of the principles or laws of Muslims or Hindus, the Courts are supposed neither to obtain opinion of those who claimed to be 'Expert' in religious matter nor must rely thereon but should consider itself the relevant religious scripture to find out the correct position. The decision in this regard we have already referred to i.e. Mosque known as Masjid Shahid Ganj Vs. Shiromani Gurdwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar, 1940 PC 116.

3298. The case of the plaintiffs is that Babar conquered Hindustan after defeating Ibrahim Lodhi in the battle of Panipat in 1526 AD and thereby became emperor of the entire territory over which Ibrhim Lodhi had been reigning at that time. The area of Oudh was within the reigning territory of Ibrahim Lodhi and therefore, it also fell under the authority of Babar. He being the conqueror of the territory was a sovereign authority enjoying complete ownership on the entire land which fell within his reigning territory and thus was entitled to use any land for the purpose as he liked. Mir Baqi, his agent, with the permission and approval of Babar used the land in question for construction of the disputed structure. Since the Babar as conqueror was owner of the entire land, it cannot be said that the land was not owned by him. In this regard Sri Jilani had placed reliance on the following:

> "It is usual in this country to give similar names to the members of the reigning family. Thus the wife of Chah Jehan- so renowned for her beauty, and whose splendid mausoleum is more worthy of a place among the wonders of the world than the unshapen masses and heaps of stones in Egypt-was named Tage Mehalle, or the Crown of the Seraglio; and the wife of Jahan-Guyre, who so long wielded the sceptre, while her husband abandoned himself to drunkenness and dissipation, was known first by the appellation of Nour-Mehalle, the Light of the Seraglio, and afterwards by that of Nour-Jahan-Begum, the Light of the World.

usual in Europe, is this: as the land throughout the whole empire is considered the property of the sovereign*, there can be no earldoms, marquisates or duchies. The royal grants consist only of pensions, either in land or money, which the king gives, augments, retrenches or takes away at pleasure."*

B. Under the title "Letter to Colbert" at page 204, in the above book, it mentions as under:

"The importation of all these articles into Hindoustan does not, however, occasion the export of gold and silver; because the merchants who bring them find it advantageous to take back, in exchange, the productions of the country.

Supplying itself with articles of foreign growth or manufacture, does not, therefore, prevent Hindoustan from absorbing a large portion of the gold and silver of the world, admitted through a variety of channels, while there is scarcely an opening for its return.

It should also be borne in mind, that the Great Mogol constitutes himself heir of all the Omrahs, or lords, and likewise of the Mansebdars, or inferior lords, who are in his pay; and, what is of the utmost importance, that he is proprietor of every acre of land in the kingdom, excepting, perhaps, some houses and gardens which he sometimes permits his subjects to buy, sell, and otherwise dispose of, among themselves."

C. At page 205 it mentions:

"Second.-the empire of the Great Mogol comprehends sevral nations, over which he is not absolute master. Most of them still retain their own peculiar chiefs or sovereigns, who obey the Mogol or pay him tribute only by compulsion. In many instances this tribute is of trifling amount; in others none is paid; and I shall adduce instances of nations which, instead of paying, receive tribute."

E. "The History of British India" by James Mill (Vol.1) published by Associated Publishing House, New Delhi, First Published 1817, Second Edition in 1829 and Second Reprint in 1978, Page 136, says:

"At different times, however, very different rights and advantages are included under the idea of property. At very early periods of society it included very few: originally, nothing more perhaps than use during occupancy, the commodity being liable to be taken by another, the moment it was relinquished by the hand which held it: but one privilege is added to another as society advances: and it is not till a considerable progress has been made in civilization, that the right of property involves all the powers which are ultimately bestowed upon it.

It is hardly necessary to add, that the different combinations of benefits which are included under the idea of property, at different periods of society, are all equally arbitrary; that they are not the offspring of nature, but the

creatures of will; determined, and chosen by the society, as that arrangement with regard to useful objects, which is, or is pretended to be, the best for all.

It is worthy of remark, that property in moveables was established; and that it conveyed most of the powers which are at any time assigned to it; while, as yet, property in land had no existence. So long as men continue to derive their subsistence from hunting; so long, indeed, as they continue to derive it from their flocks and herds, the land is enjoyed in common. Even when they begin to derive it partly from the ground, though the man who has cultivated a field is regarded as possessing in it a property till he has reaped his crop, he has no better title to it than another for the succeeding year*.*

In prosecuting the advantages which are found to spring from the newly-invented method of deriving the means of subsistence from the ground, experience in time discovers, that much obstruction is created by restricting the right of ownership to a single year; and that food would be provided in greater abundance, if, by a greater permanence, men were encouraged to a more careful cultivation. To make, however, that belong to one man, which formerly belonged to all, is a change, to which men do not easily reconcile their minds. In a thing of so much importance as the land, the change is a great revolution. To overcome the popular resistance, that expedient which appears to have been the most generally successful, is, to vest the sovereign, as the representative of the society, with that property in the land which belongs to the society; and the sovereign parcels it out to individuals, with all those powers of ownership, which are regarded as most favourable to the extraction from the land of those benefits which it is calculated to yield. When a sovereign takes possession of a country by conquest, he naturally appropriates to himself all the benefits, which the ideas of his soldiers permit*.*

In many of the rude parts of Africa, the property of the land is understood to reside in the sovereign; it is in the shape of a donation from him, that individuals are allowed to cultivate; and when the son, as is generally the case, succeeds to the father, it is only by a prolongation of the royal bounty, which, in some places at least, is not obtained without a formal solicitation. It is known, that in Egypt the king was the sole proprietor of the land; and one fifth of the produce appears to have been yielded to him as revenue or rent. Throughout the Ottoman dominions, the Sultan claims to himself the sole property in land. The same has undoubtedly been the situation of Persia, both in ancient and modern times. "It is established", says the late intelligent Governor of Java, "from every source of inquiry, that the sovereign in Java is the lord of the soil." And when the fact is established in regard to Java, it is established with regard to all that part of the eastern islands, which in point of manners and civilization resembled Java. It is not disputed that in China the whole property of the soil is vested in the Emperor. By the laws of the Welsh, in the ninth century, all the land of the kingdom was declared to belong to the king; and we may safely, says Mr. Turner, believe, that the same law prevailed while the Britons occupied the whole island.

To those who contemplate the prevalence of this institutions, among nations contiguous to the Hindus, and resembling them in the state of civilization, it cannot appear surprising, that among them, too, the sovereign was the lord of soil. The fact is, indeed, very forcibly implied, in many of the ancient laws and institutions. "Of old hoards," says one of the ordinances of Manu, "and precious minerals in the earth, the king is entitled to half by reason of his general protection, and because he is the supreme lord of the soil." The king, as proprietor, and as fully entitled to an equitable return for the land which he has let, is empowered to punish the cultivator for bad cultivation. "If land be injured, by the fault of the farmer himself, as if he fails to sow it in due time, he shall be fined ten times as much as the king's share of the crop, that might otherwise have been raised; but only five times as much, if it was the fault of his servants without his knowledge." Among other ancient memorials of Hindu institutions and manners, are certain inscriptions engraved on durable materials. Some of them are records of grants of land, commonly to favourite Brahmans; and afford strong indication of the proprietary rights of the sovereign. The sovereign gives away villages and lands, not empty, but already occupied by cultivators, and paying rent. It appears from an ordinance of Yagyavalkaya, one of the most sacred of the law sages, that the kings alienated the lands within their dominions, in the same manner, and by the same title, as they alienated any portion of their revenues. On this point, it is of material importance to remark, that up to the time, when the interests of the Company's servants led them to raise a controversy about the rights of the Zamindars, every European visitor, without one exception that I have found, agrees in the opinion, that the sovereign was the owner of the soil.

Wherever the Hindus have remained under the influence of their ancient customs and laws, the facts correspond with the Inference which would be drawn from these laws. Under the direction of the Governor-General of Bengal, a journey was undertaken, in the year 1766, by Mr. Motte, to the diamond mines in the Province of Orissa. In a narrative of his journey, he gives an account of the distribution of the land as Sambalpur, which till that time had remained under the native government. Each village being rated to the government at a certain quantity of rice, which is paid in kind, the land is thus divided among the inhabitants: To every man, as soon as he arrives at the proper age, is granted such a quantity of arable land as is estimated to produce 242 1/8 measures of rice, of which he must pay 60 5/8 measures or about one fourth to the raja or king. Mr. Motte adds; "The reserved rent of three or four villages, being one fourth the produce of the land, is applied to the use of the raja's household. The reserved rent of the rest is given to his relations or principal servants, who by these means have all the inhabitants dependent on them." Dr. Buchanan gives a particular account of the manner in which the crop, in those parts of India which are most purely Hindu, is divided between the inhabitants and the government. In Bengal it is not allowed to be cut down till the rent or tax is first paid: but in those countries to which his journey principally relates, it is the custom, after the grain has been thrashed out in the field, to collect it into heaps and then to divide it. A heap generally consists of about 110 Winchester bushels, of which he presents the following distribution as a specimen of the partition which is usually made. For the gods, that is, for the priests at their temples, are deducted five seers, containing about one-third of a Winchester gallon each; for charity, or for the mendicant Brahmans, an equal quantity; for the astrologer and the Brahman of the village, one seer each; for the barber, the potmaker, the washerman, and the Vasaradava, who is both carpenter and blacksmith, two seers each; for the measurer, four seers; for the Aduca, a kind of beadle, seven seers; for the village chief, eight seers, out of which he has to furnish the village sacrifices; and for the accomptant, ten seers. All these perquisites are the same, whatever be the size of the heap beyond a measure of about twenty five Winchester bushels. When these allowances are withdrawn the heap is measured; and for every candaca which it contains, a measure equal to 5 1/20 Winchester bushels, there is again deducted half a seer to the village watchmen, two and a half seers to the accomptant, as much to the chief of the village; and the bottom of the heap, about an inch thick mixed with the cow-dung which in order to purify it had been spread on the ground, is given to the Nirgunty, or conductor of water.

These several deductions, on a heap of twenty candacas, or 110 Winchester bushels, amount to about 5 ¼ per cent on the gross produce. Of the remainder, 10 per cent is paid to the collectors of the revenue, as their wages or hire; and the heap is last of all divided into halves between the king and the cultivator.

From these facts only one conclusion can be drawn, that the property of the soil resided in the sovereign: for if it did not reside in him, it will be impossible to show to whom it belonged. The cultivators were left a bare compensation, often not so much as a bare compensation, for the labour and cost of cultivation: they got the benefit of their labour: all the benefit of the land went to the king.

Upon the state of facts, in those places where the present practices of the Hindus have not been forced into a disconformity with their ancient institutions, the fullest light has been thrown, by those servants of the Company, who made the inquiries requisite for the introduction of a regular system of finance, into the extensive regions in the south of India added to the British dominions during the administrations of the Marquisses Cornwallis and Wellesley. Place, Munro, Thacheray, Hodgson, were happily men of talents; sufficiently enlightened to see the things which were before them with their naked eyes; and not through the mist of English anticipations. From the reports of these meritorious gentlemen, presented to their superiors, the Committee of the House of Commons, which inquired into East India affairs in 1810, have drawn the following as a general picture: "A village, geographically considered, is a tract of country, comprising some hundreds, or thousands, of acres of arable and waste land. Politically viewed, it resembles a corporation, or township. Its proper establishment of officers and servants consists of the following descriptions: The Patail, or head inhabitant, who has the general superintendence of the affairs of the village, settles the disputes of the inhabitants, attends to the police, and performs the duty of collecting the revenues within his village: the Curnum, who keeps the accounts of cultivation, and registers every thing connected with it: The Tallier and Totie; the duty of the former appearing to consist in a wider and more enlarged sphere of action, in gaining information of crimes and offences, and in escorting and protecting persons travelling from one village to another; the province of the latter appearing to be more immediately confined to the village, consisting, among other duties, in guarding the crops, and assisting in measuring them: The Boundaryman, who preserves the limits of the village on gives evidence respecting them in cases of dispute: The Superintendent of water courses and tanks, who distributes the water for the purposes of agriculture: The Brahman, who performs the village worship: The Schoolmaster, who is seen teaching the children in the villages to read and write in the sand: The Calendar Brahman, or astrologer, who proclaims the lucky, or unpropitious periods for sowing and thrashing: The Smith, and Carpenter, who manufacture the implements of agriculture, and built the dwelling of the ryot: The Potman or potter: The Washerman: The Barber: The Cow-keeper, who looks after the cattle: The Doctor: The Dancing Girl, who attends at rejoicings; The Musician, and the Poet.

"Under this simple form of municipal government, the inhabitants of the country have lived, from time immemorial. The boundaries of the villages have been seldom altered: and though the villages themselves have been sometimes injured, and even desolated, by war, famine, and disease, the same name, the same limits, the same interests, and even the same families, have continued for ages. The inhabitants give themselves no trouble about the breaking up and division of kingdoms; while the village remains entire, they care not to what power it is transferred, or to what sovereign it devolves; its internal economy remains unchanged; the Potail is still the head inhabitant, and still acts as the petty judge and magistrate, and collector or renter of the village."

These villages appear to have been not only a sort of small republic, but to have enjoyed to a great degree the community of goods. Mr. Place, the collector in the jaghire district at Madras, informs us, that "Every village considers itself a distinct society; and its general concerns the sole object of the inhabitants at large; a practice," he adds, "which surely redounds as much to the public good as to theirs; each having, in some way or other, the assistance of the rest; the labours of all yield the rent; they enjoy the profit, proportionate to their original interest, and the loss falls light. It consists exactly with the principles upon which the advantages are derived from the division of labour; one man goes to market, whilst the rest attend to the cultivation and the harvest; each has his particular occupation assigned to him, and insensibly labours for all. Another practice very frequently prevails, of each proprietor changing his lands every year. It is found in some of the richest villages; and intended, I imagine, to obviate that inequality to which a fixed distribution would be liable."

Body of the Queen Taken to Akbarabad

[fol. 235A] In short, after six months her blessed corpse was dispatched to the Abode of the Caliphate, Akbarabad, escorted by the branch of the tree of sovereignty and caliphate, prince Sultan Shah Shuja' Bahadur, the 'Umdat ul-mulk Wazir Khan, and the veiled lady possessing the virtues of Rabi'a Satti Khanam, who had attained the high rank of first Lady-in-Waiting of that recipient of divine pleasure in Paradise by her laudable services, sincere faith and purity of intention.

As there was on the southern side of Akbarabad, adjoining the city, on the bank of the river Jumna, a tract of land (zamini), which formerly (sabiqa) was the house (khana) of Raja Man Singh, but at this time was in the possession of his grandson Raja Jai Singh, and which from the point of view of eminence and pleasantness appeared to be worthy of the burial of that one whose residence is Paradise, it was selected for this purpose. And the Raja as a token of his sincerity and devotion, donated the said land (zamin) and considered this to be the source of happiness. However, His Majesty, in exchange (iwad) for that, granted to the Raja a lofty house (khana-i-'ala) which belonged to the crown estate. And even though the Raja's consent was obvious, the Emperor obtained permission for the repose of that companion of the Houris of Paradise.

And it was decided that her auspicious body should be buried in that heart-pleasing land (zamin); but until its arrival at the Abode of the Caliphate, everywhere on the roads, there should be distributed food and drink [fol. 235B] and innumerable coins should be given in alms to the poor and the deserving. And the prince of the people of this world and his companions, having carried the blessed dead body to the Abode of Caliphate, entrusted it to that holy earth. And having halted in the seat of the kingdom for three or four days, they returned to the exalted court.

And in compliance with the order which is obeyed by the World, the overseers (mutasaddiyan) of the affairs of the Abode of Caliphate hurriedly covered the top (bala) of that grave (turbat), having the signs of divine mercy, so that it remained hidden from the public gaze (nazar)."

"As there was a tract of land (zamini) of great eminence and pleasantness towards the south of that large city, on which there was before this the mansion (manzil) of Raja Man Singh, and which now belonged to his grandson Raja Jai Singh, it was selected for the burial place (madfan) of that tenant of Paradise. Even thought Raja Jai Singh considered the acquisition (husul) of this to be his good fortune and a great success, by way of utmost care, which is absolutely necessary in all important things, particularly in religious matters, a lofty mansion from the crown estates (khalisa-sharifa) was granted to him in exchange ('iwad).

After the arrival of the dead body in that highly 3301. Firman dated 28th December, 1633 to Raja Jai Singh translated in English at page 169 reads as under:

"Be it known through this glorious farman marked by happiness, which has received the honor of issuance and the dignity of proclamation, that the mansions (haveli) detailed in the endorsement (dimn), together with their dependencies, which belong to the august crown property, have been offered to that pride of peers and vassal of the monarch of Islam, Raja Jai Singh, and are hereby handed over and transferred to his ownership—in exchange for the mansion (haveli), formerly belonging to Raja Man Singh, which that pride of the grandees willingly and voluntarily donated for the mausoleum (maqbara) of that Queen of the ladies of the world and Lady of the ladies of the Age, that honor of the daughters of Adam and Eve and upholder of the stature of chastity of the Time, that Rabi'a of the world and chastity of the World and Religion, that recipient of Divine Mercy and Pardon, Mumtaz Mahal Begam.

In the case of an absolute Ruler like the Maharana of Udaipur, it is difficult to make any distinction between an executive order issued by him or a legislative command issued by him. records that in the Province of Oudh since inception of Muslim rules in India the Hanifeea Code was the general law of the country and after the assumption of regal dignity (on 19th October, 1818) by Ghazi-ooddeen Hyder, the Hanifeea was gradually superseded by the Imameea Code. In the preface of Part-Second of the said book at page xi-xii (2nd Edn. 1887 published by Smith Elder, & Co., London) he reiterated that in the United Provinces of Oudh since inception of Muslim rules in India and till the accession of Umjad Ally Shah (who reigned from 17th May, 1842 to 13th February, 1847) the law of the Oudh province was Soonnee Hanifite Law. Relevant extracts from the said compilations read as follows:

> "The Moohummudan Sovereigns of India were Soonnees of the Hanifeea sect, and the Hanifeea code was the general law of the country, so long as it remained under the sway of Moohummudans. Even in Oude, where the actual rulers were of the Shia persuasion, yet, so long as they preserved a nominal allegiance to the Sovereigns of Delhi, the Hanifeea code remained the law of the province. After the assumption of regal dignity by Ghazi -ood-deen Hyder, the Hanifeea was gradually superseded by the Imameea code, until at length the latter had become the general law of the country at the time of its annexation to the British empire."

The process of assimilation was less rapid in India, where, though several of the Nawabs, or local Governors, were Sheeuhs, they acknowledged at least a nominal dependence on Delhi, and never ventured to make any ostensible change in the law of their provinces. This was eminently the case in Oude, the Nawabs of which were hereditary Viziers of the empire, and though long virtually independent, did not throw off their allegiance to it till the year 1818, when the Nawab Vizier Ghazi-ood-deen Hyder, with the consent, and, indeed, at the suggestion, of the British Government, assumed the title of Padshah or King. It was not, however, till the accession of Umjad Ally Shah, that any formal alteration was made in the law."

C. The Gazetteer of India (Vol.II at p.361-363) records that during the Sultanat & Mughal period the medieval state under Muslim rule was a theocracy. The sovereignty of Allah was unquestioned. The supremacy of the Shar was always acknowledged. Relevant portion of the said Gazetteer reads as follows:

"The medieval state under Muslim rule was definitely a theocracy since it had all its essential elements- the 128 Argued by P N Mishra & assisted by R Agnihotri, Advocates on behalf of the Defendant No. 20. sovereignty of God and government by the direction of God through priests in accordance with divine laws. who was God's viceregent. Sher Shah and Islam Shah assumed the title of Caliph and the Mughal emperors, from Akbar to Aurangzeb, those of 'Shadow of God', 'Caliph of God', and 'Agent of God on Earth'. The sovereignty of God was unquestioned. The supremacy of the shar was always acknowledged, though Akbar added to the shar the state-laws. Under him and his two immediate successors, Islamic law ceased to be the exclusive code of government. Jahangir and Shah Jahan, however, did not regard themselves as above Muslim law and the former even assumed the role of 'Protector' of Islam and Shar. The Shar is based on the Quran, the word of God, and Hadith or the Prophet's interpretation of the word of God. Hence, the Shar consists of divine commands and not human ordinances."

D. The Gazetteer of India (Vol.II at p.361-363) records that during the Sultanat & Mughal period the law of Shar which is based on Quran, the word of God, and Hadith or the Prophet's interpretation of the word of God was the law of the land. Relevant portion of the said gazetteer reads as follows:

"The first question that arises in this context is whether the state under the Sultans of Delhi and the Mughal emperors was Islamic or otherwise. This has been the subject of a lively controversy among modern historians. According to Muslim constitutional law, the world is divided into dar-ul-harb or 'abode of war' and dar-ul-Islam or 'abode of Islam'; and a darul- Islam is a country which is under the rule of a Muslim sovereign and where the ordinances of Islam have been established. The Sultans of Delhi acknowledged the sovereignty of the Caliph and considered their kingdom as a part of Dar-ul-Islam of which the Caliph was the juridical head. India under the Mughal emperors was governed by the Muslim law Shar. The fact that the bold and daring Alau'ddin Khalji consulted the Qadi of Bayana to ascertain what was legal proves the supremacy of the shar; and neither he nor Muhammad Tughlaq with his revolutionary inclinations, dared violate it. Even Akbar the Great, considered infidel by orthodox Muslims, did not disregard Muslim law."

E. The Gazetteer of India (Vol. II at p.368-369) records that till 1579 AD. the Muslim rulers of India acknowledged the legal sovereignty of the Caliph. Relevant portion of the said gazetteer reads as follows:

"The Sultans of Delhi acknowledged the legal sovereignty of the Caliph. According to Muslim political jurisprudence no Sultan had legal right to the throne unless he was recognized by the Caliph.

1579. The coins and the Khutba mention him as Caliph and Amir-ul-muminin. By becoming the chief mujtahid, he also challenged the pretensions of the Safavi Shahs of Persia who claimed suzerainty over the Mughal empire, on the ground that both Babur and Humayon had sought and obtained their military help. It was under Akbar that the monarchy in India became absolutely independent of any foreign or external authority. His successors maintained this tradition. The Mughal emperors from the time of Akbar assumed the authority of the Caliph and called their capital daru'l-khilafat.

F. In (2008) 8 SCC 12, Faqruddin v. Tajuddin, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that a title does not remain in vacuum. "44. The jurisdiction of the Board of Revenue being limited, no title could have been conferred upon the plaintiff. Title in or over a land will depend upon the statutory provisions. A title does not remain in vacuum. It has to be determined keeping in view the law operating in the field viz. religious law or statutory law or customary law, etc.

They are stricto sensu not hereditary in nature. It is well settled that an entry in the revenue records is not a document of title. Revenue authorities cannot decide a question of title."

G. In AIR 1980 SC 707 "Krishna Singh v. Mathura Ahir" the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that in applying the personal law of the parties, a Judge cannot introduce his own concepts of modern times but should enforce the law as derived from recognised and authoritative sources of Hindu law, i.e., Smritis and commentaries referred to, as interpreted in the judgments of various High Courts, except where such law is altered by any usage or custom or is modified or abrogated by statute. Relevant paragraph no. 17 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"17. It would be convenient, at the outset, to deal with the view expressed by the High Court that the strict rule enjoined by the Smriti writers as a result of which Sudras were considered to be incapable of entering the order of yati or sanyasi, has ceased to be valid because of the fundamental rights guaranteed under Part III of the Constitution. In our opinion, the learned Judge failed to appreciate that Part III of the Constitution does not touch upon the personal laws of the parties. In applying the personal laws of the parties, he could not introduce his own concepts of modern times but should have enforced the law as derived from recognised and authoritative sources of Hindu law, i.e., Smritis and commentaries referred to, as interpreted in the judgment of various High Courts, except where such law is altered by any usage or custom or is modified or abrogated by statute."

H. In AIR 1953 SC 394 "Rao Shiv Bahadur Singh v. State of Vindhya Pradesh the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that on the change of sovereignty over an inhabited territory the pre-existing laws continue to be in force until duly altered. Relevant paragraph nos.10, 17 & 21 of the said judgment read as follows:

"10. In this contention our attention has been drawn to the fact that the Vindhya Pradesh Ordinance 48 of 1949 though enacted on 11-9-1949, i.e. after the alleged offences were committed, was in terms made retrospective by S. 2 of the said Ordinance which says that the Act "shall be deemed to have been in force in Vindhya Pradesh from the 9th day of August 1948", a date long prior to the date of the commission of the offences. It was accordingly suggested that since such a law at the time when it was passed was a valid law and since this law had the effect of bringing this Ordinance into force from 9-8-1949 it cannot be said that the convictions are not in respect of 'a law in force" at the time when the offences were committed. This, however, would be to import a somewhat technical meaning into the phrase

"law in force" as used in Art. 20. "Law in force" referred to therein must be taken to relate not to a law "deemed" to be in force and thus brought into force but the law factually in operation at the time or what may be called the then existing law. Otherwise, it is clear that the whole purpose of Art. 20 would be completely defeated in its application even to 'ex post facto', laws passed after the Constitution. Every such 'ex post facto' law can be made retrospective, as it must be, if it is to regulate acts committed before the actual passing of the Act, and it can well be urged that by such retrospective operation it becomes the law in force at the time of the commencement of the Act. It is obvious that such a construction which nullifies Art. 20 cannot possibly be adopted. It cannot, therefore, be doubted that the phrase "law in force" as used in Art. 20 must be understood in its natural sense as being the law in fact in existence and in operation at the time of the commission of the offence as distinct from the law "deemed" to have become operative by virtue of the power of legislature to pass retrospective laws. It follows that if the appellants are able to substantiate their contention that the acts charged as offence in this case have become such only by virtue of Ordinance No. 48 of 1949 which has admittedly been passed subsequent to the commission thereof, then they would be entitled to the benefit of Art. 20 of the Constitution and to have their convictions set aside.

This leads to an examination of the relevant pre-existing law."

17. It has been urged, however, that though this may have been the intention, the intention did not become operative for reasons to be presently stated. Section 2 of Ordinance No. 4 of 1948 while extending the laws of Rewa State to the rest of Vindhya Pradesh refers to the publication of such laws in the Rewa Gazette as a requisite therefor, and it is pointed out that the Rewa Gazette itself came into existence only in October 1930 (Vide page 386 of the printed Paper book), whereas the Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code were brought into operation in the Rewa State in 1921 and 1922. It is also pointed out that the deletion of the requirement of previous publication in the Rewa Gazette by Ordinance No. 20 of 1949 came into operation only when that Ordinance was published in the Vindhya Pradesh Gazette, i.e. on 15-5-1949 sometime after the commission of the offence in this case. To substantiate the view that only such of the Rewa laws which were previously published in the Rewa Gazette were understood as having been originally extended to Vindhya Pradesh by Ordinance No. 4 of 1948, a decision of the Vindhya Pradesh High Court dated 29-10-1949 in Criminal Appeal No. 27 has been brought to our notice which assumes that the Prisoners Act in force in India was not in force in Vindhya Pradesh as there was no previous publication of it, in the Rewa Gazette. On the other side a notification of Vindhya Pradesh Government dated 19-3-1949 and published in the Vindhya Pradesh Gazette dated 30-3-1949 has been brought to our notice which specifically mentions all the laws by then in force in Vindhya Pradesh and shows "Indian Penal Code - 'mutatis mutandis'- with necessary adaptations" as item 86 thereof. This is relied on to show that there must have been a previous publication thereof in the Rewa Gazette before integration. There seems to be considerable force in this argument that in respect of the various Rewa State laws which have been enumerated in the above-mentioned Gazette as having been brought into force in Vindhya Pradesh (some of these are Acts prior to 1930) there must have been previous publication in the Rewa Gazette sometime after 1930, and that neither Ordinance No. 20 of 1949 nor the decision of Vindhya Pradesh High Court relating to Prisoners' Act (which is not one enumerated in the above Gazette) can be taken to negative it. We are 'prima facie' inclined to accept this view and to think that the Indian Penal Code as in force in Rewa became extended to Vindhya Pradesh by Ordinance No. 4 of 1948. But even assuming that S. 2 of the Ordinance failed to achieve its purpose on account of misconception as to the previous publication of any particular Rewa law in the Rewa Gazette, it is clear that that Rewa law would continue to be in force in the Rewa portion of United State of Vindhya Pradesh,

as the Vindhya Pradesh law therefor, on the principle recognised in - 'I Moo Ind App 175 (PC) (H)', that on change of sovereignty over an inhabited territory the pre-existing laws continue to be in force until duly altered. Since in the present case we are concerned with offences committed in relation to the Rewa State portion of Vindhya Pradesh, there can be no reasonable difficulty in holding that the Criminal Law of Rewa State, i.e., the Indian Penal Code and the Criminal Procedure Code with adaptations 'mutatis mutandis' was the relevant law for our present purpose by the date of integrated administration, viz., 9.3.1948."

21. It must therefore be held that the rulers of the native States had prior to 1947, the authority to pass extraterritorial laws relating to offences committed by their own subjects and vesting in their own courts the power to try them, except where the contrary is made out by evidence in the case of any individual State, and that so far at least as Rewa State is concerned, the contrary cannot be held to have been proved."

I. In AIR 1940 P C 116 "Shahid Ganj v. S. G. P. Committee" the Privy Council held that Court cannot uproot titles acquired prior to annexation by applying law which did not then obtain as law of land as also that there is every presumption in favour of the proposition that a change of sovereignty would not affect private rights. Relevant extracts of the said judgment reads as follows:

"It has been made clear by learned counsel for the appellants that the plaintiffs do not now claim any relief extending beyond the actual site of the mosque building. The first question to be asked with reference to this immovable property is the question : In whom was the title at the date when the sovereignty of this part of India passed to the British in 1849? It may have been open to the British on the ground of conquest or otherwise to annul rights of private property at the time of annexation as indeed they did in Oudh after 1857. But nothing of the sort was done so far as regards the property now in dispute. There is nothing in the Punjab Laws Act or in any other Act authorising the British Indian Courts to uproot titles acquired prior to the annexation by applying to them a law which did not then obtain as the law of the land. There is every presumption in favour of the proposition that a change of sovereignty would not affect private rights to property : cf. (1905) 2 KB 391.3 3. West, Band Gold-mining Co. v. The King, (1905) 2 KB 391=74 LJ KB 753=93 LT 207=21 TLR 562.

Who then immediately prior to the British annexation was the local sovereign of Lahore? What law was applicable in that State to the present case ? Who was recognized by the local sovereign or other authority as owner of the property now in dispute? These matters do not appear to their Lordships to have received sufficient attention in the present case.

The plaintiffs would seem to have ignored them. It is idle to call upon the Courts to apply Mahomedan law to events taking place between 1762 and 1849 without first establishing that this law was at that time the law of the land recognized and enforced as such. If it be assumed, for example, that the property in dispute was by general law or by special decree or by revenue-free (muafi) grant vested in the Sikh gurdwara according to the law prevailing under the Sikh rulers, the case made by the plaintiffs becomes irrelevant. It is not necessary to say whether it has been shown that Ranjit Singh took great interest in the gurdwara and continued endowments made to it by the Bhanji Sardars as was held by Hilton J. (20th January 1930) presiding over the Sikh Gurdwaras Tribunal. Nor is it necessary that it should now be decided whether the Sikh mahants held this property for the Sikh Gurdwara under a muafi grant from the Sikh rulers. It was for the plaintiffs to establish the true position as at the date of annexation. Since the Sikh mahants had held possession for a very long time under the Sikh State there is a heavy burden on the plaintiffs to displace the presumption that the mahants' possession was in accordance with the law of the time and place. There is an obvious lack of reality in any statement of the legal position which would arise assuming that from 1760 down to 1935 the ownership of this property was governed by the Mahomedan law as modified by the Limitation Act,

J. In AIR 1922 Privy Council 123 "Vidya Varuthi v. Baluswami" the Privy Council held that; from the year 1774, the Legislature, British and Indian, has affirmed, time after time, the absolute enjoyment by the Hindus and Muslims of their laws and customs so far as they are not in conflict with the Statutory laws. It would be a serious inroad into their rights if the rules of the Hindu and Muslim laws were to be construed with the light of legal conceptions borrowed from abroad. Relevant extracts of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "From the year 1774, the Legislature, British and Indian, has affirmed time after time the absolute enjoyment of their laws and customs, so far as they are not in conflict with the statutory laws, by Hindus and Mahommedans. It would, in their Lordships' opinion, be a serious inroad into their rights, if the rules of the Hindu and Mahommedan laws were to be construed with the light of legal conceptions borrowed from abroad, unless perhaps where they are absolutely, so to speak, in pari materia. The vice of this method of construction by analogy is well illustrated in the case of Vidyapurna Tirthaswami v. Vidyanidhi Tirtha Swami (3)where a Mohant's position was attempted to be explained by comparing it with that of a bishop and of a beneficed clergyman in England under the ecclesiastical law. It was criticised, and rightly, in their Lordships' opinion, in the subsequent case, which arose also in the Madras High Court, of Kailasam Pillai v. Nataraja Thambiran (4)To this judgment their Lordships will have to refer further later on."

K. The Oudh Laws Act, XVIII of 1876 made the Muslim Law and Hindu Law applicable to the persons of respective faiths. Section 3 of the said Act reads as follows:

"3. The law to be administered by the Courts of Oudh shall be as follows:-

(a) the laws for the time being in force regulating the assessment and collection of land revenue;

(b) in questions regarding succession, special property of females, betrothal, marriage, divorce, dower, adoption, guardianship, minority, bastardly, family-relations, wills, legacies, gifts, partitions, or any religious usage or institution, the rule of decision shall be—

(1) any custom applicable to the parties concerned which is not contrary to justice, equity or good conscience, and has not been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished, and has not been declared to be void by any competent authority;

(2) any Muhammadan law in cases where the parties are Muhammadans, and the Hindu Law in cases where the parties are Hindus, except in so far as such law has been, by this or any other enactment, altered or abolished, or has been modified by any such custom as is above referred to;

(c) the rules contained in this Act;

(d) the rules published in the local official Gazette as provided by section 40, or made under any other Act for the time being in force in Oudh;

(e) The Regulations and Acts specified in the second schedule hereto annexed, subject to the provisions of Section 4 and to the modifications mentioned in the third column of the same schedule;

(f) subject to the modifications hereinafter mentioned, all enactments for the time being in force and expressly, or by necessary implication, applying to British India or Oudh, or some part of Oudh;

(g) in cases not provided for by the former part of this section, or by any other law for the time being in force, the Courts shall act according to justice, equity and good conscience.

L. In Moore's Indian Appeals (1863-1864) 9 MIA 387, The Advocate- General of Bengal on behalf of Her Majesty Vs. Ranee Surnomoye Dossee; the Privy Council held that the law applicable to the Hindus prior to acquisition of the rights of sovereignty by the English crown unless altered by express enactment by the Crown those laws remained unchanged and applicable to them. Relevant extract from page 426-427 & 429 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"But, if the English laws were not applicable to Hindoos on the first settlement of the country, how could the subsequent acquisition of the rights of sovereignty by the English Crown make any alteration? It might enable the Crown by express

enactment to alter the laws of the country, but until so altered the laws remained unchanged. The question, therefore, and the sole question in this case is, whether by express enactment the English law of felo de se, including the forfeiture attached to it, had been extended in the year 1844 to Hindoos destroying themselves in Calcutta.

We were referred by Mr. Melvill in his very able argument, to the Charter of Charles II. In 1661, as the first, and indeed the only one which in express terms introduces English law into the East Indies. It gave authority to the Company to appoint Governors of the several places where they had or should have Factories, and it authorized such Governors and their Council to judge all persons belonging to the said Company, or that should live under them, in all causes, whether Civil or Criminal, according to the laws of the Kingdom of Engl and, and to execute judgment accordingly. The English Crown, however, at this time clearly had no jurisdiction over native subjects of the Mogul, and the Charter was admitted by Mr. Melvill (as we understood him) to apply only to the European servants of the Company; at all events it could have no application to the question now under consideration. The English law, Civil and Criminal, has been usually considered to have been made applicable to Natives, within the limits of Calcutta, in the year 1726, by the Charter, 13th Geo.

I. Neither that nor the subsequent Charters expressly declare that the English law shall be so applied, but it seems to have been held to be the necessary consequence of the provisions contained in them. But none of these Charters contained any forms applicable to the punishment, by forfeiture or otherwise, of the crime of self-murder, and with respect to other offences to which the Charters did extend, the application of the criminal law of England to Natives not Christians, to Mahomedans and Hindoos, has been treated as subject to qualifications without which the execution of the law would have been attended with intolerable injustice and cruelty.

We think, therefore, the law under consideration inapplicable to Hindoos, and if it had been introduced by the Charters in question with respect to Europeans, we should think that Hindoos would have been excepted from its operation. But that it was not so introduced appears to us to be shown by the admirable judgment of Sir Barnes Peacock in this case; and if it were not so introduced, then as regards Natives, it never had any existence."

M. In Moore's Indian Appeals (1836-1837) 1 MIA 175 The Mayor of the City of Lyons Vs. the Hon'ble The East India Company and His Majestry's Attorney General, the Privy Council held that a foreign settlement obtained in an inhabited country, if is allowed, then the law of the country continues until the Crown, or the Legislature change it. Relevant extract from page 270-272 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "It is agreed, on all hands, that a Foreign Settlement, obtained in an inhabited Country, by conquest, or by cession from another Power, stands in a different relation to the present question, from a settlement made by colonizing, that is, peopling an uninhabited Country.
>
> In the later case, it is said, that the subjects of the Crown carry with them the laws of England, there being, of course, no lex loci. In the former case, it is allowed, that the law of the Country continues until the Crown, or the Legislature, change it. This distinction, to this extent, is taken in all the Books; it is one of the six propositions, stated in Campbell v. Hall, as quite clear; and no matter of controversy in the case. And it had been laid, in Calvin's case; in Dutton v. Howell; (Shower, Parl. Ca.24) in Bl ankard v. Galdy (Salk 411), by Lord Holt, delivering the judgment of the Court; and nowhere more distinctly, and accurately, than in the decision of this Court (Anon.—2P.Will 75). Two limitations of this proposition are added, to which it may be material that we should attend. One of these refers to conquests, or cessions. In Calvin's case, an exception is made of infidel countries; for which, it is said, in Dutton v. Howell , that, though Lord Coke gives no authority, yet it must be admitted, as being consonant to reason. But this is treated, in terms, as an "absurdity", by the Court, in Campbell v. Hall ; the other limitation refers to new plantations. Mr. Justice Blackstone (1 Bl. Com. 106) says, that only so much of the English law is carried into them, by the settler, as is applicable to their situation, and to the condition of an infant Colony. And Sir William Grant, in The Attorney- General v. Stewart (2 Mer 161) applies the same expression, even to the case of conquered or ceded territories, into which the English law of property has been generally introduced. Upon this ground, he held that the Statute of Mortmain does not extend to the Colonies governed by the English law, unless it has been expressly introduced there; because it had its origin in a policy peculiarly adapted to circumstances of the mother Country."

N. Yajnavalkya-Smriti (I/343) lays down that in the acquired country the King should deliver justice according to custom, usage and law of the said conquered country. The said verse of the Yajnavalkya Smriti as well as Mitatakashara commentary thereon with its Hindi translation are reproduced as follows:-

3304. The learned counsel further submits that 1526 AD when Babar became Ruler of Delhi, Agra and Oudh defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodi in the battle of Panipat, these territories already comprised of 'Dur-ul-Islam' . When in the year 1526 A.D. King Babur acquired sovereignty over Delhi, Agra and Oudh defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodi in the battle of Panipat those territories did not change their nature of being were constituent of 'Dar-ul-Islam for the reason that outgoing Sultan was a Muslim and during his reign Law of Shar was Law of the Land. Therefore by defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodi Emperor Babur acquired only those right of Sovereignty that a Islamic Ruler had under Shar and; as Shar does not extinguish title of land owner on the basis of change of sovereignty or religion of the subjects he didn't become owner of the land owned by his Hindu subjects and their endowments. As a Hindu Endowment Ramajanamsthan Temple was already existing, Emperor Babur did not acquire ownership of that place as such alleged creation of Wakf for erection of Masjid thereon rendered the said alleged Wakf null and void.

3305. Illustrated author and great jurist Syed Ameer Ali in his book the 'Spirit of Islam' (at p.215) describes the relationship between the citizens of three types of Nations Dar-ul-Islam i.e. an Islamic State, Dar-ul-Harb i.e. a State Ruled by belligerent non-Islamic Ruler, and Darul-Aman. i.e. a State Ruled by non-Islamic Ruler with which an Islamic State is at peace. Relevant extract of the said book reads as follows:

"The spirit of aggression never breathed itself into that

code which formally incorporated the Law of Nations with the religion; and the followers of Mohammed, in the plentitude of their power, were always ready to say to their enemies, 'Cease all hostility to us, and be our allies, and we shall be faithful to you; or pay tribute and we will secure and protect you in all your rights; or adopt our religion, and you shall enjoy every privilege we ourselves posses."

3306. Syed Ameer Ali in his book 'Commentaries on Mahommedan Law' also describes Dar-ul-Harb. Relevant extract from the foot note 1 of the said book reads as follows:

"The Moslem jurists, like the jurists of Christendom, until very recent times, divided the world into two portions, one the Dar ul-Harb, and the other the Dar ul-Islam, the country of peace. Juridically, all Mussulman nations were at peace with each other. As a matter of fact, no Mussulman Sovereign could declare war against another without first pronouncing him to be a heretic and beyond the pale of Islam. The non-Moslem subjects of Moslem States are called Zimmis. The non-Moslem subjects of non-Moslem Sovereigns at peace with Islamic States are called Mustamins."

3307. Fighting between two Muslim Rulers is not fighting between Dar-ul-Islam and Dar-ul-Herb but it is fighting between two armies of Islam for Superiority for the benefit of Islam and subject people. This is very much apparent from the extract quoted in the preceding paragraph from Syed Amir Ali's book as also, from the answer given by Sultan Sikandar Lodi to the Kalandar (i.e. a person who had no worldly desires). When said

Darvesh conveyed the Sultan that he would attain victory in ongoing battle, the Sultan told him that when two Islamic armies are fighting decision should not be given in one's favour but only good wishes should be given stating that who will be beneficial for Islam and subject people will attain victory.

3308. The arguments extended contending that Muslims are not free to lead the life of their choice and they are bound by the law of Shar. Muslims should not transgress law as enunciated in Shar otherwise they will lose their status of being Muslim. According to Shar Plunderer & looters are not Muslims. Islamic Ruler and Muslims are subject to Divine Law of Shar according to which duty of an Islamic Ruler is to guard the lives, honour and property of his subjects, maintain peace, check the evildoer, and prevent injuries and; duty of Muslims is to disobey oppressive and sinful order of a Tyrant Ruler and refrain himself from such sinful acts. Muslims should not approve bad deed of the Amirs i.e. the rulers. Making a just statement before tyrannical ruler is a greatest type of Jihad. A person who acts as God against the unlawful, is kind to his neighbour and loves the people as he loves himself is Muslim, otherwise not.

3309. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 1854 & 1854R1 reveal that the Holy Prophet has commanded that Muslims should not approve bad deed of the Amirs i.e. the rulers. Said Hadith reads as follows:

> "[1854]. It has been narrated on the authority of Umm Salama that the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) said: In the near future there will be Amirs and you will like their good deeds and dislike their bad deeds. One who sees their bad deeds (and tries to prevent their repetition by his hand or through his speech), is absolved from blame, but one who hates their bad deeds (in the heat of his heart, being unable to prevent their recurrence by his hand or his tongue), is (also) safe (as far as God's wrath is concerned). But one who approves their bad deeds and imitates them is spiritually ruined. People asked (the Holy Prophet): Shouldn't we fight against them? He replied: No, as long as they say their prayers.

[1854R1] It has been narrated (through a different chain of transmiters) on the authority of Umm Salama (wife of the Holy Prophet) that he said: The Amirs will be appointed over you, and you will find them doing good as well as bad deeds. One who hates their bad deeds is absolved from blame. One who disapproves their bad deeds is (also) safe (as far as Divine wrath is concerned). But one who approves their bad deeds and imitates them (is doomed). People asked: Messenger of Allah, shouldn't we fight against them? He replied: No, as long as they say their prayers. (Hating and disapproving refers to liking and disliking from the heart)."

3310. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Muslim (Vol.-III) 1855R1 reveals that the Holy Prophet has commanded the Muslims to condemn such act of their Rulers which is an act of disobedience to God i.e. the Holy ordinances of the Allah and his Holy Messenger. Said Hadith reads as follows:

"[1855R1] It has been narrated on the authority of Abf b.Malik Al-Ashja'i who said that he heard the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) saying: The best of your

rulers are those whom you love and who love you, upon whom you invoke God's blessings and who invoke His blessings upon you. And the worst of your rulers are those whom you hate and who hate you, who curse you and whom you curse. (Those present) said: Shouldn't we overthrow them at this? He said: No, as long as they establish prayer among you. No, as long as they establish prayer among you. Mind you! One who has a governor appointed over him and he finds that the governor indulges in an act of disobedience to God, he should condemn the governor's act, in disobedience to God but should not withdraw himself from his obedience."

3311. The Sacred Compilation Hadith Sahih Bukhari 3.628 reveal that the Holy Prophet has strictly commanded to avoid oppression. Said Hadiths read as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"Narrated Ibn `Abbas: The Prophet sent Mu`adh to Yemen and said, "Be afraid, from the curse of the oppressed as there is no screen between his invocation and Allah."

3312. The Sacred Compilation Jami‘ At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2683 reveals that the Holy Prophet has directed the Muslims to refrain from any kind of major and minor sins. Said Hadith and comment thereto read as follows:

“2683. Ibn Ashwa narrated from Yazid bin Salamah Al-Ju ‘fi, he said: ‘Yazid bin Salamah said: ‘O Messenger of Allah! I heard so many narrations from you that I am afraid the last of them will cause me to forget the first of them. So narrate a statement to me that will encompass them.’ So he said: “Have Taqwa of Allah with what you learn.” (Da‘if)

www.vadaprativada.com

Comments:

The extract and a full outcome of the whole religion is Taqwa, for this objective the Prophets, Messengers and the Books were sent; and Taqwa is to refrain from any kind of major and minor sins, it big and small."

3313. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2687 reveals that the Holy Prophet has commanded the Muslims to accept everything that is good and perfect setting aside the worldly benefits, objectives and lusts. Said Hadith and comments thereto read as follows:

"2687. Abu Hurairah narrated that the Messenger of Allah said: "The wise statement is the lost property of the believer, so wherever he finds it, then he is more worthy of it. (Da'if)

Comments:

In the creation and nature of human, the passion of obedience and submission is planted, which is the origin and source of every good and righteousness, but because of worldly benefits, objectives and lusts it becomes neglectful of good and righteousness, whereas the demand of its nature and habit is to accept everything that is good and perfect."

3314. The Sacred Compilation Jami' At-Tirmidhi (Vol.-5) Hadith 2826 reveals that if there is anyone to whom the Holy Prophet has made a promise it must be complied by the Rulers. Said Hadith read as follows:

"2826. Isma'll bin Abi Khalid narrated that Abu Juhaifah said: "I saw the Messenger of Allah (he was) white and turning grey. Al Hasan bin 'Ali resembles him most. He had promised thirteen young she-camels for us, so we went to get them. When we arrived he had died without giving us anything. So, when Abu Bakr (became the Khalifah) he said 'If there is anyone to whom the Messenger of Allah made a promise, then let him come forth.' I stood to inform him about it, and he ordered that they be given to us." (Sahih)

3315. The Muwatta' Imam Malik 959 reveals that the Muslims should neither break vows nor kill disbelievers breaking promise of protection given to him. Said Muwatta no. 959 read as follows:

"[959] It reached Malik that 'Umar b. 'Abd al-Aziz wrote to one of his administrators: We have learnt that whenever the Messenger of Allah (may peace be upon him) sent out force, he used to command them: Fight taking the name of the Lord. You are fighting in the cause of the Lord with people who have disbelieved and rejected the Lord ; do not commit theft, do not break vows ; do not cut ears and noses, do not kill women and children. Communicate this to your armies. If God wills ! Peace be on you."

3316. By defeating Sultan Ibrahim Lodi in the battle of Panipat Emperor Babur acquired only those rights which the said Monarch had. As defeated Monarch was not Owner of the Sri Ramajanamsthan Temple at Ayodhya, according to Shar Emperor Babur did not acquire title of the said Temple. According to the Divine Law of Shar a Muslim can erect Masjid only on such land of which he is lawful owner and he can create Wakf only of his own lawful property. Unless the first prayer was offered with permission of the lawful owner even dedication of Masjid and Wakf by user can not be claimed. Shar does not permit conversion of a Temple into a Mosque and says that even if a mansion was given by a Jimmi to Muslims for their using it as Masjid, after death of such Jimmi his said mansion goes back to his heirs. Suffice to say that according to Shar the Wakif must be owner of the property at the time of its dedication otherwise Wakf is invalid. As Emperor Babur was not owner of the Suit-land, alleged creation of Wakf for Masjid and Graveyard was ab initio void and the Plaintiffs are not entitled for the reliefs as prayed for in the instant Suit.

3317. In the book 'Ibn Battuta Ki Bharat Yatra' Ibn Battuta writes that he was given fund and permission by Sultan Muhamad bin Tughlaq for purchasing 20 villages for the purpose of increasing income of the endowment of Mausoleum of Sultan Kutubuddin. From said fact it becomes crystal clear that the Sultan was not owner of the land of the subject people and he had to purchase land for accretion of said wakf property. In other words private proprietorship of land was in existence during the Sultanate period. Relevant extract from page 158 of the the book 'Ibn Battuta Ki Bharat Yatra' (translated by Madan Gopal published by National Book Trust of India first published in 1933 reprinted in 1997) reads as follows:

''इसके पश्चात मैं सम्राट कुतुबउद्दीन के समाधि–स्थान के प्रबंध में दत्तचित्त हो गया। यहां पर सम्राट ने इराक के सम्राट गाजां शाह के गुंबद से भी बीस हाथ अधिक ऊँचा (अर्थात सौ हाथ का) गुंबद निर्माण करने की आज्ञा दी; और इस देवोत्तर संपत्ति की आय बढ़ाने के लिए बीस गांव और मोल लेने की आज्ञा दी। उसमें दलाली के दशमांश का लाभ कराने के विचार से इन गांवो के मोल लेने का कार्य भी मेरे ही सुपुर्द कर दिया गया था।''

3318. From the Farman of Emperor Shah Jahan of 1633-34 AD, it becomes clear that the right of private proprietorship was in existence during the Mughal period and for the purpose of creation of wakf of Taj Mahal the Emperor had to acquire land of Raja Jai Singh by giving him other land in lieu of the acquired land. The extract of the Farman taken from page 53 and 54 the book "Mughal Documents AD.1628-59", Volume-II compiled and translated by S.A.I. Tirmizi and published by Manohar Publishers, Delhi, 1995 Edn., reads as follows:

> "56. Farman of Shah Jahan addressed to Raja Jai Singh informs the Raja that in lieu of the plot of land acquired for the construction of the mausoleum of Mumtaz Mahal the following four havelis have been granted to him (Jai Singh):
> 1. Haveli of Raja Bhagwan Das.
> 2. Haveli of Madhav Singh.
> 3. Haveli of Rupsi Bairagi.
> 4. Haveli of Chand Singh, son of Suraj Singh.
> The zimn on the reverse bears the risala of Afzal Khan and waqia of Makramat Khan. (MIM.IV,p.165; DLFMN,p.55,CHDKD.pp.176-177)."

3319. In the Farman of Emperor Shah Jahan dated 3rd August, 1648 contained a Nishan of Prince Dara Shukoh, the then Viceroy of Gujrat, it has been held that conversion of temple of Sati Das into mosque by erstwhile Viceroy of Gujrat prince Aurangzeb was in violation of Islamic Law and as it was constructed over the property of another person it could not be considered a mosque according to the inviolable Islamic Law. On the basis of said finding of Law of Shar the Emperor

directed authorities to hand over the said building to Sati Das for his using the same as his temple. The extract of the Farman taken from page 89 of the book "Mughal Documents AD.1628-59" Volume-II (supra), reads as follows:

> "199. Nishan of Prince Dara Shukoh addressed to the subadar, hukkam, and mutasaddis of suba gujarat, particularly Ghairat Khan, informs that a farman in connection with the temple of Sati Das Jawahari had been formerly issued to Umdatul Mulk Shaista Khan to the effect taht Prince Aurangzeb having constructed several mihrabs in the said temple had given it the name of a masjid and thereafter Mulla Abdul Hakim had represented to the Emperor that this building, by reason of its being the property of another person, could not be considered a mosque according to the inviolable Islamic law. The imperial orders were, therefore, issued stating that this building belonged to Sati and that because of its being mihrabi, no obstruction should be caused to the above mentioned person (Sati Das) and that the mihrabs should be removed and the said building be restrored to him (Sati Das). Now the royal orders are issued to the effect that the mihrab which the Prince above referred to had constructed there, may be retained and a wall be built close to the mihrab between the temple and miharab to serve as a screen. It is now ordered that since the Emperor had granted the said temple to Sati Das, he should be left in possession of it as usual and he may worship there according to his creed in any way he likes and no one should cause any obstruction or hindrance to him in this regard. Some faqirs who have settled there be ejected and Sati Das be relieved of their obstruction and molestation. It has been represented to the Emperor that some of the Bohras have removed and carried away the masata (materials) of the said deohara (temple). If this be a fact the said material should be recovered from them and restored to (Sati Das) but if the said material has been used up, their price be recovered from them and paid to Sati Das. It bears the tughra of Shah Jahan in addition to the tughra and seal of Prince Dara Shukoh. there is a note on the top on the right hand side which begins with the word 'Huwa' and directs the hukkam to act in conformity with the nishan i ali. (JUB, IX, pp. 39-41).

3320. In his book 'Digest of Moohummudan Law' (first part) Neil B. E. Baillie writes that wakif or appropriator must be owner of the subject of the wakf at the time of making it and if a person usurp a piece of land, create wakf and then purchase it from the owner, it would not be a wakf. And if Zimmee gives his mansion for using it as a masjid for Mussulmans, after his death it would become the inheritance of his heirs. Relevant portions of the said book from page 557, 558, 561 & 562 read as follows:

"THE legal meaning of wukf , or appropriation, according to Aboo Huneefa, is the detention of a specific thing in the ownership of the wakif or appropriator, and the devoting or appropriating of its profits or usufruct in charity on the poor, or other good objects."

"According to the two deciples, wukf is the detention of a

thing in the implied ownership of Almighty God, in such a manner that its profits may revert to or be applied fof the benefit of mankind, and the appropriation is obligatory, so that the thing appropriated can neither be sold, nor given nor inherited."

"But if a zimmee should give his mansion as a musjid, or place of worship, for Mussulmans, and construct it as they are accustomed to do, and permit them to pray in it, and they should pray in it, and he should then die, it would become the inheritance of his heirs, according to all opinions."

"It is also a condition that the thing appropriated be the appropriator's property at the time of the appropriation; so that, if one were to usurp a piece of land, appropriate, and then purchase it from the owner, and pay the price, or compound with him for other property, which is actually delivered up, it would not be a wukf."

"And if a donee of land should make an appropriation of it before taking possession, and should then take possession, the wukf would not be valid."

"If the appropriation were made before taking possession, it would not be lawful."

3321. Great jurist Syed Ameer Ali in his book 'Commentaries on Mahommedan Law' extracting the authority writes that the wakif must be lawful owner of the property at the time of creation of wakf. Otherwise a wakf is invalid. Relevant extract from page 225 of the said book reads as follows:

"The subject-matter of the dedication must be the lawful

property of the wakif at the time the wakf is made, that is, he must be in a position to exercise dominion over it. Consequently, if a wakf is made by a person of some property which he has un-lawfully acquired, it would be invalid, although he may subsequently purchase it from the lawful owner. So also, when a man makes a wakf, for certain good purposes, of land belonging to another, and then becomes the proprietor of it, the (sic She) wakf is not lawful."

3322. In his book 'Principles of Mahomeddan Law' D.F. Mullah writes that wakif must be owner at the time of dedication. Relevant extract from page 149 of the said book reads as follows:

"146C. Subject of wakf must belong to wakif.— The property dedicated by way of wakf must belong to the wakif (dedicator) at the time of dedication (s)."

3323. In AIR 1975 SC 2299 (Indira Nehru Gandhi v. Rajnarain) the Hon'ble Supreme Court speaking through the Hon'ble Justice M. H. Bag, J. (as His Lordship then was) explaining the law of sovereignty in paragraph 526 to 571, in paragraph 527, 532-534 and 571 held that the Muslim Rulers as well as the Hindu Rulers were subject to their respective divine sacred law and the law was king of the kings. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that conversion of Sri Ramajanamasthan Temple into an alleged mosque either by the Emperor Babar or Aurangzeb in violation of the Law of Shar makes their such act null and ab initio and such building does not comes within the definition of a mosque. Paragraph nos. 527, 532-534 and 571 of the aforesaid judgment read as follows:

“527. I must preface my observations here about the concepts of "sovereignty" and exercise of "sovereign power" between which I make a distinction, with two kinds of explanation. The first kind involves an exposition of a functional or sociological point of view. I believe that every social political, economic, or legal concept or doctrine must answer the needs of the people of a country at a particular time. I see the development of concepts, doctrines, and institutions as responses to the changing needs of society in every country. They have a function to fulfil in relation to national needs. The second type of explanation may be called historical or meant merely to indicate and illustrate notions or concepts put forward by thinkers at various times in various countries so as to appropriately relate them to what we may find today under our Constitution. We have to appreciate the chronology or stages of their development if we are to avoid trying to fit into our Constitution something which has no real relevance to it or bearing upon its contents or which conflicts with these. It must not, if I may so put it, be constitutionally "indigestible" by a constitution such as ours. Of course, it is not a secret that we have taken some of the basic concepts of our Constitution from British and American Constitutions in their most developed stages. That too must put us on our guard against attempts to foist upon our Constitution something simply because it happens to be either a British or American concept of some particular period which could not possibly be found in it today. Therefore, both types of explanation appear to be necessary to an exposition of what may or may not be found in our Constitution.

532. After the break-up of the Roman Empire, there were attempts in medieval Europe, both by the Church and the Kings, to develop spiritual and temporal means for checking wrong and oppression. Quests for the superior or a sovereign power and its theoretical justifications by both ecclesiastical and lay thinkers were parts of an attempt to meet this need. The claims of those who, as vicars of God on earth, sought to meddle with mundane and temporal affairs and acquire even political power and influence were, after a struggle for power, which took different forms in different countries, finally defeated by European Kings with the aid of their subjects. Indeed these Kings tried to snatch, and, not without success, to wear spiritual crowns which the roles of "defenders of the faith" carried with them so as to surround themselves with auras of divinity.

533. The theory of a legally sovereign unquestionable authority of the King, based on physical might and victory in battle, appears to have been developed in ancient India as well, by Kautaliya, although the concept of a Dharma, based on the authority of the assemblies of those who were learned in the dharmashastras also competed for control over exercise of royal secular power. High philosophy and religion, however, often seem to have influenced and affected the actual exercise of sovereign power and such slight Lawmaking as the King may have attempted. The ideal King in ancient India, was conceived of primarily as a Judge deciding cases or giving orders to meet specific situations in accordance with the Dharma Shastras. It also appears that the actual exercise of the power to administer justice was often delegated by the King to his judges in ancient India. Indeed, according to some, the theory of separation of powers appears to have been carried so far (See: K. P. Jayaswal in "Manu and Yajnavalkya" - A basic History of Hindu Law - 1930 Edn. p. 82) that the King could only execute the legal sentence passed by the Judge.

534. We know that Semitic prophets, as messengers of God, also became rulers wielding both spiritual and political temporal power and authority although to Jesus Christ, who never sought temporal power, is ascribed the saying: "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God things that are God's". According to the theory embodied in this saying, spiritual and temporal powers and authorities had to operate in different orbits of power altogether. Another theory, however, was that the messeng of God had been given the sovereign will of God Almighty which governed all matters and this could not be departed from by any human authority or ruler. In the practical administration of justice, we are informed, Muslim caliphs acknowledged and upheld the jurisdiction of their Kazis to give judgment against them personally. There is an account of how the Caliph Omar, being a defendant in a claim brought by a jew for some money borrowed by him for purposes of State, appeared in person in the Court of his own Kazi to answer the claim. The

Kazi rose from his seat out of respect for the Caliph who was so displeased with this unbecoming conduct that he dismissed him from office. (See: Sir A. Rahim's "Muhammadan Jurisprudence", (1958) p. 21).

571. I find that the doctrine of the supremacy or sovereignty of the Constitution was adopted by a Bench of seven learned Judges of this Court in Special Reference No, 1 of 1964, (1965) 1 SCR 413 = (AIR 1965 SC 745) where Gajendragadkar, C. J., speaking for six learned Judges of this Court said (at p .446) (of SCR) = (at pp. 762-763 of AIR) :

"In a democratic country governed by a written Constitution, it is the Constitution which is supreme and sovereign. It is no doubt true that the Constitution itself can be amended by the Parliament, but that is possible because Art. 368 of the Constitution itself makes a provision in that behalf, and the amendment of the Constitution can be validly made only by following the procedure prescribed by the said article. That shows that even when the Parliament purports to amend the Constitution, it has to comply with the relevant mandate of the Constitution' itself. Legislators, Ministers, and Judges all take oath of allegiance to the Constitution, for it is by the relevant provisions of the Constitution that they derive their authority and jurisdiction and it is to the provisions of the Constitution that they owe allegiance. Therefore, there can be no doubt that the sovereignty which can be claimed by the Parliament in England, cannot be claimed by any Legislature in India in the literal absolute sense."

3324. In AIR 1994 SC 2663 (N. Nagendra Rao & Co. v. State of Andhra Pradesh) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held when the law provides for compensation against confiscation, he must be compensated and confiscation cannot affect the right of owner to claim return of the goods. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that when the Law of Shar says that no one can acquire ownership of the property of others by virtue of adverse possession but it can be only by purchase, alleged erection of alleged mosque over a Sacred shrine of the Hindus by virtue of forceful occupation makes such building only ordinary private building and not the Mosque. Relevant paragraph 8 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "8. This sub-section ensures that a person who has been prosecuted or whose goods have been confiscated does not suffer if the ultimate order either in appeal or in any proceeding is in his favour. It is very wide in its import as it statutorily obliges the Government to return the goods seized or to pay the value of the goods if for any reason it cannot discharge its obligation to return it. The circumstances in which the goods are to be returned are;
> (a) an order under S. 6A is modified or annulled by the State Government;
>
> (b) where the goods were confiscated in consequence of prosecution of the person and he is acquitted;
>
> (c) and in all these cases where it is not possible for any reason to return the essential commodity seized. This provision cuts across the argument of the State that where even part is confiscated the person whose goods are seized is not liable to be compensated for the remaining. The

www.vadaprativada.com

section is clear that if only part of the goods are confiscated then the remaining has to be returned. The very first part of the sub-section indicates that where the order of confiscation, is modified in appeal meaning thereby if confiscation is confined to part only the Government is bound to release or return the remaining or pay the value thereof. But what is more significant of this sub-section which widens its reach is the expression, 'and in either case it is not possible for any reason to return the essential commodity seized' then, the State shall be liable to pay the market price of the value with interest. The expression, 'for any reason' should be understood in broader and larger sense as it appears from the context in which it has been used. The inability to return, giving rise to the statutory obligation of deeming it as sale to the Government may arise for variety of reasons and extends to any failure on the part of the Government. For instance, the goods might have been sold in pursuance of interim arrangement under S. 6A(2). Or it might have been lost or stolen from the place of storage. The goods might have deteriorated or rusted in quality or quantity. The liability to return the goods seized does not stand discharged by offering them in whatever condition it was. Confiscation of part of the goods thus could not affect the right of owner to claim return of the remaining goods. Nor the owner is bound to accept the goods in whatever condition they are. The claim of the respondent, therefore, that the appellant was bound to accept the goods in whatever condition they were is liable to be rejected."

3325. In AIR 1971 SC 1594 (Union of India. v. Sudhangshu Mazumdar) the Hon'ble Apex Court has quoted an extract from the United States v. Juan Prechman, (1831-34) L.Ed. 604 with approval wherein it has been stated that the modern usage of nations would be outraged if private properties are confiscated or private rights annulled. Relevant paragraph 7 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "7. Dr. Singhvi says that the first premise on which the High Court has proceeded is that as a result of cession it would be competent for the Government of Pakistan to deal with the disputed territory as an absolute owner in complete disregard of the existing rights of the respondents. In other words it has been assumed that the Government of Pakistan will not recognise ownership or other similar rights of the respondents in the lands and properties which belong to them. This Dr. Singhvi claims, is contrary to the rule enunciated by Chief Justice Marshall in The United States v. Juan Perchman, (1831-34) 8 L. ed 604 in the following words:
> "The modern usage of nations, which has become law, would be violated: that sense of justice and of right which is acknowledged and felt by the whole civilised world would be outraged, if private property should be generally confiscated and private rights annulled. The people change their allegiance; their relation to their ancient sovereign is dissolved; but their relations to each other and their rights of property, remain undisturbed."

3326. In 1999 (4) SCC 663 (R.E.M.S. Abdul Hameed v. Govindaraju) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that under the Ancient Hindu Law there were two beneficial interests in land: (1) that of the sovereign or his representative, and (2) that of the cultivator or Ryot holding the land. The Ryot's right arose from occupation of the land, thus the grant of an Inam do not and could not have touched the cultivator's right in the land, except in rare cases where the grantor also hold the cultivator's interest at the time of the grant. Relying on Said judgment it is submitted that in our country since inception subjects were proprietor of their private properties and the Kings were only entitled for land revenue, Sri Mishra argued that Sri Ramajanamasthan was all along and is being owned by the Deity Sri Ramalala as such the right of private property of the Deity cannot be extinguished. Relevant paragraph 4 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"4. The central question in issue is the interpretation of clause (b) Explanation I to Section 2(11) of Act 26 of 1963. Learned counsel for the aforesaid respective appellants, Mr Tripurari Ray and Mr A.T.M. Sampath, Senior Counsel submit on the facts of this case that the disputed land cannot be construed to be "part-village inam estate" to fall within Act 26 of 1963 but is a minor inam to fall under Act 30 of 1963. Before taking up this issue of "part-village inam estate", it is necessary to look back to the history of inam lands, how it emerged, was recognised, canalised and dealt with through various enactments till it reached the legislative umbrella of both Acts 26 and 30 of 1963. The law relating to the landholdings, agrarian reform, in the Presidency town of Madras, with reference to the landlords and ryots started from the previous century and it is interesting to note a few of the essential features of this agrarian development. The origin of inam tenure is traced back to its grant made by Hindu rulers for the support of temples and charitable institutions, for the maintenance of holy and learned men rendering public service, etc. This practice was followed by the Mohammedan rulers and by British administrators until about a century ago. According to the ancient Hindu law, there were two beneficial interests in land, namely, (1) that of the sovereign or his representative, and (2) that of the cultivator holding the land. The sovereign's right to collect a share of the produce of the cultivated land was known by the name "melvaram", the share of the ryot or cultivator was known by the name "kudivaram". The ryot's right arose from occupation of the land. Thus, the grant of an inam did not touch, and could not have touched, the cultivator's right in the land, namely, the kudivaram, except in rare cases where the grantor was also holding the cultivator's interest at the time of the grant."

3327. In AIR 1962 SC 342 (Sunka Villi Suranna. v. Goli

Sathiraju) the Hon'ble Apex Court held, where there was no evidence to show that the occupation of the lands by the Ryot commenced under the Zamindar and there was no evidence as to the terms at which the Ryots or his predecessors were inducted in land, commencement of the tenancy and the terms thereof were lost in antiquity but the Ryot's rights and his descendants were proved to have continued in possession of the land uninterruptedly till the enactment of the Madras States Land Act, 1908. In the light of the presumption that the Zamindar was, unless the contrary was proved, the owner of the melvaram and Ryot the owner of the kudivaram, the interference was irresistible that the Ryot was the holder of the occupancy rights in the land and thus rights developed upon his successors and the occupancy right in the land were not acquired by virtue of the provisions of Madras States Land Act, 1908. Relying thereon it is argued that prior to declaring the land as nazul land by the Governor- General in 1859, the Hindus were worshipping in the suit property as such the occupancy rights remained in the hands of the Hindus. Relevant paragraph 17 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "17. To summarise, there is no evidence to show that occupation of the lands by Thammiah commenced under the zamindar and there is no evidence as to the terms on which Thammiah or his predecessors were inducted on the lands: the commencement of the tenancy and the terms thereof are lost in antiquity, but Thammiah and his descendants are proved to have continued in possession of land uninterruptedly till the enactment of the Madras Estates Land Act, 1908. In the light of the presumption that the zamindar is unless the contrary is proved, the owner of the melvaram and the ryot the owner of the kudivaram the inference is irresistible that Thammiah was the holder of the occupancy rights in the lands and that these rights devolved upon his successors and that the occupancy rights in the lands were not acquired by virtue of the provisions of Madras Act VI of 1908."

3328. In (2001) 4 SCC 713 (Syndicate Bank. v. Prabha D. Naik) the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that the Muslim jurisprudence neither recognised prescription nor limitation. Relying on the said judgment it is submitted that as Hindu Endowment was existing prior to acquisition of Kingship by the Emperor Babur and said ownership of the Deity existed till the day of confiscation of the rights of the proprietors in land in the year 1859 by the British government which right of the Deity again revived when the State of Uttar Pradesh gave up its said right by filing written statement in the instant Suit, as such the said sacred shrine of the Hindus is not liable to be declared as a mosque. Relevant paragraph 6 of the said judgment reads as follows:

"6. Incidentally, it may be noted that though the old Hindu law recognised both prescription and limitation but Muslim jurisprudence recognised neither of them. The new Law of Limitation in terms of the Limitation Act of 1963 however, does not make any racial or class distinction since both Hindu and Muslim laws are amenable to the Law of Limitation as is presently existing in the statute-book (see in this context B.B. Mitra's Limitation Act ; 20th Edn.)."

3329. In AIR 1968 SC 683 (V. D. Dhanwatey. v. Commissioner of Income Tax, M. P., Nagpur & Bhandara) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that while interpreting an ancient text, the Courts must give them a liberal construction to further the interest of the society by wisely interpreting the original texts in such a way as to bring them in harmony with the prevailing conditions. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the Sthandil i.e. Sri Ramjanmasthan which has been recognized by the scriptures a means of conferring merit upon the devotees and granting salvation to them be recognized as Juridical entity and not mere property in crude sense to do justice in the greater interest of the citizens of India in general and the Hindu and Muslim community in particular to pave the way of permanent peace. Relevant paragraph 31 of the said judgment reads as follows:

> "31. Law is a social mechanism to be used for the advancement of the society. It should not be allowed to be a dead weight on the society. While interpreting ancient texts, the courts must give them a liberal construction to further the interests of the society. Our great commentators in the past bridged the gulf between law as enunciated in the Hindu law texts and the advancing society by wisely interpreting the original texts in such a way as to bring them in harmony with the prevailing conditions. To an extent, that function has now to be discharged by our superior courts. That task is undoubtedly a delicate one. In discharging that function our courts have shown a great deal of circumspection. Under modern conditions legislative modification of laws is bound to be confined to

major changes. Gradual and orderly development of law can only be accomplished by judicial interpretation. The Supreme Court's role in that regard is recognised by Article 141 of our Constitution."

3330. In AIR 2008 SCW 1224=2008(3) SCC 481 (Dist. Basic Education Officer & Anr. v. Dhananjai Kumar Shukla & Anr.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the rules of pleadings do not apply to question of law and new plea on question of law can be raised before the Supreme Court even it was not raised before the High Court. Relying on said judgment it is submitted that the questions of law which have been raised during the argument are sustainable in the eye of law and needed to be decided for doing complete justice between the parties who are representing two major community of India. Relevant paragraph 14 (13 in SCC) of the said judgment reads as follows:

www.vadaprativada.com

"14. Rules of pleading contained in the Code of Civil Procedure do not cover questions of law. If a fact stands admitted the same in terms of Section 56 of the Indian Evidence Act need not be proved. Only because such a question was not allegedly raised before the High Court, this Court could not shut its eyes to the legal position. Yet again only because an illegality has been committed, this Court would not allow its perpetration. Respondent's father was on leave for a temporary period. He thereby did not cease to be the Manager of the school. It is apparent that he went on leave only for defeating the statutory provisions. Such an act amounts to fraud on the administration."

3331. The vexed question is the religious status of the building in dispute. It is no doubt true that it has been argued very ably by placing lot of material on the subject. In our view it is not a mere simple controversy, whether the building in dispute is a mosque satisfying the Islamic tenets or not, but much more than that. As already held, the parties could not prove that the building in dispute was constructed in 1528 AD by Babar or any of his agent. Some of these issues would immediately stand covered by those findings. For example issue 6 (Suit-3) would have required a further investigation only if it was built by Babar and not otherwise. However, we would proceed ahead assuming, only for the purpose of these issues, if the building was constructed by Babar in 1528 AD, then how the concerned issues hereat would stand, and/or, to what extent the parties concerned are able to prove in one or the other way, their case.

3332. Issue 6 (Suit-3) is confined to the act of Emperor Babar i.e. whether the alleged mosque was dedicated by him for worship of muslims in general and made a public waqf property. This issue has been framed on the basis of the pleadings of muslim parties (defendants) in Suit-3. The result of failure to prove the issue would stand in a loss to the defendants muslim parties and therefore, burden to prove it lie upon the defendants muslim parties.

3333. There is no recorded history or/ for the period of 1528 to 1855 A.D., stating in black and white, that this building was constructed by Babar and then dedicated to muslims as a public waqf. In fact the reference of the building in dispute for the first time, we find, in the traveller's account of Tieffenthaler i.e. DESCRIPTION : HISTORIQUE ET GEOGRAPHIQUE : D E L' I N D E under the title "TOME

1. NOUVELLE EDITION. Contenant la Geographic de l'Ind-Uftan, avec. 39,. Planches" (Supra). But what he mentions is that the place where there existed house of Vishnu, worshipped by Hindus, the disputed structure was raised, which as per local belief, constructed by Aurangzebe but some says Babar. This observation maintain a state of suspense. But then he kept on saying that Hindus used to worship by Parikrama and lying prostrate on the land.

3334. In 1828, the gazetteer of Walter Hamilton i.e. "East India Gazetteer" (Supra) also do not throw any light on it. The Robert Montegomary Martin, got published the Survey Report of Dr. Buchanan in 1838 under the title 'Eastern India' (Supra). He mentions that though locally it is believed that the building was constructed by Aurangzebe after demolishing a temple at the site in dispute but the stone inscriptions fixed on the disputed structure mention names of Babar and Mir Baqi. It was thus not Aurangzebe but Babar. The contents of the inscriptions referred by Martin are not known and these aspects as also the text of inscriptions, as quoted subsequently, we have discussed in great detail above while considering issues relating to period of construction etc. of the disputed structure hence, not to be repeated. Suffice it to mention that whatever text of these stone inscriptions is treated to be correct even that do not clearly say that the building was constructed by Babar hence the question of his dedication for worship by muslims in general and making it a public waqf property would not arise.

3335. Existence of a mosque or construction of a mosque by somebody is another thing but the issue we are supposed to answer is quite specific, whether this dedication is by Emperor

Babar or not. No doubt after 4 or 5 centuries one cannot expect an eyewitness to prove such an issue but then other circumstances or secondary evidence could have been produced to prove it. A presumption in respect to dedication in such a matter which involves a period of several centuries could have been raised if identity of the person, who constructed the building is not in dispute and the only question is whether there is a valid or de facto dedication or not. The doctrine of user etc. could have been resorted to in such a case. But where the dispute of identity of alleged waqif itself is involved, such doctrine would be of no help.

3336. During the oral arguments, Sri Z. Jilani, learned counsel appearing on behalf of Sunni Board, whose arguments have been adopted by other learned counsels appearing for muslim parties, also tried to highlight that Babar never entered Ayodhya and did not command Mir Baqi for construction of any mosque. In fact we find that in the entire plaint there is not even a whisper that Babar dedicated alleged mosque for worship by muslims in general and made a public waqf property. On the contrary, para 1 says that it was built by Mir Baqi under the command of Emperor Babar for use of muslims in general as a place of worship. It does not say at all that at any stage there was dedication of building in question as a public waqf or a waqf property for the benefit of muslims in general. One of the essential condition of creating a waqf is "dedication". In absence of other evidence, if, public prayer is once said there, with the permission of the owner, it can be treated to have been dedicated. Even if we assume that emperor Babar was owner, no material has been placed which may suggest or give even a faint indication that with his permission any public prayer was made in the building in dispute. In fact we do find no material to suggest that any public prayer was offered by Muslims, at least till 1860.

3337. We can go even to this extent that a dedication may be inferred from user as waqf property but when the issue is whether a particular person made dedication or not, the question of long user to our mind would not be relevant but it is the factum of dedication of the person concerned which has to be seen.

3338. In Commissioner of Waqfs and another Vs. Mohammad Moshin (Supra), it was held that none other than owner of the property can make a waqf. In that case guardian of a minor sought to create a waqf but that was not approved by the Division Bench of Calcutta High Court holding that idea of agency is foreign to Mohammedan Law and a waqf would not be created unless the creator himself is not owner of the property.

3339. It is not the case of the Sunni Board and other muslim parties that the property in dispute owned by Mir Baqi and he made dedication. The issue before us, up for consideration is whether the dedication was made by Emperor Babar or not. There is no suggestion during the course of argument that the issue has not been properly framed or needs any alteration. Two judgements, however, in this regard are sought to be relied by Sunni Board and other muslim parties. One is that of Suit-1885 and another is the judgment dated 30 March, 1946 in Suit No. 29 of 1945 (Exhibit A-42, Suit-1, Register 8, Page 431). It is contended that the question about the building in dispute that it is a mosque and constructed by Babar, hence, a Sunni mosque, stands concluded and these judgments since relates to the declaration of status of building in dispute itself, are judgements in rem, hence, final and binding. Therefore, the issue in question ought to be decided in the light of declaration made thereunder.

3340. The three judgements of trial court, and appellate courts in Suit-1885, we have discussed at length at various stages above. In brief, just to recapitulate, a suit was filed by Mahant Raghubar Das seeking permission to make construction of temple at a chabutra measuring 17x21 feet in the eastern-southern part of the disputed building in the outer courtyard which was in his possession as he claimed for a long time. One Mohd. Asghar got impleaded himself as defendant no. 2, as Mutwalli of the building in dispute. He did not deny possession of Raghbar Das on the aforesaid chabutra but suggested that it was unauthorised and illegal since no permission was obtained from waqif or his successors. The trial court decided the suit and observed from the pleadings as also the Gazetteer placed before it by the parties, that on the west side there was a mosque said to be constructed during the reign of Babar and in its vicinity, permission to make a new construction, that too, of a temple, may create a law and order situation. Hence, in public interest, it decline to grant any relief to the plaintiff therein. This ultimate decision of the trial court was confirmed by the District Judge as well as the Judicial Commissioner in appeal. There was no issue as to whether the building was a mosque and if so who constructed it, and whether there was any dedication by such person etc.

3341. The second suit of 1945 is an inter se dispute between two muslim bodies, i.e. Shia Waqf Board and Sunni Waqf Board of State of U.P. contesting about the building in dispute whether it was a Sunni waqf or Shia waqf. The nature of the building as waqf, its construction by emperor Babar through its commander Mir Baqi in 1528 A.D. and dedication to muslim in general as public waqf were the facts admitted by both the parties, hence, there was no occasion for the trial court to look into those aspects of the matter. The trial court mentioned the facts pleaded by the parties on this aspect without there being any contest thereon, since the contest was confined only to the category it belonged to i.e. Shia or Sunni. Therefore, the aforesaid judgement cannot be said to be a judgement deciding the issue which is up for consideration before us. The judgements whether in rem or personam would make no difference.

3342. Moreover, admissibility of judgements as evidence has to be considered in the light of the provisions of Evidence Act. A document may be classified for this purpose in three heads, (1) documents which are per se inadmissible; (2) recitals in judgements not inter parties; and (3) documents or judgements post litem motam. If a judgement is not admissible, not falling within the ambit of Sections 40-42, it must fulfil the conditions of Sections 43 otherwise it cannot be relevant under Section 13 of the Evidence Act. The words 'other provisions of this Act' used in Section 43 would not extend to Section 13, because the Section 13 does not deal with judgements at all. The judgements in personam do not fulfil the conditions mentioned in Section 41 of the Evidence Act, hence, inadmissible. The

judgements not inter parties are inadmissible in evidence barring exceptional cases. It would be useful to refer in this regard the Apex Court's decision in State of Bihar and others Vs. Sri Radha Krishna Singh (supra) paras, 123, 126, 127, 128, 129, 131, 133 and 134 as under:

> "123. It is now settled law that judgments not inter parties are inadmissible in evidence barring exceptional cases which we shall point out hereafter. In Johan Cockrane v. Hurrosoondurri Debia and Ors.(1854-57) 6 Moo Ind App 494, Lord Justice Bruce while dealing with the question of admissibility of a judgment observed as follows:
>
> > "With regard to the judgment of the Supreme Court, it is plain, that considering the parties to the suit in which that judgment was given, it is not evidence in the present case.... We must recollect, however, not only that that suit had a different object from the present, independently of the difference of parties, but that the evidence here is beyond, and is different from, that which was before the Supreme Court upon the occasion of delivering that judgment."
>
> "126. In the case of Gujju Lall v. Fatteh Lall, (1881) ILR 6 Cal 171 a Full Bench exhaustively considered the ambit and scope of Ss 40 to 43 of the Evidence Act and observed thus:
> > "On the other hand, when in a law prepared for such a purpose, and under such circumstances, we find a group of several sections prefaced by the title "Judgments of Courts of Justice when relevant," that seems to be a good reason for thinking that, as far as

". . . it is difficult to conceive why, under Section 42, judgments though not between the same parties should be declared admissible so long as they related to matters of a public nature, if those very same judgment had already been made admissible under Section 13, whether they related to matters of a public nature or not.

"129. . . . . so far as regards the truth of the matter decided a judgment is not admissible evidence against one who is a stranger to the suit has long been accepted as a general rule in English law.

"The judgment is not inter parties, nor is it a judgment in rem, nor does it relate to a matter of a public nature. The existence of the judgment is not a fact in issue; and if the existence of the judgment is relevant under some of the provisions of the Evidence Act it is difficult to see what inference can be drawn from its use under these sections"

"Serious consequences might ensue as regards titles to land in India if it were recognised that a judgment against a third party altered the burden of proof as between rival claimants, and much 'indirect laying' might be expected to follow therefrom"(Emphasis supplied)"

"131. We entirely agree with the observations made by the Privy Council which flow from a correct interpretation of Sections40 and 43 of the Evidence Act."

"133. . . . . judgment which is not inter parties is inadmissible in evidence except for the limited purpose of proving as to who the parties were and what was the decree passed and the properties which were the subject matter of the suit. In these circumstances, therefore, it is not open to the plaintiffs-respondents to derive any support from some of the judgments which they have filed in order to support their title and relationship in which neither the plaintiffs nor the defendants were parties. Indeed, if the judgments are used for the limited purpose mentioned

above, they do not take us anywhere so as to prove the plaintiff's case."

"134. . . . .Declarations by deceased persons of competent knowledge, made ante litem motam, are receivable to prove ancient rights of a public or general nature. The admission of declarations as to those rights is allowed partly on the ground of necessity, since without such evidence ancient rights could rarely be established; and partly on the ground that the public nature of the rights minimises the risks of mis-statement."

3343. In respect to the delcarations made post litem the Apex Court in the above case made observations in para 135 and 136 as under:

"135. . . . . It is equally well settled that declarations or statements made post litem motam would not be admissible because in cases or proceedings taken or declarations made ante litem motam, the element of bias and concoction is eliminated. Before, however, the statements of the nature mentioned above can be admissible as being ante litem motam they must be not only before the actual existence of any controversy but they should be made even before the commencement of legal proceedings.....

"To obviate bias, the declarations must have been made ante litem motam, which means not merely before the commencement of legal proceedings, but before even the existence of any actual controversy, concerning the subject matter of the declarations. . . . ."

"136 . . . . The reason for this rule seems to be that after a dispute has begun or a legal proceeding is about to commence, the possibility of bias, concoction or putting up false pleas cannot be ruled out. This rule of English law has now been crystallised as one of the essential principles of the Evidence Act on the question of admissibility of judgments or documents. . . . In fact, Section 32(5) of the Evidence Act itself fully incorporates the doctrine of post litem motam the relevant portion of which may be extracted thus:

> "32. Cases in which statement of relevant fact by person who is dead or cannot be found, etc., is relevant
> (5) ...the person making the statement had special means of knowledge, and when the statement was made before the question in dispute was raised."

3344. Here we may also refer to para 143 of the above judgments where the Apex Court summerized ratio of the various authorities on the above aspects of the matter and said:

"143. Thus, summarising the ratio of the authorities mentioned above, the position that emerges and the principles that are deducible from the aforesaid decisions are as follows:

(1) A judgment in rem e. g., judgments or orders passed in admiralty, probate proceedings, etc., would always be admissible irrespective of whether they are inter parties or not,

(2) judgments in personam not inter parties are not at all admissible in evidence except for the three purposes mentioned above*.*

(3) On a parity of aforesaid reasoning, the recitals in a

www.vadaprativada.com

judgment like findings given in appreciation of evidence made or arguments or genealogies referred to in the judgment would be wholly inadmissible in a case where neither the plaintiff nor the defendant were parties.

(4) The probative value of documents which, however ancient they may be, do not disclose sources of their information or have not achieved sufficient notoriety is precious little.

(5) Statements, declarations or depositions, etc., would not be admissible if they are post litem motam."

3345. In the absence of any evidence direct, circumstantial or otherwise and also due to inapplication of any principle with respect to presumption etc., we are constrained to hold that issue 6 (Suit-3) is not proved at all hence answered in negative.

3346. Now we proceed to Issues No. 1 (Suit-4) and 9 (Suit-5) together.

3347. Both issues require an answer whether the building in question was a mosque or a mosque known as Babari Masjid. The most important thing is that this Court is not supposed to consider whether it is a mosque according to the tenets of law of Shariyat or could be a mosque under the Islamic Law but the only thing which we are asked to reply whether the building in question was a mosque as claimed by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) and obviously by defendants in Suit-5, and whether it is known as Babari mosque. But then we will also have to consider whether beyond Shariat, a mosque has any identity and recognition.

3348. The facts in this regard which are on record leave no doubt that the building in dispute was termed and called as "mosque" as long back as in 18th century, i.e., in the traveller's

account of Tieffenthaler. i.e.. DESCRIPTION : HISTORIQUE ET GEOGRAPHIQUE : D E L' I N D E under the title "TOME 1. NOUVELLE EDITION. Contenant la Geographic de l'Ind-Uftan, avec. 39,. Planches" (Supra).

> "Emperor Aurengzebe got the fortress called Ramcot demolished and got a Muslim temple, with triple domes, constructed at the same place. Others says that it was constructed by 'Babar'. Fourteen black stone pillars of 5 span high, which had existed at the site of the fortress, are seen there."

3349. Robert Martin's Eastern India (supra) Vol. II published in 1838 on page 335 mentions:

> "The bigot by whom the temples were destroyed, is said to have erected mosques on the situations of the most remarkable temples; but the mosque at Ayodhya, which is by far the most entire, and which has every appearance of being the most modern, is ascertained by an inscription on its walls (of which a copy is given) to have been built by Babur, five generations before Aurungzebe."

www.vadaprativada.com

3350. Edward Thornton's Gazetteer, 1858 (supra) says on page 739/740:

> "According to native tradition, they were demolished by Aurungzebe, who built a mosque on part of the site. The falsehood of the tradition is, however, proved by an inscription on the wall of the mosque, attributing the work to the conqueror Baber, from whom Aurungzabe was fifth in descent. The mosque is embellished . . . . ." (emphasis added)

3351. In P. Carnegy's Historical Sketch (supra) on page

20/21 he says:

> "If Ajodhya was then little other than a wilderness, it must at least have possessed a fine temple in the Janamasthan; for many of its columns are still in existence and in good preservation, having been used by the Musalmans in the construction of the Babari Mosque*. These are of strong, close-grained, dark-colored or black stone, called by the natives kasauti . . . ." (emphasis added)*

3352. In Gazetteer of the Province of Oudh by W.C. Benett (1877) (supra) he has said:

> "It is locally affirmed that at the Muhammadan conquest there were three important Hindu shrines . . . . These were the "Janamasthan" . . . . .
>
> On the first of these the Emperor Babar built the mosque*, which still bears his name, A.D. 1528.. . ."*

www.vadaprativada.com

3353. A.F. Millet's Report on Settlement of Land Revenue of the Faizabad (supra) (1880) in para 669 he says:

> "It is said that up to that time the Hindus and Mahomedans alike used to worship in the mosque-temple*. Since British rule a railing has been put up to prevent disputes, within which in the* mosque the Mahomedans pray, while outside the fence the Hindus have raised a platform on which they make their offerings."

3354. Fyzabad A Gazetteer by H.R. Nevill (1905) (supra) page 153 says:

> "In 1528 Babar built the mosque at Ayodhya on the traditional spot where Lord Rama was borne."

3355. Imperial Gazetteer of India (1908) (supra) says:

> "At one corner of a vast mound known as Ramkot, or

www.vadaprativada.com

the fort of Rama, is the holy spot where the hero was born. Most of the enclosure is occupied by a mosque built by Babar from the remains of an old temple, and in the outer portion a small platform and shrine mark the birthplace.... Besides the mosque of Babar. . . .” (emphasis added)

3356. Nevill's Gazetteer of Fyzabad (1928) (supra) says:

“He destroyed the ancient temple and on its site built a mosque, still known as Babar's mosque.. . . .”

3357. "Imperial Gazetteer of India, Provincial Series, United Provinces of Agra and Oudh", Vol. II, published in 1934 is another document containing similar averments. Exhibit 10 (Suit-5) (Register 29 Page 87-89) is photocopy of frontispiece and page 388 and 389 concerning Fyzabad Division. The relevant extract thereof, for our purposes, is as under:

www.vadaprativada.com

“At one corner of a vast mound known as Ramkot, or the fort of Rama, is the holy spot where the hero was born. Most of the enclosure is occupied by a mosque built by Babar from the remains of an old temple, and in the outer portion a small platform and shrine mark the birthplace.... Besides the mosque. . . .”

3358. The last Gazetteer placed before us, i.e., Uttar Pradesh District Gazetter, Fyzabad (1960) (supra) it says:

“It seems that in 1528 AD Babar visited Ayodhya and under his order this ancient temple was destroyed and on the site was built what came to be known as Babar's mosque.”

3359. Besides, there are certain documents on record, of the period of 1858 to 1885, where also the disputed structure has been termed as “mosque”. In the plaint of Suit-1885 the plaintiff, Mahant Raghubar Das described the disputed structure as mosque on the west side of the Chabutara, of which dispute was raised in 1885. The documents exhibits of 1858 to 1885 we have already referred while discussing issues pertaining to limitation/possession/adverse possession mentioned it a mosque.

3360. It seems that so far as the identity of the place is concerned, three things, remained unchallenged upto 1950, or, to be more precise, up to 22nd December, 1949, i.e., (a) the disputed structure was always termed and known as a "mosque", "Babari mosque" or "Masjid Janamsthan"; (b) it was always believed and nobody ever disputed that the said building was constructed after demolishing a temple, and (c) that the disputed site, as per belief of Hindus, is the birthplace of Lord Rama and was a part of a big Fort called Fort of Lord Rama and later on as "Ramkot".

3361. Whether the disputed structure was consistent with the tenets of Islam and, therefore, qualify to be a mosque, validly constructed, according to the mandates of Holy Quran, Hedaya and other Islamic religious scriptures, was never sought to be bothered by the muslims who treated it as a mosque. Though it appears that it could be used with certain constraints and restrain and not in a free and independent manner as ought to be. Simultaneously Hindus also treated it a mosque, treated it a blot on the religious self respect but the fact remains that it was always termed and called a "mosque", "Babari mosque" or "Masjid Janamsthan". No documentary evidence has been shown to us which could have contradicted the above inference.

3362. An attempt was made that in a title suit reference to

Gazetteers and the facts contained therein ought not to be considered. The statements contained in the official Gazettes/gazetteers, and, sometimes the statement of facts mentioned in official gazettes or Gazetteers are entitled to consideration though not to be treated conclusive in respect of the matters requiring judicial adjudication.

3363. In Vimla Bai Vs. Hiralal Gupta & others (1990) 2 SCC 22, it was held:

> "5. The Statement of fact contained in the official Gazette made in the course of the discharge of the official duties on private affairs or on historical facts in some cases is best evidence of facts stated therein and is entitled to due consideration but should not be treated as conclusive in respect of matters requiring judicial adjudication*. In an appropriate case where there is some evidence on record to prove the fact in issue but it is not sufficient to record a finding thereon, the statement of facts concerning management of private temples or historical facts of status of private persons etc. found in the Official Gazette may be relied upon without further proof thereof as corroborative evidence. Therefore, though the statement of facts contained in Indore State Gazette regarding historical facts of Dhangars' social status and habitation of them may be relevant fact and in an appropriate case the Court may presume to be genuine without any further proof of its contents but it is not conclusive."*

3364. In view of Section 35 read with Section 81 a gazette is admissible being an official record in respect to the facts pertaining to public affairs and the Court may presume the

contents thereof genuine but when it reflects on historical material the Court may not treat it conclusive evidence but would consider corroborating material.

3365. In Bala Shankar Maha Shankar Bhattjee & others Vs. Charity Commissioner AIR 1995 SC 167, the Court held that Gazette of Bombay Presidency, Vol. III published in 1879 is admissible under Section 35 read with Section 81 of the Act. It was observed in para 22:

> "The Gazette is admissible being official record evidencing public affairs and the Court may presume their contents as genuine. The statement contained therein can be taken into account to discover the historical material contained therein and the facts stated therein is evidence under S. 45 and the Court may in conjunction with other evidence and circumstances take into consideration in adjudging the dispute in question, though may not be treated as conclusive evidence."

3366. It is said that the Gazettes published by Government, is admissible under Section 35 read with Section 81 of the Act but this may not apply to Gazetteers. Notably there is a distinction between Gazetteer and Gazette. A Gazette is an official document having statutory backing. Prior to its repeal in 20th century, the requirement of publication of rules and regulations etc. in Gazette was governed by Section 1, Official Gazette Act, 1863 (Act XXXI of 1863) which reads as under:

> "I. When in any Regulation or Act now in operation, or in any Rule having the force of law, it is directed that any order, notification or other matter shall be published in the Official Gazette of any Presidency or place, such order,

notification or other matter shall be deemed to be duly published in accordance with the requirements of the law, if it be published either in the Gazette in which it would have appeared but for the passing of this Act, or in the Gazette of India under the direction of the Governor-General of India in Council."

3367. The Evidence Act, Section 81 talks only of a Gazette and not the Gazetteer. It is no doubt true that the Gazettes are published under the authority of the Government and, therefore, may be considered to be a public document admissible in evidence, but no more than that. In any case, the purpose for which reliance is placed on Bala Shankar Maha Shankar Bhattjee (supra) for pursuing this Court to take historical facts stated in Gazetteers to be conclusive evidence cannot be accepted. The Gazetters are admissible but have to be seen alongwith other corroborative material.

3368. A gazetteer is not a gazette. It cannot be placed at par with a gazette, reference whereof is contained in Section 81 of the Evidence Act. The facts contained in a gazetteer, however, can be taken into account not conclusive one but in the matter of history they are relevant facts. Some of the authorities on this aspect we have already referred to while dealing the issues relating to period of construction. It constitute a corroborative evidence. Therefore what is stated in old Gazetteer is relevant.

3369. It is contended that the building in dispute was treated a mosque, the people worshipped therein, offered Namaj for a long time, and, therefore, on account of its user, it is a mosque, i.e., a duly dedicated waqf. Reliance is placed on Miru & others Vs. Ramgopal AIR 1935 All. 891, where the Court

held:

> "Where there is a mosque or a temple, which has been in existence for a long time and the terms of the original grant of the land cannot now be ascertained, there would be a fair presumption that the sites on which mosques or temples stand are dedicated property*. There can be no legal impediment to such a dedication, as the owner of the land can make a grant of the site even to persons of a different community and creed and allow them then to dedicate that site by building a place of worship on it. Where therefore the Court finds that a mosque or a temple has stood for a long time and worship has been performed in it by the public, it is open to the Court to infer that the building does not stand there merely by the leave and license of the owner of the site, but that the land itself is a dedicated property and the site is a consecrated land, and is no longer the private property of the original owner."*

3370. In my view the judgment as such has no application to the case in hand. The issue under consideration is whether it is a mosque as claimed by plaintiffs and whether the disputed structure is a mosque, known as Babari Masjid. The Hindu parties have challenged both. Whether it is a mosque in accordance with the tenets of Islamic law or constructed in accordance thereto or even if a mosque or whether it can be so only if constructed according to the tenets of Islam and not otherwise, both aspects have to be examined. Several authorities we have discussed above were cited to show the ingredient of waqf, how a valid waqf is created and is operated. Similarly when a mosque will become a public waqf. But when a building

can be treated a mosque, if a building is not constructed in accordance with the tenets of Islam, will it not be called a mosque at all, though as such has been considered for a long time, its effect, are some of the questions on which virtually no useful assistance is provided.

3371. What a 'mosque' is? What does it mean? Let us first have some idea on it. The meaning of "mosque" in different dictionaries is as under:

3372. In "The New Lexicon Webster's Dictionary of the English Language" (1987), published by Lexicon Publications, Inc. at page 652:

"mosque (mosk). A Moslem place of worship"

3373. In "Oxford Advanced Learner's Encyclopedic Dictionary" published by Oxford University Press, first published in 1989, at page 582:

www.vadaprativada.com

"mosque-building in which Muslims worship"

3374. In "Chambers Dictionary", page 934:

"mosque-A muslim place of worship."

3375. In P Ramanatha Aiyar's "The Law Lexicon" The Encyclopaedic Law Dictionary with Legal Mxims, Latin Terms, Words and Phrases, Second Edition 1997, published by Wadhwa and Company Law Publishers, at page 1259:

"Mosque. A Muhammadan church."

3376. Therefore, it is clear that a mosque is necessarily something integrally connected with Islam and hence outside its tenets the term mosque shall have no significance and it would only be a plain building.

3377. Lots of arguments have been raised that unless one was not owner of the land, could not have built any mosque. The arguments of plaintiffs is that Babar being the conquerer of the territory, became owner of the entire land, and therefore, it was open for him to build a mosque at any place counqered by him. The other side contended that mere conquer or annexation of the territory would not make an Emperor or the king or the Sovereign, owner of the land of individual's residence or of the subject. For this purpose, besides various authorities, the historical facts that many a Mughal kings, as and when found necessary, had purchased land for religious purposes, sought to be relied.

3378. On the question of "sovereignty", various authorities cited, some of which are as follow:

3379. In Vajesingji Joravarsingji Vs. Secy. of State for India in Council, AIR 1924 PC 216 Lord Dunedin said:

> "When a territory is acquired by a sovereign state for the first time that is an act of State. It matters not how the acquisition has been brought about. It may be by conquest, it may be by cession following on treaty, it may be by occupation of territory hitherto unoccupied by a recognised ruler. In all cases the result is the same. Any inhabitant of the territory can only make good in the municipal courts established by the new sovereign such rights as that sovereign has through his officers, recognised. Such rights as he had under the rule of predecessors avail him nothing*. Nay more, even if in a treaty of cession it is stipulated that certain inhabitants should enjoy certain rights, that does not give a title to those inhabitants to enforce these stipulations in the municipal courts. The right to enforce remains only with the high contracting*

3380. The aforesaid observations were approved by a Constitution Bench in State of Gujarat Vs. Vora Fiddali Badruddin Mithibarwala, AIR 1964 SC 1043 and the concept of act of State was summerised as under:

"To begin with, this Court has interpreted the integration of Indian States with the Dominion of India as an Act of State and has applied the law relating to an Act of State as laid down by the Privy Council in a long series of cases beginning with Secretary of State in Council for India v. Kamachee Boye Saheba, (1859) 12 Moore PC 22 and ending with Secretary of State v. Sardar Rustam Khan and other, (1941) 68 IA 109. The cases on this point need not be cited. Reference may be made to M/s Dalmia Dadri Cement Co. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Income-tax, AIR 1958 SC 816, The State of Saurashtra v. Menon Haji Ismali Haji, AIR 1959 SC 1383, Jaganath Agarwala v. State of Orissa, AIR 1961 SC 1361 and State of Saurashtra v. Jamadar Mohamed Abdulla and others, AIR 1965 SC 445. In these cases of this Court, it has been laid down that the essence of an Act of State is an arbitrary exercise of sovereign power on principles which are paramount to the Municipal Law, against an alien and the exercise of the power is neither intended nor purports to be legally founded. A defence that the injury is by an Act of State does not seek justification for the Act by reference to any law, but questions the jurisdiction of the court to decide upon the legality or justice of the action. The Act of State comes to an end only when the new sovereign recognises either

expressly or impliedly the rights of the aliens. It does not come to an end by any action of subordinate officers who have no authority to bind the new sovereign. Till recognition, either express or implied, is granted by the new sovereign, the Act of State continues."

3381. The Court in Vora Fiddali Badruddin Mithibarwala (supra) further said:

"The decision also holds that merely because the issue of recognition of the new rights was pending with the Government, it cannot be postulated that the act of State had come to an end. The act of State could only come to an end if the Government recognises the rights which were granted by the erstwhile Ruler*."*

3382. In Draupadi Devi and others Vs. Union of India and others, 2004(11) SCC 425 the Court said in para 43:

"43. The rule that cession of territory by one State to another is an act of State and the subjects of the former State may enforce only those rights which the new sovereign recognises has been accepted by this Court. (See in this connection: M/s Dalmia Dadri Cement Co. Ltd. V. The Commissioner of Income-tax, AIR 1958 SC 816; Jagannath Agarwala v. State of Orissa, AIE 1961 SC 1361; Promod Chandra Deb and others v. The State of Orissa and others, AIR 1962 SC 1288 and State of Saurashtra v. Jamadar Mohamad Abdulla and others, AIR 1962 SC 445)."

3383. The rights available to the erstwhile Ruler and his subjects, on the change of the crown, were considered in Draupadi Devi (supra) and the Court said in para 64:

www.vadaprativada.com

"In our view, all the rights available to the erstwhile Ruler and his subjects are of no avail till there is recognition of such rights*."*

3384. In para 11 of the judgement in State of Punjab Vs. Brigadier Sukhjit Singh, 1993(3) SCC 459 the Court said:

"11. Now it is beyond doubt that the Ruler of an Indian State was in the position of a sovereign and his command was the law. His farman had the strength and potency of a law made by an elected legislature and his acts, administrative or executive, were sovereign in character*."*

3385. However in Draupadi Devi (supra) the Apex Court held that the above proposition runs contrary to a seven judges Constitution Bench decision in Vora Fiddali Badruddin Mithibarwala (supra) and, therefore, does not lay down correct law.

3386. In Govindrao & others Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh & others AIR 1982 SC 1201, the concept of Ruler and sovereignty was considered and it was held:

"8. The expression "Ruling Chief" has not been defined in the Act and must therefore be understood as in common parlance. The meaning of the word "Ruler" as given in Shorter Oxford English Dictionary, 3rd edn., vol. 2, p. 1867 is : "one who, or that which, exercises rule, especially of supreme or sovereign kind". Normally the expression "Ruling Chief" connotes "a person who is endowed with the content of sovereignty and also has the attributes of a sovereign". According to Blacks' Legal Dictionary, 5th edn., p. 1252 the legal conception of

"sovereignty" is stated thus :

> "The supreme, absolute, and uncontrollable power by which any independent state is governed; supreme political authority, paramount control of the Constitution and frame of government and its administration; the self-sufficient source of political power from which all specific political powers are derived; the international independence of a state, combined with the right and power of regulating its internal affairs without foreign dictation; also a political society, or state, which is sovereign and independent.

9. "Sovereignty" means "supremacy in respect of power, dominion or rank; supreme dominion authority or rule". "Sovereignty" is the right to govern*. The term* "sovereignty" as applied to States implies "supreme, absolute, uncontrollable power by which any State is governed, and which resides within itself*, whether residing in a single individual or a number of individuals, or in the whole body of the people." Thus,* sovereignty*, according to its normal legal connotation,* is the supreme power which governs the body politic, or society which constitutes the State, and this power is independent of the particular form of government, whether monarchial, autocratic or democratic*.*

10. According to Laski in "A Grammar of Politics", 1957 Reprint Chap. II, p. 50

> "The legal aspect of sovereignty is best examined by a statement of the form given to it by

www.vadaprativada.com

John Austin. In every legal analysis of the State, he argued, it is first of all necessary to discover in the given society that definite superior to which habitual obedience is rendered by the mass of men. That superior must not itself obey any higher authority. When we discover the authority which gives commands habitually obeyed, itself not receiving them, we have the sovereign power in the State. In an independent political community that sovereign is determinate and absolute. Its will is illimitable because, if it could not be constrained to act, it would cease to be supreme, since it would then be subject to the constraining power. Its will is indivisible because, if power over certain functions or persons is absolutely and irrevocably entrusted to a given body, the sovereign then ceases to enjoy universal supremacy and therefore ceases by definition to be sovereign."

www.vadaprativada.com

11. It is not necessary to enter into the concept of sovereignty, one of the most controversial ideas in political science and international law, which is closely related to the difficult concepts of State and Government, of independence and democracy, except to touch upon the juristic character of the Indian State to discern the necessary attributes of sovereignty. The Indian States were neither independent nor sovereign but subject to the paramountcy of the British Crown. Sir William Lee Warner, the acknowledged authority on Indian States, in his work "The Native States of India, 1910" characterizes them as

www.vadaprativada.com

"semi-sovereign". There is no question that there was a paramount power in the British Crown, but perhaps it is better understood and not explained. The indivisibility of the sovereignty on which Austin insists, did not belong to the Indian system of sovereign States.

12. The degree of sovereignty exercised by the different rulers varied greatly as the areas under their dominion. The greater princes administered the internal affairs of their States with almost complete independence, having revenues and armies of their own, and the power of life and death over their subjects. At the other end of the scale were petty chiefs with a jurisdiction hardly higher than that of an ordinary magistrate and between these extremes lay much gradation. The authority of each ruler was determined by treaties or engagements with the British Government or by practice that had grown up in the course of their relations with British India. The paramount power was with the British Crown and it had never parted with any of its prerogatives. As Sir Henry Maine said:*

"There may be found in India every shade and variety of sovereignty, but there is only one independent sovereign, the British Government.... The mode or degree in which sovereignty is distributed between the British Government and any Native State is always a question of fact which has to be separately decided in each case, and to which no general rules apply."

3387. The concept of sovereignty, transfer of power, effect thereof as we know and understand in modern law in the light of the recent authorities whether actually as such was followed 500

years ago is difficult to answer. We have different texts of the past in respect to Hindu as well as Muslim law as to how a king/conqueror should behave and what ought to be the policy vis a vis the subject of conquered area, but these are all ideal situations. When someone from outside the territory attack and conquer and there is a change of authority/sovereignty. If the ideal situation is followed by him or observed, it is really appreciable but the conqueror is not always bound to follow those policies. The conquered territories subject have no authority, option or courage either in fact or in law or otherwise to raise voice against the conqueror. He is the sole paramount authority, can take and execute his decisions in the manner he like. After hundred of years it would not be safe for this Court to assume as to what ought or actually was done or followed by conqueror, in order to make an adjudication of dispute involving two different communities with different religious texts and practices. Whether Babar or Aurangzebe or anybody else was an ideal king observed laws of Shariyat etc. strictly, in an ideal manner, may be a matter of investigation and debate between historians, but neither such acts can be within the purview of judicial scrutiny of this Court nor we can decide the factual dispute on the presumption that he must have acted in a particular manner since the Shariyat laws say so. We have illustrations enough of ancient past as well as recent past showing that in such kind of wars or battles, the real casualty were/are the ideal policies contemplated and expected to be observed by warring groups or countries or sovereignties. If the Babar or Aurangzebe or anybody else decided to do something even if it was not consistent with the principles of law of

Shariyat, the same could not have been challenged at that time by the subject and today we are sure to lack any authority or jurisdiction to declare such an act of the then Ruler illegal or bad since their command was Supreme and beyond the pale of any scrutiny now and by this Court. Therefore, in our view, the question as to whether the building in dispute is a mosque, treated to be a mosque, believed to be a mosque and practiced as a mosque has to be decided not in terms of the tenets of Shariyat whether observed there or not but how the people believed, treated and behaved in the past long time.

3388. Sri Jain contended that Babar was an invader and not a king or Emperor. Sunni Board claimed Babar to be the owner of the site in his capacity as 'Emperor'; but he never became Emperor. Historians R.C. Majumdar, H.C. Raychaudhuri and Kalikinkar Datta in "An Advanced History of India", Fourth Edition 1978, published by Macmillan India Ltd., set out the facts at Pages 419 to 424. They mention, at Page 420:

> "But the Mughal conquest of Hindustan was not an accomplished fact as a result of Babar's victory over Ibrahim. It did not give him the virtual sovereignty over the country because there were other strong powers like the Afghan military chiefs and Rajputs under Rana Sanga who also then aspired for political supremacy and were thus sure to oppose him...The number of Afghan military chiefs (were a great obstacle) and each one of them exercised almost undisputed power within his dominion or Jagirs." At Page 423 they mention that Babar 'could effect nothing more than conquests which alone do not suffice to

stabilise an empire unless the work of administrative consolidation goes hand in hand with or immediately follows them'. They cite historian Erskine that "there was little uniformity in the political situation of the different parts of this vast empire. Hardly any law could be regarded as universal but that of the unrestrained power of the prince. Each kingdom, each province, each district and (we may almost say) every village, was governed in ordinary matters by its peculiar customs...There were no regular Courts of Law spread over the kingdom for the administration of justice." They mention that "after his conquest Babar had hardly any time to enact new laws or to reorganise the administration, which continued to retain its medieval feudal nature with all its defects.". It is significant that although Babar declared himself to be Ghazi (victor in holy war – Pages 573-4 of Beverige's Babarnama) he did not declare himself to be an Emperor, nor he got coronation as an Emperor. Indeed in the Inscription installed inside the DS by Mir Baqi, Babar is described only as King Babar (Shah Babar) not as Emperor Babar (Shah en Shah Babar). In this state of affairs, Babar could never become an Emperor."

www.vadaprativada.com

3389. We do not agree. The position of Babar, in our view, was that of independent sovereign, Sole Monarch, having paramount power. It was Supreme, uncontrollable and absolute, not answerable to anyone. Whether invader or anything else, the fact remains that he had been the supreme authority in the territory which he conquered. Nobody could have questioned him.

3390. Sri M.M. Pandey sought to argue that Historian Romila Thapar writes in 'A History of India' Vol.I (Pelican Books 1990, 13th Impression 2001), at Page 279 that the Temple had long been the centre of Hindu social life in the village, place where Hindus congregated; it 'was the Bank, the Landowner, the administrative centre for the village and place of major entertainment in the form of festivals'. Mentioning Katyayana (4th-5th Century AD – vide Mulla at page 14) on judicial process, Romila Thapar writes at page 154 that Judgments were based either on legal texts or social usage or edict of the King which could not contradict the legal text or Usage; at page 160, she writes Social Law based on man-made Tradition had already become the sacred law. That is why Temples were immune from influence of the King. Thus the temple existed at that time remain immune from Babar's authority.

3391. Page 28 of B.K. Mukherjea's authority mentions Yajnavalkya: 'Customary Law as well as Usages established by Kings should be carefully upheld, if not inconsistent with the revealed law'. Vijnaneswara commented upon this text as follows: Duties arising under any Custom, such as preservation of pastures for cow and of water and management of Temples (Devgriha) and the like should also be carefully observed without infringing the duties prescribed by Shrutis and Smritis. The same view finds expression in Shukra-Niti where the duty of protecting endowments has been spoken of as one of the primary duties of the King. Thus the duty of Kings to protect endowments rested on the basis of immemorial customs which were as sacred as written texts".

3392. In Appendix I (Summary of Pran Nath Saraswati's "Hindu Law of Endowments") at page 507, mention is made that "On conquest the Temples should be respected".

3393. At page 81 of "Yajnavalkyasmriti", translated by Manmatha Nath Dutt, published by Parimal Publications Delhi (1st Edn 2005), verse no.343 reads as follows: 'When a foreign kingdom is brought under subjection, he should observe the conduct, law and family practices obtaining in the same kingdom'.

3394. In D.F. Mulla's 'Principles of Hindu Law', Chapter II on Sources of Hindu Law, Text No. 3 mentions: "Whatever Customs, Practices and Family Usages prevail in a Country shall be preserved intact when it comes under subjection by (conquest)– Yajnavalkya I, 343".

3395. These citations relate to Hindu Dharmshastra. All these arguments could have some weight if it is shown that Babar or any of his successor was under an obligation to follow or observe Hindu religious texts. These principles are alright, when a dispute is between those who were obliged to follow those texts. Babar was not bound by those principles. If the subject continued to follow these principles, Babar or any Mughal Ruler was not obliged to act according to those principles, at least no authority to persuade us otherwise is shown.

3396. It is also tried to be submitted that in the revenue records of 1937 there is no marking in respect to the land in dispute as Kabristan or mosque and thus the disputed structure was never recognised as mosque.

3397. Exhibit 32 (Suit-1) (Register 5 page 123-125) is said to be a copy of the map (kistwar) of Mauza Rampur for 1344-45 Fasli (1937 AD). Learned counsels for the parties submit that in the plot in dispute in the aforesaid map there is no marking of any Kabristan or mosque, therefore, it cannot be said that there was any mosque known and treated to be as such in the revenue record as late as in 1937 AD.

3398. The disputed structure, after its construction, came to be known as a 'mosque' as is evident from the earliest documents available to us i.e. Tieffenthaler Travel Account published in 1786 etc. He, however, does not mention anything about worship on the place in dispute by Muslims and on the contrary did not fail to mention that Hindus in fact used to visit thereat and offer worship by lying prostrate on the ground and having three Parikramas. He also noticed presence of Vedi, which Hindus used to worship in the premises of the disputed site. It continued to be so recognized as also the worship by Hindus till the riots of 1855 took place. Though Sri Jilani and other learned counsels appearing for various Muslim parties vehemently disputed occurrence of any such riot but from the detailed narration, at different places, we find occurrence of riot and also creation of a partition wall in the premises, existence whereof is not disputed by Sri Jilani. We are satisfied about the occurrence of such riot and its consequence as are mentioned in various Gazetteers and also admitted by number of witnesses including those of plaintiffs (Suit-4). In this regard we have dealt with the matter while discussing the issues relating to 'place of birth'.

3399. For the present purpose, we may refer to facts given in a recent book. Exhibit 25 (Suit-5) (Register 22, Page 513-

531) is a photocopy containing frontispiece and pages no.227-234 of the book "A Clash of Culture, Audh, The British and the Mughals" by Michael H.Fisher (published in 1987 by Manohar Publications, New Delhi). It narrates the riots of 1855 and says:

> "The Fyzabad temple/mosque, a powerful but unalterably ambiguous and disputed religious symbol, provided the catalyst for a conflict of cultures. Each group living in Awadh held fast to its own values and world-vies and sought to impose that on the other. Since this particular conflict was insolvable, no group achieved a result satisfactory to itself.
>
> The building in question had been subject to dispute even before the arrival of Sa'adat Khan, the founder of the ruling dynasty in Awadh. Even today Hindus throughout Awadh assert that the building marks the site of the birth of Rama, the incarnation of great God Vishnu, whose identity remains so central to culture of the province. As such, its sanctity predates the Muslim presence in India. Muslims interviewed at the site counter that the Mughal Emperor Babur (1526-1530) had constructed a mosque there and thus consecrated the ground for Islam, thereby superceding any previous significance. Ambiguous in appearance, this building remains the object of a heated controversy which continues unresolved today. In fact, it generates intransigent and violent passion on both sides whenever it is raised.
>
> The incident which sparked the final crisis for the Awadh dynasty prior to annexation began in February

www.vadaprativada.com

1855, when a party of Sunnis under one Shah Ghulam Husayn tried to oust a group of Hindus who had taken possession of the disputed building. Religious conviction on both sides seems to have been the sole cause to this particular confrontation, only the most recent of a long history of Hindu-Muslim clashes on the spot. Despite the ardor of their attack, the Sunnis were repulsed by the defending Hindus.

Following this unsuccessful initial assault, the Sunni party renewed their efforts a few months later. They assembled a force of from four to six hundred Muslims, men described by British observers as Faqirs, at a mosque near the controversial spot. While the Muslims involved to this point were apparently individuals (sufis and faqirs) with little military training, the Hindu party escalated the conflict by gathering, besides a large number of bayragis (Hindu wandering ascetics), the support of several of the Hindu landholders of the area, including the family of Raja Bukhtawar Singh (discussed earlier in this chapter). British eyewitnesses- drawn to the site by rumors of the impending clash-estimated the total number of bayragis, Hindu landholders with their retainers, and miscellaneous supporters at some eight thousand. While the officers of the Awadh army and district administration looked on uninvolved, a battle ensued between the two sides. The Muslims later asserted guaranteed by the British. The Hindu party denied any truce. Heavily outnumbered, the Muslims seem to have left the bulk of the seventy to eighty dead found on the field following the fight.

So far, the conflict gives evidence only of the local tensions between the Muslim and Hindu communities, focussed on this powerful but ambiguous, religious symbol. The Hindu landholders sought to assert their authority in what they perceived to be an assault on the community they led. For many of these Hindu landholders who reverenced Ram as the model for their own kingship, the building marking the site of his birth was particularly powerful. For Muslims seriously dedicated to the tenets of their faith, the perceived desecration of a mosque by polytheists would have equal force. Further the magnitude of the casualty list in the encounter inflamed both communities and drew a number of hitherto uninvolved parties into the conflict.

Both the Awadh court and the district administration had strong interests in settling the conflict according to their own values. The ruler and his court apparently tended to support the Muslim side but, being Shi'i, felt little solidarity with the largely Sunni party of Shah Ghulam Husayn. The ruler instead worked to defuse the threat to order in the region. Further, the level of passion on both sides, however, demanded some response on his part. This conflict, indeed, became a test of his ability to rule Awadh effectively.

The district administration in the area was headed by a Shi'ite, Agha 'Ali Khan; most of the municipal administration of Fyzabad was also Shi'i. Like the Awadh ruler, they felt little identification with either Sunni faqirs or Hindu bayragis. They did, however, see the largely Hindu landholders as their rivals for local authority. They urged the Awadh court that "unless the Government interferes and gives orders for rebuilding the musjid (mosque) the Hindoos will become inflated and elated with their success and will proceed to other and greater extremities. . . ." The prestige of the administration was, in thier perception, threatened by the Hindu coalition's initial successes. In this way, the ongoing struggle for local control between the Shi'i dominated district administration and the Hindu landholders found voice in this conflict.

The Muslim religious establishments in Awadh, both Sunni and Shi'i, also entered the conflict. The leaders of the attacking Muslim party requested these authorities to issue fatwas, decreeing the official Muslim interpretation of the issues. The questions were carefully worded to make it an issue of the defense of Islam against polytheists and each of the fatwas decided against the Hindu party. The Mujtahid, recognized by the Awadh dynasty as the highest Shi'i interpreter of holy law, declared that the "wickedness" and "enormities" of infidels should be punished by the Muslim ruler. This was clearly unacceptable to the Hindus involved.

In order to achieve a negotiated solution, the Awadh ruler summoned the most prominent leader of the Muslim camp. Malawi Amir 'Ali, to his court. He further appointed a tripartite investigative commission, consisting of the district official. Agha 'Ali Khan, the leading Hindu landholder, Raja man Singh (nephew and heir of Raja Bukhtawar Singh), and the British officer in charge of Company troops in the area, the Oudh Frontier Force. This commission determined that no mosque had ever existed on the site, basing their judgement on the argument that no mosque would have been built so close to a Hindu temple. Neither the Sunnis encamped near the site nor the Muslim religious establishment accepted this judgement. The Mujtahid preached against Agha 'Ali Khan and his uncle, the local Tahsildar, asserting that they had taken bribes to decide in favor of the Hindus. Malawi Amir 'Ali gathered support while in Lucknow, notably from the Sunni scholars of Farangi Mahall, and then gathered his supporters for another march against the controversial building.

This effort to defuse the controversy having evidently failed, the Awadh ruler tried once again to find an acceptable solution. Wajid 'Ali Shah tried to set aside the commission's decision and refer the matter to the Mujtahid. The Resident vetoed this plan. Th ruler then suggested, as a compromise, that a mosque be built along an outer wall of the disputed building. The Hindu party seized upon the commission's decision and refused their compromise. The Muslim party seized upon the ruler's proposal as a commitment from his to build a mosque on the site. Both sides thus sought direct confrontation as the only solution.

So far, then, we can see how fundamentally opposing cultural values, focussed on this temple/mosque, have exposed the cleavages in the society of Awadh. The local Hindus and Muslims and the religious establishments disputed the cultural identity of a particularly symbolic building. The Hindu landholders and Shi'i district officials also perceived it as a test of local control between themselves. The Awadh ruler tried vainly to avoid any confrontation that would demonstrate a weakness on his part, while at the same time clearly retaining his court-centered view of the issue as peripheral to its main concerns.

To further legitimize his march against the Hindus as a holy war. Malawi Amir 'Ali declared a jihad and increased the scope of his appeal. Both propertied and landless Muslims entered his camp. The Begum of Bhopal state in central India was reported to have sent an elephant and sufficient funds for three hundred men. Nevertheless, few if any Shi'ites seem to have joined the march.

The Hindus at the disputed site and in proximity to the marcher's camp looked to the Awadh ruler for protection and to Hindu landholders for aid and support. The Hanuman Garhi, a Hindu fortress named for Rama's militant monkey lieutenant, which had been built on the occasion of an earlier conflict overlooking Rama's putative birthplace, was further strengthened. Financial and other aid was reported to have been received not only from numerous Hindu landholders in Awadh but from the Maharajas of Gwalior and Jodhpur states in western India as well. Thus, both sides drew upon prominent figures who shared their cultural values, both within Awadh and from elsewhere in India.

In addition to these forces aligned against each other, the Company also sought to use the confrontation for its own advantage. From the onset of the conflict, the Company favored the Hindu side, dismissing the faqirs as

www.vadaprativada.com

"fanatics" with little justification for their claims. When the commission-on which the Company had the deciding vote-ruled against the Muslims, the Resident exerted his influence on Wajid 'Ali Shah to force the ruler to subdue the faqirs. Further, the Resident suggested to the Governor General that this incident be manipulated to justify the Company's annexation of Awadh. He argued he ". . . .should retire from Lucknow to the Company's territories, and withdraw the brigade of British troops and formally declare the existing treaty at an end. . . ." The Resident felt certain that, suddenly deprived of his guiding presence and the major effective military force in the province at this crucial time, the Awadh administration would collapse and the province would beg for annexation.

The Governor General, while strongly favoring annexation and agreeing that the removal of Company support would precipitate a collapse of the Awadh administration, feared that the ensuing communal violence might spread to Company territory. Further, since the Court of Directors of the Company was currently considering his annexation proposal, he decided it would be impolitic to force their hand by this provocation. He therefore instructed the Resident to remain in Lucknow to continue to pressure the Padshah to destroy the faqirs, and to prevent the involvement of Company troops.

As the other parties prepared for the next round in the conflict, Wajid 'Ali Shah drew upon his position at the center of Awadh in order to control the situation. He summoned Malawi Amir 'Ali back to court and backed up his request with a royal warrant. He submitted his own carefully worded questions to the Mujtahid and various Sunni scholars leading them to issue fatwas stating that a jihad was not applicable in this case and that all people should obey the orders of their legitimate sovereign. Further, he sent Muslim leaders to preach to the marchers and dissuade them from violating his imperial decrees. Finally bolstered by the support of the Muslim religious establishment, he issued a proclamation proscribing all those pretending to jihad and ordering the confiscation of all property and the destruction of all houses belonging to Malawi Amir Ali's followers.

To enforce his position. Wajid 'Ali Shah called upon the Awadh army. He moved units into position to intercept the marchers should they move toward Fyzabad, from their main camp more than a hundred miles away. To reenforce the bonds between the largely Shi'i army and himself, he called officers of several of the units facing the marchers into his darbar-the first one held in a number of years-and awarded them Khil'ats.

In addition to the army, Wajid 'Ali Shah called upon landholders to demonstrate their loyalty to his reign. The Company predicted that the Muslim landholders would turn against hims and support the jihad. Some landholders simply repulsed Malawi Amir 'Ali's inducements to join him. Others, notably the Shi'i Raja of Mahmudabad, sent forces to support their ruler. This landholder sent a deputy with five hundred men and four cannons to co-operate with the army; another landholder, apparently also Shi'i, offered

the services of a like number of soldiers to his Padshah. None of the landholders seem to have acted against the orders of Wajid 'Ali Shah by giving support to the marchers.

The Padshah's authority having deprived the marchers of any outside support, Malawi Amir 'Ali appealed to the ruler. He "sent in his pugree (turban) to the King in token of submission and proferring his readiness to come in on a promise being given that the Mosque should hereafter be built. . . .(the King refused to give any such promise." Thus rebuffed, the Malawi led his men in the direction of Fyzabad and into the cannon of the Awadh army. The Awadh troops stood firm and nearly all the marchers were killed. British observers estimating their dead at between three and four hundred. The Awadh army suffered casualties of thirty-three per cent. Testimony to the resolution shown by both sides. Despite this decisive action, the controversy of the Fyzabad temple/mosque has never been finally settled.

This incident dramatically reveals the conflicting cultural identities present in Awadh. The Padshah, his administration and army, the local landholders, Hindu and Muslim, the people of the province, and the East India Company all perceived the issue from their own diverse perspectives. Despite the dire predictions of the Resident and the destabilizing motives of the Company, Wajid 'Ali Shah and his administration weathered the crisis and demonstrated their continued authority. Even the marchers recognized his sovereignty; their opposition to him sprang

from their higher commitment to Islamic truth as they perceived it. Thus, the two cultural worlds of the imperial court and the hinterland of Awadh continued to hold together, albeit tenuously and with friction, under Wajid 'Ali Shah." (Page 515-529)

3400. From the footnote it appears that the author has heavily relied and referred the contents of "Hadiqa-i Shuhda" by Mirza Jan published in 1855 itself, in respect whereto he has made following comments at footnote 71on page 228 of the book:

"Mirza Jan. Hadiqa-i Shuhda (no title page).pp. 10-12.15. This appears to have been an example of one of the "most inflamatory pamphlets on the Mussulman side. . . .being circulated throughout the country, notwithstanding the seizure of them wherever they can be found. . . ."decried by the Governor General. Private Letter of the Governor General, Coonoor, 6 October 1855, quoted in Baird. p. 357. Officiating Resident to Secretary to Government of India Foreign Department, 4 August 1855 FPC, 28 December 1855, No. 339."

3401. Suffice it to mention at this stage that a partition wall came into existence sometimes in 1856-57 as a result whereof the disputed structure was circumscribed by the said wall and the premises inside the partition wall, which we have termed as "inner courtyard". The area between the partition wall and the boundary wall we have termed as "outer courtyard" and that was allowed to be used by Hindus. Whether this arrangement was pursuant to any written agreement or any notification issued by the British authorities is not known. The only thing available is the partition wall and the local people's saying that it was done by the Britishers to calm down the two communities in respect to the property in dispute. The documents are on record commencing from 28th November, 1858 showing that this arrangement also, as a matter of fact, could not pacify the situation so far as Hindus are concerned, may be for the reason that according to their belief, it was place of birth of Lord Rama and therefore, they could not have acquiesced to a situation of not worshiping the place which they believed to be the birth place of Lord Rama. Evidently they felt unsatisfied by simply offering their worship at the religious structures existing in the outer courtyard. This interference and entry of Hindus in the inner courtyard is evident from the documents Exhibit 19 (Suit 1) (Register 5 Page 61-63) dated 28th November, 1858, Exhibit 20 (Suit-1) (Register 5 Page 65-68B) dated 30th November, 1858, Exhibit 31 (Suit-1) (Register 5 page 117-121) dated 05.11.1860, Exhibit 54 (Suit 4) (Register 12 Page 359) dated 12th March, 1861, Exhibit A-13 (Suit-1) (Register 6, page 173-177) dated 25.9.1866.

3402. Taking the advantage of the above partition, it also appears that two persons who were father and son i.e. Mir Rajjab Ali and Mohd. Asgar set up a claim of grant which was also accepted by the British Government and initially a cash grant of Rupee Three Hundred and two, three annas six pie was allowed and thereafter they were allowed the same revenue grant from village Bahoranpur and Sholapur but even that did not deter or prevent the Hindu people from entering the premises in dispute and offering their worship. The only evidence which may suggest that the Muslims also worshipped

in the premises in dispute and/or in the inner courtyard are:

(i) Application dated 5th November, 1860 filed before the Deputy Commissioner Fyzabad (Exhibit 31 (Suit-1) Register 5 page 117-121) by Mir Rajjab Ali complaining about the disturbance created during the course of Adhan (Azan).

(ii) P. Carnagy Historical Sketch where he has mentioned that earlier to the partition created by the Britishers, both the communities used to worship in the premises in dispute but in view of the riots of 1855, the premises was divided permitting Muslims to offer worship in the inner courtyard and Hindus in the outer courtyard and reiteration of this fact is found in subsequent Gazettes. A similar factual position has been reiterated in subsequent Gazetteer of Oudh by Mr. W.C. Benett, C.S., Assistant Commissioner (1877), Report on the settlement of the Land Revenue of the Fyzabad District, by A.F. Millett, C.S., Officiating Settlement Officer, published by North Western Provinces and Oudh Government press, Allahabad in 1880, Fyzabad-a Gazetteer being Vol. XLIII of the District Gazetteers of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh by H.R. Nevill published in 1905 etc., the contents whereof we have already quoted above at different places.

3403. Thereafter, till 1934, we do not get any evidence oral or written suggesting worship by Muslims in the premises in dispute whether inner courtyard or outer courtyard. But the counsel for the Muslim parties endeavored to persuade this Court to assume such worship considering the fact that the revenue earned by Mohd. Asgar and his successors was being spent regularly and detailed accounts were presented before the authorities concerned who also sometimes verified the same by visiting the disputed site. About 14 witnesses of fact i.e. PWs 1 to 9, 14, 21, 22, 23 and 25 have been produced to show that before 1949, Muslims were offering Namaz in the disputed building. Those evidence we have already discussed in detail about their trustworthiness. From the facts, one thing is very clear that the building was constructed, whosoever have built it, so as to give it a shape as a mosque. It was also known to the local people that the constructed structure was a mosque. Whether Muslims immediately thereafter could use it for offering worship or not has not been proved either way but we are satisfied that despite structure and knowing it a mosque, Hindus entered the same and offered their worship treating it a birthplace of lord Rama. May be subsequent, and there is some evidence [P Carnegy's HIstorical Sketch (supra)] that at times, Muslims were also visiting the premises in dispute to offer Namaz and after the partition wall was raised in 1856-57, worship confined to inner courtyard. Whether it could be offered regularly is a fact which could not have been proved but this much is clear that Namaz had been offered inside the building after 1857 and we have also recorded a finding that before its attachment, the last Namaz was offered in the inner courtyard on 16th December, 1949. The question whether the building in dispute could be a mosque as per the tenets of Shariyat loses its significance, in our view, for the reason that those who believe in a particular religion, if, under a belief, have worshipped, treating the place of a particular nature, and that belief is not of individual or only of their own, but even others (Hindus) have the same view, it would be outside the purview of judicial review to analyse and then say whether the structure constructed on such place was in accordance with the tenets of that religion or not.

3404. Lots of arguments have been advanced as to what could have been the concept of ownership in 16th Century or earlier or thereafter and what ought to have been the manner in which a mosque could have been constructed otherwise it may not be treated as mosque. The building in dispute was constructed at a time when neither the British codified law was applicable nor the Indian Constitution was there. It was a rule of solitary authority i.e. king whose words constitute the law. His command or mandate was supreme and none could have challenged it. At least nothing has been brought before us that such supreme power could have been over powered by anyone else. If he intentionally do something ignoring a particular system, no comments could have been made. But if he proceeds otherwise or with some deviation even then no comments, in our view, can be made after so many centuries by us. Whether Babar or Aurangzeb or anybody else, they were supreme authority. Whether their action was consistent with the tenets of Islam or not, in our view, is unchallengeable after so many centuries particularly when those supreme authorities were not subordinate to any system of justice. Even otherwise, we cannot examine as to whether they rightly or wrongly constructed a place terming it as mosque particularly when atleast the local people believe from the representation, whatever, it is, that construction which has been made, is that of a mosque.

3405. Something which took place more than 200 and odd years, we are clearly of the view, cannot be a subject matter of judicial scrutiny of this Court which is the creation of statute

that came into force in a system which itself was born after more than hundred and odd years when the building in dispute might have been constructed. All the Expert religious witnesses have admitted that if a mosque is constructed, the picture or images of living being like human images or animal images shall not be allowed to remain thereat. The creator of the building in dispute thought otherwise, yet the followers of Islam did not hesitate in using the premises for the purpose of Namaz. Whether the belief of such persons, who visited this premises for such worship, is superior or inferior, whether such offering of Namaz was regular or frequent or occasional and intermittent would be of no consequence. Suffice, if there had been Namaz by the Muslim. The offering of worship by Hindus knowing the building in dispute that it is a mosque is something else but on that basis the manner in which the building in dispute has been known for the last more than 250 years and odd cannot be changed. What ought to have been the ideal system of suzerainty or the system or policy of a king ought to have been according to Shariyat or Hindu Dharm Shastra etc. are all the issues which travel in the realm of pious wishes on the subject, but that cannot be a criteria to adjudicate the supreme authority of the erstwhile kings who were not subordinate to anyone except of the higher sovereign authority, if any.

3406. One of the document filed by the plaintiff Hindu parties, i.e., plaintiff (Suit-1) may be referred hereat which is about 140 years old. Exhibit 33 (Suit-1) (Register 5 page 127-129) is a copy of the order dated 26.08.1868 passed by Major J. Reed, Commissioner Faizabad against the order dated 25.06.1868 passed by Officiating Deputy Commissioner,

Faizabad in the case of Niyamat Ali and Mohd. Shah Vs. Gangadhar Shastri. The order is self speaking, dismissing the appeal, reads as under:

> "26.08.68. Since writing the foregoing Bande Ali Niamat Ali Ashraf Khan have appeared and their statements show that their grievance is that Ganga Dhar has encroached on the North-West corner of this Masjid building*. Now there are three maps with regard to the preparation of the last of which at all events special care was enjoined and these show that at this corner Ganga Dhar's house actually touched the wall of the masjid. The Mohammads urged that there was a second wall or pust beyond the wall of the building but though a "pust" is marked on another part of the map it is not noted here on the contrary the map shows clearly as already stated* that the house of Ganga Dhar touches the wall of the masjid and that nothing intervenes. Mr. Marray's personal examination shows that thereafter the measurements may be incorrect which is not creditable to the surveyer the maps are correct in this particular. And such being the case it is manifist that as held by Mr. Marrey no encroach could have taken place unless the wall of the masjid itself had been dug into. It is not alleged that this has been done. The Commissioner Simsons order of 27th Feb 1864 was that the Hindus should not encroach on the boundaries of the Mosque and Chabutra. No such encroachment has proved there is no reason to interfere. Appeal dismissed."

3407. This also shows that Hindu parties whenever contested a case, have throughout called it a mosque and there has not been any change to this stand atleast till 1950. It is also true that initially in 18th century Tieffenthaller may not have termed it as "Babari mosque" but later on in 19th century, in the second half, the people started calling it Babari Masjid or Babar's mosque or Babari mosque.

3408. The building in dispute, thus for the last more than 2 and half centuries and atleast about 200 years before the present dispute arose in 1950, has always been termed, called and known as a "mosque".

3409. In the absence of any material to show otherwise we are inclined to answer both the issues in positive. Issue no. 1 (Suit-4) is answered in favour of plaintiffs and issue no. 9 (Suit-5) is answered against the plaintiffs (Suit-5).

3410. Issues no. 1(B)(b), 19(d) and 19(e) can be taken together.

3411. As we have already discussed while dealing issue no. 6 (Suit-3) no material has been placed before us by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) and/or other Muslim parties to show that the property in dispute was ever dedicated by the wakif at any point of time in his life time. In fact, who the real Waqif is, not known. Even the successors at any point of time allowed/dedicated it, has not been shown. It is contended that the matter relates to an event of several centuries back, hence any direct or primary evidence showing dedication may not be possible. Relying on certain judicial precedents which we have already referred, it is contended if a building was constructed as a mosque, has been used by muslim people for offering a public Namaj, it is sufficient evidence to assume that there is a valid dedication of the building to Almighty God. Initially reliance was placed in entirety to the stone inscriptions and the contents thereof to show that the spirit thereof makes it inevitable to hold that the building in dispute was a "mosque" dedicated to "Almighty God" and to be used by muslim public for religious purposes. We have discussed the texts of the alleged inscriptions in detail above and it has been demonstrated that those inscriptions are wholly unreliable, appears to have been placed later on, and in the language of Historian and Archaeologists, such inscriptions which were placed later on the building, normally termed as fictitious one. Therefore, the inscriptions cannot help the plaintiffs on this aspect. They placed reliance on P. Carnegy's Historical Sketch (supra) where he has observed that till the British rule the building in dispute was being used by both the communities for religious purposes but in order to avoid dispute, on the start of British rule, a dividing wall was constructed permitting muslims to use building in dispute in the inner courtyard and the outer courtyard was allowed to be used by the Hindus. It is said that this also leads to the conclusion that the building in dispute was dedicated or stood dedicated to Almighty God.

3412. In our view the submission is not correct. Issue no. 1(B)(b) (Suit-4) is whether the building stood dedicated to Almighty God as alleged by the plaintiffs. The plaintiff's have not alleged the dedication of the building in dispute to Almighty God in the manner it is sought to be argued. As we have already discussed and held the earliest evidence of user of the building in dispute we find is by Hindus mentioned in the traveller's account of Tieffenthaller published in 1786. He visited Awadh area sometimes between 1766-1771 AD. We did not find any

user by the muslims of the disputed premises, atleast there is no mention of this fact. The first document which refers to the user of the building in dispute by the muslims is post 1857. Various authorities which refers to the principle of dedication by the user in the case of old matters are such where the user or non user of the alleged Islamic structure by non-Islamic people was not involved. Here is a case having a unique feature. The building in dispute though sought to be constructed as mosque, given the shape of mosque, but it was used by Hindu public continuously for offering worship therein. Within the premises itself there exist a number of Hindu religious structure, worshipped as mentioned in in the traveller's account of Tieffenthaler. i.e.. DESCRIPTION : HISTORIQUE ET GEOGRAPHIQUE : D E L' I N D E under the title "TOME 1. NOUVELLE EDITION. Contenant la Geographic de l'Ind-Uftan, avec. 39,. Planches" (Supra). Evidence of user by muslim is much later. Can it be said that in such a case, as and when the muslims started user of the building in dispute for Namaj, it shall be presumed that there is a dedication of the building or the dedication to Almighty God particularly when at that time also, besides, earlier and later worship by non-muslims in the same building continued unabated and uninterrupted. The plaintiffs (Suit-4) have not claimed dedication of the building in dispute to Almighty God in such circumstances and with these facts. Their claim is totally different in the plaint which has not been supported by cogent evidence.

3413. An incidental facet is whether Hindus could have allowed the building to be used by muslims if they were already using it for worship. The question is not whether it was

allowable or not but it is a fait accompli: typical, peculiar but then it is. We may consider its effect and consequences and not whether it was allowable or could not have been allowed. We, however, may not fail to refer a Verse 23, Chapter 9 from Srimadbhagwadgita where Lord Krishna says:

> ''येऽप्यन्यदेवता भक्ता यजन्ते श्रद्धयान्विताः।
> तेऽपि मामेव कौन्तेय यजन्त्यविधिपूर्वकम्।।
>
> हे अर्जुन! यद्यपि श्रद्धासे युक्त जो सकाम भक्त दूसरे देवताओं को पूजते हैं, वे भी मुझको ही पूजते हैं; किन्तु उनका वह पूजन अविधिपूर्वक अर्थात् अज्ञानपूर्वक है।।23।।''
>
> "Arjuna, even those devotees who, endowed with faith, worship or profess other Gods, with some interested motive, in fact they too worship Me alone, though not in accordance with rules, i.e., without proper knowledge."

3414. If one talk of existence of customs, traditions, practice etc., its recognition and protection under Article 25 of the Constitution, in our view, so far as inner courtyard is concerned, it applies to both the sides. If the Hindus are worshipping not only in the outer courtyard but in the inner courtyard of the premises in dispute from time immemorial and several centuries which has continued even after construction of the disputed structure, it is also there that the prayer by muslims atleast in the inner courtyard have also taken place, even if not in such regular and persistent manner as that of Hindus but in intermittent and disturbed manner for sufficiently long time of about 80 years and odd when the first suit was filed. The fact remains that it had continued, and, as we have already observed, the last prayer appears to have been observed on 16th December, 1949. It, therefore, constitutes customs and practice to both the sides. For Hindus, for several centuries but for Muslims almost

3415. What constitutes a custom has been considered time and again. Valid, ancient and unbroken practice obtaining from generation to generation in ascents is a custom and in the absence of any contrary statutory law can be treated to be a valid rule/law. In Shakuntalabai and another Vs. L.V. Kulkarni and another, 1989 (2) SCC 526 the Apex Court observed that in order to constitute valid custom under law it must be of immemorial existence, reasonable certain and continuous. The Court observed:

> "Every custom must have to be in existence preceding memory of man and if the proof was carried back as far as living memory would go, it should be presumed that the right claimed had existed from time of legal memory. This was reiterated in Mohammed Ibrahim v. Shaik Ibrahim, AIR 1922 P.C. 59. In Ramalakshmi Ammal v. Sivanantha Perumal Sethurayar, 14 M.I.A. 81 570, it was held that it was the essence of special usages modifying the ordinary law, (in that case of succession) that they should be ancient and invariable; it is further essential that they should be established to be so, by clear and unambiguous evidence and that it is only by means of such findings that the Courts can be assured of their existence and that they possess the conditions of antiquity and continuity and certainty on which alone their legal title to recognition depends. Custom must be proved and the burden of proof is on the person who asserts it." (para 19)

3416. The Apex Court also quoted the following verse of Ancient Hindu Law in para 18 of the judgement:

"18. Ancient Hindu law also said:

Tasmindeshe ya acarah paramparyakramagatah;

Varnanam santaralanam sa sadachara uchyate.

Practice that obtains from generation to generation among the pure and mixed classes is called sadachara."

3417. Besides, repair and maintenance of the building in dispute between 1860 to 1949 also appears to have been made by the muslims except of a riot case. Therefore, for them also irrespective of the fact whether a religious structure strictly in accordance with Islamic tenets came into existence or not, the fact remains that shouldering with their Hindu brethren, in the inner courtyard of the disputed site, for sufficiently long time, muslims also offered Namaj. This would fall within the term "custom", benefit whereof is being claimed by Hindus also and in our view shall extend to Muslims also.

3418. Looking from this context, though it cannot be said that the building in dispute has never been used by the muslims but then that would not attract the doctrine of dedication by user to be applied to this particular case. All the authorities which we have referred and discussed as cited by the parties, also do not consider a case where the same building and the same premises was being used by the muslims and Hindus alike for offering worships according to their religious tenets pursuant to their religious faith and belief though largely by Hindus and to a lesser extent by Muslims.

3419. Islamic tenets clearly bar two religions at the same place. Meaning thereby the Islamic tenets prohibit non Islamic worship at a place meant for worship by muslim people. But that is not so under Hindu Dharmshastras. Atleast nothing has been shown to us. Something which is prohibited by Islam, said contrary thereto, an Islamic religious structure cannot be said to vests in Almighty God. Various religious expert witnesses produced by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) also admit this position that anything which is contrary to Islamic tenets cannot be accepted by Almighty God. Though religious experts we need not to refer for determining the principle of concerned religion but here they are the witnesses of the plaintiffs and, therefore, their statement atleast would bind the plaintiffs as it would amount to admission made by the plaintiffs.

3420. There is no law that as soon as the building is constructed it stands dedicated to Almighty God but the settler can always claim that it is not for particular purpose etc.

3421. In Garib Das and others Vs. Munshi Adbul Hamid and others, AIR 1970 SC 1035 the Court said:

www.vadaprativada.com

> "8. . . . . the law seems to be clear that a wakf inter vivos is completed by a mere declaration of endowment by the owner. According to Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, 16th Edition, page 178, Article 186, this view had been adopted by the High Courts of Calcutta, Rangoon, Patna, Lahore, Madras, Bomday, Oudh Chief Court and recently by the Allahabad High Court and the Nagpur High Court. Further, the founder of a wakf may constitute himself the first mutawalli and when the founder and the mutawalli are the same person, no transfer of physical possession is necessary. Nor it is necessary that the property should be transferred from the name of the donor as owner into his name as mutawalli. An apparent transaction must be presumed to be real and the onus of proving the contrary is on the person alleging that the wakf was not intended to be acted upon."

www.vadaprativada.com

"9. It is also settled law that the settlor and those claiming under him are not precluded from showing that no wakf had been created and that the deed was not intended to operate as a wakf but was illusory and fictitious. This is a question of intention evidenced by facts and circumstances showing that it was not to be acted upon. For the purpose of such enquiry subsequent conduct, if it is merely a continuation of conduct at the time of execution, is irrelevant."

3422. In Jamal Uddin and another Vs. Mosque at Mashakganj and others, AIR 1973 Allahabad 328 the court in para 27 said:

www.vadaprativada.com

"27. The trial Court has however fallen in a legal error in holding by relying on the Full Bench decision of this Court in Mohd. Yasin Vs. Rahmat Ilahi, 1947 All LJ 85=(AIR 1947 All 201) (FB), that in this case it was not necessary for the wakif to deliver possession to the mutawalli at the time of making the alleged oral wakf. That decision applied only to the wakf made by a Hanafi Muslim. In the present case Nasir Husain was admittedly a Shia. In the case of wakf made by a Shia Muslim delivery of possession is necessary as laid down in Sec. 186 of the Mulla's Mahomedan Law, Sixteenth Edition at page 180. The Privy Council also held in Ali Zamin Vs. Akbar Ali Khan, 167 Ind Cas 884 = (AIR 1937 PC 127) that under Shia Law actual delivery of possession by or by direction of the wakif is a condition precedent to the wakf having

Again, in Abadi Begum Vs. Bibi Kania Zainab, 99 Ind Cas 669=(AIR 1927 PC 2) the Privy Council held that for the creation of a valid wakf under Muhammadan Law, at any rate among the shias*, it is* necessary that there must be delivery of possession of the thing dedicated. If the wakif constitutes himself as the first Mutawalli he must change the nature of his possession. In a case like the present one, where there is no document executed by the wakif at the time of making of the alleged wakf it is necessary that cogent evidence should be produced that he had delivered possession to the Mutawalli. An obvious method of doing so is to get the property in dispute recorded in the name of the wakf in the records maintained by the municipal board. It is an admitted fact that in the present case the land in dispute was not got recorded in the name of the mosque in the records maintained by the Municipal Board."

3423. The concept of Wakf has been considered at length in Syed Mohd. Salie Labbai Vs. Mohd. Hanifa AIR 1976 SC 1569, wherein the Court held:

"once the founder dedicates the site for the purpose of building a mosque and prayers are offered in the mosque the site and the mosque become wakf properties and the ownership of the founder is completely extinguished. Under the Mahomedan Law no Muslim can be denied the right to offer prayers in a mosque to whatever section or creed he may belong. ... Once the founder dedicates a particular property for the purpose of a public mosque, the

Mahomedan Law does not permit any one from stopping the Mahomedan public from offering prayers and reciting Koran etc. .... The word "wakf" means detention or appropriation. According to the well recognized Hanafi School of Mahomedan Law when a Mahomedan dedicates his property for objects of charity or to God, he completely parts with the corpus which vests in God and never returns to the founder. Mahomedan Law contemplates two kinds of Wakfs-a wakf which is private in nature where although the ultimate object is public charity or God, but the property vests in a set of beneficiaries chosen by the founder who appoints a Mutawalli to manage the wakf property. We are, however, not concerned with private wakfs which are normally known as wakf-alal-aulad. We are concerned with public wakf i.e. dedication made for the purpose of public charity e.g. an Imam-Bada, a mosque, a Serai and the like. So far as the dedication to a mosque is concerned, it is governed by special rules and special equity in the light of which a particular dedication has to be determined. A mosque is obviously a place where the Muslims offer their prayers. It is well-known that there are certain formalities which have to be observed by the Muslims before they observe the prayers. These formalities are-

(i) Wazoo i.e. washing of hands and feet in a manner prescribed by Shariat:

(ii) the recitation of "Azaah" and "Ikamat" which is usually done by the Pesh Imam or the Muayzin;

(iii) there must be a person who possesses virtuous qualities and a knowledge of Koran and other

www.vadaprativada.com

religious rites who should lead the prayers.

This is necessary in case of prayers offered in congregation. ...the moment a person is allowed to offer his prayers in a mosque, the mosque becomes dedicated to the public. .... All that is necessary is that there should be a declaration of the intention to dedicate either expressly or impliedly and a divestment of his interest in the property by the owner followed by delivery of possession. .....

It would thus appear that in order to create a valid dedication of a public nature, the following conditions must be satisfied:

(1) that the founder must declare his intention to dedicate a property for the purpose of a mosque. No particular form of declaration is necessary. The declaration can be presumed from the conduct of the founder either express or implied;

(2) that the founder must divest himself completely from the ownership of the property, the divestment can be inferred from the fact that he had delivered possession to the Mutawalli or an Imam of the mosque. Even if there is no actual delivery of possession the mere fact that members of the Mahomedan public are permitted to offer prayers with azan and ikamat, the wakf is complete and irrevocable; and

(3) that the founder must make some sort of a separate entrance to the mosque which may be used by the public to enter the mosque.

As regards the adjuncts the law is that where a mosque is

built or dedicated for the public if any additions or alterations, either structural or otherwise, are made which are incidental to the offering of prayers or for other religious purposes, those constructions would be deemed to be accretions to the mosque and the entire thing will form one single unit so as to be Attention:

part of the mosque."

3424. In Nawab Zain Yar Jung and others Vs. Director of Endowments and another AIR 1963 SC 985, a Constitution Bench of the Apex Court found that there is a dispute between a trust; public, religious or charitable and a waqf under the law of Islam. The Court quoted with approval the following from the decision of the Privy Council in Vidya Varuthi Thirtha (Supra):

"it is to be remembered that a "trust" in the sense in which the expression is used in English law, is unknown to the Hindu system, pure and simple. Hindu piety found expression in gifts to ideals and images consecrated and installed in temples, to religious institutions of every kind, and for all purposes considered meritorious in the Hindu social and religious system; to Brahmins, Goswamis, Sanyasis, etc..... When the gift is directly to an idol or a temple, the seisin to complete the gift is necessarily effected by human agency. Called by whatever name, he is only the manager or custodian of the idol or the institution.....In no case is the property conveyed to or vested in him, nor is he a trustee in the English sense of the term, although in view of the obligations and duties resting on him, he is answerable as a trustee in the general sense for mal-

administration."

"the Mohammadan laws owes its origin to a rule laid down by the Prophet of Islam; and means "the tying up of property in the ownership of God the Almighty and the devotion of the profits for the benefit of human beings." As a result of the creation of a wakf, the right of wakif is extinguished and the ownership is transferred to the Almighty. The manager of the wakf is the mutawalli, the governor, superintendent, or curator. But in that capacity, he has no right in the property belonging to wakf; the property is not vested in him and he is not a trustee in the legal sense."

3425. As we have seen in Syed Mohd. Salie Labbai Vs. Mohd. Hanifa (supra) the Apex Court said that dedication to a mosque is governed by special rules.

3426. Besides, the dedication by founder as contemplated by Apex Court and noticed in Syed Mohd. Salie Labbai Vs. Mohd. Hanifa (supra) could not have been proved by the plaintiffs at all. We may also refer to Nawab Zain Yar Jung (supra) where it is observed that Mohammedan Law owes its origin to a rule laid down by Prophet of Islam, meaning thereby outsiders, the question of creation of waqf or mosque etc. would not arise. The building may remain a building, a structure, but would form a religious structure only when it is made in accordance with the religious tenets.

3427. In Ballabh Das & another Vs. Nur Mohammad & another AIR 1936 PC 83, regarding the entry with respect to nature of disputed premises contained in Khasra of 1868, the Court observed that where khasra itself is the instrument which confers or embodies the right and there is no other document which create title, the khasra and the map are not merely historical materials, but are instruments of title or otherwise direct foundation of rights.

3428. The above discussion would be relevant where in a property dispute such issues are of utmost importance and its religious nature is in doubt amongst the members of the same community. But where the religious structure of a particular nature is treated, believed and practised as that of a religious nature and worship is also offered since a very long time, the question whether there is a dedication of the building to almighty or not, in our view, would be wholly irrelevant. According to the own beliefs, Hindu worship the building in dispute in the inner courtyard treating that there exist Supreme Being since the Lord of Lords manifested thereat in the human form and it is his birthplace, while Muslims on the contrary, treating it a Mosque have been visiting there and offering Namaz from time to time. Then whether the Muslims' belief was in accordance with the tenets of Shariyat or not, in our view, cannot be questioned by Hindus since it is again a question of faith and belief and once it is continuing for a long time from generations to generations, then after long time such a dispute cannot be raised. We have pointed out and reiterate hereat also that upto 1950, it was never doubted that the building in dispute was a Mosque and was constructed as an attempt to desecrate one of the most pious, sacred and revered place of specific and peculiar nature, i.e., the birthplace of Lord Rama which could not be at any other place and that the Muslims also believing that the same being a Mosque, had been offering Namaz thereat

from time to time. Even a third party, i.e., the Britishers never doubted on the nature of the building and all the documents unequivocally have used the word 'Mosque' for the building in dispute at least upto 1950 when the said suit was filed. In these facts and state of affairs, to answer a question at this fag end whether there was a dedication to almighty or not, in our view, is a wholly irrelevant question and, therefore, it need not to be answsered.

3429. Considering the peculiar special facts of this case as also the law discussed above and the facts and evidence we leave Issue No. 1(B) (b) (Suit-4) unanswered being irrelevant.

3430. Issues no. 19(d) and 19(e) (Suit-4) relates to the validity of the building in question as mosque on the basis of the attending characteristics, for example existence of minarats or graveyards surrounding the building on three sides. Though it is true that recitation of Azan has been held to be a necessary formality for a public prayer in a mosque dedicated to waqf, it is not shown to us by learned counsels for the defendants placing any religious Islamic texts, if the minarats are not constructed, the building would not be a mosque under the law of Shariyat. An attempt was made to place before us certain documents wherein the characteristics of mosque in general are mentioned but those documents having not been proved and marked as exhibit, we are then unable to look into those documents. The only document which throw some light on the construction of mosque is Exhibit 68 (Suit-5) (Register 31 Page 163-177) which is a photocopy of frontispiece and pages no. 1 to 5 Chapter I "Introduction" and two photographs from the book "Indian Architecture (Islamic Period)" by Percy Brown

published by D.B. Taraporevala Sons & Co. Private Ltd. The relevant extract thereof reads as under:

"Unlike the architecture of the Hindus, which, as may be seen was confined almost entirely to temples, Mohammedan architecture in India is represented by many different types of building, which however may be referred to the two conventional divisions of (a) Religious and (b) Secular. Those of a religious nature consist of two kinds only-- the mosque and the tomb. On the other hand the secular buildings are of a miscellaneous order, as among them may be include those intended for public and civic purposes, such as houses, pavilions, town-gates,wells, gardens, etc., besides the large imperial schemes of palace-forts and even entire cities.

Taking the religious structures first, the mosque, or Masjid, literally "the place of prostration" as already shown, is not only the all-important building of the Faith, but it is also the key-note of the style. Derived originally from the somewhat humble dwelling of the founder of the creed at Medina in Arabia, traces of the shape of this domestic habitation are still to be detected in the developed mosque-scheme, as it is basically an open courtyard surrounded by a pillared verandah, in a work an elaboration and enlargement of an Arab's house. With the early followers of the religion everything was done according to suna or practice, tradition being regarded as sacred, sometimes carrying more force than the guiding light of reason. The original intention was to provide no specific structure for devotional purposes, as prayer could be performed in the open air with nothing between the devotee and his God. But those concerned had not calculated on the natural craving of mankind for an enclosed building in which worship could be conducted in an appropriate environment, away from the distractions of everyday life, and it was not long before a house of prayer came into being. This began with a rectangular open space or sahn, the four sides being enclosed by pillared cloisters or liwans, with a fountain or tank in the centre for ablutions, a ceremony described as "the half of faith and the key of prayer." To meet the demand for some focal point in the scheme, the cloisters on the Mecca side (in India on the west) of the courtyard were expanded and elaborated into a pillared hall or sanctuary, with a wall at the back containing a recess or alcove called a mihrab indicating the qibla or direction for prayer. On the right side of the mihrab stands the mimbar or pulpit, while a portion of the sanctuary is screened off into a compartment for women. An elevated platform from which the muezzin summons the faithful to prayer is also a necessity, and usually takes the form of a high tower or minaret. (Plate I.) In almost every city and large town, there is one mosque known as the Jamma Masjid (Al-Masjidu'l Jami, lit, "the Collecting Mosque"). This designation is given to the principal or congregational mosque in which the Faithful assemble for the Friday (Jum'ah) prayer.

Above are the main elements comprising the mosque structure, and it was soon found that to combine these traditional requirements into a well-balanced whole was not to be readily accomplished. Porticos similar entrance hall could be added to the exterior, but the treatment of the interior with its outstanding essential of a large open space, remained a problem. Obviously the sanctuary where was enshrined the mihrab, or symbol of "direction" of the Faith was the most significant portion, and this was eventually developed into the principal architectural feature, with the courtyard and its cloisters leading up to it. To produce the necessary structural effect of a house of prayer two important elements were imposed on to the exterior of the sanctuary, on the one hand a screen was thrown across its front to form a facade, and on the other, above the central space or nave corresponding to the "high place" of the Christian church, a dome was raised. It was in the task of co-ordinating these two dominating features, the facade and the dome, so as to form a unified architectural composition, that difficulties were encountered, and in fact were never entirely overcome by the Indian builders. For nearly every phase of mosque architecture in India illustrates in the front elevation a conflict between these two essential constituents of the conception, and the efforts made to bring about an agreement. As a rule, the view of the central dome over the nave is obstructed by the parapet crowning the facade which rises up in front, although this combination is sometimes not unpleasing as seen from the side or back of the building. The cause of this lack of coherence in the elevational aspect of the Indian mosque has been attributed to the immature design of the earliest examples, such as the

Qutb at Delhi, and the Arhai-din-jhompra at Ajmir, the defects of which, owing to the force of tradition, were repeated, although in a lesser degree, in many of the subsequent buildings. In the mosques of Gujrat and of the south-west the design of the Ajmir frontage undoubtedly shows its influence, but the inconsistency here referred to appears to have an older origin, as it is inherent in the eastern type of mosque, beginning as early as in that raised by the Arabs at Samarra near Baghdad in the first half of the nigh century.

The other class or building of a religious order, the tomb, introduced into the country an entirely new kind of structure, as hitherto it had been custom of the people of India to raise no sepulchre to mark the resting place of the dead, their ashes being carried away on the broad bosom of the sacred rivers. Even with the Mohammedans the tomb-structure in the initial stages of the creed evolved slowly owing to all such memorials being prohibited. 1 It is of no little psychological significance that a movement which began with restrictions against all forms of monumental art should eventually produce some of the most superb examples. Only the pyramids of the Pharoahs, and a few other funerary monuments, such as that raised in memory of Kind Mausoleus at Halicarnassus in Asia Minor, have excelled in size and architectural splendour the Islamic tombs of India. Many of these noble piles consist of an imposing composition of vaulted halls and towering domes, and enclosed within a spacious garden, all on a grand scale, yet enshrining in the centre a mere handful of dust, laid in a plain mound of earth to be seen in the mortuary chamber below. (Plate LII). In the course of time, the tomb-building, especially in northern India, introduced itself into the landscape, much of the finest Indo-Islamic architecture being expressed in these structures. The tomb (Qabristan), usually consists of a single compartment or tomb-chamber, known as 'huzrah or estanah' in the centre of which is the cenotaph or zarih, the whole structure being roofed over by a dome. In the ground underneath this building, resembling a crypt, is the mortuary chamber called the 'maqbarah or takhana' with the grave or qabr in the middle. In the western wall of the tomb-chamber there is generally a mihrab, but some of the larger mausoleums also include a mosque as a separate building, the whole being contained within one enclosure, called a rauza, after the garden (ar-rauza) at Medinah in which is enshrined the Prophet's Tomb. Occasionally important tombs are designated dargahs, a word of Persian extraction signifying a court or palace.

In contrast to the religious architecture those buildings of a secular character, as already indicated comprise a large series of a kind so varied that no definite classification is possible, and they will therefore be dealt with either individually or in groups according to their position or purpose.

During the rule of the Mohammedans, architecture in India passed through three different and more or less successive experience. The first of these prevailed for only a limited period, but it was one of desecration and destruction inspired by the first white head of fanatical zeal. "It was the custom," relates a contemporary chronicler, "after the conquest of every fort and stronghold to ground its foundations and pillars to powder under the feet of fierce and gigantic elephants." In a like manner a large number of fortified towns were demolished, while temples and similar structures were included in the spoliation. This purely destructive phase was followed by a second one, in which the buildings were not ruthlessly shattered, but were purposely dismantled and the parts removed, to supply ready-made material for the mosques and tombs of the conquerors. The historian quoted above mentions that much of the demolition was effected by elephant power, these animals being employed to push the beams and pillars out of position, gather them up, and carry them to their new situation, much as they now stack timber, or haul teak wood logs for commercial purposes. It was during this phase that the temple buildings suffered most, as whenever any fresh territory was annexed, and the fouding of a capital city contemplated, these structures became the quarries from which supplies of cut stone were extracted. This accounts for considerable areas in Upper India being almost entirely denuded of any records of Hindu architecture, notably around such early Islamic centres as Delhi and Ajmir. The spoils of these temples, however, had to be supplemented in places by a certain amount of new and original masonry, as may be seen in mosques of the early type, so that the materials were obtained from two sources and, as tersely described by the

chronicler- "the stones were dug out from the hills, and the temples of the infidels were demolished to furnish a supply." Finally, there was the third phase, when the Moslems having become firmly established in various parts of the country, found themselves in a position to plan and create building compositions constructed of masonry, not re-conditioned, but each stone prepared specially for its purpose. It was in these latter circumstances that Islamic architecture in India arrived and its true character and achieved its greatest splendour.

For the purpose of study, the architecture thus produced may be resolved into three main divisions, (I) the Delhi or Imperial, (2) the Provincial, and (3) the Mughul. The first of these divisions has hitherto generally been known as "Pathan," but not all those dynasties under which this type of architecture prevailed, can be so designated. Two of them were of Turkish extraction, one was Khalji, and one was of Arab descent. The architecture evolved under these dynasties was that associated mainly with their rule at Delhi, the capital city and centre of the imperial power. For, just as Rome had "classic" art of the capital city, differing greatly from that of the provinces, so the seat of the administration in Moslem India had its own form of architectural expression, which, although subject to variations and developments, never really lost its distinctive and imperial character. Beginning at the close of the twelfth century, on the establishment of Islamic rule at Delhi, this imperial style continued for nearly four centuries, when, in the middle of the sixteenth century it was succeeded by that of the Mughuls. The second of these styles, the Provincial, refers to those modes of building practised in some of the more self-contained portions of the country, usually after their governors had thrown off the allegiance to Delhi, when they proceeded to develop a form of architecture in accordance with their own individual ideals. What may be termed the "pivotal year" of this movement was A.D. 1400, when the central power at Delhi had been broken by the invasion of Timur (Tamerlane), and its original prestige declined from that date. It will be understood that these provincial manifestations of the building art in most instances prevailed for a period partly contemporary with that maintained by the central power at Delhi, and partly with that of the Mughuls, until the later brought the whole of India under their rule. The third style, the Mughul, was the latest and ripest form of Indo-Islamic architecture, which, emerging after the middle of the sixteenth century continued to flourish until the eighteenth century, by which time the empire founded by the descendents of the Timurids, the "Great Mughuls," had begun to approach its end." 3431. Similarly though public prayer for religious purposes at graveyard is not permitted but it is not shown to us that a building would not be construed as a mosque if it is surrounded on three sides by graveyards.

3432. For the purpose of public namaz, Adhan (Ajan) is necessary but we have not been shown that a mosque, if constructed without having a 'Minar', that would not be a mosque and against the tenets of Shariyat. Similarly, namaz before graves is not permitted except for limited purpose but it is not shown to us that a mosque cannot be constructed or if constructed, may subsequently lose its status of a mosque if in a vicinity thereof there exist graveyard or the same are made later on.

3433. We, therefore, are of the view that the defendants have failed to prove issues 19(d) and 19(e) and therefore, both the issues i.e. Issues No.19(d) and 19(e) (Suit-4) are answered in favour of the plaintiffs.

3434. Issue No.19(f) is in two parts. Firstly; whether the pillars inside and outside the building in question contain images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses? If the finding is in affirmative, then it has to be seen whether on that account the building in question cannot have the character of Mosque under the tenets of Islam?

3435. There are three sets of albums which contain photographs taken by the State Archaeological Department pursuant to order dated 10.01.1990 passed by this Court. Dr. Rakesh Tiwari, OPW-14 was Director of State Archaeological Department who deposed statement as OPW 14 and verified all these photographs. One album which the learned counsel for the parties have termed as "Album of Coloured Photographs" contain 204 photographs and has been marked as Paper No.200C1/1-204. The second one contains 111 photographs which are black & while and the parties counsels have commonly call it "The Album of Black & White Photographs" and it is Paper No.201C1/1-111. The relevant photographs of these pillars in the coloured album are Paper No.200C1/48, 200C1/50, 200C1/51, 200C1/52, 200C1/54, 200C1/87, Similarly, in the album of Black & White, photographs, the relevant one of concerning pillars are 201C1/55, 201C1/57, 201C1/76, 201C1/88, 201C1/91, 201C1/103, 201C1/104 and 201C1/106. All these photos are being appended collectively as Appendix 5 (A) to 5 (DD) to this judgment.

3436. We ourselves have perused all these photographs and apparently it appears from some of them that there were some images which have been tried to be erased or damaged so that it may not be identifiable or may stand removed. To the portion, where such images appears to be an attempt by external forces to desecrate the same is quite evident. We are not expert in this branch of archaeology but something which is otherwise apparent, we have mentioned. A lot of witnesses including those experts of various parties were also confronted with the same and their statement would also be of corroborative nature and therefore would be relevant. The photographs of the black kasauti pillars were seen and in respect to images therein, if any, PW 3, the plaintiff's own witness, said:

3440. With regard to the study of symbols found on a deity discovered PW 16 Prof Suraj Bhan has stated at page 410 as under:

''आर्कियोलाजी में मूर्तियों के पाये जाने के आधार पर इन चिन्हों का अध्ययन किया जाता है। परन्तु इन पर विशेष रिसर्च करने वाले विद्वानों ने इनके धार्मिक ग्रन्थों का अध्ययन भी किया है।'' (पेज 409–410)

"This fact which I have written in my book that these images which were on disputed site, all were Non-Islamic" (E.T.C.)

3442. PW 18 Suvira Jaiswal at pages 40-41 has said as under:

''गवाह का ध्यान पी.डब्लू.76 श्री सूरजभान के बयान की ओर पृष्ठ संख्या–69 के चित्र संख्या–55 में दिए गए वर्णन की ओर दिलाया जिसमें उन्होंने यह कहा है कि उक्त खंभे की आयु नवीं सदी से लेकर 11वीं 12 वी सदी के बीच की होगी। ऐसा उन्होंने कहा है तो मैं उनके मत को मानूंगी। यदि उन्होंने कहा है कि खंभे पर घ ाटपल्लव बना है और ऊपर एक व्यक्ति का चित्र बना है तो सही होगा।''(पेज 40–41)

''Attention of the witness was drawn towards page 69 of the statement of PW 76 Surajbhan, containing description pertaining to photograph no. 55, wherein he has stated that the age of the aforesaid pillar would have been between 9th century to 11-12th century. If he has said so, I will agree with him. If he has said that on the pillar. pitcher-leaf (Ghatpallav) and thereupon a picture of a man, were drawn, it might be true. '' (E.T.C.)

3443. In view of the above, we have no hesitation in observing that the pillars fixed inside and outside the building in dispute contain some human images and at some places there appears to be some images of Hindu Gods and Goddesses.

3444. Now, the question is, what would be its impact on the building in question regarding its character as mosque under the tenets of Islam.

3445. So far as the tenets of Islam are concerned, it is very clear that the human or animal images which is at a place where namaz is to be offered cannot be allowed. The sole purpose of a mosque in Islam is to offer public namaz and nothing else. Though we are strengthened on this aspect from the Shariyat text, the relevant part whereof we have already quoted, but we may point out that almost all the five witnesses of plaintiffs (Suit-4) whom they claimed to be the Experts in Islamic religious matters have unhesitantly said that nobody will allow any image of human being or animal in a mosque. Therefore, under the tenets of Islam, if a place has a permanent structure, which contains human or animal images, it would not be a fit place for offering namaz since namaz if any offered at such a place, shall stand waste (the witnesses say that ''मकरुह हो जाएगी'').

3446. The above position in law, however, whether would make any impact on the factual situation in this matter is the most important aspect to be seen. As we have already discussed above, despite existence of all these pillars in the building in dispute, the Muslim people not only believed and treated the building in dispute to be a Mosque but as and when visited and offered public Namaz thereat. This has continued at least for more than 80 years till the time when order of attachment was passed on 29th December 1949. Once the people, who are believer of a particular practice and worship, according to its tenets have believed in the status of a particular thing in a particular manner, is it open to a third party to contend after a long time that the thing was not in accordance with the tenets of religion and whatever worship etc. they have offered is of no

use. This situation, it appears, has not come across in other cases, particularly a situation where two communities are using the same premises for their religious prayers. In these facts and circumstances, peculiar and particular to this case, we are of the view that the second part of this question becomes redundant and, hence, need not be answered.

3447. We, therefore, hold that despite existence of certain images on some of the pillars, inside and outside the building in question of Hindu Gods and Goddesses, the character of the building in dispute as a matter of fact would remain unaffected. Issue 19(f) (Suit-4) is answered accordingly, i.e., in favour of the plaintiffs (Suit-4).

3448. Now remains Issue No. 1-B (c) (Suit-4). We have already held that the building in dispute, i.e., disputed structure in the inner courtyard had been continuously used by Hindus for worship pursuant to their belief that the site in dispute is the birthplace of Lord Rama and in this regard, we find recorded evidence at least from the second half of 18th century but regarding the user of the aforesaid premises by Muslims, no evidence has been placed to show anything till at least 1860. After considering the evidence and whatever material the learned counsel for the parties could place before us, we have recorded a finding that both the parties used the disputed structure and the premises within the inner courtyard despite the partition wall raised by the Britishers sometimes in 1856-57. The discussion and finding, which we have already recorded while discussing the issues relating to limitation and possession/adverse possession, in view thereof, we find no hesitation in holding that the members of both the communities i.e. Hindu and Muslim had been visiting the building in dispute in the inner courtyard. Regarding the visit of Hindus, the evidence which we have, commences from the second half of 18th century i.e. from the Tieffnthaller travels account and so far as the muslims are concerned, such evidence is available since 1860, the issue is answered accordingly. Since both the parties have been using the building in dispute in accordance with their system of worship, belief and faith, both continuing for last more than eighty years before filing of the first suit i.e. Suit-1 and therefore, it can be said that the premises within the inner courtyard and the building in dispute were not restricted for user of any one community. The issue in question is answered accordingly.

Namaz was offered over there till 16.12.1949 AD and till that time there was no idol over there. However, if any person has secretly and malafidely placed any idol inside the mosque after the said date, then, it is blatant dishonor and disrespect of the mosque and the aforesaid attempt is legally an offence (मुजरिमाना) and if the plaintiff or any other person desires to enter the said mosque with the intention of offering prayer to any idol, then he is guilty (मुतीकेब) of an offence. 3459. In replication, the plaintiffs (Suit-3) in para 28 and 32 said as under:

"28. The contents of para 28 of the written statement are totally wrong and are scandalous. The only temple built on the sacred place of the birth of Lord Ram Chandra is the Janma Bhumi temple in suit. There is no temple known as temple Janma Asthan as suggested by the defendants built on the place of birth of Lord Ram Chandra. The temple of Janma Asthan which is situate to the north of the temple of Janma Bhumi in suit is a separate temple which is not at all connected with the place of birth of Lord Ram Chandra. The defendants seem to exploit the name of the said temple

to create a confusion regarding the real place of birth of Lord Ram Chandra. They should point out clearly by correct location as to which is the Janma Asthan temple mentioned in this para of their written statement. The idols of "Ram Chandra ji and others" are installed in all the Hindu temples all the world over. The emphasis of communal bias alleged in the written statement is misplaced. The plaintiffs having been aggrieved by the invasion through the illegal proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. upon their fundamental rights of managing their own temple have taken recource to the court of law in defence of their own legal right. It is the said defendants who supported and instigated by their own fanatic friends are advancing a false and a preposterous claim to the temple of janma Bhumi by blaspheming it with the name of Babari Masjid. The plaintiffs claim has no relation with any election and to characterise the plaintiff's claim as an attempt to jeopardize the success of a secular state in India is simply scandalous. It is in fact the defendants and their supporters who by denying the plaintiffs' rights and by putting up a false and a fanatic claim to the sacred place of the birth of Lord Ram Chandra are out to blackmail the noble efforts of the Indian people to the attainment of a secular state."

"32. The contents of para 32 of the written statements are denied. If the former Government ever acknowledged the temple of Janma Bhumi in suit as Mosque it was simply preposterous and collusive."

3460. Defendant No.9, in additional written statement

dated 24th August, 1995, in paras 3 and 4 pleaded:

"3. That the contents of para 4-G XI are also quite vague and ambiguous and hence are denied as stated. In this respect it is submitted that on 6th December, 1992 the so-called Ram Chabutra was demolished alongwith the Babri Masjid by the miscreants collected at the instance of Vishwa Hindu Parishad etc.

4. That in reply to para 4-G XII of the amended Plaint it is submitted that on 6th December, 1992 the building of the Mosque was demolished and the same could not be called or alleged to be the Main Temple."

3461. Defendant No.10 has supported plaintiff (Suit-3) to the extent that the property in dispute is not a "Mosque" known as "Babari Masjid" made by "Emperor Babar" but is "Janam Bhumi" or "Janam Sthan of Lord Ram Chandra Ji" and has said in paras 2, 3 and 5 as under:

"2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are denied. However, it is submitted that the JANMA ASTHAN is a holy place of worship and belongs to the deity of Bhagwan SHRI RAM LALLA VIRAJMAN there. It never belonged to and could not have belonged to the plaintiff no.1. It is denied that the plaintiff no. 1 ever managed it.

3. That the contents of para 3 of the plaint, as written, are denied. The holy JANMA ASTHAN or JANMA BHUMI is actually a very very old temple, whereas the plaintiff AKHADA on the other hand is an institution and owes its existence for no longer than 200 years. The correctness of the sketch map and the boundaries of the temple with reference to the map are not disputed. The main presiding deity of the temple is BHAGWAN SHRI RAM. Although there are several other idols of other deities, termed as RAM DARBAR and are worshipped, besides, there are other symbols, such as, 'CHARAN', 'SITA RASOI' etc. through whom the deity of BHAGWAN SHRI RAM therein is worshipped at SHRI RAM JANMA BHUMI, is addition to the ASTHAN of SRI RAM JANMA BHUMI, which by itself is a deity and worshipped as such.

5. That the contents of the para 5 of the plaint are not admitted in the form they ave been pleaded. Although it is made to appear that in the first war of independence in the year 1857 A.D., the British, to divide the Hindus and Muslims, mala fide acted by dividing the said ASTHAN by creating an inner enclosure and describing the boundary within the inner enclosure as a mosque but no Muslim who was a true Muslim, would appear to have frequented it for offering his prayer as the same is prohibited by the SHARIYAT. Moreover even ALAMGIR (Emperor AURANGZEB) issued a mandate, known as FATWA-E-ALAMGIRI which clearly prohibits the offering of prayer by Muslim at such places. More so the Kasauti pillars and the carvings of Gods and Goddesses thereon will clearly show that this place could not be used by a true Muslim for offering his prayers thereon. It will also be seen that the place wrongly alleged as mosque virtually stood land-locked by Hindu Temple, wherein there was the worship of the deity going on. Entry to this inner enclosure was also obstructed.

The British tried to set up the descendents of MIR

BAQI, a Shia Muslim, as the MUTVALLI, but he denied the TAULAAT and never looked after the dispute place in any capacity, what to say of looking after as a MUTVALLI thereof."

3462. Issues No. 1 (b), 11, 13, 14, 19(b), 19(c) and 27 (suit 4) read as under:

Issue No.1 (b) "Whether the building had been constructed on the site of an alleged Hindu temple after demolishing the same as alleged by defendant no.13? If so, its effect?"

Issue No.11 "Is the property in suit the site of Janam Bhumi of Sri Ram Chandraji?"

Issue No.13 "Whether the Hindus in general and defendants in particular had the right to worship the Charans and 'Sita Rasoi' and other idols and other objects of worship, if any, existing in or upon the property in suit ?"

Issue No.14 "Have the Hindus been worshipping the place in dispute as Sri Ram Janam Bhumi or Janam Asthan and have been visiting it as a sacred place of pilgrimage as of right since times immemorial? If so, its effect?"

Issue No.19(b) "Whether the building was land-locked and cannot be reached except by passing through places of Hindu worship? If so, its effect?"

Issue No.19(c) "Whether any portion of the property in suit was used as a place of worship by the Hindus immediately prior to the construction of the building in question? If the finding is in the affirmative, whether no mosque could come into existence in view of the Islamic

tenets at the place in dispute?"

Issue No.27 "Whether the courtyard contained Ram Chabutara, Bhandar and Sita Rasoi ? If so, whether they were also demolished on 6.12.1992 along with the main temple ?"

3463. The plaintiffs (Suit-4) with reference to the above issues, in paras 3, 4 and 21-B says :

"3. That for the upkeep and maintenance of the mosque and other connected expenses, a cash grant used to be paid from the Royal Treasury which was continues by the Emperors of Delhi and by Nawab Saadat Ali Khan, the Nawab Wazir of Oudh."

"4. That after the annexation of Oudh, the British Government also continued the cash Nankar till 1864, in which year instead of cash Nankar grant of revenue free land in village Sholapur and Bahoranpur, in the vicinity of Ajodhiya, was made by the British Government."

"21-B . That under the Muslim Law mosque is a place where prayers are offered publicly as a matter of right and the same neither requires any structure and nor any particular mode of structure is provided for the same. Even the open space where prayers are offered may be a mosque and as such even after the demolition of the mosque building by the miscreants, the land over which the building stood is still a mosque and Muslims are entitled to offer prayers thereon."

3464. Defendants no.3 and 4 (Suit-4), in written statement dated 22/24 August, 1962 have pleaded, in paras 8, 11, 27 & 28, as under:

"8. The allegations contained in para 8 of the plaint are denied. The answering defendants deny the existence of the alleged Babri Mosque and allegation of its being damaged and of its being rebuilt and re-constructed at any body's cost or through any Thekedar is altogether fictitious. Even if any communal riot be proved to have occurred in Ajodhya in 1934, no mosque whatsoever was damaged in Ajodhya in 1934."

"11. That the contents of para 11 of the plaint are totally false and concocted. The alleged mosque never existed nor does it exist even now and ....The building which the plaintiffs have been wrongly referring as Babri Masque is and has always been the Temple of Janam Bhumi with idols of Hindu Gods installed therein. The plaint allegation regarding placing of idols inside any mosque is a pure falsehood."

"27. That the temple in question known as Janam Bhumi, the birth place of Lord Rama Chandra situate in Ayodhya belongs and has always belonged to the defendant no. 3 who through its reigning Mahant and Sarbarahkar has ever since been managing it and receiving offerings made there at in form of money, sweats, flowers and fruits and other articles and things."

"28. That the said Asthan of Janam Bhumi is of ancient antiquity and has been existing since before the living memory of man and lies with in the boundaries shown in sketch map appended hereto as Annexure 'A' within which stands the temple building of Janam Bhumi shown therein with the main temple of Janam Bhumi wherein is installed

the idols of Lord Ram Chandra with Lakshmanji, Hanumanji and Shaligramji."

3465. The additional written statement dated 28/29 November, 1963 of defendants No.3 and 4 (Suit-4), in para 38, state as under :

"38. The building in question was always a temple as shown in the written statement of the answering defendants ..."

3466. The additional written statement dated 12th September, 1995 filed by defendant No.10 (Suit-4) in paras 1, 2, 6, 8, 9 said as under:

"1. That the contents of para 21A of the amended plaint are not admitted. No Masjid or Babri Masjid ever existed at the land in question, and as such no Masjid was demolished on 6.12.1992. It is further false to allege that idols were placed only in the night of 22nd/23rd December, 1949, but the fact is that idols were in existence at the place in question from the time immemorial. It may be mentioned here that Babar was an invader and he had no legal authority to construct any Masjid at the sacred place of Hindus i.e. the birthplace of Lord Shri Ram. Mughal invader Babar through his commander Mir Baqi tried to demolish the old glorious temple of Lord Shri Ram at the place in question, but he could not succeed in his mission. After the riot in 1934, the three domes of the temple were damaged. It is submitted that before the said date, the outlook of the building was of pure Hindu temple, but while carrying out repair works, the Britishers tried to give it the shape of mosque and three domes were constructed

over Kasauti pillars which were of temple. ... The worship of Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman is going on since the time immemorial. It is further submitted that with a view to renovate the old temple and to construct a new one, Kar Sewa was performed and the said action cannot be said to be in violation of any order passed by any Court. There was no order in force against Hindus in respect of the temple property/structure. It is submitted that the people of the State had voted for Bhartiya Janata Party in the election as it was committed to fulfil the aspirations of the people to construct a glorious Shri Ram Temple at the place in question. It is true that the Bhartiya Janata Party Government did not resort to firing and barbarian action which was adopted earlier by the Government headed by Sri Mulayam Singh Yadav on 30.10.1990 and 2.11.1990. It is further submitted that the Government cannot suppress the will of the people and it has to honour and fulfil aspirations of the people in the democratic set up. The Bhartiya Janata Party has neither abetted for demolition of the structure, nor did anything in violation of law. The devotees of Lord Shri Ram who present in lacs decided to demolish the old structure. In fact no offence was committed and no law was violated in demolishing the structure of Hindu temple with an intent to construct a big temple. At this place, it may be mentioned here that the Hindus have never been fanatic; they allowed every religion to flourish in Bharatvarsh. There is no evidence in history to show that the Hindus ever demolished any mosque or place of worship of any other religion. The history speaks otherwise. Every Mughal invader and ruler from Mohammad-bin-Qasim to Aurangzeb and even thereafter demolished, destroyed and looted the temples of Hindus. The plaintiffs never has/have any concern with the land in question and also they are not entitled for restoration of the building or its possession."

"2. That the contents of para 21-B of the amended plaint are not admitted. The Muslim law cannot be made applicable in Bharatvarsh. Muslim law is also subject to the provisions of Constitution; it is the Constitution which is supreme and not any personal law, much less Muslim law. Muslims cannot use any open piece of land in question for offering prayers and they also cannot encroach upon the land of religious places of Hindus. Under Shastrik law applicable to Hindus, the property once vested in the deity continues to remain of the deity. It is specifically submitted that the entire property in question belongs to Shri Ram Lala Virajman who is in the existence from the time immemorial and is being worshipped by His devotees at the place in question without any interruption till date. According to the own averments of the plaintiffs, the place in dispute has got no significance for them as they can offer prayers at any place, even in open.

It would be appropriate and in consonance with the principles of 'secularism' that the Muslims do not offer prayers within the vicinity of the birthplace of Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman, which is sacred for Hindus and offer their prayers beyond the area of Panchkoshi Parikrama. That will create brotherhood and peace everywhere. The para under reply itself shows that the alleged mosque was unnecessary and meaning less for Muslims too. It is further submitted that over the land in question, no mosque ever existed and the Muslims are not entitled to encroach upon the land in question or offer prayers at that place."

"6. That it is an undisputed fact that Lord Ram, Lord Krishna and Lord Shiv are cultural heritage of India which has been recognized by Constituent Assembly. In the original constitution, on which the members signed, the pictures of our recognized cultural heritage may be found which include the scene from Ramayana (conquest over Lanka and recovery of Sita by Lord Ram). Thus the citizens of this country are entitled to pay homage to their Lord at His birthplace and it being sacred place for Hindus cannot belong to Muslims or any other community or religious group. Therefore, the claim of Muslims over the land in question is unconstitutional and is also against Islamic laws and in the circumstances, the plaintiffs cannot claim themselves to be Muslims entitled to file the suit."

"8. That the entire area including the place in question belongs to deity Lord Shri Ram Lala Virajman and His devotees and worshippers are entitled to offer prayers, Pooja, Arti, Bhog etc. and to pay homage to their Great Lord. They have also right to construct a glorious temple."

"9. That it is remarkable to mention here that under the debris of demolished temple structure, a lot of signs and materials concerning temple have been found. The answering defendant believes that under the orders of this Hon'ble Court, they would be in safe custody. It may be mentioned here that a very big Chabutara beneath the present structure exists which also reveals that there existed a glorious and big temple of Lord Shri Ram. There is no evidence, signs or material at all to show that there was any mosque."

3467. Sri Dharam Das, defendant No.13/1 (Suit-4) in his written statement dated 24th December, 1989, (as amended vide Court's order dated 21st August, 1995), has said in paras 1, 2, 3, 4, 11-A, 25, 27 and 28 as under:

"1. That the contents of paragraph 1 of the plaint are denied. It is submitted that Babar was not a fanatic but a devout Muslim who did not believe in destroying Hindu temples, it was Mir Baqi, who was a Shia and commanded Babar's hordes, who demolished the ancient Hindu temple of the time of Maharaja Vikramaditya at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, and tried to raise a mosque-like structure in its place with its materials. Babar was not an Emperor. He was marauder. What was constructed was not a 'mosque' nor was it constructed for the use of the Muslims in general. It was not known as 'Babari Masjid', but was described as 'Masjid Janmasthan' in British times. Objective evidence of the demolition of the ancient temple and attempted construction of the 'Mosque' at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi existed in the form of the 14 Kasauti pillars, the Sandal wood beam, and other structural features of the building, which are more fully detailed in the additional pleas. Mir Baqi did so on account of the superstitious influence of the so called Faqir named Fazal Abbas Qalandar who had demanded the destruction of the ancient temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi and the construction of a mosque at that place for him to offer prayers, although the doing so is opposed to the tenets of Islam as disclosed by the Quran and the Fatwas issued by Muslim theologians."

"2. That the contents of paragraph 2 of the plaint are denied. The sketch map annexed to the plaint is wholly wrong, vague and out of all proportion and does not made any sense. There is no grave-yard anywhere at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, nor was there any such grave-yard as alleged at any time within 12 years of the institution of the suit. There was nothing, neither a mosque nor a grave-yard, which vested or might have vested in 'Almighty' of the Muslims, namely 'ALLAH'. According to the Islamic faith, as explained in the Fatawa-e-Alamgiri: Volume VI, page 214: "It is not permissible to build mosque on unlawfully acquired land. There may be many forms of unlawful acquisition. For instance if some people forcibly take somebody's house (or land) and build a mosque, or even Jama Masjid on it, then Namaz in such a mosque will be against Shariat." The allegation about the loss of many lives in the battle that is said to have ensued between Babar's hordes led by Mir Baqi and the Ruler of Ayodhya must be related to the demolition of the ancient Hindu temple at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, by Mir Baqi; and in that context it is not denied: but it is denied that any of the graves of the Muslims who lost their lives in that battle more than 450 years age were situated on, or anywhere near Sri Rama Janm Bhumi. It submitted that a

Mosque and a grave-yard go ill together according to the tenets of Islam, for the offering of prayers except the funeral prayers on the death of a person buried there in is prohibited in a grave-yard. The Khasra numbers of the alleged 'Mosque' and the alleged 'grave-yard' are all imaginary and fictitious, and are not identifiable at site. Their correctness is denied."

"3. That the contents of paragraph 3 of the plaint are denied. There was no 'Mosque' and there could be no question of any grant for its upkeep or maintenance, or any such purpose. There is no evidence of any expenditure from the alleged grant on the upkeep or maintenance of the building alleged to be the 'Babri Masjid'.

"4. That the contents of paragraph 4 of the plaint are denied. The alleged grant, if any, in cash or by way of revenue free land described as 'Nankar', must have been for personal services rendered or promised to be rendered by the grantee to the British in enslaving India by suppressing the First War of Independence of 1857, miscalled the Sepoy Mutiny by them."

"11-A. That the contents of paragraph 11(a) of the plaint are denied. It is incorrect that the structure raised at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, during the time of Babar after demolition of the Ancient Hindu Temple which existed there, was built by Babar, or that he was an Emperor, or that it was or could be a 'mosque'. . . The act of demolition of the ancient Hindu Temple and entering upon Sri Rama Janma Bhumi was a wrongful act of trespass, which did not, according to the tenets of Islam, commend itself to Allah, for HE does not accept the waqf of any property or thing taken by force or by an illegal act. A waqf cannot, according to Muslim law be made of a thing or property not belonging to the Waqif, as owner. The attempt to raise a mosque-like structure did not succeed; and no 'mosque', deemed to be Waqf according to Muslim Law, ever came into existence. . . . The act of installation of the Deity of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA under the central dome of the building at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, in the form of the Idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA, on Paush Shukla 3 of the Vikram Samvat 2006, by His worshippers, led by, among others, the answering defendants GURU, Baba Abhiram Das, was not a mischievous act, but a perfectly lawful exercise of their right by the Hindus to worship the Deity. . . . . The act of the Hindus on Pausha Shukla 3, of Vikram Samvat 2006, was in furtherance and re-assertion of the pre-existing property rights of the Deity and their own right of worship. And BHAGWAN SRI RAMA did MANIFEST HIMSELF that day at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi. Even the Muslim Havaldar, who kept guard at the Police Outpost, Abdul Barkat by name, experienced the Manifestation, by His Grace. The day is since then celebrated as the Prakatya Diwas, every year, at Ayodhya. At any rate, it is submitted, in the alternative. . ."

"25. It is a fact of history that there was an Ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramditya's time at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, and that was demolished by Mir Baqi. The dominant motive of Iconoclasts was the prejudice born of ignorance that Hindu temples were places of Idolatry, which was condemned by the Qoran. But as stated more fully, hereinbelow, those who are acquainted with the true knowledge of Qoran also know that a mosque cannot be built in the place of a Hindu temple after forcibly demolishing it, for ALLAH DOES NOT accept Namaz offered at a place taken by force, or in a 'mosque' built on land obtained by Gasba or forcibly without title. It seems, therefore, that the three-domed structure raised at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi after demolishing the Ancient Hindu Temple, was not intended to be used as a 'mosque', and it was never used as 'mosque'. It was an act of putting down Idolatry. The alleged killing of Muslims in the battle that ensued with the Hindus, and who are alleged to have been buried at the place, only shows unmistakeably that the demolition of the Temple led to a fierce struggle by the Hindus. The alleged existence of a grave-yard all round it, also shows that the Muslims could not have gone to offer Namaz in the building, which was abandoned and never used as a 'mosque' by the Muslims."

27. That it is indisputable that there was an ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya, and that it was partly demolished and an attempt was made, by Mir Baqi, commander of Babar's hordes, to construct a 'mosque' in its place. He was a Shia, and although demolition of a temple for constructing a 'mosque' is prohibited by Islam, he attempted to do so under the superstitious influence of the so called Faqir, named, Fazal Abbas Qalander. He did not, however, succeed, for, as the story goes, whatever was constructed during the day fell down during the night, and it was only after making certain material concessions in favour of the Hindus for the continued preservation of the place as a place of Hindu worship, that the construction of the three-domed structure was some-how completed, and the construction of the minarets and certain other essential features of a public 'mosque' was not undertaken.

28. That the following facts would show that the three-domes structure so raised by Mir Baqi was not a 'mosque' at all, namely---

(A) ALLAH does not accept a dedication of property for purposes recognised as pious and charitable, that is, as waqf under the Muslim Law, from a person who is not its rightfull owner, for instance, ALLAH would not accept the dedication of stolen property from a thief. By his act of trespass supported by violence, for erecting a 'mosque' on the site of the ancient Hindu Temple at ASTHAN SRI RAMA BHUMI, after demolishing it by the force of arms, Mir Baqi violated all the true tenets of Islam. It was highly un-Islamic action. ALLAH never forgave him for that, so much so that every time an attempt was made to convert the place into a 'mosque', by misguided iconoclasts like him, they were killed without mercy in the battles that ensued, for violating HIS injunctions, for ALLAH had spoken thus to the Prophet in the Qoran---

'And fight for the religion of GOD against those who fight against you; but transgress not by attacking them first, for GOD loveth not the transgressors. And kill them wherever ye find them; and termed them out of that whereof they have dispossessed you; for temptation to idolatory is more grievous than slaughter; yet fight not against them in the holy temple, unless they attack you therein. . . . . ..”

Indeed, the whole history of the rise and fall of the Mughal Empire in India will stand testimony to it. Babar, who did not believe in iconoclasm founded the rule of Mughals in India. Akbar his grandson, by tolerance and secularism expanded it on all sides and converted the Mughal Rule into an Empire. Aurangzeb, the iconoclast fanatic, destroyed the Empire which was at the pinnacle of its glory when he deposed and imprisoned his own father Shahjahan and grabbed the crown.”

(B) Inspite of all that Mir Baqi tried to do with the Temple, the space always continued to best in possession with the Deities of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA VIRAJMAN and the ASTHAN SRI RAMA JANMA BHUMI. THEIR worshippers continued to worship THEM through such symbols as the CHARAN and the SITA RASOI, and the idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN on the Chabutra, called the Rama Chabutra.

3468. Defendant No.18 (Suit-4) in written statement dated 19th July, 1969 , in paras 26 and 27 has averred as under:

“26. That the temple in question is known as Janam bhumi. The birth place of Lord Ramchandar situate in Ajodhya had always belonged to the defendant No.3 who through its resigning Mahanth and Sarbnarankar has ever since been managing it and receiving offering made there as in a form of money, sweets, flowers and fruits and other articles and things.”

www.vadaprativada.com

"27. That the answering defendant is a Vaishnav sadhoo of this holy city of Ajodhya and belonged to Nirmohi Akhara and is a perfect Bhagat of Lord Rama whose Idol is installed in the said temple of Janambhumi which is ancient and antiquity and has been existing since before the sitting memory of man."

3469. The defendant No.20 (Suit-4)'s written statement dated 5th November, 1989, in paras 7, 27, 32, 37 to 42, 46, 49 and 50, states:

"7. That the contents of paragraph 6-A, 6-B, 6-C, 6-E, 6-F of the plaint are denied. The building in dispute is a temple and not a mosque."

"27. That lord Rama, an incarnation of God, was born many many thousand years ago in Ayodhya and is birth place is known as Ram Janam Bhumi or Ram Janma Sthan. This birth place is worshipped for the last many thousand years by the Hindu public who believe in divine presence at Ram Janma Bhumi in Ayodhya and have a devout faith that by offering worship at that place they are the recipients of the bounties and blessings of God, and this by itself constitutes the feature of a temple in Hindu religion. However, a holy temple stood at this place in ancient times. At a later stage Maharaja Vikramaditya reconstructed and resusisticated Ran Janma Bhumi temple and for Hindus it is a spiritual base of Hindu religion."

"32. That in a very ancient book known as Ayodhya Mahatmya (A Guide for Travellers), the original of which is in Sanskrit but its translation by Ram Narain has been published in the journal of the Asiatic Society of Bengal,

Vol. 54, Part I, Chapter-I-C-4-1875 Calcutta 1875 states that all the four sons of emperor Dashrath were born in the palaces of their respective mothers. At one place it is described that Sita Rasoi is in Kaushalya Bhavan, the Janmasthal. The researchers have concluded that this ancient book appears to have come into existence during the tenure of Emperor Akbar. ..."

"37. That there was no mosque even till 1855 is established from the following narration in Faizabad Gazetteer 1960 at p. 63, where it is stated as under:-

"In 1855 a serious conflict between Vairagis and the Muslims at the site of Hanumangarhi in Ayodhya, both claiming it to be a place of worship connected with their respective religions. King Wajid Ali Shah is said to have appointed a Committee to investigate this matter which held a public meeting in Gulab Bari. It appears that among those assembled no one testified the existence of the mosque. Therefore, the Committee unanimously decided the issue in favour of the Vairagis. When the report of the Committee reached Lucknow, it caused a sensation among the Muslims. A Council of action was formed of which Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi (District Lucknow) was elected leader. He was staying at Suhali and succeeded in attracting a large number of followers. On learning this the Vairagis started arrangements for the defence of the place. Wajid Ali Shah then ordered a regiment to guard it. At last on November 7, 1855 Maulvi Amir Ali started for Rudauli with his followers. On refusing to retrace his steps when ordered to do so by Captain Barlow, a fight ensued in which he and most of his followers were killed."

The Gazetteer for the above has in the Footnote appended referred to Kawal-ud-din Haider: Qaisar-ut-Tawarikh or Tarikh-i-Avadh Part II pp. 110 & 128 Mirza Zan: Radiqa-i-Shuhda (Lucknow 1772 A.H./1855 AD)"

"38. That in Faizabad Gazetteer of 1905 at page 174 it is said "The desecration of the most sacred spot in the city caused great bitterness between the Hindus and Musalmans. On many occasions the feelings led to bloodshed and in 1855 and open fight occurred, the Musalmans occupying the Janmasthan in force and thence making a desperate assault on the Hanumangarhi. They charged up the steps of the temple but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then made a counter attack and stormed the Janmasthan, at the gate of which seventy five Mussalmans were burried, the spot being known as the Ganj Shahidan or the martyr's resting place. Several of the king's Regiment were present but their orders were not to interfere Shortly afterwards Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi in Lucknow organized a regular expedition with the object of destroying the Hanumangarhi; but he and his forces were stopped in Barabanki district. It is said that upto this time both Hindus and Musalmans used to worship in the same building but since the mutiny the outer closure has been put up in front of the mosque and the Hindus who are forbidden their access to the inner yard make their offerings on a platform which they have raised in the outer one."

"39. That in Aine Akbari also no mention of the existence of Baburi Masjid is to be found."

"40. That in Faizabad Gazetteer of 1960 at pages 351 and 352 it is said that "With the departure of the Court, the Hindus were left to themselves and numerous temples and monestries sprang into existence. Naval Rai, the Deputy of Nawab Safdar Jung built a fine house in Ayodhya which still stands on the river front. Probably this rise in importance was due to the creating popularity of the Ramcharitra Manas of Tulsidas and the progress of this place became even more rapid after the annexation of the Avadh by the British. Before the middle of the nineteenth century Ayodhya was regarded as a strong hold of Hinduism....."

www.vadaprativada.com

The material of the old temple was largely employed in building the mosque and a few if the original columns are still in good preservation. They are of closed grained black stone (Kasauti) bearing various Hindi Bas-reliefs. The outer beam of the main structure being of sandal wood, the height of the columns is 7 to 8 ft., the shape of the base, the middle section and the capital is square, the rest being round or octagonal."

"(7) A mosque must be built in a place of peace and quiet and near a place where there is a sizeable and large number of Muslim population. According to the Tenets of Islam, a mosque cannot be built at place which is surrounded on all sides by temples where the sound of music, of Conch shells or Ghanta Ghariyalis must always disturb the peace and quiet of the place."

"42. That the mere displacement in part of the ancient Hindu temple of Ram Janma Bhumi Sthan will not take away the religious sanctity of the temple and the site inasmuch as the Hindu religion believes the presence of the divine spirit at the Ram Janma Bhumi Sthan, worship whereat is conducive to the spiritual well being of the person as the place relates to the birth place of lord Ram and to constitute temple it is not merely the presence of idols as such which is required. The acts of vandalism perpetrated either by Babur or by any other person after him would not take away the religious sanctity of the place or destroy the religious belief of the Hindus attached to that place, nor the place as such could be deemed to be out of possession of the Hindus as such. As Carnegie puts it "Ayodhya which is to the Hindus as Macca is to the Muhammadans, Jerusalem to the Jews." has in the traditions of the Orthodox, a highly mythical origin, being founded for additional security not on earth for that is transitory but on the chariot wheel of the Great Creater Himself which will endure for ever." It is intimately connected with the mass of legend relating to Ram and Suryabanshi (solar) race and was certainly the capital of several reigning dynasties." It is a place of great antiquity. According to Hindu mythology, it represents the forehead of Vishnu and is the chief of the seven cities (Saptapuri) of pilgrimage in India (See 1960 Faizabad Gazetteer at page 35). The worship at the place has continued since ever throughout the ages. The Hindus were never out of actual and legal possession. Their rights always remained and still exists on the land in dispute."

"46. That the same Gazetteer Faizabad 1960 records a very important fact by Sri William Finch when it mentions as follows at page 50:-

"William Finch, the English merchant who travelled through the Mughal Empire (1608-1611) says that Avadh is "a city of ancient note and seat of a Potan King, now much ruined; the castle built four hundred years ago. Here are also the ruins of (Rani Chand (s)3 Castle and housed which the Indians acknowledge for the great God saying that he took a flesh upon him to see Tamasha of the world. In these ruins remain certain Brahmans who record the names of all such Indians as work themselves in the river running thereby. Which custume, they say, hath continued four lackes of years (which is three hundred ninety four hundred thousand and five hundred years before the world's creation). At the bottom against the word '3' which is indicated in the citation against the word 'Rani Chand' it is explained as follows:-

"Rani Chandra, the Hero of Ramayan. The reference is to the mound known as Ramkot or fort of Ram."

Thus it shows that after Babur during the time of Akbar, Ram Janma Bhumi Sthan was being worshipped by the Hindus which was noticed by the English traveler as well. It may be mentioned here that Audh was equivalent to Ayodhya."

www.vadaprativada.com

"49. That Babur is alleged not to have made any endowment or waqf, nor he could. The emperor does not ip so facto became the owner of the whole earth of which he may be ruler. There is no such concept that the ruler becomes the true owner of all the land in his Kingdom ip so facto. The site in dispute admittedly belongs to Hindus for the last thousand years. The ruler might have superior right to levy taxes etc. but could not be deemed to be the actual owner. In these circumstances, the claim of the plaintiffs that Babur by annexation, which is emphatically denied, as there was no annexation as such, became the owner and made a Waqf when there was no battle between Babur and Raja of Ayodhya and no question of annexation of the territories arose. The general religious notions of the Hindu community prior as well as subsequent to Babur has always been that the temple and the Janma Bhumi Sthan, i.e. Ram Janma Bhumi, the birth place of the Creater and lord Ram, are and have always been for the religious benefit of the Hindus, for the benefit of the truth and good as against evils and vices, the worship for which the place was used and stood dedicated was at no relevant time displaced, nor taken away and hence neither the plaintiffs nor the Muslims acquired any rights, title or interest in the disputed property. In fact Babur had no rights to give religious place of Ram Janma Bhumi of Hindus in perpetuity to Muslims or create any rights in favour of Muslims in perpetuity over the religious place of Hindus, which is against all cannons of justice, morality and good conscience. Further a place already dedicated cannot be

"50. That the birthplace of Ram is only located at one particular spot in Ayodhya. It cannot be shifted to any other place in the world. It is in the same position for Hindus as Macca for Muslims. As Macca cannot be shifted so Ram Janma Bhumi cannot be shifted. On the basis of national policy of assigning the weight of a particular place for a particular religion or a particular community, the belief and religious feelings of Hindus in this regard be given supreme importance as a mosque can be built in any other part."

3470. The additional written statement dated 17th October, 1995 of defendant No.20 (Suit-4) in paras 4, 5 and 7 is as under:

"4. That the disputed land is known as Ran Janma Bhoomi, which is very sacred for the Hindus from time immemorial. There was a temple of Hindu deity 'Ram' on the aforesaid land. When Babar invaded India he partly destroyed the said temple. It is alleged that he had constructed a mosque. In fact the upper structure was constructed and remaining temple was left as it is. In this construction the malba of the temple was used. The pillars of the temple were also used in the construction. On the pillars, the figures of Hindu deity & holy signs were evidence that Hindu Temple was not completely destroyed. Thus the temple structure existed and it is wrong to claim that a new mosque was constructed by Babar and handed over to Muslim community. The Muslims were not offering prayer in the disputed structure as there were engraved figures of Hindu deity on the 14 pillars of the disputed structure. It is also wrong to say that the Muslims offer Namaz for last more than 46 years the Muslims never offered Namazs. The land or place does not become mosque. Thus the claim of the plaintiff through amendment that the1.58" disputed land 'Ran Janam Bhom' will become Babari Masjid as the Muslims had offered Namaz in the structure is wrong and incorrect. It is further stated that the nature of Ram Janam Bhomi will never be changed and it shall always remain as Ram Janam Bhomi even if Muslims have ever offered Namaz in it and it will not become mosque under the eye of law. It is further stated that open land is the land of the temple and it can not be a mosque."

"5. That by destruction of the structure, the pillars were also destroyed which were evidence of Hindu Temple. It is not the destruction of Babri Mosque but a Hindu temple. The answering defendant No. 20 is entitled to claim the land in dispute for constructing a temple of Bhagwan Ram on the disputed land."

"7. That the building which was alleged as mosque is demolished and now the land is of the temple of Ram Janam Bhomi, which was demolished is claimed by the plaintiff through the amendment. The plaintiff has no right to claim the land of the temple which is the property of Hindus."

3471. Issues No. 14, 15, 22 and 24 (Suit-5) are as under:

Issue No.14 "Whether the disputed structure claimed to be Babri Masjid was erected after demolishing Janma Sthan temple at its site."

www.vadaprativada.com

Issue No.15 "Whether the disputed structure claimed to be Babri Masjid was always used by the Muslims only regularly for offering Namaz ever since its alleged construction in 1528 A.D. to 22nd December, 1949 as alleged by the defendants 4 and 5 ?"

Issue No.22 "Whether the premises in question or any part thereof is by tradition,belief and faith the birth place of Lord Rama as alleged in paragraphs 19 and 20 of the plaint? If so, its effect?"

Issue No.24 "Whether worship has been done of the alleged plaintiff Deity on the premises in suit since time immemorial as alleged in para 25 of the plaint?"

3472. The plaint (Suit-5) in paras 2, 19, 23 and 24 with respect to above issues said as under:

www.vadaprativada.com

"2. That the place Sri Rama Janma Bhumi is too well known at Ayodhya to need any description for purposes of identification of the subject matter of dispute in this plaint. However, for greater precision, two site plans of the building premises and of the adjacent area known as Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, prepared by Sri Shiv Shankar Lal pleader, in the discharge of his duty as a commissioner appointed by the court of Civil Judge, Faizabad, in Suit no. 2 of 1950 : Sri Gopal Singh Visharad Verses Sri Zahur Ahmad and others : along with his Report dated 25.5.1950, are being annexed to this plaint and made part of is as Annexures I, II and III, respectively."

"19. That it is manifestly established by public records of unimpeachable authority that the premises in dispute is the place where Maryada Purushottam Sri Ram Chandra Ji Maharaj was born as the son of Maharaja Dashrath of the solar Dynasty, which according to the tradition and the faith of the devotees of Bhagwan Sri Rama is the place where HE manifested HIMSELF in human form as an incarnation of Bhagwan Vishnu. The place has since ever been called Sri Rama Janm Bhumi by all and sundry through the ages."

"23. That the books of history and public records of unimpeachable authenticity, established indisputably that there was an ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time at Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, Ayodhya. That Temple was destroyed partly and an attempt was made to raise a mosque thereat, by the force of arms, by Mir Baqi, a commander of Baber's hordes. The material used was almost all of it taken from the Temple including its pillars which were wrought out of Kasauti or touch-stone, with figures of Hindu gods and godesses carved on them. There was great resistance by the Hindus and many battles were fought from time to time by them prevent the completion of the mosque. To this day it has no minarets, and no place for storage of water for Vazoo Many lives were lost in these battles. The last such battle occurred in 1855. Sri Rama Janma Bhumi, including the buildings raised during Babar's time by Mir Baqi, was in the possession and control of Hindus at that time. According to the 1928 Edition of the Fyzabad Gazetteer published by the Government Press, U.P. (at page 179)--- " Ayodhya is pre —eminently a city of temples.....It is locally affirmed that at the time of the Musalman conquest there were three important Hindu shrines at Ayodhya and little else. These were the Janmshtan temple, the Swargddwar and the Treta-ka-Thakur, and each was successively made the object of attention of different Musalman rulers. The Janmasthan was in Ramkot and marked the birthplace of Rama. In 1528 Babar came to Ayodhya and halted here for a week. He destroyed the ancient temple and on its site built a mosque, still known as Babar's mosque. The material of the old structure were largely employed, and many of the columns are in good preservation, they are of close-grained black stone, called by the natives kasauti, and carved with various devices. Their length is from seven to eight feet, and the shape square at the base, centre and capital, the rest being round or octagonal. The mosque has two inscriptions, one on the outside and the other on the polpit, both are in Persian and bear the date 935 Hijri . . . . . and again according to the same Gazetteer (at Page 180) :- "This desecration of the most sacred spot in the city caused great bitterness led to bloodshed, and in 1855 and open fight occurred, the Musalman occupying the Janmasthan in force and then making a desperate assault on the Hanuman Garhi. They charged up the the steps of the temple, but were driven back with considerable loss. The Hindus then made counter-attack and stormed the Janmasthan, at the gate of which seventy-five Musalmans were buried, the spot being known as the Ganj Shahidan or the martyr's resting place. Several of the King's regiments were present, but their orders were not to interfere. Shortly afterwords Maulvi Amir Ali of Amethi in Lucknow

organised a regular expedition with the object of destroying the Hanuman Grahi, but he and his forces were stopped in the Bara Banki district. (Gazetteer of Barabanki, P. 168) It is said that upto this time both Hindus and Musalmans used to worship in the same building; but since the mutiny an outer enclosure had been put up in front of the mosque and the Hindus, who are forbidden access to the inner yard, make their offerings on a platform which they have raised in the outer one."

24. That such a structure raised by the force of arms on land belongings to the Plaintiffs Deities, after destroying the ancient Temple situate thereat, with its materials including the Kasauti pillars with figures of Hindu gods carved thereon, could not be mosque and did not become one in spite of the attempts to treat it as a mosque during the British rule after the annexation of Avadh. Some salient points with regard thereto are noted below.

(A) According to the Koran, ALLAH spoke to the Prophet thus--

" And fight for the religion of GOD against those who fight against you; but transgress not by attacking them first, for GOD loveth not the transgressors. And kill them wherever ye find them; and turn them out of that whereof they have dispossessed you; for temptation to idolatry is more grievous than slaughter, yet fight not against them in the holy temple, until they attack you therein; . . . . . "

(B) According to all the Muslim authority and precedents and the decided cases also. ALLAH never accepts a dedication of property which does not belong to the Waqf

that is, the person who purports to dedicate property to ALLAH for purposes recognised as pious or charitable, as waqf under the Muslim law. By his acts of trespass and violence for raising a mosque on the site of the Temple after destroying it by force, Mir Baqi committed a highly un-Islamic act. His attempts to convert the Temple into a mosque did not, therefore, create a valid dedication of property to ALLAH, whether in fact or in law, and it never became a mosque.

(C) That in spite of all that Mir Baqi tried to do with the Temple, the land always continued to vest in the Plaintiff Deities, and they never surrendered their possession over it. Their possession continued in fact and in law. The Asthan never went out of the possession of the Deity and HIS worshippers. They continued to worship HIM through such symbols as the CHARAN and Sita Rasoi, and the idol of BHAGWAN SRI RAMA LALA VIRAJMAN on the Chabutra, called the Rama Chabutra, within the enclosed courtyard of the building directly in front of the arched opening of its Southern dome. No one could enter the building except after passing through these places if Hindus worship. According to the Muslim religion and law there can be no Idol worship within the courtyard of a mosque and the passage to a mosque must be free and unobstructed and open at all times to the 'Faithful'. It can never be through a Hindu place of worship. There can be no co-sharing of title or possession with ALLAH in the case of a mosque. His possession must be exclusive.

(G) As already stated, there is no arrangements for storage

of water for Vazoo and there are the Kasauti pillars with the figures of Hindu Gods and Godesses inscribed thereon in the building.

3473. The defendant No.3 (Suit-5) disputed various other aspects, but so far as the claim of the plaintiff that the place in dispute is birth place of Lord Ram Chandra Ji, has not disputed the same and in para 5 of his written statement has said as under:

"5. That the contents of para-2 of the plaint are denied. The birth place of Rama is not in dispute. The whole world knows that his birth place is in Ayodhya. Where the Temple Ram Janma Bhumi stands. It is the temple known as Ram Janma Bhoomi Temple situate in mohalla Ram Kot Ayodhya which is in dispute in the various suit transferred to this Court, which by Muslims is said to be a mosque and which is claimed by the answering defendants as being the Temple of Bagwan Shri Ram under his charge and management, and where of the Nirmohi Akhara is the Shebait of Bhagwan Shri Ram. Annexure I, II and III are denied as incorrect. The plaintiffs should submit a fresh correct and complete plan. Many important places of the temple have not been shown in the said Annexures. They pertain to another suit and have no evident value in the present suit."

3474. Defendant No.4, (Suit-5) U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqfs, Lucknow, denied the aforesaid paragraphs of the plaint and in paras 13, 14, 19, 23, 24, 33, 35 and 46 of the written statement has said as under:

13. That the contents of para 13 of the plaint are also

incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the defendant no. 20 had no right or title or locus standi to move the said application for the opening of the gate of the mosque for closer Darshan (and the defendant no. 20 mosque not at all a party to any of the aforesaid suits, he had no locus standi to file the Appeal before the District Judge, Faizabad and the order dated 1.2.1986 passed by the District Judge, Faizabad, was patently and manifestly illegal and without jurisdiction) and two writ petition are pending in the Hon'ble High Court against the afore-said order dated 1.2.1986.

It is further submitted that the building in dispute is not the Janam Bhoomi of Sri Ram Chandraji and no idols of Sri Ram Chandraji were ever installed in the said building and as such there arises no question of any right or claim of the defendant no. 20 or of anyone else to perform pooja and Darshan over there. The fact is that the property in suit is an old mosque known as Babri Masjid and the same was constructed during the regime of Emperor Babar.

14. That the contents of para 14 of the plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that the buildings in dispute is not a temple and as such there arises no question of any Pooja and Darshan being allowed to be performed over there. (It is reiterated that the plaintiffs nos. 1 and 2 are not the deities recognised by Hindu Law and as such they have no legal entity)

It is further submitted that since the building in

question is a mosque there arises no question of any new temple being constructed over the site of the said Babri Mashid (and the plaintiffs or anyone else have no right or locus standi to claim the removal of the old structure of the said mosque.)

It is also relevant to mention here that neither any idols were kept in the said mosque prior to the incident of the night of 22nd- 23rd December, 1949, when the idols were surreptitiously or stealthily kept in the mosque by some mischievous elements and nor the said mosque was ever used for performing Pooja and Darshan etc. prior to 23.12.49. As the plaintiffs nos. 1 and 2 cannot at all be treated as deities, there is no question of unhappiness of the so-called deities and their alleged devotees. It is, however, admitted that there has been unnecessary and unusual delay in the disposal of the suits referred to above and on account of the attachment of the mosque for the last about 39 years the condition of the building has also deteriorated. The Receiver appointed by the Court is not taking proper interest in the maintenance of the building and in spite of the orders of the Court, no repairs of the building has been undertaken for the last several years. The answering defendant is, however, not aware of the alleged mis-appropriation of the money by the staff appointed by the Receiver The answering defendant is further advised to state that the alleged desire of removing the structure of the mosque and of constructing a temple on the site of the said mosque is wholly uncalled for and unwarranted and mischievous and an such attempt will be fraught with very dangerous consequences (and instigation of such unholy design and illegal activity also amounts to offence apart fro being contemptuous) and in gross violation of the restraint order passed by the Hon'ble High Court in Writ Petition No. 746 of 1986 : Mohd. Hashim Verses State of U.P. And others.

19. That the contents of para 19 of the Plaint are absolutely false and incorrect and hence denied as stated. Neither there is any public record, much less any record of unimpeachable authority showing that the premises in dispute is the place of birth of Sri Ram Chandraji and nor there is any historical or judicial record to testify the averments of the para under reply. As a matter of fact the religious books as well as the writing of Hindu scholars themselves make it very doubtful as to whether the personality of Sri Ram Chandraji is a historical personality. Similarly there are several versions about the place of birth of Sri Ram Chandraji and it is not at all settled, even amongst the Hindu scholars, as to where and in what period such a religious leader known as Sri Ram Chandraji was born. The booklets being circulated at Ayodhya by the Vishwa Hindu Parishad and other Hindu Organizations and other books of Hindu mythology describe the period of Sri Ram Chandraji as that of Treata Yug meaning thereby that he was born more than 9 lakh years ago. According to Hindu mythology, there have been three Maha Prayleys during this period due to which the entire earth had submerged into water and as such according to Hindu mythology itself no specific place can be said to be the birth place of Sri Ram Chandraji. It is also pertinent to mention here that greatest authority of Hindu mythology on Sri Ramchandraji known in the recent history is that of Goswami Tulsidasji. He had written the book on Sri Ramchandraji known as Sri Ram Charitra Manas during the regime of Mughal Emperor Akbar who was the grandson of Mughal Emperor Babar and it is said that Sri Goswami Tulsidasji had composed the said Ram Charitra Manas at a place known as Datun Kund situated at a distance of about one kilometer from Ayodhya in district Faizabad and as such had there been any birth place of Sri Ramchandraji in Ayodhya, Goswami Tulsidasji must have specifically mentioned about the same in his Ram Charitra Manas and as a great devotee of Sri Ramchandraji Goswami Tulsidasji cannot be expected to have skipped over or concealed or kept quiet over such an important fact regarding the life history of Sri Ramchandraji and had there been any iota of truth in the story of Sri Ram Janam Bhoomi temple being there at Ayodhya at the site of the Babri Masjid during the regime of Emperor Babar or prior thereto and had there been any incident of demolition of any such temple and construction of Babri Masjid over the same, Goswami Tulsidasji must have taken up this matter in the Court (Darbar) of Emperor Akbar and Emperor Akbar must have undone the alleged wrong and specially so when the Court of Akbar was full of Advisors, councillors and ministers from Hindu community and his own Queen was also Jodha Bai. It is also relevant to mention here that even the location of present Ayodhya does not tally with the location of Ayodhya as given in the Balmiki Ramayan and this also creates doubt about there being any place of birth of Sri Ramchandraji in the present Ayodhya situated in district Faizabad. Ayodhya mentioned in the Balmiki Ramayan is said to be situated at a distance of about 1-1/2 Yojana (equivalent to about 14-1/2 miles) from river Saryu flowing East to West which is presently running quite adjacent to the present Ayodhya from West to East.

It is also absolutely incorrect to say that there is any historical or other evidence to the effect that Sri Ramchandraji had manifested himself in human form at the place where the idols are presently kept in the mosque in question.

It is also absolutely incorrect to say that the place known as Babri Masjid has ever been called as Sri Ram Janam Bhoomi prior to December, 1949.

23. That the contents of para 23 of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated and in reply thereto it is submitted that there has never been any temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya 's time at the site of the Babri Masjid and no authentic books of history and no public record of any unimpeachable authenticity can be cited in this respect. It is also incorrect to say that the mosque in question was raised at the site of any temple or after destroying any temple by force and arms. It is also not correct to say that the material used in the construction of the said mosque was almost all of it taken from any temple, and it is also incorrect to say that the pillars of the said

mosque were wrought out of Kasauti or touchstone with figures of Hindu Gods and Goddesses carved on them. The fact is that such pillars are available at some other places also. It is also absolutely false and baseless to suggest that any resistance was put by the Hindus or any battle was fought from time to time for prevent the construction of the mosque. Regarding the shape of the structure of the mosque it is submitted that there is no requirement of any mosque and existence of minarets or domes is not at all required for any mosque and so also there is no necessity of any place for storage of water for VAZOO for any mosque although in the close vicinity of Babri Mashid a well is very much there for taking out water for the purposes of Vazoo. There are several other mosque in India and even in Faizabad and Lucknow, which do not have minarets and even domes and one such mosque is situated within the premises of Dargah Hazrat Jahangir Samdani in Kashaucha Shareef District Faizabad in which there are no domes or minarets and one such mosque exists in the districts of Lucknow in which there are five five domes but no minarets. It is also incorrect to say that any life was lost in any battle fought in respect of Babri Masjid and no battle in respect thereto has taken place till 1885.

It is also incorrect to say that the building of Babri Masjid raised during Babar's time had ever remained in the possession and control of Hindus. The citation of Faizabad gazetteer given in the para under reply is based on hearsay information and the same cannot be said to be in anyway a reliable piece of evidence.

It is also relevant to mention here that bitterness had been created between Hindus and Muslims in respect of the mosque situated inside Hanuman Garhi and it was on the report of the demolition of that mosque that some Muslims has tried to take up arms under the command of Maulavi Ameer Ali, but they could not succeed on account of the army of the Nawab as well as British army posted for facing their challenge. The expectation of Maulvi Ameer Ali had, therefore, no concern or connection with the Babri Masjid and the observations to the contrary in the gazetteer of Faizabad and Barabanki are, therefore, totally incorrect and no reliance can be placed upon the same. It is also incorrect to say that at any point of time Hindus and Muslims both used to worship in the same building known as Babri Masjid. Had there been any such practice of worshipping by both the communities inside the Babri Masjid, mention of the same should have been made in the Plaint of he Original Suit No. 61/280 of 1885: Mahant Rahunath Das Verses Secretary of State & another, decided on 14.12.85 by the Sub Judge, Faizabad.

24. That the contents of para 24 of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. At no point of time there ever existed any temple at the site of the Babri Masjid and it is absolutely incorrect to say that the said mosque was constructed, after destroying any ancient temple, with the material of the alleged temple. The mosque in question has always been used as a mosque since its construction during the regime of Emperor Babar.

The contents of the sub-paras (A) to (G) of the para

under reply are also incorrect and the same are also denied as stated:

(B) That the contents of para 24(B) of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. The land in question undoubtedly belonged to the State when the mosque in question was constructed on behalf of the State and as such it cannot be said that it could not be dedicated for the purposes of the mosque. Emperor Babar was a Sunni Muslim and the vacant land on which the Babari Masjid was built lay in his territory and did not belong to anyone and it could very well be used by his officers for the purposes of the mosque and specially so when the Emperor Babar himself consented and gave approval for the construction of the said mosque. It is absolutely incorrect to say that the site in question was the site of any temple and any temple was destroyed by Meer Baqi. Had nay such incident of demolition of any temple taken place, the same must have been reported in any authentic book of Mughal history but no such incident finds mention in any authentic book of history and as such it is mosque in question was constructed was constructed at the site of any temple.

(C) That the contents of para 24(C) of the Plaint are also absolutely false and in correct and hence denied as stated. No temple had ever existed at the site of the said mosque and there is no question of vesting of the size in any alleged deity. Similarly no Asthan and deity could be said to have ever existed over there and as such there arises no question of the possession of any deity or Asthan on the sire in question. The alleged Ram Chabutra has also not

remained in existence since the time of Babar but rather the same is the creation of around 1857 period.

It is also incorrect to say that the entry of the mosque could not be possible except after passing through any place of Hindu worship. The concept of the mosque has also been wrongly and incorrectly described in the para under reply.

(D) That the contents of para 24(D) of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. There is no such requirement for the construction of any mosque – that the same should be built in a place of peace and quiet and near to a place where there is a sizeable Muslim population. It is also incorrect to say that the mosque cannot be built in a place which is surrounded by temples, where the sound of music and Konch shell, Ghante Gharyal disturbs the peace and quiet of the place.

33. That the contents of para 33 of the Plaint are also incorrect and hence denied as stated. Neither there is any Presiding Deity of Plaintiff No.1 and nor here are other deities over the premises in question and I is also incorrect to say that the so-called Charan (footsteps) and Sita Rasoee etc. constitute one integral complex and have a single identity. It is also incorrect to say that the claim of the Muslims is confined to the building and the areas enclosed within inner boundary wall. The area being claimed by the Muslims is mentioned very specifically in the Plaint of Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 and the description of the same can in no way be said to be vague and undefined. It is also incorrect to say that there are no

graves in the vicinity of the said mosque for the last fifty years. It is not at all admitted that the defendant no. 3 is the present mutvalli of the Babri Masjid since before 1948. At present the said mosque has got a Managing Committee appointed by the answering defendant. It is also incorrect to say that only a mutvalli of the mosque can sue for its possession. The Board is a statutory Board having been created by the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1936 and now continuing under the U.P. Muslim Waqf Act, 1960. The Waqf Act of 1960 was also passed to provide for better governance and administration and and supervision of the waqfs in Uttar Pradesh, and under section 19 of the said waqf Act, 1960 the Board has got the power of general supervision of all the waqfs and it is the duty of the Board to do all things reasonable or necessary to ensure that the waqfs under its superintendence are properly maintained, controlled and administered and under section 19(2)(4), the Board has also been conferred with the power to institute and defend suit and proceedings in any Court of Law relating to all waqfs. (It is, therefore, absolutely incorrect t say that the Board or other Muslims associated with the management and administration of the mosque in question count not file the suit or possession registered as Regular Suit. No. 12 of 1985.

35. That the contents of para 35 of the Plaint are quite vague and ambiguous and also incorrect and hence denied as stated. There can be no dispute to the averments that all human beings including the Muslims and Hindus are the creation of once and the same God and the plaintiffs of

Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 as well as other Muslims also believe in the policy of living in amity and goodwill with members of all communities and religious denomination. That does not mean that the gesture of goodwill and amity should be shown to such persons who are bent upon demolishing the mosque. It is also incorrect to say that the site in question has got anything to do with the place of birth of Sri Ramchandraji and as such the same has got no significance of alleged Asthan Sri Ramchandra Janam Bhoomi. The entire propaganda and publicity being carried out by the Vishwa Hindu Parishad and Ram Janam Bhoomi Yagya Samiti and their associates and allied bodies in this respect is nothing but sheer concoction and this is being done with the vested interests and political ambitions and as such it is not at all difficult for the plaintiffs of Regular Suit No. 12 of 1961 to abandon their claim over the mosque in question and to construct a magnificent and grand temple of Sri Ramchandraji at any other free site which may not be the property of any other person or community. It is also incorrect to say that under the tenets of Muslims law the mosque can be shifted under certain circumstances.

46. That even the reports of the Archaeological experts have been to the effect that there appear to be no symptoms of human habitation in the present Ayodhya of more than 700 B.C. And also there appear to be no symptoms of any Fort or Palace or Old temple being there at the site of the Babri Masjid."

3475. Defendant No.5 (Suit-5) has also disputed the entire

claim of plaintiff (Suit 5), vide written statement dated 14/21 August, 1989, and in paras 2, 15, 23, 24, 34, 40, 47, 50, 51, 52, 53, 55, 67 and 69 has said :

"2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaints are denied. The area and the places indicated in Annexure Nos. 1, 2 and 3 of the plaint are neither Ram Janam Bhoomi nor Ram Janam Asthan. However, it is evident that there exists a mosque known as Babri Masjid, the existence of this mosque is established by record, Historic, Judicial and Revenue. The filing of the suit No.2 of 1950 are not denied. However, the suit is wholly misconceived. The plaintiff of suit. no. 2of 1950 had no legal right and the suit is misconceived.

15. That the contents of para 15 of the plaint are denied. There is no question of construction of any temple over the site in question. Answering defendant and his co-religionist have a right to resist any such attempt. There is no question of any management of the so called temple. The premises is a mosque and Muslims have a right to offer namaz in it and U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf has a right to supervise and manage it. Neither Jagadguru has any right or locus in the matter and nor he can execute any deed legally in respect of the premises in question. The answering defendant is not aware of the religious sect of the so called vairagies of Ayodhya.

23. That the contents of para 23 of the plaint are denied the narration of history in the plaint is false and baseless no authentic book of history has been referred in the plaint. The premises has always been a mosque since its construction in sixteenth century, it has always been used by the Muslim for offering namaz and for no other purpose. Remark in the gazette is no authentic record of history. It is only a generalised observation, the Gazette also does not make any reference of any authentic history or record. The pillars are not of Kasauti. However, it is not relevant as the fact remains that it is a mosque and has always been used as a mosque and it is wholly incorrect that anybody else other than Muslims worshipped in the building which is called Babri Masjid. The narration of history by the plaintiff is baseless and false. There is no evidence of the demolition of any temple for the construction of this mosque.

24. That the contents of para 24 of the plaint are vehemently denied, the quotation from Holy Quran has been incorrectly quoted and the same is out of context. There is no evidence of demolition of any temple. The contents of sub-paras are also denied, on the bases of judicial records and other evidence, it is clear that the premises in question has always been a mosque in which Muslim had been offering regular namaz upto 22nd December, 1949. No specific shape or specific design has been prescribed for the mosque in Islam. The shapes and architectural design of the mosque vary in different parts of the world and even in India. The Ganj-e-Shahidaan also belong to Muslims and vests in God Almighty. The plaintiff has misrepresented about the contents of suit No. 12 of 1961. The claim in the contents are clear in the plaint of suit No. 12 of 1961, there is also a pucca well outside the mosque for 'Vazoo'.

34. That the contents of para 34 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The premises has always been a mosque and it has been used as such and no one remove the structure.

40. That according to the inscription in the mosque, the said Babri Masjid was constructed by Mir Baqui, one of the commanders of the Babar in 1528 and since then it has been in use as mosque and the Muslims always regularly offered namaz in it till the attachment.

47. That Babri Masjid (building in question) has always been a mosque and used as such, and only Muslims have right to offer Namaz in it and U.P. Sunni Central Board of Waqf has a right of supervision and control.

50. That Lord Rama in whose name the controversy in question has been created, according to authoritative texts of the historians and other scholar of Hindu Religion is mere an epic and imaginary figure and was never in experience*.* In India there have been authoritative pronouncements by the various historians and also by the seminars and symposium that Lord Rama never existed. It is mere an epic, besides above no period and place could be fixed till this date. After long research Holy Barahmins have come to conclusion that it is all mere an epic and legend.

51. That as per Balmiki's Ramayan which is supposed to be the only authoritative source of Lord Rama, the city of Ayodhya where the property in question situates is not the place described in that book. The averment that at the site of of Babri Masjid there was some temple which was demolished at the behest of Babar is absolutely incorrect and false. Shri Tulsidas who by his book Ram Charit Manas has elevated the status of Lord Rama from Mariyada Prushottam to Bhagwan has not written about the demolition of any such temple in his book which was written after construction of Babri Masjid, at the Datoon Kund in Ayodhya itself which situates at a short distance from the Babri Masjid. Before Tulsi's Ram Charit Manas, there were temples of other gods and goddess and as such the contention regarding demolition of Ram Mandir is absolutely baseless and has been designed-ly thatched up to creates communal disharmony and hatred between the two communities.

52. That the recent scientist investigation a, c-14 test which is radio carbon dating method has revealed the stones used in the building in question are less than 500 years in age and this falsifies the claim that the temple was demolished and by the same material the mosque was built, however, it is clarified that all such averments made in the plaint are absolutely of no consequence in Courts of Law.

53. That property in question is continuously recorded as graveyard and mosque in the revenue records from prior to first settlement and the said entry coming unchallenged and there being three Settlement also now the entries in revenue records are final and can not be questioned.

55. That initially there was provided a cash grant from the period of King Emperor and after British Rule in lieu of the said cash grant Zamindari of Villag Shanavan, Bhoranpur and Sholipur was given for the Babri Masjid and the masjid in question was inter alia maintained by the income of said Zamindari property and the salary of Imam and Moazin etc. was paid and other expenses were also made.

67. That there has been no concern of Lord Rama, Janki or of any person having faith in them with the land in question over which exists the Babri Masjid and adjoining area of grave yard. Admittedly the Mosque being in existence since 1528 and the deads having been burried the same could not be subject matter of any other type of Puja in Practice and ASTHA if any if the same could survive from 1528 onwards till this date without any access to the place in no circumstances that Astha could not give a right for demolition of the Mosque and the place where the deads or burried could not be purified to be used for any other purposes.

69. That just the mosque was built and the deads were burried the site became waqf property vested in Almighty God and it will remain so vested eternally and the property once vested in the God can not be a mosque to the depth of the earth and even above the same and can not be removed or shifted to any other place at all. No person on the earth can accord a permission for its removal or shifting."

3476. Defendants No.11 and 17 (Suit-5) in written statement dated 14th August, 1989 have supported the plaintiff's suit.

3477. The defendant No.23 (Suit-5) vide written statement

www.vadaprativada.com

dated 18th September, 1989 has contested the entire suit and in paras 51 and 57 has said:

''51. यह कि बाबरी मस्जिद वक्फ़ सम्पत्ति है और सुन्नी व वक्फ़ बोर्ड उत्तर प्रदेष लखनऊ में बतौर वक्फ दर्ज है और इस सिलसिले में अदालत सिविल जज फैजाबाद में मुक़दमा चल कर फैसला हो चुका है और उस रजिस्ट्रेषन से हर शख्स पाबन्द है।''

"51. That the Babri Mosque is a waqf property and it is recorded as waqf with the Sunni & Waqf Board, Uttar Pradesh at Lucknow, and judgement in this regard had come after proceedings at Civil Judgeship, Faizabad and everybody is bound by that registration."

''57. यह कि श्री राम चन्द्र जी की जो भी शख़सियततहॉ उनके नाम का जन्म स्थान मन्दिर अयोध्या में विवादित स्थल के उत्तर और सड़क के उत्तर पहले से काएम चला आ रहा है और उस के महन्त व पुजारी सब लोग हैं। वादी नं0 3 का उससे कोई ताअल्लुक नहीं है।''

www.vadaprativada.com

"57. That the locus of Sri Ram Chandra's identity, whatsoever, Ayodhya situated Janmsthan Mandir named after him, has already been existing to the north of the disputed site and also of the road, and all the people are its Mahantas and priests. Plaintiff no. 3 has no relation to it."(E.T.C.)

3478. Defendant No.24 (Suit-5) while contesting the suit, in para 2, 11, 12, 14, 15, 16, 26 and 31 has said :

"2. That as regards the contents of para 2 thereof the answering defendant has no knowledge of Sri Rama Janam Bhoomi, by which is meant the exact spot of birth of Lord Rama. The site plans referred are alleged to be the part of court record, which can be verified by the Court, and are not admitted to be correct. Today, there are

atleast three spots in Ayodhya claimed as the exact spots where Lord Rama was born, viz.:

(a) The Spot being presently claimed by the plaintiff is being made known as Ram Janam Bhoomi only since 22.12.1949.

(b) The Ram Chabutra, in the court-yard outside the Babri Masjid structure, is being known as Ram Janam Bhoomi only since time immemorial.

The last 2 mentioned spots have not been abandoned by the believing devotees in Ayodhya.

11. The claim in paragraph 19 of the suit paint that " the premises in dispute is the palce where Maryada Purushottam Sri Ram Chandraji Maharaj was born" is denied and contested. This defendant submits that only since 22 December, 1949, about 40 years ago, such a belief has come into existence. If nay documentary or recorded evidence is produced by the plaintiff no.3 establishing beyond doubt that the present belief existed before 22.12.1949 also, this defendant will surrender all his opposition.

12. In this connection, this defendant further submits that when the Babri Masjid was being constructed in 1528 A.D. no such belief existed in Ayodhya, or elsewhere that the place where the mosque was being built was Ram Janam Bhoomi. Goswami Sant Tulsidas, The great biographer of Lord Ram was alive then, and wrote his epic biography "Ram Charit Manas" about the year 1558 A.D., but did not complaint that Babri Masjid was built on Ram Janam Asthan. The book Ram Charit Manas is a pulic document.

In an earlier period, Valmiki wrote perhaps the first Ramayana. He also did not identify the presently contentious spot as Ram Janam Asthan.

In none of the several Ramayans is several languages, the said contentious spot has been mentioned as the place of birth of Lord Ram.

14. Religious sentiments of Plaintiff No. 3 contained in para 22 of the Suit Plaint are respected but the following passage it it is strongly contested :

"The place is deity. It as existed in this immovable form through the ages, and has ever been a juridical person. . . . . Thus Asthan Sri Rama Janam Bhumi is an indestructible and immovable Deity who has continued to exist throughout the ages."

www.vadaprativada.com

Fact of the whole matter is that idea of Rama Janmsthan was first floated by British East India Company's agents in 1855 in order to destabilise the regime of this Defendant's forebear, the King of he realm Wajid Ali Shah. At that time a spot outside the structure of the Babri Masjid, in a corner of the court-yard was claimed as Ram Janam Asthan. But the King settled the dispute by partitioning out the Plot 17 ft. x 12 ft. naming it as Ram Chabutra and by giving it to the Hindus to do "paaths" of Ramayana, peace was then restored.

Again, for the first time on 22.12.1949 the Ram Janam Asthan claim was shifted from Ram Chabutra to right inside the mosque just beneath the main large dome of the Babri Masjid.

Earlier than 1855, the undisputed Ram Janm Asthan

was the old Janam Asthan Sita Rasoi Mandir across the street on a mound facing the Babri Masjid.

All the above mentioned three Ram Janam Asthans are now believed to be Lord Rama's probable places of birth, viz. (i) inside the Babri Masjid beneath the main dome since 1949, (ii) at Ram Chabutra in the court-yard of the Babri Masjid since 1855, (iii) at the old Ram Janam Asthan Mandir where Sita Rasoi is also situated, and whose present Mahant is Harihar Das, aged over 100 years.

15. That the statements made in the first two sentences of paragraph no. 23 of the Plaint are the most important, and all Muslims of India are wiling to make that as the issue and settle the dispute one way or other at this. Paragraph No. 23 opens thus :

"That the books of history and public records of unimpeachable authenticity establish indisputably that there was an ancient temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time of Sri Rama Janam Bhumi Ayodhya. That Temple was destroyed partly and an attempt was made to raise a mosque thereat by the force of arms, by Mir Baqia commander of Babar's hordes."

The plaintiff No. 3 – Sri Deoko Nandan Agarwal, in a booklet named "Sri Rama Janam Bhumi" published by "Sri Ram Janam Mukti Yagna Samiti", 58 Rajendra Nagar, Lucknow, has written at page 2 as follows :-

"That there was an ancient Temple of Maharaja Vikramaditya's time at Sri Rama Janam Bhumi is a fact of history, which is indisputable, although there is some controversy as to which of the Vikramaditya resurrected the place and built the magnificent Temple."

In paragraph no. 23 of the Suit Plaint there is a reference to 1928 Edition of the Fyzabad Gazetteer published by the then British Government in Uttar Pradesh, wherein at page 179 there are stories of Moghul Emperor Babar coming to Ayodhya, halting there for a week, destroying the ancient temple at Janamsthan, and building the Babri mosque on its site the materials of the old destroyed Mandir. But it is the known fact of the history that Emperor Babar never came to Ayodhyan. And that the Babri mosque was built by Mir Baqi and not by Babar has been admitted in the Suit Plaint itself. Further-more, Babar in his Babar-nama, while recording his daily diary, has made no mention of visiting Ayodhya, destroying Mandir or building Mosque there, although in other pages of Babarnama many things adverse are also mentioned.

But the Fyzabad Gazetteer of 1877, this Defendant submits, does not contain any mention of destruction of any Mandir and building of Babri or any Masjid on the Mandir land. Of the two Gazetteers, the one contemporary ad more near to the date concerned will have to be relied on.

District Gazetteer of the British Government, as is well known, were no works of history. They only reflected the policy of the alien Government to divide the cast population of India by creating conflicts such as the present one, and to perpetuate the minority rule of the foreign imperialist power. This defendant submits that all the aforesaid and other conflicting facts need to be investigated by this Hon'ble Court or by a Commission of Experts of history and archaeology to arrive at the truth.

However, after all said and done, it is most respectfully submitted that if only this claim is proved that a Mandir was demolished and Babri Masjid was built on the Mandir land, this defendant and all other Muslims will gladly demolish and shift the mosque, and return the land for building thereon.

But if this is not a fact, the Babri Masjid must in all fairness be returned to Muslims.

In this connection, the following quotation of Swami Swaroopananda Saraswati, the Shaneracharya of Dwarka Peeth, and published in the national news-paper on 14th May, 1987, is being re-produced below from Qaomi Awaj – Urdu Daily of Lucknow :

www.vadaprativada.com

CONDITION FOR RETURN OF BABRI MASJID TO MUSLIMS:

Pune (Maharashtra) 13 May -

Jagadguru Shanakra-charya Swaroopananda Saraswati has proposed that to resolve the Ram Janam Bhumi Babri Masjid table an Authority should be constituted.

Addressing a gathering of the All India Virodhman Asthan Kwasi Jain Shraman Sangh here yesterday he said that if it is proved that Moghul Emperor Babar got the mosque constructed after demolishing Mandir, then surely the Hindus should get the Mandir. But if it is found that Hindu Administrators made the Mandir after destroying the mosque, then the place will have to be made over to

www.vadaprativada.com

Muslims."

In this connection, the celebrates Muslim historian and scholar Maulana Syed Sababuddin Abdur Rahman (since expired) in his welknown treatise "BABRI MASJID" wrote at page 5 at the very beginning of his preface thus : (translation from Urdu)

"On behalf of Muslims I also have right to say that if it is proved that Babri Masjid has been built after demolishin Ram Janam Bhoomi Mandir on its place, then such a mosque if built on such an usrped land deserves to be destroyed. No theologean or Aalim can give Fatwa to hold Namaz in it."

In the monumental theological work Fatwa-e-Alamgiri, Volume 6 Page 214, the following is the ruling : (translation).

"It is not permissible to built mosque on unlawfully acquired land. There may be many forms of unlawful acquisition. For instance, if some people forcibly take somebody's house (or land) and build a mosque or even Jama Masjid on it, then Namaz in such a mosque will be against Shariat."

Other assertions made in paragraph 23 of the Plaint, not specifically dealt with above, are contested and denied. 16. Parts of the contents of paragraph 24 of the Suit Plaint have been answered in para 15 above. This defendant submits that Plaintiff No. 3 is not competent to interpret Koran, Islamic Shariat, and Islamic custom and practices which he has tried to do in sub-paragraphs A, B, C, D, E, F and G of paragraph 24. The interpretations given are strongly contested. The contentions in the Suit Plaint in this regard are wholly irrelevant with the points at issue. This defendant states :

(A) That Emperor Babar or Mir Baqi did not destroy or demolish any Mandir.

(B) Emperor Babar or his commander Mir Baqi did not construct the mosque on the land of on the ruins of any Mandir. Mir Baqi built the Babri Masjid on vacant land.

(C) Sanctity of Babri Mosque was not affected by the creation of Ram Chabutra on the courtyard, or by the mosque being surrounded by Mandirs.

(D) There is no tenet of Islam against existence of a mosque in a noisy place, or in a non-Muslim locality.

(E) Minaret is no essential part of a mosque/

(F) Non-existence of a water reservoir in it does not make a mosque as no mosque.

Finally speaking, if it is not a mosque how it is claimed that mosque was built after destroying the Mandir.

26. That as regards the contents of paragraph 34 and 35 of the Suit Plaint, the answering defendant being a representative of the Shia Muslims of India is deadly against any form of sacrilegious actions. He is of the firm view that no place of worship of any religion should be constructed on the ruins of the destroyed one. The answering defendant firmly believes that the Babri Masjid was certainly not built after destroying the Vikramaditya Mandir or any temple. Yet, at the same time if it is unequivocally proved in this Hon'ble Court in the light of historical archaeological and expert scientific evidence that the Babri masjid was really built after demolishing any Mandir land, only then this defendant will withdraw his opposition.

As a further concession to the Plaintiff No. 3 and to the Hindu community of India whose religious sentiments the said Plaintiff and his party are trying to wrongly arouse since last 3 years, this Defendant is prepared to withdraw his opposition also if it is unequivocally proved, in this Hon'ble Court that the belief, of Ram Janam Asthan being at the presently claimed spot inside the Babri Masjid, existed from before the Babri Masjid was built . And that the Babri Masjid was knowingly built n Ram Janam Asthan spot.

31. Once it is admitted that a mosque was built hundreds of years ago and was used as such it became Waqf by user, irrespective of the fact whether or not legal formalities for creating a Waqf were observed."

3479. Defendant No.25 (Suit-5) in the written statement dated 16/18 September, 1989, in paras 2, 15, 23, 26, 33 and 34 has said :

"2. That the contents of para 2 of the plaint are denied. The area and the places indicated in Annexure No. 1, 2 & 3 of the plaint are neither Ram Janam Bhoomi nor Ram Janam Asthan. However, it is evident that there exists a Mosque known as Babri Masjid, the existence of this mosque is established by record, Historic, Judicial and Revenue. The filing of the Suit no. 2 of 1950 are not denied.

15. That the contents of para 15 of the plaint are denied. There is no question of construction of any temple over the site in question. Answering defendant and his co-religionists have a right to resist any such attempts. The premises is a mosque and Muslims have a right to offer namaz in it. Neither Jagadguru has any right or locus in the matter and nor he can execute any deed legally in respect of the premises in question. The answering defendant is not aware of the religious sect of the so called vairagies of Ayodhya.

23. That the contents of para 23 of the plaint are denied. The narration of history in the plaint is false and baseless. No authentic book of history has been referred in the plaint. The premises has always been a mosque since its construction in sixteenth century, it has always been used by the Muslims for offering namaz and for no other purpose. Remark in the gazette is not an authentic record of history. It is only generalised observation, the Gazette also does not make any reference of nay authentic history or record. The pillars are not Kasauti. However, it is not relevant as the fact remains that it is a mosque, and has always been used as mosque and it is wholly incorrect that anybody else other that Muslims worshipped in the building which is called Babri Mashid. The narration of history by the plaintiff is baseless and false. There is no evidence of the demolition of any temple for construction of this mosque.

26. That the contents of para 26 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The building known as Babri Masjid has always been in use as a mosque and the Muslims have offered namaz in it since its construction till 22nd

December, 1949. Some of those who offered namaz in it are still available. Some part of the mosque was damaged in the communal riot of 1934 and the same was repaired soon thereafter. The threat contained it the para under reply is most unwarranted. There is no dispute between Shias and Sunnis over the mosque in question. Mosque is vested in almighty and every Muslim (Shia and Sunni) have the right to offer Namaz in nay Masjid. The averment in the para under reply are wholly incorrect and false.

33. That the contents of para 33 of the plaint are denied. It may be pointed out that the entire complex belongs to Waqf Babri Masjid, the existence of which cannot be denied.

34. That the contents of para 34 of the plaint are vehemently denied. The premises has always been a mosque and it has been used as such and no one can remove the structure."

3480. Voluminous documentary and oral evidence has been adduced, besides referring a plethora of books on the subject of history, religion, culture, archaeology, architecture, gazetteer etc. to prove rival submissions. The learned counsels for the parties however have not specified and identified evidence separately with reference to the above issues. In general they have advanced their submissions referring to the evidence (documentary and oral, as well as the concerned books) the details whereof shall be mentioned later on.

3481. Sri Zafaryab Jilani, Mohd. Siddiqui and Syed Anwar Ahmad have appeared and argued for plaintiffs (Suit 4), Sunni Waqf Board and other Muslim defendants in other suits while Sri Ravi Shankar Prasad, Sri P.R. Ganpathy Iyer and K.N.Bhatt 3487. In the category of books relating to Archeology and others, Sri Jilani refers to the following:

(i) “Stone Inscriptions” (1992 Discovery) (Paper No. 306 C1/2)

(ii) Copper Plate Inscription (Ex. D28, Suit-5-Paper No. 198C2/100; Ex. D29, Suit-5-Paper No. 198C2/107; Ex. D30, Suit-5-Paper No. 198C2/118, Paper No. 198C2/125; and, Ex. 105, Suit-4-Paper No. 196B-C2/27)

3488. Sri Jilani submitted that there is no historical event mentioned in any of the books of history etc. that Lord Ram was born at the site in dispute; that there existed a temple at the site in dispute; that it was demolished and thereafter the disputed structure was raised on the disputed site; that it continued to be in the possession of Hindus and the Mohamdamns were ousted;

that it was not a mosque but a temple; that the Muslims never offered any prayer thereat; or, that there were consistent and frequent battles and wars or other dispute amongst Hindus and Muslims with respect to possession or otherwise over the disputed site etc.. He submitted that in some of the Gazetteers of 19th and 20th Century, the story of existence of a huge temple at the site in dispute, its demolition at the direction of Babur by his Commander Mir Baqi and construction of a Mosque has been mentioned but that is only hypothetical and refers to no reliable and then existing supporting material to fortify the same. He also took pains in showing different versions in different Gazetteers published from time to time and said that the same are not reliable. In respect to the "stone inscription" alleged to be discovered in December, 1992 (Paper No.306 C-1/2), he submits that in the light of its translation made by Sri K.V. Ramesh, O.P.W. 10, whose expertise on the subject is admitted by the witnesses of both sides, only this much is evident that there existed a Vishnu Hari Temple in 12th Century AD at Ayodhya, constructed by Gadhwal Rulers, and the said stone inscription itself is of 1100-1200 AD, but he submits that from the said inscription it cannot be inferred by any means that it was the site in dispute where the said temple existed or that the Lord Ram was born thereat.

3489. Coming to the documentary evidence, he placed before us the following exhibits in order to show that the Muslims had continued in possession over the site in dispute and disputed structure at least from 1855 to 1885 and then from 1934 to 1949. Further that in the absence of any otherwise material, there is no reason to doubt the claim of the Muslims

that the property in dispute was in continuous possession of Muslims i.e. after the date of its construction till the night of 22/23 December, 1949, when the idols were kept inside the courtyard and Muslim's entry was restricted firstly under the order of the Executive Magistrate and thereafter by the Courts.

3490. At this stage we propose to mention only the exhibits number of the documents cited by Sri Jilani and shall deal with the same, in detail, later on. The documents he referred to are Exhibits No. A21, A19, 70, A14, A15, A16, A17, 18, A20, A8, 1306, A72, A68, A7, A4, A5, A33, A60, A66, A65, A42, A55, A56, A63, A64, A57, A58, 59, 19, 20, 21, A70, 22, A69, A13, 29, 26, A20, 24, 18, A22, A23, A24, A25, A26, A27, 15, 16, 30, 34, 27, 28, A2, A6, A49, A43, A51, 44, A45, A50, A48, A53, A46, A47, A52 (Suit 1), 8, 9, 10 (Suit-3), 105, 87, 102, 88, 92, 62, 90, 1, A10, A11, A12, 83, 52, 19, 20, 50, 49, 53, 54, 55, 13, A15, 16, 17, 7, 6, 8, 4, 9, 23, 51, 25, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, A4, A5, A6 (Suit-4) and D28, D29, D30, D5, D36, 49, 132, 91, D36, E5, E6, 25, D3, 21, 4, E4, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, D35, D34, 005-5-27, 1, 17, 26 (Suit 5).

3491. Sri Jilani, thereafter, placed before us the oral deposition of various witnesses and read certain passages to show that the statement given by the witnesses produced by the defendants are not reliable or acceptable and what has been said by the witnesses of plaintiffs (Suit 4) is correct and deserves to be accepted.

3492. Broadly, he categorized the witnesses produced on behalf of the Muslim parties as under:-

i. Those, who gave statements to prove that prayer (Namaz) continued to be offered in the disputed

www.vadaprativada.com

building till December, 1949. These are PWs 1-9, 12, 14, 21, 23 and 25.

ii. The Muslim religious experts deposing about the characteristics of a Mosque to prove that the disputed building was a "Mosque" and was always treated to be a Mosque by all. These are PWs-10, 11, 19, 22 and 26.

iii. With respect to survey of the site in dispute PW-17 was produced.

iv. Expert Historians i.e. PWs.13, 15, 16, 18, 20, 24, 27, 28

v. Expert Archaeologists etc. who assailed the ASI report, i.e., PWs 16, 24, 29, 30, 31, 32.

3493. Sri Jilani placed before us ASI report in extentio and sought to argue that it contains numerous operational irregularities and shortcomings, misinterpretation of the artefacts found at the site during the course of excavation, and also shows bias of the members of ASI team, therefore, the conclusion drawn is incorrect and unreliable.

3494. He (Sri Jilani) lastly contended that though neither for the purpose of this case he has disputed the faith of Hindus in Lord Ram nor that of Ayodhya as it stands today but still he calls upon this Court to examine that the Indian Vedic Literature and in particular the epic "Ramayana" has been held to be a "myth" containing mythological belief, and therefore to suggest a particular place at Ayodhya as "birth place of Lord Ram" is neither intelligible nor tenable. The vedic literature lacks historicity in view of several historians and cannot be relied on to decide the question about the "place of birth of Lord Ram".

The entire city of Ayodhya as per the belief of Hindus, though an extremely pious and sacred place, but in the absence of any positive material, a particular place can not be ascertained as a birth place of Lord Ram. It is not justified on the part of defendants-Hindus to assert their right of worship at a place whereat about 500 years ago a mosque was constructed which had remained in peaceful possession of Muslims throughout.

3495. The submissions advanced by Sri Jilani have been adopted by other learned counsels namely Sri Mushtaq Ahmad Siddiqui and Syed Anwar Ahmad, appearing for other Muslims parties.

3496. Sri R.L. Verma, Advocate arguing on behalf of defendant no. 3 on the one hand asserted and submits that the site in dispute is the place of extraordinary importance to Hindus since Lord Ram, incarnation of Lord Vishnu, was born in Treta Yug hereat; there was a temple existed at the disputed site which throughout was in possession of Nirmohi Akhara through its Pujaris, Mahant and Sarvarahkar till they were dispossessed under the order dated 29.12.1949 of City Magistrate passed under Section 145 Cr.P.C. appointing a Receiver. He referred to the oral deposition of the witnesses produced on behalf of Nirmohi Akhara to show that prior to 22/23rd December 1949 they were always and throughout performing Puja etc. on the disputed site and it all through remain in their possession. He disputed the very factum of any battle at Ayodhya in 1528 causing any interference in the possession of the alleged temple and construction of mosque by Baber himself or through his agent or any other dispute subsequently also. In the alternative he submits that the disputed

site being the birthplace of Lord Ram had a temple constructed thereat, the outer courtyard had a Chabutara (17x21 ft.) on the south eastern side of the disputed building; and Sita Rasoi at the north west side of the said building, as also the place of Bhandara on the eastern side of the disputed site and all were always in possession of Nirmohi Akhara where it performed Puja etc. through its Pujaris and this state of affairs has never been disturbed by the plaintiffs (Suit-4) or any other muslim party at least since 1855-60 AD till December, 1949 and therefore, entitled for restoration of possession of the said property. He also referred to certain documents and in particular the documents pertaining to suit filed by Mahant Raghubar Das in 1885 AD.

3497. A large number of books including Gazetteers, Travellers Account of William Finch, Niccolao Manucci, William Irvin, the books written on Babar, Architecture etc. were placed by Sri Mishra before us. He also refers to the muslim religious literature in this regard including Holy Quran; Sahih Bukhari's Hadith; Sahih Muslim; Tirmidhi; Books of Mohammedan Law by Amir Ali, Mulla, Faizi, Baille to show that neither the mosque could have been constructed in the given circumstances at the disputed site nor it is so permissible nor was in accordance with muslim law, therefore, the suggestion that the disputed building was a formerly constructed 'mosque' is absolutely incorrect and contrary to law including Shariyat law. He further submits, referring to various gazetteers and documents on record including Exhibit 17 (Suit-1), Exhibit 18 (Suit-1), Exhibit 20 (Suit-1) and Exhibit 30 (Suit-1) that throughout Hindus have remained in continuous possession and

doing worship at the place in dispute, there was never a mosque, it was never used as mosque, it was always used as temple by Hindus, possession of muslim, if any, ceased in 1934; and no Namaz ever was offered after 16.12.1949; and, in the circumstances, it cannot be said that the disputed place is not "birthplace of Lord Rama". The building in dispute could not have been said to be a mosque. The books and materials which he referred to, we shall discuss later.

3498. Sri Ravi Shankar Prasad, Senior Advocate and Sri Madan Mohan Pandey, Advocate for defendant No.2/1 in Suit-4, firstly sought to concentrate submission on issue 14 (Suit-4) and 22 (Suit-5).

3499. According to Sri Ravi Shankar Prasad, Senior Advocate, issue-14 (Suit-4), 22 and 24 (Suit-5) are the issues to establish that the disputed site since ancient and time immemorial has been held and believed to be the place of birth of Lord Rama according to the faith and belief of Hindus, which they worship by tradition, constantly, and this right of Hindus cannot be disturbed at all.

3500. With respect to power of King, he referred to "Yagnovalkyasmriti" translated by Manmath Nath Dutt Verse 343 and "Mulla's Hindu Law" 14th Edn. 1974 Page 84. It is argued that the criminal law immediately comes under the new religious King but civil law continued to be dealt with according to local laws without being changed by the change of Ruler of another religion. It is for this reason that Hindu law was allowed to continue and prosper by Muslims and this practice continued during British regime also. He pointed out that even Britishers only regulated the management of Temple and never

dared to replace or alter the deity. Regarding continuance of Hindu law, he also referred to S. Darshan Lal Vs. Dr. R.E.S. Dalliwall & another AIR 1952 Alld. 825 (para 16); Advocate General of Bombay Vs. Yusuf Alli Ebrahim & others 84 Indian Cases (1921) (Bom.) 759 (para 95-106); Jamshedji Cursetjee Tarachand Vs. Soonabai & others 1 Indian Cases (1907) 834 (Bom.) (para 72, 166-171). In support of the submission that the disputed place has been the birthplace of Lord Ram as per the beliefs, traditions and customs ancient, he refers to "Valmiki Ramayan" (translated by Chaturvedi Dwarka Prasad Sharma); "Bhartiya Sanskriti Ke Char Adhyay" by Ramdhari Singh Dinkar, First Edn. 1956, reprinted 2009 by Lok Bharti Prakashan; "Skanda-Purana" English translation by Dr. G.V. Tagore and, in particular, refers to Section VIII Chapter 10, i.e., Ajodhya Mahata. He says that Purans are 2000 to 3000 years old and Janamsthan itself is a deity. Custom and practice of Hindu religion are to be honoured and fortified his submission by relying on Rais Ahmad Vs. State of U.P. & others (1999) 6 SCC 391 (para 10). He refers to "The Bhagvad Gita" Chapters 6 to 18 by Sri Paramhansa Yoganand and "Bhagvad Gita As It is" by A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupad and submits that all these books are admissible in evidence by virtue of Section 57 (13) of the Evidence Act. Thereafter, he refers to travellers' accounts of Tieffenthaler and William Finch, Gazetteer of 1858 by Edward Thornton, P. Karnegy's Settlement Report of 1870 and "The New Encyclopaedia Britannica", Vol. 9, 15th Edn. Page 916 and Vol. 1 page 751. About legal status of Gazetteers, he submits About the legal status of Gazetteers, he submits that the

www.vadaprativada.com

same can be relied in evidence and refers to Vimla Bai Vs. Hiralal Gupta & others (1990) 2 SCC 22 (para 4 and 5); Bala Shankar Maha Shanker Bhattjee & others Vs. Charity Commissioner, Gujarat State 1995 suppl. (1) SCC 485 (para 22) and Mahant Shri Srinivas Ramanuj Das Vs. Surjanarayan Das & another AIR 1967 SC 256 (para 26). About the faith of Hindus, he also cited the book written by Ranchor Prime titled as "Hinduism And Ecology Seeds of Truth" (page 36 and 49). It is argued that there is no other Ayodhya. Janamsthan at Ayodhya was always treated as sacred and except the place in dispute, no other place in Ayodhya from ancient time has been treated as birthplace of Lord Ram. It has been worshipped from generation to generation and, therefore, forms core of belief of Hindus that Lord Ram was borne at the aforesaid site at Ayodhya. He submits that the right of Hindus to worship at such a place is a fundamental right under Article 25 and 26 of the Constitution. The relief sought by plaintiffs (Suit-4) that the disputed building be declared as Mosque, if granted, shall extinguish the right of worship of Hindus and such a prayer cannot be allowed. In this regard, he placed reliance on Most Rev. P.M.A. Metropolitan & others Vs. Moran Mar Marthoma & another 1995 Supp. (4) SCC 286 (para 43); Ratilal Panachand Gandhi & others Vs. State of Bombay & others AIR 1954 SC 388 (para 10); The Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madras, Vs. Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar of Sri Shirur Mutt AIR 1954 SC 282 (para 17); Sardar Sarup Singh Vs. State of Punjab AIR 1959 SC 860 (para 7); Sardar Syedna Taher Saifuddin Saheb Vs. State of Bombay AIR 1962 SC 853 (para 40 and 56); Bijoe Emmanuel

www.vadaprativada.com

& others Vs. State of Kerala & others (1986) 3 SCC 615.

3501. Sri Prasad argued that belief of Hindus that Lord Ram as incarnation of Vishnu having born at Ayodhya forms an integral part of Hindu religion which cannot be denied to be practised, observed and performed by them and refers to Commissioner of Police & others Vs. Acharya Jagadishwarananda Avadhuta & another (2004) 12 SCC 770 (para 9) and Sri Adi Visheshwara of Kashi Vishwanath Temple, Varanasi (supra). In order to show what constitutes public order under Article 25 of the Constitution, he also placed reliance on Dalbir Singh & others Vs. State of Punjab AIR 1962 SC 1106 (para 8).

3502. Next he submits that applying the doctrine of Eminent Domain, the place in dispute, having special significance for Hindus, cannot be touched at all either by any particular person or even by State and the provisions of even acquisition would not apply to it though with respect to the alleged mosque, it has been already held and observed by the Apex Court that the disputed building could not be shown to be of any special significance to Muslims. He refers to Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui & others Vs. Union of India & others (1994) 6 SCC 360 (para 65, 72, 75 and 96); Acharya Maharajshri Narendra Prasadji Anandprasadji Maharaj & others Vs. State of Gujarat & others (1975) 1 SCC 11. The relief sought by the plaintiff (Suit-4) is barred by Section 34 Specific Reliefs Act, 1963 and reliance is placed on Executive Committee of Vaish Degree College, Shamli & others Vs. Lakshmi Narain & others (1976) 2 SCC 58 (para 20 and 27); American Express Bank Ltd. Vs. Calcutta Steel Co. & others (1993) 2 SCC 199

3503. Lastly he submits that the disputed building in any case could not be a Mosque since its alleged construction, if any, was against the Muslim law or Shariyat. In this regard, he refers to the "Mulla Principles of Mahomedan Law", 19th Edn., "Outlines of Muhammadan Law" by Asaf A.A. Fyzee, Second Edition 1955, "Principles and Precedents of Moohummudan Law" by W.H. Macnaghten (first published 1825); "The Law Relating to Gifts, Trusts and Testamentary Dispositions among the Mahommedans" (Tagore Law Lectures-1884) by Syed Ameer Ali; "A Digest of Moohummudan Law" by Neil B.E. Baillie; "The Hedaya" by Charles Hamilton (edited 1871); "The History of Islam" by Akbar Shah Najeebabadi (1922, reprinted in 2000 Vol. One, page 147 to 148) and "The Holy Quraan" translated by M.A. Haleem Eliasi.

3504. Sri P.R. Ganpathi Iyar, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Rakesh Pandey appeared on behalf of defendant No.13/1, in addition to what has been argued by Sri Prasad, submitted that the place in dispute has since long been worshipped as place of birth of Lord Ram in tradition uninterruptedly and even if any Muslim ruler has made some construction over it, the worship by Hindus has continued which leads to the conclusion that it is the place which is believed to be the place of birth of Lord Ram. He submits that issue No.11 (Suit-4) and 1 (Suit-1) in the manner they have been framed, needs slight modification and the issues which should be considered by this Court is, whether the property in suit is believed to be the site of Janam Bhumi of Shri Ram Chandra Ji by Hindus. He submits that Hindu scripture also contains the details of time, manner of its calculation etc. and it relates the time of birth of Lord Ram several thousands and lakhs of years back. Hence it is beyond the scope of judicial scrutiny at this stage to find out as to when and where Lord Ram took birth since no evidence direct or indirect in this regard by lapse of time would be expected. He submits that in religious matters, where things proceeds on belief, if such types of issues are raised in respect to other religions also, they shall be felt offended. Hence the same test and sanctity must be extended and applied to the belief of Hindus also. For thousands of years Lord Ram is being worshipped as incarnation of God by Hindus. If it can be shown that for a particular place the Hindu's belief is that it is the site of birth place of Lord Ram and such faith and belief can be shown to have existed for the time immemorial, the Courts must give respect to such belief and must take it correct without entering into correctness of such a belief since that would violate Article 25 of the Constitution of India. He also cited certain authorities in this respect, which have also been referred to by Sri Prasad. We propose to deal with all such authorities at the appropriate stage.

3505. Sri Madan Mohan Pandey, Advocate adopted arguments advanced on behalf of Hindu parties with respect to belief about the place in dispute as birth place of Lord Ram and the same stand has been taken by other counsels namely Sri Hari Shankar Jain, Sri Rakesh Pandey etc.

3506. Though we have referred to, in total, 13 issues relating to Site as Birthplace etc. but having heard learned counsels for the parties and after perusing the various documents and other material, we find it convenient to deal with the said issues after further sub-categorization or re-categorisation as under and thereafter to take up these issues accordingly. The sub-categorisation/recategorisation of only these issues for our consideration and analysis is as under:

(A) Whether a temple existed prior to the disputed building which was demolished and thereafter the disputed building was constructed i.e. Issues No.1(b) (Suit-4) and 14 (Suit-5).

(B) The existence of other Hindu religious places making the disputed building landlocked by religious places of Hindus and in this category is Issue No.19(b) (Suit-4).

(C) Whether the Hindus had been continuously worshipping at the place in dispute. Issues No. 13, 14 (Suit 4) and 24 (Suit 5) come in this category.

www.vadaprativada.com

(D) The presence of idol in the disputed building i.e. Issues No.2 (Suit-1) and 5 (Suit-3).

(E) Issues No.1 (Suit-1), 11 (Suit 4) and 22 (Suit-5) relates to the site of birthplace of Shri Ram, believed as such by Hindus by tradition etc.

(F) Others.

3507. These issues relate to the religious faith in respect to the place of birth of Lord Rama; determination of the exact place of birth; investigation into history of more than hundreds and thousands centuries; whether there existed a temple/religious structure of Hindus which was demolished to construct the disputed structure over the land in dispute; whether the disputed building was actually constructed. as a mosque by

www.vadaprativada.com

Babar or under his dictates by Meer Baqi; and who was/is carrying on religious practices like prayer etc. at the said place for the last more than 500 years etc.

3508. The very nature of these questions make it writ large that decision either side is bound to affect the religious sentiments of one or the other community. From the record, we have also seen that the dispute between two communities over the land in question is continuing atleast for more than one and a half century. At times efforts were made to resolve the dispute amicably by pursuing the two communities to arrive at a compromise, honourable and acceptable, to both sides. In the past, sometimes the efforts seemed to be successful but could not resolve permanently since the dispute revived time and again. Some of the questions, we doubt whether would come within the scope of judicial review in a Court of law. On other issues, we have more serious doubt about the availability of relevant material or evidence on the basis whereof a Court of law can record a finding of fact either way. Some individual observations by some persons at some point of time, the traditions and practices followed for a long time, continuous or interrupted, views of the people in the concerned locality, references made by the investigators/historians/visitors in one or the other way etc. whether constitute sufficient evidence for deciding such issues of far reaching consequences conclusively is really a task extremely difficult. The issues are complicated with a wide canvass and also sensitive involving highly versatile sentiments and religious pathos of two major communities of present India. We, therefore, with care, proceed to scrutinize rival claims to find out the truth objectively, dispassionately and without being influenced by any other factor except the truth and justice. We shall endeavour to arrive at a just conclusion so that the dispute amongst two communities may get settled permanently for all times to come.

3509. The parties before us not only have placed religious literature, historical books, gazetteers published in pre and post independence period, certain other literary books containing references to the matter in dispute, but have also examined a large number of witnesses including Expert Historians, Archaeologists, Epigraphists etc. This Court also tried to find out truth by permitting excavation through ASI which has also submitted its report giving its opinion. However some of the parties have filed their objections against the report of ASI which is also required to be considered.

3510. The issues relates to history and historical events. The chronology of the occurrence thereof has to be found out, if any. Broadly, it appears that oral evidence would be of little help. The historical events have to be seen in the light of the history, other relevant books and corroborative material of relevant period, if any. The history and other books cited and referred also contain divergent views. One or the other party, during the course of argument, to some extent, has commented adversely in respect to one or the other books while trying to persuade this Court to accept the view they are propagating . These books in our opinion cannot be acted upon merely on their face value.

3511. The alleged history, placed before us, has to be considered in the light of the credentials of the author, his knowledge, understanding, level of investigation, discussion on the subject, the circumstances, the period when it is written, the motive or objective, if any, and such other similar factors. We know that most of the books written by renowned and esteemed persons enjoy a very high reputation amongst the historians and therefore, what they have written, may not easily be ignored. However, we also can not ignore the fact that while writing a history book the author sometimes is influenced by the institution or body who has employed him, some times though free lancer, but expresses his views and findings according to his own appreciation without having occasion of cross-check by other experts and some times the purpose of the writing may have domination over independent objective and fair assessment and instead of simply placing on record the events of history straight, he mould facts giving a totally different shade and colour. A Court of law, when comes across such documents which are placed for adjudication of an event or disputed fact of historicity, has to proceed with extreme caution and careful manner. It cannot just treat the views expressed by the historians as a gospel truth. We have noticed and shall demonstrate what was said two centuries back, was widely corrected with the passage of time and in modern times, a considerable number of persons have come forward with well documented and discussed version canvassing a totally different view which also cannot be brushed aside easily but worth consideration. Obviously, the historians, past and present, are not eye witnesses of the historical events, but by sheer dent of diligence and intelligensia, they have analysed past events in the light of material available to them to explain historical events and have tried to apprise the people thereof. But, when in a

Court of law, the things are discussed threadbare with logic, rationality and positive material, the position many a times turns wholly different. Besides, a huge religious, cultural literature has been placed suggesting that there is a cemented faith and belief of the community in respect to certain facts about their existence. Such faith and belief may not be tested by a Court of law being beyond the scope of judicial review. It is suggested that such faith which is borne out from such ancient literature should be accepted on its face without any tinkering and the matter deserves to be decided accordingly. In a battle simply that of religious historicity, this Court has all odds to ponder over such a controversy. Moreover, considering sensitivity of the matter, the issues have to be analyzed delicately like a surgeon's hand, so as to reach a just decision which may cause harmony amongst the two major communities virtually covering the entire country. It would not be only in the interest of the litigating parties but also necessary for national integration, peace and tranquillity.

3512. In this case the learned counsels who have referred to various books including that of a very large number of history etc., assisting us to make threadbare scrutiny of the matter and reach a just and correct decision.

(A) Existence of Temple & Demolition :

3513. The questions are whether there existed a temple before the alleged construction of disputed building which was demolished and thereafter the building in dispute was constructed. Here issues no. 1(b) (Suit 4) and 14 (Suit 5) need be answered.

"Whether the building had been constructed on the site of an alleged Hindu temple after demolishing the same as alleged by defendant no.13 ? If so, its effect ?"

"Whether the disputed structure claimed to be Babri Masjid was erected after demolishing Janma-Sthan temple at its site ?"

3514. The oldest document after the construction of the disputed structure wherein existence of a temple (building of Lord Rama) and its demolition has been mentioned is Tieffenthaler's "Description : Historique Et Geographique : Del'Inde" (supra) from Pages 252 to 256, Exhibit 133 (Suit-5) (Register 21, page 273-289).The relevant extract of the Tieffenthaler's work is reproduced as under:

A portico extends around it. It is said that Ram, after having defeated the Giant Ravan and having returned from Lanka, descended into this pit and disappeared. Deriving from this, this place was named 'Gouptar' which means 'Departure for the Air'. 3515. In 1838, the report of Robert Montgomery Martin was published. Exhibit 20 (Suit-5) (Register 21, pages 321-324) contains photocopies of pages 335 and 336 of Vol. II of "The History, Antiquities, Topography And Statistics Of Eastern India" by Montgomery Martin first published 1838. The entire set in six volumes of the aforesaid work of Montgomery Martin first published 1838 and first Indian reprint 1976 is available, i.e. Book No. 35. The relevant extract from pages 331 to 336 has already been reproduced while discussing the issue pertaining to date of construction of the disputed building. For the purpose of issues in question hereat, a few lines relevant may be noticed as under:

being the most modern, is ascertained by an inscription on its walls (of which a copy is given) to have been built by Babur, five generations before Aurungzebe.....The only thing except these two figures and the bricks, that could with probability be traced to the ancient city, are some pillars in the mosque built by Babur. These are of black stone, and of an order which I have seen nowhere else, ... they have been taken from a Hindu building, is evident, from the traces of images being observable on some of their bases; although the images have been cut off to satisfy the conscience of the bigot."

3516. In Edward Thornton's Gazetteer, 1858 (supra), he also said:

"according to native tradition, they were demolished by Aurungzebe, who built a mosque on part of the site. The falsehood of the tradition is, however, proved by an inscription on the wall of the mosque, attributing the work to the conqueror Baber, from whom Aurungzebe was fifth in descent. The mosque is embellished with fourteen columns of only five or six feet in height, but of very elaborate and tasteful workmanship, said to have been taken from the ruins of the Hindoo fanes, to which they had been given by the monkey-general Hanuman, who had brought them from Lanka or Ceylon. Altogether, however, the remains of antiquity in the vicinity of this renowned capital must give a very low idea of the state of arts and civilization of the Hindoos at a remote period. A quadrangular coffer of stone, whitewashed, five ells long, found board, and protruding five or since inches above ground, is pointed out as the cradle in which Rama was as the seventh avatar of Vishnu; and is accordingly abundantly honoured by the pilgrimages and devotions of the Hindoos."

''However, like Mathura and Banaras which were cleaned of the dirt, straws and garbage of the Kufra (infidelity), Faizabad and Oudh were also cleaned because it is a sacred place for worship. It was the capital of the father of Ram. The places of idols (But Khanas) were demolished and no idols were left unbroken. Big mosque was constructed on the place of big Butkhana and small mosques were built on the place of small ones. The Janam Sthan is the birth place of Ram and adjacent to it. There is Sita Rasoi. Sita is the name of the wife of Ram. Here Babar has built grand mosque in 923 under the supervision of Syed Musa Ashikan. The year 923 is still remembered for the construction of the mosque adjacent to Sita Rasoi for and near. The mosque of Ram Darbar was constructed by Fidai Khan Subedar who has been teased by the infidels who have separated the two minarets and the wall. In the period of Amjad Ali Shah, orders were issued for its construction but his sudden demise, he took this wish along with him while the Qila Masjid was given as Maafi to Lachhman Mahant. The mosque has become his house (sic). The Mahant has taken back this place from Khan Mir. The position of the mosques under the possession of Hindus, is well known. May God save you. Good bye. ''Oudh is the central place of Sita Rasoi. At that place, in the period of king Babar, a grand and sky touching mosque Babri was constructed. At that time Hindus could not dare to oppose us. The mosque was constructed in 923 under the supervision of Syed Mir Ashiqan. Its name is there in the history. In Ram Darbar, a mosque was constructed by Fidai Khan Subedar and thus founded Islam there. Opposite to this place, there were a Teela. Raja Ram Chandra, being pleased with the conquest of Lanka, gifted it to his obedient friend Hanuman.''

''Then in the Babri Masjid, where Sita Rasoi is situated, pre-announced Puja began, (sic) participated. The administrators braving silver shoes, became their obedient servants. Nobody informed. Earlier the proverb of sheikh Ali Haji was true to the situation. "Be Bein Karastey Butkhana-e-Mera Ali A Seikh. Ki Choon Kharab Shawad, Khaana-e-Khuda Gardad.'' (i.e. the Butkhana on the way which was considered a bad place, became the abode of God)

Then a great change occurred, mosques were being pulled down and temples were constructed there. But we remained sleeping. Nobody awoke. Till 1271 Hijri, in the period of Wajid Ali Shah, some Faqir Shah Ghulam Husain, through an application requested that Islam was being ruined and insulted. But at that time, nobody heard his voice. Resultantly the Shah Saheb turned to Faizabad. Here Sanam Beg Kotwal and Aley Ali Chakladar were entrusted some work. But they were opposed to it. Meantime some Muslims along with Shah Sahab rushed to Oudh. A big mass of Hindus along with Man Singh of the neighbourhood was supporting the claim of Bairagis. Although there was Muslim Rule, but Muslims were not heard anywhere. Neither where was any help forthcoming nor there was anybody to solace Muslims. All the roads for them were closed because of Aamil. The minister turned a deaf ear to it. The king also did not pay attention towards the gravity and dire consequences of the situation. In the month of Zeequad, 1271 Hijri, Friday, the Muslims of Ahata Atal Khan, gathered in the leadership of Shah Ghulam Husain. On the other side, some 10 to 12 thousand Bairagis collected, armed with weapons. Aley Ali told the Muslims that there was scarcity of Sultani Fauj. You people are in minority while Hindus are in majority. But do not go away from here. By the evening, the army of R Saheb, would be forthcoming, on this side, we are increasing in number. Now wait a bit. Let the dawn come.

The next day when they gathered, the Administration again hid and told that the palton of R Saheb is awaiting king's orders. So you have patience. They only remained talking. In Oudh, the Hindus cordoned a Muslim Mohalla but the brave youths did not showed their back. Swords were crossed. The death started playing havoc. Here all this commotion was going on, in Dar Agubar, thousands of Hindus collected on the other side, Shah Gulam Husain and his companions unaware of the happenings were busy in cooking food. When they (Hindus) reached their heads, they began preparation to face them. Rustam Ali Khan who was "Rustam" in true sense and his brother Ahmad Ali Khan who was also a brave man fought well. Inspite of being in great number, the enemy ran away and took shelter in Rang Mahal. When the Muslims reached there the Namard (eunuch) ran away from there also. The brave persons followed them and killed many of them. At last some of them climbed on the roof of the houses and began using the guns. Four of them came forward. There was a shower of bullets which played havoc. Three of them became martyrs after reciting Kalma shahadat. Rustam Ali Khan recited Azaan, climbing on the door of Hanuman Garhi. At the same moment a bullet hit his forehead and the soul broke away every fetter to reach in the heaven. The Bairagis cordoned the mosque and killed 69 persons. They cleaned the place of the dirt and in religious activities. They did the same at Faizabad Oudh. Here the prominent place. . . . . belonged to the father of Ram and Lakshman. The mosque was build on the Kutub Khana of the Janam Sthan by Syed Musa Ashiqan in 923 and remained humming with life. This place was known as Sita Rasoi among Hindus. Date of construction is known as Khair Baqi 923 which is an important memory. Fidai Khan Subedar got the mosque constructed over Ram Darbar which was demolished by the Hindus."

Hanuman Garhi, Babri Masjid. The Hindus also defaced Masjid, Ram Ghat. They began throwing garbage in the mosque and by demolishing the graves made splendid temples.

In 1271 Hijri, during the reign of Wajid Ali Shah, Shah Ghulam Husain with the help of Maulvi Mohammad Ariz (sic) got the mosque reconstructed and established Bazm-e-Jihad in Haidrabad across the river for removing the temple from there. The son of Bankey Hasan Ali Khan, Ahsan Ali Khan Risaldar became its leader. Moreover Rustam Ali Khan and his brother Bahadur Ali Khan also joined the said organization. Some other persons also joined and all of them started for Faizabad. They reached Radna where they were stopped by the men of in-charge of Agha-e-Nazim, Sultanpur and they did not allow them to move forward. Shah Saheb took the way to Lucknow and those who had reached Faizabad were evacuated by Naib Kotwal Nisar Husain and Captain Alexender R, through Mohana. Later on a news paper from Faizabad. . . . about Hindus and Muslims. After inspection, Agha Ali Khan alias Aghai Nazim and Nirza Munam Beg Kotwal were ordered to enquire into the matter At this occasion Shah Saheb sent to Ayodhya some Muslims accompanied by Noor Ali R/s Muzafal, Azamgarh. They stayed at Babri Masjid. After a few days Shah Saheb also reached the said mosque along with Maulvi Araz. They were small in number and had no luggage etc. but they were firm and persistent against the Bairagis. About 80 thousand Hindus collected and closed Ghagra Ghat so that Muslims could not have any help from across the river. A good number of Muslims were with Maulvi Saheb and Shah Saheb. 3522. He was officiating Settlement Officer at Faizabad and relatively in a better position to know what the people believed at that time. Since the incident was quite old, i.e., hundred years or more, direct evidence was difficult to trace out but in comparison to recent rights set up, the facts mentioned by Carnegi obviously deserve more credence and weight.

3523. In 1877, Assistant Commissioner, Faizabad District W.C. Benett gave us "Gazetteer of Oudh" (supra). He also said in para 6 of the Book:

3531. Exhibit 50 (Suit-5) (Register 21, pages 349-361) contains frontispiece and pages no. 59, 60, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154 and Parishishtha “Gha” (Annexure-D) in two pages from the Book “Ayodhya Ka Itihas” by Lala Sitaram Awadhwasi, 1932 published by Hindustani Academy, Prayag. The complete book is also available to the Court, i.e., Book No. 46. There is slight difference in the Book No. 46 and the pages marked as Exhibit 50, though it is reprint of 2001, since the arrangement of contents in the pages on account of size of the fonts etc. is different. Substantially there is no difference in the contents. Pages 59 and 60, i.e., paper no. 107C1/123-124 are pages no. 44 and 45 in Book No. 46. Pages no. 150 to 154, i.e., paper no. 107C1/125-129 are pages no. 113 to 116. In the revised edition, Appendix "Gha" is not the same and in fact the text of the inscriptions which have been repeated in Appendix "Gha" at paper no. 107C1/130-131, has been excluded in the Reprint edition. It further appears that the translation of the two inscriptions given on paper no. 107Ca/127-128 differs from the translation given in Appendix "Gha", i.e., paper no 107C1/130-131. How and why it has happened is not known and we cannot make any comment on it. The author has given his own separate history with respect to the Babar's alleged visit at Ayodhya and it says:

''बादशाह बाबर ई0 सन् 1528 में दल बल के समेत अयोध्या की ओर बढ़ा और सेरवा और घाघरा के संगम पर उसने डेरा डाला। यह संगम अयोध्या से तीन कोस पूर्व था। यहाँ वह एक सप्ताह तक आस–पास के देश से कर लेने का प्रबन्ध करता रहा। एक दिन वह अयोध्या के सुप्रसिद्ध मुसलमान फ़कीर अब्बास कलंदर के दर्शन को आया। उस समय बाबर के साथ उसका सेनापति मीर बाकी ताशकंदी भी था। बाबर ने फ़कीर को बड़े महँगे कपड़े और रतन भेंट किए परंतु फ़कीर ने उन्हें स्वीकार न किया। बाबर सब वहीं छोड़कर अपने पड़ाव पर लौट गया। वहाँ पहुँचने पर उसने देखा कि सारी भेंट उसके आगे पहुँच गई। बाबर चकित हो गया और नित्य फ़कीर के दर्शन को जाने लगा। एक दिन फ़कीर ने कहा कि जन्म–स्थान का मंदिर तुड़वाकर मेरी नमाज के लिए एक मस्जिद बनवा दो। बाबर ने कहा कि मैं आपके लिए इसी मंदिर के पास ही मसिज़िद बनवाए देता हूँ। मंदिर तोड़ना मेरे 'उसूल के खिलाफ है।' इस पर आग्रही फ़कीर बोल उठा, ''मैं इस मंदिर को तुड़वाकर उसी जगह मसजिद बनवाना चाहता हूँ। तू न मानेगा तो तुझे बददुआ दूँगा।'' बाबर कॉप उठा और उसे अगत्या फ़कीर की बात माननी पड़ी और मीर बाक़ी को आज्ञा दे कर लौट गया। मसजिद बनवाने का एक दूसरा कारण 'तारीख पारीना मदीनतुल औलिया (تاریخ پارینہ مدیندۃ الولیا) में दिया हुआ है। और वह यह है :

''बाबर अपनी किशोरावस्था में एक बार हिंदुस्तान आया था और अयोध्या के दो मुसलमान फ़कीरों से मिला था। एक वही था जिसका नाम हम ऊपर लिख आए हैं और दूसरे का नाम था मूसा अशिक़ान। बाबर ने दोनों से यह प्रार्थना की कि मुझे ऐसा आशीर्वाद दीजिए जिससे मैं

इसके आगे मसजिद बनाने का ब्यौरा महात्मा बालकराम विनायक कृत कनकभवन–रहस्य से उद्धृत किया जाता है:

''मीरबाक़ी ने सेना लेकर मंदिर पर चढ़ाई की। 17 दिनों तक हिंदुओं से लड़ाई होती रही। अंत में हिंदुओं की हार हुई। बाक़ी ने मंदिर के भीतर प्रवेश करना चाहा। पुजारी चौखट पर खड़ा हो कर बोला, 'मेरे जीते जी तुम भीतर नहीं जा सकते।' इस पर बाक़ी झल्लाया और तलवार खींचकर उसे क़त्ल कर दिया। जब भीतर गया तो देखा कि मूर्तियॉ नहीं हैं, वे अदृश्य हो गई हैं। पछता कर रह गया। कालांतर लक्ष्मणघाट पर सरयू जी में स्नान करते हुए एक दक्षिणी ब्राह्मण को मूर्तियॉ मिलीं। वह बहुत प्रसन्न हुआ। कहते हैं कि उसकी इच्छा भी यही थी कि कोई सुंदर भगवन्मूर्ति रखकर पूजा करे। अस्तु, पुजारी के वंशधरों ने जब सुना, तब तत्काल नवाब के यहॉ अपना दावा पेश किया। नवाब ने निर्णय किया कि जिसे मूर्तियॉ मिली हैं वही सेवा–पूजा का अधिकारी है। निदान, स्वर्गद्वार पर मंदिर बना, उसमें उन मूर्तियों की स्थापना हुई। उनकी सेवा–अर्चा अब तक उस ब्राह्मण के वंशधर करते हैं। ठाकुर जी काले राम जी के नाम से प्रसिद्ध हैं। इसमें एक बड़े काले पत्थर पर राम पंचायतन की 5 मूर्तियॉ खुदी हैं।

बाक़ी बेग ने मंदिर की ही सामग्री से मसजिद बनवाई थी। मसजिद के भीतर 12 और बाहर फाटक पर 2 काले, कसौटी के पत्थर के स्तंभ लगे हुए हैं। उक्त शाह जी की कब्र पर थे, जो अब फैज़ाबाद के अजायबघर में रखे हुए हैं। इन स्तंभों को देखकर प्राचीन मंदिर की सुंदरता का कुछ–कुछ अनुमान किया जा सकता है। इनकी लंबाई 7 से 8 फुट तक है। किनारों पर और बीच में चौखूँटे हैं और शेष भाग गोल अष्टपहल है। इन पर सुंदर नक्काशी का काम बना हुआ है। मसजिद के भीतर एवं फाटक पर 2 लेख खुदे हुए हैं उनसे मसजिद से संबंध रखने वाली बातें मालूम होती हैं। मसजिद के भीतर वाला लेख इस प्रकार है :

3532. In Chapter 6 paper no. 107C1/123-124, the author (Sitaram) has tried to trace out reference of Ayodhya in 'Vedas' and has said:

''छठा अध्याय

वेदों में अयोध्या

वेदत्रयी में स्पष्ट रूप से न कोशल का नाम आया है न उसकी राजधानी अयोध्या का। अथर्ववेद के द्वितीय खंड में लिखा है :

अष्टचका नवद्वारा देवानां पूः अयोध्या;

तस्यां हिरण्मयः कोशः स्वर्गो ज्योतिषावृतः।।

{देवताओं की बनाई अयोध्या में 8 महल, 9 द्वार और लौहमय धन–भंडार है, यह स्वर्ग की भॉति समृद्धिसंपन्न है।}

ऋग्वेद मं. 10, 64, 9 में सरयू का आह्वान सरस्वती और सिंधु के साथ किया गया है और उससे प्रार्थना की गई है कि यजमान को तेज बल

दे और मधुमन घृतवत जल दे।

सरस्वती सरयुः सिन्धुरूर्मिभिः महोमही रवसायंतु वक्षणीः,
देवी रापो मातरः सूदयित्वो घृतवत्पयो मधुमन्नो अर्चत।।

इससे प्रकट है कि हमारे देश के इतिहास के इतने प्राचीन काल में भी सरयू की महिमा सरस्वती से घटकर न थी। पंजाब की दो नदियों के साथ सरयू का नाम आने से कुछ विद्वान यह अनुमान करते हैं कि इस नाम की एक नदी पंजाब में थी परंतु हमें यह ठीक नहीं जॅचता।

शतपथ ब्राह्मण में कोशल का नाम आया है और ऋग्वेद में कोशल के सूर्यवंशी राजाओं का कहीं–कहीं नाम है। ऋग्वेद मं. 10, 60, 4 का ऋषि राजा असमाती और देवता इंद्र हैं।

''यस्येक्ष्वाकुरुपव्रते रेवान्मराय्येधते। दिवीव पंच कृष्टयः।।''

इसमें इक्ष्वाकु या तो पहला राजा है या उसका कोई वंशज। और वह इंद्र की सेवा में ऐसा धनी और तेजस्वी है जैसे स्वर्ग में 5 कृष्टियॉ (जातियॉ) हैं।

इक्ष्वाकु से उतरकर 20वीं पीढ़ी में युवनाश्व द्वितीय का पुत्र मांधातृ हुआ। वह दस्युओं का मारने वाला बड़ा प्रतापी राजा था और ऋग्वेद मं. 8,39,9 में अग्नि से उसके लिए प्रार्थना की जाती है। वह मंत्र यह है :

''यो अग्निः सप्तमानुषः श्रितो विश्वेषु सिंधुषु।
तमागन्म त्रिपस्त्य मंधातुर्दुस्युहन्तममग्नियज्ञेषु
पूव्यं नभंतामन्यके समे।''

ऋग्वेद मं. 8,40,12 मांधातृ अंगिरस के बराबर ऋषि माना गया है।

''एवेन्द्राग्निभ्यां पितृवन्नवीयो मन्ध्यातृवदंगिरस्वदवाचि।
त्रिधातुना शर्मणा पातमस्मान्वयं स्याम पतयो रयीणाम्।।''

इसके आगे ऋग्वेद मं. 10,134 का ऋषि यही यौवनाश्व मांधता है। उस सूक्त का अंतिम मंत्र यह है :

''नकिर्देवा मनीमसि नत्किरायो पयामसि, मंत्रश्रुत्यं चरामसि।
एक्षेभिरभिकक्षे भिरत्रामि संरभामहे।।''

इसको ध्यान से पढ़िए तो ऋषि का अच्छा शासक होना प्रकट होता है। वह केवल अपने वैरियों का विनाश नहीं चाहता वरन यह भी कहता है कि हम उन दोषों से मुक्त रहें जिनके कारण राजा लोग अपने धर्म से विचलित होते हैं। इन मंत्रों में नाम कहीं मंधातृ है और कहीं मांधातृ है परन्तु दोनों के एक होने में संदेह नहीं।''

> "Ayodhya, also called OUDH or AWADH, a city of ancient India, on the Ghaghara (Gogra) River in Faizabad district of Utter Pradesh, India. From it are derived later forms of the name, Avadh (Awadh) and Oudh. Ayodhya is regarded as one of the seven holy places of the Hindus. According to traditional history, it was the early capital of the kingdom of Kosala, while in Buddhist times (6th-5th centuries BC), Sravasti became the kingdom's chief city. Scholars generally agree that Ayodhya is identical with the city of Saketa, where the Budha is said to have resided for a time. Its later importance as a Buddhist centre can be gauged from the Chinese Buddhist monk Fahsien's statement in the 5th century AD that there were 100 monasteries there. There were also a number of other monuments, including a stupa (shrine) reputed to have been founded by Asoka (3rd century BC). Ayodhya is revered by Hindus because of its association in the Ramayana, a great Indian epic poem, with the birth of Rama and with the rule of his father, Dasaratha. According to the source, the city was prosperous, well fortified, and had a large population.

independence early in the 18th century but became subordinate to the British East India Company in 1764. In 1856 it was annexed by the British; the annexation and subsequent loss of rights by the hereditary land revenue receivers provide one of the causes of the India Mutiny in 1857. Oudh was joined with the Agra Presidency in 1877 to form the North-Western Provinces and later the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, now Uttar Pradesh state.

There are few surviving monuments of any antiquity. Rama's birthplace is now marked by a mosque, erected by the Mughal emperor Babur in 1528 on the site of an earlier temple. *The numerous Vaisnava shrines and bathing ghats are of no great age. 3537. Hans Baker made research in respect to Ayodhya pursuant to grant of Project of University of Groningen (Netherlands). He submitted thesis to the Faculty of Letters of University of Groningen in 1984. The book titled as "Ayodhya" is actually his published Thesis which is a part of Groningen Oriental Studies and was published in 1986. The relevant extract of the findings of Hans Baker which are relied by some of the learned counsels are as under:

"Vaisnavism no doubt received some impetus when Saketa/Ayodhya became one of the foremost cities of the Gupta empire. The ascendancy of Saketa, its identification with Ayodhya, the place of Vishnu's incarnation, the evidence of special reference to the Rama avatara in circles closely connected with the Gupta court at the beginning of the fifth century, the fact that the Gupta emperors from Candragupta II onwards styled themselves parambhagavatas and that Skandagupta even compares himself with Rama, the recording of the foundation of temples, notably of a Visnu temple dedicated to the 'God with the Bow' (Sarngin) by Skandagupta – all strongly endorse the assumption that Vaisnava temples also appeared in Saketa/Ayodhya during the 4th and 5th century. At least some of the ten Deva temples mentioned by Hsuan tsang may have been dedicated to Visnu. Yet, there is no archaeological or literary evidence to support this assumption.

The oldest pieces of archaeological evidence are the

black columns which remain from the old (Visnu) temple that was situated on the holy spot where Rama descended to earth (Janmbhumi). This temple was destroyed by the first Mogul prince Babur in AD 1528 and replaced by a mosque which still exists. The following specimens of these pillars are known to exist: fourteen pillars were utilized by the builder Mir Baqi in the construction of the mosque and are still partly visible within it; two pillars were placed besides the grave of the Muslim saint Fazl Abbas alias Musa Ashikhan, who, according to oral tradition, incited Babur to demolish the Hindu temple. The grave and these two pillars (driven upside-down into the ground) are still shown in Ayodhya, a little south of the Kubertila. A seventeenth specimen is found in the new Janmsthana temple to the north of the Babur mosque. It is rather a door-jamb than a column.

The pillars inside the mosque were described by Martin*: "These are of black stone and of an order which I have seen nowhere else, and which will be understood from the accompanying drawing. That they have been taken from a Hindu building, is evident from the traces of images being observable on some of their bases; although the images have been cut off to satisfy the conscience of the bigot. . . They are only 6 feet high." the same columns were* described by Carnegy: "These are of strong, close-grained, dark slate-coloured, or black stone, called by the natives Kasoti" (kasauti), "('touchstone slate') and carved with different devices. . . they are from seven to eight feet long, square at the base, centre and capital, and round or octagonal intermediately." I was not allowed to inspect the columns inside the mosque. From a distant glance and from the description above it is beyond doubt that they are the same as the two pillars found beside the grave.

The two columns at the grave of Musa Ashikhan rise about 1m above the ground. They are carved at the base with a pot (kalasa) with overhanging creepers from which a decorative lotus rises up. On one of the octagonal sides of one pillar a female figure in tribhanga pose (measuring c. 15-20cm) is still visible although it is heavily mutilated. As far as they protrude above the ground the columns are octagonal passing into a square at the base. They may date from the tenth or eleventh century.

The door-jamb found in the modern Janmsthana temple (it rests against the wall of the inner-court) consists of the same type of material as the other columns. It is 115cm long, and decorated with sculptured figures from top to bottom. At the base is a small arched recess in which stands an elegant image of make deity (25cm high). The deity wears a makuta (tiara), his right hand shows the vitarka-mudra, his left hand seems to hold something that most resembles a trisula. The figure wears a dhoti and vanamala and is standing in tribhanga posture. An identification of the image with Visnu would be unwarranted, since it may as well represent one of the (guardian) deities of the temple precincts. Above the niche are two vertical bands of decoration, the right one shows the petal, or rising creeper motif, the left one contains five figures of nymphs, one above the other, the uppermost one being a salabhanjika. The jamb may date from the same period as the columns, although they are not necessarily from one and the same temple. All these pieces are ascribed by local tradition to the Visnu temple that occupied the Janmbhumi site before the coming of Babur.

Curiously enough, Laksmindhara who gave a survey of the well-known Hindu tirthas of the eleventh century mentions neither Ayodhya nor the birthplace of Rama.

- The oldest Visnu idol (10th-11th century) found in the surroundings of Ayodhya is the one lying among the debris of a temple at the holy place Dugdhesvara (Sitakunda) near the village Darabganj. It represents one of the 24 forms of Visnu, viz., Visnu Trivikrama. The sculpture (36x46cm) is much eroded, yet intact. Other fragments, among which a pedestal, are found at the same site.

- Rather than testifying to an ancient Saiva temple the two medallions in the Guptahari/Cakrahari temple in the Gopratara compound may have belonged to a Visnu temple on this site. Gopratara is the oldest tirtha of Ayodhya. Cakrahari figures in the Vaisnava tour II(S), whereas TP, quoting the S recension of AM, reads Guptahari and Gopratara instead. The existence of a Visnu temple at the Gopratara ghat belonging to the early period seems therefore plausible. Gopratara is the only tirtha in the Ayodhyaksetra that is mentioned by Laksmindra. The S

recension preserves the name of the Visnu temple (visnor ayatanam) in which the image of Visnu Guptahari was installed, namely Harismrti (AM 58.3). The relation between Cakrahari and Harismrti is not clear and the name Harismrti is deleted in the OA recension. From the data given above we tentatively conclude that there existed an ancient Visnu temple at the Gopratara ghat (possibly erected before AD 1000) named Harismrti. The idol of the temple came to be known as Guptahari. The image and the Visnu temple Harismrti are not necessarily of the same date. The temple might have been provided with a new image (Guptahari) in the course of time (12th century?; cp. I,54).” (Pages 43-45)

3538. Chapter 8 deals with the development of "Ayodhya" as Sacred Center from 13th to the middle of the 18th century with special reference to the Ayodhya Mahatum.

www.vadaprativada.com

“The appointment of Malik Nasir-ud-din Mahmud governor of Avadh in AD 1226 initiated a period of Islamization of official life in the provincial capital. Although it did not mean, as will soon be seen, the developments in the Hindu fold were totally repressed or that an effective check was put upon its activities, it did precludes the building of Hindu temples of any significance and permanence until the 18th century. This is proven by the existence of a gap in archaeological evidence with respect to Hindu artefacts, images and temples alike, from the thirteenth to the seventeenth century. The few idols found that could belong to the seventeenth century might equally be assigned to the eighteenth century. In the latter century great building activity was initiated again under the liberal rule of the Nawwabs of Oudh. The oldest temples in Ayodhya date from this time, and the majority of 'old' images found today likswise belong to this period at the earliest.

It would seem that under Muslim supremacy it was possible for Hindu religious life to continue on a modest scale in old temples which were built before Muslim rule, until they were eventually demolished. The first Hindu temple that is known to have succumbed to this fate was the temple on the Janmbhumi, which was replaced by a mosque by order of Babur. Yet, besides in temples, congregations could be held at the bathing ghats on the river and at holy places, mostly tanks or kundas, in the town and its surroundings. On the occasion of festivals temporary structures like mandapas (awnings) could be raised to serve for worship.

The oldest versions of the AM, as well as independent evidence, seem to endorse the view that the religious structure of Ayodhya as far as Hinduism is concerned was not essentially different in the 13th and 14th centuries from that in the 12th. Jinaprabhasuri, writing in AD 1332 mentions mainly tirthas that have been shown to exist in the 12th century: the ghats on the Saryu river, Svargadvara and Gopratara, the naga sanctuary in the north of Ayodhya, now under the name of Sahasradhara, the confluence of the Sarayu and Gharghara, and the shrine of the yaksa Mattagajendra, said to be situated on top of the city wall (prakara). Further the Jain author mentions the

Sitakunda among the several other Hindu tirthas (anegani loiatitthani). The ban on building new temples may have left open the possibility of resorting to new holy bathing places in the river and in ponds. In default of archaeological remains of bathing places it is generally difficult to ascertain whether and how many of the kundas described in later texts were existent in the 12th or earlier centuries.

In order to complete our understanding of the sacred topography of Ayodhya and its surroundings we shall turn to the main source of information, the oldest version of the Ayodhyamahatmya. It will be shown in Intr.Pt.II that the oldest transmitted texts of the AM tradition are not only found in the recension of the Mahatmya that was included in the Vaisnavakhanda of the Skandapurana(siglum S). An additional collection of legends is preserved in a MS henceforth referred to as B. It will be shown that a chronological differentiation between S and B is not warranted on textual critical grounds. S as well as B appear to go back to a 'floating', possibly oral, tradition which will be designated by the phrase 'α-type-of-text'. The transmittors of the (oral) tradition composed and collected the legends of the holy centres which had begun to emerge in the eleventh and following centuries. Accordingly the α-type-of-text is not to be considered as a fixed body of sacred literature nor was it necessarily homogeneous, as is shown by differences between S and B and within S itself. It would have been a kind of compendium of sacred information about the holy places and their traditions which gradually assumed a more definite form in a tradition transmitted by local Pandits and priests, until it underwent the first literary redaction and was included by the composer of the Vaisnavakhanda in the body of smrti literature. Consequently the S recension is only an instance of a process that had begun long before and would continue afterwards.

A survey of the sacred topography of the holy ksetra as rendered in the α-type-of-text at the stage of its redaction in the S recension is presented in table I. We observe that specific Ramaite holy places are still in a minority, notably within the town itself. From the twenty seven Hindu places described in chapters 2-3 (i.e. before AD 1200) only three (11%) could be positively related to Ramaite mythology. Taking together all places presented in table I we note that 31% of them are somehow connected with Rama Lore. We should treat these figures with caution, however, because the absence of literary evidence from before AD 1200 may seriously distort our view of that period.

No sanctuaries within Ayodhya itself that were not already supposed to exist in the 12th century are described in B and S. the Varahasabha mentioned in B might refer to a temple dedicated to Varah near the confluence of the Sarayu and Gharghara. The two Ramaite palaces, Kaikeyi-bhavana and Sumitrabhavana, may refer to subsidiary shrines within the Janmasthana, compound or to the bare sites on either side of it rather than implying the existence of separate temples. Both sites are

today still without a temple of any significances. Besides the Janmasthana, places within the precincts of the town that are explicitly connected with Ramaite mythology by legends of their origin are the naga sanctuary sahasradhara (where Laksmana reunited with Sesa), the yaksa shrine of Surasa, the river Tilodaki and the two tanks Ksirodaka and Sitakunda. MS B adds to this the ghat on the river on the eastern side of the city called Ramakunda. In addition S mentions seven ponds or tanks within the town of a general Hindu connotation and of unknown antiquity.

Besides being reflected in the sacred topography, the gradual Ramaization of Visnuism in Ayodhya may be gleaned from theological remarks in the S recension. It should be noted before-hand, however, that S is predominantly a non-sectarian Vaisnava text which conceives of the supreme deity as Visnu, Hari, or Bhagvat. Yet, this does not alter the fact that signs of Ramaization appear throughout the text.

In his introduction the narrator of the Mahatmya Romaharsana, speaks the words: namami paramatmanam ramam rajivalocanam/atasikusumasyamam ravanantakam avyayam//. As was already known from the Ags., Laksmana is conceived of as an incarnation of Sesa. Release (mukti) is said to be within reach of everybody by means of worship (puja) of Rama with incense, flowers, lamps, etc. A bath in the Ramaite tirthas such as the Sarayu or the Sitakunda leads to reunion with Rama (ramarupo bhaven narah, or ramam avapnuyat). The text further notes the meditation on Rama, and the installation of a Rama image (ramamurti).

But, nor surprisingly for a mahatmya text, pilgrimage to Ayodhya ranks first among the means of salvation. Ayodhya is the place to be seen in the Kali age. The merits thereof are extolled in the usual way by comparing them with the fruits to be obtained in other holy places, notably Kasi, the river Ganga, Gaya and Purushottama. Finally S extols the visit and darshan (darsana) of Janmasthana on Rama's birthday, especially meritorious for one who observes the vow of Navami:

"A man who has seen (Janmasthana) will not be born again, even if he does not offer gifts, does not practise asceticism, does not go on (further) pilgrimages, or does not perform sacrifices: When the day of Navami has come a man engaged in the vow will be liberated from the bondage of rebirth due to the miraculous power of a bath and a gist. By seeing Janmbhumi he shall obtain the result that accrues to one who offers daily a thousand red cows.".

If we compare the text of MS B with that of S we observe that B has a less generally Vaisnava and more specially Ramaite stamp. The topography described in B taken by itself consists of approximately 45% Ramaite holy places. With regard to theology B adds to S the doctrine of Rama's grace (prasada). Two devices to reach Rama, comparatively absent in S, are accentuated: the darshan (darsana) of Rama, and the powerful means of release that is at the disposal of the devotee in the form of Rama's name (ramanamaprasada). Japa of the name yields bhukti and mukti. Concomitant with emphasis on the name is the high esteem in which the practice is held of participating in the recitation of Rama's exploits: "The deeds of Raghunatha comprise a hundred crores (of syllables): each syllable destroys a man's great sins." "And when one goes (on pilgrimage) to Ayodhya one should always (nitya) be engaged in recitation, singing the beautiful story of the incarnation (pradurbhavakatha) of the Lord." Other hymns mentioned in this context are the Namasahasra, the Stavaraja, and the Gajendramoksanastotra. Another significant difference between MS B and S is the concept n the former of a celestial Ayodhya which is replicated on earth by Visvakarman. Finally B accentuates the celebration of Ramanavami by describing a gathering (mela) that is held on the bank of the bank of the Sarayu near the Ramakunda on the occasion of the birthday:

"Gods and Asuraas, men, Nagas, Yaksas, Gandharvas, and Kinnaras, all the Planets and their foremost, the Sun, preceded by Rahu and Ketu, the Guardians of the world to begin with Indra, and Sesa along with the other Serpents, the Gods with Brahma at the head, and the (Divine) Mothers, Rudra and the others, all these have come to Ayodhya and reached the bank of the Sarayu. When the day of Navami has come men, Gods, and Asuras alike come for darshan to where God Rama is present, O great Goddess."

Considering that both S recension as well as the legends preserved in MS B go back to the α-type-of-text, we are led to infer the the composer of the Vaisnavakhanda in selecting and editing his material was endeavouring to establish a traditional Vaisnava text of a non-sectarian

character. The predilection of this 'smrti author' can be amended by considering B and S together.

To fix the period in which the α-type-of-text was redacted and included in the Vaisnavakhanda the following arguments may be considered. The fact that some of the holy places described in S appear to have been established at the end of the eleventh and in the twelfth century almost excludes the possibility that the redaction of S was made before AD 1200. The references to devotion to Rama that are found throughout S and the Ramaite form of Vaisnavism that is manifest in B only endorse this conclusion. At the time of the redaction the Rama cult must have been already well established in Ayodhya. In fact it may have been the principal cause for the transformation of local holy places into centres of pilgrimage, which again made the want of an authoritative text more acutely felt and encouraged the insertion of the local mahatmya tradition into an acknowledged smrti text. These historical circumstances point rather to the 13th or 14th century, if not later. The practice of wandering around singing the name of Rama referred to in B is a historically attested phenomenon at least from the time of Ramananda whose floruit was most probably in the 14th century.

A terminus ad quem is set by a quotation from the AM from the Skandapurana in the work of Jiva Goswami in the 16th century. Moreover that century witnessed the growth of a new conception, viz., that of the Ramadurga, which, as we shall see below, greatly altered the structure and appearance of Ayodhya as a holy town. This idea is still completely absent in S as well B. On the contrary the sacred topography described in S does not significantly differ from the situation in the 12th century, and tallies with the description given by Jinaprabhasuri in the beginning of the 14th century.

In view of the above consideration we are inclined to accept the close of the 13th or the 14th century as the most plausible date for the redaction of the α-type-of-text and its insertion in the Vaisnavakhanda (S).

On account of the more outspoken Ramaite character of B, notably the description of a (new) ghat (Ramakunda) and the conception of a celestial Ayodhya, features that represent significant modification with respect to the S recension, we are inclined to accept (despite the text-critical evidence) a somewhat later date for B (14th-15th century). B may have been culled from a later, modified and extended version of the α-type-of-text." (Pages 125-130)

"In summarizing we may say that both religious as well as political sources testify to a prospering town in the fourteenth century; a growing centre of political and commercial activity, with which the development of a centre of pilgrimage went hand in hand. Periodical fairs may have served commercial as well as spiritual ends. The most important of the festivals in those days was doubtlessly the birthday of Rama. On this and similar occasions the town attracted an increasing number of pilgrims in pursuit of darsana of the Janmasthana. Among the devotees Sants like Ramananda, Saiva ascetics like Siddhigiri, or Muslim pirs like Badi ud-din Madar Shah might equally have been found. Melas took place mainly, it seems, on the bank of the Sarayu river. The most frequented ghats of this period can be gathered from the pilgrimage tour described in S: 1) Svargadvara and both adjacent temples of Candrahari and Dharmahari, 2) Brahmakunda, 3) Cakratirtha with the temple of Visnuhari, and the ghats and temple of Gopratara a little outside of the town. This configuration is corroborated by a description of Ayodhya that occurs in a MS of the Nrsimhapurana. To ensure peace and the loyalty of the Hindu part of the population the Muslim governors appear to have tolerated these gatherings which no less contributed to their own welfare. Apart from the new Muslim quarter unnecessary provocation of Hindu resentment was avoided as is apparent from the fact that no buildings such as mosques and the like were raised on Hindu holy ground.

Muhammad Tughlaq's successor, Firuz Tughlaq founded the present city of Jaunpur in AD 1359. After the invasion of Timur-i-lang, when confusion prevailed throughout the Sultanate, the Wazir Khwaja-i-Jahan, who was endowed with the title Malik-ush-Sharq, was sent by the Sultan Nasir-ud-din Mahmud to recover the eastern dominions in AD 1394. He took his residence in Jaunpur, and soon proclaimed independence. Avadh became part of the Sharqi territory until it was eventually recovered by Bahlol Lodi, the Sultan of Delhi, who appointed his nephew Mian Kala Pahar Farmuli

Governor of Avadh in the last years of his reign (AD 1489). Ayodhya came under the control of the Lodis. About the aforementioned Lodi governor, Abbas Khan Sarwani remarks; ". . . his jagirs were never disturbed and during all this time he gave his attention to nothing else except the accumulation of wealth. I have heard from persons of veracity that he had assured three hundred mans of red hard gold, and he did not purchase any other but golden jewelry." Ayodhya might have been the right place for this hoarder since gold was found in its environs (see below).

Little is known as to the specific Historical situation in Ayodhya under the rule of the Sharqis and Lodis. In the political domain the town had to concede much ground to the city of Jaunpur. Along with the weakness of central authority Hindu chiefs gradually strengthened their hold on the situation. With regard to this period Joshi remarks: "Under the Jaunpur kings Avadh was administered in a better way than under the Sultans of Delhi. The local zammindars and rajas also appear to have strengthened their position and the Sharq rulers (surrounded as they were by petty though independent principalities) had to placate them to maintain peace and order in their kingdom."

Scarcity of sources inevitably obscures the progress of the town during the fifteenth century. Subsequent history proves that the foundations were laid for a period of blossoming. An idea of the prosperity and religious prestige which was attained on the eve of the age of the Great Moguls may be gleaned from the evidence left behind by the founder of the Mogul Empire.

The conqueror Zahir-ud-din Muhmmad Babur visited Ayodhya in Hijri 934 (AD 1527). The new emperor writes in his diary that he was on the march to Oudh and reached the town for the first time about March 29: "We stayed a few days on that ground (near Aud) in order to settle the affairs of Aud. People praised the land lying along the Sird(a) 7 or 8 kurohs (14-16 miles) above Aud, saying it was hunting ground." Unfortunately the diary breaks off after April 2 AD 1527, only to resume in September 18 AD 1528. In this interval a mosque was raised by order of Babur on the site of the Janmabhumi temple. Babur might therefore have stayed in Ayodhya somewhat longer or have returned later in the same year. Beveridge gives the translation of a fragment which probably deals with Ayodhya and which has obviously been displaced in the codex on which the translation of Leyden and Erskine was partly based. "The passage contained in this section seems to be a survival of the lost record of 934 AD (f.339) . . . It may be a Persian translation of an authentic Turki fragment, found, perhaps with other such fragments in the Royal Library." The translation of its runs: "After spending several days pleasantly in that place, where there are gardens, running-waters, well-designed buildings, trees, particularly mango trees, and various birds of coloured plumage, I ordered the march to be towards Ghazipur."

The columns of the Janmabhumi temple that were used in the construction of the mosque have been described above. The mosque itself contains two inscriptions, the translation of the one inside reading*:*

"By the command of the Emperor Babur, whose justice is an edifice reaching up to the very height of the heavens, the good-hearted Mir Baqi built this alighting-place of angels. Bavad Khair baqi: (May this goodness last forever). The year of building it was made clear likewise when I said buvad khair baqi" (=935 AD, i.e. AD 1528).

Another incomplete inscription is found above the entrance which provides no additional information. Mir Baqi Tashqandi was apparently appointed first Mogul Governor of Avadh*.*

By the time of Babur Ayodhya, particularly the temple of the Birthplace and evidently gained such prestige that it aroused the envy of the new emperor, possibly incited by local Mussulmans for whom the flourishing of this Hindu centre of pilgrimage had for long been a thorn in the flesh. Local tradition has it that it was especially the pir Fazl Abbas Musa Ashikhan (whose grave is still marked today by two temple columns), who instigated Babur to demolish this denounced centre of idolatry."

500 dhanus (>910m) westwards of Lomasa, 1008 dhanus (=1835m) eastwards of Vighnesvara, and 100 dhanus (=182m) from Unmatta in an unspecified direction. In the middle of this ksetra the royal palace called Janmasthana is said to be situated. It is uncertain which places are meant in situation (2), and one is inclined to consider these three slokas as spurious. Unmatta and Lomasa do not occur elsewhere in the Mahatmya, while Vighneswara (if identified with Vighnesa) was said in S 21.1a to lie south-west of the Janmasthana instead of west. Moreover the Vighnesa referred to in S 21.1a lies somewhere in the area of the Ramkot (see Intr.AM 17), whereas the Vighneswara mentioned in S 21.2a is said in OAB 21.3c to lie 1,835m eastwards.
